Hurricane veers toward Carolina coast

By BRUCE M. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

CHARLESTON, S.C. — "Dangerous" hurricane Diana gained strength and veered toward North Carolina today, whipping the sea with a pinwheel of 120 mph winds, threatening tides up to 12 feet above normal and prompting beachfront dwellers to move to higher ground.

People on beaches and islands along both the North and South Carolina coasts were urged to evacuate, and coastal residents secured boats, taped windows and stocked up on emergency suplies.

The center of the massive storm, pushing tides of up to 12 feet ahead of it, could hit land between Myrtle Beach, S.C., and Wilmington, N.C., this evening, said the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

"Hurricane Diana is now a dangerous hurricane," the National Weather Service said. "Further strengthening is likely today."

Since Monday, the storm's speed of movement had doubled to 10 mph.

North Carolina officials urged residents of New Hanover, Pender and Brunswick counties to seek higher ground.

"There has been some evacuation going through the night," said Bob Melott, North Carolina deputy secretary of crime control and public safety. "My understanding is most of Sunset Beach has been evacuated because the pontoon bridge there closed early."

Coastal residents and tourists in South Carolina from Georgetown to North Myrtle Beach were asked to voluntarily evacuate and officials reported heavy traffic as people fled. Island ferries prepared to shut down.

"People are paying attention to the voluntary evacuation. There is heavy traffic on the roads," said Catherine Lewis, a spokeswoman for the Horry County, S.C., Emergency Preparedness Office in North Myrtle Beach.

"The roads are just blocked up, all of them," said Wanda Bessent, a worker with Horry County Emergency Preparedness.

At 11 a.m. today, the storm was drifting northward at 10 mph about 75 miles south-southeast of Myrtle Beach, S.C., with the eye at latitude 32.8 north and longitude 78.2 west. Diana's highest sustained winds were 120 mph, and gales extended 125 miles in all directions, the weather service said.

Some isolated tornadoes may occur over parts of northeastern South Carolina and southeastern North Carolina, the weather service said, and heavy rain of 10 inches or more was predicted.

A hurricane warning was in effect from north of Savannah, at Georgia's northern coastal border, to Oregon Inlet, N.C., just south of Kitty Hawk. Gale warnings were posted north to just south of Virginia Beach, Va.

Stu Taber of the Red Cross in Wilmington, N.C., said shelters would be prepared to receive evacuees by nightfall, and that Coast Guard dependents had been evacuated from a station at Caswell Beach.

"We're worried about having to do an evacuation under darkness," said Emerald Isle, N.C. Town Manager James Caldwell.

Coastal residents bought up candles, batteries and medical supplies in preparation.

"We're completely sold out of portable radios and every portable television we have in the place," said Sandy Welden, manager of a department store in Mount Pleasant, S.C.

Diana became the season's first Atlantic hurricane Monday morning after sustained winds passed the 74 mph threshold off Jacksonville, Fla.

Deficit rhetoric continues

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

With his tax-increase plan for cutting federal red ink on the table, Walter F. Mondale is challenging President Reagan "to stop avoiding the deficit issue." But Vice President George Bush says there's no need for Reagan to offer a plan because "the people know where we're coming from."

Bush, campaigning in the South while Reagan continued his break from the campaign, responded to the Democratic presidential candidate's unveiling Monday of a $177 billion package of tax increases and spending cuts designed to slash the budget deficit.

■ Mondale makes proposal; Related stories — Page 4A

"It looks to me like a program for failure and for turning this country back to the economic gloom and doom it was in when we took office," Bush said.

Reagan, who is heading out Wednesday for political events in Buffalo, N.Y., dismissed Mondale's roposals as "nothing new" during a White House photo session.

Bush was going today to Charleston, S.C. — where a hurricane warning was in effect because of Hurricane Diana — before flying to Columbia, S.C., and on to Atlanta.

Mondale revealed his proposal in Philadelphia, and he was hoping to put the president on the defensive as he set out for Chicago and Green Bay, Wis., today to hammer away at the budget issue.

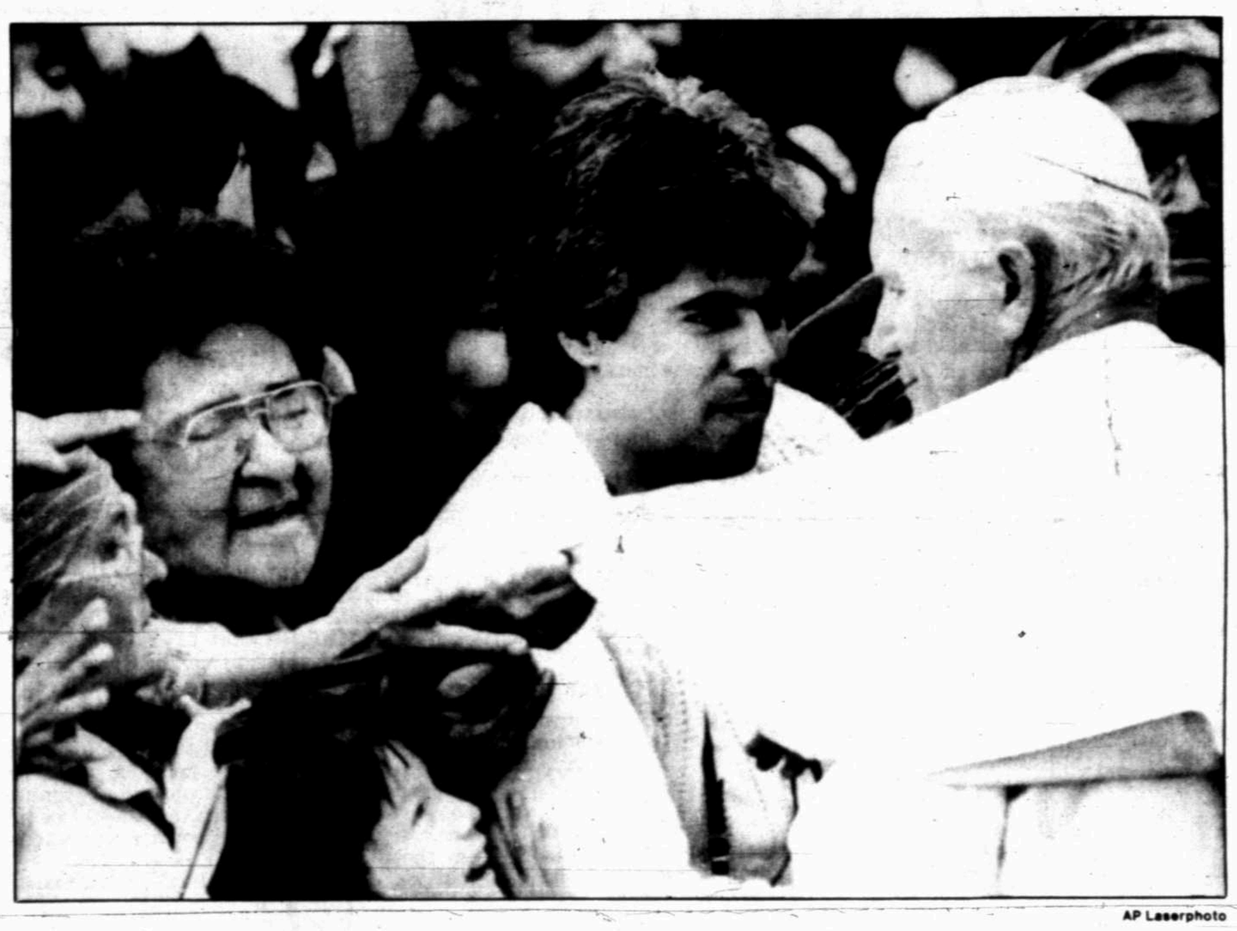

"I challenge Mr. Reagan to stop avoiding the deficit issue and start telling you what he intends to do about it," said Mondale. "Right now, Mr. Reagan, all my cards are on the table — face up.

"Americans are now calling your hand. Let's see it, let's debate it."

Reagan has not offered a similar plan for cutting the deficit. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan belittled Mondale's plan as "budget gimmickry" and said the administration would offer its ideas in the 1986 budget — to be presented to Congress after the election.

Bush, too, said there was no inclination to meet Mondale's challenge and put forward an administration proposal for deficit cutting.

"I don't see any propensity on the president's part to do that," Bush said while campaigning in North Carolina.

Canadian priests urged to face 'crisis of values'

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer

MONTREAL — Pope John Paul II urged Canadian priests today to meet head-on a "crisis of values" gripping this affluent nation.

"We must, more than ever, see to it that the voice of Christianity has a right to be heard in this country," he told 3,000 priests gathered in a landmark Montreal church.

The pope received a jubilant reception from the white-robed clergy at St. Joseph's Oratory. Later in the day, the pope's third of his 12-day Canadian tour, a protest march was planned by a group opposed to his positions on abortion and birth control.

The pontiff arrived in this French-Canadian city late Monday by train from eastern Quebec. He stayed overnight at Montreal Archbishop Paul Gregoire's residence, where throngs of faithful gathered outside early today and serenaded him with songs and cheers.

He then boarded his glass-encased "popemobile" for his first cavalcade through overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Montreal, riding four miles up the slope to Mount Royal, where the great dome of the oratory dominates the cityscape.

The basilica is built at the spot where a humble lay brother, Andre Bessette, is said to have worked miracles early in this century.

The pope prayed briefly at Brother Andre's tomb before addressing the priests, who had come from throughout Quebec, a province where the once-powerful role of the Roman Catholic Church has weakened considerably in the past few decades.

"You have been witnessing ... a deep-seated process of change," the pontiff said. ".... a crisis of values ... a more materialistic, more selfish attitude to life."

He said no priest can stand by silently in such a situation "on the grounds that ours is a pluralistic society, crossed and recrossed by various currents of thoughts, of which many are inspired by scientism, materialism, even atheism."

County considers 'landmark'

The Lancaster House issue brought in a full-house of rahs, boos, claps, cheers and jeers.

But the Midland County Commissioners' Court on Monday declined to be the mediator and the problem-solver in the polarized dispute between the Museum of the Southwest's board of trustees and the Save the Lancaster House Committee.

The museum board is proposing to raze the 47-year-old stone house in order to provide space for future museum expansion. The Save-the-Lancaster-House movement wants to preserve the house due to its cultural heritage and quaintness.

■ Commissioners consider jail standards — Page 1C

They are at loggerheads.

The museum board contends it has no practical use for the house and that it does not fit into the museum's scheme.

"Do you keep a dry hole just because you have sentiment toward the darn thing?" Al Dillard, an oil operator and former president of the 22-member museum board, asked following the confrontation between the opposing forces.

"Why didn't everybody raise hell?" he asked, when Agnes' Restaurant, the old Scharbauer Hotel and other downtown landmarks were torn down in the 1970s.

The museum's executive committee and Save the Lancaster House Committee representatives, including lawyer Harris Kerr, are to meet in the museum's Stables Gallery, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., at 4 p.m. Wednesday to consider viable alternatives to razing the house.

In Monday's session with the commissioners, Kerr, an advocate of the Lancaster House, suggested that the county buy the Lancaster House property for $47,250 — $1.25 a square foot — the value of the "dirt."

He premised the offering on a no-worth value on the house, since, he said, the museum board apparently has no use for the house and is willing to have it razed.

UAW studying GM's job security proposal

By EDWARD MILLER
AP Auto Writer

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union, its contract with General Motors Corp. due to expire at midnight Friday, is studying a job security proposal that the automaker says would protect a "significant portion" of its union workers.

The proposal made Monday addresses the UAW's primary demand that automotive jobs stay in the United States and out of non-union shops, said Chief GM negotiator Alfred Warren.

He released few details, and the union said it would not comment until it closely examined the proposal.

"The proposal is complex and quite lengthy," said chief union negotiator Donald Ephlin. Union spokesman Donald Mitchell said a response probably would come today.

The union has demanded wage increases for its 350,000 workers at GM, but its leaders have said they could call a strike over job security provisions.

Warren said Monday a contract settlement could be reached before midnight Friday.

"We're going to make it," he said.

Warren said the job security proposal would allow GM the "flexibility" it wants, but he would not elaborate. In the past he has used flexibility to mean freedom to farm out parts work to non-UAW shops and to buy hundreds of thousands of cars from Japan and South Korea for sale in America as Chevrolets and Pontiacs.

Warren said the job protection offer would be costly to GM and called it "probably one of the most far-reaching and one of the most important offers we've ever made to the United Auto Workers."

He said the offer would protect a "significant portion" of the union workers at GM, but declined to give a number.

The union has said it wants guarantees the unionized workforce will not drop below 300,000.

An earlier GM job-security proposal was rejected out of hand, as was the company's wage offer, which included $900 in lump-sum payments in the first two years of a three-year contract, but no increase in the basic wage of $9.63 an hour.

Warren said the union probably would have GM's new wage offer by Wednesday.

GM makes a larger percentage of its parts in-house — and thus with union labor — than do Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp., and wants to ship more of its work outside the company.

No formal strike time has been set.

They're ready to strike, would rather work

By SCOTT McCARTNEY
AP Business Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas — Picket schedules and strike signs are ready and workers have stashed away extra food — just in case.

But despite voting overwhelmingly to give union leaders authority to call a strike against General Motors Corp., most workers here would rather stay on the job.

Ellis Black, 26, an assembly line worker, grimaced Monday and said the last thing he wants is to be out of work, again.

He was laid off by GM two years ago in Michigan, moved his wife to Dallas, found another job six months ago at a mid-size GM assembly plant here.

But with the current contract set to expire at midnight Friday, Black is scared.

"My wife and I have a kid on the way now. It seems like we might go out, but I'm hoping not," he said. "I'm worried. But I've done without for a long time, and I guess if we strike, I'll just do without some more."

WEATHER SUMMARY

National Weather Service NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce

AP Laserphoto Map

A wide band of showers is forecast through Wednesday from the Southwest, across the northern Plains to the Northeast and Atlantic coast, according to the National Weather Service. Hurricane Diana is positioned off the Carolinas.

Hot, sunny conditions to continue in Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Sunny skies and hot temperatures will continue in the Midland area, according to forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Tonight will be fair with lows in the upper 60s and winds from the south at 10 to 15 mph.

Wednesday will be hot with highs in the upper 90s and southerly winds at less than 15 mph.

The high for Monday was 99 degrees, only one degree less than the record set in 1964. The record low of 50 set in 1935 was 19 degrees less than this morning's recorded temperature of 69.

STATE

A high-pressure system centered over Texas kept skies mostly clear across the state today, and forecasters predicted conditions to remain sunny and hot, with only some isolated thunderstorms expected later.

The National Weather Service reported some low cloudiness in South Central Texas and portions of the coastal plains, while isolated thundershowers formed offshore in the Gulf of Mexico.

Over the Panhandle and northern High Plains, some high cirrus clouds remained. Winds were generally from the south with speeds averaging between 5 and 15 mph.

Low temperatures remained unseasonably warm over much of the Lone Star State. Readings at 4 a.m. continued to hover mainly in the 70s. Extremes were 82 degrees at El Paso and 57 degrees at Marfa.

NATION

The season's first Atlantic hurricane, Diana, stalked the Southeastern coast today, remaining offshore but forcing residents and officials to prepare for the storm's punch, while flash floods in Nevada killed five members of a family.

In the West, thunderstorms developed amid the moist air carried in by tropical storm Marie, bringing thunderstorms packing hail and high winds to the Phoenix, Ariz., area during Monday's evening rush hour.

The storm itself posed no threat, the National Weather Service said, but moist, unstable air was expected to cover much of the Southwest corner of the country today.

Reagan to meet with Gromyko

By R. GREGORY NOKES
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in his first meeting with a senior Kremlin leader, Republican congressional leaders said today after meeting with the president.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Reagan would announce the meeting himself later today.

Administration officials said the session is scheduled for Sept. 28 at the White House.

Percy said the Soviets' willingness to meet with Reagan indicates that they are convinced the president will be re-elected and that they are ready to deal with the administration.

"I think they felt they might get a better deal" if Democrat Walter F. Mondale defeats Reagan, Percy said. But he said the meeting suggests they don't expect Mondale to win in November.

Rep. Robert H. Michel of Illinois, who was with Percy and other GOP leaders during a morning meeting with Reagan at the White House, said he is "happy to see it come about" because it indicates they realize "they're going to have to deal with him for another four years, and they might as well start talking turkey right off the bat."

At the State Department, meanwhile, a senior analyst said Kremlin leaders are perceived as wanting the meeting out of a belief that they see it as proving to the world Reagan respects the Soviet Union despite his frequently harsh anti-Soviet rhetoric.

"Being received at the White House is a recognition of superpower status," said the official, who spoke only on the condition he not be identified. He said the Soviets may also hope that the talks can help set the stage for a return to arms control talks in a second Reagan term.

The official echoed the belief that the Soviets know a Gromyko visit to the White House could help Reagan in his re-election bid, but that they think Reagan will win anyway.

While another official said the meeting is certain to be seen as reflecting a slight thaw in U.S.-Soviet relations, it also may be viewed as an effort by Reagan to deflect criticism by Mondale that Reagan is the first president in years not to meet with Soviet leaders.

Kenneth Adelman, director of the U.. A$19¾x⅝Qency, said today that tdE meeting "signals the president's real intention to improve our relations with the Soviet Union and get to the important business of arms control."

"The signal from Moscow is that they are seeing, as well as we are seeing, the benefits of really getting into a productive dialogue on arms control," Adelman said during an interview on NBC's "Today" show.

A senior administration official cautioned Monday night against expecting any breakthroughs toward mending the many differences between Moscow and Washington or in setting the stage for a resumption of arms control negotiations.

The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the meeting primarily will be an effort by the president to "see where we are" in relations with the Soviets.

The meeting will follow release of a report next week from the administration about violations by the Soviets of arms control agreements during the last 25 years. The State Department has objected to releasing the report at this time out of concern over its effects on U.S.-Soviet relations.

Gromyko will come to Washington from New York, where he will attend the opening of the United Nations General Assembly. He already is scheduled to meet with Secretary of State George P. Shultz in New York on Sept. 26.

Report on arms control to be issued

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, in a move likely to stir campaign debate, plans to issue a report within a week accusing the Soviet Union of flouting nearly a quarter-century of arms control agreements, administration and congressional sources say.

The report will be sent to Congress and its principal findings made public over the objections of the State Department, which was concerned about the potential impact on strained U.S.-Soviet relations, the sources said Monday.

Conservative Republicans in Congress have been urging the White House to release at least some of the material, initially submitted to Reagan last November. They argued it would expose a "Carter-Mondale coverup" of Soviet violations of the 1972 and 1979 Strategic Arms Limitation Treaties with the United States.

Reagan's White House advisers, led by Robert C. McFarlane of the National Security Council, prevailed, the sources said. The full report will be sent to Congress and a summary of it made public.

Reagan, stressing verification difficulties, has taken a skeptical approach toward dealing with Moscow. His Democratic challenger, Walter F. Mondale, has stressed the dangers of the ongoing nuclear arms race and urged new efforts to reach agreements.

The report was prepared by Reagan's General Advisory Committee on Arms Control and Disarmament. It is primarily a historical study, tracing claimed Soviet violations back to 1961 and the moratorium that preceded the 1963 agreement banning nuclear weapons tests in the atmosphere.

Other allegations range from the deployment of missiles in Cuba to illegal radar installations in central Asia and testing a prohibited intercontinental ballistic missile, the congressional source said.

"The release of the GAC report is in fact a vital necessity to rebut the 1984 Democratic platform on arms control," Sens. John P. East, R-N.C., and Steven D. Symms, R-Idaho, wrote Reagan on Saturday.

Otherwise, they said, "the Carter-Mondale coverup of Soviet violations of SALT I and II remains in effect and has not yet been fully revealed."

Robert Sims, a deputy White House press secretary, confirmed the report would be sent to Congress. He described the advisory committee as "a private independent group."

A White House official, who declined to be identified, said the disagreement within the administration was over "the timing." Otherwise, the official said, there was no question of complying with the wishes of Congress to receive the information in the report.

Kerr suggested that the county buy the house if the museum board would sell it and convert it to a children's library and county museum. He also suggested that the museum lease the house to the county or outright donate it to the county, which, in turn, would be responsible for maintaining the house and grounds. Kerr said the committee has raised $38,727 in pledges in an effort to save the house. That money and more would be given to the county if the county opted to buy the property and if the museum board agreed to sell it to the county.

In a seven-page letter to Midland County Judge Bill Ahders, Kerr noted that the museum's trustees and HBF Corp. "apparently" have reached an agreement by which HBF would demolish the house, which adjoins museum property, at "no cost" but HBF would own salvage rights.

"The obviously are placing no value whatsoever on the residence," Kerr said in the typewritten letter. "...My group and I believe that this (razing) is a terrible waste of a beautiful structure."

In the mid-morning session, Harris told the commissioners that "There just isn't anything wrong (structurally) with the Lancaster House...."

"It's a real monument to that spirit" evidenced by pioneers who built Midland. He cited ranching, farming and oil pioneers.

"I think your idea is excellent," Ahders told Kerr. "I support it completely."

Alva Butler, another Lancaster House supporter, said the house is a premiere landmark.

"I don't know of a finer example of that (cultural anthropology)," Mrs. Butler said. "Why do they wish to tear it down? Suppose all the antebellum homes (in older communities) had been torn down?"

Elizabeth Wright viewed the neighborhood of the museum as "charming" and said the 7,000-square-foot Lancaster House would make a "charming children's library."

MIDLAND HISTORIAN Nancy McKinley, president of the Midland County Historical Society, said she and those of kindred spirit would "be delighted" were the county museum taken out of the basement of the Midland County Public Library and set up in the Lancaster House.

County Librarian John Deats said the house would be impractical as a children's library, that such a move would call for double staffing, would nullify the one-stop concept of the main library and suggested that the house might not have the load-bearing integrity required of a library.

Wilburn Buttery, retired elementary school principal, said he can recall when Naomi Lancaster "encouraged all young people to be involved in Midland's cultural affairs." Mrs. Lancaster and her daughter, Addilee Penn, donated the house to the museum in 1970. Mrs. Lancaster died in 1974.

Though the county commissioners made no decision on buying the Lancaster House property, Museum Board President Terry Wilkinson said, "We would be more than happy to help out in any way" were the county interested in acquiring the property.

"It's something that we'll review at every angle."

She said HBF Corp. estimated that cost of restoring and making the house structurally sound would be $350,000. Kerr said the Save-the-Lancaster-House architects placed similar restoration at less than $200,000.

IN NOTING the two "well meaning" civic groups were at loggerheads, Commissioner Durward Wright noted that the commissioners "didn't ask for this" problem. He asked the groups why they couldn't peaceably resolve their differences "instead of putting on boxing gloves."

Kerr noted that funds are lagging to restore the Lancaster House. The museum board had postponed razing the house until the committee could raise funds to restore the house and propose practical uses for the house in conjunction with the museum.

"If the museum got behind our fund-raising drive, we could raise the money," Kerr said.

Mrs. Wilkinson, however, said the museum might stand to lose its tax-exempt status and "jeopardize the museum as it is."

The museum is housed in the former Fred and Juliette Turner mansion, which, after their deaths, was deeded to The Midland Museum Corp. (Museum of the Southwest) in 1968. In turn, the museum deeded the property to Midland County, which would maintain the property, and the county then leased the property to the museum for a dollar a year for a 50 years.

Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis, who admitted his "bias" in favor of saving the Lancaster house, allowed, "I don't understand why they (the two groups) are not together. Let's get this thing off dead center."

"It's just a bad situation," said Wright. "Some want to tear it down, and some don't."

Mrs. Wilkinson said the museum simply doesn't "have the money" to restore and preserve the rock house and its gardens. She said the house was built as a home, "not a public-use structure," and that space for exhibits would be inadequate.

The dispute heightened.

"They (museum trustees) tolerated us," Elizabeth Wright said of the Save the Lancaster House committee, "but they haven't worked with us."

"I disagree," said Mrs. Wilkinson.

SAID AHDERS: "We all ought to pull together...for the good of the community."

Commissioners C. Wallace "Wally" Craig said that prior to Monday's confrontation he had supposed, "Gee, we're not polarized. That's the second mistake I've made this year."

Commissioner Win Brown asked Kerr why his group didn't approach the City Council to intervene in the dispute.

"Why the county?" Brown asked.

Mrs. Wilkinson got a round of "boos" from Lancaster House supporters when she said the house was uninsureable, "It's a hazard to the neighborhood" and the "roof could fall in."

Moments later, Mrs. Wilkinson agreed that the museum's executive committee would meet with Kerr at 4 p.m. Wednesday to try to resolve the controversy.

"We're reasonable people," Mrs. Wilkinson said. "Hopefully, we're working with reasonable people...We'll try to work it out."

Davis said that the "animosity can grow...if it hasn't already...

"I think it's a shame and a disgrace. It's an embarrassment to me, and it's an embarrassment to you," he said..."If the AFL and CIO can get together, why can't we?"

Dillard urged a stop to the "rattling" by the Lancaster House advocates. The museum board had spent "two agonizing years to come up with a use for that house...We finally decided there wasn't any way," he said.

"I am a little bit tired of it being aired in the newspaper," said Dillard, who said the controversy was between two private groups.

"I think we ought to quit rattling this case."

After Monday's confrontation, Mrs. McKinley allowed the Lancaster House's fate is up to the museum trustees.

"They own the house, and they can tear it down anytime they want."

In the crowded corridor after the meeting, Zane Brazell allowed that "Austin and Fredericksburg would die to have a house like that....

"Midland doesn't have enough old things to look back on its history, anyway," Brazell said.

J.E. Scogin, 56, a plant carpenter and one of the 4,500 United Auto Workers employees at the plant here, has bitter memories of the 1982 concessions contract.

"We'll strike if that's what it takes to get what we want. Most everyone here is really kind of looking forward to getting this resolved," he said.

"I really don't want a strike, but I'm willing to do it if that's what it takes," said Scogin. "The big wheels in this company have been getting all the bonuses and they took away a bunch from us."

Ironically, the popularity of the cars made here — the Chevrolet Monte Carlo and Oldsmobile Cutlass — has made the GM workers more willing to walk out.

The assembly line workers have been pulling nine-hour shifts and six-day weeks for several months, and most say the UAW warned them a long time ago to bank the overtime in preparation for a strike.

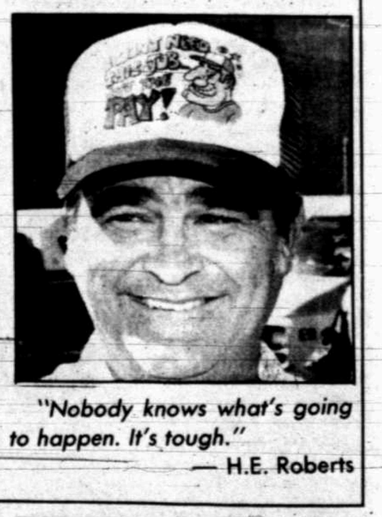

"I've got all my bills paid up and enough money saved to buy a new mobile home," said Joe Clark, 54. "I've got the one I want picked out, and if we don't strike, I'm going right down and getting it."

