Head...less body found this morning

The headless and handless body of a woman was found in far northern Scurry County Tuesday morning and initial although unconfirmed reports indicate suspects may now be in custody in Lubbock.

The report of a body being dumped beside the "Caprock Road" leading north out of Fluvanna was first received here around 10:27 a.m.

The incident was initially called to Garza County law enforcement officials in Post, who were first at the site. After it was determined that the incident occurred inside Scurry County, the local sheriff's office was contacted.

Reports from the scene at noon indicated the body was that of a middle-aged white woman. The body was found clothed approximately 12 ft. from the roadway.

Due to the steep conditions of this portion of FM 1269, it was immediately speculated the body had been thrown from the highway and had rolled to a stopping point.

A passing motorist apparently saw individuals dumping something beside the roadway around 10 a.m. A description of the vehicle involved in this led to the arrests reported around noon.

The vehicle was reportedly stopped in Lubbock, although other details regarding the arrest were sketchy.

The body was discovered approximately two miles north of Fluvanna.

Scurry County sheriff's office personnel and locally based Texas Rangers were still at the scene at presstime and the investigation was continuing.

There was no immediate indication that identification regarding the body had been found at the scene. Eyewitness accounts confirmed that the body's head and hands had been removed.

GETTING READY — Scurry County farmers like Jerry House have been kept out of the fields this week due to persistent May rains. Monday was the agreed to delayed planting date for local cotton farmers. Current speculation is it will be no sooner than next week before conditions will allow planting here. (SDN Staff Photo)

State budget is near

AUSTIN (AP) — House and Senate budget writers, who turned down one proposal for a state employees pay raise early today, went back to work hoping a compromise on the 1986-87 spending plan was just around the corner.

The negotiators worked until after 2 a.m., mostly on budgets for state colleges and universities.

However, just before adjournment, Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, proposed that state employees be given a 3 percent raise in 1986 and 1 percent in 1987. Another 2 percent would be given in 1987 if individual state agencies could squeeze that amount out of their office budget.

But the issue was passed for later action after only two senators voted for the proposal.

Still ahead of the 10-member conference committee, before its self-imposed deadline tonight, were knotty issues such as public welfare benefits, highway funds, indigent health care and state employee pay raises.

But Gov. Mark White reported Monday after a personal visit that the conferees have made "a great deal of progress."

Members of the committee named to iron out differences in Senate and House appropriation bills have been in almost concontinual session this week.

Delayed planting delayed more by muddy fields

Scurry County farmers kept their tractors out of the fields Monday as the local delayed planting date for cotton passed.

The recommendation this year from the Scurry County Producer's Association was that local farmers not plant seed until at least May 20 as a means of combating boll weevil populations later in the summer.

But rainy conditions during May — including the latest drenching Monday night — have rendered virtually all county fields too muddy to plow.

"With the early moisture we had, it first looked like it was going to hurt our delayed planting," noted County Extension Agent Marvin Ensor.

"Now, of course, we're going to be held past what we intended."

Assuming no additional rainfall this week, Ensor predicted it would be the first of next week at least before conditions were dry enough to allow planting here.

A planting date of May 27 and otherwise favorable weather conditions would place local cotton in the "square" stage of the plant — the growth stage where cotton is vulnerable to the boll weevil — by around July 7.

The assumption is that by the first week in July, boll weevils now emerging from their diapause (dormant) stage will not have survived to feed on the cotton square.

"The number of weevils still around to feed by July 7 should be very small," Ensor said.

With Monday's delayed planting date passed, the concern now is that the farmers will be able to plant before the season is much older.

Ensor said June 10 is a good "outside date" to look toward to have seed in the ground.

"It's all a guessing game at this point because a long fall would make conditions favorable for a late planting. And an early freeze would be just the opposite."

Regarding how much local acreage might be planted in cotton this year, Ensor guessed 60,000 acres. This would be an average cotton year, although substantially more than the past two cotton seasons, when drought-like conditions and the federal government's PIK program have kept local planting levels down.

The 1984 cotton season has been described as likely the worst in the history of Scurry County, when slightly more than 5,000 acres of cotton ended the year in production.

Rings stolen from jeweler

Sixteen diamond rings and guards were reported stolen here Monday, an incident police are investigating as a felony shoplifting complaint.

According to reports, employees of Haney's Jewelry Store in the College Heights Shopping Center called police at 4 p.m. to report the theft.

The rings are thought to have been possibly been taken from the store by a customer or customers sometime between 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Monday.

As of Tuesday morning, store staffers were still working to determine exactly how many rings may have been taken.

Criminal trial begins

Jury selection began shortly after 9 a.m. Tuesday in 132nd District Court for the aggravated assault trial of Juan Martinez Marquez.

Marquez, 29, who listed his address as the Cooper [illegible] north of Snyder, was indicted on the assault charge by the Feburary session of the Scurry County grand jury.

He is accused of shooting 27-year-old Jesus Villasana of 2901 Ave. J on the night of Feburary 10. The incident reportedly occurred during a dispute at a north Snyder residence.

The case was originally called [illegible] time listed on the summons issued Marquez caused postponement of the trial.

Marquez is represented in the proceedings by attorney Albert Perez of Lubbock.

