Italians Wildly Acclaim Musso's Fall

Yanks Drive For Messina

Shakeup At Home Causes No Halt In Wild Italian Flight

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 26. — American infantry and tanks swept along the north coast of Sicily today in close pursuit of the Italian military rabble falling back with hardly a fight toward the Messina bridgehead.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio's reassumption of command of Italian forces under King Vittorio Emanuele caused no pause in the flight of remnants of his Sicilian garrison toward the two-mile-wide strait separating the island from the mainland.

U. S. Seventh Army units have captured Termini, 20 miles east of Palermo, it was officially announced, but are already far east of that north coastal port in their dash toward Messina, and have taken 7,000 more prisoners, including six Italian generals and one admiral, in their mopping up of western Sicily.

Re-Made Division Thrown In

Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring threw a resurrected 29th motorized division into the hopeless struggle in eastern Sicily, apparently hoping that it and two and a half other German divisions already engaged would be able to delay the Allies long enough to establish a new defense line for besieged Europe.

Whether this new line would be in Southern Italy despite Mussolini's collapse or be somewhere north in the Po valley, Hitler's headquarters itself may not yet have decided.

The new American advances on the northern flank promised to turn the Messina bridgehead into a second Cap Bon, where the last Axis remnants were trapped in Tunisia.

Canadians Press On

Attacking in the central sector against another resusciated German division—the 15th armored division—the Canadians pressed forward indomitably. Their most recent gains have not yet been announced officially. Today's communique said only that they "continued to advance, but their progress was slowed in the face of bitter resistance."

The remainder of the British Eighth Army, stymied for 10 days on the southern outskirts of Catania, confined its operations to successful patrols.

German reports indicated that

Onrushing Reds Closing On Orel

Thousands Of Axis Risking Entrapment

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Tuesday, July 27.—Red armies personally directed by Marshal Joseph Stalin captured 70 villages, gained six miles and killed 5,000 enemy troops yesterday in their steady semi-encirclement of the big German base at Orel where thousands of Axis troops risk entrapment, it was announced early today in Moscow.

With Russian troops attacking Orel within eight miles of the city's northeastern and eastern gates, a special communique said that other units had swept across the Oka river directly above the base in a wide wheeling movement threatening to cut the last supply line into Orel—the railway running northeast to Bryansk.

Many Villages Taken

Village after village on the west bank of the Oka river fell to the onrushing Soviet troops, one column of which also took Berestna, 45 miles northwest of Orel. The vastness of the Russian drive indicated that Bryansk, as well as Orel, was a Soviet objective. Both are the keystones to the entire German south-central front in Russia.

Two thousand Germans were killed northwest of the city in a desperate effort to halt the first successful Red Army summer offensive of the war.

South of Orel, Russian troops pushing up the railway from Kursk, captured Kurakina and Yeropkino, the latter only 17 miles

John Doughboy's Reactions Vary

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 26. (AP) — Johnny Doughboy took the news of Benito Mussolini's walkout with (A) a grain of salt, (B) hat-throwing jubilation, (C) sober contemplation, or (D) just plain confusion, a checkup among American soldiers in North Africa showed tonight.

"Mussolini couldn't take the war in spite of his years of balcony gesturing, and turned yellow," said infantry Corporal Charles I. Jones of Buffalo, N. Y.

"He isn't fooled by Hitler's hot air and he knows he can't win, so he gets out," remarked infantry Private Arthur Govanna of Revere, Mass.

May Get Home Sooner

"Maybe we will get home sooner because of it," suggested Corporals James J. Osebold of Spokane, Wash., and Dale C. Herman of Indianapolis.

The news broke up one company at reveille formation. Everybody broke into cheers.

Airforce Sergeant Gunner John Calhoun of Chillicothe, Tex., who has flown over Sicily since the invasion started, expressed the belief that "it's the best break the Italians have had since Mussolini stabbed France in the back three years ago and brought misery and unwanted war to his people."

"I was afraid it was some sort of propaganda at first, but anyway, it was one of the nicest shocks of the war," said Private Libero Bevilacqua of Boston, Mass., both of whose parents were born in Fanno, Italy.

Heavy Sea And Air Bombardments Aid In First General Ground Advance On Base

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Tuesday, July 26.—Driving ahead under the support of a heavy bombardment from sea and air, American troops pushed their front line 500 yards closer to the core of Japanese defenses at the strategic Munda airfield yesterday.

It was the first general ground advance reported since the beginning of the battle for New Georgia island in the central Solomons.

Official reports failed to give any details of what apparently is the start of the long-heralded drive which should bring American troops to grips with the enemy in and along the firmly-established and stubbornly-held perimeter defenses of Munda.

Warships Pound Area

Following a softening-up campaign that probably was achieved by American planes which rained nearly 600 tons of high explosives on enemy positions last week, an unstated number and type of Allied warships Sunday afternoon delivered what a spokesman for General Douglas MacArthur described as a "heavy bombardment" against Munda's defenses.

Formidable units of United States Navy Dauntless and Avenger bombers, covered by Wildcats and Corsairs, joined in the bombarding process Sunday evening, and followed up Monday morning by further Avenger and Dauntless waves which braved intense ground fire to dump 82 tons of bombs on pin-pointed gun positions and personal targets around the big airbase.

Buin-Faisi Pounded

While American naval and air units concentrated on opening gaps in the Munda perimeter for advancing infantrymen, Liberators of the Army's 13th airforce, escorted by a strong formation of fighters, attacked the airdrome around Buin-Faisi where Ameri-

OPA Says Gin Prices Stand

DALLAS, July 26. (AP)—A statement by John Thompson of Merkel, president of the National Cotton Ginners' association, recommending that ginners set their own prices without regard for Office of Price administration ceilings, brought from the OPA today the reply that there would be no changes in prices for ginning this year.

"Prices for ginning will be the same as for 1942," said Amos Coffman of the OPA. "An extensive study was made last spring to determine whether additional increases should be granted. This study included costs and profits of all types of gins, with particular reference to volume, ownership and location.

"Following this study an industry conference was held in Washington early in June at which the results were discussed with ginners from all parts of the country," Coffman continued. "At that conference it was decided that the 1942 scale of prices, which during that season showed a favorable profit position, and was 5 per cent above 1941 prices, would continue through 1943."

Battered Ruins Of Nazi Cities Lashed By Forts

Crews "Have Made History," Chief Of U.S. Forces Says

By EDWARD D. BALL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 26.—Flying Fortresses returned in force today to batter the saturated ruins of Hamburg and attacked three other northwest German cities of Hannover, Wilhelmshaven and Wesermunde in widespread daylight raids which cost the Germans upward of 54 planes and the Allies 23 bombers and three fighters.

Lesser American and British bombers and fighter-bombers set upon German airbases in France and Belgium by daylight in a torrent of explosive fury which followed up a 2,000-ton assaut on the German Ruhr industrial capital of Essen and its Krupp arsenal.

Worst Assault In History

In three days, Europe's greatest port of Hamburg had shuddered under history's most violent assault. On Saturday night, the RAF dropped 2,300 long tons of bombs or 2,571 tons of bombs on Hamburg in the heaviest air attack the world has known. On Sunday, Fortresses gave Hamburg the heaviest daylight raid in history, and today they followed up that attack.

Asserting the crews "have made history" in the last three days, Brig.-Gen. Frederick L. Anderson, head of the U. S. Airforce Bomber command, revealed they had flown more than 3,000 miles and destroyed approximately 100 enemy fighters.

During the round-the-e-clock raiding Anderson said the crews had been through five hours of aerial combat, penetrating deep into the heart of industrial Germany "over five of the heaviest flak areas in the world and through the fiercest of enemy fighter opposition without fighter escort."

Many Targets Destroyed

"They have destroyed the production of a huge aluminum factory, damaged submarine facilities in Norway, brought the threat of destruction to the rubber tire output for the German Army and airforce, destroyed considerable of German submarine-building capacity, damaged aircraft engine and assembly plants," Anderson said.

"Flying Fortresses attacked rub-

Storm Moving Toward Coast

HOUSTON, July 26. (AP) — A tropical disturbance of moderate intensity, centered at 9:15 p.m. Monday about 120 miles southeast of Port Arthur, was expected to move inland between Galveston and Port Arthur at daybreak Tuesday, the weather bureau reported.

The disturbance, attended by strong, shifting winds was of a probable velocity of 60 miles at its center.

Army air force planes at Ellington Field will be evacuated if the tropical disturbance attains dangerous proportions, the field public relations officer said tonight.

At Camp Wallace, Tex., Col. Leroy E. Nelson, commanding officer, said:

"We are standing by at Camp Wallace in the event thata a tropical disturbance hits in this area during the night. In this connection we are prepared to coordinate the disaster relief plan which has been laid out by the internal security office of this region."

At Freeport, the barometer reading was 29.86 and slowly dropping. There was no wind or rain. Business was normal and few persons were leaving the town.

Quick End To War Expected

Stunned Nazi Propagandists Speechless In Sudden Blow

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERN, Switzerland, July 26. — Italians poured into the streets of Italy's biggest cities last night and all day today with cries for peace and shouts of joy and spontaneous parades celebrating the downfall of Mussolini, who is reported held under a strong guard at his villa near Rome.

These demonstrations occurred in Rome, Naples, Milan, Bologna, Turin, Genoa, Como, and other cities. Many of these points had suffered heavily through Allied air attacks.

Stunned German propagandists offered their Berlin-inspired official attitude that Italy would remain in the war, but Allied circles here were increasingly convinced that it was the beginning of the end for Italy.

Expect Early Armistice

One Italian source here said the Italian capital expected an armistice with the Allies would be asked and possibly obtained by the end of the week despite Marshal Pietro Badoglio's vague assertion last night that the "war continues."

Although the Fascist party had not been officially proclaimed

ARMISTICE CONFERENCE

LONDON, Tuesday, July 27 (AP)—A Reuters stockholm dispatch today said preliminary negotiations for an armistice between Italy and the Allies began in Vatican City last night. The Bern correspondent of Svenska Dagbladet was the source of the report. There was no confirmation whatever.

While negotiations were going on in the Vatican, it was said that the German ambassador to Rome, Hans Georg Viktor von Mackensen, was holding a series of talks with Marshal Badoglio.

An Italian and German communique on the von Mackensen-Badoglio talks is expected shortly, the dispatch said.

dead, Badoglio and his new ministers immediately set about cleaning house, taking over party headquarters and the youth organization, ousting the Italian chief of police and installing a new one.

Newspaper dispatches from Italy now are halted, and Rome radio provides the only direct information from the Italian capital. But political and diplomatic channels still are open, and this is the situation in Italy:

Three fascists were killed in Milan last night, but otherwise there have been no serious disorders, although Badoglio has

Martial Law Is Clamped Down

Musso Arrested As He Tries To Flee

LONDON, July 26. (AP)—Marshal Badoglio and a new cabinet ruled turbulent Italy tonight under a martial law imposed to prevent civil war between joyous liberals who want to make peace immediately with the Allies and discredited Fascists left leaderless by the mysterious and sudden exit of Benito Mussolini and his ministers.

Stockholm and Bern dispatches reported the broken Mussolini had been arrested while trying to flee to German sanctuary from the nation he brought to the brink of disaster after 21 years of dictatorship.

Crowds Parade Streets

Although these reports of Mussolini's whereabouts were not confirmed in dispatches directly from Italy, there was no doubt of the attitude of many Italians. A Milan newspaper reaching the Swiss frontier said the people staged wild demonstrations upon hearing of Mussolini's collapse.

Crowds paraded in the blacked-out streets of Rome last night, and surged through the empty halls of the Palazzo Venezia from whose balcony Mussolini had stormed and ranted through the years. They shouted long life to king, country and Badoglio.

