Hollywood Madam

LOS ANGELES — The jury in the Hollywood Madam case Friday convicted Heidi Fleiss of running a high-priced call-girl ring. The 28-year-old pediatrician's daughter was found guilty on three of five pandering charges. The seven-man, five-woman jury deadlocked on the two other counts and acquitted her of supplying cocaine to an undercover police officer./16A

Gunman robs local store, disappears

■ Police search for armed bandit who made off with what could be as much as $10,000.

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

An armed bandit made off with thousands of dollars Friday in a daring daylight robbery at the Fiesta Foods grocery store at 1116 N. Midkiff Road.

The gunman reportedly walked into the store shortly after noon on Friday and immediately moved toward Robert Stanley, non-foods manager for Fiesta. The robber then produced a handgun of unknown caliber and design, according to police reports.

Holding the weapon to the manager's head, the bandit then moved his hostage toward nearby shoppers and store employees. The manager then asked shoppers to get down onto the floor, police said.

"We stood there for a minute, until we saw the guy with the pistol," one witness said.

The gunman then led Stanley and other store employees into the accounting office near the store's west doors, police said.

"There is no doubt in my mind that he would have shot somebody," said the witness, who characterized

Santa, lights bring smiles to small faces

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

Nothing is more joyous than seeing the twinkle in the eye of a child when he sees Santa Claus or the wonder and amazement of a youngster as he watches the first lights of Christmas blink off and on.

These were just some of the sights at the 41st annual Christmas tree lighting in downtown Midland Friday night.

The countdown began at 6:20 p.m. and the crowd roared and applauded as the lights flickered on in Centennial Plaza marking the beginning of the holiday season.

Within minutes sirens blared announcing the arrival of Santa Claus on a Midland fire truck.

Midland man suffers head injury in fight

Staff Report

An early Friday morning fist fight has left a Midland man with a head injury and in serious condition at the intensive care unit of Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

Midland Police Department detectives said the assault occurred about 3:50 a.m. at Windtree Apartments at 3600 W. Loop 250.

According to police reports, Larry Hamilton and Leonard Peredas were at a local night club and became involved in a quarrel about 10:40 p.m. They left the club without coming to blows, police said.

The men met later at the apartment complex and began exchanging heated words. Hamilton reportedly struck Peredas once in the face, which caused Peredas to fall and strike his head, police said.

Friends at the scene could not revive Peredas and an ambulance was called to transport him to the hospital emergency department.

At 6:30 a.m., police investigators were notified that Peredas had a fractured skull and was in serious condition. Two hours later, medical personnel said the man's condition was deteriorating.

Peredas is still listed in serious condition at MHMC.

Police are investigating the incident as an aggravated assault and continue to interview witnesses to the incident.

No charges yet have been filed against Hamilton.

Unemployment drops to 4-year low; reports show mixed economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robust hiring in construction and manufacturing helped drive the nation's unemployment rate to a four-year low last month. But another report Friday suggested economic momentum may soon be slowing.

The November unemployment rate was 5.6 percent, down from 5.8 percent in October. That was the lowest since August 1990. The Labor Department said a seasonally adjusted 350,000 new workers were added to nonfarm payrolls in November, many more than expected.

The report shows "just how strong this recovery has been," President Clinton said in a satellite address to a National League of Cities conference in Minneapolis.

Labor Secretary Robert Reich called it a "Goldilocks expansion."

"It's not too hot. It's not too cold. It's not hot enough to ignite inflation, but it doesn't seem to be cooling off at all," Reich said in an interview with The Associated Press.

The jobless rate has dropped 1.1 percentage points since January, with an average 281,000 jobs per month added to nonfarm payrolls.

Meanwhile, the government's chief forecasting gauge of future economic activity pointed in the other direction, falling in October for the first time in 15 months. The Index of Leading Economic Indicators, released by the Commerce Department, slipped 0.1 percent in October.

Some economists said that report should be read cautiously.

"It has been giving misleading signals for a long time," said Gene Sherman, an economist with the New York brokerage firm M.A. Shapiro. "It has indicated a slack economy and we haven't had a slack economy. We've had a very strong economy."

A third report showed that orders to U.S. factories fell 0.4 percent in October, the first decline in three months. The decline was led by a sharp drop for cars and other transportation equipment. But the September figure, which originally estimated orders to be down 0.2 percent, was revised to show an increase of less than 0.1 percent.

Checks find child-care providers with records

WASHINGTON (AP) — People with criminal records are finding jobs in some child-care centers, according to federal investigators. Some of the records include convictions for child abuse and assault.

Background checks found that 39 of 500 child-care providers had a total of 440 arrests, which resulted in 181 convictions for crimes that included endangering the life of a child, indecency with a child.

For their study, obtained by The Associated Press, investigators with the Department of Health and Human Services asked the FBI's National Crime Information Center to conduct background checks on a random sample of 500 child-care providers in Nevada, Wisconsin, Missouri and South Carolina.

Using the workers' names and Social Security numbers, the center found that 39 had a total of 440 arrests, which resulted in 181 convictions for crimes that included endangering the life of a child, indecency with a child, lewdness, prostitution, theft, illegal possession of drugs or alcohol, assault and battery, robbery and arson.

Indians remember gas disaster at Bhopal

EDITORS NOTE: Ten years ago, the writer was one of the first journalists to reach Bhopal, where a poisonous gas leak immediately killed 4,000 people in the world's worst industrial disaster.

By Dilip Ganguly
Associated Press

BHOPAL, India — It was as if someone had turned the already wretched slum into a gas chamber, unleashing a toxic brew that doomed thousands of people in a matter of hours by making them gulp the air that killed them.

Tens of thousands of people crawled or ran, panic-stricken, from their homes that miserable night in Bhopal 10 years ago, victims of a lethal gas leak from a subsidiary of U.S.-based Union Carbide.

Hazara Bee was one of the survivors of the world's worst industrial disaster.

"Everyone was fleeing. I ran and ran and fainted. When I regained consciousness, I remember someone asking me if my husband's name was Abdul Latif," Mrs. Bee, 50, said Friday.

A hospital staffer was trying to identify her. Her husband, Abdul Latif, was already dead — one of 4,000 who died that night. By official count, about 3,000 others died later from illnesses caused by the disaster at the pesticide plant.

That night, hundreds of corpses lay where they fell, their mouths and eyes covered with a white froth formed by the reaction of the poison gas with the oxygen the victims had tried so desperately to breathe in their last minutes.

Most had their mouths open in a last gasp. Street dogs gnawed at the corpses that lay all over the slum, which adjoined the Union Carbide factory that had employed thousands in Bhopal, then killed them.

On Friday, police arrested 11,000 people on their way to Bhopal to mark the anniversary with a rally demanding compensation, organizers said. Officials could not confirm the number of arrests.

Survivors relive collision as they tell their stories

By Claro Cortes
Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — Most of the 608 passengers aboard the Cebu City were sleeping when a freighter slammed into the ferry Friday in Manila Bay. The ferry sank a half hour later with a three-foot hole in the lower deck.

At least 34 people drowned. Of the 100 still missing, an unknown number went down with the ship, lying under 90 feet of water. Divers could see their bodies but could not get to them before the search for survivors was called off for the night.

"I grabbed my two children, but when the ferry sank we were sucked under the water with it. A piece of metal hit my arm, and I lost hold of my two kids," said passenger Erwin Maravilla.

His wife also was among the missing.

Ships in the area plucked 451 people from the sea, many coated with the diesel oil disgorged as the ferry sank. The freighter, the Singapore-registered Kota Suria, joined in the rescue effort, its bow badly bent.

Survivors complained the crew did little to save people. The radio room may have been severely damaged because the distress signals came from other ships.

Maximo Calamba, who was rescued with his wife and 1-year-old son, said he heard many cries for help. "There was no alarm. We were thrown off our cots and everybody was on their own."

The collision occurred before dawn near the town of Rosario, about 35 miles southwest of Manila. The freighter, five times the ferry's size, easily destroyed the bridge and punched in the lower deck.

Among the missing are the captain and several mates with him in the bridge at the time of the crash, said Jacob Cabatuan, a crewman.

The cause of the accident, which occurred in calm seas under clear night skies, is under investigation. William Lines, the shipping company that owns the ferry, said it was rammed.

Danny Dalugdog, a driver and bodyguard, was separated from his wife and 3-month-old son in the confusion. "I thought they were gone."

He was reunited with his wife on the freighter. Then, as they transferred to a coast guard ship to return to Manila, a passenger called out that he found a baby boy. "It turned out to be my son," Dalugdog said.

A coast guard spokesman, Lt. Cmdr. Amado Samante, said 451 passengers had been rescued. Of the 34 bodies recovered, many were children and women.

"There were more bodies inside the cabins," said Angel Espidido, a coast guard diver. Divers could see the dead through the portholes but were unable to open the doors late Friday.

Cargo containers littered the sea, along with rubber rafts many survivors never got a chance to use.

Russian foreign minister opposes NATO plans

By Sally Jacobsen
Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Still angry about NATO's plans to admit former Warsaw Pact nations, Russia brushed aside attempts Friday to get it to follow through on plans for closer military links.

Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev refused to soften his opposition to a NATO blueprint setting out conditions for the entry of East European countries in the coming years.

He told a closed-door meeting of NATO and East European foreign ministers that Moscow could not move closer to the alliance until NATO provided more details about its intentions, sources said.

Kozyrev, they said, questioned whether there had been any change in NATO since it was a military machine opposed to the Soviet Union during the Cold War era.

On Thursday, he stunned Secretary of State Warren Christopher and other foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization by blasting the plan and backing out of a program for close military and political ties, complaining that NATO's proposals would create a new division of Europe.

A day later, Christopher sought to play down the incident, which ruined the alliance's efforts to present a united front on the sensitive issue of expanding NATO eastward.

He and others expressed confidence Moscow would eventually agree to a wide-ranging program of military and political contacts, designed to ease Russia's fears of being isolated.

"I think that will all get sorted out ... How soon I don't know," said British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd. Ties between NATO and Russia, he said, are "too important to be lost."

Despite Russia's objections, NATO Secretary-General Willy Claes insisted, "We are not ready to change any words in our decision" to authorize a 12-month study of expansion.

If Russia was miffed about the expansion plans, other East European nations were delighted.

"We think this is an important milestone on the road to an undivided Europe," said Poland's foreign minister, Andrzej Olechowski.

Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic and others have demanded NATO membership and the security guarantees that would be attached.

The allies, though, have been hesitant about moving too quickly to admit their one-time foes for fear of upsetting and isolating Russia, still a formidable military power.

At a summit in January, President Clinton and other allied leaders approved a U.S. initiative, Partnership for Peace, for East European nations.

Twenty-three nations, including Russia, have enrolled in the project, which allows them to take part for the first time in military exercises and other alliance activities.

On Thursday, the allies decided to push ahead and ordered a study of terms, costs and conditions for expanding the alliance.

But, mindful of Russia's worries, they promised not to identify any front-runners for membership or set entry dates.

Ship sinks, some blame injuries on boat's crew

By Terry Leonard
Associated Press

DJIBOUTI — As the scorched Achillo Lauro sank Friday into the Indian Ocean, a surviving passenger blamed the crew for injuring one of two people who died by dropping inflatable rafts on top of a crowded lifeboat.

The 979 passengers and crew who survived the fire on the Italian luxury liner were headed for three African and Middle Eastern ports aboard 10 rescue vessels, including freighters and U.S. warships. They abandoned the blazing ship two days ago.

The Achille Lauro was once a gleaming blue-and-white luxury liner that sailed around the world in 80 days. But it was best known for the 1985 hijacking by Palestinian terrorists, who killed an elderly Jewish American passenger, Leon Klinghoffer, and dumped his body overboard in his wheelchair.

The terrorists escaped aboard a jet, but U.S. fighter planes forced the plane down in Italy and the hijackers were arrested and later tried.

Wednesday's fire began in the engine room before dawn. Two elderly passengers died, one apparently of a heart attack. Eight people were injured as lifeboats and rafts were launched and the ship was abandoned.

According to passenger Geoffrey Wall, interviewed Friday by Britain's Sky TV, one man was injured when crew members released inflatable rafts onto the lifeboat, which held about 35 people.

Today to be sunny, mid-70s

Staff Report

Today should be mostly sunny with a high in the mid-70s, according to a forecaster at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport. Winds will be south to southwest at 5-15 mph.

Tonight should be fair with a low in the lower 40s.

Sunday should be partly cloudy with a high in the mid-70s.

After an overnight low of 43, Friday's high reached 73, compared to the record high for that date of 80 set in 1942. The record low was 17 set in 1985.

STATE

Rain showers and thunderstorms developed across Texas on Friday as the result of an upper-level disturbance that moved into the state from the west.

Temperatures were cooler.

Readings at 3 p.m. ranged from 51 degrees at Greenville to 67 at Abilene.

Rain and a few thunderstorms developed in South Texas because of the disturbance and a warm front that stretched from Beaumont to Laredo. Winds were light and variable ahead of the front and southeasterly between 10 and 15 mph behind the front.

Temperatures in South Texas varied from the 60s ahead of the front to the lower 70s and 80s behind it. At 3 p.m., readings ranged from 60 at Austin, College Station and Houston to 82 at McAllen.

It was a rainy morning across West Texas, but by afternoon, skies were mostly clear, with winds southwesterly at 10 to 20 mph. Temperatures warmed from cool morning lows because of plenty of sunshine. At 3 p.m., temperatures ranged from 61 at Guadalupe Pass in far West Texas to 76 degrees at Wink.

Skies should be mostly cloudy today across Texas with a chance of showers.

Lows early Friday were generally in the 30s and 40s across West Texas, ranging from 28 at Dalhart to 51 at San Angelo.

Low-level moisture moved across South Texas from the Gulf of Mexico late Friday morning. As a result, cloudy skies and areas of precipitation persisted across South Texas.

Temperatures across South Texas Friday morning were mainly in the 50s and 60s, with readings in the 70s across the lower valley. Winds were mainly out of the east and southeast at 5 to 15 mph.

NATION

Dual cold fronts pushed into the West and the Midwest on Friday, bringing more than a foot of snow to the mountains of Washington and rain to Florida and California.

One cold front extended across Lake Michigan into Wisconsin and southern Minnesota. The front was stationary through South Dakota and Wyoming, then ran southwest into northern California. San Diego cooled to 43 degrees this morning, one degree shy of the record for the date.

Another cold front moved into northwestern Montana and across northern North Dakota and Minnesota.

In the Cascades, 19 inches of snow was reported by afternoon at White Pass, 18 inches at Snoqualmie Pass, 17 inches at Stevens Pass and 15 inches atop Mount Baker.

CARE: Investigators find records of abuse, assault convictions. Other crimes included shoplifting, writing bad checks and welfare fraud.

The HHS inspector general's office did not, however, obtain fingerprints from the individuals to verify that the person with the arrest record and the child-care provider were the same. As a result, the investigators said, their findings may be less reliable than when fingerprints are used.

Based on their analysis of the "raw" matches, the investigators said the 61 individuals had a total of 726 arrests.

The investigators said the conviction rate for those checked may actually be higher because of the difficulty states have in providing timely data on final court action to the FBI's crime information center.

The workers were employed in day-care centers, Head Start centers and foster care homes, nearly all of which were licensed.

HHS officials blame the problem on the lack of a national policy requiring background checks on child-care providers.

Although the report is limited to four states, Inspector General June Gibbs Brown said in it that she believes the results are "indicative of what the states may find in terms of the types of crimes of which prospective child-care providers may have been convicted."

"The results of our background checks indicate that children in child-care facilities could be in the care of individuals who may have been convicted of crimes that could bear upon their fitness to care for children," Gibbs said in a memo to HHS Assistant Secretary Mary Jo Bane.

"We believe this was due to the absence of a nationwide policy requiring the screening of child-care providers to identify individuals likely to threaten the well-being of children," Gibbs said.

A 1993 law, the National Child Protection Act, permits states to require nationwide background checks of child-care providers, but does not require them to do so.

According to the federal Administration for Children and Families, 35 states have criminal background statutes. Some of those laws, however, apply only to certain kinds of day-care providers, such as day-care centers, but not those who take care of children in their homes.

The four states studied vary in their approach to background checks.

According to the inspector general's study, South Carolina requires state background checks for employees at licensed day-care and foster-care facilities.

Wisconsin does not require background checks for employees at day-care, foster-care or Head Start facilities, but does require employees in facilities licensed by the state to sign statements attesting to whether or not they have criminal records. The state tests the accuracy of these statements through background checks on a sample basis.

In Missouri, foster-care providers and employees and volunteers working in licensed day-care facilities are required to undergo a child abuse registry check. In Nevada, all day-care, Head Start and foster-care providers, their employees and any adults living in the facilities are required to undergo background checks, including a fingerprint check.

Michael Kharfen, a spokesman for the Administration for Children and Families, said the agency is "very concerned" about the inspector general's findings.

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., chairman of the House Small Business Committee's Subcommittee on Regulation, said the inspector general's report underscores the need for criminal background checks.

"These background checks give an added measure of safety to American youngsters and ought to be implemented in every corner of the country," said Wyden.

Slick roads cause chain collision, injure at least 21

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — At least 21 people were injured Friday when slick roads set off a chain-reaction collision that involved at least 75 cars and three semitrailers, authorities said.

There were no fatalities, but three people were severely injured, said Capt. George Suther of San Antonio Emergency Medical Services.

One person was airlifted to Brooke Army Medical Center, while two others were taken by ambulance, District Fire Chief Rodney Hitzfelder said.

Lt. Tom Baker, Brooke spokesman, said Friday night four patients were in undetermined condition and under observation.

Others were treated at the scene or taken to other hospitals in the city.

An overturned 18-wheeler and a cement truck were involved in the pileup, along with "numerous secondary accidents," said David Otwell, spokesman for the Texas Department of Transportation.

"There were at least 75 vehicles disabled," said police Sgt. Dan Flammia.

The chain of accidents during the 4 p.m. rush hour closed a five-mile stretch of southbound Interstate 35 for five hours.

REPORTS: Jobless rate drops to 4-year low trio of reports was mixed at midday, with stocks hovering in slightly positive territory.

The strength of the employment report surprised many economists, most of whom were expecting an increase in nonfarm payrolls of about 250,000 jobs.

It triggered a new round of speculation about whether the Federal Reserve will push up interest rates a seventh time this year.

Last month, the central bank's Federal Open Market Committee raised key rates three-quarters of a percentage point, the largest increase in 13 years.

Higher rates are meant to curb inflation, which bothers investors because it lowers the value of their holdings.

"Indeed, the November employment report increases the possibility that the Fed will tighten at the Dec. 20 FOMC meeting instead of waiting until the Jan. 31-Feb. 1 FOMC meeting," Merrill Lynch said in an analysis of the report.

But Sherman said he expects the Fed to wait.

"They're under no immediate pressure, in my opinion, to tighten," he said. "Inflation rates are remarkably low."

Sherman noted that the report showed average hourly wages down two cents from October and hourly wages on a yearly basis up just 2.55 cents, while workers were on the job longer.

"Despite the demand for labor, despite the low unemployment rate, we're not seeing wage increases that one would expect," Sherman said.

However, he said, "given the high rate of demand against supply, inevitably, if we know anything about supply and demand, prices are going to rise. That must concern the Fed."

The large number of new hires was boosted by unexpectedly robust growth in construction and manufacturing employment.

The Labor Department said 71,000 jobs were added to construction industry payrolls in November. A modest 4,000 construction jobs were added in October.

Manufacturing employment jumped 51,000 after increases of just over 18,000 in the previous three months.

Katharine G. Abraham, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, noted also that the employment survey was taken early in the month, meaning fewer seasonal layoffs were recorded.

As expected, most of the new hires were in service industries, including 25,000 in retail trade and a substantial increase of 26,000 in the number of government workers.

Also of note, the Labor Department revised its October nonfarm payroll number downward to 164,000 from the 194,000 initially reported. That is the least number of new hires since January, when a modest 101,000 increase was reported.

The two-cent decrease in the average hourly wage after a seven-cent-an-hour increase in October helped calm investor fears of looming inflation.

The report also showed the average workweek declining slightly from 34.9 hours to 34.6 hours.

ANNUAL: Tree lighting kicks off holiday season for the first time, but plan to make this an annual event.

"I like the lights on the Christmas tree best," 7-year-old Adrian said. Her 4-year-old brother, Andrew, liked the fire truck and their 7-month-old sister Alexia apparently enjoyed being held by her father while taking in all the sights.

"They get so excited about everything building up to Christmas," Mrs. Diaz said about the children and their enthusiasm for the activities.

Across from the fire truck, the line to see Santa extended far beyond his small workshop — where his elves were helping take photos of the children with Santa — to around most of the plaza.

Children hopped up and down in anticipation of seeing the bearded man.

Six-year-old Dexter Bickham was no different. He grinned at the thought of talking to the jolly old fellow and said he has definitely been a good boy this year.

Dexter's favorite part of the evening, he said, was the complimentary cookies provided by the Midland Jaycees and the city of Midland, who co-sponsor the annual festivities.

Near Santa's workshop, another group lined up for hayrides and caroling. As the songleader described it — Santa's greatest hits from "Jolly Old St. Nicklaus" to "Frosty the Snowman."

The hayride was a new experience for some.

"That was my first hayride. It was fun," said 7-year-old Inho Park. "I liked the singing."

His friend, 8-year-old Robby Peetz agreed noting it was also his first hayride. Although, technically, the boys rode in the rear of the truck towing the trailer with the hay-bundle seats.

Christopher Dokey, 5, liked the songs the best on his first hayride and admitted the seats were a little on the hard side.

Nine-year-old Katy Peetz is a hayride veteran. She sang a few solos on her hayride when no one else on board knew the words to "Jolly Old St. Nicklaus."

Santa was a favorite of 5-year-old Jeehyun Park. She had her list and went over it twice, noting in between requests that she had been a very good girl this year.

Singing and dancing were also among the entertainment for the evening. Downtown will remain lighted with the holiday decorations throughout the holiday season.

ROB: Gunman holds up local Fiesta Foods

the gunman as somewhat nervous, but determined. "He knew what he was doing," the witness said.

The robber ordered employees to turn over a large amount of money, which could be as much as $10,000, although the exact amount is not yet being released by Midland police detectives.

Police said the bandit — with money in hand — then swiftly made his way out of the store's east doors and disappeared.

One witness, a reserve Marine and veteran of Operation Desert Storm, ran out the doors moments later to observe the robber's getaway, but there was no sign of the gunman, he said.

No one was injured in the holdup, according to police reports.

Since police were called within 30 seconds of the bandit's departure and there was a police cruiser in the parking lot 45 seconds after that, detectives believe there might have been a getaway vehicle parked somewhere near the establishment, according to police Sgt. David Garcia.

"Patrol units saturated the area within minutes of the call," Garcia said.

Elements of the crime indicate to police that the robber was familiar with the store's routine and knew the store would have more available cash on Fridays than on some other days of the week.

The bandit is described as a black male; about 5 feet, 7 inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds with a stocky build. He is reported to have a thin mustache and was last seen wearing a dark blue wool cap, or toboggan — a dirty white thermal underwear top, blue jeans and black and white tennis shoes. His age is uncertain. Witnesses estimated the man's age at between 35 and 45.

Police hope to soon release composite sketches and possibly videotape from store security cameras.

Investigators ask anyone who may have witnessed anything suspicious in the area of the Town & Country Shopping Center on Midkiff Road to call the Police Department at 685-7108, or Midland Crime Stoppers at 694-TIPS.

Texas unemployment drops

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas unemployment rate fell in November to 5.5 percent, the lowest mark in nearly four years and the best rate over two months since the state's bust, the Labor Department said Friday.

"This is clearly a very good employment picture and one of the best we've had in a long time, probably," said Bob Gaddie, Southwest Regional Commissioner for the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The October unemployment rate in Texas was 5.9 percent. The last time the unemployment rate remained below 6 percent for two consecutive months was more than a decade ago, in September-October 1984, the department said.

The last time the state's unemployment rate dipped to 5.5 percent was in February 1991.

More significantly, the jobless rate has steadily declined for four months in a row, Gaddie said. Unemployment has fallen 1.3 percentage points since July, when it stood at 6.8 percent.

The reason for the improvement is that the size of the state's labor force has held steady in recent months, while jobs have been created, he said.

