Arson ruled in two fires

Through the frame of a burned-out window sits the remains of a $300,000 house in the 2800 block of Birdwell Lane that was almost completely destroyed by fire Monday evening. The house was hit by fire twice during the weekend and will be inspected by the state fire marshal Wednesday.

Arson has been ruled the cause of two fires that broke out a home on Birdwell Lane.

The first fire was set Sunday at 2800 South Birdwell,causing $150,000 worth of damage. The second fire was set the next evening, completely destroying the residence.

The state fire marshal's office from Austin and a dog team from Tyler were at the site all day Wednesday.

"The dogs were able to pinpoint certain places where the fire had started before things were ever touched by anyone. Those with the state fire marshal's office then looked at the particular spots and determined that some sort of accelerator was used to start both fires," said County Fire Marshal C. Roy Wright.

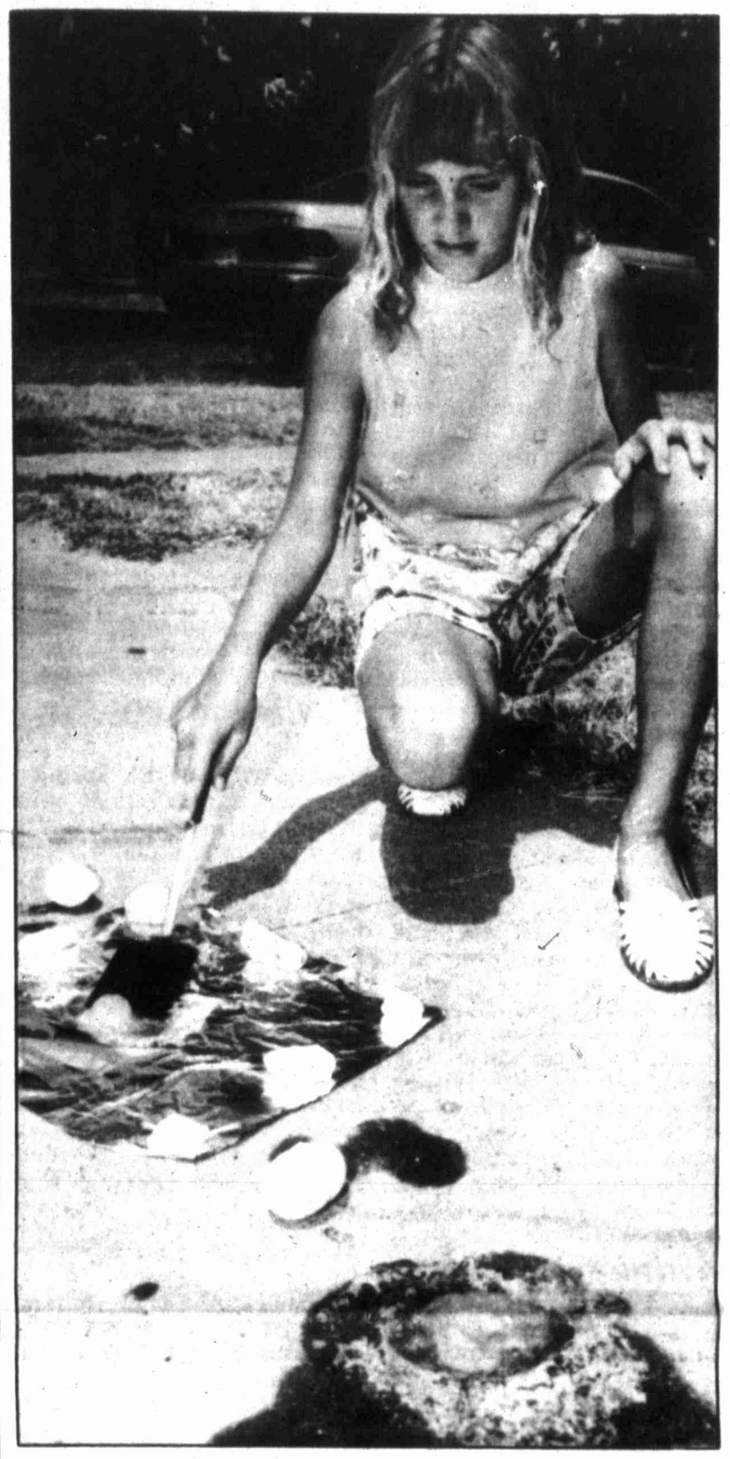

Wright said samples were taken from both fires and the investigation is continuing. "The dog team is headed back home this morning but the others will be here again today to continue looking into the incident.

"This is an all out city, county and state investigation. A deputy with the sheriff's department has been assigned to the case. Arson is a felony, and the marshal's office will determine what degree of felony it will be when they are able to determine how much damage was done to the property," he continued.

Wright wanted to thank all of those involved, including the volun er firefighters who stood wat 24 hours a day to keep the scene secured.

City workers, with the help of Assistant City Manager Tom Decell, removed the debris from the residence Wednesday.

IT'S REALLY HOT ENOUGH

What's in proposed curfew

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

A public hearing Tuesday on a proposed teen curfew drew pro and con comments from the general public.

The council tabled the ordinance to rewrite the language and take out any potential loopholes.

The proposed teen curfew includes the following points:

•The curfew will affect any teen below the age of 17.

•Curfew will be in effect from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. Sunday through Thursday and midnight (12:01 a.m.) to 6 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

•Children are held responsible for their behavior as well as the parents (for repeat violators of the ordinance). Parents may receive a citation for their child's repeated violation of the ordinance.

•A minor will be considered to have violated the ordinance if he or she remains at any public place or on the premises of any establishment during the curfew hours.

•The parents or guardian of a minor are in violation of the ordinance if they knowingly submit or by insufficient control allows a minor to remain in any public place or on the premises of any establishment within the city during curfew hours.

Exceptions to the curfew ordinance (defenses against prosecution under Subsection B of the ordinance):

•A minor is accompanied by a parent or guardian.

•A minor is on an errand at the direction of a parent or guardian (without any detour or stop).

•A minor is in a motor vehicle involved in interstate travel.

•Involvement in any employment activity (going to or returning home) without any detour or stop.

•Involvement in an emergency.

•On the sidewalk abating the minor residence or abating the residence of a next door neighbor if there's no complaint.

•Attending an official school, religious or other recreational activity supervised by adults or sponsored by the city, civic clubs, school or other entity that takes responsibility for the minor (this also includes going to and returning home from said functions without any detour or stop).

•Teens that are married or have been married.

Lambert said, "A minor involved in any legitimate activity (after curfew hours) is exempt from the ordinance."

Sgt. Scott Griffin of the Big Spring Police Department told council and audience members that juveniles are more prone to be the victims of acts of violence.

"Not only will we keep the bad kids off the streets (with the curfew)," Griffin said, "but we're going to keep potential targets and victims of their violence and of their sexual assaults off the streets so that the situation does not present itself."

Missing girl returned to her home

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

A Big Spring teenager is back home with her parents after being missing for nearly a week.