H.E. Roberts, an assembly line inspector wearing a cap proclaiming "I Don't Need This Job, Just The Pay," said he's saved $4,000 to carry his family through the strike.

"I wish they'd (union and management negotiators) get on with it, or get off the pot," he said. "Nobody knows what's going to happen. It's tough."

As employees changed shifts, they talked of stocking freezers with sale items from the grocery store, of securing temporary jobs and making do with the $85 weekly strike benefits — a far cry from their base wage of $9.53 per hour.

In 1982, when automakers were reeling from the effects of the recession, the UAW, in negotiations with GM, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. agreed to accept no general wage increase, defer cost of living raises and eliminate 10 personal holidays a year.

"Nobody knows what's going to happen. It's tough."

STORM

School was canceled in parts of South Carolina and Georgia, beaches were closed from Florida to North Carolina, rescue boats were towed inland and military planes were flown to safer fields. Banks in Savannah, Ga., closed at 2 p.m. Monday and sent employees home.

Forecasters faced two problems trying to predict Diana's wanderings today.

"One, it's strengthing. Two is the fact that we have very weak steering currents and the motion is rather uncertain," said Hal Gerrish of the Hurricane Center.

"A high pressure area may be building to the north" of the hurricane, he said. "There may be sufficient time for a high pressure area to build. That would tend to retard its northward progress. It certainly could stop and reverse it. That's one of the things we have to watch."

Civil defense officials in Georgia prepared today to help evacuated residents return to the coastal islands after the weather service lifted a hurricane warning, saying in an 8 a.m. bulletin that Diana "no longer represents a threat to that state's coast.

"Everybody can go home," said Arthur King, deputy director of civil defense for Chatham County. He said workers planned to move patients back to nursing homes and remove roadblocks from coastal areas.

About two-thirds of the 1,500 residents of Georgia's Tybee Island, just south of Hilton Head, S.C., had evacuated by Monday night, said Lew Dotson, civil defense director. But those who stayed watched the show.

"I didn't believe it was going to hit to begin with," said Neil Boreham, 35, one of about a dozen people in a tavern on the beach. "Everybody had an attitude where it didn't bother them at all. They just sat down and had a few beers."

HISD head says settlement will let school system get back to work

HOUSTON (AP) — The superintendent of the Houston school district says the settlement ending the 28-year-old Houston school desegregation case will allow the district to form closer partnerships with people in the minority community.

Superintendent Billy Reagan said the settlement signed Monday by school officials and attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund will allow the school system to get back to the work of developing quality educational programs for students.

"I think a lot of good will accrue to the children and to the district," Reagan said.

The five-year agreement, which will cost the district $53.2 million, raises the ratio of minority students in inner city magnet schools to 65 percent from 50 percent.

Although attorneys had reached an out-of-court settlement Aug. 30, NAACP lawyers disagreed with the wording in a section of the 22-page agreement dealing with student transfers.

But during the weekend, lawyers developed compromise wording in the transfer section that tightens the eligibility requirements and requires the district to annually review transfer applications for students not enrolled in magnet schools.

The section also allows students to transfer to schools where they are in the minority from schools where they are in the majority.

The agreement will cost the district $13.2 million its first year of implementation, Reagan said, and $10 million for each of the four years remaining.

The suit was filed by the NAACP in 1956 on behalf of the parents of two black students who wanted their children to attend predominantly white schools closer to home.

Deloris Ross Phelgn signs the desegregation agreement worked out by lawyers for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund and the Houston Independent School District Monday in Houston. Seven arrested in 'symbolic protest' at dump

WILMER (AP) — A "symbolic protest" by some 30 people to stop a caravan of trucks from dumping lead-contaminated soil in a landfill was halted when seven demonstrators, including a Baptist preacher and a city councilwoman, were arrested.

But the dumping resumed Monday after the arrests. The seven were issued misdemeanor citations)or "attempting to block a public passageway," said Dallas County sheriff's spokesman Jim Ewell.

"It was a symbolic protest," said the Rev. Byron Barnes, pastor of the Wilmer First Baptist Church and organizer of the demonstration.

"We believe that dump site is in a flood plain and we were just trying to hold it up until the courts have decided," he said. "It's pretty bad when you don't have the money to fight the big city. This is a tragic time for Wilmer."

Barnes said attorneys for Wilmer have gone to federal court in Dallas seeking an injunction blocking the dumping, which was approved by the Dallas City Council after the county health department proclaimed it safe.

Barnes and his group claim the 30,000 cubic yards of soil dug up from a controversial west Dallas lead smelter would contaminate the water supply in this rural part of Dallas County.

Ewell said the seven were arrested while trying to block the first of eight dump trucks from backing up to a pit just outside the Wilmer city limits.

"As it was preparing to back in to make the drop into the huge pit, about 30 to 35 protestors got behind that truck," Ewell said. "Our task force commander told them they would be subject to arrest if they did not remove themselves within 15 minutes. Five women and two men chose to ignore the warning."

Barnes threatened last week that 100 volunteers would try to block the entrance when dump trucks approached.

Sheriff's deputies were posted along the entrance to keep the passageway open for the rest of the dump trucks, authorities said.

Crime decreases in four major categories statewide

AUSTIN (AP) — Decreases in four of seven categories of major crime pushed the state's crime rate down by 3.7 percent in the first six months of this year, the Texas Department of Public Safety says.

Murder, robbery, aggravated assault and burglary all dropped, while rape, theft and auto theft increased, DPS officials said Monday.

Col. Jim Adams, DPS director, said combined reports from 776 law enforcement agencies in the state indicated a rate of 2,879.8 major crimes per 100,000 people for the first six months of the year, down from 2,989.7 last year.

Adams said the actual number of major crimes reported also dropped.

"A total of 452,825 crimies were reported, amounting to a decrease of almost 1 percent compared to the first half of 1983," Adams said.

"This is a continuation of the trend we saw in 1983, when the number of crimes declined for the first time since 1961," he said.

Court turns down Jewish couple's appeal

AUSTIN (AP) — A state appeals court has affirmed a contempt ruling against a Jewish couple who said their religious beliefs do not allow them to testify against their son.

The Court of Criminal Appeals order on Monday rescinded the bond under which Bernard and Odette Port — whose son is accused of murdering a postal carrier — had been freed.

David Port, 17, is charged in the June 7 slaying of Debra Sue Schatz, 23, who was making deliveries in the the Ports' Houston neighborhood.

On Aug. 21, Bernard and Odette Port refused to answer grand jury questions about the case. A week later, State District Judge I.D. McMaster held them in contempt, freeing them on bond pending the appeal.

The appeals court, without writing an opinion, turned down the Ports' appeal. The ruling came shortly after a prosecutor told the appellate judges that the Ports' religious beliefs were "far outweighed by the public interest in identifying and prosecuting the perpetrator of a heinous crime."

Harris County Assistant District Attorney William Delmore III also said in his brief that the Ports' testimony "is essential and not otherwise available."

The religious grounds raised by the Ports are not applicable to courts of law, only to "religious forums," according to Delmore, who said the Ports' beliefs are "unsupported by religious doctrine."

Jim Lavine, Harris County assistant district attorney, said Monday officials would wait until today before deciding if the Ports will be arrested again.

"Until we see the order out of the Court of Criminal Appeals, we can't take appropriate action," he said. "One way or the other, we're going to do what we can to get them in jail."

In Houston, Randy Schaffer, the Ports' attorney, said Monday he believes the court should not have avoided hearing his clients' case.

"The Court of Criminal Appeals has ignored an important case by their decision today," he said.

Schaffer said he would surrender the Ports to authorities if asked.

Texas has highest murder rate, group says

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas has the highest murder rate of any state in the country and Houston has the second highest of any metropolitan area, according to a study released by a group that lobbies for gun control laws.

Texas ranked first nationally with 14.2 homicides for every 100,000 people, Josh Sugarmann, spokesman for the coalition, said Sunday.

"We're not saying Texans are more murderous than citizens in other states. It's just that with the number of handguns lying around, it's more likely to happen there," Sugarmann said from the group's Washington, D.C., headquarters.

Sugarmann said the five-county Houston metropolitan area had 23.8 murders for every 100,000 people in 1983.

Prison director: Previous TDC planning 'appalling'

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Previous planning by the Texas Department of Corrections has been appalling, resulting in inefficient use of prison units and personnel, says the director of the state's prison system.

Raymond Procunier, director of Texas prisons, told TDC board members at a meeting Monday mismanagement by previous administrations has been a problem for the system.

An 800-bed unit at a new Wynne facility near Huntsville is vacant, said Procunier, adding that he did not even have enough personnel to staff it. At the Beto Unit, he said, another cellblock is also vacant.

The new Ellis II facility near Huntsville can be staffed "just by luck" by shuffling workers, he said.

Procunier said some units are impractically designed. Only 195 prisoners can be fed at one time at a facility holding 1,000 inmates, he said, thus adding to the problem of inmate violence.

"I would become upset if you got me up at 2 a.m. for breakfast and at 11:30 at night for dinner," he said

Also at their meeting Monday, Dr. Arnold Start, TDC medical director, said he would investigate the case of two apparently contradictory autopsy reports.

Board member Harry Whittington, waving a photocopy of a story from the Galveston Daily News, said Short should discuss the discrepancies found in the two autopsies.

The two autopsies were performed on Barry Wayne Edwards who died July 7, 1983. TDC reports show Edwards died of viral pneumonia with focal viral meningitis. A second autopsy requested by family members showed the 20-year-old inmate died of cocaine poisoning.

Procunier also told board members Monday he "panics every week" when he sees inmate census figures, which show the prison population steadily climbing despite efforts to hold it down.

"It could be a freak of nature, but it's continuing to go up every month now during a time, in my experience, when the population goes down," Procunier said.

"Big decisions have to be made" when the board receives the new corrections department budget at a special meeting next month, Procunier said.

A comprehensive inmate grievance plan was passed by the board Monday. The plan would pay for itself, officials said, and would encourage good faith between inmates and the corrections department.

"In order for disciplinary procedures to work, this is essential," Procunier said.

The new grievance system — in effect since Sept. 1 — provides that an inmate experiencing a probem may discuss the issue with a grievance coordinator at the prison unit. The warden at the unit will decide on the grievance, which can be appealed to a regional grievance coordinator.

That decision may be appealed to a chief regional coordinator in Huntsville. The grievance can be taken to court if the inmate still believes he has a problem.

"This gives a way for a prisoner to appeal," Procunier said.

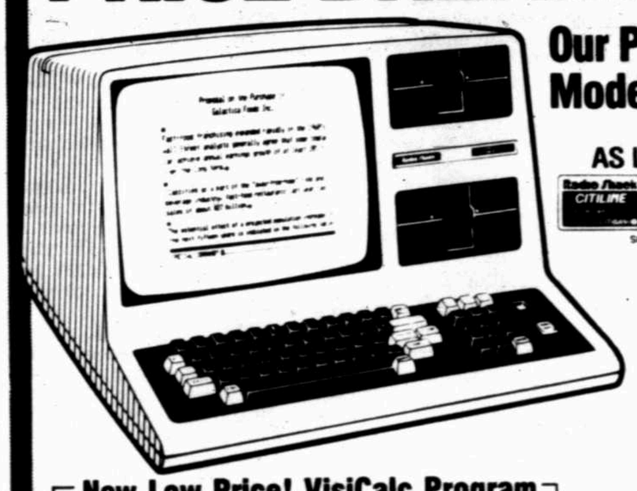

Inmates would see the local grievance coordinator as a problem-solver and a source of information from inmates to the wardens, prison officials said.

With the nation's second largest inmate population, Texas prisons now hold 35,700 inmates, up 570 in the last three months. Ninety percent of the 39,658 prisoner capacity has been reached.

The department must inform the governor when inmate levels rise to 94 percent. Population rollbacks must begin if that figure climbs to 95 percent.

Ferraro dogged by abortion issue

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Just when she was getting the questions about her family finances behind her, Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro finds herself dogged by the abortion issue and challenged by a leader of her own Catholic Church.

The New York congresswoman talked by telephone Monday with John J. O'Connor, the New York archbishop who said this weekend she may "have a problem with the pope" because she had misrepresented the church's position on abortion.

Both came away from the conversation saying the half-hour talk was pleasant, but they were standing by their positions.

Ms. Ferraro, a Catholic who says she opposes abortion but supports a woman's right to choose to have one, said she told the archbishop he was wrong. O'Connor said he still thinks she has misrepresented the teachings of her church.

"I explained to the archbishop that I supported the right of everyone to speak out on the important issues of the day," she said in a written statement issued to reporters afterward. "When bishops speak out, they are doing their duty as church officials."

When she speaks out, Ms. Ferraro said she told O'Connor, she is likewise doing her duty as a public official.

"And my foremost duty as a public official is to uphold the United States constitution which guarantees freedom of religion," she said. "I cannot fulfill that duty if I seek to impose my own religion on other American citizens."

After celebrating Mass in a Manhattan church the head of the New York archdiocese told reporters, "The tone of the conversation was very, very amiable. There was no hostility on either side."

But O'Connor added, "I think that she has misrepresented the teaching of the Catholic Church."

Asked what statements he was referring to, O'Connor said he had seen a cover letter written by Ms. Ferraro to some 50 members of Congress in 1982 in which O'Connor said she wrote that the church's position on abortion can be open to options.

O'Connor did not produce the letter. In her statement, Ms. Ferraro said she understood which letter O'Connor was referring to, but repeated that she had "never made a public statement" misrepresenting church teachings.

Ms. Ferraro was one of the signers of the 1982 letter written on behalf of a group called Catholics for Choice concerning a briefing on the abortion issue. The letter said that "the Catholic position on abortion is not monolithic and that there can be a range of personal and political responses to the issues."

Geraldine Ferraro and her daughter, Donna Zaccaro, listen at the Portside Festival Marketplace In Toledo, Ohio.

Ms. Ferraro was on a three-day campaign swing through the industrial Midwest today, appealing to blue-collar and ethnic workers who deserted the Democrats in 1980 for Ronald Reagan.

She was visiting a local school to meet with ethnic families before heading on to Flint, Mich., which has a 16.7 percent unemployment rate, to discuss the budget deficit.

Ms. Ferraro continues to be greeted at almost every campaign stop by a dozen or more anti-abortion demonstrators who sometimes interrupt her remarks with heckling.

But despite the controversy surrounding her abortion views, she appeared bouyed by the large, enthusiastic crowds that greeted her at every stop Monday. She was accompanied by her daughter, Donna, 22, and her husband, John Zaccaro, whose initial refusal to release his tax return dominated the first two weeks of her campaign.

In her public remarks Ms. Ferraro alluded to the religious controversy without mentioning it specifically. Referring to the Supreme Court, where five justices are in their late 70s and may be replaced in the next four years, she said:

Mondale to focus on deficit theme

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now that Walter F. Mondale has disclosed his plan for cutting deficits, he's heading out on the campaign to hammer away at his theme that it's time President Reagan said what he will do about the red ink.

Mondale planned to concentrate on the deficit issue on a trip today that was opening in Chicago and going on to Wisconsin, Iowa, Mississippi, Missouri and Michigan. He returns to Washington on Friday.

Aides said the Democratic presidential nominee would discuss the impact of high deficits on trade during a tour of a machine tool manufacturers trade show in Chicago.

Mondale's deficit-reduction plan, which he unveiled at a news conference Monday in Philadelphia, included tax increases that would generate $46 billion in new tax revenues from upper income families, $25 billion from businesses and another $14 billion from closing loopholes and retaining miscellaneous taxes that otherwise would expire.

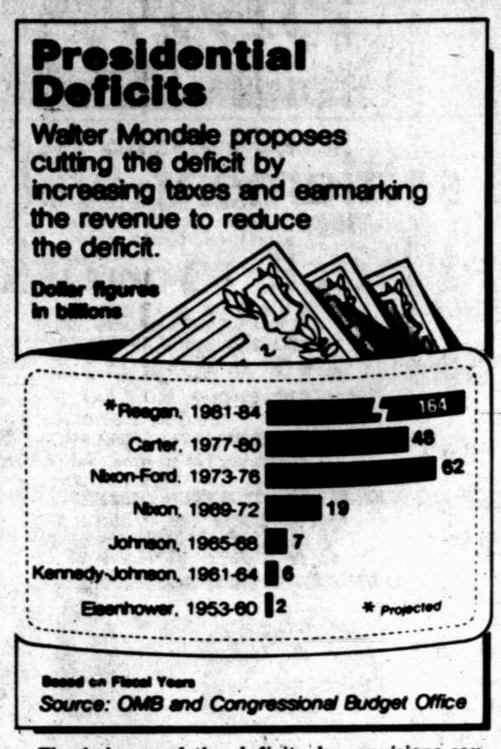

The former vice president said all the new tax revenue would be put into a trust fund for use exclusively in reducing the deficit.

"I challenge Mr. Reagan to stop avoiding the deficit issue and start telling you what he intends to do about it," said Mondale. "Right now, Mr. Reagan, all my cards are on the table — face up."

In another jibe at the president, Mondale said, "You can't hide your red ink with any more blue smoke and mirrors."

The $177 billion deficit-cutting plan also includes a net of $24 billion in spending cuts — $54 billion in cuts partially offset by $30 billion in restoration of some of Reagan's budget reductions. The cuts include $25 billion from Reagan's defense buildup; $12 billion from a plan to hold down health care increases; and $4 billion from farm programs.

The $30 billion in add-ons would go for programs such as education, the environment and school lunches.

The balance of the deficit plan envisions savings of $51 billion in lower interest costs on the national debt, the result of a presumed decrease in interest rates, and another $17 billion resulting from a healthier economy.

The deficit also was a major theme of new 30-second television commercials the Mondale campaign began running nationwide on Monday.

One of the spots shows a roller coaster racing downhill as the narrator says, "Nineteen eighty-two. Reaganomics sinks our country into the deepest recession and unemployment in 50 years. Now Ronald Reagan says the economy is moving up."

The roller coaster begins heading uphill.

"It is," says the narrator "up on a mountain of debt and Reagan deficits...more borrowing than all the other presidents in history combined. That will drive interest rates up, slow the economy down."

The final scene shows the roller coaster plunging downhill.

Another spot shows the U.S. Treasury and people heading down the steps carrying briefcases.

"In this building, Mr. Reagan's people are borrowing the money that's putting each of us $18,000 into debt," says the narrator. The voice goes on to say the people walking away with the money are the 90,000 profitable corporations that pay no taxes, defense contractors on bloated budgets and foreign interests making money on the U.S. debt.

As the people are shown getting into limousines, the narrator says, "What the deficit means is you're paying for their free ride. But in November, you can stop it."

One of the commercials deals with U.S. relations and shows a conference table. The seats are empty. One place is marked with a small U.S. flag, across from it is a small Soviet flag.

"It's been four years," says the narrator "and Ronald Reagan hasn't met even once with the leader of the Soviet Union. The tough talk, the political rhetoric — that's one thing. But no talk — that's dangerous."

Don Foley, a spokesman for Mondale campaign, said the commercials were running on all three major commercial networks, but he refused to say how much money was being spent to air them. He described that as "strategic information."

GOP lambasts Mondale's proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans lambasted Walter F. Mondale's $177 billion budget deficit reduction package, but Mondale's fellow Democrats applauded the plan and are now challenging President Reagan to reveal an equally detailed program to eliminate red ink.

"Today we saw the contrast between the two nominees for president," House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Monday. "Mr. Mondale gave us a budget, Mr. Reagan gave us a photo opportunity."

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex., also endorsed the plan and praised the "candor of Mr. Mondale in presenting a clean-cut, precise, unambiguous program for reducing the deficits."

Wright said that if President Reagan does not like what Mondale has presented, then it is his "clear responsibility" to come up with his own program to reduce the federal expenses by an equivalent amount.

Proposal contains "enough fiscal fertilizer...to send the deficit shooting up like Jack's beanstalk."
— Robert Michel, House GOP leader

However, House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois said the Mondale proposal contains "enough fiscal fertilizer...to send the deficit shooting up like Jack's beanstalk."

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan offered the most detailed administration response to the plan, saying it would cost a minimum of $1,000 in higher annual taxes for the average family in 1989 in order to raise the $85 billion in tax increases Mondale has proposed.

"I think it's budget gimmickry," Regan told reporters at a news conference. "He is relying on a tried and true Carter-Mondale principle — spend more, tax more, lean on the Federal Reserve to pump up the money supply to inflate the money supply to gain more taxes."

Mondale's program, released Monday in Philadelphia, calls for a $177 billion reduction in projected federal budget deficits in 1989. It would include $85 billion in tax increases and spending reductions of $54 billion. Those would be offset by restoration of about $30 billion in Reagan budget cuts.

Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., said he thought Mondale "demonstrated a lot of courage, backbone and guts in laying out his plan. The president ought to lay his cards on the table," he told reporters.

Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., called the program "a realistic and constructive approach to bringing the deficit under control."

"I congratulate (Mondale) for being open and honest with the American people about the hard choices he is willing to make to reduce the deficit by two-thirds. It leaves us wondering what, if anything, President Reagan might do if re-elected to tackle this very serious problem."

Republican reviews of Mondale's plan were more critical.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, chairman of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, said, "I doubt many Democrats will touch the Mondale plan with a 10-foot pole."

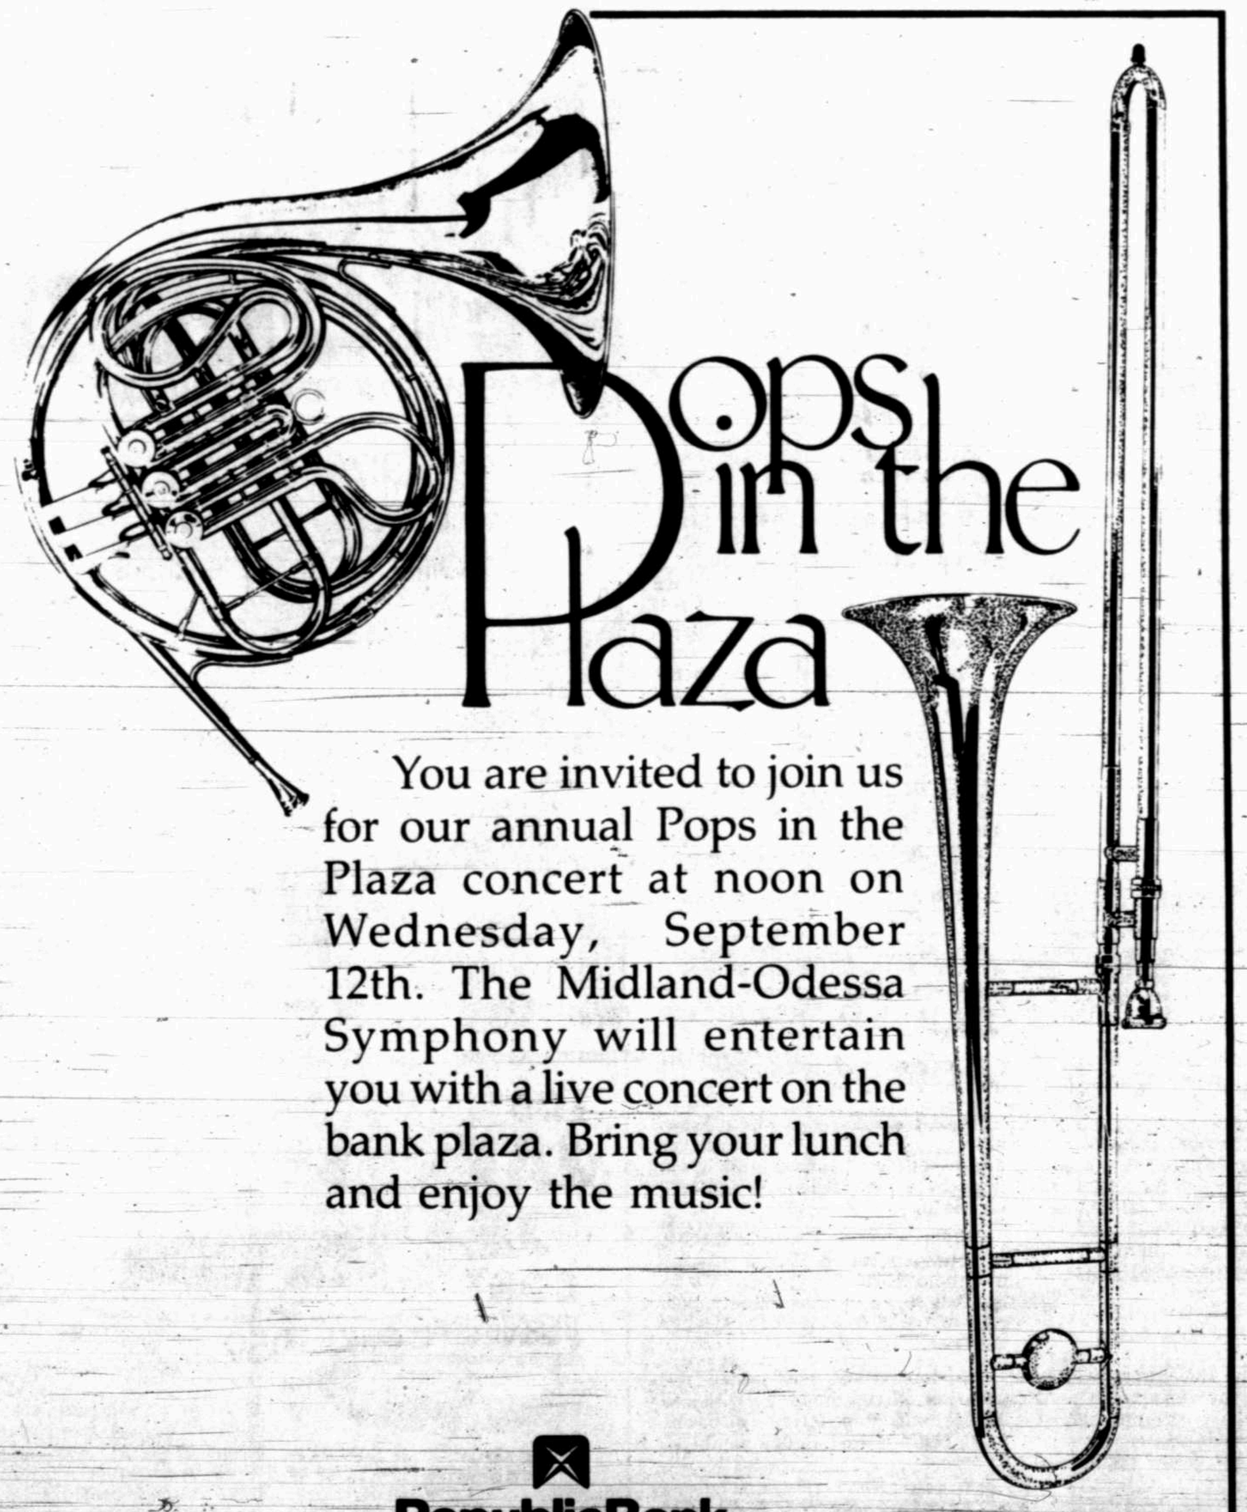

"About one-third of all taxpayers will face higher taxes from the proposal to limit indexing, which protects taxpayers from automatic tax increases each year." Dole said. "There is nothing in this plan that would excite the American voter unless thay want higher taxes."