(The Rome radio in an English-language broadcast to England also said that "enthusiastic crowds" filled the streets of Rome, Bologna, Milan, "and all the other towns of Italy" shouting praises of the king, Badoglio, and the Army soon after the news of Mussolini's resignation reached them.

Signs Of Balkan Breakup Shown

By FRANK O'BRIEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

ISTANBUL, July 25. (Delayed) —Signs have begun to appear in the Balkans indicating the possibility of a breakdown in the Axis structure there, with Hungary and Bulgaria showing the most symptoms of nervousness.

Premier Bogdan Philov of Bulgaria has issued a decree making all Bulgarians over the age of 16 subject to "state premier laws," indicating that the government believes much of the sabotage and pro-Russian activity in the country is the work of youths in schools and universities.

Travelers from Bulgaria report a general state of unrest and tenseness there, and predict that a series of swift Allied successes in the Mediterranean might cause a revolt against the Bulgarian alliance with the Axis.

Same In Hungary

Travelers from Hungary say that the same condition prevails in that satellite country and that the Hungarians appear definitely set against further active participation in the war.

Surprises, perhaps swift collapse of the Axis grip on southeastern Europe, may be in the offing. The Germans are solidly entrenched in Greese and the Aegean Sea area and they will not be ousted without a struggle, however, and it is probable that none of the Axis satellites in the Balkans will make a move until Allied armies are close at hand, for fear of Nazi reprisals.

Veteran American Correspondent From Rome Says Fall Of Musso Most Momentous Development Of War To Date

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch was written by the former manager of the Rome bureau of United Press who was interned when the United States declared war on Italy and subsequently released under the exchange agreement. He is widely known as an authority on Italian affairs.)

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
United Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 26 — The fall of Mussolini is the most momentous development in the war to date and the first question that follows is:

Will Marshal Pietro Badoglio find a way to break with Germany?

That Badoglio will look for a way is obvious to one who knows Italy. How else could the advent of a known enemy of Mussolini and of fascism at Italy's helm be regarded?

Musso Sensed Disaster

I am sure the Italian people know Badoglio didn't take over just to follow Mussolini's policies. And they also must know that Mussolini didn't desert until the raid on Rome and the defeat in Sicily made him sense inevitable disaster.

The development created great excitement here. Mussolini's resignation was expected, of course, but not so soon. The next thing that must be ascertained before Badoglio's course can be judged is Germany's reaction.

Hitler's men in Italy seem to have only one of two possible steps: 1. They must pull out entirely, giving up Italy to her own future; or 2. They must suddenly cease the role of a gestapo over Italy and take open steps to make the Italians stay in the war.

German Force Increased

When I left Italy more than a year ago it was estimated Germany had seven divisions in Italy. Lately they have sent in more, possibly preparing for just such a thing as has happened. I have reason to believe there may be 20 Nazi divisions there now. The gestapo already controls the Italian secret police.

Thus Badoglio's job of telling Hitler that Italy no longer wants his war is magnified. How the marshal, who saved Mussolini in Ethiopia and was later discarded by the fascists, can get the job done is the question. Naturally, it might be asked whether Hitler engineered the deal. That isn't likely unless Hitler has found Italy is impossible to defend and consented only to neutralize the

RICHARD MARTIN, the "Chito Rafferty," half-Irish-half Spanish cadet of "Bombardier," now showing at the Tower theater, is one of those rarities—a tall, dark and handsome youth who didn't yearn for a movie career; not even when as a receptionist he worked in one of the largest Hollywood studios for several years.

He was spotted by a talent scout and after a couple of minor roles was cast in "Bombardier." Born at Spokane, Wash., in 1918, son of a meat packer, his real name is Herbert Pinney. He's lived in Hollywood since he was a baby, attended schools there and in Beverly Hills where he graduated from high school and casting about for work got the studio messenger job. ENSIGN'S LETTER

MRS. E. M. TRIPLETT received a letter from her son Joe Will, an ensign in Uncle Sam's Navy, that holds a paragraph or two she thought would be worthy passing along to other mothers to read. It's rather typical of the thoughts of many of our clean, young men in the forces, she believes and we agree.

"Today I was granted special shore leave and I got a kick out of strolling through all of the stores and comparing merchandise and people with those back home. The similarity was striking in certain instances.

"I cannot divulge my whereabouts or any movements.

"In one city my good friend, the supply officer, and I spent some time late one evening in a Catholic cathedral. His purpose was that of confession; mine that of accompanying him. I was very glad to have gone. It was a very good feeling to come close to God again. As you know I am not very religious, but I am quite a sentimentalist. Seeing the lovely edifice, inside and outside, and viewing statutes of Christ brought back lost and neglected thoughts which I still retain."

THE Woman's Angle holds the belief that boys like Joe Will and others will return to these shores with stronger convictions after the experiences they are undergoing. HELLO THERE

MRS. ROSS McWHORTER received a mimeographed note from her husband, Major McWhorter, the other day which expresses thoughts of many American who have spent months in North Africa since the landing last November.

It's rather enjoyable we thought and are reproducing it for your reading pleasure and to clip and to send to some who is stationed in another part of the far flung struggle.

Again I take my pen in hand to write I know not what

The weather here is sometimes cold and sometimes very hot,

But whether weather—what the heck—the climate is a bore,

"I wonder how you folks at home are living through the war?)

We yearn to eat a shrimp cocktail, perhaps a juicy steak,

And finish up with apple pie and a peace-time stomach ache.

The local girls are joyless drips, compared to girls I knew,

They paint and powder, dye their hair until it looks like glue;

They cannot dance, they never pet nor raise a voice in song,

And when they make a date to dine—well, mama treks along.

Allthrough the fish and eggs and wine her dark eyes sharply glare,

And if you thought an arrant thought, you drop it then and there.

Papa is quite the other way; he never moans or frets,

But parks beside his bottle and smokes YOUR cigarettes.

A curfew rings at 9 o'clock and the bars are closed at eight,

And heven help the luckless guy who strolls the streets too late,

For M. P.'s lurk in every door, their muscles poised to spring.

And if a lecture's all you get, you have a right to sing.

The movie shows are dreadful—you've seen the films before—

But what a treat to rest your feet and see them all once more,

The actors swilling cocktails as they lounge on silken beds,

(I wish they'd try my straw-filled cot, those Hollywooden-heads!)

The native is so picturesque in tattered robe and gown, a ragged beard,

A flea or two, a mightly Moslem frown, and habits rare (to say the least)—he leaves me feeling numb

When he grabs my hand and begs me for a stick of chewing gum.

Well, that in tota, is the news of Africa, my dear—and though

I miss you very much I am glad that you're not here!

Knitting rooms at the Red Cross production center will be open each morning Monday through Friday this week, from 9 until 12 o'clock, and the surgical dressing room will remain closed until around the first of August.

For weeks, supervisors and chairmen entreated Lubbock women to call at the rooms to help with the surgical dressings. When the last shipment was completed, a short rest was declared, due to lack of material on hand, the intense heat and the fact that the women had worked so long and untiringly.

Announcement will be made through the papers when the surgical dressing rooms will re-open. In the meantime, knitters are reminded that they may work in mornings.

Removal Of Italy From War Nearer

By LOUIS P. KEEMLE
United Press War Analyst

The full consequences of Mussolini's downfall cannot yet be appraised, but one thing appears reasonably certain—it has brought measurably nearer the removal of Italy from the war.

That is quite likely to come about by surrender, resulting in armed Allied occupation of the country, without the necessity of invasion or further bloodshed.

Otherwise—which at the moment seems less probable—the Allies will have to fight their way into the country, but it would be against a people and an army whose will to resistance is almost gone.

A Crowning Blow

The collapse of the man who started the whole thing signifies also the collapse of the war-making regime for which he stood. It comes as the crowning blow in a series of morale-shattering events which began with the disaster in North Africa.

Then things moved swiftly—the invasion of Sicily; the realization that Hitler had abandoned Sicily to its fate and would similarly abandon Italy proper; the Roosevelt-Churchill demand for the overthrow of Fascism and acceptance of an honorable peace without the loss of national dignity; the bmbing of Rome; the failure of the German offensive in Russia and the onward rush of the Red army, foreshadowing the collapse of the whole Axis structure.

Would Open Way

Allied occupation of Italy would have an early effect on the military course of the war. It would put Allied bombers within deadly range of the industry and communications system of southern and eastern Germany, to make complete the devastating work of the Allied air forces in the west.

More important, it would open the way to the Balkans, both across the Adriatic and from the south by the Aegean islands. Italian forces, which have been Hitler's chief tool in maintaing his hold on the Balkans, would be withdrawn.

Hitler Courting Disaster

It is doubtful if Hitler can longer rely on effective military support from Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary, who are thinking mainly of how they can best salvage something of their national interests from the approaching Axis debacle.

Hence, to guard his Balkan flank Hitler either has to send in strong divisions of German troops or leave a gaping hole in his supposed "fortress Europe." It is difficult to see how he can do it without courting disaster at the hands of the Russians on the eastern fronts.

WASHINGTON, July 26. (AP)—On a two to one division, the U. S. court of appeals held today that the Office of Price administration was without authority to invoke its price control regulations to halt an increase in public utility rates charged by the Washington Gas Light company.

The decision upheld an order of the District of Columbia public utilities commission, issued October 13, 1942, granting an increase in the rates amounting to an estimated $201,000 annually, retroactive to September 1, 1942.

Former Citizens Face Indictments

WASHINGTON, July 26. (AP)—Eight Americans, including two women, who have broadcast regularly from Germany and Italy in behalf of the Axis war effort, were indicted today for treason, and Attorney General Biddle said they would be brought to trial when caught.

Musso's Downfall Can Speed Victory

(EDITOR'S NOTE—Associated Press war correspondent Wes Gallagher, back in this country after covering the Tunisian war as a correspondent accredited to General Eisenhower's headquarters, here surveys the possible long-range effects of Mussolini's downfall on the military situation, and future Allied strategy).

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 26.—Italy's surrender, apparently foreshadowed by Mussolini's downfall, would open a "bloodless" second front over night.

It would alter the whole Mediterranean strategy of the Allies and shorten the war against Germany by months and perhaps years. Some of the fruits of victory would be:

1. Allied airfields in northern Italy from which American and RAF bombers could hammer every corner of Hitler's reich every hour of the day.

Collapse In Balkans

2. Certain collapse of Nazi resistance in the Balkans due to the withdrawal of the Italian garrisons, air pounding of already feeble Axis supply lines leading to Greece and similar peace moves by Hitler's war torn satellites, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria.

3. A bridgehead in Europe from which Allied troops might force their way into France and the Balkans.

Any Allied entry into Italy also would have its liabilities. These would be:

1. The necessity of finding shipping and food to feed Italy's 40,000,000—a tremendous strain on American and British sea traffic.

2. The necessity of garrisoning Italy with a half million troops.

Perhaps the biggest gain for America and Britain would be in the air.

It is an axiom of air warfare that an air force's effectiveness decreases in direct ratio to the distance it must operate from its bases.

Would Cut Distances

Airfields in northern Italy would cut the distance Allied bombers would have to fly to reach Prague, home of the great Ekoda munition works, from 750 miles to 300; the distance to the aircraft factories at Viena from 800 to less than 300, and even Berlin itself from 650 miles to about 400.

Bombers flying from England could cross Germany and land in Italy returning the next night or day and the Germans would never be able to set their defenses to meet the blows. The strain on the already battered luftwaffe would be increased 100 per cent.

The effect of Italy's collapse would be tremendous in the Balkans. Hungary has been closer to Italy than to Germany in thought, and her war-weary neighbors, Rumania and Bulgaria, would probably join her in suing for peace.

Italian Garrisons

Hitler would also lose an Italian garrison force in Yogoslavia and Greece, estimated at from 12 to 20 divisions. Considerably smaller German forces in these two turbulent countries would be left with the impossible task of holding down a violent populace and beating off an Allied attack while supported by thin supply lines within easy reach of Allied planes in Italy. The Nazi position would become militarily untenable under these circumstances, leaving the way clear for Allied troops to pour up from the eastern Mediterranan onto the flank of Hitler's forces in Russia.