Amanda Gail Eggleston, 15, was found unharmed at the home of a relative of her boyfriend, Danny Fierro.

Fierro, 19, of 610 East 15th, was arrested at 10:15 p.m. Friday for revocation of probation and harboring a runaway, said Sgt. Scott Griffin of the Big Spring Police Department.

"She was released to her mother and will probably be recommended for counseling by the juvenile probation office," said Griffin.

"She's back home with me and she told the police that she was there on her own. She wasn't hurt or anything," said Yvonne Diaz, Amanda's mother.

The girl was reported missing by her mother last Sunday and had been listed as a runaway by the police department.

Good side of jail

Lockup for Literacy raises nearly $9,000

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Going to jail isn't usually considered a good thing, but there are always exceptions to the rule.

Lockup for Literacy, held June 22-24, let the citizens of Big Spring have their bosses, friends, co-workers or spouses arrested by the paddy wagon posse.

More than $9,000 was raised for the Newspaper in Education program, which focuses on the utilization of the newspaper as a vehicle for instruction from kindergarten to grade 12.

"So far, we have raised $9,126.60 with more coming in from our "jailbirds" that we let out on their own recognizance. There were 60 people arrested in the Lockup for Literacy fundraiser," said Donna Parker, NIE coordinator for the Herald.

Those arrested were brought in front of a judge to have their bail set, then had to make phone calls to people to raise the money to make bail so they could get out of jail.

"The kids will be glad to know we kept some of their principals and teachers busy for a few hours in our jail. Steve Waggoner from Kentwood, Ronnie Moss from Moss, Suzanne Madero from Anderson Kindergarten Center, Rey Villareal from Marcy, Bill Tarleton from Washington, Sheila Abusaab from Big Spring High, Pat DeAnda from College Heights, Misty Gartman from Forsan Junior High, Carie Dunnam, Ester Hernandez and Joann Roch are from Elbow Elementary," continued Parker.

The highest bail set by the judge was $552, which Sheila Abusaab had to pay. The judge decided on the bail by using his secret formula of multiplying the number of students Abusaab had taught over the past 20 years at the price of 20 cents per student.

The next highest bail was posted by Troy Fraser, who raised $500.

"Some of the funny charges that one jailbird faced was for Pete Sanderson of Bob Brock Ford. He was charged with overpricing Chevrolets, talking too much and not listening and

Lambert: City's finances in 'pretty good' shape

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

City Manager Lanny Lambert reported to council members that Big Spring in is "pretty good" financial shape and might in fact be in the best shape it has ever been in.

Mayor Tim Blackshear and council members delayed looking at the proposed 1994-95 city budget until it can be studied in more detail. Lambert made his report at Tuesday's Big Spring City Council meeting.

Lambert told the council the city may be receiving a 4.8 percent rate increase from the Colorado River Municipal Water District, but as far as the city is concerned there will be no new taxes, no pay raises, and no new employees in the proposed budget.

The only major expenditures will be toward waterline replacement in the city and new police cars.

Lambert pointed out three problem areas the city will needs to take address before long:

•Big Spring's water treatment plant is 55 years old and will probably be in need of some repairs and replacement of filters.

•City Hall hasn't had any major renovations since 1932 and needs to be made handicap accessible.

•The city is losing productivity because of a yearly employee turnover rate of about 20 percent - about 80 out of 410 employees).

In other business, the council approved an amendment to the city's personnel policy regarding workmen's compensation.

PERSPECTIVE

Quote of the Day

"Schooling, instead of encouraging the asking of questions, too often discourages it."

Madeleine L'Engle
author, 1980

Same enthusiasm could clean up town

If everyone in Big Spring had the same enthusiasm and vision as Polly St. Clair, what a different town this could be.

No more comments from outsiders asking, "Why would you want to buy a home in Big Spring?" No more letters from visitors ashamed at the graffiti and shoddy buildings that greet those arriving east on I-20 near the airport.

No wistful wishes from those who have lived in the city for years such as Dorothy Garrett, who see the potential this town has with just a little more pride and an effort to keep the trash level down.

In a recent letter to the editor, St. Clair wrote of her willingness to help clean up the town even before she formally became a resident. It was months, she said, before anyone got back to her, but her enthusiasm hasn't diminished.

St. Clair loves Big Spring. So do many other residents--or so they say. But how many are willing to put that love into action and do what needs to be done, whether it is to clean graffiti and trash from local grounds, help recruit new businesses or simply tell people Big Spring isn't a bad place to live?

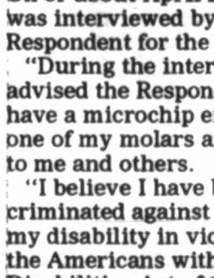

Let's match St. Clair's active attitude. Don't wait for Big Spring to improve--let's get out there and do what we can to improve it.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

A Chicago corporation recently received an ominous letter from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The letter said: "You are hereby notified that a charge of employment discrimination has been filed against your organization under The Americans With Disabilities Act."

It told the corporation to submit "a statement of your position with respect to the allegation contained in this charge, with copies of any supporting documentation. This material will be made a part of the file and will be considered at the time that we investigate this charge. Your prompt response to this request will make it easier to conduct and conclude our investigation of this charge."

Then came the specific allegation, which was made by a woman:

"On or about April 28, 1994, I applied for the position of Benefits Representative at the above referenced Respondent. On or about April 28, 1994, I was interviewed by the Respondent for the position.

"During the interview, I advised the Respondent that I have a microchip embedded in one of my molars and it speaks to me and others.

"I believe I have been discriminated against because of my disability in violation of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, in that I am qualified for the position.

"After explaining to the Respondent that I have a microchip embedded in my molar, I was not hired." Now, imagine for a moment that you are a federal bureaucrat at the Chicago office of the EEOC, and someone comes in and says something like this:

"I just applied for a job and I was turned down because of discrimination."

You would probably ask what form the discrimination took.

"I have a microchip embedded in one of my molars."

Ah, a microchip in your molar.

"Yes, the microchip speaks to me and to others."

Ah, the microchip in your molar speaks to you.

"Yes, and that is why they didn't hire me."

I see. They didn't hire you because a microchip in your molar speaks to you. Well, well. An interesting problem.

Assuming you are a reasonable person, how would you respond to such a complaint?

Well, you might ask the woman to go and get a statement from a physician or dentist verifying that she has a microchip in her molar that talks to her.

Or you might suggest that she ask her dentist to remove the microchip from her molar.

You might even ask her how and why the microchip found its way into her molar and what it talks to her about.

Actually, I've had considerable experience in such matters. Anyone who works on a newspaper long enough -- especially the night shift -- will eventually talk to people who receive personal messages through fillings in their teeth, bed springs, light bulbs, their TV sets, or voices that ride the winds.

So do desk sergeants in police stations and those who answer 911 calls. Sometimes the strange messages come from outer space, fiendish neighbors, a nasty relative, Elvis or the president.

