WETS AND DRYs WRANGLE OVER TIME LIMIT AS HEARING NEARS END; CHICAGO MAYOR WILL TALK

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 22—A disagreement rose today in the Senate prohibition committee over the time to give the drys to conclude their case. While witnesses for both the wets and the drys waited, committee members began their session with a prolonged wrangling match.

Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, the one wet on the committee, said he understood that the committee decided yesterday to limit each side to three hours, but Chairman Harrell insisted that was not the agreement.

Wets Close Case
The wets had announced they were through, Senator Harrell said, and the committee decided to allow the drys an hour and fifteen minutes to conclude, and then to give each side an additional three hours for testimony or summing up arguments or both.

Declaring the chairman was all wrong, Reed argued that he wets had two and one-half hours left without the extension, and the drys only an hour and fifteen minutes. If the drys are to be given four hours and a quarter, he said, the wets should have five hours and a half.

Crowd Laughs At Reed
In the midst of the argument Reed said he was not on either side in the liquor controversy and the crowd roared.

"My statement may arouse laughter from fanatics or fools," the Missouri Senator said, "but I am going to vote on these pending bills on their merits and I want the facts."

"I'm enough in the middle of the road for fanatics or fools to conclude I am on the wet side, and you can take that with my compliments."

The argument ended there and the original committee ruling, giving the drys four hours and fifteen minutes and the wets three hours was left unchanged.

Deever To Go On Stand
The wets then announced they would put on the stand when their turn came Mayor W. M. Deever, of Chicago, who wants to reply to charges of non-cooperation made against the Chicago police by United States District Attorney Edward Olson of Chicago.

The drys were given first turn, however, and they called E. C. Dinwiddie, superintendent of the National Temperance Bureau.

Dr. Dinwiddie said no one would contend that enforcement of the dry law had been perfect.

"But there has been a decided improvement during the past year," he added, "with excellent prospects of still greater effectiveness as the new organization develops."

Assailing the wets on the ground that they had not sought to co-operate in making prohibition successful, he said:

"We have been treated to a series of 'weighing' by those whom we had expected to prove good sports.

"Prohibition is entitled to a fair trial," the witness contended, "including ample time to make it effective by bringing enforcement and judicial machinery into real force. He declared the moral sense of the people revolted at any idea of returning to a legal sale of wine."

Dr. Dinwiddie said the spectacle of the wets urging a referendum on beer and wine was a poor one since before prohibition they had fought "with every weapon of their command" to prevent votes on the question of saloon or no saloon.

Reed tried again and again unsuccessfully to get Dinwiddie to say that the legal sale of light wine and beer would be better than a condition where thousands of stills are operating in the homes.

"I think if conditions are as you paint them," Dinwiddie said, "the challenge the best thought and work of the best people. But you are assuming that these conditions you describe must continue; I don't."

Under questioning, Dinwiddie said his salary from the Temperance Bureau was $500 a month.

Gary May Retire As Head of Steel Firm

NEW YORK, Apr. 22 (AP)—Elbert H. Gary's retirement as chairman of the United States Steel corporation was foreshadowed, in the opinion of many stockholders, by his remarks at the annual meeting in Hoboken, N. J., today, although he did not definitely state his intentions.

"While we are all strong and vigorous today," he said, "yet we know that in the natural course of events it will soon be time for some of us to say 'goodbye.' But whatever happens, be assured we have carefully built up an organization and established plants which will assure protection and advancement to the interests of the stockholders of the corporation and this without detriment to the public welfare."

AMERICAN SCHOOL OF LAW RAPPED BY TEACHER

TEXARKANA, April 22 (AP)—The American Law school is little more than a "trade school" and universities at profession in the United States and England, Professor W. R. Vance of Yale university declared here today in addressing the joint meeting of the Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana bar associations.

He declared the greatest thing universities can do for the legal profession is legal research work along the same lines undertaken in history, science and other branches. Calling attention to the lack of statistics in the United States, he outlined a few of the efforts at research that have been made within the United States. With few exceptions, he said, these efforts have been made outside the universities.

INDIANS TAKE BIG PART AT ARMY CAMP

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 22 (AP)—La, the well known "poor Indian," is rather a prominent component of the Second Division of Uncle Sam's army.

Forty-six men of Indian blood are now on the division's roster, Col. J. C. McArthur, chief of staff, has learned after checking all the records. These soldiers all were listed by him as Indians.

While 46 men, compared with more than 5,000 in the division, do not seem a very large number, nevertheless the Indian contingent is considered of appreciable size in view of information from the moving picture screen and novels that the original American is vanishing.

Perhaps no other division in the whole army has as many Red Men and descendants of Red Men as has the Second.

These 46 men chiefly represent tribes of the South and Southwest but one is listed as Nez Perce (Pacific Northwest), one as Yukon, one as Seneca, and one as Delaware. The Cherokee are most numerous, there being 27 of them.

Other tribes represented are the Chickasaw, Choctaw, Comanche, Chippewa, Mission, Caddo, Creek, Wichita and Chickasha.

The 21st Infantry has 10 Indians; the 9th Infantry five; the 20th Infantry five; the 23rd Infantry nine; the 13th Field Artillery one; the 15th Field Artillery nine; the Second Engineers six; and the Second Medical Regiment one.

Four Indians are world war veterans and credited with combat service. They are, Charlie Bailey and James W. Peters of the 21st Infantry; Joseph Washburn of the 23rd and Harvey Marshall of the 23rd.

One of the Indians, Sgt. Grover Doshinko of the 23rd Infantry has made a name for himself as an aggressive football player, holding down tackle on the second division.

A glance over the roster of Red Men shows that few still retain picturesque Indian names. There are, Jim Squirrel, William Swallow, Boyd Eagle, Joseph Bird, William Shaking-bush, and George Walkingstick; but on the other hand are some names that conjure with, for instance, Jack Casey, Alex England, Frank Washington, Tom Campbell, Mack Handy, Elbert Scott and Sandy Marcle.

Nix Walks Four Men In First Inning For Big Lead, And Tech Easily Wins Last Of McMurry Series Here 9 To 4

The gripping of four free passes in the first inning, accompanied by two sacrifice hits, a passed ball and a single proved the undoing of Nix, McMurry College moundman here Wednesday afternoon, and Tech got away to a win 9 to 4 of the second and last game of what was to have been a three game series. Tuesday's clash was postponed due to rain earlier in the day and wet grounds. Nix walked seven men during the seven innings he worked, and was relieved in the eighth by West, third sacker who sent the Matadors out three in a row at first base.

