MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By H. N. F.

David Lloyd George, a nephew of a Welsh cobbler, is the prime minister of Great Britain and politically the uncrowned king and most adroit political gambler John Bull has ever known. He is an opportunist to the marrow of his bone, all things to all men, a baffling puzzle to all parties and a man who has never yet met a Waterloo. David Lloyd George never throws his cards face uppermost on the table. He is a player for points, the weak points in the armors of his adversaries and as conscienceless as any diplomat the courts of Europe has ever known. His ability is of the highest and as a strategist he has few equals and no superior. He has met a foeman or rather the representatives of John Bull have met a foeman worthy of their and his steel. Charles Evans Hughes is the American Secretary of State, the head and spokesman of the American delegation to the disarmament conference. Hughes is of Welsh origin, American born and a statesman of the highest mould. If it was the greatest of all honors to be a Roman when Rome was the mistress of the world it is a greater honor to be an American when men of the Hughes type meet face to face the most accomplished statesmen of historic nations, throw the cards face uppermost on the conference table and tell them that the American people are opposed to future war, opposed to costly armaments, opposed to mighty armies and bristling navies and that the hour should be ushered in when peace courts shall hear and decide the disputes of nations as courts of justice decide the disputes of litigants. Charles Evans Hughes not only led the way but he paved the way for partial disarmament, for a long holiday, speaking of the building of sea fighting machines, and for a common ground where the statesmen and warriors of the world shall meet and decide that the hour has come for butchery of the sons of men to cease, the tears of women to fall over their slain or maimed loved ones and the wail of orphans to be heard no more in the nations which claim to be christianized or at least assert that they are civilized. Charles Evans Hughes did not employ the methods of the old school diplomat. He did not make use of the cunning artifices of old world diplomacy. He did not use ten thousand words to send an American message decisive to the last degree and so comprehensive that the wayfaring man understands it when he reads it. This arms conference made a splendid start. Charles Evans Hughes, speaking for the president and the American people, was the starter. His is the central figure on the stage of action today and if he stands by his guns he will be the central figure when the hour for the dissolution comes of this conference of nations called to usher in a peace program for the world that will make at least a start to win universal justice for all, beat the sword of might into the plow share of peaceful productivity and make it possible for the peoples of all nations to live as brothers in ages to come. Magnificent was the launching of the Hughes thunderbolt as the voice of America and the ideals of Woodrow Wilson were not lost when the words of Hughes not only fell upon the ears of the startled delegates but made a message of gladness for mankind that rang around the world.

There are many Texans in New York state. W. R. Edrington, a Fort Worth millionaire, is the latest to join the colony of Texans in the metropolis of the new world. All the celebrities of old world countries make their landing in New York City when they visit America. Father Knickerbocker is the soul of hospitality if one has achieved greatness or near-greatness. He is as cold as a turnip is bloodiness for the unknown or the unsung. They may come and go without notice "and be d—d to 'em." One of the functions or emoluments or duties of the mayor of the city of New York is to appoint a standing committee on reception to receive and entertain distinguished visitors. After his election four years ago Mayor John F. Hylan named his committee with the Hon. Rodman Wanamaker of the Wannamaker family and millions, as its chairman. Rodman Wannamaker and his committee have officiated four years. Of course they have been in the public eye. They have been on the first page. They have been in the daily picture gallery. They have become as widely known as Woodrow Wilson or Warren G. Harding, or Charles Evans Hughes, or David Lloyd George, or President De Valera of the Irish Republic. Now it has come to pass that the erstwhile modest Texas banker and millionaire, William R. Edrington, has been appointed a member of the Rodman Wannamaker Committee by Mayor Hylan and later along it is safe to wager that Edrington will be made a Tammany sachem and one of the trainers of the Tammany tiger. Two Texans, Charles F. Craig and Joab H. Benton won two of the richest offices in Greater New York on November 8 and they wear the tiger brand. Horace Greely said, "Go west, young man." H. N. F. says "Go east, young man" and the tiger may get you. He loves his friends; he devours his enemies; which reminds H. N. F. of the story told by the American hunter for big game in the jungles of India: "Great sport" he said. "It is fun to hunt the tiger; but it is hell when the tiger hunts you." This is what the Republican and Independent victims of the tiger said in the city of New York on the night of November 8. They hunted the tiger for awhile; then the tiger hunted them, and it was a successful hunt on the part of the tiger.

TEXANS HAVING THEIR TURN IN BOUNDARY SUIT

Geologist Testifies That Red River Has Changed Little, If Any, During Last 25,000 Years.

Oklahoma Attorneys Ready to Step in and Support Claims With 270 Pounds of Testimony.

Special to the Record News.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14—Texans are having their turn in court on the Red river case.

Dr. Robert T. Hill, geologist of Dallas, entered upon his third day of testimony before Supreme Court Commissioner Frederick S. Tyler today, representing the state of Texas. Dr. Hill testified that the north side is the home of the Red river and that little, if any change has occurred in the last 25,000 years. The contention of Texas in the case has been that the course of the river is the same now as it was in 1819.

Attorney General Cureton of Texas and Attorney Freeling of Oklahoma, with several interested attorneys are here watching the proceedings and ready to step in when their time comes. Freeling is understood to have brought 270 pounds of testimony with him from Oklahoma.

Dr. Hill began his testimony by presenting a general outline of the physical geography of the Texas-Oklahoma region with particular reference to the origin and evolution of it's advances and the development of the stream patterns upon the old coastal plains as they emerged from the sea. He classified the various river groups of the Texas-Oklahoma region which have originated in succession on the land surfaces in this territory into some eight successive groups, then followed a history of the rivers and the terraces which bordered the valleys, giving an idea of the relative age, showing that the section of the Red river involved in litigation was an old river valley apparently fixed on its present position.

Dr. Hill gave description of the relation of stream patterns to structures showing how rivers are in the habit of picking out underground structures and being deflected round them. In this class is the Burkburnett structure which has been worked out by the oil drillers. Maps were presented showing that the big bend of the Red river owed its position to the presence of the Burkburnett structure and that the river valley was sliding northward around the end of this structure toward the Oklahoma side.

A detailed account of the valley walls of the big bend district and the terraces which surround them was given by Dr. Hill, likewise a description of the valley bench and theories of it's origin and decadence.

At this point the testimony was concluded until tomorrow. Dr. Hill expects the direct testimony to be concluded tomorrow but that he will be under cross examination for several days longer. After he has concluded, Dr. L. C. Glenn of Nashville, Tenn., and a professor in Vanderbilt University, will take the stand in rebuttal for the United States and Oklahoma.

Stationers Lose Interest In Arms Meet

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Delegates to the armament conference have cut the red tape of diplomacy—in one regard at least. They will dispense with the "formal and official call," long a sacred institution wherever diplomats gathe.

Somebody figured out that if all the diplomats and attaches and advisers and what not gathered here for the conference were all to call upon one another in due and formal fashion it would use up more than 40,000 calling cards.

Super-Hero Who Hogged More Than His Share of War Honors Deserves Medal for Modesty

By HERBERT COREY.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Modesty is a good thing. It is one of the very best of the good things. But those who employ modesty should watch it carefully. There is such a thing as being too modest.

"You killed nineteen men," I said to Sergeant Woodfill, who was named by General Pershing as the super-hero of the United States Army.

"Yes, sir," said Sergeant Woodfill. That's all he said. He went out and killed these men in the line of duty at Cunel and said no more about it. If it had not been for an alert commanding officer no one would ever have heard about it. After he had about all the decorations there are the world forgot about him. It is hard to get Sergeant Woodfill to talk. He has a pair of blue eyes that look right through you and the most direct, straightforward, unwasting style of conversation you ever listened to. He says something when he is asked a question. Then he quits. He doesn't display his goods.

"Is that all you killed that day?" I asked, casually.

"I cannot vouch for any others, sir," said Sergeant Woodfill.

And it took me the dickens of a time before I pried out of him the fact that after killing nineteen men and eliminating three machine gun nests and capturing three prisoners, all by himself, he had then resumed his prowl forward toward the German lines. He went on shooting. That day he used ninety cartridges, and he does not often miss. On his way forward he shot at a German and saw that German drop.

"He was probably carrying a load of explosives of some sort," said Sergeant Woodfill. "Because there seemed to be a detonation and I saw a column of black smoke go up. The German dropper. All that I ever saw of him after that was the lower part of his body, across the parapet of his trench."

"But you couldn't vouch for him, hey?" I asked. "You weren't certain of him, huh?"

"No sir," said Sergeant Woodfill.

BELIEVE IRRIGATION BOARD AND WAGGONER MAY AGREE ON LAND

Belief that negotiations had reached a point where agreement was possible between the directors of the irrigation district and W. T. Waggoner, owner of the lands which will be submerged by the storage and diversion reservoirs of the irrigation project, was expressed Monday night by Frank Kell on his return from Fort Worth. Mr. Kell and Judge J. T. Montgomery were a committee representing the irrigation board at a conference with Mr. Waggoner and his attorneys at Fort Worth Monday.

The report of the committee will be laid before the board at a meeting today. Should the report be accepted, the biggest obstacle to the immediate beginning of the irrigation project will have been removed. Had negotiations been of such a character as to render agreement on this matter impossible, and condemnation proceedings been necessary, beginning of work on the project might have been seriously delayed.

The opening of bids at 2:00 o'clock this afternoon, as advertised, if it results in the letting of a contract, will see the third of the three big problems to be solved before work could begin finished. The third was recently solved in the sale of the bond issue. It is hoped by the directors that the figures submitted today will be of such a character as to permit the letting of a contract.

Hope in this direction is held out by the fact that a number of contractors, including several of the largest in the country, have submitted figures.

OFFICIALS OF RAIL UNIONS HOLD MEETING

Chiefs Confer With Brotherhood Chairmen on Action in Cancelling Strike and Future Course.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Six hundred and fifty general chairmen and officers of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers and brotherhood of locomotive firemen and enginemen opened a three day meeting here today to consider their officers action in cailing off the threatened railroad strike and to plan their future course of action.

Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the engineers, and William S. Carter, president of the firemen and enginemen, announced at the end of the first session that they would have nothing to say before tomorrow night, when a statement would be issued.

Although T. C. Cashen, president of the switchmen's union of North America, was reported to be in the city with several of his executive officers, he did not attend the meeting and Mr. Stone said he was not expected. Neither W. G. Lee, president of the brotherhood of railroad trainmen, nor L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railway Conductors, was present or represented.

Union officials explained that the general chairmen in attendance where those who did not respond to the United States railroad labor board's order to attend the hearing here two weeks ago, which culminated in calling off the threatened strike.

Following an explanation by Mr. Stone and Mr. Carter of the reasons which actuated the unions in cancelling the strike order, several committees were appointed to consider problems of future action, and directed to report tomorrow. Mr. Stone said the officials expected to complete their work by Wednesday night.

The grand chief of the engineers denied that today's session had any connection with the announcement at Cleveland last week that the unions would revive the strike vote if the labor board failed to make good on the unofficial promise that no further wage cuts would be considered until all pending rules and working conditions on the lines involved are settled. Mr. Stone said he did not expect to see any member of the labor board while in Chicago.

SHIPS AFLOAT ALONE COUNT ASSERTS KATO

Head of Jap Delegation Tells Tokio Questioners Number Vessels Scrapped Means Nothing.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—"It isn't the scrapped ships that count; it's the ships afloat," declared Baron Kato today in answering a series of questions put by Japanese newspaper correspondents concerning the American proposal.

One of the men from Tokio asked: "Isn't it true, Admiral, the ratio of scrapped warships under the Hughes proposition is rather disadvantageous to Japan considering the present inferior naval position of our country? Aren't they asking too much from us?"

The admiral responded:

"Why talk about scrapped ships. You should know that what really counts, is the number of fighting ships left afloat and not the number of those which are to be abandoned and consigned to the scrapheap."

The admiral declined to commit himself as to probable Japanese counter suggestions, but it is understood that although Japan is almost certain to favor the American proposal as a whole, it is probale that they would be the subject of a serious discussion.

"Naturally," said one Japanese naval expert today, "we cannot swallow in one mouthful this most momentous project which is destined to so vitally affect the future of our empire, therefore, we may have counter suggestions or proposals."

The American plan was termed large and generous as well as practicable. The primary question interesting the Japanese, however, is understood to be wether an eventual ratio for Japan of 60 per cent in capital ships as compared with the United States and Great Britain will be regarded as a sufficient defensive strength. In favor of its sufficiency, it is pointed out, is the circumstance that Japan's great distance from the other countries concerned makes it less imperative for Japan to possess a powerful defensive fleet.

But in Japanese minds the question of ratio is linked with two other considerations. One of these is described as the possible advance of science, which would make it easy for an adversary to transfer his fighting force across the seas at a much greater speed than at present. The other is the strength of foreign naval bases in waters near the Japanese empire from which the adversary could operate his entire offensive force.

Another technical matter occupying the experts is the question of the alleged superiority of a fleet that is reduced in numbers. The theory is that a fleet of fewer units can be more effectively maneuvered in an offensive than a fleet of many units and that the reducing of an adversary's capital ships makes him in a sense, more effective in an offensive operation.

GALVESTON IS FIGHTING NEW COTTON RATES

Hearing Begun on Controversy Between Texas and Pacific Coast Ports Over Schedule.

Rates Were Suspended by Interstate Commerce Commission as Result Galveston's Protest.

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—A struggle between Galveston and Pacific coast ports to handle the Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana cotton crops for export to the Far East was aired here today before Examiner Seal of the interstate commerce commission.

A new schedule of cotton rates announced by the westbound carriers from Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana producing centers, intended to equalize the position of the two competing interests, was suspended by the commission on protest of the Galveston commercial association and today's hearing followed.

Coast ports took the position today that present rates give the preference to Galveston and other gulf ports, while the new schedule would give the Pacific coast opportunity to handle a fair share of the cotton export business. E. H. Thornton of the Galveston association contended, on the other hand, that the coast ports should not be allowed rates that would enable them to compete in territory within 250 miles of Galveston, saying that the bulk of the Texas crop was produced within that radius of his city.

H. M. Hudson, traffic manager for the port of Portland said 40,000 bales of cotton were booked to be shipped through that city when the new schedule was announced but that the orders were cancelled when the commission suspended the new rates.

