Area storm spawns tornado

From staff and wire reports

A storm system that brought up to one-half inch of rain, high winds and hail to Big Spring Tuesday night spawned a tornado that killed one man near San Angelo.

The victim has not been identified, a Tom Green county sheriff's officer said. The twister touched down at 12:36 a.m. at the Murrey Ranch on FM 1692, said the National Weather Service.

Locally, thunderclouds moved into the area Tuesday afternoon. As the system approached, high winds kicked up eerie-lookie dust storms that were visible on the purple-cloud horizon southwest of town before blowing into the city.

The Big Spring Experiment Station recorded only .05 of an inch of rain Tuesday. However, in the south part of town, up to a one-half inch was recorded. On the city's east side, three-tenths of an inch was reported.

Most areas of the city also recorded pea-sized hail that fell for a short time.

No local damage was reported. However, a brief power interruption at the Winn-Dixie supermarket about 8:15 p.m. knocked out the store's computerized cash registers.

Employees manned portable calculators and figured taxes by pen on shopping bags until the registers were back in operation.

In San Angelo, the man who was killed was living inside a trailer that "was just completely destroyed," said DPS trooper Mike Haley of San Angelo. "You couldn't even tell it was ever a trailer house."

He said the man, about 25 years old, was apparently a ranchhand at the property located about 12 miles east of San Angelo. The victim's name was being withheld pending notification of next-of-kin.

Peace Justice Charlie Long of San Angelo said the victim, a Hispanic man, was inside a trailer home which was "strewn across the highway" by the twister.

He said the twister moved either west to east or northwest to northeast across the ranch.

Land approved for nuke dump

Option signed for Garza County

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Chances that the state's first low-level radioactive waste dump will be in West Texas skyrocketed Tuesday with the signing of an option for some Garza County land.

The 175-acre Garza County tract is about two miles south of the Crosby County town of Kalgary. It is the second piece of property in the state where the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority has an option to acquire land. Charles Bills of Waco is the property owner.

Garza County is located north of Borden County, which had been the focus of earlier state searches for a suitable dump site.

The option on the Garza County land will cost the agency $1,000 a month. It will be good for 270 days or about nine months.

The agency has been searching the state for potential dump sites for low-level radioactive wastes from nuclear reactors, laboratories and hospitals. Only one site will be chosen after agency officials have identified a field of candidates from which to select. Avant said that field of sites could be as small as two or as many as five.

The agency staff is negotiating with other landowners, including in the Red Bed Plains region, which includes Howard, Garza, Borden, Mitchell and Crosby counties. Negotiations also are under way on some additional South Texas tracts, Avant said.

"None are at the stage where I could say whether it would culminate in an option," Avant said. The agency has been concentrating on the West and Southwest Texas regions.

Once a site is chosen, it would be almost two years before construction would begin.

The Garza County land will be the fifth tract of land which the authority has examined in detail. Three of the five sites failed to meet the agency's technical criteria.

Glasscock approves beer sale

ST. LAWRENCE — Glasscock County voters in Precinct 1 voted by a 2-to-1 one margin Tuesday to approve the sale of beer for off-premise consumption.

Deputy County Clerk Wanda Johnson said the vote was 76 for the proposal and 36 against.

Precinct 1 includes the predominantly German community of St. Lawrence in the southwest corner of the county.

Beer cannot be sold in the county outside of Precinct 1, Mrs. Johnson said.

She described the turnout for the issue as "pretty good. We have 196 registered voters (in that precinct). That's over 50 percent turnout."

The election is the result of a request for a permit to sell beer for off-premises consumption by W.B. and Jo Tilley, owners of the St. Lawrence Trading Co.

Beer sales can begin as soon as liquor permits are approved by the county judge.

Son turns tables on Record Shop closing

By JIM BROWN
Staff Writer

It's business as usual at the Record Shop at 211 Main.

Dr. Jake Glickman and his wife, Mercy, are keeping the store open and attempting to catalog an invaluable collection of records and tapes assembled by the late Oscar Glickman, Jake's father.

"My mother and father put 42 years of their lives into this building and business, and I'd like to keep it open," Glickman said.

"Since my father died, we've had people calling and coming in from all over the country buying records because they are afraid that we are going to close," he said.

The Glickmans say they still don't know how many records are in stock, how many may be collector's items or even what the store actually has in it.

"We're continuing to sell all the records at their list price and try to have a copy of as many records as possible on the floor for buyers. There's no special collection — they're just records," said Mercy.

"When we were kids, we used to play here in the basement and hide amoung the collection of juke boxes that my dad had stored there then," Glickman said. "But he sold all of the juke boxes several years ago."

Oscar Glickman began working with records as a juke box repairmen in Breckenridge in the 1920s. While working as a 'music box' man, he began his collection of 78s and started selling them over the counter.

"Shortly before my father died (May 10), he told me to clean out the balcony area and just throw the stuff up there away," continued Glickman.

"I found record catalogs in perfect condition from the '40s. In fact, I found a letter that (Justice of the Peace) Lewis Heflin wrote my dad from Europe on June 5, 1944. It was still in its V-mail

Mondale claims delegate victory

By The Associated Press

Walter F. Mondale stood barely short of the magic majority of convention delegates today, claiming victory in the marathon contest for the Democratic presidential nomination despite Sen. Gary Hart's smashing triumph in the California primary.

"We expect today at noon, he will claim the nomination," said Mondale campaign chairman, Jim Johnson.

To that end the Mondale staff scurried today to flush out national convention delegates now willing to go public with their support of the former vice president and came up with Mayor Andrew Young of Atlanta.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said today that Mondale has won the nomination and that his two rivals should "stop playing games out there" and unite behind him.

O'Neill said Hart has requested a meeting Thursday in Washington and that he will give his unity message directly to the Colorado senator.

"For all practical purposes, it's all over," O'Neill told reporters as he entered the Capitol this morning. "There's no question in my mind that Mondale has it on the first ballot" at the July nominating convention.

O'Neill has been a public supporter of Mondale for some time.

"I feel great," said Mondale, who won resoundingly Tuesday in New Jersey and West Virginia. "We had a wonderful evening."

Mondale shut Hart out in the delegate races in New Jersey, the key to his approach to a nominating majority.

But Hart swept the California primary, winning more than twice as many delegates as Mondale while also winning primaries in New Mexico and South Dakota on the final day of the primary season.

That, coupled with gains today, left Mondale a mere 11 votes short of the 1,967 delegate-votes that would mean a majority at the Democratic National Convention in San Francisco convention. Hart said "of course" he would continue his fight on to the convention next month.

HAPPY WINNER — Walter Mondale flashes a big smile as he waves to his supporters Tuesday night after predicting he would win the Democratic Party presidential nomination.

Weather

Thunderstorms logged

Several states were soaked by thunderstorms spawned by a warm front that stretched to the northern plains. Skies were fair from the Gulf Coast to the southern Atlantic Coast.

Overnight, hail the size of golf balls peppered Ramsey, Minn., winds gusted to 70 mph in South Dakota, 3 inches of rain fell in 30 minutes on Parkston in southeastern South Dakota and a half-inch fell on McAlester, Okla.

Thunderstorms were forecast today from the Rockies to the Plains and the Mississippi Valley into the Ohio Valley and on up through the Great Lakes region.

The National Weather Service said a few severe thunderstorms could hit parts of the Midwest today from eastern Kansas and western Missouri to Minnesota and eastern North Dakota.

Rain was expected across the northwestern states, but the Southwest and eastern states, deluged by recent record rainfall, were due for sunshine, the weather service said.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael S. Dukakis asked the U.S. Agriculture Department on Tuesday to declare five counties a disaster area, saying six days of rain "resulted in severe losses to the agricultural economy" of the state.

