Fire burns down 30th black church in South

■ Officials call blaze arson but stop short of saying whether it is related to previous church burnings.

Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Fire investigators used dogs Friday to try to sniff out clues to an arson fire that destroyed a 93-year-old wooden sanctuary, the 30th fire at a Southern black church in the last year and half.

Federal investigators on the scene stopped short of saying whether the fire Thursday night was related to the previous burnings.

"All I can tell you right now is we are working very hard to get to the bottom of this," President Clinton told reporters in Washington.

Meanwhile, the Southern Poverty Law Center of Montgomery, Ala., filed a lawsuit Friday seeking damages from the Ku Klux Klan for the burning of the Macedonia Baptist Church in South Carolina last June 21.

The lawsuit names the Christian Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, a group founded in Mount Holly, N.C., with chapters in North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee and South Carolina.

Also named were Timothy Welch and Gary Cox, members of the KKK chapter who are in jail awaiting trial on burglary and arson charges, and have admitted their involvement in the fire, according to the South Carolina lawsuit.

A.M. BRIEFING

Escaping division

WASHINGTON — Bob Dole won conservative praise Friday for pledging to keep the Republican platform strongly anti-abortion and his call for tolerance of different views on the issue won enough support from GOP moderates to suggest Dole would escape a divisive convention fight.

Book drive

The Friends of the Library will hold a book drive Monday through Friday at the West Building, corner of Colorado Street and Ohio Avenue. Hours are 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Also, the group accepts books, tapes and videos on Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to noon. Magazines need to be taken to the Midland County Library.

Deadly errors

WASHINGTON — A warning beacon should have told the harried, behind-schedule pilots of Commerce Secretary Ron Brown's plane they were dangerously off course. But the crew flew on, unaware they lacked the equipment to properly monitor the warnings and should not have even taken off for fog-shrouded Dubrovnik, on the Croatian coast. These errors, combined with commanders who failed to adequately train their crews and ignored tough restrictions on flying into substandard civilian airports, led to the April 3 crash of Brown's CT-43A aircraft into a mountainside, the Air Force said Friday.

Man shoots, kills 2, self in upscale Dallas-area grill

ADDISON (AP) — A man who stalked his former girlfriend for more than a year shot her and a restaurant manager before turning the gun on himself Friday at an upscale bar and grill in this Dallas suburb.

All three died in the lunch-hour shooting, officials said.

"It was pretty incredible," said David Culvert, who witnessed the shootings. "We heard a gunshot ... we just stayed under the table until we didn't hear anything else."

The shooter was identified as Richard Bell, 35, of Richardson.

The manager was identified as Todd Brigham, 33, of Lewisville, said Humperdink's restaurant spokesman Brad Stribling.

The woman was identified as Michelle Crissa Bearden, 24, of Dallas.

Bell reportedly began stalking Ms. Bearden after the two stopped dating more than a year ago, according to her relatives, who released a statement through the local hospital where she died.

According to police, Bell arrived at the restaurant alone and ordered food and drinks for two people.

Ms. Bearden arrived a short time later and joined Bell at his table.

The two then began arguing and Bell left the restaurant briefly

Educators learn how to include literature into lessons

"They still sing of him — in the cantinas (saloons) and the country stores, in the ranches when men gather at night to talk in the cool dark, sitting in a circle, smoking and listening to the old songs and the tales of other days. Then the guitarreros (guitar players) sing of the border raids and the skirmishes, of the men who lived by the phrase, 'I will break before I bend.' "

Historical facts and statistics don't portray the entire picture of why events occurred, which is why Midland public school educators spent Friday learning how to incorporate literature into classroom lessons.

Juan Solis, associate professor of reading at the University of Texas Pan American at Edinburgh, presented the program "Celebrating Culture" to MISD's elementary school social studies curriculum committee.

Solis said his workshop focused on "going beyond historical facts and dealing with humanity."

Midlander to help Olympics visitors with their banking needs in Atlanta

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

A torrent of foreign nationals will soon be pouring into Atlanta, Ga., and Midland native Anna Cervantes will be there to help them out with their international banking needs.

A teller coordinator with NationsBank in downtown Midland, Ms. Cervantes was one of 12 Texans and 111 NationsBank employees across the country selected to operate four special banking centers that will be set up in Atlanta.

NationsBank, an Olympic sponsor, is providing the special banking centers to help the masses of athletes, coaches, other members of the International Olympic Committee, reporters and visitors coming for the Summer Olympic Games, Ms. Cervantes said.

While there, she will have tickets for various Olympic activities to enjoy on her days off. NationsBank is paying for her living expenses during her stay in Atlanta.

Ms. Cervantes, a 14-year veteran of the Midland bank, was nominated by Jane McCrary, banking center manager for

Job growth brings smiles to White House, makes Wall Street anxious

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy added twice as many jobs as had been expected last month, a surge that brought smiles at the White House but made Wall Street nervous.

The Labor Department said Friday that business payrolls grew by 348,000 in May, marking the fourth straight month of strong job gains.

The job strength attracted a flood of new entrants into the labor market, coming at the same time that recent college graduates and student summer workers normally begin seeking jobs. This nudged the unemployment rate up to 5.6 percent.

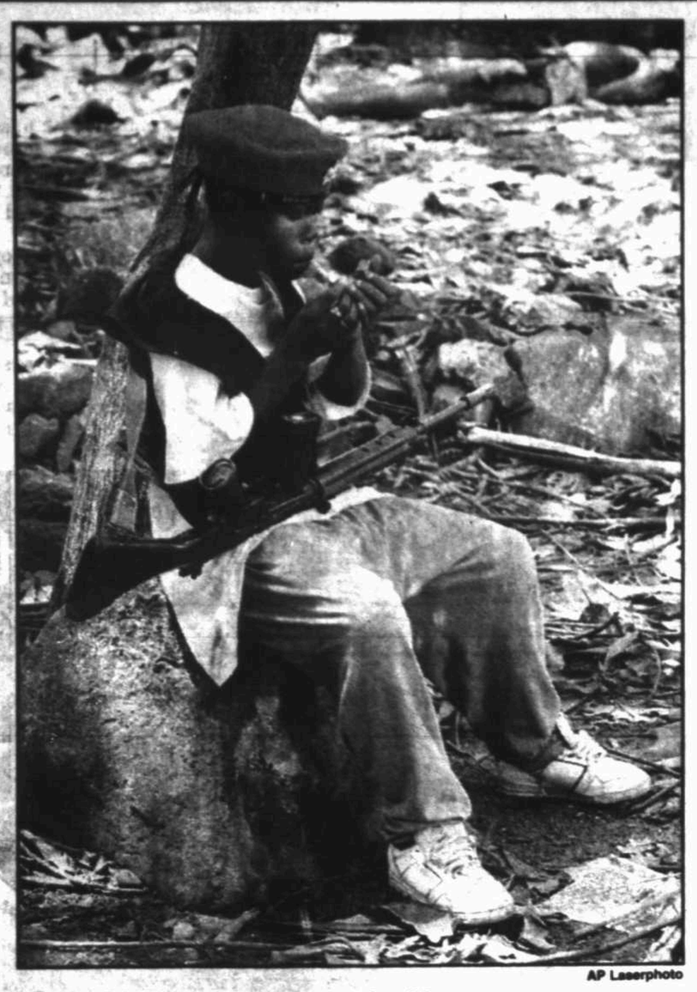

The May jobs report sent economists scurrying to revise upward their growth forecasts for this year and triggered investor fears that the Federal Reserve will raise interest rates in a pre-emptive strike against inflation.

President Clinton, happy about strong job growth in an election year, insisted that the economy was "steady and strong" without any signs of overheating.

Children soldiers return to peace

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Young Ray Benedict killed "plenty-oh" with his grenade launcher during Liberia's war.

Rambo Farley fought on the other side, using an automatic rifle almost as long as he is tall.

Ray and Rambo traded their childhoods for a chance to kill. Now they are trying to get on with their lives in the city they looted and leveled.

Nearly deaf after launching rocket-propelled grenades from his shoulder for the past six years, Ray sits on a quiet beach with fellow fighters who survived the war, joking and talking about friends who did not.

Ray, who looks about 20 but is unsure of his age, says he came to Monrovia for the first time on April 12 when warlord Charles Taylor brought in reinforcements for his National Patriotic Front of Liberia faction.

Taylor launched Liberia's civil war in December 1989 to oust the corrupt government of President Samuel Doe. His and six other factions have been battling for control of the country ever since.

The fighting moved into the capital in April, when the interim government tried to arrest a faction leader on murder charges and thousands of young fighters flocked in from the countryside to back their leaders.

One of those fighters was Ray.

Unable to spell his own last name, Ray is shaky on the details of his past. He says he was recruited by the NPFL in 1990 and taken from his village to Taylor's headquarters in Gbarnga. Since then he has been launching grenades.

"They told me there would be advantages if I was a soldier in Gbarnga," Ray said. "Not money, but I'd be defending my country."

When he came to Monrovia, Ray quickly earned a reputation as the most efficient killer on the front line. He was the only fighter who used a rocket launcher to strike down groups of rivals.

Younger boys without weapons made toy grenade-launchers from fire extinguishers and ketchup bottles and carted them in the streets to imitate his courage. Rival fighters on the other side often shook their heads, mumbling "Hey, Ray" when his white flash made another building burst into flames.

"The people I killed, I killed them because they wanted to take Monrovia," Ray said. "The people I killed — plenty-oh."

Many of the NPFL's young fighters, including Ray, will soon be taken back to Gbarnga, but for now Ray and his friends spend their days exploring what remains of Monrovia, walking through the refugee camps carrying radios instead of rocket launchers and being treated for the most part as heroes of war.

In Liberia and in Sierra Leone, Angola and Sudan, boys — and often girls — have been used by their elders to fight their countries' civil wars. The United Nations estimates there are 200,000 children bearing arms among some 25 nations currently at war.

In Sierra Leone, some 1,000 children last year were ordered to put down their guns and head to U.N.-sponsored camps for former child soldiers. In Liberia, the estimated 6,000 children soldiers under age 15 have few such options.

In a tiny Monrovia room turned into a makeshift movie theater, school-age children sit in rows watching a Charles Bronson video. Among them is a small boy who calls himself Rambo Farley.

The same size as the other boys, Rambo acts older, leaning back in his chair, not throwing as much popcorn. Unlike the others, two days earlier Rambo was a fighter on the front line. Not much taller than the assault rifle he struggled to shoulder, the young ULIMO-J soldier says he is 16.

When the city exploded in early April, Rambo lived near the compound where those loyal to ULIMO-J leader Roosevelt Johnson took shelter. Rambo's parents fled the daily shelling of the compound, but Rambo stayed behind, was given a weapon, and followed older fighters every day to battle on the streets.

There is now an uncertain calm in Monrovia, but Rambo's parents have not returned and he remains here, relying on fellow rebels or displaced civilians to share food or floor space.

Squatting on the ground sharing a bowl of rice with the children of a civilian family, Rambo is unsure of his future, but knows he has few options.

The people of Liberia are also uncertain of the long-term effects of a generation turned into killers by warlords.

"You know Liberia," said faction commander Roland Anderson. "During war we prepare for peace. When the peace comes it's time to prepare for war."

Urban migration breeds epidemics

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The next epidemic may begin with a dream. Or maybe a gunshot.

Whatever drives people and their livestock to cities — warfare, poverty, a vision of something better — also adds another pinch to the unhealthy soup of viruses and diseases that could brew the next killer outbreak.

Urban slums and shantytowns, the "microbe magnets" of the world, are the grim arenas where health workers are trying to corral a host of mysterious new diseases such as Ebola and old nemeses like cholera and tuberculosis in new and more virulent forms.

"It's all very frightening," said Dr. Michel Thuriaux, an expert in emerging diseases at the World Health Organization.

At a U.N. conference on urban problems, the messages of Thuriaux and other health experts reveal their frustration in chasing and battling outbreaks. They understand where the enemy thrives, but are often overpowered by its strength or baffled by its strategy.

Many of the problems are linked to the population flooding into cities, particularly in developing countries.

In the next 20 years, the United Nations predicts nine of the top 10 megacities will be in developing nations, including some in an epidemic-prone belt running across Africa and Asia. Three beleaguered centers alone — Lagos, Nigeria; Bombay, India, and Dhaka, Bangladesh — are expected to have a total of more than 70 million people in 2015.

Overcrowding allows diseases to race through cities, where many people are already weakened from diarrhea and other ailments linked to fouled drinking water.

And the tendencies of villagers to bring their animals to the city creates an opportunity for cross-species transmission of diseases — which some researchers believe could be the root of the HIV virus that causes AIDS.

At least 30 previously unknown diseases have been identified since 1973, including the Ebola virus, a contagious hemorrhagic fever that surfaced in 1977 and reemerged to kill 245 people in Zaire a year ago.

Old scourges also have roared back in changed or drug-resistant forms or have been reintroduced into areas by increasing international air travel. For example, a new strain of cholera appeared in southeastern India in 1992 and has now spread to Southeast Asia. A powerful form of tuberculosis has emerged among homeless people in the United States, the Geneva-based WHO says.

"I wish I could say we had a magic bullet," Thuriaux said Friday.

"The answer," said Thuriaux, "isn't to pretend it doesn't happen and hope it goes away."

WORLD IN BRIEF

■Arab leaders react to Israeli election

DAMASCUS, Syria — In the third Arab mini-summit meeting in five days, President Hafez Assad of Syria conferred Friday with leaders of Egypt and Saudi Arabia in search of a strategy to counter Benjamin Netanyahu's declared unwillingness to trade land for peace with Syria.

With the Egyptians and Saudis adding considerable clout, Assad plainly hoped to focus critical attention on Netanyahu, Israel's prime minister-elect, and his pledge before the election that "we will not come down from the Golan Heights."

■AIDS cases up 25 percent, U.N. says

GENEVA (AP) — The number of people suffering from AIDS soared by 25 percent in 1995 and now totals 1.3 million, according to a new report by the United Nations.

In a survey on the disease released Thursday, the United Nations said 21 million adults across the world are infected with HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

Women make up about 42 percent of the reported cases and the percentage is rising, the organization said.

The agency did not release figures on the number of children infected, and experts disagree on how many there are.

Data indicate that most adults were infected with HIV between the ages of 15 and 24 and experience symptoms by the age of 35. More than 90 percent of those who die from AIDS-related disease are under 49.

Envoy Holbrooke pushes for timely elections

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite the risks, Bosnian elections must be held on schedule or else the country will fragment and those indicted for war crimes will grab even more power, the architect of the Yugoslav peace agreement said Friday.

Richard Holbrooke, who negotiated the Bosnian peace accord in Dayton, Ohio but has since left government, acknowledged the obstacles but said timely elections offer the only hope for peace.

"I think the elections are certain to be imperfect and it's essential they go on," he said in an interview.

In Bern, the chairman of the multinational group entrusted with deciding whether to go ahead with the September elections said his organization, and not Washington or any one else, will make such a ruling.

Human rights groups have called for a postponement of the elections. They fear that restrictions on freedom of movement and controls on the press will lead to corrupt elections that will solidify the position of hard-liners among the rival Serbs, Croats and Muslims.

Human Rights Watch-Helsinki presented a report Friday that it said shows that the Bosnian factions have failed to comply with the peace accords as well as "the failure of the international community to insist on compliance."

Without such compliance, the group charged, the elections will be a "charade."

In an interview with The Associated Press, Holbrooke acknowledged weaknesses in the Dayton agreements and admitted that gloomy predictions about Bosnia's partitioning and an emboldening of war crimes suspects could prove true. But he said the risks would be even greater without elections.

Holbrooke, who now works for a New York banking firm, said it was equally essential for those indicted for war crimes, particularly Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic and his military commander, Gen. Ratko Mladic, to be brought to justice at the international war crimes tribunal in The Hague.

U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher appeared to gloss over that formality Sunday, declaring after meeting the presidents of Serbia, Croatia and Bosnia in Geneva that elections would be held.

"Christopher has every right to express his opinion," Cotti said in a statement to The Associated Press, noting that other states would give their views at an international conference on Bosnia in Florence, Italy, next week.

WEATHER WATCH

Today to be sunny, high near 90

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies and a high near 90 with winds from the southeast at 5-15 mph, according to the National Weather Service.

Tonight's forecast calls for fair skies with a low in the low 60s.

Sunday is expected to be mostly sunny with a high in the mid-90s.

The high for Friday was 85, compared to the record high for that date of 106, set in 1964.

Friday's low was 64, compared to the record low of 48 set in 1983.

STATE

A cool front has pushed across Texas, leaving partly cloudy to clear skies and mild temperatures in its wake.

The front also triggered thunderstorms that dropped up to 4 inches of rain in North Central Texas.