The proposed rates are just and reasonable, it was argued by F. P. Gregson, representing Los Angeles traffic interests. He asserted that Los Angeles had port facilities adequate to handle all the cotton at present shipped through all Pacific ports together and that Los Angeles was a natural point of export for southern cotton.

According to Gregson, El Paso is the natural dividing line between the two interests, and since the distance from El Paso to Galveston, and El Paso to Los Angeles is practically the same, Los Angeles should be on an equal footing with Galevtson in competing for the cotton shipping. The hearing will continue.

PEACE WITH GERMANY IS PROCLAIMED

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Peace between the United States and Germany was formally proclaimed today by President Harding. The president in a proclamation signed at 3:52 p. m. declared the state of war between the United States and Germany, existing from April 1917 to have terminated in fact, July 2, 1921, when the joint peace resolution of congress was approved by the executive.

Issuance of the proclamation, which followed exchange of ratifications of the treaty of Berlin, effected Armistice day in the German capital, was considered the first of a series of three steps, which when completed, will return the United States to a complete peace status. The second step probably will be the promulgation of a proclamation declaring the war with Austria ended and the third the issuance of a similar proclamation with respect to Hungary.

NEW JAP PREMIER INTENDS TO PURSUE POLICIES OF HARA

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—Premier Takahashi in a statement to the press today definitely declared adherence to the policies toward the Washington armament conference laid down by the late Premier Hara. He was convinced, he said, that the conference would be crowned with success.

U. S. WOULD BE HEAVY LOSER BY PROPOSAL

Scrapping of Naval Program Would Mean Loss of Nearly $5,000,000,000 Excluding Salvage.

Naval Experts Express Surprise That Plan Was Not Immediately Accepted by Great Britain.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Actual cost to the United States of the scrapping of the present naval building program, naval oficials estimated today, would be between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 exclusive of any salvage plan that might reduce that total. In the statement to the conference on limitation of armament Saturday. Presenting the American proposal, Secretary Hughes said the work already done had cost $330,000,000 but these figures do not include costs incident to abandonment of ships under construction.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt said today that the American program would save the government about $200,000,000 in naval expenditures. The figure is the difference between the total cost of completion of the ships, about $600,000,000 and what scrapping them all would cost. Included in the scrapping costs are allowances for reimbursement of contractors for work they have been compelled to do in their yards in preparation for the huge craft to be built.

There is no intention on the part of the government to stop work on new ships until an agreement is actually reached by the conference and ratified by the governments involved.

That was made plain today. Construction on the great majority of the vessels is proceeding very slowly however, the division of available building funds averaging about $2,000,000 a year per capital ship involved.

The only ships upon which work has been brought to a complete standstill pending developments in Washington are the two at New York navy yard. Stoppage there, it was said, does not involve probability of damage suits for breach of contract.

In any case, it was added, expenditures now in progress on ships that may within a few weeks, perhaps days, be ordered scrapped, are of such a nature that they could not be saved in any case.

The bulk of the $2,000,0000 a year for each ship is for materials ordered and which would have to be paid for in any case. Only in one or two cases is there a large labor force at work on actual building of the ships.

One phase of the program naval officers have been struck with is its probable effect on the three great ship building plants doing the most of the new ship construction for the government. Those plants, it was said today, were engaged almost entirely on government work and on those ships which would be scrapped under the plan all three, it was predicted would in all probability be forced to close down. They are the plants of the New York shipbuilding company; the Foreriver (Massachusetts) company; and the Newport News company.

It was very evident that naval officers quite generally expected Mr. Hughes' program to be accepted with only minor modifications. There was some surprise indicated that the British delegation had not announced acceptance immediately when the plan was presented, leaving to a later time such adjustment of details as might seem desirable. The modifications which Mr. Balfour, heading the British group, will submit tomorrow, it was said, apparently could have been worked out afterward, as well as before a general agreement.

MRS. OBENCHAIN TO AGAIN MARRY FORMER HUSBAND

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—A license was obtained today by Ralph Obenchain of Chicago, to wed his divorced wife, Mrs. Madalynne C. Obenchain, for whom he is attorney in the case of which she, under indictment on a charge of murder of J. Belton Kennedy, is awaiting trial here.

NEW GRISWOLD WELL PUTS 500 BARRELS IN TANKS ON MONDAY

The Griswold 1800-foot well on the Burnett, South Electra pool, put around 500 barrels of oil in the tanks during the day Monday, according to reports brought from the field Monday night.

Casing is still seven feet off the bottom, it was stated, and not on bottom as had been understood Sunday, and the heads have come so steadily there has not been opportunity to clean the hole out.

The casings bridge the hole about 40 feet from the bottom, it was stated, and it is necessary to run the bailer after each head.

S. M Griswold, the vice president and general manager of the company after spending Monday at the well, stated that the estimates of the company's field superintendent and others at the well Monday ran from 1000 to 1500 barrels for the well when it is completed, which is expected to be accomplished in the next few days.

ARMS MEET ADOPTS COMMITTEE METHOD FOR NEGOTIATIONS

Elastic Replacement Program and Limiting Or Outlawing of Submarines, Among Britain's "Acceptance in Principle."

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The real work of the armament negotiations was transferred today from the open conference to the more secluded precincts of the committee room.

After a debate which developed widely separated views on the advisability of giving publicity to the negotiations, the big five, comprising the chief delegates of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, settled on the committee plan as the only acceptable solution.

To one committee, whose membership will be identical with that of the full conference itself, was assigned the task of working out a solution for the Far Eastern questions. Another, composed of all delegates of the five great powers, was created to take over negotiations on the main topic of armament limitation. Since only the delegates of the five powers are qualified to act on armament limitation in the conference, the result in each case will be to resolve the delegates into a "committee of the whole."

The presumption everywhere tonight was that the meeting would be held behind closed doors.

Reason for Change.

The committee plan was said to have been agreed to as the most direct method of attack on the problem before the conference since it would permit greater liberty of confidential expressions between representatives of the various governments and would obviate much of the procedure that would be necessary should the sessions continue entirely in the open.

Another argument used by those who favored the proposal was that it would facilitate such modifications of program as might become necessary through changes in personnel of the various delegations and in the diplomatic situation generally confronting the conference.

One result of the decision may be to make tomorrow's open session of the conference, the last of those which precede the period of actual decision of questions on which the negotiations hinge. The most optimistic officials do not expect the officials to report without long study and debate.

The naval armament proposal of the American government came before the delegation heads incidentally in the discussion of the procedure and at the suggestion of Premier Briand of France. It was decided that each interested nation should first inform the armament committee how much of the American plan it could accept and what parts it considered necessary to amend. Suggested substitutions for inacceptable portions would be submitted as negotiations proceed.

Heads Made Decision

In making those decisions, the heads of the delegations of the five big powers acted as a "committee on program and procedure with respect to the limitation of armament" and the heads of all nine of the delegations acted as a "committee on program and procedure with respect to Pacific and Far Eastern questions" designations conferred at the first meeting of the full conference on Saturday. On both of these committees J. Butler Wright, an official of the state department was chosen secretary and will assist Chairman Hughes in preparing a report for tomorrow's conference session.

At the conclusion of the second meeting today, the first official communique of the conference was issued outlining the decision of the two committees.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Great Britain's acceptance "in principle" of the American proposals for limitation of naval armaments contemplates an alteration of the plan in several important details.

The British acceptance will be presented at tomorrow's plenary session of the conference by Arthur J. Balfour, head of the mission, who has plenipotentiary powers. Japan's acceptance "in principle," although it has been forecast by the statements of Baron Admiral Kato, may be delayed, as the Japanese mission is obligated to confer with Tokio.

Mr. Balfour may not outline the details of the reservations Great Britain wishes to make, but they are substantially described this way—instead of a flat ten-year holiday, Great Britain wants the replacement program to be an elastic one—spread over a period of years.

Great Britain would like to see the submarine outlawed from naval warfare. Failing in that, she wants to see their tonnage and equipment distinctly limited. She feels that the submersible fleets allowed by the American program are too great; she has never had so large a submarine fleet as the proposals would allow her.

The United States, Great Britain feels, would have her at a disadvantage in airplane carrying ships, under the terms of the American proposals,

SECURE JURY FOR TRIAL OF H. T. SCOTT

Aged Dean Storekeeper to Go on Stand for State as in Companion Case Against Sewell Fields.

Special to the Record News.

HENRIETTA, Nov. 14.—The taking of evidence in the trial of H. T. "Sotty" Scott, the second resident of Wichita Falls to face trial in connection with the alleged highjacking of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Givens, proprietors of a store at Dean, will start tomorrow in the 30th district court before Judge H. F. Weldon.

The jury of twelve men for the case was completed just before adjournment here this afternoon. In the selection of the jury 37 members of the special venire were examined, several being excused for cause.

Scott's defense will probably be an alibi as was the case of Sewell Fields, his alleged partner in the robbery who was tried last week on a similar indictment, found guilty, and sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary. Prospective jurors were asked their attitude toward an alibi defense. All members of the venire who were examined were also asked by the defendant's attorneys regarding "reasonable doubt" in proof and whether or not the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Givens the alleged victims, were old people, would influence their decision.

The defense has subpoened several witnesses from Wichita Falls and it is expected that the taking of evidence will require a longer time than in the Fields trial. As at the latter's trial the state will place Mr. Givens on the stand as their first witness.

District Attorney H. R. Wilson of Wichita Falls and J. S. Dickey, special prosecutor of this city, are handling the case for the state with R. E. and C. O. Taylor of this city and Shields Heyser of Wichita Falls, attorneys for the defendant.

The following men constitute the jury: A. O. Brand, farmer; E. L. Summers, farmer; A. Y. Simmons, farmer; W. B. Allen, traveling man; E. J. Simons, farmer; F. D. McNeal, farmer; L. S. Wright, merchant; J. E. Robinson, carpenter; A. N. Wilson, blacksmith; J. E. Williams, farmer; Jeff Sweacea, farmer; R. H. Reeves, farmer.

JAIL DELIVERY IS ATTEMPTED AT HENRIETTA

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Nov. 14.—What is believed by officers to have been a wholesale attempt at jail delivery was narrowly averted today noon when detected. When officers who had received the tip in some unknown manner arrived at the jail accompanied by District Attorney Wilson and several other county officials they found three bars cut practically in two.

Search of prisoners by the officers disclosed several saws, razor blades, pieces of brick and a blackjack.

Sewell Fields of Wichita Falls convicted of robbery with firearms here last week and sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary was not connected with attempted delivery, according to the opinion expressed by officers. They found no tools on the convicted man and his cell apparently had not been tampered with.

because while Great Britain has an equipment of these craft, the United States would have to build new the number allotted. They would be of later design and of superior improvement while the British ships would be obsolete.

Great Britain wants the replacement period spread over a period of years, because British naval experts argue, the program could be carried on with a very small equipment of building plant at a small scale, probably a ship at a time. If a flat ten year holiday were to be declared, they say, the facilities for making a wholesale replacement at the end of ten years would have to be kept in organization and although great fleets of warships might be consigned to the junk pile, the facilities for reproducing them still would exist.

Such a program, the British naval experts said, does not go to the root of the question. Therefore they will propose that, for instance, a one ship production equipment be left to each nation, and that the immense properties, equipment, technical staff and other organizations which would have to be kept in readiness to take up a replacement program in ten years be dispensed with.

ITALY AND FRANCE WILL ACT JOINTLY AT PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—At a conference late today between Premier Briand, head of the French delegation, and Senator Schanzer, president of the Italian delegation, an agreement was reached for an harmonious attitude by the two countries toward questions coming before the armament conference.

The agreement covers not only questions arising out of the conference on limitation of armament, but also those which may come up during the discussion of Pacific and Far Eastern affairs.

Senator Schanzer accompanied by Senator Albertini, another member of the Italian delegation, went at once to the Italian embassy after the conference with M. Briand, to inform Ambassador Ricci of the decision. The conference between the French and Italian delegates occupied more than an hour and was said to have covered all phases of the international meeting. The agreement which finally resulted between the two countries was described as "complete" and, it was said, in well informed circles, would attribute to the realization of the purpose which President Harding had in mind when he conceived the conference.

KIWANIS CLUB TICKET NAMED; BRITAIN TALKS

The "regular" ticket selected by the nominating committee of the Kiwanis club for the annual election in December was announced by Raymond Myers of the committee, at the regular weekly luncheon Monday noon at the Kemp hotel to be as follows: Ben Neal, president; Albert Ellis, vice president; Julian Bobo, district trustee, and Carter McGregor, treasurer. While this is the regular ticket, according to Kiwanis constitution, any ten men can get together and nominate a ticket to be voted on.

The list of directors named by the committee consists of Grover Bullington, Carl Eckman, Harry Baum, M. G. Catter, Rev. Fred T. Datson, H. A. Dodson and Dr. M. W. Hoover.

A. H. Britain, made the principal talk of the Monday program, a plea for the Kiwanis club to enlist in the fight to get back to normal times and away from the "boom days" orgy of spending and idleness, which he tersely characterized as a debauch.

Work, economy and the simple life are the three cardinal points which the speaker said must be followed to put this community, this state and this nation again on a sound basis. It is the duty of the club to do all in its power to inculcate ideas of economy, work and simplicity of habits, he said, answering the question what the club could do as a body for the public good.

Likening the period through which the entire country and particularly Wichita Falls during the oil boom, went during the war "prosperity," to a drunken orgy, Mr. Britain said the "cool, grey, dawn of the morning after" is upon the people. It behooves the clubs of the character of the Kiwanis club, he said, to officiate in the role of the porter who brings the pitcher of ice water, to relieve the "hangover."

The speaker's remarks were full of humor and were greatly enjoyed by the club members, some of whom evidently understood the application intended by the concrete examples. An epigram was coined by the speaker when he said that while the rest of the country were on a mild "souse" Wichita Falls was on a rip roaring "Home brew" carousel, in which the home brew was oil.

W. S. Curlee was successful in winning the attendance prize, a Klaxon horn donated by L. M. Forcer. Dr. Price Lowrey was the chairman of the day. Silent boosts given by Jim Gant were real 15 centers and were heartily enjoyed.