Despite all efforts, it's hard to get psyched up for a move. And despite what those self-moving commercials say on TV, moving is not an easy task.

Tons on equipment plus 30 plus years of accumulation in its present location, the move of the Snyder Daily News from 25th Street to College Avenue is underway. Monday morning, the newspaper was in operation in the new location.

New press units were installed last week, and this week our current units will be moved to the new facility. Our plan is to have no disruption of service, and we have planned an open house for June 2.

Moving presses is tricky business, but our problems were nothing like encountered by the giant Houston Post. The first of 10 new units to be shipped from Britian got off to a stormy start after a horrowing crossing on the Atlantic. The first 44,000 pound unit came loose from a flat rack during a storm at sea and roamed around on the deck of the German ship. The multimillion dollar press reportedly knocked holes in the side of the ship and dropped into the ocean.

We've heard of the "underground press, and this may be the beginning of the "underwater press."

Finding things after a move is the real challenge. The girls in the office have offered some efficiency suggestions.

Somone suggested that we make 26 copies of everything as an efficiency technique.

When asked why, she replied, "I plan to file one under each letter of the alphabet, then I am sure of finding them."

No damage award ends accident trial

No damage award for injuries was given Monday at the conclusion of a lawsuit trial related to a motor vehicle accident which occurred here April 15, 1984.

In answering four questions concerning negligence, the jurors found that both parties in the traffic accident were equally negligent.

The nine-woman, three-man jury had heard evidence since last Thursday in the lawsuit styled Retha Everton and Michael Don Mayfield vs Richard Varin Walker and Charles Walker

The jury deliberated less than one hour Monday before returning its verdict.

Everton and Mayfield had sued the Walkers in an attempt to recover compensation for injuries said suffered in a two-vehicle accident at the intersection of Texas Highway 208 and the Brick Plant Road just south of the Snyder city limits.

Six additional questions were put to the jury concerning potential monetary awards for damage. All six special issues were returned with an award of "zero dollars."

The case was given to the jury at 11:07 a.m. Monday and the verdict was returned at 12:05 p.m.

Militiamen battle to keep PLO out

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Seeking to prevent the PLO from returning to Beirut, Shiite Moslem militiamen fought Palestinian guerrillas in three crowded refugee camps in fierce battles that police said killed at least 60 people and wounded 270.

The artillery fell silent at 5 p.m. Monday after Druse leader Walid Jumblatt and other Moslem leaders mediated a cease-fire, but reporters near the camps of Sabra, Chatilla, and Bourj el-Barajneh reported gunfire and explosions after the truce deadline passed.

One Palestinian spokesman, who requested anonymity for security reasons, said the Shiites' Amal militia used the truce to wrest back "security centers" they lost in Sabra during the day.

He said Amal militiamen moved back into Sabra behind Moslem units of the Lebanese army sent in under the cease-fire accord to separate the combatants.

The command of the army's 6th Brigade, which is mainly Shiite Moslem, said its units took up positions in Sabra and Bourj el-Barajneh to "preserve security."

An army communique said the gunfire and explosions were part of "mopping-up operations undertaken by army units." It did not elaborate.

The fiercest fighting was around Sabra and Chatilla, where hundreds of Palestinians and Lebanese Moslems were massacred by Christian militias Sept. 16-18, 1982 following Israel's invasion of Lebanon.

Both camps are former strongholds of Yasser Arafat, the leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, and pro-Arafat posters are plastered throughout the camps.

Arafat's guerrillas were expelled from Beirut by the Israelis in 1982, but guerrilla leaders since have boasted that many have filtered back into the city.

Arafat loyalists then were expelled from Syrian-controlled northern Lebanon in 1983 by Syrian-backed PLO dissidents. The current attack in Beirut, spearheaded by the Syrian-supported Amal militia, appeared to be an effort to insure that Arafat's influence does not return to Lebanon.

Outgunned and outnumbered Palestinians in the three refugee camps held off a series of attacks by the Shiite Moslem Amal militia.

Mechanic given year's probation

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — When Wesley R. Beard wanted to drum up business for his auto repair shop, he'd litter Interstate 20 with old car parts and wait till a passing motorist came along to "break down."

The 45-year-old mechanic admitted in court Monday that he'd then show up with a timely offer of wrecker service or repairs to help out the unsuspecting driver.

That self-styled brand of advertising netted Beard a one-year prison term Monday and an order from state District Judge Billy John Edwards to pay $2,314 to his unwitting customers.

Beard's guilty plea came in a plea bargain that saw one felony criminal mischief charge reduced to a misdemeanor and the other three dismissed for restitution.

Edwards gave Beard a 180-day jail term and placed him on probation for a year, during which time Beard said he can make the restitution to former customers of his Beard's Auto Truck Repairs in Trent.

Beard admitted dumping a motor head, gears and other jagged pieces of metal onto the eastbound lane of I-20 on July 28, 1983.

At least six cars and trucks were disabled that night, and an investigation found several others had been damaged at the same location in recent weeks, Department of Public Safety investigators said.

Motorists whose vehicles were not disabled immediately found that at the next exit, the only business they could see open was Beard's repair shop.