The contest was one of more or less fresh hit bats, and almost every kind of weather in the category of a West Texas prognosticator was witnessed during the time. A light flurry of hail fell during the first inning, but toward the middle of the game the sun broke through and with the exception of an occasional drifting cloud, stayed in view during the balance of the game.

Abbott Hit Freely
The Indians pounded Vernon Abbott freely for a total of ten bingles, while the best Tech could do was to hit Nix for eight, but Abbott kept his hits well scattered, and at no time was in a great deal of danger. Tech committed three errors, two of them on the infield, and the Indians held their commission to one.

Three of Tech's hits were for extra bases, and at least three of the others went for hits when outfielders were impeded by soggy ground and could not play in fast enough to take the pop flys just over the infield. Hardwick, Marshall and Hamilton hit for two bases each, but only in one instance did the hits count for runs. Hamilton drove a flinging double to right field in the seventh to score Watkins and Marshall, one of whom had singled and the other reached first on a fielder's choice, to force Curtis out at third.

Two of the Indians hit for two bases, one of which went for runs. West drove a double in the fourth to score Ledbetter and Wharton who had singled ahead of him. Wharton doubled in the second, but died on base when Hamilton snatched a hot liner from the stick of Hodges for the last out of the inning.

Indians Open Counting
The Indians opened the counting in the first session when West scored on a sacrifice fly by Gregg after advancing on Forehand's single. In their half of this inning, the Matadors drew only one single, which came in the latter stages of the inning with the bases full. Four walks, two sacrifice hits and a passed ball aided in the counting.

In the fourth another scoring spree was opened, with the Indians counting two on two singles followed by a double, but Tech came back and on three walks and a single, scored two. The visitors scored one in the sixth when a wild heave from Watkins in left allowed West, who had singled, to reach third. He scored on Forehand's grounder to third.

In their half of the seventh, the Matadors scored three more on a hit batsman, a couple of singles, and a double, and sent Nix to the showers. After the sixth, Abbott tightened, and about the visitors out three in a row except for Hamilton's headlong dive into the ground in the seventh allowing a man to reach first.

Hill Holds Down First
Volney Hill, ace pitcher, for Tech, holding down the initial corner in the absence of Guy Hayden, looked like a real first sacker. Hill is undoubtedly one of the most consistent performers on the Matador roster, apparently performing equally well in any position except behind the bat, where he says he draws the line.

Tech now turns her attention to a team that has not been met this season, and a team whose strength is largely unknown. Cleburn College will be here Wednesday and Thursday of next week for a pair of games.

The track and field meet that was to have been held today between Tech and Simmons was postponed due to the soggy condition of the track, and present plans call for this meet to be held next Tuesday afternoon. In the meantime officials are getting everything in readiness for the district interscholastic league track and field that will be held on Tech field Saturday when probably 200 or 250 athletes will compete.

The score by innings:
McMurry 100 201 600-4 10 1
Tech 409 299 398-9 9 3
Nix, West, and Wharton; Abbott and Curtis.

He's Reds' 'Big Bertha'

EDD ROUSH

Edd Roush is the "Big Bertha" of the Cincinnati Reds' attack. A consistent 320 hitter, Roush is largely responsible for most of the success the Hendricks entourage has against opposing hurlers. Roush can swing the apple, as they say in various baseball circles. He's also a nifty fielder.

Edd has been in the main team many years, but he still seems as good as ever. With the exception of a brief stay with the Giants, he's spent his entire big league career in Cincinnati.

Roush has long been famous for his holdout peculiarities. For quite a while while Roush and unadvised contracts were synonymous. Holding out was an annual stunt with Edd. He usually won his case, for a few others. Roush rates as one of the best outpost fellows in the oldfashioned. He's a veritable ball-hawk; can haul 'em down mostly where, so long as they are inside the playing confines.

TECH-MCMURRY TRACK MEET IS POSTPONED BUT PLANS PROCEED FOR DISTRICT MEET THIS WEEK

The dual track and field meet that was to have been held this afternoon on Tech field between the Matadors and Simmons University, of Abilene, has been postponed until Tuesday, due to the soggy condition of the track following the recent heavy rains, but plans in connection with the district interscholastic league track and field meet that is to be held Friday and Saturday are proceeding, and one of the best meets in the history of such events in West Texas is anticipated by officials in charge.

It has been estimated that approximately 250 girls and boys will compete in various events during the two days, and that between 1,500 and 2,000 people from over the South Plains will visit Lubbock during the time. Twenty counties comprise district No. 2, of the interscholastic league centering around Lubbock. Tech College will be host to the meeting, and it is planned to make the vent an annual occurrence under Tech supervision.

Evans is Director General
A. W. Evans, Professor of Education at the College, has been selected Director General of the meet, and various other members of the faculty and officials of the college will have charge of the different events, assisted by high school authorities here and W. E. Petty, Supt. of the Plainview public school.

Literary events will consume the whole of Friday, and finals in several of these events will be held Saturday morning. Volley ball is the only athletic event that is scheduled to be held Friday.

Saturday morning preliminaries in class A and class B track and field events will be run off beginning at 9 o'clock, and finals in both divisions will be held Saturday afternoon.

Entries for all events, both literary and athletic must be in the hands of Prof. Evans not later than midnight of Friday April 23, rules of the contest provide, and an urgent appeal has gone out to all prospective entrants that officials be advised at the earliest moment possible of the number to be entered, and the event in which entry will be made, so that preparations can be made to care for them.

Room Committee Canvassing City
A committee from the public schools here Thursday was canvassing the city for rooms to accommodate the various participants in the meet, and it is urged by G. N. Atkinson, Principal of the High School and chairman of the committee that the people of Lubbock open up their homes for the entertainment of visitors on the occasion, as hotels room will not be sufficient to accommodate them. Only actual participants will be cited to rooms by the committee, and only the rooms of those actually named will be expected of those offering rooms. Mr. Atkinson said. No report had been received from the committee early this afternoon as to their success, but it is believed that rooms in sufficient quantity will be obtained.

Billy Evans Says

Murderer's row was a rather appropriate name given to four or five slugs on the New York Americans a few years back.

American League pitchers certainly regarded them in that light as one after another of these much-feared sluggers faced them.