NEW KATY CARD EXPECTED SOON

Connection with the "Texas Special," the Katy's fastest train to Saint Louis and Kansas City from Texas points and improved service out of Wichita Falls to northern and eastern points, is being worked out by Katy officials and it is probable that change in the passenger schedule leaving this city will be possible in a short time, according to H. G. Smith, division freight and passenger agent of the Katy here.

At the present time anyone going to Kansas City or Saint Louis from Wichita Falls, either must go to Dallas, or travel on the slower trains. The proposed change sets the time of leaving this city at 2 o'clock in the afternoon instead of 6:15 o'clock, enabling passengers to make connection at Denison, arriving in Kansas City, the next day at 7:45 a. m. and in Saint Louis at 11:25 a. m. At the present time passengers leaving here at 6:15 p. m. arrive in Kansas City at 1:55 p. m. and in Saint Louis at 7:55 p. m. the next day.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

Alamo City. Grand old name. His father was the great commoner of Texas who sleeps in a pecan grove in the city of Austin. His grandfather was that General Thomas Hogg who wore the grey and died before the close of the war in the service of the Planters republic. Mike never employs a publicity agent. He just goes and comes and when there is fighting to be done he is willing to play his part. His brother, Will Hogg, is a millionaire and Mike isn't proverty stricken. Like many others he was "done in oil" and the oil stuck and so did the money in the warchest of Mike.

Colonel John Henry Kirby of Houston never sleeps at the switch. After responding to the distress call sent out by Fort Worth to assist in the organization of the $1,500,000 agricultural and cattle loan agency, Colonel Kirby returned to his home city and renewed his activity. Now the Finance Cattle Loan Company of Houston with capital stock $500,000 has been chartered and the incorporators are Robert E. Goree, W. Weatherford, Colonel John Henry Kirby and A. B. Slack. That is the way John Henry does things. He saw the way the cat was jumping and he decided that Houston needed a finance cattle loan company. He organized it; he obtained a charter and now the Houston Cattle Loan Company is ready for business. Ft. Worth has eight men or rather eight families whose combined fortunes will exceed a hundred million dollars. Houston hasn't but they have a cattle loan agency down there.

Hon. John W. Baker resigned the office of state treasurer to become vice president of the Breckenridge State Bank. This happened last spring. Now the Breckenridge State Bank has closed its doors. John W. Baker, an honest man, says it is solvent, that it had deposits of $950,000 and loans of $1,147,000. A run on the bank forced its officials to close the doors. The bank had not sufficient cash on hand and neither could it procure the funds to withstand the run. Of course it is the old story of a wild mob who precipitated a run and stabbed the financial standing of themselves and their own city. John W. Baker said to them, "Every depositor, except interest bearing and secured, can rest assured that they will get one hundred cents on the dollar for all their deposits, just as soon as the legal requirements are complied with." This failed to satisfy them. They made a run; they forced the bank to close its doors; now they are howling about it. These are times when men should not rock the boat. These are times when men should bear and forebear. Commercial skies are brightening all the time and patience is a magnificent asset. It never pays for a man to bite off his nose to spite his face.

Sidney Samuels, is a native Texan and one of the accomplished orators of the Lone Star State. He is a finished product of the schools and colleges of America and in his home at Fort Worth he has a private library that is the envy of his friends and in his offices a law library second to none. A most accomplished lawyer and gentleman to the manner born, Sidney Samuels is a connisseur of literature and all that goes with literature, a lover of the classics and this includes all the classics and one of the finest conversationalists under Texas skies. His work during the war time was incessant and his voice and his pen ever at the command of his country and his people. He was a liberal contributor to all the war chests, liberal buyer of all issues of liberty bonds, a staunch defender of the flag of his country and the underlying principles of Democratic government and universal freedom for mankind. Ever a dauntless and eloquent champion of civil and religious liberty, this silver tongue member of the Fort Worth bar is a man that it is a pleasure to know. His father was a gallant Confederate soldier and Sidney Samuels would have been a soldier had he not passed the age limit. H. N. F. has known and appreciated him for a long time for his gifts of heart and soul and mind has ever made him a man worth knowing. He isn't a great advertiser in his charities, he never let his right hand know what his left hand doeth and he never needs the services of a publicity agent to advertise to the world his deeds of kindness or his words of cheer to his fellows who are less fortunate. Flowers for the living. This bunch of winter roses is hurled at the head of S. S., although he failed to make connection on Armistice day.

EXAMINATIONS FOR POSTMASTER AT CHILDRESS DEC. 13

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The civil service commission today set December 13 as the date for holding an examination to choose a new postmaster at Childress. The place pays a salary of $2,600.

SHOW MAN WILL HAVE EXAMINING TRIAL SATURDAY

The preliminary hearing for S. A. Sugart arrested Saturday on a statutory complaint will be held Wednesday before Justice of the Peace Gwinn. Sugart who is connected with the management of a show was arrested upon the complaint of a girl who was employed by the show company while at Electra.

UNITED DRIVE CAMPAIGN PLAN IS APPROVED

Final campaign plans for the raising of the United Charities budget the latter part of this month, when a budget of $28,500 will be raised for the support of the half dozen charitable and benevolent associations of the city, were approved at a meeting of the general committee at the Chamber of Commerce rooms last night. W. L. Robertson, vice chairman, presided.

A dinner for workers which is to be the starting point of the campaign, is to be held at the Y. W. C. A. on the night of Monday November 28. After this dinner workers will start with the soliciting campaign. Four minute talkers will appear at all local theaters and clubs. One moving picture show, the Olympic, has already agreed to donate the proceeds of a performance, and workers state that they expect that other benefit performances will be given by other theaters.

The offering of the Union Thanksgiving service will also go to this campaign.

Meetings of three of the important campaign committees for the coming week were announced by Jess W. Bole, Pennsylvania advertising man, who donates his services for a certain time each year to the Salvation Army, and who has been loaned by that organization to direct this drive.

These meetings are: Organization committee, B. F. Johnson, chairman, which will meet at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Tuesday morning to complete the list of teams; Speakers committee, R. E. Shepherd, chairman, which will meet at the same place Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 to name speakers and set dates; Finance and rating committee, C. W. Snider, chairman, which will meet at the Chamber of Commerce Thursday morning at 10:00.

Decision not to ask the women workers to canvass the residential district was reached at the Monday meeting, it being considered that the men of the families would make the donations, and that they would be reached by other means.

DRIVERS DENY NEW YORK MILK WAGON STRIKE IS BROKEN

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Assertion that the milk wagon drivers union had been broken and that its striking members were flocking back to apply for their old jobs on "open shop" terms, was made tonight by I. Elkin Nathans, secretary of the New York milk conference board.

That was denied by union officials who insisted only a few men had deserted union ranks.

The returning workers, Mr. Nathans said, were being regarded as new applicants.

Reduction of Wages on Roads Again Deferred

The county commissioner's court in regular session Monday again failed to take final action in the matter of reducing salaries and wages on the road contract of Potts and Prentice.

As was the case last week the discussion showed a disagreement among the members of the court as to the advisability of reducing the employment cost.

The question was brought up by Commissioner J. P. Jackson, who declared himself in favor of cutting the salary of foremen and certain skilled labor. Commissioner Kuntz of Iowa Park favored horizontal reduction applying to all labor on the Potts and Prentice contract.

Judge J. P. Jones objected to reducing the 40-cent hour rate for common labor as did Commissioner Lee Prescott from Burkburnett. The latter expressed doubt as to the advisability of cutting any of the salaries or wages.

"Counting the time those men are layed off," Commissioner Prescott declared," they are getting hardly average wages and I am of the opinion that we are not paying any more by the month for labor than any other road contract in the state. It is true we might be able to get men for less, but I don't believe that just because there is a shortage of work we should take advantage of that fact and ask men to work for less than a living wage."

Commissioner Kuntz in asking for the horizontal reduction said that the county was paying more for wages on the Potts and Prentice contract than sub-contractors were paying for the same class of work. The matter will come for action again next Monday.

TREES MUST BE TRIMMED, SAYS FITTS

Its tree trimming time and trees in the city must be properly trimmed by December 15, was the gist of an announcement made Monday by Police Commissioner Fitts.

According to the city ordinances it is required that all trees by sidewalks be trimmed so that no branches hang over the pavement from a lesser height than eight feet.

The ordinance will be rigidly enforced and in every instance when tree branches are found hanging too low over sidewalks, arrests of property owners will follow, Mr. Fitts declared.

ARMS PARLEY ADVISORY BODY IS ORGANIZED

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The advisory committee of the American delegation at its organization meeting today selected six sub-committees to work out a plan in connection with the items on the agenda of the general armament conference.

After Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, of the navy, had explained the Hughes program, declaring it would mean a saving of more than two hundred million dollars on construction, there was some informal discussion, members saying later the committee stood as one in support of the program.

Chairman Sutherland of the advisory committee was named chairman ex-officio of the executive committee, with Mrs. Eleanor Franklin Egan, as secretary. Other members are: Under-Secretary of State Fletcher; Samuel Gompers, Secretary Hoover, assistants Secretary Roosevelt, former Senator Willard Saulsbury of Delaware, and W. Boyce Thompson, New York.

"Mutt and Jeff" Owned "Body and Soul" by Fisher

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Proprietary right to "Mutt and Jeff" as characters is possessed by Harry C. ("Bud") Fisher and decisions to that effect by the New York state courts are final, the supreme court today refusing to consider an appeal which the Star Company, publisher of the Hearst newspapers of New York, sought to bring.

The courts awarded Fisher exclusive right to reproduce the two characters, ordered he be protected from unfair competition of others reproducing them, and rejected the contentions of the Star Company that Fisher could only copyright particular postures and words descriptive of their exploits in incidents drawn by him and that the two characters were public property.

When Theodore H. Price--

—Talks about cotton, he says something.

—Because he knows what he is talking about.

—Theodore Price started in the cotton game when he was a kid.

—And he has been in it ever since.

—Price knows that the largest item of cost in the production of cotton is picking.

—And to reduce this cost it is necessary to have —AN EFFICIENT MECHANICAL COTTON PICKER.

—Theodore Price has devoted ten years to the development of a mechanical cotton picker.

—Has spent more than a million dollars perfecting Augus Campbell's great invention.

—Knows more about cotton picking machines than any man in America.

—THEODORE H. PRICE SAYS:

—"The demand for cotton is apparently insatiable."

—"If the rest of the world equalled America's consumption of cotton."

—"It would require a crop of one hundred million bales or five times the world's present average."

—"A cotton famine is probably in sight."

—"And the southern states will lose the monopoly of cotton production unless the cost can be lowered by labor saving machinery."

—"In my judgment, there is ONLY ONE REALLY EFFICIENT MECHANICAL COTTON PICKING MACHINE."

—"This machine (The Price Campbell )will correct the deplorable social conditions that hand picking creates."

—"Will restore the women to neglected homes."

—"And send the children back to the school rooms."

—"The great war delayed the commercial production of my cotton picking machines."

—"Two years ago the Wichita Motors Company became interested."

—"And made exhaustive tests and suggested many refinements."

—"I am now convinced that this well established institution."

—"With its splendid organization and ideal geographic location."

—"Is the logical foundation on which to build up this great enterprise."

"The Wichita Motors Company is directed by vigorous young men, wide awake and alert to present day necessities."

—"These men have built up an international reputation for Wichita Trucks."

—"And I am entirely confident that they will be successful in commercializing my cotton picking machine."

—"It will be necessary to greatly enlarge their present manufacturing facilities in order to produce these machines in quantities."

—"I do not seek wealth and my one ambition is to do something constructive for the great cotton industry."

—"I want a large number of people to profit with me in this great enterprise."

—"You are offered an eight per cent preferred stock at ten dollars per share and a limited opportunity to obtain a bonus of a like amount of common."

—"The earnings of the Wichita Motors Company make the preferred a good investment."

—"And the possibilities of the common are almost unlimited."

—Didn't I tell you Mr. Price would talk today.

—Talked right out in the meeting like Mr. Kemp did.

—Agrees with me and Mr. Kemp doesn't he?

—Better heed my warning.

—Send in your order for preferred stock NOW and get a bonus of the common before it is TOO LATE.

—I say: Heed my warning.

—I say again: Heed my warning.

RESTRAIN FITTS FROM ENFORCING NEW ORDINANCE

Judge H. F. Weldon of the 30th district court Monday granted F. H. Clisbee of the Clisbee Auto Livery and Transfer Company a temporary injunction restraining J. B. Fitts, police commissioner, from enforcing certain provisions of the recent traffic ordinance passed by the city council. Judge Weldon in granting the temporary injunction set next Saturday as the date for the hearing to determine whether or not the hearing shall be made permanent.

The petition of Clisbee who as owner of the largest individual service cars in the city has enjoined the city from enforcing certain features of traffic ordinances in the past, alleges that in enforcing the ordinance the police department has violated the contract which he has with the Fort Worth and Denver railroad for the exclusive privilege of parking his cars on the railroad's property at the union station.

He alleges that Commissioner Fitts only granted him parking place for one car on Eighth street and when the car is not there will not allow another car to take its place. The petition also objects to the requirements which will allow only four service cars to park at the union station entrance on Eighth street and will not allow any car the privilege of obtaining passengers at the Eighth street end of the union station except the service cars that have stands on Eighth street.

The plaintiff in his petition says that his employes have been repeatedly arested by police officers for soliciting business from the property of the railroad company although according to his contract with the railroad company he was to have that exclusive privilege.

The injunction suit follows repeated protests made at city council meetings by representatives of other service drivers of the city who have maintained that the Clisbee Company was obtaining a large part of the business at the union station due to their contract with the railroad company.

The ordinance recently passed by the council at the instance of Fitts and which the police department has been enforcing during the last few days, does away with several of the objects made by a majority of the service car drivers.

The suit it is expected will test the right of the city to regulate a business which has a private contract which gives it certain privileges. Part of the Clisbee Company contract with the railroad company provides that the former shall carry the mail to and from the postoffice.

DAIRYMEN ASK FOR INCREASED TARIFF DUTY ON PRODUCTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Duties on dairy products, averaging slightly higher than rates carried in the house tariff bill were asked of the senate finance committee today by representatives of several dairy organizations. The testimony followed closely that which was given at previous hearings on the dairy products schedule of the bill before the house ways and means committee, as well as before the senate committee several months ago.