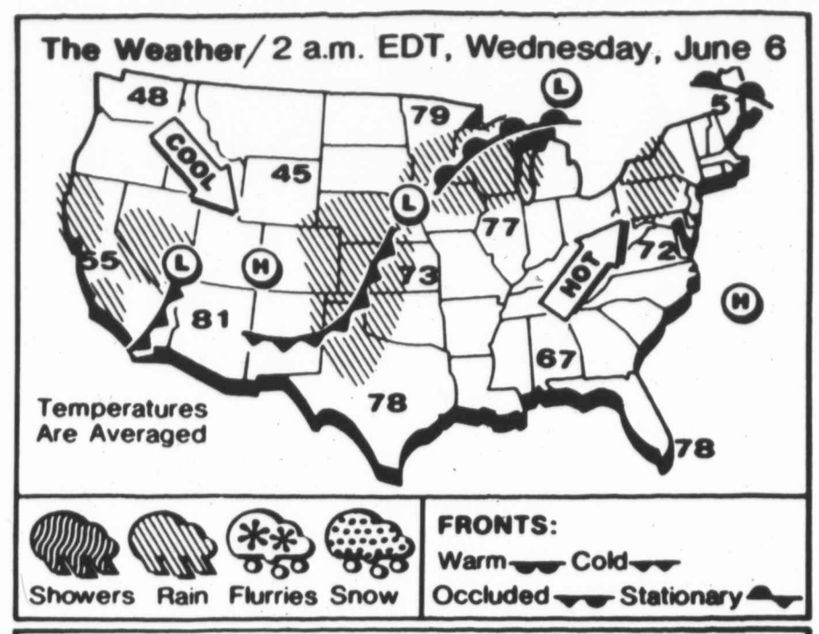

Massachusetts Civil Defense Director Robert Boulay said nine inches of rain have fallen over most of the state's western counties since the rains began May 28. That left 56,000 acres of farmland under water and caused an estimated $20 million to $30 million in direct agricultural losses, he said.

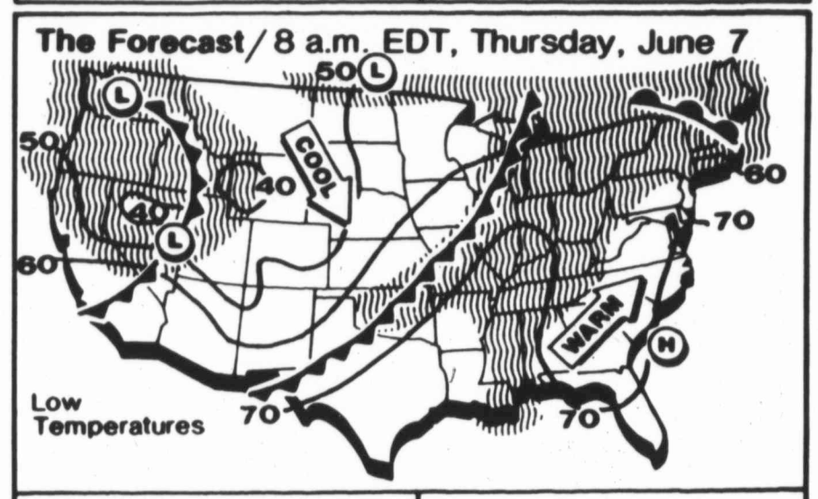

Tornado warnings were issued in Texas for eastern Coke and Runnels counties and in Coleman County. No damage or injuries were reported.

Today's high temperatures were expected to range from the 60s over the northwestern states, 70s over the Great Lakes Region, the Central Plains, the Southern Rockies and on the southern California coast, and the 80s and low 90s from New England through the Midwest, the Gulf Coast states and the Southern Plains into the Southwest.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. CDT ranged from 36 at Yellowstone Park, Wyo., to 79 at Brownsville, Texas.

West Texas — Generally partly cloudy with isolated thunderstorms afternoons and evenings. Panhandle: highs upper 80s and lows near 60. South Plains: highs near 90 and lows mid 60s. Permian Basin and Concho Valley: highs low to mid 90s and lows mid to upper 60s. Far West: highs mid 90s and lows mid 60s. Big Bend: highs low 90s mountains to near 103 along the Rio Grande. Lows upper 50s mountains to near 70 along the river.

Police Beat

Man reports knife assault

Domingo Cantu, 72, of 206 N.E. 10th told police that at about 11 a.m. Tuesday someone he knows tried to attack him with a knife while he was outside the Kwiki convenience store at 510 Lamesa, police reports said.

• Laverne Gary of Area One Real Estate at 1412 Scurry told police Tuesday that someone broke into a storage building at 2713 Central and caused an estimated $1,100 in damage to the building's doors, walls and windows, police reports said. Mrs. Gary told police the building's owner is the Republic-Bank of Dallas.

• Police at 1:14 p.m. Tuesday recovered a stolen 1976 Ford from the the parking lot at the Holiday Inn on east Highway 80, police reports said. According to Lt. Jerry Edwards, the car had been stolen in Dallas and left in the parking lot for about three weeks before Big Spring police were called. He said Dallas police will notify the owner of the vehicle to come to Big Spring and get it.

Sheriff's Log

Man pleads guilty Tuesday

Rudolfo S. Jimenez Jr., 43, of 511 East Second Street, was transferred to the county jail Tuesday morning following his arrest for driving while intoxicated, carrying a prohibited weapon and traffic violations.

Jimenez was released on a $1,000 bond set for the DWI charge, a $2,500 for the weapons charge, and $200 each for the traffic violations.

Bond was set by Judge Lewis Heflin and posted by a local bail bonding company.

• Richard Norman Ramirez, 18, of 611 North San Antonio, was transferred to the county jail for a charge of driving while license was suspended. He was released after a $500 bond was set by Judge Melvin Daratt and posted by a local attorney.

• Morris Richard Littlejohn, 27, of 1005 S. Nolan pleaded guilty in 118th District Court Tuesday on a charge of theft over $750 and under $20,000.

The theft, which involved articles from the home of James Campbell, was in October of 1962. Littlejohn was fined $200 and court costs and was given a five year probated sentence.

• Sheriff's deputies assisted the Department of Public Safety Highway Patrol with a major traffic accident about noon Tuesday at FM 2230 and Farm Road 669.

Reports show a cars driven by Darrell Wayne Billington of Coahoma and Ikey Joe Hare of P.O. Box 2589 collided in the intersection. Bellington was taken to Malone and Hogan Hospital via Shaffer Ambulance, where he was treated and released.

Chief question

A petition is being circulated in town calling for a charter amendment to change the position of chief of police from an appointive to an elective position. If the petition gathers the required number of signatures, it will be presented to the City Council for certification, at which time an election will have to be scheduled. If the proposed amendment passes, it would change the city charter so that the police chief would no longer be hired by the city manager.

Those leading this campaign are confident they can get the required signatures to force the election. There are also those who feel strongly against this proposed change as stated in the petition.

Because of the seriousness of this question and the impact it would have on the community, it is a matter that should be given calm, deliberate consideration by each voter in Big Spring. A matter of such far-reaching implications should be thought-out before heated and persuasive arguments can cause one to become confused and unsure of her/his opinions.

Therefore, I've asked people from both groups to present their major reasons for their opinions.

Reasons for a city charter amendment making the office of Chief of Police elective:

(1) Elected officials are more responsive to the citizens they serve. They must face re-election at regular intervals.

(2) The present city charter makes the police chief directly responsible only to Don Davis, our appointed city manager.

(3) An elective Chief of Police would be effectively removed from the direction and control of Don Davis, City Manager, and responsible only to the citizens of Big Spring.

(4) At present, the powerful office of Chief of Police is insulated from the citizens by first Don Davis, and then our non-paid city council. If elected, citizens could go directly to the police chief.

(5) The office of Police Chief is a highly paid one, and would attract many qualified local candidates familiar with Big Spring, its citizens, and what such citizens need and want from local law enforcement. Making such office elective would not disqualify the present chief from becoming a candidate for such office if he so desired. If elected he would be free to run his own department as he saw fit, and be only responsible to the people at the polls.

Reasons to maintain an appointed Chief of Police:

(1) The Chief of Police needs to be a professional not a politician. Under the election method, anyone could run and be elected whether qualified or not. We need a trained police officer not a good old boy...or girl.

(2) A Police Chief must be free to make sometimes tough decisions based on special training and knowledge of legal procedures. Vigorous law enforcement demands that a Police Chief not be prey to the temptations that influence many politicians, especially near election time.

(3) It is a myth that an elected Police Chief would be more responsive to the public. If a Police Chief abused the power of his office, the people would be helpless to do anything about it until the next election, and entrenched politicians are almost impossible to vote out of office.