The passing of Wally Pipp, and the slump experienced by Ruth and Ward, caused the title to be abandoned last season. The old punch was missing. Looks as if it would be revived again this year from the way the Yankees are hitting the ball.

Ruth is doing a comeback, while Luzzari and Koenig have been added to the combination. These three, plus Lou Gehrig and Bob Meusel, provide something for a pitcher to worry about.

Rude Reception
Nine runs and nine hits in one inning is an experience entirely new to the great Dazzy Vance, star pitcher of the National League.

The speed ball king was treated to such a happening in one of the spring games between the Yankees and the Dodgers.

Seven of the hits were singles, two were doubles and one error was mixed in for a total of nine runs.

Never in all his career has Vance been so rudely handled in a single session and it is doubtful if it ever happens again.

No-Hit Game
Most of the star pitchers of the majors have at some time during their career turned in a no-hit game. Grover Alexander is one of the few exceptions.

Walter Johnson has one to his credit and on another occasion held the St. Louis Browns hitless for seven innings, only to have rain end the game and spoil his chance of adding another hitless affair to his record.

On one occasion Alexander had two strikes on the batter and two out in the ninth, only to have him scratch a hit, a pop fly back of second, to spoil the big chance.

Now that the ball has been toned down a bit, Alex has hopes.

Most Valuable
Received a query the other day as to whom I regarded as the best outpinner in the American League.

While there are several left-handers in the American League who have more stuff than Herbie Pennock, to my way of thinking he is the most valuable.

Pennock has a good assortment of stuff, a particularly good curve, fine control and a world of courage.

In addition, he has perfect poise, which means nothing bothers him; no situation is so difficult for him to tackle and, when hardest pressed, he seemingly does his best work.

Yes sir! Herbie Pennock could pitch on my big league ball club if I owned one.

Promising Rookie
Of the young pitchers I saw in the south, none impressed me more than Elmer "Dutch" Levensen of the Cleveland club.

Levensen is a right-hander who, aside from having good speed, boasts a mighty fine curve ball.

Last season he was with George Stallings at Rochester in the International League. Stallings has a habit of developing good pitchers. He says Levensen is one of the best that ever worked under him.

If Levensen is able to win for Cleveland the Indians' hopes of finishing better than sixth, last year's position, will have been given quite a boost.

Six Home Clubs Win As Opening Games Are Played In Majors; Two Castoff Pitchers Hurl Steadily

(By Associated Press.)
Six cities of the major baseball leagues sent forth their thousands yesterday to greet their teams for the first time this year, and there was great happiness in every contest the home club won.

Usually at these opening games there are bands, mayors, soldiers and usually the home team suffers defeat. But this young season already has proved unusual in many ways. Even the weather man was invited to yesterday's festivities and he was accompanied by Miss Spring, who enjoyed the first contest she has visited this year. Ira Flaxstead of the Boston Red Sox added three hits to his steadily mounting total. Two doubles and a single were his contribution to his club's vain effort.

Tom Zachary and George Mogridge, former Washington veterans, recorded two good pitching performances. Zachary hurled for the St. Louis Browns and gave them victory over the White Sox when he allowed only four hits. Mogridge, performing for the Braves, granted Philadelphia only six.

Eddie Rummel was the mound hero of the day, with a three-hit conquest of the Senators, American league champions.

Frank Gibson, pinch hitting for the Braves, singled to put across the winning run in the ninth.

Joe Harris of the Senators, Earl Combs and Bob Meusel of the Yankees and Bill Jacobson of the Browns pitched out home runs.

Stanley Coveleskie stared for Washington against Philadelphia and before the second inning had ended his opponents had scored four runs. Harris drove his home in the fourth but after that Rummel was invincible. A pinch single, a walk and a single by George Gossin gave the Senators another in the final inning. The Athletics won, 5 to 2.

For the second time this season the Browns won a game and for the first time their hitters started to work. Jacobson's four base smash was one of 12 sacrifices registered in a five to one victory over the White Sox. Erban Dube departed in the sixth after allowing 16 hits.

Cleveland encountered Johns of Detroit, a recruit, who bumbled them last week, and drove him from the mound. The Indians made seven doubles in their 12 to 2 conquest while Benny Karr limited the opposition to six bingles.

After the Red Sox had driven Sam Jones from the mound in two innings the slugging Yankees staged an attack that would not be denied and won, 5 to 0.

Boyl, who relieved Jones, pitched masterfully until the ninth but a fast play by Koenig ended the contest with two Bostonians on the bases.

Kimmick, who has replaced the injured Rhoads, did some hitting for the Phillies, sending out a double and a triple but this did not keep the Braves from winning, 2 to 1. The victory was in question, however, until Gibson went into action in the last

LOCKNEY TO MEET SKIPPER'S NINE HERE SUNDAY

The local amateur baseball club, under the management of Skipper Sled Allen will strut its stuff for the first time this year when the gang meets the Lockney Independent club on the remodeled Merrill park Sunday afternoon at 2:30.

Little is known of the strength of the Lockney club here beyond the fact that they lost to Plainview recently 8 to 5, but in the opinion of Skipper Sled Allen they will come "plenty strong" to make things interesting for the record crowd that is expected.

Work of remodeling the grandstand has been finished, the fences around the park have all been reworked and merchants of the city have completely covered them with signs telling of their wares. The diamond has been plowed up and dragged and presents the appearance of a real ball lot.

In fact, one would hardly know himself in the remodeled baseball lot.

About the same nine that functioned with such efficiency last year will be in evidence again, with the addition of "Sniper" Connally and "Emmer" Gohar, the latter of whom is well known here for his performances with the Lubbock club in professional ball. Connally will hold down the initial corner, and will be aided by Sheppard, Gohar and Blackmon or Gaitner, one of the latter to play short and the other in the outfield. Jackson, Hensley and either Blackmon or Gaitner will work the garden positions.

The Skipper himself will do the receiving, and "Skeet" Ratliff probably will do mound duty Sunday, with Tor and Sanders on the bench. The contest will open promptly at 2:30 the Skipper said Thursday.