Motorists disabled at the scene could expect, within minutes, an offer of assistance from a roving Beard wrecker, whose driver said he "just happened" to be in the area, the investigators said.

A former Beard employee gave prosecutors an affidavit saying Beard told him to put the parts on the highway when business was slow. The man said both he and Beard had put the parts on the road, then picked them up later and used them again.

One victim who questioned Beard's quick arrival said the man accused her of believing in "flying saucers" when she unsuccessfully tried to locate what she had hit with her car.

Cancer odds after five years

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A friend of mine had breast cancer more than five years ago. Although they caught it pretty early, they did a modified radical on her. Happily, she's had no recurrence to date. Does that mean that she's home free?

DEAR READER — As a form of medical shorthand in assessing treatment of cancer, doctors use the term "five-year cure." Some malignancies are cured in weeks and never recur. Other forms may lie dormant or in remission for many years and then reappear. So, in order to make comparisons possible, physicians refer to a "five-year cure." Ordinarily, a person who is treated for cancer and shows no similar disease after five years is considered "cured."

I think it is important to realize that five years is not a magic number.

Patients who are disease-free for more than five years still require periodic evaluation because cancer is sometimes unpredictable and, unfortunately, can show up many years after having apparently been eradicated.

Because of presumed deficiencies in the body's cancer-detecting immune system, a person can have one cancer cured, only to develop a malignancy — another "primary" — in a second site. For example, women with tumors in one breast have a statistically much higher chance of developing new tumors in the other breast.

Despite this unpleasant information, I think that most patients feel justifiable relief at "making it" past five years. And they should. There is a very good chance that their disease will not return.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had hepatitis when I was a little kid, and now I'm almost 40 and they still won't let me give blood. I feel guilty about this because I know it's so important. Why is this rule so strict?

DEAR READER — When you had hepatitis years ago, the virus caused your body to manufacture defense proteins called antibodies. These antibodies inactivated the viruses and you recovered.

However, in all probability, the hepatitis viruses — although not active — are still present in your body; they continue to have the potential to cause disease if they are transmitted by your blood to a non-immune victim who does not have hepatitis antibodies. Therefore, blood banks are particularly cautious about accepting donors whose blood might infect a recipient. Remember that anyone receiving a blood transfusion [illegible] in a [illegible] state. Although you may be able to put up with your own viruses, a transfusion of your blood to a susceptible individual might produce more of a burden than he could bear.

There are tests to determine whether your blood is still infectious. They are expensive, but could give you useful information.

In addition, there are tests to measure the amount of hepatitis antibody in your blood. If there is sufficient antibody, you might become a "special" donor. You would then be able to give blood that would be separated into various components for special uses.

Doctors who specialize in liver and intestinal diseases (gastroenterologists) and physicians with the Red Cross could answer specific questions you might have about the state of your hepatitis immunity.

Obscure Condolences Create Added Burden for Bereaved

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: We recently suffered the loss of a teen-aged son—a dearly loved, popular boy. His entire school went into mourning, and numerous floral arrangements from his friends were sent. Many were from people known to us, but some were not.

This outpouring of love and affection did, however, present a minor problem. We had (and are still having) a difficult time trying to thank the proper people. (We don't know who "Joannie and Sue" are. And "Jimmy and Ray" are mysteries, as are "The Three Musketeers.")

Abby, please ask your readers to include their full names and addresses with their loving messages when they send flowers. It would make it so much easier for us to thank them.

There are so many details that must be attended to at a time like this, it would help so much. Thank you, Abby.

HIS GRIEVING PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: Your letter will get top billing in this column.

Readers, please sign your cards with your first and last names, and include your addresses.

And florists, if the senders don't include this information, please suggest it when flowers are ordered. What a help it would be to the bereaved families who want to express their gratitude promptly.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Our neighbors are lovely people, but we work all day, and are the youngest people in our area. This time of year we have a lot of things to do outside, but every evening someone drops by to visit. That means we have to stop what we're doing and spend anywhere from half an hour to two hours with the chatty neighbors. The only way to get away is to make some excuse to go back in the house—then we get nothing done.

I get the pickling stories, and my husband gets to hear about somebody's carburetor. Every time we show ourselves outside, we get company.

Please advise us. We don't want to make any enemies—just distant friends.

READY TO SCREAM IN IOWA

DEAR READY: People who write with this kind of problem usually do so because they're too timid to do what they know they have to do in order to keep others from imposing on them.

Be assertive! When friendly neighbors wander over to visit while you're working, at the risk of appearing inhospitable, do not give them the big hello. Instead, keep right on working, and without looking up, say, "I wish I had time to visit, but I'm determined to finish this. Let's make it another time, OK?" And keep working.

P.S. You probably won't follow this advice—but you asked.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: With all of the advertising and promotions leading up to National Secretary's Day, one would have to be deaf, dumb and blind not to know about this occasion of recognition.

I work for a woman executive who was so insensitive that she called me and wished me a "Happy Secretary's Day" over the telephone! No flowers, no lunch, no nothing! She might as well have slapped me in the face! I have put up with rude, insensitive and bitchy behavior from this woman, and this is the recognition I get.

