Physical Check-Up for All Children Entering School For First Time

On Two Afternoons

Examinations at Burgess' Office On Wednesday and Thursday April 26-27

Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, April 26-27, the physicians and dentists of Perryton are cooperating with the Parent-Teacher Association in a spring health check-up of all children who will enter public school next fall for the first time. This examination, which consists of a physical check-up by Perryton physicians and dentists, is free.

After the check-up is made, if any defects are found, the doctors will make recommendations for the correction of these during the summer before school opens next fall. Parents are urged to bring children to the office of Supt. Burgess on either day promptly at one o'clock.

Physicians on duty: Dr. J. C. L. Kengle and E. J. Burns, physicians, and Dr. Manse Wood, dentist.

On Thursday at 1:00 o'clock: Dr. J. C. L. Kengle and Dr. E. R. Jarboe, dentist.

The physicians and dentists of Perryton are gladly donating their services and time on these two days to the interest of healthier children.

A healthy child can do much better work in school. If the child is healthy, a check-up will do no harm, and any defects exist, a thorough examination now may save much in suffering later on.

All parents in Ochiltree County are urged to take advantage of this spring round-up sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association.

Ambiguous Law

Sheriffs and Deputies for New Law in Legislature To Clarify Duties

Sheriffs and other peace officers in Texas are working for the passage of House Bill No. 717 and 737, which seeks to eliminate a legal ambiguity. According to information just received by Sheriff J. S. Talley the present law does not give a sheriff or constable arresting authority in certain instances.

The following information was sent Mr. Talley by Mrs. Joe L. Ray, Austin, secretary of the Texas Sheriff's Association.

"The inspiration back of the bill referred to is the fact that under the interpretation of the laws of the State of Texas by the courts, it has been held that a peace officer, other than a city marshal or city policeman, does not have the right to make an arrest without a warrant of a person engaged in disorderly conduct or any disturbance whatsoever.

"This interpretation of the law prevents a sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable or any other peace officer excepting a city marshal or city policeman from arresting a person charged with drunkenness without first obtaining a warrant. The fact also that such handicap under the law prevents the lawful arrest without a warrant of a person under the influence of liquor and about to drive an automobile, subjects the public to great peril and the law enforcement officer to the possibility of being penalized for false imprisonment.

"The statute which makes the above illegal was published in Southwestern Reporter, Second Series, 124 S. W. 2d No. 2, March 7, 1939. The decision grew out of a case in another county which was appealed."

PREHISTORIC INDIAN CITIES
ABANDONED BEFORE SPANISH
EXPLORATION OF PANHANDLE

CANYON, Texas.—Dust of uncounted years and dust-storms has been removed from the ruins of a prehistoric Indian house on Antelope creek in Hutchinson county and from the excavations have come new light on the homes and habits of a people said to have achieved the highest development of any confined solely to the state of Texas.

In a preliminary report on Archaeological Project No. 9429, Floyd V. Studer of Amarillo has recorded much data of scientific importance and has written the preface to interpretations which will be made to the Works Progress Administration, which finances the work, and to various institutions and scientific bodies. Mr. Studer, Amarillo insurance man who has studied Panhandle archaeology, geology, and paleontology, is the representative of West Texas State College sponsor of the project. Elie Baker, project supervisor, findings are deposited at the museum of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, for which Mr. Studer is curator and director of the department of archaeology.

"It is significant," Mr. Studer writes, "that no European object of any kind was found at this ruin, and none has been reported found on or within other Texas Panhandle Culture ruins. When Coronado and his Conquistadores came through the Panhandle of Texas in 1541 seeking the kingdom of Quirira, his historians made no mention of a house-building Indian in this area. Onate was here in 1601. Hurtado in 1715, and many others during the 280-year period of Spanish exploration in the Southwest, and Pray Juan de Padilla was in this area in 1541, yet none mentioned the house-building Indian. It would appear that these structures were then in ruins and covered by the dust of the centuries. The ruins were too large there were too many of them, and they covered too great an extent not to be mentioned by these careful chroniclers."

Who were these Indians? From what direction did they come, and when? How long did they stay? When and why did they leave? Where did they go? These are some of the questions to which Mr. Studer has been seeking answers since he found his first arrow head in the sands of Hemphill county while a youth.

The Panhandle culture, he notes, appears similar to that of better known cultures in some respects, yet in detail orphaned from the others. The primitive Indians settled here, they built permanent homes, lived in villages, tilled the soil, and made serviceable pottery. The ruins reveal nothing of the complex building methods and ceramic art of the Pueblos of New Mexico and Arizona.

Mr. Studer thinks there is no doubt that the nomadic Indians of the plains raided this sedentary people for food and flint supplies, as they did the Pueblos of New Mexico in more recent times. Yet an examination of the Panhandle ruins shows no evidence of a hasty departure. Rather, it evidently was a slow abandonment of this area in favor of locations in New Mexico and points beyond.

The Antelope Creek ruins, completely excavated in eleven months, was made up of 26 rooms in the main house. Many other ruins in the area, as yet unexcavated, are larger. Eight groups are found with a radius of three-fourths of a mile. The one excavated is located below the rolling plain on a bench of the deep ravine through which Antelope Creek flows. It was a site well chosen for defense. Nearby springs furnished good water.

The house proper, Mr. Studer records, measured about 100 by 45 feet. Rooms vary from 8-10 to 22-22 feet in size. Walls and roof were made of native stone, adobe and caliche, and roofs of wood, brush, and adobe. Single story construction was used. The larger rooms were living rooms, as shown by the finding of fire places, metates, and other household objects. In these houses the Indians lived throughout the year, enjoying considerable warmth in winter and cool rooms in summer.

"Their ventilating system was undoubtedly an effective air-conditioning system even though crude, if measured by our modern equipment," Mr. Studer writes.

"No outside windows or porches were found. There were several floor-level horizontal shafts but all living rooms no doubt had hatchways on the roof which were used for entrance and as smoke vents and regulators. The inside walls were plastered. The floors were made of well-packed smooth clay. With the material at hand no more serviceable house could have been built to withstand and conform to the quick-changing climate of North Texas."

The doorways, passages and ventilating shafts all face the east and are built of stone slabs.

Walls and roofs of the shafts were made of carefully selected but unworked flat stones. One unusually large room probably was used for ceremonial purposes. Storage bins and cists were subterranean, with masonry floors and side walls.

"Several thousand artifacts, remains, identical bones, pottery sherds, and flint and stone work were found," the report reveals.

"Among these were about 50 bone awls, 200 arrow points of three main types, 100 knives, 100 end scrapers, and many side scrapers. Mr. Baker's report will give the exact number of artifacts and will describe them more fully."

"Pottery forms found were wide-mouthed, globular bodied vessels. Most of this pottery was designed for culinary use. No objects of art in pottery were found. . . . There is little variation in design, composition, or appearance. . . . The Texas Panhandle pottery differs vastly from the pottery found on many plains sites. It rarely has a smooth exterior. The pottery varies in color from intense black to gray. The inside is always smooth, but the outside bears irregular cord or paddle marks."

Seven burials were found in the ruins and several skeletons recovered in good condition. Bones from refuse heaps and cists were predominantly bluish, but some were of deer, antelope, prairie dog, rabbit, squirrel, and bird. Bone tools, pipes, of clay and stone, and fishing and weaving instruments were numerous.

Food supplies included, besides meat, corn, mesquite beans, and possibly squash. Project workers now excavating at the Albatras ruins in northeast Potter county are unearthing even more significant objects.

Fluff Fit for a Queen

This pile of wool will be woven into fabric and presented to England's Queen Elizabeth, when she and the king visit the United States. Gathered at Boston, Mass., from 30 sheep-raising states, the wool gets a close inspection by J. Frank Ding, wool expert, who is showing it to Gladys Surles.