Editorials A THING WORTH DOING

Is worth doing well, says an old saw, and rightfully. And it applies to road building as well as to any other one thing. Lubbock county, in the very near future, will have hardsurface roads of some kind. The question is now, will they be the right kind? Caliche roads have thus far been favored by those in authority but during the past several days sentiment has swung toward roads of a higher, more permanent type. At their best caliche roads are little more than temporary unless maintenance crews are kept busy almost incessantly. With that point an established fact does Lubbock county want caliche roads? Lubbock county is young. It should build for the future. Its foundation stones of progress should be of material upon which other improvements can be built. The same rule which applies to its buildings applies to its roads. A plan has been laid to call a special road bond election in Lubbock county. The Chamber of Commerce is behind the move, and with the future of Lubbock county in mind it is now time for every citizen who believes in progress to line up behind the move. The bond election will furnish funds to build better roads and better roads is what Lubbock county should be interested in. We should keep in mind the fact that it is not always the county which has the most miles of hardsurface roads that has the best hardsurface roads. What we want and what we need in Lubbock county is the best—not only in roads but in everything else. If we're going to build roads let's build real roads. A thing that is worth doing is surely worth doing well.

HEARTLESS

Another "heartless" corporation—one of those like you used to hear about—has been heard from. This time it is the Southwest Bell Telephone company which has turned over to the Lubbock Rotary club a sizable contribution to that organization's student loan fund. The Southwestern Bell Telephone company showed through its action that it is not a "heartless" corporation and its action in this case is symbolical with that of many other big business concerns in other lines. The old hallelujah that you used to hear from radicals about "heartless corporations" has, thank heavens, about died down. And its concerns like the Southwestern Bell Telephone company which is responsible for it.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON — On the question whether Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa should keep his seat in the United States Senate or give it up to Daniel F. Steeg — Steeg won — some of the some of the queerest votes were cast that the oldest hanger-on around the Capitol can remember. It wasn't that regular party lines were shot completely full of holes. That has become the rule rather than the exception in the last two or three years. Brookhart's a radical republican. Senator Ashurst's a liberal democrat. It was natural for Ashurst to vote for Brookhart in preference to the democratic but conservative Steeg. Senator Butler's an ultra-conservative republican. It was equally natural for him to vote for Steeg. But note — the ultra-conservative republican Senator Bingham was for Brookhart. Still, though conservative, Bingham's extra conscientious. He voted, not the way he felt, but as he thought he ought. So he doesn't count. Glancing on down the list we come to another Brookhart vote that certainly surprises us—the vote of the dyed-in-the-wool regular republican Senator Curtis, Senate majority floor leader, whom Brookhart's radicalism in the 68th Congress nearly drove wild. Reed of Missouri voted for Brookhart, but Reed's a notorious democratic insurgent and Brookhart was his kind of a senator, regardless of his party label. Reed of Pennsylvania, however? And his colleague, Pepper? Republicans, yes, but as regular as two clocks, and with no more in common with Brookhart's kind of republicanism than they have with Trotsky's. They cast Brookhart votes. And, of all senators, Reed Smoot—not only conservative but reactionary, to his backbone. He plunked for Brookhart when his name was called.

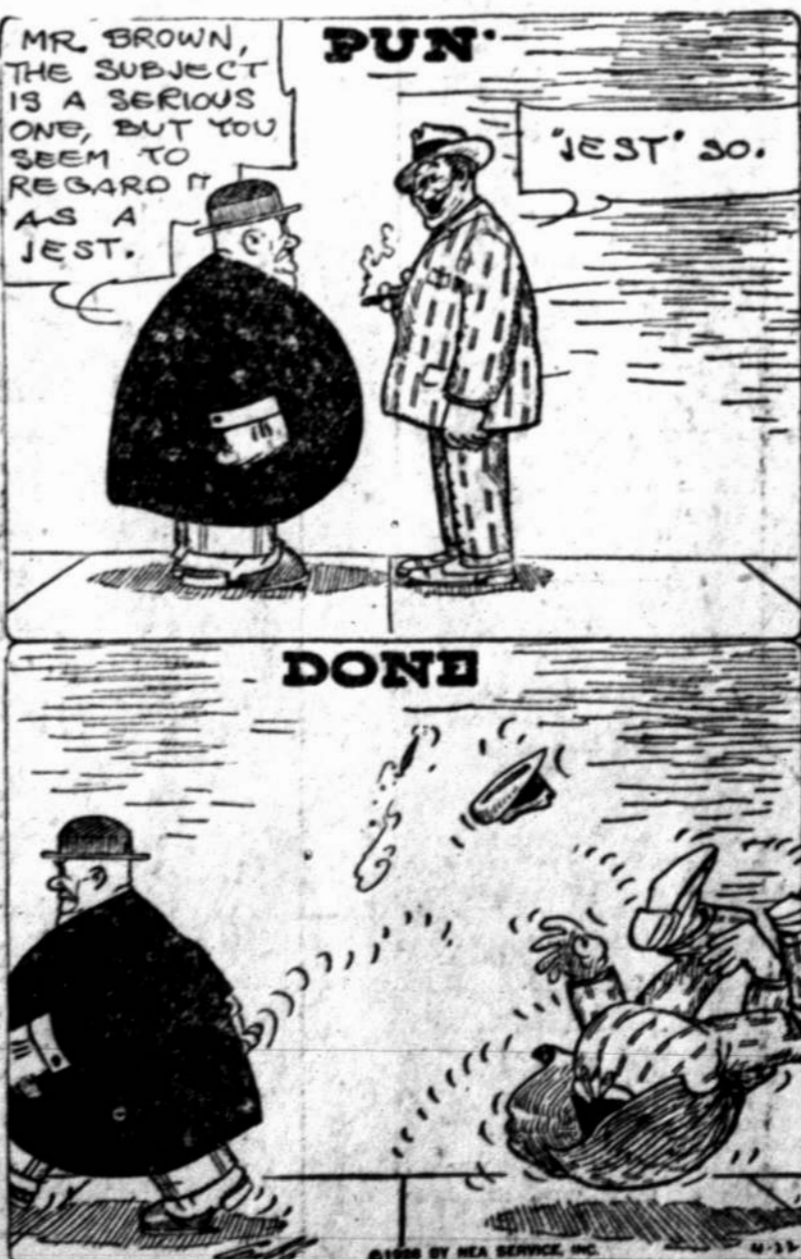

Journal Jobs

There is usually but one opportunity of a kind, and if we happen to embrace it and find our way to success, we imagine it was a case of good judgement on our part. But more often it was merely a case of necessity. If all American children grew up in accordance with the fondest expectations of their parents, we would have nothing but millionaires and presidents. If a man ever expects to make good in big things he must first demonstrate to himself and others that he can make good in little things. A better governor than he would have made as a bachelor. He has an incentive now which he did not have before.

