Nazis Putting Torch To Big Cities; Half Million Men Lost In 10 Days

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Tuesday, April 10. — Allied armies struck yesterday for the Elbe river — last big stream before Berlin — fought into the outskirts of Hannover and to the gates of flaming Bremen, and cut off 80,000 enemy troops in Holland with a push within 20 miles of the north German coast.

Mysterious fires raged in Hamburg, Hannover and Brunswick, indicating that the German armies, stricken by the loss of a half million men in 10 terrible days of combat, were putting the torch to the cities which they seem unable to save from the Allied onslaught.

Krupp Ruins Captured

American troops fought into virtually encircled Essen, Europe's greatest armaments city, and captured the ruins of the famed Krupp munitions works, idle since an RAF obliteration bombing in March. The nearby Ruhr city of Gelsenkirchen fell without a shot.

The British, Second Army and the U. S. Ninth, First and Third armies were hammering toward the Elbe, which runs within 50 miles of Berlin, shoulder-to-shoulder along an arching front of 200 miles.

Swing Northeastward

While the British joined lines with the Ninth Army for the assault of Hannover, the main weight appeared to be swinging northeastward where vanguards of the Weser river were 50 miles from the Elbe at Hamburg, Germany's second city. They were battling a Marine division hustled down from Hamburg and German troops from Denmark.

The Paris radio said the British also had entered Bremen, but the last reports from the front said they were locked in hard fighting five miles from the city.

The U. S. Ninth Army threw five divisions into its eastern push, led by the motorized 83rd Infantry division, which broke into the province of Brunswick at a point less than 70 miles from the Elbe and 137 miles southwest of Berlin.

The Ninth Army's Fifth Armored division also broke loose north of the Second Armored division, which was erroneously reported to be 20 miles from Brunswick Sunday. It was the 83rd which was 20 miles from Brunswick.

First Back In Race

The U. S. First Army plunged nearly 20 miles eastward on the south flank of the Ninth Army to within 135 miles of the Reich's capital. On its south flank, the U. S. Third Army moved its lines up 128 miles from Berlin.

A field dispatch said the First and Third armies now were 150 miles from the Russians and close enough to co-operate tactically in cutting the Reich in half. There was no official hint, however,

Terrific Power Loosed In Italy

ROME, April 9. (AP)—The bulk of Allied air strength in Italy was thrown into a terrific bombardment today of an eight-mile-wide strip in the path of the Eighth Army in the direction of the Po river toward Ferrara.

A portion of the U. S. 15th Air force joined the U. S. 12th Air force in the terrific saturation bombing, which at first reports appeared to exceed even the devastation wrought at Cassino in the great assault of 1944.

Lugo Is Main Town

Within the area was the town of Lugo, ten miles northeast of highway No. 9 and one mile west of the Senio river that has been the frontline boundary for many weeks.

The limited locale was literally soaked with high explosives by relays of American planes.

Lugo is 32 miles southeast of Ferrara and 27 east of Bologna. It is an important station on the Ravenna-Bologna railway and is on roads leading to both Bologna and Ferrara.

Ground Operations

The Allied 15th Army group communique, issued earlier, dealt only with Sunday's ground operations and gave no word whether the Eighth Army movements today were integrated with the colossal aerial assault announced shortly before midnight.

The regular communique said American Fifth Army troops on the Allied left flank had driven against weakening German resistance within two miles of Massa, last sizable town on the road to the west coast Italian naval base of La Spezia.

Four Die When RAF Transport Crashes

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., April 9. (AP)—Four persons were killed and 14 injured, some seriously, when a Liberator of the RAF Transport command crashed in a field near here today.

The plane carried 11 passengers and a crew of seven. RAFTC officials said the aircraft was on a "routine transportation flight."

Race For Adolf's Hideout Is Seen

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

The pattern of a potential if not an actual Russian-Allied race to seize Berchtesgaden and perhaps Hitler himself in his Alpine lair is fast taking shape on the war maps.

Distance conditions favor the Russians. Twin Red spearheads already deep in Austria west and southwest of falling Vienna are 150 miles or less from that goal as compared to the nearest American Seventh Army elements in the Nuernberg sector approximately 175 miles away. Terrain and road conditions are with the American forces, however, despite the southeastern span of Nazi super military highway linking Salzburg and Vienna over which the Russians are driving.

SIMPSON

Russian Thrust

The Moscow-reported thrust of Russian forces due west of Vienna to within sight of St. Polten is especially significant. It is following the route of that autobahn (superhighway) link which leads through the valley of the Donal (upper Danube) before it deflects southwestward to Salzburg, a dozen miles or so north of Berchtesgaden. Almost due south of St. Polten a second Russian advance prong is close to another Alpine major highway leading to Salzburg.

In both cases, however, the Russians must march through mountain country east, while American columns closing in toward Munich from the northwest face no natural obstacle of importance except the upper Danube.

May Be Other Objectives

It is possible that Allied forces have other immediate objectives of greater importance in southwestern Germany than the investment of Berchtesgaden. With the Ruhr trap fully sprung to enclose upwards of 100,000 enemy troops and the similar encirclement of another 80,000 in northwestern Holland about completed by Canadian-British troops, General Eis-

Lt. Epes Charged With Wife's Murder

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 9. (U.P.) —Lt. Samuel C. Epes, scion of a prominent Richmond, Va., family was charged with murder of his wife by drugs and suffocation in an indictment presented today by the Richland county grand jury.

A coroner's jury had held Mrs. Epes, blond Jacksonville, Fla., school teacher, had died as result of an overdose of sleeping tablets.

The state, however, today contended that in addition to "wilfully" giving his wife an overdose of sleeping tablets, Epes had suffocated her by placing a blanket over her head and placing her in the trunk of his car before taking her to a makeshift grave.

Epes had been charged with his wife's murder after he led police to the foxhole grave in which he had admitted burying her. The discovery of her body on Valentine's day ended a nationwide search begun when he reported to police Jan. 29 that she was missing.

Allied Forays Destroy 159 Nazi Planes

LONDON, Tuesday, April 10. (AP)—A powerful force of RAF heavy bombers raided the Kiel shipbuilding yards last night while Mosquitos struck anew at battered Berlin, the air ministry announced today.

The preliminary announcement said the overnight operations were carried out "in very great strength"—a phrase usually employed to denote a striking force of nearly 1,000 planes.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Tuesday, April 10.—Allied planes destroyed at least 159 enemy aircraft yesterday as American heavy bombers and fighters pounded airfields between Hannover and Munich and the RAF dropped its tremendous 11-ton bombs on U-boat shelters at Hamburg.

The U. S. Eighth Air force sent out more than 2,000 heavy bombers and fighters in its part of the day's operations and reported ten bombers and four fighters missing.

Little Interference

The German Air force made little effort to interfere with the great armadas of Allied bombers sweeping over the Reich during the day, and consequently scores of enemy planes were caught parked on the ground when Allied fighters and fighter-bombers dropped down in strafing romps.

These successes brought the three-day cost to the German air force to at least 351 planes.

Another bitter day for the luftwaffe was no sooner ended than the German radio began flashing new warnings of bomber formations attacking the Reich by night. The frequency of the warnings indicated the RAF was out again in force.

Along Superhighway

Nearly half of the enemy planes destroyed yesterday were shot up along a superhighway near Munich. Two alert Mustang pilots, chasing a jet-propelled German fighter at low altitude, spotted scores of Nazi planes parked among trees beside the autobahn, which was being used as a homing strip, and soon other swarms of American Mustangs rallied for the kill.

The Mustangs were part of an escort of 750 fighters which accompanied more than 1,250 Eighth Air force heavy bombers in assaults on ten German airfields and two military depots in the Munich area. They destroyed at least 83 of the enemy's hoarded planes, 13 of them the fast jet-propelled model.

Only one formation of Fortresses was molested in the air, four jets making an attack. One of the enemy was shot down.

Campaign Off To Good Start Here

The needy of Europe and Asia will receive many things that are now scarce in American stores, if stacks of clothing at Lubbock Auto company, headquarters for the United National Clothing collection here, may be taken as an indication.

Linen, blue jeans, dresses and jackets with steel zippers, heavy jackets, and other scarce commodities may be found in approximately 1,000 pounds of clothing already collected at the packing and shipping center.

Many Nice Garments

There is a squirrel coat, with the fur still good; there are suits and dresses of now scarce materials and many of which have been freshly cleaned before being donated in the drive.

Asked to give "what you can spare that they can wear," many Lubbock residents already have found they can spare many wearable garments.

"We need 250 times this much," F. A. Kleinschmidt, chairman of the drive, said Monday afternoon amid the stacks collected at the center. Goal in the drive here is 250,000 pounds.

Plans were being made by Harry Morris, manager of Lubbock Auto company, to move the clothing into larger quarters in the company warehouse at 809 Texas avenue, where garments collected at all receiving centers will be

City Asks Report Thursday On Health Ordinances Here

ANOTHER report on progress of proposed health and sanitation ordinances being shaped by City Attorney Durwood H. Bradley will be asked Thursday when city commissioners meet in semi-monthly business session, it was announced Monday afternoon by Mayor Overton W. Ribble.

Several hitches developed as result of submission of the proposed ordinances a year ago this month. Both the mayor and the city attorney said parts of the context had been modified several times, that the proposed ordinances had been sent back to the commission several times with suggested changes.

The mayor said that imminence of "fly and polio" weather made it almost imperative that work on the proposed ordinances be expedited so that ordinances protecting the public can be passed as soon as possible.

He said he had asked several times that the drafts be hurried to completion.

The city attorney, who assumed that office May 15, 1936, told The Morning Avalanche the proposed ordinances "are not in my office. I don't know where they are." He said he had checked them several times and referred them back to the commission after noting suggestions for changes "where there clearly were unenforceable provisions incorporated in them."

