Energy, neutron bomb topics in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rigorous examination of President Carter's energy plan will occupy much of Congress' time this week, but at the top of today's Senate agenda is a vote on giving Congress the final say in adding the neutron bomb to the nation's nuclear arsenal.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., had earlier failed in an attempt to persuade the Senate to ban outright any deployment of the neutron bomb. A compromise he is sponsoring would permit either the House or Senate to veto a decision by Carter to go ahead with the weapon.

A proposal requiring both houses to control radiation to kill enemy soldiers rather than the huge explosive power of other nuclear weapons, has been criticized as an addition to the arms race.

Proponents say it provides a needed weapon for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, whose European forces are outnumbered by Soviet and Eastern European forces.

As it returns from its 10-day Independence Day break, Congress has less than a month to work on a heavy legislative load before leaving town for the traditional August recess.

The Senate is due to vote this week on Carter's proposal to halt a controversial reactor project that would produce more plutonium than it consumes.

The President said earlier this year he wants to end U.S. development of such nuclear breeder reactors, such as the one planned for the Clinch River nuclear power plant, now under construction in Tennessee.

Carter said such facilities would provide an easy target for terrorists trying to build nuclear weapons.

Environmentalists say the plants are vulnerable to nuclear accidents.

Supporters of the reactor say Japan, the Soviet Union and western European nations are proceeding with their own programs whether or not the United States cancels the Tennessee plant and a plutonium recycling facility at Barnwell, S.C.

Carter's ally in the Senate debate will be Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who plans an amendment to an Energy Research and Development Administration appropriations bill to allow $33 million to phase out the Clinch River plant.

Other senators will urge spending the full $150 million for further construction.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a supporter of eventual plutonium development, is expected to urge a compromise $75 million authorization to give Carter time to dissuade other countries from proceeding with their plans.

While the full House has few issues of broad public interest scheduled this week, its committees will be busy.

There are House-Senate committee meetings scheduled on the President's proposed Energy Department, with major differences to be ironed out between the two versions over how much control the White House will have in setting natural gas prices.

A House Commerce subcommittee has before it a proposal for an 18-month moratorium on the Food and Drug Administration's plan to ban saccharin, the artificial sweetener which tests have linked to cancer in rats and humans.

Local school burden cut proposed

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe recommended a $100 million decrease today in the amount local school districts pay for educating 2½ million public school children.

In an address to the special session he called on public school finance, Briscoe also recommended a $300 million salary increase for teachers and the doubling of state equalization money for schools — from $100 million to $200 million.

Also, he said, the legislature must authorize an in-depth study of better ways of determining how much local districts should put into public education.

The local fund assignment now totals $500 million, he said, and this should be lowered to $400 million by the special session.

He said Texans "expect swift action" on an education bill.

Briscoe said he has had more than 500 requests to open the 30-day session to other subjects, but he will not do so "until the matter of public school financing is resolved."

The Senate agreed to meet with the House on Friday to hear complaints against Associate Justice Don Yarbrough of the Texas Supreme Court — complaints that could lead to his removal.

It also scheduled an afternoon hearing on school financing and elected Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler, as assistant presiding officer for the special session.

Beaumont lawyer Tanner Hunt Jr. was chosen as Senate parliamentarian for the special session.

GOVERNOR ADDRESSES SPECIAL SESSION — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe as he addressed members of the Texas House and Senate meeting in joint session today, the first day of the special legislative session called to take care of public school finances. At left is Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

The session, limited to 30 days, could be important to Briscoe's reelection bid.

Briscoe — who controls what the legislature may consider in special session — says 210 topics were proposed for the session, but he set aside all but school finance.

He told a news conference Friday he wanted the "entire focus" and "effort" of the legislature centered on that subject.

After that has been handled, he indicated, he might submit other topics for debate.

If county approves EMS plan

16 per cent tax boost seen

By BOB BURTON
The Howard County Commissioner's Court met today with the Big Spring City Council and representatives of STAT (Start Talking Ambulance Today) to discuss methods of approving and implementing the program.

Commissioner Bill Crooker, who chaired the meeting, made the point early in discussion that he felt such an EMS program would be a major undertaking, if the county paid half the first year cost it would mean an increase of 16 per cent in county taxes.

"In the nine years I have been on the court," said Crooker, "we have never faced such a major financial effort. I feel we need to give the proposal due consideration, but I would like to see the voters tell us what to do."

As part of a brief earlier presentation by STAT supporters, attorney Bob Miller passed out a brief which cited problems with the "rural fire prevention district" proposal. According to Miller, the first problem was that an election would mean that an incorporated subdivision could vote down the plan and be excluded from the EMS, which is "completely counter to the philosophy of STAT, for it is seeking Emergency Medical Service for all Howard County citizens."

The second problem, according to Miller, is that the financial taxation permitted in the district under the state law would be inadequate to fund the system, thus dooming it from the beginning.

Thirdly, Miller's brief held that, because the Fire Commissioners would be appointed, "they would only duplicate our elected representatives and only result in a bureaucratic system with excess waste and expenditures."

Miller's brief closed by pointing out that an election was not required by law to enact EMS into existence. The court already had the power to tax for funds for EMS.

Also presenting their views for EMS were Dr. David Rickey, dentist and president of the local Heart Association. Dean Williams from the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, and Mrs. Marianne Simpson, registered nurse.

Mrs. Simpson told the court that the "hot potato" of EMS was being shuffled back and forth. "STAT has mitts on," she said, "so we can hold the potato a little longer. It is the purpose of STAT to issue mitts to the commissioners and the city council."

Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate told the court he felt that the fire prevention district was an equitable place to start such an organization, as it would insure that the taxes were spread equally. Choate expressed at one point his feelings that the city "won't get saddled with the entire $235,000."

That was the anticipated first year cost of the EMS. According to Crooker, the fire district, a 100 per cent evaluation, could raise $132,000 toward that cost, but County Treasurer Virginia Black pointed out that there was absolutely no money in the 77-78 budget for such a project.

Choate proposed that the city and county form a joint body to study possible means of gaining EMS.

Mayor Choate appointed city council members Polly Mays and Harold Hall to a committee which would investigate the need for Emergency Medical Service in Big Spring. Two members of the Commissioner's Court will also serve on the committee but selection of the two is pending until Judge Tune returns from vacation.

The commissioners voted to increase the janitorial contract for the courthouse by 8 per cent effective July 15.

In other action, the court held a brief public hearing on its 77-78 budget. The budget would maintain the old tax rate, but would increase the salary of county employees by five per cent.

In addition, there would be an evaluation increase of approximately 15 per cent on oil and real and personal property. The total budget is estimated at $1,979,821.

The court also met with Neel Barnaby, county engineer; Jack Starat, government trapper; and Jim Fuller, representing a radar system company to re-equip the highway patrol.

Hijackers nab plane to leave Soviet Union

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Two hijackers who seized a Soviet jetliner on a domestic flight released more than half of their 79 hostages in Helsinki today and five more escaped, authorities said. They said the hijackers threatened to blow up their plane unless it was refueled, but four deadlines passed without incident.

In Sweden, Foreign Ministry officials reported, and then retracted the report, that the hijackers had left Helsinki in a light plane. They blamed the misunderstanding on communications problems with the Finns. Finnish authorities said negotiations were continuing. They gave no indication of the hijackers' motives or what kind of arms they had.

Sweden had earlier said it would not let the hijackers into the country. Finnish officials said the pair then demanded to be flown to "some other country" and threatened to blow up the plane unless it was refueled.

An earlier hijack drama in the Mideast ended Sunday when six Palestinians who commandeered a Kuwaiti airliner Friday surrendered at Damascus, Syria, and released the last of their hostages unharmed.

Carter worried about Soviet eavesdropping

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, concerned about Soviet eavesdropping on telephone calls in the United States, will soon be given several proposals to preserve the secrecy of classified communications.

The President is expected to decide by the end of the summer how to protect such calls, one source said Sunday.

The problem stems from the relative ease with which the Soviet Union is reportedly listening in electronically, from properties it owns in Washington and elsewhere in the United States, on telephone calls transmitted through the air by microwave.

The advent of advanced computers has simplified the process considerably because the equipment can quickly sort through the various calls, selecting particular information.

"It is a problem and we're trying to figure out what to do about it," one White House official said. "But when you start to talk about it, you tell the other people how much you know about what they are doing." A former U.S. government official, asked about the study now being done for the President by a government task force, said only that it involved classified material and was "not something we should talk about on the telephone."

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., concerned about the same problem, said the Carter administration should demand that the Russians stop the eavesdropping. He said the Russians are violating the rights of American citizens on U.S. soil.

Carter has been briefed on the problem by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security adviser, and by Stansfield Turner, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The task force report is still being drafted, one source said.

Another said the study involved "every government agency interested in intercepting messages or in not being intercepted." But he would not identify the agencies involved.

Spain devalues its currency

MADRID (AP) — The Spanish government suspended all foreign exchange trading today and private banking sources said the government was planning to devalue the peseta by 25 to 35 per cent.

The move followed the official Bank of Spain's announcement that it would not set new dollar-peseta rates today. Private banks continued to exchange dollars at the old rate of 69.99 pesetas.

The expectation of a steep devaluation of the Spanish currency was heightened by reports that Premier Adolfo Suarez was meeting with his new cabinet and would announce a new economic program. The government declined to comment on the suspension of trading.

Private banks were told "there is no market" until after the government announced its new program.

SEATTLE (AP) — At 4:30 p.m. each day the large glass doors of the King County Superior Court clerk's office are locked shut.

Take a peek inside a few minutes later on Thursdays, however, and you'll see about a dozen of the female employees tapping their toes and clicking their heels, led by a 55-year-old executive secretary.

Ellen Matson said she started tap-dancing lessons because "these girls need the exercise." Her students are aged 23 to 60. None of the male workers has been invited to the informal classes, and none has asked to join.

Ms. Matson says she plans to continue the lessons "long enough to put on some kind of a review. We thought we'd call ourselves the 'Judicial Dollies.'"

Dr. Barnard to retire

DETROIT (AP) — South African heart surgeon Dr. Christiaan Barnard will retire in a year or two because his hands are severely crippled by arthritis, according to the Detroit News. In an interview appearing in Sunday's editions, Barnard said his hands are almost useless in the delicate human heart transplants he pioneered on Dec. 3, 1967. "I can't continue much longer. This arthritis is causing excruciating pain in both hands," he said. Barnard, 54, said he has had athritis for 20 years. "Professionally, I've done about as much as I can, gone about as far as I can go. There are so many other things I'd still like to do yet. I have a young family and I'd like to have enough time and energy left to see them grow up."

Schmidt surprised at room

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt enjoyed a day at a lake in the Wisconsin woods and was surprised at the room for population expansion, says his host, Philip Hanft. Hanft, a second cousin to Schmidt, said the chancellor had requested that they find time to motor to Hanft's cottage on Whitefish Lake, near Gordon, Wis., and about 50 miles from Duluth. "He was intrigued by the fact there was so much vacant land, areas of woods without anything," Hanft told a reporter. Schmidt arrived at Duluth by plane from Canada Saturday evening and was welcomed by a military honor guard from the nearby U.S. Air Force Base, although the chancellor has described this as a family visit and he did not want any fuss. The German leader is scheduled to arrive in Washington, D.C., Wednesday for consultations with President Carter.