Rep. Barber Conable, R-N.Y., ranking Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, said, "We can't raise $85 billion without hitting the average American taxpayer.

Because of you

United Way of Midland kicked off its fall campaign Monday and during coming weeks Midlanders will be hearing more about the organization and its fund-raising effort. Most Midlanders will be encouraged to joint the effort by pledging a sum of money to this year's drive.

That's where the effort crashes to a halt for a number of people. They simply are turned off by a request for money. And that sentiment is fully understandable in today's economic realities.

Before saying "no" to United Way, though, Midlanders should strongly consider what they're rejecting. The United Way structure is merely an umbrella fund-raising organization for 22 local agencies that, in turn, provide valuable services to residents of the Tall City. They're organizations such as the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, American Cancer Society and American Red Cross, the Salvation Army, Midland Rape Crisis Center, Community Day Nursery, Palmer Drug Abuse Program and much, much more.

You see, when you talk about United Way of Midland you aren't talking about some unfeeling, uncaring bureaucracy far from home. You're talking about neighbors. The people you go to school and church with and who you wouldn't mind helping in a time of need because they don't mind helping you.

If you say no to United Way, you're really saying no to your friends and neighbors because, chances are, any number of people you know use the services of United Way's 22 member agencies.

Providing for the needs of those 22 agencies is a tall order, but it's one the United Way volunteers in Midland tackle fearlessly year after year. Likely that's because they know Midlanders have a stellar reputation for extending a helping hand to those around them.

This year's need is great. The United Way goal is $1.95 million, an increase of 7.9 percent over the $1.81 million raised in last year's campaign. Soon someone will be contacting you to ask for a pledge.

Before you reply, consider who your dollars would help.

Colder days coming

Any belief that the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) is a sovereign nation was dispelled when a proposed trip to the Federal Republic of Germany by the East German leader, Erich Honecker, was postponed.

The journey, scheduled for Sept. 26-29, was desired by both Honecker and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, but the leaders in the Kremlin who hold veto power said, "Nyet."

Two fears moved the Soviets to nip in the bud the blossoming relations between the divided Germanys. One is historical. Closer links between the two nations look to Moscow like the Great Patriotic War — World War II in the West — all over again: a resurgent Germany ganging up on Mother Russia and wiping out another 20 million people.

The other fear, which also stems from historical factors, is more rational.

When Stalin, Churchill and FDR met at Yalta during World War II, everyone promised free elections for the liberated and soon-to-be liberated countries of Europe. Somewhere between then and the war's end that idea was forgotten and instead the Soviets achieved what they always wanted: a barrier of captive nations between itself and nations like England and France. The world got a divided Europe.

When the two Germanys start making sounds about reunification, Moscow reacts. Reunification would threaten the status quo, the precarious equilibrium between NATO and the Warsaw Pact nations which has kept the postwar peace, but at the cost of millions of people in subjugation. Reunification also would threaten the stability of the Warsaw Pact countries, of which East Germany is the most important member.

Postponement of the trip — signals emanating from East Germany indicate it may take place later — bodes ill for more than just inter-German relations. Soviet pressure against Honecker's journey indicates the Kremlin sees no gain in closer relations of any sort with the West. If so, both the West and the East may be in for a period of tension unseen since the Cold War.

Another View:

Remember 'the sage'

Throughout his political career Walter Mondale has embraced, like a she-bear her cub, the concept that the federal government's function is to help those whom it deems worthy of help.

Mondale's endorsement of an industrial policy that would in effect determine what businesses would get federal aid reaffirms his government-knows-best philosophy.

His political philosophy clashes with that of another Democrat, who called for "a wise and frugal government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned."

That's what Thomas Jefferson said in his First Inaugural Address.

Mondale's industrial policy would not leave men "free to regulate their own pursuits of industry." His promise to raise taxes and cancel indexing of taxes to inflation would, perforce, take even more bread "from the mouths of labor" than it already does.

Lest Mondale forget, Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence, was the third U.S. president and is the same "Sage of Monticello" whom the Democratic Party honors as its most articulate philosopher at those annual Jefferson Day dinners.

In his name, banquets; for his philosophy of government, not a bone.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 11, the 255th day of 1984. There are 111 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 11, 1777, forces under Gen. George Washington were defeated by the British in the Battle of Brandywine near Wilmington, Del. Washington's troops were forced back into Philadelphia, which fell to the British.

JACK ANDERSON

Mexican group tied to Nazis

WASHINGTON — The heart of Latin American death squad activity beats most strongly in Guadalajara, Mexico. This is the conclusion of knowledgeable sources interviewed by my associates Dale Van Atta in Washington and Jon Lee Anderson in Mexico, Honduras and El Salvador.

Jack Anderson

The first clue came last year when an admitted Honduran death squad member told Anderson that his group and others like it received direction from Mexico. He identified the coordinating organization as CAL, the initials of the World Anti-Communist League's Latin American affiliate.

After my report was published, the league belatedly kicked CAL out of the international body. The league's U.S. head, retired Army Gen. John Singlaub, told my office CAL had "knowingly promoted pro-Nazi groups" and was "virulently anti-Semitic." As my investigation has revealed, that was putting it mildly:

— CAL has been directed by a secret order called Los Tecos, based in Guadalajara. The secret society grew out of a right-wing, counter-revolutionary force known as Los Cristeros during the Mexican revolution early in this century.

— Los Tecos was linked with Hitler's Third Reich when one of its leaders spent time in Berlin studying the Nazi regime. He then infused Los Tecos with a dogma that made enemies of Jews, Jesuits and communists — with a bit of medieval-Nordic mythology thrown in for good measure.

Though some Catholic priests and students initially applauded Los Tecos' conservatism, the group's bizarre religious rites led to a schism with Catholics in the 1950s.

— CAL-Tecos propaganda, published in their magazine, Replica, went clearly around the bend with weird stories about Jews, witches, drug addicts and homosexuals taking over the Vatican. During his visit to Mexico, Pope John Paul II was elevated by these propagandists from a homosexual drug addict to the anti-Christ.

— A league official described his ousted ex-colleagues in Guadalajara as "extremely bizarre and very crazy." He said the World Anti-Communist League had linked Los Tecos' anti-Semitic publishing efforts to neo-Nazi writers and translators in Europe and this country.

In fact, books such as "Mein Kampf," "The Great Jewish Conspiracy," "The International Jew" and "The Protocols of the Elders of Zion" abound in Guadalajara.

— Los Tecos exerts behind-the-scenes control of the Autonomous University in Guadalajara, which was funded partly by the U.S. government and private U.S. foundations in the 1960s. Former Los Tecos members say the group obtains funds through grants and scholarship money given to the university and laundered for Los Tecos' "political" activities.

— Though Jews are obviously not encouraged to attend the university, one Jew, now a respected Mexican academic, infiltrated both the university and the secret society in 1978 using phony credentials. He found that they were "distributing their own (pro-Nazi) texts instead of the obligatory government-provided textbooks," and he was appalled at a youth rally reminiscent of a Hitler Youth spectacle, complete with swastika armbands on uniforms.

— Los Tecos tries determinedly to convert the university students to its brand of bigotry. And while the national university in Mexico City is so chaotic that few students ever get their degrees, the one in Guadalajara has security guards to keep order, so it is possible for the neo-Nazis to graduate.

Footnote: The Mexican government for some reason looks the other way when Los Tecos misbehaves, though the society's presence in Guadalajara is hardly a secret.

My associate, Anderson, was firmly warned against trying to investigate Los Tecos in Guadalajara because the leaders are known to be unpredictable and extremely violent.

TAXPAYERS' QUIZ: I have prepared another Taxpayers' Quiz on the federal deficit — which is draining the economy of its vitality. The title of today's quiz is, "What Has Caused the Deficit?" The answers appear at the end.

1. When does a deficit occur?
2. Why does a deficit occur?
3. How much has the deficit increased in the past 21 years?
4. Did the deficit grow because taxes were lowered?
5. Then what has caused our mushrooming deficit?

Answers: 1. When the government spends more than it takes in. 2. Either the government collects too little or spends too much. 3. From $7.1 billion in 1962 to $195 billion in 1983, an increase of 28 times. 4. No, taxes were increased over the 21-year span. 5. The government has grown bigger and spent more.

EYE ON THE ECONOMY: Reagan administration officials are predicting that the economy will go bust if Walter Mondale is elected this November. But some government economists believe the same is true no matter who is elected, because of the $180 billion federal deficit.

According to an internal government memo: "The full impact of the $180-$200 billion budget deficits probably will not be felt until the beginning of 1985. At that time, a short recession may begin, but it is not expected to change the generally optimistic five-year outlook ...."

EVANS & NOVAK

What's this? Percy turning leaf!

CHICAGO — Whether Sen. Charles H. Percy — for two decades the Midwest exemplar of liberal Republicanism — can convince Illinois conservatives that he is a born-again Reaganite will decide his survival in his fourth and toughest campaign for the Senate.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Early reluctance to move rightward has vanished. He spares no adjective in lavishing praise on Ronald Reagan, whose 1976 presidential candidacy was greeted by Percy as "the beginning of the end for our party." He sounds as anti-tax as Jack Kemp, as anti-communist as Jesse Helms. He fires an unrelieved barrage on liberal positions of his opponent, Rep. Paul Simon.

Nothing could testify more clearly to the polarization of American politics and the death of liberal Republicanism. Chuck Percy, who emerged nationally a generation ago as Nelson Rockefeller's cohort, at age 65 has ended hostilities with the Republican Right.

But the Right is not yet reciprocating. "We just do not consider Chuck trustworthy," a prominent Illinois conservative told us. He and his associates believe that Percy, once elected to possibly his last six-year term, will revert to liberal form. Such conservatives talk of throwing votes to the Libertarian Party nominee if Republican control of the Senate seems assured as the election nears (with Sen. Helms succeeding Percy as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee).

What makes even fragmentary defections dangerous is Percy's loss of his old base. Jewish support left him long ago because of his courageous, evenhanded Mideast posture. Blacks and labor leaders have abandoned Percy, facing his first liberal Democratic challenger.

Moreover, 20 years in elective politics have not softened Percy's image as the quintessential North Shore millionaire. If Percy is a difficult man to love, Paul Simon is one of the state's most likable poltical figures. A southern Illinoisan, he threatens the normal Republican downstate vote.

Accompanying Percy last week on a campaign swing into northwestern Illinois, we encountered less enthusiasm than complaints about his Senate office's constituency service. Applause as he marched in Monmouth's annual parade was meager. A few days earlier, Libertarian candidate Steve Givot had been cheered while marching in the conservative Chicago suburb of Schaumburg.

Percy's response is to grab tightly onto President Reagan's coattails, personal and ideological. At a fund-raiser at the Monmouth Country Club, he opposed tax increases because "the best way to get new revenue is the economic recovery." He defended the B-1 bomber instead of waiting for a Stealth bomber, asking: "Are the Russians going to wait that long? Maybe not."

Asked about the new supply-side, anti-Soviet Percy, a skeptical Monmouth party regular told us: "It's a matter of geography" — that is, trying to please that conservative corner of rural Illinois. But in Chicago two days later at the Sun-Times debate with Simon, he sang precisely the same song.

Indeed, one of the congressional conservative Young Turks, Rep. Newt Gingrich of Georgia, is providing the Percy campaign with research material that finds its way into the senator's speeches. Gingrich believes Percy has genuinely seen the light – as witness his flight to Washington to vote for school prayer, a proposal he once opposed.

Besides embracing Reagan, Percy after 20 years of being bashed as a liberal has turned into a liberal-basher himself. In the Chicago debate, he so relentlessly asserted that Simon's southern Illinois constituents "would be aghast" if they knew how truly liberal he was that Republican Gov. Jim Thomspon left commenting that Chuck should lighten up a little.

However, Percy's television and radio spots emphasizing Simon's liberal voting record are credited with the senator's jump to a seven-point lead in the polls. Simon in response taunts Percy for "flip-flopping" while not venturing a full-throated ideological attack against Reagan or Reaganism, nor ever mentioning Walter F. Mondale.

CHARLEY REESE

Professor cites gun deterrence

Paradoxically for what calls itself an information society, three of the most difficult things to find these days are facts, unbiased research, and appeals to reason. Nowhere is this paradox more evident than in the hysterical ravings of those opposed to the private ownership of handguns.

Charley Reese

Dr. David J. Bordua is a professor of sociology at the University of Illinois in Champagne-Urbana. He received his doctorate in sociology from Harvard in 1957. Twenty years ago he began to research the issue of gun ownership because, having stumbled over some anti-gun literature, he found the claims so hard to credit.

What follows are excerpts from an interview with Dr. Bordua published in the National Rifle Association's "Monitor." I think you will see some information which contradicts the propaganda of the anti-gun crowd.

On the attitude of anti-gun people, Dr. Bordua said:

"For a long time, the academic research community had a predominantly uncritical and accepting attitude toward gun control policies ... I found a prevailing but often unspoken attitude among some research experts which in essence said, 'Guns are bad and America is sort of vulgar. Everyone has big cars and big guns and if only we could act more like Englishmen things would be so much nicer and safer.' As it turns out, the frontier was a lot less dangerous than Detroit is now."

On why people want guns.

"It's simple. They're scared. After conducting survey after survey, it dawned on me that it is the government's inability to control crime that is producing and promoting firearm ownership, particularly handgun ownership."

Does private ownership of guns deter crime?

"... we seriously question that you're much more likely to injure a loved one yourself. We point out (in a published article) that armed home owners have a much better chance of defending themselves and their property than unarmed victims ... in a survey conducted at Menard Correctional Center in Illinois, convicts in prison for armed robbery unanimously agreed that the handgun ban in Morton Grove would do absolutely nothing to curb crime, but would make things easier for them. Another survey conducted in 1978 showed that 15 percent of gun-owning U.S. households had used a firearm for self-protection. Unpublished but available FBI data from 44 of the nation's largest cities indicate that private citizens seem to use guns to legally shoot criminals as often as the police do. The data, from 1978 to 1982, show there were 1,309 justifiable killings of felons by police and 1,108 by private citizens. My research and research by other sociologists and researchers, including Gary Kleck, James Wright and Don Kates Jr., has indicated to me that owning a gun can be an important personal crime deterrent."

What about passion killings?

"Study after study has shown that the 'passion killer' is generally known to police before the actual killing happens because of previous disturbances. Research has made it clear that most passion killings are committed by violent personalities. So they are not just the regular citizen transformed to murderer by the mere presence of a gun."

What do you see as the solution to violent crime?

"Well, certainly it has to come from within our system of justice. There must be swifter penalites for criminals. The people's trust in our country's judicial system is severely eroded, and how can it be anything else when a burglar in this country has an 0.9 percent chance of getting a median jail term. The issue of gun control is something akin to putting the cart before the horse."

There you have it from a Harvard Ph.D.

The Wright study he referred to involved extensive interviews with prisoners. It found, for example, 75 percent of criminals avoid occupied dwellings for fear of being shot and 60 percent feared armed citizens more than they feared the police.

If you believe in the right to life, you should believe in the right to own a handgun.

Man charged with murdering eight people on boat

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — A man charged with murdering eight people two years ago on their fishing boat attended the victims' memorial service and was in a picture on their mantle, said a friend who described the suspect as "a real pleasant guy."

John Kenneth Peel, 24, was arrested Monday and held on $1 million bond in the killings aboard the 58-foot Investor, a salmon boat on a fishing trip to Alaska when it burned to the waterline in September 1982 with a couple, their two children and four others aboard.

Authorities had determined that Investor owner and skipper Mark Coulthurst, 28, of Bellingham and his wife, Irene, 28, had been shot in the head as the boat lay anchored in the fishing community of Craig, Alaska.

Wearing a ski mask and bullet-proof vest for security reasons, Peel was arraigned Monday. A hearing was scheduled for Oct. 9 at which time a decision on extradition is expected.

"The arrest is a product of checking out all of the possible investigative leads, everything we've had," said Paul Edscorn, a spokesman for state troopers in Anchorage, Alaska. "Basically, it's the result of two years of investigation."

During that time, troopers received phone tips "from more than one person" that they look at Peel in their investigation, said Sgt. James Stogsdill, the Alaska state trooper in charge of the investigation.

While declining to elaborate on the evidence against Peel, Stogsdill said it comprises a "three-pronged case" including physical and circumstantial evidence and eyewitness accounts.

Stogsdill said authorities have no motive for the murders.

In Canada, Ketchikan District Attorney Mary Anne Henry said Monday that four witnesses who identified Peel from photographs said they saw him rowing a skiff from the vessel as it burned.

She said a sixth witness told authorities that Peel bought two 2.5-gallon jugs of gasoline on the day of the fire. Investigators believe gasoline was used to burn the boat.

Edscorn said Peel was a crew member on the Investor in 1981 and was working in Craig when the Coulthursts and their crew were slain.

Peel "always seemed like a real pleasant guy," said Caroleann L'Hirondelle, a friend of the Coulthurst family.

She said Peel had paid his respects to the family and attended a memorial service for the victims. The Coulthurst family had a picture of the Investor crew, including Peel, on its mantlepiece, she said.

"He came to the house to say, 'I'm really sorry,'" she said. "If he did do it (the killings), what kind of jerk is that? It makes me sick."

Investigators said the victims were killed the night of Sept. 5 while the Investor lay at anchor 60 miles northwest of Ketchikan.

Edscorn said the boat was moved early Sept. 6 and an attempt was made to scuttle it. Then, behind an island not far from Craig, the Investor and its grisly cargo were set afire Sept. 7.

Besides the Coulthursts, Peel is charged with killing their children, Kimberly, 5, and John, 4; Michael Steward, 19, of Bellingham; Jerome Keown, 19, and Dean Moon, 19, both of Blaine, Wash.; and Chris Heyman, 18, of San Rafael, Calif.

The bodies were burned beyond recognition in the blaze. In a presumptive death hearing last month, a Ketchikan coroner's jury ruled all eight aboard the fishing boat had been killed.

Peel was working on a fishing vessel in Craig at the time of the deaths, Edscorn said.

"He had served as a crew member for Coulthurst in 1981, and he may have been in 1980, I don't know," Edscorn said. "In 1982, he was a crew member on another boat in Craig at the time of the homicide."

Earlier, investigators had ruled out drugs and robbery, and said the killings may have been sparked in the heat of a fight.

There were persistent reports that a skiff with one person aboard was seen leaving the Investor soon after the fire started. The skiff was later found tied up in Craig.

"I was one of those who saw him, the guy in the skiff, when we were down at the dock watching the fire," said Lee Axmaker, mayor of Craig. "He was a cool character. He came up, talked to a few people, made a telephone call and left."

Woman marries son given up for adoption

CHARLOTTE, Tenn. (AP) — A woman who was charged with felonious criminal incest for marrying her son 17 years after she gave him up for adoption told him she "did not want another woman to have him" when he discovered their relationship, authorities said.

Mary Ann Garton Bass, 43, did not tell Danny James Bass, 26, of the family relationship when they married in 1978 after meeting while Bass was searching for his natural mother, authorities said Monday.

Bass only recently learned, through "statements friends and relatives had been making," that he had married his natural mother, said Dan Cook, assistant district attorney general.

"When he came into the office, he indicated that when he confronted her about the relationship, the only reason she gave him is that she did not want another woman to have him," Cook said. "He became emotionally distraught and very upset that he had been married to his mother."

Bass separated from his wife after learning she was his mother, Cook said.

"He came into our office a couple of weeks ago," Cook said. "He had contacted his lawyer after learning he was married to his mother and asked our assistance in determining if there had been a violation of the law."

Mrs. Bass was arrested Saturday and freed on a $5,000 bond. An Oct. 5 Circuit Court appearance was scheduled.

"It's a bizarre case, but it does strike at the very heart of the family unit. We'll prosecute it to the fullest extent of the law."

— Dan Cook
attorney general

"It's a bizarre case, but it does strike at the very heart of the family unit," Cook said. "We'll prosecute it to the fullest extent of the law."

If convicted, she faces a maximum penalty of 21 years in prison.

Mrs. Bass gave her son to an uncle, Horace Sullivan, when he was 3 years old, investigators said.

Cook said authorities did not know for certain whose uncle Sullivan was, but added, "I would guess that it would be her brother."

Raised as Danny Sullivan, Bass began looking for his mother while a teen-ager and "made formal inquiries and was directed to the house where this woman lived," Cook said.

"He went there looking for his mother and met this woman and was not told by this woman that she was his mother," he said. The couple married Jan. 21, 1978.

Senate to vote on smoking legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sponsors of a House-passed measure to replace the current general health warning on cigarette packages with four specific warnings say they expect the Senate to approve the bill and President Reagan to sign it.

The House passed the legislation Monday by voice vote after a short debate. Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., a chief sponsor, said he expected the Senate to approve it soon.

House passage followed months of negotiation among health groups and the tobacco industry, which agreed to support the legislation.

Asked if Reagan would sign the bill, Rep. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., said, "I'm certain that he will. I don't have any indication that they (the president and his advisers) have considered opposing it."

Gore said he did not believe Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., would fight the legislation. Helms had been holding up action while he sought to determine if tobacco growers, along with manufacturers, would support it.

Ron Phillips, a staffer on the Senate Agriculture Committee which Helms chairs, said Helms' position has not changed. "We expect that since the bill was passed by the House, it will be coming over here and people interested in it will be taking a look at it," Phillips said. "I don't expect him to filibuster it or anything like that."

The legislation would replace the current warning on cigarette packages and advertising, which reads, "The surgeon general has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health," with four rotating warnings.

The new warnings read:

—"Smoking causes lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema, and may complicate pregnancy."

—"Smoking by pregnant women may result in fetal injury, premature birth, and low birth weight."

—"Cigarette smoke contains carbon monoxide."

—"Quitting smoking now greatly reduces serious risks to your health."

The legislation also requires that cigarette manufacturers disclose the ingredients added to tobacco in the manufacturing of cigarettes.

"This information will assist researchers in making more precise assessments of the toxicity of the new generation of so-called low-tar, low-nicotine cigarettes," Waxman said.

It also requires that the secretary of health and human services establish an interagency committee on smoking and health and gives new impetus for expanding federal smoking research and public education activities.

"Many Americans — particularly young people — are unaware of the specific health risks caused by smoking," Waxman said. "The current warning label hasn't been revised in over 13 years and does not adequately reflect the extent of adverse health effects caused by smoking."

Gore said the bill "represents a progressive and courageous step by the tobacco industry that caught many by surprise. This has been a bitter pill for them to swallow, but in doing so they have made stiffer punitive legislation less likely in the years ahead."

Gore noted that the U.S. surgeon general has concluded that smoking is the single greatest preventable cuase of death in the United States.

"Each year, there are 130,000 smoking-related deaths linked to cancer in this country," he said. "An additional 170,000 deaths from heart disease are smoking-related. And another 50,000 die each year from emphysema and other chronic obstructive lung diseases brought on by smoking."

U.S. agrees to Costa Rica broadcasting into Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has agreed to a secret contract permitting use of a privately owned Costa Rican radio station to broadcast into leftist-controlled Nicaragua, the Washington Post reported today.

The arrangement between the U.S. Information Agency and a private association that controls the AM radio station is part of a $1 billion modernization of the Voice of America's worldwide broadcast facilities, the newspaper said.

Citing a source close to the San Jose government, the Post said the arrangement, under which VOA pays $3.2 million for the facilities and an annual $168,000 fee to the station's private owners, circumvents a Costa Rican law preventing ownership of broadcast facilities there by foreigners.

In budget material sent to Congress, the administration said a multiyear improvement effort was needed for VOA because of "serious deficiencies in the Voice's capability to meet current public diplomacy objectives."

VOA made the arrangement after the agency found it was barred from setting up its own transmission facilities. It contracted with the private, nonprofit Costa Rican Association for Information and Culture, a group organized in December by conservative media executives, journalists and politicians, the newspaper reported.

The agreement was signed Aug. 31 at the home of Costa Rican President Luis Alberto Monge — despite its having been criticized in the Costa Rican Congress as a circumvention of the law — at the insistence of U.S. officials, the Post reported.

President Reagan has asked for $849 million in 1985 budget authority for VOA, which broadcasts the U.S. government's message around the world in 42 languages. That includes $113 million for new facilities.

In budget material sent to Congress, the administration said a multiyear improvement effort was needed for VOA because of "serious deficiencies in the Voice's capability to meet current public diplomacy objectives."

VOA's budget is up a total of 70 percent since 1981 under the directorship of Reagan's close friend Charles Z. Wick.

Other aspects of the improvement program include efforts to negotiate agreements to place $100 million transmitters in unnamed Persian Gulf, Middle Eastern and Far Eastern countries over the next five years to boost coverage of shortwave broadcasts into the Soviet Union.

The space shuttle Discovery arrives at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida atop a 747 jumbo jet.

Shuttle being readied for next flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Returned to its launch site after a successful maiden voyage, space shuttle Discovery is being prepared for a November mission that will include deploying and repairing satellites.

Discovery was to have flown home from Altus Air Force Base in Oklahoma on Sunday but the trip was delayed one day because of bad weather en route and uncertainty over the path of Hurricane Diana.

The ship, which landed at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., last Wednesday after a six-day, inaugural mission, arrived at Kennedy Space Center on Monday for November flight preparations.

Death row inmate says he's innocent

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Linwood E. Briley, one of six Virginia death row inmates who escaped May 31 and were later recaptured, maintained his innocence to a murder charge as a judge set a new execution date of Oct. 12.

"I'm innocent, your honor," Briley said Monday of his conviction for the 1979 murder of a Richmond disc jockey.

Briley, 30, and his brothers, James and Anthony, were accused of being ringleaders in a 1979 crime spree involving 11 deaths.

James Briley also is under a death sentence but no execution date has been set. Anthony Briley is serving a life sentence.

Prison guards face prosecution

BELLEFONTE, Pa. (AP) — Three prison guards face prosecution and a prison supervisor has lost his job stemming from the alleged brutalizing of an inmate shortly before his release, officials said.

The Centre County Prison guards, who also were fired, face charges of official oppression, simple assault and other offenses.

The prisoner, Robert Riggleman, 27, alleged the guards shaved his head, shackled and paraded him before other prisoners last month in a teasing incident that, in his words, went "too far."

Police seize students' records

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — A "lack of communication" between school officials and police prompted the seizure of confidential student records from a junior high school, an act a grand jury said was not illegal.

More than 2,300 student records were seized from Summit Junior High School on Feb. 9 and the office of the superintendent of schools by police bearing search warrants, said a grand jury report issued Monday.

A judge ruled the search and seizure unconstitutional and ordered police to return the documents involving more than 800 students aged 10 to 14.

Shamir seeks approval

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Yitzhak Shamir seeks approval today from his right-wing Herut Party for a joint government with the Labor Party, which after bitter debate gave Prime Minister-designate Shimon Peres an endorsement of bipartisan rule.