As a matter of fact, Bradley said:

"I have had so much work to do, both for the city and in my private practice, I have not been

Thousands Die In 'Murder Factory'

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY IN GERMANY, April 9. (AP) — A Nazi "murder factory," where an estimated 20,000 political prisoners, Jews and slave laborers were put to death, was discovered in an insane asylum near Limburg by the First Army, Allied officers disclosed today.

A macabre story of death and torture and ghoulish feasts by drink-sodden executioners was told by the investigators, Capt. Brinkley Hamilton, a British officer attached to an American infantry division, and Lt. W. R. Johnson of Loveland, Colo.

The asylum had been located previously by Lt. George Walker of Deshler, Ohio, and Capt. Alton H. Jung of San Antonio, Texas, after their suspicions were aroused by tales told by German residents of the village of Hadamar, four miles north of Limburg.

Three Are Arrested

They questioned German officials of Hadamar and on the basis of their reports Maj. Harvey M. Coverly of Sausalito, Calif., ordered the arrests of three Germans who ran the asylum — a 70-year-old doctor, a 45-year-old chief woman's nurse and a middle-aged chief warden.

The asylum, officers learned, was one of six "plants" set up by the Nazis inside Germany to dispose scientifically of slave laborers who were unruly or had outlived their usefulness to the German war machine. They gave this account of the slaughterhouse:

German civil authorities themselves estimated that 15,000 victims were gassed and cremated and another 5,000 killed by drugs or poison and buried in communal graves near the asylum walls.

After residents of Hadamar complained repeatedly of the stench of burning bodies and the bishop of Muenster protested, the Nazis switched from gas to hypodermic injections and from cremation to mass burial.

The killings continued up to March 21 — eight days before the arrival of the American armor.

The slayings were described as "mercy killings" authorized by a 1939 Nazi statute. Political prisoners and slave laborers — particularly Russians, Poles and Dutch —who became too weak to work were first starved, then declared "hopelessly ill," and slain.

Terror was added to the place by crazed inmates who were allowed to run free in the awesome

Had Enough, Bub? 'Smarty' Army Man Tangles With Judo

The Army Air corps lieutenant logged some extra—and unexpected—flying time.

A witness told the story.

The officer was "laying it on the line" to a girl in the lobby of a downtown hotel. A bystander, in civilian clothes, objected to the tone and context of the monologue.

He approached the lieutenant, tapped him on the shoulder. "You shouldn't talk to the girl like that; it isn't polite."

The lieutenant snorted, turned red, then purple. He shook off his blouse and lunged at the civilian.

With a quick movement barely discernable, the civilian flipped the officer like a windmill. The lieutenant landed on the lobby floor with a thump, a mess of arms and legs. Two times the officer came tearing into the civilian and as many times got the same, with variations.

As the army man got his bearings for a fourth try, the civilian said: "I'm getting tired of this; now you've made me mad."

This time the civilian added something. The lieutenant didn't get up. His pals came around and toted him out.

Afterward, the civilian showed his discharge button to onlookers —explained he had taught judo in the Marines.

Reds Batter Vienna, Take Koenigsberg

By ROMNEY WHEELER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Tuesday, April 10.—Russian assault forces, swiftly overrunning rapidly-collapsing enemy resistance in Vienna late last night captured the 2,000-year-old inner heart of the city, while Soviet forces in the north conquered the long-beleagured East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg.

The Soviet war bulletin, which was delayed three hours beyond its usual time, said early today that the center of the Austrian capital had been captured in wild street fighting that has engulfed more than three-quarters of the entire city.

Fall Of Vienna Near

The fall of Vienna, second greatest city of Adolf Hitler's greater Germany and the Red Army's biggest potential prize, appeared imminent.

Moscow announced that Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army troops had captured Vienna's houses of Parliament, the town hall, the central police headquarters, the main telegraph and post office, the Central European bank and the opera house. All lie either within or on the edge of Vienna's famed ringstrasse.

Koenigsberg, a city with a prewar population of 368,000, first was encircled Jan. 30. During the following month, the Germans broke the encirclement, and the Russians left the fortress city to starve while cleaning up the rest of East Prussia.

Tremendous Assault

Then Sunday, Vasilevsky's troops opened a tremendous assault after Red Air force planes flew 5,000 sorties over the ancient fortress of the Teutonic knights. Breaking through an outer defense line, the Russians swept into the center of the city and captured the citadel.

Koenigsberg's fall was announced in an order of the day issued by Premier Stalin, who said the victory cleared the last major German point of resistance along the Baltic coast east of Stettin and that the Russians were swiftly overrunning the last East Prussian pockets in the Samland peninsula to the west of the capital.

More than 27,000 enemy troops were taken in the collapse of Koenigsberg, remnants of the German garrison headed by its commander, Gen. Lasch, laying down their arms at 9:30 p.m. tonight (Moscow time).

Three Victims Of Flood Found

TEXARKANA, April 9. (AP) — The bodies of three members of a family have been recovered from backwaters of the Red river near Bradley, Ark., and a search is being continued for two others feared lost when the surging Sulphur and Red rivers swept away their home.

Boatmen first recovered the body of Miss Bernice Brown, 26, from the flooded bottomlands. It was tangled in a barbed wire fence. Later the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Brown were found.

Two Others Sought

Searchers are still looking for the remaining members of the family—Bentley Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brown, and the senior Brown's four-year-old grandson.

The Brown home was located just north of where the Sulphur and Red rivers converge south of Bradley, in LaFayette county, Ark. Floods which inundated the lowlands destroyed it, and swept the bodies three miles downstream, where they were found.

A coroner who conducted an inquest said the body of Miss Brown had been in the water about three days.

Dog Casualties High In Okinawa Battle

MARINE THIRD AMPHIBIOUS CORPS ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS, April 8 (Delayed) (AP) —The ratio of casualties among war dogs has been far higher than among Marines in the battle for northern Okinawa.

One division started with a platoon of 40 scout and messenger dogs. Four were killed in action. And each, by his death, saved the lives of Marines.

Three were shot by snipers who for some strange reason chose to kill the dog rather than the Marines with him. The Marines, warned by the shot, had a chance to take cover. The fourth was the target of a grenade which also wounded several devildogs.

Jap Okinawa Lines Tighten

Marines Crunch Forward In North; Fliers Smash Jap Convoy Off China

By RAY CRONIN
Associated Press War Editor

HEAVY Japanese opposition on the Okinawa southern front held American doughboys to small gains, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported late Monday, but to the north the Marines punched out advances of from 3,000 to 4,000 yards against only scattered resistance.

Meanwhile hard-hitting Yank fliers from the Philippines, running an aerial blockade of the China sea, smashed up a Japanese convoy off the coast of Asia, sinking a destroyer and a freighter-transport.

Heavy Duel For Naha

On the southern Okinawa front, where Naha, the capital, and its airfields are the objective, a flaming duel of big guns was under way. The Japanese were throwing concentrated artillery and mortar fire into doughboys' positions. Answering salvos came from Yank naval guns and field artillery. Carrier-based airmen added the thunder of their bombs to the din of battle.

Seven of ten Japanese planes were shot down during a night attack on the American invasion armada off Okinawa.

JAPS LASHING OUT

GUAM, Tuesday, April 10 (AP)—Under cover of the heaviest artillery duel of the Pacific war, Japanese made three counter-attacks Monday on American positions in southern Okinawa. Two, by 50 Nipponese each, were repulsed, but the third, by 150 enemy troops, was still engaging 24th Army corps troops in fierce fighting, Associated Press correspondent Robbin Coons reported from Okinawa.

The infantry was held to small local gains all along the southern front, running from just north of the capital city, Naha, to Yonabaru on the east coast. However, the 184th regiment of the 7th division recaptured Red hill, an east coast position which the Japanese had seized from the Yanks in a bitter close range battle fought with tanks, bazookas, small arms and grenades.

In the north the Marines held about half of the Motobu peninsula.

A Japanese imperial communique, broadcast by radio Tokyo, said American reinforcements were going into the Army drive southward on Okinawa but claimed that Nippon troops were repulsing the Yanks.

Tokyo made the totally unconfirmed claim that 293 American ships have been blasted off Okinawa since D-day.

Formosa To Borneo

Wide-ranging American bombers from Philippine bases struck Japanese airdromes, shipping, supply, defense and fuel areas and troop concentrations from Formosa to Borneo. Big fires raged at Formosan airdromes and in west coast supply area.

Heavy bombers blockading the China sea swept in on a Japanese convoy off Swatow, sinking a destroyer and an 8,000-ton freighter-transport and badly damaging a

Reds Cite Nazi Massacre Cases

LONDON, April 9. (AP) — Two wehrmacht field marshals and 86 other Germans were named responsible for the death of 577,000 persons in concentrations camps in Latvia and the deportation of 175,000 others as slave labor in a 6,000-word report tonight by a Soviet investigating committee.

Field Marshals von Model and Schoerner, Army group commanders, were blamed for the crimes in the report which a Moscow broadcast said was made by a group of prominent Soviet Latviars and Russians.

At least 170,000 civilians, including women and children, were slaughtered in mass extermination camps near Riga, it was charged.

Fiends Spare No One

"The German fiends spared no one," the report said. "They murdered men and women, healthy and sick, children and old people. In the central prison in Riga they murdered more than 2,000 children whom they had taken away from parents, and in Salaspils camp they killed more than 3,000 children." In this camp the commission said it found nine gravepits covering a total area of more than 3,600 square yards, and had established that the Germans tortured to death more than 56,000 civilians in the camp.

