Treat the Family to Spiced Goodies

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

OFTEN the family tires of a cake that is served over and over again. And really it's more interesting to use new recipes occasionally, or to dress up old favorites with a new combination of spices, chopped nuts, or raisins.

Have you ever baked an apple butter cake? It's delicious, and will keep indefinitely—unless the children find where you hide it. Fruit cake made with prepared mince meat is easy to mix and bake—and it is spiced just right, too.

A moderate oven—from 350° to 375° Fahrenheit—is best for baking any cake containing butter. Most loaf cakes require from 45 to 60 minutes, while layer cakes need about 20 minutes, depending on size and thickness.

These recipes for easily prepared spice cakes have been carefully tested:

Mince Meat Cake

Cream together: 1 cup brown sugar; 1/2 cup butter. Add: 2 eggs; 1 cup buttermilk or sour milk; 1 lb. can mince meat; 1 cup raisins. Sift together: 2 1/2 cups flour; 1 tsp. soda; 1 tsp. baking powder; 1 tsp. cocoa; a little salt. Mix together, and bake in a moderate oven. Frost with boiled frosting, and sprinkle with 1/2 cup chopped nuts and raisins.

Apple Butter Cake

(A delicious, easy-to-make spice cake)
1/2 cup butter; 1 cup sugar; 1 egg well beaten; 1 cup apple butter; 1 tsp. soda;

1 1/4 cup flour; 1 tsp. salt.

Cream butter and sugar, and add well beaten egg and next add apple butter mixed with soda. Gradually stir in flour which has been mixed and sifted with the salt. Bake in a loaf pan in a moderate oven for one hour. Frost with boiled frosting. Nuts may be added to the cake if desired.

Boiled Frosting

2 cups granulated sugar; 2/3 cup cold water; 1/2 tsp. pure cider vinegar.

Boil without stirring until the frosting forms a long thread which does not shrink when dropped from tip of spoon. Remove from fire, and pour over 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Beat until creamy, flavor with vanilla, and spread over cake.

Chocolate Spice Cake

2 cups sugar; 4 eggs; 2/3 cup butter; 2 squares chocolate; 1 cup mashed potatoes; 2 cups flour; 3/4 teaspoon baking powder; 2/3 cup milk; 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves; 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg; 1/2 teaspoon mace; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; 1 cup chopped nuts.

Cream the butter and half of the sugar, and add the egg yolks, which have been beaten with the rest of the sugar. Then add the melted chocolate to the hot mashed potatoes, and combine with the first mixture. Sift the dry ingredients together, and stir into the cake mixture alternately with the milk. Add the chopped nuts, which have been dredged with a little flour, and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a loaf pan in a moderate oven. When cool, cover with boiled icing.

of communication with the various clubs, the radio, and the press.

It is only a bit of service for each of these agencies and individually it amounts to but little, but the team-work counts for a great deal. When the results of the combined efforts of all have been accomplished these policies will be sufficiently disseminated, and our good Texas citizens will be observing the two programs and in so doing will be making ours a better state in which to live.

Station WFAA is kindly giving one hour, beginning at 10:00 o'clock on the first Thursday morning of each month, to broadcasting for the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs. Club women are cordially invited to send whatever message they may wish to be broadcast to their District Chairman of Radio, who in turn sends it to the state chairman of radio, and the state chairman transmits it to the supervisor of the station above mentioned. Your message should be in the hands of the state chairman of radio as early as the 25th of the month preceding the first Thursday of the next month. May we not listen in, when our turn comes, and be informed of the many worth while things the women of Seventh District are doing? Who will be the first? Send your message to Mrs. Lee Patton, Jayton, Texas, Chairman of Radio for the Seventh District.

KANSAS BANKER A SUICIDE

Sun City, Kans., March 11.—Guy H. Wilmut, 49, cashier of the Sun State Bank here, committed suicide sometime last night by shooting himself in the head. A state bank examiner had arrived yesterday to investigate the bank's records.

Wilmut's body was found early today behind a barn on the west edge of town, several blocks from his home. In a note to his wife left on the back porch of his home, he was understood to have said "it is the only way out" and to have mentioned irregularities in his accounts.

The bank was closed today by its directors. G. W. Lott is president. Three children survive Wilmut.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

The Colon

It has impressed me very much the past year—the attention being paid to the human colon, especially by irregular practitioners and out-right quacks. Perhaps the colon has been neglected by its individual possessors; it may be that earnest physicians have overlooked the principal sewer of the body to a certain extent, and maybe not. Anyway, the quack is capitalizing big on the "colon craze" and its many victims.

A normal colon demands no attention whatever. If disease, the treatment depends on the nature of the trouble, which only a capable physician can diagnose. To me, the height of stupidity is to imagine you have "colon trouble," and pay some charlatan a big sum (in advance) to guarantee you a cure!