Daisy Doesn't Wait for Dinner

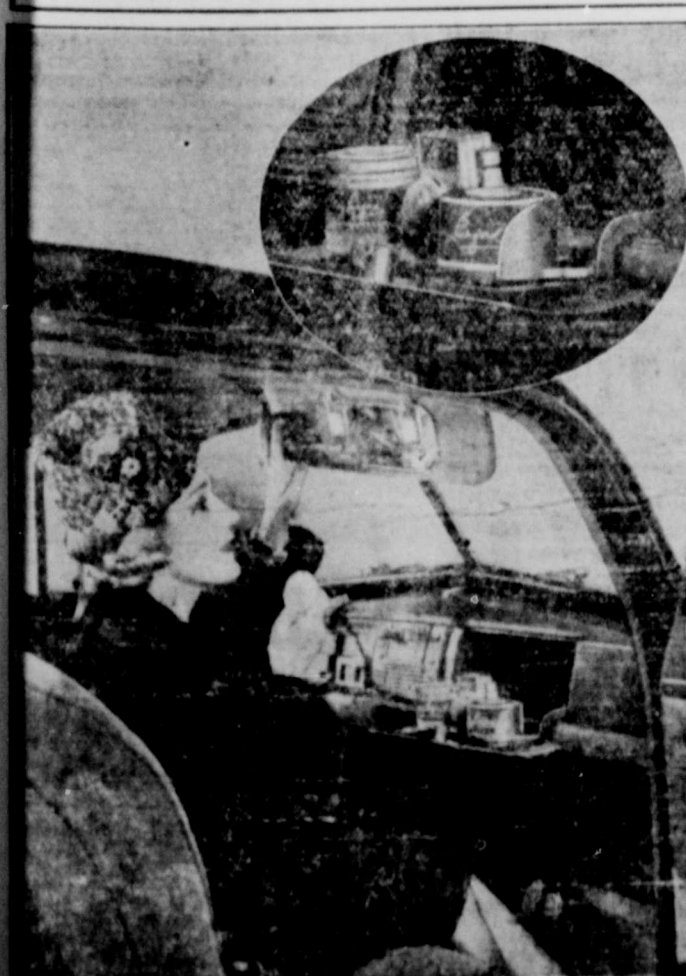

Stretching up and grasping the trip rope to an automatic feed box, Daisy shows how she has learned to help herself to a meal. Although other cattle in the milk herd of the T. Sefton farm, Greensburg, Ind., have similar feeding arrangements in their stalls, this Jersey cow is the only one to discover the trick.

'Snowballing' With Orange Flavor

Southern kids may not get much chance to snowball silk toppers, but this picture seems to prove that they have their "winter sports" anyhow. After pickers had gleaned this orange grove at Clearwater, Fla., the rascals swooped down on the culls, some sides, and let fly at each other with over-ripe oranges.

Last Word in Convenience

The desire to make a car reflect its owner's individuality is a potent factor in the average motorist's choice of accessory equipment. And it would be hard to find a more thoroughly "personalized" car than this new Chevrolet which Mary Pickford is shown applying a touch of makeup. As if the handily illuminated vanity mirror were not enough, the car has a special kit of Miss Pickford's own famous beauty aids, now on the market under her name. The container, holding lipstick, rouge, powder and cream, folds neatly up into the glove compartment when not in use. Inset shows close-up of vanity case.

Home Demonstration CLUB NEWS

NEW HOPE CLUB

Mrs. Albert Ackley, Reporter

"I have soddied my yard with buffalo grass because it will stand drought better," stated Mrs. R. E. Taylor, yard co-operator, at a meeting of the New Hope Home Demonstration Club held Wednesday, April 12, in the home of Mrs. C. J. Frantz. The native buffalo grass will grow and do well with very little artificial watering where Bermuda grass wouldn't even live. Mrs. Taylor has set out about 30 roses and other shrubs around her home and she doesn't want a grass that will require constant care and water. Mrs. Taylor has planted over 200 trees this year, part of which form a windbreak to protect the flowers and shrubs in her yard.

This meeting was held to make up for one missed last week on account of the rain. The members answered roll call by telling where they had met their husbands. Parts were given out for the next meeting.

Two guests were present Mrs. L. R. Frantz, and Mrs. G. J. Brandvik. Members attending were Mrs. W. G. Yearry, Mrs. J. E. Yaden, Mrs. W. L. Lovett, Mrs. Carl Carter, Mrs. Alvin Koehn, Mrs. Fred Furnish, Mrs. Gus Koehn, Mrs. R. E. Taylor, Mrs. C. R. Cudd, Mrs. O. E. Carter, Mrs. Albert Ackley, and the hostess, Mrs. C. J. Frantz.

McMILLAN CLUB

Julia Hamilton, Reporter

"The native buffalo grass is the best to plant in this country," stated Mrs. Hazel Martin, county home demonstration agent, at the meeting of the McMillan Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. Blansit Carter on April 13.

"In selecting prairie grass be sure to get the kind that spreads by runners on top of the ground. Do not choose gramma or the bunch grass as it will not spread or grow evenly. When plowing or digging the grass from the pasture, remove it at a depth of four inches to get good roots. Make trenches in the prepared ground the depth of the sod so as to keep the lawn smooth." These were further instructions given by Mrs. Martin.

Several club members are cultivating wild flowers in their yards this year. Anyone interested in wild flower culture should send for the bulletin "Kansas Wild Flowers." Write to the Agriculture Experiment Station, Topeka, Kans.

Those present for the meeting were Mrs. J. H. Callahan, visitor from the Wolf Creek club, and the following members: Mesdames Delbert Davis, A. C. Dial, James Hardy, B. L. Barnes, Willis Hardy, J. L. Flowers, Sam McLain, Kenneth McLain, Hazel Martin, Miss Julia Hamilton and the hostess.

Mrs. Martin showed the way to place a pattern on the materials and how to cut the notches.

BUSY BEE CLUB

Marie Carlson, Reporter

"A young girl should select her clothes with regard to her personality," stated Mrs. Hazel Martin at the meeting of the Busy Bee Home Demonstration club which met with Vivian Williams on Saturday, April 15.

"Simplicity should be the keynote of the young girl's wardrobe," further remarked Mrs. Martin. "Dresses that are without fussy detail will fit into most affairs and are suited to the young girl."

Mrs. Martin laid out a pattern on the material, showing how to place the pattern, cut and mark the notches. She stated that the girls would show their clothing work at the 4H style show to be held late in the summer.

PERRYTON CLUB

Mrs. B. B. Lee, Reporter

"A child is not honest because he is born of honest parents but he acquires that characteristic by daily teaching and example," stated Mrs. W. M. Boston in her talk on "Honesty" at the meeting of the Perryton home demonstration club in the home of Mrs. D. K. Baumann on Friday, April 14.

"Our training in early childhood stays with us all through life," further stated Mrs. Boston. "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much; and he that is unjust in the least is unjust in much." Luke 16-10.

Other program numbers were: "Personality," Mrs. Lake Patton; "Neat Appearance," G. L. Patton; "Courtesy," Mrs. Lee; and "Physical Condition," Mrs. D. D. Taliaferro. Each person gave an interesting talk. Clever rhymes to fit the personality of someone present was given.

Delightful refreshments were served by Mrs. E. W. Witt, Mrs. G. S. Yates, visitors; and Mesdames W. M. Boston, M. F. Hethcock, J. W. Herrell, Lake Patton, W. G. Hibbs, G. L. Patton, D. D. Taliaferro, L. C. Boston, Lynch Dodson, B. B. Lee, and the hostess.

MRS. G. A. BURGER MAKES OWN YARD IMPROVEMENTS

Mrs. G. A. Burger, a cooperator of the Waka Home Demonstration club is doing much to make her farm home more attractive and home-like. Mrs. Burger's yard was with out any grass and was badly blown. Mr. Burger plowed up the entire yard and leveled it in time for Mrs. Hazel Martin, County Home Demonstration Agent to give a demonstration on sodding. Good buffalo grass was plowed up on a nearby pasture and the whole front yard was sodded on the day of the demonstration.