Temperatures warmed only into the 80s in most locations. At 4 p.m., extremes ranged from 76 degrees at Fort Stockton to 93 degrees at Del Rio.

Winds were out of the north at 10 to 15 miles an hour with southerly breezes in far South Texas and westerly winds in the Trans-Pecos region.

The North Texas forecast is for fair skies in the West today and mostly cloudy in the northeast. Partly cloudy elsewhere. Highs will be in the upper 70s in the northeast to upper 80s in the west. tonight will be partly cloudy in the east and fair elsewhere. Lows will be in the upper 50s to lower 60s.

South Texas is to have partly cloudy to mostly cloudy skies today with temperatures in the 80s and 90s, except for 70s in the rain-cooled areas. Lows in the 70s.

Forecasters said West Texas will be partly cloudy today with highs from the 70s in the far north to around 105 along the Rio Grande. Lows from the 50s in the Panhandle to lower 70s in the far west and Big Bend valleys.

NATION

Rain stretched from the Gulf Coast to the Great Lakes on Friday, with as much as 4 inches falling on drought-parched sections of Texas.

That heaviest rain in Texas fell overnight between Waco and Brownwood, with 3-inch downpours from Denton to Sherman.

In many parts of Texas, the rain was accompanied by wind gusting to 80 mph, hail as big as golf balls and lower temperatures.

Farmers welcomed the rain and the break from the drying heat, said Doug Andrews, extension agent for McLennan County, Texas. The moisture came in time to benefit growers of corn, he said.

"Some was already damaged to the point of yield loss. That will not be undone," Andrews said. "But the rains that have come this week are going to complete their crop. It just will not be to the point that it would have been."

During the afternoon, thunderstorms extended from the lower Mississippi Valley across the Tennessee and Ohio valleys to the lower Great Lakes.

Over the six-hour period up to 2 p.m. EDT, 0.61 of an inch of rain fell at Watertown, N.Y., and 0.65 of an inch fell at Columbus, Miss.

Wind damage was reported around parts of Alabama.

And more thunderstorms in southern Texas during the afternoon produced wind gusts to 50 mph in the Corpus Christi area.

The rain also was expected to spread eastward into the Appalachians and northeastward into New England.

In the West, there was a chance of showers and thunderstorms over parts of western Washington, northwestern Montana, California's Sierra Nevada and the southern Rockies.

Elsewhere, reduced wind and rising humidity slowed the advance of the huge Alaska forest fire that had destroyed hundreds of homes in an area 50 miles north of Anchorage.

Rain was forecast in the area of the fire this weekend, giving firefighters hope they could contain the fire with firebreaks in a few days.

Friday's temperatures around the Lower 48 states ranged from a morning low of 27 at Yellowstone National Park, Wyo., to early afternoon readings of 103 at Needles, Calif., and Gila Bend, Ariz. The highest midday heat index, the rating calculated from temperature and humidity, was 116 at Cameron, La.

GROWTH: Payrolls mark 4th straight month of job gains

(From 1A)

tion in today's economy," Clinton said at a Rose Garden event called to highlight the strong job growth.

Addressing market fears about imminent Fed rate increases, Clinton said, "if they see that we are producing this level of job growth with no inflation, then I would think the interest rates should stay down."

Stocks and bonds both plunged after the initial release of the unemployment report. Bond prices took their worst drubbing in a month with falling demand pushing the yield on Treasury's 30-year bond, a key benchmark for longterm borrowing costs, up to 7.03 percent, compared with 6.90 percent on Thursday.

However, stocks recovered from a drop that at one point had pushed the Dow Jones industrial average down by 85 points. The Dow finished the day up 29.92 at 5,697.11.

Many private economists said the bond market was correct to fear imminent Fed rate increases, arguing that the latest unemployment report has now tipped the scales to one or possibly two quarter-point increases this summer.

"This was an explosive jobs report that shows the economy is in super shape," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at Lehman Brothers Global Economics. "But the flip side of that is the Fed will have to raise interest rates once or twice over the summer."

"The soft landing is over and now we are in a take-off," said Robert Dederick, chief economic consultant at Northern Trust Co. in Chicago. "This is a group that prides itself on being pre-emptive and keeping inflation in check."

Some economists worried openly that the economy might be in a boom-bust cycle where the Fed will have to slam on the brakes so hard to fight inflation that doing so would run the risk of tossing the country into a recession.

But Labor Secretary Robert Reich discounted those fears and said all signs pointed to solid growth and more jobs.

"This isn't the first time that Main Street has celebrated and Wall Street has despaired," he said. "I don't see any signs of accelerating inflation. We have had healthy productivity increases which should leave ample room for wage increases."

Many private economists said they believed the economy was growing at an annual rate of 3.5 percent to 4 percent in the current quarter, far higher than last year's anemic 2 percent pace.

Alicia Munnell, a member of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said the 3.5 percent estimate for the second quarter was probably close to the mark, but she insisted that various factors would contribute to slower growth in the second half with inflation remaining moderate for the year.

The Labor Department announced revisions to prior data that showed the economy created more jobs last year than previously believed, pushing total job growth since Clinton took office 40 months ago to 9.7 million.

The White House, hoping to underscore Clinton's economic record for voters, noted in a fact sheet that it took the economy 73 months to create that many jobs during Ronald Reagan's presidency.

The May survey of business payrolls showed an increase of 348,000, the second biggest gain in the past two years. The government also dramatically revised upward its 2,000-worker increase for April job growth to a much stronger 163,000 gain.

For May, 52 percent of the increase in payroll jobs came from 181,000 new jobs in service industries. This strength was led by employment in temporary help firms, which rose by 48,000; department stores and other retail establishment, up 46,000, and health care, which added 39,000 workers.

Employment in manufacturing was up a tiny 6,000, reflecting strength in autos. Construction jobs were up a sharp 28,000 in May.

The 0.2 percentage point rise in the unemployment rate still left it in a narrow band between 5.4 percent and 5.8 percent, where it has been for the past 20 months.

worked on lessons concerning Gregorio Cortez, while festive Mexican music sung by Linda Ronstadt from the album "Canciones de Mi Padre" (My Father's Songs) played.

Solis said that no matter what time period one considers, people had values. "Values never change. People just have them in different doses."

Solis said he incorporates English and Spanish literature into curriculum. Teachers at the workshop pointed out that literature includes dialogue.

"That's right. Literature gives you dialogue, actions and decisions. It helps you to understand people," Solis said. He said using literature offers more to students than stereotypical portrayals of people.

"I'm Mexican. I've been Mexican all of my life, but I've never seen a Mexican wear a sombrero, and I've certainly never seen a Mexican sleeping while leaning up against a cactus," Solis said, garnering laughter.

"Mexicans are more than maracas and sombreros. There is the whole issue of values, beliefs and customs," he said.

Solis said studying literature explores value systems across cultures. "Good literature can represent a culture," he said, noting that a person's worth is not determined by wealth, statue or class, but by their actions.

"I came from a poor background, but my parents had classy values," he said.

Patty Smith, MISD social studies coordinator, said she agreed with Solis' explanation of culture as being dynamic and changing.

"With the demographics changing in Midland, this is really applicable to us," she said.

"Too often, students look at pictures in books and make judgments based on the appearance," Solis said. "Then they read the historical data and it just doesn't tell them about the humanity."

He said literature adds another dimension to history lessons.

Solis said culture is not defined by artifacts and material, biological traits, an idealized or romantic heritage of a people, a higher class status derived from manners or arts.

He said culture is dynamic, continuous and cumulative, learned and shared involves behavior and values, is creative and meaningful, symbolically represented, and is a guide for people in their thinking, feeling and acting.

Friday's workshop began with a focus on the Hispanic culture, but moved to other cultures including those of China, Egypt, and England during the Middle Ages.

FIRE: Arson destroys historic Southern black church

(From 1A)

1903, was used only to store old pews and other things on the grounds of the Matthews-Murkland Presbyterian Church. The mostly black 175-member congregation worships in a new building 100 yards away.

The church was planning to renovate the building and use it as a wedding chapel or for other community activities. It estimated the loss at $150,000.

Investigators said the fire had been set. They did not say how.

"We won't say it's connected to the series of fires, but we're just getting information from the scene," said Mark Logan, agent in charge for the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Gov. Jim Hunt authorized a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the arsonist or arsonists.

Church member Timothy Funderburk, who lives across the street from the burned out building, was convinced that someone torched it.

"I hate to prejudice somebody, but this was set. I've seen too many things happen here," he said as he looked at the pieces of the charred remains of the white-clapboard building.

Mayor Pat McCrory urged people not to make rash judgments about the fire.

"Nothing so far at all connects to this fire to any of the other church fires across the South," McCrory said.

Five people have been arrested in the other fires. But authorities have said they have found no evidence of a national racist conspiracy.

The church is nestled into seven acres in one of the city's most affluent and predominantly white neighborhoods.

The Rev. Larry Hill, the church's pastor, said his church had received no threats. "It's painful to see things like this still happening in 1996," he said. "Right now we're praying for genuine healing within the nation and the world."

According to a tally of cases the ATF considers "open," six black churches have burned in Tennessee, five each in Louisiana, South Carolina and Alabama, four in North Carolina, three in Mississippi, and one each in Virginia and Georgia.

Texas Rangers captain sues AP, 2 newspapers, others claiming libel

GROVETON (AP) — Texas Rangers Senior Capt. Maurice Cook sued The Associated Press, two newspapers, the Travis County sheriff and others Friday, claiming libel and intentional infliction of emotional distress.

"Beginning in late 1995 and early 1996, Defendants, acting in concert with each other, produced a series of stories which were untrue," alleged the lawsuit filed in state district court in this East Texas county.

Cook named the AP, the Houston Chronicle, Amarillo Sunday News-Globe, Travis County Sheriff Terry Keel, Chronicle reporter Mark Smith, AP reporter Mike Cochran and Houston attorney John Phillips.

Mike Cox, a DPS spokesman, emphasized that Cook is suing as an individual, not a representative of the Rangers. "It has nothing to do with the Texas Department of Public Safety and we have no position on it," Cox said.

According to the lawsuit, the defendants intentionally inflicted emotional distress on Cook by reporting information or statements with malicious intent that they knew were false and that would injure his reputation.

Cook and attorney Gary Richardson of Tulsa, Okla., appeared in front of the Fort Fisher Texas Ranger Hall of Fame in Waco Friday afternoon to announce the lawsuit.

"I'm a fairly strong person, but it's still an awful humiliating thing to read. But that's not as bad as people contacting me, my friends and family, people that have developed ideas from reading this," Cook said.

Richardson added that Cook "feels that what's happened here has been a negative thing for an organization that he spent years trying to help have as good an image as it could, and now he's been used to have that image questioned."

The lawsuit, filed by attorneys Richardson and Charles E. Soechting of San Marcos, also claims slander and "tortious interference with perspective economic opportunities."

In May 1995, former Texas Ranger Cheryl Steadman told the AP she was subjected to a pattern of harassment that became intolerable after an overnight Ranger outing attended by Cook. A female DPS intelligence officer, Lisa Sheppard, claimed she was a victim of discrimination, openly blaming Cook for her decision to turn down a Ranger commission.

After lodging unsuccessful human rights complaints, Steadman and Sheppard sued the elite law enforcement agency and its parent DPS last December in federal court.

A trial date has not been set.

"We stand by the fair and accurate reporting of our correspondent, Mike Cochran, in his stories on the problems in the Texas Rangers law enforcement organization. We believe this personal action by Maurice Cook ultimately will be judged to be without merit," said John Lumpkin, Dallas bureau chief for The Associated Press.

Unrelated to the allegations lodged by the women officers, the Houston Chronicle reported that Cook was accused of lying during a court hearing involving the mysterious 1990 slayings of former racing commission official Daniel Joost and his family.

The Chronicle quoted unidentified sources that Cook invoked his Fifth Amendment right to testify on the grounds he might incriminate himself. A Hays County grand jury declined to indict Cook.

Phillips, who represented the Joost family, was quoted by the Chronicle as saying: "There is no doubt (Cook) was lying. He gave specific details of a phone conversation, specific times and a specific day. There was more than probable cause to indict Cook."

Friday's lawsuit was filed in Groveton because Cook lives there, according to the document.

According to Trinity County tax records, Cook lists his primary address as a residence in Round Rock in Williamson County. The records show he is the owner of a 12,000-acre tract of land in Trinity County and is late in paying his 1995 taxes.

Sheriff Keel was on vacation and hadn't seen a copy of the lawsuit, said his chief of staff, Andy Saenz. Keel criticized Cook in an Associated Press story about reports that Cook was going to retire.

ATTACK: Gunman shoots 2, self in Addison restaurant and returned to the table, where the argument continued, police said.

(From 1A)

Brigham then came to the table and said he would ask them to leave if they didn't quiet down.

Bell then stood up, displayed a handgun and shot Ms. Bearden as she sat at the table, police said. He then turned and shot Brigham before shooting Ms. Bearden again and turning the gun on himself.

Witnesses said the man shot Ms. Bearden several more times after shooting Brigham.

Town of Addison Police spokeswoman Mary Rosenbleeth said it was not known if Ms. Bearden had agreed to meet Bell at the restaurant or if Bell had gone to the restaurant knowing she was planning to go there.

"It appears as though he was expecting her, but we weren't privy to their conversation," she said.

The emergency call was reported at 1:06 p.m. and police responded within three minutes.

Bell used a .45 caliber, semiautomatic Glock 21 handgun, a weapon used by many police departments.

Ms. Rosenbleeth said Bell apparently did not have a permit to carry a concealed weapon.

Brigham is survived by his wife and three daughters, ages 2, 4 and 6.

'Everybody's still trying to hope we'll wake up (and) it'll be two hours ago and none of this has happened," Stribling told Dallas-Fort Worth television station KXAS. "The fact that he was trying to get in between these two people is what did him in. He always was trying to keep things running smooth. That's part of the reason he's gone, I guess."

Humperdink's is a Tacoma, Wash.-based chain of 23 restaurants.

NationsBank Midland.

Ms. Cervantes was then selected by officials with the NationsBank corporate office to serve as an Olympic Gold Medal Teller.

"Tellers were chosen through a nominations process for exceptional work accomplishments," according to information from the NationsBank corporate office.

"Anna takes great pride in her work and strives to have her area be the best," Ms. McCrary said. "She is well-deserving of the recognition as a Gold Medal Teller and has always considered customer service as her first priority."

Ms. Cervantes will leave for Atlanta June 23 for a week of training in the operation of the new banking centers. She will come back to Midland for a week before going back to Atlanta on July 5 for the Olympics, she said. She will be in Atlanta through Aug. 8.

Ms. Cervantes, who will be working at the banking center located in the Olympic Village, believes most travelers will need assistance with foreign currency exchange, cashing foreign traveler's checks, cashing foreign checks and transferring funds.

Before she leaves, Ms. Cervantes is taking some time off from the Midland bank to spend time with her husband, Raymon and her two daughters, Mariana, 15, and Marisa, 6.

NationsBank maintains retail banking franchises in nine states and the District of Columbia and boasts total assets of $194 billion.

Judge to rule on whether to move retrial of convicted murderer on Monday at earliest

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

A judge will not rule until Monday at the earliest on whether to move the retrial of convicted murderer Sherry Henderson, according to court officials.

Ms. Henderson faces a murder charge in the Nov. 27, 1993, shooting death of Angela Perkins-Belcher.

She was found guilty of shooting Ms. Belcher at the Zodiac II club and was sentenced to 50 years in prison during an August 1994 trial.

The conviction was overturned last year when an appeals court ruled the jury was entitled to hear certain evidence that the presiding judge didn't allow.

Her retrial is pending a ruling by 238th District Court Judge John Hyde on whether to move her trial to an adjoining county because of public knowledge of the case or to try and seat a local jury panel.

The trial was supposed to start earlier this week but was postponed because of scheduling conflicts with one of the defense attorneys.

When attorneys began questioning the jury pool Thursday, enough of the potential jurors were dismissed that Hyde dismissed the entire panel.

A court official said 65 people were summoned for the jury panel; only 55 showed up. From the pool of 55 present, the court had difficulties qualifying enough people to make a panel.

Part of Hyde's decision will include whether the notoriety in the community is sufficient to move the trial to an adjoining county.

Among the counties to be considered for a change of venue are Martin, Upton, Ector and Glasscock counties.

Testimony in Ms. Henderson's first trial indicated the shooting happened after an altercation in the club left Ms. Henderson's sister, Monique Henderson, with a bloody head wound.

Witnesses testified Ms. Henderson retrieved a revolver from her car and went back to the club where her wounded sister was surrounded by a group of shouting people.

The jury found Ms. Henderson fired one fatal round in Ms. Belcher's chest.