The committee also heard protests of American cattlemen, doing business in Mexico, against the import duties on cattle carreid by the Fordney measure. Spokesmen for the cattle interests were particularly desiruous of getting a lower duty on cattle under two years of age, which they claimed was the age at which most of the Mexican-grown feederstock is shipped north for market preparation.

WHY NOT ALL THE CARDS?

Lord Northcliffe, owner of a chain of important British newspapers and magazines, is in China writing copyright articles for the press of the world. Northcliffe is the greatest of modern propagandists and there is ever a motive behind his mission as a writer. His latest is that the Japs control the Chinese delegates to the disarmament conference. There is an Anglo-Japanese treaty. It is an offensive and defensive affair. It is a steel riveted pact. Limitation of armament in the Pacific would make this pact useless. Great Britain has India. Great Britain has Hong Kong. Great Britain has South Africa. Now what is Northcliffe driving at? Why not all the cards on the table?

Oscar Straus is chairman of the general committee of limitation of armament. Chairman Straus says public opinion will not stand for propaganda. Regardless of his statement, there are more propagandists and publicity agents afloat than ever before in the history of the world and 80 per cent of these workers have special axes to grind.

Senator W. H. Borah, of Idaho, is the real father of the arms conference, and, regardless of what politicians say of him, Borah is one of the ablest of American statesmen. He thinks and acts for his country and his countrymen. Borah is not a hide-bound politician.

All members of congress, Republicans and Democrats, have commended the arms plan submitted by Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes. A man of the hour is Charles Evans Hughes.

WHERE THE FLEECY STAPLE GROWS.

West Texas is the coming cotton country and the Record News has reference to the territory lying east of the Colorado foothills and west of Fort Worth. Mayor-Editor Sam Roberts, of the Haskell Free Press, says the government report of cotton ginned in Haskell county up to October 18, 1921, shows that a total of 14,035 bales had been ginned in Haskell county this year, against 8,575 for 1920, an increase of 5,460 bales, which is partly accounted for by the excellent weather enjoyed by this section, the farmers being able to gather the entire crop without the usual bad weather.

Below the Record News gives the ginning reports of the different counties in this section, compared with last year's ginning up to October 18. Quantities given are in running bales, counting round half bales, and does not include linters:

Building permits tell an interesting story. These are the figures for the first two weeks in November: Dallas, last week, $199,950; first week, $452,485; Houston, last week, $268,612; first week, $183,475; Fort Worth, last week, $133,325; first week, $53,926. And Dallas leads all the rest. What is the answer?

Judge J. C. Baldwin, of Houston, and Will Thompson, of Files Valley, Hill county, were discussing the settlement of an estate. They were brothers-in-law. Now the undertaker has the body of Baldwin and the sheriff has the live carcass of Thompson. Wherever there is money there appears to be hell.

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

By JOHN PILGRIM.

Over at the Brown's last night young Brown was telling about his new car. He went in to the sort of ecstatic detail that a young father never dares. He told how he bought it, and why, and how much of an allowance he got on the old car and all that sore of stuff. By and by his brother cut in.

"Why didn't you get a different sort of a jigger on the dewdingus?" he asked.

No one paid the least attention to him. Young Brown went on talking and the rest of us chimed in and were listened to, and from time to time Young Brown's Brother set up his banshee wail.

"I think you should have put a flapper on the tailgauge," said he.

If he had luck, some one heard him. But no one ever replied. He might just as well have tried to whistle down the throat of a Gulf hurricane. His suggestions were all right, too. If Young Brown had listened to his brother and followed his brother's thought he would have been better off. He would have saved some money and his car would have looked like two million dollars in bright dimes instead of the perfectly commonplace 'bus it is at present. But no one listened to Young Brown's Brother. No one ever will. If he lives to be as old as Pikes Peak he'll never get an audience to stand still.

The trouble with Young Brown's Brother is that he is always there with the helpful thought. Nothing ever satisfies him. If he happens to see the Dawn of the Day of Judgment he'll remark that there should have been more pink in the northeast. His ideas are usually sound, but he has too many of them. We imperfect human beings get tired of being corrected all the time. We cannot argue against people who know more than we do, but we can keep them in their place by paying no attention to them at all.

If Young Brown's Brother would vary his delivery and pat us on the back and tell us how smart we are, we would be more apt to listen to his helpful hints.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

PURE AIR TO BREATHE.

"I think this room will do very nicely," said the nurse, pausing on the threshold of a pretty modern-day bedroom and surveying it thoughtfully.

"But I don't want to put my daughter in this room," said the mother, who, in fashionable attire, stood with the nurse at the door.

"The east room has been newly decorated and is very new and pretty, Marjory would like it best I think. Oh, dear, how careless they are in these finishing schools! To think of having fever just now, too, when I was planning her coming-out clothes and a big ball for the New Year! It is quite too bad!" And the petulant little mother swept across the hall with a trailing fragrance and a swishing of silken garments.

"There is no fireplace in the east room," the nurse said. "And that is one of the reasons why I would like to have my patient in this bedroom."

Fireplaces and Fresh Air.

"But what has a fireplace to do with convalescence from fever?" said the pretty mother in wonderment.

"It has a good deal to do with the ventilation of a room, and the result of air contamination upon health is fairly well known," the woman in blue and white linen replied.

"Air contamination? The air in this room seems perfectly good to me."

And poised on the white enamelled threshold like a brilliant butterfly, the woman sniffed the air almost angrily.

"There is only one window in this room, and no fireplace. The room is pretty, but rather small, and the bath room is three doors away, while the other bedroom opens into a bathroom. That in itself is a consideration, since it means that the patient need never be altogether alone while I am preparing bath water. I shall always be within hearing.

How to Improve Ventilation.

"Then the mater of ventilation is solved, because the room has two windows. They are opposite each other, thus making possible a current of moving air, which is very desirable in any sick room. Then the fireplace itself acts as a ventilator." The nurse spoke quietly.

Back in the rejected room the fashionable mother gazed at the fireplace respectfully.

"I haven't realized that fireplaces were so important. They have always appealed to me as being chiefly ornamental and a trifle sentimental" she said.

"Fireplaces," said the nurse, "are useful as ventilators because the heat of the fire causes the air around it to become lighter. So it rises through and out of the chimney. This leaves a vacuum, which the colder, and therefore heavier and denser, air rushes in to fill. A large lamp placed in an empty fireplace does the same thing, with much less dirt and work, so sometimes a large lamp is used in a sick room fireplace instead of coal or wood fire."

Fireplace Merely Ornamental.

"Then we shall order a large lamp at once, so that Marjory will not be annoyed with the rattling of coal and coal shovels, not to mention pokers and shakers and ashes and the crackling of paper and kindling in the morning," said the mother. "This is one of those ornamental fireplaces. There is no chute for the ashes, they have to be taken out by hand."

"Then I think we should have a large lamp, and we will get exactly the same result by placing it in the empty fireplace," said the nurse.

And so the problem of ventilation was taken care of.

The Unknown Soldier

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

A very impressive ceremony took place in October in Westminster Abbey, when General Pershing, the head of the United States Army, laid the Medal of Congress upon the grave of the Unknown British Soldier buried there.

This incident needs to be widely noted in the United States.

There are two forces constantly at work in our country, as in all countries.

One of these forces is Dissension. It is the natural tendency of nations to suspect, distrust, and dislike one another. It is the sentiment which is the little seed out of which war grows.

There are many agencies at work cultivating this sentiment among us. Most of them do it unconsciously and from what they consider the best of motives. But nevertheless they are steadily injecting poison into the nation.

The other force is the spirit of Unity, of Brotherhood. It is the duty of all men who have any sort of vision and who really desire the welfare of the human race to promote this spirit as much as possible.

When the war came the allied nations were drawn together in a very strong and wholesome sentiment of brotherhood. Every effort should be put forth to keep alive this sentiment. And the act of General Pershing is the kind of thing that helps in this direction.

This idea was expressed by King George upon this occasion in a letter which he wrote to the General. He expressed his heartfelt good wishes for the International Conference to be held at Washington, and his hope that the statesmen who gathered there would bring their labors to a satisfactory conclusion. And he added these words:

"May they do all that practical statesmanship can achieve to perpetuate the comradship of the war in the maintenance of peace."

The same sentiment was expressed in a London newspaper as follows:

"Such an act of knightly homage as General Pershing performed at the tomb of the Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey yesterday recalls the victorious comradship of Great Britain and America in the Great War and strengthens with new purpose our comradship in the world peace which is yet to win."

And this ought to be the aim of the populations, both of Great Britain and the United States, to allow no bitterness to estrange them. For upon the unity of the two English speaking governments depends the peace of the world.

Of course, the English government has made mistakes, and the American government has doubtless done the same. They are both human and it is right to criticize them and to correct them. But to allow the inevitable errors of government to make enemies of the two great peoples would be an unspeakable calamity.

Sir L. Worthington-Evans, at the banquet given by General Pershing, used these eloquent words:

"A great forward step has been taken by the summoning of the Washington Conference. May the same spirit of mutual accommodation and fraternal affection as that with which we stood together in the great war animate the representatives of our nations to carry out the high resolve, that our dead shall not have died in vain."

It is to be hoped that the common sense of the two great nations will go forward in this spirit and insist that Great Britain and the United States shall go forward hand in hand to fulfil the purposes of destiny.

And it is to be hoped that this will find expression not only in words but in deed. General Pershing said in his speech on the same occasion:

"I, for one, have arrived at the conclusion that the time for the exchange of compliments is about over, and that all that now seems to be necessary is to reach some sort of understanding that will guide us in the future."

WIDROW WOLSON AS I KNEW HIM

By Jaypee Tumultous
(Apologies to the New York Times)

CHAPTER I.
The Meeting.

I shall never forget the circumstances under which I became Mr. Wolson's secretary. When he first came into politics I was against him to the last ditch. Far-seeing, intelligent, progressive young men like myself felt that he was not the man to become governor of our state. I led the opposition to him at the Joisey convention. Never did I work harder to defeat any man. The result was his nomination. Some days later the guvnor called upon me, slapped me on the back tenderly, and said: "Joe, I like your way of working. You may be all wrong....but you get results." He then appointed me his secretary and confidential adviser in all matters of no importance.

CHAPTER II.
More About the Convention.

I was impressed on the night of the convention that Mr. Wolson was a fast worker. After he had been nominated the chairman announced that word had been sent him at his home 100 miles away, and that he would leave for the convention hall at once to address the delegates. Five minutes later he blew in through a trap door. It was a very fast trip, and up to this day Mr. Wolson has never told me how he done it, or rather, did it.

His speech after the convention was most impressive. Strong men, hardened political leaders, matter-of-fact ward heelers, burst into tears. They seemed to sense the fact that he would not stop talking until all the saloons had closed for the night.

Old Pat McGinnigan rushed over to me, threw his arms about my neck, and looked at me with great big tears in his eyes. "It's the hay fever!" he exclaimed.

"What do you think of the candidate?" I asked him.

"Hot dawg!" exclaimed Pat, wringing out his handkerchief.

Correspondence With His Secretary

Dear Joe:—Have you attended to that matter of X? If you have not I would take it up first with J. After you see J you might interview K. L. and M. Do you get me?

WIIDROW

Dear Wiidrow:—I will do as you advise. I have given the matter close study and interviewed the men you name. They all agree with me that the laundry should make amends for the torn shirts. Yours truly,

SEC.

CHAPTER III
The Truth About Senator Haskum

I shall never forget the first fight that marked my man's entrance into the office of governor of Jersey. Lemuel Lush had been the peepul's choice for senator by popular vote, but Senator Jim Hoakum felt that he should retain the job in the theory that "once a senator, always a senator." The governor couldn't make up his mind which side to take. He called at my office to get my advice. We argued for three hours without saying anything in particular. This convinced me he would eventually do the right thing, and so I took him to task very severely, with the result that we parted greater friends than ever.

Six months later he reached a decision to oppose Smaters. I remember he stumped the state and denounced the bosses, calling them warts in the body politic. This hit the peepul's fancy, with the result that they took up as a slogan "We're for Wolson: He Knows Warts Wart!"

A Frank Exchange of Views on the Mesopotamian Issue

Dear President:—Don't you think it would be a good idea for you to say something about Mr.....? His references in his speech on the.....matter at the..... Hotel to Senator .....were most uncalled for.

TUMULTUOUS.

Dear Tumult:—You know what I think of Mr..... He is as low a person as Mr..... of ..... His denunciation of Mr..... is without excuse. I am writing a statement for the.....Gazette.

CHAPTER IV.
The Truth About General Lenyard Lumber

I have always longed for an opportunity to disprove the assertions that General Lumber was kept from going to France by the President. The facts are these:

Just as General Lumber was about to sail with his command he was recalled, relieved of the command, and told to report back to Washington. I called up the President and told him the peepul were under the impression General Lumber was being treated unfairly.

"I don't give a hoot about the peepul," he said. "What I am interested in is the general public."

I have been trying to figure out what he meant by this ever since.

Later he gave further postitive proof of no feeling against General Lumber by letting him present a flag to the Boy Scouts at Lebanon, Ohio.

Correspondence Bearing on a Vital Issue.

Dear Tumult:—Have you attended to that matter I spoke of at the Executive Mansion last Tuesday? It is very imperative. I must urge that you attend to it at once.

W. W.

Dear W. W.:—I have attended to it. The stoveman says he can put in a new length of pipe tomorrow, and that the White House heating system should be O. K. by Friday.

TUMULT.

CHAPTER V.
The Truth About William McGumm

Never has the President been so unfairly maligned as in the charge that he did not show gratitude to Mr. McGumm, who did so much to have him nominated for the presidency. Mr. McGumm has been recognized by the President and by able men like myself as an incompetent, jealous, inefficient, ignorant, unreliable, selfish trouble-maker. Consequently the President offered him the post of ambassador to France.

I cite correspondence between us bearing on the matter and proving my contention:

Tumult: Kindly forget our conversation of last Tuesday relative to that matter we first spoke of on Monday.

W. W.

Dear W. W.:—Consider it forgotten. When does the question of what we discussed Wednesday come up again?

CHATTERER AND SAMMY JAY QUARREL.