I cannot go into symptoms, diagnosis and treatment here; your physician is the man to do that. But I may caution you strongly against the abuse of powerful purgatives, in order to force a tired, relaxed organ into activity. Better build up your nervous system, take outdoor exercise, appropriate diet, and plenty of drinking-water. Medicines are for pathological conditions. Physical methods, such as hinted above, are much more valuable in physiological delinquencies.

I do not permit my patients to eat "skin, fibers or seeds." Skins of baked apples, grapes, cherries and the like; fibers—of tough meat imperfectly masticated, or of celery, radish or cucumber, etc.; seeds such as are in blackberry pie, raspberry jam, and other delicacies of similar nature. All are harmful to lazy colons. Sweet milk may be taken too freely, and if constipating, should be excluded. The wholegrain cereals with cream, I have found beneficial.

I am convinced thoroughly that the routine deluging of the colon with solutions of drugs is positively harmful. In ulcerations and malignancies, the colon tube used "hit or miss" may hasten a fatal issue. Treat your colon with the utmost respect, under skilled instruction.

PARADE DELIGHTFUL

CHEVALIER PLAYS IS PARAMOUNT'S LATEST TALKIE PRODUCTION

Chevalier, who has been the greatest European actor in success in American films, will be seen in his most gorgeous picture when "The Love Parade" is shown at the Ellis Theatre beginning on Friday next week.

John Roth, Lupino Lane in the Paramount Picture "The Love Parade"

"The Love Parade" is something new in all-talking musical film. It is just as Chevalier is a completely different from all other types.

The first place "The Love Parade" was written for the audible. It is not a film version of a previous stage production. It was expressly for the screen. The idea of the screen's amusement uppermost in the minds of the geniuses who made it.

The second place "The Love Parade" was directed by Ernst Lubitsch, who was named by vote of a poll taken by Film Daily as the foremost director in the industry. He has never turned a failure. One of his greatest successes was "The Patriot."

There are other qualities in "The Love Parade" to make it as probably the greatest romance of the New Show. The libretto or dialog was by Ernest Vajda and Guy Bolton who are veterans of their field. Both have written the books for fifty operettas and musicals.

Ernest Grey who wrote the lyrics for "The Love Parade" was the author of Ziegfeld's "Sally," "The Musketeers" and for "Hit the

She's "Not So Dumb"

Marion Davies Plays In New Talkie Taken From New York Stage Comedy Success

For the third time, King Vidor served as Marion Davies' director when "Not So Dumb" was filmed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a new starring talkie vehicle for the comedienne.

Before filming this picture, an adaptation of the famous stage farce, "Dulcy," which comes Wednesday and Thursday to the Ellis Theatre, Vidor directed two of Miss Davies' most successful films, "The Patsy" and "Show People."

"Not So Dumb," incidentally, is the second talkie for both star and director, Vidor's first having been "Hallelujah" and Miss Davies having made her debut in "Marianne."

SOUTH SEA IS STORY SETTING

NANCY CARROLL'S FIRST STARRING FILM IS ROMANTIC TALE OF TROPICS

After twelve pictures, which include some of Paramount's biggest hits, Nancy Carroll, red-headed, dancing, singing screen-player, will be seen at the Ellis Theatre, starting tomorrow for two days, in her first starring picture, "Dangerous Paradise." It is a gripping story of South Sea love and adventure, from incidents in a novel by Joseph Conrad.

Miss Carroll followed a meteoric stage career with a swift rise to screen prominence. Her picture hits include "Abie's Irish Rose," "The Shopworn Angel," "The Wolf of Wall Street," "Close Harmony," "The Dance of Life" and "Illusion." Her fan mail is exceeded in volume only by that of Clara Bow and Charles (Buddy) Rogers. She can sing. She can dance. And she has "star" personality.

As a member of an all-girl orchestra, Miss Carroll displays a new talent in "Dangerous Paradise." She plays the violin. Menaced by the proprietor of the South Sea hotel, in which the orchestra plays, Nancy flees to a tiny island where Richard Arlen, disappointed in love and embittered against all women, lives alone. She is interested in Arlen but his cold aloofness makes her furious. However, when three brutal ne-er-do-wells from the hotel follow her to the island, planning to rob and kill Arlen, her love triumphs in a breath-taking climax filled with action and suspense.

VAN DINE HIT IS IN TALKIES

THE FAMOUS "BISHOP MURDER CASE" WILL SHOW AT ELLIS NEXT MONDAY

In selecting "The Bishop Murder Case," as its next mystery-film to be shown at the Ellis Theatre Monday and Tuesday Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is said to have taken into consideration the two most important factors involved in entertainment of this type, namely, the character of the script, and the plot.

There are no trite situations in the plot of this new all-talking thriller and it is happily devoid of forced coincidences and of murders suddenly introduced in the last reel while the poor audience has been deluded into believing it had its choice from the group of players it had been watching throughout the major portion of the picture. Originality in mystery-films draws audiences quite as quickly as syrup gathers the proverbial flies, a fact of which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was apparently fully aware.