A new government could be installed Wednesday if Shamir wins Herut's approval of the arrangement, worked out after six weeks of negotiations with Peres and other Labor leaders. Shamir is prime minister of the outgoing government and also the leader of Herut, the dominant party in the governing Likud coalition.

Elections in July gave neither Labor nor Likud a clear parliamentary majority, leading to the arrangement for joint rule.

Police forces reorganized

EL PARAISO, El Salvador (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte has ordered the reorganization of the country's three principal police forces, which human rights activists say are linked to rightist death squads.

Duarte told a group of army officers during a visit Monday to a military base in El Paraiso that the reorganization of the National Police, the National Guard and the Treasury Police will help reduce human rights abuses in the war against leftist rebels.

The three forces, numbering 12,000 men, have overlapping responsibilities and tasks with no clearly defined jurisdictions, and their commanders often are criticized for evading responsibility for abuses by shifting the blame on each other.

Most funding private

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicaragua's rebel forces are surviving in their war against the Sandinista army with financing from private sources and other countries that is replacing a cutoff of U.S. aid, American officials say.

Earlier this year, the officials said Monday, the administration was deeply concerned that congressional resistance to continued U.S. government financing of the rebels could lead to a humiliating defeat for the insurgents and to American policy in Central America as well.

But since the aid cutoff, the Honduran-based rebels — known as contras — have actually accelerated action against the Sandinistas, said the officials, who spoke only on condition that they remain anonymous.

Congress rejected a $21 million supplemental request for the contras for fiscal 1884 on grounds that U.S. involvement in the conflict was contributing to unnecessary bloodshed and impairing prospect for a negotiated settlement.

Volcano area evacuated

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Authorities today ordered some 15,000 villagers to evacuate the slopes of a lava-spewing volcano after an explosion rocked the mountain, threatening to bury homes under ashes.

A Philippine News Agency report from Legaspi, a seaport city at the foot of Mayon volcano, a 8,100-foot mountain, said residents of the threatened villages on the slopes of Mayon slopes had begun leaving their homes.

No casualties have been reported since Mayon, one of 21 active volcanoes in the Philippines, began erupting Monday, spewing out red-hot lava and flaming boulders the size of "a table or a jeep," said Rey Punongbayan, director of the Institute of Volcanology.

Graham in U.S.S.R.

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The Rev. Billy Graham says he doesn't necessarily expect Soviet worshipers to "come forward" to show their faith in God when he gives a sermon in Leningrad.

The American evangelist arrived Monday in the Soviet Union's second-largest city on his first preaching mission outside Moscow. It is a trip he said he has been waiting years to make.

"The door of the Soviet Union is not wide open, but it is ajar for us to proclaim the gospel," Graham said in explaining why he was making his 12-day trip to Leningrad, Tallinn, Moscow and Novosibirsk. "Only God knows what the results will be. Ever since I first visited the Soviet Union in 1959, I have prayed that God would allow me to preach in that great country."

Storm stirs fears that radioactive cargo adrift

By RAF CASERT
Associated Press Writer

OSTEND, Belgium — A fierce storm has broken open the hull of a French freighter that sank with radioactive cargo two weeks ago, raising fears today that the 30 containers might be set adrift in the gale-whipped North Sea.

Continued bad weather this morning prevented divers from checking the extent of damage inflicted Monday on the freighter Mont Louis by 12-foot-high waves and winds peaking at 63 mph. Salvage experts had hoped the divers could determine whether the containers were still in the ship, which sank 12 miles off the coast of Belgium.

Belgium's environment secretary, Firming Aerts, called the situation "serious."

Stronger winds and higher tides were forecast, complicating plans to retrieve the containers of uranium.

Paul Goris, of the Belgian salvage company that is helping in the salvage effort said the containers could roll out of the hulk and would be "difficult to trace."

Gooris, of company l'Union de Remorquage et de Sauvetage, said civil defense authorities along the Belgian coast were warned of potential radioactive contamination.

The Mont Louis was carrying a cargo of slightly radioactive uranium hexafluoride to the Soviet Union where it was to be enriched. The ship also was laden with French high-technology equipment to be used for the Soviet-European natural gas pipeline.

Marc Claus, nautical director of the pilot service in Ostend, said Monday that the hull broke under "the continuous attacks of the waves."

Stormy weather has hampered salvaging, which began 12 days ago. The Mont Louis collided with a passenger ferry on Aug. 25 and sank in water that is 46 feet deep at low tide.

Aerts said the storm on Monday split open the ship into two parts, its bow twisting and lifting.

But Henk Drenth, of Smit Tak International, a Dutch salvage company, said the bow was still attached to the rest of the wreck.

The French Atomic Energy Commission said the containers, which are made of 16mm steel, could stand up to violent shocks and heavy pressure.

Before the storm on Monday, salvagers were trying to position two big pontoons around the ship, resting on its side in shallow water. The pontoons were equipped with cranes workers hoped to use to retrieve the containers of radioactive material.

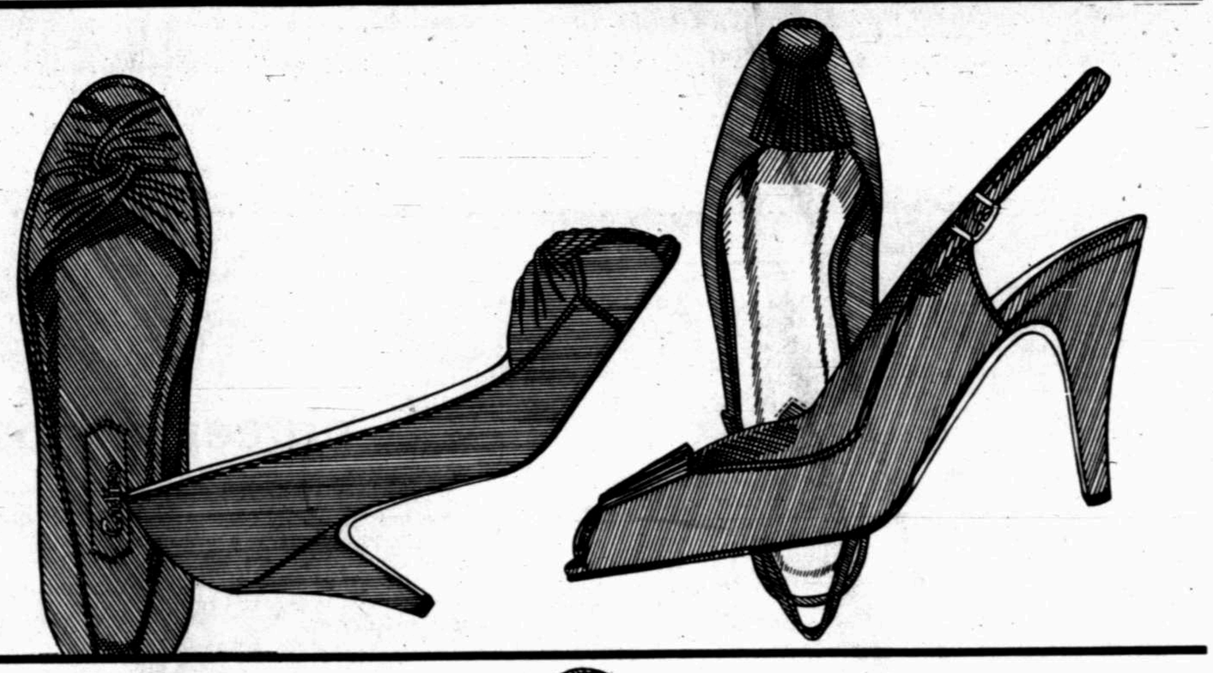

The worsening autumn weather has plagued the salvage efforts. Heavy seas widened the hole which rescuers had made in the ship's flank to remove the containers. Salvagers tried.

So far, salvagers have recovered none of the 30 uranium containers.

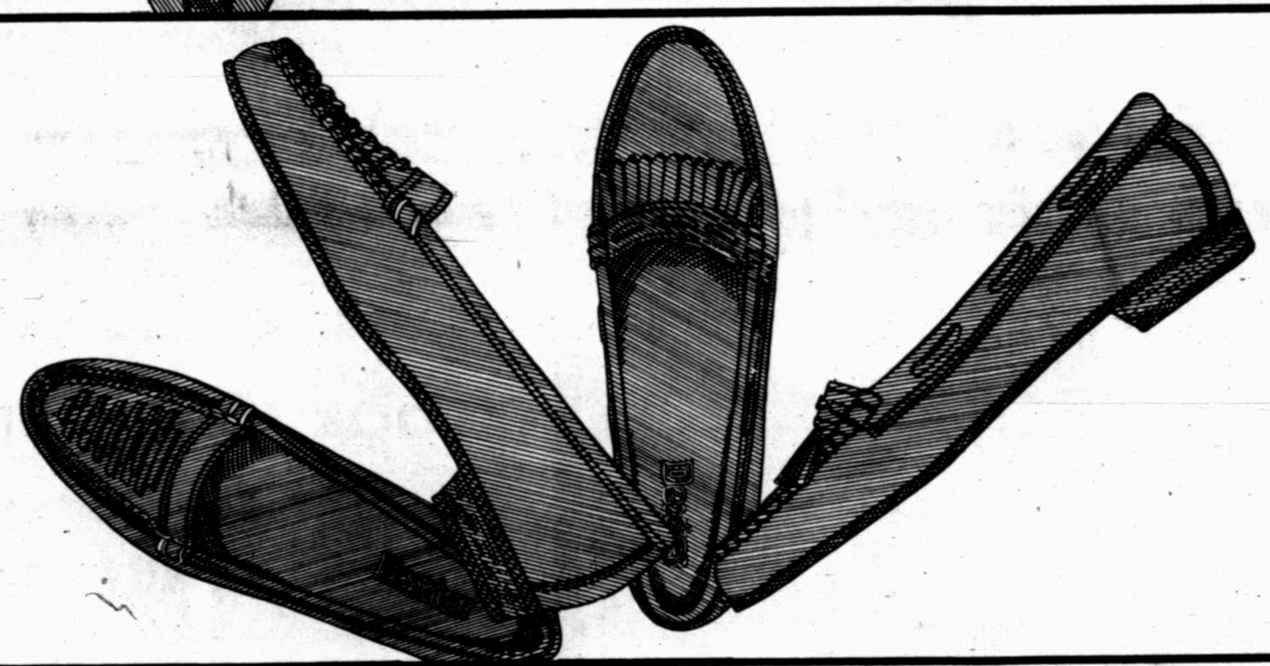

One crate holding equipment for the gas pipeline washed ashore Monday at Wenduine, a coastal resort near Ostend. Another crate with equipment that had been bound for the Soviets was picked up at sea, Drenth said.

Ex-Cowboy making adjustment

Ron Jaap/Reporter-Telegram

Former Dallas Cowboy tight end Billy Joe DuPree was in Midland Monday for the United Way Campaign Kickoff fund raising drive.

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

Billy Joe DuPree has been ruining stereotypes his entire life.

The former Dallas Cowboy tight end, in Midland Monday to help promote the United Way Campaign Kickoff, has cast off the doubters one by one.

As an unheralded rookie receiver from Michigan State, a running team, DuPree made it in a big way for Dallas. From a team that threw less than 100 passes in his senior year, DuPree stormed the NFL and was a Pro-Bowler in the late '70s.

He broke the mold again earlier this year by calling it quits when after 11 seasons he still had a role in the Cowboy game plan.

"In 1973 (his first year as a pro), the average lifespan of a player was seven years. I always considered myself above average, so I knew I'd last seven years," DuPree said.

Currently, he is involved with the United Way and also is in the construction/real estate business, a job he has dabbled in successfully for five years.

The retirement was a surprise to some, but DuPree joked Monday that it may have been perfectly timed. "After the New York game, I have no regrets," he said. Dallas lost rather pathetically to the Giants 28-7 Sunday.

Dallas' newfound youth movement showed up in the form of confusion and inexperience Sunday, but in DuPree's opinion there is no quarterback controversy. "As I expressed six months ago, I personally think Tom Landry made a good choice," he said of Dallas quarterback Gary Hogeboom. "The entire shakeup is a drastic change. Coach Landry believes Gary is the quarterback of the future."

Hogeboom's promotion cost Danny White his regular role as starter, and DuPree had some sage advice for the benched quarterback. "In Danny's position, the only theory I have is that with the type of revenue he's making, I'd be more than delighted to be just a punter."

White's estimated $550,000 yearly contract most likely makes him the highest paid specialist in pro football.

Hogeboom's new job is the biggest switch in the Cowboy camp that is radically altered from a year ago. Besides DuPree, Dallas also suffered the retirement loss of Harvey Martin while trades and defections took their own private tolls on the roster that produced five Super Bowl appearances from 1970-78.

"I don't miss playing the game," said DuPree with a look that intimated that practice sessions in the Dallas humidity were the real drawbacks. "The thing I'll miss most was the association with people, the fans. They made me waver back on forth. I'd like to help them to one more Super Bowl. But you have to deal with reality - 'Billy Joe, you don't run the 100 in 9.0, you're body's been beat up on for 11 years'."

And DuPree feels he left the job in competent hands. Current Cowboy tight end Doug Cosbie's development as a starter no doubt hastened DuPree's departure. "Doug's one of the greatest tight ends to play the game. By the end of the year he'll probably catch 60 passes."

Dallas' success, and DuPree's to a certain extent, is credited to the brains behind the team, coach Tom Landry. "I always considered my role in team athletics. The players realize that in the final analysis that their roles are determined by Tom Landry. He developed the system. He's the best coach I've ever encountered.

"It's not the people who make the system, it's the system who makes the people."

If history is DuPree's witness, he tells the truth. Only the Los Angeles/Oakland Raiders franchise has more wins over the past 20 seasons.

Redskin rally falls shy, 37-31

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two Joes from Notre Dame, San Francisco's Montana and Washington's Theismann, put on quite an air show Monday night, throwing for a combined 712 passing yards. But "our Joe was better than their Joe," guard Randy Cross after the 49ers held off Washington 37-31 in a National Football League game Monday night.

Montana, who staked the 49ers to a 27-0 first-half lead, completed 24 of 40 passes for 381 yards and two scores and added a scoring run. Theismann, meanwhile, hit 24 of 43 for 331 yards, and threw for a pair of scores as he engineered Washington's second-half comeback.

"We were in jeopardy of losing a lot more than a football game, i.e. our confidence," Redskin running back John Riggins said of the first-half drubbing. "Fortunately, we overcame that. Hopefully, we got something started a little bit. I have the confidence in this team that we can click off 10 wins in a row."

Riggins had one of his poorest games as a pro despite two short touchdown runs, gaining only 12 yards in 10 carries.

"It was probably the most emotionally charged game we've played in my three years here," said San Francisco tight end Russ Francis, who caught five passes for 55 yards and was involved in two tussles with Redskin players.

The rematch of teams involved in last year's NFC title game left San Francisco unbeaten in two games and Washington 0-2.

Running back Wendell Tyler had one of his best games since joining the 49ers last year, scoring one touchdown on a pass, another on a run and helping Montana on his TD run with a superb block at the goal line.

San Francisco kicker Ray Wersching booted field goals from 19, 46 and 38 yards, running to 26 his string of successful field goals on attempts within 40 yards.

Although only the second game of the season, this was one the 49ers badly wanted. The Redskins went to the Super Bowl after beating the 49ers 24-21 in the NFC title game last year. Montana threw three TD passes in the fourth quarter of that game to tie it, but two controversial penalties and a field goal in the last minute made the difference.

Montana picked up Monday night where he left off against the Redskins last January. After a poor punt by Washington, Montana hit running back Roger Craig for passes of 12 and 7 yards to start a streak of eight successful passes at the start of the game.

Tyler, running out of the "I" formation behind Craig, then scampered 20 yards to Washington's 18. Four plays later, Tyler plunged over the goal line from a half-yard out.

Washington failed to move on its second possession, and the 49ers began from their 25. Montana hit tight end Russ Francis for a 21-yard pass, completed two more passes to Francis for 19 yards, then connected with wide receiver Fred Solomon on a 22-yard pass.

A 7-yard TD pass to Solomon was called back on an offensive interference penalty against Francis, but two plays later Tyler caught a pass on the 2-yard line and dove into the end zone for a 14-0 lead.

Wersching kicked a pair of field goals before Montana boosted the lead to 27-0 with a 15-yard touchdown pass to Dwight Clark.

Washington managed a 38-yard field goal by Mark Moseley as time ran out in the half.

Theismann connected with Charlie Brown on a 14-yard TD pass early in the third period to cap an 83-yard drive, and Riggins scored from a yard out as Washington drew within 27-17.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, Montana made it 34-17 when he rolled right and dove into the end zone around a block from Tyler.

Theismann took the Redskins 79 yards in eight plays, with Riggins going the final yard.

After Wersching made it 37-24 with a 38-yard field goal, the Redskins got their final score on Theismann's 12-yard pass to Virgil Seay with 3:44 to play.

Rozier quits USFL job

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Rozier will no longer play for the Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League and has been offered an opportunity to buy out his contract, his agent said Monday night.

The running back hopes to sign with the Houston Oilers, who selected him in a supplemental National Football League draft, if not this season, then next, said Art Wilkinson.

"They want us to give them back the signing bonus of $1.3 million plus the $300,000 Mike received for playing last season, and they want it tomorrow," Wilkinson said of the Maulers.

Wilkinson, whose office is in Philadelphia, said the proposal was made by a Maulers official when Rozier expressed his unhappiness at being with the team. Wilkinson said the buyout was being considered, "although we won't do it tomorrow."

Maulers General Manager George Heddleston said, "Mike has never told us he wants out of here. We don't want to hear it from his agent. We want to hear it from him."

Heddleston told the Pittsburgh Post Gazette Monday night that the Maulers want Rozier in their backfield against next season.

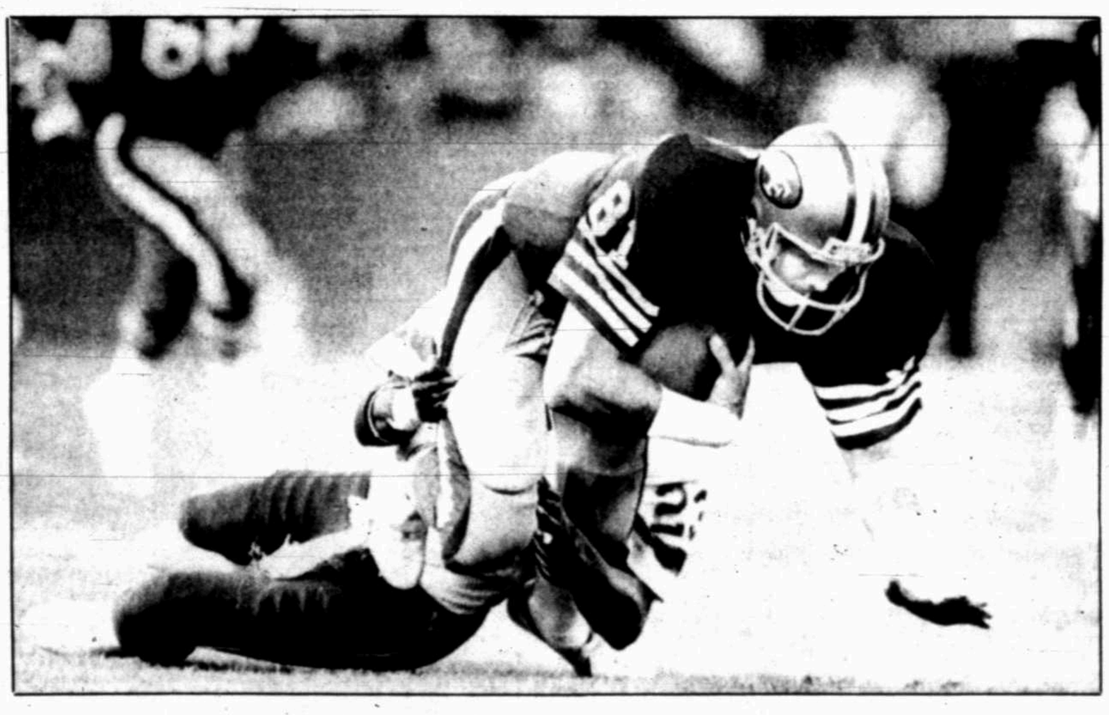

The agent said Rozier was adamant about not playing again for the Maulers, though two years remain on his three-year deal, which Wilkinson described as a personal service contract to Edward J. DeBartolo, Sr., the club's owner.

Wilkinson conceded that DeBartolo could seek to have Rozier fulfill the contract. "That's something they will have to decide," the agent said.

In an earlier interview with a Houston radio station, KIKK, Wilkinson read a statement from the 1983 Heisman Trophy winner at the University of Nebraska.

"I now find myself with an organization that cannot decide whether it wants me or not," Rozier was quoted in the statement. "In short, I do not wish to return to the Pittsburgh Maulers in 1985 and I will not."

Heddleston told the Post Gazette that he doubts Rozier wrote the statement.

Jackson Mets take Texas League championship

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Jackson Mets clinched the Texas League championship Monday night with a 6-4 baseball victory over the Beaumont Golden Gators in the best-of-seven series.

The title is the second for the Mets, who were 4-2 in the playoffs. They last won the championship in 1981.

Beaumont put the first score on the board when Pat Casey singled in a run in the top of the first.

But the Mets came back in the bottom of the first when Lenny Dykstra doubled, then scored on Dave Cochrane's two-out single.

In the top of the second, two Mets' errors led to another run by the visitors.

Dykstra came on base again in the third and scored on Mark Carreon's homer, and the Mets went ahead for good in the game.

Jackson scored three more runs in the fifth. Billy Beane doubled with one out, and Ed Hearn singled to drive him in. Cochrane walked and Steve Springer singled to center to drive in Hearn.

Basin teams overcome first hurdle

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

If the opening game of the season is one of the year's most vital, and few coaches would say otherwise, then six of the eight Permian Basin area teams covered by the Reporter-Telegram got an "A" on their first test.

Except for Crane and Rankin, who both had losses against teams of a higher classification, the week was a success. And for members of District 8-AA, the week evidenced that whoever represents the district in the state playoffs will be a worthy contender.

McCamey was that worthy contender a year ago. The Badgers finished second behind Wall in the district, but gelled in time to win three games in the playoffs. McCamey was ousted in the quarterfinal round by Boyd, the 1983 state champs, and compiled an 11-4 record.

Another team that made the state quarters a year ago before losing was Iraan of District 6-A. The Badgers hosted the Braves Friday, and the two locked up in a stirring defensive game. A blocked punt by sophomore Rene Morin in the fourth quarter broke the scoreless deadlock and started year two of the Buster Leaf coaching regime on a positive note, 7-0.

McCamey has little time to gloat. The Badgers return to the scene of the crime, Marfa, for what promises to be a grudge match Friday. McCamey's first round opponent in the playoffs a year ago was Marfa, and the Badgers humiliated them with a fourth quarter explosion, 40-19.

Andrews and Lamesa, two teams that struggled to lower-division finishes in District 2-AAAA in 1983, opened the year in different fashion but with similar results.

Lamesa only notched two wins last year, but the Tors served notice that they are tremendously improved by squelching Levelland 7-3. The defensive battle won by Lamesa gives them incentive this week as they visit Brownfield.

Andrews survived a scare from Brownfield, winning 21-14. The Mustangs are still in the developmental stages with 15 vacancies being filled by undergraduates.

Andrews has a severe gut check in store Friday as they host Midland High. A year ago Andrews stunned the Bulldogs 25-20 behind the guidance of departed quarterback Bill Morrison. MHS is improved, but the shaky victory over Brownfield indicates that Andrews isn't there yet.

Crane's Golden Cranes took flight a year ago with an 11-1-1 year. But the Cranes were rudely reminded that 1983 exists only in history books now, losing 34-0 to a strong Fort Stockton eleven.

The Cranes are youthful, obviously, and could still represent a title threat in the competitive District 7-AAA.

Only Crane and district companion Ozona were losers in their opening contests, but Ozona's loss may be more notable.

The Lions stumbled to a 3-7 record a year ago, and after a 12-0 home setback to Greenwood last week, more trouble is expected.

A year ago Greenwood had an 8-2 mark en route to a District title. But the Rangers were re-classified and placed in the rough and tumble District 8-AA.

Ranger coach Joe Longley was guardedly cautious about his team's prospects in their first year as a 2A squad. But the youthful Rangers passed their first test with flying colors.

Greenwood's opponent this week is Water Valley, who the Rangers defeated 20-7 a year ago when they shared a district with the h2o guys.

In general it was a fabulous week for the 8-AA. Of the six teams in the district, only defending champion Wall suffered a loss on opening day.

Two teams that had problems a year ago in the district rebounded with resounding wins Friday. Reagan County saw youth and inexperience crush their dreams in 1983 and fell to 2-8, without a win in district play. But Big Lake was a big splash after being un-civil to Robert Lee. The Owls brushed off a Robert Lee touchdown return of the opening kickoff to take a 20-7 win and rush for over 300 yards.

Stanton was another team that had a disappointing season a year ago. The Battlin' Buffs neared a place on the endangered species list with a 4-6 record in 1983. But against Tahoka, the Buffs stormed to a 25-7 halftime advantage, then played shutout ball in the second half to keep the score the same.

A year ago the Buffs barely escaped Tahoka. This year the stampede for bragging rights in the 8-AA is starting early.

Reagan County opened their season last year with a 12-7 loss to Crane. The Owls and Cranes are going to stage a remake of Alfred Hitchcock's "The Birds" this week in Crane.

Stanton, meanwhile, takes on another District 7-AAA heavy when they visit Coahoma.

Rankin had a number of problems a year ago, and got 1984 off to a less than rousing start with a 28-0 loss to Eldorado, another District 8-AA power. The Red Devils are still a better squad than last year's ill-fated 3-7 team. In their home opener this week against Sterling City, Rankin could bounce back.

Twins pull into tie; A's Kong Kingman goes ape

Associated Press

The Minnesota Twins, who have languished at or near the bottom of the pack for the last four seasons, are at a loss to explain why they are tied for first place in the American League West.

Mike Smithson, who pitched the Twins back into a tie for the top spot with Kansas City Monday night by stopping the Royals on seven hits in a 7-3 victory, doesn't have the answer. Nor does Kirby Puckett, who had three hits, scored two runs and drove in another.

"I don't know what it is about this team, but people keep writing us off. But we stay loose and here we are, and this is what baseball's all about," said Smithson, 14-12, who gave up seven hits while striking out six and walking two in a route-going performance.

The Twins snapped the Royals' five-game winning streak and both teams are now 73-70 with two games left in the series and 19 remaining in the season.

"We don't know what it's all about," Puckett said. "We just know that no one picked us to be even close to winning the pennant, so we have nothing to lose and everything to gain."

The Twins were 22½ games out on this date a year ago with a 61-82 record. They last finished above .500 in 1979.

"We have a lot of third-year players just starting to get our feet wet and here we are in contention," Smithson said. "A lot of guys play this game a lot longer than we do and never get chance to be in a race like this."

"If our offense gets going like tonight, we'll be all right," said Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner, who was ejected for arguing a close call in the eighth inning.

The Twins were leading 3-2 at the time, but put together six straight singles for four runs to blow the game open.