Other improvements at the Burger home include shrub beds which have been prepared around the entire house. Perennial flowers have been planted in these beds and two native cedars have been planted at the front corners of the house. Mrs. Burger is working for a permanent planting of shrubs in the shrub beds. She has prepared an excellent cutting bed, which is filled with sand and tiled with cans. She was fortunate in having a piece of glass which covers the bed closely. Mrs. Burger is adding to her collection of cuttings.

If Mrs. Burger's plans work out as she has outlined, her yard will be attractive and her home one her family may well be proud of. The whole Burger family enjoy working on the improvement of their home. Lois, a daughter, is an active member of the Waka 4-H club. Harlan Dean, a son, is a member of the boys 4-H club.

County Agent E. W. Thomas is attending a dairy show in Plainview this week.

Cut Your Harvest Costs With JOHN DEERE!

Save Time, Labor and Grain

We now have a complete line of John Deere combines ranging in size from 6 to 20 foot cuts. Come in and compare these machines with any other machines on the market today. John Deere has been keeping up with the trend to smaller combines for the farmer with the small acreage, but they have not failed to improve and modernize their 16 and 20 foot combines. Our 16 and 20 foot machines are as modern as any of the smaller machines, but they have the capacity to handle the 16, 18 or 20 foot platforms. We ask that you compare these large machines with others before buying— count the number of chains, number of parts, type of bearings; observe the powerful six-cylinder motor, size of cylinder (largest of any combine on the market), absence of wood parts, ease of control, etc. Compare prices and terms and we are convinced that you will buy a John Deere combine.

Children's Tantrums

Child Authority Gives Advice To Parents on Prevention Of Such Tantrums

College Station, Texas—Most children understand their parents better than their parents understand them, says Doreen Hale, specialist in child development and parent education with the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service.

They soon learn the way to break down parental firmness, often by "throwing tantrums," and their methods vary with the parent. For instance, a child who knows that mother is worried about his health may, when balked, refuse food or sleep, hold his breath or knock his head against the floor. Another, who knows that noise is father's weakness, may yell, scream, kick, pound or slam doors to get results.

Prevention is better than cure for tantrums of children. "Remove the causes before tantrums and tantrums become a habit and a hindrance both to children and grown-ups," Miss Hale points out.

In early childhood, hunger and fatigue are the two main causes, and parents should establish regular times for eating, for naps, and for bedtime, so that youngsters do not have a chance to become too tired or too hungry.

Tight clothing, or clothing that hampers small children may also call for tantrums. The remedy is clothes that are simple and easy to manage. Play clothes should allow free movement and activity.

The best way to prevent future outbursts is for parents to understand what causes them, and to help their child meet the difficulty. Miss Hale says. While they help him to learn, they must make sure that his temper tantrums do not succeed.

A Turn For The Worse

Offer New Course

Add Another Unit for Teaching Professional Home Economics At University

Austin, Texas—Opening of the new institutional laboratory, self-supporting, at The University of Texas, early in May, will add another unit to the facilities for teaching co-eds professional home economics.

So great has become the interest in the field of institutional management—operation of cafeterias, school lunch rooms, dormitories, tea rooms, hospital food services, and other large scale agencies—that the University has expanded its curriculum in this subject.

In the two years since the course here was approved by the American Dietetic Association, graduate students have enrolled from eight colleges and universities, and from six states besides Texas.

Students will learn about handling accounts, making budgets, meeting financial obligations—including the retirement of the loan for construction of the laboratory. It will augment other University facilities for training in large-scale group living, which now include the University Commons or cafeteria, and University residence halls.

AMARILLO, Texas—Installation of a windmill to provide water for domestic and livestock use may be the difference between a farm which is a losing proposition and one that will enable a farmer to make a comfortable living for his family, declares W. R. Watson regional administrator of the water facilities program of the Department of Agriculture.

"Perhaps the difference between a losing and a paying farm may be the construction of a storage dam or an inexpensive water diversion system," he continues. "Again, installation of an irrigation pump can provide water for a garden, a grass patch, an orchard or an alfalfa plot, any one of which might place a farm upon a profitable basis."

Development of such water resources now is possible in the Southern Great Plains under provisions of the water facilities program being carried out by the Soil Conservation Service in cooperation with the Bureau of Agricultural Economics and the Farm Security Administration. Watson points out. The program permits needy farmers to obtain loans for development of water resources which will enable them to bring their farms upon a more profitable basis and provides for the assistance of specialists in planning and developing facilities for such farms.

Areas designated for the development of water resources in the Texas Panhandle include the drainage basins of Rita Blanca and Major Louie's creeks in Dallam and Hartley counties; the Coldwater and Palo Duro creeks drainage basin in Dallam, Hartley, Oldham, Sherman, Moore, Hansford, Hutchinson and

Here's a Glimpse of 'The World of Tomorrow'

VISITORS to the New York World's Fair in 1939 will be given some indication of what "The World of Tomorrow" may look like. The Trylon and Perisphere, emblematic of the fair's "The World of Tomorrow" theme, seen in the background, set off "The Road of Tomorrow," which climaxes the Exposition building being erected for Ford Motor Company at the fair. Demonstrating that the highways of the future are being built today, the "The Road of Tomorrow" will carry visitors up the spiral ramp and here and around the facade of the Ford building in Ford, Mercury, Lincoln-Zephyr cars, giving them an excellent view over the grounds, converting the entire building to a dynamic exhibit.

How the plus of OIL-PLATING brings you more than an oil-change

YOU KNOW right off that the fresh oil needed in your crankcase today, isn't to lubricate the crankcase. Either your oil is in the bearings and up to the cylinder head every turn of your engine, or your lubrication isn't 100%.

Now what's the chance for any of the general run of oils to stay up while you've parked the car, for instance? Just about as much chance as there is for a geyser to stay up all by itself! Then every time you start, don't pistons get up to the top before oil gets up from the crankcase? You kill that risk by changing now to OIL-PLATING.

The "magnetic action" of Conoco Germ Processed oil—patented—makes OIL-PLATING stay on inner engine surfaces throughout all your stops, starts and runs this Summer. Your Germ Processed oil keeps a steady hold on the "Full" mark, too, as you'll see—by changing today to Your Mileage Merchant. Continental Oil Company

Will WPA Investigation Deal Killing Blow to Work Relief?

WASHINGTON.—Pigeon-holed temporarily, but certain to be constant headline material when it takes place, is the investigation of the Works Progress Administration, recently approved by an overwhelming 352 to 27 vote in the House of Representatives.

The probe got such a large O. K. because New Dealers, eager to see WPA get an official clean bill of health, united in asking the inquiry with biter criticism of the set-up.

Immediate purpose of the resolution was to afford guidance for Congress in deliberations on whether or not to restore $150,000,000 cut from the WPA deficiency bill.

But Congressman Edward Cox of Georgia, who introduced the resolution and is known to be aiming at complete retirement of the federal government from the work relief field.

What Cox probably desires is an exhaustive and comprehensive investigation which will continue even after this session of Congress has closed shop. His bill specifies that the inquiry be conducted by the House appropriations subcommittee, headed by Congressman Clifford Woodrum of Virginia.

Woodrum is the leader of the House "economy bloc." Another likely investigator is Representative Taber, New York Republican, arch-foe of the WPA.

WHEN Representative Fred Bradley of Michigan mapped out a home state food products dinner in the congressional restaurant, his main idea was to introduce his guests to something that, sliver little fan who provide so much sport for Michigan fishermen each spring.

But Michigan heard about the stunt and went promotion crazy. Result: it came a host of other products to add to the menu. The diners also might have feasted on beans, potatoes, apples, cherries, turkeys, and whitefish.