All of those bosses who chose to ignore their secretaries this week, simply because they are too cheap, should take a long, hard look in the mirror. Are you worth working for? Would you like to work for someone like yourself? Is the price of a lunch or a few flowers worth losing your "right hand"? When you consider all of the work that a secretary does in the course of one day, it is a small price indeed.

Happy Secretary's Day to you, too, Boss! I'm looking for a better place to work.

Declarer wins in dummy, plays the A-K of clubs on which he throws diamonds, ruffs a club, ruffs a diamond and then ruffs one more club with his last little heart. He must now make two more heart tricks with his A-Q-J and that is enough for the doubled contract.

Had declarer carelessly played a spade to the king in order to lead toward the diamond queen, he would have failed in the contract. Now East would punch a spade through, preventing declarer from scoring both his little hearts.

An expert at work

"Bridge: The Mind of the Expert," by H.W. Kelsey (Faber & Faber), does a nice job of analyzing the expert's thought processes in bridge situations. As you can see from the bidding sequence, in today's example South ends up in three hearts doubled.

After ace of spades and a heart shift, it is fairly apparent that East, the opening bidder, must hold the A-K of diamonds. Should he hold another heart, there would be no hope at all, but the double by West suggests that the remaining hearts are with that player. It is crucial that declarer be able to ruff a diamond without letting West get the lead to play another heart. So South must lead the queen of diamonds right out of his hand at trick three. East can do no better than win the king and play a spade.

No arrests in shooting events

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — Police said Monday they were conducting a thorough investigation of the shooting death of an American woman but no arrests had yet been made.

In Mexico City, officials of the U.S. Embassy said two American men were questioned by local police in connection with the death of Julie Brahm, 23, of Milwaukee. But they said the men had not been detained and no charges were filed against them.

Agent Beatriz Hernandez of the Judicial Police in Cancun said, "The case is being investigated in depth ... with all its details."

She said no arrests had been made, but all aspects of Miss Brahm's stay in Cancun were being examined. "So far it is under investigation," she said. "This takes time."

The embassy officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified for protocol reasons, said that Miss Brahm was apparently on her way from her hotel, Suites Marvella, to the Casa Maya where the men were staying when she was shot once in the head about 9 p.m. Thursday.

She was flown by air ambulance Saturday afternoon to St. Luke's Hospital in Houston where she died Sunday, authorities said.

Police have told embassy officials that there were no eyewitnesses to the shooting. The police had indicated earlier they believed that the woman's assailant, a man, may have left the area.

Panhandle doesn't like dump

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Agriculture has told the U.S. Energy Department that new surveys show Panhandle residents are strongly opposed to locating a high-level nuclear waste dump in the region.

The departments' findings were submitted to the Energy Department on Monday. The DOE is considering a site in Deaf Smith County as a possible location for a national nuclear waste dump.

The other two areas being considered are in Nevada and Washington state, while a site in Swisher County also might still be considered, the agriculture department said.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said the new survey clearly shows that Panhandle residents don't want the dump.

"While DOE paperpushers fussed over some fancy computer model they use to count cows, we got on the phone and talked directly to hundreds of Panhandle residents," Hightower said.

"Our results are the only information available about how a representative cross-section of local residents believes a nuclear dump would affect their communities and their families," he said.

Four out of five residents in the counties proposed as a dump site said they wouldn't allow construction of a nuclear waste repository in their area if it were up to them, Hightower said.

In Crosby and Moore counties, a little farther away from the proposed sites, the proportion of residents opposing the dump was nearly the same, he added.

"Our earlier studies show that Panhandle residents are not suffering from a knee-jerk case of 'not-in-my-backyardism.' They are asking serious questions about who is going to buy food raised next to a nuclear dump.

Gov. White wants quick appeal

AUSTIN (AP) — The state needs to quickly appeal a Houston judge's ruling which declared the state's "no pass, no play" athletic eligibility rule unconstitutional, Gov. Mark White says.

"It is my view that this rule ensures that the emphasis is placed upon the education of our students as a highest priority," White told Attorney General Jim Mattox in a Monday letter.

"Texas has a great interest in assuring the quality education of its students. I urge you to make every effort to obtain a speedy appellate review and resolution of this question," White added.

Seat belts on buses nixed

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House, which had tentatively approved the measure after its sponsor claimed it was a life-saver, has voted against mandating seat belts on school buses.

School superintendents lobbied the bill to death during the weekend, according to sponsor Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi.

"Their dollars are more important to them than the safety of the children," said Cavazos.

A 66-52 Friday vote had advanced the measure to Monday's agenda, where it was voted down 63-71. The bill would have required seat belts on all school buses put into service in Texas after Jan. 1. Cavazos said it would take 13 years to wind up with belts on every bus.

It would cost about $1,000 per bus, a cost that would have been picked up by the state under an amendment added to the bill Friday.

There are an average of four school bus accidents a day, according to Cavazos.

"It surprises me they could sit there and vote against protecting the children when they voted protection for themselves," he said, referring to a bill requiring seat belt use in cars.

Rep. Talmadge Heflin, R-Houston, complained that seat belts could prove to be a big waste of money. Federal school bus regulations have made the buses safe, he said.