(4) The Chief of Police is a department head of the city government. He is responsible to the elected city council and the city administrator not only for the conduct of his office but also for the efficient administration of his department. If the Chief of Police needs to be elected, why not the fire chief, the public works director or the city manager?

(5) Even in the case of the very best police departments, some citizens find reasons to criticize a chief or his department. Just because a few disgruntled persons have an axe to grind is no reason to adopt a measure that is bad public policy. If an elected Police Chief were good policy, why have so few cities adopt it?

(6) On occasion, a city department needs to be reorganized or needs new ideas. It is impossible to introduce needed new blood when the only choices available to voters are unqualified residents or department members who already are a part of the problem.

envelope and portions of it had been censored," he said.

The Glickmans said they will probably have a sale to clear out many of the 8-track tapes stored in the basement.

"Unlike my dad, I'm a record collector and the only one in the family that loves memorabilia," he said.

"I hope that the estate decides to keep the store. Mercy and I would like to operate it much the way my father did," he said. "We have plans to paint the interior and restore much of it. I want to add a separate area for record collectors and another for all the stuff that my father kept over the years that's part of history now."

In the basement along with hundreds of 75 rpm records, there is one of the original RCA brand plaster dogs, original 19th Century light fixtures, a hand-pulled lift that connects the basement and first floor and balcony. There's a story within itself.

"I think it's the best possible memorial to my parents," Glickman said of the store. "After all, they spent 42 years of their lives here in this building, building a business that is famous throughout the world."

Third candidate Jesse Jackson said much the same, despite five third-place showings Tuesday.

Hart's campaign manager, Oliver Henkel, said of the Mondale delegates: "They're fair game." Speaking bravely, he added, "At some point down the road, we suspect we will try to unlock some of those Mondale delegates and of course Rev. Jackson's delegates are available for Gary Hart as well, if things go according to plan."

"Our work has just begun," the Colorado senator told supporters in Los Angeles. "On to San Francisco."

With 99 percent of the California vote in, Hart counted 205 delegates to 72 for Mondale.

Revised city budget studied

By RICK BROWN
Staff Writer

Six months into the budget year, revenue collected by the city of Big Spring has kept pace with a projected $410,000 overrun in city expenditures.

According to the city's revised budget released yesterday, city expenses are slightly less than $12.1 million for the current fiscal year which began in October. In its original budget drawn last August, the city expected expenditures to total slightly more than $11.6 million.

Both the revised and original budgets planned for using surplus monies from prior years to cover the difference between expenditures and revenue. Major sources of revenue include sales tax, ad valorem taxes and federal funds.

In the revised budget, revenues totalling about $11.7 million are expected by city administrators. The city originally expected revenues to be about $11.2 million. The new revenue figure is about $410,000 less than expected expenditures, but about the same shortfall as originally planned.

"I'm pleased, all things considered, with the budget," City Manager Don Davis said yesterday. He said the city's airpark and utility funds were "in good shape" and the city's general fund was "as good as it can be" considering a recent dip in city sales tax and ad valorem tax revenues.

Davis also said the council can control the negative difference between revenues and expenditures through its appropriation of money for "non-recurring" expenses such as office furniture, utility equipment and other "one-time" purchases.

Hance asks for local recount

Kent Hance, who lost a runoff election for the U.S. Senate Democratic nomination by a slim margin to Lloyd Doggett, has requested a recount of Howard County votes, said County Clerk Margaret Ray.

District Judge Jim Gregg has ordered the recount for 2 p.m. Thursday at the courthouse. In charge of the recount are Mrs. Ray and Wayne Bristow, the tabulation supervisor.

Hance petitioned for the recount through M.H. "Slick" Boatler, chairman of the Howard County Democratic Committee, and paid $100 for the request.

Bill Tune will be in charge of records used in the recount.

Members of the Howard County Executive Committee canvassed all local and state races in Saturday's election Tuesday but deferred the Hance-Doggett canvas until 48 hours following the recount.

The committee is scheduled to meet again at 5 p.m. Saturday at the courthouse to canvass that election.

Irish beer snub at pub

DUBLIN — The Irish can't blame President Reagan for failing to choose Guinness stout, billed as Ireland's national drink, when he tipped a pint at a pub in his ancestral village.

When the president stopped at the Ronald Reagan Lounge in Ballyporeen over the weekend, it was his aides who chose the Smithwick's Ale he downed, pub owner John O'Farrell said Tuesday.

But Guinness officials were not too upset about being bypassed, company spokesman Aidan O'Hanlon said.

"We were disappointed from an export point of view because we have been putting on a big sales drive in the United States," he said. "But Guinness is a major partner in Irish Ale Breweries, which manufactures Smithwick's, and as such, Smithwick's is part of the Guinness family."

The actress can't Reed

LOS ANGELES — When Miss Ellie, the Ewing clan matriarch on TV's "Dallas," returns to Texas from a trip to Greece next season, she'll be played by a different actress — Donna Reed.

DONNA REED

Miss Reed, star of her own series in the 1960s, was signed for the CBS soap opera on Monday, after Barbara Bel Geddes announced she would not return in the role for a seventh season, said Lary Youngsteadt, a spokesman for Lorimar Productions.

Miss Reed, 63, will begin work "around the seventh episode," he said.

What a garage sale!

NEW ROCHELLE — Jennifer O'Neill, star of the film "Summer of '42," is selling her home, and more than 100 people poured into a thrift shop to look over some of her possessions.

Miss O'Neill donated a grand piano, china cabinet and other pieces, as well as clothing, Lucia Kim, director of the New Rochelle Humane Society Thrift Shop, said Tuesday.

Miss O'Neill and her then-husband John Lederer bought the 22-room estate in Bedford Hills for $600,000 in 1981. Literary agent Henry Morrison has agreed to buy it for $895,000.

Foreclosure proceedings were brought against the actress in November by the former owner, who claimed she was late in paying her mortgage.

It was in the house that Miss O'Neill accidentally shot herself in the abdomen in 1982. She pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor weapons charge and was given a conditional discharge.

Normandy remembered

Veterans recall personal stories of D-Day invasion

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — With cameras instead of rifles, the veterans of World War II crossed the English Channel on Tuesday, voyaging to France to remember D-Day 40 years later.

Old soldiers now, they traveled in the comfort of car ferries, remembering another voyage, huddled in landing craft. That time they left behind cards on which they wrote where they wanted to be buried.

As American, Canadian and British veterans were returning to the Normandy beaches, Queen Elizabeth II and her husband Prince Philip were preparing to cross from this historic port in the royal yacht Britannia.

Portsmouth was one of the main embarkation points for the 156,205 Allied troops who landed at Normandy on June 6, 1944 in the decisive drive against Nazi Germany.

More than 10,000 Allied troops were killed, wounded or missing on that first day.

"My best friend got killed right in front of me," said George Miller, 59, of Jensen Beach, Fla. "My son's named after him."

Miller, a retired computer technician, was a demolitions specialist with the U.S. Army's 299th Combat Engineers who landed in the first wave of troops on Omaha Beach. Their job was to clear a path through the maze of mines, barbed wire, wooden stakes and railings.

Some obstacles were submerged by the tide. Others were wired to blow up when moved.

"There were 48 of us and eight of us made it," said Miller. "As our landing craft ramp dropped, they hit our gas tanks and blew the ship up. Our crew got off except for the naval personnel. They were destroyed.

"Bodies were being blown up all around me going in."

Miller was blown out of the boat. He lost some teeth and suffered a concussion but was able to set charges on the obstacles. After Normandy, Miller said, he was wounded six times — including at the Battle of the Bulge, where he was shot in the head.

Miller said he felt safe on the voyage across the channel 40 years ago among the 5,000 warships, landing craft, battleships, destroyers and minesweepers that made up the biggest armada ever assembled.

THE CEREMONY — Veterans of World War II and their families gather at the Normandy Cemetery at Omaha Beach to commemorate D-Day.

"They told us there wouldn't be too many killed, but still they asked us to fill out cards asking where we wanted to buried. But when you looked out on that vast number of ships, you got the feeling they were so immense and strong that it was impossible to think that anything could happen to us," Miller said.