But when a caller says she is getting messages through fillings or microchips in her teeth, the cops don't send out a detective to peer into her mouth. Newspapers don't assign a reporter to press an ear against the molar to listen in on the messages.

Yet, here we have a federal agency that takes a talking molar seriously.

Some EEOC investigator actually took down the information and guided the woman through the complaint procedure.

Then the appropriate forms were filled out, a higher-up signed the complaint, and the file and investigation were officially opened.

Now an official at the accused corporation is required to formally respond to the federal complaint, supplying "any supporting documentation" as to why the corporation wouldn't hire a woman who said she had a microchip embedded in her molar that talked to her.

I don't know what the corporation's response will be. How do you answer a charge of this sort?

Maybe you could say: "Our company policy forbids employees receiving personal calls through microchips embedded in their molars on company time."

Or maybe: "At this time, we did not have a need for someone with a talking microchip embedded in her molar. However, should such a position open ..."

The most appropriate response would be to dash off a note saying: "Hey, do you bureaucrats have microchips embedded in your heads? Is this what we're paying taxes for? Bug off."

But that wouldn't be smart. If offended, the EEOC might very well order the company to make amends by hiring a dozen people who receive messages through their teeth. Nothing the EEOC does would surprise me. Or any of the businesses they torment.

We asked a spokesperson for the EEOC whether the laws require the agency to investigate any and all discrimination complaints -- even those from people who claim to have microchips in their molars.

"You have to remember," she said, "what's crazy to you might not be crazy to someone else. ... Besides, you're always calling us heartless bureaucrats. Do you really want us heartless bureaucrats making the decision about what cases to take?"

Simpson hearing bumps soaps

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rumors and innuendo must finally take a back seat to the facts as prosecutors try to bring O.J. Simpson to trial on charges of killing his ex-wife and her friend.

A preliminary hearing was to begin today and is expected to last about a week. Prosecutors will present the evidence that led them to charge Simpson in the knife killings of Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and Ronald Goldman, 25.

The defense gets to contest that evidence, and will probably seize the opportunity to sow a seed of reasonable doubt about Simpson's guilt.

Municipal Court Judge Kathleen Kennedy-Powell will decide whether there is enough evidence to try Simpson, 46, on two counts of first-degree murder. Prosecutors have not said whether they want to seek the death penalty.

There are no known eyewitnesses. Media reports, some unconfirmed, suggest that prosecutors have a circumstantial case that relies on clues such as strands of hair, a ski cap and pair of gloves, bloodstains and phone records showing the time of Ms. Simpson's last telephone call. The murder weapon has not been found.

Prosecutors refused to reveal their witness lineup, but it appeared certain it would include the person who found the bodies, law enforcement officers and coroner's investigators, scientists who analyzed bloodstains and other evidence, a caretaker at his estate and the limousine driver who took Simpson to the airport for an 11:45 p.m. flight on June 12. The bodies were found at 12:05 a.m. on June 13.

Simpson's lawyer, Robert Shapiro, has acknowledged that the football Hall of Famer will probably be ordered to stand trial.

Shapiro will probably use the hearing to plant the idea in the public's mind that police have arrested the wrong man, Levenson said.

First Whitewater report to cover Vince Foster's death

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whitewater special prosecutor Robert Fiske said today his first report to the public will focus on the death of White House aide Vince Foster last summer.

Entering his Washington office this morning, Fiske told reporters he has also concluded his investigation into contacts between Treasury Department regulators and White House officials concerning a politically sensitive savings and loan investigation tied to Whitewater.

But Fiske said the report on that phase of the investigation will not be released for about another 10 days.

Fiske declined to discuss the findings of the Foster report to be released later today.

But sources have told The Associated Press it will reaffirm the police conclusion that Foster, the deputy White House counsel found shot to death in a suburban Washington park in July 1993, committed suicide.

The New York Times, citing unidentified lawyers and administration officials, said today that Fiske would announce that no criminal charges will be brought against White House or Treasury officials for their contacts.

The Times also reported that much of the details about those contacts gathered by Fiske would not be released because they were gathered by an ongoing grand jury.

Fiske also plans to announce that his inquiry into White House officials' removal of documents from Foster's office after his death will be completed next month, the newspaper said.

Clinton opening way for corn-based ethanol

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration is opening the way for corn-based ethanol to play a significant part in providing a cleaner burning gasoline for smog-plagued cities, say administration officials.

The Environmental Protection Agency was to unveil its requirements today for a new generation of gasoline that is hoped to reduce air pollution by as much as 15 percent over current gasoline by adding more oxygen to the fuel.

Beef specials hit market around July 4

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the July Fourth weekend coming up, look for lots of beef specials at the supermarket.

The lower prices will be the result of a huge oversupply of beef, just in time for the second-busiest cookout weekend of the year. Memorial Day is the busiest.

But the low prices still have far to fall before they get close to what cattle producers are getting.

Escaped prisoner is still at large

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A prisoner who scaled an 18-foot jail fence with a rope made out of dental floss was still at large today.

Robbery suspect Robert Shepard braided the floss to the thickness of a telephone cord to escape from the outdoor recreation yard at 1:25 a.m. Wednesday, said jail administrator Larry Parsons.

Shepard, 34, climbed the handmade rope to the top of the chain-link fence.

Political asylum, boat trips neither is easy for scared Haitian refugees

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Clinton says it's as easy for Haitians to win political asylum from the United States in Haiti as it is to take to the seas. Diceurou Senat begs to differ.

Senat was among 400 people lined up Wednesday hoping to get one of the 60 applications for political asylum available that day.

But he was too late. He arrived at 4:35 a.m.

Thousands of Haitians suffering under a military-dominated government Clinton has criticized as brutal have turned to the sea for relief since June 16, when U.S. policy changed to ensure them hearings for political asylum.

About 3,500 Haitian boat people have been intercepted at sea since Friday, and diplomats say there are enough boats in Haiti for as many as 100,000 people to try to escape.

"I cannot live with the system, with this government," Senat said as he sat on the front steps of the downtown Rex Theater, which the U.S. government rents during the week for the refugee program. Behind Senat was a poster for the movie "Sleepless in Seattle."

The 25-year-old musician said he was detained from May 28 to June 22 for political activism.

"If they don't give my asylum, I plan to go by boat," he said.

Refugee advocates and even some American officials acknowledge privately that Senat's chances are better at sea, despite what Clinton has asserted in his effort to stop the surge of U.S.-bound refugees.

An application is only the first step for Haitians trying to get out Clinton's way. About 58,000 Haitians have filled them out since 1992, but only 14,000 had been interviewed by American immigration officials as of June 21, said Alf Cooley, director of the U.S. refugee program in Haiti.

> I cannot live with the system, with this government.

Only 1,370 cases, 2.3 percent of the 58,000 total, have been approved for asylum. About 30 percent of Haitian boat people have had their claims accepted at a processing center off Jamaica.

That glaring difference is one reason for the latest flood of refugees.

Even Cooley acknowledges that boat people, who under the new Clinton administration policy are guaranteed a hearing, are a giant step ahead because they don't have to fill out applications.