Legal raffle not approved

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment that would legalize charity raffles — which are now felony offenses in Texas — has stalled and perhaps died in the House.

"It's obviously in a whole lot of trouble," sponsor Rep. Terral Smith, R-Austin, said after Monday's preliminary vote.

A 69-67 vote kept the measure alive for a final vote. But Smith is far short of the 100 votes needed to send the proposal to the Senate.

The state constitution makes illegal every form of raffle, including the drawings commonly used to raise money for churches, service clubs and PTAs. Almost all of the state's district attorneys don't prosecute raffle organizers.

Smith's hometown prosecutor does.

"It's done in every district. But it is illegal," Smith said.

Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle has let local charities know that he would prosecute. A local grand jury last year rapped a theater group that gave away a Porsche as its raffle prize.

Several lawmakers fought the Smith proposal by reminding House members that the bingo bill approved in 1981 to legalize bingo for charity has not worked out as intended. Private bingo operators have hauled in much of the take, leaving little for the charities and forcing lawmakers to rewrite the bingo law this year.

MARILYN BURTON, Roy J. McCloskey and Judy Garrett are well versed on the problems of the Medicare program and are ready to help you with a medicare supplement. (SDN Staff Photo)

McCloskey offers medicare supplement policies, more

Roy J. McCloskey would like to invite anyone who has reached the age of 65 and has a need to supplement their medicare insurance to check with him. The medicare insurance provided in connection with your social security has increased the amount of deductible which means more of your hospital stay will be charged to you personally.

The medicare supplement now available thru State Farm may save you many dollars should you be hospitalized. Roy has checked over 75 of the medicare supplement policies now available on the market and has found that the benefits of the State Farm Medicare Supplement Policy not only equals any other policy, but often provides more benefits than those from most other companies. In addition to that advantage, he is also here to service it. However, the best thing is the premium, as it is usually lower than most others. For instance, the monthly premium for a person age 65 is $26.07 or $306.00 per year. Those whose age is 70 or over 75 it is a few dollars a month higher. Roy or his staff will be glad to explain this policy to anyone. You do not have to be a State Farm policy holder now to obtain this medicare supplement.

Also, during this time of the year, he would like to remind homeowners that now is a good time to check over the policy on their homes. In most cases State Farm is able to provide a complete coverage even to replacement costs on household items at very competitive rates. Just give him a call at 573-7266.

For insurance on your home, business, car, life, health, or IRA plans, visit Roy J. McCloskey's State Farm Agency at 3904 College Avenue.

Judge won't rule on new trial

HOUSTON (AP) — State District Judge I.D. McMaster says he won't rule on a defense attorney's motion for a new murder trial for David Port because the lawyer filed the request too late.

"He's out of time," McMaster said of attorney Jack Zimmermann's motion, which contends McMaster may not have been qualified as a judge to hear the March trial.

District Attorney John B. Holmes Jr. filed a lawsuit May 10 seeking McMaster's removal, alleging the judge lives in Galveston County and not in Harris County.

State law requires a judge to live in his jurisdiction.

Port, 18, was convicted in the June 7, 1984, shooting death of mail carrier Debora Sue Schatz. Ms. Schatz, 23, disappeared while delivering mail in the Houston neighborhood where Port lived. Her body was found two days later in a secluded, wooded area in northwest Harris County.

Port was convicted March 15. Under state law, a request for a new trial must be filed within 30 days. But Zimmermann contends the question of McMaster's authority did not arise until the 30-day period had ended.

Zimmermann's motion was filed with state District Judge Jon Hughes, the administrative judge for Harris County courts. But Hughes sent the motion back to McMaster for a ruling.

Zimmermann said he will again talk to Hughes about his motion.

In 1952, Prime Minister Winston Churchill announced that Britain had produced its own atomic bomb.

Holmes decisions Williams; earns 48th straight victory

RENO, Nev. (AP) - Larry Holmes "is happy with what I've done. If I don't fight again, I'm happy."

The 35-year-old International Boxing Federation heavyweight champion built his record to 48-0 with a 15-round decision over Carl "The Truth" Williams Monday night.

It moved him to within one win of the 49-0 record of Rocky Marciano, the only heavyweight champion to retire without having lost a fight.

The victory in the nationally televised fight was unanimous - by big margins on two of the three official cards.

But it wasn't easy.

"I thought the fight was close," Williams said. "I don't think he did enough to get a unanimous decision.

"He's a great champion, and we all love him, but I thought I did a hell of a job. I thought I outboxed him."

Judges Al Rothenberg and Paul Gibbs each favored Holmes 146-139 (11-4 in rounds). Judge Jerry Roth saw it 143-142 (8-7) for Holmes. All three men gave Holmes the last four rounds.

The AP scored it 145-140 (10-5) for Holmes.

"The fights are not getting easier, they're getting harder," said Holmes, who had said before stopping David Bey in the 10th round March 15 that that would be his last fight.

"The opponents are not getting older, they're getting younger," he told several reporters in his hotel suite.

Holmes appeared hurt on a couple of occasions, suffered contusions about both eyes and was bone tired.

He skipped the post-fight news conference.

There was no question that Holmes was one tired fighter after his battle with the 25-year-old Williams.