THESE WOMEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY When today's chapter opens, AUDREY MORTON has just slapped JOHN PARRISH in the mouth. She is in love with HARRY MORTON, her handsome, middle-aged, wealthy guardian. Parrish disapproves of Morton's association with gay young women, and has just advised Audrey to live elsewhere than with her guardian. Morton himself, in an effort to avert Audrey's love for him, has thrown Parrish in her way, and himself has let her see him with NONA, a Chicago stage girl who loves him, and with other girls. For 15 years Morton has been a mystery in Peoria, where he has spent much of his time in a handsome home. He also maintains a costly apartment in Chicago. They all are in Chicago when today's chapter starts. At the end of the preceding chapter, Audrey has asked Nona advice about going on the stage. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY (The names and situations in this story are fictitious.) CHAPTER XXII NONA called Morton on the telephone late that afternoon. "Better go over to Pete Downey's lending school and have a look around," she advised. "What for?" "Well," she said, "you'll see something there that will interest you. Bye-bye." She hung up the receiver. With an impatient shrug, Morton turned back to his work. However, Nona's words bothered him. Finally, and the man. "In stretching exercises," he said, "it is best not to go too far the first time." Audrey started, dropped her foot to the floor and looked at him. The attendant jerked his head around, with a scowl. "Who 'n' ell are you?" he wanted to know. "Get 't all outa here!" Unconcernedly Morton went on talking. "The young lady will continue her lessons, later on," he said, "if she desires to. But this will be enough for today." Something in his manner impressed the man, and he merely stared. "I am the young lady's guardian," said Morton. "Oh!" There was a knowing sneer on the attendant's face. "You are quite mistaken," Morton said, unruffled. "I really am the young lady's legal guardian. This is her first time here, and I think you've done enough for today. Thank you very much." He produced a twenty-dollar bill, and gave it to the man, he latter's hostility died at once. "She said 't' me to give 'er the works all at once," he said. "She is inexperienced," Morton told him. "It will be better if she takes it easier. Won't it?" "Sure," said the other, heartily, putting the twenty-dollar bill away. Audrey had vanished during the colloquy, and Morton waited for her. Leaning against the wall he watched the girls still doing their exercises under the supervision of the man who counted. When Audrey reappeared, in her street clothes, flushed and warm, Morton insisted on her throwing her coat around her shoulders before they and mascara, which you didn't need, and you had four eyebrows plucked, which you shouldn't have done at all. Now you suddenly decide to begin a professional career as a dancer in supper clubs, and places like that. "The idea is that since so many of my women friends occupy themselves in that way, that you are going to do so, too?" Audrey moved closer to him. "I want to interest you," she said. "I thought by living with those girls, and seeing them every night, I could learn how they manage it." "Perhaps they don't manage it!" Morton's words fell deliberately, and with a curious emphasis. "You can't judge what's in a man's heart by the things he does, Audrey girl." Audrey cocked her head wisely. "All the same, they know something that I don't about entertaining you—and I'm going to find out what it is! You would stay with me, in the evening, instead of going out with them, if that weren't so. And I want you to be with me—all the time." Morton sighed. "Life's full of problems and difficulties, isn't it child?" Morton called Parrish into his office the following morning, and gave him some brief instructions. "Beginning at one o'clock each afternoon, you are appointed as personal guardian for Miss Morton," he said. Parrish's serious face showed marks of pleasure. "You'll report at my apartment at one p. m., sharp, each day, and take Miss Morton wherever she wants to go. You are not to make any objections whatever to anything she wants to do. All I want is that she shall be kept out of difficulties." "I'd like to do that, Mr. Morton, but he swept his papers together, gave them to Parrish, and took a taxi to the dingy building that held the Downey establishment. Morton had been there before, and he trudged up the rickety stairs as if sure of this way. A large double door at the top of the first flight was labeled: "Downey—Stretching—Expert attendance." Morton pushed the door open, and stopped. Half a dozen young girls, some in bloomers, some of them in polished floor. One little group of four was going through a sort of drill, at the sharp command of a man who stood before them. "One—two—three—Bend," he roared. At the fourth word, the girls bent slowly forward, and placed the flat of their palms on the floor before them. "Totten," said the man. "One—two—three—Bend!" Time after time they went through the drill, stimulated by pungent observations on the part of the master before them. In a far corner was one girl, alone. She was in a brief striped bathing suit, and a bony man with her foot in his hand, was moving her leg straight upward, as she braced back against the wall. It was Audrey. She did not see Morton, at first, but balancing herself as best she could, with her palms and back against the wall, submitted to the racking effort of the attendant. Morton did not move. The girls and men near him paid no attention. One girl, in her street clothes, who was just leaving, spoke to him familiarly as "Harry," and he nodded, kindly. She hesitated, and then after a word or two about the weather, went her way. Morton continued his watch over Audrey, and the man who was stretching her muscles. Once the girl cried out sharply, as the man moved her leg outward at right angles to her body. Deliberately he repeated the movement, and she cried out again. He took her other foot, and moved the slender limb. Audrey was writhing, and the cords of her neck stood out in pain. It was at this point that Morton intervened. Strolling deliberately across the room, he stopped in front of Audrey she slapped me the last time I talked to her," Parrish told him. "Morton's eyes were amazed as they rested on the young man. "That's your problem," he said. "I am under the impression that you like Miss Morton?" "Indeed I do," he said, but she can't stand me at all. "Under those circumstances, it seems to me that the next move is up to you. Your instructions remain, and I want you to carry them out. You shouldn't put yourself in a position to be slapped, and if you are slapped, it is up to you—always providing that you desire to be friends with the young lady—to see that she is on friendly terms with you." Parrish's expression was one of doubt but he went away with a springer step than he had entered. When he had gone, Morton called Audrey on the telephone, and told her of Parrish's assignment. "I'll slap him, and won't talk to him, if he comes here!" she exclaimed. "But daddy, I've had the dreadfulest letter! I don't understand what it means. Can I bring it over to you?" "Of course," said Morton. A quarter of an hour later, Audrey appeared, a vision in a fresh new spring dress, with a light wrap, also new. Her lately adopted rouge was missing from her cheeks, though her lips showed the effects of a lipstick, and her lashes were blackened. Evidently she had stopped in the middle of a careful toilette. Dipping into her handbag, she produced a letter, bearing a South American stamp. Tossing it in front of Morton, she said: "I just know that's from the man you threw out of our house in Peoria. He's an awful brute, and I want you to tell me what to do about it." Morton picked up the letter, and opened it. (to Be Continued)

CHILDREN GIVEN 'UNCHRISTIAN' MOTHER

JUDGE AWARDS THREE OF SIX CHILDREN TO MRS. BENEDICT

KANSAS CITY, Kans., April 22. (AP)—Three of the six children of Mrs. Helen Leona Benedict, who turned against her recently saying she was "un-Christian" because she bobbed her hair and wore jewelry and "loud clothing" were awarded to the mother Saturday by Judge Henry Meade in Wyandotte county probate court.