Applicants inside Haiti must wait months for approval. Even if they get it, with U.S.-Haiti airline service cut since Friday, they have no easy way to leave the country.

More than 1,000 people approved for political asylum are stuck in Haiti, some of them in danger by military-backed terror groups. No one has left since the air ban took effect, Cooley said.

Cooley's office, with five immigration agents, can only interview 30 people each day. Because of widespread falsification of applications, clerks now fill out the petitions — the reason for the 60-per-day limit.

"What can you do about the bottleneck when you have a finite number of people hearing due-process applications?" Cooley asks.

Pain spread unevenly throughout Rwanda

KIGALI, Rwanda (AP) — A child lies dying next to his mother at a hospital caught in the cross-fire of Rwanda's civil war.

Miles away, on a flower-covered hilltop, children who have escaped the guns that orphaned them play in the sunshine.

The two scenes — one a shell-blasted hospital in the capital, the other an orphanage in the countryside — illustrate the uneven spread of pain brought by months of ethnic slaughter in this central African country.

At least 200,000 Rwandans, mainly civilians of the Tutsi ethnic group and Hutu sympathizers, have been killed in Rwanda since April. Subsequent fighting between Tutsi rebels and the Hutu-dominated government has devastated the country.

Short notice puts honor guard up all night

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip (AP) — Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat gave such short notice of his historic return to the West Bank and Gaza Strip that his honor guard started practicing in the middle of the night.

Six rows of guards lined up in moonlight early today at a beachfront camp Israelis had used as a prison. An officer barked "Straighten that beret!" and "Lift your rifle higher!"

The frantic preparations underscored the stunned reaction among Israelis and Palestinians alike to the announcement Wednesday that Arafat would arrive this weekend. No one was more surprised than the brand-new security forces expected to protect the PLO leader and keep crowds at bay.

Mistrailed declared in child's strangulation

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A mistrial has been declared because jurors could not agree in the case of a teen-ager accused of helping strangle her neighbors' 3-year-old boy.

"We will go on," said Carolina Blanco, the victim's mother. "It will be hard to come back (for another trial), but the most difficult thing for us is that Luis is no longer with us."

Though disappointed in the mistrial, Mrs. Blanco expressed relief Wednesday that the jury did not acquit Veronica Patricia Zavala in the killing of Luis Daniel Blanco.

Guardian convicted in death of ward

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — It took authorities nearly two years to find the skeleton of a 9-year-old Alice girl after her legal guardian reported that she may have been abducted.

But it took a jury less than two hours of deliberations Wednesday to find the guardian guilty of killing Trini Gonzalez and hiding the body.

Frances Smithwick, Trini's great-aunt, sobbed loudly when the jury returned with her sentence: the maximum 99 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Special Assistant Prosecutor Charles Barrera blamed Trini's case on unchecked child abuse.

"Everybody thought that it could happen anywhere else except Alice," said Barrera. "But Alice is just like anywhere else."

being too tall," said Parker.

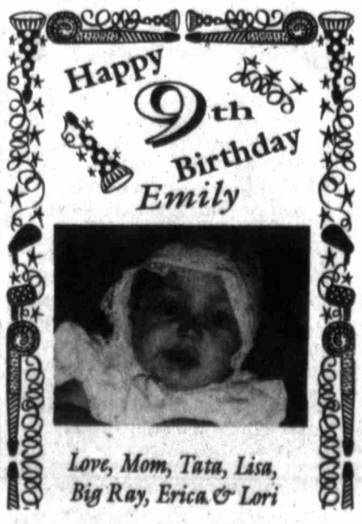

Other arrestees and their charges included Bennie Blissard at Southwestern Crop Insurance, arrested for sabotage to crops, living in Martin County and working in Howard County and shooting rubber bands at secretaries. Marvin and Monroe Casey were arrested for being the best singer and best guitar player in Howard County.

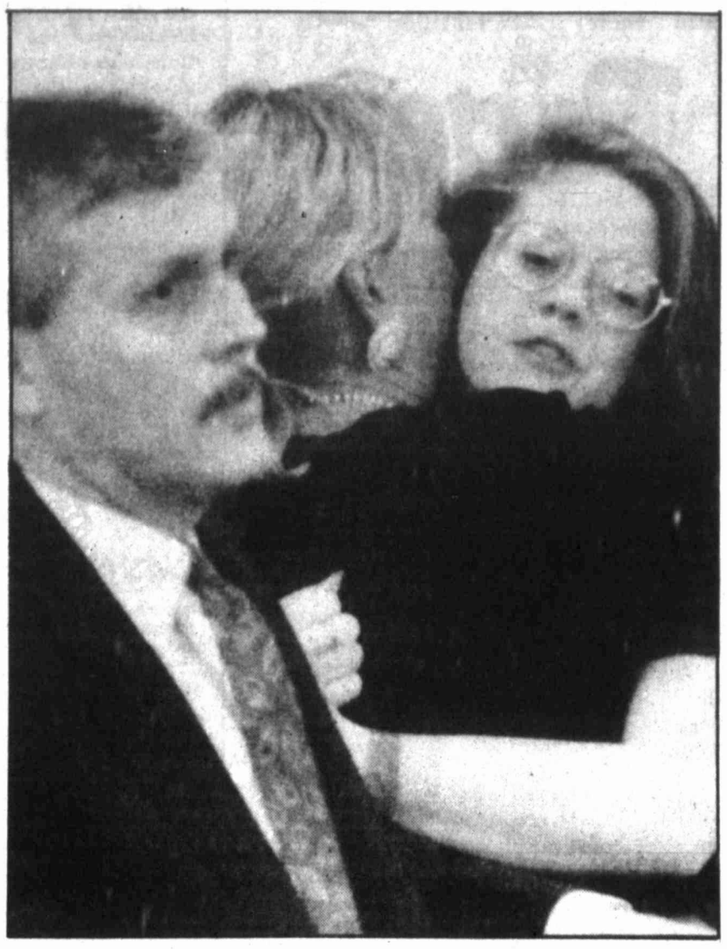

Big Spring police officer Sgt. Stan Parker was arrested for a false arrest of Carla Bauer, who had him arrested earlier this year for another cause. "He was also charged with police harassment and police brutality, although he's a really nice guy. He came back the next day to check and see how we were doing," said Parker.

The Best Sport Award went to Rocky Hale, who owns Rocky's. He was coerced into coming to work earlier when an employee with the Big Spring Herald said she needed 60 burritos for a meeting that day. "The posse was waiting on him to arrest him for having friendly employees, service is too fast, food is too good and just because his name is Rocky," continued Parker.

The money raised will be used to implement the NIE and literacy programs in the area schools.

Attorney Mark Daniel sits by as Kristi Koslow, right, hugs her mother Paula Koslow goodbye following Kristi's guilty verdict of capital murder of her stepmother in a Tarrant County courtroom Wednesday in Fort Worth.

Jury finds Kristi Koslow guility

FORT WORTH (AP) — However grotesque the crime, will a jury condemn a teen-age girl to death by injection?