"In the first and second psychiatric hospitals they killed all the mentally diseased," the report said, citing three instances in which German SS (Elite Guard) police removed a total of more than 2,-2,450 mental defectives from the hospitals in 1942 and "shot all of them in Bikernek forest" on the outskirts of Riga. A hospital doctor testified he was instructed to note on the sick lists simply, "evacuated by SS police."

City Residents Slain

"The Germans also killed residents of Riga and its suburbs in Bikernek, Dreilin and Rumbul forests," the report continued. "In Bikernek forest, located on the outskirts of Riga, the Hitlerites shot 46,500 civilians."

One witness living near the forest told the commission he counted 41 buses in one morning during a two-day movement of doomed persons just before Easter, 1942. On Easter Sunday he said many residents went to the place of

Sam Rayburn Says Tough Peace Wanted

WASHINGTON, April 9 (AP) — Speaker Rayburn said today the people "want a tough peace — tough enough so that their children and grandchildren will not have to see another war."

Just returned from a visit to his Texas home, Rayburn told a news conference: "They will have no patience with anybody who believes in any other kind of peace." He added: "of course, I wasn't in an isolationist territory."

"The people as I found them back home," he said, "are interested in two things: 1. Winning the war and doing it mighty quick; 2. They are tremendously interested in the kind of peace we are going to have."

Chairman May (D-Ky) of the House military committee, just back from his Kentucky home said: "That's just how my people feel. They want the war finished off in the George Patton style."

House Outlaws Closed Shop

AUSTIN, April 9. (AP)—A rapidly growing log jam of legislation was loosened slightly today with final House approval of a bill outlawing the closed shop.

The bill, approved in the House by a vote of 68 to 63, removed from the House calendar a measure which has frequently blocked consideration of other measures. It now goes to the Senate.

The general session was entering its fourth month but a plan for adjournment had not crystalized. The Senate discussed this subject at some length and then laid on the table, subject to future call, a proposal to end the session May 12, with the added provision that the Senate meet on the second Tuesday in June and January to consider confirmation of the governor's appointees.

Survives Tough Fight

The highly controversial anti-closed shop bill (H. B. 12) survived attempts to postpone consideration and to kill it outright before the final vote was reached.

Proponents urged its approval as a means of guaranteeing jobs to returning soldiers without the necessity of them joining a union against their will. Opponents asserted it was designed only to destroy organized labor.

The measure proposes that:

No one shall be discriminated against because of membership or nonmembership in a union.

An employer may not enforce different hours of work, working conditions or pay upon an employe because of membership or nonmembership in a union.

No employer may enter a contract requiring employes to be

LAAF Has Big Part As AAF Trains Half Million Fliers

LUBBOCK Army Air field has graduated a total of 7,008 pilots for the mightiest aerial force the world has ever known—the USAAF — in a little more than three years of operation, it was announced Monday simultaneously with the release of a six-year summary from Lt.-Gen. Barton K. Yount's AAF Training command headquarters at Fort Worth.

Revealing for the first time the complete story of the vast training program which has built the AAF into the striking force it is today, officials of the training command opened the books on the seemingly miraculous job accomplished in meeting the challenge of the Nazi Luftwaffe and Japanese Air force.

LAAF also contributed to the ground course training by turning in a total of 975 mechanics trained in the post technical schools when the field got under way and men needed to maintain the planes at the big field. Most of these men were recruited in this area and trained to keep 'em flying at the field when it was turning out the thousands of pilots.

Training of fliers reached its peak during 1944, although facilities and personnel of the training command were sharply reduced during the last six months of the year, the summary showed. During the latter part of 1944, the training of fliers, as well as technicians, was reduced in number but not before some 619,350 airmen and technicians had been turned out from command installations.

The net effect of the summary

Her eyes narrow into a catlike squint as she indulges in some venomous remark. Her face lights up in triumph as she feels she has made her point.

A DEROGATORY bit of hearsay pulls her mouth down at the corners into aging, ugly wrinkles. Sarcasm brings every line in the face into bitter relief.

Her features move in this constantly changing pattern. Over a period of time, the lines become permanent and the woman's favorite pastime is stamped indelibly upon her face as a dead giveaway to all who meet her.

It goes without saying that gossip is aging. Conversely, if you "Do unto others as you would have done unto you," you'll avoid a lot of beauty misery.

It is the woman who cultivates many laughter, kindness, and tolerance on whom age is slow to appear and for whom the problem of retaining beauty is without effort or terror.

FOOD—What's it going to be like when you go to market after the war? Much of the food you buy likely will be quick frozen. On the other hand, fresh fruits and vegetables, when they are out of season in your own section, will be flown over-night from other parts of the country. They will be in as beautiful condition as if they had come from your garden or orchard.

We will have learned a lot about food and families will be the healthier for it. Heaven forbid, however, that we should take to absorbing all necessary nutriment from fine little pills. Human nature would, we feel, rebel in such a case. Eating good looking, good tasting food is too much fun to give up. At least that's the way we feel about it. Do you agree?

POOR, LITTLE ETC.

DURING the years that Shirley Temple was growing from babyhood into adolescence, we noted articles written or dictated by her mother that set out her daughter was missing none of the natural pleasures afforded other little girls. She had birthday parties, entertained with "slumber parties" for her little friends, had "treats" at the drug store, and attended prescribed classes, although from a governess, rather than in a school room. We think what Mrs. Temple was trying to have Shirley's admiring fans understand that she was in no sense a "poor little rich girl."

Well little Shirley grew, as all little girls do and now at the ripe old age of sixteen she is announcing her engagement to a 24-year-old Army sergeant. The story adds that "there will not be a marriage for two, perhaps three years, because we promised mother."

On reading that breath-taking article Monday we wondered if Mrs. Temple thinks it natural for a 16-year-old girl to accept an engagement ring. Most of the 16-year-old girls we know are looking forward to college, sororities, a period of teas and dances and swimming parties, of week ends, of not even "going steady" for quite a while. Of course a few, more mature for their age than others, have thought seriously of marriage. But the majority, because of their mothers' training, expect to enjoy a time of young womanhood before they accept the responsibilities of a home.

We wonder should Shirley Temple marry within the next few years, if she will ever look with regret on the carefree years of girlhood she missed?

Make This Home Recipe To Take Off Ugly Fat

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Barcel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it.

If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Rites Held For Shooting Victim

ODESSA, April 9. (Special) — Funeral services were read here this afternoon for Lester R. Giles, 44, slain here late Sunday morning.

Jack Henry, 45, was under a charge of murder with malice in connection with the shooting.

Both are used car dealers who lived here, and both formerly had lived "in and out" of Lubbock in connection with their used car activities.

The body of Giles will be sent to Tennga, Ga., where the parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Giles live. He also had three sisters.

Giles, known as "Red", was described by Ector County Attorney W. O. Shafer as a former convict. He was said to have been on parole.

On Police Record Here

(Lubbock police department files listed an "L. R. (Red) Giles" as having been handled by that department in 1932. Bill Mabray, chief of detectives, said Giles was arrested as an "escapee" and that he had gone to the penitentiary five years for theft over $50, from Breckenridge, then listed as his residence, and one year for prohibition law violation from Midland county).

Today's charge was signed by Sheriff Hugh Ratliff and filed by County Attorney Shafer in the court of Randolph Gillespie, justice of peace, who set bond of $5,000 binding Henry over to a 70th judicial district grand jury. The jury adjourned last week subject to call, will be summoned back this Thursday. S. F. Hurt is foreman.

Giles Shot Four Times

Officials said Henry, also associated with another Odessa man in a dance hall operation, was arrested after Giles had been shot four times with an automatic shotgun, at 11:15 o'clock in northeast Odessa, near the yard of a residence. Giles had been hit twice in the chest, once in the leg and once in the arm, it was related.

Henry had made no statement late this morning, the county attorney said. No eyewitnesses to the shooting had been produced. Investigation was being continued.

The principals, the county attorney said he had been informed, had had trouble for two years.

No Motive Uncovered

"No direct motive leading to Giles' death has been uncovered, however." Bob Moore, Odessa American reporter, quoted Shafer as saying.

Shafer said it was believed that neither Henry nor Giles had been drinking prior to the shooting.

Henry is married and has at least one child, it was understood here.

Giles was believed divorced. His parents live in Georgia, friends said.

No announcement of funeral services had been made.

BOTH GILES AND HENRY HAD DONE BUSINESS HERE

Both Lester R. (Red) Giles and Jack Henry had "done business" in Lubbock at various times and had "lived in and out of Lubbock," used car salesmen and distributors here said Monday.

Giles had "put up" at a tourist camp, and Henry had been a salesman.

Tech Exes Rally Is Scheduled Tonight; McQuillen To Speak

More than 300 ex-students of Texas Tech are expected for a special college rally, designed to create more interest and activity in the Lubbock county chapter of the Tech Ex-Student association, to be held at 8:30 p. m. tonight, at Lubbock hotel.

Functions of an effective ex-student association will be explained by E. E. McQuillen, executive secretary of the ex-student association at Texas A&M college, who will assist in outlining and formulating future work plans for members of the organization. Since the Lubbock county chapter of the Tech Ex-Student association is the only one that has been active since 1942, plans are to make this a permanent organization in order that all work of the entire association can be continued through this one chapter.

McQuillen, Dr. W. M. Whyburn, Tech president, and Dr. Gib Gilchrist, president of Texas A&M, will be honored guests at a private informal dinner to be given at 7 o'clock tonight at the hotel.

Three In One School Meet To Be Here This Weekend

Three Schools To Enter Class AA

A three in one school meet scheduled here Friday and Saturday, will provide a three cornered fight in the Class AA division with both track and tennis teams from Plainview, Lamesa and Lubbock battling for top honors in the meet.

Class A and Class B will be run off at the same time in the city with both facilities at Lubbock High school and Texas Tech being called into service to care for the events.