GOP revival rally

NAPOLEON, Ohio (AP) — Republicans should stop "factionalizing and giving each other political saliva tests," says former California Gov. Ronald Reagan. Reagan appeared Saturday at what was billed as a "Republican Revivalism" rally with Gov. James Rhodes and other state party leaders. The rally drew about 3,000 persons. Reagan told the crowd the GOP should welcome ethnic and minority groups, giving them leadership positions. He said polls show most people now believe in the tenets of the GOP as enunciated in its platform, and he said the party should provide a home for independents and disenchanted Democrats.

It was the first Dallas media comment on the new population figures. San Antonio newspapers two weeks ago had headlines proclaiming "Big SA, Small D."

Miss Arkansas almost ended beauty career

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — The new Miss Arkansas said Sunday she nearly got married a year ago. Such a step would have ended Bonnie Holbert's beauty contest career. She also told reporters at a news conference here that she is opposed to young people living together because she is "old fashioned."

Concerning her marriage plans of last year, Miss Holbert said she had selected her wedding and bridesmaids gowns and had discussed marriage with her minister. But, at the last minute, she decided she couldn't go through with it. She declined to tell reporters how she broke the news to her ex-fiancee. Miss Holbert's victory celebration was marred commissary shopping privileges and becomes a viable factor in the inflationary urban market place like the rest of us." Taking a slap at Houston in the process, Hitt said: "In Dallas we are used to being second in size to Houston, a creepy crawly megalopolis full of bayous and longshoremen. Houston might as well be an OPEC country... We in Dallas have done wisely in conceding Houston its numerical superiority, ignoring it as San Franciscans do Los Angeles."

'Carterette' gets 200 miles to the gallon

BALTIMORE (AP) — The "Carterette" gets 200 miles per gallon of gas, its designers say. That's not surprising — the vehicle is built from two bicycles and a lawnmower motor and weighs just 150 pounds. Sergio and Merika Minnone say they built the red and black Carterette, with a white fringe on top, in response to President Carter's appeal for fuel conservation. The Minnones left their home in Nyack, N.Y., on July 4 to bump along the shoulders of interstate highways on a 400-mile trip to the White House to show off their creation. They arrived here Saturday night and plan to head today for Washington, where Mrs. Minnone said their congressman, Benjamin Gilman, has arranged for them to meet Carter sometime this week. "It's terribly exciting," said Mrs. Minnone. Mrs. Minnone said they felt Carter was sincere in asking the American people to find new ways of conserving energy.

Baby born 17 months after father died

LONDON (AP) — Syndicated cartoonist Kim Casali called herself a "very, very lucky woman" after giving birth to a boy conceived by artificial insemination from her husband Roberto, who died of cancer 17 months ago. Roberto, an engineer, developed cancer shortly after the two married. They had two sons, but wanted a larger family and feared the spreading cancer might make children impossible later. The accounts said Mrs. Casali suggested a sperm bank, where sperm is frozen for use later, and that her husband agreed. He died at age 31. During her pregnancy, Mrs. Casali wrote to a friend: "Love is — the baby I carry for my darling Roberto."

Before going into the nursing home, she said: "The baby will be Roberto's last gift to me. I shall be able to remember him by it forever..." "Roberto and I were very

The Social Security representative will be on the third floor of the Scurry County courthouse in Snyder each Tuesday during the three-month period from 10 a.m., until 12 noon and again from 1 p.m., until 2 p.m. He will be available for consultation at the Wallace Community Center each Wednesday from 10 a.m., until 2 noon and at Lamesa at the Senior Citizens Center each Thursday from 10 a.m., until 12 noon and again from 1 p.m., until 2 p.m.

Still nationwide campaign on to ban fluoridated water

ATLANTA (AP) — Dentists said it would prevent tooth decay. Opponents feared it was a communist plot. But despite the controversy of the 1950s and 1960s, the fluoridation of water has spread across the country. To date, 6,795 American communities have fluoridated water — up from 5,000 in 1971 — says the federal Center for Disease Control here. Officials of the center also report that the fluoride issue is alive and kicking in several parts of the country. "Some of this is due to ultraconservatism and some can be attributed to misinformed public officials," said Dr. William Bock, chief of dental disease prevention at the CDC. "Some research discrediting the good that fluoridation does is given great publicity, but many other studies which refute the charges are never circulated," he said in an interview. "This is one of the great problems. There still are nationwide efforts to try to ban fluoridation."

REACT treats

about 2,000 The July 4 "coffee break" set up for the convenience of cross-country motorists was discussed at the regular meeting of Big Spring REACT Thursday evening. REACT officials estimate that over 2,000 availed themselves of services offered by the group. Coffee and coke were served, along with cookies and other snacks, all furnished by REACT members. An ice cream party is planned for club members and guests in Comanche Trail Park.

Tower gathers cash for re-election bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas business interests have staked Republican Sen. John Tower to a $368,000 start in his effort to win re-election next year.

Tower has not formally announced his candidacy, but he has done everything else necessary to get his campaign rolling.

The contributions to Tower came in about equal shares from banking investment interests, oil and gas interests, and general business interests. There were 139 individuals or political action groups which gave $1,000 or more.

Among the individuals were former Gov. Allen Shivers and ranchers John Armstrong and Richard Kleburg. Among the political action groups were the LTV Corp.'s fund and the Texas doctors' fund.

Tower got one contribution from the grave. An estate executor donated $1,000 and listed the donor's occupation as "deceased."

The largest single source of money for Tower was a fund-raising dinner in Houston that grossed $219,000.

Tower's largest single expenditure, $44,500, was also related to fund-raising. It went to a company headed by Brad O'Leary of Capitol Heights, Md., a specialist in direct mail solicitation.

Tower's lone announced rival for the seat, Rep. Bob Krueger, had not filed his report early this morning. He had until the close of business today to meet the deadline.

Japanese Liberals in for defeat

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda's Liberal-Democratic party appeared headed today for its second major rebuff at the polls in seven months as computer projections indicated it would fall three seats short of a majority in the upper house of parliament.

Both the Kyodo news service and the Japan Broadcasting Corp. said their computers, after digesting the returns at midmorning from the election Sunday for half the members of the House of Councillors, predicted the conservative forces that have governed Japan for 29 years would wind up with 124 of the total 252 seats.

That would be two less than they have had since 1973 and will mean continuation of the era of compromise that began with the Liberal-Democrats' setback in the lower-house elections last December.

Reacting to the Lockheed payoff scandal and the involvement in it of Former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and other leading Liberal-Democrats, the conservative party lost 16 seats then. It patched together a three-seat majority by enlisting the support of eight independents but has been forced to make extensive compromises with the opposition for the first time.

Now it must maneuver to avoid defeat in the House of Councillors also since it no longer has the two-thirds majority in the House of Representative needed to override an adverse vote in the upper house.

Though all parties played down Lockheed in this campaign, it was apparent that resentment over the scandal and the strong influence of big business on the conservative party is still strong. Foreign policy was not an issue in the campaign, and the once controversial security treaty with the United States was virtually ignored.

Self discipline made difference for Miss Texas

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The new Miss Texas, Lori Ann Smith, credits self-discipline as the difference between winning this year and finishing second runner-up in 1976.

"A year of self-discipline has made the difference," said Miss Smith, 20, who represented the Haltom-Richland area. She said she has exercised and lifted weights daily at a health spa in the months following the 1976 pageant.

The ash-blond Miss Smith was crowned Miss Texas Saturday night. She will represent Texas in the annual Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., in September.

"I am excited and honored," she told a Sunday news conference.

She had won the preliminary swimsuit competition Thursday night and sang to win the preliminary talent event on Wednesday.

The new Miss Texas, who lives in North Richland Hills, is 5-8, 118-pounds and measures 35-23-35. She has transferred from Southern Methodist University to North Texas State University, where she will be a junior.

Last year's Miss Texas Pageant was her first attempt at winning the crown. The first runner-up selected Saturday night was Miss Irving, Margie Lynn Hooper, 22.

The second runner-up was Miss West Texas, Kristi Lynn Kesey, 20, of Pecos, Miss East Texas, Marta Christine Szaran of Center, was the third runner-up and Miss Dallas County, Holly Waynette Walker, 21, of Tyler was selected as fourth runner-up.

Miss Smith, who won a one-year scholarship at North Texas with the Miss Texas title, got her letter of acceptance from the school only Friday.

She is majoring in media art, but said she wants to be a professional singer.

Great steeple chase waged

DENVER (AP) — The great steeple chase is under way.

"I can't imagine what someone would do with a church steeple," said the Rev. Gene Parrott, pastor of the Alameda Hills Baptist Church in the Denver suburb of Lakewood.

The church's 15-foot, 800-pound, white steeple was stolen this week from a parking lot where it had been set awaiting transfer to another church this weekend.

Carter to visit Gulf wells?

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Gov. Edwin Edwards will invite President Carter to visit Louisiana's offshore oil and gas wells and says the President may make the visit within 90 days.

"I think I'm going to fire off an invitation for him to come," Edwards said after Carter met with governors from 45 states to discuss energy.

"He volunteered the suggestion but made no commitment," Edwards said on his return from Washington Saturday night, but said he believed that Carter did not make the suggestion.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis said Carter mentioned the possibility of visiting Louisiana when, during the three-hour session with the governors, he said he wanted Edwards to take him on a tour of some Gulf of Mexico drilling.

"If you do that, you might reelect me," Edwards reportedly joked.

As Dukakis told it, "Carter brought down the house when he paused, then smiled and said, 'I still think I'd like to come down.'"

Edwards said he was pleasantly surprised to return with the feeling that the two-day conference had been worthwhile.

"I was very, very pleased that the governors seemed to be taking a softening attitude toward additional production," he said.

The governor said Carter did not indicate his reaction to Edwards' proposal that the United States give Mexico $1 billion to help finance a 750-mile pipeline to bring natural gas from Mexico to Texas. But he described Dr. James Schlesinger, presidential energy adviser, as "very enthusiastic" about the idea.

Edward proposed the pipeline last week, saying it would bring natural gas to the United States at a price about half that of unregulated domestic gas.

Weather

Rains cause threat of flash flooding

By the Associated Press

Rain heavy enough to cause a flash flood warning for the area around Nacogdoches fell early today as showers and thunderstorms lasted past midnight in parts of East Texas.

There was no report of serious trouble and the National Weather Service wrote the moisture off as generally insignificant. Skies were clear in the other sections as a July heat wave stayed firmly in control.

Gusty south winds blew across Northwest Texas at 10 to 20 miles per hour while breezes hitting less than 10 m.p.h. fanned other sections.

Early morning temperatures stayed as high as 81 degrees at Galveston and Palacios on the coast, and readings elsewhere ranged down to the 50s around Marfa in the West Texas high country. Sunday's top marks scaled up to 101 at Dalhart, El Paso and Wichita Falls.

More hot and sunny weather was in prospect throughout the state. Occasional afternoon and evening thunderstorms were expected in the West Texas mountains, the Texas Panhandle, and parts of East Texas.

Cotton farmer's stock bullish

The cotton farmer has been doing pretty good the last couple of years, especially when compared to the wheat farmer.

This year looks to continue the trend. The cotton farmer is getting rains at good times for a bountiful crop, and the price appears to be holding fairly good, though off from last year's prices.

THE WHEAT FARMER in this area, on the other hand, raised a good crop, but the prices were too low for much, if any, profit.