Specifically one with no criminal history?

That was the issue today as attorneys resumed a legal battle to decide if teen-ager Kristi Koslow should die for the murder-for-hire slaying of her stepmother, oil heiress Caren Koslow.

The defense thinks not, of course. The state says it is a tough sell.

The panel of six men and six women convicted Miss Koslow Wednesday of capital murder, ruling in effect that she orchestrated a savage 1992 attack on her father and stepmother.

She wanted her inheritance prematurely, prosecutors said.

Jack Koslow, 51, survived but his 40-year-old wife, beaten with a pry bar and her throat cut with a knife, died in the couple's Rivercrest home.

Koslow told the court previously his daughter deserves the death penalty.

"That's what she gave Caren," he said.

Miss Koslow's attorney, Tim Evans, was asked Wednesday evening what could save his client from such a fate.

"This is just not the kind of person juries generally sentence to death," he replied. "She is a young girl with no past criminal history and there is a lot of mitigating evidence that has come out during this trial."

Chief prosecutor Alan Levy, who is 10-for-10 in capital cases, was asked if he felt it would be difficult to convince a jury to order the execution of a teen-age girl.

"Sure," he replied. "It's always hard to sell a jury on the death penalty. And it should be."

He said, however, without elaborating, that this case has a lot of "disturbing ramifications."

Miss Koslow was the third and final co-conspirator to face Texas justice.

Her former boyfriend, Brian Salter, escaped a potential death sentence in a plea bargain agreement that compelled him to testify against the woman he had intended to marry.

Space station survived House of Representatives

HOUSTON (AP) — Texans cheered the survival of the Houston-based space station Wednesday and expressed optimism that the massive project is building enough political momentum to make it into orbit.

By a 278-155 vote, the House rejected a measure that would have killed the station project and shifted its $2.1 billion in 1995 funding to other NASA programs.

It was a stark contrast to last year's House funding battle, which came within one vote of terminating the station.

For Texas, the victory means that some 10,000 jobs directly or indirectly linked to the project are safe — at least for now.

Rep. Gene Green, D-Houston, said the 123-vote margin "gives some continuity" to the beleaguered station, which has undergone six design changes in a decade on the drawing board.

"We need that," Green said. "You can't build the space station in one year or in two years. It's a long-term project."

Deputy program manager Bill Shepherd, one of about 325 Johnson Space Center employees assigned to the project, said the vote was both surprising and heartening.

Video baseball less than fantastic

BRITT and BRIAN WARNER
Thomson News Service

GAME: World Series Baseball
Company: Sega of America
System: Sega Genesis
Player Level: Moderate

You're nervous. This is going to be your first big-league game. You blew them away in the minors and astounded fans and players alike with your ultra-fast knuckle ball. The manager of the major league team called you up on day and said, "Hey, Richard, how's about you pitchin' for us this Saturday?" You accepted, and you're in with the big boys of baseball.

The rest of the team has left the locker room and is awaiting the national anthem. You grab your well-oiled glove, slide it onto your hand, and click-walk out of the locker room. As you start out, you hear the announcer say "... Kevin Mitchell playing left field. Finally, pitching for the Reds tonight, No. 26, fresh from the minors, Richard Oxford!" As you sprint onto the field, the glare of the lights and the roar of the crowd fills you with excitement and anticipation. now you remember the reason why you still play this game after all these years. You reach the mound and prepare yourself. This promises to be the best game of your life.

STRUCTURE: World Series Baseball is the latest and most realistic baseball game yet. It features all 28 major league teams (with the new division alignment). For every pitch, the pitcher must choose the type of pitch to throw (i.e., knuckle ball, curve ball, fast ball), the speed of the pitch, and where he wants the ball to cross the plate.

To make the players' batting states even more realistic, W.S. Baseball uses the Baseball Analysis and Reporting System (BARS). This system divides the strike zone into nine separate boxes and measures each batter's accuracy at hitting the ball in each box. This way you can determine a batter's chance to hit every different pitch thrown to him. The pros use this exact same system to determine batting tendencies.

BRIAN'S COMMENTS: This game was incredibly realistic! The graphics in World Series Baseball were unbelievable. The batter, the pitcher and just about everything else were supremely detailed and had smooth animation. I only had one problem with W.S. Baseball: it was much too easy to hit a home run. When Britt and I played together, we would hit as many as five an inning. And as such, the score at the end of the game was more like a basketball game than a baseball game. Other than that, this was an enjoyable baseball simulation.

BRITT'S COMMENTS: World Series Baseball is the most realistic baseball game I've ever played, but it's definitely not the best. The main emphasis of the game is realism and not fun. It's got all the real teams and field, the play-by-play announcer, and graphics that are so good that they could almost be mistaken for real pictures, but it lacks the charm of both the simpler baseball games and the more battle-oriented baseball games.

Lt. John Paul Jones of the American Navy said it in September 1779 when he won our country's first great sea victory. His ship, the Bonhomme Richard, appeared to be sinking when he said this. The ship did not sink, and the Americans won the battle.

Henry Lee said this about our first president at a speech after Washington's death on Dec. 14, 1799. Lee served with Washington during the Revolutionary War.

Soon we will celebrate the signing of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776. Here are some quotes that have inspired Americans and helped make our country great.

Patrick Henry said this in his speech at St. John's Episcopal Church in Richmond, Va., in 1775.

Ben Franklin wrote this in a letter in September 1783.

Col. William Prescott of the Revolutionary Army is often given credit for saying this at the Battle of Bunker Hill in June 1775. Some experts say that he might have picked up this quote from earlier military leaders. The Battle of Bunker Hill (near Boston) was the first big battle of the Revolution.

Read a quote and see if your mom or dad can tell you who said it.

Look through your newspaper for signs that the Fourth of July will be here soon.

Famous Quotes for a Patriotic Fourth from The Mini Page by Betty Debnam © 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

World War II

World War II began in 1941 for the United States and ended in 1945. Now, 50 years later, a grateful country is holding many ceremonies to remember the men and women who served so bravely.

Here are a few quotes from that war.

More than 3,700 Americans lost their lives in the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

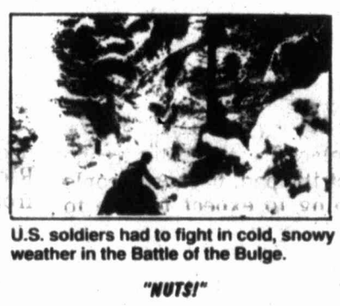

"PRAISE THE LORD AND PASS THE AMMUNITION."

A Navy chaplain, Howell M. Forgy, said this on Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. Later, these words were made into a song that became very popular.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said these famous words in 1942. President Roosevelt had ordered him to leave the Philippines after the Japanese invaded the islands. He did return in 1944. His words were, "I have returned."

U.S. soldiers had to fight in cold, snowy weather in the Battle of the Bulge.

"NUTS!"