When people lose their tempers,
Oh, what a sorry sight!
They call each other dreadful names,
And sometimes scratch and bite.
The Merry Little Breezes ran
And hid themselves away
When Chatterer his temper lost,
And so did Sammy Jay.

It really was too dreadful! It quite spoiled the day for all the little people who were within sound of their voices. You see Sammy Jay had discovered that it was Chatterer and not a trap set by Farmer Brown's boy that had given him such a fright at Farmer Brown's corn-crib, and right away Sammy's temper just boiled over. Chatterer had his mouth so full of corn that he couldn't say a word, but he could run and run he did, scampering across Farmer Brown's dooryard to the shelter of the old stonewall on the edge of the Old Orchard with Sammy after him screaming "Thief! thief! thief!" at the top of his lungs.

"My gracious what a racket!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's boy as he opened the door. "That Jay is making such a fuss that I should think there was a Fox about." He put his milk pails down and stepped back into the house. In a minute he was out again with his terrible gun in his hands. He went straight to the old stonewall, where only a few minutes before Reddy Fox had been hiding, and it was well for Reddy that he had slipped away the minute Sammy Jay began to scream at Chatterer. Farmer Brown's boy looked disappointed when he saw no signs of Reddy. Then he went over to the little house of Bowser the Hound and unchained Bowser. Bowser wagged his tail and yelped with delight when he saw the gun, for he dearly loves to hunt. He ran ahead back to the Old Orchard and almost at once his great deep voice told all within hearing that his wonderful nose had found the tracks of Reddy Fox.

"I thought so," said Farmer Brown's boy. "I thought there had been a Fox here." Then he sighed, for he would have liked nothing better than to go hunting for Reddy. But Farmer Brown's boy is not the kind who run away for pleasure when there is work to be done.

Sammy Jay had flown away as soon as he saw Farmer Brown's boy and his terrible gun. Chatterer had hidden in the old stonewall, where he safely stored away the corn with which his cheeks had been stuffed. As soon as Farmer Brown's boy had gone to the barn to milk the cows Sammy Jay slipped back to the Old Orchard to look for Chatterer and his temper hadn't improved a bit. He soon saw Chatterer running along the old wall and once more began to scream, "Thief! thief!" And now that his mouth was empty Chatterer could reply, and you know Chatterer has one of the worst tongues of all the little people of the Green Forest.

In a Minute He Was Out Again With His Terrible Gun in His Hands.

"Thief yourself!" he screamed back. "Thief yourself! You stole my corn!"

"It isn't your corn any more than than it's mine!" screamed Sammy! "I told you about it in the first plce. Thief! thief! thief!

And from that they fell to calling each other worse things. The Old Orchard never had heard such a quarrel—never! Never! it was deadful! All day long they kept it up. Twice Farmer Brown's boy came down to see if that fox had come back, and scratched his head and wondered what all the fuss was about. At last Sammy Jay had a thought.

"I'm going straight over to the Green Forest to tell Shadow the Weasel where you are living!" he cried suddenly. "When he finds you won't steal any more corn or be so greedy that you won't let other people have a share."

Next story: "Chatterer and Sammy Jay Make Up."

The Daily Story

SCRUBBY RELATIONS.

Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner

When Mary Vance asked her in to spend the evening "and to meet a friend of Olly's" Lida Parrish had no idea that she was going to meet her future husband. A friend of Olly's might mean anybody; she was always being asked in to meet a friend of Olly's. Once it had been an old maid school teacher who was stopping over night in the city and had looked up her former pupil. To know Olly Vance once was to remember him forever, hence his ability to keep people on his acquaintance book long after time might be supposed to have erased their names. He had got his wife in that way. "She couldn't forget me," he said, laughingly.

That night Lida had not taken any particular pains with her looks because she was tired, and because, too, she did not expect to find any one very interesting at Mary Vance's. So it chanced that she walked into Joe Wayne's presence wearing her second-best serge, which was all shiny on the back breadths where she sat on a high stool and turned the leaves of a ledger all day. Ten minutes later she knew that she had met the man she could love. The difficulty was going to be from that point whether he would love her.

But Joe had known several minutes sooner than Lida that she had come into his life to stay, if he could make her. And he never ceased trying to make her from that evening. Once every two weeks he came into town and then he sought Lida out and courted her with every means at his command. And Lida was so busy accepting his attentions when they were available and dreaming about him and planning for his next visit, that she never thought to ask him a single question or entertain a single doubt that he wasn't all that he seemed and all that she wished him to be. As for herself she had nothing to tell that was not apparent on the face of things. She lived with Aunt Cordy—always had since her mother died—and earned $12 a week. That was the sum total of her history until Joe came and made more.

They had known each other for three months and had seen each other exactly six times when they were married. Aunt Cordy did her best with the wedding, which lacked a good many things, though Lida was too happy to be aware of it. And their wedding trip was to their new home.

Joe had bought a tiny house on a pleasant street and placed in it a few essentials, which Lida was to supplement with others as she chose. She was domestic from the top of her head to the tips of her shoes. And she went about learning the trade of home-making with a zest that was sure in time to make her an expert.

Joe had given up the road and gone into the office when he married, which paid him better and permitted him to be at home. And when at noon and night Lida saw him coming round their corner, she felt that she was the richest, most favored girl in all the world. The wonder of it was that she had ever got Joe away from all the other girls that must have wanted him.

But after a few weeks she began to feel a little lonely at times and wonder why the neighbors did not call on her. She had heard that in small towns they always did call. Take the woman next door, for instance. They were scarcely twenty feet distant from each other and yet this woman overlooked her as completely as if she were beyond reach of eye or voice. She was such a sweet looking person, too, Lida thought she might like her. And she had a little girl that captivated with her blue eyes and curls. Lida had tried to make friends with the little girl, but if ever the child started to smile a voice from within called her away. "It's very queer," Lida thought and she thought a long time before she spoke about it to Joe.

"Joe, I wish you'd tell me, if you know, why I can't seem to get acquainted with anybody." She sat on his lap and was smoothing back his hair. In reality Joe was a very homely man, but to Lida he was fine and heroic. And he always would be.

He sighed deeply and the light went out of his face. For a moment he looked Lida deep in the eyes, his own so grieved and puzzled that she knew instantly that something was wrong. "Why, I guess I'm to blame for that," he replied. "I haven't done anything. But I'm related to people who have done about everything mean that folks can do. Wayne spells dishonor, and, of course, I come in for my share, though I've always tried to be square and decent and am so considered by the people I work for."

Lida's face brightened. "There, I knew you were all right," she exclaimed. "Nothing else matters. What's a few scrubby relations? Everybody has them."

"Well, mine happens to be a particularly scrubby kind." Joe could not smile yet. "I can't tell you about them, Lida. They're too mean to talk about. I'd like to forget they even existed, but I can't for they're right on my back every minute. Not that they don't let me go my own way undisturbed. It isn't that. It's the fact that people know about them and hitch them on to me no matter what I try to do or be. And they're going to hitch them to you, too, Lida, which is the last thing I'd have prepared you, but I believed that when people saw you and realized the fact that we were trying to start a new family branch that was clean and worthy they'd favor us for our intentions. But it seems not. And so—well, I guess the thing for us to do is to start in somewhere where the shadow of the Waynes can't follow us. Oh, I'll find another job. Mr. Crossman will give me an A1 recommendation. And the house will sell before sundown."

There was a tense movement. "We'll do no such thing," Lida said, getting up from his lap and sitting down opposite him. "We'll stay on the job. And we'll win out against the whole batch of Waynes and public opinion. I feel that I have it in me to be an awfully good little fighter, and some day, when you're mayor or go to the Assembly, we'll laugh at all this."

"I ought to have prepared you," Joe said. "It's going to be hard for you, dear. What are you going to do?" he asked, dully.

"Well"—Lida lifted her chin—"I'm going to do different from what I have done. I've stayed at home waiting for people to come to see me. Now I'm going out after them. And somewhere I shall find some who will meet me half-way. In the meantime, you keep right on at your job, Joe, and never mind me."

Oh, Mrs. Wayne!" she cried, come as quick as you can. Helen has fallen and hurt her head."

She was gone and Lida after her. Blue-eyed Helen lay on the couch limp and with closed eyes. Somewhere Lida had heard that a child who had suffered a blow on the head, especially on the back of the head, must not be allowed to go to sleep. She caught Helen up and began to toss her about, run with her, slap her, shake her and talk to her.

"What are you doing that for?" gasped the distracted mother.

"It's the only way," answered Lida. "Come, Helen, you can't go to sleep if I have to pinch you black and blue."

And she succeeded in keeping the child awake until the doctor came. Even after he came she had to go on rocking, tossing and teasing Helen until she had passed the danger point. By that time Lida was exhausted and she could only creep home to let Joe wait upon her when he came.

It was not until some days later that she realized that her assistance had made a firm friend of her erstwhile disdainful neighbor. And as friend seemed to attract others, she soon found herself one of a pleasant little crowd, which her sweetness and natural good sense constantly made larger. Joe, too, was drawn into the magic circle, for the women his wife associated with had husbands and fathers who were not long in finding out that Joe had genuine qualities heretofore undiscovered.

But Lida could not enjoy her happy success without giving some thought to Joe's scrubby relations. She began to see what she could do with them and though she found the older ones too well set in their ways she could influence and uplift the younger ones. And as a "little leaven leaveneth the whole loaf," it was not long before any one could see the improvement in the whole tribe of Waynes. For now and then Joe, as well as Lida, lent a helping hand and persuaded others to do the same until the Wayne name began to lose its mirth and stand for a new order in the community.

THE MOON

The learned Professor Pickering finds life upon the moon; there men, perhaps, are dickering, and chasing the doublemoon. We've always thought it tenantless, and cold and gray and dead, without baseball, and penantless, with none to paint it read. But now Professor Pickering sees life signs everywhere, and maybe men are liquoring in soft drink joints up there; and maybe skates political as gifted statesmen pose, and klckers, dourly critical, denounce the movie shows. We've viewed the moon through telescopes, its craters and its vales; though fakers, in their yellow scopes, framed up some dizzy tales, of living beings dwelling there, we thought their tales were bunk; no orators were yelling there, no statesmen peddled bunk. We gave no time to bickering, our platform was so strong; but now Professor Pickering, has shown us where we're wrong. He's found a lot of greenery, strange plants that grow and thrive; amid that ghastly scenery some cow feed is alive; and —is it merely vanity?—if such green things appear, there's sure to be humanity on hand, to profiteer. The learned Professor Pickering to our beliefs says, "Scat!" So play him on your Clickering and paste him in your hat.—Copyright by George Matthew Adams.

Mrs. Leonard Grayson was hostess at bridge Saturday afternoon at her home, 1115 Polk street, complimentary to Mrs. M. W. Hoover, a bride of the early autumn.

The score cards were decorated in the hand-painted turkeys carrying out the suggestion of Thanksgiving.

In the games, Mrs. Jack Owens won the high score favor, a dainty set of sandwich cutters. Mrs Huff made low score, and was consoled with a pretty hand-painted gold cloth covered bridge pad and the honoree was presented a lockerwood sweet meat box.

At a late hour, a delicious luncheon consisting of chicken salad, bread and butter sandwiches, olives, date roll, coffee and mints was served and favors of pumpkin shaped nut cups presented to Mrs. Hoover, Mesdames C. ## Fashions for Americans

Black Velvet and Black Gold Lace Are Blended in This Costume.

Black chiffon velvet and black and gold lace are combined in the costume shown in the sketch. Skirt and blouse are separate. The cape, of course, is detachable and to be worn or omitted at will. The skirt, one of the wrapped or folded-over models, fastens with buttons and buttonholes. The blouse of black and gold lining and fastens in the center gold lining and fastens in the centre back. The little square cut cape is of the velvet, is lined with cloth of gold, and is tied in front with a gold cord.

The simplicity of this frock should commend it to the home dressmaker, and it offers excellent suggestions to the woman who is remodelling a last year's garment. All two-fabric frock styles are splendid aids to the woman who is remodelling old garments. In the costume shown in the sketch plain or flowered chiffon may be substituted for the lace, if desired. A velour or other wool fabric frock might follow the general style lines of the dress shown, with Paisley or plain silk or wool fabric in contrasting color as the combination.

Except for evening wear the straight silhouette is still predominant. Bouffant effects, even in evening frocks, are generally confined to those designed for young and slender figures. The low placed waist line is very much featured on straight line dresses and many swinging panels help to simultae a width which does not actually exist. A smart tailored frock recently seen was of black velour, buttoning straight up the front, and made with a collar that might be worn high or open. Panels were set on at either side. The frock was stitched at all its edges in sapphire blue and a celluloid and metal girdle, placed to accentuate a low waist line, was in blue and black.

Movieland

Alice Terry, the beautiful blond leading woman who dazzled audiences in "The Four Horsemen," "The Conquering Power" and "Turn to the Right," is to have the leading feminine role in Rex Ingram's forthcoming production, a picturization of the well-known story, "The Prisoner of Zenda." The Rudolph for Miss Terry's Princess Flavia has not yet been chosen. It is understood, however, that after the completion of the picture Miss Terry is to become Mrs. Rex Ingram and that although the engagement has been announced, the marriage will not take place until after shooting the picture because she is to give up her picture acting when she says "I Will."

GRIFFITH WANTS SNOW.

Rainmakers are noted for their pretentious claims and willingness to accept large fees from farmers, but it has remained for David Wark Griffith, master film producer to demand an honest-to-goodness snowstorm or $25,000.

What's more, Mr. Griffith is somewhat particular and insists that the aforementioned snow must fall upon and cover that part of New York state in the immediate vicinity of Mamaroneck on or before noon November 20, in order that the blind girl in "D'Ennery's "Two Orphans," which he is now filming at Mamaroneck studio, may have the proper atmosphere called for in the original story.

With this end in view, Mr. Griffith commissioned A. L. Grey, his general manager, to negotiate an insurance policy guaranteeing a suitable snowstorm before November 20, on which date his contracts with several of the principal stars in the forthcoming production expire.

Grey has reported that he has obtained a $25,000 policy.

Cures By Excitement

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

In New Jersey not long ago a barge captain, speechless for months as the result of injuries received in a collision between his barge and a tug, took the witness stand to testify in a lawsuit growing out of the collision. All his answers to the questions put to him were in wrting.