So I have heard that a number of the wheat farmers in the north central portion of Texas are planting cotton again.

Most of these were not born wheat farmers. They had raised cotton for years, but they switched to wheat about the time the now infamous Russian grain deal drove prices into the sky. The boll weevils were plentiful, and the Club of Rome was talking about a perpetual world grain shortage. It made sense to plant wheat.

Quite a number of farmers got the idea, however, and as the Russian weather improved and the American production climbed, the price of wheat has dropped like it was just sitting around in the bins, which indeed it is.

Meanwhile, the cotton farmer's stock has been bullish.

It may stay that way, because I am told that farmers find changing back and forth between wheat and cotton is not that simple.

For one thing, the equipment required is different.

THE BIGGEST problem, some argue, is that if a farmer changes from cotton to wheat and back to cotton, he has ended up by in effect missing one year's crop.

Either way it's quite uncertain. As one wheat farmer recently told me: "I don't have no need to visit Las Vegas. They hardly gamble at all out there. If they want some big risk action, those gamblers oughta try farmin' for a year or two."

Around the rim

Danny Reagan

"Kids say the darndest things."

Art Linkletter put himself away a tidy little nest-egg on that statement with his TV program, ages hence.

All I want to do is fill up this corner with it for a few minutes of your time.

First kid's name is Brandi... half of a dynamite duo—pride-and-joy package (her sister's name is Tami) of parents Jim and Judy Wyatt of Sugar Land, and grandparents Howard and Charlyne Wyatt of Lamesa. (I'm a cousin twice removed by marriage.)

Brandi was six years old when this little jewel popped out of her mouth. Here's the scene: She's just lost her first tooth and has come into the living room right before bedtime to show her father.

"PUT IT UNDER your pillow tonight and the tooth fairy will come and take it and leave some money in its place," her father told her.

"Who's the tooth fairy?" Brandi asked.

"Oh, he's just a magical guy who leaves money for good little boys and girls when they lose their teeth?"

"Well, what does he look like?" she wanted to know.

"Nobody knows," said Jim. "Nobody ever sees him. He just comes when you're asleep, leaves the money and goes. Go put it under your pillow."

So, Brandi went into her room, and returned to her father about 10 minutes later.

"Here daddy, you put it under your pillow," she said, "I don't want that man in my room."

Second kid's name is Kimberly Hobbs, cute-as-a-kitten daughter of ex-76er fan Leon and his wife Frances.

Scene is this: Kimberly has just removed herself from the tub (she's only four... this is PG folks), and is running around her room with wet feet, a situation my own mother repeatedly assured me was as deadly as eating fish and drinking milk at the same time.

(This is quick, so pay attention.)

"Kimberly," her mother Frances said motherly, "put on your house shoes, there's a draft in your room."

"Well, does it bite?" Kimberly asked with alarm.

THIRD KID'S NAME is a mystery. Story is fourth-hand, but I'm sure it's valid.

This little girl was only three years old and in her first wedding as a flower girl. It was a big wedding, so they had three rehearsals.

Each time everyone went through the routine, the little girl did her part perfectly, but she cried and cried after each rehearsal. The future bride was a little worried that the profuse flow of tears would detract from the moment of the real thing, and talked with the little girl after the last run-through.

"Honey, what is the matter? You're doing just fine, but you know you can't cry like that during the actual wedding."

Crying still, the little girl replied: "I don't want to get married. I'm too young to leave my mother."

Future Carol Burnetts... everyone of them.

Misusing influence?

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young, already under fire for his outspoken opinions, has now been accused of misusing his influence.

The FBI has investigated charges that he improperly pressured federal prison authorities to grant special favors to a prisoner with alleged links to organized crime.

The investigation was conducted in such secrecy that Young's name was omitted from the court records. The charges against him, however, have the smell of a smear.

On April 29, FBI agents interrogated the controversial U.N. ambassador for 40 minutes. They suggested that he may have worked "too diligently" in behalf of Michael George Thevis, a big-time pornography distributor now behind bars.

IN OTHER interviews, FBI agents dropped dark hints of bribery. A Justice Dept. source told us outright that Thevis had contributed heavily to Young's past congressional campaigns.

We, therefore, conducted our own investigation into the charges against Young. We could find no evidence that Thevis had ever contributed a penny to Young. We also concluded that Young had done nothing improper.

When we confronted the FBI, a spokesman said only that Young "is not under investigation by the FBI." The implication is that the FBI also found no evidence of wrongdoing and, therefore cut short its inquiry.

Yet Steven Ludwick, who is in charge of criminal investigations for the U.S. attorney's office in Atlanta, notified the courts that Thevis had secured a transfer "as a result of direct or indirect contact with staff members of an extremely high-ranking political appointee and eventually the appointee himself."

This clearly implies that the appointee, whom we can identify as the beleaguered Andrew Young, was guilty of wrongful intervention. Ludwick presumably based the accusation upon the FBI's investigation. Young's former assistant, Julius Hollis, also told us that he has been "intimidated" by FBI agents.

The possibility that the FBI might have tried to cause trouble for Young is disturbing. He was an associate of the martyred Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who had been hounded and harassed by the FBI at the instigation of its late chief, J. Edgar Hoover.

The rigid, revered Hoover, conservative in his ways and narrow in his outlook, had grown up in Washington when it was still a quiet, segregated Southern town. To Hoover, the struggle for equal rights by blacks smacked of rebellion. He, therefore, directed a shameful smear campaign against Dr. King.

There is a lingering suspicion that Hoover's point of view may continue to dominate the policies and actions of the FBI. Thus it is important to review the details of the Young-Thevis relationship.

THEVIS WAS convicted in federal court of conspiracy to commit arson and of transporting obscene material across state lines. His prison file, according to our sources, is stamped "Special Offender." This is a term, we are told, that is used to designate organized crime figures.

A spokesman for Thevis denied that he has any ties to the underworld. He is also in constant pain, the after-effects of a past near-fatal motorcycle accident. He continues to need special medical attention, as noted by the judge who sentenced him.

Racial quotes

William F. Buckley, Jr.

The New York Times recently published an editorial endorsement of the reverse discrimination that caused the rejection of Allan Bakke by the medical school of the University of California at Davis. Two weeks later, the Times turned over the whole of its editorial page to spirited discussions of that stand, introduced by an editorial statement that by a ratio of 15 to one, the Times' readers had rejected the Times' logic. That is a very heavy majority, the more so in the light of the ideological predisposition of the Times' readers. Although there will always be those who say that to side with Bakke is to take a racist position, such folk sound like Andy Young. One of the writers protesting the Times' editorial proudly identifies himself as President of the American Jewish Committee.

IT IS A pity that practically everything one does these days ends up requiring validation by the Supreme Court of the United States. The many problems of the black Americans, for the most part problems brought on by the wretched circumstances of their background, are best handled by the myriad decisions reached in a million situations every day, by a people who have shown themselves, on the whole, disposed to help the Negro people.

These are acts of noblesse oblige, but they shatter when reduced to writing, let alone to law. The employer who surveys the application forms of a half dozen candidates for an opening and quietly gives the advantage to the black candidate is, in my opinion, doing the right thing. But what he did could not stand the test of universalization. You could not take that discreet preference and write legislation about it; ordaining it, as the people at the University of California in effect did, as the Act of Reverse Discrimination Designed to Aton for White House's Oppressions During Four Centuries. Everything desirable drains out of the deed with the crystalization of it.

The New York Times actually argues that there are only "racial solutions" to "racial problems." That venture in homeopathy is extremely dangerous, as one correspondent pointed out. "It is not true, for example, that if a policy or practice is infused with madness, then the solution must be, too, in some degree. Nor is it true that if a problem is fueled by bigotry, then the solution must be its opposite; a program of malnutrition should be countered with a program of nutrition, one of ignorance with knowledge, and that is the case here."

"Hey, good buddies... y'all sure you've got this thing hooked up right... huh... good buddies...?"

Secret war

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — President Carter's secret war to convert NATO from a dangerous illusion to a coalition capable of fighting the Warsaw Pact has barely started, but more than other Carter foreign policy it signals the West's loss of strategic nuclear supremacy and the decline of detente.

Indeed, Mr. Carter's unannounced decision to restore former Ambassador Robert Komer to a major role in rehabilitating the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's battlefield capabilities tells much about his inner concern. Komer, in charge of the pacification program at the peak of the Vietnam war and then briefly the American ambassador to Turkey, carries some cold war baggage that might unfairly have been used against him.

INSTEAD, KOMER is now full-time NATO "consultant" in the Pentagon, working closely as Secretary of Defense Harold Brown's agent with Gen. Alexander Haig, the NATO commander, and with another principal in reviving NATO — Henry Owen, now the President's part-time consultant and a former State Department policy planning chief.

The President was explicitly warned before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) summit meeting in London last May that the immense Warsaw Pact buildup (immense since the 1968 Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia) had created a NATO weakness even more dangerous to the West than the Soviet strategic buildup.

The fact that this warning came directly from Harold Brown gave it clear urgency. Brown's advice to the President: NATO must quickly — and for the first time ever — be prepared to wage defensive warfare against a possible invasion of Western Europe by Soviet-led Communist forces within a warning time of 48 to 72 hours.

Even before Brown's warning to Mr. Carter, he was trying to convince U.S. partners in NATO of their lethal vulnerability to surprise Soviet conventional attack in Central Europe. Hiring Komer was one of these steps. Persuading Mr. Carter to retain Haig as NATO commander was another.

But the real test of the Carter-Brown policy is whether it can surmount Western European inertia. That means persuading members to bring their NATO forces up to strength — particularly the Dutch — and persuading all NATO members, including the U.S., to use weapons and ammunition that are exchangeable with the forces of other NATO nationals.

THE COMPULSION that for the first time is beginning to drive NATO toward these overdue goals is fear: fear growing out of the loss of U.S. strategic superiority (which has ruled out automatic nuclear retaliation in the event of a Soviet attack) and fear that Moscow is approaching a crisis over who will succeed Leonid Brezhnev, further endangering detente.

The fear seems to be working. One European member has finally agreed to double its forces in the central German front area, meeting the assigned level for the first time. Strengthening the front against surprise attack was the major recommendation early this year in a widely-studied report by Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, a respected Democratic defense expert.

Another small NATO member has finally agreed to a major increase in its anti-tank guns at considerable expense. Neither of these decisions has yet been announced.

Leg ulcers, varicose veins linked

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me anything about leg ulcers? I am in my late 30s and have had one for about a year. I go to the doctor's once a month to have the scab removed and it does give quite a lot of relief. Between visits I keep it clean with gentian violet.

I also have a lot of spider veins. The doctor wants to do a skin graft. I am still undecided. Are you familiar with this procedure? Can you help me decide? — Mrs. M.

The usual cause of chronic leg ulcers is a condition called "stasis." That means a "standing still," in this case a sluggish blood flow, probably from our old friend varicose veins. There are various other causes — diabetes, collagen disease (lupus), fungus infections, blood disorders, and the like.

You mention spider veins. Do you have large superficial veins (those near the surface)? Are you overweight? You should have provided more detail.

There are different forms of treatment for such ulcers. Rest and periodic elevation of the affected leg is essential. This has been known to clear up the situation. I'd have to know more about your condition before trying to help you decide about surgery, but I can tell you that the stasis would have to be corrected for the skin graft to take properly. Superficial varicose veins might have to be ligated (tied off), stripped, or dried up by injections.