This was the reply Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe gave to the Germans in 1944 when they demanded that the U.S. troops surrender. The troops had been surrounded in a forest where Germany, France, Luxembourg and Belgium meet. This battle was called the Battle of the Bulge.

The German troops had pushed in and formed a "bulge" in the Americans' front line. With the help of other troops, the encircled U.S. soldiers fought their way out. Only four months later, the war in Europe ended in a victory for us and our allies.

A slogan is a catchy few words that people remember. During the war, there were many posters with slogans.

Many male factory workers went off to war. This poster showed the important role women had in the war effort.

Next week, read all about watermelons.

From our presidents

This is a part of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, a famous speech he made in November 1863.

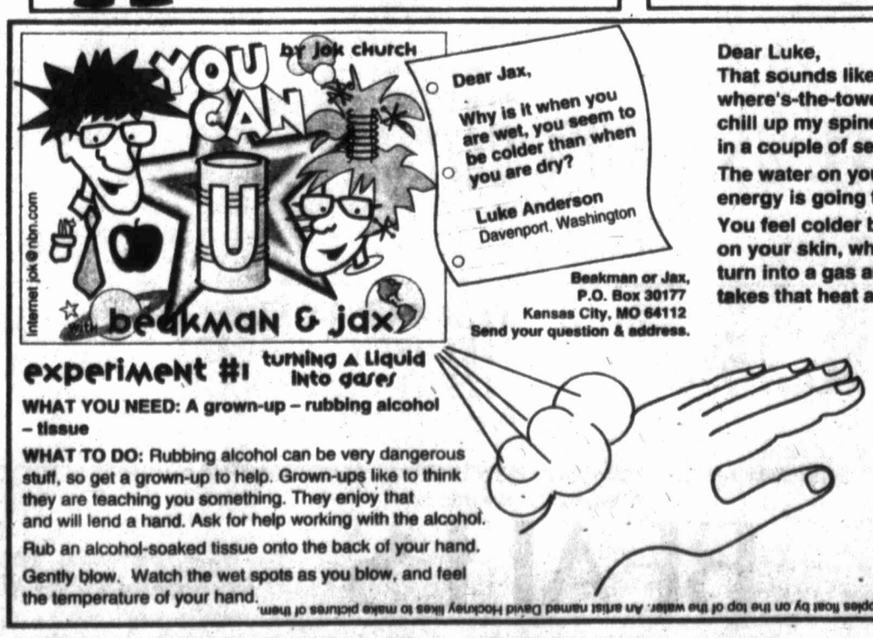

President Theodore Roosevelt said it in September 1901. He was talking about how our country should treat other countries. We should talk softly, but be strong enough to fight.

President John Kennedy said this at his inauguration in 1961.

Dear Jax,
Why is it when you are wet, you seem to be colder than when you are dry?

Dear Luke,
That sounds like a shivering-beside-the-swimming-pool, where's-the-towel, teeth-chattering question. It sends a chill up my spine just to think about it. (You might get one in a couple of seconds.)

The water on your skin needs heat energy to dry. That energy is going to come from you, from your body heat.

You feel colder because heat moves from you to the water on your skin, which makes it possible for the water to turn into a gas and float away. When it does float away, it takes that heat along for the ride.

experiment #1
turning a liquid into gases

WHAT YOU NEED: A grown-up – rubbing alcohol – tissue

WHAT TO DO: Rubbing alcohol can be very dangerous stuff, so get a grown-up to help. Grown-ups like to think they are teaching you something. They enjoy that and will lend a hand. Ask for help working with the alcohol.

Rub an alcohol-soaked tissue onto the back of your hand.

Gently blow. Watch the wet spots as you blow, and feel the temperature of your hand.

SO WHAT:
Your hand felt like ice, and evaporation is the reason why. Evaporation is when a liquid turns into a gas. That's what happens when something dries. Cold alcohol will not evaporate (ee-VAP-or-ate). The heat it needed came from your hand. As the alcohol drifted away, it took the heat from your hand with it. Water does the same thing, only slower. Both make you cold.

Hospitals used to use alcohol to cool down people with fevers. It was rubbed on patients' skin, which is why it's called rubbing alcohol.

experiment #2
turning a gas into liquid

WHAT YOU NEED:
Warm tea – 2 glasses – ice

WHAT TO DO:
Do this outside on a muggy day. Pour warm tea into 1 of the glasses until it's 1/3 full. Feel the outside of the glass. Next, fill the glass with enough ice to make iced tea. When it's really cold, look at the outside of the glass.

Use the second glass to make a nice glass of iced tea for a friend.

SO WHAT:
This is the opposite of Experiment #1. The warm glass was dry. When you added ice, the cold glass absorbed heat from the air. This chilled the air next to the glass, and cold air cannot hold very much water vapor, a gas. The water vapor had to turn back into a liquid, which formed all those wet drips on the outside of the glass.

P.S. from Beakman: The reason you see those wavy lines on the bottom of the pool is that water bends light. The sunlight is bent and unbent as waves and ripples float by on the top of the water. An artist named David Hockney likes to make pictures of them.

Jordan may say bye-bye to baseball

Michael Jordan works out with a medicine ball during pracitce earlier this season with the Birmingham Barons, a Double-A farm team of the Chicago White Sox. Reports say Jordan is nearly ready to give up baseball and return to the Chicago Bulls. Both the Bulls and the Barons have denied the story.

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls will have Michael Jordan back in uniform next year, according to published reports.

The Chicago Sun-Times, citing an unidentified sourse, said Jordan "has just about decided" to leave the Class AA Birmingham Barons when the season ends Sept. 3 and rejoin the Bulls in time for the start of the NBA season in October.

Jordan, a nine-time NBA all-star before retiring from basketball last year, is not posting all-star numbers in his new sport. He is hitting .197 with 26 RBIs, 29 walks and 73 strikeouts in 269 at-bats this season.

"This has been difficult for Michael," the Sun-Times' source said. "He's been so frustrated that his hitting hasn't clicked consistently, ... that he's letting down his teammates.

"Despite what anyone thinks, Michael always thinks about his team — no matter what team it is — first," the

A spokeswoman for the Bulls denied Wednesday that Jordan's return was imminent, and a spokesman for the Barons said he doubted it, too.

"It goes against everything he's said all season," the Barons spokesman said.

The White Sox have not given up on Jordan's efforts to play baseball, said general manager Ron Schueler.

"Not yet, as long as he doesn't give up," Schueler said. "I think a couple of times, mentally, he has been down. But he fought back and right now his attitude is real good."

Teen-aged tennis talent zooming to national tourney

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

VILLAREAL

For many 14-year-olds, a summertime trip to Florida conjures up visions of Disney World or the beach. For Monica Villareal, however, the emphasis will be on forehands and volleys.

Villareal, a freshman-to-be at Big Spring High School, will be among the top 20 tennis players in her age group when she competes for Team Texas at the U.S. Tennis Association Zonals in Pompano Beach, Fla. July 10-12.

Playing at a national, invitation-only tennis tournament may be intimidating to some, but Villareal seems to take the coming event in stride. After all, tennis is something that comes naturally to her.