The jury was not allowed to hear testimony detailing an ongoing "terror campaign" waged against Ms. Henderson by her ex-husband.

Testimony indicated both Ms. Henderson and her sister had been assaulted by the ex-husband on various occasions and that Ms. Henderson thought it might have been her ex-husband who had assaulted her sister that night.

During the trial the judge ruled the testimony of Ms. Henderson's claim of being a battered spouse was not applicable to the charges.

Grounds for the appeal centered around Ms. Henderson's entire state of mind at the time of the shooting.

NATION IN BRIEF

■ Clinton answers gay rights groups

WASHINGTON — President Clinton said Friday he has "no intention" of dropping his opposition to same-sex marriages, but he said he would keep a promise to visit San Francisco this weekend despite threatened protests by gay and lesbian activists.

The president told reporters at a White House Rose Garden news conference that he would not cancel plans to visit the Presidio and attend a fundraiser for Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., on Sunday.

The White House confirmed Tuesday that San Francisco Mayor Willie Brown had warned Clinton's chief of staff, Leon Panetta, and political liaison John Emerson that the president's visit might spark demonstrations by homosexual activists. Gay rights advocates are angry over the president's support for a GOP-sponsored bill to restrict federal benefits for couples in same-sex marriages.

■ Weather helps Alaska firefighters

BIG LAKE, Alaska (AP) — Calm and clammy air Friday helped fire crews fight a huge wildfire to a standstill on Friday, but a second blaze sprang up and spread rapidly in another forest 100 miles south.

About 1,200 firefighters were dumping water and hacking down trees and scrub growth to encircle the 65-square-mile fire in the Matanuska Valley 50 miles of Anchorage, which destroyed 298 houses and buildings, one-third of those in the fire's path.

State fire investigator Mark Barker said the fire, which blew up in every direction around the rural towns of Big Lake and Houston, acted "a lot like a tornado: One house is there and the other isn't."

Some of the 700 people evacuated as the fire spread saw the devastation for the first time on Thursday

.But the focus remained on the earlier fire, which authorities believe was sparked by fireworks Monday.

Bulldozers and other earth-moving equipment being used to cut fire breaks lined a highway, a hundred yards from a cluster of shops that sell fireworks.

Compiled from Reporter-Telegram wire services.

Equipment, leadership blamed for Brown crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A warning beacon should have told the harried, behind-schedule pilots of Commerce Secretary Ron Brown's plane they were dangerously off course.

But the crew flew on, unaware they lacked the equipment to properly monitor the warnings and should not have even taken off for fog-shrouded Dubrovnik, on the Croatian coast. These errors, combined with commanders who failed to adequately train their crews and ignored tough restrictions on flying into substandard civilian airports, led to the April 3 crash of Brown's CT-43A aircraft into a mountainside, the Air Force said Friday. The crash killed Brown and 34 other people.

The plane was two miles off course.

"The CT-43A accident was caused by a failure of command, air crew error, and an improperly designed instrument approach," concluded the report, prepared by a panel headed by Air Force Brig. Gen. Charles Coolidge Jr. In the absence of any one of those factors, the accident would not have happened, the report said.

In effect, the report blamed the 86th Airlift Wing commanders, the pilots of Brown's plane, and the Croatian civilians who designed the airport's instrument landing procedures. Three senior officers with the air wing have already been relieved of command; the pilots were killed in the crash. The Croatian government protested the report's conclusions about their landing procedures.

President Clinton, a close friend of Brown's, told reporters Friday that the briefing he received the night before was "a very painful, personal experience."

"I kept thinking that this peculiar mix of circumstances — if only one or two little things had happened, the crash might not have happened," Clinton said.

Clinton noted that some corrective steps have already been taken, with more to come. They include more training for pilots and commanders, minimum equipment requirements for military planes to handle all types of navigational situations and a strict ban on landing at international airports deemed unsafe by the Defense Department. Defense Secretary William Perry had previously ordered a retrofit of all military passenger planes with "black box" recorders to aid investigators and with the most modern navigational devices.

A two-month investigation that produced 22 volumes of detail found that the pilots, Capts. Ashley Davis and Timothy Shafer, had mapped out a prohibited flight path from Tuzla in neighboring Bosnia. Fixing the error in flight put them 15 minutes behind schedule and caused them to rush their approach. As it neared the runway, the plane was flying at about 250 mph, roughly 90 mph faster than recommended, leaving them less time to monitor the wavering needle that was guiding them to a landing.

"This kind of crew put great stock in arriving on time at a location," said a grim Gen. Ronald Fogleman, the Air Force chief of staff at a Pentagon news conference. Fogleman refused to place all the blame on the pilots but added, "Clearly it is ultimately the air crew's responsibility to flight plan and execute the mission. People who wear these wings know that from the first day they're pinned on their chest."

In addition, the pilots erred in setting their course heading into the Dubrovnik runway, according to the investigation. The mistake meant they were not compensating for a strong crosswind on the stormy day that blew them off course. They also failed to notice from their navigational system that they were drifting toward the mountainous coast.

The critical pilot error, Coolidge said, came beforehand when the crew failed to realize that an instrument landing at Dubrovnik would require a two-channel receiver to gain direction headings from two ground-based beacons that use 1930s technology. The military version of the Boeing 737 was equipped with a one-channel receiver. Knowing this, the pilots should not have taken off for Dubrovnik, he said.

Every indication at the crash site was that they had little or no warning of the approaching disaster. The plane hit the mountain wheels down, flaps up at 160 mph without wavering from its incorrect course.

Investigators did find the No. 1 engine of the aircraft at full throttle, the only indicator that the pilots saw the crash coming and tried to avoid it. According to witnesses, the plane never descended out of the cloud cover. It hit the 2,300-foot mountain 125 feet below the summit.

Dole's call for tolerance on abortion wins praise of some conservatives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Dole won conservative praise Friday for pledging to keep the Republican platform strongly anti-abortion and his call for tolerance of different views on the issue won enough support from GOP moderates to suggest Dole would escape a divisive convention fight.

Ending weeks of internal campaign debate, Dole said Thursday night that he would not propose — and would not accept as GOP presidential nominee — any retreat from the current platform language calling for a constitutional amendment banning abortion.

■ For update on presidential campaign, call Cityline 560-2400, enter 6204.

Dole also called for a "declaration of tolerance" in the GOP platform that welcomes those with different views on abortion or other issues. "This is not compromise, it is civility," Dole said.

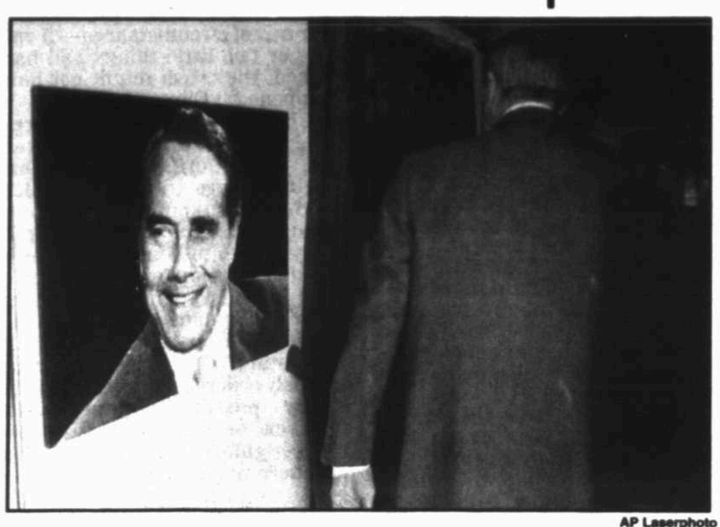

Dole's statement brought a flood of reaction from politicians and activists on both sides of the issue, including praise from such disparate figures as President Clinton and Pat Buchanan, Dole's conservative GOP primary challenger.

"Anything that restores civility in this debate is a positive thing and I applaud him for it," Clinton told reporters.

But, eager not to lose his giant lead among moderate women who support abortion rights, Clinton pointedly noted: "He is in favor of a constitutional amendment to ban abortions and I am not. There is a real difference there that I don't think can be papered over."

Echoing Clinton, National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League president Kate Michelman said Dole's statement "confirms that he is willing to make abortion illegal for most American women. No verbal window dressing will change that fact."

Of most concern to the Dole camp, however, was reaction from Republicans. And by late Friday, the consensus was that Dole had taken a giant stride toward avoiding a floor battle over abortion policy at the August Republican National Convention.

Republican presidential hopeful Bob Dole walks past a picture of himself on his way to board a plane for a campaign stop in Nashville, Tenn. Friday at Washington National Airport in Arlington, Va.

Avoiding a convention battle is something Dole advisers consider critical to maintaining enthusiastic support among the GOP's conservative base without alienating suburban swing voters who tend to favor abortion rights.

"We don't want the convention dominated by the media talking about one issue," Dole said Friday as he campaigned in Tennessee. "We've got a lot of things we agree on."

Anti-abortion conservatives will have the most votes at the San Diego convention, and Dole pleased them by vowing to leave the 1992 platform intact. "Welcome news for the cause of life," was how Buchanan characterized Dole's pledge.

Dole clinched the Republican nomination in March, but Buchanan has withheld an endorsement, partly because he was waiting to see if Dole would try to change the anti-abortion plank.

There was some initial concern among anti-abortion leaders that Dole wanted the "declaration of tolerance" added directly to the abortion plank. But after Dole aides assured them that any "big tent" language would go into the platform preamble, most embraced Dole's statement.

Buchanan suggested preamble language that would not single out abortion: "We respect and welcome in our ranks those who may disagree with one or several of the planks of this platform — and we openly welcome them in the cause of a Republican victory in 1996."

Pat Robertson, the Christian Coalition founder and president, also embraced Dole's idea. "The tolerance language, if it is at the preamble of the entire platform, I think it's a very good thing," Robertson said on his Christian Broadcasting Network. "That means it's a big tent, and it's a big enough party to accommodate differing points of view."

While eager not to offend Dole, however, several abortion-rights supporters said the statement did not go far enough.

F-16 crashes, pilot ejects

VALLEY SPRINGS, S.D. (AP) — An Air National Guard F-16 jet crashed into a ravine and burst into flames Friday after the pilot ejected safely, a National Guard spokeswoman said.

Col. Ron Dardis of Sioux City, Iowa, landed about 1 1/2 miles from the crash site. He was flown to a hospital for observation.

Dardis and another pilot in a second F-16 were flying to Iowa to conduct maneuvers when Dardis' plane developed engine problems, said Maj. Ruth Christopherson of the Sioux Falls Airnal Guard office.

Summer WANTED: TU ELECTRIC CUSTOMERS 1996

Who Else Wants Their Electric Company To Buy Them A New Central Air Conditioning System?
Let me explain...

If you're presently cooling your home with a window unit or central air conditioner over 8 years old, you are paying over twice as much on your electric bill as you should be. There have been technological breakthroughs in central air conditioning designs, which when installed properly in your home, will reduce the amount you pay the electric company $40-$50 or more per month!
Here is the surprising part!
Your payments on one of these super efficient systems will usually be $45-$100 per month, with no down payment required! This means the money you're not paying the electric company is paying for your new central air system! All you have to do to get in on this amazing deal is call one of our Energy Savings Estimators and set up a time to survey your home. If you qualify, he can make all the arrangements right there in your home.

DO NOT WAIT! CALL US ANY TIME 24 HOURS A DAY - 7 DAYS A WEEK
See if you qualify for one of those systems that pay for itself.

Permian Basin Homeowners Are Assisted By Electric Company In Buying A New Central Air Conditioning System

You Probably Paid Too Much For Electricity Last Month!

The useful "life" of an air conditioner can vary greatly. Such factors as climate, maintenance, hours of operation, and quality of the original equipment and its installation can increase or decrease the life of a system by months and even years.
On the average, a residential air conditioning system in the Permian Basin will last from 10 to 15 years. When a unit begins to show its age, major components like compressors, motors, and coils will fail.
In the short run, replacing failed components will usually cost the least amount of money. But in doing so, the homeowner may be missing an opportunity to greatly improve the overall efficiency and capacity of the system, thereby, save significant amounts of money in operating costs.

You May Be Paying For A New Unit, Problem Is, You Do Not Have It!

In recent years, manufacturers of air conditioners have made dramatic progress in increasing the efficiency of the units they produce, Therefore, it may make more economic sense to put the cost of repair into a new, more efficient unit and dramatically lower your electric bills. Eventually, the more efficient unit will "pay for itself" through lower electric bills. In addition, the new system will provide the added advantage of greater reliability and warranty protection.

Select The Right Size And Company

A competent air conditioning contractor, after a thorough inspection of your home, can perform a cooling calculation to determine the exact size of the equipment needed. A great many homes are either oversized or undersized today. Do not accept that the current size is necessarily the correct size. Oversizing is just as bad as undersizing in the control of humidity and operating costs.
This is also the reason to choose the right company, someone that will take the time to properly evaluate your needs, give you a firm estimate, and then guarantee the system is sized property.

Up To $500 In Rebates

Now is also the time to take advantage of the company's rebates to change out that old system to a more high efficiency air conditioning system.

Freemen mom goes to court

Gloria Ward, who left the Freemen compound Thursday, faces a sea of photographers while leaving the Third District Court in Salt Lake City, Utah where the father of one of her two daughters was granted custody of the children. Ward was granted supervised visitation.

Lawyers swarm ValuJet families

MIAMI (AP) — As divers raked the murky bottom of the Everglades for the remains of passengers in the ValuJet crash, lawyers circled the hotel where relatives were staying, looking for clients.

"When you are suffering, you are weak and they are taking advantage of families," said Roger Loughney, whose father and younger brother died in the crash May 11 that killed all 110 people aboard the DC-9. "It is unethical and wrong and something should be done against them."

Despite one of the toughest laws in the nation against ambulance-chasing, lawyers in Florida have been using the hard sell to sign up clients.

The Florida Supreme Court intervened on Friday, ordering two lawyers to stop soliciting business from the relatives of crash victims. The high court issued the restraining order after the Florida Bar asked last month to have Humberto Hernandez and Pablo Perez suspended for their activities, pending a disciplinary hearing.

The two are accused of using sexy women employees to get Loughney and one of his brothers to retain them for a wrongful-death lawsuit.

The lawyers denied the allegations and said they met with relatives of victims at a Miami restaurant for "social conversation" only.

A third lawyer is under investigation for sending out a free video on how to sue the airline, and charges against other lawyers are likely, bar officials said.

Victims' relatives were deluged with solicitations while staying at the Crown Sterling Suites hotel near Miami International Airport to await word of their loved ones. Some were handed fliers, some received flowers; many got phone calls and mailings.

"The larger the number of victims, the more potential liability, the more likely that you're going to have lawyers try and solicit," said John Berry, a lawyer for the Florida Bar.

The state Supreme Court banned lawyers or their employees from in-person solicitations. Florida also imposes a 30-day moratorium on any solicitation of victims in any form. No other state imposes such a limit.

Things got so bad in the days following the crash that the bar sent investigators to the hotel to gather evidence.

STORM TRACKER FACTS

What a difference a day makes as temperatures climb back into the 90s. Little rain is in the forecast for the next few days as high pressure and the lack of moisture stop any thunderstorms from popping up in the afternoon sun. This will change into the early part of next week as high pressure breaks down and southerly winds bring in some more moisture.

Texas files lawsuit against U.S. to speed action on school monitoring appointment

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas sued the federal government Friday, charging that the U.S. Justice Department needlessly delayed appointment of state monitors to run a troubled school district.

Gov. George W. Bush and other officials said the state must be able to move quickly when children's education is threatened by mismanagement and other serious school administration problems.

On Thursday, the state finally won Justice Department approval to put a management team in charge of the Wilmer-Hutchins school district in Dallas County.

The two monitors — a retired school administrator and a business executive — were OK'd almost 90 days after the state first tried to put them in charge.

"When we tried to send in a management team to take over this troubled district, the federal government delayed, stalled, sent pages of questions and in general made life miserable while the children suffered in schools that were not teaching them to read, write and add," Bush said.

"Texas is going to court to insist that the federal government allow Texans to run Texas," he said.

The takeover by state monitors was authorized by the Legislature's 1995 education reform law.

That law allows a range of state sanctions to be imposed on any of the more than 1,000 Texas school districts that fail to meet standards of academic performance, financial management or ethical conduct.

Possible sanctions range from public disclosure of a district's problems to abolishing the district.

The Justice Department insisted that appointment of monitors required its prior approval under the federal Voting Rights Act.

But Attorney General Dan Morales said the state disagrees, and thus Friday's lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court in Washington.

"We have a financial and management crisis at a school district that is affecting our children," Morales said.

"This chain of events (with Wilmer-Hutchins) resembles the state seeking permission to send a fire truck to a fire," he added.