The overall labor force was 9.5 million in November, essentially the same as in July. By comparison, the labor force grew nearly 200,000 between January and July of this year — a 2 percent growth rate that the population isn't increasing fast enough to sustain, Gaddie said.

"Although employment growth has actually been a little bit slower than earlier, the unemployment rate has been coming down sharply because there aren't as many new job seekers coming into the Texas labor market," Gaddie said.

Labor force growth could include not only people coming to Texas from out of state, but also additional Texans looking for work as the economy improved.

There's no real way to know why the Texas labor force growth has slowed, said Bernard Weinstein, director of the University of North Texas Center for Economic Development and Research. The labor pool tends to grow at the beginning of a business expansion, which Texas has been in for more than three years, Weinstein said. Growth normally levels off as the recovery matures.

There were 520,000 Texans looking for work last month, holding steady from October and also the lowest level in almost four years, Gaddie said. Since July, the number of unemployed Texans has dropped by 126,000.

The quarterly unemployment rate, considered a less volatile reading, fell to 5.9 percent with the November reading. The three-month average had been 6.2 percent for the quarter ended in October and 6.5 percent for the three months ended in September.

The unemployment rate for November 1993 was 6.8 percent.

The state's employment was 8.96 million in November, up from 8.84 million in October.

Texas also continued to slightly outperform the nation. The U.S. November unemployment rate fell to 5.6 percent, just above the state rate, from 5.8 percent in October

Homeowner Shocked When Furnace Cleaning Saved 40% On Fuel In One Month

Family Narrowly Escapes Carbon Monoxide Poisoning From Faulty Furnace

Warmer Times

December — FURNACE EMERGENCY SAFETY UPDATE — 1994

Amazing New Tune-Up Guarantees Your Furnace Won't Break Down ...Or This Service Is FREE!

No One Else In My Field Makes You This Bold Guarantee!

PERMIAN BASIN-Now you can have your furnace rejuvenated to "Factory Fresh" condition. And I guarantee it won't cost you a penny! In fact, you'll make a profit.

As you already know, your furnace gets dirty; out of alignment; less efficient; and wears out with age. What you probably don't know is that it wears out about twice as fast as it should!

In fact, most furnaces die in "middle age" and use 1/3 to 1/2 more fuel than they need to.

But I've created a fascinating solution to this problem that will make your home more comfortable, safer and save you a pot full of money...with a special offer I hope you'll find irresistible.

$120 Worth of Service For Only $59!

Now, I know what you're thinking..."What's the catch? Where's the gimmick? Are you completely nuts?"

But there's a method to my madness, I have two reasons for letting you get this much service for 50 cents on the dollar.

First, my business is normally slow during December, And I decided that rather than lay off my top technicians, (and add to the unemployment statics) I would strip out everything but my raw cost and keep my technicians busy. Second. I'll actually make money on this in the long run anyway. Most people who sample my service like it so much they use me again at my normal prices (which, by the way, are great compared to my competition.)

So, both of us win. You'll just win sooner than I will.

Anyway, doesn't it just make sense to get this service so your family doesn't have to live with the uncertainty of an unsafe furnace?

Double Risk Free Money-Back Guarantee

Get your furnace restored to "Factory Fresh" condition for only $59 and here's my guarantee to you:

Guarantee #1. If your furnace breaks down this winter and needs repairs for any reason, I'll refund your $59...no questions asked!

Guarantee #2. If this amazing tune-up doesn't save you at least $50 (giving you a profit) in lower fuel usage this winter. I'll also refund the $59 with no hard feelings.

Since it can cost you thousands of dollars to replace your furnace; and, since you can make a guaranteed profit when you consider the fuel savings and since you have absolute no risk; doesn't it just make sense to give my tune-up a try?

It's easy, just call Carol and she will schedule a "Champion Technician" to your home.

FREE Carbon Monoxide Monitor if you call in the next 3 days!

I Will Have One Of My Champion Technicians™ Perform All This To Rejuvenate Your Furnace:

- √ Electronically test airflow passage for carbon monoxide
- √ Remove burners and wash for more efficient burning
- √ Vacuum clean and brush heat exchanger
- √ Inspect heat exchanger for cracks, holes and separations
- √ Remove smoke pipe and vacuum to prevent blockage
- √ Clean furnace filter for less restriction
- √ Tighten all wire connections for safety
- √ Electronically check for "natural gas" leaks to prevent fire
- √ Clean blower housing and remove all debris
- √ Adjust fan belt (if necessary) to maximize efficiency
- √ Test thermostat for proper anticipator and cycle setting
- √ Inspect thermocouple/igniter for proper burn
- √ Test fan and furnace limit for safety
- √ Test gas valve to reduce delayed ignition
- √ Inspect for dangerous combustible material
- √ Inspect flue or chimney for blockage
- √ Balance motor for reduced wear
- √ Measure manifold pressure
- √ Lubricate all moving parts
- √ Polish/wash furnace exterior

Senator: Budget could limit Bush's proposals

AUSTIN (AP) — While the Legislature is eager to hear Gov.-elect George W. Bush's proposals to reform welfare and relieve local property taxes, a key state senator said Friday there are few options to finance such ideas.

State Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, outlined a scrimp-and-save state budget that will be put together when the Legislature convenes in January.

Montford sounded optimistic that legislation addressing two of Bush's campaign platforms — tort reform and juvenile justice reform — will be passed.

But the senator questioned whether there would be money available to fund Bush's promises to reform welfare and reduce local property tax burdens.

State leaders have vowed to pay for state programs over the next two-year budget period without a tax increase.

"We are all of a mind to give the governor-elect a fair hearing and listen to whatever specific recommendations he has," Montford said. "In this budget scrub, unless you dramatically cut out existing expenditures or have a new source of revenue, I don't know where the money is going to come from."

Bush spokeswoman Karen Hughes said welfare reform will begin by improving the state's business climate through tort reform.

"Tort reform, we hope, will immediately create a healthier business climate and provide jobs for people on welfare," Ms. Hughes said.

Ms. Hughes said Bush realizes increasing the state's share of public education funding will take time.

Currently, local property taxes make up 55 percent of the funding for public schools, while the state's share is 45 percent.

"As the governor-elect said during his campaign, this is a long-term process," Ms. Hughes said. "The trend has been to increase pressure on local property taxes, and he wants to reverse that trend.

"He said it would take several legislative sessions. It won't happen overnight. But he wants to start working in the direction of making the funding of public schools the top priority of state government."

Throughout Bush's campaign to defeat incumbent Democrat Ann Richards, the Republican aired commercials saying state welfare roles had grown out of control.

Montford, whose committee helps write the state budget, said there is little room to cut. State health officials said during legislative committee hearings this week that they will need an additional $2.3 billion just to keep up existing Medicaid programs.

The state's Medicaid director said there is no place to cut without receiving federal waivers to completely revamp the state's Medicaid program. Applications for such waivers would have to be approved by the Legislature.

"When you are essentially talking about Aid for Dependent Children and nursing homes, those are very tough areas to just cut," Montford said. "You can't just slam the door on those programs."

Ms. Hughes said Bush is interested in seeking federal waivers to make changes in the state's Medicaid program.

"He is interested in discussing with legislators ways to get waivers to initiate reforms," Ms. Hughes said. "Some of the reforms may not even require legislative approval."

Audit cites OC's lack of investment controls

ODESSA (AP) — Odessa College officials' failure to follow state laws on investments was to blame for multimillion-dollar losses, according to a state audit released Friday.

"The college invested millions of dollars over a four-year period in high-risk derivative investments without implementing investment management controls ... (that) could have prevented the 50 percent decline in the college's investment portfolio and the loss of $3 million in public funds," the report said.

College officials responded that they already have adopted a formal investment policy and instituted reporting requirements on investments.

"We already have taken many of the steps that the auditors suggest," college President Philip Speegle said in a news release Friday. "At the same time, we appreciate their help and we hope their recommendations can be of benefit to the state as a whole."

The college also is considering hiring a financial consulting firm to help with investment decisions, the news release said.

Speegle was unavailable for further comment.

The three-month state probe stemmed from news that Odessa College bought derivatives that lost more than half their worth after a series of interest rate increases this year devastated the market.

Derivatives are securities whose value is tied to the performance of something else. The derivatives Odessa College bought are tied to pools of home mortgages.

At the time, the college had millions of dollars — including day-to-day operating funds — tied up in the investments.

As a result, school officials have been forced to issue $10.75 million in bonds, impose a 7.2 percent tax increase and raise tuition.

The auditor's report said the board of trustees and Speegle must bear responsibility.

Board members failed to set formal investment policies "that addressed the college's liquidity needs, setting expectations for portfolio diversification and establishing allowable investments and risk levels" as mandated by state law, the report states.

Trustee Gary S. Johnson said state officials should share the blame because they did not adequately regulate such investments.

But the report indicated that no Texas institution or agency bet as heavily as Odessa College or sustained worse financial woes.

The report says the nature of the investment makes the school susceptible to substantial declines in market price, extended maturity dates and decreased cash flow.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and others have been working to draft legislation to address problems that derivatives have caused among public agencies.

'Ponytail boy' feels good about judge's ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — Zachariah Toungate has spent a third of his life fighting for the right to wear a ponytail to school. About the only thing that's changed in those four years is the length of his hair.

State District Judge Norman Lanford ruled this week that the Bastrop school district's above-the-bottom-of-the-collar hair rule for boys violates the Texas Constitution's Equal Rights Amendment. But he said the courts have given administrators broad authority in running schools, and refused to revoke the rule.

Though Zach won't be returning to school — and may appeal — the 12-year-old said he feels good about the ruling.

"The judge said it was unconstitutional, and he said that he thought that was wrong," said the boy, whose ponytail is now about 15 inches long.

Ray Long, president of the School Board, said there is no sentiment on the board to change the rule. "I think that hair, dress and grooming standards are good," Long said.

The fight started in 1990 when Zach refused to cut his hair. He was separated from other third-graders and taught alone in a 10-by-13-foot room. He was prohibited from participating in extracurricular activities.

In 1991, Zach's parents withdrew him from school and taught him at home. They sued to abolish the rule so he could return to class.

The case was dismissed, then reinstated by an appeals court. The trial was finally held in October in Bastrop, a town of 4,000 people about 35 miles east of Austin. The jury ruled in the school district's favor, but the judge indicated the jurors may have been confused, and he issued his own ruling.

School officials had argued that if the hair-length rule were repealed, it would lead to gangs.

But Lanford, in his ruling Tuesday, said that argument was "solely designed to frighten the jury" and whip up "gang hysteria." He said the district had failed to prove that students' schooling would be disrupted.

Zach continues to receive schooling at home, studying reading, math and history through correspondence courses. The seventh-grader said it's difficult to make new friends since he doesn't go to school.

Zach's mother, September, and father, Stanley, are backing their son.

"It has been worth it. Discrimination is wrong," said his mother, a 33-year-old nurse at an adolescent psychological center.

The boy's father, a 44-year-old auto mechanic and electrician, had long hair when Zach decided to grow his long, too, said the boy's lawyer, Charles Beall. Later, the elder Toungate cut his hair.

Texas officials discuss controversial bills

AUSTIN (AP) — House Speaker Pete Laney and a key state senator said Friday two of the most controversial bills expected to be debated by the Legislature have opposite degrees of support.

Laney and Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, said a bill that would allow Texans to carry concealed handguns appears to have a lot of support while a bill that would legalize casino gambling doesn't.

In 1993 a bill that would have allowed Texans to vote on whether concealed guns should be allowed in the state passed the Legislature but was vetoed by Gov. Ann Richards.

Gov.-elect George W. Bush has said he supports allowing Texans to carry concealed handguns.

Montford said the Senate appears to have the votes to pass the legislation, although he said at least one state senator has threatened to impede the bill by filibuster.

"I think it has enough votes in the Senate, but when you talk filibuster, anything can happen," Montford said.

"That's one of the bills where if they get it out in the first three months, it will pass. But if it gets bogged down in the process where it could be impacted by a filibuster, I think there will be some serious debate."

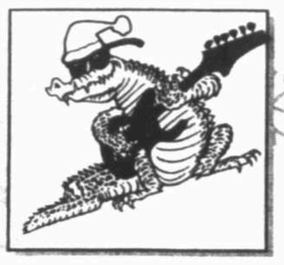

Laney said: "I imagine there will be some debate in the House about whether to have a referendum or simply pass it as a blanket bill."

A referendum would allow voters to decide the issue.

Under the legislation, Texans with no criminal background or history of mental illness would be allowed to carry concealed weapons after passing a strict licensing exam.

Laney and Montford said the legalization of casino gambling appears to face an uphill climb in the Legislature, which convenes in January.

Bosnian Serbs release 70 hostages, but bomb presidency building

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serbs promised Friday to release hundreds of peacekeepers and allow aid deliveries as the chief U.N. envoy tried to salvage what was left of the ailing U.N. mission in Bosnia.

Earlier, two anti-tank missiles slammed into the presidency building just minutes before U.N. envoy Yasushi Akashi arrived for talks with the Muslim-led Bosnian government. U.N. officials said the missiles appeared to come from Serb positions, but the Serbs said the government attacked itself to cause trouble.

It was yet another sign of Serb contempt for the peacekeeping effort, which has virtually ground to a halt. The Serb rebels have stopped U.N. aid convoys, attacked a U.N.-declared "safe area," and taken peacekeepers hostage.

In Brussels, Belgium, Secretary of State Warren Christopher and European foreign ministers endorsed a U.S. plan for a cease-fire that would lead to peace talks in the 2½-year-old war. The plan would also grant the Serbs their main aim in the conflict: the right to ties with Serb-led Yugoslavia.

At the United Nations, Russia late Friday vetoed a Security Council resolution aimed at stopping Yugoslav fuel supplies reportedly powering a Serb offensive in northern Bosnia. It was the first council veto in a year and a half and the first on the Bosnian war.

The Serbs on Friday released 70 peacekeepers who had been held a week, but more than 300 peacekeepers remained hostage as insurance against NATO airstrikes.

Akashi, who met with Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic at Serb headquarters in Pale, east of Sarajevo, said he was assured that Ukrainian peacekeepers held in northern Bosnia would be released, Dutch and British supply convoys detained since Saturday would be freed, and Bangladeshi peacekeepers stranded in Bihac would be allowed to receive supplies.

Karadzic said the Serbs and the U.N. "are moving fast to normalization of our relations," but he issued a veiled warning against NATO.

■ BOSNIA UPDATE: Call Cityline 560-2400, enter 6201.

"We would like to see skies clear of our aircraft and of NATO aircraft," he said. "If NATO is flying around there is more risk of misunderstandings and incidents."

Under current rules of engagement, the U.N. must request the NATO airstrikes, although NATO planes can defend themselves against attack without U.N. approval. U.N. officials fear that could escalate tensions.

Akashi had met earlier with Bosnian government and military leaders in Sarajevo. Two wire-guided missiles hit the presidency building minutes before he arrived for the talks. One destroyed the office of Miro Lazovic, an ethnic Serb member of Bosnia's collective presidency.

Three missiles hit nearby buildings while the meeting went on. There were no injuries.

The Bosnian government blasted the United Nations for not using force to halt fighting at Bihac, the embattled government-held enclave in the northwest. Serb forces have seized 30 percent to 40 percent of the "safe area," and fighting continued there Friday.

U.S. Ambassador to Germany Charles Redman held talks in Sarajevo with Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic and Prime Minister Haris Silajdzic on the U.S. peace plan. Redman helped draft an earlier plan that the Serbs rejected.

The war began when Serbs rebelled against a vote for independence from Yugoslavia by Bosnia-Herzegovina's Muslims and Croats. More than 200,000 people are dead or missing in the war, and the Serbs have seized 70 percent of Bosnia.

Following the secession since 1991 of Slovenia, Croatia, Bosnia and Macedonia, Yugoslavia now comprises Serbia and Montenegro. Serb nationalists in Yugoslavia, Croatia and Bosnia have pressed for a unified "Greater Serbia."

The rejected peace plan denied Serbs the right to links with Yugoslavia as punishment for starting the war, but allowed Bosnia's Croats and Muslims the right to ties with Croatia. The old plan also granted the Serbs 49 percent of Bosnia — a condition the new plan also contains.

Akashi had more success than U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali, who was rebuffed Wednesday when he tried to meet with Bosnian Serb leaders. Boutros-Ghali said afterwards that intransigence by the warring sides might force the U.N. mission to withdraw.

Seventy Dutch peacekeepers arrived in Zagreb, Croatia, after being released from a seven-day detention by the Serbs in eastern Bosnia, U.N. officials said. But Serbs continued to hold about 20 other Dutch peacekeepers, plus hundreds of British, Ukrainians and Canadians, at various points throughout Bosnia.

Machine-gun and small arms fire was reported on the outskirts of Bihac, U.N. officials said. The heaviest fighting appeared concentrated around Velika Kladusa, north of Bihac, where Serbs were apparently closing in on the government army's 5th Corps.

Choice of trade organization chief is uncertain

N.Y. Times News Service

FRANKFURT, Germany — One day after winning congressional approval of a vast global trade accord, the Clinton administration appears to be losing the first power struggle in the new world trade order.

At issue is who will head the soon-to-be-created World Trade Organization, the agency that is to administer trade disputes and replace the existing Geneva-based bureaucracy of GATT, or the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The United States has vigorously supported Carlos Salinas de Gotari, the Mexican president who left office on Thursday. Salinas is seen as a champion of free trade, having led Mexico into the North American Free Trade Agreement, and is by far the most prestigious candidate for the job.

But he is running a distant second. The European Union, led by Germany and France, is backing an Italian diplomat and trade expert, Renato Ruggiero, who served as the Italian minister of foreign trade from 1987 through 1991 and while not a world figure, is well known in European trade circles.

A surprisingly strong third is Kim Chul Su, the South Korean trade minister, who has the support of Japan and most Asian countries.

The issue is important because many experts say the World Trade Organization will emerge over time as the most important international economic agency, eclipsing the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund in importance, as it carries out the far-reaching changes in global trade agreed to under GATT.

According to senior officials in the GATT building on the shores of Lake Geneva, Ruggiero has more than 50 percent of the votes of the 123 GATT member nations.

Investigators conclude Hutus guilty in killings

N.Y. Times News Service

UNITED NATIONS — U.N. investigators concluded Friday that Hutu militants were guilty of genocide in Rwanda and that the rival Tutsi were not guilty of retaliation, as many have charged.

The investigators, led by Atsu-Koffi Amega, a former judge from Togo, said, "There exists overwhelming evidence to prove that acts of genocide against the Tutsi group were perpetrated by Hutu elements in a concerted, planned, systematic and methodical way."

The commission said it found no evidence that the Tutsi-led Rwandan Patriotic Front committed systematic reprisals after it gained control. But the panel said it was "disturbed" by continuing violence and recommended further inquiry.

The findings, released Friday, add to the evidence against Hutu leaders who may be brought before an international tribunal that was approved by the Security Council a month ago.

By some estimates, 500,000 people, mainly Tutsi and moderate Hutu, were slaughtered last spring by Hutu militias.

The U.N. report said some Hutu leaders guilty of the worst crimes are living in refugee camps in neighboring countries.

As the investigators released their report, the prime minister of Rwanda, Faustin Twagiramungu, visited officials here to plead for help for his wrecked country, saying one priority was to identify, arrest and try the Hutu leaders living in the camps.

"We intend to bring them before a court of law," he said, adding that as many as 85,000 refugees in the camps around Goma, Zaire, may have taken part in massacres.

Twagiramungu added that searching the camps for the leaders of the massacres was only one of the measures that have to be taken, all of which will require huge amounts of foreign aid. The other priorities, he said, were guaranteeing the safety of returning refugees and rebuilding homes.

"Security in Rwanda is not total," the prime minister conceded, but he said efforts are being made to improve it.

Minister orders lottery winner to burn ticket

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — An unemployed maid and mother of seven burned a winning $60,000 lottery ticket because her minister said she would go to hell if she took the devil's money.

Maria Benoiza Nascimento, 39, said she was "confused" by the warning from her minister at an Assembly of God church in Fortaleza, 1,200 miles northeast of Brasilia, the Correio Braziliense newspaper reported Friday.

The minister, identified only as Preacher Wagner, reportedly said her plane would crash and Mrs. Nascimento would "sink in sin in hell" if she tried to receive the prize of 50,000 reals, worth about $60,000.

"Destroy the ticket — the devil's work — to save yourself from the hellfire," the minister was quoted as saying, as the congregation chanted "Burn, burn, burn."

Mrs. Nascimento went home to her one-room shack and burned the ticket, whose winning number was announced Nov. 15. Then, for good measure, she burned her identification card and her children's birth certificates.

Her husband, also unemployed, beat her and left home when he found out, the newspaper reported. It said three of the Nascimentos' children have pneumonia, another has a heart ailment and the family survives on handouts from neighbors.

A contrite Mrs. Nascimento said she would ask the SBT television network, which ran the lottery, to validate the prize anyway.

Diplomats attempt to renegotiate peace plan

By Barry Schweid
AP Diplomatic Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The United States and four other governments on Friday tried to restart the drive for peace in Bosnia with a plea for support of a plan designed to lure advancing Serbs with a prospect of political ties to Serbia.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher said the group rejected the options of "carpet bombing" or surrender, agreeing to resubmit a plan whose basic terms the Serbs rejected in the past.

"The road will be very difficult," Christopher said, referring to the new attempt to draw the Serbs into peace talks.

The hint of a step toward a Greater Serbia was contained in a one-page text of the agreement distributed after Christopher met with the foreign ministers of Britain, France, Germany and Russia. It said the idea was to "allow equitable and balanced arrangements for the Bosniac-Croat and Bosnian Serb entities."

This proclaims that since the Muslim-led Bosnian government and Bosnian Croats have formed a federation linked to Croatia, the Bosnian Serbs have the same right to seek cross-border political ties to Serbia.

French Foreign Minister Alain Juppe, who led a successful European campaign to move the Clinton administration from its support for NATO bombing raids on Serb positions, called this assurance a matter of giving all parties "an equal opportunity."

He and the other ministers stressed, however, that the Serbs must recognize the legitimacy of Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The ministers emphasized they had reached unity after lengthy wrangling on how to deal with the war over the last 31 months.

German Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel, who chaired the meeting of the five-nation "contact group," said the fighting in the Bihac region of northwest Bosnia had reached an awful state. He said the war cannot be solved with external military force.

Juppe and British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd will go to Belgrade on Sunday in pursuit of a diplomatic solution. Both stressed that while they would carry the joint decision with them, they would be meeting with Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic as representatives of their governments.

Michael McCurry, the State Department spokesman, said U.S. envoy Charles E. Redman went to Sarajevo on Thursday for meetings with Bosnian Muslim leaders.

He also told reporters the proposal Christopher had prepared for an international peace conference was being held "in abeyance" until the various consultations.

The meeting of the U.S.-allied contact group came as the Bosnian Serbs tightened their grip on the mostly Muslim Bihac enclave and as the conflict threatened to spread into Croatia.

Christopher wants Milosevic to threaten to seal Serbia's border to Bosnia.

Haitian reforms advance, reach military officers

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — After a slow start, Haiti is moving swiftly to solidify its democratic institutions, appointing a new 11-member Supreme Court and placing the army-controlled police under civilian command.

Some 250 former Haitian boat people were heading home Friday to join an internationally supervised interim police force.

The separation of the police and military, required by the 1987 Constitution, was approved by the Senate on Wednesday night but only announced Friday.

"The armed forces reform law is a historic break with our repressive political past," Sen. Jean-Robert Martinez told The Associated Press.

The widely popular Aristide, wary of those who overthrew him three years ago, is also quickly reassigning senior military officers to overseas posts.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Stanley Schrager confirmed Friday that former Haitian military chief Jean-Claude Duperval was being transferred to a diplomatic post in Brazil, and Brig. Gen. Max Mayard was heading to a similar military attache position in Ecuador.

The other two generals during the 1991-1994 military rule, Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras and Brig. Gen. Philippe Biamby, fled to self-imposed exile in Panama two days before Aristide's return.

Aristide says he will cut the size of the army from 7,500 to 1,500 and to create a 4,000-member civilian police force.

The appointment of a new Supreme Court is another building block to establishing civil justice in a land ruled by the gun for most of its history.

The new chief justice, Clauzel Debrosse, was a member of the old Supreme Court. He opposed the 1991 military coup that overthrew President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, who returned to power in October after a U.S.-led military intervention.

"We wanted to reward Debrosse for his opposition to de facto rule," said Martinez, an Aristide supporter.