Her father, Rey, was an accomplished player, and her sister, Maria, has been a cornerstone for the BSHS tennis team the past two years. Perhaps it was just a matter of time, then, that Monica took up the sport.

"She started playing around the age of 6," Rey said. "I used to be a coach, and I'd have both of them up there at practices. They'd hang around and watch, and I guess they finally wanted some of my time."

Monica began playing on the Highway 80 tour when she was 10 and showed promise right from the start, coming in second in her first tournament.

"She's always been pretty coordinated," her father said. "She picked up the game pretty quickly. She's very tenacious on the court. She doesn't like to lose."

"We go to tournaments all around the state," Monica said. "When you compete against all those people ... that pretty much motivates you."

In addition to competing in various USTA-sanctioned tournaments, she also practices between 1-3 hours a day five times a week.

All that hard work has paid off. With a win at a tournament in Waco earlier this year, Monica qualified for the Super Champions level of USTA play, which led to the Florida invitation.

Despite all the time spent on tennis during the past few years, burnout is nowhere on the horizon.

"I've been playing for so long, I just want to get better and better," she said. "I've still got a lot of room for improvement."

"She knows there's a lot of kids who have been playing longer than she has," her father said. "She knows how hard they work, so that makes her want to work that much harder."

On the eve of her first national appearance, Monica admits to a slight bout of nerves.

"There's going to be a lot of the best players from around the country there. It'll be a tough competition," she said. "I guess I'll be a little nervous, but I've had a lot of practice at the state level."

Monica said she doesn't expect to win, but both her and her father would like to see her win at least as many matches as she loses in Florida.

"It'll be a good barometer to see where she's at," Rey said. "It should be very good for her ... You've got to qualify for the tournament, and it's by invitation only, so all of us are going to learn a little bit down there."

Bucks bag 'Big Dog,' Mavs take Kidd

ROBINSON

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Glenn Robinson thought he was under pressure.

Who's he kidding? He hasn't seen anything yet.

The first of a record-tying nine underclassmen picked in the first round of the NBA draft, Purdue's Big Dog put on a Milwaukee Bucks cap and pondered his soon-to-be multimillion-dollar career.

"It feels great to be considered a player who is coming into the league like that," the draft's first selection said. "But in one respect it's bad, because people are going to expect for me to come in and want me to do more than what I can do. I'm not going to let that worry me."

Like Robinson's selection by Milwaukee, which was almost a foregone conclusion, there were few surprises in the two rounds of the draft Wednesday night.

There also were no trades, although one that would have sent Scottie Pippen from Chicago to Seattle for Shawn Kemp fell through. Another deal that could send Pooh Richardson and Malik Sealy from Indiana to the Los Angeles Clippers for Mark Jackson still might be in the works.

After Robinson was picked, California point guard Jason Kidd, a 6-4 sophomore who led the nation in assists and set a school record for steals, was taken by Dallas.

Duke's Grant Hill, the only senior among the top seven picks, went next, to Detroit.

The Minnesota Timberwolves then took forward Donyell Marshall of Connecticut, the Washington Bullets drafted Michigan forward Juwan Howard, the Philadelphia 76ers picked Clemson forward-center Sharone Wright and the Los Angeles Clippers chose forward Lamond Murray, a teammate of Kidd at California.

Stepnoski signs new contract with 'Boys

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Because of an injured right knee, Pro Bowl center Mark Stepnoski said he couldn't get what he deserved on the free agent market.

STEPNOSKI

The one-year, $1.2 million contract Stepnoski signed with the Dallas Cowboys Wednesday wasn't quite as much as he'd hoped for, but it did put things in perspective.

"I was somewhat behind the eight ball in this situation because of the injury," he said. "I'm 27 years old and I'm going to be making $1.2 million this year, so it could be a heck of a lot worse."

The deal includes a $500,000 signing bonus, and comes two days after a published report said the San Francisco 49ers were preparing to offer Stepnoski $1.3 million.

With Stepnoski under contract, the Cowboys have 10 returning offensive starters from last year's Super Bowl champions.

"I think we're the only team in the NFL that can boast eight Pro Bowl starters returning on offense," Cowboys vice president Stephen Jones said at a news conference. "Mark is the quarterback of that offensive line and it's very key having him back."

Stepnoski made the Pro Bowl in 1992 and again in 1993 despite suffering a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee late last season. He's recovering from knee surgery and said he hopes it'll be healed in time for the preseason.

"I'm definitely going to be ready to go for the season," Stepnoski said.

Change is the same as death.

You can have 10 years or 10 minutes to prepare for it, but either way you're not going to be ready.

The folks at Thomson Newspapers, the company that owns the Herald, has dragged us through a redesign that made its debut Wednesday. Change after change after change.

Death after death...

The morbidness isn't so out of place - designing just one page Wednesday was like dying a thousand deaths. Each cutline, each headline, even the SportsExtra section required at least four or five changes from the normal routine, and when a page looked like it was ready for print, Big Brother Thomson (Thomson consultant Keith Walters) took his red pen to it.

Red used to be my favorite color.

OK, so there wasn't a red pen per se - just a smart man wearing glasses and a tie who looked over shoulders all of Wednesday and said over and over, "OK, now that's your page. What you need to do now is this, this, this, this, maybe this, if you have time this, and even this, but definitely throw this out. Don't do this again.

"You've got 15 minutes. Gotta keep those pages flowing."

At times, there was more sweat flowing down our foreheads than there was newsprint flowing to the press room.

Despites the myriad hassles, training sessions and disappointments Herald staffers have gone through the past months - Walters, who is based in Tampa, Fla., flew to Big Spring three times in recent weeks - we survived. In the newspaper business, however, the welfare or sleep patterns of the employees doesn't factor into the answer for the final, overpowering, always-top-priority question:

What do the readers think?

Some of our changes were obvious, like the masthead on the front page, and some were subtle, like the body type. Keeping track of all of the new nuances introduced in Wednesday's paper borders on impossible. It's going to take some time for readers to get accustomed to the changes, but let's hope you adjust to them faster than we do.

The Herald will keep changing - Wednesday was just the Grand Opening. Some items worked Wednesday, some didn't, and we'll be busy the coming weeks refining those things that didn't work.

All we can ask on this end is for you to gave our new look a chance. If you don't like part of it, let us know. If you like the new look, tell us that, too - we could use the encouragement.

Reader feedback is essential to the success of a newspaper. Now that we're experimenting with the product, our ears are bigger than ever.

Give us a call.

FISHING

The heat wave may have made it more delightful for swimmers at Lake O.H. Ivie over the weekend, but it drove the bigger fish deeper and deeper.

Surface temperature rose to 81.5 degrees, and at bottom it was 63.8. Even with high winds, the main body was clear, and the level only .35 of a ft. from spillway. There was an abundance of black bass 12 to 15-in., but the keepers (18-in plus) moved to 20-30 ft. of water. Early morning and late evenings got best results along shorelines with cranks, spinners and minnows most popular. Keepers seemed to prefer plastic worms.