"But I can't get thrown out every game to get us going," Gardner said. "That's going to cost me $250 and my wife's blood pressure's going up."

"I think Billy wanted to get the fans up and fire up his team," said Kansas City's Willie Wilson, who was ruled safe at first on the disputed play by umpire Marty Springstead. "He just kept saying over and over that he blew it. Marty tried as best he could not to throw him out, but I think Billy wanted to get thrown out."

Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said his biggest fear is that the Twins will win the next two games.

"It's a big series," he said. "What you don't want to do is get swept."

Steve Balboni hit his 24th homer and Frank White blasted his 16th for the Royals.

Orioles 3, Tigers 1

Mike Flanagan, 12-12, tossed a five-hitter and Wayne Gross hit his 20th home run as Baltimore beat Detroit. Despite the loss, Detroit's magic number for clinching the AL East was reduced to eight when New York beat Toronto. Any combination of Tiger victories and Blue Jay losses totaling eight would give Detroit the crown.

Gross connected off Juan Berenguer, 8-10, leading off the second inning to give Baltimore a 2-0 lead. Kirk Gibson belted his 26th homer in the fourth to account for the only Detroit run.

Eddie Murray extended his hitting streak to a club-record 22 games with an eighth-inning homer, his 27th.

Yankees 6, Blue Jays 2

Don Mattingly's three-run homer in the fifth inning snapped a 2-2 tie to lead New York over slumping Toronto, which lost its fifth straight game.

Mattingly, who also doubled home a run in the two-run Yankee first, smacked the first pitch from Dave Stieb, 14-6, over the right-field fence for his 21st home run of the season, raising his RBI total for the season to 96.

John Montefusco, 3-2, checked the Blue Jays on seven hits through six innings.

Mattingly, who went 2-for-5, maintained his .349 batting average while teammate Dave Winfield — 1-for-3 — remained in the league lead at .352.

Brewers 7, Red Sox 4

Don Sutton, 13-11, collected his 279th major-league victoryand moved past Ferguson Jenkins into sixth place on baseball's all-time strikeout list when he fanned four to raise his career total to 3,194, two more than Jenkins.

The Brewers collected eight hits, four of them doubles, in less than four innings off Mike Brown, 1-8. Five of the runs were unearned, however, because of two errors by Brown and two more by catcher Rich Gedman.

Doug Loman and Ed Romero each had two hits and drove in two runs for Milwaukee.

Jim Rice hit his 26th homer for Boston to increase his RBI total for the year to 112, one behind Oakland's Dave Kingman, who leads the major leagues.

Mariners 7, Rangers 3

Alvin Davis' two-run homer highlighted Seattle's three-run seventh inning. With the game tied 3-3, John Moses singled with one out, went to third on Jack Perconte's single and scored when Spike Owen forced Perconte at second.

Davis followed with his 25th homer, an opposite-field shot that barely cleared the left-field fence off a 1-0 pitch from Danny Darwin, 8-10. Davis had gone 30 days without a homer.

Seattle's Jim Beattie won his career-high 11th game against 15 losses. Buddy Bell drove in two of the Rangers' runs off Beattie with a single and a double.

A's 1, White Sox 0

Ray Burris, 13-7, held Chicago to three hits over 8 2-3 innings while Chicago's Rich Dotson walked in the only run of the game.

The A's scored in the third, an inning in which a beanball incident resulted in the ejection of Oakland slugger Dave Kingman.

Rickey Henderson drew a one-out walk from Dotson, 13-13, who walked Dwayne Murphy with two outs and then hit Kingman in the left hip.

The 6-foot-6 slugger charged the mound and landed two solid uppercuts to Dotson's face before being wrestled to the ground by Chicago first baseman Greg Walker. Dotson then walked Bruce Bochte to score Henderson.

Cubs make hits count; beat Phils

Associated Press

The Chicago Cubs are learning how to win games with pitching and defense after relying on heavy hitting for most of the season.

The Cubs have a batting average of only .228 for their last eight games, but have managed five victories in that span while increasing their National League East lead from six to seven games. Chicago is batting .263 for the season.

"You just can't go to the park every day and say, 'Today I think we'll start hitting,'" Manager Jim Frey said after the Cubs beat the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 Monday.

Both teams had only five hits in the game, with Chicago scoring all of its runs in the seventh inning with the help of a bases-loaded walk and a throwing error by Philadelphia second baseman Juan Samuel that allowed two runs to score.

"They're (the opposing teams) throwing the same pitches they threw at us early in the season," Frey said. "They're throwing the best they got."

The win over Philadelphia and the Mets' loss to the Cardinals reduced the Cubs' magic number to 12.

Phillies Manager Paul Owens said one of the secrets of the Cubs' success this season after a long tradition of failure — the Cubs haven't won a pennant since 1945 and have never won a division title — is that they are well-balanced enough to slump at the plate and still win. "When they got everything else going for them, that's all they need," he said.

The Phillies took a 2-0 lead into the seventh inning behind 40-year-old left-hander Jerry Koosman, who was bidding for his 33rd career shutout.

But a walk to Jody Davis and singles by Larry Bowa and pinch-hitter Gary Woods loaded the bases, and Koosman walked Bob Dernier to force Davis home.

Koosman, 14-12, was replaced by right-hander Larry Andersen, who got Ryne Sandberg to ground to shortstop Ivan DeJesus. He tossed to Samuel for the second out, but the second baseman's relay to first sailed into the Phillies' dugout as Bowa and Woods scored.

"It would have been a bang-bang play if it had worked. If you hold the ball, it would have been tied and who knows," Owens said.

The Phillies broke a scoreless tie in the fifth off Cubs starter Steve Trout on Von Hayes' two-run single.

Tim Stoddard, 9-5, who replaced Trout in the sixth, was the winner with two innings of hitless relief. Lee Smith pitched the final two innings for his 31st save.

Cardinals 3, Mets 2

St. Louis benefited from a four-pitch walk to pitcher Dave LaPoint that set up a two-run double by Willie McGee in the seventh inning against New York.

Mets rookie left-hander Sid Fernandez, 4-5, allowed only four hits in seven innings, but his two-out walk to LaPoint, 10-10, proved to be critical when McGee followed with his double to break a 1-1 tie.

"He lost his concentration," Mets Manager Dave Johnson said of Fernandez. "That happens with a rookie. But four straight balls is hard for me to handle."

"Sometimes the hardest batter to pitch to is the pitcher," said LaPoint, who allowed only five hits and struck out eight in eight innings. "You're so afraid of walking him that that's just what you do."

LaPoint was relieved by Bruce Sutter with no outs in the ninth after Mookie Wilson led off the inning with a double. Sutter went on to record his 41st save, extending his own NL record, although he gave up a run-scoring single to Keith Hernandez.

Expos 8, Pirates 5

Dick Grapenthin picked up his first major-league victory and Joe Hesketh his initial major-league save with the offensive support of Jim Wohlford, who knocked in five runs with a three-run homer and a single for Montreal against Pittsburgh.

Grapenthin, 1-2, pitched 4 2-3 innings of one-hit relief after the Pirates erupted for four runs in the first inning off Expos starter Dave Palmer. Hesketh then worked the final four innings for the save.

Lee Lacy, Jason Thompson and Tony Pena had RBI singles and Denny Gonzales drew a bases-loaded walk to give the Pirates the early lead.

Wohlford hit his fourth homer off starter John Candelaria in the first, then added his two-run single in the fourth, when Montreal scored three times to break a 4-4 tie.

Braves 3, Astros 1

Atlanta left-hander Zane Smith also won his first major-league game, holding Houston to six hits and one run in six innings.

The loss knocked the Astros, second in the West, to 9½ games behind the first-place San Diego Padres, whose magic number for their first division title now stands at 10.

Pete Falcone pitched three innings of one-hit relief for his second save, and Brad Komminsk broke a 1-1 tie with a single in the fifth inning.

Nolan Ryan, 12-10, was the loser despite striking out nine batters in six innings and increasing his all-time career strikeout lead over Steve Carlton to 11 — 3,871-3,860.

Holtz' sneak peek at 'Husker playbook bugs Osborne

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — University of Nebraska football Coach Tom Osborne says he opened his film room and shared his thoughts with Lou Holtz, now coach at Minnesota and the next opponent on the Cornhusker schedule.

Osborne said Sunday that he let his friend and professional acquaintance pick his brain about the I-formation while Holtz still was head coach at Arkansas.

Now, Osborne hopes Holtz doesn't pick his pocket as head coach at Minnesota. The Gophers come to Lincoln Saturday to play Nebraska, ranked No. 2 last week, in Memorial Stadium.

Osborne didn't want to make a "big deal" out of the incident Sunday. But even he admitted it was "kind of interesting," not to mention "a little unusual."

Last year, Arkansas had an open week while preparing for unbeaten Texas and Holtz decided he wanted to make some adjustments in his own offense. So he and four Razorback offensive assistants flew to Lincoln and spent two days.

Osborne knows Holtz has the reputation of a miracle worker.

USA boxers go pro

NEW YORK (AP) — Olympic gold medalists Mark Breland and Pernell Whitaker and bronze medalist Evander Holyfield have agreed to professional boxing contracts and will make their debuts together Nov. 15, the fighters said Monday night.

A site and opponents for the fights have not been determined. The card will be telecast by ABC.

Main Events, a New Jersey-based promoter, said it had signed Whitaker and Breland, and Holyfield said he would sign Tuesday.

Breland, the Olympic champion at 147 pounds, will fight as a welterweight; Whitaker, the 132-pound winner, will be a lightweight; and Holyfield will fight as a light-heavyweight.

Holyfield was considered a favorite in the 178-pound class at the Olympics, but was disqualified in his semifinal match when the referee determined that Holyfield threw a punch after he was instructed to stop.

Holyfield said he was disappointed by the Olympic experience, but admitted the notoriety probably increased his marketability as a professional.

"I think what a lot of people will remember from the incident is that I was a good fighter and I conducted myself well," Holyfield said. "But now I feel like it's all over. Now I'm looking to a professional career and winning the light-heavyweight championship."

Breland said he would "fight through 1988" and then retire from the ring to pursue an acting career.

Breland, who had a starring role in the movie "Lords of Discipline," said he hoped to fight for the title within two years. "Then I'll have two years to defend the title before I retire."

Breland said he would mix boxing and acting for the time being — "I'm looking at a movie script right now" — but would concentrate most of his energies on the ring as he closes in on a title fight.

The fighters were interviewed as they dined at Oren's, a New York restaurant.

Pentagon refuses TI microcircuits

When the Pentagon decided not to accept microcircuits produced by Texas Instruments, the Midland TI plant was pushed into center spot. All of TI's semi-conductors for the military are produced in Midland.

"We have a huge team working on the problem night and day," said Norman Neuriter, spokesman for Texas Instruments in Dallas.

"We hope to have the matter cleared up in just a matter of weeks," he said.

The microcircuits involved are those used in SNJ and SNC devices, according to Neuriter. SNJ and SNC refers to the kind of testing required. "The devices are used in a wide variety of military equipment," he said.

Concern about proper testing of the microciruits first arose last month.

"In August we began to appreciate that there might be some anomaly between tests being conducted and what was prescribed," said Neuriter.

"We then went to the Pentagon, stopped shipment and notified our customers."

Although the order cancellation numbers over 4700 devices, TI believes that around 3000 of them will be cleared.

Neuriter could not give an estimate of the cost to TI, but notes that "it is a small percentage of our total semi-condutor billings."

Discovery of the possible test failures came about as a result of an audit TI performed.

"The issue of testing military devices is very complex," said Neuriter. "There are many of kinds of tests, depending on the customer and with military semi-conductors, there are as many as 200 tests."

"When you have something that complicated, you really need to audit those procedures," he said.

Neuriter does not think that the issue will cause layoffs at the Midland plant and appears confident that the matter will be resolved.

"There have been all sorts of stories floating around," he said, "but you have to remember that we went to the Pentagon and notified them."

Texas Instruments has been producing circuitry for the military since the late 1950's and opened their Midland plant in 1980. In past years, due to market trends, emphasis had shifted to developing new products for commercial applications rather than military. The result was bad for the military. The commercial sector was winding up with the latest technology, while the military continued to use 10-year-old technology.

TI responded by working closely with the Department of Defense and saw fast success, introducing 256 new circuits and products, while realizing a profit the same year.

Union head claims no connection between ads, Mondale camp

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland says there is no connection between the launching of an expensive advertising campaign and his federation's endorsement of Walter F. Mondale's presidential bid.

"There's always an election going on in this country or primaries leading up to elections," Kirkland said. "So it's absolutely impossible to present your viewpoint at any time of the year or any year where you're isolated or in a vacuum or unrelated to public debate."

Kirkland was asked about the AFL-CIO's advertising, which discusses labor's general stands on a host of issues, in view of the federations's firm support of Mondale's quest to defeat President Reagan.

"There is not an issue that we are covering in these spots that is not deeply rooted in the objectives of organized labor," Kirkland replied. "They are not time-related to any campaign. That is the fact. If people try and make that leap, I assure you that it is not the motive of this campaign."

On Monday, the labor organization unveiled a $1 million campaign of television and radio advertisements, targeted toward audiences in some two dozen major U.S. cities, which discuss organized labor's views about jobs, education, trade policy and other issues — but which do not mention any candidate, campaign or political target.

Because the commercials do not support or criticize any candidate, financing of the broadcast campaign is not covered by federal election laws governing campaign spending and contributions.

Kirkland said the AFL-CIO decided to proceed with the commercials, to be aired over the next three weeks, because the advertisements were ready for broadcast and because the fall is the time of the year in which new programming most often appears on television.

Asked whether the commercials, which bemoan cuts in student financial aid and the effects of government tax policy, might be interpreted as anti-Reagan, Kirkland said: "There is not a substantive issue that me might address ... that probably would not be regarded as having some bearing on contemporary events. But that is not its purpose."

The campaign was born of a recognition by labor leaders in Washington and around the country that "if you're not on that box, you don't exist," he said.

AFL-CIO spokesman Rex Hardesty said the money raised for the television campaign results from a special assessment of each of the 13.6 million members of unions affiliated with the federation. The assessment was approved by the AFL-CIO executive council last May.

The commercials are to be broadcast through September in Flint-Saginaw, Mich., Detroit, Buffalo, N.Y., Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, St. Louis, Washington, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Baltimore, Birmingham, Ala., San Francisco, Boston, Seattle, Los Angeles, Nashville, Tenn., Atlanta, Houston, Miami, Dallas-Fort Worth, and San Antonio, Texas.

Dollar higher; Gold firm

LONDON (AP) — The soaring dollar advanced further against most foreign currencies in Europe early today. Gold bullion prices were steady.

The dollar, which has been hitting record levels for more than a week, surged to a new all-time high against the French franc, an 11½-year high against the West German mark, a 10-year high against the Dutch guilder and a seven-year high against the Swiss franc. However, the dollar eased from Monday's record-high levels against the British pound and Italian lira.

In Frankfurt, the dollar was quoted at 3.0040 West German marks after the first hour of trading, up from 2.9905 marks late Monday. Dealers noted that the dollar's run above the 3-mark level came despite a broad decline in U.S. interest rates as the Federal Reserve again injected funds into the banking system.

Other dollar rates in Europe compared with levels of late Monday included:

--2.4960 Swiss francs, up from 2.4910.

--9.2235 French francs, up from 9.1825.

--3.38925 Dutch guilders, up from 3.3755.

--1,849.25 Italian lire, down from 1,852.25.

--1.31675 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3108.

The British pound, more expensive in relation to the dollar, was quoted at $1.2747, compared with $1.2730 late Monday.

In Tokyo, the dollar slipped to 245.05 yen, down from 246.10 yen.

Record spending for expansion, upgrading planned by business

WASHINGTON (AP) — American businesses are planning to spend a record $307.6 billion on modernization and expansion in 1984, 14.3 percent above the amount spent last year, the government reported today.

Business investment actually declined 4.8 percent last year to $269.2 billion despite the relatively robust recovery from the 1981-82 recession.

The latest Commerce Department business survey, taken in July and August, confirmed earlier projections that capital spending in 1984 would increase at the fastest clip since 1966.

The 14.3 percent rise is expressed in actual spending. When the effects of inflation are taken out, the increase is 13.3 percent, compared to a 3.6 percent inflation-adjusted decline in 1983.

With the nation's factories now operating at more than 82 percent of capacity, economists say the strong drive to expand and build new facilities should continue.

The increase in capital spending is expected to sustain the economic recovery as the earlier surge in consumer spending begins to taper off.

The Reagan administration has attributed much of the strength in business spending to the investment incentives included in the tax cuts passed by Congress in 1981.

The lastest survey reflected a slight drop from the previous estimate, made in April and May. At that time, spending, after adjusting for inflation, was projected to rise by 14.8 percent instead of the latest estimate of 13.3 percent.

The change, the department said, resulted from a decrease in expectations by non-manufacturing industries that more than offset an upward revisior in spending plans by manufacturing industries.

The loneliest man on Main Street

By SUSAN LINDSAY
Business-Oil Writer

When many of the retail businesses moved from Main Street several years ago, Mitch Pryor, co-owner of Pryor Shoes, stayed at his location, but now he is not sure.

He said he has three options concerning Main Street's remaining original retail store: to go out of business, to operate the store as it has been or to move to another location.

Sales at 102 N. Main have been good "but now it's getting to the nitty gritty time," he said.

"Of course, when all of the businesses moved, it affected us. It's kind of hard when you're like an island by yourself," he said.

Pryor said the store has been in operation since the 1950s when other retail businesses such as Zales, JC Penney Co., Treasure Shop and Woolworth were also located along the street.

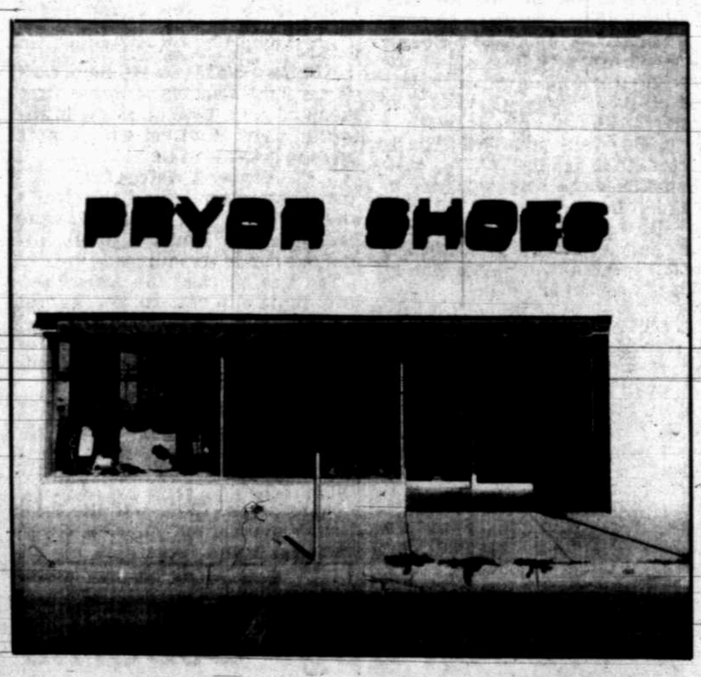

"They started dropping around 79-80. Some shut down. Some relocated," he said. "We were stupid enough to try to stick it out."

Since that time, both Houck's Jewelry and First In Sports, Inc. have moved to their Main Street locations, by Pryor is the only one of the original Main Street businesses to remain.

Pryor said he is disappointed that there are not more businesses on Main Street. He said more stores in the area would help his sales.

The store's present clientele is mostly men and women working in nearby offices and residents from the southside of the city, he said.

"If we move, it'll be to the north side. That seems to be where all of the action is," he said.

BUSINESS NOTEBOOK

Regulated businesses may pay more for it

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Businesses regulated by the state may find themselves paying a greater share of the cost of that regulation if the legislature follows the advice of the Sunset Advisory Commission staff.

SAC members are pushing for the adoption of increased fees for a number of agencies under review through the "sunset" process, including charges levied by the Air Control Board, Texas Department of Health and Department of Water Resources.

In recommendations on those agencies, the staff has argued that fees for permits and licenses should recover 25 to 50 percent of the state's cost, and be "reasonably related to the costs incurred by the agency performing the various aspects of regualtion."

The Air Control Board, the staff argues, recovered only about 15 percent of the cost of permit-issuing and enforcement activities in 1983 — with that recovery dropping to nine percent if federal funds to the ACB are excluded.

Similar conclusions are reached regarding permits issued by the Department of Water Resources and Department of Health on waste discharge, processing facilities, and radioactive materials permits.

ACB only began collecting fees on permits in 1983, although it was authorized to do so by the 1979 legislature.

Efforts to implement a fee schedule resulted in bitter opposition from various groups, particularly the chemical industry.

Opponents' basic argument was that the permits were required by the state, and that the benefits presumably resulting from regulation went to the citizens of the state — and therefore should be paid by those citizens.

Industry officials also expressed concern that once the fees were in place, there would be a demand to increase them to pick up a larger share of the cost of running the agency.

Despite industry unhappiness, lawmakers may be inclined to increase fees next year, faced with the prospect of increased demands for services and little increase in revenues.

Those favoring such an approach are likely to point out that some industries, such as banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions, traditionally have borne the cost of their regulation without those regulatory agencies having to tap the general revenue fund.

Comptroller Bob Bullock has requested proposals for data processing consultant and computer support services for implementing the bank franchise tax system — involving the maintenance of some 2,000 tax accounts.

The special session of the legislature this summer approved the franchise tax to replace the property tax on bank shares.

Completion of the work is planned for March.

Written proposals are due with the comptroller's office October 2, and a conference on the request was set for Monday (September 10).

Texas Housing Agency agreed to sell $10.1 million in bonds for a development in a "private placement," first time THA has used private placement for permanent financing, executive administrator Earlene Jewett reports.

The bonds, for Summer Bend Ltd., Dallas, are being purchased by Allied Bank, Dallas, and Allied Bank of Texas, Houston.

Private placements have been used by the agency for interim financing and are used extensively by local housing corporations, Jewett notes.

"Private placement tends to be much cheaper," she says, so THA is looking at increased use of the practice.

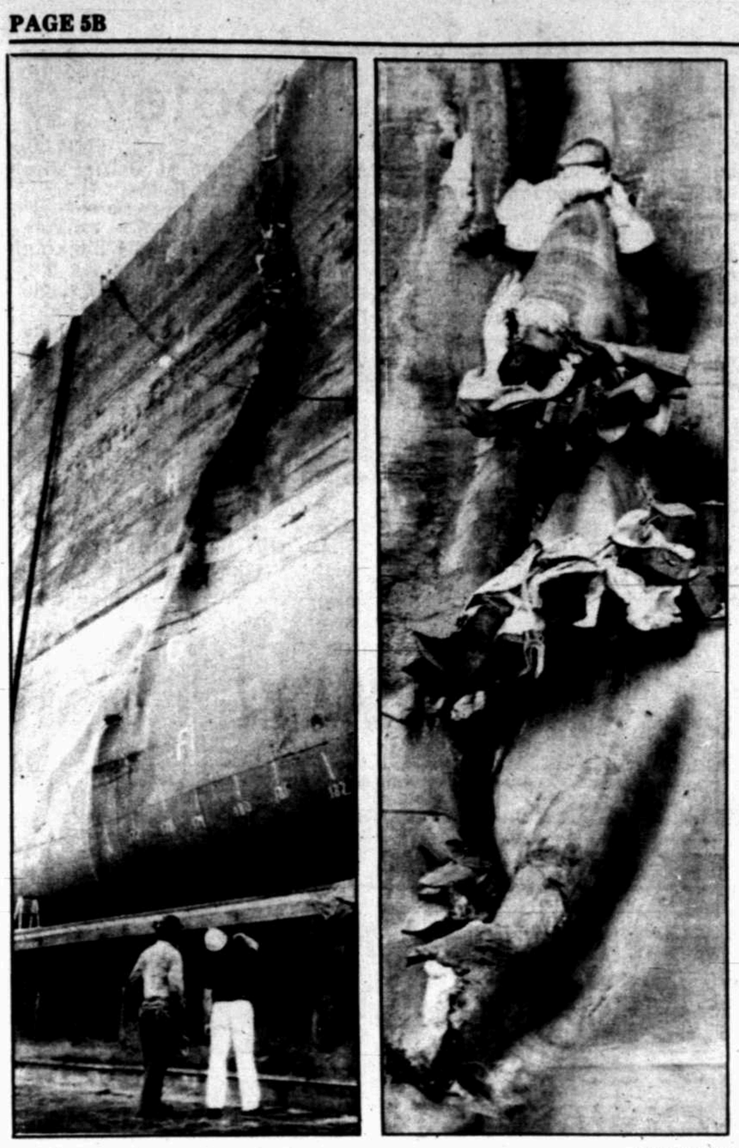

THA is concerned, she says, that private placements, "do not make their way to the public in the secondary market," but stay with "sophisticated investors" due to the nature of the issues.

Such issues don't have the degree of disclosure as issues offered for public sale.

GALVESTON — Two workers for Todd Shipyards of Galveston examine the gash on the right side of the oil tanker ALVENUS as it sits in dry dock Monday. Close-up view whos rags and boards stuffed into the split as an emergency repair effort while the ship was in the water. The ALVENUS is being examined to determine cause of the damage sustained July 30, near Cameron, Louisiana.

Speed limit urged for ships

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Transportation Safety Board has urgently recommended a speed limit for big ships navigating the Calcasieu Ship Channel off the Louisiana coast where the tanker Alvenus ran aground July 30, spilling about 10,000 tons of crude oil.

In a Sept. 7 letter released Monday, NTSB Chairman Jim Burnett told Admiral James S. Gracey, commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard, that the grounding of the Alvenus "was probably a combination of the tankship's bottom clearance, speed and hull form."

When the ship ran aground, its hull cracked and its oil tanks ruptured. About 3,000 tons of oil ended up on Texas beaches at an estimated cleanup cost of $20 million.

Burnett recommended as "Class I, Urgent Action" that the Coast Guard "set immediate maximum draft (depth in the water) and speed requirements for deep-draft vessels navigating the Calcasieu Ship Channel."

He said the local pilot who boarded the United Kingdom ship to help guide it through the channel told investigators that the ship's maximum depth in the water was 39 feet 4 inches at the time. The depth of the channel was 42 feet at low tide, and the tide was 2½ feet above mean low tide at the time of the accident, the NTSB said.

The ship was making 12.5 knots, but due to the drag caused by its closeness to the bottom of the channel, it was probably making closer to 10 knots, according to the pilot, the board said.

"The Alvenus was also probably experiencing squat (sinkage and trim)," the NTSB said. "As a vessel increases speed, it will sink deeper in the water. ... This sinkage and trim is increased in shallow water where the proximity of the bottom causes increased relative velocity as the water flows under the vessel and the waves are more pronounced."

About 50 minutes after entering the channel, the ship "smoothly but quickly decelerated as it ran aground," the NTSB said. "The second mate on watch noticed oil spurting out of the No. 2 tanks, stopped the engine and actuated the emergency alarm."