Some ulcers are helped with granulated sugar applied to the wound. Another old remedy is to apply dried blood cells to the area. Check with your doctor about these methods. If you remain in doubt about surgery, have a second opinion, preferably by a vascular surgeon.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Have you heard of a woman who was allergic to the solution used to rinse contact lenses? I suspect this as the cause of my eye inflammation. — Mrs. I.K.

Yes, it can be a cause. Try changing brands. One reader wrote me years ago with the same suggestion. It worked for him. In some women the Pill can be a factor.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a skin condition that was diagnosed ten years ago as urticaria pigmentosa. Have there been any findings these past ten years to treat or relieve it? This condition began after the birth of a child. Is there any recent medical information you can pass on?

It has disturbed me greatly this past year, in the summer, especially. — A.R.

I have to question the diagnosis of urticaria pigmentosa this late in life. You need a reevaluation by a dermatologist.

The condition is usually a childhood disorder, appearing at about six months and disappearing before or at the time of puberty. If the present blemishes started after a pregnancy and have persisted for ten years, getting worse in the summer, suspect chloasma (mask of pregnancy). This often can produce stubborn symptoms. Birth control pills can cause it and make the blemishes persist. Too, there is the possibility that you have chronic urticaria (hives), which can be caused by food or drug sensitivity. Skin disorders must be seen to be diagnosed. Hence my suggestion to have another opinion. At present you

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How do you think it is possible for someone to increase their faith? I really feel that I have so little faith. — J.C.M.

DEAR J.C.M.: Dwight L. Moody, a man greatly used of God in the last century, used to answer this question by saying that when he was first converted he used to think you got more faith simply by praying for it. But then, he said, he read Romans 10:17, which says, "so then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God." Moody said God then showed him that faith increases as we read the Bible, God's Word.

This has certainly been true in my own life. As we read the Bible continually, we see God at work in the lives of the many men and women in its pages. As we read how God dealt with them, we see how He will deal with us. Do you want to increase your faith? Do you want to learn to trust God more? Then look into His Word, and learn to trust it.

Remember that faith is really trust. God wants you to trust Him and believe His promises. When you appropriate His promises in His Word by faith, you are following His will.

I suggest you read carefully chapter 11 of Hebrews. It lists a large number of men and women who lived by faith and trusted in God. They had learned the secret of keeping their eyes on God, not on their circumstances. This is what we do when we live by faith — we learn to trust what God says. And the more we trust Him, the more we learn to trust Him.

Nazi energy secrets studied by panel

PADDLE POWER — Inventor Paul Vaughan checks out a contraption that he hopes will lead to cheap electricity from the Gulf Stream. Using paddlewheels, a small generator, bicycle chain and wheels, the gadget gets its power from the flow of the Gulf Stream, and generates electricity.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A chemistry professor planned to tell the Interstate Oil Compact Commission (IOCC) conference today about Nazi documents which he feels may hold a partial answer to U.S. energy problems.

The 42-year-old oil and natural gas conservation organization is composed of 36 states that produce, or have the potential of producing, oil and natural gas.

Dr. Richard Wainerdi, a Texas A&M University chemical engineering professor, planned to discuss the Nazi documents, which include ways scientists used synthetic fuels to keep factories open during World War II when petroleum products were in short supply in Germany.

For years Wainerdi and a 10-member team have been gathering Nazi documents from around the world in hopes of discovering major new energy processes and sources.

The professor and his team have uncovered a 6,000-page Nazi energy plan far more elaborate than President Carter's, IOCC officials claim.

During the three-day meeting, the IOCC members are expected to suggest alternatives to President Carter's national energy program, which the IOCC has criticized.

Since 1964, when interstate gas prices became federally regulated, the IOCC has advocated a free-market pricing of natural gas—a stance currently contrary to Carter's.

Among those slated to discuss Carter's energy plan is C.H. Keplinger of Tulsa, Okla., board chairman of an oil and gas consulting firm.

D.B. Hurd, petroleum supervisor for the Canadian Ministry of Natural Resources, will tell of problems his nation had in natural gas exploration in Lake Erie.

Canada has drilled 900 wells in Lake Erie in search of natural gas and about 300 of them now account for an annual production of 6 billion cubic feet.

The United States has not drilled any wells in the lake, with three of the lake's bordering states, New York, Ohio, and Michigan, prohibiting drilling.

The administration is believed to favor building pipelines to carry surplus Alaskan oil to markets in the Midwest. Schlesinger said Carter's decision to keep Alaskan oil in the United States should encourage that development.

In Anchorage, trans-Alaska pipeline officials said Sunday they hoped to resume pumping oil within days. The flow was halted Friday night after a fire knocked out a pumping station near Fairbanks.

Meanwhile, House Republican Leader John Rhodes said Sunday he doesn't believe Congress is any mood to give the President broad standby authority to impose a gasoline rationing program.

He appeared on ABC's "Issues and Answers." Rhodes renewed GOP criticism of the Carter energy program. He said a Republican plan to allow gas, oil and coal to find their own price levels in a free market makes greater sense than the administration's advocacy of more stringent controls on prices.

He noted that under the Republican plan, oil companies would have to pay taxes on any windfall profits.

Carter changes mind on Japan oil swap

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is abandoning a swap of Alaskan oil with Japan partly because he would have a tough time explaining such a move to American consumers long warned of an energy crisis.

James Schlesinger, the president's chief energy adviser, disclosed Sunday that Carter decided it would be wrong to send Alaskan oil to Japan in exchange for Japanese-bought oil shipped from the Persian Gulf to states on the Gulf Coast and the Eastern Seaboard.

The proposal was among several under consideration for handling the daily surplus of 500,000 barrels a day expected at West Coast refineries once oil starts flowing at full capacity through the newly opened trans-Alaska pipeline.

Schlesinger's remarks came on NBC's "Meet the Press."

He acknowledged it would be difficult to justify the export to Americans who have repeatedly been told of the need to conserve fuel.

"As a consequence, there will be no exchanges; all of the oil coming out of Alaska will have to be shipped to the states," he said. Schlesinger said Carter decided to abandon the proposal last Monday.

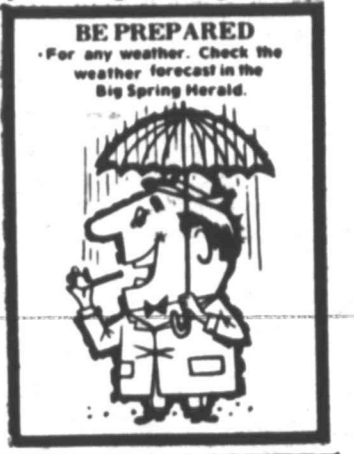

The U.S.-Japanese oil swap had been touted by some administration and oil industry officials as a means of cutting the cost of transporting Alaska oil to Eastern and Southern refineries. Those officials said such an arrangement could cut as much as $1 to $1.50 a barrel from the cost of transporting Alaskan oil east on tankers through the Panama Canal.

But, said Schlesinger, "We are unable to demonstrate clear-cut savings to the consumers.... On balance, the President has reviewed the matter and he believes the swaps would be undesirable — partly on political grounds, partly for other technical reasons."

Resources, will tell of problems his nation had in natural gas exploration in Lake Erie.

Canada has drilled 900 wells in Lake Erie in search of natural gas and about 300 of them now account for an annual production of 6 billion cubic feet.

The United States has not drilled any wells in the lake, with three of the lake's bordering states, New York, Ohio, and Michigan, prohibiting drilling.

Archbishop trying to return Catholic church to tradition

DICKINSON, Tex. (AP) — French Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre indicated Sunday that if his conflict with Pope Paul eventually led to excommunication he would continue his priestly duties and his efforts to return the Roman Catholic church to its traditionalist teachings.

The archbishop, in the small southeast Texas town of Dickinson, to consecrate a chapel and conduct a pontifical mass, said excommunication meant "you had committed a mortal sin. I have not committed a mortal sin. So I cannot consider excommunication."

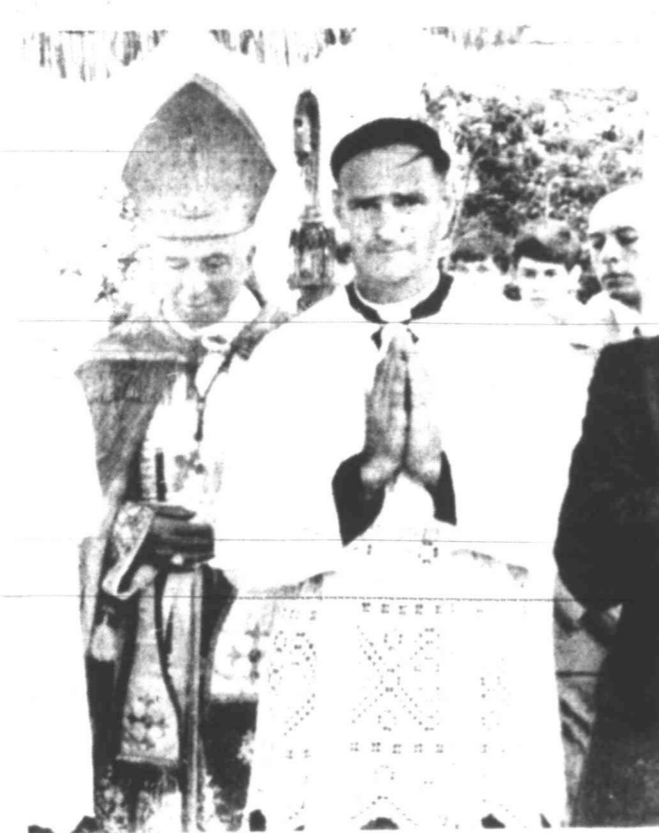

He also said that within the next year or two a seminary may be opened in the United States for those who believe in the more traditional teachings of the Roman Catholic Church.

The archbishop's conflict with Pope Paul centers on his celebration of mass in Latin following the Tridentine rite as opposed to the new liturgy which calls for the mass to be celebrated in the language of the parishioners.

Recently the archbishop defied the Pope's order and ordained 14 priests at a seminary in Ecône, Switzerland. Vatican Radio said his actions had placed him outside the church. Pope Paul has barred the archbishop from performing priestly functions because of his militant campaign against the modernization of the church.

At an early morning news conference, Archbishop Lefebvre was asked why he stands alone in the fight to return to the Tridentine rite. He answered, "I know there are many, many others who think as we do. They realize the church is in a crisis. But, they are afraid to speak out publicly."

About 500 persons gathered at the Queen of Angels Chapel in this town not far from the Gulf of Mexico to hear the arch-

TRADITIONALIST ARCHBISHOP IN TEXAS — Roman Catholic traditionalist Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, left, and Father Hector Bolduc, right, of Queen of Angels Chapel, say a prayer Sunday as they begin dedication ceremonies at Dickinson, Texas chapel. Father Bolduc invited the archbishop from Paris, France, to perform the ceremony.

but because of the Vatican.

"I am not against the Pope. I am for the Pope. But the attitude of the Vatican against us does not come from the Holy Ghost. It comes from a bad spirit. The orientation that began after the Second Vatican Council is making us protestant," he said.

The archbishop said the Tridentine "is a spiritual mass. The new mass is a meal, not a sacrifice. Mass should be a true sacrifice. We are not a movement within the church, and we are not a revolution. Remember, the Tridentine rite was used in all Catholic churches for centuries and centuries. It was good enough then, why is it not good now?"