Crappie fishing improved slightly but still was marginal. They seemed to favor minnows and were in creek and river channels. Here again, the preponderance of catches were under limit.

Channel catfish continued to like baited holes in the main body in 20-30 ft., with all baits working but with worms and stink baits best. Yellow catfishing was poor to fair in the main lake and up river channel. White bass were being caught by trollers in open water in 12-25 ft. depth. Slabbing off points seemed to work better, along with spotting feeding on surface. High, hot winds put a hold on activities at Lake J.B. Thomas. There were fair to good results on white bass along the north shore and between Boyd's point and gravel island. Black bass catches dropped sharply as the heat index rose.

The northwest division of the Honey Hole Black Bass tournament drew 42 anglers for 24 teams competing in the one-day event at Lake E.V. Spence. Twenty-one fish were weighed. Biggest was 6.39 lbs. caught by Jim Milson; second 5.84 lbs. First place went to Billy Thetford and Tommy Clevenger with five for 14.20 lbs.; second to Billy Prince and Richard Kleinhans with two for 8.95; third Alfred Velasquez and Steve Seymour with two for 6.73.

Other results out of Wildcat Marina included the biggest catch, a striped bass by J.L. Spradlinn, Abilene, at 24 lbs., but only a hair better than one at 23-lbs. 14 ozs. by Massie Ryan, Midland; Tommy and Terry Brown 12 and 14-1/2-lb. stripers on live shad; and Kyle Tiner, Odessa, 7-1/2-lb. black bass on a Little Chugger Popper.

Out of Paint Creek Marina, Beverly Knox, Midland, caught a 2-1/2-lb. black bass; Terry, Monte and Krist, Odessa, had 10 stripers, totaling 40 lbs.

Stable, if not increasing, populations of the Concho Water Snake are reflected in the spring survey conducted by the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Of the 415 specimen taken, 142 or 34.2 per cent were recaptures, reported Okla Thornton, biologist. The capture percentage among adult and juvenile snakes was 41.95 per cent, indicating a good rate of survivability. Only 28.63 percent of the neonates (babies) were recaptures.

Population counts are monitored by district personnel at 24 sites, and each snake captured has a microchip implanted. This, in effect, becomes it license plate, for biologists pass an electronic and over the abdomen and repeaters are cataloged instantly.

As another portion of the memorandum of understanding the district has with the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the annual stream monitoring program has commenced.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF REQUEST FOR CLASS 3 COMPLIANCE PLAN MODIFICATION
Fina Oil and Chemical Company, located five miles east of the Howard County Courthouse on the north side of the intersection of Interstate Highway 20 (IH-20) and Refinery Road near Big Spring, Texas has requested a Class 3 modification to Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission hazardous waste Compliance Plan No. CP-50140. This modification requests the elimination of corrective action requirements for the Site E land treatment unit (LTU) since it has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission that this RCRA unit has not contributed contaminants to the underlying aquifer. Additionally, revisions to the compliance monitoring parameters, sampling frequencies, and number of wells are proposed. Furthermore, the delay of the implementation of the RCRA Facility Investigation (RFI) and Corrective Measures Study and Implementation (CMSI) Programs for solid waste management units (SWMUs) at the facility is proposed in order to focus corrective action efforts on the containment and remediation of dissolved-phase and free-phase contaminant plumes in the southern boundary area of the facility. Revisions to the RFI soil-investigation procedures for the Group 4 SWMUs are also proposed. A draft compliance plan has not been prepared as of the date of this notice.
In accordance with 30 Texas Administrative Code (TAC) Section 305.69(d)(4), Fina Oil and Chemical Company will hold a public meeting on this application on Monday, August 8, 1994 at 7:00 pm at the following location: "Fina Refinery Safety Department Training Room". The Safety Department office is located on the north service road of IH-20 approximately one-half block east of Refinery Road.
Requests for a public hearing on this application should be submitted in writing to Claire Arenson, Assistant Chief Hearings Examiner, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, P.O. Box 13087, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711 (telephone 512/463-7875) within 60 days of the date of publication of this notice. The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission will also hold a public meeting on this application if requested by an affected person within 30 days of the date of publication of this notice. Written comments and/or requests for further information on the application should be addressed to the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission contact person, Clint Simmons, Industrial and Hazardous Waste Permits Section, at the same address (telephone 512/239-2975) within 60 days of the date of publication of this notice. The permittee's compliance history during the life of the compliance plan being modified is available from the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission contact person.
The contact person for Fina Oil and Chemical Company on this modification request is Ted Nairn, P.O. Box 1311, Big Spring, Txas 79721-1311, who can be reached by telephone at 915/263-9357. A copy of the modification request can be viewed and copied on weekday mornings between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon and on weekday afternoons between the hours of 1:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. at the following location: Fina Oil and Chemical Company Big Spring Refinery, IH-20 at Refinery Road, Big Spring, Texas.

Dear Abby - Letters...

Heavyweight wife looks for enlightenment

DEAR ABBY: My husband, who is normally a kind and loving man, recently told me that he finds my body size troubling. I'm 5 feet 3 inches, weigh 204 pounds and have tried every diet under the sun. I doubt if there's a weight-loss plan that anyone could suggest that I haven't tried.

My question, however, is not about another kind of weight-loss program. What I'd be interested in knowing is this: How do other men with fat wives deal with it —especially those whose wives got fat after their marriage?

Are they embarrassed in front of friends? Do they have affairs, or fantasize about thin women? Or do they say nothing and quietly hate their wives? Does criticizing bring a change? Do they decide to resist cultural standards of weight? Or do they ignore it and love the other qualities their wives have?

Please ask your male readers, Abby. I'm very interested in what they might have to say — but they are not the kind of questions you ask some man sitting in the local fast-food restaurant. Thank you! — FAT BUT NOT HAPPY

DEAR FAT BUT NOT HAPPY: In answer to your questions: Not all men are alike. Some are embarrassed about the size of their wives; some are not — just as some wives with fat husbands will tell you. Some have affairs, but husbands with thin wives also have affairs. Criticism will sometimes bring a change, but not always.

A person (man or woman) is more than just a fat or thin person. There's heart, soul and personality inside. A person's value cannot be determined by his or her weight.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter recently graduated from a very prestigious college. Each graduate was given a limited number of tickets, as there were many graduates in an auditorium with a limited seating capacity.

While I expected to see people of all ages, I did not expect to see small children and infants.

Some parents did not hold the little ones on their laps; they let the youngsters jump around during the ceremony! And some with babies spent the entire time carrying them up and down the aisles trying to calm them.

Let's face it, it is difficult even for a parent to be interested in hundreds of graduates and speakers; how on earth do parents of these children expect them to act?

This is a wonderful moment for the parents and grandparents of graduates — but never on God's green earth would I do something as stupid as bringing an infant to a graduation ceremony. — ANNOYED IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR ANNOYED: Congratulations, and hear, hear!