Tattle tale black box keeps eye on truckers

New York Times News Service

NEW MILFORD, Conn. — "You just can't get on the road and run a truck anymore," Kenny Benoit, a driver for 18 years, said as he finished his run at the terminal of the Kimberly-Clark Corp. here.

Benoit's truck, like all 50 new tractors leased from Ryder System Inc., is equipped with electronic devices that monitor the driver. An electronic engine control system by TRW Inc. sets the top speed at 58 miles per hour and the minimum at 53, taking most control of cruising speed out of the driver's hands. Another TRW system records a vast variety of details about each trip, from the number of revolutions per minute — an important measure of fuel economy — to the length of time the truck runs at a particular speed and the duration of the unloading period.

After the 1973 fuel crisis, truck manufacturers introduced modifications that brought down the maximum speed — to 60 mph, from 70 or 75 — and thus improved fuel mileage. Most of the changes were mechanical, however. Now, hundreds of trucking companies are testing and installing sophisticated electronic devices capable of controlling and monitoring the driver much more closely. And they report savings well into the millions of dollars.

Besides TRW, the other major developers and manufacturers of electronic devices for trucking are Engler Instruments, Rockwell International Automotive Electronics and Argo Instruments. Many are developing still more sophisticated devices.

"In the next three to five years there will be a lot of microcomputers put on the truck," said James R. Barr, environmental specialist at the American Trucking Association. The trend will probably be "to take more and more control away from the driver," he said.

Drivers, predictably, are unhappy with the new controls. They complain that it is often impossible to overtake cars. And when they finish their trip, they must take the device out of the cab and into the driver check-in room, where it is plugged into a computer and prints out an electronic history of the trip.

"It's like someone riding with you and writing down everything you did," Benoit said.

"It bores you to death," said Gus Moffie, a driver with the Kimberly-Clark Integrated Service Corp., a subsidiary that runs the company's fleet of 200 trucks. Moffie said that "on long stretches of road you don't have a lot to do to keep your eyes open." He added, "The other problem is that when you get in delays you can't make up the time."

Seminole bank directors named

U.S. leader in new jobs

WASHINGTON—Since December, 1982, when the current economic recovery began, American business has created 6.8 million jobs, far surpassing the record of other industrialized countries, some of which have even lost jobs during the same period.

For instance, in that 20-month period, there were more jobs created in this country than were created in Japan during the past decade. And the 880,000 jobs created in May alone surpassed the number created in the entire European Economic Community in the last 10 years.

After making up for the jobs lost during the 1980-1981 recession, American business continued to expand and there now are five million more Americans at work than ever before.

Since 1977, American business has created jobs for more than 10 million additional workers while the major Western European nations - Great Britain, West Germany, France - were all losing jobs. Each of those nations now has at least twice the unemployment rate it had in 1977, while the U.S. rate is the same.

One of the major differences between the European economies and that of the United States is the percentage of the gross national product - the measure of all goods and services produced - which is absorbed by government spending.

In the major Western European countries, the government spends about one-half or more of the nation's GNP, but in the United States, the goverment spends about one-third. In Japan, which also has had a relatively good record of job creation, the government spends about the same proportion of its GNP as does the U.S.

Of course, government spending is largely financed by taxes, and the higher thespending, the higher the taxes. A recent study by the World Bank found a strong relationship between taxes and economic growth.

ABC takeover in doubt

NEW YORK — Shares of the American Broadcasting Cos., which shot up more than $8 during two days of takeover speculation, eased more than $3 Friday amid doubts that a buyout was imminent.

Analysts said ABC was an attractive company that generated a large and steady stream of cash. But they warned that the financial and regulatory hurdles of buying one of the three major television networks were large, unless the company wanted to be purchased.

"My feeling is this is a lot of speculation," said Fred Anschel, an analyst with Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. "I would doubt that there is a real serious concerted takeover attempt afoot."

ABC denied that it was negotiating any sort of deal. Patricia J. Matson, a spokesman, said: "We really don't know of any reason for the unusual stock activity. We've had no discussions with anyone."

She noted that trading in ABC stock slowed Friday from Wednesday and Thursday, when nearly 1.8 million shares changed hands and the stock jumped $8.125. Friday 347,900 shares were traded, and the price dropped $3.125 in composite trading, to close at $74.

A block trader at Morgan Stanley & Co., who asked not to be named, suggested that Wall Street arbitragers, who buy stocks in companies that stand to be taken over, might have had second thoughts and sold shares after an article in Friday's Wall Street Journal.

The article quoted Boyd L. Jeffries, chairman of Jeffries Group Inc., as saying his brokerage firm had been "accumulating shares" of ABC late Wednesday and Thursday. The article, which Jeffries refused to confirm Friday, also speculated that Jeffries might be buying shares for Irwin L. Jacobs, the Minneapolis investor.

The article may have "scared the arbitrage community," the Morgan Stanley trader said, because any Jeffries buyer was more likely to be a speculator than a large, well-financed corporation serious about buying ABC. A speculator would be "a much lower quality purchaser than the street had been hoping for," the trader said.

The fear is that a speculator would accumulate a large block of stock and resell it to the company at a profit. After these so-called episodes of greenmail, the shares held by others usually drop precipitously in price.

Market players also may have been disappointed by a denial yesterday from Mr. Jacobs that he was purchasing shares in the company.

Senate prepares to start bank bill debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate was preparing today to open debate on a comprehensive banking bill designed to establish what kinds of businesses banks can be in and what kinds of businesses can be banks.

By an 89-3 vote Monday night, the Senate cut off a filibuster that had blocked the start of debate on the substance of the legislation.

The fight against the bill is being led by the two senators from New York.

The pair, Alfonse M. D'Amato, a Republican, and Democrat Daniel Patrick Moynihan, are motivated in part by the opposition of two banking giants at home, Chase Manhattan and Citibank.

The big banks and the two senators oppose wording that gives approval to states which enter into regional agreements that allow banks to operate across each other's state lines.

Such regional compacts have already been set up in some areas and all exclude banks from the two big banking centers in the United States, New York and California.

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, the chairman of the Banking Committee and floor manager of the bill, said on the floor that the two big New York City banks by opposing the bill have said, in effect, "to hell with 14,000 other banks."

Smaller banks prefer the insulation from competition with the money center banks and want the authority to deal in mortgage-backed securities and mortgage revenue bonds.

The Senate bill, and a much less ambitious one in the House, would close a loophole in federal law that has allowed some non-bank companies, to offer bank services such as checking accounts. The same provision lets some bank holding companies operate across state lines.

It closes a loophole used by the state of South Dakota to allow out-of-state holding companies to purchase a South Dakota bank and then use South Dakota authority to go into other states and sell insurance.

The Senate bill also clears the way for banks to get involved in some new areas such as underwriting mortgage-backed securities and municipal revenue bonds.

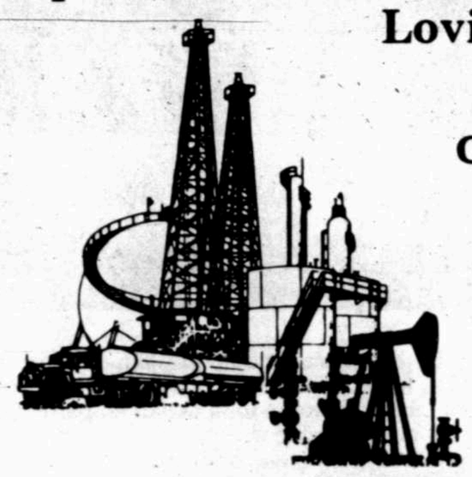

Sen. William Proxmire, ranking Democrat on the Senate Banking Committee which drafted the bill, said allowing banks to make a single package of a number of home mortgages so they can be used as backing for securities would lower the costs of home mortgages.

High mortgage rates have been blamed by real estate agents for a home sale slump over the last few months.

Tuesday is the fifth day of debate scheduled on the topic, but now the debate will be on the bill, not whether to take up the bill.

PUBLIC NOTICE

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc., has filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUC) a proposal to reduce intrastate, interLATA long distance revenues to offset proposed increases in specialized service rates for private line, WATS, 800, OCC facilities and directory assistance services. The proposed tariff restructure will not result in any increases in the overall revenues of the Company. The proposed effective date for the tariffs is September 20, 1984. All customers and classes of customers will be affected by this filing.

The restructure in the basic long distance service (MTS) results in an overall decrease in the revenues received by the Company from such service of approximately $100 million. While this proposed restructure results in an overall decrease in revenue, certain MTS rates are proposed to be increased to more nearly recover the access charges approved by the PUC for such service.

AT&T Communications has also filed restructured tariffs designed to more closely recover access costs for private line, DATAPHONE* Digital Service (DDS), OCC facilities, WATS, 800 and directory assistance services. These restructured tariffs result in an approximate overall revenue increase of approximately $100 million from increases in its WATS, 800, DDS, OCC facilities and private line rates, and institution of a charge for directory assistance.

The result of these proposed tariff changes and the restructure of our service offerings is to more nearly recover access costs from those services for which such access costs are incurred.

This proposed restructure results in no increase in overall revenue to AT&T Communications and is not a major rate change as that term is defined in Section 43(b) of the Public Utility Regulatory Act.

A complete copy of all tariffs and rate schedules is on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. PUBLIC NOTICE
BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS
GENERAL ELECTION
NOVEMBER 6, 1984

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 29 proposes a constitutional amendment that provides to state-chartered banks the same rights and privileges that are or may be granted to national banks of the United States domiciled in this state. For example, if national banks become authorized to maintain branch offices, this amendment would extend the same privilege to state banks.

The proposed constitutional amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to provide state banks the same rights and privileges as national banks."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 19 proposes a constitutional amendment that restructures the Permanent University Fund to provide: (1) for the expansion of the institutions eligible to participate in the bonding capacity of the fund to include the components of The University of Texas and Texas A&M University systems that have been added to those two systems of higher education since the Permanent University Fund was last restructured by constitutional amendment; (2) for the expansion of the purposes for which bond proceeds can be expended from new construction to include major repair and rehabilitation projects and the acquisition of major capital equipment (e.g., computers and laboratory equipment) and library books and materials; (3) for an increase in the bonding capacity from 20% (⅔ for The University of Texas System and ⅓ for the Texas A&M University System) to 30% (20% for The University of Texas System and 10% for Texas A&M University System) of the value of the assets (exclusive of real estate) in the Permanent University Fund in order to provide sufficient bond proceeds to care for the addition of 10 new institutions to those authorized to participate in the Permanent University Fund bonding program and to care for the expanded purposes for which the bond proceeds can be spent; and (4) for the dedication of the dividends, interest, and other income from the Permanent University Fund remaining after payment of principal and interest due on bonds and notes issued, to the provision of support and maintenance (over and above normal legislative appropriations) for Texas A&M University in Brazos County, Prairie View A&M University, and The University of Texas at Austin.

House Joint Resolution 19 also annually appropriates $100 million in each fiscal year, beginning September 1, 1985 (from the first money coming into the state treasury that is not otherwise appropriated by the constitution) for the use of those education which are not included in The University of Texas or Texas A&M University Systems and, therefore, not eligible to participate in the Permanent University Fund bonding program. The amount of this appropriation could be adjusted every five years by a ⅔ vote of the Legislature, but could not be adjusted in such a way as to affect outstanding bonding indebtedness. Each institution of higher education that is eligible to participate (i.e., those institutions of higher education outside The University of Texas and Texas A&M University Systems) would be authorized to expend directly its share (such share to be determined pursuant to an equitable formula) of the $100 million appropriation for the purposes of acquiring land, constructing and equipping buildings or other permanent improvements, major repair and rehabilitation of other permanent buildings or improvements, and acquisition of major capital equipment (e.g., computers and laboratory equipment) and library books and materials. Additionally, each institution would be authorized to issue bonds backed by a pledge of up to 50% of its share of the $100 million annual appropriation for the purpose of land acquisition, new construction, and major repair and rehabilitation projects.

Except in the case of fire or natural disaster and in other extraordinary cases, verified by a two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature, all institutions of higher education would be precluded from receiving appropriations of general revenue funds for the purposes of land acquisition, new construction, and major repair and rehabilitation projects.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to create from general revenue a special higher education assistance fund for construction and related activities, to restructure the Permanent University Fund, and to increase the number of institutions eligible to benefit from the Permanent University Fund."

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 65 proposes a constitutional amendment which authorizes the legislature to provide for the payment of assistance to the surviving dependent parents, brothers, and sisters of officers, employees and agents of the state or its political subdivisions, including members of organized volunteer fire departments and members of organized police reserve or auxiliary units authorized to make arrests, who die in the course of performing hazardous official duties. Payments to surviving spouses and dependent children of agencies and institutions of higher such officers, employees, and agents are already authorized by the Constitution.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the legislature to provide for payment of assistance to the surviving dependent parents, brothers, and sisters of certain public servants killed while on duty."

PROPOSITION NO. 4 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 20 proposes a constitutional amendment which abolishes the office of county treasurer in Bexar and Collin counties if a majority of the voters in each of those counties vote in favor of abolishing the office of county treasurer in a local election to be held on the issue. All the powers, duties, and functions of the office of county treasurer in each of these counties would be transferred to the county clerk.

The proposed constitutional amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to abolish the office of county treasurer in Bexar and Collin counties."

PROPOSITION NO. 5 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 22 proposes a constitutional amendment which provides a new method of filling a vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor. The amendment requires the President pro tempore of the Senate to call together the committee of the whole Senate within 30 days after a vacancy occurs in the office of Lieutenant Governor. The committee would be required to elect one of its members to perform the duties of the Lieutenant Governor until the next general election. This individual would continue his duties as Senator at the same time that he performs the Lieutenant Governor's duties. If the Senator who is elected ceases to be a Senator before the next general election, another Senator must be elected according to the above procedure to perform the Lieutenant Governor's duties. The President pro tempore would be required to perform the Lieutenant Governor's duties pending the election of one of its members by the committee of the whole Senate.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing the state senate to fill a vacancy in the office of lieutenant governor."

PROPOSITION NO. 6 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 73 proposes a constitutional amendment that permits the use of public funds and credit for payment of premiums on non-assessable life, health, or accident insurance policies and annuity contracts issued by a mutual insurance company authorized to do business in this state. The constitutional prohibition against a grant of public money to an individual, association, or corporation or against becoming a stockholder in a corporation, association, or company has limited life and health group policies of political subdivisions to non-mutual insurance companies. The amendment would permit mutual insurance companies to bid for those policies.

The proposed constitutional amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: The constitutional amendment to permit use of public funds and credit for payment of premiums on certain insurance contracts of mutual insurance companies authorized to do business in Texas."

PROPOSITION NO. 7 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 4 proposes a constitutional amendment to change the membership of the State Commission on Judicial Conduct to include one Judge of a Municipal Court and one Judge of a County Court at Law, who shall be selected at large and appointed by the Supreme Court with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The amendment also provides additional grounds for removal from office of judges or justices of Texas courts, and provides additional disciplinary actions that could be taken in lieu of removal or censure. The amendment would extend the Commission's disciplinary authority to masters, magistrates, and retired or former judges who hear cases by designation. The amendment creates a tribunal to review recommendations of the State Commission on Judicial Conduct for removal or retirement of a judge or justice. The review tribunal would be composed of seven (7) Justices or Judges of the Courts of Appeals selected by lot by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. The amendment also provides for appeal of the review tribunal's decision to the Supreme Court of Texas and grants an accused judge the right to discovery of evidence.

The proposition will appear on the ballot as follows: The constitutional amendment relating to the membership of the State Commission on Judicial Conduct and the authority and procedure to discipline active judges, certain retired and former judges, and certain masters and magistrates of the courts."

PROPOSITION NO. 8 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 22 proposes a constitutional amendment which increases the per diem of members of the Legislature. The amount of per diem allowed during a calendar year would be equal to the maximum amount set in federal income tax statutes as of January 1 of that same year as a deduction for ordinary and necessary business expenses incurred by a state legislator. Current per diem is $30; the maximum deduction is now $75.

The proposed constitutional amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to provide a per diem for members of the legislature equal to the maximum daily amount allowed by federal law as a deduction for ordinary and necessary business expenses incurred by a state legislator."

Estos son los informes explanatorios sobre las enmiendas propuestas a la constitución que aparacerán en la boleta el día 6 de noviembre de 1984. Si usted no ha recibido una copia de los informes en español, podrá obtener una gratis por llamar al 1/800/252/9602 o por escribir al Secretario de Estado, P.O. Box 12887, Austin, Texas 78711.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Groundwater yields may drop two-thirds

DALLAS—Groundwater yields in the High Plains of Texas may drop to two-thirds of their current level by 1990, requiring a significant reduction in irrigation according to economist Roger Dunstan in the August issueof the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas' Agricultural Highlights. Dunstan's research indicates that productivity of area farming could suffer a major decline unless farmers are able to maintain current crop yields using less water. Farmers, who irrigate about half of the area's cropland, are the major users of the Ogallala aquifer which supplies virtually all water in the High Plains. The Ogallala aquifer - a water-bearing rock formation - has been subject to depletion for a number of years.

Allstate invests more than $1 million locally

IRVING — The Allstate Insurance Group has invested more than $1 million in bonds in Midland county, according to Bryant Moore, the companies' regional vice president for Texas.

Midland county investments are part of more than $723,196,000 in bonds held by Allstate in 123 counties in Texas.

The companies' investments in Midland county include Midland County Texas Hospital District Series 1983 and Midland County Texas Housing Finance Single Family 1980A.

Third quarter income tax due next month

DALLAS — October 31 is the date by which employers must report on Form 941 social security and withheld federal income taxes for the third quarter of 1984 and pay any taxes due, the Internal Revenue Service says.

This deadline does not apply to those employers who make timely deposits of the full amount of tax due in Federal Reserve or approved commercial banks. They are allowed until November 12 to file Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return."

If employers have not received Form 941 by mail, they can order one through the Forms/Tax Information number listed in the phone book under U.S. Government. IRS Publication 15, Circular E—Employer's Tax Guide, is also available through this number.

Hearst to buy Diversion Communications

NEW YORK — The Hearst Corp. has entered into an agreement to acquire Diversion Communications Inc., a publisher of magazines for the medical market and other specialty markets.

FNMA minimum yield up from last week

WASHINGTON — The Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) has reported that its minimum yield required for conventional fixed-rate mortgages is 14.050 percent up from last week's rate of 13.950 percent.

The rate for five-year adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs) is 14.050 percent, up from last week's rate of 14.000 percent.

Arrangements committee named for Mid-Continent

AUSTIN — Corbin J. Robertson, Jr., president of Quintana Minerals Corp., has been named chairman of the general arrangements committee for the 65th Annual Meeting of Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association. The convention is scheduled Thursday and Friday, October 4-5, at the Westin Galleria Hotel in Houston.

Smith: Panel needs to do some politicking

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Since the Midland County Jail continues to be in violation of standards set by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, Sheriff Dallas Smith is recommending the Midland County commissioners do some mild politicking.

"It basically would be a good deal," the sheriff told the commissioners on Monday, if they would appear in person before the state commission in Austin on Sept. 26.

Smith also recommended that the county once again consider a joint city-county jail.

The sheriff, who's a member of the jail commission, noted that the commission again has cited the Midland County Jail for violations and has recommended that:

— Physical exercise and recreational areas be provided prisoners.

— Inmates be afforded one hour of supervised physical exercise three days a week.

— Inmates confined in jail for 30 days or more be afforded weekly "access to sunlight."

— Inmates in single cells be provided with a dayroom.

— Prisoners be adequately segregated.

— Adequate lighting be provided in the cells.

"THERE'S NOTHING left that I can do," said the sheriff, who noted that the jail has been "behind standards" for seven years.

If the jail does not come up to standards, the sheriff suggested that the jail commission might order the overflow of inmates to be jailed elsewhere and that corrective measures be taken.

Meanwhile, commissioners are making plans to build a new jail just east of town. That facility, which would meet or exceed standards, would not be constructed until 1986.

"We've got our backs against the wall," Smith said. But he noted that the lighting deficiency could be corrected by the installation of a $25,000 vandal-proof lighting system for the cells.

"This would be a well-worthwhile trip to Austin," he said. The sheriff said that the county commissioners' personal appearance before the jail commission would have more impact than their letters to the commission.

In a related matter, Smith indicated that the federal court has been lenient on Midland County and its apparent inability to comply with the jail commission's standards.

"(Federal) Judge (Lucius D.) Bunton has been more than fair with Midland County up to this time," Smith said.

United Way Pilot Campaign Chairman George B. Irish, right, announces the total raised by the pilot campaign at the kickoff lunch Monday for the fall campaign. Helping Irish are Fall Campaign Chairman Joseph I. O'Neill III and cast members of the Midland Community Theatre's production of "Annie."

United Way of Midland kicks off fall campaign

From Staff Reports

United Way of Midland began its fall fund-raising campaign Monday with a lunch at Midland Center featuring remarks by former Dallas Cowboy Billy Joe DuPree.

The event began with the announcement that the summer pilot campaign had exceeded its fund-raising goal of $504,000.

"Our results were $526,688," said George B. Irish, chairman of the pilot campaign.

That's 27 percent of the total goal of $1.95 million, and Campaign Chairman Joseph I. O'Neill III said he was looking forward to the challenge of raising the rest of the money in the fall campaign, which runs through Oct. 25.

"We've already got over 700 volunteers signed up for this fall's campaign," O'Neill said.

After viewing a filmstrip about the work done by various agencies supported by the United Way, the 450 guests heard DuPree talk about how he got involved in community service.

"I always had feelings for the individual who had a little less than I did," he said. As a well-known athlete, "I had the opportunity to put as much back into the community as I possible could."

He began by getting involved with Big Brothers/Big Sisters in Dallas, "But from that point I began to realize that the United Way was a much broader affiliation...for the last six years I've been pretty active."

People tend to take community service agencies for granted, DuPree said, but without the financial support of the community, they wouldn't be there.

"There is a need for the assistance, there is a need for the help," he said.

The kick-off lunch also featured a skit by cast members of the Midland Community Theatre's production of "Annie," and a performance by the Midland Freshman Band.

Proposed mobile home zoning expansion unites neighborhood

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

It was the idea of a mobile home sitting in the middle of the neighborhood that lighted a fire under the citizens and six months later they are beginning to see the sparks of interest radiating to the rest of the community.

Midland Housing Finance Corporation has started talking over ideas with representatives of local lending institutions about a housing program for southeast Midland, according to MHFC President Don Hellinghausen. One meeting was held last week and the lenders appeared interested, he said.

"We've got a bunch of pieces floating around," said MHFC member Steve Davidson, referring to the ideas. "There's nothing tied down yet."

But Bertha Starks, one of the neighborhood organizers, is hopeful about the progress made since she and other citizens started talking six months ago.

Revitalizing the Washington Park neighborhood was one of the primary goals heading the Objectives for the '80s, which were drawn up by a cross section of Midlanders in 1980.

Little had been done, however, until someone wanted to locate a mobile home in the area. The city Planning Department decided to expand the mobile home zoning and that's when a few southeast-side citizens decided if something was going to be done, they were going to have to do it.

They appeared at a city planning meeting and objected to the rezoning. "We decided that was not going to help improve the area," said Ms. Starks. The city in return asked those citizens to come up with a plan.

"WE KNEW SOME people who were interested in living there, but were not able to secure loans for houses. The lending institutions said they would prefer to give money to areas that were developing. There was little building going on in this area," said Ms. Starks.

This small band of citizens surveyed people to determine how much interest there was in buying homes in southeast Midland.

"I had 25 people fill out the survey. Others met with us and said they were interested," said Ms. Starks. The survey included questions on how much income they had, how long they had been at their present job, how many members in their family and what type of house they wanted.

Based on the responses, "We found a number of people we think would qualify for loans," she said.

Based on past experience, she knew those loans weren't going to be forthcoming without some help. That's when they sought the MHFC.

In the meantime, after an appeal to the City Council, $90,000 of Community Development Block Grant funds was allocated for putting in curbs, gutters and paving in that area. Mrs. Starks said that money will cover about 1½ blocks. But it will serve as a starting point in the neighborhood revitalization.

"WE'RE NOT talking of building big houses or rent places. We're really interested in people wanting their own homes and feel the responsibility of keeping them up," she said. "If we can build up that block, we can make a better showing than by putting one house on a block here and one on another block."

Ector County commissioners set '84-'85 budget without tax hike

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — What a difference a year can make.

One year after Ector County set a budget that led to a tax rollback, county commissioners settled on a budget for 1984-85 which includes no tax increase.

With Monday's final action setting a tax rate of 33¢, the county has gone from last year — when the budget proposed before it was rolled back called for a 12 percent increase — to a tax rate which figures to cause no increase in the effective tax rate.

The tax rate of 33¢ per $100 in property assessed is one penny more than last year's rate, but — according to provisions of the Texas Property Tax Code — is no increase in the effective rate.

Last year, there were no salary increases. Many people lost their jobs in cutbacks of about $2.8 million before and after the January rollback.

Included in the coming year's budget is a 5 percent across-the-board hike in salaries of county employees, effective Jan. 1.

Along with these improvements, the county will be allowing discounts and exemptions that figure to save the same taxpayers who voted to roll back the rate last year some money on this year's tax bills.

A graduated discount for early payment will save those paying during the first month after receiving their bill 3 percent, those paying the second month after the bill 2 percent and those paying during the third month 1 percent off their tax bills.

This discount figures to benefit the largest taxpayers, the oil companies, whose bills would reflect a big dollar reduction with the 3, 2 or 1 percent break.

The county supported these reductions, expecting the early payments to provide them with operating funds while other taxpayers hold their money until the deadline.

Investment of the early payments by companies, such as Amoco Production Co. who doles out about $1.8 million annually, will also provide revenue from interest income more than offsetting the losses from the discounts.

The county is offering disabled veterans exemptions of up to $3,000 on the appraised value of their land holdings. Senior citizens get a $25,000 break on the value of their property.

Astronomy among earth's oldest sciences

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

Star gazing is one of the oldest sciences known to man. Even the most primitive tribes knew something about the sky, whether it was simply that the sun gave them light and heat or how to measure time by the position of the sun and the shape of the moon.

The beginnings of the science of astronomy can be traced to Greek scholars during the 400 years before the birth of Christ.

Eudoxus, ca. 400-355 B.C., taught that the heavens revolved around the earth, which was the center of the universe. Aristarchus, ca. 200 B.C., held the opposite theory that certain movements of the sky could be explained by assuming that the earth moved around the sun.

This battle continued through the centuries that followed, until the observations of Galileo, 1564-1642, and Isaac Newton, 1642-1727 (the law of gravity), proved that the earth moved around the sun.

Man is still fascinated by gazing into the heavens. Modern technology has made it possible for more amateur astronomers to own telescopes which allow stars, planets and galaxies to be viewed more clearly than with the naked eye.

"An amateur today can afford an eight inch telescope, where an amateur in the 1800's could perhaps only afford a three-inch," says Carson Hicks, a member of the West Texas Astronomers.

The West Texas Astronomers hold regular meetings at the Marian Blakemore Planetarium. The organization offers the public a chance to join members in taking a closer look at the stars.