Brownfield, the fourth team eligible to enter the meet will not be entered in the meet, according to reports from Brownfield.

Three Divisions Here

The three divisions will run off the track and field meet at Chapman field. Class AA tennis will be played off at Dupre courts at 20th and Avenue U, with A and B using the Texas Tech courts.

Preliminaries in the Class AA track and field events will be held Saturday morning, with the finals at the same site in the afternoon. The finals will start at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

There has ben little chance this year to determine the relative strength of the Class AA foes, but one of the fastest and best meets of the year is expected in this division, with a number of old records due to be dropped from the record books.

Lamesa Names Squads

The Lamesa Golden Tornados announced a twelve man squad this week, and will be on hand for the show Saturday. Coach H. S. Fitzgerald has not had his club too active in the area this season, but reports indicate that the team will be in top shape.

Dan Boone, Orville Neiman, Eugene Eudy, Pat Patterson, Tobby Reed, Bill Taylor, C. T. Beckham, Edgar Hawkins, Bryant Clark, Allan Smithson, Roy Parker and J. B. Henley, jr., were named as the Lamesa track squad.

What events these will enter was not announced. The Plainview squad has not been announced.

The Lamesa tennis team, always one of the strongest on the South Plains, will be on hand with another full team. H. L. Crouch and Dan Terry were named as the Lamesa boys doubles team, with Glenn White named as the singles entry by Coach H. J. Sanders.

Mrs. John Flache, coach of the girls tennis team has named Dorothy Burleson in singles, with Polly Carroll and Anne McGuire in doubles.

The Lubbock tennis entries will be David Hester in boys singles, with David Rowland and Vernon Bradley in doubles. The girls will be represented by Juanice Bagwell in singles, and Betty Jo Tyson and Margaret Hawkins in the doubles.

Brownfield Gets Assistant Coach

BROWNFIELD, April 9. (Special)—The hiring of W. A. Bishop as assistant coach at Brownfield High school marks the first step of an increased athletic program of the school for the future, it was announced here today by Supt. T. E. McCollum.

Bishop lettered in football, basketball and track at East Texas State Teachers college at Commerce, and has been coaching this year at Anton High school. Bishop will assist Head Coach Johnny Bost in football, and be head coach of basketball and tennis. Bost will coach track.

Brownfield has not taken part in track and tennis, and only this year returned to basketball. Work is being started to put the tennis courts into shape, and build a suitable track for the return to these sports next year.

McCollum also stated that efforts were being made to hire a junior high coach.

Bomar Rolls Another Perfect 300 Game

CHICAGO, April 9 (AP)—Buddy Bomar of Chicago bowled his 36th perfect 300 game yesterday as he and Bill Flesch of Chicago wound up their 15-game challenge match with Jim Allburn and Lud Olson of Erie, Pa., with a 6,756 to 5,754 victory.

Bomar averaged 250.4 in the five games yesterday afternoon, and averaged 237.9 for all ten games rolled yesterday and last night. He and Flesch, National match game doubles champions, had started off with a 446-pin lead in Saturday night's five-game block, and won each succeeding block easily.

Medical Officers Go Into Tourney Finals

Medical Officer's volleyball team defeated Hangar 3 in two games Monday afternoon, 15-12 and 15-2, to go into the finals of the Lubbock Army Air field post tournament.

The Medical team will meet the Squadron A group at 6 o'clock tonight, or possibly Wednesday, for the last tilt.

VETERAN VS. ROOKIE

ST. LOUIS, April 9. (AP)—Veteran Al Hollingsworth was nominated by Manager Luke Sewell of the St. Louis Browns today to oppose Rookie Ken Burkhardt of the Cardinals in the third game of the City Series tomorrow.

The series is now even at one game each.

Big Field Ready For A-B Events

A dark haired speedster from the oil country around Denver City is expected to steal the show here Saturday in the Class A track and field show that will draw one of the biggest fields of the season to Lubbock's Chapman field to battle for places in the regional meet at Canyon.

Strong teams from O'Donnell, Tahoka, Andrews, Seminole, Levelland and Denver City are expected to take the field Saturday in the Class A battle for track and field honors, with Denver City's W. C. Harrison cast in the featured role of the triple feature.

Some Not Entered

Such schools as Morton, Olton, Littlefield, Sudan, Post, Seagraves and Slaton are eligible for the Class A meet, but to date have not posted their entries with Supt. Elmer Moore at Levelland.

Harrison has been the outstanding performer in this section of the state this season, and single handed carried Denver City to third place in the Sand Hill Relays at Odessa last week, and has been burning the track down in a number of top meets this season. He is entered in the three shorter dashes, high jump and shot put, and is expected to come out of these five events as the top scorer of the meet.

The track and field show in Class B is expected to be a wide open battle, with no outstanding team or individual having been named to date from any of the four districts to battle for honors.

Three Leaders Known

In Lubbock county's District 7, the meet last week was dominated by Idalou, Dickens was the top team in District 7, and won by an impressive margin that stood them out as one of the toughest teams in the meet. In District 9, the Meadow school won top honors, but was closely pressed by Ropes and Wilson. Wilson won the overall championship with 121 points, nosing out Meadow's 115 points.

Sundown came out of District 9 with a strong tennis team, taking off girls singles, and both the boys doubles and singles. Meadow won the girls doubles to break the strangle hold of the Sundown team.

Idalou, Shallowater and Cooper all had strong winners in the tennis from District 7.

Schools in District 6 are Amherst, Anton, Bovina, Bula, Lazbuddy, Oklahoma, Pettit, Spade, Spring Lake, Sudan Junior High and Whitharrel. District 8 takes in Jayton, Lorenzo, McAdoo, Patton Springs, Robertson and Dickens. District 9 schools were Brownfield Junior High, Meadow, New Home, Pep, Plains, Ropes, Southland, Sundown, Union (Terry), Wellman and Whiteface. Schools in District 10 are Ackerly, Dawson (Welch), Flower Grove, Klondike, Loop, Sparenberg, Union (Dawson).

Boston Braves Please Coleman

WASHINGTON, April 9. (AP) — Big Bob Coleman today headed for home with his Boston Braves, satisfied that he has a first-division National League club.

As the Braves broke camp at Georgetown university, Coleman said:

"Yep, I'm optimistic about our chances of finishing in the first four. My only worry is whether we have pitching in depth.

"We've had wonderful training weather, the boys are in good shape, and we certainly are much better off on the manpower situation than we were at any time last season."

The Braves have a potential "big five" pitching corps of Jim Tobin, Nate Andrews, Al Javery, Charley Barrett and Johnny Hutchins, but there are these problems:

Tobin is a holdout, Barrett has not yet reported, and Andrews and Javery have experienced sore-arm trouble this spring.

Andrews was considered the club's leading hurler last season with a 16-15 record and an earned-run average of 3.22.

For some "depth" pitching, the Braves might now look to Ira Hutchinson, with a 9-7 record in 1944, and Jimmy Wallace, a southpaw, which is something the club didn't have all last year. Wallace is an Army dischargee.

Around the infield, the Braves figure they are stronger at every position, and are a lot faster in the outfield while retaining their batting punch in Tommy Holmes, Butch Nieman and Charley Workman.

Dick Culler, Frank Drews and Tommy Nelson, American Association graduates, and Eddie Joost, out of baseball in 1944, have given the infield stability along with two new first sackers, Joe Mack, from Columbus, and Vince Shupe, from Hartford.

The Braves figured they needed defensive speed in the outfield and they've now got it in Bill Ramsey, speed merchant from the Coast League, in center field, and Carden Gillenwater, right field, from St. Paul.

Nothing is wrong with the catching, headed by Phil Masi, only man left from the pre-war squad, and Clyde Kluttz.

PRO GRIDDER KILLED

NORTH BERGEN, N. J., April 9. (AP)—Second Lt. Al Blozis, 26, former National A.A.U. indoor and outdoor shotput champion and an all-league tackle for the New York Giants in the National Professional football League, was killed in action in the Vosges mountains in France on Jan. 29, the War department notified his family yesterday.

TIGERS BUMP CHISOX

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 9. (AP)—The Detroit Tigers exploded for seven runs in the eighth inning to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 9 to 6, here today and even their series at two victories each.

PIRATES ARE CRIPPLED

MUNCIE, Ind., April 9. (AP)—A somewhat crippled Pittsburgh Pirates team played an intra-squad game today and the regulars beat the "Yanigans," 16-8.

Country Club Maps Initial Major Tournament Of Year

A high-low golf tournament, the first of four major tournaments planned for this year at the Lubbock Country club was announced for this week-end, with members due to qualify Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Sixty-four players will be selected for the championship bracket of 32 teams, with another bracket formed if enough interest is shown in the meet. The low qualifier will be paired with the 64th man, the No. 2 man with the No. 63 man and on through the list in this order. Scoring will be on the basis of total score of each team, making one point to the hole match play.

HOLE IN ONE

J. R. Farmer, formerly of Lubbock and now living in Big Spring, is still telling all who will listen to him about the ace he scored last weekend at the Lubbock Country club course on the ninth hole. Farmer was visiting at the club while in Lubbock and was playing a round over old familiar haunts with some friends. Other members of the foursome were not named.

Prizes will be given in war bonds and stamps with as many flights as there are entries. Entry fee is $1.

Two big handicap tournaments and a club championship are planned for later in the year to complete the four major tournaments of the year.

Dupre Wins Twin Bill Over Guadalupe Clubs

The boys division of the Lubbock grade school championship race in the volleyball league was thrown into a tie for the top, with a chance of a third team moving into the deadlock when the Dupre Dogies upset Guadalupe boys Monday afternoon, 41-13.

Hunt's Pioneers is a half game behind, with one more game to play with Wilson, and will be favored to win this and enter the tie.