'When we tried to send in a management team to take over this troubled district, the federal government delayed, stalled, sent pages of questions and in general made life miserable.'
—Gov. George W.Bush

Contacted by telephone, the Justice Department's public affairs office in Washington had no immediate comment Friday.

Although action now has been taken with the Wilmer-Hutchins district, Morales and Bush said the lawsuit is needed to make sure the state can move speedily in the future.

Education Commissioner Mike Moses said state officials are careful when imposing any sanction on a poorly performing school district.

Appointing a master isn't a "reckless and ruthless" act, he said. "This is well about children ... and our ability to make sure school districts are performing."

Morales said the Wilmer-Hutchins district has a history of money management problems, is near insolvency and has a bond payment due soon that is guaranteed by the state's taxpayers.

Moses said that when he first tried to appoint monitors in March, the district still hadn't approved a budget even though the school year was in its seventh month.

In addition, the district is being investigated by the FBI and the Internal Revenue Service regarding allegations of misappropriation of funds, Morales said.

Wilmer-Hutchins school board president Lunita White told The Dallas Morning News that she was "disappointed and disgusted" by the state's takeover.

Experimental rocket completes another flight

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) — An experimental reusable rocket that may eventually succeed the space shuttle completed its second test flight Friday, soaring nearly 2,000 feet above the desert and then landing upright.

Last month, the 42-foot tall rocket briefly burst into flames as it completed its first test flight, but officials said the damage was superficial and the Delta Clipper Experimental Advanced rocket flight was a success.

Program officials said Friday morning's flight, which lasted 63.6 seconds, was perfect.

"I think you can all tell by the grin on my face I'm very happy with the performance today," said Pete Conrad, a former Apollo astronaut and the Clipper's flight manager for McDonnell Douglas Corp., which is developing the craft.

The unmanned rocket, fueled by liquid hydrogen and oxygen, was expected to fly a longer mission later Friday. Scientists said they wanted to evaluate the results before giving the go-ahead for the second launch to reach an altitude of 10,300 feet in two minutes, 20 seconds.

The Clipper is part of a program by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to develop another generation of reusable launch vehicles to carry payloads into orbit. It is expected to complete five test flights by the end of July, going higher and doing more complex maneuvers each time.

The rocket was renamed Friday as the Clipper Graham after Gen. Daniel O. Graham, an early proponent of programs to develop reliable and economical space travel systems. The former adviser to President Reagan died Dec. 31.

The upgraded model of the first rocket to ever take off and land vertically on Earth blasted off about 10:15 a.m., trailing fire and leaving behind an enormous cloud of smoke. It rose to 1,950 feet in about 30 seconds, hovered and moved sideways for 550 feet for two seconds, then descended slowly, tail first, to the desert.

The tests were planned to show that a rocket can fly as reliably as a conventional aircraft with only a short time needed for maintenance between launches.

NASA Administrator Daniel S. Goldin left no doubt that the shuttle's days are numbered.

"We are going to fly the shuttle safely until we can replace it," Goldin told a crowd of about 400 gathered for the flight. "But, by God, we are going to replace the shuttle."

Grease processing factory may cost Central Texas town 600 jobs

CORSICANA (AP) — The rich smell of chocolate, along with 600 jobs, may be lost to this small, Central Texas town if a rendering company is allowed to build a grease and fat processing plant here.

Officials in this town well-known for its abundance of pecans and its fruit-cake-making bakery are horrified that they could lose a sweet deal with Russell Stover because of Griffin Industries' plans.

'We've had a real uprising of citizens here," said Ron Lynch, interim city manager.

Russell Stover had committed in April 1995 to build a plant that would create candy and at least 600 jobs. Possibly scuttling those plans is the Griffin rendering plant that will employ about 50 people, be located only a few miles away and will cook used restaurant grease and butcher waste into a product that is primarily used in animal food.

"It's an issue of simply our inability to locate in proximity to a potential odor source," said Tom Ward, Russell Stover's co-president and chief operating officer.

Ward said smells can permeate the candy, as well as boxes and wrappers, and a rendering plant so near could create a stink.

"The bottom line is that that plant is going to cost between $55 million and $65 million of my money, and I'm not going to spend that much when there is a potential problem," he said.

Russell Stover's already has invested about $270,000 to purchase land.

Ward said the Kansas City-based candy company, which currently operates five plants, is working with the city, but he added delays are costing money.

In an attempt to waylay Griffin from building and saving the Russell Stover deal, Corsicana officials passed an ordinance in January prohibiting rendering plants from locating within city limits. Griffin Industries filed a lawsuit in March, alleging that city officials overstepped their boundaries and reneged on prior promises.

"I know of no such promises," said Lynch, who was previously the public works director and has been filling in as city manager for the past few months.

No trial date has been scheduled, but this week Corsicana introduced a second ordinance that would give the city the power to regulate the rendering plant.

William Shirley, a partner with Griffin, says the idea of smells from the rendering plant are "absolutely preposterous"

"We're not going to emit any odors," he said. "We have to meet the state regulations with air scrubbers and so on."

Griffin plans to set up in Corsicana regardless of the disagreements.

"Why wouldn't we? We have a great site, and we're not going to cause anybody any problems," Shirley said.

Griffin has sparked complaints and citations at its other two sites in Texas.

Since Griffin acquired its Bastrop County facility in March 1988, the company has been cited 22 times for nuisance level odors, according to the Texas Natural Resource and Conservation Commission.

Texas Byproducts, a Griffin affiliate, has had eight violations since September 1991. The Wylie company paid a $12,000 penalty for five of the violations, while the remaining 25 citations still are being negotiated, according to Terry Hadley, a spokesman with the TRNCC.

Regarding the complaints, Shirley said, "I would just say they are really insignificant."

The company must ask the TRNCC for air and water permits to operate in the Corsicana area. A preliminary hearing is scheduled June 27.

A group of citizens, President of People United for the Environment or PUE, will fight to get the permits denied.

"The citizens are upset to learn that a stinky rendering plant which would employ so few may cost so many job opportunities and dim the future of so many citizens," said John Mason, the organization's president.

Corsicana has unemployment of 5.5 percent and is counting on Russell Stover to be its largest employer.

MISD bond poll

By a wide margin, BasinLink subscribers participating in a poll on the $110 million failed MISD bond election said the reason they thought it wasn't passed was due to the issue's overall price tag.

Almost 150 respondents voted in the poll with 56 percent saying if the bond was re-introduced at a smaller cost to taxpayers, they would be more likely to vote for the changes.

The unscientific breakdown of why subscribers felt the issue was rejected (users were allowed to pick as many reasons as they felt applied to them personally):

- Mobile Early Voting 10 (4.48 %)
- Superintendent's comments regarding district's options of raising taxes if bond failed 32 (14.35 %)
- Overall negative arttitude toward Midland school board 31 (13.90%)
- Overall price tag 67 (30.04%)
- All of the above 23 (10.31%)
- Other 21 (9.42%)
- No answer 39 (17.49%)

Clinton proposal

President Bill Clinton this week backed creation of a computer literacy volunteer corps to help all teachers learn how to use new technology in the classroom.

The program calls for 100,000 teachers already familiar with computer learning programs, the Internet, and other technology to train more than 500,000 other teachers, starting shortly after school starts this fall.

Several education groups, among them the National Education Association and National School Boards Association, developed the plan to use teacher volunteers.

"When they are done, we will have a half a million more teachers who are computer and technology literate and an infinite number of new learning opportunities," Clinton said during a ceremony honoring 266 secondary schools for leadership in education. Clinton also urged lawmakers to accept a $2 billion, five-year technology literacy program he proposed in his budget plan. Congressional Republicans, though, have resisted Clinton's efforts to add money for education while the two sides wrangle over how to balance the overall federal budget by the year 2002.

Apple reshuffles

Jim Buckley, who spearheaded Apple Computer Inc.'s domestic sales, is the latest casualty in chief executive Gil Amelio's housecleaning.

Buckley, 45, resigned from the computer maker last night amid slumping sales and a well-publicized demotion.

Amelio also realigned his executive team with a raft of other appointments.

Robin Abrams, vice president and general manager of Apple Asia, will replace Buckley as president of Apple Americas; Marco Landi will temporarily be in charge of information appliances; John Floisand, worldwide sales; Jan Larssen, Apple Europe; Howard Lee, alternative platforms; Fred Forsyth, Macintosh products and manufacturing; Terry Bailey, imaging devices; Larry Tesler, AppleNet; Ike Nassi, AppleSoft; and Terry Crane, market segment group.

Amelio did not name a chief technology officer or a replacement for Floisand, who currently head Apple's Asian operations.

Wired goes public

Wired magazine's publisher filed an initial public offering yesterday that values the money-losing 3-year-old company at a staggering $450 million, more in line with the Internet industry that it covers.

This is the latest example of the "I-word's" impact in driving stock valuations through the roof, puzzling many seasoned business executives and stock traders but exciting investors.

San Francisco-based Wired Ventures Inc. filed to sell up to 6.3 million shares, a 17 percent stake, to the public at a maximum of $12 per share. That would raise a total of $75.9 million, according to a copy of the filing obtained yesterday.

The deal will make instant millionaires, on paper at least, out of people who chronicle the Internet — and sometimes poke fun at the companies and personalities who are making a quick profit from its staggering growth.

Company wants to expand, enhance chat on the Web

Software would allow more interactivity on companies' web sites

Associated Press

AUSTIN — An Austin company wants to expand the art of conversation on the World Wide Web.

The company, ichat Inc., has developed software to allow companies to add chat rooms to their Internet Web sites, opening the way for an interactive experience.

"Browsing the Web can be lonely," said Andrew Busey, 25, ichat's founder. "Getting people to chat creates a sense of community and participation. It's a way to keep people coming back to your site."

With money borrowed from friends and family, Busey started ichat from his apartment last July. Five months later, the company raised $750,000 in venture capital from Onset Ventures. It now has 18 employees.

While America Online has dozens of chat rooms devoted to as many topics, few Web sites have incorporated chart rooms. Busey says Web sites ripe for chat include those of Internet access providers, on-line services, entertainment and multimedia companies, and businesses that provide technical support.

Analysts agree that the idea's a good one, and so far the competition is light, the Austin American-Statesman reported Wednesday.

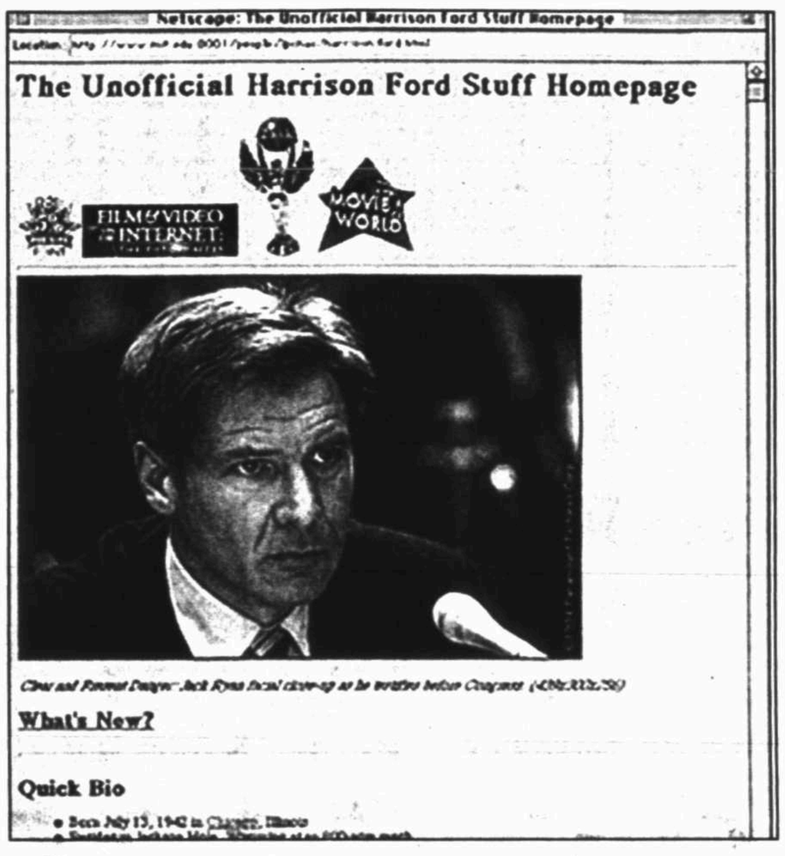

"The chat area is one that has gone ignored by the titans in the Internet business. Companies are so caught up in the sex appeal of doing video and voice and 3-D over the Internet they have forgotten simple and important things like chat," said Ted Julian, an industry analyst at International Data Corp. in Massachusetts.

Sirius Publishing, a leading multimedia publisher in Scottsdale, Ariz., has tied its new CD-ROM Treasure Quest to its Web site, and ichat chat rooms allow users to exchange tips and clues

CELEBRITIES TALK, WRITE AND ARE SOMETIMES WORSHIPPED ONLINE

Metallica to rock cyberspace, live

By Jeff Pelline
N.Y. Times News Service

Broadcasting live music on the Internet keeps gaining momentum: This time Metallica, the popular heavy metal band, will offer its first concert in cyberspace.

Metallica and Apple Computer Inc. today will announce a "Webcast" of a show in San Francisco (from Slim's, sources said) on June 10 to its fan club members.

"It's going to be a party on the Web that people will be able to see, hear, read and talk about, regardless of their place on the planet," said Jason Newsted, Metallica's bass player.

Metallica, which has won three Grammy awards, is launching a home page on the Web (http: // www.metclub.com) to promote its upcoming world tour that starts June 27. Seven million people watched the band's previous tour.

Apple has created a technology — QuickTime — for live Webcasts — a low-cost way to transmit video to PC users, sometimes in competition with television. It is part of the company's strategy to expand its technology into entertainment, a lucrative market that has a loyal Apple following.

Jennifer Bretan is the fingers to the stars. Digits flying, she's the online medium for a new medium — from Sarah Jessica Parker's mouth through her keyboard to a computer screen near you.

"I sit with a headset and as they're talking, I type in the answers," said the Los Angeles publicist, who has also been the fingers for the likes of Molly Ringwald, Dolph Lundgren, supermodel Bridget Hall and directors Robert Rodriguez and Clive Barker.

That's where stars hang out these days — online. They commune with their fans in chat rooms, in huge auditoriums on America Online and in obscure newsgroups on Usenet.

They may not be cyberjocks, but their publicists are. Open any online service these days and one of the first things that pops out is a menu of who's being served up today.

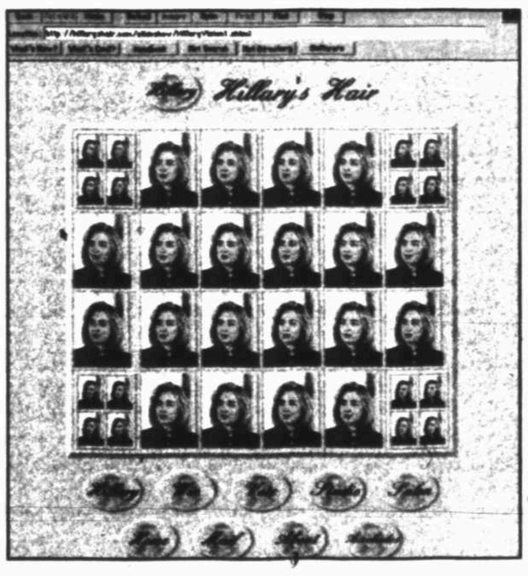

Stars may once have flocked from the big screen to the small screen, but now it's the very small screen that calls.

The stars may not be hip to the technology, but the fans are. When Barker did his online interview, messages from his followers included entire short stories appended as files. Not quite the same as throwing a screenplay through the transom, but worth a try.

The two-line interview style dictated by the constraints of the medium can make anyone sound like they're speaking in Zen proverbs. And the first big celebrity to do a live online interview knew a thing or two about Proverbs — it was the Rev. Billy Graham, said Amy Arnold, the manager of AOL live.

Standards have been set for Internet-only computer

N.Y. Times News Service

The battle lines were drawn last week between two concepts dueling for dominance as the next generation of Internet-capable computers.

Redwood, Calif.-based Oracle Corp. led a team of Silicon Valley stars — including Netscape Communications, Sun Microsystems and Apple Computer — in agreeing to standardize a new Network Computer.

Several manufacturers, including IBM, announced plans to push Network machines to market before the end of the year.

The newcomer is pitted against ubiquitous "WinTel" — Intel-based computers running Microsoft Windows operating systems. Boosters of Network Computers, such as Oracle President Larry Ellison, say they will be easy to use, reliable and inexpensive enough to attract the two-thirds of Americans who are sitting out the home computer craze.