IN the mechanics of the industry committees, operating under the wage and hour division of the Department of Labor, may lie a new pattern for industrial negotiation.

These groups are preparing minimum wage recommendations for Administrator Andrews. But it is the type of operation which they attempt that is most significant.

Each committee consists of an equal number of representatives from employers, employees, and general public. For groundwork, statistics and economic data compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics are used.

Witnesses are called before the committee and encouraged to speak out freely with their suggestions. Workers, retailers, wholesalers, economists, and heads of trade associations all get a role in the proceedings.

Thus, capital and labor are getting a new lesson in arbitrating their problems across the conference table. And the consuming public is being accorded recognition as an interested party in wage levels and profit margins.

FSA Low Cost Farm Dwellings Offer Idea to Private Builders

WASHINGTON.—The Farm Security Administration is not essentially a housing agency. But it has had such success in building low-cost dwellings on its rehabilitation projects for tenant farmers that there is widespread interest in its methods.

About 20 per cent of the $10,000,000 appropriation which Farm Security has spent on tenant farmer rehabilitation has been used for the construction of houses.

Most of the FSA farm community houses have five rooms and cost from $2500 to $4000 to build. But pre-fabricated houses of the same size, which cost only $1100, are the ones which have excited interest in FSA designs and methods.

Most impoverished farmers cannot afford a $4000 house. Unless they have tenant farmer status they cannot qualify for transfer to an FSA farm project. But independent farmers all over the country have made inquiries about the pre-fabricated $1100 dwellings, with which this bureau of the Department of Agriculture has successfully experimented.

FSA recently published a compact answer in a booklet on "Small Homes." It describes and illustrates floor plans and exteriors of eight approved pre-fabricated houses.

The houses described have been built and are occupied. There are 100 such houses in the FSA Southeast Missouri project. It is estimated that it would cost about $1300 to build them from scratch. At this price, they do not have inside plumbing.

By cutting and pre-fabricating parts of the house with a saw-mill on the site of the project, it was possible to build homes with bath for about $400 a room, and houses without a bath for as little as $250 a room.

A typical house of this type has three bedrooms, two of them 9 feet by 11 feet, and one 11 feet by 11 feet; a living room-dining room, 11 feet by 19 feet; two porches, each 10 feet by 10 feet; and a kitchen 7 feet by 11 feet.

SIMPLIFICATION of design and pre-cutting make it possible for the farmer to build such a house with unskilled rural labor.

While it costs a little to install a bathroom, as indicated, all FSA houses have running water, and electricity wherever current is available.

It is understandable that tenants of these pre-fabricated houses who have previously lived in crowded, leaky shacks without sanitary facilities of any kind, regard them as palatial.

But the interest shown by independent farmers indicates that they may appear widely as a sound investment for the private builder in rural areas.

Agriculture Report Shows Soil Conserving Crops on Increase

WASHINGTON.—One of the most interesting chapters in the report of the secretary of agriculture this year, is a survey of the effect agricultural adjustment programs have had on the decrease of soil-depleting crops and the increase of soil-conserving crops.

The report does not insist that all credit for these adjustments must go to AAA. Weather, the Supreme Court, and education have been components to the whole picture.

The original agricultural adjustment act, which Congress set up in 1933, was designed for production control. It, as a result of the functioning of this law, soil was diverted from soil-depleting to soil-conserving crops that was incidental.

In 1932 70,272,000 acres of corn were planted in the largest corn producing area. In 1934, one year after the AAA was set up, only 56,314,000 acres of corn were planted in the same area.

THE before and after picture in wheat was 24,243,000 acres of wheat in the Southern Great Plains area in 1932 and 23,602,000 acres in 1934. Cotton acreage dropped from 38,694,000 acres in 1932 to 27,860,000 acres after AAA was created.

The Supreme Court handed down its decision in the House

SECRETARY of Agriculture Wallace attributes the swelling of cotton acreage figures in this period—from 20,903,000 acres in 1935 to 34,471,000 acres in 1937—to good weather in the cotton country and the absence of a control program in 1937.

With new farm legislation pending, the published report of the secretary of agriculture, surveying where New Deal farm policies have failed and where they have succeeded, is timely and instructive reading.

TAXPAYERS PAY TRAFFIC COSTS

AUTHORITIES STATE COST OF HIGHWAY MAINTENANCE NOT PROPERLY MET BY TRANSPORTS

That highway transport in the United States has been subsidized to the extent of more than ten billion dollars by those who pay taxes on homes, farms and other property, is the conclusion reached by three of America's most eminent and experienced highway engineers, in a special study for the Association of American Railroads made public today by John J. Peiley, president of the association.

For public carrier trucks of three-ton capacity and up, the subsidy ranges from $676 to $1,947 a year, according to the report of Clifford Older, C. B. Reed and W. S. Downa, the engineers making the study.

Mr. Older, as chief of the Illinois Highway Department, had charge of the famous Bates Road Tests in which the fundamentals of present-day highway design were developed. Professor Reed is head of the School of Civil Engineering of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Professor Downa is professor of highway engineering at the University of West Virginia. All three engineers have had wide practical experience in highway construction, maintenance and finance in various sections of the country.

In their study, Messrs. Reed, Downa and Older considered the great state public utility, of which system of streets and roads as a great state public utility, which every road open for traffic is part.

Each road and street in this public highway system of a state receives or delivers most of its traffic to or from some other highway," the engineers said. The state system as a whole, they said, "is not unlike a railroad system" in that the main trunk highways are dependent for their traffic upon the use of city streets and secondary rural roads as terminals and feeders.

The cost of improvements on this system made for the use of motor vehicles, in the view of the three engineers, should be met by "an equitable charge upon the motor vehicles which use them, just as the costs of telephone, electric power, water and gas, railroads and other public utilities are met by those who use their services."

That this cost has not been met by highway transport is their conclusion, after an examination of the period 1921-1932, for which complete data are available, with close approximations for later years. During the twelve years ending in 1932, the study finds that highway users failed to pay fully for the facilities provided for their use. For the one year 1932 the deficiency amounted to $681,000,000 a subsidy which was not distributed for the succeeding years up to and including 1937, according to the report.

The report also deals with the question of whether the "different types or classes of motor vehicles pay imposts commensurate with the cost of facilities required and provided for the special benefit of each class." The study points out that the overwhelming majority of vehicles have a maximum load of less than 1800 pounds per axle and an over-all width of not more than six feet.

Additional costs incurred in building roads thicker, stronger, wider, straighter and flatter than would be needed for vehicles of this class, and additional maintenance costs incurred because of the operation of heavier and larger vehicles, should be met by the classes of vehicles whose operation makes necessary these added costs, in the view of the engineers.

From complete figures for the year 1932, they find that the subsidy for heavier vehicles ranges from $75 a year for a three-ton truck or a twenty-passenger bus up to $2,000 a year for the heaviest permissible truck. Complete figures are not available for later years, the engineers report, but fair approximations for the year 1937 show similar results.

"The report of Messrs. Older, Reed and Downa," Mr. Peiley said in making it public, "does not apply in detail to any particular state. It does show the highway structure as a whole, however, and demonstrates beyond any doubt that highway transport is being substantially subsidized by those who pay taxes on homes, farms and property in general."

O. O. Cox, motorist to Wichita, Kans., Saturday to take his daughter, Miss Juanita, and Gene Brubaker, who returned to their school work at Wichita Business college after spending the Easter holidays at home.

Dear Editor:

Mutual insurance is considered by many as the most sound and economical protection against loss. Then why should the business man, whose own mistakes and poor judgment cause a lapse in the market of his product, push back his chair, put his feet on his mahogany desk, light a gold tip cigarette and call on the taxpayers, through the government, to prime the pump. Why does business not prime its own pump and keep it going by mutual business insurance.