"Today, if you told me I had to do the same thing again, I'd say you were crazy. But you did your job. Everybody did."

The veterans arrived by the busload, many with their wives, and stirred up a festive mood as they waited in the passenger terminal for the ferry to carry them the 90 miles to Le Havre. They laughed and joked, strangers drawn together by experiences long past but not forgotten.

Many wore a badge or plastic card identifying them by name and military unit, in case they ran into a former comrade or a Frenchman who might remember the Liberation.

Dave Fullerton, a 63-year-old Canadian from Winnipeg, wore a black baseball hat with a badge saying "Royal Winnipeg Rifles."

"The little black devils — That's what the enemy called us," the former infantryman recalled. Why was he going back? "It's 40 years, you know. maybe this is the last time we'll be physically able to make it."

Troops raid shrine; 297 die

NEW DELHI — Indian soldiers raided the Golden Temple complex in Amritsar today to flush hundreds of heavily armed extremists from the holiest Sikh shrine. At least 250 Sikh militants and 47 troopers were killed, an army commander said.

Lt. Gen. K. Sunderji told reporters in the Punjab capital of Chandigarh that at least 110 troops and 550 Sikh militants were injured. Twelve soldiers were missing and presumed dead, he said.

Jets battle over gulf

TEHRAN — Iran declared a day of mourning today for the 600 civilians it said were killed or wounded in an Iraqi bombing raid, and Tehran radio claimed its defense forces beat back another Iraqi air assault during the night.

However, Iran did not comment on reports that one of its American-made F-4 Phantom jets was shot down Tuesday by Saudi pilots flying newer, U.S.-made F-15 fighters.

Saudi Arabia said it shot down one warplane in its airspace over the Persian Gulf, but did not identify the plane.

Kidnapped teacher freed

TARANTO — A 22-year-old woman kidnapped nearly seven months ago was freed today after payment of a ransom worth $480,000, police reported.

The family, owners of a wine exporting company, had issued public appeals for the release of Annamaria Fusco, an elementary school teacher, and Pope John Paul II in March pleaded for her freedom.

Nicaragua to mobilize

MANAGUA — Nicaragua has announced a "massive mobilization of the people" to counter what Defense Minister Humberto Ortega says are U.S. plans to intensify military pressure on the country.

In a speech late Tuesday, Ortega said the entire nation would be mobilized for defense purposes.Nicargua's military service law allows the leftist government to draft everyone between 18 and 40.

Sakharov reported alive

MOSCOW — A fellow member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences said today that Soviet human rights activist Andrei Sakharov is alive and healthy in the closed city of Gorky.

Yuri Ovchinnikov, head of the bio-organic chemistry institute at the academy, was asked about Sakharov's health at a news conference on an upcoming biochemical symposium.

Ovchinnikov, who is one of the Soviet Union's foremost biochemists, was the first academy member to make public comment on the status of Sakharov, a physicist and winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.

Fugitive manhunt expanded

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP) — The governors of Virginia and North Carolina say they are doing everything possible to apprehend four escaped death row inmates, but are frustrated by reports of sightings that produce only dead ends.

North Carolina officials are hoping color photographs of the fugitives will spark fruitful leads as they press their search for a pickup truck believed stolen by the escapees when six of them fled the Mecklenburg Correctional Center last Thursday.

"We would really like to find that truck," said Russ Edmonston, a spokesman for the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. "The last thing anybody heard about it, it was stolen the night (they) escaped."

Convicted murderers Derick Lynn Peterson and Earl Clanton Jr., caught Friday night in a Warrenton coin laundry, were expected to return to Virginia this week after waiving extradition Tuesday.

The other four — brothers James and Linwood Briley, Lem Tuggle Jr. and Willie Leroy Jones — remain at large. Hundreds of searchers from both states have pursued leads as far east as Portsmouth, Va., and as far west as Spencer, 160 miles from Warrenton.

Mining harbors 'disinformation'

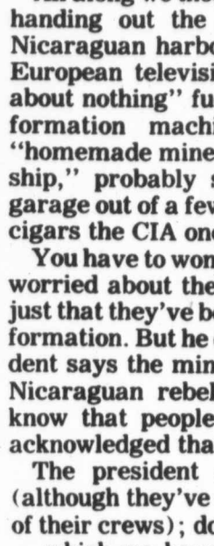

All along we thought it was CIA Director Bill Casey who was handing out the disinformation about the mining of the Nicaraguan harbors. But now here's the president telling a European television crew that the mining was "much ado about nothing" fueled by the communists' "worldwide disinformation machine." Those were just little itty-bitty "homemade mines," the president said, "that couldn't sink a ship," probably something put together in some contra's garage out of a few pieces of wire and some of those exploding cigars the CIA once hoped to use on Castro.

You have to wonder. The president says all those people who worried about the mining probably had good intentions; it's just that they've been propagandized by that communist disinformation. But he doesn't say how they're confused. The president says the mines were planted in Nicaraguan harbors by Nicaraguan rebels; does that mean the president doesn't know that people in his own administration have already acknowledged that the CIA directed the mining operation?

The president says the mines "couldn't sink a ship" (although they've damaged some ships and injured members of their crews); does that mean we were running an operation — which we have since said we have discontinued — that, while it violated all international law and was thus sure to get the United States another black eye, was bound to be ineffective? If it was all so harmless, why did Casey fail to tell the Senate Intelligence Committee, as the law requires? Whose disinformation was that?

The president says he doesn't want to be presumptuous, "but is there any one (of the critics) who has access to all the information that the president of the United States has?" Now that's begging a real question.

The train that can

WASHINGTON — The American locomotive is now pulling the rest of the world's economy toward prosperity. So apart from a little flak about high interest rates, the summit of industrial countries that takes President Reagan and six other leaders to London this week shapes up as a routine event.

A far more consequential meeting is a session of the world's leading bankers — the International Monetary Conference — this week in Philadelphia. For the bankers, by approving a new approach to Latin American debt, can actually do something that will hold down the rates.

Vigorous recovery in this country now dominates the global economic picture. American imports since early 1982 have outpaced growth in this country by roughly 400 percent. Hence the record trade deficit of the last four months. Countries able to export to the U.S. benefit enormously. Demand from the U.S. is now fueling the economics of Japan, Germany, Canada, Mexico, Brazil and many other countries.

High interest rates, to be sure, brake the pull of the locomotive slightly. The high rates attract capital from all over the world. Shortage of capital constrains economic growth, especially in countries suffering from relatively high inflation.

The main reason American rates are so high is the huge federal deficit which has to be offset by borrowing. But not much can be done about the deficit this year. Except for a small "down payment" the administration and the Congress have agreed to postpone action on the deficits until after the election. If President Reagan gets any complaints at the London summit, all he has to say is that the U.S. also wants to bring down interest rates.

A secondary reason for the high rates is a general apprehension, which causes lenders to insist on big premiums as the price of investment. The jitters come mainly from Latin American debt. It runs into several hundred billion dollars and includes such important countries as Brazil (more than $80 billion in debt), Mexico (more than $80 billion) and Argentina (about $40 billion). It exposes the biggest American banks to default and panic.

The Latin American debtors, unable to meet their obligations for a variety of reasons, have been rescheduling those debts since August, 1982. The rescheduling model, set up by Mexico, revolves around an austerity program worked out with the governments grouped in the International Monetary Fund. Once the Fund certifies the program, the banks have been prepared to roll over the loans — but at higher rates, and on a year-to-year basis.

That process has recently run into heavy political weather south of the border. In the Dominican Republic 60 people were killed in riots protesting a Fund austerity program. Brazil has experienced similar unrest over a longer period of time. Bolivia has just discontinued payment of U.S. debt. But the great problem has been the new, democratic government in Argentina, which has been especially loath to increase internal opposition by accepting a Fund program for austerity.

Argentina stopped making interest payments on its debt at the beginning of this year. Under American law, loans on which interest does not accrue for more than 90 days have to be classed as "non-performing." Such a classification depresses bank earnings and weakens general confidence.