Aristide, in accordance with the constitution, chose the judges from a Senate list of three candidates for each seat.

Aristide is trying to strengthen civilian authority as rapidly as possible. Thousands of American and other foreign troops are keeping the peace now, but Republican leaders in Congress are urging the Clinton administration to hasten the pullout of GIs.

Republicans choose Daschle, Dole to fill party leadership positions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Capping a rapid rise to power, Tom Daschle of South Dakota won election as the Senate Democratic leader on Friday and pledged independence from the White House as well as occasional combat with Republicans. The GOP anointed Sen. Bob Dole as majority leader for the 104th Congress.

Dole, 71, and his party's leader for a decade, was elected unanimously by the new Republican majority. But in a sign of the political ferment within the caucus, Sen. Trent Lott of Mississippi unseated the veteran whip, Sen. Alan Simpson of Wyoming, for the No. 2 job in the leadership.

Daschle, 46 and in the Senate only eight years, defeated Sen. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut on a 24-23 secret ballot, on the strength of overwhelming support from younger, more junior Democrats.

"We will judge all proposals, whether they come from the president or from our Republican colleagues, by the test of how well they serve the interests of working people and their families," the soft-spoken Daschle said shortly after his selection. He pledged "constructive alternatives, not gridlock" in response to the GOP agenda, and said Democrats would "offer vigorous opposition to extreme proposals that threaten economic prosperity of our nation's economic future."

The two parties made their selections in nearby rooms a few paces down the corridor from the Senate floor. Afterwards, Dole stepped briefly into the Democratic meeting to pledge to work cooperatively with Daschle and other members of the minority.

Lott's selection — on a vote of 27-26 — was something of a rebuff to Dole and a triumph for Dole's potential presidential rival, Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas. It may also signal closer cooperation with House Republicans, since Lott and Gramm are close to Rep. Newt Gingrich of Georgia, who is in line to become speaker of the House.

Despite Simpson's pre-election claim that Lott's victory would complicate Dole's life if he decides to run for president, Lott said, "absolutely not."

"There will not be any change in style or votes or agenda when he is out of town," he said.

Dole, too, said he envisioned no problem. "I can always adjourn the Senate," the Kansan said with a chuckle.

At the same time, Lott expressed a keen interest in working closely with Gingrich and the new House majority. He pledged teamwork "not just within our caucus but across the Capitol."

For Dole, the elections offer a second tour as majority leader in the Senate, a post he held previously from 1985-1986. A career politician, he is known and admired within the Senate for his toughness as well as his political adroitness. Within the past 10 days, he made himself the gatekeeper in the Senate for passage of a GATT global trade accord strongly backed by President Clinton.

In talks with the White House, he won a series of concessions, understandings and pledges that underscored his negotiating skills.

Government drops recall of GM trucks

DETROIT (AP) — The government agreed Friday not to seek a recall of allegedly fire-prone General Motors pickup trucks, striking a deal with GM under which the automaker will spend more than $51 million on safety and research.

"Proceeding with the recall process would have taken years in court," Transportation Secretary Federico Pena said. "During all that time, the trucks subject to this investigation would have remained on our highways."

At a news conference in Washington, Pena said the safety and research programs will begin saving lives immediately. The deal also calls for his department to add $27 million to GM's $51 million.

At issue are about 9 million Chevrolet and GMC trucks from model years 1973 to 1987, an estimated 5 million of which still are in use.

Pena in October concluded the trucks are prone to catch fire in side collisions because their gas tanks are mounted outside the truck's frame, and he blamed the fuel tank design for 150 deaths. GM has steadfastly maintained the trucks are safe, and it had vowed to fight any recall attempt in court.

Some industry analysts have said a recall could have cost GM $1 billion or more.

On Friday, GM said its agreement to collaborate with the government on safety programs is "clearly in the public interest."

GM will spend its money on 200,000 child safety seats for poor families, a fire safety research lab with the Transportation Department, education programs to promote seat belt use and deal with drunken driving, and for burn and trauma treatment research.

"Our position has never wavered that these trucks are not unsafe and do not pose an unreasonable risk to owners who continue to operate them," GM said in a statement.

Ralph Nader, who had pressed for a recall, called the agreement a payoff.

"This is the most unprecedented buyout of law enforcement officials by a culpable corporation in regulatory history," the consumer activist said.

Prosecutors plan to question Hubbell in case

WASHINGTON (AP) — From personal recollections to telephone records, prosecutors are interested in questioning former Associate Attorney General Webster Hubbell about possible political interference in the Whitewater affair, two lawyers familiar with the investigation said Friday.

Obtaining Hubbell's cooperation "on this and other matters has been the plan from the start," said one lawyer familiar with Whitewater independent counsel Kenneth Starr's investigation.

Another lawyer said Starr is almost certain to delve into any conversations Hubbell, as the No. 3 Justice Department official, might have had about two criminal cases handled by federal prosecutors in Little Rock, Ark.

That source suggested prosecutors might use telephone records and calendars during Hubbell's Justice Department tenure as a road map to studying the Clinton administration's actions. Hubbell resigned in March.

Both lawyers spoke only on condition of anonymity.

The White House has repeatedly denied that there was any political interference in inquiries of Whitewater.

According to the sources, Starr's office is interested in how the U.S. attorney's office in Little Rock handled two criminal matters that touched on the Clintons. They include:

- Criminal allegations by the Resolution Trust Corp., the government's S&L cleanup agency, about the failed Madison Guaranty, an Arkansas savings and loan once owned by the Clintons' Whitewater business partners.
- The case against former municipal judge David Hale, who repeatedly told prosecutors that he had information linking President Clinton to an improper federally backed loan.

Both matters were being handled last year by the office of Paula Casey, a former campaign worker whom Clinton appointed U.S. attorney in Little Rock before a special prosecutor was named to handle the Whitewater affair.

For Whitewater investigators, Hubbell offers an intriguing prospect because of his access to President Clinton and the White House inner circle.

Gay activists hail Navy's decision as victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gay rights activists on Friday hailed a Navy tribunal's recommendation not to discharge a lesbian reservist, the fourth time a homosexual has been allowed to stay in the military under President Clinton's "don't ask, don't tell" policy.

The recommendation to allow Lt. Cmdr. (Select) Zoe Dunning to remain in the service must still be approved by the naval secretary.

"The decision, in a sense, is obviously a classic Bronx cheer at the policy," said Matt Coles, director of the lesbian and gay rights project at the American Civil Liberties Union's San Francisco office.

Pentagon officials confirmed Friday that Dunning is the fourth gay person who has been allowed to stay in the service since Clinton's policy was implemented early this year.

The old policy banned homosexuals outright; the new policy permits gay men and lesbians to serve, but only if they keep quiet about it and don't practice homosexuality.

The military, meanwhile, is forbidden from questioning service members about their orientation — the "don't ask" portion of the rule.

Under the new policy, if service members publicly declare themselves to be gay, they face discharge unless they can prove they do not engage in homosexual acts.

Last month, the government told the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York that in three instances under the new policy, gay service members have been able to overcome the presumption that they engage in or are likely to engage in homosexual acts, and they have been retained in the military.

Some other cases under "don't ask, don't tell" have gone against the service member:

■ In Washington, a Navy board of inquiry recommended that Lt. Tracy Thorne, a former member of the "Flying Tigers" bombing squadron, be discharged. The board said Thorne publicly disclosed he is gay, but made no attempt to prove he would not engage in homosexual acts.

■ In Bangor, Wash., another board of inquiry recommended discharging Machinist's Mate 2nd Class Mark A. Philips, even though a Navy officer had closely questioned the sailor about his homosexuality. Philips made the disclosure while being questioned in 1992, a practice permitted under the old policy. He was recommended for discharge under the new policy.

■ In Norfolk, Va., a board recommended honorably discharging Lt. j.g. R. Dirk Selland, who was presumed to engage in homosexual acts after disclosing he was living with a gay man.

In Dunning's case, the board found that even though she had declared "I am a lesbian," at a 1993 rally, she had rebutted the presumption that she would engage in homosexual acts.

Dunning didn't try to convince the board she was celibate; instead, she argued that her statement was merely an expression of orientation and did not imply she planned to commit acts prohibited by the military.

Meter reader discovers headless skeleton

NEW YORK (AP) — No one is quite sure how long the man sat in the patio chair in his darkened basement.

When a gas meter reader finally found him Thursday, he was still comfortably dressed in a woolly blue and white sweater, sweatpants and slippers. Except that his head was missing.

The seated, skeletal remains were so decomposed that the skull had apparently toppled away, police said.

Authorities tentatively identified the body Friday as Long Lu Lee, 69, a mechanical engineer.

When Lee died — and how — remained a mystery. A woman who investigators believe was Lee's wife, Thuc Khoanh Lu, 62, was providing few answers, police said.

Lu told police she had not seen her husband for several months. But police could not find a missing-person report, said Sgt. Edward Caro, a police spokesman.

Brooklyn Union Gas Co. had been trying, unsuccessfully, to read the meter at the home in Queens for more than a year, said spokesman Ed Yutkowitz.

Clinton blocks federal funds for certain types of human embryo research

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — President Clinton on Friday ordered that no federal funds be spent on human embryos created for research purposes only.

But Clinton did not specifically forbid federal financial support for research on human embryos that originate from in vitro fertilization — the so-called test-tube baby technique.

"I do not believe that federal funds should be used to support the creation of human embryos for research purposes," Clinton said. His order Friday was far less sweeping than previous restrictions imposed by Presidents Reagan and Bush.

"I have directed that the National Institutes of Health not allocate any resources" for studies of human embryos that were created for research purposes.

White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers, asked to interpret Clinton's terse statement, said, "It should be interpreted very narrowly."

Asked if the statement would permit federally funded research using embryos that were surplus from IVF clinics, she said, "The president's statement doesn't outlaw that."

"That's the line that's been drawn," said a senior White House official who asked not to be named publicly.

In his statement, Clinton said that research on fertilized human eggs "raises profound ethical and moral questions as well as issues concerning the appropriate allocation of federal funds."

The report of the NIH's human embryo committee said the research had the potential of finding news ways to correct infertility, to improve methods of avoiding or correcting birth defects, and to learn fundamental cell biology that might lend itself to combatting cancer.

After studying the issue for nine months, the committee delivered its recommendations this week to another panel that advises NIH Director Harold Varmus.

That panel endorsed the recommendations, leaving the final decision up to Varmus on if, when and how the NIH would proceed with research grants — until Clinton took it out of Varmus' hands.

Former minister receives 2 life terms for deaths

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Former minister Paul Hill was sentenced Friday to two life sentences — the maximum — for violating the new federal clinic-protection law in the shotgun slayings of an abortion doctor and his bodyguard.

Next week, a judge will decide whether Hill should get the electric chair on state murder charges in the slayings.

Hill, 40, of Pensacola was the first person in the nation prosecuted under the federal law against using violence or otherwise interfering with those entering abortion clinics.

The life-without-parole sentences will run concurrently.

Hill, a former Presbyterian minister, killed Dr. John Bayard Britton, 69, and his volunteer bodyguard, retired Air Force Lt. Col. James Barrett, 74. Barrett's wife, 69-year-old June Barrett, was wounded in the attack July 29.

"The rationale, your honor, is simply I was trying to prevent Dr. Britton from killing the 30 people he was going to kill that day," Hill told U.S. District Judge Roger Vinson.

Vinson said he did not doubt Hill's sincerity about believing he had a higher motive, but added: "God does not look with favor on the taking of any human life."

The sentence "shows that extreme anti-abortion zealots are not above the law and will be punished to the full measure of the law," Eleanor Smeal, president of the Feminist Majority Foundation, said in a statement.

Jury convicts stars' madam of pandering

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Heidi Fleiss, who once boasted that her prostitution ring catered to the "top 1 percent" of Hollywood's elite, was convicted Friday of providing high-price call girls to undercover police officers.

After four days of deliberations, a jury found the 28-year-old pediatrician's daughter guilty on three of five pandering charges.

The seven-man, five-woman jury deadlocked on the two other counts and acquitted her of supplying cocaine to an undercover police officer.

Fleiss slammed her hands on the defense table and laid down her head as the guilty verdicts were read. Her father, seated behind her in the front row of the courtroom, hung his head.

Fleiss faces a minimum of three years, and up to eight years and eight months in prison. Sentencing was set for Jan. 20. Fleiss was released on $75,000 bail and went home with her father, Paul.

Father and daughter await trial in January on federal charges they laundered profits from the call-girl ring.

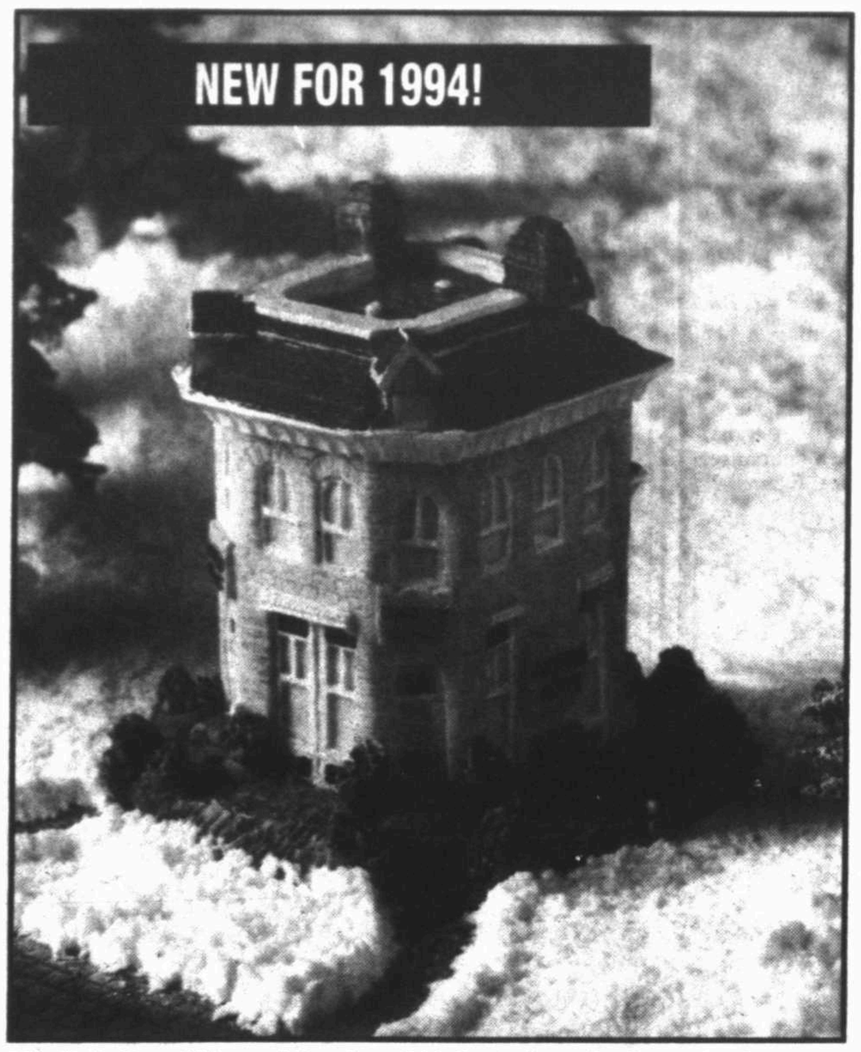

Defense attorney Anthony Brooklier said Fleiss was disappointed in the verdict. "We're confident that she's strong and she'll see her way through this," he said.

Brooklier said he will appeal.

Prosecutor Alan Carter said he was pleased. The district attorney's office hadn't immediately decided whether to retry Fleiss on the two deadlocked counts.

Much of the six-day trial focused on police conduct, with Fleiss' attorneys insisting she was entrapped.

OSCAR'S EMPTY GARDEN

Hollywood's early buzz: Strong candidates hard to find this year

■ With Oscar time just around the corner, candidates for Tinsel Town's top honors are hard to come by so far ...

By Bernard Weinraub
N.Y. Times News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Studio executives plotting their strategies for the Academy Awards have reached some unsettling conclusions.

The first is that once again there were surprisingly few powerful roles for actresses this year, despite the growing list of studio executives who are women and the often-stated proclamations of studio chiefs that they are card-carrying feminists.

Then there is the general paucity of creative and significant films of any kind, despite assurances from some executives that the industry is flourishing and movies are better than ever.

The truth is that for the first time in years studios are scrambling to come up with enough nominees for best film of the year. By the time 1994 is over, more than 140 films will have been released, but some studio officials admit that it's tough to come up with five that are Oscar worthy.

Please see OSCAR/2B

The cast of "Quiz Show," top photo, has a good chance of earning a Best Picture nod, while Disney's "The Lion King," left, may also be nominated for top film honors. Susan Sarandon's portrayal of a divorced lawyer in "The Client" may earn her a nomination for Best Actress.

30 years and still an enterprising adventure

By Louis B. Parks
N.Y. Times News Service

When "Star Trek: Generations" hit theaters last month, 30 years had passed since the first "Trek" show was produced.

Officially, "Star Trek" landed or planet Earth in 1966. The first episode, "The Man Trap," in which a salt-starved alien menaced the Enterprise crew, aired at 8:30 p.m. EST Thursday, Sept. 8.

But it was in late 1964 that Star Trek's first pilot, "The Cage," was produced.

On the cosmic wristwatch, 30 years is a mere tick. For many Star Trek fans, it's most of their lives. No wonder they grasp Trek history better than their own.

The first great moment in Trek history may have been when NBC turned down that pilot in February 1965. Like many later disasters in Trek history, rejection turned out to be a blessing in disguise.

NBC asked series creator Gene Roddenberry to film another pilot. Roddenberry went back to the drawing board, and when the second pilot, "Where No Man Has Gone Before," was produced in 1965, there were vast changes in cast, style and sets.

Patrick Stewart, left, and Avery Brooks command a starship and a space station in the first two spin-offs of the beloved syndicated hit "Star Trek."

Jeffrey Hunter, who played Capt. Pike in "The Cage," had been replaced by William Shatner as Capt. Kirk. Leonard Nimoy's Spock, the only actor/character to survive the first pilot's crash landing, was greatly altered, becoming the logical, glacial Vulcan we now love.

Original Trek was neither a ratings nor a critical success, though it drew a loyal young following. Critics, belatedly realizing that Star Trek was not the monster-of-the-week show, took another look.

Some were impressed by Trek's serious attempt to tackle, under the camouflage of science fiction, contemporary social issues avoided by other shows of the era. Star Trek received several Emmy nominations that first year, including for best actor (Nimoy).

The first of hundreds of Star Trek books was published in January 1967. Titled simply "Star Trek," it was a collection of seven short stories by science-fiction writer James Blish, based on TV episodes.

Blish would also write the first Trek novel, "Spock Must Die!", published in February 1970. More than 200 novels have followed, many of them national best sellers.

When Star Trek began its second season in September 1967, NBC moved it to Friday, when most young viewers were out having fun. The move helped kill the series.

In January 1968, NBC canceled Trek after only two seasons. This led to fans' famous letter-writing campaign, which made history by getting NBC to change its corporate mind.

It was a fateful decision for Trekdom, because renewal for a third season meant there would be enough episodes for Trek to become a practical syndication package.

However, several of the talents behind the show, including Roddenberry, were gone when the third season began. The already-tight budget was cut. Quality suffered.

NBC moved the series to the graveyard slot, 10 p.m. Friday. It was the final nail in the coffin. Star Trek was canceled, for real, in February 1969. The last show aired June 3.

Cancellation was another blessing in disguise.

By canceling the show while fans were still interested, NBC created a desire for more. Unsuspecting, Paramount sold the syndication rights

1994: Randy Travis returns to form

It's been a fairly decent year for country music, particularly in terms of albums and new artists. And 1994 actually brought a batch of music performed by artists who seem to be leaning toward giving us another wave of neo-traditionalism. If that happens, everyone benefits.

Patterson

Before delving into the Top 10 country albums of the year, a look at the Top 12 single releases (Sorry, I just couldn't whittle out the last two to make it an even 10):

Those that almost made the cut: "Gone Country," and "Livin' on Love," Alan Jackson; "Rainy Night in Georgia," Sam Moore and Conway Twitty; "What's a Good Ol' Boy To Do," Jamie O'Hara; "Love Bug," George Strait; "What A Cryin' Shame," The Mavericks; "Shut Up and Kiss Me," Mary Chapin Carpenter; "Walk Out Backwards," Rick Trevino.

Now for the Top 12 ...

12. "Wink," Neal McCoy. Yeah, it's more in line with this young country, line-dancing stuff, but it was a fun summer song and it's by a man who knows fake from pure.

11. "Who Says You Can't Have it All," Alan Jackson. A little dry musically, but a lyrical master-work from a leavin'-me-lonely country perspective.

10. "He Thinks He'll Keep Her," Mary Chapin Carpenter. Add social relevence and women's lib and you get ... good country music? Darn right you do. And who better to deliver it than the woman who's best at it.

9. "Take These Chains from My Heart," Lee Roy Parnell with Brooks and Dunn. Fun, straight-ahead, honky-honk country from the most unappreciated Texas musician in Nashville since Willie.

8. "This is Me," Randy Travis. The first of two songs by Travis in this list, this one comes from an album that ranks as one of the best of the year.

7. "I Wish I Could've Been There," John Anderson. Anderson may have it all, as his No. 4 song boasted, but he was at his mournful best in this song about missing major events in his kids' Wonder years.

6. "State of Mind," Clint Black. Melodically, as close to perfection as country music gets with an outstanding fiddle solo that closes out four minutes of the best band playing that radio's heard in a long, long time.

5. "I'll Never Forgive My Heart," Brooks and Dunn. Good lyrics, simple melody. The best song this

OSCAR: Could this be Forrest Gump's year?

(From 1B)

The hugely successful "Forrest Gump" leads the small pack at this moment, followed by "Quiz Show," which received some of the best reviews of the year before foundering at the box office. "Pulp Fiction" is a dark horse, along with "Four Weddings and a Funeral."

After that, the list looks uncertain. "The Lion King" is a possibility, although the academy has never given the best-picture Oscar to an animated film. Woody Allen's "Bullets Over Broadway" has been acclaimed as his best movie in years, but not that many people have seen it.

Two coming films may have a shot: Edward Zwick's "Legends of the Fall," an expansive drama set in the West, starring Brad Pitt and Anthony Hopkins, which is to open on Dec. 2, and Barry Levinson's "Disclosure," adapted from Michael Crichton's novel about sexual harassment, which also opens in December.

"It's just very hard to get a solid five," a top studio executive said.

Just as hard are the best actress choices.

There is no shortage of possibilities in the men's categories. Once again this year, men's roles have been more provocative and dramatic than women's.

Almost certain to be nominated is Jodie Foster as a recluse who speaks a language of her own in Michael Apted's "Nell," which opens on Dec. 14. After Ms. Foster, though, there are no obvious contenders.

Those most frequently mentioned are Meg Ryan, for her portrayal of an alcoholic in "When a Man Loves a Woman," Jessica Lange as a bewildered, free-spirited military wife in "Blue Sky," Susan Sarandon as a defense lawyer in "The Client," Meryl Streep as the white-water supermom in "The River Wild," Jennifer Jason Leigh for her portrayal of Dorothy Parker in "Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle" and Linda Fiorentino as the ultimate male nightmare in "The Last Seduction." And possibly Sigourney Weaver as a torture victim who confronts her torturer in Roman Polanski's forthcoming "Death and the Maiden."

The best supporting actress category is even more tenuous. The only possibilities mentioned so far are Dianne Wiest as a Broadway diva in "Bullets Over Broadway"; Sally Field and Robin Wright, as the mother and the wife of Forrest Gump, and Kirsten Dunst, the child-vampire in "Interview With the Vampire."

Of course, there is no shortage of possibilities in the men's categories. Once again this year, men's roles have been more provocative and dramatic than women's.

For best actor, there's Tom Hanks in "Forrest Gump" (a victory would give him back-to-back Oscars), Terrence Stamp as a transsexual in "Priscilla, Queen of the Desert" and Hugh Grant in "Four Weddings and a Funeral."

There are also Tommy Lee Jones, who plays Ty Cobb in "Cobb"; Brad Pitt and Anthony Hopkins as son and father in "Legends of the Fall"; Ralph Fiennes as Charles Van Doren in "Quiz Show"; Paul Newman as a down-at-the-heels construction worker in "Nobody's Fool," and Tom Cruise in "Interview With the Vampire."