The Dupre girls made it a clean sweep by winning over Guadalupe 36-25 in the other half of the twin bill.

Rube Melton of the Brooklyn Dodgers yielded but one home run in 187 innings last season.

Committee Sets A New Date To Meet

CHICAGO, April 9. (AP) — The major leagues will meet in Cleveland Tuesday, April 24, to consider and act upon the report of a nominating committee assigned to sift the field of candidates for a successor to the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis as baseball commissioner.

The meeting was called today by Leslie M. O'Connor, chairman of the major league advisory council, at the request of Presidents Will Harridge and Ford Frick of the American and National leagues.

O'Connor said the joint session would take "any and all action deemed proper and desirable" regarding the committee's recommendation.

The four-member committee, composed of Donald L. Barnes of the St. Louis Browns, Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals, Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians, and P. K. Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, recently announced it was ready to make its report.

Chicago Cubs Nose Out Cincinnati, 6-5

Senators Pressed To Beat Semi-Pro Nine

WASHINGTON, April 9. (AP) — The Washington Senators had to rally in the last half of the ninth inning today in order to defeat the Martin Bombers, a semi-pro team from Baltimore, 4-3, at College park.

Fred Vaughn walked to open the Senators' last turn at bat, stole second and scored the winning run on a single by Ed Butka.

County Studies Comfort Station

A sympathetic interest in a proposal for erection of a city-county comfort station here was taken Monday when members of the county commissioners court in semi-monthly business session agreed to join the city commission in a special meeting Friday afternoon to study the proposal further.

Judge Walter Davies presided at the meeting attended by a full commission composed of P. B. Penney, Vol J. Farris, Ben Mansker and Tom Holt.

Earl Collins, chairman of a chamber of commerce committee studying the comfort station plan, presented his committee's findings and suggestions and William T. Strange, local architect, outlined the type of building believed best suited for the project. The suggested plan, subject to approval and—or changes on the part of either or both city and county commissions, calls for an underground building of circular construction which would form a base for a war memorial shaft to be constructed later and bear the names of all the county's dead of World Wars I and II.

Committeemen present at the meeting today, in addition to Chairman Collins, were J. A. Fortenberry, Chas. A. Guy and M. Dunleith Fanning.

Cost of the project, said Chairman Collins, should be "less than $50,000" and location suggested was the center of the west side of the courthouse square about 50 feet east of the Texas Ave. sidewalk. Four separate entrances, for white and negro men, white and negro women, would be arranged.

Collins said his committee would meet with the City commission at its next regular meeting on Thursday afternoon to outline plans as they were presented to the county commission today.

Commissioners otherwise allowed routine bills and accounts, including one for $512.08 for machinery parts supplied by R. B. George Co., to be paid out of road and bridge funds in commissioner precinct 3.

At the afternoon session, the court informed the commission that the War Production board had approved issuance of materials necessary to improvements of toilet rooms of the old folks home and of the courthouse basement, and O. R. Walker, architect, will call for bids. The court had decided improvements would not exceed $8,212.89 for the courthouse, $1,151.74 for the old folks home.

Judge Davies recessed the court until 10 o'clock Thursday morning, when Commissioner Mansker said he wanted to refer to the court a matter on road improvement contracts for his precinct.

STRICKEN CHILD DIES

SAN ANTONIO, April 9 (U.P.)—Tiny, 19 months old Vesta Ann Miller, suffering from an incurable heart ailment, died last night, in a San Antonio hospital. The case attracted wide attention through Mrs. Miller's pleas for an emergency leave for her husband who was serving with the Navy overseas. He was present when the child died.

PROFITS STALL ADVANCE

NEW YORK, April 9 (AP)—Scattered stocks managed to get in the market's plus column today but buying confidence generally was lacking and sufficient profit cashing cropped up in the final hour to stall many leaders.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .1 of a point at 60.6. The market lacked breadth, only 829 issues registering. Of these, 318 were up, 306 down and 205 unchanged.

M-K-T common and preferred pushed upward on word the shareholders' contest for control of the road had been settled but retreated later and the senior stock finished down a point with the junior issue up ⅝.

Distillers corp. advanced 1⅝. Lesser improvement was retained by Great Northern, Pennsylvania, American Telephone and Texas Co. American Water Works touched a 1945 peak in the forenoon but was thrown for a net loss of ⅛. On the offside were Santa Fe, U. S. Steel, Anaconda, General Electric and Kennecott.

Bonds were moderately steady.

Cotton . .

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, April 9 (AP) — Cotton futures made new seasonal highs here today. The rise was attributed largely to price fixing and buying encouraged by predictions of a huge demand for cotton textiles after the war. Smaller private acreage estimates also entered the picture. Closing prices were very steady 25 cents to $1.05 a bale higher.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, April 9 (AP)—The cotton futures market rallied to new seasonal high ground for gains of 30 cents to $1 a bale in active trading today featured by heavy demand for the new crop months.

Buying by commissions houses and locals was inspired partly by unfavorable crop reports and expectations of heavy demand for textiles in the post-war period. The combination of these developments, many traders believed, may boost cotton prices to parity without the aid of a purchase program next season.

Private reports stated weather conditions are retarding planting.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, April 9 (AP)—The average price of middling 15/16ths inch cotton today at ten designated southern spot markets was 30 cents a bale higher at 21.92 cents a pound (new season high); average for the past 30 market days 21.77; middling ⅞ths inch average 20.67.

Placing Responsibility

"Big Three" Hold World's Fate

THE United States, Britain and Russia are taking the lead in charting plans for permanent peace through world co-operation and it is entirely fitting and proper that they do so. More than any other combination of nations, they are responsible for the assured victory over the forces of Germany and Japan. More than any other combination of nations, they will be responsible for leading the world to a permanent peace if that is possible in the light of human nature.

Tearing down the brutal, domineering forces of the Axis nations and overthrowing their desires to saddle their particular brand of slavery upon the whole world, is one thing. Substituting something better, in the post-war world, is something else. When the Allies win the war, certainly their global job will be only pratically complete.

We liked the comment the other day by Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, USNR, former highly successful governor of Minnesota who will be an American representative at the forthcoming conference in San Francisco. Observed he:

"If either the United States, or Russia, or Great Britain decide in the next 25 years to make war, then there will be another war and no organization, or league, or union will stop it."

That is being honest. That is being practical—that is impressing upon the world the fact that the "Big Three," during the next two generations, at least, will hold the fate of war or peace in their individual hands.

Let none of the three forget it—or shirk their responsibility to the human race.

Freedom For Filipinos

ALTHOUGH the Philippines have not been entirely freed of Japs, economic rehabilitation of the islands already is under way. Paul P. Steintorf, newly-appointed consul general to Manila, is on the ground and has set up shop.

Millions of dollars worth of essential consumer goods will be marketed. Half-million tons of food, clothing, hardware, drugs, chemicals and seeds will be provided by the United States Commercial corporation, a unit of the Foreign Economic administration.

While the immediate task is to feed and clothe a people distressed by three years of Jap occupation, the principal one is to restore the Filipinos to self-sufficiency. It has been made plain the United States does not want to take over economic operations of the islands. Once the need for emergency help is passed, the Philippines will be on their own. Already their own government has been restored. The United States will extend a helping hand only so long as that seems necessary.

Independence for the Philippines had been promised before the war. This promise will be fulfilled, perhaps on the date previously set. It has been suggested that an appropriate date would be next August 13, the 47th anniversary of occupation by American forces during the Spanish-American War. More conservative elements contend the date should be postponed, that the islands will not be in position to manage their own affairs that soon.

But whatever the date of their independence, Filipinos can depend on continued support from Uncle Sam, having earned it by three years of bravery and fortitude.

Gentle Art Of Sleeping

THERE are many erroneous ideas about sleep, declares Dr. Samuel Henshaw of Ohio State university, who has added to a report of a study made by Colgate university.

The Henshaw and Colgate findings are summarized by Gretta Palmer in the current issue of Woman's Home Companion. She says that tossing in bed isn't a sign of unrestful sleep because the average person changes positions 35 times during an eight-hour sleep. Some other findings are:

Men are more restless than women by a third, the average number of vivid dreams is two a week. Healthiest position is to stretch out with a slight sag at knees, sleeping on the left side isn't hard on the heart, as it makes no difference whether the sleeper is on his back, or either side.

Most American couples sleep in double beds, the percentage of single bed couples is but 13. The report attacks the statement that Napoleon and Edison slept but little. It asserts that both took naps during the daytime and therefore got in almost eight hours.

Now all these academic findings make good reading, especially since everybody likes to sleep, but they aren't likely to be accepted in their entirety. The fellow who dreams, or "snores his head off," when sleeping on his back; those who believe discomfort from sleeping on their left sides comes from the heart, and many others with their own, individual sleeping preferences aren't going to take the word of the college probers from "a" to "izzard."

They're going ahead sleeping when and as they like—despite the professors!

We don't know much about women, except that they spend about a third of their waking hours doing something to their hair or fingernails, and that their feet hurt all the time.

THE STORY: As Frederick is dressing for his concert at the Salle Pleyel, a letter arrives from his sister in Warsaw. She tells how the friends who aided Frederick's escape from Poland have been caught and beaten to death.

THE SALLE PLEYEL

The Salle Pleyel and Frederic knows. Certainly he knows. Konstancja and Louis Pleyel and Monsieur Pleyel proposing a concert for Czarist blood men. Tra la, tra la, tra la. In Paris they sing, in Warsaw they weep and everywhere feet, but some are in boots and the difference every time is where your heart is. Indeed, Madame. Thank you, Monsieur. Very charming is the world tonight. And the lady, who is she? Ah, yes, Madame Sand. She waves from a box. She laughs at Jan and she laughs at Tytus. Ho, ho! —not you, Jan. For Jan is beaten and Jan is dead but he will lift his head. Oh, most certainly, Alfred! Pretty Alfred, Put your elbow to him, Franz. Ah, Liszt! —and he too is waving from the box to the stage.