Northern Italy would provide narrow gaps—none too good, but openings nevertheless — from which Allied troops might force their way west into France or east into Hungary.

The narrow Brenner Pass into Austria would offer scant room for operations and it is doubtful if the Allies would try to force it.

Feeding Italy's Hungry

On the debit side would be the huge task of feeding Italy's hungry population. Occupation would bring duties which would prove a severe strain on Allied shipping and supplies.

Perhaps one of the biggest problems would be of garrisoning the country. At least 500,000 troops would be needed and these would be in positions where they would be of no use in fighting the Germans on any battle front.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower and his British-American staff never depended on an Italian collapse for victory but made plans to exploit it should it come about and if Italy sues for peace, military moves will follow in the Balkans with lightning rapidity.

Connally Says Italy Not In War For Long

MARLIN, July 26. (AP) — Italy cannot long remain in the war, Sen. Tom Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said today in commenting upon the replacement of Benito Mussolini by Marshall Pietro Badoglio as premier of Italy.

"The blackout siren has sounded for Italy," said Connally, at his home here where he is visiting while Congress is in recess:

"Mussolini's tyranny and false political philosophy have vanished.

"Mussolini cannot cleanse his hands of the blood and misery which his ambition brought to the innocent and peaceful nations of the earth."

Mahon Here To Contact People

The Congressional representative of the nineteenth Texas district, George Mahon, has set up local headquarters in Lubbock from which he will cover the district throughout the balance of the current Washington recess. Mrs. Mahon and their 16-year-old daughter, Daphne arrived Sunday.

The Mahons are stopping at Hilton hotel, but the congressman will transact his business in an office on the third floor of the federal building. During his travels he will maintain an office assistant there.

With the exception of a couple of healing fever blisters, Mr. Mahon shows no effects of a recent illness which forced him into bed at Colorado City, where he and his family have been visiting relatives for the past week. Both the congressman and his daughter fell victims to a food poisoning while traveling between Washington and Colorado City and both had to be placed under medical treatment.

Mr. Mahon expects to be "covering the district" and "contacting" his constituents in all walks of life until just prior to September 14, when the congressional recess officially will end. However, he pointed out that while September 14 is the date agreed upon for resumption of congressional business in Washington, an earlier gathering of both houses might be called due to any sort of emergency. Both Senate and House agreed prior to the recess that they could be called back by either the Democratic or Republican leaderships, in addition to the call of the President. Normally, only the President, or the majority party, can end a recess. But due to world conditions and the fact that Democratic and Republican strengths are so nearly divided, the over-all decision was that the minority party could issue a call if it so sees fit.

"I am home," the congressman said, "to spend my time with the people of the 25-county district and I intend to make myself available to them at all times." Up to Sunday night he had only one commitment in Lubbock — next Thursday noon when he will speak before local Kiwanians and their guests. He expects to be in Muleshoe Friday and has agreed to speak in Lamesa about mid-August, when citizens will unveil an honor roll containing the names of all Dawson county boys in the armed services.

"Good News From Italy"

Informed of the shakeup in Italy which saw Benito Mussolini step down in favor of Marshal Badoglio, Mr. Mahon commented "that news is even better than I hoped for." He characterized the United Nations' war efforts to date as "excellent, even better than anyone could have hoped for a few short months ago."

Serving his fifth term in Congress, Mr. Mahon pointed out that "everything else is secondary to winning the war," and described the administration's conduct of the war," as being "entirely satisfactory on the international front."

"I don't see how President Roosevelt could have done a better job from that standpoint," he said, "and I believe most people in this district, as well as over the nation, feel the same way."

However, the congressman made no effort to apologize for either the administration in general, or the President in particular, for "home front bungling," which he said had been too frequent.

Raps "Home Front Bungling"

"I have no objection to anyone's criticizing the official acts of the President in that regard," he said. "I retain that right myself and I am critical of the way much of the home front problem has been handled. The President, in wartime, spearheads both the international and the domestic fronts and he must share responsibility for both successes and failures."

During his tenure of office, the congressman by and large has supported administration policies, but he pointed out here that from time to time he has opposed Rooseveltian views. Recently he has voted: to over-ride the President's veto of the Smith-Connally Anti-Strike bill; for abolition of the National Youth administration and of the National Resources Planning board, headed by the President's uncle, Frederick Delano; and against roll-back subsidies through which the White House seeks to decrease costs of food items by permitting the taxpayer to pay the bill through the U. S. Treasury rather than in the act of purchasing edibles.

Questions Labor Policies

Mr. Mahon said his mail from men in the armed forces over recent months has shown "almost unanimous disatisfaction with the President's labor policy. Most, if not all, of the service men who have written me," he said, "are mad clean through. They promise, too, 'to clean things up' when they return. Most frequent target of their ire is John L. Lewis, and I must say I cannot, myself, understand the President's attitude toward recalcitrant labor in general, and toward Lewis, in particular."

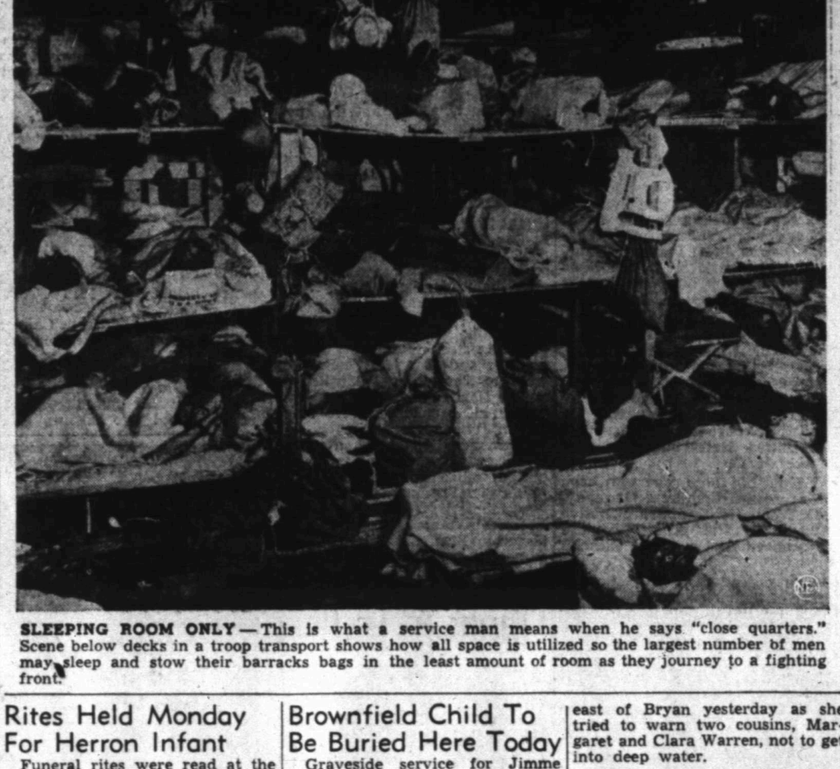

Mr. Mahon feels that the most important domestic problem facing the nation is that of food. He fears that shortage of manpower on the farms, too much drafting of farm labor in the past, and questionable policies regarding food allocation may result in a shortage of edibles not only next winter, but in the year following.

The congressman took opportunity to say a word for his longtime friend and predecessor as representative from the north part of the present 19th district, Marvin Jones, now War Food administrator. "Marvin has a very difficult job," he said, "but if anyone can solve the food problem, he can do it. He is as fully informed as any man in the nation and his choice was the best that could be made."

He declined to estimate the length of time it will take the United Nations to win the war, although he believes, as does the majority of people, that "victory is only a question of time."

Badoglio Sees His Opinion Justified

(By The United Press)

It took 21 years for Marshal Pietro Badoglio to see his opinion of Benito Mussolini justified, and when it came, he succeeded the dictator as premier.

Badoglio, now 71, already was famous for his part in World war I and had served as Italian chief of staff when the Blackshirt Fascists poured into Rome in 1922 for the bloodless revolution. Watching the march from a balcony with King Victor Emmanuel, Badoglio said:

"Sire, with just one company of caribinieri, I could sweep those blackshirts upstarts into the sea."

The King said no.

Retired As Goat

That remark make Badoglio an enemy of Mussolini but Badoglio stayed prominent in Italian military affairs, saved the Ethiopian campaign and retired as chief of staff only when the Fascists had to find a goat for their reverses.

Badoglio was born at Brazzano Monferrato, in Piedmont, on Sept. 28, 1871. His active military career began in 1896 in the Eritrean campaign and he fought in 1910 against the Turks in Libya and came out of the war a major.

Chief Of Staff In 1919

By the time Italy entered World war I he was a lieutenant colonel. He was blamed for the Italian disaster at Caporetto but received a major share of credit for a victory at Vittorio Veneto. After his victory at Sabotio in 1916, he was made a marquis. In November, 1919, he was made chief of staff.

Immediately after the rise of Mussolini, Badoglio was sent out of the country on good-will missions by the King to avoid a clash with Il Duce. In 1924 and 1925, he was ambassador to Brazil, being recalled to take the commission of marshal in the Army.

Followed Duce's Orders

Looked upon as a monarchist leader, Badoglio nevertheless followed Mussolini's direction because he was an Italian and a soldier.

The tall, quiet Badoglio became governor of Libya in 1929, holding the post five years. The king made him his honory cousin as a mark of devotion. When the Ethiopian campaign began to bog down, Mussolini asked Badoglio to save him. He did and became viceroy of that new territory in the empire.

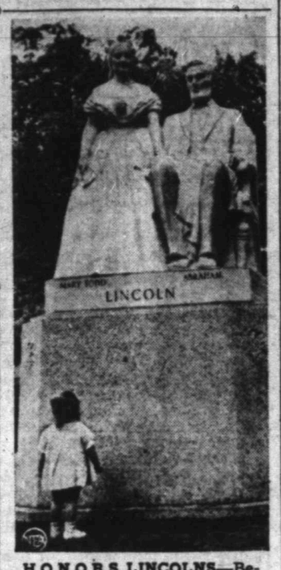

Retirement Is Forced

He returned from Eethiopia to become commander in chief of the army until the reverses in Albania and North Africa led to his resignation in December, 1940. From the obscurity of that retirement — forced by the Fascists—Badoglio was called by the Kig to lead his nation after Allied armies had wrecked the empire and pierced the outer boundaries of the homeland.

Badoglio's son, Paolo, was killed in North Africa two years ago, where he was a flier. His other son, Mario, also is a flier. He has one daughter.

Assault Charge Filed On Negro

Willie Samuel Hobdy, 30-year-old negro, Monday afternoon was charged with assault to murder Blondy Wood, who lies in grave condition in West Texas hospital.

Wood and two other white men were knifed Wednesday in a fight that, according to three sworn statements taken by District Attorney Burton S. Burks, resulted when the negro went into Wood's fruit stand-travel bureau at Broadway and Avenue G and asked the men, Wood, Frank McWatters, 38 of 1905 Avenue H and R. V. Robinson, 25, grocer of near Lubbock on the Plainview road, that they "please" let several little negro shine boys in the place have their polish and leave. Robinson told a reporter a negro came in and "got smart."

Hobdy said he found himself assailed by the three men and when on the floor, began "trying to cut myself loose." McWatters and Robinson were wounded in the legs but were released from the hospital after treatment.

Wood was cut through the muscles of one leg and deeply into the bowels, suffering four intestinal punctures.

One blood plasma and two blood transfusions, one of them this morning, had been given to Wood. His physician Monday afternoon said Wood's condition remained "grave, and it will be nip and tuck another two or three days, possibly."