All seem to agree that the cause of the last six years of depression has been lack of purchasing power among the people in the lower income group. If this is true, let business set aside a small percentage of its capital as an investment in business insurance and force this investment into purchasing power monthly, so that its turnover can create a greater demand for the products of industry. A pump that is kept working never needs priming.

The Townsend Plan is compelling business insurance which forms a business conducted in the United States to protect itself against depressions caused by the devaluation of its market due to lack of purchasing power. The force spending clause in the proposed law, however, business that the amount which it pays will be returned in the increased sale of the product.

The Plan also will abolish the fear of a penniless old age from all people and make them feel at liberty to spend and enjoy the fruits of their labor as they live and bring up a future generation better fitted to take the place in industry vacated by the retiring old people. Business is thus assisting the improvement of the employees in future operation. Business can also feel that it has in part helped pay the debt it owes the old people for the fine job they have done.

TEXAS RELIEF COMMISSION DISTRIBUTED $9,670,736.20 IN COMMODITIES TO NEEDY IN 1938

During the year of 1938, an average of three million five hundred nineteen thousand one hundred sixty-four pounds of surplus food commodities and an average of four hundred thirty-three thousand five hundred sixty-one clothing and household articles were distributed each month by the Commodity Distribution Department of the Texas Relief Commission to an average of fifty-five thousand and fifty families which had a monthly average value of approximately eight hundred six thousand three hundred ninety-four dollars and sixty-eight cents according to Mr. Roe L. Montgomery, Director of Commodity Distribution to the Texas Relief Commission.

During the year a total of forty-two million two hundred twenty-seven thousand nine hundred seventy-three pounds of food stuffs and five million two hundred twenty thousand seven hundred thirty-four clothing and household articles were distributed. The total retail value of commodities distributed was approximately nine million six hundred seventy-six thousand seven hundred thirty-six dollars and twenty cents. The average retail value of food and clothing issued to the average family per month was fourteen dollars and sixty-five cents. The food commodities distributed included: wheat flour; graham flour; cornmeal; wheat cereal; rice; beans; dried peas; Irish potatoes; fresh tomatoes; cabbage; apples; peaches; oranges; grapefruit; canned grapefruit juice; dried apples; peaches; apricots; raisins; and prunes; dried milk; butter; cheese; eggs; cotton seed oil shortening; sugar cane syrup; canned English peas; and canned black-eyed peas all donated by the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation and various canned vegetables produced in the WPA Canning Plants. Clothing and household articles distributed included men's women's and children's clothing and various household articles produced in the WPA Sewing Rooms; men's, women's and children's woolen garments purchased by the Works Progress Administration, and mattresses manufactured by the WPA Mattress Project.

Since the beginning of the program, the Texas Relief Commission has distributed commodities in Texas in the retail value of approximately forty-one million twenty-six thousand two hundred dollars and forty-eight cents. As of January 1, 1939, the Texas Relief Commission had surplus commodities on hand and ordered in the approximate retail value of four million two hundred thirty-seven thousand nine hundred eighty-seven dollars. The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation is under the direction of the Department of Agriculture and its activities and objectives are in keeping with those of the Department. Its operations have two purposes: to help hungry people on relief rolls, and to keep farmers from being overwhelmed by surpluses of the commodities they produce. It seeks to accomplish this two-fold objective by buying up acute surpluses of farm products and supplying them to State Welfare agencies for relief distribution. The Corporation has purchased surplus farm products in Texas in the amount of twenty-four million five hundred twenty-one thousand three hundred ninety-seven dollars and seven cents which included cattle, cheese, cornmeal, cotton, cottonseed oil, shortening, eggs, goats, grapefruit, grapefruit juice, hogs, dry skin milk, onions, canned peas, Irish potatoes, rice, small grain seed, sheep, tomatoes, wheat flour, and graham flour. A part of these commodities was distributed in Texas and the balance was shipped to practically every state in the Union, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation donates the commodities purchased to the approved State Relief Agencies. In Texas, the Texas Relief Commission is the approved agency. The Corporation makes these donations to the Texas Relief Commission with the stipulation that the commodities donated shall neither re-enter the commercial channels nor compete with that portion of the supply which remains in the normal flow of trade.

In this connection, two fundamental distribution rules have been rigidly maintained by the Texas Relief Commission: (1) That commodities should go only to persons certified by approved qualified case-workers as eligible for public aid; and (2) that the commodities should be given to individuals in addition to, rather than in substitution for any other assistance available from Federal, State or local sources.

The everyday job of the commodity Distribution Department is to furnish food and clothing to certified relief clients. However, as supplies of surplus commodities are on hand and as distribution machinery is available in all sections of the State, the Texas Relief Commission is in a good strategic position for quick action in assisting victims of local or wide spread disasters. Immediately on receiving a report of a disaster, trucks are loaded with additional supplies of food and clothing and sent to the stricken area with additional personnel of the Texas Relief Commission. The victims of the disaster are cared for immediately without any of the so-called red tape.

The distribution of surplus commodities has been carried on in an orderly and efficient manner only through the cooperation and coordination of the work of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, the Texas Relief Commission, the Works Progress Administration, and the local political sub-divisions. The total cost of distribution including Federal, State, County and City funds covering salaries, freight, utilities, truck and warehouse facilities, etc., was less than seven per cent of the retail value of the commodities distributed.

The Texas Relief Commission is responsible for the referrals of the needy employables for work on projects of WPA and NYA. The Texas Relief Commission is also responsible for the selection of boys for the CCC program. More than one hundred ten thousand boys in Texas have been enrolled in the CCC. Only those boys may be enrolled in the CCC who are of good moral character, mentally and physically fit, and who cannot be given, through parents, relatives or other sources, the same advantages they would receive by virtue of their enrollment. The boys are furnished subsistence, clothing, housing, medical care and training. They are paid thirty dollars per month, twenty-two dollars of which must be sent to needy beneficiaries. These indigent families have received approximately twenty-five million dollars. In the absence of such needy beneficiaries, twenty-two dollars is impounded by the Government and given to the enrollee when the term of enrollment expires. These boys, under federal regulations, must be selected through approved casework methods under the supervision and direction of a state agency acceptable to Washington.

The CCC Camps have been of inestimable value to the state in soil conservation and in the building of national parks. The training of the boys while serving out their enlistment has been of even greater importance than the monetary returns from the CCC program. The boys are properly housed in the camps, given good substantial food and out-door exercise which builds up both their bodies and minds. All of the activities are supervised by army officers, trained engineers and teachers. They are given every opportunity to broaden their education and to learn trades which will better qualify them to look after themselves and their families and to make more substantial and law abiding citizens.

We wish to express our thanks to the many friends who have been so kind to us since the children had their car accident. To those who sent flowers and cards and especially to Dr. Kengle and the nurses we feel deeply grateful.

H. H. Balzer and family.

Surplus Food Saved From Scrap Heap to Feed Hungry

FROM good food, which might have gone to waste, from other scrapped material, Columbus, O., is keeping hundreds of people from hunger, providing useful occupations for many more.

The project has worked so well that its leader, Fred Hertel, 64-year-old retired insurance man, has been named honorary food conservator by the city.

Known as the food and goods conservation project, the plan was started back in 1933 under the sponsorship of the Columbus Elks lodge.

Hertel had learned that tons of surplus fruits and vegetables were being destroyed at the markets. "No sale" items, most of which were still in good condition, were being consistently routed to the rubbish heap. Other food was discarded simply because it was underpriced.

If, said Hertel, a person could obtain such products before they spoiled, many needy families might be fed. The lodge responded and the program got under way with Hertel at the helm.

Today, Hertel, in his delivery car, makes regular trips to commission houses. Discarded products are culled over; the still fresh fruits and vegetables are sorted out and cleaned.

Then Hertel puts the food into boxes and baskets, which he piles onto the automobile, and distributes to his regular relief clients, charity hospitals, settlement houses, orphan homes, and schools in poor neighborhoods.