Some models of the new machine, derided as an "Internet toaster" by WinTel backers, are projected to sell for $500 or less. AST recently announced plans to sell a $997 WinTel-type computer in Wal-Mart stores this fall; most WinTel computers fall in the $1,500 to $2,500 price range.

The Network machines will have keyboards and a mouse or other pointing device, but most will not have storage — built-in or external disk drives that are used to keep computer programs or user-created files. Instead, the computer would download whatever it needs — anything from a browser to a word processor — from a larger Internet server computer, where it also will store finished products like letters, pictures and spreadsheets.

Dependent on the Internet for everything, Network Computers will be a better bet as "pipelines" to the Net get faster and cheaper. And storing everything with an Internet service provider has the potential to make life easier for users. Service providers, instead of users, would keep up with hardware and software upgrades and maintenance.

"I liken current computers to the earliest days of aviation. Even if everything worked perfectly, the plane flew a few hundred yards and crashed. It was exciting, but how many people wanted to go for a ride?" said Richard Finklestein, president of Performance Computing, a Chicago Internet consulting firm. At least 15 companies plan to manufacture the new breed of computers.

Some analysts doubt the Network machines will attract first-time computer buyers, especially during this Christmas season, as many manufacturers predict. The first buyers may be big businesses. Companies could save money that is now spent to maintain and upgrade hardware and software.

Tom Wood has been anchored like a rock in Sandy Springs for seven years, but those darn Web page addresses keep moving. In what we can only believe was divine inspiration, Tom was a link or two removed from one of his regular visits to the Vatican home page when he found the URL-minder at http://www.netmind.com/URL-minder/URL-minder.html. Type any Web page address (URL) onto this handy page and it will e-mail you if the URL changes. Now Tom can always find his URLs. He'll find a Net Watch in the mail soon, too.

If you want a Net Watch, go to http://web.ajc.com/netwatch/sendurl.htm and tell us about your favorite Internet address. If we pick your pick, we'll make you incredibly famous and send you an actual time-keeping device.

It's mighty- morphing mania for Bill Gates and family this month. The Microsoft chairman strikes a digitally altered swimsuit pose, complete with geek physique, on the cover of the June issue of Wired magazine. Microsoft to add phone call feature to Windows 95

By Jim Erickson
N.Y. Times News Service

SEATTLE — Furthering the trend toward ever-cheaper computers and computer communications, Microsoft Corp. this fall plans to include software that will let people make virtually free long-distance phone calls over the Internet in its popular Windows 95 PC operating system.

Microsoft Executive Vice President Steve Ballmer said the technology will be incorporated with an "Internet add-on" product the company plans to release that will allow Windows 95 users to more easily navigate the Internet. Code-named "Nashville" by Microsoft developers, the add-on was announced at Microsoft's first Internet strategy conference in December.

The Internet functions will eventually become integral with subsequent versions of the Windows operating system, said Microsoft spokeswoman Dawn Leonetti.

But users don't have to wait to obtain the technology. Microsoft Wednesday announced that a new Internet communications and collaboration called NetMeeting is available free from Microsoft's site in the Internet's World Wide Web. The product is being released along with the lastest test version of Microsoft's Internet Explorer "web browser" software.

NetMeeting, aimed at business users, allows people in different locations to simultaneously work on the same project over their PCs. The software includes an audio conferencing function that will utimately find its way into Windows, Leonetti said.

By offering the product, Microsoft is joining the ranks of several smaller software companies — most notably the Israeli software company VocalTec — already selling programs which allow computer users to place phone calls over the Internet. Netscape Communications also recently announced its Web browsing software would include an audio conferencing feature.

Internet telephony programs, as Internet calling programs are called, break voice signals into data streams which are transmitted over the Internet. Because the calls are treated as data, the only charge is the monthly fee consumers pay for Internet access, regardless if calls are placed across town or across continents. It's not as easy as using the telephone, though. A computer — equipped with a microphone, speakers, a sound card and a telephony program — is required at each end of the call.

Some programs only allow one person to talk at a time, similar to VHF radio communications. Although the quality of Internet phone calls is often poor, several long-distance companies, fearing they are about to lose a big revenue source, have complained to the Federal Communications Commission in an effort to bring Internet phone calls under regulatory control.

Ballmer's announcement came during a speech to the Rotary Club of Seattle, in which the long-time Microsoft executive predicted that personal computers and computer communication will get cheaper — perhaps much cheaper — over the next year or two.

"What the Internet is serving to do is commoditize — that is to make very inexpensive — the communications process in much the way that the PC commoditized or lowered the price of computing," Ballmer said.

Within two years, personal computers for the home will be eight to 10 times more powerful than they are today, Ballmer said.

Despite the improvements in performance, computers so far aren't getting markedly cheaper. The average price of a personal computer in the United States at Christmas of 1995 was $400 more expensive than the average PC bought a year earlier, Ballmer said.

That may be changing. Numerous computer and video game companies are working on inexpensive "Internet appliances" that would hook up to a TV and cost $500 or less. The machines will not have the memory capacity and computing power of typical desktop computers.

"I think it's becoming more and more important in terms of giving broad accessibility to personal computers, that all of us in our business work to make the PC a device you can afford for $700, $800, $900, and get a machine that will allow you to do all the great things that PCs do," Ballmer said.

Technology eventually will drive down the cost of personal computers to around $500, Microsoft Corp. Chairman and Chief Executive Bill Gates said Wednesday at a conference at Harvard University.

Acer, a Taiwan computer maker, planst to unveil a full-featured PC costing $500 later this year.

Gates lounges through Boston visit

N.Y. Times News Service

BOSTON — Bill Gates had just departed Boston's Computer Museum Wednesday, leaving behind a pledge of $100,000 in computer gear for poor kids in the city's Roxbury and the South End sections. Now he lounged on the gray leather back seat of the Chrysler LHS on his way to address an Internet conference at Harvard University like a man without a care. Didn't even buckle his seat belt. Perhaps he figured that if the car smacked a lamppost, he'd emerge without a scratch.

The chairman of Microsoft Corp. has a knack for dodging disaster. Just a few months ago, plenty of computer-industry experts were about to award Gates the Gary Kildall Award for Missed Opportunities. Kildall was the guy who missed out on the chance to supply IBM with an operating system for its first personal computers. An unknown firm called Microsoft got the job instead.

Last year Netscape Communications Corp. became a billion-dollar firm almost overnight, by capitalizing on a market Gates had neglected — the Internet. Pundits said Gates had been asleep at the switch, and predicted that Internet-based computing could spell doom for Microsoft's near-monopoly in computer operating systems.

Gates admits they were right. "We started work on Internet-based things two years ago, but it was only a year ago that we said, 'Wow, this is the big thing,'" he said. "If we hadn't paid attention to the Internet, believe me, it might take a few years, but eventually Windows would be history."

But things can happen rather fast when a multibillionaire starts to pay attention. In the past six months, the company launched a furious campaign to become a leader in Internet software. Microsoft purchased Cambridge-based Vermeer Technologies to capture that firm's powerful World Wide Web publishing software. Microsoft rolled out Internet server software, and began giving it away. And the latest version of the company's browser, while riddled with bugs, offers nearly as many flashy features as the industry-leading Netscape Navigator.

"I think at this point, there's widespread respect for what we're doing and certainly we're viewed as one of the major players," Gates opined.

But Microsoft still has what the marketers like to call a "mindshare" problem. The company may be respected, but it's not much liked. During Gates' visit to MIT, many students hissed at the mention of Microsoft's Internet Explorer browser. Perhaps the donation to the Computer Museum will soften the company's image. It'll certainly make some computers available to children from PC-deprived households.

In any case, when you suggest to Gates that Microsoft is regarded as the computer industry's Evil Empire, he'll concede half the point — the part about being an empire. "I'm certainly the head of the most popular company," he said. "More people choose to buy our software than any other company's."

And the endless controversies over Gates' power? "Successful companies are controversial," he said.

Researchers critical of U.S. attempts to block encryption

By Hiawatha Bray
N.Y. Times News Service

The Clinton administration's efforts to limit the sale of software that generates coded messages, already under fire from Congress and civil libertarians, is now facing criticism from a committee of the National Academy of Sciences.

The National Research Center, which gives science and technology advice under a congressional charter, Thursday said the government should promote the commercial use of encryption software to help cut down on the theft of computer data and other electronic communications.

Law enforcement officials and intelligence agencies are worried about the development of cheap encryption programs, for fear it could become impossible to intercept a mobster's telephone call or read an enemy spy's electronic mail messages.

But the center's report says that encryption software is essential for businesses and individuals who need to transmit confidential data using the Internet or cellular telephones.

"On balance, the advantages of more widespread use of cryptography outweigh the disadvantages," the report says.

Encrypted messages can easily be read by someone with the correct code "key." Without this key, it can take centuries of computer analysis to decode a message. The longer the key, the tougher it is to break the code.

Under current federal law, US companies cannot export encryption programs that use keys longer than 40 bits. Computer experts say that 40-bit encryption systems are easy to break, and provide little security.

As a result, many software companies that sell their products worldwide do not build in sophisticated encryption features. Industry experts say that this costs them millions of dollars in sales, as customers in foreign countries buy encryption software made outside the United States.

The report urges a change in the federal law, to allow sale of an encryption system called DES that uses 56-bit keys. "Except in some very specialized situations, it gives adequate security," said council chairman Kenneth Dam, a law professor at the University of Chicago.

The report also urges the administration to abandon efforts to force businesses and individuals to use "key escrowed" encryption software. Under this plan, companies could use encryption keys of any length, but only if the keys were held in escrow, and could be made available to the government.

The council urges the federal government to adopt key escrow to prove that the system is trustworthy. The report argues that many businesses will voluntarily adopt such a plan to guard against the loss of its encryption keys.

A prominent critic of encryption policy was less than thrilled by the council report. "It doesn't go far enough," said Philip Zimmermann, inventor of the Pretty Good Privacy encryption program.

Zimmermann scoffed at the idea that DES encryption is secure enough for use by businesses. "It can be broken in seconds by the (National Security Agency)," Zimmermann said. "All major governments can break DES. In fact, any Fortune 500 company can afford a machine that can break DES."

CELEBS: Web pages from sublime to ridiculous

(From 1B)

"The auditoriums were originally used for gaming purposes, then it was decided to bring in guests so members could interact with them."

Now listings of who's appearing, and where, go out daily. There are chat listings next to TV show lineups in newspapers all over the country.

"For many people, this will be as close as they'll ever get to a celebrity," said Arnold.

Close but never enough.

When their heroes aren't on the other side of the keyboard, the more rabid fans spend hours on Usenet discussing the plot lines of their movies and television shows with the precision of Talmudic scholars.

Usenet, the international bulletin board of the Internet, is a favorite especially of followers of science fiction shows. Writers and producers for "Babylon 5" and "The X-Files" have been known to stop in from time to time, making those newsgroups the cyberspace equivalent of Elaine's, full of customers eager for just a glimpse of someone famous.

If they don't get it, they have only to go to the Web to find it — it's Hollywood Confidential and Tiger Beat all rolled into one, the panting quality of a Beatles fan club nestled next to the darker Quentin Tarantino Worship page.

They're all here ... well, at least their Web pages are: Robert De Niro, Clint Eastwood, Harrison Ford, Jodie Foster, Marilyn Monroe, Meg Ryan, Susan Sarandon and a hundred others.

Fans saw the possibilities of the Web long before the studios even got a whiff of all that lovely free publicity.

Star-struck teens somewhere may still pin pictures of their favorite actors to their bedroom walls, but the even mildly devoted now also throw up Web sites to indulge in their passions (and pray the objects of their attentions might just once happen in to look).

Star-struck teens somewhere may still pin picutres of their favorite actors on their bedroom walls, but the even mildly devoted now also throw up Web sites to indulge in their passions (and pray the objects of their attentions might just happen in to look.

The Janeane Garofalo Worship Page is dedicated to the star of the movie "The Truth About Cats and Dogs."

"I created this page as a shameless drooling-fanboy shrine to Janeane," says supplicant Vince Oberheim. "If you're reading: WE LOVE YOU."

Of course it didn't take long for the studios and television networks to figure out the publicity potential of the online angle. It seems impossible these days to find a commercial that doesn't sport an "http://www.something, somewhere on the screen."

But nothing quite matches the true over-the-top nature of Keanumandu, the online shrine of the Society for Keanu Consciousness, where it is revealed that "actor Keanu Reeves is in fact this century's premier avatar of divinity and peace!"

By following the Tao of No (or The No Way) and the teachings of Sri Keanu's cinematic incarnations, California graphic designers Robert Dealey and Alexander Justice are certain a Harmonic Convergence is just around the corner.

Just send praise mail to enroll in the perpetual virtual incense votive remembrance and you'll get "news, updates and further techniques for achieving Keanu consciousness."

Kings hire Carril

CHICAGO — Sixty-five-year-old Pete Carril, who guided Princeton to 11 Ivy League titles, is going to become an assistant coach with the Sacramento Kings.

"We've been friends for awhile and I know that Pete's one of the best basketball minds around," said Petrie at an NBA pre-draft camp, who played for Carril at Princeton. "He is at a stage where he can still teach and we think he'll be a tremendous asset to our organization."

Carril retired in March after his team was eliminated from the NCAA tournament by Mississippi State. The Tigers upset defending national champion UCLA 43-41 in the opening round. He compiled a 514-261 record in 29 seasons at Princeton.

Bulls spell ugly with a W

By Chris Sheridan
AP Basketball Writer

Game 2
Sonics 88
Bulls 92

CHICAGO — It's not a pretty thing, this coronation of the Chicago Bulls.

In an ugly Game 2 in which Dennis Rodman, of all people, was the only one looking good, the Bulls overcame a performance even worse than their rusty Game 1 effort and beat the Seattle SuperSonics 92-88 to take a 2-0 lead in the NBA Finals.

How gruesome was it? The Bulls scored only one basket from the field in the final six minutes, had their second-worst shooting night of the postseason (39 percent) and blew three straight free throws in the final 10 seconds that would have clinched it.

■ For NBA Playoff updates, call Cityline at 560-2400, category 6785.

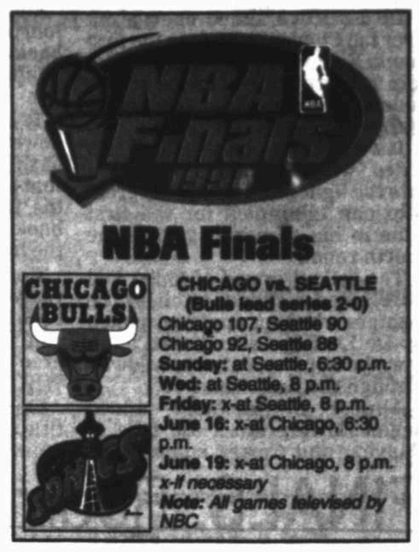

Finally, after a jump ball sequence that was so ugly it had to be done over two times, Rodman controlled the tip, got fouled and made the second of two foul shots for the final four-point margin.

The crowd at the United Center let out a scream of relief and walked to the exits shaking their heads, wondering how the supposed best team in the history of the league could have played such a stinker.

But as they did many times in the regular season and in the first three rounds of the playoffs, the Bulls managed to find a way to win despite playing near their worst.

The main reason was Rodman, who grabbed 20 rebounds — tying the NBA Finals record with 11 on the offensive end — and dominated a third quarter in which the Bulls took over with a 2 1/2-minute stretch of good basketball — their only one of the night.

1996 TEXAS LEAGUE ALL-STAR GAME

Texas League eyes on Midland

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

Greg Shockey doesn't miss many all-star games. And he seems to take the exhibitions more seriously than his Midland Angel teammates.

That lends some irony to Shockey's predicament. He'll be the only Angel selected for Sunday's Texas League All-Star game who won't be able to play.

But the other Midland players originally tabbed to represent the Western Division at Christensen Stadium look forward to the contest, which they see as a break from the rigors of serious day-to-day minor league toil. And they're especially happy they won't have to make travel plans to share the field with the best players in the league.

BILL WILLIAMS TIRE CENTER
TEXAS LEAGUE ALL-STAR GAME
MIDLAND, TEXAS
1 9 9 6

WHAT: Bill Williams Tire Center 1996 Texas League All-Star Game
WHERE: Christensen Stadium
WHEN: Sunday, 6:20 p.m.
RADIO: KCRS-AM (550), 6 p.m.
WHO: Western Division All-Stars vs. Eastern Division All-Stars
CONTESTS: Best arm, fastest man and home run hitting — 5:10 p.m.
TICKETS: Only general admission seats remain, $5.

This year makes the fifth time in five professional seasons Shockey has been named to an all-star team. He'll miss Sunday's 6 p.m. contest after breaking his right wrist May 8.