The negro, officials said, remained in an unannounced jail, and had not been arraigned before J. T. Inmon, justice of peace, in whose court the complaint was filed by Parum Posey, chief deputy sheriff.

Local Man Joins In Daring Rescue

By LEIF ERICSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUADALCANAL, July 22. (Delayed)—The daring rescue of more than 50 wounded American Marines by three Catalina flyig boat crews who fought off an enemy bombing and strafing attack lasting half an hour while taking the wounded aboard at New Georgia islad was disclosed at the Solomon islands air headquarters today.

Lt. (jg) R. B. Blodgett of Sacramento, Calif., pilot of one of the flying boats was wounded in the arm. His co-pilot, Ensign A. L. Macauly of Santa Cruz, Calif., was slightly wounded by a shrapnel fragment.

Several Holes In Plane

With several holes in the wings and hull and the air speed indicator out of commission, Blodgett took off with the heavily overladed flyig boat and successfully landed the evacuees and crew on water at night at a base. Two other Catalinas carried out similar loads.

This first mission to evacuate wounded was made July 11, a day after the combined Marines and Army infantry had completed a five-day jungle march from their anchorage and captured four heavy Japanees naval guns on the western point of Enogai inlet.

Lt. R. F. Wadsworth, Rochester, N. Y., and Flight Leader Blodgett related the story of the rescue flight this way:

Three flying boats first landed in the late afternoon. Each plane immediately put out two rubber lifeboats manned by two crewmen each to ferry the wounded from the shore.

"We took aboard the wounded," Blodgett said, "and shortly after we had finished, Joseph Stritmetter of Fort Worth, Tex., the crew captain, was hauling in anchor when two planes attacked us.

Made Three Passes

"They made a couple of strafing runs and one bombing pass before we could get our guns firing. One small bomb landed in the water off our bow.

"Marine shore guns joined in firing on the enemy planes, which kept up their strafing passes but didn't dare again approach within effective range. After a half hour of this, the Japanese withdrew."

Waiting until almost dark after the Japanese withdrew, the three planes took off on the return flight.

Lt. (jg) A. M. Caldwell, San Diego, Calif., piloted the third plane. His crew included Lt. (jg) R. K. Giffen, Lubbock, Tex.

BOMBS FOR TYPHOONS—The RAF's fast Typhoon fighter now can carry two 500-pound bombs, one of which is shown being fitted to the plane. Note 20-mm. cannon in wing.

Feeding Course Opens At Tech

The animal husbandry deperatment at Texas Technological college will be in the midst of its third annual livestock feeding short course today. The three-day program was opened, under direction of W. L. Stangel, head of the department, yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

The course was held for the first time, at the request of cottonseed crushers, in 1940, was repeated in 1941, and dispensed with last year as a war-time retrenchment. The unusual feed situation, with a shortage of proteins and a tremendous cattle population, caused the college to reconvene the three-day school of instruction this year.

Enrollment Near 100

The enrollment yesterday approached 100, including feeders of livestock, representatives of the cotton oil companies, and members of the vocational agriculture teaching staffs in this area. About 80 of these teachers are holding their own short course and panel discussions simultaneously, and are taking advanatge of the livestock feeding short course while in Lubbock.

Monday's program featured Dr. F. G. Harbaugh, W. L. Stangel, Ray C. Mowery, and E. R. Eudaly of A. and M. college.

Today's program will begin at 9 a. m. with a discussion by Mowery of "Feeding and Management of Farm and Range Sheep."

At 10 a. m., A. K. Mackey, manager of the Texas Livestock Marketing association, Ft. Worth, will talk on "Feeding Lambs for Market."

Rancher To Speak

At 11 o'clock, D. Burns, manager of the Pitchfork ranch, Guthrie, Texas, will speak on "Range Cattle Production."

Following lunch, at 12 o'clock, Stangel will open the afternoon session at 1:30 o'clock with a discussion of "War Time Methods of fattening Cattle."

"Beef Cattle Feeding and Management Problems" will be the topic to be discussed by J. H. Jones, animal husbandman, division of range animal husbandry, College Station, at 2:30 p. m.

A round-table at 3:30, and judging of sheep at 4 p. m. will conclude today's session. Wednesday's highlight is another talk by Eudaly, at 10:00 on "War Time Dairy Cattle Rations."

Dodgers Recover To Defeat Bucs On Vaughan's Homerun

DiMaggio Hits Two Homers; Brooklyn Winner In Tenth

PITTSBURGH, July 26. (AP)—The Pirates were within one out of ousting Brooklyn from second place in the National league today, but at the last second the Dodgers struck back furiously and won, 10 to 6, on Arky Vaughan's grand slam home run with the bases loaded in the 10th inning.

Sparked by Vince DiMaggio's 11th and 12th home runs of the season Pittsburgh held a 6 to 5 lead as the Dodgers came to bat in the ninth. Paul Waner batted for Bobby Bragan and flied out. Max Macon batted for Les Webber and singled. Vaughan singled Macon to third, but Macon was caught in a rundown between third and home when Dixie Walker hit to First Baseman Elbie Fletcher. Augue Galan then forced the game overtime by singling to left to score Walker with the tying run.

Billy Herman started the Brooklyn tenth with a single to center. Bill Brandt replaced Max Butcher and retired Luis Olmo on a force-out and Mickey Owen on a pop fly. However, Al Glossop walked and Macon beat out an infield hit to set the stage for Vaughan's crushing blow to deep center. Macon set the Pirates down in order to end the game.

PATTY BERG

Golfer Patty Berg Now Lady Marine

CHICAGO, July 26. (U.P.)—Red-haired Patty Berg, 25-year-old Minneapolis golf professional, was sworn into the Marine Corps Women's reserve today less than 24 hours after she had won the All-American women's golf championship.

Limping slightly from the leg injury she suffered 18 months ago, she entered the Marine corps recruiting office to stand at earnest attention as she was sworn in by Capt. Arthur J. Murphy.

"I'm a very happy and very lucky girl," she said. "And very honored, too."

Haegg Stated Capable Of Four-Minute Mile With Pacing Machine

NEW YORK, July 26. (AP)—Gunder Haegg, who set an American outdoor record for the mile of 4.03.3 at Harvard stadium Saturday, could turn in that much-discussed four-minute mile if he ran with a pacing machine.

That is the considered opinion of Lawson Robertson, famous University of Pennsylvania and Olympic team track coach, who has known all the standout runners of the last 30 years.

A pacing machine is similar to the rabbit that runs at dog tracks. It is mechanical with a clock arrangement and the dummy of a man revolving around the curb of the track.

"I saw a picture of one in England," explained Robbie. "You could simply set the clock for a four-minute mile and I believe a man of Haegg's speed and strength could keep up with it. I think he could do it at Franklin field where the Penn relays are run."

Hemsley Runs In Three On Flies To Beat Sox 5-2

NEW YORK, July 26. (AP) — Catcher Rollie Hemsley didn't make a hit, but he drove in three runs today on two flies and a walk to spark the Yankees to a 5 to 2 victory over the Chicago White Sox behind Bill Zuber's four-hit pitching.

Southpaw Jake Wade held the Yanks to three singles, two of them by Bill Johnson, but he gave up eight bases on balls that, coupled with four Sox errors, paved the way for his downfall.

The Sox put together three of their four hits to take a 2-0 lead in the top half of the fourth.

This advantage lasted only long enough for the Yanks to take their turn at bat in the fourth, when they tied the score. The Yanks went ahead in the sixth, and added two more runs in the eighth.

Interest Keen In Title Sloop Races

NEW YORK, July 26. (AP) — Twenty-three fleets are seeking to send crews for the Star sloop world championship boat races starting on Aug. 24 on Great South bay. Nine entries arrived late and will use Stars anchored on Long Island's South Side.

The fact that the races will be held in the East for the first time in years, after contests in Germany, off the Pacific coast and Lake Michigan, created more interest than had been anticipated. Original entries included ones from Venezuela and Cuba, two from the Pacific coast and one each from the Naval academy at Annapolis and the New London (Conn.) Coast Guard academy.

McSpaden Attains All-American Title

Trees Come To Aid Of Philadelphian In White's Defeat

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, July 26. (AP)—Trees, the most feared hazards on the Tam O'Shanter golf course, oddly enough helped Jug McSpadden of Philadelphia win the $2,000 first prize and the All-American open championship today in a playoff with Buck White of Greenwood, Miss.

After White, bidding for his first major title, had clutched a one-stroke lead for seven holes, McSpadden squared matters on the 15th with a birdie then dropped a 20-foot pressure putt on the 18th carpet for another birdie and a card of 37-34—71 to White's even par of 36-36—72. White's runner-up award was $1,400.

Trees played a big part on the last three holes. On the 215-yard 16th, Jug's tee shot the trunk of a tree and bounced onto the fairway. He chipped within six feet of the cup, but missed the putt and took a 4.

Buck was short, but his chip-up—the deadliest part of his game—left him only three feet from the hole. He also missed, marking the sixth time during the round that he failed to get down putts of five feet or less.

White was in the rough directly behind a tree on his drive on 17, then played the most remarkable shot of the day. Sizing up the slant of the fairway beyond him, he took a 4-iron and rifled the ball low enough to catch the roll and follow a natural trough onto the back apron of the green. From there are he chipped two inches from the cup to salvage is par and match McSpadden's 4.

After the 18th, however, it was little wonder that McSpadden left for the showers humming "trees."

His second shot hit some branches overhanging the green, taking enough steam from the ball to allow it to drop 20 feet from the cup. Jug's putter did the rest.

Although missing two-foot putts on the third and fourth greens, White managed to grip a two-stroke lead until the ninth when McSpadden hung a 50-foot chip on the lip of the cup for a birdie win.

Jug missed a 35-footer by an inch for an eagle on the tenth as both posted birdie 4's and they matched par on the next four holes until the Philadelphian squared the count with his birdie on 15. White took a regulation 5 after blasting from a trap 14 feet short.

Feds, Tech Faculty Win Softball Tilts

The Federals downed Tech Pre-Radars 10 to 8 and Tech Faculty beat 309th 3 to 1 in B&P softball league games Monday night.

Winn walloped a homerun to feature hitting for the Feds.

The Faculty and 309th were even on hits, each getting six. White, winning pitcher, hit a homer.

Borger Drops AA Football

BORGER, Tex., July 26. (AP)—Borger High school has discontinued football in the Texas Interscholastic league for the duration.

Intramural football will be carried on with eighth grade students coming over from junior high school to participate. Teams will be composed of boys from the eighth grade and the freshmen and sophomores of senior high school. The junior and senior students will substitute drilling and marching in the victory corps for football workouts.

M. G. Ball, physical education director and coach at Stinnett High school, has been employed in a similar capacity for Borger high, succeeding E. (Tex.) Hanna, who is entering the Navy next month.

While the school will not participate in the district class AA schoolboy football campaign, conference basketball will be continued.

SPAAF And LAAF To Play Again Sunday

South Plains Army Air field will wind up its regular season baseball series with Lubbock Army Air Field Sunday afternoon at Hubber park in Lubbock.

SPAAF will be gunning for its sixth victory of the year. Lieut. Eubank's team has dropped only one game against LAAF, coached by ex-major leaguer Sgt. Sam West. Other losses by SPAAF were two to Tarrant field and one to Big Spring Bomber base.

Yet to be played this summer by the Winged Commandos are games with Carlsbad Army Air base, Big Spring and the Sundown, Texas, Oilers.

SPAAF's Brown Bombers, negro team, found themselves on the short end of the score Sunday afternoon in a return game with a Hobbs, N. M., air base team. Hobbs left the field with a 10-6 victory.

Pfc. Nathan Tyler was charged with the pitching loss for SPAAF. He was relieved by Cpl. William J. Sessions.

The Bombers play host to their biggest rivals, the LAAF Torpedoes, Thursday night at Kanne field at SPAAF. The game will start at 6 p. m.