A bad case of jitters developed as Argentina neared the 90-day deadline on interest payments at the end of March. At the last minute a loan was organized by international and Mexican authorities working with Colombia, Venezuela, Brazil, the U.S. and the banks. Argentina paid the interest due on March 31. But in the process, confidence was badly shaken. There ensued a considerable rise in all interest rates. A run on major American banks was stopped only after the Federal Reserve Board put the full credit of the U.S. government behind the banks.

Paul Volcker, the chairman of the Fed, and Jacques de Larosiere, the managing director of the Fund, have been at great pains to prevent a repetition of that costly episode. Their basic idea calls for multiyear loans with the debtor countries at more moderate terms. Mexico, which has led the way in the debt crisis, has practically worked out in detail such an accord with the Fed and the Fund.

Fear an ally in GOP fund-raising

WASHINGTON — I guess only a Republican fund-raiser would have the chutzpah to send out an appeal for campaign contributions from one of the most luxurious hotels in Paris — and base his solicitation on the horrors of French socialism.

But if nothing succeeds like excess, you've got to hand it to the National Republican Senatorial Committee. It raised $31 million last year alone. During the 1981-82 election cycle, it collected $95 million from the party faithful.

The committee's stridently partisan direct-mail fund-raising efforts often raise the specter of a Democratic-controlled Senate. In 1982, for example, an appeal from the committee chairman, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., fairly crackled with desperation:

"Will you help save our Republican majority?" he asked. "Please let me know 'Yes' or 'No' today if at all possible. What's at stake? If you say 'No,' Ted Kennedy could control the Senate by 1984."

Although that crisis passed safely, it was only a small ideological step to the letter sent out last August by the committee treasurer, Robert Perkins. Writing on the stationery of the elegant Prince de Galles Hotel, he began breathlessly:

"As I write this letter to you, I imagine my eyes still burning from the clouds of tear gas that seem to be a regular occurrence in the beleaguered city of Paris, France..."

Barricaded in his hotel room just off the Champs Elysees, Perkins described the sorry state that France has been reduced to under the Socialists — a "catastrophe that might one day happen at home." He wrote:

"For example: Anyone wanting to leave France can take only the equivalent of $480 in French currency with him. Imagine trying to take a vacation with your family, or a business trip, with only $480 in your pocket."

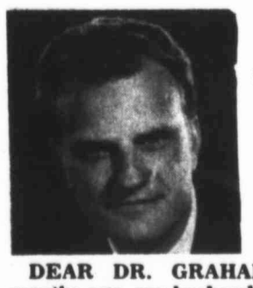

Perkins' alarm was understandable. Such a paltry sum would cover perhaps three days at the Prince de Galles, with enough left over for a croissant and a cafe au lait.

"I know France is a long way away," Perkins wrote, "and it's hard to imagine the same nightmare occurring in the United States...(But) it's a chance we just can't afford to take. Won't you sit down right now and send a check for $25?"

My associate Tony Capaccio has been studying the committee's expenditures in the past two years. Some of the $25 donors might like to know how their money was used to ward off French-style socialism:

- Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska was given $3,898.85 by the committee to buy lunches for press people and others.
- Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon got $8,107 for magazine and newspaper subscriptions, plus dribs and drabs — ranging from $3.30 to $125 — for office supplies.
- Sen Pete Domenici of New Mexico got $4,969 for subscriptions and $7,791 in clipping service fees.
- Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois got $6,281 for a clipping service and transmission of press releases on the Chicago City News Bureau's public-relations wire.
- Sen. Gordon Humphrey of New Hampshire got $1.86 for a 62-name mailing list from the New Hampshire Credit Union, plus $7,791 for auto rental and insurance during visits home.
- The committee spent $63 to enroll a press aide of Sen. Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota in a writing course at the Department of Agriculture.
- Sen. Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas got $28.90 to frame a photograph that hangs on her office wall.
- The committee spent $682.56 for a 19-inch color TV monitor and cart for the use of Sen. Roger Jepsen of Iowa, and $216 for his office staff's business cards.

Billy Graham

It's not wrong to want Heaven

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Five months ago, my husband died. We had been married for 42 years, and I just can't describe the emptiness and grief that overwhelm me every day. I know he is in Heaven, but is it wrong for me to pray that God will also take me to Heaven soon so my grief will be over? — Mrs. T.Y.R.

DEAR MRS. T.Y.R.: God understands the deep grief you are feeling right now, and he surrounds you with his love. Furthermore, you can bring your deepest heartaches and desires to him. There is nothing wrong with yearning to be free of this world's miseries and desiring to go to Heaven. The Apostle Paul declared, "I desire to depart and be with Christ, which is better by far" (Philippians 1:23).

At the same time, God also wants you to discover more of his presence and peace. You see, it may not be God's will for you to go to Heaven right now. Instead, he may want you to discover what millions of others have discovered in times of trouble and heartache: "My grace is sufficient for you, for my power is made perfect in weakness" (2 Corinthians 12:9).

I quoted Paul earlier — but Paul went on to say to the early Christians, "It is more necessary for you that I remain in the body. Convinced of this, I know that I will remain" (Philippians 1:24-25). Yes, share your feelings with God — but he may have a different plan for you. And if he does, it will be better, because God's way is always perfect. Pray above all else for his will to be done in your life.

I encourage you also to take steps to overcome the loneliness you feel. You may be tempted to withdraw from others, but you should do exactly the opposite. Perhaps others in your church or your neighborhood also are lonely, and they need your encouragement and friendship. Ask God to help you be a blessing to other people, and not to be paralyzed by your own self-pity or loneliness.

Then use this as a time to grow closer to Christ. If your husband could speak to you right now, I am sure he would impress upon you the importance of living for Christ while we have time.

Around The Rim

Beat it

By RHONDA WOODALL

Excuse me, would you like to dance?

I guess so. By the way, how do you dance to that kind of music?

You just move to the beat. And if that doesn't work just do what everybody else is doing.

I know that. But isn't there a particular kind of dancing to do to this song?

Well, you can do the Pony, the Jerk, the Pogo or the Swim.

Huh? Can you dance freestyle?

Yeah, I guess so. Come on, let's go dance.

Oh, the song just ended. I'm sorry. Maybe, the next dance?

Never mind!)

Music is a universal language, and dancing is the individual interpretation. A thousand types of dances exist. You've got the Hustle, the Bump, the Pony, the Swim, the Jerk, the Pogo, the Twist, the Smurf, the Robot, the Jitterbug, the Dog, the Waltz and the Two-Step, just to name a few.

Where did these dances come from? And how did they get their names? Somebody with talent and confidence had to catch several people's attention at right time to the right kind of music. Can you imagine someone beginning to break dance in a crowd of two-steppers? I can't.

Dancing lets a person express herself in her own way. A person can gracefully sweep across the floor to the minute waltz, or she can jam down to an upbeat tempo for break dancing.

The young and the old enjoy dancing. America has proven that by watching American Bandstand for more than 20 years. People not only enjoy the smooth moves of the television dancers, but they are also fascinated by the clothes the dancers wear. A person can create her own fantasy world while dancing, and their style of dress helps to represent their "fantasy" character.

What about dancing in the movies? America slips in and out of its romance with music in the movies. For a while, there were no musicals, no dancing, no singing in the movies. Now that kind of movie is becoming popular again.

More and more movies are being made now to include dance scenes to get your blood pumping. Recently, popular movies have included "Staying Alive," "Footloose" and "Flashdance." They centered around dancing.

Movies are the leaders to new trends. Kids are already break dancing in the hallways. In the future, I wouldn't be surprised to see people dancing in the streets.

Tanya Ferguson installed as Rainbow Girls' worthy advisor

Tanya Jeanne Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Ferguson of 1304 Virginia, was installed as worthy advisor of the Big Spring Assembly No. 60, Order of Rainbow for Girls, at the Masonic Temple Saturday.

Miss Ferguson dedicated her term to her parents, family and friends who have helped make her term possible. She chose "Tranquility and Strength" as her theme and Psalm 28:7 as her scripture. Her poem was "Strength" and her song was "Love Story" played by Shirley Ryals. Miss Ferguson's colors were pink and maroon, and her flower the pink carnation.

Mrs. Ferguson presented her daughter with a Rainbow Bible, a gift from the Assembly. Kim Blount presented Miss Ferguson with her Worthy Advisor pin.