If the Pope would permit the use of the Tridentine rite in those churches that so desired, the archbishop said, "This would be the first step to peace in the church. The church is in a crisis. We don't know where the church is going."

When asked if it were possible that his followers could be excommunicated, the archbishop said, "They do not follow me. They follow the true Catholic Church. That puts us in the same boat."

"Many members of the church are asking for a return to tradition. We must return. This situation cannot continue."

The Rt. Rev. John Morkovski, bishop of the Galveston-Houston Diocese, said, "We are saddened by the actions of this group and by the conflict of Archbishop Lefebvre with the Holy Father and the Catholic church."

Several had traveled more than 300 miles for the event.

Meanwhile, an estimated 1,000 Catholics gathered at the nearby Shrine of the True Cross, a church less than a mile away from where the archbishop appeared, to "pray" for the archbishop's followers.

"We did not gather in response to the archbishop's visit," said the Rt. Rev. Bobby Eugene Cargill, priest at the church. "We consider them to be our fellow Catholics who have just been led astray. We thought it was our duty to pray for them and we hope they come back into the fold."

It rained heavily shortly before the mass, but by the time for the consecration services, the skies had cleared.

The church, which seats about 400, was filled and others gathered on damp grass outside to hear the mass over loudspeakers.

The archbishop told the congregation that "this chapel may become the center for the true Catholic faith all over America. Perhaps in the near future we can have good relations with the Vatican. We have nothing in our heart against the Vatican, but we cannot accept the loss of the true Catholic faith."

After mass, Texas-style barbecue was served.

Archbishop Lefebvre said if there is a division in the Roman Catholic church today "it is not because of us."

U.S. interest rates raised

The federal interest rate on government-backed home loans was increased from 8 to 8.5 per cent, effective May 31.

Max Cleland, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, said the new rate, established for Federal Housing Administration loans by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, also applies to Veterans Administration home loans.

Cleland said the increase was necessary to bring government rates in line with other competitive rates in the mortgage and financial markets.

The rate change does not affect existing VA home loans. Once a loan is made, the interest rate remains the same for the life of the loan. Also unaffected are rates for VA mobile-home loans, which are for shorter terms and lesser loan amounts.

Several had traveled more than 300 miles for the event.

Jury selection going slow

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Attorneys in the capital murder trial of Fort Worth millionaire Cullen Davis began a third week of sifting through prospective jurors today.

Four jurors were impaneled in the first two weeks, although the fourth was dismissed last week for medical reasons.

Davis, a wealthy industrialist, is being tried in the shooting death last August of Andrea Wilborn, his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

He is also charged with capital murder in the shooting death of former Texas Christian University basketball player Stan Farr, his estranged wife's boyfriend. In addition, Davis faces charges in the wounding of his wife, Priscilla, and a family friend.

The charges stemmed from a pre-dawn shooting spreed last August at Davis' lavish Fort Worth mansion.

Since proceedings opened here June 27, lawyers have gone through the names of 33 prospective jurors.

The trial was moved here from Fort Worth on a change of venue motion after a first attempt to try Davis there ended in a mistrial before jury selection was completed.

The mistrial was declared by then-presiding State District Court Judge Tom Cave after the judge ruled that a sequestered juror had made an unauthorized telephone call.

Wing inspection slated Friday

The 78th Flying Training Wing, commanded by Col. Harry A. Spannaus, will fall out for an inspection of troops at 7:45 a.m. followed by a Wing Parade at 8:15 a.m., Friday. The inspection will be held on the flight line ramp south of Base Operations. The parade center will be on the flight line in front of Base Operations. The public is invited to attend the inspection and parade. Seating for the public will be available.

All non-mission essential military personnel are required to participate. The parade will be made up of 12 squadrons divided into two groups. There will be approximately 1100 military personnel participating in this event. It will likely be the last time all military members of the 78th Flying Training Wing will gather together for a formation.

Old settlers due

with Marj Carpenter

Last Saturday was the second Saturday in July and it was Old Settlers Reunion time in Stanton again. That event began in 1930 when Turner Vance came home to visit his parents. He and his wife, Grace, had moved to Refugio and came back July 14, 1930 for a visit. His parents got together a few friends for a picnic. A lot of people had missed him, because around 250 turned up for the picnic. It was mostly old timers and they had such a good time as they gathered that they decided to make it an annual affair. They formed a committee and organized the old Settlers Reunion. The group had gathered on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hamilton with "picnic lunches and gay spirits for a good time." The program included music and a speech by Jerry Hall, who was four years old at the time. He was named Martin County's outstanding farmer in recent years. R.H. Kelly and Bill Storey provided fiddle music and Eleanor Connell played the piano for the fiddlers. A group of women, including Beulah Sale, Opal Jones, Ida Bell Mashburn and Willie Epley sang, accompanied by Helen Houston. The first officers were S.C. Houston, president; E.P. Woodard, W.T. Epley and H. Hamilton, vice presidents and Mrs. Morgan Hall, secretary. There were 168 charter members. The original rules said "No speeches by politicians." That was a particularly important decision since it kept people from being bored to death at the reunion for the next 47 years. They also prohibited the sale of goods on the grounds. This has been changed a little since the Old Settlers gathering is held all over town now and included in the events is a sidewalk sale. But it doesn't appear to bother anyone. There's a lot of people in town that day for the parade and the other activities which now accompany the event and they enjoy doing a little bit of shopping. The original group decided that only those who had lived in Martin County for 20 years or longer were allowed to attend it. Nowadays, those are the ones registered as old settlers but everybody can attend the events. The date was set for the second Tuesday in July. For many years, the gathering was on the courthouse lawn and everybody brought a family picnic. Later it was decided that residents would donate meat and the men would prepare a barbecue. Music was always played. Speeches were on history and progress of the county, not politics. As more and more out-of-town people began to attend, the day was changed to the second Saturday in July. During all of these years, a reunion has been held every year except once when there was a severe drought and nobody had the heart to have a picnic. Then the first year after World War II broke out, the picnic was cancelled. That was in the days of severe gas rationing. But this past Saturday, the heritage of Stanton and Martin County again were highlighted. It was Old Settlers Day and there was a lot of activity. I know it was fun because I've had some fun over there at Old Settlers events — when I was out ridin' fence.

Special rates mulled

Letter-writing citizens to get break?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans a respite from postal rate increases faces the first of two hurdles today. The Postal Service Board of Governors was scheduled to vote on a proposed new "citizen rate" on stamps. As part of a proposed dual-rate plan, the special consumer rate would keep the 13-cent stamp for personal letters while raising the cost of a first-class business stamp three cents. If the board approves the plan, the new rates will then go to the Postal Rate Commission. If the commission takes no action in 10 months, however, the rates would take effect automatically.

Traffic takes biggest toll

By the Associated Press
Accidents on streets and highways caused the greatest number of violent deaths in Texas as usual during the weekend. The Associated Press tabulated reports of 16 fatalities between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday, including 11 in traffic, three homicides and two drownings. Four of the traffic deaths occurred in a single accident near Houston.

A railroad overpass. An argument was blamed for the shooting death Saturday of a Dallas man. Officers said Hobart Allen Jr., 38, was shot as he stood in the front yard of another man's home. Donald Ray Davis, 18, of Dallas, was found shot to death on a Dallas residential street. Officers said the shooting occurred while Davis and another man were scuffling.

Many ways to help

By Bill Albright
Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce
Industrial Growth and Development

Folks ask "How can I help the effort to get new industries into the Big Spring Area?" Glad you asked, because it is a collective effort and many of you can help Industrial Development in various ways.

First of all, everyone of us can do a better job of promoting and advertising Big Spring. We can talk "up" our community. We can emphasize our stronger and more desirable qualities and we can minimize any of our weaker points, and at the same time — work to strengthen them.

If you travel this summer, or anytime, pick up some information on Big Spring at the Chamber Office — bumper stickers, brochures, maps and pamphlets; as you travel, distribute the material and talk to people about our community. Also be sure to pick up a fact sheet so you'll have the latest information on population, weather, taxes, facilities, and other items of interest.

If you correspond by mail, slip in a "plug" for Big Spring or if you're on the phone, tell folks about our Industrial opportunities. When you do turn up a prospect, someone who's interested in expanding or establishing a firm or business, let us know here at the office. We promise to follow up on all leads and we'll keep you posted on progress as appropriate. Industrial development is really a big job and it requires and deserves a big effort, by big people from Big Spring!

Can you hold your breath for one minute? During that one minute — six burglaries will be committed. That's right, one every ten seconds and as time marches on — the chances that your home or business will be burglarized — increase. Security people say that it is highly improbable that we can completely burglar proof our homes, but there's lots of things we can do to increase our level of "burglar — resistance". So aside from the physical security aspects lets take a look at some of the preventive measures that may help you keep your belongings where they belong.

First of all, a burglar — experienced or amateur, will shy away from a home that appears to be occupied. Drains shades all day — no lights at night — newspapers accumulating on the lawn, grass untrimmed — all say one thing to a burglar — "no one home — come on in." Another dead give-away is your loudly ringing telephone which tells Mr. Burglar, nobody is home.

Here are some tips that just might prove helpful in deterring a burglary of your home. Use a timer to turn on lights when you'll be away — and don't forget the radio or TV to increase the illusion of occupancy. Stop all deliveries or have someone pick up your papers, mail and other items — daily. Turn your phone down so it can't be heard from outside. And speaking of phones, don't give your number or name to a "wrong number" caller. Be sure to call the police department and report strangers loitering in the area. Mark your valuables and prominently display an "Operation Identification" decal in your window. Burglars don't want

Over death site

Kent State confrontation nearing

KENT, Ohio (AP) — The two sides in the two-month battle over a piece of ground on the Kent State University campus are about to come eyeball to eyeball. Both say they are sworn to non-violence. University officials were expected to seek a court order today calling for students and other protesters to vacate Blanket Hill, the knoll where four students were shot and killed by National Guard bullets during a Vietnam-era protest. The students say they will have to be carried off, that there will be no surrender of the site they consider sacred. The university says it has $6 million tied up in a planned gymnasium annex at the foot of the hill. Outgoing University President Glenn Olds says he allowed the hill to be occupied in deference to the students' rights to peaceful protest. Students have lived in tents on the hill since May 12. But now that construction workers are ready to begin excavation for the 120,000-square-foot building, he says the demonstrators have become trespassers. Students in the May Fourth Coalition — named for the date in 1970 when the four students were killed and nine others were wounded — say they have a moral right to occupy the ground. Roseann Canfora, 27, a demonstration leader, rejected as spurious the university's claim that the location of the annex was determined solely because it would be close to the existing gymnasium. "This is a coverup," she said. "They want us to forget that four students were murdered on May 4, 1970. This hill is the most significant symbol of what happened to them."

Textbook teaches Cajun, not French

ABBEVILLE, La. (AP) — What with all those Cajuns chattering among themselves in French, the bayou country of Louisiana used to sound like the outskirts of Paris — old Paris, that is.

You hear mainly English now, though with an odd accent. But for nearly 200 years, before big oil brought in the Yankees, the people of coastal Louisiana formed a remarkably self-sufficient pocket of French-speaking Americans.

Over the centuries, it became French with a difference.