—The night is hot and tonight is here but Mozart anyway and already they applaud, yes, before the first note is struck. Wait, my friends, and you will hear the singing and the groans, for Jan will lift his head and from his dead mouth will issue forth— No, I don't joke. You will hear. Sh— my Polonaise will delight, yes delight, and frighten and terrify. Put away the fans, put away the lorgnettes and hold your nostrils from the perfume and the stench while the dead voice—No!—the voice of the dead.

—Do you know, Madame, I have heard the scandal and I do not believe a blessed word of it but perhaps that is because I have not been in Paris very long. Yet I think I would not believe it anyway; although I love scandal as much as anyone. Now if you will excuse me, Madame, I will put away the Mozart that you have come to hear—or would you have a minute while Poland bleeds? I do indeed believe you would. Forgive me, Madame. Forgive me, Monsieur.

—Ready? Yes, ready! Fingers, ready? Yes, ready. Begin! No!—wait, not yet—wait. Let them all get seated. Let them all get comfortable. Let all the scraping stop. Now they are quiet. They are very quiet. Nowhere has it ever been so quiet. Ready? Yes, ready. Fingers, ready? Yes, ready. In Paris they sing, in Warsaw they weep and everywhere feet, but some are in boots and the difference every time is where the heart is. And what can I do so far away? Groan. Yes, groan and suffer and pour out despair!

The fingers struck—harder—harder—the eyes fastened on a bleeding homeland. They were blind to the astonished, frightened, amused, sneering faces in the Salle Pleyel—

The critic Kalbrenner broke into rude laughter.

—The fury, the sound, the tumultuous chords!

The audience rose amid jeers and laughter. The gabbling, moving, shouting throng had no ear for the thunder—thunder to rend tyrants asunder! The Polonaise, the unfinished Polonaise, the great, Polonaise!

The Salle Pleyel was empty.

Louis Pleyel confronted Jozef Elsner. He threw out his hands. "Outrageous!" he screamed. "Outrageous!"

"—Louis—Louis—" The words choked Jozef Elsner. "Louis—I can explain—I will explain—it would never happen again—"

"I assure you it will not!"

Then Louis Pleyel too was gone and Jozef Elsner in the street looked this way, then that, but Frederic was not anywhere about and there was no one to say a word, good or bad, to the old master.

Jozef Elsner was in Paris alone.

Frederic returned to No. 27 Boulevard Poissoniere sometime in the night. The fiasco at the Salle Pelyel was nothing; the theme of the great Polonaise was everything.

The rooms were dark. He did not light the candles. He did not look into Jozef Elsner's room but went immediately into his own. He was not sleepy. He sat on his bed in the dark, fully clothed.

—The world was the same. Nothing had happened. The events of the past few hours—even Izabela's letter to Professor Elsner—seemed unreal. Through the window he saw the stars, and they too were real. Paris was asleep. But not one in the great and gay capital of France had his head on Frederic Chopin.

He took off his clothes. He stretched out on the bed but he could not sleep. The Polonaise'—it was beating in his head. He closed his eyes but the sleep would not come. Then suddenly he was asleep. He was awake also. The themes that raced through his head, awake or asleep, disturbed him, added to his exhaustion.

Then he sat up. He rubbed his eyes. He listened.

—Frederic, you have done it—yes, the right thing, and it was no fiasco, because you have given voice—"

"Who are you?"

He peered into the darkness.

"—You will play before a thousand people, and they will all be shouting, each and every one of them, 'Bravo! Bravo!' Ah, there will be talk when they hear you—"

"Professor!"

No answer.

"Professor!"

"—For thousands and thousands who have no voice, who cannot speak—you will speak, not from your little cave, but from the public platform—"

"Professor! Help me, Professor —help me!"

Frederic was still asleep.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

SIR THOMAS Beecham, famous conductor of the British Symphony orchestra, said in a recent interview in Buffalo that "today's music has no past and little future."

The last time I wrote something in which I said that most classical music leaves me cold, I had dozens of letters calling me a lowbrow, a saboteur of art and other uncomplimentary names.

So, before writing this, I discussed it with quite a few people representing different types—musicians, teachers, housewives, business men and others who make up the American scene.

Music, apparently, means many things to many people.

Some — and they are in the minority — look upon music just as others look upon mathematics or intricate chemical formulae.

BRANDEIS

The more difficult it is the more they appreciate it.

But to the average person involved arpeggios and glissandos and acrobatic tonal maneuvers don't mean a thing.

They want to feel their music and enjoy it just like they feel and enjoy the beauty of a rose or the inspiring grandeur of a sunset.

I agree with Sir Beecham that our age has not produced a Beethoven or a Verdi or a Bizet.

But I wonder whether, if these men were alive today, they would write the same kind of music they wrote in their times.

I believe that music and painting and writing are expressions of the age in which we live.

I believe that "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning" and "Don't Fence Me In" and the "Rhapsody in Blue" are more characteristic of our era of nervous energy and quick achievement and constant change than Carmen or Beethoven's Fifth Symphony or Handel's Messiah.

Perhaps our present-day music has no future. I am sure it has no past.

But America doesn't live in the past.

Today is America's A-day. America is action, achievement, ambition, aliveness, advancement, ability and abundance.

America believes that a job well done today will take care of the future without worrying about it.

I AGREE with Sir Beecham that "Yet, We Have No Bananas" and "Mairzy Doats" haven't much of a future.

But didn't we enjoy them while they lasted? Weren't they a lot of fun on the day that was once today?

Don't think for a moment that I don't honor the classics in music, in the arts, literature.

But frankly, I don't spend much time in museums, at Carnegie Hall or in the libraries.

Yesterday is dead and gone. Tomorrow is so uncertain.

But today the sun is shining, it's Spring, there are kids playing outside and Deuce, my dog, is whining at my feet, ball in his mouth, all set to play.

So, singing "Don't Fence Me In," Deuce and I are going out and become part of Spring.

Yesterday it was Winter. Pretty soon it will be Winter again.

But today is your day and my day, Sir Thomas Beecham notwithstanding.

Military Opposes Final Report

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE military production planners take violent exception to James F. Byrnes final report promising gradual resumption of civilian manufacture on the ground that it is so optimistic it will mislead a hungry, consuming public.

Byrnes, in their opinion, misunderstood or misinterpreted the real meaning of the schedules for output of weapons which they have framed as a guide to American industry anxious to reconvert its factories.

Besides contributing to the prospective death of the work-or-fight bill which they considered essential, they insist that he has painted a false picture and created a state of mind which may lead to a general letdown after the defeat of Hitler.

TUCKER

The officers of the High Command have always waived all considerations save those directly associated with battlefield victory. That is their assignment. But at times they have given only scant attention to domestic necessities, to the maintenance of morale at home and to a nice balance between production for the front line and for the people behind the guns.

In this respect they have a somewhat totalitarian philosophy—a factor which accounts for the transfer of Maj. Gen. Lucious Clay from the War Mobilization office to the post of adviser to Gen. "Ike" Eisenhower and economic controller of liberated lands in Europe. He opposed any reconversion until the Stars and Stripes should fly over Hirohito's palace.

Nevertheless, the Army-Navy reaction to the Byrnes program is thought to be extremely significant, for the military will seek to weaken or wipe out his V-E day pledges in future dealings with President Roosevelt and with Fred Vinson, the newly appointed War Mobilizer and Reconversion director. They regard the Byrnes resignation as a gain to them.

RECONVERSION: An understandable secrecy must surround the details of blueprints which the joint Chiefs of Staff have drawn as a basis for the maximum output necessary to crush both branches of the Axis. But the reasons behind the hostile response to the Byrnes report and the Krug follow-up can be expressed in general terms.

The military and naval experts have formulated two distinct production programs. One is predicated on a two-front war (Germany and Japan); it calls for the manufacture, let us say, of a hundred thousand units of a certain weapon. The other is based on a conflict with Japan alone; it requires the making of only 85,000 units of this article, a 15 per cent reduction.

Byrnes, according to this version, promised a first-quarter 15 per cent resumption of manufacture of consumers' goods after a German collapse, forecasting on these two estimates. But the Army-Navy people point out that present-day production of that particular weapon now approximates only 87 per cent, not 100.

Thus the amount is hardly more than will be needed for the Japanese war alone, and there can be no 15 per cent increase in output of other things even when the Nazis finally crack up.

Moreover, the all-out onslaught on Tokyo will require immediately a far larger total of certain material-consuming arms than we are now turning out. These include such things as B-29s, heavy fighter planes, new types of transport to fly the vast distances of the Far Pacific and China, self-propelled artillery and small landing boats.

Since a large part of our present armament in Europe must be kept there for postwar protection or sent to shops for reconditioning, the Marshall-King faction maintains that there can be no reconversion and civilian manufacture of the proportions foretold by Byrnes and Krug.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

NEW YORK corporation executives find a 'joker' in the Byrnes swan song and the Krug prophecy of a resumption of the output of civilian goods.

The hitch is the time element. Krug hints that the rate of production may reach 1939 levels within a year after V-E day. That is a long-range hope.

There may be many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip before Spring 1946. Months may elapse between the date the green light is flashed to a manufacturer and the day the finished article is in the consumer's hands. Meanwhile, customers will encounter serious shortages in the period immediately ahead.

LEMAN

No one knows whether or not Judge Vinson will follow all of his predecessor's policies. War needs are always a question mark. And there is always the erratic Mr. Roosevelt, blowing hot and cold on home front requirements.