In selecting the cast, the producers made sure that there would be no inexperienced hand among the players to destroy the carefully built up illusions of the mystery-film. Basil Rathbone of "The Last of Mrs. Chaney" fame was chosen for the role of Philo Vance, detective. Others given prominent parts were Leila Hyams, whose previous mystery work was in "The Thirteenth Chair"; Roland Young of "Unholy Night"; Alec Francis, George Marion, Zeda Sears and a number of other capable players.

The plot centers about a series of murders starting with that of "Cock Robin," intimate of a group of scientists who live in an outlying district of New York. After each murder there is found a jeering note written in "Mother Goose" rhyme and signed "The Bishop." At the side of each body is found a black bishop from a chess set.

Philo Vance enters into the case when he discovers that Robin, first of the victims, was not killed by an arrow fired from a bow, but that the weapon had been driven into the man's heart, after his death.

Vance, Markham and a whole lot of detectives are baffled and worried by murders which continue right under their very noses. There doesn't seem to be a chance of finding the clever criminal until—well, it would hardly do to tell too much about the outcome of a mystery-film.

The screen adaptation of "The Bishop Murder Case" was made by Lenore J. Coffee.

The reception suite was gaily decorated with green and white ribbons and green shamrocks. The guests were divided into groups representing Irish families and then a sumptuous buffet supper served. A unique ceremony was observed during this period—that of carving a roast pig.

At the beginning of the game period, green and white candies were given to the heads of each family. These were used for money and paid to the winning families during the contests. A snake contest and the kissing of the Blarney Stone created a taste for the more boisterous games which followed. One of these was the making of chewing-gum pigs and such weird models as were made. Others were ribbon cutting and "Pat and Mike" contests. Prizes were snakes, confetti throwing and it was hard to distinguish dignified faculty members.

L. R. Conner and E. E. Shupe's families, the O'Flahertys, won the majority of the prizes. Those attending, other than faculty and board members, were Mr. and Mrs. W. B. LaMaster, Mrs. J. C. May and Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Cropper.

CHEVROLET WINS FIRST IN ECONOMY TEST RUN

Los Angeles.—Competing against a field of 41 other entrants, a 1930 Chevrolet six cylinder coach, driven by Mrs. Paul A. Lawrence of Los Angeles, won the sweepstakes and first place in its class in the annual Gilmore Blue-Green economy run here February 14.

Every type of road and grade was encountered in the run that covered 200 miles between Los Angeles and the Wrightwood mountains. Mrs. Lawrence's Chevrolet demonstrated its economical operation on a course that included city traffic, country roads and mountain stretches along a circuitous route rising from sea level to an elevation of 6,000 feet.

To win the event, the Chevrolet coach traveled 36.71 ton-miles to a gallon of gasoline, averaging 20.5 miles to the gallon for the 200 miles traversed. The total weight of the Chevrolet coach, with its driver and four passengers, was 5,000 pounds. No oil and no water were used during the run.

The economy test was staged under the supervision of the American Automobile association, sanctioned under 2306 and was limited to six classes of cars were presented among the 42 entries. The Chevrolet coach, with Mrs. Lawrence at the wheel, not only won first place in its class, but, in addition, won the sweepstakes for classes.

FARM FAMILY OF SOUTH SHOULD USE MORE MILK

In view of the general effort now being made by the agricultural leaders and general business interests in the South, and by the agricultural leagues and extension services of the Southern States, to get the farmers to produce more livestock and more of their kinds of crops instead of too much cotton, the present is a highly opportune time to emphasize the fact that every Southern farm should keep a cow or two to furnish milk and butter for the home table. O. E. Reed, chief of the bureau of dairy industry, U. S. department of agriculture.

"On thousands of farms in the South there are no dairy cows at all, and on thousands of other farms there but one cow is kept there might be another one or two kept to advantage, depending upon the number of people on the farm for whom food must be provided, whether this food is produced on the farm or bought," says the Federal dairy expert.

"With a cow or two on the farm, the case of the average farm the cotton-growing parts of the South," says Mr. Reed, "the family could be better nourished and healthier, the land would be enriched so that crop production would be more profitable, and the delay of cash money for feeding the farm family would be reduced."

Milk and butter—other products made from milk, are highly nutritious, are digested easily, are builders of bodily resistance against poor health and disease, and contribute much to the enjoyment of meals. Not only are they palatable in themselves, but they also add palatability to other foods.

"On the average farm, in most sections of the South, 2 to 4 acres of land of medium to good fertility will support 1 good dairy cow, and will furnish the forage, hay, and grain necessary for maintaining her in good production," says Mr. Reed. "In the case of the higher producing cow, it may be necessary to buy small amounts of wheat bran, cottonseed meal, or other protein concentrates to balance the home-grown feeds in the ration."