"Every all-star game that I played in I took very seriously," Shockey said. "During the season you want to know what to do against a team's No. 1 and No. 2 pitcher because you may be facing them at the next level. And in the all-star game you face guys you may play against in the big leagues."

Shockey will have to check out future big-league pitchers from somewhere besides home plate Sunday. But the Angels selected as all-stars — outfielder Basilio Ortiz, pitchers Matt Beaumont and Mike Freehill, infielder Keith Luuloa and catcher Ben Molina — can get a closer look. And the look they take will be mostly casual.

"I just play the game to have fun," said Ortiz, who through Thursday leads the Angels in RBIs, doubles and total bases and is seventh in the league in hitting with a .316 average. "It's a good way to pat some players on the back that had a good first half. It's a game to relax for."

Ortiz has been the Angels' most stable offensive threat this year.

"I classify my season as trying t stay consis tent," sa Ortiz, in h third season with the club. "You have to minimize your bad days and don't let them carry over to the next game."

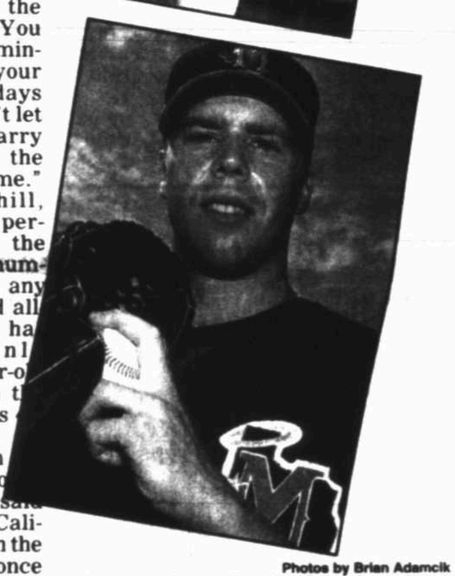

Freehill, with perhaps the best numbers of any Midland all star, ha certainl minimized his bad days. The 25-year-o right handed reliever is third in t Texas League with 11 saves. He is with a .99 ERA through Thursday.

"There's a lot of good players in league and I feel fortunate and hono to be one of the ones selected," sa Freehill, who had 28 saves in the California League last year. "I approach the game as a time to have fun. But once you take the field, your competitive instincts take over."

For Beaumont, this will be the second year in a row he plays an all-star game

Eastern Rangers win LL crown

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

Little League

One thing was sure about Friday's Texas League city championship game. A team nicknamed the Rangers would walk away with the title.

Or run away with it.

And it was the Eastern Little League Rangers that did the running, literally, as they beat the Mid City Rangers 15-3 at the Eastern League Field No. 1 at Reyes-Mashburn-Nelms Park. The Eastern League team stole an unofficial 10 bases in sprinting out to a 5-0 first-inning lead, eventually 10-run ruling the Mid City team after six innings.

The winning Rangers got their championship with only nine players on the squad.

"If somebody had gotten hurt we were going to have to play with eight," Eastern League Ranger coach Raul Ochoa said. "All of our star players weren't here but these kids put all they had into it. They really wanted it."

So much that they were willing to race for the title. The champion Rangers stole bases almost at will in the top of the first inning. That helped their first four batters score and built a lead the Mid City team never challenged.

"For the tournament we've been working on base stealing and bunting and just getting the other teams riled up," Ochoa said.

It certainly worked Friday. After the first inning the Mid City Rangers battery of pitcher Buck Wallace and catcher Clint Barker settled down enough to slow down the other Rangers' running. But the Eastern League team continued to score and play solid defense, almost end-

Sampras wilts under French Open heat

PARIS — The draining five-setters, the record heat and the emotional strain finally took their toll on Pete Sampras at the French Open.

For five rounds, Sampras battled bravely through the toughest draw he's ever faced, defying the odds to make a run at the only Grand Slam title he's never won.

But by the time he lost the first-set tiebreaker to Yevgeny Kafelnikov in Friday's semifinals, Sampras had nothing left.

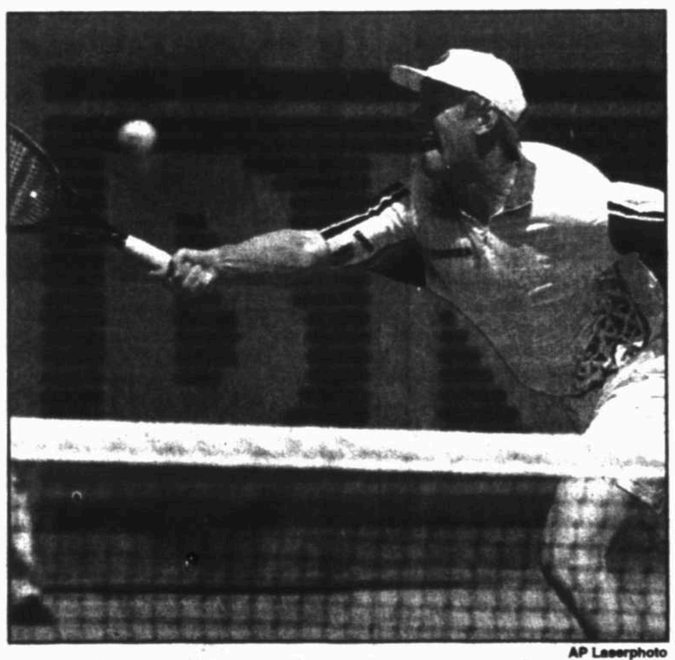

Physically and mentally spent, the top-seeded American wilted in the 93-degree temperatures — the hottest ever recorded at Roland Garros on a June 7 — and surrendered 7-6 (7-4), 6-0, 6-2 in 1 hour, 46 minutes.

"I was very, very tired," Sampras said, still looking exhausted an hour after the match. "After the first set, I just felt the balloon popped, the tires were flat ... I just hit the wall, I guess."

Kafelnikov will meet Germany's Michael Stich, a 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 victory over Marc Rosset the other semifinal.

De La Hoya scores TKO on Chavez

By Tin Dahlberg
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS — Oscar De La Hoya made the 100th fight of Julio Cesar Chavez's career look like his first.

De La Hoya sliced open a cut over the Chavez' left eye in the first round Friday night, then beat him into a bloody mess in the fourth round before referee Joe Cortez stepped in to stop the fight.

It was total domination by De La Hoya, who never let Chavez get into the fight and stopped the great Mexican champion for the first time in his career at 2:37 of the fourth round.

The sellout crowd of 15,283 had barely had a chance to cheer the fighters when an apparent punch by De La Hoya sliced open a cut over the left eye of Chavez midway through the first round.

Almost immediately, blood began flowing down the face of Chavez, and Cortez stopped the action briefly for the ringside doctor to look at his cut.

Chavez fought tentatively from the opening bell, ignoring his usual style in an effort to try and box the taller and stronger challenger.

But, with his cut reopened in the fourth round, Chavez tried to fight back, briefly catching De La Hoya against the ropes in a neutral corner.

It turned out to be a mistake, however, as De La Hoya came out of the corner with a big left hook that sent blood streaming all over the face of Chavez, then began backing him up with big shots to the head and body.

Cortez finally stepped in with Chavez's face a bloody mess and took him over to ringside doctor Flip Homansky, who told the referee to stop the fight for Chavez's WBC 140-pound title.

De La Hoya, who captured the title that Chavez had held almost uninterrupted for seven years, said he felt Chavez's nose break when he caught him with a left hook that started blood spurting from the champion in the fourth round.

"When I cut his eye and broke his nose with a left hook, I knew I had him," De La Hoya said.

De La Hoya, who upped his record to 22-0, was the aggressor throughout the fight, boxing from a crouch that seemed to befuddle Chavez.

Chavez, who had won 97 of his 99 previous fights, seemed unwilling to mix it up with De La Hoya, who used his jab effectively through the first few rounds.

"I couldn't see," Chavez said. "I didn't feel Oscar's punch. I had a lot of fight left in me."

Chavez shook his head "no" as the ring doctor ordered the fight stopped, but did not protest further.

"I had a lot of fight left in me," he said.

Brazilians qualify 1-2-3, deFerran third

By Mike Harris
Associated Press

DETROIT — Andre Ribeiro lead a group of hard-driving Brazilians to the front in provisional qualifying Friday for the ITT Automotive Detroit Grand Prix.

Ribeiro, who started third earlier this season when he won the inaugural Indy-car race in his home country, took advantage of being in the later of two groups of qualifiers. He had a lap of 104.963 mph on the 2.1-mile Belle Isle road course where the race will be run Sunday.

Compatriots Christian Fittipaldi and Midland-based Jim Hall Racing's Gil de Ferran, who ran in the first of the 30-minute sessions — reserved for the fastest qualifiers last week on the one-mile oval at Milwaukee — were next at 104.124 and 104.112.

Fittipaldi is going for his first Indy-car pole. Ribeiro won his only one last year at New Hampshire. De Ferran started up front once in 1995, and earlier this season on the street circuit in Long Beach.

Despite a handful of changes to the track, including new concrete turning areas in several of the corners and a slightly wider surface in some places, it's still a difficult circuit on which to pass.

That places a premium on starting position, meaning the final round of time trials will be pressure-filled.

"Other places, you set up the car for qualifying and then worry about the race setup," Ribeiro said. "Here, qualifying is more important because it is so hard to pass."

De Ferran agreed.

"It puts a new emphasis on two things — starting position and pit work," he said.

Points leader Jimmy Vasser was 19th at 101.715.

FINALS: Rodman grabs 20 rebounds

(From 1C)

"I thought we'd play little better, but we didn't," Rodman said. "But that's what the playoffs are all about. The people got their money's worth and hope we can get one Sunday."

Game 3 is Sunday at Seattle, and the Sonics will be trying to become only the third team in NBA history to successfully come back from an 0-2 deficit in the Finals.

The Sonics had their chances to change the course of the series and head home with a chance to win the best-of-7 series, but they scored only once from the field in the final four minutes.

Shawn Kenp's two free throws with 12 seconds left cut Chicago's lead to 91-88. Seattle needed to foul and hope somebody on the Bulls would miss a pair, and Scottie Pippen obliged.

After missing the first, Pippen's second attempt barely grazed the front of the rim. Rodman grabbed the rebound at the same time as Sam Perkins and a jump ball was called. Rodman controlled the tip, outjumping a player a couple of inches taller, and clinched the victory seconds later with his final foul shot.

Rodman's 20 rebounds were one off his playoff high, and eight of his 10 points came in the third quarter.

Michael Jordan scored 29 points on 9-of-22 shooting that included seven straight misses in the second half, including a couple of airballs and shots off the side of the backboard.

Jordan also missed six free throws, but he had a team-high eight assists and six rebounds. Pippen scored 21 points and Toni Kukoc came off the bench to hit two 3-pointers that turned the momentum Chicago's way — just as he did in Game 1.

Kemp led Seattle with 29 points and 13 rebounds. Payton had problems for the second straight game, shooting 6-for-15 and scoring 13 points — then mouthed off at Jordan after the Bulls had the game won.

Hersey Hawkins scored 11 points in the second quarter for Seattle and Ron Harper had nine for Chicago as the game stayed close, with neither team pulling ahead by more than four. Chicago led 46-45 at halftime.

LITTLE: Wallace records seven Ks

(From 1C)

ing the game after five innings when it took an 11-1 lead into the bottom of that frame.

Mid City did manage to score a run in their fifth at bat to push the game to one more inning.

The Rangers' Rocky Gutierrez, Eric Reyes, Adrian Alvarado and Michael Del Rio opened the game by scoring runs. And although Wallace, who finished with seven strike outs, struck out the side, Nicholas Marquin also scored for a 5-0 Eastern League lead.

Mid City got on the board in the second when Kirk True led off with a single, went to second on an error and stole third later scoring.

The Eastern League Rangers got runs in every inning but the fourth. Julio Rodrigues had an RBI and scored in the third and Reyes got two of his three RBIs in the fifth.

Trailing 11-1 in the bottom of the fourth and facing the end of the game on the ten-run rule, Mid City came up with a run when Kevin Newton singled and scored on an error on a ground ball by Chris Griffin. The last Mid City run came in the sixth. The Eastern League committed three errors in that frame allowing Josh Hosainger to score.

The Eastern League finished the year 16-4.

Kirk Logan was the only Mid City player to get more than one hit. He had two singles.

The Eastern Leaguers made good plays in the infield, with several ending in close putouts at first base. Their best defensive play came in the first inning when Mid City had the bases loaded and didn't score. The threat ended when Eastern shortstop Del Rio caught a fly ball and then doubled up Logan at third.

ANGELS: Christensen hosts all-stars

(From 1C)

at his home stadium. The California League All-Star game last year was played at Single A Lake Elsinore, the team Beaumont represented.

"That was a real treat in my first season and then to make it in the Texas League and have the game on the home field is real nice," Beaumont said. "At least there will be somebody to cheer for you."

While Beaumont, a 6-foot, 3-inch lefthander, doesn't have great overall statistics this year (4-6, 5.48 ERA), he was tied for second in the league in strikeouts with 61 before his start Friday. He admits his selection as an all-star was not expected.

"Actually I was really surprised," Beaumont said. "I haven't put up the best numbers so far. But I guess I'm doing all right in the strike out department."

Earlier this week Luuloa and Molina were picked as replacements.

For Ortiz and the other all-stars, one of the best things about Sunday's game is its location.

"It's always good to play at home," said Ortiz. "You don't have to fly again. When you live right down the street it's just a trot over."

ALL-STAR NOTES: Wichita manager Ron Johnson has given up his position as Western Division manger for personal reasons. He will be replaced by El Paso manager Dave Machemer ... Gates will open at 12 noon Sunday at Christensen Stadium for a baseball card show ... Gates reopen at 4 p.m. with free all-star caps to the first 1,500 fans ... Western Division All-Stars will sign autographs from 4-4:30 p.m. and Eastern Division All-Stars from 4:30-5 p.m. ... A fireworks show follows the game ... The All-Star Luncheon is at 11:30 a.m. Monday, Midland Center, tickets $15.

OPEN: Five-sets matches hurt Sampras seeded Russian, never looked bothered either by the heat or by Sampras' game as he rode his big serve and forehand to his first Grand Slam final.

(From 1C)

"He was not the Pete we're used to seeing on the court," Kafelnikov said.

Stich returned recently from surgery on his left ankle and nearly bypassed the French Open to concentrate on preparing for Wimbledon, where he was champion in 1991.

"This is something I never would have believed could or would happen," Stich said. "I don't know why it happened or how it happened, but it happened."

Sampras, who had never progressed beyond the quarterfinals at the French until this year, reached the semis the hard way. He played three five-setters, including wins over former two-time champions Sergi Bruguera and Jim Courier.

After coming from two sets down to beat Courier in the quarterfinals Tuesday, Sampras had spent 13 hours, 44 minutes on court in five matches. By contrast, Kafelnikov had lost just one set and played for 8 hours, 38 minutes.

AL Roundup

ARLINGTON — Dean Palmer and Rusty Greer drove in three runs each, and bad defense by Toronto led to several more, overshadowing a big night by Carlos Delgado as the Texas Rangers beat the Blue Jays 10-7 Friday night.

The Rangers led 5-0 one out into the game off Toronto rookie Marty Janzen (3-2), then added two runs in the fourth, one in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Delgado tried keeping the Blue Jays close as he went 4-for-5 with four RBIs, including his first home run since May 2. He also doubled twice and had a bases-loaded single in the seventh that put Toronto within 10-6.

That two-RBI hit chased Texas starter Roger Pavlik, who improved to 8-1 despite allowing seven runs on 10 hits in six innings. Mike Henneman worked the ninth for his 17th save.

Janzen, who was making the first road start of his career, allowed eight runs on eight hits, six walks and two strikeouts in five innings.

Things wouldn't have been so bad, though, had his fielders done their jobs.

Mickey Tettleton took advantage of the lag and scored from first despite almost stopping at third. Tettleton, an extremely slow runner, slid into home as the relay throw from shortstop Tomas Perez hit him in the right elbow. There was no error on the play.

Indians 4, Angels 3

CLEVELAND — Jack McDowell allowed three hits over eight innings — including homers by Don Slaught and Randy Velarde — and pitched Cleveland to a victory over California.

McDowell (6-4) snapped a personal two-game losing streak. He walked two and struck out five in his first victory since May 16 and second of the season over the Angels.

Jose Mesa allowed one run on a walk and a hit in the ninth to earn his 21st save.

Jim Thome's two-run homer, his 11th, made it 4-0 in the third.

White Sox 8, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE — Alex Fernandez scattered 11 hits as Chicago snapped Baltimore's four-game winning streak while hitting three home runs in a victory.