This is the prospect at the moment, as leading Manhattan industrialists see it. In some ways their opinions differ from those held by Washington officials but, as the businessmen know their own fields exceedingly well, their pronouncements carry weight.

At the earliest opportunity, they say, raw materials and factories will be released to make the most pressing essentials—repair parts, shoes, certain textiles, transportation equipment—the lack of which would cause the home front economy to break down. The late Spring, Summer and early Fall will be a time of confused reconversion with much backing and filling—made acute, perhaps, by labor troubles.

Until factories can deliver more civilian goods, there will be serious scarcities in many lines. These may not disturb the customers as much as merchandising experts once feared. Retailers, realizing that peace production is just around the corner, may tap inventories saved for a rainy day. (Some have done this already.)

Shoppers, likewise anticipating reconversion, may be content to use what they have, hoping for better styles and quality, and thus will not mob the stores. If both things happen, the pinch will not be so stringent as it might otherwise be.

KICKS: But this does not take Washington into account.

Our economic system is affected not only by supply and demand, it is manipulated by the government. One moment it is controlled by the grim necessities of war; the next it is thrown helter-skelter by the clash of federal agencies or by pressures from congressmen and their constituents.

The President, his ear to the ground, is now in the 'civilian appeasement" stage. People are kicking about dearths of meat, clothes, washing machines, the curfew and other irritations. So he turns his back on the hard-boiled brass hats and allows the impression to gain ground that everything will be much better soon.

There is no assurance to manufacturers, retailers and purchasers that his mood will continue. If German resistance persists; if European distress and disorder mount; if Japan proves tougher than we expect, the military procurement officers may hop back in the saddle—as they did last Fall.

Graying Colonel Keeps The Army Supplied

"Pop" Bliss Does Man-Size Job

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

IN OCCUPIED GERMANY — Col. William C. Bliss who commands the 72nd Ordnance group of the First Army—they call him "Pop"—was talking about the German break-through last December and how they moved the supplies out of reach of the Nazis.

For five days Colonel Bliss didn't take off his clothes or get a wink of sleep.

As he talked of those days, the light from a candle threw into sharp relief his big, round, cheerful face and his ample mustache. He's big all over. The lights had suddenly gone off in the old German house, which his outfit had taken over for a headquarters two weeks before, and the room he used for an office had been thrown into darkness. "It's just that generator," he said, philosophically.

A few minutes later he was interrupted by the telephone. "Yes," I can move out in 24 hours," he said. "Yes. Yes. I'll get going."

This was what I had heard all through this area, in visits to various units of the Supply service. The Supply support was moving closer behind the armies racing across Germany. It was going to be hard to keep up. Moving this Ordnance outfit, too, would be quite a job, I surmised, after spending a whole afternoon visiting just parts of it.

Takes Moving In Stride

But the colonel is an old hand at moving. They were at Verviers when the Nazis broke through, just before Christmas. It became obvious that the Germans were headed toward the supplies of General Hodges' First Army—and it is conceded now that had it worked it would have been a bad setback and prolonged the war for some time.

Colonel Bliss explained that Col. John B. Medaris, who is in charge of all Ordnance for the First Army, had moved over to his headquarters right after the break-through.

"He set up his maps, and I sat there with him and saw the whole military operation as it developed. That was a privilege. I don't usually see all that. He was constantly on the telephone. He had his own radio field network set up, through which he kept in touch every minute."

ON Dec. 20, it was decided to move back to Aywaille.

"We moved in five days. And what a business we were doing! We were moving out, we were receiving new supplies, and we were filling orders—all at once. But we got moved back to Aywaille.

"I didn't go to bed all that time. Then it looked as if the Germans were coming that way and might make it. We had 11 tanks that we had repaired. We put Ordnance men in them and sent them out along the road down which the Germans were coming. But they stopped when they saw those tanks and started around another way. They must have figured we were ready for them there, though all we had between our depot and them were those 11 tanks. That saved us."

Earns Field Promotion

He had another job when his outfit was set up at Aywaille.

"We had to re-fit a whole new army. We got the order to repair and RFI (ready for issue) 6000 army vehicles in 10 days."

They got it done. It was during that operation that Colonel Bliss, then a lieutenant colonel, was raised to a full colonel.

"Colonel Medaris told me one day, 'Well, Pop, I guess you ought to have more rank with this job.' So he had a couple of big eagles made out of aluminum which I had to wear into mess one night—that's the way they do it. I got regular ones later."

COLONEL BLISS is the oldest man in the 2nd Ordnance group. He's 52. Colonel Medaris gave him the name of "Pop" and it stuck.

In the First World war he was the youngest officer in his outfit. In civilian life he is in the foundry business in St. Louis. It is men like Colonel Bliss who make up this democratic Army of ours, on the field and in the Supply service.

12th Army Captures Over Million Nazis

PARIS, April 9 (AP)—Gen. Omar N. Bradley's 12th Army group has captured more than a million Germans on the western front.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army leads with 418,501. Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army, two months older, has taken 405,703 and the Ninth army of Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson has bagged 182,162 for a combined total of 1,006,366.

No figure has been announced for Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow's 15th army, also a part of Bradley's command which includes more than a million American troops. Another American army, the Seventh, had captured almost 200,000 German troops. It is a component of Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers' Sixth Army group.

Monahans Seeks To Extend City Limits

AUSTIN, April 9. (AP) — A bill permitting Monahans to extend its city limits by annexing an area outside its present limits was rushed through the Senate today by H. L. Winfield of Fort Stockton.

Winfield introduced the measure today, secured committee approval and a half hour later the bill had been passed and sent to the House.

Jack Jones of Dickens county was among 22 4-H club boys announced at College Station Monday as having been selected to make an 11-day good will trip to Mexico, the Associated Press reported.

The group will leave Laredo May 28. L. L. Johnson, state boys' club agent for the extension serive, said the objective was to recognize the boys for their past success in producing food and give incentive for future efforts, but added that it was possible the visit might influence starting of similar demonstration work in agriculture by Mexican youths.

The group will spend four days touring the capital city and environs. It will return to Laredo June 7.

Two more boys are to be selected. The 22 selected thus far are from various parts of the state, with Jack Jones the only one from the South Plains.

Frazier Indicted By Morton Jury

MORTON, April 9. (Special)—Already under a life sentence in Lubbock county, Luther Frazier was indicted for theft in the only bill returned here today by a Cochran county 72nd district grand jury.

Frazier, still in jail at Lubbock, is accused of taking grain last Dec. 28 from Jim York's place five miles west of Whiteface.

The life term assessed Frazier, given in 99th district at Lubbock, was on a forgery conviction, the court taking cognizance of two prior felony convictions.

Murder Case Passed

The assault to murder case of Bill Hardin, about 23, was passed until the grand jury re-assembles June 14. Hardin was charged in the shooting April 1 of Arch Huddleston, 40, who was unable to appear before the jury, according to District Attorney Burton S. Burks. Both are Cochran county oil field mechanics.

Huddleston, who was shot in the neck, has been released from a Lubbock hospital, Burks said.

The jury reported to Judge Dan Blair at 6 o'clock after convening at 10 o'clock this morning.

able to keep up with either.

"I have asked the commission several times to relieve me of duties as city attorney.

"Each time I have been asked to remain. It was explained that there would be difficulty in finding any attorney who would want the job—since, with the deductions, it pays only approximately $211.50 a month now.

"I, therefore, have not stepped down, even though I surely would welcome the commission's relieving me of the office. I have as much pride in growth of Lubbock as anyone else—so I don't feel like I can honestly resign until the commission feels it can get someone else, particularly since it has insisted that I remain."

Was Higher Before War

(The office formerly paid $247.50 a month, before the war).

Bradley said the salary of the office is "so small, when compared with the receipts of private practice, that I could not consider giving up entirely the private practice to devote ever-increasing attention to city affairs."

He said the city needs a "full-time city attorney, who would do nothing but attend to city business," but suggested that "such a position should await the end of the war, when it is almost imperative that a new city charter be enacted, as well as many of the ordinances long on the books. I've repeatedly told the commission that. Our old charter was enacted in 1917, definitely is outmoded. It would take a city election to adopt a new charter, but that should be no difficulty then. Many of the ordinances have been affected for years by appellate court decisions."

Based On U. S. Model

Bradley said that the health and sanitation ordinances proposed in drafts submitted last April had been drafted on a proposed model ordinance of the U. S. government.

"I have never found any so-called U. S. model of any law or ordinance that is applicable in entirety to all the various states," Bradley said. "Because of that, in preparing ordinances based on it, it is necessary to read the decisions of Texas courts as they have affected the rights of the public and individuals before saying what provisions are legal in Texas and which ones are not."

He said his changes had been a result of such study, and that he had referred the proposed ordinances back to the commissioners several times, with notations of what he deemed necessary changes.

Baroness Models And Cites Philosophy In Talk To Club Here

Charming and talented Baroness Suzanne Silvercruys interspered modeling of features of a subject chosen from her audience with her philosophy of life, her intimate anecdotes about famous people, and her belief that only through beauty can one find happiness, as she spoke to the Lubbock Knife and Fork club Monday night in the ballroom at Lubbock hotel.

Working upon a wire armature and with moist plasticene, the noted author, sculptress and lecturer demonstrated her skill which has placed her in the pront rank of American sculptors. She modeled the face of petite Mrs. Sybil DeLavan as she spoke, and charmed her audience with her wit, courage and inspiration.

Moments Of Escape

"In these times which try men's souls, when the worries of tomorrow seem to overshadow every hour, when the struggle for material well-being seems to be so difficult, when life itself is of so little value, there should be more than ever the relief of a few minutes of dreams, there should be moments of escape when the soul can rise above all these earthly things,' she declared. "there should be a few minutes devoted to the discovery of beauty and things beautiful all about us, things which we have forgotten to look at, or hear, or feel, in the tedious humdrum and turmoil of every-day existance."