"Many Southern crops are suitable for milk production. For pasture the South has the grasses, or a mixture of grasses and clovers. For silage it has these crops—corn, the sorghums, milo, soybeans, peas, oats, and others, and mixtures of some of these. For hay, grown alfalfa, soybeans, clover, lespedeza, cowpeas or other legumes, or sudan grass. If the cow is a comparatively high producer, and you grow soybeans, oats, barley, kafir, or other small grains to feed her, add some high-protein concentrate, such as cottonseed meal, to her ration. Limited amounts of straw, cottonseed hulls, corn stover, or other roughages of the sort, can be fed with economy when the cow is getting a legume (high-protein) hay of good quality."

"The dairy cow has a very important part to play in cutting down the cost of farm living and diversifying agriculture in the South. Diversification—putting the eggs in more than one basket instead of in just one, cotton—has a very important part to play in Southern agriculture."

"Speaking of the average farm, whether it be South or North, diversification means greater profit and more reliable income from farming."

GOOD GARAGE LESSENS MOTOR DEPRECIATION

A car is known not so much by the company it keeps as by way it is kept. Many a good car, starting out from a reputable factory, with plenty of solid, well-earned reputation as its birthright, has gone to an early junk pile merely because its owners failed to give it a proper home. It may have been allowed to stay out by itself all right, losing its lustre and good looks, unprotected from the weather. Or it may have had the scant protection of a shack-garage, disreputable in appearance and crammed with fire hazards.

The growing practice of making the garage a part of the house insures a longer, more self-respecting life for the motor car. Too, it adds greatly to the convenience and usefulness of any automobile. It eliminates the bother of trekking out back in bad weather and the need for extra plumbing and heating installations which are necessary if a back-yard garage is modernized.

Present-day architects have evolved many ingenious plans for incorporating the garage on the front or side of a home, thereby leaving the space behind the house free for garden, lawn and other landscaping features which can be enjoyed in privacy by the family.

Naturally, building the garage as a part of the house puts added importance on the need for sound, fireproof construction. Most building codes require adequate fire-stops between the garage and the house proper, but if the entire house is built in the modern fashion, fireproof throughout, this detail will be automatically taken care of.

In any event, the accepted fire-safe materials are concrete (for the floor), concrete masonry (for the walls) and either slab concrete or cement plaster on metal (for the ceiling).

In many instances, it may be impracticable to incorporate the garage within the house. Attention then is focused on building the garage as a separate unit. Another element then enters the problem, for the garage must be designed architecturally to harmonize with the rest of the property. Modern stucco for the exterior finish, colored and textured to conform with the architecture of the house, may be relied on for satisfaction, particularly if the garage walls are constructed of stable, non-warping concrete masonry. Cement-asbestos shingles or concrete roofing tile complete the fire-safety which is essential.

A car given inadequate protection in a poor garage depreciates as rapidly as it would were it constantly on the road. As an investment in utility and pleasure, the motor car cannot wisely be allowed to depreciate while not in use.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINT HEADQUARTERS

Specify SWP and engage a good painter

Why SWP costs less on your house than any other paint

What will it cost to paint your house? This is what concerns you—not what the paint costs per gallon.

While fine old SWP costs more per gallon, it costs less on your home than any other paint. Why? Because one gallon of SWP will thoroughly paint almost twice as much surface as a gallon of cheaper paint. Therefore fewer gallons of SWP are needed.

So—ignoring the fact that SWP lasts twice as long as cheaper paint, and that its weatherproof colors retain their beauty to the very last—the first cost of painting your house with the world's best house paint is actually less than that of cheaper paint. Buy your paint on a job basis and save. Let us prove it to you by simple arithmetic.

SWP House Paint

The world's standard of house paint quality. SWP is made in one quality only and that the very best. Famous for long life and the permanency of its many beautiful colors. HASKELL B. LAWRENCE

A pall of gloom settled over this entire community on last Thursday evening when the word went out that Haskell Lawrence had passed on after an illness of only four days duration. Haskell took down with pneumonia after attending church on Sunday and the end came about nine-thirty Thursday evening.

Haskell Bradsher Lawrence was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eton Lawrence, pioneer citizens of this county. He was born August 28, 1897, near Huntsville in Randolph county, Missouri. When the Grim Reaper called on March 20, 1930, he was almost thirty-three years of age. He lived at the place of his birth until February, 1901, when he moved with his parents to Howard county, Mo., where he resided until November, 1907, when the Lawrence family came to Ochiltree with the first of the pioneer farmers. On March 10, 1919, he was united in marriage to Miss Cora Lee Stephens, who with one son, H. B. Junior, survives. Other surviving relatives are the father and mother; one brother, Robert; a sister, Mrs. Clarence Brown; both of whom reside in this county. He also leaves a number of other relatives and many, many friends, who join with the bereaved relatives in mourning his loss.