The best supporting actor category is even more crowded, with some of the potential nominees giving the performances of their career. Two of those are John Travolta and Samuel Jackson as the hit men who rarely stop talking in "Pulp Fiction" and Martin Landau, who played Bela Lugosi in "Ed Wood." (A question here is whether Travolta and Jackson, who were part of an ensemble cast, might be eligible for best-actor nominations.)

Other possibilities are Paul Scofield and John Turturro for "Quiz Show," Gary Sinise for "Forrest Gump," Kevin Bacon in "The River Wild" and Chazz Palminteri in "Bullets Over Broadway."

The nominations will be announced on Feb. 14. The big show takes place on March 27.

PATTERSON: Ball leads wave of '94 neo-traditionalists duet has ever released.

4. "I've Got it Made," John Anderson. Who says a feel-good, thankful-for-everything type song doesn't make a good country song? Proof that good country music doesn't always have to be about a bad situation.

3. "Spilled Perfume," Pam Tillis. The best song from Tillis' best album, which doesn't necessarily make this one the very best she's ever done (That honor would still have to go to the under-rated "Do You Know Where Your Man Is"). "Spilled Perfume" is probably the second-best ever from a singer whose status continues to rise, and deservedly so.

2. "Thinkin' Problem," David Ball. The South Carolinian made an exceptionally strong debut, resurrecting the image of honky-tonker Gary Stewart. "Thinkin' Problem" and Trevino's previously mentioned "Walk Out Backwards" were the best dance-hall songs of the year.

1. "Whisper My Name," Randy Travis. This effort stands alongside anything Travis has ever recorded. Simple, almost hymn-like, and Travis' voice has seldom been better.

And just for good measure, a half-dozen we wish we'd never heard:

"Watermelon Crawl," Tracy Byrd. Meaningless, weak attempt at capitlizing on line-dance craze.

"Kick a Little," Little Texas. Country music's own Monkees. How long can these guys continue to fool the public?

"Long-Legged Hanna (from Butte, Montana)." It's hot off the presses folks, but it's as ridiculous as country music gets today.

"Indian Outlaw and "Down on the Farm," Tim McGraw. Hey let's get policially incorrect and sing about gettin' loose in the safe-sex decade. With his sneer and his goatee he continues to pass himself off as a genuine talent. Daddy Tug must be awful proud.

"Third Rock From The Sun," Joe Diffie. Quite possibly the silliest country song ever recorded.

COUNTRY MUSIC MEMO

Pam Tillis finds her own voice, new respect

By Paulette Flowers and Otto Kitsinger

Pam Tillis took the long way home. But it's not easy being the child of a country star. Just ask Hank Williams Jr., Lorrie Morgan (George's kid) or Justin Tubb (Ernest's).

In Pam's case, you dressed in gingham at age 8 and sang "Tom Dooley" on the Grand Ole Opry with your younger sisters and brother (Connie, Cindy and Mel Jr.; Carrie was born later). And when you start performing on your own, folks expect you either to be your daddy's clone or at least a polished professional right away. But there's no substitute for experience. Not money, not genes, not connections.

As a teen, Pam had to have her face literally reconstructed after a terrible car accident. Most folks would agree that the finished product is easy on the eyes. She spent years constructing a style out of all her musical experiences. As she sings in her current hit ("Mi Vida Loca"), it was a crazy life. The finished product is exciting to the ears.

At first, though, Pam floundered a bit. She had a country rock band for awhile and put in a stint as a member of Mel's backup singers, "The Stutterettes" (she got fired a few times, by the way). Then she left country music entirely and moved to San Francisco to sing jazz, rock and R&B. She cut a rock album, "Above and Beyond the Doll of Cutie" (say the title out loud, folks). Finally she decided to get back to Nashville and back to basics.

In Nashville, "it all starts with a song," so Pam focused on songwriting. Her songs were cut by everyone from Chaka Khan to Conway Twitty. She also appeared in small clubs, sometimes as part of "Women in the Round," a group of respected singer/songwriters. She even played Mary Magdalene in a local production of "Jesus Christ, Superstar." To pay the bills, she sang demos (sample recordings of songwriters) and commercial jingles for Hardees and Equal.

After cutting some singles for Warner in the mid-'80s, Pam finally found the experience, the talent and the "want-to" coming together with her 1991 Arista album "Put Yourself in My Place." Just as her single, "Don't Tell Me What to Do" hit No. 1, she said "I do" to songwriter Bob DiPiero.

Now Pam's raising her son Ben (from a brief, early marriage — her song publishing company is called "Ben's Future"). She's regularly releasing hit singles and albums. And she's the new CMA Female Vocalist of the Year.

Recently, she gathered the whole Tillis clan in the studio for "'Til All the Lonely's Gone," the rocking conclusion to her current gold album, "Sweetheart's Dance." The little girl who used to sleep in her daddy's guitar case while he was recording demos and who showed off for company by doing Judy Garland imitations has finally found her own voice. Welcome home, Pam.

TREK: Cult classic's popularity may never wane cheaply, small stations jumped at them, and soon fans new and old were watching the show daily.

Seeing Star Trek on a regular basis, viewers started noticing the family feel and consistent characters of the Enterprise crew. Fans became fanatics. They wanted to meet other fans and stars.

The first Star Trek convention was held in New York in February 1972. Hundreds were expected. Thousands turned up. Roddenberry realized that a phenomenon had been born.

Over the next seven years, Roddenberry worked hard to keep the Trek revival going. He worked on a successful animated version of the series, which aired on NBC in 1973 and 1974.

The depth of Star Trek loyalty became evident in 1976, when the first U.S. space shuttle was named Enterprise at the request — no, demand — of thousands of Trek fans.

Star Trek almost returned to TV in 1967. The original crew, sans Nimoy as Spock, was gathered for Star Trek II, due to air on a new Paramount network. The network fell through, but Paramount had noticed the huge success of "Star Wars" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind." If science fiction was just for geeks, there were a lot of them out there, and they had money to spend.

At the 11th hour, the new series became a movie, with a budget that quickly went from tiny to $40 million-plus. Nimoy was lured back at the last moment. After a decade of empty slogans, Star Trek really did live.

"Star Trek: The Motion Picture" opened in December 1979. It was slow, drab and overblown, but it had great special effects and the kernel of a good story, and the crew was back together. Fans saw it again and again.

"Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan" arrived in 1982 and was another hit. Since then, the series has been up and down in quality but has always made money.

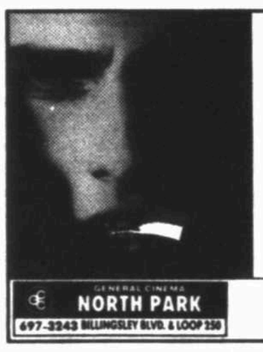

Star Trek finally returned to TV, with a new cast, on Oct. 5, 1987. Unlike original Trek, "The Next Generation" was a critical and ratings success from the first, and it remained that way throughout its seven seasons.

Yet another series, "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine," hit the airwaves in 1992. Though not the immediate hit TNG was, it has continued to grow in popularity and in quality. It's now in its third season.

Which brings us to "Star Trek: Generations," and beyond. In January, Paramount will finally launch that new network. Leading the way will be "Star Trek: Voyager," the fourth and probably not final Trek frontier.

Indeed, in defiance of all the adversity Star Trek has encountered, the adventure continues.

The maturing of Hootie and the Blowfish

By Russ DeVault
N.Y. Times News Service

Ask big-voiced Darius Rucker of Hootie & the Blowfish about all the good things happening to him and his band, and he's not likely to mention the lavish praise they've garned from Rolling Stone, The New Yorker and David Letterman.

Instead, Rucker happily recalls sold-out shows in Atlanta clubs and "having 99X (WNNX-FM) play 'Hold My Hand,' " the band's big single. "We didn't expect them to pick it up, and that was really cool."

Steady play by 99X and other modern-rock stations has catapulted their single to No. 21 on Billboard's album-rock chart. Their debut album, "Cracked Rear View" (Atlantic), climbed to No. 41 on the Top 200 album list before slipping to No. 48 this week.

"It went gold (sales of 500,000) a couple of weeks ago," Rucker said recently during a rare day off at his Columbia, S.C., home. "We were expecting to sell five copies . . . to our parents."

But what's really selling the literate, sometimes jangly guitar music of the Blowfish, formed in the late 1980s while all were students at the University of South Carolina, is constant touring.

Cushy gigs, like opening for Melissa Etheridge this week at Atlanta's Omni, are like a vacation for the Blowfish, who took their names from a couple of friends' nicknames (as in: "Here come Hootie and the Blowfish"). They've been grinding it out in clubs for up to 300 nights a year.

"We've been on the road for five years," Rucker says, matter-of-factly noting that touring is easier now because all four musicians' wedding plans fell apart.

No regrets, however. "We do a lot of golf now, because we don't have time to do anything else," Rucker says.

Rucker, guitarist Mark Bryan, bassist Dean Felber and drummer Jim "Soni" Sonefeld also find time to collaborate on their songs, which feature lyrical messages and pump-you-up music. "Hold My Hand," with back-up vocals by David Crosby, is what the band calls a "save-the-world tune."

"It just says, 'Stop whining about how bad things are and get up and do something,' " Rucker says.

MTV morons now on Sega

Are there more obnoxious characters on television than MTV's IQ-challenged twosome, Beavis and Butt-Head?

Of course. The Mighty Morphin Power Rangers.

But if you can't get enough of either show, you can call them up at any time by snapping up a pair of new games for Sega Genesis.

B&B, those popular dillweeds, are brought to you courtesy of Viacom New Media. In this game they're, like, up to their usual braindead antics. The boys have saved up their money and snagged a pair of ducats to see their favorite head-bangers, GWAR.

Hurricane victims struggle to shed refugee status

By Vernon Silver
N.Y. Times News Service

More than two years after Hurricane Andrew, the slow recovery continues in this area south of Miami. Of the 49,000 homes rendered uninhabitable, a little over 7,000 have still not been rebuilt, according to Dade County figures.

HOMESTEAD, Fla. — Ever since Hurricane Andrew destroyed 4-year-old Samuel Greer's home, he has wanted nothing more than to move out of his federal disaster relief trailer and into a real house — the kind with rigid walls to make him feel safe from the wind outside.

It took two years and three months, but this week Samuel, his mother and brother finally shed their status as hurricane refugees.

They packed their few belongings, walked from the rubble-strewn trailer park to the corner bus stop and rode to a rent-subsidized suburb of Miami, where they planned to spend Thanksgiving in a house they can call home for the first time since Hurricane Andrew wrecked South Florida on Aug. 24, 1992.

"It's a beginning for us, until something better comes along," said Samuel's mother, 38-year-old Ethaine Greer, as they stood on the bus from Coral Roc Trailer Park to South Ridge, her sons grabbing her skirts at each sharp turn.

More than two years after Hurricane Andrew, the slow recovery continues in this area south of Miami. Of the 49,000 homes rendered uninhabitable, a little over 7,000 have still not been rebuilt, according to Dade County figures.

A little more than 250 families remain displaced by the hurricane, living in federal emergency trailers, while a few thousand others simply moved away or are living with friends and relatives.

STILL, COUNTY officials say rebuilding is going faster than they had expected — they had originally estimated three to five years — mostly because so many homes were insured. Roughly 42,000 families have rebuilt their homes. But recovery is still far from complete.

A drive down Florida's Turnpike over Naranja Lakes, a development just north of Homestead, reveals a moonscape of 20-foot-high piles of concrete and wood that stretches nearly to the horizon.

Little evidence remains that 1,350 condominiums once stood there. Hurricane Andrew made them uninhabitable, and this summer a wrecking ball reduced them to rubble.

A walk through the weeds of a trailer park in Florida City, just south of Homestead, reveals a faded piece of graffiti. "P. Bush Send Money" is the message on a strip of asphalt that, in the days after the hurricane, was surrounded by the twisted metal of people's homes.

Now, the metal, the homes, their inhabitants and President George Bush are all long gone, leaving just the concrete slab trailer platforms and the wildflowers that grow around them.

The reminders of Hurricane Andrew are everywhere: the shattered plastic sign of a gas station that never reopened; the ranch house that still has a plea to an insurance company spray-painted on the side; the roof with missing shingles, and the mother and father who, no matter how hard they work, cannot muster the rent to get out of the federal trailer park because their earnings go to feeding their five children.

THERE ARE signs of hope, too, in what has been rebuilt. Homestead Air Force Base, where the winds of the storm scattered fighter jets on the tarmac, has partly reopened as a reserve post.

Homestead also has a new sports complex for motorcycle and car racing, and all over south Dade County, shopping centers and tourist attractions are opening anew.

Still, the effects of the hurricane linger, even for the most fortunate, said Debbie Curtin, the director of Dade County's hurricane relief agency.

"It was just a major trauma, and the recovery on an emotional level will take a lot of time. For many families, now is when that will be felt, because they were busy with rebuilding, and now it sinks in."

By most standards, the Lampert family has improved its lot. Homeowner's insurance paid to make their house in Cutler Ridge, northwest of Homestead, more comfortable than it was before.

New carpeting covers the floor of an enlarged living room, where a blown-down wall made space for a big-screen television and opened the way for attaching a bar to the kitchen.

And 51-year-old Thomas Lampert, a burly father of eight who had been coaching school sports and struggling as a general contractor, found opportunity in the storm, carving out a new career as a building inspector for Homestead. Now he oversees everyone else's hurricane recovery.

BUT EVEN though Lampert's youngest child, 21-year-old Annette, also got a hurricane-related job, as an office manager for an architect, it is not what she expected from life.

Annette Lampert was 19 when a neighbor's shed came flying through her bedroom window, welcoming in the wind that blew off the Lamperts' roof. The Lampert house might have new furniture, but it is now conspicuously free of the sort of clutter that ordinarily decorates a home with eight children.

Shelves are barren of trophies or elementary school art projects, and the few family photographs in the living room are of grown children.

"Not one thing in this house was here before the hurricane," said Ms. Lampert, who had just graduated from high school when the hurricane hit, and had to cancel plans for college after the storm. "It's never been the same for me," she said. "It's not my house, my home, anymore. When you live someplace for 19 years and then, well, it's hard to explain."

Stepping out the back door of the house, Ms. Lampert opened a tool shed in the yard where a few plastic laundry baskets hold pre-hurricane artifacts: a soiled painting; a few dusty dishes; a water-damaged photograph album that belonged to her aunt.

"We haven't gone through it yet," she said of the small piles that resemble a day's purchase at a yard sale. Referring to her family, she said, "They started over."

MS. LAMPERT said she and her peers have also tried to start over in little ways. For the birthday she celebrated after the hurricane, her high school friends compiled a photograph album of the years they had spent together. "I just cried for days looking at that album because I had none of those pictures," she said.

Across town, Samuel Greer and his brother, Randy, 2, stepped through the door of their new home. The night the hurricane hit, Ms. Greer, who was pregnant, went to the hospital; Randy was born a few days later.

When Ms. Greer came home with the new baby, the house was ruined, the toys and baby things lost. Ms. Greer's husband left not long after. "I guess he just couldn't handle it," she said.

She took the boys for a brief stay with her family in St. Croix, V.I., but ended up back in south Dade County with 3,600 other displaced families in the trailer parks, sunbaked messes of concrete and broken glass where she never let Samuel and Randy play outside.

The mobile home's flimsy walls made life doubly hard for Samuel, who still remembers the hurricane's winds. When Tropical Storm Gordon blew through last week, "He was holding on to me and crying, 'I hear something, I hear something,' " Ms. Greer said.

As Ms. Greer surveyed the new concrete-block house, counting the broken windows that she planned to ask the manager to fix, she gave her boys cornbread and let them play on the front lawn. Samuel and Randy made a racket as they spun around the grass.

"SAMUEL JAMES!" Ms. Greer shouted out at her eldest son.

"Yes, ma'am," he said.

"Slow down."

But Samuel didn't slow down. "You see us running around in the yard?" he yelled. "That means this is our house."

■ Teens attend study

More than 200 Permian Basin area teens attend early-morning seminary, a program of religious scripture study provided by church educational system of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The students meet each weekday from 6-7 p.m. in various locations throughout the Permian Basin.

All high school graduates between the ages of 18-30 are encouraged to participate in the Institute of Religion program.

Non-members are always welcome to attend either the seminary or institute classes.

A bi-monthly class designed to help study and search the scriptures titled, "Scripture Study Fundaments" is offered in both Midland and Odessa. Home study courses are also available.

For additional information, contact Brent Jones, 699-0160.

■ Bizarre to be held

Hope Lutheran Church will hold its annual "Hollydaze Bizarre" from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. today at the church, Scharbauer Drive and A Street.

Crafts, other collectibles, baked goods will be sold; lunch is available. There is no admission charge; partial proceeds from the sale will benefit Casa de Amigos.

■ Choir to form

Cuthbert Avenue Baptist Church will be forming a choir to sing at all services and special events.

Donna Roberts is organist, Pat Ham is pianist and Jerry Franks is music director.

The public is invited to attend.

■ Concerts to begin

Lunch Hour Concerts of Advent and Christmas music will begin 12:05 p.m. Wednesday in the sanctuary of First United Methodist Church, Main Street at Ohio Avenue.

These annual 30-minute programs, geared for the business community, are the gift to the city of Midland from the church's ministry of music.

Soprano Jani Owen will peform.

Lunch will be available at a nominal cost in the Fellowship Hall of the Church one-half hour before and one-half hour following each performance.

For more information contact the music office of the church at 682-3701.

■ Free concerts set

The Male four-part ACAPPELLA Christmas Chorus will present two free performances.

The first performance will be 7 p.m. today at Golf Course Road Church of Christ, 3500 W. Golf Course Road. The second performance will be in 4 p.m. Sunday at First Assembly of God Church, 1101 N. Lee St., Odessa.

The group will also sing carols at nursing homes and hospitals.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Out with the old: Jewish customs must modernize, researcher finds

BOSTON (AP) — Jewish community groups, synagogues and schools have failed to adapt enough to changes in American society, says a social researcher who wants to shake up the way Jewish institutions work.

Gary A. Tobin, of Brandeis University, says teen-agers, divorced people, Jews married to gentiles, and the elderly are slipping through gaps in a system that is out of sync with contemporary life and losing touch with its heritage.

Religious and ethnic groups for years have complained that their cultures and traditions are dissolving in the American melting pot. About half of all Jews marry outside their religion. And a study this year showed that only a quarter of Jewish children get enough education to make them practicing Jews as adults.

"Basically, it used to be that people were an ethnic group or a religion first, and then American. Now, it's the reverse," said Tobin, whose recent paper is called "Creating New Jewish Organizations and Institutions."

"So what does it mean to be a contemporary Jew when you are very much like other Americans?" Tobin asks. "How do you reshape that idea?"

Tobin recommends creating new Jewish groups, such as a Jewish Peace Corps, a national network of Jewish learning centers for adults, and institutes for social justice.

And he says old institutions, such as synagogues, must work harder to appeal to their congregations.

On intermarriage, Tobin takes the hard line: Synagogues should aggressively encourage gentile spouses of Jews to convert. Right now, synagogues are too unwelcoming to non-Jews, he said.

For teens, Tobin recommends more outdoor leadership programs, such as nature hikes and retreats.

"Synagogues typically have teens sitting inside on Sunday mornings studying material that's hard to digest. Synagogues, like Protestant churches, are stuck in about the '60s," Tobin said.

And for the elderly, Tobin recommends more outreach by synagogues and more spiritual growth programs at community centers in the South and Southwest.

Tobin called Jewish senior citizens moving to Florida "a bigger exodus than the flight from Egypt" but added that areas with large Jewish populations still need to better emphasize religion.

Daniel Mansoor, executive vice president of the American Friends of Hebrew University, in New York, agreed that Jewish institutions need to change but questioned how drastically.

"The danger is we introduce something so totally new that we start alienating those who can't decide which way to turn. The beauty of the structures that exist today is a sense of organization that comes over time," said Mansoor, whose organization raises money for Israel and Jewish programs in the United States.

Hope remains strong for second coming

By David Briggs
Associated Press

Long before radio broadcaster Harold Camping or David Koresh, or any of hundreds of minor and major American religious figures who thought they could predict the end of the world, there was William Miller.

The farmer-turned-prophet convinced tens of thousands of Baptists, Methodists and other Christians across the nation that the Second Coming would take place Oct. 22, 1844. Scores gathered that day on his farm in upstate New York to await the coming of the Messiah.

The "Great Disappointment" that followed left most of them angry and disappointed. But from the group of original believers arose a small remnant who created one of the truly unique American contributions to world religion: The Seventh-day Adventist Church.

A century-and-a-half later, some 500 Adventists gathered again on "Ascension Rock" at the Miller estate this month to commemorate the event that led to the founding of their faith. The Adventists are not among the date-setters, but they still eagerly await the return of Jesus to reunite them with their loved ones in heaven.

For the church, which has multiplied many times over this century to grow to 8 million worldwide today, the challenge has become how to keep a sense of urgent anticipation of the Second Coming even after the passing of seven or eight generations.

"To keep that hope alive is something, frankly, I think the church is struggling with," says historian James Nix from church headquarters in Silver Spring, Md.

"How do you keep that hope alive? I don't have a good answer for that."

Christianity has anticipated the Second Coming from the faith's earliest days. Up until the present in the United States, there have been a steady stream of prognosticators of the end of the world.

Some movements end in tragedy, such as the fiery deaths in Waco of followers of Koresh, who believed the world was nearing the end times. Other would-be prophets, like Family Radio broadcaster Camping, who predicted the world would end in September, continue to warn of the imminent approach of the end times, even as they are a little more humbled by events.

But perhaps no one in American religious history has built greater expectations of the imminent return of Christ than Miller, who lectured throughout the country at a time when many Americans believed the Kingdom of God was near.

Accessible playgrounds open new world to disabled children

By Leigh Hopper
The Houston Post

HOUSTON — When Karen Ponce was a child, a friend pushing her wheelchair accidentally tipped it over. Ponce spilled onto the ground and skinned both of her knees.

She was so proud of those skinned knees! She'd never had any before.

Ponce, 39, has used a wheelchair all her life. She remembers wanting to be like other kids, bruises and all.

"You want to just be able to do what your friends do ... hear those conversations that go on as they're swinging back and forth," she said.

At T.H. Rogers Center, children in wheelchairs will be able to follow their ambulatory friends up ramps, down slides — and even into the swimming pool.

A $1 million donation is funding construction of a barrier-free playground and pool at the school at San Felipe and Bering, which is the Houston Independent School District's model program for the disabled, profoundly deaf and gifted.

The pool is for students and faculty only, but the playground will be open to the community seven days a week.

The playground is one of a number in Harris County that have equipment designed for disabled children. It features five different types of equipment, including waist-high sand and water tables and a double-wide roll track. The pool has a ramp with a hydraulic lift — special wheelchairs that can get wet will be used here — and spa jets to relax rigid muscles.

The American Disabilities Act requires that new parks be made accessible to people in wheelchairs, but the law does not mandate that all parks have specially designed play equipment. The swimming pools, special swings and toys reflect a thoughtfulness that is often lacking, say people who work in the field.

For example, Ponce said public entertainment places may have a spot for wheelchairs — but not for the wheelchair-user's friends. Or a handicapped parking area may have extra room on the wrong side — the chair lifts are usually on the passenger side.

'You want to just be able to do what your friends do ... hear those conversations that go on as they're swinging back and forth.'

—Karen Ponce

"You can tell they just didn't have a consultant who had lived with (a disability). People just don't think about it," she said. "What you want to see is awareness ... and you can't legislate that."

Joe Bontke of the ADA Technical Assistance Center calls Houston and Harris County a "shining star" in the field of playground accessibility.

Following is a partial list of parks and facilities with equipment to be enjoyed by kids and adults in wheelchairs:

- Tom Bass Regional Park 1, 3452 Fellows Road in south Houston. This park has swings and an elevated boardwalk.
- Hike and bike trail along Bray Bayou in the 2000 block of Braeswood has 12 exercise stations.
- Mary Jo Peckham Park For All Children on Gardenia Street in Katy. It has an indoor swimming pool with a ramp and playground equipment. In the works are a fishing pond, paddle boat and exercise equipment.
- Cullen Barker Park on Westheimer Parkway has a pretend ship and playhouse and picnic pavilions.
- Burroughs Park in Tomball has a wheelchair maze.
- Cypresswood Park on Cypresswood Drive has two swings that attach to the wheelchair itself. Park staff members keep the keys — just ask.
- Meyer Park, just west of Stuebner Airline, is aimed at toddlers and features special slides.
- A public pool with a ramp and water-ready wheelchairs is nearing completion at the Metropolitan Multi-Service Center, 1475 W. Gray. It's scheduled to be finished at the first of the year.
- The new Herman Park Playground, slated for completion in May 1995, will feature slides, activity panels, a water play area with spray elements, a sand table, sand diggers and a beach. There will be one large swing that a wheelchair can roll onto, and other swings with back support for kids "who can leave their chairs. Funding is still needed. To make a donation, contact the Houston Parks Board at 845-1036.