Cards Call In Rookie Hurler

Brazle Wins Over Braves In Debut

ST. LOUIS, July 26. (AP)—"Boys, meet Al Brazle."

It's Billy Southworth, fiery manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, introducing his brand new rookie pitcher to the National league—and the pleasure is all Billy's.

Southworth is proud of his mound corps and because of its effectiveness the Redbirds should go right on winning, despite a rough drubbing from injuries and telling licks by the Army.

Claims Shutout Laurels

"If we have any formula for success it's outstanding pitching and the will to win," explained Southworth. "We've hurled more shutouts than any club in the circuit. I'm very impressed with Brazle's success and know he's glad to be able to win."

Brazle trimmed the Boston Braves 5 to 1 in the first game of a doubleheader Sunday, allowed seven hits in his major league debut. The lanky, Oklahoma-born lefthander with a sidearm delivery made the Braves cut at the top of the ball, giving second baseman George Fallon 11 chances and Shortstop Lou Klein nine while the outfield loafed with only three putouts.

Brazle was beckoned in from the Cardinals' Pacific coast farm at Sacramento, where he built up a season record of 11 victories and six losses with a team now in last place. A recent string of 40 consecutive scoreless innings sold him to Billy, who believes shutout ball is the epitome of the game.

Current Bucs One Of History's Strongest; Club Unexplainable

By PAUL SCHEFFELS
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 26. — The precise deadliness with which the Pittsburgh Pirates have knocked off the National league's two top clubs—Brooklyn and St. Louis—today ranked Frankie Frisch's squad as one of the most potent in the club's annals.

The Pirates defy analysis. None of the regulars are hitting .300 or better and the club ranks only sixth in team batting. The only outstanding pitcher on the squad is Rip Sewell, top man in the majors. The catching is only fair and the club was left with only four infielders when Huck Geary quit.

Yet today they are a definite challenge to the Cards and Dodgers.

Victors in four games of a recent five-game set to with the leading Cardinals, the Pirates showed no sign of a letdown yesterday and trimmed the Dodgers twice by identical scores, 7-1.

STOPPED COLD

PHILADELPHIA, July 26. (AP)—Max Lanier of the Cards will tell you one of his happier moments came when he stopped Ted Williams' 25-game hitting streak in 1938 when they played in the American Association. Most pitchers would be happy to stop Ted just once or twice during the game.

The newspaper says it understands the reduction, which would become effective Sept. 1, would reduce "A" coupons to two gallons and "B" and "C" coupons to three gallons.

Authentic Reports 'Leak'

"These authentic reports 'leaked' from federal sources in Dallas Monday," the newspaper continued, "as Texas Congressmen were protesting Petroleum Administrator Harold Ickes's plan to place gasoline rationing on a 'uniform basis' in all states east of the Rocky mountains.

"Ickes announced his general plan a week ago Saturday, but gave no details. The details were supplied by reliable local reports, which revealed that final decision would be reached by Ickes and his aides during the first week of August.

"A, B and C coupons now are good for four gallons in Texas.

Can't Be Justified

"'The plan,' said one authority close to high federal circles, 'can't be justified on the basis of a gasoline shortage, as is the case in the East, since there is no gasoline shortage in Texas.

"'Its authors are trying to justify it on the shortage of tires and parts for repairs and the fact that 147,000 cars are being forced off the roads each month because of these shortages.'"

No Time For Turning Soft

OVERTHROW of the Mussolini government almost certainly means that Italy soon will be out of the war. Just when the end may come is belond the possibility of accurate forecast. But it can't be long.

However, it need not be surprising if the Italian forces fight with a renewed vigor immediately before the end. This should be the natural result of the removal of a leadership in which the masses of Italy had lost faith and confidence. It is to be expected, too, that Italy's fighting forces will be spurred to added effort by their hope that, thereby, they may be able to secure more favorable peace terms.

As a matter of fact, there can be no reasonable doubt but that the entire upset of governmen was engineered with an eye on the peace. Italians know, of course, that the United Nations never would have had any dealings with Mussolini. He is high on the list of Allied war criminals—one who is destined to stand trial for his acts if he survives the war. Italy obviously has tried to create a new government which might persuade the United Nations to relent from the policy of "unconditional surrender" declared by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill a few weeks ago as the only avenue to peace open to the Axis powers.

It is to be hoped that the change in government will not cause any softening of the terms of peace. It is to be hoped that the United Nations leadership will not be swayed by the plea that responbility for the war rests upon Mussolini and his hoodlums, and not upon the masses of Italy. It is to be hoped that sight will not be lost of the fact that Italy's masses followed, willingly if not eagerly, the leadership that has led their nation to destruction.

NOT to be forgotten nor disregarded is the fact that part of every drop of blood shed in this war is on the hands of Mussolini and upon the hands of those who have supported him. He, and they, must share in the blame for the 19 American bombers and their crews of approximately 190 American men who failed to return from raids that were in progress as the Mussolini ouster was announced. He and they share the blame for our losses in the South Pacific, the Northern Pacific and in all other parts of the world where our forces have been weakened because of the strength that had to be diverted to the attack on Italy.

However, vengeance is not the first consideration which demands that the peace shall be a stern one for Italy. The more important reason is the security of the future world.

No one disputes that the sacrifices in this war will have been in vain unless the United Nations win the peace that follows it. They can't win that peace unless it is stern. It must be so stern that Italians, as well as the masses of the other Axis powers, will never be tempted again to follow leaders of the Musolini, Hitler and Tojo types.

They must be restrained from following such leaderships by their personal fears of the penalties—because they have demonstrated that they won't be restrained by anything else. The peace cannot be won if they are left in condition of strength and mind which may tempt them to embark on another war of conquest and vengeance some 20 to 30 years hence.

BEYOND any question, the chapter in history which must be devoted to Mussolini is one of the most disgraceful to appear in human records. It is hardly necessary to list the crimes committed by this strutting little braggart who imagined himself to be a greater Caesar of the New Roman Empire. Ethiopia, Albania, Greece, Spain and, finally, the knife thrust into the back of a prostrate France were acts unmatched in their shameless and wanton lustfulness in history.

True, Mussolini was the chief instigator of them. But Mussolini could have committed none of them without Italians to follow him and to carry out his commands. Their share in the criminalities must not be forgotten when Italians ask the United Nations to forget Mussolini as they lay down the arms under which Italy may have peace.

"The Japs are not profane—in fact, here are no curse-words in their vocabulary," asserts a writer. Yes, but actions speak louder than words.

Want-Ad Romance

BY TOM HORNER

THE STORY: Want ads have played an important part in Kay Donovan's life. Through them she learns that she has inherited a factory and a million cans of all-purpose Wondrosoap from her late Inventor - father; becomes firm friends with MacLeod, Goldberg and Flynn, who were his lawyers. Through want ads she finds super-salesman Ted Andrews, who becomes Wondrosoap sales manager in exchange for a quarter of the business and conducts a successful selling campaign through want ads. They recall the product through want ads when they discover that it cleans too well, eating holes in clothing and paint off cars, and advertise for a chemist. Joe Benton is hired to test the product, find out what it really contains. Mary Marshall, Kay's competent secretary and living companion at the factory, has cleaned up the place, sold a disreputable old washstand that had belonged to Kay's father. When Benton's experiment with Wondrosoap explodes, they decide to seek Hans Stadt, who had been Mr. Donovan's chemist.

CHAPTER VII

$50 REWARD will be paid for information as to the present address of Hans Stadt, former resident of this city, now believed to be in Texas. It is important that Mr. Etadt be contacted immediately. Box K501.

Kay watched a workman lay fireproof shingles over the patched hole in the laboratory roof. Below him, in the rebuilt room, Joe and Ted—drafted as an assistant and thoroughly enjoying it—were trying to solve the puzzle of Wondrosoap. There would be no more explosions. Joe had taken care of that. The acid was carefully locked in a cabinet, well away from the warehouse full of Wondrosoap. And Joe was careful, now, not to leave open cans of Wondrosoap around where spilled reagents might drop into them.

She pondered Joe's discovery. Was it just one of those "lucky accidents" that turn failure into fortune, or had Tim Donovan fully realized all the properties of his product? Hans Stadt might supply the answer.

IF they could find Hans Stadt.

Although the old German chemist had lived for years within walking distance of Donovan's factory, no one seemed to know exactly where he had gone. A neighbor said he was a widower, that he had gone some place in Texas to visit his children. He might have heard of Tim Donovan's death, decided to remain in the west.

An increasing fear troubled Kay. Perhaps her father had not known of Wondrosoap's explosive properties, perhaps he had envisioned it only as the cleaner he claimed it to be. Had Hans Stadt changed the formula, prepared this gigantic arsenal of potential destruction for some foreign sabotage ring?

But her father could not have been misled that easily. He knew chemistry, as much as Hans Stadt. This leaner was his last, his greatest dream.

Could Tim Donovan, himself, have been involved in such a plot? Kay recalled her mother talking of some relative in Ireland who had fought in the Rebellion, died in the bloody Easter uprising.

Kay was glad that she had warned Joe and Ted and Mary not to mention the fact that Wondrosoap had exploded. Even Mike Flynn and the other attorneys believed that the blast was only a laboratory accident. To reveal Wondrosoap as a super-explosive now might bring government agents, restrictions, even confiscation of her property.

Better, too, not to mention any of her fears, even to Ted, until there was some word from Hans Stadt. Then they might be able to trap members of the ring—if such existed—

There should be some trace of Hans Stadt soon. Mike Flynn was advertising in papers all over the country. All she could do was wait.

Days dragged. Joe went on with his experiments but there were afternoons when the four of them—Ted and Kay, Joe and Mary—went picnicking, tried fishing. And there were nights for dancing. She loved this new freedom and her friends.

Carefully keeping her promise to Ted that there would be no romance mixing with business, Kay devoted more than half her time an attention to Joe. She liked the enthusiastic young chemist, enjoyed his endless store of college anecdotes. She knew Joe was her friend.

Mary fitted into the group perfectly. Since Ted considered himself Kay's escort on most of their excursions, Mary and Joe were often left to themselves. But apparently she did not mind when Joe directed most of his atttention to Kay.

Everything might have been perfect had Kay been able to forget her worries. And if they could have located Hans Stadt.

The advertisements produced a few false leads and Mike Flynn flew to California to check on the most promising, but returned alone. The man was a chemist, his name was Stadt, but he had never worked with Tim Donovan. Kay was about ready to give up the search.

Then Hans Stadt came home.

He arrived suddenly, unannounced. Kay thought he was a workman, looking for a job, when he walked into the office.

The old man's clothes were dutsy, travelworn. He twisted a battered felt hat in his hands.

"You are Tim's daughter, no?"

She jumped from the chair. "And you—" she almost screamed.

"I am Stadt, the chemist. I have come—"

"Ted! Joe! Mary!" Kay was shouting. They burst in from the lab. "He's here! He's here! Hans has come back!"

There was no possibility that this man had betrayed her father, no possibility that he could be a foreign agent or even remotely connected with any sabotage plot. Kay knew that instinctively, as she listened to him.

He had been living with his son on a wheat farm. A neighbor had seen Kay's ad, but the newspaper had disappeared and the neighbor's memory of details was hazy. Old Hans got one idea clear. He was needed here. Tim's daughter needed him. He set out at once, hitchhike more than a thousand miles.

Of course he knew about Katie. Hadn't Tim talked of nothing else and how they were going to make a million dollars for her? She was like a daughter to Hans, too, he said.

"Why did you go away," Ted demanded.

"Tim said everything was complete," Stadt answered. "We would wait. I wanted to see my boy, my grandchildren. Then I heard that Tim had died. Read it in the paper. My boy needed money for a combine. I bought it with my savings for him. I knew when you wanted me, you would send for me. I knew I would come. I am here."