Haskell was a devout Christian and a church member. He professed his faith in Christ at a meeting held by Rev. G. I. Britain at Missouri Avenue in 1915, uniting with the Baptist church at Ochiltree. At the time of death, he was a member of the Perryton Baptist church. He was also a member of the Perryton Masonic and Odd Fellow lodges, the Masons having charge of the services which were held from the Baptist church last Saturday afternoon. Rev. E. G. Pennington, former Perryton pastor now located at Plainview, Texas, had charge of the services with Rev. C. L. Shelby assisting. Pall bearers were J. R. Thomas, M. M. Cudd, A. K. Wooten, Jack Clark, L. T. Tucker and Irvin Buchanan. Beautiful singing was rendered by Mrs. W. J. Brewer, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McLarty and Addison Cutler, with Mrs. L. T. Tucker at the piano.

Haskell Lawrence was a plain, honest, upright citizen. His departure so early in life is a loss which can never be filled. His friends were legion. He had been a citizen of this county since boyhood and was making a decided success in the farming and stock raising business. The remains were laid to rest in the cemetery at Ochiltree.

Hold Dairy Show

Dairy Show of Texas Panhandle-Plains To Open at Plainview, April 7

Plainview, March 26.—When the third annual Texas Panhandle-Plains dairy show opens in Plainview on April 7, it will be the culmination of the combined efforts of breeders, farmers, dairymen and business men of fifty-four Texas Panhandle counties, the greatest co-operative movement ever inaugurated in the Panhandle. In making a success of the show the people of Plainview, interested individuals and organizations will spend approximately $6,500. It is estimated that the attendance will total 30,000. The show opens on Monday and continues through Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Jersey breeders of the Panhandle will receive $1,000 in cash premiums, Holstein-Friesians $1,000 and the Guernsey department $1,000. Counties winning places in the county herd department will receive $300 and winners in the dairy products department will receive $162.50. In the 4-H Club boys dairy judging department the winners of first place will receive $24 and the second place $15. A total of $115 is offered in this department. In the vocational agricultural students judging contest the winner will receive $25 first, and $15 second. Premiums are offered in each class.

In addition to an exhibition of the best dairy cattle herds in the Panhandle the visitor to the dairy show will have an opportunity to see the first farm machinery show ever staged in Plainview. This exhibit will be housed in a new brick building near the dairy barn.

Ladies who visit the dairy show will be interested in knowing that this year the Plainview federation is staging a pure food show on the same dates as the dairy show. This will be found at the city auditorium.

GUNMAN'S BLUFF

1872 Edgar Wallace
COPYRIGHT BY EDGAR WALLACE

"Paddington," he said, and swung himself deftly inside. Evidently the driver was in some doubt as to whether he should continue. He went about two blocks and then pulled the car up by the side of the curb.

"Where have you come from?" he asked. "I can't take you, guv'nor. You look as if you were running away from somebody."

"I was," said Luke. It was not a moment to argue. He threw a two-shilling piece into the man's hand, turned down a narrow street conveniently near, and doubling back, reached the main road. Here he found a taxi moving at leisure, and a driver who did not question his bona fides.

The cab drew up at the entrance of Scotland Yard and Luke went swiftly down the declivity and into the gloomy entrance hall. A police officer on duty challenged him and asked his requirements.

"Mr. Bird's been gone for two hours, sir. I think he's gone into the country. Would you like to see anybody else?"

Groaning inwardly, Luke shook his head.

He came out on to the Thames Embankment at one end of the Yard as Gorton and his Flying Squad came in at the other. Turning left, he walked toward Waterloo Bridge. At Charing Cross Underground he made another attempt to get into touch with the Sparrow. There was a chance that the policeman was wrong and that Bird was still in town. He went to the telephone directory, but there were so many Birds that it was impossible to tell which was which. And then he remembered one of his initials—an unusual "Z" (Mr. Bird's middle name was Zachariah). He scanned the list again and going into the telephone booth, gave a number.

At first he thought his luck was in. "Yes, this is Mr. Bird's house," said a voice, "but he's out of town. Who is it speaking?"

"It is vitally necessary that I should get in touch with him as soon as possible," said Luke urgently. "Can you tell me where I can find him?"

"Who are you?" "Will you tell him it's Mr. Maddison speaking? I have been to Scotland Yard."

He felt a sudden draught. The door of the telephone booth was ajar; an unconcerned man was standing near by, and apparently had no interest either in him or his conversation. Luke shut the door again, and then, to his annoyance, found that whoever had spoken for Mr. Bird had hung up her receiver. Still that was a start. He almost felt a sense of relief as he came out on to the cold Embankment and pursued his way toward Waterloo.

He had not gone twelve yards before two men, walking quickly, overtook him and fell in one at each side.

"Hallo, Smith! Connor wants to see you."

He had never seen the man before. His tone was offensive and peremptory.

"And who may Mr. Connor be?" asked Luke coolly. "My name is not Smith, it is Maddison."