The three older children were to be placed in private homes with "Christian influences" under the ruling of the court. The Benedict children have been in the Mennonite home here for several months. They had been made wards of Mrs. Harriet Cole, police matron and Mrs. Benedict filed suit to dissolve the guardianship. At the hearing Judge Meade asked the children if they wanted to return to their mother.

Child Scores Mother. "No," Edith, who is 12 years old, said. "We do not believe mother is a Christian woman. She bobs her hair and the Bible says in the eleventh chapter of First Corinthians a woman should not cut her hair. She wears jewelry and bright colored clothes. A Christian woman should not do these things." Mrs. Benedict charged later the children had been influenced at the home. Saturday in court she reiterated her charge and with tears in her eyes, asked they be given into her care.

MILITANT CALL TO ARMS HEARD BY DRYS AS METHODIST BISHOP AIRS HIS VIEWS BEFORE COURT

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 22.—The militant call to the American government to accept the challenge of opponents of the Volstead act was sounded by the drys Monday before the senate prohibition committee. Speaking for the Methodists Episcopal church, south Bishop James Cannon, Jr., told the committee the law should be enforced in the "New York sector" of the east at whatever cost of men and money, to protect other sections from contamination.

The wet, he added, had taken from the committee hearings for a field during their two weeks of testimony before the committee, and it was time to return to the basic question whether in the country as a whole the Volstead method of dealing with the liquor traffic had not been more effective than any other.

Other Officials Testify
Bishop Cannon, who is head of the legislative committee of the Anti-Saloon league, was followed by other officials of church and temperance organizations, who presented data designed to upset the contentions of the wets that conditions "have grown worse under the dry laws."

It was noteworthy, Bishop Cannon said, that the testimony presented by the opponents of prohibition had come almost entirely from persons living in "the New York sector" including New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

"Two of these states, Maryland and New York, have utterly refused to pass any state enforcement law," he said, "and yet the very men in those states who are largely responsible for the failure to pass an enforcement law are the ones who are loudly and illogically denouncing the failure to enforce the law."

Wet Testimony Reviewed
Reviewing some of the testimony for the wets, he said, he could not be made to believe that ninety per cent of the laboring people of the country are violating the constitution by the manufacture of intoxicants in their homes.

"As an American citizen," he added, "I repudiate these wholesale assertions as not applying to the great mass of our American people. Certainly, they do not apply to the more than 21,000,000 Sunday school scholars, 5,000,000 members of young people's societies, and over 30,000,000 church members of the Protestant churches."

"There were moonshiners all through the southern mountains before prohibition and the people for alcohol was not destroyed when the prohibitory law was passed. But outside of the number of stills actually captured by the prohibition officers, all calculation is purely guess work."

Bishop Endorses Andrews
The bishop heartily endorsed the bill of General Andrews, the prohibition enforcement bill, to strengthen the Volstead act, saying the agreement should make a clear cut statement that a "lawless minority" shall not be permitted to flaunt the constitution.

Philip King of the Christian Science committee on publication presented a letter from the committee opposing any change in the Eighteenth amendment of the Volstead act. He also filed scores of telegrams from Christian Science churches over the country opposing modification.

Says "Beer Bill" Strategy
Mrs. Boole said her organization, which has a membership of 500,000, believed the beer bills were a "part of the strategy for the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment."

"The experience of Canada in government control and in legalizing the sale of beer and wine," she said, "has resulted in violations of the law, drunkenness and illicit trade. We have to assure the situation would be any different in America."

Argument Follows
The committee got into an argument over admitting to the record a letter from Claude E. Connolly, labor commissioner of Oklahoma, saying the condition of laboring men was better under prohibition. The letter was submitted by Mrs. Boole, and finally went in by a vote of three to one with Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, the committee's only wet protesting.

"This letter appears to give the experience of a gambler," said Reed. "Do you know Mr. Connolly?"

"No sir," Mrs. Boole said. "Then you don't know whether he has quit gambling?"

"I can answer that," interjected Senator Harrell, republican, Oklahoma. "He is a good law-abiding citizen."

Senator Reed asked Mrs. Boole for her opinion regarding present law enforcement.

There is law enforcement, of course, in many places," she said. "It's more than law enforcement," said Reed.

Howard Is Repudiated
Pressed by the Missouri senator, Mrs. Boole said her organization did not endorse the report on law enforcement presented to President Coolidge last December by Clinton Howard for the committee on law enforcement. The presidents of two state W. C. T. U.'s she said, had withdrawn from the Howard organization because of that report.

"Do you agree with these statements?" asked Reed after reading part of the report.

"I decline to answer," Mrs. Boole said, adding that the committee was admitting unsworn statements into the record against prohibition while her right to present letters and papers showing "the benefits of prohibition" was being questioned.

"Do you think it makes for more advancement to have liquor manufactured in the home?"

"Certainly not."

"I want to get some facts," Reed remarked. "If anyone thinks I'm for booze or intemperance, they are mistaken."

"You were raised right," replied Mrs. Boole. "Your mother was a member of the W. C. T. U."

Was Not W. C. T. U.
"Oh no, she was not. She was the next best thing—a Presbyterian."

The Missourian then asked whether it was better to have something like 1,720,000 stills, most of them operating in the homes, or to have liquor manufactured under license.

"I decline to answer because our organization is against the legal manufacture of liquor in the home or elsewhere."

A part of the crowd applauded.

"Now that applause is the best thing we could have," said Reed. "It changes our mind up here instantly."

Again Reed pressed for an answer.

"As between two evils I do not think I have to choose," retorted Mrs. Boole amid more applause.

As time came to recess, Reed wanted until tomorrow, but the committee to have any rights here except a dry.

TWO YEAR OLD COW TESTS 700 POUNDS OF BUTTER FAT

CAN YON, April 22.—In addition to having the 1925 Texas champion cow in both butter and milk production, the West Texas State Teachers college has scored another gold in leadership according to the head of the agriculture department of that college.