Roberto Alomar homered for Baltimore, which scored 29 runs in its previous three games against Detroit. Alomar went 2-for-4, raising his batting average to .408 and extending his hitting streak to 21 games, tying Albert Belle for the longest in the majors this season.

Royals 9, Mariners 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jose Offerman drove in three runs, and Jon Nunnally homered in his first at-bat since a recall from the minors as Kansas City beat Seattle.

Julio Valera (3-1) relieved Belcher and went 3 2-3 innings, giving up five hits and four runs for the win. Rookie Bob Wolcott (4-6), who'd won three straight decisions, went 3 1-3 innings. He allowed eight hits and seven runs.

Tigers 6, Yankees 5

DETROIT — Detroit ended a seven-game losing streak when Travis Fryman's two-out bloop single in the bottom of the ninth inning gave it a victory over New York.

Angels hand Wranglers 12-6 win

Staff Report

MIDLAND ANGELS

Angels	6
Wranglers	...12

WICHITA, Ks. — The Midland Angels keep finding new and interesting way to lose a game. This time it all but eliminated them from the Texas League West first half title.

The Angels paved the way for a huge Wichita night on the scoreboard with five errors in the 12-6 loss at Lawrence-Dumont Stadium.

The Angels, 27-34 for the season, didn't take long to help the division leading Wranglers (34-27) with three errors in the first inning.

Matt Beaumont, 4-7, hurt his own cause with two of the three errors in the first. However, the biggest blow of the five-run inning was not an error to first but one thrown to the plate. Steve Sisco took a Beaumont pitch an turned it into three runs to make the score 5-0.

Beaumont settled down and the Angels rewarded him by scoring four runs in the top of the sixth. Darrin Doty and Leon Glenn had RBI singles in the inning and in between those Bosilio Ortiz scored on a throwing error during a Midland double steal. Midland received another gift as Doty scored on a wild pitch.

Wichita, however, put it away for good in the bottom of the sixth, when Rick Sweeney barely cleared the short right-field fence off Anthony Chavez to get his 12th homer of the season. The 318-foot mini bomb would have been a fly ball in any other park in the Texas League, but it capped the 3-for-5 night and three RBI night for Sweeney. In the inning, the Wranglers also scored a run when Chavez was called for obstruction during a run down on the third base line. After the sixth inning Midland trailed 11-4.

Wichita, which had 14 hits for the game, would not have many more problems during the night. Robert Toth worked the final 3 and 1/3 innings for his first save of the season.

Ben Molina did get a two-RBI single in the top of the eighth. The Angels, however, did not have an extra-base hit for the game.

FRIDAY ANGELIC: The Angels are seven games out with seven games to go...Today's starters will be Geoff Edsill (4-4, 4.65) and Bart Evans (1-1, 11.22)...Evans has walked 35 in 22 innings pitched.

Astros rough up Philadelphia 11-5

Associated Press

NL Roundup

HOUSTON — Jeff Bagwell was skidding, Derek Bell was coming out of a slump and Shane Reynolds had a sore shoulder. Not that the Philadelphia Phillies noticed.

Bagwell and Bell each homered and drove in three runs, and Reynolds held on for seven strong innings as the Houston Astros spoiled Carlos Crawford's major league debut with an 11-5 victory Friday night.

"I'm struggling right now," Bagwell said. "But I've been lucky. When we've had runners in scoring position, I've put decent swings out there. I just don't feel comfortable at the plate."

Bagwell hit a two-run homer in the third inning, and Bell's two-run single during a six-run fourth finished Crawford (0-1). Bell homered in the sixth off reliever Ron Blazier.

Bell's average has dipped below .300 lately. He's hitting .283 after Friday's 2-for-5 performance.

"I changed my stance, I'm not striding as much," Bell said. "I've gone to a no-stride and it's helped me. On the homer, it as a fastball that he got up and I just used my no-stride stance and tried to drive it."

Crawford, called up from the minors Wednesday, allowed 10 runs — only two of them earned — and seven hits in 3 2-3 innings. His wild throw was one of three Philadelphia errors that made all six runs unearned in the fourth.

"It was an experience," Crawford said. "I had fun doing it. I threw some strikes but things didn't fall into place like they should have."

The Phillies got two runs in the first inning off Shane Reynolds (8-3). Ricky Otero and Mickey Morandini singled to start the game, setting up an RBI single by Pete Incaviglia and an RBI double by Todd Zeile.

"This victory should go to the offense," Reynolds said. "My arm was a little stiff so I just tried to hang around long enough to let the offense win it. We got some runs early and that helped."

After his rugged first inning, Reynolds shut down the Phillies until Mike Benjamin tripled in the fifth inning and scored on Otero's grounder.

Benjamin's two-run homer in the seventh closed the scoring. Reynolds allowed eight hits, walked one and struck out five in seven innings.

"If I'd played Benjamin a little earlier he'd be in the triple crown race right now," Phillies manager Jim Fregosi said.

Bagwell hit his 19th homer in the third inning. After Bell's single chased Crawford, reliever Toby Borland allowed a two-run double to Orlando Miller.

Expos 9, Cubs 3

CHICAGO — Jeff Fassero allowed five hits in 8 2-3 innings, and F.P. Santangelo drove in three runs to lead Montreal by Chicago.

Fassero (5-5) walked two and struck out eight. Leo Gomez drove in all the runs for Chicago with a two-run homer in the sixth and a solo shot, his 10th, in the ninth.

The game was scoreless entering the sixth, but Montreal sent 10 men to the plate against Frank Castillo (1-8) and reliever Mike Perez.

The Expos scoring on an RBI single by Henry Rodriguez and twice on a bases-loaded single by Santangelo. That finished Castillo — who lost his sixth straight decision — after 5 1-3 innings.

After Perez relieved, Lenny Webster had a run-scoring grounder, and Shane Andrews an RBI single.

The Expos capped their fifth victory in seven games with a four-run ninth.

Fassero and David Segui had RBI singles, and Santangelo and Cliff Floyd hit sacrifice flies.

The start of the game, was delayed 32 minutes by rain.

Marlins 12, Mets 2

NEW YORK — Devon White hit his fourth career grand slam during a seven-run seventh inning and Terry Pendleton had four hits, leading Florida past New York.

The Marlins had a season-high 19 hits off four pitchers. Florida hit six doubles, including two by Pendleton.

Pendleton and Greg Colbrunn, who had three hits, each drove in two runs. Edgar Renteria added a double and two singles.

Al Leiter (8-4) allowed eight hits in six innings and struck out nine. He beat the Mets for the second time this season.

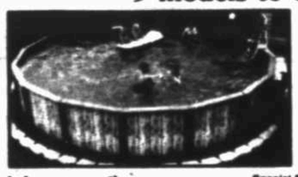

Pete Harnisch (4-4) lasted five innings, giving up five runs and 11 hits.

The Marlins led 5-2 before sending 12 batters to the plate in the seventh. Jeff Conine led off with a single, Gary Sheffield walked and Colbrunn hit an RBI single off Blas Minor.

Butch Huskey homered for the Mets. Todd Hundley hit an RBI double and Jose Vizcaino had three hits for New York.

FW Arlington Heights pounds way to 4A win

AUSTIN (AP) — Mike McCoy gave up just three hits and Fort Worth Arlington Heights exploded on offense in a 14-0 victory over Little Cypress-Mauriceville in the Class 4A championship game.

Arlington Heights (30-11), which had 10 hits, scored five runs in the first inning and erupted for seven runs in the fifth in claiming its first state title in three tournament appearances.

Mauriceville, making its first trip to Austin, finished the year 32-4.

The game was stopped after the fifth inning due to the 10-run rule.

McCoy (13-2) gave up hits to Charlie Nichols in the first inning, Mathew DeBlanc in the third and a double to Anthony Bandiero in the fifth but was nearly flawless otherwise.

He had two strikeouts and two walks through five innings and retired 10 of 11 batters during a stretch from the first through fourth innings.

DeBlanc, Mauriceville's starting pitcher, took the loss, giving up five runs on four hits with two walks before being pulled with two outs in the first inning. DeBlanc finished the year 7-2.

Monterey late game

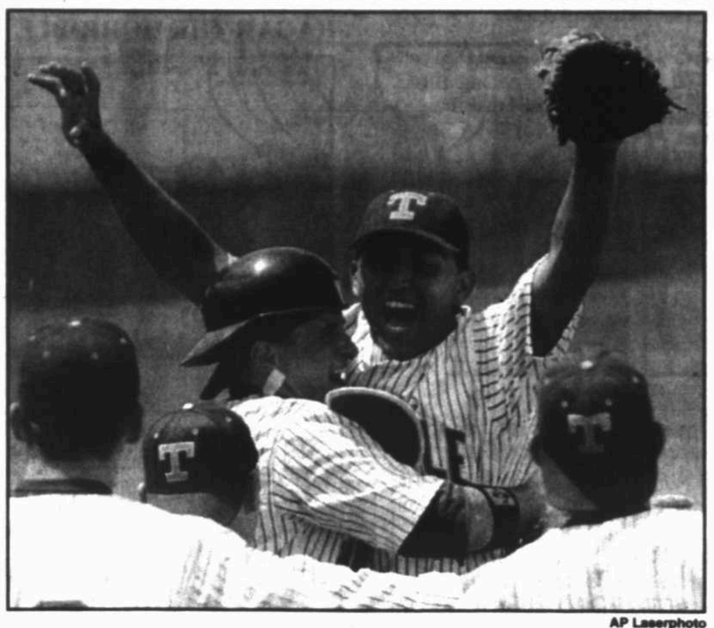

Because of rains which drenched Austin throughout Friday, the Class 5A championship game between Lubbock Monterey and Klein Oak did not start until approximately midnight CDT. The Reporter-Telegram will have a complete report on the game in Sunday's issue.

Arlington Heights had lots of stars at the plate. Richard Mendoza went 3-for-3 with one run scored and one RBI; Darren Wood went 2-for-3 with three runs scored and three RBIs; and Mark Austry was 2-for-4 with two RBIs.

The game was decided in the first inning. Derek Gerold, Mason Carter and Wood scored before Brandon Thompson wrapped up the onslaught with a two-run double that brought home Mendoza and Brandon Fulgham.

Leading 7-0, Arlington Heights batted around its entire lineup in the fifth, racking up runs scored by Mendoza, Fulgham, Thompson, Will Carsey, Gerold, Carter and Wood, who had a two-run double in the inning.

Heights committed no errors.

Thorndale takes state crown

■ Simmons, Simank hit inside-the-park homers as the Bulldogs beat Spurger 7-5 to win the Class A title.

By Chip Brown
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Jason Simank and Twone Simmons each hit inside-the-park home runs and Thorndale scored two runs on an error in the top of the seventh as it claimed a 7-5 victory over Spurger in the Class 1A championship game Friday.

With two outs in the top of the seventh and a man on first, Simank hit what appeared to be a routine single to center field.

But Spurger centerfielder J.P. McGee let the ball get by him and it rolled to the wall, allowing Nick Merz and Simank to score, giving Thorndale (24-2) its final margin of victory.

Spurger failed to mount a threat in the bottom of the seventh and finished the season 28-5 after making its first state tournament appearance.

Thorndale won the championship in its first trip to Austin, relying on ace Eric Hinistroza to get the Bulldogs out of a couple jams late in the game.

Hinistroza, who got the win and finished 15-0 this season, came in to pitch with the score tied 4-4 in the fifth inning and Spurger players on first and second with no outs.

He got out of the jam by getting the next three batters to ground out without allowing a run to score. In three innings, he gave up one run on three hits with one strikeout.

Justin McCabe (13-1) got the loss, giving up three runs on three hits in three innings with three strikeouts and one walk.

The game was a seesaw struggle until the decisive error in the seventh.

After Simmons hit his inside the park home run to give Thorndale a 5-4 lead in the top of the sixth, Spurger tied the game at 5-5 in the bottom half of the inning as Chris Gill hit a two-out single to score Justin McCabe from second base.

Spurger went up 4-3 after four innings as Chris Vickery scored on a sacrifice fly by McCabe, but Thorndale's Joel Simank scored on a ground out by Hinistroza to tie the game at 4-4 in the top of the fifth.

Chris Gill scored on a groundout by Michael Hatton to give Spurger a 3-2 lead in the third, but Jason Simank answered with his inside the park home run for Thorndale in the bottom half of the inning to tie the game 3-3.

Spurlock went 2-for-3 and scored a run to lead Spurger offensively.

Simmons went 2-for-2, scored a run and knocked in two RBIs to lead Thorndale, the school's second state title this school year. Simmons was also the leading rusher on the Bulldogs' football team which won a state crown.

Colon pitches 1-hitter as Weimar wins 2A

By Chip Brown
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Patrick Colon pitched a one-hitter and was supported with great defense as Weimar defeated Gilmer Harmony 4-0 Friday in the Class 2A championship game of the state baseball tournament.

Colon, who had a perfect game through three innings, barely missed a no-hitter, finally yielding a single to Gary McDonald with one out in the bottom of the seventh.

Weimar (25-8) claimed the state crown in its first ever trip to the tournament.

Harmony, which won the 2A crown in 1990, finished the season 25-7 after making its third tourney appearance.

Weimar got the only runs it would need in the first inning. Josh Prihoda came home on a single by Colon, who also led his team offensively, going 2-for-4 with one run scored and one RBI. Robert Sainz then singled home Colon for a 2-0 lead.

Weimar went up 3-0 in the second after Bobby Grohmann scored on an error by Harmony second baseman David Howard.

Jared Barton stole home in the top of the seventh to round out Weimar's scoring.

Harmony was baffled by Colon (5-1), who mixed fast balls and curves to chop down opposing batters. His perfect game was ruined by a walk in the fourth, but of the 23 batters he faced, there were never more than four in an inning.

Weimar put on a defensive show, coming up with seven fly outs and six ground outs to preserve the shutout.

Colon gave up two walks, but both runners were thrown out attempting to steal second base by Weimar catcher Lance Heger.

Weimar stole nine bases in the game, breaking the previous 2A state tournament record of eight set by Waskom in 1981. Barton had three steals, tying the tourney record for individual steals shared by three others.

Harmony pitcher Adam Hull (7-3), who went the distance, took the loss, giving up four runs on five hits with four strikeouts and seven walks.

Crockett escapes with 8-6 win over Graham

AUSTIN (AP) — Regi McKnight laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt to bring home the winning run in the top of the seventh as Crockett defeated Graham 8-6 Friday night in the Class 3A championship game.

Crockett (27-6), which won the 1982 2A title, squandered a 6-2 lead and headed into the seventh tied 6-6 before McKnight's bunt with one out scored Will Driskell from third for the winning run. JoLouis Lockhart also scored on a Graham error on the same play.

Graham, which reached its first final in four tourney appearances, finished the year 22-10 after failing to answer in the bottom of the seventh.

Crockett pitcher Kendall Rhodes, who got the win and improved to 12-2, gave up a meaningless single in the final inning while striking out three to end the game.

Kyle Jones got the loss for Graham, falling to 7-4 after giving up 8 runs on 10 hits with seven strikeouts and three walks in seven innings.

After trailing 6-2 heading into the bottom of the third, Graham began chipping away at Crockett's lead. Lance Cauthen cracked a two-run single down the first base line that brought home Trey Nicholson and Bart McNatt to pull within 6-4 after three.

Ryan Dollar scored on a wild pitch and Kyle Jones scored on an error when Crockett centerfielder Charles Masters dropped a routine fly ball that would have been the third out.

The miscue allowed Graham to tie the game at 6-6 after four innings.

Preakness hero home for Belmont Stakes

By Joseph Durso
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — The Triple Crown will come to an end Saturday hen New York stages the 128th running of the Belmont Stakes with no sweep of the series possible but with fanfare, summery weather, a large crowd and a field of 15 horses that will match the record cast of 13 years ago.

It will be New York's grandest day at the races since last October, when the Breeders' Cup was held at Belmont Park.

In the last and longest of the classic races for 3-year-olds, one fast filly, My Flag, owned by Ogden Phipps, will challenge 14 colts at a mile and a half for a purse of $500,000 and leadership in the muddled class of 3-year-olds.

Grindstone, the winner of the Kentucky Derby, and Unbridled's Song, the beaten and injured favorite for the Derby, will not be there. But two of the survivors of the punishing Triple Crown races will be the favorites: Louis Quatorze, the winner of the Preakness Stakes, will appear as the hometown hero trying to outrun California's traveling star, Cavonnier.

Both horses galloped over the track at Belmont Park Friday morning, and their trainers pronounced them ready for the main event. Louis Quatorze, trained by Nick Zito, ran second in the Blue Grass Stakes and an unaccountable 16th in the Kentucky Derby, but led wire-to-wire in the Preakness.