"Nowadays as the whole world seems to alter and all values seem to change, our only true possessions are those our hearts create. . . . More than ever before we should search for beauty now to balance the ugliness of war and greed and death. When victory is won the United States will have to shoulder the immense burden of insuring the peace and of directing politically and internationally the affairs of the world, so that, this time, our boys will not have fought, suffered and died in vain."

Relates Experiences

She related her own experiences of how she became interested in sculptoring through the gift of a friend as she lay ill of tuberculosis in 1925 and told of various little incidents with famous people including former President Herbert Hoover, the Dionnes and Dr. Dafoe and the late Wendell Willkie. She paid tribute to Willkie as a "great man."

The baroness, a native of Belgium, made an urgent appeal for support of the old clothes drive being conducted for United Nations relief at the close of her talk as she told of suffering in her native land after the last war.

was to show the training command had achieved its initial mission and has progressed to another," Lt.-Gen. Yount's statement said. "Its first mission was to provide the training, as individuals of virtually all personnel for the world's largest air force, while that growing air arm was engaging the enemy in everwidening areas of battle throughout the world.

Statistics of the summary, expressed in terms of "courses successfully completed," show that in six years, 1939 through 1944, the training command's network of flying and technical schools produced 533,674 air crew members. They included 184,394 pilots, 43,274 navigators, 41,403 bombardiers and 264,603 aerial gunners.

Having achieved mass production of manpower on an unprecedented scale, the training command is now concentrating on improvement and refinement of its training methods, and on teaching of new skills required by specialized developments in aerial warfare.

In both phases of these missions, LAAF has played and is playing an important role. First, LAAF began its initial mission of training advanced pilots back in 1942, graduating its first class of second lieutenants on April 27, 1942. Many of the 7,008 pilots trained in the first phase are still overseas but many of them have returned to LAAF for the second phase of the AAF Training command's mission.

packed in boxes containing 100 pounds each.

The estimated 1,000 pounds at drive headquarters was not all that had been given up to Monday, since garments collected at some of the receiving centers had not yet been taken to drive headquarters.

All churches, all city schools, three dormitories and the administration building at Texas Technological college, Sears, Roebuck and Co., Montgomery Ward and Co., Hilton and Lubbock hotels, the postoffice, and Lubbock Auto company are places where clothing may be taken.

Deadline of collection in the churches will be Wednesday, Kleinschmidt announced.

The sorting committee, headed by Mrs. George Sessums, is to begin sorting clothing into six groups Wednesday and packing also is to be started that day. H. D. Woods, chairman of shipping, is collecting boxes for packing. Request was made that merchants save wooden or pasteboard boxes which will hold as much as 100 pounds of clothing.

enhower is well on the way toward achievement of his main mission, total destruction of German armies in the west.

Through the gap between the American and Russian forces headed toward Berchtesgaden and substantially equidistant from it pass the only communication lines still connecting Nazi troops in Italy.

American investment of Munich would virtually complete the isolation of Italy and its Nazi garrison as well as split off the German forces in the Black forest for annihilation. That well might be deemed a more important objective than an immediate dash to Berchtesgaden in Allied eyes.

underground dungeons.

"Nobody would believe it," Johnson said. "It had underground chambers with dripping water, bats flying around and little crazy men jumping out at you at every step. . . .

"The director in charge was a big tall Nazi surgeon, about 70-years-old, a graduate of Heidelberg with sabre scars on his face. The chief nurse — her job was to put the death needle into women patients — was about six feet tall and built like a football player. She was as ugly as a witch. The head keeper was a mousey-looking middle-aged man who had been promoted from driving victims to the asylum to the actual job of doing away with them.

First Real Tip-off

"It was the head keeper who gave us the first real tip-off on how the place operated. He told us the asylum never held more than 500 patients and showed us that there were only 481 graves in the cemetery. There were three fresh, empty graves and when we asked him about them he said, 'we always keep three graves ahead.'"

"Capt. Hamilton noticed then that the graves were seven feet or more deep and bulb-shaped. Most German graves now are only a few inches deep. . . . We learned that instead of one body in each grave there were from six to 20. . . ."

The English officer, a veteran of 20 years at London's Bow street police station, said he learned that on one day they took 500 Russians into the place and not one came out alive.

"When we first walked through it the insane inmates, laughing and screaming, followed us around in packs," Hamilton said. "There were dwarfs and stupid giants, but all seemed harmless. Only the sane people there were killed.

Daily "Conference"

"Each morning the surgeon director, the head keeper and the head nurse held a conference and decided on those to be killed during the day. . . . The head keeper gave the men a narcotic which in their weakened condition quickly killed them. The head nurse did the same for the women. When the head keeper wasn't around, one of his assistants did the job.

"One assistant said the doctor was regarded as a kind man because if one of the victims fought against taking the hypo needle the surgeon would not let the attendant beat him into submission. He just let the man go without food until he was too weak to object."

The investigators said the "murder factory" started operating sometime in 1941 and that the gas chambers and crematorium were operated by SS men sent from Berlin.

SS Orgy After 10,000th

"After their 10,000th killing, the SS men had a drinking orgy" Hamilton said. "They cleaned out the skulls of some of their victims and used them as drinking cups. Townspeople and former employes at the asylum testified to this."

The officer said some of the victims were "young children who were half Jews."

"Most of the victims appeared to be Russian men and women workers who couldn't stand the strain of hard work and little food on the German farms and in the factories," he said. "One nurse in the asylum defended the killings, saying it was better for these people to be put away because they were sick and useless, even to themselves.

"There also were many Poles and some Dutch killed. I don't know whether they killed French or Belgians — but we found no evidence to prove they did.

Reports Go To Berlin

"The medical director of the district had to prepare reports on the deaths. These people would seal them and send them in complete secrecy to Berlin. Those were his orders. In most cases the cause of death was given as pneumonia or dysentery.

that such tactical teamwork had actually begun, although it was possible.

More than 5,200 Allied warplanes flailed supply and defense positions in front of the advancing Allies.

The Canadian First Army joined up with Allied First Airborne Army forces, split the lines of two German armies in Holland, and pinned an estimated 80,000 of the enemy back in Holland's largest cities of Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Utrecht and the Hague.

The Canadian Fourth Armored division broke out of its Ems river bridgehead and dashed 17 miles north to Beckhusen, 20 miles from the river's North sea mouth. Closing of this gap would seal off all Holland and possibly double the number of German troops stranded on Dutch soil.

Driving westward, the Canadians came within sight of the Zuider Zee as they shut the door on German forces in southwestern Holland.

All roads out were cut save a hazardous one over the Zuider Zee causeway when Canadian armor fought into the railway junction of Meppel and the Germans blew up the dikes, flooding the 10-mile strip of lowland between there and the Zuider Zee.

One Canadian column, following swiftly at the heels of German forces pulled out of northeast Holland, raced 23 miles northeastward, entered Sogel and pressed on beyond to a point but 28 miles from the North sea and 32 miles from the port of Emden.

Nazis Given No Rest

There was no rest for the Germans either in middle or southern Germany.

The U. S. Seventh Army, held up in bitter fighting on the southern end of its front thrust within 95 miles of Munich, cut loose on the north end. Tanks rumbled out into fairly open country only 65 miles west of the Czech border.

The French First Army fought within nine miles of Stuttgart and was outflanking the Siegfried line anchored in the Black forest, slashing around through the forest's northern fringes.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the 12th Army group, reported that for the past 10 days the Germans had been losing troops at the rate of 50,000 a day in killed, wounded and captured, the heaviest losses yet inflicted in this war on the enemy's armies.

As Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's Ninth Army pounded eastward, a field dispatch said there was not the slightest indication the Germans could organize a good defense line before Berlin.

The Fifth Armored division crossed the Weser and joined the Berlin sweepstakes. The 83rd Infantry in the van was five miles northeast of Gandersheim and about 30 miles southwest of Brunswick.

The 84th Infantry division was leading the assault on Hannover, home town of the last German president, Paul von Hindenburg.

The committee reported investigators at the forst found 55 graves with a total area of more than 30,000 square yards.

Other Massacres

The report also charged massacres in these places: Dreilin forest near Riga, "more than 130,000 civilians and prisoners of war" shot; Rumbul forest, 38,000 civilians slain; Daugavpils (Dvinsh), daily shootings of "hundreds of Soviet citizens kept in prisons and camps," including more than 43,000 at one point on the territory of Zolotaya Gorka; district of Rezekne (Rezhitso), "15,200 civilians including more than 2,000 children" and the entire population of the village of Audriny, destroyed allegedly for helping the Red Army.

The report concluded:

"The extraordinary state commission has established the fact that bloody crimes were committed in the Latvian Socialist republic, destruction of towns and agriculture has been done on explicit orders of the Nazi government and the German command."

. . . and, it's really very thoughtful of you —in a diner

Have you had to stand in line for dining car service?

If so, we're sorry. If not, we're surprised—for Santa Fe is hauling more than three times as many passengers as in the year before Pearl Harbor with the same equipment, because building new dining cars has not been permitted during the war.

Five settings are frequently necessary today—two used to do. Dining car employes are working extra hard, doing the very best they can.

Your own good spirit is sincerely appreciated—especially if you're making it a point these days to release your seat as soon as you've finished eating.

We know how restful it is to enjoy a smoke and newspaper instead of jumping right up. But, with hungry people waiting, including military folks, it's definitely polite now to "eat and run."

• Heavily crowded trains frequently make it physically impossible to serve everyone in Dining Cars.

Many travelers are bringing box lunches and fruit along to avoid delayed meals.

Our friendly suggestion for short trip travelers is that they dine before boarding trains or after arrival at destination.