Kay realized that Ted and Joe were waiting for her to ask Stadt about Wondrosoap. How much should she tell him? The old man talked on.

"Did you help Dad make Wondrosoap?" she asked at last.

"Oh, yah, yah. We made a million cans of it. Plenty to last."

"How did you make it?" Joe asked. "What's in it?"

"Not much. A little glycerine, a little cotton, a little mineral oil, some inert material, and an emulsifier—"

Joe nodded. "Yes. Go on—"

"And a little of the formula," the chemist concluded. "You add that last—well, almost last. Then you let it jell and run it through the canner."

"The formula? What is in the FORMULA? Joe tried to keep his voice calm.

"I don't know," Stadt answered.

It was as if a full can of Wondrosoap had exploded in their faces. They had counted so on Hans Stadt being able to tell them everything about the clender-explosive, and he knew no more

Looking At Life --- By Erich Brandeis

"I DON'TT know what's happened to modern women. They're just plain lazy," said Magistrate Anna M. Kross, in a New York Police court, shaking a finger at a well-dressed woman who had been brought before her for disorderly conduct.

The policeman who arrested her in a restaurant said she had kicked and slapped him and behaved as no real lady should.

"My grandmother raised 13 children," continued the magistrate, "and still had sufficient spare time to help a neighbor do her washing. My mother raised nine children and was able to help out her neighbors, too."

Well, that was a nice speech and it certainly was swell of Judge Kross' grandmother and mother to raise all those kids and do a lot of laundry work besides.

But weren't those different times, Judge Kross?

Weren't women still considered plain drudges and work horses in those days?

Weren't they supposed to be in this world only to be free servants to their husbands, breeders of many children who could help on the farm or do other chores?

Were there any women judges in those days, any congresswomen, any women in charge of offices and business houses?

I DON'T think the women of today are lazy. They are just a bit less subservient.

Women have come out of their cocoons. They have discovered that they, too, have brains, ambition and initiative.

Above all, they have discovered that there are opportunities for women as well as men.

Just because a few women drink and gamble and neglect their children, that doesn't make all women bad.

Do you condemn all men, because some of them are drunkards and gamblers?

I see women all around me who work harder than I do. I don't begrudge them their successes.

To say that modern women are lazy shows a very old-fashioned point of view.

They are not, and above all, with all his accomplishments, no man has ever yet been able to be a mother!

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

A RADICAL change in the handling of Japanese aliens and citizens in the United States may be inaugurated by the War Relocation authority as a result of the investigation and recommendations of a Senate Military Affairs subcommittee headed by "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky. So far the program has been characterized by hit-or-miss management.

The 100,000 persons of Nipponese blood in the western states, with some exceptions, have been herded into 11 camps in seven different commonwealths. Those outside the stockades include 7,500 who have been taken into the armed services and 20,000 who were scattered throughout the country before the roundup order was issued by the White House.

It is estimated that 70,000 of the total are United States citizens. Many are as loyal to Uncle Sam as any other Americans, but of the rest a number are primarily Hirohito's followers. The Chandler examiners discovered that some of this latter group are regarded as vicious characters who frequently assault patriots interned with them.

The sleuths also found that officials now in charge made little effort to weed out the dangerous from the inoffensive, largely because the federal men are social welfare workers who see good in everybody and everything. Moreover, their jobs will last longer in the present elaborate system.

The Kentuckian proposes that the 70,000 be given a chance to fight in the Army or Navy, provided they can meet allegiance and physical tests. He also suggests that those who cannot make the grade, but who are found to be pro-American, be admitted to farms in areas where they would be "acceptable" to the local populace. Then he would lodge the pro-Tokyo remnant in two centers and treat it as if composed of potential enemies.

Note: Final liquidation of this question threatens difficulties. The senator from the Blue Grass section learned that no governor beyond the Rockies wants permanent restoration of the foreign colonies which offered such fierce economic competition to agriculturalists, fishing folk and small businessmen.

SORE: Washington observers, including Republican hawks, will watch the distribution of patronage with keen eyes for the next few months. Reason is that the administration promised juicy jobs right and left in the last hours of the battle to win price rollbacks in the recent session of Congress.

One important Democrat serving on the Conference committee for the House was offered a place in the Federal Reserve system. He told the presidential emissaries to keep it, but he was about the only one who declined a plum. It is understood that a certain conferee switched to the White House side in return for the promise of a judgship, although he had championed the farmers in their opposition to artificial controls. Other managers who caved in at the eleventh hour received assurances that well-paid positions for their friends will be forthcoming as soon as the terms of incumbents expire.

Labor leaders cognizant of this situation are sore. Among themselves they are wondering why FDR did not use the same expedient only a week before to prevent the legislature from overriding his veto of the Smith-Connally Antistrike bill.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

THE Navy doused the news that heavy bombers had plastered Paramushiru, Nippon's "Pearl Harbor" of the Northwest, with Vice Admiral Frederick J. Horne's melancholy statement that the department is making plans on the basis that the Pacific war will last until 1949.

Despite the glowing prospects of last month, MacArthur's stout-hearted veterans are still engaged in what is virtually a tortuous island-hopping expedition followed by jungle fighting in malarial swamps and dense growths.

The status of the battle in the Great Ocean prompts the age-old question, "Watchman, what of the night?" Are we doomed to a stalemate in which our most hated adversary grows slowly stronger, nurtured on looted raw materials?

DOUBTFUL: Tokyo apparently believes she can weather the gale. An indciation of this confidence is the report that Tojo has abandoned his earlier project of making the East Indies self-sufficient. Originally he proposed to plow under most of the sugar and rubber plantations and cover them with rice fields yielding enough to feed the whole of East Asia. Fifty thousand acres of cotton were to have been sown in Java to clothe the colony's 45 million inhabitants.

But when Hirohito's economists studied the undertaking, they decided that the $216,000,000 investment in sugar and the $243,000,000 stake in rubber were properties too valuable to waste.

They are now storing huge stockpiles of these commodities above current needs and intend to dump them on European and South American markets in peacetime. Already tentative trade agreements for their disposal have been broached to certain countries. Such preparations would not be made were the Bushido bandits doubtful about the outcome of the war.

HELPLESS: Yet the picture is not so rosy for the enemy as some would paint it. Practically every authority on world commerce states categorically that Nippon's Co-Prosperity Sphere cannot last or be expanded unless Japan has ample shipping. At least 15 million tons are needed to exploit the mushroom empire.

Tokyo started hostilities with seven million. Our Navy department estimates that she lost two million in 1942. This year's figures are not yet released. Her replacement capacity is 600,000 annually. She is salvaging wrecks from the harbors of Malaya and Java, building wooden junks and utilizing confiscated alien craft.

But through lack of vessels there is a rice glut in Burma, a sugar surplus in the Netherlands East Indies and alarming shortages elsewhere in her possessions. Tojo himself admitted six months ago that 12 million tons of goods were heaped on docks awaiting freighters.

Only the ignorant wear blinders to hide the danger of allowing this foe to tap the immense resources of his conquest until from those riches he becomes almost impregnable. But a recent checkmate, perhaps more than any other single factor, spells ultimate disaster for the Japs.

An outstanding American statesman describes it as follows: "When Hitler's U-boats failed to win the battle of the Atlantic, Nippon—at that moment—lost the war." For soon we shall have so many cargo carriers, transports, tankers and naval escorts that we can give MacArthur the tools to sweep Tojo's merchant fleets from the Orient, shattering the Mikado's domain into a thousand helpless, isolated pieces.

UNITED: Professional politicos in the North Atlantic states are not exhibiting palpable signs of anxiety because of Deneen J. Watson's newly established Republican Post-War Policy association. Three hundred charter members of its Eastern division, from Maine to Maryland, met this week in New York to draft plans for placing the GOP on record behind a world postbellum organization.

The group appears to be heavily stocked with gangling amateurs groping their way, although it also comprises such experienced backers as Gov. William H. Wills of Vermont, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, former vice chairman of the New York State Republican committee, Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut and Cong. Christian A. Herter of Boston, former speaker of the Massachusetts General court.

Cynics among electioneers suspect that the body is merely a front for shrewd Wendell Willkie, or a bumblebee to sting Chairman Harris E. Spangler, "mum's the word" spokesman of the Republican National committee. However leaders of the crusade assert that their purpose is to forestall a ferocious clash between isolationists and internationalists in the national convention which might split the GOP and destroy its opportunity to defeat the New Deal.

Here And There In Texas

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Correspondent

AUSTIN, July 26. (U.P.) — Unless there is an appeal to the State Supreme court that brings about a different decision, a ruling of the Third Court of Civil Appeals has opened the way to beautification of the Colorado river at the state's capital city.

Gravel excavators approached so close to the old bed of the river in taking gravel from the south side of the river, that the bank was broken through and the river has created a small lake or pond of considerable area at several places.

The court decision holds that the state has acquired title to this area into which the river has overflowed.

Austin already has established considerable sodded parking along the north side of the river and it is expected that similar development of the south bank will take place if the existing court decision is allowed to stand.

Old Mexican Grant

The south bank of the Colorado river where it flows through Austin was included in a grant of the Mexican government to Isaac Decker in 1835. The river was made the north line of the grant following the meanders of the stream up to "Spring Creek."

What then was known as "Spring creek" now is known as "Barton creek," site of the city's big municipal swimming spot.

Much gravel is deposited along the river, or was before the system of dams was built by Lower Colorado River authority. Numerous companies have been formed to excavate and market the gravel. It is these excavations into which the river has overflowed. The area involved runs from the bridge at Congress avenue to the railroad bridge up-stream.

COL. HOMER GARRISON, jr., director of state police, has started a movement to require non-glare headlights on all vehicles when automobile production is resumed at the end of the war.

Unless use of the non-glare headlights is made universal there is little incentive to a car owner to equip his car with them—for it is the other fellow's lights that annoy and endanger a driver.

The 1942 records of the Texas Safety department show that 3.3 per cent of the fatal motor vehicle traffic accidents for the year were traceable to failure of drivers to dim headlights. With non-glare lights, dimming is unnecessary.

Failure to dim headlights was noted in 259 accidents, with 45 fatalities, 133 injuries less than death, and 81 cases of damage to property.

Pork Predominates

Pork predominates in the meat element of the diet of the average Texas family, H. H. Williamson, director of extension service at Texas A. & M. college, reports. The ratio, he said, is 450 pounds of pork to 31 of beef and 4.2 pounds of lamb.

Sheep and goat consumption, he said, is very small except in the areas where they are produced in quantity. Even there little is known about the proper method of killing, he added.

"Too often an axe is the tool used to cut the meat," he said.

At Gov. Coke R. Stevenson's ranch, where mutton is served that you do not know is mutton until told, the selected young goat is tied by the hind legs and suspended from a tree. Then the goat's throat is cut with a sharp knife and the carcass left hanging until drained of all blood.

WILLIAMSON says that methods of killing, cutting and curing pork have improved during the past 12 years but there still is room for betterment in the average quality of farm-cured meat. Too much, he said, is oversalty, dry and hard.

The extension department is giving demonstrations, in three methods of curing beef—putting it down in oil, drying it, and smoking it in a form similar to bacon.

Williamson reports that keeping meat by the home-freezer method is becoming popular with ranchmen, especially where electricity is available.

Other State Capitol visitors the week included:

Federal Auditor J. D. Hall, former secretary to former Governor Dan Moody and former Budget Director for the Texas Board of Control, to audit expenditure of federal funds granted to the State Health department.

Former Secretary of State William J. Lawson who also was secretary to former Governor W. Lee O'Daniel, passing through.

Sen. A. M. Aikin, jr., of Paris, Senate leader of the school interests.

Sen. P. O. Lanning of Jacksboro, chairman of the Senate Finance committee.

CADETS at the San Angelo Army Air field bombardier school have gone to war, digging in at dispersal areas while "enemy" planes roared over in simulated attack.