That is, all were so given until a lawyer handed him a model of his barge, asking him to point out just where he was standing when the collision occurred.

"Right here," said the captain, speaking in a clear voice, to his own amazement and the amazement of all present.

Later his physician, questioned as to this unexpected and spontaneous recovery of speech, attributed it to the nervous excitement engendered by the court proceedings. Certainly nervous excitment has been known to bring about other and even more surprising cures.

In one instance a woman so severely crippled by a malady, thought by her doctor to be rheumatism, that she could not rise from her bed, was subjected to a vaporizing treatment. The attending physician bungled matters so badly that some boiling water fell upon the helpless patient.

"Doctor, you have scalded me!" she screamed. With the scream she leaped nimbly out of bed. And from that moment she was no longer troubled with rheumatism.

Again, an old woman, paralyzed for years, regained complete control of her limbs when, having a horror of mice, she one day saw a mouse run toward her. In another case a cry of "Fire!" and the smell of smoke cured the paralysis of a man long thought to be incurable.

Numerous similar instances might be cited. One and all, they probably are instances of cures of what doctors call hysteria, that strange malady capable of mimicking in its symptoms the symptoms of almost any disease. And since hysteria has as its underlying factor an abnormal mental condition—the condtiion of extreme suggestibility—it really is not astonishing that emotional shocks or great nervous excitement may at times suffice to cure it.

But precisely how excitement effects cures of hysterical mutisms, contractures, paralyses, etc., remains a mystery, unless one accepts the so-called neuron theory.

According to this theory the symptoms found in hysteria are the result of a disconnection of nerve-cell linkings, so that the usual co-ordination between the will and this or that bodily organ is impossible. Excitement is assumed to have the effect of re-establishing and nerve-cell linkings.

This theory may or may not be correct. The important thing, after all, however, is not absolute knowledge of the modus operandi of excitement cures, but appreciation of the fact that exctiment can and sometimes does cure.

Lacking such appreciation, a cruel injustice may be done to the person cured, in that he or she may be wrongfully accused of having deliberately pretended to be ill when not really ill at all.

Electra-Childress Game Here Saturday

PANHANDLE PIGSKIN WARRIORS TO BATTLE EDENS ELEVEN FOR INTERSECTIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

By C. F. C.

The intersectional football championship differences of the Electra and Childress high schools will be settled in Wichita Falls this coming Saturday afternoon, November 19th. Athletic Park was definitely cinched for the big fracas yesterday, when representatives of the two schools met here and completed arrangements with Walter Salm.

The Panhandle's interests in the coming battle were handled by A. S. Douglas, coach of the Childress squad, and Bill Coffey, the scrappy little quarterback of the eleven. Electra was represented by B. M. Dinsmore, superintendent of the Electra schools, and by Harry Stroud, E. W. Barr, [illegible] Mader and William Calvert, Electra business men who are deeply interested in the success of the big league high school eleven in the live little Wichita county city.

The two schools will "go it alone" financially on the game. No individuals or organizations will back either team, insofar as expenses are concerned. The park has been obtained, and Electra and Childress simply are counting on a big local attendance to pay all expenses and provide a surplus. Superintendent Dinsmore told me last night that this will be the first opportunity Electra high school ever has had to "make real money."

"Whenever we have had a fine football team," he said, "we have been unable to make it successful financially, because we could not bring other teams to Electra and pay the big guarantees necessary and still clear anything. On Saturday, however, we will send down here the best eleven we've ever had to fight for a state championship for Electra and Wichita county as a whole. We feel sure that Wichita Falls fans will turn out big to root for our boys, for we know that Electra would send a big delegation here to root for the Wichita Falls eleven if that team had been left alone in this state battle for high school honors."

The grandstand at Athletic park has been split, and all Electra supporters will occupy the right section facing the field of play, while the Childress fans will be seated in the left section. Childress is threatening to bring down a Panhandle band, and Electra promises to bring two bands if Childress makes good the threat. Each team will be permitted to carry 18 players and two coaches.

The game will start at 3:00 o'clock. The officials have not as yet been selected. The selections will be made by representatives of the two schools, and is expected an agreement on this detail will probably be reached tomorrow.

Superintendent Dinsmore has the right "dope" about the local fans. Unquestionably this Electra-Childress battle will bring out the biggest football crowd of the season. Electra twice has shown its gridiron wares in this city, and Coach Edens' machine each time has put up a wonderful game. The undefeated Childress eleven has cleaned up everything in its section of the state. It is an unknown football quantity to local fans, but the team is bound to be a splendid crew of pigskin chasers if records count for anything at all. Man for man the two teams will weigh about even, with the advantage, if any, slightly in favor of Childress.

The Electra-Childress game will be one of the six big intersectional high school championship battles to be fought this coming Saturday. Tickets to the game will be sold for $1, with an additional two-bits tacked on for box seats. The price appears reasonable in view of the admitted class of the two elevens, and the championship nature of the game.

CALIFORNIA GRID FANS TAKE OUT "RAIN INSURANCE"

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Nov. 14.—For fifty cents be had on all tickets purchased for extra insurance against rain may the "big game" between Stanford University and the University of California here next Saturday. This is the first time, it is thought, that spectators have been enabled to buy insurance against the weather. If it rains the purchase price will be refunded if desired.

BUSINESS GIRLS TURN OUT FOR BASKETBALL

With almost forty enthusiasts lined up for the sport, the basketball league launched by the Business Women's club of this city has made a splendid start toward success. Miss Ethel McDowell, sporting editor of the Tuesday Night Times, the club's official publication, is boosting the "exercise movement" strongly, but it scracely requires further boosting—the "tired business women" have accepted basetball as the finest winter activity yet discovered and are keenly interested in the plans for a league of several teams.

The club has made arrangements temporarily to use the basketball court in the basement of the North Methodist church, with practise scheduled for Monday and Thursday nights. Two former high school stars, and the sporting editor of the Record News have been signed as coaches pro tem—and the last mentioned admits he is having a tough time getting away with a big bluff, inasmuch as he last manipulated a basketball in 1905.

More than two complete teams were on the floor for practise last evening. Several of the young women are new at the game, while a number of others have had considerable experience and with a wee bit of practise should regain all of their former skill. The only player who has been playing steadily is Miss Eula Fultz, speedy forward on last year's local high school team. Miss McDowell, Miss "Jim" Covey, Miss Gem Cowling and several others, however, have been absent from the court game only a short time and repeatedly last evening showed flashes of big league form.

Among those who took part in last evening's practise were Edna Vogt, Una Steel, Ethel McDowell, Eula Fultz, Marguerite Hodgins, Irma Durnell, Ramie Mathis, Effie King, Thelma Pross, "Jim" Covey, Gem Cowling.

Following the basketball parctise, Miss Cowling put the candidates through ten minutes of calisthenics, after which the tired but still enthusiastic business women were glad to "call it a day."

WHEN BABE RUTH SWATTED A FOUL

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—A year ago Babe Ruth was making a tour of California cities, displaying himself at about $1,000 per display. He had been in Los Angeles a while, then journeyed up to San Francisco.

Now these two cities are deadly rivals, which must be understood to appreciate this story.

Ruth attended a boxing entertainment in San Francisco, and it was thought good advertising to introduce him from the ring. The introduction was done in the announcer's best style.

Babe shuffled to the center of the ring, drew in his breath and spieled:

"Gentlemen, I want you to know I appreciate this fine reception; I appreciate it all the more because I think Los Angeles has the finest lot of good fellows in it I ever met."

Dense silence as Ruth hopped out of the ring.

Sixty seconds later the Babe hopped back, held up his hand and explained:

"Excuse me, but when I said Los Angeles I meant San Francisco."

Feeble cheers.

PRECEDENT IN "BIG THREE" CRACKS IF HARVARD LICKS ELI

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 14.—Should Harvard triumph over Yale on the gridiron at the stadium next Saturday, precedent in "Big Three" football history will be broken. The triangular series never has resulted in a triple tie, such as would be the case were Harvard, already beaten by Princeton, which in turn was defeated by Yale, become victor in the final game. No Crimson eleven has ever defeated Yale after losing to Princeton, and no Yale team which has gone into its last match undefeated for the season has been beaten by Harvard.

COAST LOOP BONUS PLAN PRAISED BY COBB AS INCENTIVE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Baseball in the Pacific Coast league will be better than ever before, in the opinion of Ty Cobb, Detroit manager, as a result of the decision of the leagues directorate offer of $20,000 bonus to the players on the leading clubs.

Cobb, who is playing in the California Winter league, believes the bonus plan will make every player on every team hustle to win and fight every inch of the way.

"The aggressive spirit is what makes baseball and you will see plenty of it on the coast next year," Cobb declared. "Ball players need an incentive and now they have it here."

The success of some men is due to their iron wills and of others to their cheeks of brass.

For every man who is unable to stand prosperity there are millions who are willing to try.

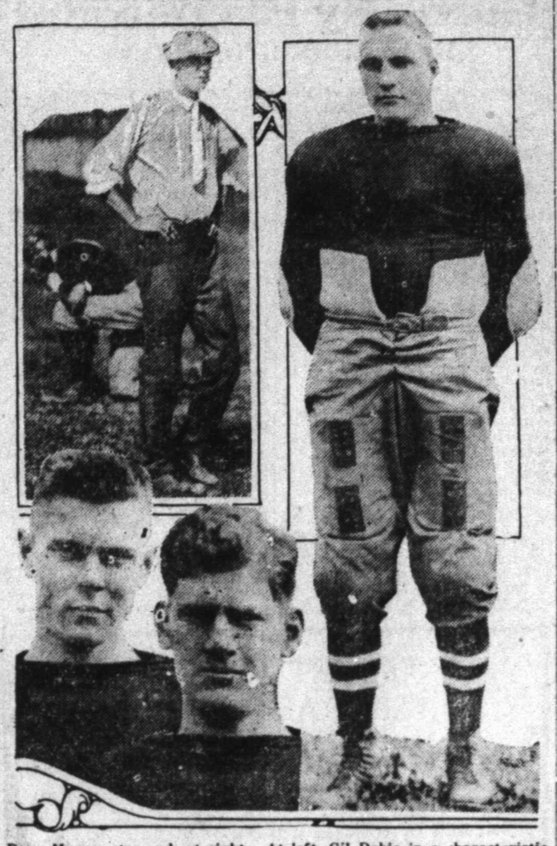
GILMOUR DOBIE ONCE MORE LOOMS AS WONDER MAN AS CORNELL COACH



Dave Munns, star end, at right. At left, Gil Dobie in a characteristic pose. Below are Leonard Hanson, goal kicker, left, and Fullback Lechler.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 14.—(Special.)—The talk of the east in gridiron circles is Gil Dobie, Cornell coach who took a squad which contained poor football material and has rounded the eleven into a team which has mowed down every opponent it has faced and which now ranks as one of the greatest elevens in the country.

This is the second year for Gloomy Gil, the coach who never smiles on or off the field, at Cornell, and to say that he has done wonders in the two years is putting it rather mildly.

Cornell holds two records this season. It is the high scoring team, with 351 points in its first seven games, and Gil Dobie's warriors hold the record of scoring the most points in one game. This mark was set early in the season when the Red team rolled up 110 points on Western Reserve on Schoelkopf field.

Inasmuch as the Cornell eleven played 388 minutes of football in those games, it can be said that Dobie's bunch is nearly a-point-a-minute eleven, and that is surely some performance on the gridiron.

From obscurity into the limelight has the Cornell eleven jumped this year, and indications are that the Ithacans will go through the season undefeated and be one of the very few teams of the country which will have a clean slate in 1921. There is one game yet on the Cornell chart, but close followers of football who have seen the Cornell team perform all fall are prepicting victory over Penn when these great rivals hook up in their annual battle on the gridiron at Franklin field, Philadelphia.

Just three times this season has the Cornell goal line been crossed, and in no game has the Ithaca team been in danger of going down to defeat.

The record of the Cornell eleven follows:

Cornell 41, St. Bonaventure 0.
Cornell 55, Rochester 0.
Cornell 110, Western Reserve 0.
Cornell 31, Colgate 7.
Cornell 59, Dartmouth 7.
Cornell 41, Columbia 7.
Cornell 14, Springfield 0.
Totals 351. Opponents 21.

Three of the stars of Dobie's eleven are C. P. Lechler, fullback; Dave Munns, right end, and Leonard Hanson, left tackle. Lechler hails from Philadelphia and Munns from Dormont, Pa. Hanson is a westerner whose home is in Veblin, S. D. He has starred with his boot as well as in scrimmage, leading the goal kickers of the east with 31 goals to his credit when the games of Nov. 5 were recorded.

BAD CHECK REPORTED BY J. B. MARLOW

Police were asked Monday afternoon to aid in a search for a young man alleged to have cashed a worthless check in the offices of J. B. Marlow, from which he obtained $175 in currency.

According to the report of police a check for a large amount was said to have been given Mr. Marlow after a deal had been consumated for the rental of a house to the young man.

Telegraphic communication with a bank at San Antonio was reported to have revealed that the check was worthless.

NEGRO BELL BOY FINED AND TOLD TO LEAVE CITY

A heavy fine and immediate departure from the city was the punishment meted out Monday to George Eckles, negro bell boy of a local hotel, arrested by the hotel house detective, on a charge of making an indecent remark to the white woman.

Officers said that the offense was of such a nature that a police court fine and enforced banishment from the city was practically the only punishment possible.

Rheumatism Due To Waste Products In the Blood

For Genuine Relief Your Blood Must Be Purified.

As the blood circulates, it has two functions to perform. First: to carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Second: to take up the waste products and cast them out through the proper channels.

When waste products accumulate in the system, they are a menace to life. They cause a lowered vitality, many forms of skin disorders and rheumatism.

There is no disease more painful; nor a disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as rheumatism. Genuine relief can be had only by correcting the basic trouble—waste products.

Thousands and thousands of men and women during the past 50 years have cleared their blood of waste products with S. S. S. It is the ideal remedy for rheumatism, because it removes the poisonous waste matter which is causing the trouble. There are no bad after effects and the result is wonderful. Begin taking S. S. ## PICKING THE TEAM

By "NICK" CARTER

"The team is by far the greatest high school eleven that ever stepped in Texas."—Ben A. Copass in an article on the Waco high school football team.