"You can experience for yourself the thrill of the ancient science of astronomy by attending one of our viewing sessions," Hicks says.

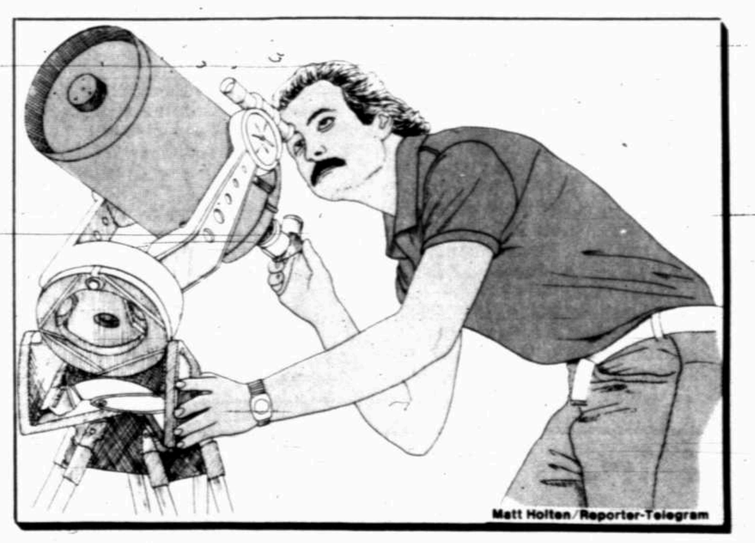

The next such viewing will be held following Thursday's 7:30 p.m. meeting. The topic during the meeting is "How to Buy a Telescope for a Christmas Present." The viewing session will be from 8:30 to 10 p.m. outside the planetarium at Haley Park.

"We're going to try to have four telescopes which will range in size from two inches to eight inches in diameter."

Some of the celestial objects visible this time of year are constellations and planets.

"In the September sky, people who go out in the evening around 9 o'clock after it's dark will be able to see several constellations of varying interest," Hicks says.

LISA GERLOCK

Is he haunted by memories of long-lost friends?

He gazed out the window of the airport, with a newspaper in his lap and I wondered what he was thinking.

The expression on his face was familiar — like the look people get when they think about others they have left behind.

Was his mind drifting back to friends he said good-bye to long ago?

Do the memories still haunt him?

Perhaps. And for the next 30 minutes my brain chased what I envisioned his life to be.

Years pass and still he thinks about those friends from days gone by.

The farewells have saddened a part of his soul that nothing but the reciprocal scene could cure.

He was born in the age of portable lifestyles. He grew up in a fast food drive-through lane, and learned to order a successful life to go. He learned to say good-bye at a young age and has been repeating it ever since.

He, like his friends, is goal-oriented. He enthusiastically packs up and goes to wherever success may take him.

In a simpler time, he was referred to as an "up-and-comer," a "mover-and-shaker." Today he is stereotypical of his generation.

He enjoys what appears to be an upscale living standard.

He has lived several places in a short time. Opening and closing bank; electricity and telephone accounts have become, to him, as automatic a process as getting ready for work in the morning.

He is out to change the world as he emphatically etches his way to higher tax brackets.

He has learned to enjoy the ease of hopping across the country in search of a break and he does so in the name of opportunity.

His proud parents enjoy casual mention in conversation of their child's ambitions and accomplishments which have wisked him away from one coast to another.

By today's standard, his moves are measured favorably.

His life sounds good, it looks good on paper and, from the outside looking in, it is good.

In reality, however, the up-and-comer escapes any form of an established lifestyle. It is easier that way. If he never unpacks in one city, he doesn't have to pack when it is time to move to another.

He is chasing dreams. And while he has a vague idea of what it is he wants, the tangibles remain unsketched. The determination to reach his goals is more demanding than anyone told him it would be.

The lesson is enlightening yet frustrating.

He has made friends along the way and the uncalculated good-byes he has said are unaccounted for; to him the list seems infinite.

So caught up in whittling his way to the top, he has left behind the smiles, the miles and the yesterdays.

He finds himself consumed in unanswered questions about friends who were lost somewhere along the way while he, and they, got ahead in life.

One particular good-bye stands out in his mind, and, wondering if it was destined to be final, he ponders tracing what tracks remained.

He knows friendship encompasses the time passed. But he missed sharing the strides, hopes, and shattered dreams gone by. Suddenly, he wants to catch up.

He knows reaching back may bring the lonely realization that the time passed has possibly divided their friendship.

Reticent of resurrecting friendships that have fallen by the wayside, he wonders if they even existed.

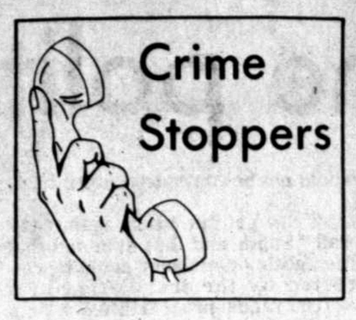

Then again, he was so obsessed with idealism, he doesn't really remember.

He thinks about them, and in thought, he is safe. He can live with the memories, without having to face the reality of the present. He will never know.

Still, the memories will warmly haunt him.

Lisa Gerlock is Lifestyle of Editor of the Reporter-Telegram.

Crime Stoppers seeks information on murder

Odessa Crime Stoppers' Crime of the Week is a murder which occurred on the southside of that city on Monday, Aug. 24.

Just before 6 p.m. on that day, officers were called to 601 Beal St., where inside the residence they found the body of James Clifford Bell, age 55. Death was caused by being hit on the head with a blunt object. He had been dead for more than 12 hours when his body was discovered.

Through their investigation, officers have determined that a Mexican-American male about 45 years of age — estimated to be 5 feet, 8 inches, 190 pounds with a moustache and goatee and tatoos on both arms — was seen in the area of 601 Beal.

Information on this murder could earn the caller $1,000 if it leads to the arrest and grand jury indictment of the murderer. Crime Stoppers will pay a cash reward for information on other felony crimes, as well.

In Odessa, call 333-8477. In Midland, call 694-8477. Callers can remain anonymous.

BUDGET

Families and single adults can take advantage of a $3,000 homestead exemption on the assessed value of their property as applied to the Farm-to-Market, Lateral Road tax.

Finally, an overall exemption of 10 percent (or $5,000, depending on which is greater) is available to all homeowners, but this break does not apply to the FMLR tax.

For example, a homeowner with an asessment of $100,000 who was disabled to a large extent in the war and is at least 65 years old would be paying county and FMLR taxes on $72,000. Tack on to this breaks of $10,000 (10 percent of $100,000) on the county taxes and $3,000 on FMLR taxes.

The graduated discount would save a company taxed $2 million by the county 3 percent or $60,000 if the bill is paid during the first month after it is mailed.

Operations have been considerably streamlined since the same time last year.

Management responsibility for the parks and recreation system, with a budget of more than $2 million at its peak, has been transferred to the city. With this large department went about 40 employees and maintenance chores on its equipment and facilities.

Other departments have experienced personnel and funding cutbacks. For example, library employees now do their own daily maintenance, including cleaning the bathrooms.

County Judge Jan Fisher also attributes the improved financial conditions to the implementation of management practices in all county departments.

JAIL

THE SHERIFF also said that Mark H. Dettman, first assistant to the Midland County attorney, "has done a real first-class job" in representing Midland County in federal lawsuits filed by inmates.

Inmates have alleged violation of their civil rights due to lack of excercise areas and little exposure to sunlight, supposed unsantiary conditions in the jail, and lack of access to the law library.

Smith said the county needs to address the exercise issue "even if it has the appearance of a Band-Aid type of deal."

And, he said, "the courts seem to be leaning" to inmates' access to the law library. Bunton has ordered that an inmate who is suing the county be given weekday admission to the library.

Dettman noted that prisoners in litigation are allowed use of the library one hour per day five days a week.

"That's the way they can use the law library — by filing suit," Dettman said.

After prisoners are familiar with the law books, they can then request photocopies of pertinent excerpts from law books instead of having to go to the library, which is in the basement of the courthouse. The jail in on the courthouse's fifth floor.

MIDLAND ARCHITECT Walter Pate said that a scaled-down law library could be built into the proposed new county jail.

Though the county is in non-compliance with several state regulations, Commissioner C. Wallace "Wally" Craig suggested that the jail commission "ought to be able to live with that now" until the new jail is built.

Craig suggested that the "pitch" to the jail commission would be to "do nothing until we get a new jail."

In bringing up another old issue, the sheriff asked the commissioners to approach the Midland City Council to gauge the council's interest in a joint city-county jail.

"So many counties have taken advantage of the joint system," Smith said. "It's bad enough to have one...We (the county) indicated our interest (in the joint project), and nothing's happened with the city."

"We've talked about it and talked about it," said Commissioner Win Brown, "...but I don't know if we'd done anything about it."

"We've sure missed the boat for the taxpayers," said the sheriff.

"I don't disagree with it (the joint project) at all," said Craig. "Eventually, I think it will happen."

Smith noted that joint city-county jail projects are operating in such areas as Dallas, San Antonio, Houston and El Paso.

"They've found it to be economical," Smith said.

County Judge Bill Ahders said he would volunteer to be the Commissioners' Court liaison to the Midland City Council on the joint project proposal.

"Let me talk to them," Ahders said.

"And don't take 'no' for an answer," suggested the sheriff.

DEATHS

Charlie R. Jones

BIG LAKE — Charlie R. Jones, 82, of Big Lake, died Sunday afternoon in a Reagan hospital.

Graveside services were to be this morning in Glen Rest Cemetery in Big Lake, with the Rev. J.B. Bitner, pastor of the First Baptist Church and the Rev. Charles Williams, pastor of the First United Methodist Church officiating, under the direction of Johnson's Funeral Home.

Jones was born Jan. 8, 1902, in Grand Saline. He was married to Thalia Haynes on Dec. 30, 1926, in Canton. Jones was a member of the First United Methodist Church. He was a retired road foreman for Reagan County.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Charlene Daugherty of Big Lake; four sisters; two grandchildren; five great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

W.A. Richardson

Wayne A. Richardson, 53, of Midland, died Monday morning of injuries he received when a car struck a trailer he was working on in front of his home.

Services will be Wednesday at 10 a.m. in the Asbury Methodist Church with the Rev. Douglas Gossett, pastor, officiating and Dr. Charles Lutrick of First United Methodist Church assisting. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Richardson was born April 8, 1931, in Wilburton, Okla., moving to Midland where he graduted from Midland High School in 1950. He attended and graduated from Texas Tech University in 1955 with a degree in horticulture. After graduation he returned to Midland to help his father operate the Richardson Nursery, which he continued to operate until the time of his death.

He was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Tiene Richardson; a son, Steven Richardson of Midland; three daughters, Elizabeth Richardson of Dallas, Mrs. Melinda Standefer of Odessa and Caroline Richardson of Midland; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Richardson of Midland; a brother, John K. Richardson of Tyler; a sister, Mrs. Marian Taggert of Shreveport, La. and a grandson.

Willie T. House

Willie T. House, 85, of Midland, died early Monday morning in an Odessa hospital after an extended illness.

Services will be Wednesday at 11 a.m. in the Ellis Chapel with the Rev. Joe White of Odessa officiating and Jim Fields of Cotten Flat Baptist Church assisting. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He was born June 18, 1899, in Gorman, and was reared in Comanche and Mitchel Counties. He married Frances Moore in Colorado City August 6, 1920. They farmed in the Colorado City area until moving to Midland in 1940. In 1941 they moved to Odessa where House was employed with Sunset Merchants and Texas Arizona Freight Lines until his retirement in 1962. They returned to Midland in 1981.

He was a member of Vine Avenue Baptist Church in Odessa.

Survivors include his wife; three daughters, Mrs. Doris Payne of Midland, Mrs. Adelle Leek and Mrs. Mildred Bizzell, both of Kingsland; a sister, Mrs. Ora Porter of Monahans; five grandchildren; seven great grandchildren and a great-great grandchild.

Poll reveals Hispanic delegates share concerns

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A survey conducted at the Democratic and Republican National Conventions found Hispanic delegates were polarized along party lines on foreign affairs and domestic policies, but on matters of importance to all Hispanics they found common ground.

Of the 490 Hispanic delegates to both party conventions, 136 Democrats and 64 Republicans answered the self-administered questionairre distributed by the San Antonio-based Southwest Voter Registration Education Project.

Questions on the survey were taken from other polls such as the Gallup, ABC/Washington Post and CBS/New York Times polls. The delegate survey was funded by the non-profit, New York-based Carnegie Corp.

According to the survey, both Republicans and Democratics agreed that the most important problems facing Hispanics are unemployment, the economy and education, although they differed drastically on solutions to these problems.

Hispanic Democrats believed too little was being spent on domestic social programs — such as aid to the elderly, bilingual education and health — but too much was being spent on defense and foreign aid. They particularly opposed military aid to Central America.

Hispanic Republicans felt that current spending was "about right" on most domestic programs but that too little was being spent on military aid to Central America and on solving problems of drug addiction.

Fifty-six percent of the Democrats felt the United States should stay out of El Salvador.

Odessan charged in two traffic deaths hospitalized

From Staff Reports

A 34-year-old Odessa man charged with involuntary manslaughter after an accident Sunday which claimed the lives of two of his passengers remained in satisfactory condition and under police guard at Midland Memorial Hospital this morning.

The man's name is being withheld until he is formally arraigned.

Glyn Edward Wilson, 38, and Carl Karaffa, 8, both of Odessa, were killed and two unidentified passengers in the tractor trailer were seriously injured in the two-vehicle accident which occurred at 9:30 p.m. Sunday.

Wilson died of partial decapitation and the child died from internal injuries, according to police reports. The unidentified woman and a young boy suffered head and internal injuries and the woman had one leg amputated, Katrena Neagle of the MMH public relations department said.

According to police reports, David Garrison, 32, of Powderly, had pulled his westbound tractor trailer to the side of the road to check his tires when it was struck by the Odessan's truck.

Garrison and a passenger in his tractor trailer were uninjured.

In the eighth traffic fatality in the city this year, a 53-year-old Midland man was killed when he was pinned between a trailer and a car Monday morning in an accident in the 2300 block of Stanolind.

Wayne Arbie Richardson of 2301 Stanolind was standing between a car parked on the southside of the street and a U-Haul trailer when an eastbound pickup driven by a 16-year-old girl struck the trailer, crushing Richardson between the trailer and the car.

The case is expected to be presented to the County Attorney's office today, a police spokesperson said. The girl's name is being withheld due to her age.

More than $3,000 worth of items taken from house

From Staff Reports

More than $3,000 worth of items were reported stolen from one house in burglary complaints filed with police Monday.

D.W. Rowland of 3504 Stanolind told police his home had been entered at an unknown time and two shotguns, a pistol, a microwave oven, jewelry, silver and other items worth a total of $3,210 were taken. Entry was gained by prying open a rear door.

Kim Madison of 3219 Whittleway reported jewelry worth a total of $2,400 was taken from her home during a burglary that occurred between 11:45 a.m and 12:15 p.m. Monday. There were no signs of forced entry.

Paul Hanson, of 3223 Whittleway, told police his house had been entered during the same time period and about $200 worth of coins and jewelry were taken.

A lawn mower, tools and other equipment were taken from a garage at 2713 W. Kentucky sometime between 8 a.m. and noon Monday. According to Jim Osborne, owner, the items were valued at $2,296.

About $700 worth of stolen items were recovered when Gloria Mariana Olgin, 1311 E. Parker, chased a burglar out of her house at about 2 p.m. Monday. According to police, the burglar had broken into her home through a back door but when Ms. Olgin spotted him, he ran, dropping some of the items. Recovered about two houses east of the residence were a bike, assorted clothing, a walkie-talkie, two cassette tape recorders, assorted fireworks and change.

PARK

Hellinghausen said representatives from about six local lending institutions showed up for last week's meeting to discuss financing new houses and home improvement loans. "They're all interested," Hellinghausen said. "They want more information."

Basically, the MHFC has some money in a fund that was obtained from a 1½ percent commitment fee charged developers who obtained low interest loans through MHFC to build apartment complexes. Hellinghausen said for those applicants who don't quite meet the loan requirements or are a little short of a down payment, that reserve could be used as collateral.

"We're trying to maximize the money," he said, "while at the same time preserving the money for other projects."

"We're trying to make it as conventional a program as we can. We feel we've touched all the bases and now we have to bring it into a package," said Davidson.

Both men credited the neighborhood for being the catalyst behind igniting the idea.

"THE ATTITUDE of the neighborhood is the key," said Davidson. "They got the ball rolling."

Mrs. Starks admitted she and the others have run into some skepticism from neighbors. But that attitude appears to have died down as the work progressed. "As we get farther along it will help to create more interest in this area."

Working with her are Kitty Joiner, Mrs. Jessie Johnson and Barbara Bryant. People interested in the project may call Mrs. Starks at 684-4895.

Their goal is not only to see the Objective reached by 1990, but to be able to view definite improvements by next year, which marks Midland's Centennial celebration.

"It would be nice to have something good to show for 1985," Mrs. Starks said. That area around Washington Park borders on East Highway 80 and is viewed by motorists coming through Midland.

"If we have one area really blighted, it doesn't speak well for the city. For people coming into the area from the east, this is the first impression they get. It's pretty bad on both sides (of East Highway 80)," Mrs. Starks said.

"We can do something to help each other, but we also need help from others," she added. "I think we've made progress. Maybe we're going to get something going."

ASTRONOMY

"They lie on the ecliptic, which is the path the sun takes through the sky every year."

Those constellations visible by looking south and moving the eye from the western horizon to the eastern horizon include Virgo, Corvus the Crow, Scorpio, Sagittarius and Capricorn.

"Also lying along the ecliptic plane are planets. The planets which are out and visible at this time of year include low, low in the west sky just after sunset the planet Venus.

"Then coming over toward the south and a little bit higher you will see, approximately in the constellation of Virgo, the planet Saturn. Saturn, of course, is the ring planet — a very, very large planet. It's beautiful through the telescope, but then again to the naked eye all you can really see is a bright light in the sky.

"Going a little bit further over toward the southeast again, the next planet is Mars. Now Mars is red. To most people even with the naked eye, you can tell that the planet is red or orange colored. Viewers going out at night, even if they have no prior experience with astronomy, should actually be able to tell that Mars is Mars just by the color.

"Now going a little bit further toward the east, facing south, you'll see a very bright object. That is the planet Jupiter with all its beautiful satellites and cloud belts across it. Of course with the naked eye again, you won't be able to see that. You need a telescope to see the moons and the cloud belts, but you can see the very bright planet as a spot in the sky."

Planets appear similar to stars to the naked eye.

"The word planet means wanderer and the ancient astronomers saw that planets moved from night to night," Hicks says. "Therefore they knew the planets were not stars. The planets will move from night to night and change their position with respect to the fixed stars.

"Looking through a telescope transforms the starlike images into textbook pictures which are easily recognized by the most inexperienced observer."

Police arrest 19-year-old Odessan

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Police have arrested a 19-year-old Odessa man in connection with Friday's aggravated robbery of the Stop-N-Go store at 604 E. 8th St.

Ray Dean Standberry, 19, Odessa, was arraigned by Judge Jud Weatherly on charges of aggravated robbery. Bond was set at $50,000.

Standberry and another robber are accused of beating the clerk at the store about 3:30 a.m. last Friday over the head with a pipe, then making off with $47 from the cash register and $5 from the female clerk.

The clerk has been treated and released from the county hospital since the robbery. The second robber has not been positively identified. Police will continue their investigation.

Pink Elephant Ball benefits candidates

The Midland County Republican Women's Club sponsored its sixth black-tie Pink Elephant Ball Saturday night at the Midland Country Club.

Held every election year since 1964, the ball raises money for local, state and national Republican candidates. Funds raised at the Ball are pooled into a political action committee and divided among the candidates based on need.

Though the total raised has not yet been disclosed, Anita Perry, president of the Republican Women's Club, is hoping they will surpass the 1980 total of $16,000.

"It was very successful. We were very pleased," said Mrs. James Lacy, general chairman of the Ball.

The organization has 161 members, "and a few new ones from Saturday night," said Mrs. Perry. Cost of the dance and late night breakfast was $37 per person. "About 74 sponsors paid $200" for the event, she said.

Before breakfast was served, the club bid farewell to long-time County Republican Chairman Bill Shaner. He was presented with Swedish crystal wine glasses, a decanter and a silver tray.

Kelly Fish, Shaner's successor appointed by the executive committee, was introduced. Fish will also be introduced to officials at the state convention Sept. 21 and 22 in Corpus Christi.

Guests were greeted at the door with decorations of cut-mirrored twin elephants. The mirrors, donated by Thomas Scoville of the Midland Hilton, were cut by Loye Loyd of Glasco Glass Company.

Table decorations featured miniature lead crystal elephants propped on burgundy platforms.

Bernie Rose entertained the dancing crowd until the late-night buffet breakfast was served.

Officers of the 1984 Republican Women's Club are Mrs. Carl Perry, president, Mrs. James D. Ross, first vice president, Mrs. Sam Terry, second vice president, Mrs. Jack Hood, secretary and Mrs. David Godfrey, treasurer.

Committee chairmen included Mrs. William Henry, arrangements chairman, Mrs. Jack Hauke, tickets chairman, Mrs. Harry Hugly, invitations and programs, Mrs. John Rhea, publicity, Mrs. Gordon Walker, treasurer and Mrs. Sonya School, decorations.

Mall sponsors 'Color Me Beautiful' series

Color Me Beautiful, a seasonal color theory developed by Carole Jackson and explained and illustrated in detail in her book, "Color Me Beautiful," will be featured Sept. 20-22 at Midland Park Mall.

Color Me Beautiful is based on the theory that a person's skin tone, eye color and natural hair color indentify that person as one of the four seasons — winter, summer, autumn or spring.

Ms. Jan Scurlock, consultant with Color Me Beautiful in Dallas, will visit the Mall Sept. 20-22 and will conduct a series of free lectures, open to the public, Sept. 21-22. The lectures will introduce the Color Me Beautiful concept, give a 15-minute color analysis of a person selected from the audience and provide a "suitcase" demonstration illustrating efficient wardrobe planning and selection.

A special Color Me Beautiful fashion show demonstrating the use of color in wardrobe selection will be at 2 p.m. Sept. 22.

Registration for individual analysis may be done after any one of the three lectures, but pre-registration is encouraged and is currently being taken. Fee for individual analysis is $55 per person and is due at the time of registration.

The Color Me Beautiful events are scheduled as follows:

— Sept. 20. Individual anaylsis from 6-8:30 p.m.

— Sept. 21. Free lecture (center court) from 10-11:15 a.m. and from 7-8:15 p.m. Individual analysis from 1-3:30 p.m.

— Sept. 22. Individual analysis from 10 a.m.-12:30 p.m. (for hearing impaired), from 3-5:30 p.m. and from 6-8:30 p.m.

Free lecture from 1-1:45 p.m. in the center court.

Color Me Beautiful fashion show from 2-3 p.m. in the center court.

Diana treated 'like a princess'

Princess Diana

NEW YORK (AP) — Princess Diana stays thin through a regimen of swimming and dance, is not a "shopaholic" and is — appropriately — treated "like a princess" by Prince Charles.

Those glimpses of royal life are provided by Buckingham Palace spokesmen, as quoted in an interview appearing in the October issue of McCall's.

Britain's tabloids got copies of the article before it appeared and reported some details of the interviews with Michael Shea, press secretary of Queen Elizabeth II, and his associate, Victor Chapman.

Shea said the interviews were conducted off the record, but McCall's said Monday the interviews with reporter Diane de Dubovay, an American, were on the record.

The palace spokesmen said reports that Diana spends $4,000 a week on clothes are "absolute rubbish."

Shea said Diana and the prince maintain a low-fat diet, even though she sometimes "likes to eat fish and chips out of a newspaper."

And he said Diana likes the way the prince treats her:

"The Prince is a very nice man. A gallant, romantic man. He treats her — well, like a princess!"

Mary Tyler Moore

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Mary Tyler Moore has joined a long list of celebrities who have undergone treatment for drug or alcohol dependency at the Betty Ford Center near Palm Springs, Calif.

Miss Moore has been under treatment at the center — where Elizabeth Taylor and Liza Minelli both have sought care — for the past week because doctors ordered her to stop drinking, her publicist said Monday.

"Doctors agree that alcohol can be devastating to a diabetic like Miss Moore," said the statement issued by the public relations firm of Rogers and Cowan. "Those who are insulin-dependent are far more susceptible to problems associated with alcohol, including hypoglycemia and insulin shock."

The center in Rancho Mirage, Calif., was named for former first lady Betty Ford after she was treated there.

NEW YORK (AP) — Singers Cyndi Lauper, Huey Lewis, and Tina Turner are among the pop stars appearing in a series of spots on Music Television that urge young people to register and vote.

The four-week series of public service announcements urging young people to "Feel the Power — Register and Vote," began Monday on the 24-hour music cable television station.

Other stars appearing in the spots include Kool and the Gang, The Pointer Sisters, Twisted Sister, Pat Benatar, "Weird Al" Yankovic, and Crosby, Stills and Nash.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jermaine Jackson has agreed to put his share of the payments to the accountant for the Jacksons' Victory Tour in a bank account while his lawsuit against the accountant is resolved.

Moultrie Accountancy Corp. has been receiving 5 percent of all profits from the Jackson's tour, an arrangement approved in a letter signed by four of the six Jackson brothers.

Jermaine and his brother Michael Jackson did not sign the letter, and Jermaine said in a lawsuit filed Friday that Moultrie should have obtained approval of all six brothers.

The lawsuit argues that Moultrie's fee should be $300,000, instead of the $1.2 million collected so far.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Liberace, celebrating his 40th year in show business, says his act isn't changing — but his audiences are.

"I'm reaching new generations," he said, adding that a two-week run at Radio City Music Hall in New York "was a revelation to me. I would say it was the first time 50 percent of the audience had not seen me perform live. There was a wide spread of humanity, from high society to punk rockers."

Performing collie-shepherd disappears

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Toadie, a long-haired collie-shepherd which thrilled college and professional football crowds with her leaping catches of Frisbees, is lost in Virginia and her master fears the worst.

"My expectations are not really high, but I'm not giving up on her," said Taylor Runner, whose pre-game entertaining of West Virginia University football fans in the mid-1970s led him and his high-leaping dog to the National Football League.

"I just hope that if somebody has found her, that they're taking care of her," he said Monday. Toadie wandered away from an interstate rest stop near Williamsburg, Va. last month.

Runner and Toadie started providing Mountaineer fans with something to laugh about and applaud in 1974 when they began running onto old Mountaineer Field prior to home games.

Runner would toss his Frisbee half the distance of the playing field and the black-haired Toadie would chase it and make leaping catches that would draw oohs and ahs. The clever canine, always wearing a red hankerchief about her neck, then would prance about the field, playing to the crowd before returning the Frisbee to Runner.

"She was quite a kind of cult hero around here," the 32-year-old Runner said. "It all kind of snowballed, the tradition of Taylor and Toadie at Mountaineer games."