For the cadets the attack was the beginning of a week of combat maneuvers during which actual wartime conditions—with the exception of the imminence of death—are simulated.

The cadets live in the field, get their food—cooked in the field—handed to them in a "chow line," and run for camoflaged cover when the make-believe enemy makes his attack.

Italy Welcomes Musso's Tumble

moved swiftly for fear there will be further bloodshed.

Military In Full Charge

The military has taken over all police functions. Fascist organizations everywhere are disappearing quietly. No blackshirts venture on Italian streets. Mussolini's portraits and Fascist signs are torn down.

One crowd on Milan's streets this morning carried red flags and shouted "long live socialism."

Every Rome radio broadcast, aside from repeating Germany's Army communique today, has avoided any mention of Germany or the Axis "pact of steel" of which Mussolini so often boasted.

The second edition of Corriere Della Sera in Milan carried an editorial saying:

"Mussolini has left. We are free."

Under Heavy Guard

Mussolini was said to be strongly guarded by regular Italian troops armed with machine-guns at his villa near Rome.

Carlo Scorza, partly secretary, and several other high facists also were said to be in protective custody.

German Ambassador Hans Georg Victor von Mackensen called on Badoglio today apparently to gain Italian military assurances.

One of Badoglio's greatest worries apparently is the presence of German troops in Italy, because it's said the Germans still hope to establish a line in northern Italy should the country collapse.

Mussolini's eclipse has shaken all Axis countries. Many governments are holding urgent cabinet sessions.

Adolf Hitler was said to have known how shaky Italy was days before he flew to meet Mussolini at Verona in northern Italy a week ago.

Prepared "Ilness Angle"

Mussolini also knew the country's position, Italians here said, to such an extent that he prepared an "illness angle" twelve days ago when he summoned a German surgeon named Sauerbruch to obtain a diagnosis on his stomach ailment. There has been no doubt that Mussolini is ill, but nobody here accepted that as a reason for his eclipse.

Before Hitler went to see Mussolini to get the bad news, he is said to have called into conference his chief members of his high command, including Field Marshals Fritz Erich von Mannstein, Guenther von Kluge, and Ewald von Kleist, who have been fighting on the Russian front.

Rejoicing Is General

Apparently rejoicing in Italy was general.

One newspaper, the Milan Gazzetta Del Sport, said throngs burst into Rome's streets spontaneously on hearing the news and said that a parade invaded the empty halls of the Palazoo Venezia, whose balcony Mussolini used for years as a rostrum for his sword-rattling speeches. Another parade went to the Quirinale where the demonstrators shouted for the king.

A third cheering, singing, flag-waving throng went to the war ministry and acclaimed the Army while others paraded to newspaper offices and elsewhere about the Italian capital.

The newspaper said demonstrators paraded also at Bologna and Milan, and one version reaching the Swiss-Italian frontier said a Milan mob threw stones and broke down doors and windows at Il Duce's own publication, Il Poplo D'Italia. Another report said part of the building was burned.

Shouts Ring Over Land

Shouts of long life to Italy, to the king, to Marshal Pietro Badoglio, and to the Army rose into the night at all three cities.

One report said that at Rome a vast crowd demonstrated in St. Peters' square for a half-hour shortly after midnight shouting approval of the pope. The dispatch said the pontiff had several private audiences during the day, among his callers being the apostolic noncio in Italy, Monsignor Borgonicini Duca.

Usually well-informed foreign observers said the Saturday Vatican statement on the bombing of Rome was aimed directly at Il Duce. In Italy the bombing is considered the fault of Mussolini because he failed to declare Rome an open city.

Il Duce's fall had its beginning long ago. His resignation appears to bear out this story current in Nazi circles here:

Il Duce sought some way out of the war in the spring of 1942 after the first disastrous winter campaign in Russia. In November, 1942, he specifically asked the Nazis for permission to seek a separate peace. This was refused.

Acute With Invasion

The situation became acute with the Sicilian invasion. Last Monday, summoning Hitler none too gently, Mussolini insisted on more aid as the price of Italy's continuing to fight. Hitler counterproposed that southern Italy be abandoned in favor of defenses to be established north from Rome.

Mussolini presented this proposal to the Fascist council and the king. The king refused, called Badoglio to the premiership, and forced Il Duce's resignation.

Newspapers reaching Switzerland said the Fascist salute had been abolished and signs erected throughout the nation under Mussolini were being erased. Trains arriving at the frontier had been stripped of their fasces decorations. Reports that railways and trucks had been commandeered for withdrawal of German troops could not be confirmed.

The Carabinieri, armed police loyal to the Italian king, took over guard of Italy tonight as Marshal Badoglio started forming a new government to bury fascism.

Fascist Insignia Torn Down

Orders went out to every city and hamlet to remove all Fascist insignias. The Fascist militia was incorporated into the regular Army, giving loyal Italians an opportunity to throw away their party buttons but still remain in the fighting forces. Those suspected of lingering allegiance to Benito Mussolini were disarmed and arrested.

Trainloads of Italian workers returning from Germany broke into cheers when informed that Mussolini was out.

Demonstrations for peace in Italian cities were said to have inspired a sharp dusk to dawn curfew, a ban on civilian weapons and a prohibition of the assembly of more than three persons. Premier Badoglio put these rules into effect by edict.

Italian occupation troops in Yugoslavia were reported moving swiftly toward the coast in hopes of imminent return home. Some Italians were said to be joining Yugoslav patriots, hoping to fight against the Germans.

(Reports from Algiers said 22 Italian division in Yugoslavia and Greece and three or four in southern France were ordered home.)

Germans Astounded

The Germans were astounded. Every indication was that they were caught by surprise, even though Hitler was informed of the crisis when he met Mussolini a week ago.

French, Finnish, Hungarian, Rumanian and Bulgarian cabinets were summoned into special sessions during the morning.

The German view, as expressed here, was that what happened in the Balkans would determine the whole course of the war.

The Axis was irreparably cracked.

A defection in the Balkans could quickly smash German defenses in southeastern Europe and bring about a collapse of Germany far sooner than anyone hitherto ever thought possible.

Advices from Germany indicated it was difficult to see how anyone in the Reich could deal effectively with Badoglio. At the minimum, the Nazis privately recognized that Mussolini's downfall marked the beginning of the final phase of the war.

Bever Charged With Murder At Amarillo

AMARILLO, July 26. (UP) — Harry Ralph Bever, alias Jack Edwards, jail breaker and alleged bank robber, was under charges of murder today in the fatal shooting of Clint C. Wood, cafe operator.

Wood was shot to death shortly after midnight Thursday when he drove into the driveway at his home. Robbery was believed to have been the motive, but after the killing the slayer fled without obtaining a large diamond ring or $3,000 in cash which Wood had with him.

The pistol with which Wood was slain was found at the edge of a storm sewer and was turned over to police by a negro who found it.

Bever, who had been sought by the Federal Bureau of Investigation since he escaped from the Hamilton county, Ohio, jail in February, was arrested here Friday. He is accused of robbing a bank in Cincinnati, Ohio, last year.

KILLED BY TRACTOR

WACO, July 26. (AP) — Charles Belzer, 50, was killed today when a tractor he was trying to crank leaped forward and struck him.

SELLING WAVE HITS STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 26 (AP)—Selling hit financial markets today as the collapse of Mussolini brought a revival of peace psychology and substantial profit taking in speculative commitments on the theory that prices generally had partially discounted ultimate victory.

Stocks in the war category, principally rails, steels and aircrafts, tumbled 1 to 5 points in the forenoon on fast dealings. Support arrived after mid-day and extreme losses were reduced in many cases at the close although activity tapered on the attempted come-back and late offerings put a number of leaders at the day's lows. Scattered issues with good peacetime prospects managed to breast the current but the majority made only modest headway.

Bonds and commodities followed stocks on the retreat although dollar loans of Axis-dominated countries exhibited independent strength.

The share division suffered its sharpest drop since April 9, when the President's "hold-the-line" broadcast resulted in heavy liquidation. Today the Associated Press 60-stock average ended off one full point at 51.8. The market was relatively broad, 935 individual issues being traded. Of these 689 were down, 108 up and 138 unchanged. Transfers totalled 1,455,740 shares, largest since July 14, compared with 914,280 in the previous full session.

In addition to international influences, markets apparently also were affected by reports that new anti-inflation measures were being prepared at Washington. Earnings figures for the rails and industrial companies still were pleasing but provided little in the way of buoyancy for stocks concerned.

Cotton . .

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, July 26 (AP)—Cotton futures closed 40 to 65 cents a bale lower today on nervous liquidation and hedge-selling.

Italian news prompted selling orders. Another factor in the downturn was a report that the administration had further measures in the making to curb domestic prices. Some of the offerings were absorbed through scaledown trade price-fixing and New Orleans buying.

Mussolini's Fall

country and use it as a buffer between Sicily and the German defenses.

Badoglio's immediate statement that the "war continues" seems to me to mean—and I was in Ethiopia with him and know his character—to be aimed at preventing the Axis from moving in at once. With a few weeks delay, he might be able to work things out.

Symbol Of Opposition

When Badoglio retired in disgust and anger at what he regarded as the criminal Greek offensive in 1940, he was looked upon by Italians as a symbol of opposition to Mussolini. Why a revolt didn't develop then is a major Italian mystery.

Two other points come up in the situation: 1. Did Mussolini save his own skin by making a deal for his resignation? And 2. What is the position of King Victor Emmanuel and the royal house of Savoy?

As to the first: The most probable answer is that he did.

Mussolini always has been a master bargainer and a diplomatic dealer. When I was interned before returning to the United States, there were constant rumors in Italy that Mussolini would try to engineer his escape through Vatican City in case of defeat. This was bolstered by the fact that he had made his pampered son-in-law, Count Ciano, Italian ambassador to the Holy See and skullduggery was suspected.

King Played Along

The little king and other members of royalty to my mind have played along with fascism. The Prince of Piedmont, for example, commanded Italian forces that marched into France. But for some years the king's present feeling toward fascism has been a matter of speculation.

The fall of Mussolini is bound to have a great effect upon the other states of Europe which have watched him strut about and bluff them for years. And inside Italy it will change the life of every Italian, allowing him to live a little more like a human.

Reaction In U. S.

beginning of the end for the Axis powers.

Secretary of State Hull said he regarded Mussolini's resignation as the initial major step in the early and complete destruction of fascism throughout the world.

But, he told his press conference, the United States is still fighting like the devil for an unconditional surrender by all of its enemies.

The general congressional reaction was that Italy soon would seek peace and that the terms must be complete capitulation, disarmament and free access by the United Nations to Italy military bases.

The capital's enthusiasm was tempered, however, by words of caution from all sources that there is still hard fighting ahead for the Allies.

Hull called the dramatic event very timely and appropriate and said he believed Japan will take due notice. But he made it clear that Mussolini's dismissal would mean not the slightest letup in the Allied military drive toward the Italian mainland.

From President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines came the opinion that the dictator's fall "is the widest crack so far in the Axis armor."

Near End For Italy

Representative Thomason (D-Tex) Expressed belief that it was the beginning of the end of Italy's role in the war.

"The same fate is in store for Hitler," he remarked. "We're definitely on the way."

Several senators said they thought acceptable terms could be made with Italy now by which Allied armies might gain access to the European continent without the bloody prelude of a shoreline invasion.

Senator Burton (R-Ohio) said however, that he did not see how the terms of even a temporary peace with Italy could vary from the unconditional surrender mandate laid down by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

New Editor Named For Benito's Paper

LONDON, July 26. (AP) — The editorship of Il Giornale D'Italia, for years semi-official organ of Benito Mussolini and his Fascist government, has been taken over by Senator Alberto Berdamini, Berlin announced tonight.

Berdamini founded the paper in 1901 and directed it until 1924 when it was taken over by Virginio Gayda.