"That's all right, sir," said the other more respectfully, "but Mr. Connor does want to see you pretty badly."

"Where is he?" asked Luke after a moment's thought.

"At the top of Savoy Hill—there goes the Squad."

A car flashed past at that moment.

moment; the red light disappeared along the embankment.

"They call 'em buses and they are busy," said the second man bitingly.

They did not go up Savoy Hill but turned aside, passed one entrance of the Savoy Hotel and up a steep and narrow street. They turned again to the right.

"Where is Connor?"

"I'll tell you in a minute, when I've got a light for my fag," said the smaller of the two.

He struck a match, and Luke's eyes instinctively went to it. That is all he remembered. He did not feel the pain of any blow, but dropped limply to the pavement under the impact of a rubber cosh.

His head was splitting when he came to his senses. He was lying on the hard floor of a jolting motor car; he discovered afterward it was a tilting Ford wagon that bore innocently enough the name of a respectable firm of greengrocers. The two men were squatting by his side; one was smoking, and they were carrying on a conversation in a low voice.

"... That's what Connor told me," said one. "But Connor always thought this nut would put up a squeal."

Luke lay motionless; his head was throbbing, but he felt no discomfort. Apparently, although he could guess there was a bump as big as an egg on his skull, the blow had not drawn blood.

The car stopped. There was the creak of a gate being opened, and then they went forward again, going over uneven ground; presently the car stopped and the engine was shut off.

"Are you awake?" asked a voice. "I'm awake right," said Luke.

"Then get out of this. Why was you so foolish, Smith?"

A mild question from a man who, only ten minutes before, had stunned him.

He found himself in a room not only furnished but overturned.

Connor was sitting at a table shuffling a pack of cards. He looked up as Luke entered the room.

"Did you have to cosh him?" he asked pleasantly.

The man who held Luke's arm grinned.

"He wouldn't be sensible," he said. "Sit down," Connor pointed to a horsehair sofa against the wall, and Luke was glad to accept the invitation.

"Tried to put up a squeal, did you, Smith?"

There was nothing unfriendly in Connor's tone, but he did not cease shuffling the cards as he spoke.

"I thought you were a man when you did that bust—yes, one of my lads saw you get into that flat, and saw you when you bolted. But you're nothing better than a dirty squealer. Went in the Yard and asked for the Sparrow, did you? Is he a pal of yours?"

"I know him," said Luke.

Mr. Connor nodded pleasantly.

"And then you tried to get him on the phone—what was the squeal about? Don't trouble to tell me: I know. I never trusted you from the first Smith—I don't trust Australians."

Despite his aching head, Luke could not smile at this libel.

"I shouldn't think they trust you a great deal, do they?" he asked.

"Not much," said Connor.

He cut the pack into two, shuffling them scientifically, and all the time his eyes were on Luke.

"So you know the Sparrow? That's good. I'll bet you know Danty, too."

Luke started.

"Danty Morell?" he asked.

Why had Danty gone out of his mind? Why had he forgotten that Danty was the confidant of his wife—that his one desire, in seeking freedom from the sinister environment in which he found himself, had been to expose that confidence man?

"Know Danty, too?" Connor's voice was almost admiring. "And Pi Coles?"

Luke nodded.

"Yes, Coles—that's his servant."

Connors smiled broadly, and there were grins on the faces of the other two men.

"Pi is his servant all right. You seem to know the whole darn shoot! I'm telling you, Smith, that a man that knows Danty and the Lewing gang, and calls at Scotland Yard to see his friend the Sparrow, isn't a healthy fellow to have around the house."

There was a long pause, and then he added:

"That's why you're not going to be around the house."

He looked up at one of the men thoughtfully.

"When is high tide?"

"Four o'clock."

Connor nodded. Again his dark eyes fell on Luke.

"You a good swimmer?"

"Fair," said Luke coolly.

"We'll give you a little dip tonight," said Connor. "Put him in the cooler, Harry."

Connor carried on a legitimate if unprofitable business. He was a dealer in certain building material, and barges came regularly but at rare intervals to this wharf and were unloaded. He bought and sold scrap iron, cement, any commodity which offered an immediate profit. The wharf could be, and was, hired for a fee.

A few paces from the door of the sitting room they came to another. Luke could not help wondering whether the little chamber into which he was thrust had been used before for the same purpose. It had no windows, but in other respects was curiously like a prison cell. It might have been employed for the storage of coal, but there was nothing in it now, not even a bed or a stool. In the light of the man's electric torch he saw that the walls were of brick and whitewashed. Then the door slammed on him; he heard a bolt shot, and he was left alone with the unpleasant knowledge that it would be high tide in five hours, and that Mr. Connor, in his amiable way, had planned "a dip" for him.