Not only food, but many useful materials are saved from the garbage can or incinerator.

Food Conservator Fred Hertel, left, is head of project by which surplus products are put to use. Right, one of Hertel's workmen inspects onions at a warehouse.

Cloth, wood and metal scraps, of little value by themselves but capable of being worked into a constructive pattern, are often obtained.

Toys for children can be easily fashioned from such substances. Articles of beautification for the city, furniture, household implements, etc., are also manufactured.

Some of the relief families pay for their quotas of food by doing voluntary work for the project. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Scott, for instance, maintain a paint shop, decorating the toys and bird houses built from waste materials.

To date, the idea has advanced rapidly, the scope of the program is widening. The ultimate goal, however, is even greater. Hertel visions a development to the point where several trucks will be necessary to gather the material. All of these machines would be driven by relievers.

Relief clients would also form the staffs of a toy shop, a canning factory, and a warehouse to preserve food which might be stored for the future.

Varieties of Government Tested With Boys' Groups

DEMOCRACY, dictatorship, anarchy—how do they compare in relative efficiency? This is the problem which an Iowa boy, 14, welfare worker put to a group of boys.

Using 10 and 11-year-old boys as laboratory "guinea pigs," Dr. Kurt Lewin and his assistants—Ronald Lippitt and Dr. Ralph White—set up three experimental groups. Leaders were appointed for each group from graduate students of the Iowa Child Welfare Research Station.

One leader conducted his group along democratic lines, making work and helping the boys to arrive at decisions, but never issuing commands.

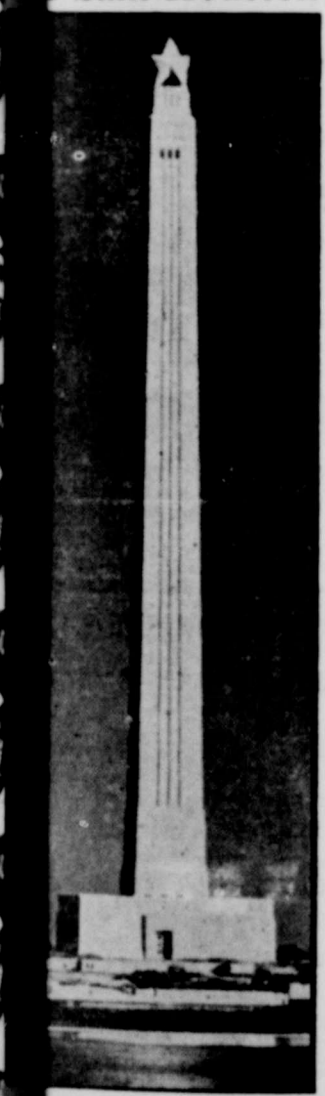

The dictatorship leader set up a miniature state, with himself the "dictator." Varying somewhat from Fascist and Nazi principles, he was instructed to tell children what to do, but not to discourage free expression.

The third group was styled as anarchy. The leader remained freely apart from the group, merely serving as a medium for technical information.

As the boys in the dictatorship group, they became less friendly toward each other. Although ability developed toward the dictator, it remained beneath the surface. The boys "took it out" on each other. But their work was done quite efficiently.

In the democracy, the boys remained friendly toward each other and toward their leader. The amount of work accomplished was slightly greater than

THE HOWLING CAT

The dark clouds in the East rolled threateningly onward toward the deserted mansion on the hill. The wind moaned faintly through the tree tops. The thunder crashed! The lightning flashed! The rain poured! And then, and then—the Cat howled!!! His long, black, snaky tail is swinging as he leaps, capers, and bares his curved claws; waiting, watching, for some innocent victim for his gleaming fangs.

Little Mary, wandering alone in the woods, is unaware of the danger as she walks slowly along beneath the waving boughs. She walked under the tree which held the Howling Cat; the dreadful demon slowly crouched, gathering his powerful muscles for the leap upon his prey. Mary, blissfully unaware of the danger, walks on; and then the Cat springs, and lands, tearing, clawing, sitting—upon the little bird on Mary's hat!

SENIOR GOSSIP

Why all the sudden change in Mary Ellen? Could it be that the love-bug bit her?

Dick's latest crush seems to be a blond Canadian girl.

Say, Virginia, are you trying to find one that you can raise up to suit you?

It seems that Grover is taking up Roger's habit—robbing the cradle!

I heard that Volney is having trouble over a Freshman girl and a picnic!

Has Edwin had any trouble with these foreign countries?

I saw Rose with an ex-graduate of P. H. S. Saturday night!!

Sybil Wilson says she sure does like Canadian.

Harold likes these preacher's daughters!

Say, I saw a blond in Chet Bartel's tan Chevy Sunday!

Sybil Ranson seems to cater to gray Plymouths with red wheels.

And what did I hear about Eula Copeland receiving phone calls?

Wonder why Helen enjoys the singing convention so much. Is it really the singing?

Neva seems to like the convention too. But I do think it is the singing. Oh, yes, I forgot to tell you, Buck says Candalaria furnishes swell entertainment!

Alice Schwab says Oklahoma sure is grand! Is it Oklahoma or the contents?

Who ARE THE REAL TAXPAYERS IN TEXAS?

Here are the Figures... The Records... You Be The Judge... Read These Figures... Compare Them... See Who Pays the Most to Help Maintain Schools... Build and Maintain Public Highways... Is it —

THE SMALL TRUCK INDUSTRY	THE GIANT RAILROAD CORPORATIONS
Not Available	Ad Valorem Taxes $5,939,142.03
$ 7,154,282.64	SPECIAL TAXES
$17,310,754.94	License Fees NONE
	Gasoline Tax NONE
$24,465,037.58	TOTAL TAXES $5,939,142.03

(Figures are Taxes paid in 1927, the latest complete figures available)

All the funds collected as license fees are spent by the Highway Department for the furtherance of its work and by the Road and Bridge Funds of the several counties for the construction and maintenance of their lateral roads. All of the funds collected as gasoline taxes are spent by the Highway Department, except twenty-five per cent to the Available School fund. The amount of funds allocated to the Available School fund from gasoline taxes collected from trucks amounts to $1,265,151.02 or $2.36 for each child attending the public free schools of Texas.

Trucks are taxed more per $1.00 of cost, or per $1.00 of earning than any kind of property in existence.

The taxes paid by trucks flow first into the coffers of the State and thence into the highways and schools of Texas. Too often this source of revenue is not appreciated by the beneficiaries because of the method of collection. The burden remains the same upon the truck operator, regardless of the method.

RAISE THE LOAD LIMIT AND PERMIT TRUCKS TO BETTER SERVE TEXAS!

TRUCKS PAID IN TAXES IN 1937 TO THE COUNTIES LISTED AS FOLLOWS:

County	To Schools $2.36 Per Scholastic	and Maintenance	Interest and Sinking Fund for Road Bonds

Death Over War-torn France

The war birds in this tense scene from Paramount's "The Eagle and the Hawk" are Cary Grant, Jack Oakie and Fredric March, in the usual order. Carole Lombard is the feminine star of the picture showing at the Ellis Theatre Saturday, April 22.

Hardy Film Sunday and Monday

Mickey Rooney, outstanding juvenile screen personality, has just completed "The Hardy's Ride High," which is to show at the Ellis Theatre, Sunday and Monday, April 23-24. The Hardy family inherits $2,000,000 in their latest film and go on a spending spree that furnishes one of the funniest comedies of the year! Two Sunday Matinees at 2 and 4 o'clock. The picture replaces "Lucky Night" previously scheduled.

Getting Out on the Limb; Dix Picks Yanks and Reds

BY IRVING DIX

WELL, they're off again to a fast start, but no baseball season is officially opened till the so-called experts cast their expert eye over the scene and let you in on the secret of who's going to finish where.