Little Agatha, a two-year-old niece of last year's Texas champion, has recently completed a 355-day test in which she produced more than 700 pounds of butter fat.

Two days during each of the twelve months of the year a representative of the West Texas State Teacher college for the purpose of weighing and testing the milk which the cow produced.

Every thirty days a record of all milk produced was forwarded to the American Jersey Cattle club at New York City that that association might keep the official records.

While no profit has been made by the American Jersey association nor can any definite information be obtained before the end of the year, it is confidently felt by those familiar with Jersey records that Little Agatha will easily prove to be the champion two-year-old butter producer of West Texas and perhaps of the Southwest for the year 1925.

The college paid more than $200 for her when she was a calf.

An interesting phase of this record is the fact that Agricultural students who work on the college farm to pay their necessary school expenses fed and milked the cow.

In speaking of this Professor Phillips said: "It has always been our theory in this school that students should do some work closely related to their class-room activities. The boys in this school who have charge of our dairy have demonstrated their ability to put class room theory into practice."

Figures have recently been completed by members of the agricultural department which show that the average cow of the West Texas State Teachers college produced 6,366 pounds of milk last year. Some idea of the standing which these cows have will be gained when one remembers that the dairy division of the United States Dairy association is author of the statement that the average per cow last year was 6,077 pounds of milk, or 889 pounds less than the average cow of the Teachers college farm produced.

FOREIGN POLICY OF AMERICA TOLD BY U. S. OFFICIAL

ARMS DELEGATES FAVOR PRACTICAL PROJECTS KELLOGG SAYS

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, April 22.—American policies on outstanding international issues were laid Tuesday by Secretary Kellogg in an address at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press.

On the question of armament limitation, the Secretary of State, said the United States government would "welcome an agreement which would complete the work begun in Washington" at the 1921 conference, "particularly as there is danger that the competitive construction which formerly existed, particularly with respect to capital ships, may still be continued in a less aggravated form."

To Use Influence
Secretary Kellogg pledged in this connection that the delegates from the United States to the preliminary armament conference in Geneva would "use their influence in favor of projects which may be practical in their application and realizable in their development."

Regarding limitation of land armaments, Mr. Kellogg said this country already "had voluntarily reduced to the minimum" and added:

Rejoice Over Situation
"We have every reason to rejoice that our situation has permitted this, but it is justification for overlooking the different problems with which other countries are faced. We would naturally take any steps which other powers might take toward the limitation of land armaments; we shall be glad if we can at any time exert a helpful influence in this direction."

The situation in China has to be viewed, the Secretary said, in the perspective of the course of the Washington conference throughout China's troubles had been "consistent and definite" in purpose.

"We have endeavored, and we are endeavoring to carry out those promises solemnly made to the Chinese people in the Covenants adopted at the Washington conference. The tariff conference and the extra-territorial commission are still sitting in Peking, and making progress, and are carrying out the mandates dictated by the Washington conference."

As to the treaty situation between the United States and Turkey, Mr. Kellogg said there had been no departure from the tradition, typical American policy.

Protection Afforded
"We have endeavored to afford proper protection to all legitimate American activities in Turkey," he added, referring to the pending Lausanne convention. Criticism directed against this treaty was described as "negative" and the speaker asserted "this government cannot conduct its foreign policy with negatives."

The secretary referred at length to the arbitration negotiations undertaken by this government to adjust the Texas-Africa disputes between Chile and Peru. He reminded the audience, particularly the Latin-American journalists present as guests of the Associated Press, that the true policy of this country contained "no desire for imperialism, acquisition of territory, political or economic domination."

"The policy is solely a desire to live and cooperate on terms of equality," he said, and "to promote peace, interchange knowledge, develop trade and commerce, free from selfish aims."

He extended his sincere congratulations to the Associated Press, not only for its work in the United States, but in all the world.

"The organization is admirable," he said. "In collecting and disseminating news it does a great public service. You are animated by the highest sense of duty to the public as well as to the press."

ROMANS ABANDON BUSINESS FOR CELEBRATION

ROME, Apr. 22. (AP)—Romans today abandoned their usual activities and assembled in the gaily-beflagged street and squares to celebrate the city's 2,800th anniversary with ceremonies symbolizing Mussolini's determination that Rome's ancient glory shall be restored.

Unlike most of the celebrations since the advent of Fascism, today's occurrences were dominated by the participation of the working men instead of the military.

Italy Needs Peace
ROME, Apr. 22. (AP)—Italy needs, declares and intends to have peace. Those persons who interpret her bellicose terminology applicable to every aspect of the national activity, to mean aggressiveness are shooting far wide of the mark of real intent.

The statement came from a high government official on the occasion of Rome's celebration of its 2,800th birthday today with a pledge of allegiance to Benito-Mussolini as "Caesar of the modern empire."

The government official said rumors of Italy's aggressive attitude were impossible from every point of view. The difference between the ordinary European terminology about governmental affairs and Fascist Italian terminology had warped beliefs as to Italy's view point.

Burn Air in your Motor

Use more AIR—the most economical fuel for your motor! Any motor car owner can get more miles per gallon of Gas by having his carburetor adjusted to take in all the air the motor will stand. So many motors are like the horse which is fed too much hay—he will not eat it all, but he will mull over it and waste it. So it is with the motor that gets too "rich" a mixture of Gasoline—not enough air; it will on an average burn up only about 70% of the gasoline fed to it; the balance is wasted.

The ideal combustible mixture of Gasoline and air is sixteen pounds of air to one pound of Gasoline! It is very fortunate for us that such an inexpensive commodity as air is used so largely in the running of our motors. See that your car runs on as "lean" a mixture of Gasoline with as much air as it will take.

WALL STREET REPORT NEW YORK, April 22. (AP)—The recovery in stock prices which started yesterday, was resumed with increased vigor at the opening of today's market, which was featured by large transactions. Initial gains of one to nearly two points were recorded by Woodworth, Vanadium Steel, Coca Cola, DuPont and Remington Typewriter. Interboro Rapid Transit touched a new 1926 high.