Installing officers were: Miss Blount, officer; Amy Dwire, marshall; Anne Tubb, musician; Ronda Beene, recorder; and Karen Woodall, chaplain. Mrs. Edie Fryar, mother advisor of the

TANYA J. FERGUSON

Assembly, presented a message and Alfred Tidwell closed the ceremony with prayer.

Following the ceremony, Miss Ferguson was honored at a reception in the Masonic Hall, which was served by the Rainbow Advisory Board. The table was covered with a pink cloth with a white eyelit overlay. It was centered with unicorns, her symbol, and maroon roses on the corners of the table. A cake with a unicorn and rainbow was served.

Officers this term include: Jan Donald, worthy associate advisory; Kim Phipps, charity; Joanna Jenkins, hope; Lisa Vigus, faith; Miss Blount, recorder; Miss Dwire, treasurer; Rebecca Read, chaplain; Ronda Jenkins, love; Sherri Marlow, religion; Amber Logback, nature; Gina Ficke, immortality; and Sonit Summer, fidelity.

Others are: Lisa Hilger, patriotism; Kristie West, service; Michelle Smith, confidential observer; Dawn Smith, outer observer; Michelle Fortune, choir director; Tami Burnsed, drill leader; and Ms. Fryar, mother advisor.

Dear Abby

Mother's decision mixture of love, pain

DEAR ABBY: This is in regard to "I Know Who I Am," the 24-year-old adopted person whose letter ends with, "Why should I look up people who gave me away? They had their chance."

Well, I'm 18 years old, and I just relinquished my daughter (she was 3 days old), and I wish more than anything in the world that I could have kept her. The pain I've been through these last few months is indescribable, but I know that giving her up was best for both of us. Now I can finish school and have a choice about my future. And she can be brought up by two mature parents.

I hope one day she will want to meet me. It's not that I want to "steal" her away from her adoptive parents; it's just to let her know how much I loved her those three days.

Many mothers raise children alone and do an excellent job, but in my case I could not have done it alone. I need to finish growing up myself before I can be a responsible parent.

Maybe "I Know Who I Am" will think about that, and one day give her biological parents a chance They were thinking only of her when they made that decision.

GIVE US A CHANCE

DEAR GIVE: You are to be commended for your intelligent, unselfish attitude. The most painful question that haunts the adoptee is: "Why did my mother give me away?" You answered it very well, not only for yourself but for the millions of young mothers who have placed their beloved babies for adoption. Not one in a million wanted to give her child away — she did so because she loved that child more than she loved herself.

Dr. Donohue

Rubeola vaccine

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Two older grandchildren were immunized against measles when they were 2 or 3 years old. That was in 1963 or 1964. An article I read said that the shots about that time were not effective. I have worried since then. What are the facts of the case? — B.A.

As we always must, let's be sure to get our measles terminology straight. There is often confusion. "Measles" should be reserved for the childhood illness, rubeola, sometimes referred to as the "long measles" or the "hard measles." This illness is usually easily gotten over, but it may have potential for serious complications. That's one kind of measles.

The other kind is rubella, sometimes called the "German measles" or the "three-day measles." While this is a less serious childhood illness, its ominous character lies in the fact that if a woman develops it during pregnancy, the chances for serious malformation of the fetus are great. Separate vaccines have been developed for both rubeola and rubella.

Now to your immunization question. From 1963 to 1968 many children were given a killed vaccine to protect against the rubeola ("hard measles") illness. That vaccine was removed from use in 1968 because it was not giving enough protection and because of the side effects. It has since been replaced by a live measles vaccine, which is effective.

The current recommendation is to re-vaccinate children who were given the earlier killed measles vaccine. That policy may change, however, because the opportunities for exposure now are more remote.

Erby Aucoin brings Cajun cooking to West Texas city

By TINA STEFFEN
Lifestyle Editor

A Louisiana cajun and photography director for the New Orleans Saints, Erby Aucoin is the Saint's favorite Cajun cook.

As Russell Erxleben's guest at the Signal Peak Shriner's Pro-Am and Russell Erxleben Benefit Golf Tournament in May, Erby brought 350 pounds of fresh crawfish and lots of homemade turkey gumbo to feed tournament participants.

Cajun cooking came naturally, Erby says. "I learned from my grandmother and my mother. I started cooking in quantity because my wife here had eight children. She pulled a dirty trick and had eight kids on me. So we just naturally cook quite a bit at the house. I started bringing (cajun food) over to the Saints office and eventually started feeding a hundred people over there, then 650, 300 and 200.

Erby has been feeding the Saints ever since he began working for them as director of photography 17 years ago. "Originally, I started one day a year having a Cajun Day to introduce new players to my way of life." He would cook red beans, rice and sausage, gumbo and rice, and bread pudding with whiskey sauce. "My secretaries drink the sauce and donate the bread pudding," he joked.

"The first year of the Saints, a lot of the guys had never eaten seafood gumbo and turkey andouille gumbo. So I told them one day I'd bring it to them, and I did. They liked it so much they wanted it every week. Now every Saturday I feed them and cook chipped beef on toast, that's SOS. Bum (Phillips) has to have that every Saturday, otherwise I'm in trouble.

"During training camp, I feed 200 guys and I'll play Cajun music, serve gumbo, red beans and bread pudding. They love it."

Erby is originally from Bayou La Fouche near Napoleonville, La. and south of Baton Rouge, deep in the heart of Cajun country. "My ancestors came over 180 years ago from Nova Scotia. Originally they were from France and the English threw them out of Nova Scotia. They came south to Louisiana.

Erby has lived in New Orleans for 20 years. Prior to the Saints, he worked as a newspaper photographer and in television. Cooking Cajun food is a hobby. "The cooking don't pay. It costs me to do it. I enjoy meeting people and being here in Big Spring. You guys are a bunch of nice people here. Everywhere we go people are so nice to us and I enjoy doing (the cooking)."

Erby donated all the food he used at the tournament. Tournament officials asked him to ask $2 a bowl or plate, which actually was a donation to the tournament's beneficiaries.

"Originally the gumbo is made of leftover turkey...most of the boney parts that are left, not the breast or the legs," he said. "In fact, every holiday we have turkeys and nobody eats the turkeys. They say 'don't eat the turkey so daddy will make a lot of gumbo with it.'

Erby brought enough food to the tournament to make 60 to 80 gallons of gumbo. "I boiled four turkeys and deboned them.

"We have some Andouille (pronounced an-DEW-ee), which is a sausage peculiar to our particular area," he said. "It's originally a way of preserving meat. It's not ground-up meat, it's chopped. They make it from the loin, and it's seasoned, smoked and cured. The only thing its used for is seasoning. I really don't eat it as a sausage. We made a Turkey Andouille Gumbo. But you can make Chicken Andouille and Seafood Andouille. It's used as a base and it's just peculiar to a small area of Louisiana, not even the whole state." Smoke sausage can be used in place of Andouille.

ERBY AUCOIN'S TURKEY ANDOUILLE GUMBO

½ cup grease (shortening)
½ cup flour

To make a roux, heat the shortening in a heavy 7 to 8 quart pot or kettle over medium heat. Make the roux by gradually adding the flour to the oil, stirring constantly. Cook over low heat, always stirring, until a dark brown roux is formed. This will take about 20 to 30 minutes.

1½ cup onions, chopped

"Throw (onions) in (the roux) and saute your onions until they are about clear." Add:

½ cup celery, chopped
½ cup bell pepper, chopped
Turkey leftovers

(Whatever is leftover when eating turkey. Boil the carcus, strip the meat off the bones and reserve the liquid stock. Or buy two pounds of chicken parts, boil and strip meat off the bones. Again reserve liquid stock.)

Also add:

1 to 2 lbs. Andouille or smoked sausage, sliced
Liquid turkey stock
1 qt. water

Let simmer for two hours. While simmering, add seasonings. "I cook it more than most people do. I like to cook it down," Erby said. "Wait and see how much seasoning the sausage gives it before adding seasonings." Season to taste gradually. "Andouille is a hot sausage. You can always add (seasoning) but you can't take it out."

2 garlic cloves or garlic powder
1 tsp. black pepper
1 tsp. red pepper
Touch of thyme
Salt

"Sometimes we use the roux as a thickening agent. We have three (thickening agents), depending on how thick you want it. I always use two thickening agents. Some people like a thick gumbo, some don't.