He is the second choice in the early line at 9-2 as part of an entry with his stablemate, Saratoga Dandy, a distance horse who rallies from deep in the pack.

LSU coach has feelings for Miami

By Tom Vint
Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — Louisiana State coach Skip Bertman has won a pair of national championships after a similar experience as an assistant with Miami. On Saturday, his current team meets his old one for the title at the College World Series.

Bertman, the U.S. Olympic baseball coach, is a Florida native and Miami graduate who was the Hurricanes' pitching coach for eight years when Ron Fraser was building the 'Canes into a two-time national championship team in the 1970s and '80s.

"I was a Hurricane," Bertman said. "I grew up with Miami and the university. Outside LSU, I always root for Hurricane teams in football, and baseball for that matter. It's exciting to play against Miami. It reminds me of our championship teams in '91 and '93 when we were hot, playing well in all phases of the game. They're just doing a great job."

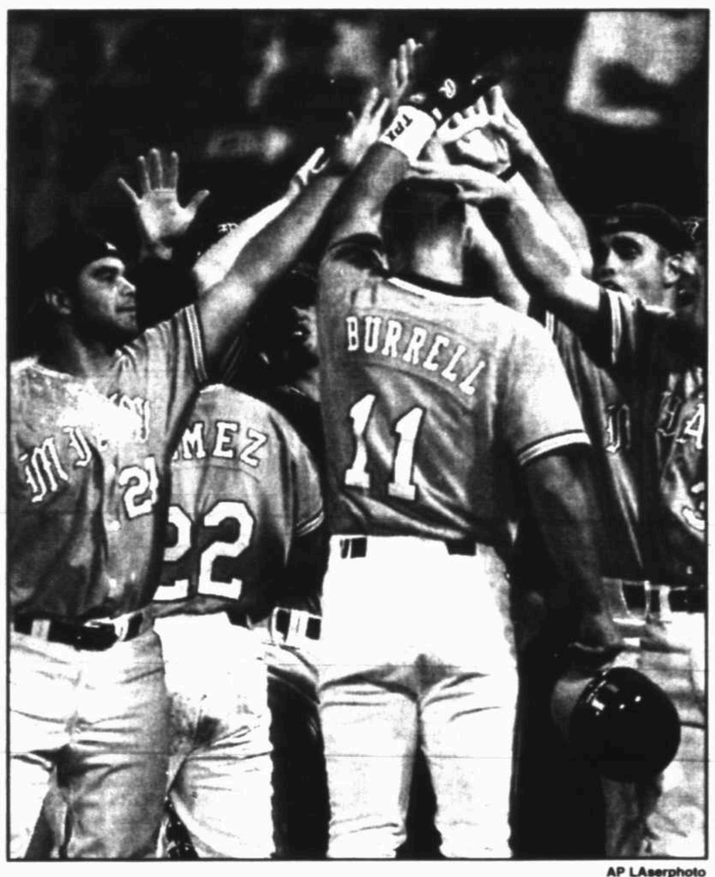

LSU has been a hot team, too, scoring 45 runs in its last two games in the regionals and nine in each of their first two wins at Omaha. Then they beat second seed Florida in a 2-1 pitchers' duel Thursday.

Bertman will try to quiet the Hurricane bats that are hitting .377 in Omaha after a regular season at .340, fourth-best in the nation. LSU will start Kevin Shipp (5-4) with Brett Laxton (8-2) ready if needed.

"I feel great about being able to start," said Shipp, who had two relief appearances and his first two saves of the season at the CWS. "Hopefully I can go out and pitch as I have all year, keep them off balance with my curve ball, throw my fastball in and out, and hold them down to as few hits as I can."

Shipp has some big game experience. He pitched in the junior college national championship game a year ago for Meridian (Miss.) Community College. Being a part of two of the three wins with two saves at the CWS also has given him a confidence boost.

"We've worked hard for this situation and put ourselves in a good situation to be playing for the national championship," said LSU catcher and captain Tim Lanier. "I think we've been playing decent. I don't think we've played our best yet here and we're still finding ways to win and that's impressive. But Miami is a hot club."

Tigers not chicken about wearing yellow jerseys

Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — There should be little doubt about the jerseys Louisiana State players will wear in Saturday's College World Series title game against Miami.

The team began wearing a lightweight yellow jersey in the regionals and haven't lost in them yet. Even though coach Skip Bertman calls the jerseys "god-awful yellow shirts," the Tigers aren't about to change now.

HEALED AT LAST: LSU has battled through so many injuries this season that even coach Skip Bertman thinks it's something special.

■ CWS Notebook

Among the injured were second baseman Warren Morris, who had surgery on a broken bone in his right hand in April and returned for the regionals; pitcher Brett Laxton, who bounced back from several nagging injuries and arm trouble to get a CWS win against Florida on Monday; Kevin Shipp, slowed by tendinitis in his throwing shoulder but has two saves at the CWS; the loss of Morris' backup Trey McClure with a broken left kneecap in April; and pitchers Jake Esteves (save Thursday against Florida) and Joey Painich, who both were limited by arm injuries.

SUPER-NATURAL HELP?: LSU fans Jennifer Wilson, sister of Tigers designated hitter Brad Wilson, and Wilson's girlfriend, Piper Nash, have brought some super-natural help for LSU to the College World Series.

They brought out their voodoo dolls, as they have done since the first game of the South II Regional. The four dolls were lined up along the rail near their front-row seats in Thursday's win over Florida.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, JUNE 8, 1996

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Influential people will be impressed by your self-reliance. This summer, avoid complicated emotional entanglements by using your free time for hobbies and travel. Your personal relationships will take on greater depth in October. Expect a real breakthrough in romance. January of 1997 will bring a raise or promotion. Be considerate of your subordinates; you will need their loyalty in times of crisis. Always give credit where it is due.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: actor Keenan Wayans, singer Nancy Sinatra, legendary architect Frank Lloyd Wright, actress Alexis Smith.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A day of mixed trends lies ahead. Keep your sense of humor! A "golden" opportunity could have certain strings attached. Seek the advice of experts before making any new financial commitments.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Possibilities for fun and enlightenment abound at home today. If you are willing to break with tradition, you can set an important new precedent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): If a situation has changed for the worst, end it. Swift action will bring immediate improvement. Do not be afraid to explore new territory. Keep your personal possessions under lock and key when traveling.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Try not to tense up over a misunderstanding. Alter what you can, then move on. It might be best to cancel a social engagement if family members are not included. Unwind at home tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Better-than-usual opportunities prevail. Keep up with newly-developed methods and systems. Take advantage of useful hints, too. An older person offers valuable advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A search for truth turns up new ideas. You find wonderful, workable solutions! Skepticism could be holding you back. Look on the bright side for a change.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Tackle arduous tasks during the early morning. You can make real progress while others are still getting their act together. Be supportive of loved ones going through a difficult time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A postponed trip may appear feasible now. Routine tasks should go well. Make any changes that are warranted. A loved one could make unreasonable demands.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It may be time to revise your priorities. Be open-minded about new trends, but avoid falling for fads. Tonight, seek quiet pastimes you can enjoy with family members or close friends. Order in dinner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The emphasis is on implementing clear-cut, clever plans while the climate is favorable. Use the best, leave out the rest! Your versatility is a tremendous asset. Welcome a chance to discuss your ideas with friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Step up your pace, but keep it below a gallop. There are no quick and easy remedies for complicated family problems. Your mate or partner offers some unexpected advice. Try it and see what happens.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make the most of your cooking talents. Entertaining at home gives you a chance to catch up on your friends' lives. Cupid smiles on singles who wanted to make a permanent connection. Be open-minded.

Martha Reeves asks Hall of Fame officials to refuse to induct rap music

CLEVELAND — Martha Reeves won't be rapping in the streets.

The leader of the girl-group Martha and the Vandellas said rap singers don't belong in the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum.

"Some of the music today I wouldn't take to a dogfight," Reeves said. "When rap comes on, I leave the room because I don't want to hear it."

Reeves, whose hits with the Vandellas include the Motown classic "Dancing in the Streets," asked museum officials Wednesday to refuse to induct rap artists.

That won't be a problem for the time being, since the only musicians eligible are those who released their first record at least 25 years ago.

SALT LAKE CITY — Wilfred Brimley is out $125,000 and a friend.

The actor and oatmeal advocate was ordered by a judge Thursday to pay back the bulk of a $150,000 advance he got to do a movie about the family of a Wyoming rancher.

Brimley was supposed to star in and direct the film, as well as find investors and deliver a screenplay.

Rancher Otto F. Jones, who bankrolled the project, said it never got off the ground. The judge agreed, but ruled Brimley earned $25,000 by working briefly with a Hollywood screenwriter and making calls to several actors.

Brimley's lawyer said the actor will appeal, claiming Brimley earned all the money just by lending his name to the project.

Meanwhile, Jones said his movie-making days are over, as is his 30-year friendship with Brimley.

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — "Beverly Hills 90210" star Jason Priestley will be going 130 mph this weekend, and he won't have to worry about getting pulled over, either.

Jason Priestley will be going 130 mph and he won't have to worry about getting pulled over.

Priestley will compete Saturday in the three-hour International Motor Sports Association's Endurance Championship in Watkins Glen.

"Road races are just such a challenge," he said. "Every track is different. They each have their own personality."

The actor began racing about four years ago. Now he races whenever he can, even if he has to cut into his "90210" shoots.

"I tell them I won't be there Thursday and Friday. They know where I'm going," said Priestley, who drives a Ford SVT Mustang Cobra R and owns his own team, Triple Caution Racing.

Other celebrity racers who have tackled Watkins Glen include Paul Newman, Tom Cruise and Walter Payton.

CHICAGO — The woman who banned Pavarotti from her stage is bowing out.

Ardis Krainik, general director of the Lyric Opera of Chicago, said she will retire next year for health reasons.

Krainik, 67, is credited with leading the Lyric to new levels of artistic and financial success at a time when other companies are struggling to attract followers.

She earned international notoriety in 1989 by refusing to let Luciano Pavarotti sing with the Lyric because he had canceled 26 of 41 appearances.

NEW YORK — Matthew Broderick is enjoying the Broadway stardom that eluded his father.

Broderick, 34, who is starring in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," said his late father, James, struggled for years to make it on Broadway.

"My dad did a few musicals and was very unlucky," said Broderick, whose father appeared on the TV series "Family." "On Broadway, he had a show close in one night."

Would he be jealous of his son's success?

"I'm sure he would be," Broderick said. "He'd also be proud."

NEW YORK — Hall of Fame slugger Willie McCovey was fined $5,000 and given two years' probation Friday for not paying taxes on money he made signing baseballs in 1989.

The 57-year-old former San Francisco Giant pleaded guilty to tax evasion.

"The only thing I'd like to say is while I've always tried to do the right things, I have never willingly tried to cheat the government," he told a federal judge in Brooklyn.

McCovey made tens of thousands in the baseball memorabilia market.

He is eighth on the all-time home run list, having belted 521 before retiring after the 1980 season.

Klein shoots 6-under to take lead in LPGA

Associated Press

LPGA Oldsmobile Classic

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Emilee Klein shot a 6-under-par 66 Friday to take a one-stroke lead over Pat Bradley after the rain-delayed second round of the LPGA Oldsmobile Classic.

Klein, who has three top-10 finishes this season, stands at 10-under 134 midway though the tournament which has been plagued by rain from the start.

Dana Dormann, one of three players who shared the first-round lead, and Alison Nicholas are one stroke behind Bradley.

Bradley had a second-round 67, while Dormann had a 70 and Nicholas a 69.

Play was delayed for almost three hours Friday. Thursday's first round was delayed for about 3 1/2 hours and it doesn't get much better as Saturday's forecast calls for a 40 percent chance of showers.

Laura Davies had Friday's best round, a 65, and was at 138. The other first-round co-leaders had rough second rounds. Dale Eggling had a 74 and was at 140, while Gail Graham had a 77 and her 143 total barely made the cut which was at 144.

Els lengthens lead at PGA Buick Classic

Associated Press

HARRISON, N.Y. — Ernie Els took only 23 putts in a 5-under-par 66 Friday and lengthened his lead to five strokes midway through the Buick Classic.

Els' 11-under 131 total tied the tournament record for best 36-hole score when the Westchester Country Club has played to a par 71, set by David Graham in 1976.

Tied for second were David Frost, who had a second-round 69 and Craig Parry, 66. Greg Norman, who had a 70, Mike Reid, 71, and Kevin Sutherland, 69, were another shot back at 137.

With four of the statistically hardest holes on the PGA Tour in 1995, the tight, tricky west course at Westchester is regarded as one of the more difficult the pros play each year and a good tune-up for next week's U.S. Open.

But in the 10 rounds Els has played at Westchester over three years, he has been under par nine times. He finished second to Lee Janzen in the Buick Classic in 1994 and tied for fourth last year.

Els made birdie putts of between six and 12 feet on Nos. 2, 3, 7, 9, 10 and 14. His only bogey came on No. 17 after he hit into a sand trap.

Els has made eight cuts in the 10 PGA tournaments he's played this year, but he's been thwarted by poor final rounds, such as his 75 in the final round last weekend at the Memorial in Ohio. His scoring average in the final round this year is just over 73 and ranks 150th on tour.

Eagle gives Weiskopf lead

Associated Press

MIDWAY, Pa. — Tom Weiskopf's eagle on the 15th hole pushed him to 4-under par 68 and the first-round lead Friday in the $1.1 million Pittsburgh Senior Classic at Quicksilver Golf Club.

Weiskopf held a one-stroke lead over Bob Eastwood and local favorite Arnold Palmer, who placed his approach shots around the pin all day in shooting a 3-under 69, Palmer's second-best score of the season.

Palmer's previous best round this year was a first-round 68 on March 30 at The Tradition, where he finished 43rd. He has not won a tournament since 1988, when he won the Senior Tour's Crestar Classic.

Weiskopf's only troublesome hole was the par-4 No. 3, where he left his approach shot 12 feet above the pin and knocked his first putt 15 feet past the hole. He eventually three-putted for a bogey, but avoided trouble the rest of the way.

His eagle on par-5 No. 15 came after his approach shot stopped 8 feet below the hole, leaving him the easy eagle putt.

tral Alabama, who went wire-to-wire for the title.

The round kept the streak of strong MC showings at the NJCAA tournament alive. Since 1990, The Chaps have finished third or better in the national tournament. That stretch includes two national titles (1992 and 1995) and two second place finishes. Overall, Midland College has made nine straight appearances at the NJCAA finale.

"They played exceptionally," MC head coach Delnor Poss said. "That (string) is something I am proud of. Not to finish lower than third in seven years is something, no one else in the country can match that."

Central Alabama came into the tournament ranked as the best team in the nation and left no doubts about the ranking. The school shot a final round 294 on their way to a tournament total of 16-over-par (1168). Central Alabama had the best round on all four days of the tournament.

For as bad as Thursday was for the Chaps, Friday was the opposite. The Region V and Western Junior College Athletic Conference champs had solid performances from Derrick Pursley, James Clive and Steven Young.

Pursley, the runner-up in the medalist race in 1995, shot a 74 to move up to a tie for 12th. In the process, the Andrews' native and sophomore golfer, competing in his last tournament for Poss, finished at 300 for the season and as a second team NJCAA All-American.

Derrick has had a agreat career and he had been a great leader and key reson for our success," Poss said. "He is an outstanding young man."

Clive rebounded from a third-round 82 to fire in a 73 on the final 18. The freshman from Scotland finished one stroke behind Pursley at 301. That 14th place spot earned him a place on the honorable mention all-American list. Clive and Pursley are the 20th and 21st all-Americans to play at MC.

Young did not receive an all-American spot but his 73-74 finish were a turn for the better after a 76-82 beginning. The freshman Region V medalist will also be back next season.

Former Midland High standout Jeremiah Luttrell finished his MC career with a 76 and 314 total while Monahans' native Scotty Wade shot a 79 and ended with a 307.

"We kept our string of all-Americans alive," Poss said. "They played exceptionally well. I I admire all of them for taking the challenge extended to them after yeaterday.

Like the team race, the tournament's medalist race left few doubts about who the best was. Shaun Webster shot a 72 on the last day for a 6-under-par, 282. The Central Alabama ace won the tournament by seven strokes over Felipe Aguilar of Florida Community College. Webster had three teammates that on the first and second team all-American lists.

The Chaps finish the 1995-96 season with 11 wins in 15 tournaments and set record performances (54 hole and 18 hole) at the Region V Championships. The team won its eighth conference title and eighth regional crown.

Poss will lose three sophomores off the team that went to Scottsdale. In addition to Pursley, Wade and Luttrell, the team will lose Blair Buttar and Michael Lofdahl.