One of the purposes of facilities like these is to integrate disabled children with nondisabled peers and siblings, experts say.

"It's so important that people with disabilities learn how to interact with the world at large," said Ponce, vocational adjustment coordinator for T.H. Rogers. Those who grow up in a sheltered environment, she said, "are in for a rude awakening."

Lee tries for 1 more miracle

■ Midland Lee faces favored Arlington High in the small school quarterfinals today.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Mosey on over to Cuthbert Street's Miracle Showplace (known widely as Memorial Stadium) around 2 p.m. today just to see what kind of death defying acts are playing this week.

Midland Lee's Living Dead (7-3-2) brings its miracle-laced encore act back for a second week in a row by popular demand while Arlington High (11-1-1) will provide the opposition, cast in the role of "Miracle Killers."

This is officially called a Class 5A Small School quarterfinal football playoff game, the first ever in Memorial Stadium, but even that almost sounds too bland for what these two teams have endured the past week.

Both are making this public show by virtue of their skinny-skin-skin.

Lee rose from the dead four times against Arlington Lamar last week to rename old Memorial Stadium as the Miracle Palace in a 29-29 tie where a Clay Boyd 29-yard field goal tied the game and gave Lee a 5-4 edge in penetrations.

The Colts of Arlington, however, played the We-Don't-Allow-Miracles role at Maverick Stadium against Abi-

Joe says it is not so

■ Kansas City quarterback Joe Montana denies retirement reports.

By Craig Horst
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — With four games remaining in the regular season and the Kansas City Chiefs fighting for a playoff spot, Joe Montana said this was not the proper time to raise the issue of his retirement.

Montana

The usually calm Montana became angry Friday after the New York Daily News reported that he had decided to retire.

"We're right in the middle of a race to make the playoffs and get to the Super Bowl," Montana said. "Why would I want to distract from that even if I had decided, and I haven't?"

Montana suffered a sprained foot in Kansas City's 10-9 loss at Seattle Sunday.

Rumors had circulated since Monday that he had played his final game, in part because initial X-rays showed a fracture of the foot. Further tests showed only a sprain, according to Montana and the Chiefs.

Montana probably won't play Sunday when the Chiefs entertain Denver in a game important to both team's playoff hopes.

But the retirement story had Montana attacking the media.

"I think first of all, you guys are going to have to start standing up to what you write," he said. "I think it hurts the credibility of your field. That's the sad part about it.

"Why should I have to answer to this only because somebody feels like I'm going to retire? It's ridiculous."

Montana, appearing at the only weekly session that he is available to the local media, was clearly upset about the report. He had thought about canceling the session because he probably won't play Sunday, but held it anyway because of the retirement question.

Daily News reporter Greg Myers quoted league sources and said he stood by his story.

Hernandez sparks Andress over Lee

■ El Paso Andress guard Gerry Hernandez' all-around game proves more than the Midland Lee boys can handle.

By Mike Butts
Staff Writer

Most of the things the Midland Lee Rebels could not do Gerry Hernandez could. And Hernandez did right by his El Paso Andress teammates Friday night to headline the Eagles' 79-67 win over the Rebels at Chaparral Center.

The Andress senior guard scored 31 points, dished out some highlight film assists, picked Lee guards for several steals and hit on 10-of-10 free throws (8-for-8 in the fourth period).

And while Hernandez made all the right moves, Lee, falling to 2-5 in losing its home opener, had trouble with the Eagle press and missed eight of its 21 free throws. Lee also turned the ball over often in falling behind 8-0 to start the game.

"Most of our errors were correctable errors," Lee coach Jon House said. "We forced some stuff off the dribble that we can take care of. We're inexperienced, so it will take us a while to get there."

The win gave Andress its fifth victory of the year on the court. But the Eagles had to forfeit all their wins because of an ineligible player, so they're officially 1-7.

"We started our season tonight," Andress coach Roshern Amie said. "As far as I'm concerned, we're 1-0 after winning this ball game. We showed character hanging in there, and forfeiting the games didn't affect us."

It certainly didn't affect Hernandez, who finished with three three-pointers.

Accident leaves 1 Seahawk paralyzed

By Jim Cour
AP Sports Writer

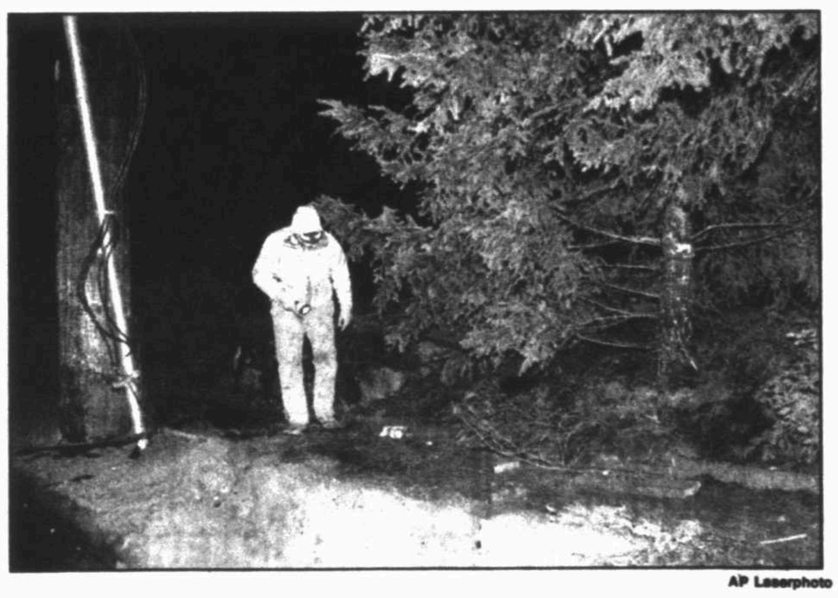

KIRKLAND, Wash. — Seattle Seahawks defensive tackle Mike Frier probably never will walk again because of a broken neck suffered in a car crash that also injured two teammates.

The question of who was driving the car, meanwhile, was undetermined Friday after agents for the two other players — Chris Warren and Lamar Smith — contradicted police reports that Warren was at the wheel.

In a statement issued through the Seahawks Friday, Smith's agent Eugene Parker said Smith was driving. In a separate statement, Rick Schaeffer, Warren's agent and attorney, said Warren was not driving and was not the owner of the car.

Kirkland police did not immediately return a telephone call about the contradiction. They had reported after the Thursday night accident that Warren, a

Lady Chaps put scare into Howard before falling

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff Writer

ODESSA — For once, it wasn't a group of more-experienced players who did in the young Midland College women's basketball team.

Sporting 12 freshmen and only one sophomore, the Midland College Lady Chaps have battled uphill all season against older, more experienced teams for an impressive 11-1 record going into Friday night's game.

But on Friday, against defending conference champion Howard College in the second-round game of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference pre-season women's tournament at the Odessa College Sports Center, it was two freshmen who did in the Lady Chap youngsters.

Lady Hawk freshmen Kyna Cosby and Nakia Black came off the bench to score a combined 23 points and lead a balanced Howard attack back from a first-half deficit to defeat the upstart Lady Chaps 73-70.

Kailahi

It was only the second loss for Midland (11-2), which will play Weatherford today at 6 p.m. for third place in the tournament. The Lady Hawks (12-0) advances to face Odessa College, a 67-63 winner over Weatherford, in the tournament final today at 8 p.m.

After the Lady Chaps jumped out to a 22-10 lead with 11:30 to play in the first half, Black and Cosby went to work, scoring 14 combined points in the first period to rally the Lady Hawks back to a 39-36 halftime lead.

Howard coach Terry Gray said the strong play of Black and Cosby made was the turning point in the contest, in which the Lady Hawks grabbed the lead with one minute to play in the first half and held it until the final margin.

"I think our bench stepped up," Gray said. "Our freshmen came off the bench and played really good defense. We had several stops on the defensive end which allowed us to get some baskets on the other end of the floor and that really made a difference.

"They (freshmen) came in intense and played good defense for four or five minutes at a time," Gray continued. "I was extremely pleased with the bench and the freshmen. I think they played a significant part in the game."

Cosby hit her first five shots before finishing with 5-of-7 shooting for 10 points while Black hit her first four to finish at 6-of-9 for 13. The two freshmen led five Lady Hawks in double-figure scoring. Starting guard Eureka Ray had 10 while starting posts Joy Bass and Amber Lacey threw in 12 and 13 respectively.

MHS girls gain Lewisville finals

LEWISVILLE — For the second consecutive night, Midland High's Amy Alcala pumped in 28 points to lead the Lady Bulldogs into the championship finals of the Lewisville Invitational girls basketball tournament.

The MHS girls, now a perfect 9-0 for the season, defeated host Lewisville, 68-52 to move into today's 3 p.m. championship game against powerful Duncanville, a winner over Keller Friday night.

In addition to Alcala's 28 points, Jamie Rand had 14 points and Veronica Poage had 10 points as MHS coach Jim Raughton played every player on his team.

MHS led 23-11 after the first quarter and coasted to the win despite being outscored in the second half 31-26 by the Lady Farmers.

Bulldogs now 5-2 after El Paso win

EL PASO — Midland High produced a balanced scoring attack with four players in double figures here Friday night to hand Class 4A El Paso Parkland a 63-57 defeat.

This was the first of two games in El Paso this weekend for the Bulldogs, who climbed to 5-2 for the season. MHS will meet El Paso Riverside at noon (CST) today before returning home.

Lavius Taylor led the Bulldog attack with 14 points, but MHS also got 13 points each from Terry Johnson and John Marc Sanon while Jumon Hailey contributed 12. MHS held Parkland to only one player with double figures.

"Parkland won a tournament last weekend here in El Paso and have two really nice players," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson. "One of Parkland's losses this year was to Alamogordo (N.M.), a team that will be in the Midland tournament next weekend."

BROWNFIELD — Midland Lee's Lady Rebels suffered with a seven-for-36 shooting eye in the first half here Friday night and fell to undefeated Class 3A Ozona, 50-44 in the second round of the Brownfield Noon Lion's Girls Basketball Tournament.

Ozona, 6-0, got 17 points from 6-foot freshman Jane Tarr.

"It was probably a poor coaching job on my part," said Lee coach Elise Kail. "We started pressing in the fourth period. We had heard they were fast, but I think we could have pressed them all night."

Lee will face Wichita Falls at 5:30 p.m. today in the third place game. Brownfield will play Ozona in the championship finals at 7 p.m.

Stanton girls, boys make finals

STANTON — Both the Stanton boys and girls teams advanced to the finals of the Hooptown Classic basketball tournament here Friday night.

The Stanton boys defeated Grady in the championship semifinals, 74-57, as Marquez led the way with 14 points for the Buffs.

The Stanton girls won their semifinal game, 70-51, over Garden City as Sande Bundas ripped in a huge 28 points. Maxic had 14 for Garden City.

The Stanton boys will now play Rankin in the finals at 7:30 p.m. today as the Red Devils defeated Sterling City, 76-61 as Tomas Wrotten hit 29 points. Sterling City will meet Grady for third place.

The Stanton girls will meet Forsan at 6 p.m. today in the girls finals. Forsan beat Rankin, 60-57, to keep the tournament from being an all Stanton-Rankin finale. L. Light had 20 points for Forsan while Hord had 19 for Rankin. Rankin and Garden City will play for third place.

In the consolation boys bracket, Sands ripped Forsan, 73-55, with Cantu hitting 28 points. Midland Christian's boys defeated Garden City, 59-38, as John Koss hit 24 points. Kelly Lankford had 32 points for Garden City. Midland Christian will meet Sands at 1:30 p.m. today in the consolation title game.

In the girls consolation bracket, Midland Christian fell to Grady, 37-25. Grady's Holly Madison had 10 points and MC's Holly Hutton had eight. Sterling City defeated the Stanton JV by a 68-29 margin as Polte had 12 points for the winners. Sterling City will meet Grady at noon in the consolation finals while MC will play the Stanton JV at 9 a.m. for seventh place.

MHS JV climbs into title game

CRANE — The Midland High Junior Varsity staged a major upset here Friday night in the West Texas Shootout basketball tournament to gain a berth in today's championship finals.

The MHS JV defeated Lamesa 76-75 when David Leaverton hit two free throws to hand the Bullpups the win with three seconds left. It was the only time in the game MHS led and MHS once trailed by 16 points in the third quarter.

Leaverton led the way with 18 points while James Whitfield had 12 points. Alvin Cantu had 25 points for Lamesa. Cantu had a three-point shot at the buzzer that missed.

MHS, 4-1, will play the winner today of the Abilene Wylie-Alpine game, which was played later Friday night.

In the Big Spring JV tournament, the Midland High sophomores (3-2) defeated the Odessa High sophomores by a 55-46 margin as Torrence Mason hit 15 points and Walker Moody eight. The MHS sophs will play the San Angelo JV at 11:30 a.m. today in the tournament semifinals. If they win that game, they will move into the championship finals tonight.

Gold nips Maroon

Midland Gold (3-0) defeated Lee Maroon (2-1) by a 46-40 margin Friday in ninth grade basketball action.

Kirby Lemons led Midland Gold to the win with 16 points while Cody Bender had 11 points for the Maroon team.

Blast '81 third

SAN ANTONIO — Midland Blast '81 girls recenlty placed third in the Alamo Classic Soccer Tournament.

Bills hope magic wand still works in Miami's Joe Robbie Stadium

Associated Press

The Bills have been hotter than Buffalo wings at Joe Robbie Stadium, and they'll have to stay that way Sunday night if they are to remain in the AFC East title chase with the Miami Dolphins.

A fifth straight victory at Joe Robbie and their 15th win in the last 18 meetings between the teams would move the Bills (6-6) within one game of the first-place Dolphins (8-4). One of the wins at Joe Robbie was 29-10 in the AFC championship game in 1992.

The Bills, seeking a fifth straight Super Bowl appearance and their first victory, are struggling, with two losses in the last three games. They were beaten 35-21 by Detroit Thanksgiving Day.

Miami comes into the game off a comeback 28-24 victory over the New York Jets Sunday when Dan Marino threw four touchdown passes to wide receiver Mark Ingram.

The Bills held Marino in check when they beat the Dolphins 21-11 Oct. 9 at Rich Stadium. Buffalo's Thurman Thomas rushed for 125 yards and two touchdowns in that game.

Thursday night, the Minnesota Vikings beat Chicago 33-27 in overtime to improve to 8-5 and gain a first-place tie with the Bears in the NFC Central.

■ NFL Roundup

Cowboys at Eagles

Rodney Peete is supposed to start for the Cowboys (10-2) in place of Jason Garrett, the NFL Player of the Week last week. Garrett played in place of the injured Troy Aikman and Peete in a 42-31 win over Green Bay Thanksgiving Day. A victory over the Eagles (7-5), losers of three straight, will clinch a third straight NFC East title for the Cowboys.

Cardinals at Oilers

The Cardinals (5-7) have the 27th-ranked overall offense in the NFL, while the Oilers (1-11) are 23rd. Arizona, however, has the league's second-best overall defense.

Falcons at 49ers

The 49ers (10-2), already assured of their 11th NFC West title in the past 14 years, are an NFL-best 33-7 in December in the past 10 seasons. Quarterback Jeff George gives the Falcons (6-6) the NFC's No. 2 pass offense.

REBELS: Colts bring run-and-shoot to town lene Cooper last week, killing a chance of two 4-5A powers meeting for the second time this season.

The Colts led Cooper 35-16 after three quarters of play, but ended up with a 42-39 scare from the Cougars.

"We were leading 42-23 with six minutes left, and being the old match teacher that I am, I thought we had it in the bag because I thought we would have the ball at least three of those minutes. Little did I know it was going to end up like this one," said Arlington coach Bill Keith, who will fly his Colts into town this morning.

And you can't blame Keith if he is a little gun shy when his team starts considering Lee, the next obstacle in the path.

"Lee had that big comeback against Lamar and it seems that we have seen that already from one team in that district," Keith said. "Lee is big and powerful and we will have problems with that because we are a much smaller team. Lee is also playing at home and we've never flown to a game before. There are a lot of problems here."

Lee coach Earl Miller was somewhat disappointed that Cooper didn't win the game against Arlington last week.

"I would have liked to have played Cooper one more time," Miller said. "We didn't do a good job of coaching the first time. We didn't make any plays, but still had close to four penetrations. I'm not saying we would beat Cooper if we could play them a second time, but I think we could do better than 21-0.

"Besides, Arlington will give us all we can handle. They have a sic 'em defense and pass a lot. That wouldn't be so bad, but they also have a great running back in Ricky Brown."

And the Arlington offense appears lethal with quarterback Greg Covington close to the 2,000-yard passing mark and Brown owning almost 1,700 yards rushing and has scored 29 times. Covington has also found 13 different receivers this year from the Run-and-Shoot offense.

"Covington has been a solid quarterback. He's thrown only two interceptions in over 200 attempts and had a quarterback rating of 137, which is really good," Keith said. "We have four average players as receivers, who have done a great job for us, but we very seldom hit the long one although we got two on Cooper. We've been a control type of team even though we pass a lot. Brown is a solid runner, but he is also a power runner and doesn't get a lot of huge gains. He's had three 200-yard games for us."

But Lee has been in this position before, facing more pure talent, but winning (or tying) its way past obstacle after obstacle, earning the nickname of the Living Dead on true merit.

"When you look at all their firepower, all you can say is that you are just glad to be in the situation of being able to play them," Miller said. After all, there are only eight teams left. Maybe something good will happen. The kids are playing the best they can and we'll just go out and see what we can do.

"The one positive factor we have is that Arlington is a one-back team and we've seen four of them this year in Cooper, San Angelo, (El Paso) Irvin and (El Paso) Riverside. At least, we've seen it."

Lee, however, is getting better with each passing week. Quarterback Dedrick Adams seems to be coming into his own and is coming off his best career game. He cracked the 1,000-yard passing mark last week to become only the second Rebel wishbone quarterback to reach that plateau.

Jerry Stanford returned a punt 68 yards for a touchdown against Lamar and now has five games in which he has had more than 100 yards in punt returns. Also, Lee has been on an offensive revival of sorts with the return of running back Melvin Dunson, who missed six games with a broken shoulder blade. Dunson had 120 yards rushing last week in his second game back.

But it will be the Lee defense that will receive the huge test this week, trying to stop the Run-and-Shoot, of which Arlington does both well.

"The key for us will be if we can line up and take away all the sets Arlington throws at you," Miller said. "It's tough to cover all the things they can do."

Keith said of Lee, "We go into games hoping to take what the defense gives you. That could be a problem with Lee. They didn't look like a 7-3-2 team against Lamar. If I'm not mistaken, Lee was 5-0 to start the season and then went into a slump, but they look like they've popped back up again."

Keith says that his Colts have played five of the last six games in the rain and would like the weather to be clear Saturday.

"They say it's supposed to be nice, but I know things can change in a hurry in West Texas," Keith said. "We had nice weather for Cooper and that was better than playing in the rain."

Good weather, or bad, the winner today will earn a semifinal berth against the winner of today's game between Tyler John Tyler and Richardson Lake Highlands, being played at 5 p.m. at Texas Stadium.

How many miracles will take place between now and then?

Astros may lose Caminiti to salary cap

HOUSTON (AP) — All-Star third baseman Ken Caminiti and his $4.35 million contract could be next out of town as the Houston Astros work to reduce their payroll.

Astros general manager Bob Watson says the club is likely to trade Caminiti if he doesn't agree to renegotiate his contract by this weekend.

"The bottom line is this: we're trying to come up with a way to keep Ken Caminiti on this ballclub," Watson told The Houston Post in Friday editions. "If we don't renegotiate, there's an excellent chance — not 100 percent — but an excellent chance he will be playing elsewhere in 1995."

Caminiti is due to make a guaranteed $4.35 million next season. Watson said he had proposed restructuring the deal to Caminiti's agent, Adam Katz, and was waiting for a reply.

Midland Bowling

By Karen Jordan

High man in the city was Steve Witte bowling in the Petroleum American League at Cactus Lanes. Steve blasted a 257-728. High woman came from Midland Park Lanes. Karen Jordan, bowling in the NFL League, rolled games of 233, 257, 267 for a career-high 757 series.

Cactus Lanes: Glenn Hildebrand paced the men at this house in the Men's Civic Commercial League. He fired a 279-725. Patti Hall led the ladies with her 230-626 in the High Sky Ladies League.

Midland Park Lanes: Mike Mowles topped the leaders at this house with his 256-710 series in the NFL league. Kim Tyson proved to be the top dog in the ladies category with games of 278 and 202 for a 676 series.

Two Midland keglers are racing for the record books for the most 300 games and most 800 series shot. Eddie Graham has been bowling for over 20 years and joined the PBA tour this year. He has 15 "300" games to his credit, along with 2 "299's", 9 "800" series and 14 "11-in-a-row" plaques. Scott Pope has also been bowling for over 20 years and has 10 years under his belt on the PBA tour. Scott recently shot his 33rd "300" game and has 2 "299's", 2 "298", 3 "800's" and 4 "11-in-a-row" plaques.

REBELS: Lee has early wake-up call

(From 1C)

"He's been doing that all year for us," Amie said. "Carl (Jones) had a bad night and he stepped up and that's just the type of ball player he is.

"We had so much talent last year that he was more of a playmaker. But this year he's stepped up his offense."

Jones, also a senior, had 17 points for Andress.

Because of top competition, Lee's record isn't entirely indicative of the team's ability.

"I think we'll be all right by the time we get to district," House said. "Everybody we've played is playoff caliber."

The Rebels cut the Eagle lead to 18-17 after one period. But a seven-point run led by Jones opened the third quarter and the Eagles went up 43-30. Their biggest lead of the night was a third-period 51-35 advantage.

"We've been on the road and it was the first home game and I think they were a little antsy about that," House said. "But that's no excuse for the turnovers."

Most of Hernandez' steals came at midcourt and several resulted in easy baskets for the Eagles.

"We live and die by our press," Amie said. "And fortunately, tonight it was working for us. I think that was the best it's worked all year."

Lee made some runs in the second half. The Rebels cut Andress' advantage to seven points when Shane McCulloch hit a three-pointer with 3:57 to go in the game. McCulloch had 15 of his team high 19 points in the second half.

But Hernandez' eight fourth-quarter free throws helped secure the win.

"We let them push it out there the beginning of the third quarter," House said. "I think we had four unforced errors on our first five possessions."

The Rebels' Mark Holly, played for the first time this year on his way back from an ankle injury. He had only six points but seemed to spark the team when in the game. Deshawn Hicks (12 points) was the only other Rebel in double figures besides McCulloch.

Whatever the case, the Rebels won't have time to fret over the loss. They take on El Paso Austin today at 11 a.m. at the Chap.

1980's greats make baseball hall ballot

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Schmidt, Jim Rice and Tommy John head the list of first-year eligibles on the 1995 baseball Hall of Fame ballot mailed Friday to more than 400 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The ballot carries 39 names, 15 of them appearing for the first time. The other first-year candidates are Doyle Alexander, Buddy Bell, Darrell Evans, Bob Forsch, Greg Gross, Willie Hernandez, Mike Krukow, Rick Rhoden, Chris Speier, Jim Sundberg, Kent Tekulve and Manny Trillo.

Garrett leads bareback event at rodeo

■ National Finals Rodeo

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Marvin Garrett, of Belle Fourche, S.D., came into the National Finals Rodeo as the bareback leader. He padded his lead in the first round Friday night with a winning 79 on Copenhagen Pit Stop.

Garrett, who has made $87,732, leads former world champion Clint Corey, of Kennewick, Wash., by $22,828. Garrett's brother, Mark, is in fourth place with $62,397 in earnings on the year.

"You never know what it's going to feel like until you get on that first horse," Garrett said. "It felt good tonight. I'd never seen the horse I was on before, but I've heard the guys talk about it.