"(Sliced) okra is a thickening agent as well as a vegetable that goes in the gumbo," Erby said. "I didn't put any okra in this because of Bum (Phillips). He don't like okra in his gumbo.

"File (pronounced Fee-lay) is a thickening agent that has a distinctive flavor all its own. It's sassafras leaves that have been ground up. It's from the sassafras tree where they make rootbeer from the roots. File is a thickening agent. Never boil gumbo after you put the file in. If you do it becomes real stringy. You have to boil it after roux or okra, but not file.

"In a bowl, put a large spoon of boiled rice in the bottom, then sprinkle a little bit of file right on top. Pour the gumbo over that. Then as you mix it up there's no chance of it getting too thick.

When the gumbo is ready, put a large spoon of rice in a bowl and pour the gumbo on top. Then mix it up and eat it.

Erby and Bum claim there has to be some excuse for them to eat Gumbo on the weekends. "Every week he wrecks my truck, that's why I know that something's wrong," Bum said. "I come in and we've got barbecue, fried shrimp or boiled shrimp or gumbo or something. And I say 'Erby , what did ya do to my truck?' and Erby says, 'Well it's just got a small dent in it.'"

"We have to have an excuse for doing this, so every week I 'wreck' his truck," Erby said. "Every Saturday we get it," Bum added.

Erby has a deep respect for Bum. "He's like a down-home philosopher. He's a hell of a guy to work for. He just uses logic," Erby said. "If you want to know how to treat a football player, just treat them like human beings. He loves for me to cook for him.

"I had a gumbo the other day I made, and he says, 'What did you do the truck this time?' And I said, "No this is practicing for Texas, the golf tournament.' And he said, 'Okay, Okay. As long as we got an excuse, you can do anything.'

"I can cook for the coaches if I've got an excuse," Erby said. "It's a big joke."

Pool renovation delays opening further

The opening of the municipal swimming pool will be delayed until about June 22 due to a delay in pool renovation, City Public Works Director Tom Decell said yesterday.

"We are very sorry and we're doing everything we can to get it open as soon as possible," Decell said.

According to the Public Works Manager, the contractor responsible for the $35,000 pool renovation, Plank Construction of Odessa, completed all but 30 square feet of sealer application on the pool when it ran out of the necessary sealant.

The contractor obtained more sealant early this week and applied it to the facility yesterday, Decell said.

However, the pool still must have about two weeks "curing time" before it can be opened to the public, he said.

MISSED TAG — Seattle Mariners' Jack Perconte raises the dust as he slides past the tag of Kansas City Royals third baseman George Brett in the fifth inning during Tuesday evening's game. Perconte advanced to third on a blooper single by teammate Phil Bradley. The Royals came out on top by the score of 4-3.

OSU's Johnson to take over Miami

MIAMI (AP) — Calling it "an exciting time for me, the university and the football players on the field," Jimmy Johnson began his tenure as the new head coach of the national champion Miami Hurricanes.

Johnson on Tuesday suceeded Howard Schnellenberger, who resigned two weeks ago to become head coach and general manager of the Miami-bound Washington Federals of the United States Football League.

"The great academic institution here gives us the chance to be the best, and that's why we wanted to come here," said Johsnon, who spent the past five years as the head coach at Oklahoma State University.

The 40-year-old coach said he didn't plan many changes in his first year at Miami.

"You don't change something unless it's broken, and it's obviously not broken," Johnson said.

The Hurricanes were ranked No. 1 in the nation last year after defeating Nebraska 31-30 in the Orange Bowl.

"All I hope to do is have some input and maybe I could add something and maybe I can make it just a little better," he said.

"I want to make the transition between Coach Schnellenberger and me as easy as possible. I plead with everyone to be patient, to work with me and to approach things with a positive attitude," said Johnson, who added that he plans to keep the current Miami staff intact if possible.

Johnson was in a similar situation in 1977 when he joined the University of Pittsburgh coaching staff just after the Panthers won the national championship.

Johnson conceded that he had signed a contract in January with Oklahoma State. The contract, worth $60,000 in base salary and perks of nearly $40,000, contained no penalty clauses if he left the school.

The Hurricanes signed Johnson to a $1 million, five-year contract.

Sam Jankovich, the Hurricanes' athletic director, said he "began to settle on Johnson after conversations with football notables such as Gil Brandt of the Dallas Cowboys, Bo Schembechler of Michigan and Penn State's Joe Paterno."

Johnson's name surfaced again and again, Jankovich said.

Jankovich interviewed Johnson last weekend at the College Football Association meeting in Dallas. When he returned to Miami, he called a meeting of the remaining staff and told them he would be hiring from the outside.

A native of Port Arthur, Texas, Johnson was an All-Southwest Conference guard at Arkansas, where he captained the 1964 team.

Despite blowout win

Riley remains wary of Celtics

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley says the Lakers' greatest enemy going into tonight's game with the Boston Celtics could be complacency.

"I'm not concerned with what the Celtics are thinking," Riley said Tuesday. "I'm concerned that we will feel too good about what happened Sunday. If we're not ready to play, the Celtics will make us pay the price."

Los Angeles took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven National Basketball Association Championship Series with an impressive 137-104 triumph Sunday. Game 4 is at the Forum at 8 p.m. CST tonight.

Asked what he has been telling his team, Riley said, "We talk about flattery giving us too comfortable a feeling. Predictions can only do you harm if you let them come into your mind."

Lakers guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who set a Finals record Sunday with 21 assists, said the size of his team's victory margin could work in Boston's favor.

"They're going to come back strong because they were embarrassed Sunday," Johnson said. "They're going to be mad, so that's why we have to keep up our intensity, too."

Boston forward Larry Bird, who complained that his Celtics "played like sissies" Sunday, said he expected starting guards Dennis Johnson and Gerald Henderson to shoot more tonight in an effort to get the Celtics' outside game untracked.

The Celtics hit only 39.6 percent of their shots in Game 3, while the Lakers have hit better than 50 percent in all three games.

"DJ and Gerald have been hesitating on their shots," Bird said. "They've got to shoot and not worry about missing. If they miss, they have to anticipate we will get the rebound.'

Johnson, the second-leading Boston scorer behind Bird for the playoffs with a 16.2 average, was held to four points in Game 3 and hit just two of eight shots from the field. Henderson was 4-for-9 and had 10 points.

Bird said Boston has to forget the 33-point loss before it's too late.

"There's no use crying about it," he said. "Our goal is still to win the title. They have to beat us four games, not two. We have to stop them from getting so many easy baskets."

Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said he didn't see how the Celtics could get any more physical inside.

"They know they have to get back their rebounding advantage in order to beat us," said Abdul-Jabbar, who led Los Angeles in scoring with 32 and 24 points in their two victories in the series. "But I don't know what they can do to get it back. If they get any more physical, I'd have to wear a helmet."

The Celtics, known as a more physical team than the Lakers, were outrebounded 63-44 Sunday. Los Angeles also had 22 offensive rebounds to 17 for Boston, the first time in four meetings this season that the Lakers had prevailed in that category.

Connors, McEnroe gain French semis

PARIS (AP) — Jimmy Connors is getting older, yet even after more than 100 tournament victories, the incentive to win is still there.

Since his second-round victory over Britain's John Lloyd, Connors has played and beaten two teenagers and the 20-year-old Sundstrom on his way to the semifinals, where he will meet top-seeded John McEnroe on Friday.

McEnroe advanced with a 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 victory over fifth-seeded Jimmy Arias.

The women's semifinals, which will be played Thursday, were set after Tuesday's play when No. 1 seed Martina Navratilova ousted No. 8 Kathy Horvath 6-4, 6-2; No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd staved off No. 15 Carling Bassett of Canada 4-6, 6-1, 6-0; No. 3 Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia stopped 16-year-old amateur Melissa Brown of Scarsdale, N.Y., 6-1, 6-4; and Camille Benjamin of Bakersfield, Calif., upset No. 13 Lisa Bonder of Saline, Mich.

The semifinal pairings will send Navratilova against Mandlikova and Lloyd against Benjamin.