The greatest eleven that ever stepped
In the Lone Star State? Why, Ben!
I'm really surprised at you, old pal;
You'd better guess again.

Ask Harry Stroud where the best team is;
He'll tell you Electra, I ween,
Beyond the shadow of a doubt
Has the greatest grid machine.

Or, travel a bit to the Panhandle, Ben,
And ask some sporting scribe.
Here's your answer: "Childress High,
She's queen of the football tribe."

Childress? They played a bunch of dubs!
So Tarrant county roars:
"Check up Childress with North Side High
On a basis of high scores."

San Antonio swears its team
Is the greatest that ever trod
Since Bowie, Crockett and Travis played
On the famous Alamo squad.

Over the breadth of Texas soil
Each scribe is picking a team;
Calling his home high school the best
Because of power and steam.

The Lone Star State's too big, old pail;
And no man can lay his hand
On one lone team, and call it best
In this mighty sweep of land.

I am not prejudiced like some;
Therefore, my choice is finer,
Also I find that I agree
With Head Coach Harry Viner.

And I admit the slickest team
That ever trod the track
In Texas, is "Cap" Haney's crew,
The Wichita Red and Black!!

RAMPAGES AT HOME; ARRESTED

A badly disarranged home in which the furniture and furnishings had evidently been thrown about indiscriminately was reported by City Detective Bob Hembree to have been the setting in which he arrested a local man Monday, following a hurry up call for assistance.

Officer Hembree reported that a pistol was found on the man and that he had been drinking. It was also reported that the man made threats of taking the life of his wife, prior to the arrival of the officers. Police Chief Morgan said that charges of aggravated assault probably will be filed against the man.

WOOD GETS JUDGMENT FOR $32,250

Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court Monday granted G. C. Wood, local oil operator a judgment of $32,500 against the St. Louis and Fort Worth Producing Company and the Indiahoma Refining Company following a brief trial of the case.

According to the evidence introduced by the plaintiff he entered in to an agreement with the Home Oil and Refining Company in 1919 providing for the development of certain oil properties in the Burkburnett oil fields. Each party was to pay a certain specified part of the total cost of development. The plaintiff alleged that the Home Company later transferred their interest in the contract to the defendant company. He alleges that the companies had refused to pay the remainder due him on the contract, the sum being the same as the judgment granted.

HEINIE GROH WRAPPED UP IN CINCI REDS

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14.—"The Reds," said Heinie Groh before leaving for a visit to Cuba, "do not need much help. All they need for 1922 is to get together at the start and get away on the right foot. If everybody is on deck at the training camp, so that we can begin the campaign in a solid bunch, we can come through."

Heinie said "we," and evidently meant it. The little fellow has experienced a change of mind since August and is all wrapped up in the Reds again.

"The club is the strongest team that ever finished as low as sixth place in anybody's league." Heinie continued. "Of course, an extra pitcher or two—if they could win—would be welcome; so would another hard hitter for the outfield, but they'd be welcome anywhere. Either of the New York teams would give plenty for such articles, wouldn't they? We could use them—but we can get along without them. I'll say right now that the Reds, getting away properly, can trim almost anybody. The pitching is trere—any club with four classy men to rally around is well fortified on the hill. Great catching; a perfectly competent outfield; and infield which is better than the best of them—well, modesty forbids me from praising it too highly, you know! Give us a start and nothing more will be required."

STONEHAM HOLDS OVER AS BOSS OF NEW YORK GIANTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Charles A. Stoneham today was re-elected president of the New York National League Baseball club, the corporate title of which is the National Exhibition company, at the annual meeting of stockholders in Jersey City. The board of directors for the coming year will consist of Mr. Stoneham, John J. McGraw, F. X. McQuade, R. F. Robertson, Florence A. Stoneham, J. L. Bondy and H. A. Ferguson.

BARNEY BURCH MAY GIVE PILOT TO TULSA CLUB

TULSA, Nov. 14.—From present appearance the race for the management of the Tulsa, Western League, club for the season of 1922 has narrowed down to a choice between two men—Jack Lelivelt and Joe Berger.

Both these are infielders, Lelivelt being a first sacker with Omaha, who bought his release from Burch, Finn and Company last fall, and Berger, a shortstop, with Wichita for three seasons.

Both have had experience as Western League pilots, and both have had first division berths, Berger capping the climax last season with a flag.

In aligning the club for next season, the Oilers are better fortified at shortstop than they are at first base, providing Brannon does not return, and this is extremely unlikely as Kansas City is almost sure to retain the elongated Dudley. Therefore this will give Lelivelt the rail in regard to playing alone.

TEX RICKARD STILL HAS TIME TO ARGUE WITH HIS BANKER

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—After listening to arguments of counsel for both sides, Justice Charles I. Guy in the supreme court today reserved decision on the application of Frank C. Armstrong, banker, for the appointment of a receiver for the affairs of Tex Rickard, boxing promoter.

One week's delay was allowed by the justice for filing briefs in the case, which also involves as defendant the Madison Square Garden corporation and the Madison Square Garden Sporting club.

At the hearing a week ago, Armstrong's attorney alleged that his client had been brutally beaten by Rickard and a party of friends after a boxing contest in the Garden a few days before.

Some Chest-Nuts

A brakeman was walking along beside his train, which had stopped at a country station, calling out the name of the place: "Sawyer, Sawyer!" Suddenly a window of an almost vacant car, from which came the sound of kissing, was opened, and a blushing young lady put her head out and said: "I don't care if you did. We're married."

Isaac boarded a London 'bus with his little son Moses.

"How much to the Spurs' ground, conductor?" he asked.

"Twopence," said the conductor.

"And how much for my little boy?" asked Isaac.

"There's no need to pay for him," said the conductor.

Isaac rubbed his hands.

"Sit where you are Moses," he said. "The conductor vill put you down at the Spurs' ground, and I vill valk."

George Ade said at a dinner, as he twirled the stem of his glass of sparkling sarsaparilla between thumb and finger: "Our parents taught us to lay up something for a rainy day. How much nicer it would have been if they had only taught us to lay up something for a dry one!"

It was a hot, sleepy afternoon and the children were not paying much attention to the teacher, who was giving a chemistry lesson.

"Name three articles containing starch," she demanded of Tommy, who appeared more interested in drowning a fly in his inkwell.

Roused by the teacher's voice into alertness, he replied.

"Two cuffs and a collar."

"Do tell me something about the play," she said to the young man. "They say the climax was superb."

"Yes, I am inclined to think it was very good," said Percy.

"Can't you describe it to me?"

"Well, the heroine came stealthily on the stage and knelt, dagger in hand behind a clump of ribbons. The hero emerged from a large bunch of purple flowers, and as soon as she perceived him she fell upon him, stabbed him, and sank half-conscious into a very handsome aigrette. This may sound queer, but the woman in front of me wouldn't remove her hat, and that's how it looked."

COFFEE

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Coffee futures were irregular, near months being sustained by the appearance of small December buying orders on setbacks while there appeared to be some European selling of the later deliveries. After opening four points higher to seven points lower, active months sold about 5 to 8 points above last week's closing with March working up to 8.00, but this improvement was not fully maintained and the close was net five points higher to six points lower. Sales were estimated at about 32,000 bags. December 8.37; January 8.27; March 7.96; May 7.85; July 7.74; September 7.64.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The financial community expressed its hearty endorsement today of Secretary Hughes' proposals for a naval holiday, but that feeling evidently did not extend to the stock market, which became reactionary after the hesitant opening.

Shares which once occupied the center of the stage as "war brides," particularly the various steels and several of the munitions and ordnance issues were steadily offered at more or less substantial declines, the movement spreading later to the general list.

Bethlehem steel, which takes first rank as a producer of armor plate sustained a setback of 5 1-4 points, only a small part of which was recorded.

Standard oil of New Jersey reacted about thirteen points from its high of the morning and forfeited nearly half of last week's gain. Sales amounted to 935,000 shares.

Tomorrow's heavy disbursements of liberty bonds interest were anticipated in today's money market. Call loans opened at 5 1-2 per cent easing to 4 1-2 at midday and dropping to 4 per cent in the last hour. Foreign exchanges were perceptibly strengthened as a result of the news from Washington.

Realizing sales had a marked effect on prices of bonds, most liberty issues and the domestic list generally easing. Total sales, par value, $16,350,000.

"BIG TIM" MURPHY GIVEN THIRTY-DAY STAY OF EXECUTION

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Pending an appeal to a higher court on a writ of error, Timothy (Big Tim) Murphy and three co-defendents, sentenced to prison today after their conviction in connection with the $350,000 Dearborn street station mail robbery, were given a thirty day stay of execution of sentence by Federal Judge Samuel Alschuler in circuit court of appeals.

Murphy was sentenced to six years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth and fined $30,000 by Judge K. M. Landis. His bonds were fixed at $60,000—or $10,000 for each year of his sentence and pending a renewal of them he spent tonight in jail.

Cotton

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Optimism over the prospect for limitation of naval armaments was considered responsible for an advance of nearly a cent a pound in the cotton market during today's early trading. January contracts sold up to 16.92, or 84 points above the closing quotation of Saturday and December did even better, advancing to 17.10 or 95 points net higher.

After the more urgent demand from shorts had been supplied, however, the market showed lack of general demand from the trade or fresh buying for long account and a good part of the advance was lost with January closing at 16.41. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 20 to 40 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 13 to 27 points on over-Sunday news from Washington, and covering was stimulated by talk of smaller crop estimates and expectations that tomorrow's report from the census bureau would show heavy domestic consumption for October. For a time the buying was very active and general, sending active positions about 65 to 90 points higher with March selling at 16.95.

Most of the demand created by the hope of a successful outcome of the arms conference was attributed to covering by recent sellers, however, and as soon as the demand from shorts became less active, the market showed signs of hesitation. The break later in the day was promoted by reports of an easier or unsettled late tone in the stock market and Wall street selling which was absorbed by further local covering and foreign buying.

COTTONSEED OIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—General liquidation induced by slow trade demand and weakness in lard carried cottonseed oil off 22 to 55 points. Covering operations rallied the list somewhat before the close. Net losses were 10 to 17 points. Sales 35,700 barrels. Prime crude 6.75@7.00; prime yellow spot 7.80@8.25; March 8.35; May 8.56, all bid.

DRY GOODS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Cotton goods were generally quiet today, with gray goods somewhat easier and yarns continuing to show a softening tendency; raw silk firmer and higher. The strike of garment workers has increased the quiet in dress goods and cloaking lines. Men's wear lines were quiet save for immediate shipment on overcoatings and heavy tweeds. Burlaps were easier shipment from Calcutta in October, in consequence of news of large

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The raw sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 4.06 to 4.11 for centrifugal with no sales reported.

Raw Sugar futures were firmer on covering and scattered buying by Wall Street interests which some thought may have been for European account, but after showing advances of to 10 points on active positions, prices eased off under scattered realizing, losing half the early gain, with final prices 2 to 5 points net higher. December closed at 2.42; March 2.31; May 2.39 and July 2.48.

The market for refined sugar was unchanged at 5.20@5.30 for fine granulated. Refiners are said to be pretty nearly caught up on old orders and deliveries are improving, although new business has not increased to any material extent.

There were no transactions in refined futures and closing prices were unchanged to 3 points net lower. December closed at 5.50; March and May 5.30.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Reports that foreigners were trying to resell United States hard winter wheat at prices equal to those current for Chicago December delivery did a good deal to day to cause loss of strength in the wheat market here. Prices closed heavy 3 1-4 to 3 7-8 net lower, with December 1.05 5-8 to 1.05 3-4 and May 1.09 1-2 to 1.09 5-8. Corn lost 1-4 to 7-8, oats 1-4 to 3-8 and provisions 2 1-2 to 50c.

A hesitating start, followed by a moderate bulge in values, preceded declines in the price of wheat.

Final quotations were practically at the lowest level of the day.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat notwithstanding that seaboard dealers were after cash corn here on a liberal scale.

Provisions sold at lowest prices yet this season. Renewal of big receipts of hogs here seemed to be chiefly responsible.

TRIAL OF FATTY ARBUCKLE ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE BEGUN IN SAN FRANCISCO

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Roscoe Arbuckle, appeared today for the first time in the most notable role of a broad career—defendant in manslaughter proceedings arising from the death of Virginia Rappe, like himself, a figure in the motion picture world. Arbuckle's audience was one of the smallest that ever watched him, as only a few hundred persons crowded into a court room.

But no crowd ever watched screen antics of the comedian more closely than today's gathering gave attention to the dry procedure of selecting a jury. Arbuckle himself showed he felt the importance of the occasion. He glanced nervously about the room and gave the impression that he was worried. His smiling was lacking. Indeed, since charges were filed in court accusing him of being instrumental in Miss Rappe's death as an outcome of a party held in his rooms at the Hotel St. Francis here, there is only one time on record that the famous smile has been in public evidence. That was when the charges were reduced from murder to manslaughter.

Arbuckle's wife was in court today but did not sit beside him at the counsel table.

Gavin McNab, chief counsel for Arbuckle, early confirmed public expectations that the defense would make no effort to discuss the character of the dead girl. He told the court this formally.

Five Tentative Jurors.

When adjournment came late today, five jurors, one of them a woman, had been accepted tentatively and the only inkling of the lines to be pursued by prosecution and defense that had been brought out was a hint that some evidence to be offered by the state would be circumstantial in character.

The corridors were kept clear of all who did not have tickets into the court room.

Arbuckle was represented by six attorneys. Brady's staff was made up of three, including himself.

The defense, after an hour's argument, succeeded in having a question allowed regarding the manner in which the prospective jurors would accept testimony of witnesses whose testimony elsewhere in relation to the case has been discredited. The prospective jurors answered that they would be guided by instructions of the court on all evidence. The prosecution emphasized the importance of circumstantial evidence in its questions to the talesmen. Three women were included in the venire and seemed to take a deep interest in the questions. One of them, Mrs. Edith Unsworth was among the five temporarily passed today. McNab did most of the questioning for the defense and Milton T. U'Ren, assistant district attorney, for the prosecution.

McNab told the court that he would establish, if he could, that Miss Rappe died of an organic and chronic affection, "that might at any time have produced death."