Indian words from the Choctaw, the Opelousas, the Attakapas crept into the language. It also became elderly. Linguists say Cajun now compares to French as old English compares to new American.

The Acadians who found refuge here after being driven out of Nova Scotia 200 years ago were not a bookish people. No one bothered to keep track of the language. But now James D. Faulk, 52, has written the first textbook for teaching not French, but Cajun French.

Since Cajun has always been surrounded by English, he did it by writing Cajun French in phonetic English — 410 pages, 3,000 entries.

"It is the first attempt to put Cajun French into written sounds," said Faulk, a retired high school language teacher. "You read the words in English but it comes out in Cajun French."

"For instance, in my book you read, 'Kee say saw,' and you are saying, 'Who is that,' in Cajun. In French, it is, 'Qui est-ce?' A Cajun won't understand that."

"Bayou is an Indian word," he added. "The nearest French word is 'riviere,' or river. In Cajun, the word for dollars comes from the Italian 'piastre.' Dollar has become in Cajun, 'pee-ahs.'"

Cajun lost much of its vigor 20 years ago. For one thing, public schools, struggling to impress English on the populace in the 1930s, had a policy of punishing Cajun children who spoke French at school. For the old, Cajun remains the true tongue. But few young Cajuns speak it fluently, if at all. New generation Cajuns who sought to acquire French in school found it not quite the same.

Faulk said he set out to develop a course in Cajun after a student in his high school class at Crowley complained that despite his studies in French, "I still can't speak to my grand-ma." Faulk said he hopes his textbook will help preserve our language.

The new system is not without critics.

"He says you read it in English and it comes out in French but I hotly contest that," said Barry Ancelet of Lafayette, director of the Center for Acadian and Creole folklore. "It sounds like he is trying to develop some kind of linguistic schizophrenia."

"It tends to further the myth that Cajuns speak some kind of god-forsaken language and not real French," he added. "All he is doing is further isolating an already isolated people."

specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

Prepared, partially prepared and frozen foods are one aid to lessen preparation time.

"Also, oven meals make wise use of time because the entire meal, except for the salad, can be prepared and placed in the oven to cook — eliminating the time watching the food. This gives the homemaker time to do other tasks while the meal is cooking.

"In planning oven meals consider these factors: all foods should cook at the same temperature for the same period of time. Sometimes main courses may be placed in the oven for a longer period and vegetables added later, such as Swiss steak and broccoli."

Another timesaver is one-dish meals which often can be prepared in the early part of a busy day and cooked or reheated just before mealtime. Less expensive meats can be used, and this is also a good way to handle leftovers. Some one-dish meals such as lasagna can be frozen, making a meal much easier to get on the table, Mrs. Sweeten said.

"Broiler meals — done over hot coals, under a gas flame or an electric unit — simplify dish washing, because the whole meal can cook in one pan. Intense heat shortens cooking time. Foods selected should cook the same length of time, or foods requiring less cooking time can be added later."

"Another type of quick meal is top of the range meals.

Baker, Snodgrass return from pageant with honors

Miss Debbie Baker and Miss Sheri Snodgrass have returned to Big Spring following the competition in Odessa for the Miss West Texas Pageant, June 30-July 2.

Miss Baker, the daughter of Mrs. Janie Baker and the late Duke Baker, was named one of ten finalists in the pageant.

She entered the pageant as Miss Howard College. She competed in the talent division Thursday evening, playing selections by Bach and Rimsky-Korsakov on the piano.

On Friday, she competed in the swimsuit and evening gown divisions.

Miss Baker said that finalists were announced on Saturday morning. The ten selected then competed in talent, swimsuit and evening gown competition. Winners were later named.

Miss Snodgrass, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Snodgrass, was entered in the Miss West Texas pageant under the sponsorship of Young 'N Alive, a local hair styling salon. She won the evening gown competition.

Miss Snodgrass recently won the "Miss Southern States" title at national competition in Fort Worth June 20-25.

During the Southern States competition, Miss Snodgrass performed on the piano for her talent presentation. Miss Snodgrass is a student of Ms. Julie Rainwater Shirey.

Through pageant competition, Miss Snodgrass has won scholarships to Howard College, Midland College, Snyder College and Wayland Baptist College. She has also received other scholarship funds to the college of her choice.

Encourages women to leave jobs

'Paid motherhood' acts as boost for birth decline

By ALEXANDER G. HIGGINS
Associated Press Writer

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — In an economy where both husbands and wives work, Czechoslovak women are encouraged to leave their jobs to become government-paid mothers. The program has helped reverse a decline in Czechoslovakia's birth rate which had officials worried.

Under the government program, in force since 1973, a couple receives a bonus the equivalent of $200 at the birth of each child, $50 a month for the woman on maternity leave and monthly allowances ranging from $9 for one child to $128 for four, among other payments.

There also are favorable loans and mortgages, preferential housing, retirement benefits, low-cost day care and cheaper baby food and clothes.

"In 1976 we had 380,000 women on maternity leave," said an official in the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare.

Developing nations still have to cope with a population boom, but the birth rate in the United States and other industrial countries is on the decline.

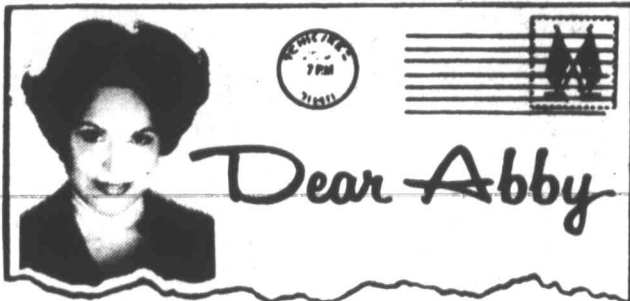

For Europe, the trend has gone so far that populations are in danger of shrinking.

Experts say this would decrease demand for teachers and create unemployment in other areas in the near future. Later this smaller younger generation would have the burden of supporting a larger older generation in retirement, they add.

In 1968 Czechoslovakia's birth rate had dropped to a low of 14.9 babies per 1,000 people, slipping ever closer to the death rate, and experts predicted the population would be dwindling by 1980.

The Communist Government here started pushing for ways to "improve the fertility of our women," said Dr. Vladimir Salda of the Ministry of Labor and Social Welfare. "People must have the will to populate."

Part of the Czechoslovakia's problem was the high proportion — nearly 75 per cent — of women working. Women make up 47 per cent of the work force, compared with about 35 per cent in the United States and Western Europe.

Mom Won't Use Boy Babysitter

DEAR ABBY: I was disturbed by your approval of boy babysitters. They may be all right for little boys, but not for little girls. Maybe I'm overly cautious, but as the mother of three daughters I would never leave my children with a teenage boy babysitter. The reason, I think, is obvious. And no, I don't have an evil mind.

CONSCIENTIOUS MOM

DEAR MOM: Please read on for another view:

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for saying it wasn't "sissy" for a boy to babysit. I'm a young woman who did a lot of babysitting during my high school years. When I was asked to babysit, and had a date, I'd recommend my brother who was two years younger than me. He soon ended up getting more jobs than I. The word got around that he was very entertaining, and the kids always behaved perfectly with him.

Now my brother is married and has a 2-year-old daughter. He's an exceptional father, and I feel it was because of all the time he spent around children.

I have no children yet, but when I do, I hope I can raise them as well as my brother is raising his.

BONNIE

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had a letter from a young man whose fiancée's father told him he hoped he would get some "experience" before marrying his daughter. You answered in your usual witty way: "Do fish have to be taught to swim?"

Unfortunately, Abby, fish don't swim for pleasure, but husband and wife do.

The bride's father was concerned about his daughter, and felt that "experience" was the answer.

Later you wrote, "There are no 'frigid-dears'—only clumsy men." I'm sure the father felt the same way, and was hoping for something better for his daughter.

What a shame you didn't tell the young man there are some excellent books that could tell him all he needs to know.

I married a man who like myself had had no previous sexual experience, but, thank God, he could read.

MISSING NOTHING

DEAR MISSING: I hope you didn't miss the column in which I recommended premarital counseling as well as getting some good books on the subject.

DEAR ABBY: This may come under the heading of etiquette, but what does a woman say when a man says, "Thank you," after having intimate relations? Last week this happened to me and I was dumbfounded. Should I have said, "You're welcome"? Or should I have thanked HIM in return? After all, I got as much out of it as he did. What should I say if this comes up again?

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: If it comes up again, say, "Don't mention it."

CONFIDENTIAL TO READERS: For a fascinating novel get Abigail McCarthy's "Circles: A Washington Story." You won't be able to put it down. It's published by Doubleday, and available in bookstores.

MISSING SOMETHING — California Angels' Gil Flores (28) steals second base as Texas Rangers' short stop, Bert Campaneris, reaches to tag Flores with an empty glove. Flores was safe when a throw from Rangers' catcher, John Ellis, got away from Campaneris before he could make the tag in the fifth inning. The Rangers beat the Angels at Arlington Stadium, Sunday night, 4-2.

And may pay for it

Brett gets rash

George Brett is going to be fined for running a stop sign, but the Oakland A's wound up paying for the Kansas City third baseman's baserunning antics.

Coach Chuck Hiller was the traffic cop who tried to flag Brett down at third base in the bottom of the ninth inning Sunday with the Royals trailing the A's by two runs. And Manager Whitey Herzog was the judge who decided to lessen what normally would have been a sizable penalty into a mere slap on the wallet.

"He might pick up a little fine," Herzog said, "but it won't be as much as if he'd been out."

Herzog's leniency came about because Brett's mad dash triggered a three-run rally that enabled the third-place Royals to nip the A's 4-3 and climb within four games of the top in the American League West.

Elsewhere, the Boston Red Sox vaulted back into first place in the AL East by sweeping a doubleheader from the Milwaukee Brewers 8-5 in 11 innings and 7-3, the Baltimore Orioles blanked the New York Yankees 6-0, the Detroit Tigers edged the Chicago White Sox 6-5 in 10 innings, the Minnesota Twins shelled the Seattle Mariners 15-0, the Texas Rangers beat the California Angels 4-2 and the Toronto Blue Jays downed the Cleveland Indians 5-3.

Brett drew a leadoff walk to start Kansas City's ninth-inning rally and ignored Hiller's frantic "stop" signal to score the first run—barely—when Hal McRae doubled.

"I saw the sign, but I didn't think the left fielder was going to come up with the ball that quick," Brett explained. "I figured I could make it easy. That's the first time I ever ran through a sign. I should have been chewed out if I didn't make it."

Sutter is like cash in bank

By the Associated Press

The Chicago Cubs are leading the National League East Division race because they have a formula.

"Stay close and bring in Sutter," said Cubs Manager Herman Franks, referring to relief ace Bruce Sutter. "Sure, that's the formula...it has been all season."

Sutter entered Sunday's second game of the Chicago-St. Louis doubleheader and gained his fifth victory against one loss. He hit 5-2 aving.

The right-hander struck out three batters in the two innings he worked as the Cubs battled from behind to win 4-3 after losing the opener 8-3.

Despite the split, the Cubs lengthened their lead to five games over the Philadelphia Phillies, who dropped both ends of a doubleheader to the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 and 12-10.

In other NL games Sunday, San Francisco swept a pair from Atlanta 5-2 and 12-5, New York edged Montreal 2-1, Houston nipped Cincinnati 6-5 and San Diego took two games from Los Angeles 7-5 and 5-4.