"I haven't been on a horse for 2½ weeks, so you just hope you're mentally prepared to go. After you get off your first one and it feels like it's a relief and you did prepare right."

Two-time defending calf roping champion Joe Beaver, of Huntsville, Texas, came into the NFR in third place. He moved within $11,764 of Herbert Theriot, of Winnins, Miss., the leader.

Beaver turned in a winning 8.1-second time while Theriot failed to score.

Sherry Potter, of Marana, Ariz., won her first-ever NFR go-round with a 14.28-second barrel race. She's the daughter of former NFR qualifiers Wendy Potter (barrel race) and Mel Potter (calf roping).

After a five-year absence from the NFR, Brad Gjermundson won the first saddle bronc go-round with an 80 on Skoal Warfare Rocket.

Darryl Mills, who finished $95 shy of Ty Murray's bull riding championship last year, won Friday night with an 85 on T.Q. Hot Wolfman. Mills' score topped an 83 by former world champion Ted Nuce of Escalon, Calif., and an 81 by Brian Herman of Victoria, Texas.

Todd Boggust, of Paynton, Saskatchewan, and Ivan Tiegen, of Camp Crook, S.D., split the winning go-round money with a 4.4-second time. Todd Fox, of Marble Falls, Texas, who leads the steer wrestling by $612, finished out of the money despite a time of 4.6.

Illustrating how fast one can move up in the standings at the NFR, team ropers Steve Purcella, of Hereford, Texas, and Kory Koontz, of Canyon, Texas, jumped from eleventh place to seventh place with a winning time of 5.6.

Martin Lucero, of Villanueva, N.M., maintained his lead with a share of second place, with partner Tee Woolman, of Llano, Texas, with a 6.2.

SEAHAWKS: Warren turns self into police

(From 1C)

Pro Bowl running back, was driving, had been arrested for investigation of vehicular assault and was released on his own recognizance.

The police investigation was ongoing, but Detective Jim O'Toole said Friday that "there is reason to believe alcohol was involved."

Frier, a 6-foot-5, 299-pounder, "almost certainly will be wheelchair dependent," Dr. Michael Schlitt told a news conference at Overlake Hospital Medical Center in Bellevue, where all three players were taken after the wreck.

Frier, 25, was a passenger in a 1992 Oldsmobile Bravada that ran into a utility pole near the Seahawks' headquarters about 8:40 p.m. Thursday. Police initially had described the car as a Chevy Blazer.

Warren, 27, suffered two fractured ribs, was treated at the hospital and released early Friday.

Smith, 24, a rookie running back, was hospitalized with a chip fracture in his spine and an ankle sprain.

"There is a tremendous shock in the locker room right now," Seahawks coach Tom Flores said.

Frier had no use of his legs or hands and only minimal muscle function in his upper arms, Schlitt said.

The third-year pro from Appalachian State suffered a broken and dislocated neck between the fifth and sixth vertebrae and his spinal cord was "severely injured," Schlitt said.

"The likelihood that he will play football again is zero," Schlitt said. "The likelihood of walking is very poor.

"He'll regain a little more use in the arms. That's almost guaranteeable. But it's doubtful that he'll have completely normal function of the hands."

Frier was Seattle's seventh-round draft choice in 1992 and was picked up on waivers by Cincinnati that year. He played in 31 games with the Bengals, before being released Oct. 13.

He played in three games as a reserve with the Seahawks this season.

"He knows about his diagnosis,' Schlitt said. "I've discussed it with him. He's depressed as most people will be after such an injury."

Police Sgt. Mark Smith said it appeared the car was going too fast for the rain-slicked road. The crash set the utility pole on fire and the players had to be pulled from the vehicle by passersby and firefighters, he said.

Vehicular assault is a Class C felony punishable by up to five years in prison, although the standard sentencing range under state guidelines is three to nine months in jail, said Dan Donohoe, spokesman for the King County prosecutor's office.

The charge alleges a defendant caused serious harm to another person as a result of driving a vehicle in a reckless manner or while under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

WOMEN: Howard comes from behind

(From 1C)

Howard erased a 12-point MC first-half lead and then used a stingy defense led by Cosby and Black to extend their lead to 55-45 with 11 minutes to play in the game. The Howard defense kept MC from scoring for a period of five minutes — from 16:05 to 11:12 — while shooting 53 percent from the field in the second half to take the big lead.

The Lady Chaps battled back, however, and had two shots at tying up the game with less than a minute to go. MC held Howard scoreless in the final three minutes while narrowing the gap. Both Amber Follis and Stacie Johnson missed three-point tries in the final minutes and Johnson's miss was her first all night.

MC coach Ron Jones said, "I just think they're a good team. They're not going to give you much of an opportunity to beat them. We had some breakdowns defensively and gave them some easy baskets. When you do that against a good team, it's tough to beat them."

Before Cosboy and Black came into the game, the Lady Chaps had essentially shut down Howard's starters — made up of four sophomores — and held them to 10 points in the first nine minutes of the game when Midland took its biggest lead of the game at 22-10.

6-foot-3 post JoAnna Kaihali took over inside for the Lady Chaps, scoring 8 of her game-high 19 points in the first three minutes. MC pushed its lead to 14-8 with two straight three-point goals from point guard Follis with 14:50 to play in the half. Johnson and Shannon Jordan hit a trey each to give MC leads of 19-8 and 25-14.

But with the help of Cosby and Black, Howard went on a 23-12 run to take a 38-36 lead — the Lady Hawks' first of the night — with 10 seconds to play in the first half. Then Bass added a technical foul shot for the final first-half tally.

Jones said the interrupted pace of the game hampered his team's play during the final minutes of the first half.

"If we did (have a let down) I think it was unintentional," Jones said. "It's hard to say what happenened, sometimes turnovers, fouls — anything that stops the game — will stop the flow. That started happening a little bit. We got some fouls and the game, instead of going up and down, it was stop and start, stop and start, and that's to the advantage of Howard."

Howard's more physical team, especially when Kailahi was out of the game, totaled a whopping 48 rebounds to just 25 for the Lady Chaps. At one point in the second half, Howard had outrebounded MC 18-6 and finished with a 24 to 11 margin in that stanza.

Jones said that Howard's offensive set had as much to do with its rebounding advantage as any physical characeteristic.

"Their halfcourt set, they get you closed in and get you almost walking with them and then they get you pushed underneath and you're out of position," Jones said.

"That happens quite a bit against Howard."

Despite dropping their second game of the season, the Lady Chaps were not thrown out of the gym by the traditionally-strong Lady Hawks. And that gave Jones a look at the near future of the conference.

"I've watched the games here for two days and I think the conference is going to be as balanced as it has been since I've been coaching in it," said Jones, who coached two seasons at Western Texas. "Howard's still the team to beat until somebody beats them. We're just working to get better and learn how to handle tight situations, learn how to handle different styles of play. We're concerned about trying to get better and better before conference gets here."

Sweden builds big lead in Davis Cup final

■ Stefan Edberg halts Alexander Vulkov's rally to give Sweden a 2-0 lead after the first day of the Davis Cup final in Moscow.

■ Davis Cup

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris Yeltsin was bad luck for Russian tennis Friday, and Sweden's Davis Cup team hopes to see him again soon.

The Russian president and his entourage interrupted play at a critical moment in the tense fifth set of Stefan Edberg's match against Alexander Volkov. Edberg, energized by the pause, ended Volkov's come-from-behind drive and led Sweden to a 2-0 series lead, winning 6-4, 6-2, 6-7 (2-7), 0-6, 8-6.

Magnus Larsson, ranked 19th in the world, defeated No. 11 Yevgeny Kafelnikov 6-0, 6-2, 3-6, 2-6, 6-3 in the second singles match.

The losses disappointed the whistling, foot-stomping crowd of 12,000 at Olympic Stadium, and likely doomed Russia's chance of becoming the first unseeded team to win the Davis Cup.

Today, Kafelnikov and Andrei Olhovskiy must upset the top-ranked doubles team and ATP Tour doubles champions Jonas Bjorkman and Jan Apell to keep Russia's hopes alive. The final two singles in the best-of-5 series will be played Sunday.

Kafelnikov accused Yeltsin of ruining Volkov's concentration. Unlike other fans, a smiling and waving Yeltsin took his seat without waiting for the brief break when the players changed sides.

"Do you remember what the score was when the president arrived?" Kafelnikov said. "It was 5-5. Is there a switch then? What sensible person in a decisive game like this, with the score 5-5, would do something like that in such a tense situation?"

Volkov, however, did not blame Yeltsin.

"I couldn't have failed to notice when the president arrived," he said. "(But) I can say it interfered with my game as much as rain outside would have, because I had lost my serve by then."

Edberg said he didn't realize until later that it was Yeltsin who had caused the delay. But considering the outcome, "maybe I should thank Boris for coming in," he said.

Larsson said he hopes to see more of Yeltsin.

"I wish him welcome tomorrow for doubles," he said. "But maybe he can come in during the changeover next time."

Volkov held match point on his serve leading 5-4 when Edberg sent a backhand down the line, sending it to deuce. He went on to break Volkov, then earned the critical break in the final game.

"Maybe he played it a little safe," Edberg said about facing match point. "I took charge of the match in that game. I took a few chances and it paid off."

After winning the first two sets, the seventh-ranked Edberg appeared en route to an easy victory. But buoyed by the flag-waving, cheering fans, Volkov battled back in the third set, punctuated with a crowd-pleasing ace to win the tiebreaker.

Volkov then dominated Edberg in the fourth set with devastating passing shots and appeared set to take the match, serving for the victory in the final set.

"I needed to kick myself, especially in the fifth set," Edberg said. "I was a little depressed. I had the match in my hand and became defensive. ... I felt I was getting closer and closer in every game in the fifth set."

Friday's loss was Kafelnikov's second in eight Davis Cup matches. His only other loss was in his debut to Germany's Michael Stich in March 1993.

Kafelnikov said he felt "mental and psychological pressure" after Volkov's dramatic defeat. He injured his left wrist in the second game of the last set — the same wrist he strained last week.

"It didn't hurt but I felt very insecure," he said. "I couldn't hit slices."

NASCAR breaks out black tie for awards

■ Dale Earnhardt takes home rewards for being the 1994 Driver of the Year on Friday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Dale Earnhardt had a big day Friday, filling his pockets with checks as his reward for a record-tying Winston Cup championship and accepting the 1994 Driver of the Year Award.

The 43-year-old Earnhardt, whose seventh series championship matched a record set by Richard Petty in 1979, the year that Earnhardt was voted NASCAR Rookie of the Year, still is awed that he finds himself in this position.

"That (seven titles) was a feat I thought would never be tied," Earnhardt said Friday, before all the hoopla of the Driver of the Year luncheon at the famed 21 Club and the NASCAR Awards Banquet at the equally well known Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

"People set records and goals and whatever. I never realistically thought anybody would tie it. I figured something would happen and six would be all we could win.

"This year wasn't easy, but it seems like the championship went by so fast. It's amazing; something I never thought would happen. ... I'm just a fortunate young man from Kannapolis (N.C.)."

Among those on hand to see Earnhardt receive his second Driver of the Year trophy — the first was in 1987 — was one of his early heroes, Bobby Allison.

Allison, now a team owner, said, "Dale deserves every honor he gets. He's a throwback, a real old time racer. He would have fit in any time. Nobody thought Richard's seven championships would ever be touched, but Dale might just win two or three more."

Earnhardt's accomplishment did not go unrewarded. Already the all-time leading money winner in auto racing with more than $22 million, he added a record $3,400,733 in 1994.

That broke his single season record of $3,353,789, set last season. He is the only Winston Cup driver to have surpassed $3 million in a season and has done it three times.

Overall, the stock car folks distributed a record $30 million for the season.

A record 11 drivers each won more than $1 million, breaking the mark of six set in 1991 and matched in 1992. Most of that money was handed out Friday night.

Other business Friday night included $50,000 to Ken Schrader for the DuPont Automotive Finishes Award, the $50,000 Sears Diehard Racer Award to Ricky Rudd, the $30,000 True Value Hard Charger Award to Ernie Irvan, the $30,000 Busch Pole Award to Geoff Bodine, along with $10,000 to his crew chief, Paul Andrews, the NASCAR Manufacturers' Trophy to Ford, a $25,000 check to top rookie Jeff Burton and the STP Award of $20,000 to Rudd.

Bill France Jr., president of NASCAR, congratulated Earnhardt and the rest of the award winners Friday, saying, "It started out as a tragic year with the loss of Neil Bonnett and Rodney Orr (in crashes at Daytona in February)."

"Then we had Ernie Irvan's crash (at Michigan in August), and thank God he is here and recovering," added France, whose father founded the series in 1949. "Now, as we look at our series and look ahead, I can't help but think that NASCAR as a sport still has an unlimited future, and we look forward to that."

Hockey season slips away as sides hit stalemate

CHICAGO (AP) — The NHL season is perched precariously in the back seat, the gas pedal is down to the floor and danger lurks on the road ahead.

Labor talks ended abruptly Friday, even though a collective bargaining agreement probably needs to be in place by mid-December to save the season.

Bettman

"You're saying we have two more weeks, but I'm not quite sure. And even if we did, it goes by awfully quickly," said Cliff Fletcher, the Toronto Maple Leafs' general manager. "It's like driving a car 100 miles an hour, racing toward a cliff. You'd better make sure you know how to put the brakes on in time."

So far, the sides only know how to put the brakes on negotiations. The latest delay guarantees that the owners' lockout will carry into a 10th week.

An eight-hour meeting Thursday had produced hope that an accord could be reached in time to salvage a 50-game season. But the sides met for only an hour Friday before agreeing to table talks until Monday in Chicago.

"What you hope will happen after a break like this is that people come back to the table with new ideas or new concepts or new proposals and the thing moves forward quickly," NHL senior vice president Brian Burke said.

"But the calendar is coming toward us like a freight train. At some point, it's not going to be possible to have a season. Hopefully, that's going to add some pressure to the talks from both sides."

The players, however, insist they've been operating with a sense of urgency and say they've been making all the concessions.

"It is getting a little tiresome in the sense that this has been characterized so far as a negotiation of concession," NHL Players Association president Mike Gartner said. "That's what happens, I guess, in a lockout. I guess if we would have given enough, there would be hockey right now."

The latest union concessions came Thursday, when the NHLPA agreed to allow each team to designate a "franchise player" who could be kept from becoming a free agent if he is paid a certain salary.

Gartner and union head Bob Goodenow contacted several potential franchise players, including some who are skating for the all-star team Wayne Gretzky has assembled to play in Europe during the lockout.

"Their reaction was that they weren't too happy about it," Gartner said. "But they did say, 'If this is going to get a deal, we understand.' "

The union on Thursday also agreed to drop its desired salary ceiling for first-round draft picks from $1.5 million to $1.25 million, but the owners refused to budge from their $700,000 figure.

The main sticking points in negotiations continued to be salary arbitration, free agency and other ways the owners can fix costs.

"We have a situation where revenues have been greatly outstripped by the increase in salaries," said NHL commissioner Gary Bettman, the front man in negotiations for the owners.

For now, the sides aren't discussing the owners' contentious salary tax proposal. Players consider it a form of salary cap and say they won't agree to it.

Each team already has had 24 games canceled from its 84-game schedule because of the lockout. More cuts are likely.

Despite the ticking clock, talks were tabled until Monday.

"We didn't have anything more to provide to each other," Goodenow said. "They presented their positions and stated them to us and, likewise, we stated our positions on various issues. One could say we agreed to disagree on the issues as they were, give it more thought and more work, and see if some ideas could develop before we met again."

Said Bettman: "There just wasn't anything further that we could productively discuss."

Bettman, who said he was "getting a little frustrated," agreed that time has become a major factor.

"And the longer this goes on, the more of a factor time becomes," he said. "I hope both sides are cognizant of what the downside of this is. I told the owners early on when they decided to go down this road that one of the possibilities they had to prepare for was the possibility of no season."

SMU returns to Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist trustees decided Friday to return the Mustangs' home football games to the Cotton Bowl beginning next season.

University officials hailed the choice of the Fair Park site over Texas Stadium in Irving as a reaffirmation of its partnership with the city of Dallas and a renewal of tradition.

The Mustangs played most of their home games at the Cotton Bowl from 1948 to 1978. In 1979 the team moved to Texas Stadium for eight years before being slapped with the "death penalty" for repeated NCAA rules violations.

Since the football program was revived in 1989, the Mustangs have played home games at Ownby Stadium on campus.

The trustees, acting on a recommendation from an athletics subcommittee, chose the Cotton Bowl during their quarterly meeting.

Faldo builds huge lead at Million Dollar

Associated Press

SUN CITY, South Africa — Nick Faldo of England had eight birdies in a record-tying round of 64 and took a seven-stroke lead Friday in the Million Dollar Challenge golf tournament.

■ Golf Roundup

Faldo's 36-hole total of 14-under-par 130 at the halfway point set a tournament record, and the round of 64 tied Lee Trevino for the lowest round over the par-72 Gary Player Country Club course.

A second-place finisher three times in the tournament with golf's richest first prize — $1 million — Faldo was seven shots ahead of British Open champion Nick Price of Zimbabwe and Bernhard Langer of Germany, with U.S. Open champion Ernie Els of South Africa another shot back.

Like in the first round, Faldo's precision shot-making kept him out of trouble and set up repeated birdie putts with the cross-hand grip he adopted in September. He made eight birdies for the second straight day, and shot par the rest of the way to improve over the first-day 66 that included two bogeys.

"That was the best nine holes I have ever played," Faldo said of the back nine, where he birdied five straight holes and two others for a 29.

"I'm going off now to find some starch and spray myself to see if I can stay in this mode," he joked, adding: "This is as good as I have ever played. Perhaps my swing had a little more zip in 1989, but technically I am a better player now."

Price, the world's top-ranked player this year and the defending champion, came back from a poor-putting first round 71 to fire a 6-under 66, while Langer followed his first day 68 with a 69. Both were at 137, one shot ahead of Els, who shot a 70 Friday.

David Frost of South Africa and Tom Lehman of the United States were tied at 140, 10 strokes off the pace, followed by Mark McNulty of Zimbabwe and Corey Pavin at 141, Hale Irwin at 142 and Colin Montgomerie of Scotland at 143.

Seve Ballesteros of Spain at 147 and Vijay Singh of Fiji at 153 were at the back of the field.

Nippon Series

NISHINOMIYA, Japan — Naomichi "Joe" Ozaki opened a 5-stroke lead in Golf Nippon Series, an event for the Japanese tour's leading players, by firing a 66 in the second round on Friday.

Ozaki, the youngest brother of Japan's best known golfer, Masashi "Jumbo" Ozaki, had a 14-under-par 128 for 36 holes.

American David Ishii led the foreign players, shooting a 71 for a 139 total.

Brian Watts, winner of five Japan PGA tournaments this season, was alone at 140 after firing a 69, and Todd Hamilton was at 144 after a 71.

Mizuno Ladies

KYOKUSHIMURA, Japan — Australian Nicole Lowien shot a 6-under-par 66 Friday and took a one-shot lead after the first round of the Mizuno Ladies Tournament, the season's final event on the Japan LPGA tour.

Nayoko Yoshikawa and Taiwan's Huang Bie-shyun were one shot off the pace.

Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO — The Texas Open will remain at Oak Hills Country Club at least for one more year.

The San Antonio Golf Association had voted to move the PGA Tour event to La Cantera starting next year, but the PGA Sponsor's Advisory Board did not approve the move for 1995.

Instead, the board told the San Antonio group to delay the move until 1996 to allow La Cantera's course to mature, said SAGA president Julius Germano.

World Tour Update

NEW YORK — The standoff between the PGA Tour and the new World Golf Tour has turned into a "he said, she said" story in which the truth will only be known when it comes time to put up the money and stop the talk.

The World Golf Tour on Friday issued a statement saying it was "continuing to move ahead as planned" with its venture to stage six to eight tournaments in 1995, some of which would conflict with PGA Tour events

The statement also said that Greg Norman's commitment to the World Golf Tour "is as firm as ever."

This all came one day after PGA Tour commissioner Tim Finchem released a statement in which he said Norman told him he had had a "re-evaluation of this situation" and had told Finchem "he would not support any venture that would damage the PGA Tour."

JC Penney Classic

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla. — Beth Daniel and Davis Love III, a consistently strong team in this tournament, shared the second-round lead Friday with Helen Alfredsson and Robert Gamez in the J.C. Penney Golf Classic.

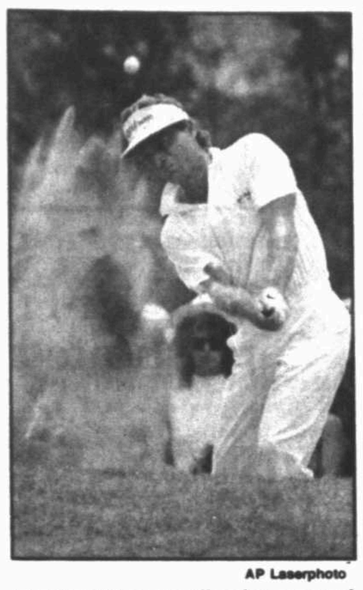

The two teams are at 12-under-par and hold a two-stroke lead in this event pairing LPGA players with PGA Tour or Senior PGA Tour pros.

Daniel and Love teamed for the first time in this event in 1990 and won. The next year they finished third and in 1992 they were runners-up. They did not play together last year when Love missed the tournament for the birth of his son.

They shot a first-day 65 in best-ball play at Innisbrook Resort Copperhead Course and another 65 Friday in alternate-stroke competition.

That puts them even with the 66-64 produced by Alfredsson and Gamez. One stroke back of the co-leaders are Amy Alcott-Robin Freeman and Laura Davies-David Feherty.

Two behind are Liselotte Neumann-Tony Jacklin, Jane Geddes-Brian Claar and JoAnne Carner-Jim Albus.

Berhard Langer fired a second day 68 to go to a 69 from Thursday.

Bowe tries to fight way back into heavyweight title picture

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Riddick Bowe, the odd man out in the heavyweight title picture, tries to fight his way back in tonight in a risky bout against undefeated Larry Donald.

Thirteen months after losing his heavyweight titles to Evander Holyfield, there are more questions than answers about a fighter many predicted would dominate the heavyweight ranks for a long time.

Injury and weight problems have dogged Bowe, who has been mostly inactive since losing a close decision to Holyfield.

Take away an aborted no contest fight against Buster Mathis Jr. and the best shots Bowe has thrown since his loss were a left-right combination to Donald's head at a Los Angeles news conference this week.

"I'm still the best heavyweight in the world," Bowe said. "As long as I'm in shape I beat all of them. They can only hope I'm fat and come in out of condition."

That hope may have been put to rest Thursday when Bowe weighed in at 241 pounds for the scheduled 12-round fight at Caesars Palace. It was the lightest Bowe has weighed since winning the titles from Holyfield in November 1992.

"This is the best I've felt since the first Holyfield fight," Bowe said.

Bowe, who has seen the WBA and IBF titles he once held change hands twice more since his loss, is taking a chance fighting Donald, an up-and-coming 1992 Olympian who is undefeated in 16 professional fights.

Tar Heels blast Gamecocks

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Second-ranked North Carolina made 15 of its first 17 shots and built a 40-point lead in the first half of a 95-58 victory over South Carolina on Friday night.

The game, the opener of the Tournament of Champions, was the first head-to-head meeting between Tar Heels coach Dean Smith and his former assistant, Eddie Fogler.

Temple and No. 10 Cincinnati played the tournament nightcap later Friday.

North Carolina (3-0) played a nearly flawless opening 20 minutes, shooting 67 percent and committing only three turnovers. Nine players scored for the Tar Heels in building a 64-27 halftime lead, and North Carolina won for the 117th time in 131 games at Charlotte, about 2½ hours from campus.

Rasheed Wallace and Jerry Stackhouse scored 17 points each in the first half against South Carolina, which was playing with only eight scholarship players because of injuries and defections.

Stackhouse scored eight of his points in the first 2:50 and Wallace, who entered the game 22-of-31 from the field for the season, was 8-for-10 in the first half with seven rebounds and three blocks.

Stackhouse finished with 22 points, while Wallace had 17. Carey Rich led South Carolina with 14.

Fogler's first mistake against his former boss was having the Gamecocks (1-2) open in a zone. The Tar Heels promptly sank five 3-pointers in the first five minutes and grabbed a 23-5 lead.