"I enjoy playing the young guys," Connors said. "I try to stay on top of them and not let them take over my spot. That's my incentive these days."

Tie for first marks tourney

The team of John Subia, Tommy Billalla, Eddie Rodriguez and Billy Pineda won a draw to claim first place in the Big Spring Chicano Golf Association Louisiana Draw Tournament held recently at Comanche Trail Golf Course.

The foursome tied after regulation play at 64 with the teams of Dueey Byers, Manuel Ramirez, Joe Del Bozque and Raul hernandez and Gilbert Rodriguez, Eddie Rodriguez, Tony Starr and John Montelongo.

I WOULD LIKE TO THANK ALL OF MY FRIENDS WHO VOTED FOR ME, A SPECIAL THANKS TO THE ONES WHO WORKED SO HARD FOR ME AT THE POLLS, & THOSE WHO GAVE MONEY. I THINK YOU HAVE MADE AN EXCELLENT CHOICE. GOOD LUCK CHINA.

THANK ALL OF YOU AGAIN,

Cards deal Red Sox split

The Big Spring Red Sox split a doubleheader with the Snyder Cardinals Sunday at the Roy Anderson Complex.

The Red Sox won the opening game, 8-3 behind the pitching of Luis Rodriguez who ran his record to 5-1. John Morelion and David Anguiano led the Red Sox at the plate.

Snyder handed Big Spring a 1-0 shutout in the second game, however despite the fact losing pitcher Tony Ontivero (1-2) gave up only four hits. The Red Sox managed only three hits in the defensive battle.

The next action for the Red Sox will be June 9-10 when they play in a tournament in Ozona. The team's next home game will be June 17 in a Father's Day contest against the Big Spring Cunningham Oilers.

When Your Child Needs You...

Make Sure You're Only A Call Away.

You never know when a youngster may need to call from a coin phone. So, it's a good idea to have your child keep a quarter handy to telephone.

Southwestern Bell Telephone has a card for that purpose. It's called a "Quarter Keeper."

In addition to a slot designed to hold a quarter, it includes names and numbers to contact during an emergency.

To order your "Quarter Keeper," just complete the coupon.

The card reminds your child you're only a phone call away.

Unwed mother graduates from high school with honors

MARION CENTER, Pa. (AP) — A teen-ager expelled from the National Honor Society after she gave birth to a child out of wedlock says that although she's graduated from high school with honors, she'll have to look for a job before thinking about college.

"I'm looking forward to the future," Arlene Pfeiffer said Tuesday night after graduating 17th among 154 seniors at Marion Center Area High School.

Miss Pfeiffer, 18, whose daughter, Jessica, was born Aug. 15, said she plans to live with her family while she looks for a job near Marion Center, a rural Indiana County community about 70 miles northeast of Pittsburgh.

In January, the Marion Center Area School Board upheld a faculty council decision to dismiss her from the National Honor Society.

School Superintendent John Mallino said at the time that Miss Pfeiffer was dismissed because "the quality of leadership and character, and I emphasize character, has not been maintained."

Miss Pfeiffer filed a federal suit against the board soon after its decision. The case still is pending.

"I've been through a lot, but it has still been an enjoyable year with my friends and some of my teachers. It just doesn't seem like it's finally coming to an end. Now I can spend more time with Jessica — at least until I can find a job," she said as relatives gathered at her home for cake and ice cream.

"Right now, I'm going to find a job, a real good job that has lots of benefits and good pay, so I can get financially secure with my baby," she said.

"I want to go to college and I'm going to do it as soon as I get set," she said. "I guess I have a lot of planning to do because I want to have time for Jessica, too."

Miss Pfeiffer's entire family attended the ceremony, except for Jessica and an aunt who babysat.

"Jessica's getting four teeth right now, so she's sort of cranky," Miss Pfeiffer said.

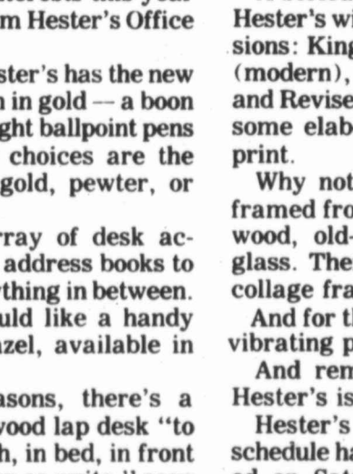

Miss Pfeiffer said the graduation ceremony in the high school's auditorium was marred by reporters' presence.

"I didn't have the same feelings for graduation that I should have had. Teachers felt it was my fault that they (reporters) were there," she said.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY NEWS

Jenny Watkins (right) and Janet Hull show the wide selection of brief cases for Father's Day giving from Hester's, 209 Runnels.

Hester's Makes It Easy To Shop for Dad's Day

Cater to Dad's special interests this year with a Father's Day gift from Hester's Office Supply.

For the businessman, Hester's has the new Cross cartidge fountain pen in gold — a boon for the man who never thought ballpoint pens were quite proper. Other choices are the Cross pen/pencil sets in gold, pewter, or black.

Hester's has a wide array of desk accessories — from business address books to marble desk sets and everything in between.

An executive father would like a handy brief case by Platt or Hazel, available in vinyl or fine leather.

For the man-for-all-seasons, there's a handsome hand-polished wood lap desk "to use in the car, on the beach, in bed, in front of TV or wherever you draw or write," says the manufacturer.

A serious father would appreciate one of Hester's wide selection of Bibles — in six versions: King James, International, Amplified (modern), New American Standard, Living, and Revised Standard. Some are fine leather, some elaborately indexed, others in large print.

Why not surprise Dad with your photo, framed from the selection at Hester's. Pick wood, old-timey tin look, lucite, beveled glass. There are single, double, triple and collage frames.

And for the Dad who works hard there's a vibrating pillow to help him relax.

And remember: every gift you buy at Hester's is gift-wrapped free of charge.

Hester's reminds us that their summer schedule has now started — they will be closed on Saturdays through the Labor Day weekend.

T. Marquez Jr. & Sons Is Satellite Dish Center

It's easy to see for yourself how satellite dish installation can enhance television reception in your own home now that T. Marquez Jr. & Sons has a portable satellite.

The firm can bring the satellite to your home, either in the city or in a rural area for a free demonstration. They can also help arrange financing on a satellite dish system.

T. Marquez Jr. & Sons recently remodelled its facility at 1010 Lamesa Highway to accommodate a complete center for sales and service on satellite dish systems.

T. Marquez Jr. & Sons is well-known for total sales and service for TV's, stereos, radios, auto radios and 8-tracks, appliances, (refrigerators, stoves, washers, dryers.)

While they formerly sold Quasar TV's exclusively, they recently added Sony's. They service all brands of televisions and specialize in antenna work.

T. Marquez Jr. & Sons is home-grown, family business, now operated by the Marquez sons — Bobby, Manuel, Raul, Jesse, Tony and Larry.

They still make house service calls and still offer free delivery on TV's or appliances purchased from them. There are three trained service technicians on staff.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1984

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The morning is fine for using your best discretion to get your surroundings organized on a very sensible basis, after which you find it necessary to use more care in dealing with other persons.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to get tasks handled more efficiently in the morning. Make sure you double-check terms with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20)Plan early for whatever can bring you the feeling that you are doing well, but later you find work stifling, so take it easy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle any problems at home, but later don't go out and spend lots of money foolishly. Work on that particular talent you possess.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Get busy on routines and they are soon done. Later use much tact at home. Do nothing to jeopardize your good name.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Study and arrange your monetary matters in the morning, and then handle communication problems with utmost care.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Morning is best time to get good results in intimate matters and later you can handle practical problems easily but carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) The morning is fine for formulating a better plan

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you listen to advice of a loyal friend in the morning then you can handle personal problems very well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A fine morning for contacting bigwigs you know and gaining cooperation, but later avoid an annoying friend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have fine new ideas early so put them in operation quickly. After lunch you may be busy with outside responsibilities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handling business affairs early is wise, since later newcomers may take your time, but be careful with them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to be more frank when conversing with partners in the morning. Use good judgment in an important matter.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to formulate a plan and then carry through with it to the right conclusion genius-like, but upon reaching maturity may have many problems to solve and can utitlize this fine talent wisely.