Margaret found several sheets of notepaper on the floor of Luke's room. She picked up one, read it and gasped. The date had been scrawled in on the top line, and it began:

My dear Hulbert, I am in a most terrible

It was Luke's writing! It was Luke who had been there that night. She found another sheet covered with smudged writing; this also was addressed to the solicitor, but the three scrawled lines were undecipherable. He had deliberately crossed them out. Evidently he had sat down to write a letter to Hulbert, had made two attempts and then had changed his mind.

It was so like Luke: he could never resist the temptation offered by a sheet of note paper—he must write to somebody, he had often told her.

Luke had been here: Luke was the burglar. But why?

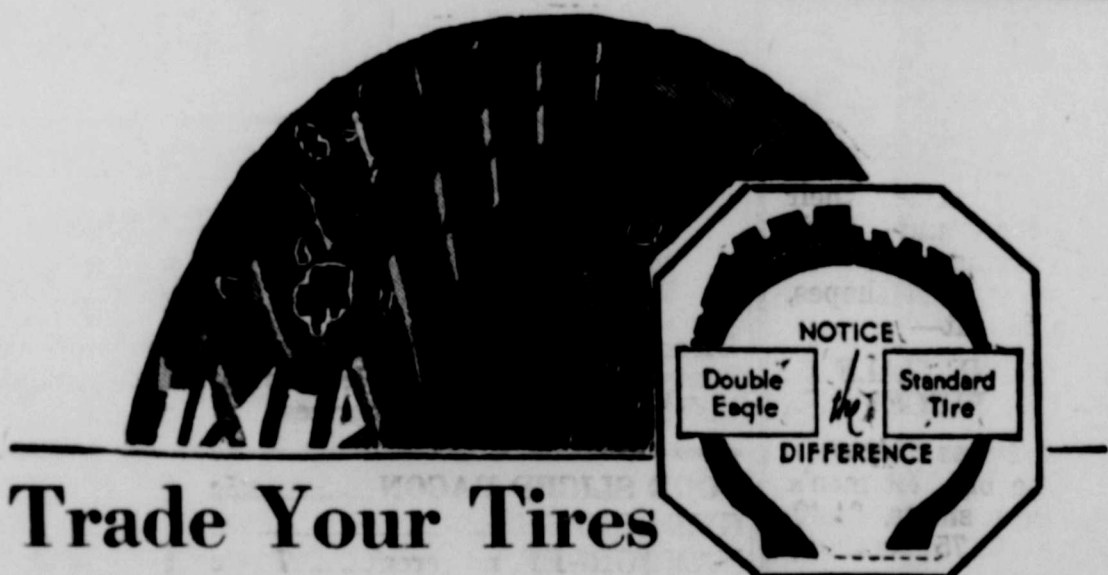

She turned to the detective, and it was on the tip of her tongue to make the revelation when he said something that struck speech from her lips.

"He must have been a pretty bad man, that fellow—one of our men recognized him as the chap who was driving a car this afternoon when Taffanny's was robbed. He gave one of the shop assistants a punch in the jaw—"

This will be a good service and

EMPHASIZE 3 AIMS IN MEAT COOKERY

Food specialists in the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture have emphasized three definite aims in meat cookery.

1. To cook meat according to the cut. Tender cuts can be cooked quickly unless they are large roasts, and are best cooked in utensils without lids and without water. Less tender cuts should be cooked slowly with enough water to soften the connective tissue.

2. To cook meat to bring out the maximum of flavor. Browning meat on the outside and then cooking in the appropriate way for the tend-ness of the cut brings out a rich flavor. Savory stuffings and well-flavored gravies enhance the flavor of meat.

3. To eliminate guesswork as to when the meat is done. The oven thermometer and the roast-meat thermometer are recommended as a means to this end. "So many minutes to the pound" is not a sure guide. The roast-meat thermometer, put directly into the meat before the cooking is begun, shows when the desired stage has been reached. Moreover, it shows when to stop cooking. This way of roasting insures always having the roast exactly the way one likes it; not right one time and a little bit wrong the next time.

Says He And Wife Will Always Speak A Good Word For Argotane

"Anyone who had noticed the dreadful condition my wife was in can readily see the great change
Argotane has made in her," said
J. E. McCallum living on rural route No. 1, Amarillo, Texas.

"My wife has improved so much that her neighbors often speak of it.
Her health has been broken up for years and she suffered from stomach trouble. Her appetite left her and what little she did eat would sour on her stomach causing gas to form. She was never able to eat breakfast at all. She was weak and dizzy and had terrible raging headaches and was losing weight and strength. She had severe cramps in her stomach and sides most of the time and could not sleep and toss at night and never got very much rest. She had a bad case of constipation.

"Since taking Argotane my wife is greatly improved and feels like a different person. She isn't bothered with stomach trouble and constipation and Argotane has certainly helped her and we think it is a wonderful medicine and both will always speak a good word for it."