Larry Biittner opened the eighth inning of the nightcap with a double and scored on Steve Ontiveros' tie-breaking single to give the Cubs the victory. In the opener, Ted Simmons' two-run homer and four singles by Keith Hernandez paced St. Louis' 15-hit attack.

St. Louis' Lou Brock stole his 14th base of the season in the nightcap. It was the 879th of his career, leaving him 14 short of breaking Ty Cobb's record of 892.

Astros 6, Reds 5

Pinch-hitter Joe Ferguson snapped a tie with an eighth-inning run-scoring single to cap Houston's comeback victory over Cincinnati. Jose Cruz' solo homer leading off the eighth had tied the score for Houston, which trailed by four runs. Enos Cabell then singled, was sacrificed to second, took third on a groundout and scored on Ferguson's hit.

Joe Morgan slammed a three-run homer for Cincinnati in the first and added a RBI grounder in the seventh.

Padres 7-5, Dodgers 5-4

A pair of two-run homers by Dave Winfield and George Hendrick's run-scoring single in the nightcap gave San Diego its second straight ninth-inning winning rally. Mike Ivie singled home Hendrick in the ninth inning of the opener to snap a tie and lead the Padres to victory.

But Morley comes through A delayed timetable

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP) — Mike Morley was the most promising young golfer in Minot, N.D. 10 years ago. He won the North Dakota Amateur and was a college All-American.

Then he joined the pro tour in 1970 and got his coup. He made a career of finishing second—including the Greater Milwaukee Open last week.

Now he's looking forward to the Masters, Tournament of Champions and maybe the World Series of Golf, all because of a come-from-behind victory Sunday in the $125,000 Quad Cities Open golf tournament.

"This is definitely the highlight of my golfing career," said Morley. "I kind of got to thinking I'd never win."

Morley started out un-spectacularly over the 6,620-yard, par-71 Oakwood Country Club course. He was at 137 after 36 holes, only four strokes better than the one-under-par cutoff. But he improved as the week wore on.

"I'm a fairly streaky player," he said. "When I get it going, I keep it going."

Par on the short Oakwood course took a beating all week. Morley's opening 68, three under par, was good for an eight-way tie for 25th place. His second-round 69 moved him up slightly to a nine-way tie for 21st. But a 64 Saturday made him a contender, tied for fourth with two other players.

A 66 Sunday, keyed by four straight birdies on the back nine, gave him his first championship and $25,000.

Morley's introduction to golf was rather inauspicious. Some friends sawed off some golf clubs for him when he was eight years old so he could tag around the course with them. Then, when he was 11 or 12, he started caddying in Minot and after that played 36 to 45 holes of golf a day "four months out of the year."

But the short golfing season was a problem.

"It usually comes on Tuesday," he cracked.

Morley, 31, finished high school in La Jolla, Calif., and was a student at Arizona State when he won his two North Dakota amateurs and gained All-American status.

His first year on the tour he earned $1,149. Last year he was 29th on the money list at $88,348.

"About a year ago I met a guy in Phoenix—Joe Nichols—who I consider a genius with a golf swing," Morley said. "Since then, I've played a different caliber of golf than I'd been used to."

As proof, he didn't have a bogey the last two days and missed just one green Sunday. "All day long I was a stroke or two behind Victor (Regalado)," said Morley. "Then I made some birdies and he didn't."

Regalado shot a 69 Sunday and wound up tied with Bob Murphy, who fired a 66, for second at 289.

Muny course here is scene of tournament

Comanche Trail Golf Course here will be the host course Tuesday for the West Texas touring junior golfers seeking to nail down places in the Aug. 2 Tournament of Champions, which will be held for the first time at the Big Spring Country Club.

Champions will be determined in three age brackets—12-13, 14-15 and 16-17. Those 18-year-olds who still have eligibility left can compete with the 16-17-year-olds.

Entry fee will be $2 per player. Winners will be awarded trophies.

Among local favorites in the 18 holes of competition will be Chris Howell, son of the Comanche Trail golf pro, who will be competing in the 14-15 age group; and Bruce Carroll, in the same group.

Howell has already won at Abilene and Sweetwater. Carroll emerged as the winner at Hogan Park Golf Course in Midland.

Upwards to 50 young linksters competed at the Muny course here last year and the entry list could equal that this time.

The first of the group likely will tee off about 9 a.m.

Rangers win 5th straight

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas Rangers fans would have given a kingdom for a clutch hit in countless crucial situations this season and finally the team's bats are responding.

The Rangers' disappointing first half was built on a failure to connect with runners on base, but five consecutive victories at home have shown a reversal of this trend.

Sunday night's eight-hit performance by the Rangers was modest, but it netted enough runs for a 4-2 victory over the California Angels. The fifth straight triumph is Texas' longest victory streak of the season.

John Ellis and Mike Hargrove supplied clutch hits that scored three of the runs, while Bert Blyleven and two relievers held the Angels at bay.

Ellis' double in the fifth inning knocked in Texas' last two runs and was the eventual winning margin. His opposite-field line drive hit the right field chalk mark.

"I was going to right field because of the situation," the Rangers' substitute catcher said. "(Ken) Brett had been pitching me outside, and the umpire was giving him the outside pitch. He struck me out on a 3-2 pitch outside the last time up, so I decided I would give him anything inside and go to right with the outside pitch. I guess I was lucky it hit fair."

Hargrove, a 300 lifetime hitter who was hitting eighth in the Texas order because of the lefthanded Brett was on the mound, produced a run-scoring two-out single in the fourth inning.

"I don't particularly like hitting eighth, but I can certainly understand why I was hitting there," said Hargrove. "It's really almost a blessing because by the time you get to bat the sun has finally moved behind the pitcher's mound."

Odessa defeats Cards, 7-0 Old-timers are honored

Odessa's Dorados blanked the Big Spring Cardinals, 7-0, behind the pitching of J. Navarrete in Steer Park Sunday afternoon.

The contest was preceded by an exhibition featuring one-time players of the Big Spring Tigers, one of the first sandlot baseball teams ever organized in West Texas, and the younger Cardinals.

Following the contest, the teams had a barbecue in Birdwell Park.

One of those who showed up for the old-timers' contest was Hub Rutherford, who managed the Tigers in the 30s.

The old Tigers tried hard for three innings to stay up with the Cardinals. The Cardinals finished with more runs but discreetly declined the chance to give the score.

The Cardinals showed no punch at all in the feature attraction, collecting only four hits. Those came off the bats of Frankie Rubio, Felix Martienz, Albert Alvarez and Ernie Garcia. Navarrete kept them well scattered.

The Red Birds also had problems afield. Frankie Rubio was on the pitching rubber for the Big Spring team and had his problems with his leaky defense.

The Cardinals, now 2-1 in second half standings, venture to Hobbs, N.M., for a game next Sunday.

Elite field in tourney Warriors win over foe, 11-6

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — U.S. Open winner Betty Morris heads a field of 116 women bowlers entered in the $25,000 Metropex Open, which began here today with qualifying.

Mrs. Morris, who won her Open title at Milwaukee earlier this year, will be joined by this year's Top Ten money winners and 16 of the 1976's Top 20.

Eighteen games of qualifying are on tap today and Tuesday, with the field being cut to the top 18 for 18 games of match play beginning Tuesday night and continuing through Wednesday.

Also in the field will be: Virginia Park Norton, last year's Metropex Open champion; Pam Rutherford, who won the Rockford, Ill., Classic this year, and 20-year-old Donna Adamik, who captured the 1977 Chicago Classic.

Knights shade Red Sox, 17-5

The Knights made the Red Sox eat humble pie in Teen-Age League play Saturday night, winning 17-5.

Mark Knight knotted the pitching win while Jimmy Carrillo was saddled with the defeat. The Knights collected 13 hits, the Sox only two.

Russell Stukel, Mark Harris and Mark Knight each collected three hits for the winners while Ben Watson and Mark Warren each drove out two blows.

For the Red Sox, Eddie DeLeone accounted for two singles.

Knights 004 223 5-17 13 2
Red Sox 410 200 0-5 7 4
Winner — Mark Knight; loser — Jimmy Carrillo.

Diablos are on rampage

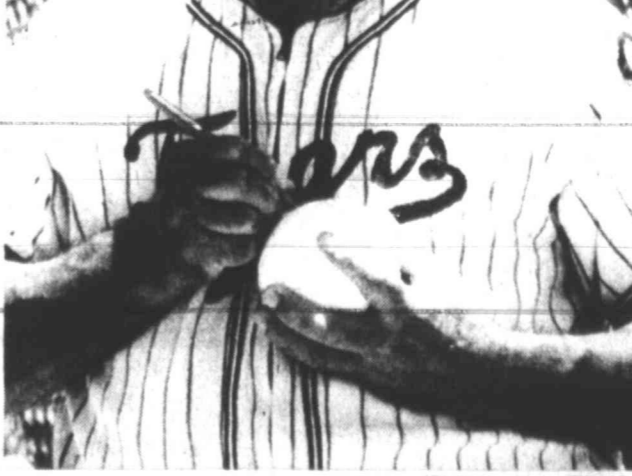

By the Associated Press

El Paso's Steve Stroughter, Jay Peters and Pat Kelly rifled home runs Sunday night as the streaking Diablos routed Amarillo 12-4 for their seventh Texas League victory in their last eight games.

In other Texas League action, Tulsa edged Arkansas 10-9 to slice the Travelers' second half lead in the East Division to 1 1/2 games, and San Antonio stopped Midland 6-3. Jackson at Shreveport was postponed by rain.

The victory by the Diablos preserved their 2 1/2 game lead over San Antonio in the West Division. El Paso starter Bob Ferris, 7-3, got the decision and Greg Wilkes, 4-3, was the loser.

Amarillo manager Dave Campbell, 33, who had not played in three years, made an eighth-inning relief pitching appearance for the embattled Gold Sox, giving up only Kelly's homer. He had also played two innings at third base in Saturday night's El Paso-Amarillo game.

ONE-TIME INFIELDER — Elias Gamba Sr., shown here attaching his signature to a ball signed by former players who gathered at Steer Park Sunday for "old timers' day," was started at third base for the Big Spring Tigers. At the time he was regarded as one of the best hitters in sandlot baseball in West Texas.

Dorsett opens grid workouts

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Physical examinations and agility drills were on the agenda here today for 73 players, including Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett, as the Dallas Cowboys opened their pre-season training camp.

Dorsett, the University of Pittsburgh running back who was the second player chosen in this year's draft, was among 64 draft choices and rookie free agents who checked into camp Sunday.

The Cowboys open their exhibition schedule in Dallas on Aug. 6 against the San Diego Chargers.

Wins at Rochester Pat keeps her cool

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Pat Bradley said she didn't relax until she was safely on the 18th green and knew she had a two-stroke edge on JoAnne Carner.

Then the 26-year-old from Westford, Mass., two-putted for par and walked off with an $11,000 check for her victory Sunday in the $75,000 Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament here.

She also kept her cool at the 17th where she birdied the par-five, 450-yarder while Mrs. Carner, playing ahead of her, was bogeying the 18th.

After her birdie, Miss Bradley said, "People kept coming up to me congratulating me. But I had one hole to play and wondered how JoAnne was doing," she said. "It wasn't until I was on the 18th tee that I found out I had a two-shot lead."