The Berlin announcement was heard by the Associated Press.

Minister Loses Plea, Wife Given Divorce

RENO, Nev., July 26. (AP)—Constant nagging and mistreatment by his wife reduced his weight from 235 to 175 pounds, the Rev. Edward B. Haines of Philadelphia told district court in his complaint for divorce.

No such thing, said his wife, taking the stand to declare the clergyman started reducing after women members of the church had kidded him about his weight at a church picnic.

Mrs. Haines won the decree on her cross complaint.

ber factories at Hannover, U-boat and aircraft works in Hamburg and port installations at Wilhelmshaven and Wesermunde," a joint U. S. and British communique said. "Good bombing results were reported at all targets."

The four-engined American craft flew unescorted to their four German objectives, encountering strong opposition and destroying "more than 50 enemy aircraft."

Lesser British medium, light and fighter-bombers attacked German airfields at Courtrai, Abbeville and Merville while medium U. S. bombers attacked German landing strips at St. Omer, France. These smaller raiders were escorted by squadrons of British, Dominion and Allied fighters which destroyed four German challengers.

Dutch And French Coasts

Heavy U. S. Thunderbolt fighters simultaneously swept the Dutch and French coasts.

In all daylight operations, the score of destroyed planes was more than 54-26 in favor of the Allies.

The three heavy attacks on Hamburg not only was a material blow at Germany; they formed a psychological strike as well. The triple attack came less than a week after the bombing of Rome, which presumably had great effect in the overthrow of Mussolini.

The ceaseless day and night pounding which was set off with the American Flying Fortress raid on Trondheim in Norway last Saturday fast was sapping the strength of the enemy's defenses.

below the prize German bastion. The Germans lost 2,100 men before retreating in furious counterattacks along the railway, including one stiff engagement at Glazunovskaya.

Five Mile Advance

The occpuation of Yeropkino was a five-mile gain from Zmierka.

In Sunday's fighting the special bulletin said the Red Army had destroyed or damaged 52 German tanks and shot down 57 planes. The regular midnight details of savage engagements during Monday, said that approximately 5,000 Germans had been killed and a score of tanks crippled, destroyed, or captured.

Ammunition and arms dumps and prisoners also were reported seized.

The German radio commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, with an unusual display of restraint said that German defenders at Orel had been "kept extremely busy" during the day.

In Leningrad Area

He also commented on a massive Russian drive below Leningrad and farther south in the Lake Ladoga region, saying that it was still too early to tell whether this was only a "temporary phenomenon" on the part of the Soviet war machine which is striking with amazing power in its first successful summer offensive.

Wladyslaw Banaczyk, Polish minister of home affairs in the exiled government here, said today he had information that the Germans were preparing defense lines in Lublin province in Poland, roughly 400 miles behind their sagging lines in Russia.

Bang's Disease Found In Lynn Co. Herds

TAHOKA, July 26. (Special)—J. S. Smith, county agent, said of 60 tests for Bang's disease in dairy cattle herds of Lynn county, eight have been reported infected. A total of 134 tests were made, but tests from 74 head have not been reported.

Bang's disease in cattle is said to transmit the germ which causes undulant fever in humans who drink raw milk.

Veterinarians who tested 35 of the 134 head for tuberculosis, said they found none infected with this germ.

It is reported here that in past years several cases of undulant fever have developed in Tahoka. From the tests being made now, and also from tests several years ago, it is believed that about one dairy cow out of 10 is infected with the Bang's disease germ.

A move is under way to carry out the testing of all dairy cattle, with a view of lessening the disease hazards by culling the herds and continuing the tests, at least once each year, by veterinarians.

the unfortunate Goering and 15th armored divisions and 29th motorized division were fated to fight "to the last cartridge" for the fatherland with little change to to escape from Sicily. The surviving Italian forces, equavalent to three divisions, were believed to be in no condition physically and mentally to share in this suicidal resistance.

Milazzo, northeastern port used by the Germans to bring in fresh troops, was shattered Saturday night by American and RAF bombers. It is about 18 miles west of Messina, whose port installations have been laid in ruins by repeated raids.

Road objectives near Orlando also were attacked, and Malta-based light bombers hammered communication lines, bombing at and near Adrano, Gerami, Troina and Novara. Bad weather grounded the heavy bombers.

The bag of 7,000 more prisoners brought the total taken in so far in the Sicilian campaign to 70,000, of whom 56,000 have fallen to the Americans. Ten generals and two admirals now have been captured.

All Europe Shaken

The repercussions of the switch in Italian leadership shook all Europe. Berlin seemed at a loss for words, and like the Allied nations apparently was waiting for Badoglio to show his hand.

Of the 17 men who make up Italy's new cabinet attention centered on Raffaele Guariglia, the foreign minister who last spring put out peace feelers through neutral Ankara, Lisbon and Bern. The Rome radio said Guariglia had been recalled from his ambassadorial post at Ankara to take over foreign affairs.

In a recent speech at Ankara, Guariglia, a 54-year-old career diplomat, had hinted that Italy was tired of war and ready to talk peace terms.

New details of the events preceding the deposing of Mussolini were given by the Rome radio tonight.

Called Grand Council

Mussolini, the announcement said, called an extraordinary meeting of the Fascist grand council Saturday night to make a political and military report to that body. It was the first time the group had met since Dec. 7, 1939, six months before Italy entered the war on Germany's side.

Just what happened at that meeting was not disclosed, but Mussolini fell from power the next day. The king apparently could not accept Mussolini's propositions, and the swiftly rising menace from Italian civilians as well as Allied armies in themselves were enough to force Il Duce from office.

Must Move Swiftly

Badoglio and the king must move swiftly to save Italy. That is the consensus in London, Washington and at Allied headquarters in North Africa.

There was no indication that the Allies are going to slow their military pressure on Italy to give the new leaders a breathing spell, or to see if they intend to capitulate as a natural sequence to Mussolini's departure from the scene.

But Badoglio's immediate concern seemed to be measures to curb incipient revolt in Italy. The German radio broadcast a Rome dispatch saying that the newly-appointed chief of Italian police, Carmine Senise, already has taken over his post.

Axis Beginning To Rip Out At Seams

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

With the fall of Benito Mussolini, the Nazis-Fascist Axis has started to come apart at the seams, changing the whole military perspective overnight.

Summary removal of Il Duce by royal decree foreshadows early peace feelers from Rome, in the judgment of United Nations authorities. There is no other logical explanation for the military-political upheaval to Italy to seek an "honorable" peace or take the grim consequencse.

SIMPSON

By every indication Washington and London are busy behind the scenes preparing in advance the specific terms under which an armistice would be granted if Italy sought it. Nor can it be questioned that those terms would provide first of all for tightening the Allied Mediterranean net on Germany to exploit without delay the expected collapse of the southern facade of Hitler's fortress of Europe.

Balkans Offer Best Route

Whatever the political aspects of an Italian surrender, the military phases of any armistice must be harsh. Bases in southern Italy itself, on the Greek peninsula and the islands of the Aegean now garrisoned by Italian troops would be essential for Allied bases if Anglo-American forces are to strike swiftly and effectively at Germany and bring increased aid to Russia's rolling summer offensive.

The Balkans offer the shortest, surest road to victory. The Greek peninsula and the island-studded Aegean are routes for coming to grips with Nazi inner defense lines on the continent. Evacuation of Italian garrisons outside Italy, or orders from Rome which make them passive on-lookers at best, would expose German troops in such key positions as Crete to isolation and swift annihilation.

Powerful British armies are already poised in Egypt and Syria to move across the eastern Mediterranian, matching the Anglo-American sweep through Sicily. And there are ever growing symtoms that Nazi satellite nations in the Balkans are as ripe for revolt against the crumbling Axis as is Italy.

O'Daniel Says OPA Should Be Abolished

FORT WORTH, July 26. (U.P.)—The Office of Price administration should be abolished, in the opinion of U. S. Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel of Texas.

O'Daniel, resting at his ranch near Fort Worth, said yesterday that "the OPA blunders are not due to ignorance—it's a deliberate plot to socialize America and communize the country under the guise of the war front. There is but one solution and that is to abolish the entire OPA setup."

O'Daniel added that Washington "politicians" were more interested in the next elections than in winning the war.

"The first thing in the hearts of Washington politicians is winning the '44 elections," O'Daniel said, "winning the war comes second."

Brownfield Man Held In Murder

BROWNFIELD, July 26. (Special)—H. H. Williams, about 55, today held in lieu of $10,000 bond on a charge of murdering R. E. Hodges, about 45, who was buried this afternoon in the Pride community of Dawson county.

County Attorney Virgil Crawford said the charge was "murder with malice."

Met In Road

Crawford said the men met in the middle of a public road about 8:45 o'clock Saturday morning 300 yards from Williams' residence. Hodges was shot in the head.

When Crawford, who went to the scene in response to a telephone call that found the Terry county sheriff out of the city, he said he found Williams standing near the dead man, a 12-gauge shotgun in his hand. Three unexploded shells were in the gun, two exploded ones lying in the road nearby.

A sawed-off 410-gauge shotgun lay in the road near Hodges' body, Crawford related.

From the account of witnesses, officials were inclined to believe the two farmers, who had been friendly up to the last few months and had visited in each others' homes, disagreed about stock. Hodges allegedly had sent word to Williams by a negro farm hand, asking that Williams keep up his hogs and not let them stray on Hodges' property.

The homicide happened in southwest Terry county, 20 miles southwest of Brownfield.

The complaint was filed in the court of W. H. Dallas, justice of peace, who set bond binding Williams over to await action of a 106th judicial district grand jury that will be convened Wednesday by Special Judge J. E. Garland of Lamesa.

Hodges is survived by his widow and four daughters.

INSPECTION—First we inspect the tire thoroughly inside and out, never rely on guesswork. [We can locate tire trouble like a dentist can spot a cavity.

BIG INJURY—If we find a big injury, the first thing we do is clean it out much like a dentist cleans out a tooth. Then a patch is applied and the repair vulcanized.

SMALL BREAK—If the break is small and does not go through the tire body, we make a "spot" repair. Then we vulcanize this to the rest of the tire—preventing it from causing trouble later.

TUBE PATCH—After all, it's the tube that holds the air—and if it has a tiny hole or a big tear, the air won't stay in. We can vulcanize even big rips securely so that the air can't get out.

Romance Want-Ad

than they did—if as much.

"Don't you know what was in it?" Kay asked. "Surely you must have mixed it, or helped Dad. We have to know—"

"The formula was Tim's secret. Not even me would he tell. He mixed it himself, kept it locked up all the time. I did not try to find out. Tim had discovered it. The formula belongs to him and to Miss Katie."

"A catalytic agent," Joe murmured. "Something we probably never ever heard of. But it does the trick!"

"If there any way of finding out what this — this formula is, how it is made, Mr. Stadt? Kay pleaded.

"O course, of course." The old German smiled at them. "Tim knew about his bad heart. He wrote everything down for you, told me where he had hidden it. You'll find everything you want to know in the old washstand in his bedroom."

"The old washstand!"

Then a silence.

"And I made you get rid of it, Kay, I'm so sorry!" Mary was near tears.

"It's not your fault, Mary. I didn't like it either." Kay comforted her.

"Well, that's that. Joey goes back to work, now searching for the mystery formula. It will show in the tests, eventually, Kay. Don't worry, we'll find it." Benton turned back to Stadt. "You didn't use much of this formula, did you?"

"Only a little bit. About a liter for each run. That is about a thousand cans."

"It will take time, but with Mr. Stadt's help—"

"I'm going washstand hunting," Ted broke in. "I'm going to corner the market on old washstands."

"There are thousands of them."

"But only one with that formula in it. And we'll get that one back."

Kay hoped he was right. But it was so easy to imagine someone else finding those papers, destroying them. And if someone had, the secret of Tim Donovan's discovery might be lost forever.