We've taken our look and predict that:

The New York Yankees will win by a comfortable margin in the American League, and the Cincinnati Reds will sneak through in a National League dog-fight.

It's the same old Yankee power in the junior circuit—with a few more volts added. Joe McCarthy has the pitching in Red Ruffing, Lefty Gomez, Monte Pearson, Bump Hadley, Spud Chandler, and a couple of promising rookies.

There's plenty of punch in Joe DiMaggio, Bill Dickey, Red Rolfe and the rest of that murderous batting attack—including the prize pes-green, Charley Keller. You've just got to pick the Yanks.

PUSHING them closely, however, will be the Boston Red Sox. Joe Cronin finally has some pitching. Woodrow Rich is the best rookie hurler in the majors. Jim Bagby and Jack Wilson are due for big things in their second year, and Elden Auker, acquired from Detroit, will help a lot. And don't forget the batting attack built around Jimmy Fox, Cronin, Joe Vosmik and the newcomer, Ted Williams.

Cleveland is likely to need pitchers all too soon to get anywhere. Johnny Allen's arm still is something of a question mark. Bob Feller has shown an inclination to tire. And the Tribe could use a good second baseman.

Detroit must depend too much on comebacks by Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges. Rudy York and Hank Greenberg can't club homers every day so Del Baker will have to have more mound strength.

Washington will be troublesome, but no flag contender. Jimmy Dykes needs plenty more to make the White Sox dangerous. The St. Louis Browns have Buck Newsum but that's about all. Connie Mack is still building the A's.

Cincinnati's bid in the National League is built on a bang-up pitching staff which includes two-time, no-hit Johnny Vander Meer, whose physical condition hasn't been too good, but good enough; Lee Grissom, due for a big comeback; Paul Derringer, Buck Weaver, and two or three newcomers who appear to have what it takes.

Johnny Vander Meer . . . watch Cincinnati go if he's okay.

ON the power side there are Ernie Lombardi, league batting champ; Buck McCormick, and Ival Goodman. The Reds haven't won since 1919 but this is their year.

The Giants might have been a stronger contender, but there are too many "ifs" on their sore-armed pitching staff. And the outfield lacks punch.

The defending Chicago Cubs will be menacing throughout. Gabby Hartnett has a well-balanced club—good pitching, plenty of hitting. But the Bruins will be needing a second sacker if Dick Bartell isn't fit.

The Pirates won't even come close—even after their great bid a year ago. They just don't have the pitching.

Brooklyn and the Cardinals may surprise folks with their youngsters but they won't be flag contenders. The Bees lack punch at the plate and the Phillies lack everything.

But it's a 154-game schedule, you know, and funny things have happened in the past—and will happen again.

Hardys Ride High In New Film To Be Shown At Ellis

Invents Telephone

"The Life of Alexander Graham Bell" Shows at the Ellis On Thursday and Friday

"The Hardy's Ride High," sixth of the famous series dealing with the popular screen family, will be screened at the Ellis Theatre, Sunday and Monday, April 23-24.

The new picture is different in every respect from the others, but the beloved Hardys remain the same. Now they inherit $2,000,000 and move to Detroit to claim it. On the plane, their changed status first effects Aunt Milly, played by Sara Haden, and she falls for a business man who is a fellow passenger.

In Detroit, overcome by sudden wealth, Mickey Rooney, in his role as Andy Hardy, steps out to a cabaret and falls desperately in love with a chorus girl, Virginia Grey. Likewise, swayed by her new position, Marian Hardy (Cecilia Parker) orders lavish gowns and charges them to Judge Hardy.

Only the Judge (Lewis Stone) and his wife (Pay Holden) maintain their equilibrium. Back in Carvel, Ann Rutherford, as Polly Benedict, accepts attention from a new young man while she awaits word from Mickey.

The family is on edge, figuratively hanging over the precipice of new-found wealth, when the Judge discovers evidence to prove that he is not the legal heir. He can destroy the evidence and retain the fortune, or produce it and give up everything. There is never a question in his mind.

The Hardys are brought back to grim reality. They return to Carvel, poor as ever but proud of their heritage of honor and none the worse for their interlude in the realms of luxury.

Without exception, every member of the cast turns in an excellent performance. George Seitz, director of all six of the Hardy pictures, has again done a superb job of combining human understanding with the foibles of family life familiar to everyone of every age.

Women With Wings

"Women of the Wind" Comes To Ellis Theatre April 25-26; Stars Francis and Gargan

The coast-to-Cleveland Air Race is the theme about which is woven the story of "Women of the Wind," starring Kay Francis and William Gargan. The picture will be shown at the Ellis Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, April 25-26, taking the place of "Calling Dr. Kildare" previously scheduled for those dates.

Janet Steele, played by Kay Francis, needs to win the women's air derby so she can buy her invalid brother costly medical treatment. She persuades Ace Boreman, played by William Gargan, to loan her his round-the-world plane, but his not completely divorced wife interferes. The ensuing situations and her final overcoming of all obstacles in winning the race provides one of the entertainment features of the year to the screen.

In the supporting cast may be found such names as Victor Jory, Maxie Rosenbloom, Eddie Foy Jr., Rosella Town and many others. The film is from the Bryan Fox production of Warner Brothers with Mark Hellinger as associate producer.

Laughable Tale of South Seas

Charles Laughton, as "Ginger Ted," and Elsa Lanchester (Mrs. Laughton) as "Miss Jones," are shown above in a reenactment of a scene from "The Beachcomber," which is showing at the Ellis Theatre, Thursday and Friday, April 27-28. The film was produced by Laughton and Erich Pommer as the first creation of their new English company; it is released in America by Paramount.

"The Beachcomber"

Father Neptune Comes Through As Property Man By Washing Up Old Hat For Film

The ragged straw hat worn by Charles Laughton in "The Beachcomber," which is to show at the Ellis Theatre, Thursday and Friday, April 27-28, was a prop supplied by the sea itself!

While the company located on the French Riviera, Laughton sought in vain for a hat in the proper and convincing state of decrepitude, but although the prop man produced several candidates, jumped on them, tore them, and sprinkled them with dust, the actor wasn't satisfied.

Then Elsa Lanchester (Laughton's wife), who plays opposite him in the picture, spotted—believe it or not—a strange straw hat floating in on the tide. This piece of flotsam, perhaps the lost property of some actual "beachcomber" of the Riviera, provided just what Laughton was looking for.

Charles Laughton's wife, Elsa Lanchester delivers a fine performance as Miss Jones, Tyrone Guthrie, in the role of Dr. Jones, and Robert Newton as the Contreleur, are outstanding members of the supporting cast. Erich Pommer produced and directed the picture for Mayflower. It has been released in the United States by Paramount.

Immunize for Typhoid

Every Person Should Participate In Anti-Typhoid Campaign And Precautions

Austin, Texas.—The control of typhoid fever in the United States represents an outstanding achievement in preventive medicine. In 1900 the national death rate from this disease was 31.3 per 100,000 population. Today the rate is 2.1 nationally, but 6.5 in Texas. This marked decrease in typhoid's killing power is based on knowledge of its cause, how it is spread, and the application of scientific control measures," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

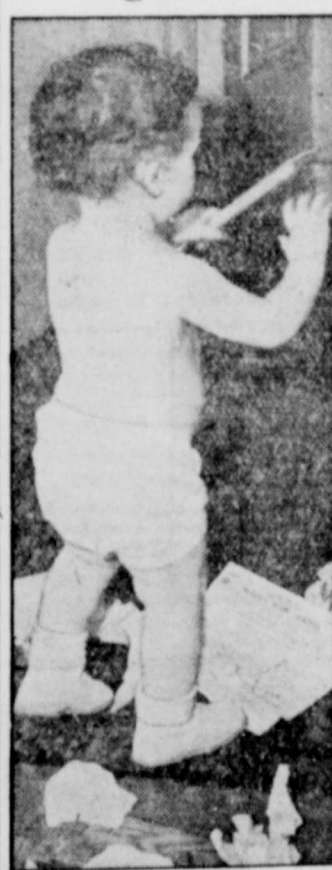

Today no other disease is more vulnerable to scientific attack than typhoid. Indeed, it is no exaggeration to say that, from a public health viewpoint, there should be no typhoid fever.