Miss Bradley turned in a three-under-par 70 for a 54-hole total of 213, six below par. Mrs. Carner, with a finishing 71, had a 215 to share second place with Carol Mann, 73, and Kathy Whitworth, 70.

Judy Rankin, the LPGA's top money-winner, was next with 72-216, followed by Jane Bialock, 74, Mary Bea Porter, 73, and Donna Caponi Young, 76, each with a 218 total. Sally Little's 74 gave her an even par 219.

On Friday, Miss Bradley discarded her Arnold Palmer model putter for a heavier Bull's Eye type and shot a 68 to trail the co-leaders after the second round, Miss Mann, JoAnn Washam and Mrs. Young.

Reds have much respect for Cincy

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston first baseman Bob Watson believes the Cincinnati Reds still have a shot at overtaking the National League West Division-leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

"They have a good chance, but they're going to have to score 10 runs a game to do it," said Watson after the Astros rallied from a four-run deficit to defeat the Reds, 6-5, Sunday.

"They're capable of scoring 10 runs every time they take the field, but their relief pitchers are carrying too big a load," he added.

Pinch-hitter Joe Ferguson singled home Enos Cabell with the winning run in Houston's two-run eighth inning as the Astros snapped a three-game losing streak.

Even though he lost Big day for Stockton

Harold Solomon just had winning a tennis match on his mind Sunday. Dick Stockton had slightly more important things on his mind—like becoming a father.

That combination helped Solomon gain a 6-4, 6-4 victory over Stockton in the World Championship Tennis Tournament of Champions in Austin, Tex. The match was delayed two hours while Stockton waited with his wife in the maternity ward of an Austin hospital.

When a doctor told Stockton the baby would not be born until evening, he left for the match with Solomon. (Sue Stockton gave birth to a girl in the evening, well after her husband was beaten by Solomon.)

baseline players in the world, broke Stockton's serve three times. Stockton also was bothered by several close line calls, one of which caused him to smash a ball into some flowers beyond the baseline.

In Newport, R.I., 25-year-old Tim Gullikson of Onalaska, Wis., won his first Grand Prix tournament with a 6-4, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 victory over Hank Pfister in the $50,000 Hall of Fame Championships.

In Europe, Jeff Borowiak of Berkeley, Calif., the No. 4 seed, defeated unranked Francois Caujolle of France 2-6, 6-1, 6-3 for the $75,000 Swiss Open Championships.

Open at Baastad. Gullikson, who lost in the doubles final with twin brother Tom, was ecstatic about his singles victory in the only grass court tourney still held in this country.

"I really played well this week," said Gullikson. "The key to my success was to get into position to hit shots, not overhitting it any more."

"It feels so great. It is just the greatest thrill to win a tournament. I was worried about getting enough points to get out of qualifying. To go to the level of winning tournaments, it's just ... I can't explain how good it feels."

Lesley Hunt of Australia, the No. 1 seed, won the women's title at Osta with a 7-1, 6- victory over countrywoman Helen Gourlay Cawley.

UCLA NEW HEAD BASKETBALL COACH — Gary Cunningham displays some memorabilia of the times he was assistant coach to the legendary UCLA head coach John Wooden in his home Saturday after learning he was named head coach of the UCLA basketball team. Cunningham replaces Gene Bartow who resigned last month to become athletic director and head basketball coach at the University of Alabama-Birmingham.

Cunningham knows what's expected

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gary Cunningham knows exactly what is expected of him at UCLA, and the new Bruins basketball coach appears unworried.

"UCLA fans and alumni demand excellence and this is the way it should be," said Cunningham, a former Bruin assistant under John Wooden.

Named Saturday to replace Gene Bartow at the Bruins' helm, the 37-year-old Cunningham would appear fortunate in that he's succeeding Bartow rather than Wooden.

Bartow guided UCLA to a 52-9 record and a pair of Pacific-8 championships his two years at the school, but drew a storm of criticism because the Bruins were unable to win the NCAA title. Wooden's teams won national championships 10 of his last 12 years at the helm.

Cunningham, who played forward for UCLA in the early 1960s then eventually served under Wooden for 10 seasons, does not seem frightened by the pressure that is expected to accompany his new job. Bartow, bothered by the increasing criticism, resigned the UCLA post to become athletic director at Alabama-Birmingham, a school that presently has no intercollegiate sports program.

"There are pressures in any job, including the one I had with the alumni," said Cunningham, who has been the executive director of UCLA's Alumni Association for the past two years.

"Sometimes we tend to exaggerate pressure and a lot of times it is self-imposed. I know I'll put pressure on myself to do a good job."

Cunningham said he had not wanted the job when Wooden retired, that he had wanted instead to become involved in administration.

This time he, Louisville's Denny Crum and North Carolina's Dean Smith were considered among the leading candidates for the job, but Crum and Smith removed themselves from consideration.

He did not hesitate to take the job, Cunningham said.

"I think sometimes a person has to get away from what he's doing to know what he really enjoys," Cunningham added. "When this opportunity came I felt it was something I wanted very much. While I was out of basketball, I found out how much I missed it. It's a game I love."

Cunningham, who had a 101-15 record as coach of the Bruin freshmen, said he learned a great deal while working with Wooden.

"I think I'm well prepared for the position," he said. "I studied under a great teacher for many years."

He will have a number of players returning from the Bruin team that lost to Idaho State in this year's NCAA regionals, including David Greenwood and Gig Sims on the front line and Roy Hamilton, Brad Holland and Raymond Townsend in the backcourt.

And, although he has a long way to go to match Wooden's accomplishments at UCLA, he starts off with a perfect record.

IT'S OAKLAND PLAYER VS PITTSBURGH COACH — IN COURT — Oakland Raiders' George Atkinson, right, puts Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Chuck Noll on defense Monday in a trial in U.S. District Court in San Francisco. The trial stems from the 1976 NFL season opener in which Pittsburgh player Lynne Swann was injured by Atkinson. Noll subsequently made a statement about the injury, which evoked Atkinson's

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 12, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: By showing your mental charm and agility you are able to persuade others to go along with a comprehensive course of action that can bring you considerable success. Your thinking is very logical now and you can see how to be more articulate in stating your desires and wishes.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact as many good friends as you can and put more enthusiasm into your activities. Plan local trips to see them.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to add to present income and make the most of present assets. If you have doubts about how to proceed, consult an expert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Follow through on whatever means the most to you at this time. Be careful of figures, reports, statements. Get together with friends.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Meet with a trusted adviser and listen to suggestions proffered. Follow them for good results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get routine work done early so you free time for more important matters later in the day. Make plans for recreation in the company of good friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Showing you can handle civic duties well is important now. Shop for appliances that will make your work more efficient.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show more interest in new contacts and make friends of them, whether in business or personal life. Put intuition to work, make rapid decisions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle responsibilities carefully and they are soon out of the way. Some particular thought for loved one brings fine results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good time to contact partners and talk over joint affairs and come to right agreement. Do something thoughtful for a loved one.

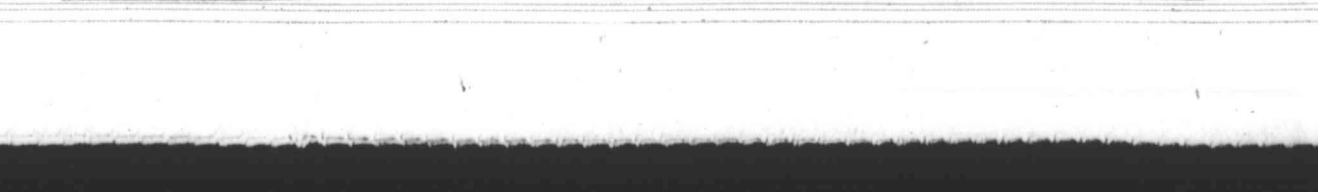

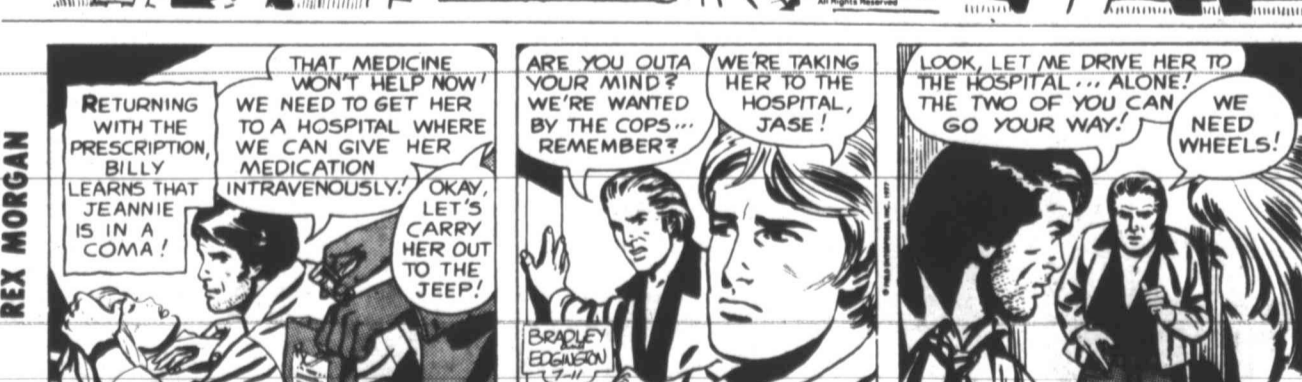

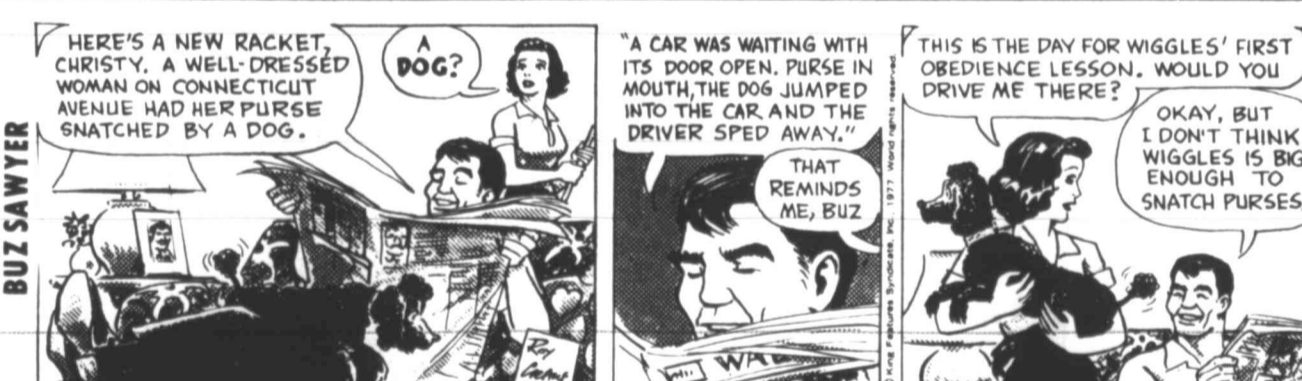

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget fun and get right down to the important work that faces you and be far ahead of the game. Save time for a worthwhile friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Fine time to contact people you like either in business or personal life and good things come of this. Safeguard reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Home affairs need a good deal of attention right now, so be sure to give it and get good results. Investigating a new project can be profitable.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be most articulate and would do well in the fields of business, law, public speaking, acting, etc. Give as fine an education as you can to help equip your child for life. Don't neglect religious studies.