No. 10 Cincinnati 60, Temple 41

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — LaZelle Durden scored 17 points and No. 10 Cincinnati held Temple to 22 percent shooting in a 60-41 victory in the Tournament of Champions.

The Bearcats (3-0) will play No. 2 North Carolina (3-0), a 95-58 winner over South Carolina earlier in the night, for the tourney title today.

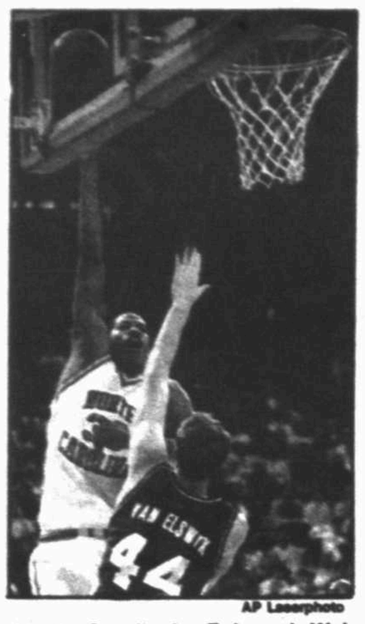

The point total by the Owls (1-1) matched their lowest in coach John Chaney's 13 seasons.

Neither team could muster much offense in the physical, defensive struggle. A 21-5 run over a 10-minute span in the opening half gave Cincinnati a 28-10 lead 2:35 before intermission.

After trailing 31-16 at halftime, Temple twice cut the deficit to seven points early in the second half, but the Owls went 12 minutes without a field goal as the Bearcats slowly pulled away down the stretch.

During that span, Temple missed 16 straight shots, many not even drawing iron. A steal and layup by Johnny Miller with 12.7 seconds left helped Temple avoid its lowest point total in 20 seasons.

The Bearcats didn't fare much better, shooting 40 percent with 16 turnovers. Arthur Long added 10 points and 11 rebounds for Cincinnati.

No. 14 Ohio 81, Cal-Irvine 72 OT

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Gary Trent overcame a sluggish start Friday to score 25 points, including two that tied it at the buzzer and six in overtime, to lead No. 14 Ohio to an 81-72 first-round win over Cal-Irvine in the Hawkeye Invitational.

Ohio (5-1) will play Pepperdine or host Iowa in Saturday's championship. The Waves and Hawkeyes met later Friday night in the other first-round contest.

Trent, held to four first-half points, took a pass from Geno Ford and scored a layup to knot the game at 66-66 as the final horn sounded to force overtime.

Ford scored 15, Gus Johnson 12 and Jason Terry 11 for the Bobcats, who made nine of 10 free throws in the overtime to secure the win.

Raimonds Miglinieks scored 17, Chris Brown 13 and Khalid Channell 10 for Cal-Irvine (0-2), which squandered a 39-30 halftime edge but still led 66-62 on Brown's two free throws with 1:05 remaining in regulation.

A bucket by Trent made it 66-64 with 55 seconds left, and the Anteaters failed to ice the game when Miglinieks and Kevin Simmons each missed the front ends of one-and-one opportunities in the final 28 seconds.

No. 16 Connecticut 105, Yale 53

HARTFORD, Conn. — Donny Marshall scored 25 points and Brian Fair added 20 to lead No. 16 Connecticut to a 105-53 victory over Yale, nearly matching the Ivy League school's most lopsided loss ever.

Connecticut (3-0) took a 44-21 lead by halftime as Marshall scored 14, Ray Allen 12 and Fair 10. Marshall and Kevin Ollie each scored seven points in the opening 10 minutes of the second half as UConn opened a 75-38 lead.

Bernie Colson led the Bulldogs (0-3) with 15 points.

UConn, sparked by Fair, Ray Allen and Doron Sheffer, opened a 24-10 lead in the first 10 minutes. Defensively, the Huskies forced the Elis to commit 15 turnovers and 8-of-26 shooting in the opening half.

Yale's worst loss ever was a 104-50 setback at Clemson on Nov. 26, 1976.

No. 22 Syracuse 83, Kent St. 50

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — John Wallace had 21 points, 10 rebounds and six blocked shots and No. 22 Syracuse held Kent State to 13 points in the opening half of a win in the first round of the Carrier Classic.

The Orangemen (2-1) advanced to the championship game Saturday against Davidson (2-1), an 88-77 winner over Iona in the early game. Syracuse has won the Carrier Classic 15 times in 17 years.

Syracuse hounded Kent State (0-1) from the opening tip-off, forcing the Golden Flash into 19 turnovers and 6-of-30 shooting. The 13 points were the fewest in a half against the Orangemen in coach Jim Boeheim's 19-year tenure, eclipsing the old mark of 15 held by Harvard (1976) and Cornell (1990).

Kent State closed to 10-7 on Brook Bright's dunk with 15:08 to go before Michael Lloyd hit a driving shot and Lawrence Moten made a steal and breakaway layup to start a 15-2 spurt that gave Syracuse a 25-11 lead with 7:09 to play.

After a 15-footer by JShawn McKenzie, Syracuse closed the half with an 18-2 run to take a 43-13 lead at intermission. Syracuse took its biggest lead, 56-22, with 15:21 to play before Boeheim began playing his bench.

Wallace, who shot 8-for-9, matched his career high in blocked shots set last year against Connecticut. Lloyd added 15 points and Moten and J.B. Reafsnyder had 10 each.

Whitfield had 13 points to lead Kent State.

Aggies overcome drought to nip ORU

Associated Press

TULSA, Okla. — Tony McGinnis scored on a tip-in with 25 seconds left as Texas A&M overcame an eight-minute spell without a field goal in beating Oral Roberts 60-58 Friday night in the Bank IV Classic.

Joe Wilbert scored 22 points for the Aggies (2-3), who blew a 13-point lead in the second half and committed 23 turnovers.

In losing their 18th straight game, the Golden Eagles (0-3) overcame their own sloppy play to rally behind Tim Gill and Tye Fields, who scored 13 and 12 points respectively, all in the second half.

■ SWC Basketball

Texas A&M led 43-30 with 13:39 left, but didn't score from the field for seven minutes, 44 seconds. Fields scored eight points during a 13-2 run, and Gill and Jerome Abbage hit 3-pointers for ORU's first lead of the night at 51-49 with 5:05 to play.

Wilbert and McGinnis, who finished with 18 points, answered every ORU score the rest of the way. When Gill missed an open 3-pointer, Wilbert scored on a follow shot and the Aggies regained the lead at 58-56 with 1:27 left.

(Women) No. 20 Misssissippi 95, Texas Christian 56

OXFORD, Miss. — Mississippi jumped out to an early 31-7 lead and cruised to a victory over Texas Christian in first-round action at the Domino's Lady Rebel Classic.

The Lady Rebels (3-0) were impressive on offense with five players scoring in double digits. They shot 53 percent from the field.

Ole Miss was led by junior Katricia Craig with 16 points, and senior Sabrina McNair with 15 points. Yolanda Moore added 14 points and 10 rebounds in the winning effort.

Mavs transform from ugly duck to contender

By Bill Sullivan
N.Y. Times News Service

DALLAS — It was an ugly game from the opening tip, and now it was slipping away. Minnesota Timberwolves forward Christian Laettner had just been bailed out of a clumsy drive by a borderline foul, and now Dallas Mavericks coach Dick Motta was making a slow walk down the press table, gesturing for a word with referee Mike Mathis.

Surely, the tempestuous Motta was about to explode near the end of a long, frustrating evening at Reunion Arena. At the very least, a vintage Motta zinger would be in store.

Instead, the 63-year-old coach never raised his voice.

"Look at that on the film when you get home, OK?" he calmly said.

And with that, Motta went back to the bench and sat through a few more Maalox moments as his young Mavericks staggered to the finish line.

A turnover. Two more missed free throws by the normally reliable Jim Jackson. In the end, only an equally botched final play by Minnesota's Donyell Marshall — who ended up launching a 35-foot prayer at the buzzer — allowed the Mavericks to escape with an 84-83 victory.

So why was Motta smiling?

"Things happened tonight that hadn't happened to us all year," he said. "But we'll take it.

"Next March, that'll be one of the most beautiful wins we've ever had."

Some veteran Motta watchers must be wondering if the real Motta has been kidnapped and replaced in some sort of "Invasion of the Body Snatchers" plot twist. The Motta who stomped off the job here more than seven years ago, after all, was a bitter, surly, broken man, one vowing never to pass this way again.

Now?

"Coach Motta, he's great," says star forward Jamal Mashburn, a big smile spreading across his face. "He's good at communicating what he wants. Everyone knows where he stands. He expects a lot, but he's fair, too."

Even when he eventually loses his cool. Two nights later, in the course of an 89-80 loss to the Denver Nuggets, Motta called a timeout to ask his team a pointed question: "What the (expletive) is going on out there?" But by game's end, he again was philosophical about the whole thing.

"We're very, very mortal," he said. "We're not a playoff team. We hustle like one, but we are what we are."

This new, mellow Motta is just one of the many miracles occurring at Reunion Arena in this young NBA season. The Mavericks, the NBA's laughingstock the past two years, are respectable again, carrying a 7-5 record into Saturday night's game against the Utah Jazz. They seem to be enjoying life, too. And slowly but surely, the fans are coming back to a place that was one of the NBA's best venues in the happier times of the 1980s.

"We're surprising a lot of people," says forward Roy Tarpley, the team's prodigal son. "Last year, they can't remember when they won seven games.

"We've done a good job. We're ahead of schedule right now."

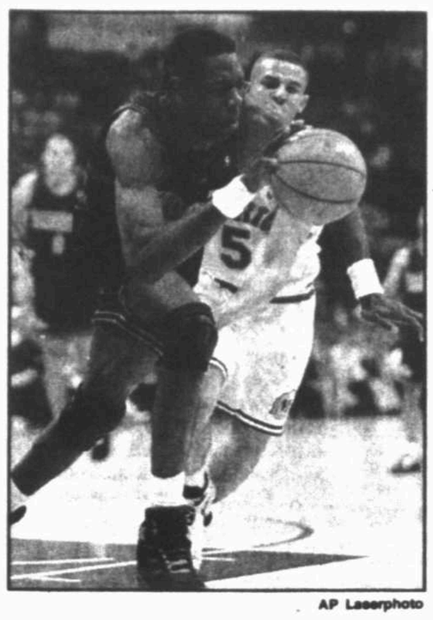

Certainly, these Mavericks are not burdened by the pressure of great expectations. The last two Dallas teams won 11 and 13 games, respectively, losing a total of 140 in the process. A year ago, under the woefully overmatched Quinn Buckner, the Mavericks didn't win their seventh game until Feb. 21, giving them a less-than-sparkling 7-52 record at the time.

To match that pace, the current team would have to mount a 48-game losing streak. That's hardly likely, since the Mavericks are coming off their first winning November since 1988 and their first winning month of any kind since April 1990.

"We're having fun again," said Mashburn. "That's the big thing."

Best of all, from Motta's point of view, no one is having all the fun.

Mashburn made headlines with a 50-point game in an eye-opening overtime victory against the Bulls in Chicago. Not to be outdone, Jackson matched the feat last Saturday night in an overtime victory in Denver as Dallas mounted the biggest comeback in franchise history, rallying from 25 points down.

AP Laserphoto

Dallas guard Jason Kidd (5), shown here guarding Denver center Dikembe Mutombo, and the rest of the Mavericks have kept the pressure on their opponents early in the 1995 season.

Tuesday night, Tarpley — whose return from a three-year drug-related ban was delayed even further by a season-opening stay on the injured list with knee problems — had his best game of the season, contributing 19 points and 12 rebounds off the bench.

Making life easier for the troubled Tarpley: This time around, at age 30, he no longer is expected to carry the franchise on his shoulders.

"I try to let the game come to me," he said. "I don't have to try to be the man, make the big play all the time."

Now, if Tarpley doesn't do it, Mashburn might. Or Jackson. Or even newcomer Jason Kidd, the rookie point guard from California who has energized the mix with his up-tempo style and his highlight-film playmaking.

"It's a comfortable situation," said Mashburn, in a minor slump after making just five of 22 shots the past two games. "We know we can go out there and one guy can be off and we can still pull the game out."

Lest anyone get the impression that a playoff run is just around the corner, however, not everything is quite so upbeat.

Despite some intriguing names and impressive numbers, Dallas still rounds out its starting lineup with journeyman Lorenzo Williams at center and rebounding specialist Popeye Jones at forward. The interior defense is virtually nonexistent. The bench consists of one-dimensional talents who likely will be moving on as the team improves. If Jackson, Mashburn and Kidd aren't clicking, the Mavericks are in for a long night.

Already, those weaknesses have been exposed a time or two. A return engagement with the Bulls resulted in a 111-85 drubbing. A trip to the Forum ended in a 12-point loss to the Lakers. A 13-point defeat at Miami was no thing of beauty, either, and Thursday night's 89-80 loss to Denver was largely the product of .313 shooting, including a combined 4-of-21 from Mashburn and Kidd.

So the Houston Rockets needn't worry (for now, at least) about being knocked off as Midwest Division champions by their neighbors to the north. Still, the Mavericks appear to be headed in the right direction, and Motta seems to have steeled himself against the inevitable ups and downs of developing a young team.

His first task, he says, was to fortify the confidence of Jackson and Mashburn, the No. 4 selections in the 1992 and '93 drafts, respectively, after the misery of the past two seasons. That job was made easier by the addition of Kidd, whose unique abilities have jump-started the rebuilding.

Kidd's value isn't immediately apparent in the numbers. So far, the second pick in this year's draft has averaged 9.6 points and 6.3 assists while adding a healthy 6.5 rebounds, but that hasn't always been enough to silence critics who contend that Grant Hill (taken third by the Pistons) would have been a better choice.

During the draft, however, Motta and first-year personnel director Keith Grant reasoned that the club already had Jackson and Mashburn in the spots Hill would play. And seeing Kidd in the flesh is believing, as his extraordinary court vision and no-look passes have added a whole new dimension to a team that was dull and plodding a year ago.

"Jason is something special," Motta said. "He's one of those players who makes everyone around him just a little better. It's no accident that Jimmy and Jamal are putting up the kind of numbers they are."

So far, Jackson (29.5 points per game) and Mashburn (24.8) are among the league's top 10 scorers. And even with just 164 points in the past two games, the Mavericks are producing an average of 102.6 points per game, up more than seven a night from the league-low 95.1 average of a year ago.

People are beginning to notice, too. A Tuesday night with the dreary Timberwolves attracted a respectable crowd of 12,810, and 13,929 made it out to see the Nuggets two night later. Through seven home dates, the Mavericks have three sellouts and an average crowd of 15,084, a significant increase from the 12,839 who trudged to Reunion a year ago.

The potential downside to this early success: Word is getting around, and visitors no longer are likely to think of a visit to Dallas as a night off.

"It's the first time teams have been up for us in a long time," said Motta. "They circle us."

Either way, the Clippers and Timberwolves seem destined to endure those comparisons to the legendary 1972-73 Philadelphia 76ers, whose 9-73 record stands as the worst in NBA history. The Mavericks know all about those Sixers, of course. These days, though, Dallas is enjoying the view from the middle, with an eye on the top.

"It's scary to think about how it's going to be," said Mashburn. "We get a couple more draft picks (six first-rounders in the next three years), a couple of big men and, hey, who knows?"

Motta — the new, improved Motta — just might.

In March, a game like Tuesday night will, indeed, look like a thing of beauty. Considering the way things have been around here, a win of any kind already looks good enough.

Robinson, Elliott lead Spurs to 95-91 win over Blazers

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — David Robinson scored 32 points and Sean Elliott a season-high 31 as San Antonio held off the Portland Trail Blazers 95-91 Friday night, the Spurs' second road victory in six tries this season.

San Antonio scored the final four points of the game after the Blazers scored five in a row to tie it 91-91.

After Portland's Clifford Robinson missed a 3-pointer, the Spurs' Avery Johnson made one of two free throws with 14 seconds left to make it 94-91.

After a timeout, Portland couldn't get the ball to one of its outside shooters, and power forward Mark Bryant was forced to take a 3-pointer, and he missed. Elliott, who scored 22 in the second half, made one of two free throws with 1.2 seconds to play for the final margin.

■ NBA Roundup

Lakers 107, Rockets 89

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Cedric Ceballos had 25 points and a career-high 16 rebounds as the Los Angeles Lakers rebounded from the third-worst defeat in club history to stun Houston.

Vlade Divac added 22 points for the Lakers, who won for the sixth time in seven games and only the second time in their last eight meetings with the defending NBA champs.

The Rockets, missing Otis Thorpe for the third game in a row with a strained muscle in his back, got a career-high 22 points and 11 rebounds from Carl Herrera.

Hawks 92, Bulls 81

CHICAGO — Stacey Augmon scored 20 points and Mookie Blaylock's hustle set up a big 3-pointer by Craig Ehlo with 2:41 to play as Atlanta defeated Chicago. It was 73-73 before the Hawks scored the next eight points. Augmon made four free throws during that stretch, but it was Blaylock's ability to chase down a rebound after a missed shot by Augmon that put the Hawks in control.

76ers 99, Kings 96

PHILADELPHIA — Willie Burton had 25 points and Clarence Weatherspoon scored 12 of his 18 points in the final period, helping Philadelphia defeat Sacramento.

The teams were tied 69-69 entering the fourth quarter before Weatherspoon scored six points in a 15-8 run to give the 76ers an 84-77 lead.

Philadelphia still led 88-81 with 3:32 remaining, but the Kings scored five straight points, capped by a steal and 3-pointer by Mitch Richmond to pull the Kings to 88-86 with 2:22 to go. But Shawn Bradley's follow-up basket and Weatherspoon's dunk built Philadelphia's lead to 92-86.

Magic 125, Knicks 100

ORLANDO, Fla. — Shaquille O'Neal scored 38 points and Anfernee Hardaway 33 as Orlando dominated New York in a reversal of one of their two losses this season.

The triumph was the ninth straight for Orlando, a franchise record, and gives the league's hottest team lopsided victories in the past 10 days over both clubs that reached the NBA Finals last spring.

Heat 115, Nets 97

MIAMI — Glen Rice matched his season high with 34 points and Kevin Willis scored a season-high 31, boosting Miami to a victory over New Jersey.

Rice hit 14 of his 18 shots, including nine of his first 10 and five of seven 3-point attempts, and equalled a team record for points in a quarter with 18 in the first.

Willis also grabbed 17 rebounds, the most since he came to Miami on Nov. 7.

Bullets 115, Pistons 104

LANDOVER, Md. — Washington finally won its first game with Chris Webber in the lineup, getting 18 points and nine rebounds from their new forward in a victory over Detroit.

Webber, who temporarily left the game in the third quarter to receive three stitches for a cut over his right eye, made eight of 11 shots in 34 minutes. He also had three assists, four steals and three blocks.

Suns 107, Celtics 102

BOSTON — Phoenix overcame a 22-point second-quarter deficit and a sensational second half by Dominique Wilkins to beat Boston.

Wilkins, who hit five of 13 shots in the first half, made 10 of his first 11 in the second half. His last basket, a 16-foot fallaway, gave him 34 points and Boston a 100-97 lead with 1:47 left, but Phoenix scored the next 10 points.

Danny Manning's three-point play and layup put Phoenix ahead 102-100. Then, with 44 seconds left, Wilkins finally missed on a foul-line jumper.

Charles Barkley followed with two free throws, then made a steal and passed to Danny Ainge for a layup.

Johnson wins Owens award

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Michael Johnson, who has won 24 straight races at 400 meters, enjoyed another victory Friday when he was honored with the Jesse Owens Award as track and field's top performer for the year.

The 27-year-old from Rockwall, Texas, hasn't lost in the 400 since 1989. This year he won at the Goodwill Games and had a world-best 43.90 seconds at a meet in September. He also had the fastest time in the United States at 200 meters, a 19.94 clocking at a July meet in Monaco.

Johnson edged two-time winner Jackie Joyner-Kersee, who set American records both indoors and outdoors in the long jump, in the closest balloting in history by media and the U.S. athletics community. The award was handed out at the annual USA Track & Field convention.

LSU continues interview process

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — LSU Athletic Director Joe Dean met with two more candidates for the school's vacant head football coach position Friday, but did not schedule any other interviews.

"If any more interviews are to be done, they will be done next week," LSU Sports Information Director Herb Vincent said from Atlanta.

As of Friday, no other interviews had been scheduled.

Dean and Vincent are in Atlanta for today's Southeastern Conference championship game between Alabama and Florida.

Vincent said Dean hopes to hire a coach next week to replace Curley Hallman, who was fired after four years and a 16-28 record. A new hire would have to be approved by the LSU Board of Supervisors, which has a meeting scheduled Dec. 9.

Ohio State coach John Cooper, who interviewed with LSU earlier this week, signed a new contract with Ohio State Thursday.

"Cooper spoke with Dean last night and told him," Vincent said.

Sullivan, the 1971 Heisman Trophy winner as an Auburn quarterback, has said he isn't looking for another job.

He said he planned a trip to Atlanta long before he was asked to interview for the LSU job. Sullivan will participate in the SEC Legends ceremony being held in conjunction with the championship game.

"I don't know the extent of the interview, but it probably was a kind of feeling out," Vincent said. "Dean was very impressed with the skills Sullivan could bring to the job. He's a bright young coach and a good people person. Everyone speaks highly of him."

Zook is in Atlanta with his Florida team. He coordinated Florida's defenses from 1991-1993, after working on staffs at Ohio State, Virginia Tech, Tennessee, Cincinnati, Kansas and Murray State.

Zook was demoted from defensive coordinator to special teams coordinator this year following a 1991 incident with former Tennessee assistant coach Jack Sells, who had been fired for NCAA violations. Sells faxed Zook material prior to the Tennessee game allegedly about the Vol's offensive plans. Florida won the game, 35-18.

"Zook is a young coach that a lot of people speak highly of," Vincent said. "What he doesn't have going for him is that he hasn't been a head coach yet."

Meanwhile, Auburn receivers coach Tommy Bowden has written Dean a letter expressing his interest in the job. Bowden said he has not been contacted.

Chicago Bears special teams coach Danny Abramowicz said Dean hasn't called him, either. Abramowicz has had several people contact Dean, including former Bears coach Mike Ditka.

Vincent said at this time, Dean has no plans to interview Bowden or Abramowicz.

Others who have interviewed are LSU defensive coordinator Phil Bennett, Texas A&M offensive coordinator Steve Ensminger, Vanderbilt head coach Gerry DiNardo and Washington Redskins receivers coach Terry Robiskie.

Dean was scheduled to return to Baton Rouge after Saturday's game.

When defending champion Youngstown State and Eastern Kentucky meet in the quarterfinals of the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs, football basics — old-fashioned blocking and tackling — figure to be more important than strategy.

"We know what they are going to do, and they know what we are going to do," Youngstown State coach Jim Tressel said. "It's going to be tough to defeat a team twice in one season."

The Penguins (11-0-1) will attempt to do just that today at home. Eleven weeks ago, on the same field, Youngstown State beat the Colonels (10-2) 13-6.

Tressel wasn't satisfied because Youngstown State dominated the line of scrimmage that day but didn't take command of the game. The Colonels rushed for only 73 yards.

"We weren't very pleased with our offensive performance in the first game," said Tressel, whose team is 13-4 in I-AA playoff games. "We can't miss the opportunities we did the first time."

But will they have as many? Consider these similarities:

— The Penguins' top running back is Shawn Patton, who has rushed for 1,281 yards. Eastern Kentucky counters with Eric Clay (1,045 yards).

— The Youngstown State defense yields just over 10 points per game. The Colonels give up 14.7.

— Eastern Kentucky's John Sacca, a transfer from Penn State, has passed for 1,466 yards and 10 touchdowns. Youngstown State's Mark Brungard has thrown 16 scoring passes.

The winner will face the winner of McNeese State and Montana, a pair of 10-2 teams playing Saturday at Bozeman, Mont.

In other Division I-AA quarterfinal games Saturday, it will be James Madison (10-2) at Marshall (11-1), and Appalachian State (9-3) at Boise State (11-1).

In Division II semifinals, it will be Indiana, Pa. (10-2) at Texas A&M-Kingsville (11-1), and North Dakota (10-2) at North Alabama (11-1). In the Division III seminfinals, Washington & Jefferson, Pa. (10-1) visits Ithaca, N.Y. (10-2), and St. John's, Minn. (11-1), entertains Albion, Mich. (11-0).