The pair's popularity was demonstrated in 1976, after West Virginia absorbed a 24-3 loss to Maryland. Runner and Toadie, aiming to give the fans something to cheer about during the game, trotted onto the field at the end of a quarter while the teams were changing ends.

"I did that and they (WVU officials) got really upset, which was understandable," he said.

But when Runner and Toadie were barred from further games, a letter-writing campaign began in the Daily Athenaeum, WVU's student newspaper. They were allowed back on the field two home games later.

Toadie's popularity took her and her master to the NFL that same year, when they appeared at a New England Patriots' game, Runner said. In 1977 the duo made their national debut when ABC-TV's Monday Night Football opened the season with a Pittsburgh Steelers-San Francisco 49ers game and invited them to perform at halftime.

The tradition faded with the 1980 opening of new Mountaineer Field, however, primarily because Toadie was aging and Olmec, Runner's other dog, wasn't interested in crowd appeal.

Now Runner and his wife, Isabel, must face the possibility that they'll never see Toadie again.

The couple and their dogs were heading on vacation when Toadie disappeared. They had pulled off Interstate 64 on Aug. 31 for a rest and to let the dogs out to stretch, Runner said.

"Fifteen or 20 minutes went by and I noticed that our other dog came back, but not Toadie," he said.

The couple spent eight days in the area searching for the 14-year-old dog before coming home without her. Last week they ran an advertisement in a Virginia paper hoping someone might spot Toadie.

School receives $2.5 million

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — A furniture company president who took only two courses at the University of Scranton has left the school $2.5 million to establish scholarships for needy students, the school said.

The gift included in the will of Francis E. Redington, former president of J.P. Redington and Co., was the largest in the university's 96-year history — more than twice the size of any previous donation, the school said Monday.

The Scranton-based furniture firm specialized in services to churches and schools, and the Redington family had helped decorate the chapel at the 4,800-student Jesuit university.

Redington, a high school graduate, was 71 when he died in July 1983. The university was told it had been named in the will later that year, but it did not realize the size of the gift until last spring, according to Robert Sylvester, vice-president for development.

Redington took a continuing education course in conversational Spanish at the university in 1977, and a photography course in 1978.

Fisherman developing flying boat

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — When Ken Jauch tells a fish story that has listeners raising their eyebrows, it's not so much about what he's catching but how he's going about doing it.

Jauch, 53, is building a boat with wings — all to make it easier to net creatures with gills.

"Is there a boat where you can reel in your line and be on another lake in 10 minutes?" he asked.

Jauch likes to fish the lakes of Ontario. But, he says, "A lot of them you can't get into except by hiking, carrying canoes."

He says he'll find the perfect lake — "where the fish are so hungry I have to hide behind a tree to bait the hook" — that much faster.

The two-seater craft, with retractable wheels but no pontoons, lands on its belly. It needs a lake or river a mile long and 150 feet wide to set down and take off safely, but requires a water depth of only two feet.

The wings measure 36 feet, tip to tip, folding up so Jauch can tow the plane behind his camper.

Jauch hopes to finish the craft in October. Then the plane must get federal approval and 50 hours of flight testing.

CHICOPEE, Mass. (AP) — Ronald Dansereau is somewhat of a hot dog when it comes to sausage.

The 35-year-old Chicopee man, clad in a T-shirt that read, "I don't get mad, I get even," regained his title as the kielbasa-eating champion last weekend at the Kielbasa Festival, packing away 71.1 ounces of the Polish sausage.

Dansereau won the competition in 1981 and 1982 and was last year's runner-up. He said the key to his success was abstaining from kielbasa for two weeks.

Finishing second this year was Ron Zulkiewicz of Chicopee, who downed 62.6 ounces of meat.

Overall, the 13 contestants ate 602 ounces of kielbasa before about 500 cheering festival-goers.

Opening lead: King of ◇.

When you have a sure line for your contract, why adopt any other? If this advice sounds inane, consider how many points are thrown away each year by players who don't seem to understand this precept.

North-South bid well to an excellent grand slam. When North jumped to six spades after South's five club cue-bid, South realized his partner surely had both red aces and the king of clubs. North could hardly have bid so aggressively without those cards, since he did not have a high spade. And since the bidding had marked North with a singleton heart, the grand slam seemed a good bet.

West led the king of diamonds, taken by dummy's ace. Declarer by reflex cashed the jack and queen of trumps, but when East showed out on the second round of trumps, the contract could no longer be made. Declarer could get two discards only on clubs, so he needed to ruff a heart for his 13th trick. He cashed the ace of hearts, returned to his hand with a trump and ruffed a heart, but now the only entry to his hand to draw the last trump was a club. West ruffed, and the defenders rubbed salt into the wound by collecting a diamond and a heart trick for down three!

Two rounds of trumps was just one round too many. After winning the ace of diamonds, declarer should cash only the jack of trumps before clearing the ace of hearts from dummy. Now declarer can get back to his hand with the a trump to ruff a heart on the board, and there is still another trump in dummy to permit declarer to reenter his hand to draw the outstanding trumps.

The 4-1 trump break was unfortunate. However, the correct line insures the contract against anything but a 5-0 split.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, September 12, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Olympic great Jesse Owens, journalist H.L. Mencken, publisher Alfred A. Knopf and actor Maurice Chevalier were born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: Linda Gray of TV's "Dallas," circus star Gunther Gebel-Williams and country music's George Jones. You are about to enter a wonderful new period for your personal and professional relationships. The outlook for both business and romance is fantastic! Set aside more time for personal projects and your loved ones. Use the phone to cut down on expensive travel. You find new supporters when you speak directly to those in charge. Follow your intuition when making financial arrangements.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do not take an expensive trip unless sure of the results you will get. Those who are single and very career-minded find excellent new employment opportunities. Follow up on an introduction.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not try to go it alone. Teamwork can accomplish miracles. Consult experts about the best way to build up your financial reserves. A so-called partner could be playing games.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A new partnership with a former business associate is a real possibility. Discuss any problems or potential conflicts openly. A last-minute invitation could lead to a wonderful evening.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Greater patience and tolerance will help you solve a tricky problem. A stranger comes to your rescue; there could be strings attached. Family members are unusually supportive. Share a secret.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get several bids before signing a contract. Higher-ups make extra demands on your time and talents. Rise to the occasion. Romance is happier when you and mate relax.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Working overtime could prove lucky now. You gain new prestige or larger financial rewards. Mate or partner will be understanding if you explain the situation fully. Make special weekend plans.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A change in lifestyle increases family members' comfort. A literary project looks highly promising. Get to work! Invest in timesaving home appliances. A late afternoon phone call could lead to a windfall.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get better organized; profits rise when you become more efficient. A shopping trip will not uncover any bargains. Get in touch with a former neighbor; a romance is possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Not a good day to make spur-of-the-moment decisions. Have an alternative plan in case of delays. Dress fashionably but conservatively to win the attention of a new admirer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You could be singled out for extra work or a special reward. Do your best. Your self-confidence grows as you try new things. A Leo makes romantic overtures. Go slow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone tests your ability to keep a secret. Be loyal to old friends and associates. Social events are fine so long as they do not cost you too much money.

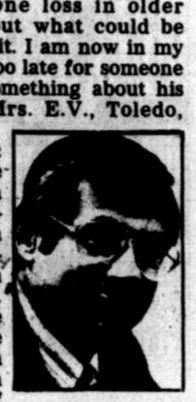

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take a second look at an offer that sounds too good to be true. Higher-ups treat you with new respect when you show greater independence. Others look to you for leadership.

NEIL SOLOMON, M.D.

Women's bone mass may increase after menopause

Dear Dr. Solomon: I grew up at a time when people didn't know too much about bone loss in older women and about what could be done to prevent it. I am now in my late fifties. Is it too late for someone my age to do something about his condition? — Mrs. E.V., Toledo, Ohio.

Solomon

Dear Mrs. V.: Bone mass can be increased even after the menopause. Dr. John F. Aloia, of Nassau Hospital in Mineola, N.Y. says that exercise can increase bone mass in women even after the age of 60. He bases his conclusions on the results of studies of 18 healthy, postmenopausal women. The findings suggest that in this area, at least, there appears to be a reversal of the aging process.

Of course the best time to influence bone mass is during the younger years. Exercise can be an important method of promoting peak bone mass in younger people.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I donate blood regularly to the Red Cross, but when I first heard about artificial blood, I thought I wouldn't have to give blood any more. It is obvious that the artificial blood has not taken place of the real thing, and I have to assume that it has not been successful. Can you bring me up to date? — Mr. W.W., Easton, Pa.

Dear Mr. W.: It seems that artificial blood may be of value during some transfusion procedures, but it is not a substitute for human blood. Artificial blood can carry oxygen but none of the other components of blood. In addition, it is difficult to store and is lost from the body rather quickly. The bottom line is that blood donations are as important as ever; there is no real substitute.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I keep reading about these premature babies and how even very tiny ones can be saved. In fact, every time I read about them, they seem to become smaller. Is there any limit any more on the weight a newborn baby has to be in order to live? — Muriel, Midland, Texas

Dear Muriel: Dr. Lula O. Lubchenco, of the University of Colorado School of Medicine in Denver, maintains that no newborn baby is so small that efforts should not be made to save it. Even premature babies who weighed only slightly more than a pound at birth have been saved.

Dr. Lubchenco notes that the problems that some of these very small infants have when they are young tend to disappear as they grow older.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What do decibles have to do with hearing loss? — Mr. D.A. Marion, Ohio.

Dear Mr. A.: Intensity of sound is measured in decibels (dB). The scale runs from the faintest sound the human ear can detect, which is labeled 0 dB to over 180 dB, the noise at a rocket pad during launch. It is important to understand that decibles are not measured in the linear arithmetic that we normally use. For example, you know that a car going 60 mph is going twice as fast as one going 30 mph — this is linear arithmetic. Decibels, on the other hand, are measured logarithmically. This means that as decibel intensity increases by units of 10, each increase is 10 times the lower figure. Thus, 10 decibels is 10 times the intensity of 1 decibel, and 20 decibels is 100 times as loud as 1 decibel.

Dear Dr. Solomon: From time to time you have pointed out that a woman who smokes while she is pregnant may have a smaller baby than if she did not smoke. Your point was that these women were risking the health of their babies. But I've heard a story (I don't know if it's true) about a woman who purposely smoked while she was pregnant because she said it would be easier for her when she gave birth if she had a smaller baby. Would you know if anything like this would be true? — Mrs. K.D., Macon, Ga.

Dear Mrs. D.: If the story is true, I would simply note that it would be easier still not to have a child at all. Being a parent is a source of much pleasure, but it also entails some sacrifice. If a woman would knowingly risk the health of her baby, I wonder whether it might not be better for her to delay becoming a mother.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Whenever I go to my doctor, he tells me that I have a mild high blood pressure and that we should keep watching it. I'm as positive as I can be that my blood pressure goes up when I even think of going to my doctor's office. I can actually feel my heart pounding with nervousness. How can a doctor ever know if a patient really has high blood pressure if he has this kind of reaction all the time? — Dennis, San Francisco, Calif.

Dear Dennis: I don't know of any physician who decides that a patient has high blood pressure on the basis of a single reading. I believe that most physicians, including myself, take a number of measurements over an extended period of time before we would arrive at such a conclusion.

It is possible to measure a person's blood pressure around the clock, and this has been done in research studies; however, an approach of this type would not be feasible for every day practice.

The fact that your physician says he will keep watching it indicates that he does not plan to initiate treatment for the basis of an isolated reading.

For Jeffery, Scranton, Pa.: Cancer chemotherapy can cause nail shedding. Since chemotherapy usually involves a combination of drugs, it is often difficult to tell which one is responsible for the condition.

For Crystal, Bridgeport, Conn.: I would not depend on friends, no matter how well meaning, to explain why you feel that food sticks on the way down. Saying it is due to an emotional problem is both simple and simplistic and, more importantly, usually wrong.

Dr. Harold J. Tucker, of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine in Baltimore, says that the condition is almost always the result of a disorder n the functin of the esophagus, and it deserves careful evaluation.

Neil Solomon, M.D., is a columnist for Los Angeles Times Syndicate. If you have a medical question, write Dr. Solomon at 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon will not give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.

Stars pay tribute to Ernest Tubb

ENTERTAINMENT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Top country stars joined more than 1,000 other people in mourning country music pioneer Ernest Tubb during a funeral service that included recordings of several of the songs he made famous during a career that spanned four decades.

A tape recording of Tubb's 1941 hit, "I'm Walking the Floor Over You," closed the service Monday as 1,500 mourners paid final respects to the pioneer singer, songwriter and guitarist.

Tubb, a Grand Ole Opry star for more than 40 years, died Thursday at age 70 after a two-year bout with emphysema.

He pioneered the honky-tonk sound of country music, a style characterized by forceful guitars and earthy lyrics that originated in Texas beer halls 40 years ago. In 1965 he was elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Tubb's open blue steel casket was flanked by guitar-shaped floral arrangements and his familiar white cowboy hat.

Tapes of Tubb singing six of his songs were played during the 60-minute service at Two Rivers Baptist Church, across a parkway from the Grand Ole Opry House.

Singer B.J. Thomas, who sang Tubb's "Tomorrow Never Comes" during the service, called Tubb "the greatest country singer who ever lived."

"I'll never forget Ernest Tubb in his blue suit, white hat and his guitar with 'thanks' on the back," Thomas said in his eulogy.

When the slim, 6-foot Tubb finished a song and started walking off the stage, he would turn the back of his guitar to the audience. On it, he had painted the word "thanks."

Tubb portrayed himself in the movie "Coal Miner's Daughter," based on Loretta Lynn's autobiography. Miss Lynn, among the many stars Tubb helped early in their careers, was on a concert tour and did not attend the funeral.

Among those who did attend were 80-year-old Roy Acuff, the "king of country music," Little Jimmy Dickens, Kitty Wells, Billy Walker, Hank Snow, George Hamilton IV, Jim Ed Brown, Connie Smith, Lorrie Morgan, Charlie Walker, Jeannie Seely and Del Webb.

Pallbearers were either singers or former members of Tubb's band, the Texas Troubadours. They included Bill Monroe, Cal Smith, Hank Williams Jr., Teddy Wilburn, Carl Butler, Jack Greene, Billy Parker, Junior Prunedo, Carl Smith, Porter Wagoner and Tubb's brother, Calvin Robert Tubb Jr.

The five other Tubb songs played during the service were "If We Never Meet Again This Side of Heaven," "I Love You Because," "Precious Memories," "I Will Miss You When You Go" and "Stand By Me."

The Madison Funeral Home said thousands of people from across the country, including some fans on tour buses, had paid their respects since Tubb's death.

"There were throngs constantly," said Dave McCormick, a business associate of the Texas-born Tubb.

Contestants defend pageant's tradition

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Contestants in this week's Miss America pageant, disputing critics who consider the swimsuit competition an over-emphasis on appearance, defend it as a tradition that has nothing to do with sex appeal and allows them to demonstrate their physical fitness to the judges.

"It's a traditional thing and has nothing to do with being exploited," said Miss Nevada, LeAnna Grant, 22, of Las Vegas.

While the contest "has come a long way" in offering more scholarships and increasing minority representation, it still emphasizes appearance too much and character and values too little, Christine Carmody-Arey, president of the New Jersey chapter of the National Organization for Women, said Monday.

The pageant "seems to be more involved in the physical aspects" and it would be a breakthrough to scrap the swimsuit event, said Ms. Carmody-Arey.

But Miss Hawaii, Debbie Nakanelua, 26, of Honolulu, said the swimsuit competition "has nothing to do with sex or being sex-appealing."

"If I thought I was being exploited, I wouldn't be here," said Miss Arkansas, Lisa Stevens, 22, of Arkadelphia.

Miss New York, Mary-Ann Farrell, 22, of New York City, said she would approve of replacing the swimsuit competition as long as the judges could determine contestants' physical fitness in some other way.

"An evening gown can hide a lot of things," she said.

AP Laserphoto

"I suggested it once. Boy, did it drop in on me," he said.

"I'd only consider it again if I really got a genuine protest from a significant number of contestants," said Marks, adding that he also would seek approval from the directors of pageants in the 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Alexandra Matusinka, coordinator of the New York-based Women Against Pornography, said the swimsuit event is just part of the problem in a pageant that should be canceled because it asks women to meet one ideal.

"The problem with all of that talk about progress is it still continues to define who women are in a very rigid way. And it's offering a prize for conformity," she said.

Marks noted that about $4.25 million in scholarships will be awarded this year at local, state and national pageants. And Ms. Carmody-Arey said she was "impressed" that black women now have worn the crown.

"It used to be they all had blonde hair and blue eyes and they came from the South," said Ms. Carmody-Arey.

Vanessa Williams, 21, of Millwood, N.Y., last September became the first black woman to wear the crown. She was forced to relinquish the title July 23 after nude photographs of her in intimate scenes with another woman were published in a men's magazine.

Suzette Charles, 21, of Mays Landing, who also is black, became Miss America and will crown a successor Saturday night.

Williams files suit against photographer

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Vanessa Williams is waging a "publicity campaign" by filing a lawsuit against the photographer whose sexually explicit photos cost her the Miss America crown, a lawyer for the photographer charged.

"I cannot conceive of any papers she can file that can cause us to miss a beat," said Roy Grutman, who represents photographer Tom Chiapel and Penthouse, the magazine that published the pictures. "There is a lack of merit."

Last week, Miss Williams filed a suit against Chiapel charging breach of contract, fraud, libel and a violation of her civil rights. She has claimed Chiapel had the photographs published without a legal release from her.

Asked whether Chiapel had a legal release, Grutman replied Monday, "I repeat — there is no merit to her suit."

Miss Williams' suit also seeks that Chiapel be ordered to hand over all the money he has made and will be paid for the sale of the photos. The 21-year-old Millwood resident also asked the court to order Chiapel to pay her for the damages caused by the sale of the pictures.

No dollar amount was included in the action, but Miss Williams asked the court to set one at no less than $10,000 for each of seven counts.

Miss Williams was forced to resign her title after Penthouse magazine published the nude pictures, which showed her alone and with another woman. The suit said the publication caused her "great distress, humiliation, exposure to public ridicule and the loss of extremely valuable business opportunities."

Grutman said he had not yet been served with the court papers, nor had Chiapel, who has left his Brewster home with his family for an undisclosed location.

Man scales mountain five times in less than 24 hours

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Climbing Pikes Peak once probably would satisfy most mountaineers. Not Dennis Wied, who scaled the summit no less than five times — in less than 24 hours.

Wied, of Colorado Springs, said setting the record would be "a great birthday gift to himself." He turned 34 while ascending the 14,110-foot mountain on Saturday.

He arrived at the top with 31 minutes to spare.

"I said 'hello' and hugged all my friends and family," Wied said. "I felt exhilarated when I got to the top, but tired."

He completed the first three trips in four hours each, the fourth in four hours and 40 minutes and the fifth in five hours and 20 minutes.

"The last trip up was slow and steady. It seemed like an eternity," he said.

The mechanical engineer took on the attempt to raise money for charity and also for personal reasons.

In 1982, Wied completed three round trips up and down Pikes Peak in 24 hours, another world record.

Bob Hawk and Associates is your stepping stone to home improvements

Tired of leaving worn paths from your house to the swimming pool or dumpster? Bob Hawk has the solution: attractive stepping stones can take the place of those dusty paths. Bob has stepping stones in a number of styles, so stop by 5508 W. Industrial and select the ones that you like best.

Furthermore, Bob offers concrete parking lot bumpers and, as always, ready mixed concrete for do-it-yourselfers.

In West Texas there are many energetic do-it-yourselfers. Some are putting in fences or building a patio while others are edging flower beds.

These are wonderful home improvement ideas, but they all require concrete. To have a company send out a truck with a small amount of concrete is expensive. If you are asking yourself "what other alternative do I have?". The answer is Bob Hawk and Associates.

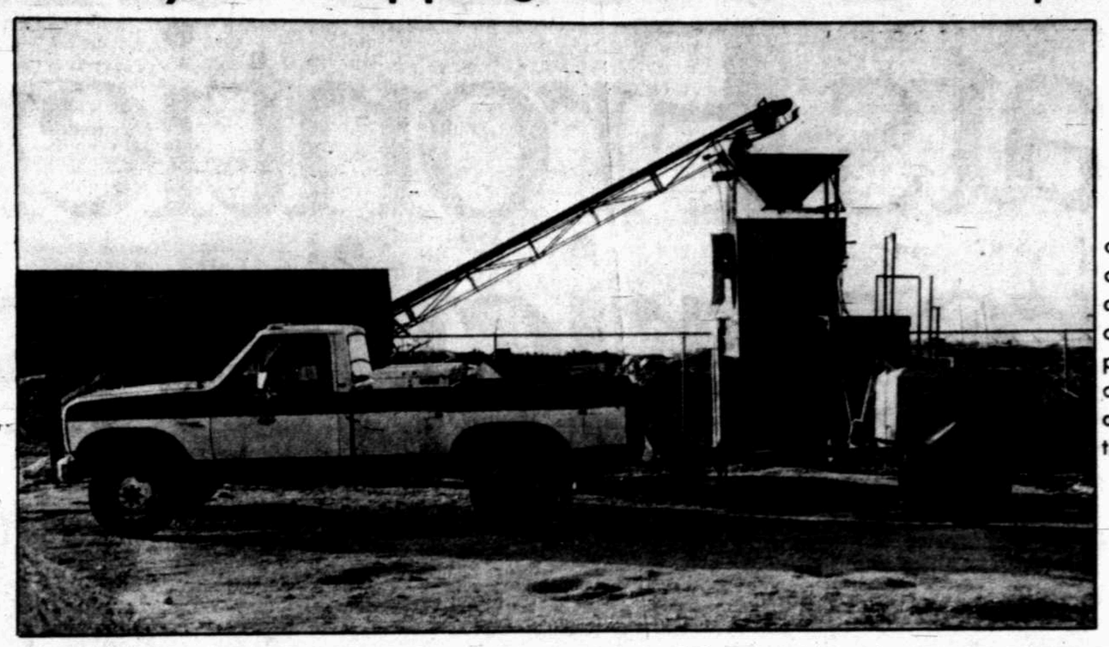

Bob Hawk offers do-it-yourself ready mix trailers. The experts at Bob Hawk's office will mix the concrete to the right consistency for you and furnish the trailer. All you have to do is hook up the trailer and drive home. Once you have emptied the trailer just wash the trailer out and return it.

Concrete is available in small amounts only which is usually all a do-it-yourselfer needs. You can get ¼, ½, ¾, 1 or 1¼ yards of concrete at a time.

Bob also understands the tight schedule of do-it-yourselfers. To meet your needs, this convenient service is available Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday by appointment.

For contractors that have a smaller job coming up, Bob Hawk can offer the same service.

If you would like to get more information call Bob Hawk and Associates at 694-6572. You can pick up your concrete and furnished trailer at 5508 W. Industrial.

Bob Hawk and Associates now offers you-haul-it concrete for the do-it-yourselfers of the Midland area. If you need a small amount of concrete but do not want to pay the high price of having it delivered call Bob Hawk today at 694-6572 for more information on this new service.

Sewing Machine Supply is celebrating their third anniversary along with National Sewing Month

To celebrate National Sewing Month and their third anniversary, Sewing Machine Supply makes things easy on you during September.

Sewing Machine Supply, as well as near by parking places, are so easy to find in the Village Shopping Center. Because Sewing Machine Supply has always been well known for quality products and service, you may remember when they were located behind Midland Memorial Hospital or out on W. Illinois. In order to offer their customers adequate parking space and a central location, Mr. and Mrs. Claggett moved the shop to the Village in March of 1983. As always, trying to make it easier on you!

Have you ever been frustrated when your machine kept knotting up because you couldn't get the tension set just right? Or how about trying to makebutton holes that look just alike? Sewing Machine Supply even makes these things easy with their Viking 980. This machine thinks and writes for you. All you have to do is tell it what fabric you are using and what you want it to do. It takes over from there and selects the perfect stitch. It's simple to program a buttonhole with the right length. You then sew it completely automatically-as many times as you like. And with the 100% jam proof Viking 980 oiling will never be needed. Moreover, heming jeans will be a snap.

The Viking 980 and a number of other Viking models, which Sewing Machine Supply keeps in stock for your convenience, have a 25 year warranty on everything except electrical parts which are warrantied for 5 years.

New Homes are also available at Sewing Machine Supply. The capability of these machines range from the simple straight stitch and zig-zag machine to the computerized one which does most anything. One of its favorite tricks is to make aligators. It can also make 3 matching buttonholes.

To make selecting a new machine an easier assignment, Catherine Claggett says, "Come by the shop and have fun playing on our machines!" During their anniversary celebration this month, several Vikings, including the 980, and New Homes, including Memory Craft, will be $150 off. Furthermore, right now you will find one of their machines in the new fabric department of Walgreens. So, when you purchase a machine from Sewing Machine Supply you get $10 worth of fabric free from Walgreen's.

Maybe you're not ready to get a new machine but have an older one which needs repair. Sewing Machine Supply makes it easy on you by doing IN—HOUSE repairs on all makes, including Singer. Since they have some parts in stock and can get others, they usually get your machine out in one week.

While you're there why not pick up a new accessory for your old machine? Rufflers, buttonholers, walking feet and even zig-zaggers for the straight stitch machine are in stock. Most of these attachments can be interchanged-all you need to know is the distance between the screw which holds the foot in place and the foot itself and whether the needle is in the center or not.

A sewing machine cabinet or table from Sewing Machine Supply makes sewing easier by giving you more space to work. They have a wide selection of cabinets in stock starting at $100 and can order just about any style you may want. Sewing machine tables are available for those of you who have a little less working space. Remember, cabinets are delivered free of charge, as are sewing machines.

To ease the back pain you often get from sewing, Mr. and Mrs. Claggett offer a sewing machine chair with a specially designed back. Drop in and they will show you how the chair works and all the storage space found in the seat of these incredible chairs.

Sewing Machine Supply also makes gift selection simpler. They have the Grabbit, a magnetic pin cushion which can pick up spilled and stray pins off the floor. Another good gift item is a sewing lamp, which can also be used for reading. The ones in stock have flexible necks and are $5 off this month. Singer Easy Menders are great gifts for college students and travelers. They let you take care of that rip in a hurry. So, take advantage of the 20% discount this month. They will be glad to wrap the presents for you at Sewing Machine Supply in the Village Shopping Center.

Be sure and watch for a suprise announcement. Sewing Machine Supply is always making sewing easier and more fun for you!

Russell and Catherine Claggett of Sewing Machine Supply explain that the Viking 980 even thinks and writes for you. Go by their shop in the Village Shopping Center and let them demonstrate this remarkable machine for you. Watch for a surprise announcement.

In The Village on West Wall

These are the only seats Frontier puts restrictions on.

But the rest of our seats have no restrictions what-so-ever. Not so much as a single word.

Which means you don't have to worry about an advance purchase or a minimum stay. You can get one of Frontier's low peak or lower off-peak fares no matter how soon you want to leave, no matter how long you want to stay, no matter what. So, instead of wading through a multitude of fares that get more and more expensive as they get easier to use, call your travel agent or Frontier at 561-5156.