Before the fight, attended by 6,046 fans at the 12,100-seat Lawlor Events Center, Holmes said he planned to fight twice more before his 36th birthday in a bid to break Marciano's record.

But in his suite after the fight, he said, "That could change. Williams was stronger than the films showed, more determined than the films showed.

"What I want to do is really sit back and look at myself. If I do fight again, we're not going to fight for $2 million (he got $2.3 million Monday night to $175,000 for Williams). The price is going up."

Williams, who went into the fight with a 16-0 record, with 12 knockouts, was cut above the left eye in the third round.

Williams, who weighed 215 pounds to 222¼ for Holmes, shook the champion with head and body combinations in the fifth and sixth rounds and with a flurry to the head in the 11th when Holmes' left eye began to close.

But the challenger from White Plains, N.Y., wasted a lot of motion and time by often circling Holmes without throwing any punches.

"Larry should have punched to the body more," said trainer Eddie Futch.

"When you go to the body, you leave the head open," Holmes said. "I didn't want to leave the head open because he's a pretty fair puncher."

Holmes hurt Williams early in the 15th round with a right hand that backed him up, followed by three more rights to the head and a right to the body. But the champion was just too tired to be able to follow up for his 35th knockout.

First-round baseball pairings established

MISSION, Kan. (AP) - The NCAA Division I Baseball Committee announced Monday the first-round regional pairings and the final 11 at-large teams for the 39th annual NCAA Division I Baseball Championship.

Added to the at-large field were Arizona, California, Florida, Houston, Louisiana State, Michigan, Nebraska, New Orleans, Oklahoma, South Carolina and Virginia.

Miami, Fla., and Texas were chosen as at-large teams last week. Defending champion Cal State Fullerton did not make the 38-team field.

The committee also seeded the top five teams: Arkansas, Miami, Mississippi State, Oklahoma State and Stanford. The top five teams may not be assigned to the same regional.

Oklahoma State and Fresno State will host regionals by virtue of winning their respective conference championships and the committee awarded the remaining two regionals to Miami and South Carolina.

All regionals and the College World Series are double-elimination tournaments. The College World Series begins May 31 at Rosenblatt Stadium in Omaha, Neb.

The regional winner pairings for the first round of the College World Series are East vs. South II; Midwest vs. South I; West I vs. Atlantic; and Central vs. West II.

Free agent issue key subject in baseball talks once more

NEW YORK (AP) - The free agent issue, which triggered the 1981 baseball players' strike, is up front again in this year's contract talks.

The club owners proposed on Monday a plan that would limit salaries for free agents and other players who move from one team to another as a way "to put baseball back somewhere in a break-even position."

Union chief Don Fehr said his first reaction was that the proposal appeared to be "a step backward of the most enormous magnitude because it would do away with free agency in baseball as we know it."

Lee MacPhail, president of the owners' Player Relations Committee and management's chief negotiator, said the payroll plan is "patterned after the NBA's salary cap," and called it the most significant proposal made thus far in the sporadic contract talks. He said it would not affect the salaries of players already on the 40-man rosters, but would limit what teams could spend on others subsequently acquired.

It was part of an eight-point contract offer in which management also said it would be willing to do away with the free agent re-entry draft, with which the players have agreed to dispense, and to eliminate professional players as compensation to teams which lose high-ranking free agents, a major issue in the 50-day strike.

About management's willingness to abolish the re-entry draft, Fehr said:

"If you do away with the re-entry draft and say all players can negotiate with all clubs, that's one thing. If you then say most clubs can't sign any free agents, that makes the first rather meaningless."

"All we were trying to do was slow the dramatic increase in salaries," MacPhail said of the plan. "Our objective is by slowing that increase to allow baseball revenues to catch up with our costs and put baseball back somewhere in a break-even position where the clubs could stand financially on their own two feet."

The owners, who say baseball is having severe economic problems, last week gave the union data which showed an aggregate loss last year of $36 million, with 24 teams reporting. MacPhail said that when the two remaining clubs report, the figure could go as high as $42 million.

Fehr, acting executive director of the Players Association, said Monday's proposals would be presented to the union's executive committee at a meeting in Chicago on Thursday where player representatives are expected to vote to request strike authorization from the players.

Arkansas clubbers 'hog' all-tournament honors

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - After winning their first Southwest Conference post-season baseball championship, Arkansas also grabbed the hog's share of the all-tournament honors.

The Razorbacks, who wrapped up the tournament title with a 10-6 victory over Texas Sunday, landed seven players on the all-tournament squad selected by media covering the ninth annual tournament.

Leading the way for the Razorbacks was junior first baseman Dave Patterson who batted a hefty .700 with seven hits on ten trips to the plate over a three-game stretch. In addition, Patterson was named the tournament's outstanding player.

Joining Patterson on the all-tourney team for the Razorbacks were outfielders Norm Roberts and Mike Loggins, third baseman Jeff King, designated hitter Ralph Kraus, and pitchers Fred Farwell and Tim Deitz.

Texas, the round-robin champion and tournament runnerup, landed four players on the squad: pitcher Greg Swindell, second baseman Bill Bates, outfielder David Wrzesinski, and utility infielder Dodd Johnson.