In NAIA Division I semifinals, it will be Langston, Okla. (10-2) at Northeastern State, Okla. (9-2), and Western Montana (8-2) at Arkansas-Pine Bluff (8-3). The quarterfinals in Division II have Tiffin, Ohio (8-3) at Westminster, Pa. (9-2), Lambuth, Tenn. (9-2) at Hardin-Simmons, Texas (8-2), Minot State, N.D. (8-2) at Northwestern, Iowa (9-1), and Western Washington (8-2) at Pacific Lutheran, Wash.

"I think their offense has improved because Sacca is more familiar with their offense and Clay has gotten better," Tressel said of Eastern Kentucky.

Both teams are accustomed to the playoffs. Youngstown State has reached the postseason seven of the past eight years under Tressel — beating Marshall for the title in 1991 and 1993, and losing to the Thundering Herd in 1992. Eastern Kentucky has advanced to the playoffs 15 of the past 16 years under Kidd.

Youngstown reached the quarterfinals last week with a 63-20 victory over Alcorn State, quarterbacked by Heisman Trophy hopeful Steve McNair. Eastern Kentucky beat Boston University 30-23.

Mississppi names Tuberville new head coach

■ Texas A&M defensive coordinator Tom Tuberville leaves College Station for Oxford, Miss.

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — University of Mississippi officials Friday named Tommy Tuberville the new head football coach, saying the Texas A&M defensive coordinator had the administrative ability to turn the school's troubled program around.

"He can sell himself and he can sell the university," said Pete Boone, incoming athletic director.

Tuberville has administrative ability, which is the mark of a great coach, said Boone.

A search committee voted unanimously in favor in Tuberville to fill the job vacated when 11-season coach Billy Brewer was fired in July for NCAA violations that led to the Rebels being placed last month on four years' probation.

Other finalists for the position were Ohio State offensive coordinator Joe Hollis and Auburn offensive coordinator Tommy Bowden.

Bryan Barksdale, a member of the search committee, said there were three outstanding candidates.

"We met long and hard," said Boone. "We debated and deliberated the pros and cons, the good and bad and our committee voted for Coach Tuberville."

"Coach Tuberville has coached 19 All-Americans. He understands what it means to be a champion," said Boone.

Joe Lee Dunn, who took the role of interim coach after Brewer's firing, withdrew his name from consideration for the permanent job Thursday. He had been scheduled for a final interview Friday.

Hollis and Tuberville met Friday with the search committee, made up of the school's 11-person athletic committee, interim athletic director Robert Khayat and Boone, who assumes the AD position full-time on Jan. 1. Bowden interviewed Thursday.

Tuberville, 40, from Camden, Ark., is a graduate of Southern Arkansas. He has been at A&M for one year after spending nine years at the University of Miami.

"I'm impressed with the way people want to turn this thing around," Tuberville said after meeting with the committee.

Ole Miss has finished sixth, first and 17th nationally in Division I-A total defense in Dunn's three years as coordinator.

Dunn, a Columbus, Ga., native, met Thursday night in Memphis, Tenn., with coach Ray Goff about the vacant defensive coordinator's position at Georgia.

Dunn also said he will interview for Arkansas defensive coordinator if Joe Kines leaves and is still open to talk with Ole Miss' next coach about staying in Oxford.

Dunn, 4-7 as interim coach this season, has been the Rebels' defensive coordinator for three seasons. His contract with the school runs through June 1995, the end of the current fiscal year.

Oklahoman up for 'little Heisman' award

FLORENCE, Ala. (AP) — Record-setting passer Chris Hatcher of Valdosta State is among three finalists for the Harlon Hill Trophy, which honors the top player in Division II.

Hatcher, tailback Joe Aska of Central Oklahoma and running back Roger Graham of New Haven were selected Thursday in voting by sports information directors at 147 Division II schools.

The award, which started in 1986, will be presented Dec. 9, the day before the Division II championship game.

Hatcher completed 321 of 430 passes for 3,591 yards and 50 touchdowns in guiding Valdosta State to an 11-2 record. He set 21 national records during his career, including 10,878 passing yards and 116 TD passes.

Aska was Division II's No. 4 rusher, averaging 163 yards per game. He had 1,788 all-purpose yards and 15 touchdowns, and led the Lone Star Conference in rushing, total yards and TDs.

Graham, who won the trophy last year, was fifth in Division II with 160 rushing yards per game and third in all-purpose yards with 1,607. He is second on the Division II career rushing list with 5,953 yards.

Tide, Gators try to fill sweet tooth

■ Alabama, Florida fight for SEC crown, trip to Sugar Bowl.

By Rick Warner
AP Football Writer

The Southeastern Conference championship game has turned into an annual affair for Alabama and Florida.

Today, the third-ranked Crimson Tide and No. 6 Gators will decide the SEC title for the third straight year. Alabama won the inaugural game, 28-21, in 1992. Florida won last year, 28-13.

After beating Florida in 1992, Alabama went on to win the national championship and complete a 13-0 season at the Sugar Bowl. The Tide has a chance to duplicate the feat this year, although they'll probably need some help.

For Alabama (11-0) to finish No. 1, it appears the Tide would have to win the SEC title at the Georgia Dome, beat No. 7 Florida State in the Sugar Bowl and hope top-ranked Nebraska (12-0) and No. 2 Penn State (11-0) lose their bowl games. Nebraska plays No. 4 Miami in the Orange, and Penn State faces No. 12 Oregon in the Rose.

Florida's national championship hopes were dashed by last Saturday's 31-31 tie with Florida State, which scored 28 points in the fourth quarter. But the Gators (9-1-1) can earn a rematch with the Seminoles by winning the SEC championship and automatic Sugar Bowl bid.

Saturday's game matches Florida's explosive offense against Alabama's stingy defense. The Gators are No. 2 nationally in scoring with a 45.2 average, while the Tide is fifth in scoring defense, allowing only 13.5 points per game.

It will be interesting to see if Alabama can contain Florida's passing attack, which is averaging 315 yards per game. The Tide hasn't allowed more than 300 yards through the air in its last 58 regular-season games.

Florida is favored by 6½ points, but if the game is close, you have to go with Alabama. Five of the Tide's wins have come by a touchdown or less, and their average margin of victory is only 10 points.

Plano country boys draw raves for call

By Barry Horn
Associated Press writer

DALLAS — Their names are Garver and Zoffuto and Clinton, and for the moment they have replaced Dierdorf and Gifford and Michaels, not to mention Madden and Summerall, as the most talked-about football announcing team in all the land.

Not bad for a moonlighting mailman from Plano, a Lake Highlands football coach scouting his next opponent, and the former Dallas television sports anchor who brought them together.

Their game is high school football. And who would have guessed that by the time they were finished calling Saturday night's Tyler John Tyler-Plano East playoff game, in which 54 points were scored in the game's final 2½ minutes, they would have:

■ Delivered the sound bites of the week for television and radio sports reports from New York to Los Angeles.

■ Become a Wednesday and Thursday staple on ESPN's "SportsCenter" as well as CNN's twice-hourly sports reports.

■ Stirred the bicoastal fevers of "The Tonight Show With Jay Leno" and the "Late Show With David Letterman."

'I'm not a professional radio or television person. I'm a football coach and an emotional one. I got into the game with those Plano kids.'

— Mike Zoffuto
Head coach
Lake Highlands High School

The reason for their burgeoning celebrity, says Denny Garver, mailman by day and first-year Plano Telecable football analyst by night, is simple: "The game got out of hand, and we got out of hand even more."

Indeed, Tyler John Tyler's 48-44 victory over Plano East wasn't your typical Class 5A Division II Region II semifinal at Texas Stadium. Not when you consider that Plano East scored 27 points in the final 2:33 to take the lead with 24 seconds remaining only to lose when its final kickoff was returned for the winning touchdown.

This was Garver tasting the thrill of victory after Plano East scored to close to within 41-37:

"Yes sir! Atta baby! Atta baby!" he crowed in very un-Summerall-like fashion. "I want everybody that watches this telecast that's got their nasty, snarly butt on the way home back to Plano East that didn't sit here and sell out for your kids ... You sorry dogs."

This was Garver after Plano East recovered the ensuing onside kickoff:

"They got it again! They got it again! ... This is unbelievable ... Good gosh o'mighty Joe Friday. Somebody give me something. I'm gonna die."

This was Garver after Plano East scored to take the lead at 44-41:

"Everybody on their cars in the radio back to Plano, you've done missed the greatest comeback of all times! Of all times!"

This was Mike Zoffuto, whose Lake Highlands team meets John Tyler on Saturday back in Texas Stadium, describing the agony of defeat as the winning touchdown was being scored:

"Oh no! Oh no! Oh no! Oh my gosh, no! Come on! No! No! Gosh," he said as the 97-yard kickoff return unfolded. "God bless those kids. I am sick. I want to throw up."

Said Zoffuto on Thursday morning: "I'm not a professional radio or television person. I'm a football coach and an emotional one. I got into the game with those Plano kids."

A "professional" might have offered something more mundane, more scripted like, "Do you believe in miracles?"

"I was just saying what I was thinking," said the West Texas State graduate.

"I know that some big-time radio guys around Dallas have been ripping us as totally unprofessional," said Eddy Clinton, the play-by-play voice who served as a Channel 4 sports anchor during the late 1970s and now runs a video production company. "But we weren't doing it for a network. We were doing it for community-access cable."

They also were working the game for free, as usual.

Indeed they weren't even broadcasting the game live. Just as Clinton and Garver had done all season long as the voices of Telecable's "District 11-5A Game of the Week," they were doing the game on tape so it could be broadcast Monday night. Zoffuto was a playoff guest.

But the game didn't wait until Monday to hit the air.

On Sunday, Channel 5 called looking for game highlights to run on "Scott Murray's Sports Extra." Murray ran with the tapes. NBC affiliates across the country jumped on the videotape. Stars were born.

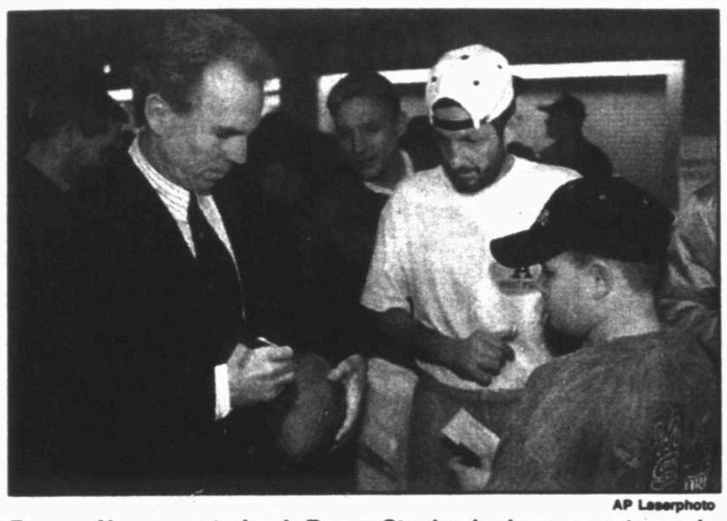

On Tuesday, Channel 8 visited with Clinton and Garver for a sports feature story. While Channel 8 was filming, the "Late Show" called from New York to ask about a potential visit. Soon after, "The Tonight Show" called with the same idea.

Both the Letterman and Leno shows were booked for the remainder of the week, and both will offer only reruns next week. Thursday afternoon, Leno watched the tape, talked to Clinton and scheduled a Dec. 21 booking. That's a Wednesday night.

Earlier, a "Tonight" show producer had made the mistake of asking if the announcers could make it to California on a Tuesday or Friday.

"We told him he was talking to folks in Texas," Clinton said. "We go to high school football games on Fridays. We asked him to find another night. They did.

"I'd say this whole crazy thing has gotten way out of hand."

Cadets collide with Midshipmen in tussle

■ TV: Army vs. Navy, 11 a.m., ABC.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — To hear coach Bob Sutton tell it, Army can finish the season with an unspectacular 4-7 record but still be considered a success — if it beats Navy today.

Such things are possible when the military and sports cross paths.

"That's just the way this game is," Sutton said. "It makes your winter a lot better ... if you win it because it's a game that means so much to so many."

Sutton said many of the players in the game stay in their respective armed services and will often be reminded about the wins and the losses as they cross paths during their military careers.

"I'm sure there are guys in the Pentagon this week who are jabbering at each other about, 'Hey, in 1964, we got you — don't forget it,' " he said.

"You're basically playing against yourself. And anybody that's been in a backyard pickup game with your brother knows what that's like. The worst part is, the loser's got to go back in the house. That's worse than losing — that you've got to take the jabbering until next time you play."

The players say they are constantly reminded about the importance of winning the game — from underclassmen who must greet them with 'Beat Army' (or 'Beat Navy') to officers who aren't shy about telling them what's at stake.

Running back Kevin Vaughn had summer training this year at a fort in Washington state. As he spoke with a commanding officer, suddenly the officer told him, "Whatever you do, don't embarrass me in the Army-Navy game."

"Something like that sticks with you," Vaughn said. "That just shows how important it is to us. That game is in the back of his mind."

Navy is suffering the taunts this year.

Army won 16-14 last year to take a 44-43-7 lead in a series in which the Midshipmen have outscored the Cadets 1,203-1,135 — a difference of only seven-tenths of a point per game.

The Cadets took a 16-0 lead in the third quarter before Jim Kubiak engineered two touchdown drives and one final march that ended at the Army 1 with six seconds to play.

Ryan Bucchianeri then missed an 18-yard field goal attempt that would have given Navy the victory.

Navy has momentum on its side. After an 0-5 start, the Middies have won three of their last five. Kubiak said an inexperienced offensive line has begun to gel: After being sacked 31 times in Navy's first nine games, he was only sacked twice in their last game, a 29-17 victory over Rice.

"I'm glad to say I haven't been picking myself up as much as I was earlier in the season," he said.

Army's season has gone in the opposite direction. The Cadets opened with a victory over Holy Cross and got consecutive wins over Louisville and The Citadel, but they have been beaten by Temple, Rutgers, Wake Forest, Air Force and Boston University.

Quarterback Rick Roper was injured six plays into the opener. Running back Akili King also was lost with a knee injury midway through the season.

"That seems to happen with us every year," Vaughn said. "We lost our starting quarterback and our starting fullback to injuries and that's tough."

Free safety Jim Cantelupe, the team's best defensive back, broke his left leg in Army's last game, a 21-12 loss to Boston University.

Kubiak said Army's injuries might give Navy an edge.

"I think we've gotten better as the season has gone on, and we're still healthy," he said, "so I think that can play a major role in this game."

High-flying Falcons search for first WAC win in 'Hawaii' bowl

HONOLULU (AP) — Maturity has played a big part in the recent offensive success of Air Force. Hawaii, the Falcons' opponent tonight, is still searching for its elusive first victory in the Western Athletic Conference this season.

"We weren't a very mature team in the early part of our season," Air Force coach Fisher DeBerry said. "We were still adjusting to our offense and learning how to win.

"But I think we showed the character of our team by turning things around as quickly as we did. We won seven in a row before losing at Notre Dame ... "

Entering the season finale for both teams, the Falcons are 7-4 overall and 5-2 in the WAC.

DeBerry installed the triple-option offense this season after going 4-8 last year. Adjusting to the new offense probably accounted for an 0-3 start. Now, the Falcons are at a point where they're second only to top-ranked Nebraska in per game offensive production.

Hawaii defensive coordinator Chris Smeland knows what's in store for the Rainbows.

"We're going to be challenged," he said. "This is a team that has brought it all together since the beginning of the season."

He credits the Falcons' success to the passing game.

"They've been very productive with this new option by spreading it around pretty good," Smeland said. "The fact that they're throwing the ball so well allows them to combine the play action pass effectively with their option game.

"Our free safety has to have a big game. He has to be able to run the alley, to take the quarterback at times, to take the pitch at times and to be able to defend against the play action pass."

The Rainbows are 3-7-1 overall, 0-7 in the WAC. One victory was over Rose Bowl-bound Oregon, 36-16.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: After a period of obtaining mixed results, you will be stronger than ever financially and emotionally. Be prepared to defend your ideals. Romance will move you in an exciting new direction. Spend more time with your offspring. Changes at place of employment will work to your advantage. Review pension plans and insurance policies; they may not be as generous as you supposed.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: auto racer Rick Mears, actress Heather Menzies, rocker Ozzy Osbourne, singer Jaye P. Morgan.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Spending the weekend with someone who shares your interests and ideals will leave you refreshed. Inspiration comes from unexpected sources. Show your gratitude for past favors.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Controversial subjects could ignite nostile dialogues. Avoid getting caught up in heated quarrels. Travel will open the door to wonderful romance. Share pleasurable secrets with loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Make an overdue personal decision without further delay. A child or pet could affect your social plans. It pays to be alert to what people are trying to do. Nip deception in the bud.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Make a list before going grocery-shopping. You can save money by purchasing sale items or buying in bulk. Travel plays a part in your weekend plans. Romance finds a way around an obstacle.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be self-reliant, but do not dismiss enthusiastic offers of help. Refusing assistance could hurt a loved one's feelings. This evening, happy romance puts the icing on the cake.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Try to avoid excessive or impulsive spending on entertainment. A visit to a new locale will lift your spirits without taxing your pocketbook. Cultivate friends who share your intellectual interests. Discuss a good book.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Home improvements are favored. Enlist the help of family members when devising a budget. Take special care of your favorite possessions if traveling. Open your heart to relatives who are down on their luck.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A social event will put special demands on you and your mate. You might not feel amused by a member of the opposite sex's playful mood. Be firm. Jealousy could trigger a domestic squabble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make the most of the time you can spend with your loved ones today. A financial windfall could ease money worries. Visit someone confined to a hospital or nursing home. Take a small gift.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be asked to make a speech. Emphasize those character traits that set you apart from the crowd. Narrow down your choices where romance is concerned. Loving couples will set the wedding date!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Travel demands special attention. Try not to become upset with someone who hogs the limelight. Friends are better company than relatives right now. A self-improvement project will help advance your career. Wrap holiday gifts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be patient if mate appears temperamental. You could be reading the situation incorrectly. A candid conversation will resolve any problems. Plan recreational activities together. Joining a special club will be well worth the cost.

Barry to prove opera's fatal, to perform in Puccini comedy

EUGENE, Ore. — Dave Barry is right: Opera kills.

The syndicated columnist wrote in his Oct. 10 column, "It's not that opera's bad; it's that it's fatal." He noted that an African mammal was "killed by opera music being sung three football fields away." And he posed the question: "Could opera, in sufficient dosages, be fatal to human beings?"

The answer may be yes. The Eugene Opera invited Barry to be a guest star in its Jan. 8 production of Puccini's comedy "Gianni Schicchi."

Barry will play a dead man whose heirs are trying to get hold of his money.

Barry won't have to inflict any pain himself; it's a non-singing part. His performance will entail lying corpse-like on a bed and being stuffed in a box.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Tracy Lawrence has a chance to clean his slate of assault charges.

The country singer was arrested April 4 for allegedly firing a gun in the air on a highway, following another car and threatening the occupants.

On Thursday, he learned the charges will be dismissed if he pays court costs, gives up the gun and stays out of trouble for a year.

Tracy Lawrence has change to clean slate of assault charges.

"This incident is behind me," Lawrence said. "I am happy to continue my efforts as an entertainer and to help others."

Lawrence is this year's spokesman for Country Music Cares, an AIDS charity. He performed at a benefit Thursday.

BUCHAREST, Romania — Nadia Comaneci's homecoming is over, but she promised fellow Romanians she'll return to celebrate her wedding with them.

The 33-year-old gymnast said she and her American fiance, Bart Conner, will marry in Romania in 1996. She didn't give a date.

Comaneci, the first gymnast to score a perfect 10 in Olympic competition, left Romania on Friday after a 10-day visit. It was her first visit since she defected five years ago in the waning days of Communist rule.

"People are more open. They are freer and say what they think," she said.

During her visit, Comaneci returned to her hometown, met the president and performed in front of the prime minister. And Conner, himself an Olympic gold medalist in gymnastics, asked Comaneci's father for her hand in marriage.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Fifteen years after her father died, Patty Loveless says a song has helped her finally say farewell.

"How Can I Help You Say Goodbye" is about the death of a woman who helps her daughter realize that death is a part of life.

The song, performed by Loveless and written by Karen Taylor-Good and Burton Collins, was a finalist for the Country Music Association's single of the year.

"That song finally made me let go of my dad," Loveless said in Friday's The Tennessean. "It made me see I was being selfish, and I needed to let go."

Her father, John, died in 1979 of black lung disease.

NEW YORK — The Fresh Air Fund is getting a fresh face: Mariah Carey.

The singer will be the spokeswoman for the 117-year-old organization, and its camp in Fishkill will be renamed Camp Mariah.

Mariah Carey to be spokeswoman for The Fresh Air Fund.

The Fresh Air Fund has been providing free summer vacations in the country to New York City children since 1877. More than 10,000 youngsters go each year to volunteer families in the Northeast and Canada or attend one of five camps.

At Camp Mariah, youngsters can explore educational and career paths as well as enjoy the outdoors.

When the Rolling Stones tour started, there were worries that time was no longer on their side.

But despite some heavy competition, the Stones are likely to end 1994 as the year's top concert draw in North America, according to two concert industry trade publications.

When their U.S. tour ends on Dec. 18, the Stones will have earned an estimated $119.4 million, Performance magazine said.

That total doesn't count four shows where the band didn't report its earnings because of slow ticket sales. More than 2 million people have seen the Stones this year.

"They're still incredible performers," said Jane Cohen, senior editor of Performance, on Friday.

In order to better serve our customers, the Midland Reporter Telegram is upgrading our computer system in the Classified Dept.

Monday, December 5th and Tuesday, December 6th at 3:00 p.m., we will be deadlining for the next days publication.

This change in deadlines is only temporary and we appreciate your patience in this matter. We will resume our normal deadlines on Wednesday, December 7th at 6:00 p.m. as usual.

Thank You!

STANDARD EXEMPTION
CONCRETE BATCH PLANT
EXAMPLE A

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND PARTIES:

You are hereby notified of the opportunity for public comment concerning the application for Standard Exemption No. 71 by Transit Mix Concrete & Materials Company, Inc. under Standard Exemption Registration No. 26911 to construct a Concrete Batch Plant in Midland, Midland County, Texas. The TNRCC account number for Transit Mix is ML-0ZS0-H. The proposed location is 2500 FM 1788. this facility will emit the following air contaminants: particulate matter (including, but not limited to, cement, aggregate, and road dust).

A copy of all materials in the public file is available for public inspection at the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) Odessa Regional Office, Air Program, located at 1901 East 37th Street, Suite 101, Odessa, Texas 79762, telephone (915) 367-3871, and at the TNRCC Central Office, Office of Air Quality, 12124 Park 35 Circle, Building C, Austin, Texas 78753, telephone (512) 239-1000. Inquiries about the exemption application should be directed to the TNRCC Office of Air Quality, New Source Review Program (P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087) in Austin or the TNRCC Odessa Regional Office.

All interested persons may inspect these materials and submit written comments to the Office of Air Quality New Source Review Program of the TNRCC. Any person residing in a permanent residence within one TNRCC-quarter (1/4) mile of the proposed location of the plant may request a contested case hearing from the Commission pursuant to Section 382.056 (d) of the Texas Health and Safety Code. The Commission is not required to hold a contested case hearing if the basis of a request is determined to be unreasonable. All written comments and hearings requests for a contested case hearing must be received in writing by no later than 15 days after the second publication of this notice. All written comments submitted to the Executive Director shall be considered in a decision on the application. All comments will be made available for public inspection at the TNRCC regional office. If you wish to request a public hearing, you must submit your request in writing. You must state (1) your name, mailing address, and daytime phone number; (2) the permit number or other recognizable reference to this application; (3) the statement "I/we request a public hearing"; (4) a brief description of how you, or the persons you represent, would be adversely affected by the granting of the application; (5) a description of the location of your property relative to the applicant's operations; and (6) your proposed adjustment to the application/permit which would satisfy your concerns and cause you to withdraw your request for hearing. Requests for a public hearing on this application should be submitted in writing to Office of the Chief Clerk, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, Texas 78711-3087, Telephone (512) 239-3300.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on on of its few "Special Allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday in addition to the regular monthly route profits. The route is between Cotton Flat and Rankin Hwy. - also the Downtown Area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for anyone willing to work early morning hours. These routes require a small deposit.