Attorneys Clash.

There was one clash, a consequence of a statement by Mr. McNab in which Matthew Brady, district attorney, was accused indirectly of threatening witnesses with imprisonment if they did not make certain statements.

Brady, who is personally in charge of the prosecutions legal forces, leaped to his feet and answered:

"If Mr. McNab can prove that statement true, I'll hand in my resignation to the mayor."

McNab said he had seven witnesses who will prove that "witnesses were taken to the city prison and intimidated by the district attorney's office."

Examination of the veniremen involved a reading by the defense of the names of a group of San Francisco club women and the mention of the women's vigilance committee which has representatives at the trial. Although defense counsel did not divulge the reason for bringing in the names of the women and the vigilant organizations, the prosecution made the charge that the defense "seemed to be afraid" of the interest taken by the women and the organization named.

"SCANDAL" SCORES BIG HIT WITH FIRST NIGHT CROWD

One touch of nature makes the whole world kin,
One touch of humor makes the whole world grin,
One touch of Scandal makes the whole world chin.

Other touches, no doubt occur after the curtain has gone down and the hero and heroine are happily and scrappily married, but why pun on a wife's just privilege of nocturnal expeditions among the loose change zone of hubby's trousers?

That's a little ahead of the review, which is an attempt in a stumbling sort of a way to tell just how wonderful and worth-seeing is the Lewis-Worth presentation of Cosmo Hamilton's celebrated piece, "Scandal," which opened a week's run Monday night at the Wichita theater.

But while on the subject of touches let's continue the play on words until teacher rings the bell.

In "Scandal" as first nighters saw it there are touches of humor, irony, sophistication, human nature, and simplicity, all of which are woven together with an artistic hand so as to make plausible a happy ending—which everyone was glad to see, excepting perhaps the more bitterly mistreated in love and those who take themselves and some vain and selfish women too seriously.

It's good. In fact there are very few changes which the average critic could suggest without showing egotism. The prediction that for the remainder of the week the sign on the door will be "standing room only," is not out of place here.

A few words about the plot. Once upon a time there were two spoiled individuals, a son and a daughter of the so called idle rich. They were pampered little children, whom nothing had ever been denied. The man is a lady killer, who breaks hearts by his indifference, the woman thinks she can play with fire without getting out of sight of the Pyrene. Well the lady gets into a little scrap with a foreigner, a "Bohemian" artist they called him and to get out she consents to declare to the waiting world and the A. P. that this spoiled child is her husband.

From then on the party gets rough.

Repartee, such as is as sarcastic and as sophisticated as the swain wishes he had thought of after he gets back home and gets to thinking about the bricks his best girl tossed at him, is spoken as easily as if there ever existed anyone, male or female with such a ready wit. But that is Cosmo's, business, not the actors and actresses.

What a kindred feeling did the men of the audience, instinctively feel for Gene Lewis when he bounced a verbal brick off Olga Worth's head—and likewise it is not entirely impeachable that some of the women had kind of a sympathetic feeling for the woman and at times felt like cheering as small boys do in movies and grown up men do at football games.

Gene Lewis, as Pelham Franklin, the spoiled boy, and Olga Worth, as Beatrix Vanderdyke, the petted girl, put on as good a verbal boxing match as any one ever did, for every one to be glad to call it a draw in the end. There is some real acting in these parts and a finish and enthusiasm which is good to look upon and to hear.

Jack Doty, who scored such a hit last week in "The Acquittal," was given a great hand as he appeared Monday night in the role of Southerland York, the artist chap with the Greenwich Village expression of soulfulness.

The "Family procession," as Beatrix calls it, is admirably played by Klock Ryder, as Major Barnett Thatcher, Miss Irene Daniel, as the aunt, Miss Pauline Le Roy, the mother, Miss Lee Smith continues to prove a drawing card as in previous performances, and her appearance on the stage if short is sweet. Miss Edwina Hart, as Mrs. Brown, Beatrix's companion, Miss Margaret Dow, as Helen, the maid, Charles Lammers and Mr. Edward Beach all have the degree of perfection in their respective parts.

Joseph Remington, as Malcolm Frasher, Franklin's friend, is a sympathetic cuss and plays his part as a "fixer" splendidly. It is through him that the final crushing embrace is arranged.

All in all this presentation of "Scandal" is one which would do justice to the finest theater in the country. The scenery, painted by the company's own artist, Robert Bell, is among the most beautiful in color and conception which have been seen in the local theater. The scenery was given applause on two occasions Monday night, which is an unusual tribute to stage settings.

Gene Lewis made a little informal talk and chatted with the audience in his graceful manner Monday night. His welcome after a week's absence from the cast was demonstrative and indicated that the company is becoming a local institution in the minds of theatergoers.

It is a pity but that someone didn't have a notebook in which to note the wise cracks made by the characters in this clever play. There are more epigrams in this play than in most of the clever brain children of the leading playwrights.

HUGE PROGRAM OF CONGRESS TAKING FORM

Enactment of Tax and Rail Debt Bills and Adjournment by Thanksgiving Is Possibility.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—A program comprising enactment of $500,000,000 railroad debt bill, and the tax revision measure and adjournment of the present extra session of congress before Thanksgiving day, began to take definite form today. Republican leaders say prospects for putting through the program were good, in view of general demands in both senate and house for a brief rest before the next and regular session opens December 5.

The railroad debt bill was before the senate again today while the interstate commerce commission continued hearings on bills to restore rate and other powers of the state and for repeal of the so called six per cent rate guarantee section of the Esch-Cummins law.

That the fight for this legislation would be carried soon to the senate floor was assured when Senator La-Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, introduced amendments to the debt bill covering both features before the committee. One amendment would repeal the six per cent provision, another would prohibit the interstate commerce commission decree from having any force or effect over intra-state traffic and a third would provide the funds derived from the debt bill should be spent on railroad maintenance or improvements.

FIND LIQUOR AND STILL IN LOCAL HOME

Swooping down on a Floral Heights residence Monday night county officers captured a large quantity of bottled liquors and a whiskey still, according to the report of members of the raiding party. No one was found in the house when the raiding party arrived. The confiscated booteh was reported to include a number of bottles of bottled in bond whiskey as well as corn liquor of various degree and vintage.

The raid was conducted by Jailor Cass Tarver, Deputies Garrett and Rohatsch from the sheriff's department and Deputy Constable Belcher. The still was not in operation and the occupants had evidently been absent for several hours according to the report.

Earlier Monday evening Deputies Rohatsch and Garrett raided an alleged liquor establishment in Newtown.

One suspect was arrested in connection with this raid, but was later released.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS TO GIVE PLAY

Preliminary organization was commenced Monday at Senior High school for a school play to be staged in a down town theater during December. The play, according to the announcement, will be known as "All Aboard" and all funds will be used to aid in defraying the expenses of the Coyote, the annual publication of Senior High school.

The play will be coached by Miss Juanita Kinsey, head of the department of public speaking; Miss Genevieve Goff, music teacher and coach of the glee club and orchestra and Miss Jennie Splawn, teacher of English.

Teachers announce that the cast for the play is so large that it is expected it probably will be next week before the practice will take definite form.

Haskell-Hobbs Interests Go Into El Dorado

Entrance of the Haskell-Hobbs interests in the El Dorado, Arkansas, field was announced last week, with the announcement of the purchase of the 60 acres known as the Hinton lease in that field, with a consideration which was not given, but which is reported in El Dorado to be in the neighborhood of $500,000.

In connection with the purchase, the El Dorado Times makes the following comment:

"Outstandign among the deals made during the past week for property in the El Dorado field is the purchase of sixty acres in 6-18-15, known as the Hinson lease from the Chal Daniel Drilling company by Henry Hobbs of Wichita Falls, Texas. It is understood that the property was acquired by Mr. Hobbs for subsidiaries of the Middle States Oil Corporation of New York City, headed by former Governor Haskell of Oklahoma. The consideration involved is said to have been in the neighborhood of a half million dollars. Two wells have already been completed on the lease and a third is now drilling. Contract for the drilling of three additional wells has already been let.

"Purchase of the Hinson lease marks the entrance of Middle States subsidiaries in the El Dorado field. Whether additional properties for the Haskell interests would be acquired in this field at this time could not be determined.

"Henry Hobbs, in whose name the property was purchased, is managing director for all of the Haskell interests in Texas. It was he who brought in the famous Texas-Chief gusher in the Burkburnett field three years ago, the holdings of the Texas-Chief company and some other holdings later selling for three and a half million dollars.

"The El Dorado property will remain under the management of Mr. Hobbs and be directly supervised by F. L. McDaniels, field superintendent.

CITY POWERLESS TO KEEP STORES FROM RESIDENTIAL DISTRICTS, COUNCIL HOLDS

The city in the light of the recent decision of the supreme court of the state holding invalid the zoning ordinance of Dallas is helpless at present in the matter of protecting the residential sections of the city from the opening of store and shop buildings except where they constitute a nuisance according to the opinion of the members of the city council expressed at the Monday night meeting.

The matter was brought to the attention of the council when a petition signed by several property owners near the Sam Houston school building was presented by E. J. Davis protesting the completion of grocery store building now in the process of construction opposite the school building. According to City Clerk Thorburn the owner of the building has never secured a permit from the council to erect the building as has been customary in the past.

The decision of Judge Phillips of the supreme court regarding the Dallas case which also arose over the construction of a grocery store in the residential section and the decision of Judge James Wilson of the Northern Federal Judicial district in a local private case were discussed. City Attorney Mann said that he had not as yet seen a complete report of the Phillips decision but expressed the opinion that there was no valid difference between the zoning ordinance of the Dallas and this city and the decision for that reason would probably hold locally.

Declare Regulation Needed.

All members of the council expressed the hope that some method would be found to regulate the construction of business houses in the residential section citing the case brought to their attention as being one in which the permit would probably never have been issued had the city the authority to regulate.

The council supported the action of F. N. Lawton, general manager of the water works in refusing to allow more water to be used for irrigation purposes. J. Polhemus, truck grower, asked the council for permission to irrigate two acres, a request which had been refused by Mr. Lawton who said that he had given notice to all owners of irrigation lands several weeks ago that no more water would be available.

Mr. Lawton said that the lake at the present time was slightly over half maximum capacity. He and members of the council took the attitude that while there was no need of special alarm at present regarding the city water supply, it was time that the water was conserved in its use as much as possible.

The proposed ordinance introduced two weeks ago by Commissioner Fitts providing for the appointment of a city inspector of gas and electric meters failed to obtain final action after some discussion. The cost of the equipment that would be needed, the method of making the inspection, coupled with a doubt as to the need of the extra expense resulted in action being postponed until a later meeting.

Discuss Meter Reading.

Commissioner Fitts asked for action stating that an ordinance providing for the inspection would result in a saving to the gas and electric light users of the city. It was brought out that both the gas and electric companies have the euqipment needed to make the inspection and had in the past made such inspection when called upon by customers.

The practical application of the ordinance was questioned by Commissioner Bonner to whom the ordinance was referred two weeks ago. He said the "principle was unquestionably good." Commissioner Curlee said that he thought the same results could be obtained much easier by instructing users how to read their gas and electric meters.

The council approved the proposition of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad regarding the paving of Ohio street from Sixth to Front street. The agreement entered into regarding the cost is substantially the same as that demanded by the city previous to the railroad company bringing suit against the city to restrain it from paving the street.

About 11,500 enumerators were used to take Canada's census last June.

Prettier Teeth Next Week
If you will now start this delightful test

This is to offer you a way to whiter teeth, cleaner, safer teeth. Such glistening teeth as millions now enjoy.

Any dealer named below will give you the means. Get it and watch the effects. See your teeth grow prettier—note how clean they feel.

Dentists everywhere advise this method. Millions of homes have adopted it. Try it this week, for your own sake. Learn what it means to you.

To remove the film

Your teeth are coated with a dingy film. It is viscous — you can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. It clouds the teeth and causes most tooth troubles.

The ordinary tooth paste does not effectively combat it, so the tooth brush has left much of it intact. As a result, teeth lose their luster. And, despite all brushing, tooth troubles have been constantly increasing.

The film is what discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Many other serious troubles are also traced to them.

Science combats it

Dental science has long sought ways to combat that film. The ways have now been found. Able authorities have amply proved them. Leading dentists everywhere advise their daily use.

The methods are embodied in a new-day tooth paste—Pepsodent. It combats the film wherever it may linger. In this way it brings surprising results which one quickly sees. Over 5,000 new people daily are trying out this modern method.

Fights acids too

Pepsodent brings three other effects which authorities now desire.

It multiplies the salivary flow—Nature's great tooth-protecting agent. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise form acid.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is Nature's neutralizer for the acids which cause decay. Pepsin is also included.

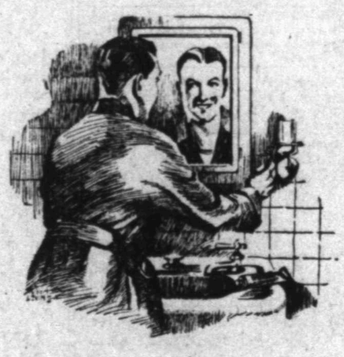
Do this for your own sake—for your family's sake. Watch how your teeth improve. The delightful effects will very soon convince you what is best.

Every application of Pepsodent brings five distinct results. And modern authorities consider all of them essential.

Now a world method

In many countries Pepsodent is fast displacing old teeth cleaning methods. Dental authorities the world over endorse it. Careful people must adopt it sooner or later, for old methods are not right. With them, tooth troubles and discolorments have become almost universal. A change must come, and now is the time to start it.



Quick changes come

The user of Pepsodent quickly feels conspicuous changes. One cannot doubt the benefits it brings.

Perhaps men who smoke see the most conspicuous effects. Their films are tobacco-stained.

Women see them in prettier teeth, for most film-coats are dingy.

But Pepsodent is most important to the children. Their teeth seem most subject to these film and starch attacks. Dentists advise that children use Pepsodent from the time the first tooth appears.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects, and read the reasons in the book we send.

This ten-day test will be a revelation. It may bring to your home a new era in teeth cleaning. And the benefits to you and yours may be life-long in extent. Cut out the coupon now. Present it today so you can start at once.