"Typhoid fever is caused by a germ. The organisms are found only in the excreta of persons suffering from it, or in those of carriers, the latter being persons who harbor the germ but are not ill. If it were possible to prevent people from becoming infected with germs coming from these sources, typhoid would cease to be a problem.

"In cities and towns, thanks to safe drinking water and milk supplies, adequate sewage facilities, and environmental sanitation, typhoid has been almost eliminated. Unfortunately, sanitary and environmental protection on a community basis cannot be offered to those living in rural areas. While control methods are the same for both city and country, in rural districts it is essential that not only public health officials but the householder become personally interested in them if they are to be effective," Dr. Cox warned.

"If every rural dweller in Texas realized his personal obligation in the anti-typhoid campaign and conscientiously took the necessary precautions, the typhoid rate in Texas eventually would come close to the vanishing point. It is an attainable objective. Personal cooperation in eliminating typhoid hazards and wide-spread typhoid immunizations are the key.

STATE CHILD WELFARE AIMS

LEGION AND AUXILIARY CENTER ON ACTIVITIES DURING APRIL ON NEEDS OF ALL CHILDREN

Interest of the American Legion Auxiliary's one-half million members is being centered on the welfare of American children during April, according to Mrs. Robert Lawrence, Child Welfare Chairman of the Perryton Unit of the Auxiliary. April is Child Welfare Month in the Auxiliary's calendar of activities, when special emphasis is given to the organization's child welfare work and when plans are developed for the year's efforts in behalf of needy children.

Among the child welfare activities of the Perryton Unit this year is the feeding of two underprivileged children at the school. The Unit is paying for their noon meal each day at the school cafeteria. Other children have been given aid during the year.

The Auxiliary's efforts are being centered on three subjects this year, explained Mrs. Lawrence:

1. Conservation of the child's own home for the child, through improved use of the aid to dependent children under the Social Security Act.

2. Eradication of congenital syphilis, through proper medical tests and treatment of expectant mothers.

3. Prevention of contagious diseases to assure child health, through development of preventative medical practice as outlined in three "Indiana plan."

The American Legion is working jointly with the Legion Auxiliary in this program, which is being extended throughout the nation. "It is clearly understood that the program for April goes far beyond the confines of the thirty days of this month," said Mrs. M. K. Elbertson, National Child Welfare Chairman. "It is our job in the weeks that are to come to do all in our power to follow through on this three-phase program."

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. M. Lawrence Elzey at the Shattuck hospital on Thursday, April 13. The name, Marion Lawrence Jr., has been selected for the young man, who with his mother was brought to their ranch home on Wolf Creek, Sunday. Mrs. John F. Scogin, Dallas, mother of Mrs. Elzey, is visiting in the Elzey home.

A Bit Alarmed at Elevation

This lamb's expression resembles that of a frightened roller coaster rider as Owner Lee Rodgers of Santa Rosa, Calif., gives it a lift. It's probably a mixture of surprise and happiness, however, as Rodgers decided to enter the "baby" in the Interstate Junior Livestock Show at the San Francisco Fair.

George goes on to say that he can inform you folks that he has been investigating the Commission-Manager form of city government and that he has become convinced that it is a better form of government, even though he opposed it in the recent election. George tells us that when this issue is presented to the voters again, he'll sure "stick his neck out with us" and go down the line for the Commission-Manager plan.

Looks like Ochiltree county is going to get another chance to vote on beer. Petitions are being circulated requesting the county commissioners to call such an election.

Judge E. C. Fisher and the members of his Hempfil county commissioners court were in Perryton Wednesday. The Hempfil commissioners are Jess Lindley, Tom Caster, Lee Kiker and Elmer Simpson. They were making a tour of several northeast Panhandle counties looking over various types of road machinery. Boxing Tournament

Amateur Boxing Tournament Held in Guymon for Three Days April 19-21

Okahoma's "No Man's Land" is being invaded—not by gruff, trouble hunting gunmen this time, but by fast, smooth-tongued and hard-hitting boxers and fighters, who are coming to enter the first "No Man's Land" Amateur Boxing Tournament to be held in Guymon.

The first two nights of the tournament, April 19 and 20, will be staged in the Guymon High School gymnasium, while the finals will be held outdoors, the evening of the big Pioneer Day celebration, May 2, and everyone will be able to see them free. Trophies will be given winners in each division, as well as to the team entering the most boxers, the team with most winners and to the individual making the quickest knock-out.

Directed by LeRoy Davis, ace promoter and sponsored by the Panhandle Herald, the tournament promises to display the stiffest competition the southwest has seen in years.

Following the matches the evening of May 1, a dance will be held in Guymon's huge fair building with Lloyd Snyder and his 12 piece broadcasting orchestra furnishing the music.

SOILS

By M. K. THORNTON, Extension Agricultural Chemist

When gardens in this area are protected by windbreaks, proper irrigation, and mulching there will not be much trouble growing vegetables or in getting tomatoes to "put on fruit," stated M. K. Thornton, extension agricultural chemist, who was in the office of Mrs. Hazel Martin, county home demonstration agent, Saturday, April 15, testing soils from various parts of Ochiltree county.

"Maintaining a humid atmosphere in the vegetable and flower garden is of as much importance as water about the plant roots," further stated Mr. Thornton.

"In this county of little vegetation, leaves, grass and plant material should never be burned but returned to the soil by plowing it in or by using it as mulch."

Mr. Thornton tested soil from the various soil types in the county.

Guymon Pioneer Dead

Mrs. Kate Jackson, Centurian Of Texas County, Dies At Home in Guymon

Mrs. Kate E. Jackson, a resident of Guymon, Okla., since 1906, passed away at her home on April 11, at the age of 81 years. She would have been 102 on the 25th day of June. The following, taken from the Panhandle Herald, Guymon, gives an idea of the eventful life she had:

"Mrs. Jackson was born June 25, 1857, in Boone, County, Kentucky, being the youngest child in a family of eight. At the age of seven years her parents moved to Saline, County, Missouri, making the trip in a two horse covered wagon. Her brothers made the trip on the steam boat, with the slaves. She lived there until young womanhood, receiving her college education at Liberty Female College, Liberty, Missouri.

She studied music and art along with other literary branches, receiving several prizes in art, for which she had special talent. After a two year course she graduated June 11, 1888, appearing in several musical numbers on the commencement program. The subject of her essay was: "The Fair Hand Enamored Fancy Glens." Her commencement program is still in a good state of preservation and is one of the treasured possessions of the family, along with other gems of art.

After her graduation she taught two terms before her marriage to Dempsey Jackson, in 1890. She moved again in a covered wagon to Denton County, Texas, where she reared her children, six in number. In the spring of 1906 the family moved to Guymon, Oklahoma. Mr. Jackson passed on in 1912. She led an active and useful life until recent years, when she became confined to her chair. She was mentally alert and fond of reading, especially poetry. She leaves to mourn her passing, two daughters, Miss Kate, who has been the constant companion of her mother, and Mrs. Tillie Robertson of Hollywood, California; three sons, Sterling, Lee and Kent; grandchildren, Willard Robertson of Hollywood; Mrs. Howard E. Curtis of Omaha; Mrs. Orville Nash, Mrs. Charles Rummel, Miss Pauline, Robert, Clifford and Royal Jackson. Mrs. Curtis was unable to come to the funeral on account of sickness, and Clifford, studying voice in New York City, was unable to come.