Greg Dennis of Baylor was named as the all-tournament shortstop while teammate Tony Huey was selected as the utility outfielder. Houston's Pat Hewes was named as the all-tournament catcher.

Patterson, Roberts and Swindell were unanimous choices.

California woman gives birth to 7

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — A 30-year-old woman pregnant with septuplets was delivered today of six live babies, but the seventh was born dead, hospital officials said.

The first of the septuplets, a baby girl, was born at 8:19 a.m., said hospital spokeswoman Rosemarie Persek. Two boys and a girl were born at 8:20 a.m. and two males were born at 8:21 a.m., she said.

A girl born at 8:22 a.m. died, Ms. Persek said.

She said the conditions of the children and their weights were not known.

Dozens of doctors, nurses and therapists had mobilized for Patricia Frustaci's high-risk, multiple delivery, which was by Caesarean section.

Mrs. Frustaci, who took the fertility drug Pergonal, entered the hospital March 25 with doctors hoping to stave off the mass birth at least until the 28th week.

The seven fetuses weigh about 1½ to 2 pounds apiece.

"No matter what happens, how many can say they've carried seven babies at once?" Mrs. Frustaci said earlier in her pregnancy.

"We're praying and hoping they all make it," she said. "But we're going in with our eyes open. We're not expecting the world."

The family's attorney, Andrew Wallet, said the Frustacis intend to sell their story, and already have received several offers from publications.

"Quite honestly, they're going to need it (the money)," he said.

Depending on the outcome of the pregnancy, Mrs. Frustaci said she and her husband may have to expand their four-bedroom home in Orange, about 30 miles southeast of Los Angeles. When both are working, their income is $40,000 a year, she said.

Mrs. Frustaci, a high school English teacher, and her husband, Samuel, 31, a salesman for an industrial firm, also have a 1-year-old son, Joseph.

According to the Guinness Book of World Records, the largest recorded multiple birth was nine babies in Sydney, Australia, in 1971. None survived more than six days.

Guinness lists three cases in which sextuplets (six babies) survived: In Cape Town, South Africa, in 1974; in Florence, Italy, in 1980; and in Liverpool, England, in 1983.

In the case of septuplets, there has been no multiple birth where all the infants survived, said Ms. Orleans.

The statistical occurrence of natural conception of septuplets is one in 500 trillion, but no statistics are available on such occurrences when the parents have been aided by fertility drugs, she said.

Mrs. Frustaci was confined to her bed and given medication to prevent premature labor, said Debra Conkey, another hospital spokeswoman.

She gained more than 50 pounds during her pregnancy, including 10 pounds last week, the spokeswoman said.

The theft of a lawn mower was reported Monday to police by O.L. Lane of 2507 Ave. X.

He noted the theft from his residence at 11:48 a.m.

According to reports, the mower — valued at $219 — was apparently taken from the yard of the Lane residence sometime between 4 p.m. Saturday and noon Sunday.

In other action, city officers jailed one suspect for driving while intoxicated Monday night.

1 wreck Monday

A single minor traffic accident was reported in Snyder Monday, a 12:01 p.m. mishap in the 2400 Block of Ave. R.

Israeli prisoners of war return home

HATZOR AIR BASE, Israel (AP) — Three Israeli prisoners of war swapped for more than 1,100 Arab prisoners, many of them convicted terrorists, returned to joyous family reunions today. But the lopsided trade touched off violent protests.

The exchange took more than 26 hours to complete, and stretched the length of Israel and on to Switzerland. It ended at dawn when the Israeli soldiers landed at a military air field near Hatzor, 20 miles south of Tel Aviv.

"Hallelujah, Hallelujah, praise the Lord for his goodness and mercy in the redemption," an Israeli military rabbi said as the soldiers, pale and tired-looking, were swept into the arms of waiting relatives, friends and comrades. Champaigne corks popped and happy relatives sobbed. "Go slowly, go slowly, mother. Calm down," Pvt. Yossi Groff, 24, told his mother, Miriam.

Sgt. Hezi Shai, 31, said he was going home to see the daughter who was born after he was taken captive. The third soldier was Pvt. Nissim Salem, 21.

The soldiers were the last Israelis known to be in Arab hands, and the exchange was one of the final chapters of the invasion of Lebanon that began on June 6, 1982. In a matter of days, Israel is expected to pull its remaining forces from Lebanon.

But the deal set off protests by some of the 45,000 Jewish settlers on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, and prompted calls for the release of 25 people convicted or standing trial for allegedly belonging to a Jewish underground organization that attacked Palestinians.

In Hebron, a dozen settlers opened fire late Monday night to break up a celebration by Palestinians, who danced in the street when prisoners arrived home.

Six-hundred five of the Arabs freed were sent back to homes in Israel or to the occupied territories. Three-hundred ninety-four were flown to Geneva, Switzerland, and 151 were sent to Syria.

Among those flown to Switzerland was Kozo Okamoto, the only survivor of a three-man Japanese terrorist squad that machine-gunned 27 people to death at Ben-Gurion — formerly called Lod — Airport in 1972. Japan's foreign minister, Shitaro Abe, said today that his country regretted Okamoto's release because it might lead to more terrorism.