Bullish enthusiasm was created by the Senate's approval of the Italian debt settlement, easy money rates, revival of railroad merger talk and publication of several favorable industrial and railroad earnings reports for the first quarter. Rails continued to lead the advance, early gains of one to two points being recorded by Erie common, Erie preferred, Missouri Pacific preferred, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, "Nickel Plate," Atlantic Coast line and Rock Island. Short covering again accelerated the advance in a number of specialties, South Porto Rican Sugar, Remington Typewriter, Pullman and General Electric moving up 2 to 3 points before the end of the first half hour, General Electric closing 301.

Foreign exchanges opened steady, demand sterling rising around $4.85 and 13-16 and French francs advancing slightly to 3.35 cents.

COTTON MARKETS NEW YORK COTTON NEW YORK, April 22. (AP)—Recent sharp advance in the cotton market were followed by moderate reactions early today. An evident disposition to take profits on recent purchase caused probably some selling on a more hopeful view of the weather outlook as completed weak late cables from Liverpool, reports of a deadlock in the British coal mining dispute and rather more definite talk of Southern mill curtailment.

The market opened steady at decline of two to five points and sold about six to seven points net lower in the first few minutes, but considerable buying developed around 18.75c for May and 17.43c for October, which checked the decline and caused rallies of a few points toward the end of the first hour.

The market sagged off a few points under realizing, but brokers with Wall Street connections were good buyers of early new crop months and prices steadied up again after the publication of the detailed reports showing rains in Texas and parts of the central belt.

May was holding around 18.80c and October 17.51c at mid-day, or about net unchanged to three points higher. The early afternoon market worked off to about 18.53c for May and 17.43c for October under realizing by recent buyers who seemed to be influenced by prospects for better weather in the Southwest. Prices were within two or three points of head figures at net declines about ten to fifteen points.

NEW YORK FUTURES NEW YORK, April 22. (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady May 18.80c; July 18.23c; October 17.47c; December 17.12c; January 17.03c.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON NEW ORLEANS, April 22. (AP)—The cotton market opened easier owing to Liverpool growing better than expected. First trades showed losses of 2 to 5 points, but prices rallied a point or two after the call on rains in the belt, and soon eased off to 18.02c for May, 17.57c for July and 16.72c for October, or six to eight points under yesterday's close. The weather map showed continued bad weather in the belt which was a sustaining influence.

After a brief period of steadiness around the end of the first hour of trading during which active months gained one point over the previous high, the market turned easy with selling based on the unfavorable British news relative to the coal situation in England, and on fears of curtailment due to poor dry goods trade. Towards noon May traded down to 17.90c July to 17.50c and October to 16.83c.

NEW ORLEANS FUTURES NEW ORLEANS, April 22. (AP)—Cotton opened steady. May 16.95c; July 17.60c; October 16.75c; December 16.75c.

Grain Markets

CHICAGO REPORT CHICAGO, April 22. (AP)—Speculation selling on a large scale together with a notable lack of support from buyers led to a sharp early set back in the values today. Opening prices, unchanged to 1 cent lower, May (New) $1.55 1/4 to $1.66 and July $1.45 1/4 to $1.45 1/2, were followed by a pronounced drop all around, May falling to $1.54 1/2 and July $1.42 1/2.

Corn and oats responded to wheat weakness. After opening 1/2c off to 3/4c up, July 78 3/8 to 78 1/2, corn underwent a decline all around to well below yesterday's finish.

Oats started unchanged to 1/4 cent lower, July 43 1/2 to 43 1/4. Later, all months showed a loss.

Provisions were firmer, unflinched by an upturn in the hog market.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT To the voters of Lubbock county: I herewith offer and announce myself as a candidate for the office of County Superintendent of Public Instruction, which office has jurisdiction over only the small towns and rural schools. Contrary to public opinion of many good people who have been misinformed, the County Superintendent has no authority, no legal status, where Lubbock or Slaton, or Idaho city schools are concerned. They are exempt from the County Superintendent's control, having superintendents elected by their city boards.

I have been continually in the service of the rural schools my entire life of sixteen years. I have within my heart a spark of fire that knows no quenching, it seems, that leads on to that goal where I can be of most value to the rural people. I have that yearning desire to be of a larger and fuller service to those with whom I have spent my thirty-eight years, and though I came to this county as a rural teacher as late as 1915, the other part of my life was spent at Rogers, Bell county, Texas, where I lived and taught until I came here. I have within my possession a volunteer instrument of writing two years old signed by every one of the important and influential business and professional men of that town. I would not be false to those men, nor would I cause them to feel embarrassed because of my conduct in a campaign or office, for all the positions in the county.

I sincerely request you to investigate my standing and reputation among the rural schools and people of our county, ask of those who are the constituted authorities of all the schools that will come under my control, then, if you find that I am desirable, dependable, serviceable and capable of rendering a larger and fuller amount of efficient service than has been known among them recently, I shall appreciate your vote.

I consider this office in this light, that it should be called a selection of the best fit man for the place, instead of being sometimes called "a gift of the people."

I pledge that if I am elected, I shall give of my time, both day and night, all that is necessary, to render unto those people the fullest amount of efficient service, and in event my services fall short of what is expected and demanded, I shall get off the job instantly, without any bickering, and help them to get someone who can fill the office brim full. I believe the County Superintendent should take office at the beginning of the school in September as City Superintendents do. More efficient work can be done. If I am elected, I shall turn over the office on that date to my successor. I openly start and will end my campaign.

Triumph Of God Book Big Thrill Publisher Says

SAN FRANCISCO, April 22. (AP)—The greatest thrill that comes to a publisher is to see a good book, after being snubbed early in life, finally with the passing years begin gaining recognition through sheer merit from discerning readers.

So believes Alexander Robertson, who has devoted fifty-six years of his life to the business, and he gives as the basic reason for the thrill the fact that the publisher's literary judgment is verified and a deserving author or scripter reward in fame.

A good book, in his opinion, eventually will win its place although twenty-five or even a hundred years may pass.

Publishing the works of unknown authors is a "personal weakness" in which Robertson has indulged. It is said of him that he never refuses to publish a book with sufficient merit out of fear it might not sell.

Edwin Markham's "Man With the Hoe"; George Sterling's "The Testimony of Suns" and "A Wine of Wizardry"; works of Joaquin Miller, David Starr Jordan, Ambrose Bierce and many others received first publication at the good offices of Robertson.

The Dean of San Francisco bookmen, as he is known, believes the bookworm is vanishing. To the radio, automobile, daily newspapers, weekly and monthly publications and the motion picture he attributes the loss of interest in bound volumes.

More books than ever are being sold today, but he is of the opinion that due to increased population.