The exchange was worked out via Red Cross intermediaries with the Syrian-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, a radical faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Food prices down slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first food price drop in 11 months offset a continued creep in energy costs to hold the April inflation rate to 0.4 percent, the government reported today.

Food prices, which had held flat in March, declined by 0.2 percent last month — the first drop since May, when they fell by the same percentage.

Gasoline prices, continuing to spurt upward from what analysts have characterized as unusually depressed winter levels, rose 3.1 percent on a seasonally adjusted basis that took into account traditional spring increases.

Excluding energy and food, the Consumer Price Index rose 0.3 percent last month. For the first four months of 1985, inflation at the retail level was running at an annual rate of 4.2 percent, just slightly ahead of the 4.0 percent of last year.

In a separate report today, the Commerce Department said the economy grew at a sluggish 0.7 percent annual rate in the first three months of the year. The gain, the slowest since the end of the 1981-82 recession, was attributed to aggressive foreign competition for American goods.

All in all, the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index report for April was a reaffirmation of analysts' assessment that the 0.5 percent increase in March prices was an aberation and that inflation for 1985 will hold steady.

Prior to the big March increase, which had been attributed almost entirely to a big jump in fuel costs, the CPI had risen 0.2 percent in January and 0.3 percent in February.

Today's report followed a Monday stock market rally in which the Dow Jones industrial average closed at a record high of 1304.88 in response to the Federal Reserve Board's move Friday to drive interest rates down by cutting the interest on loans to member banks.

Fed board members, in turn, had made clear on several recent occasions that continued signs of moderate inflation made them less fearful about spurring a lagging economy with an interest rate cut.

San Antonio pupil stabbed at school

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 15-year-old Page Middle School student was stabbed in a hallway while his mother was talking to the school's principal about her son, authorities said.

Oscar Sanchez was in fair condition at a local hospital after the Monday attack.

Another student, also 15, was arrested and being held in a juvenile detention facility, police said.

The stabbing occurred at the same school where in March another student who said he was tired of being bullied shot and wounded another student.

Sanchez staggered into the principal's office where his mother, Rosa Sanchez, was talking to Principal Tom Valdez about harassment her son was getting from another student.

"He said, 'Look, he stabbed me. I told you,'" she said. "I've been complaining since last year."

Mrs. Sanchez said she believed the same boy arrested Monday is the one who has been bullying her son.

"He's been bothering my son. I don't know why they let him (suspect) come to school," she said.

Nicaraguan president says Soviets meeting oil needs

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Soviet Union has promised to supply leftist Nicaragua with 80 percent to 90 percent of its oil needs this year, President Daniel Ortega announced on his return from a 14-nation tour.

Ortega came home Monday with expressions of support from virtually every country he visited in an attempt to get economic aid to offset the effects of U.S. trade sanctions.

But while many nations said they would not join the embargo, there were few specific public pledges of aid. Ortega declined to disclose how much economic help he was given, but said the trip was worthwhile for the Soviet promise alone.

"This is not the right time to inform about the total amount," he said.

"We know that the results were positive in the political and the economic (areas), but we also know that our economic problems can't be resolved in the short-term with the tour I carried out, since what we are experiencing in Nicaragua is an economy of survival," Ortega said.

Government sources who spoke on condition of anonymity had said Ortega went to Moscow in hopes of getting $200 million in economic aid. Nicaragua needs 15,000 barrels of oil each day, and the amount promised by the Soviet Union would be close to the $200 million figure in value.

Ortega started his trip April 26, days before President Reagan announced a U.S. trade embargo against Nicaragua.

One transformer caused shutdown

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (AP) — A failed transformer in a device that regulates power to monitoring instruments at the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant's Unit 1 reactor caused the unit's shutdown, officials said.

The unit was restarted Sunday, one day after the failure caused an automatic shutdown.

Unit 1, which has a top generating capacity of 1.1 million kilowatts, was at 7 percent power, said Pacific Gas & Electric spokesman Ron Rutkowski. He said there was no estimate of when the reactor would return to 100 percent.

Diablo Canyon is located about midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Captured papers show connection

DALLAS (AP) — Leftist Salvadoran guerrillas got military training in Vietnam, Bulgaria, East Germany and the Soviet Union, according to documents seized last month with a Salvadoran rebel leader and reported today in The Dallas Morning News.

The papers also indicate that Salvadoran rebels were asked to fight in the Sandinista army if the United States invaded Nicaragua, and detail problems between guerrilla political representatives and insurgent military commanders, the News said.

The documents, some punctured by bullets, were also obtained by The New York Times and appeared in today's editions of both newspapers.

The diaries, notebooks and correspondence were captured April 19 with a badly wounded senior rebel commander, Nidia Diaz, and were authenticated by U.S. Embassy officials and senior Salvadoran military officers, the newspapers said.

The Central American Revolutionary Workers' Party, one of five factions in the Farabundo Marti Revolutionary Front, or FMLN, sent 29 people to study "explosives use" and take "technical courses" in Vietnam, Bulgaria, East Germany and the Soviet Union in 1984 and 1985, according to notes in Ms. Diaz's diary.