Genuine Argotane may be bought

POWER PAYS

Some time when you want to hear us talk a long time, ask us to reel off the names of all the folks who have bought Mc-Cormick-Deering Tractors during the past two or three years.
W. L. Eads is the latest convert.

Ask H. C. Graham some day
what he thinks of his new Mc-Cormick-Deering Tractor. He took one out a few days ago. We think he had noticed that most of his neighbors had McCormick-Deerings and he wanted to get in on a good thing, too. Can't blame him—the unit main frame alone is reason enough why a man should buy a McCormick-Deering. And, as Al Jolson would say, "You ain't heard nothing yet."

The writer found a pair of glasses. The loser may obtain them at our store by describing same.

You knew that an accurate governor on a tractor engine was essential for satisfactory operation on drawbar as well as on belt work, but did you know that present models of McCormick-Deering Tractors have governors with all working parts entirely enclosed and with all joints thoroughly oiled, thus insuring even-running at all times with practically no attention?

Did you know that all Mc-Cormick-Deering Tractor engines have removable cylinder sleeves made of exceptionally hard cast iron of uniform thickness, making it possible to replace one or all of them in three or four hours, at a cost far below that of a reboing job, which construction means a longerlived tractor with low repair charges?

We have a good stock of used tractors of different makes, including McCormick - Deering, Hart Parr, Allis-Chalmers and John Deere.

So long, see you next week.

THE PANHANDLE OF TEXAS

John H. White, Borger, Texas.

Until recent years the Panhandle country of Texas was regarded as unfit for agricultural uses. This has been disproved, especially in the past three or four years.

The Panhandle area proper consists of something like 36,000 square miles. The terrain for the most part is level or slightly rolling, with canyons adjacent to sections along the Canadian River.

Prior to the World War, comparatively little of this great area was under cultivation. Very little of the plains land in the northern part was cultivated, due to no railroad facilities, and no roads to speak of.

The great development of the Panhandle did not begin until 1926 or rather to say in the spring of 1927, when railroad construction was started. Records of new rails laid in the Nation in the past three years show the Panhandle country of Texas to be far in the lead.

Five years ago choice land could be purchased for six to ten dollars an acre; in 1928 the price ranged from fifteen to twenty dollars; in 1929 from thirty to thirty-five dollars, and at the present time the average is close to forty dollars an acre. This, of course, is speaking of land in section lots. (640 acres.)

What has caused this great increase in farm land values? Several factors have entered in. First, it has been amply demonstrated that the land would grow more wheat per acre than any other land hitherto tried. (This included what land was put in wheat in Kansas and other nearby states, as well as the great wheat country of the Northwest.) Second, the coming of the railroad to open hundreds of thousands of acres, and third, the ease with which the terrain permitted power machinery to do the necessary work.

In the north central part of the Panhandle (Hansford County) it is said that less than 1,000 acres were in cultivation prior to the World War. Today it is safe to say that better than 200,000 acres are in cultivation, and prospects are for the greatest wheat crop the Panhandle has ever known. One grain farmer has something like 9,000 acres in wheat at the present time.

The question may be asked if the saturation point in land values will soon be reached? The answer is no. When a farming country has hundreds of thousands of acres yet untitled, and where even at forty dollars an acre the land will pay for itself in a season or so, the saturation point has NOT BEEN REACHED. It is predicted that with the ever increasing influx of farmers to the Panhandle counties that land will sell from sixty to eighty dollars an acre within two to three years and that the average per acre five years hence will be around one hundred dollars. Farmers in old established communities pay from twice to five times for the same land they would need pay in this Panhandle country. In those communities it is estimated if a farm will pay for itself in fifteen to twenty years that they have made a good bargain. I know of many communities where farmers work their entire lifetimes to own a farm of from sixty to one hundred and twenty acres. I do say that if the communities in the Panhandle interest in bringing in new settlers that it would be but a few years until the farm population of the Panhandle would be doubled and trebled. The more people who settle in a community the better it becomes for the others who reside there. It means of course increased property valuations, and taxes, but with that it means better schools, better roads and the other things which go to make living more worth while. Business would become better and allow for a greater community building.

I doubt if any section of the entire country will show a greater percentage of growth than has the Panhandle country of Texas. From a few thousands population back in 1920, the country has grown until now there are in the hundred thousands here. Its business conditions are fundamentally sound as is evidenced by business surveys to be found in such periodicals as the "Notions Business".

The Panhandle country of Texas welcomes new settlers. They are given a helping hand and made to "feel to home". There is room for many here, both settlers and workers. This country is worth the investigation of every man who wants to make good and at some time in his life to be INDEPENDENT.

(Editor's Note) The above well written article is from the pen of John H. White, Borger, Texas. Mr. White is correct in the main concerning the great agricultural progress which has been made in the Panhandle. However, his remarks concerning land values and increases since 1925 are wrong insofar as Ochiltree county is concerned. This county started developing sooner than most sections of the Panhandle and it has been about twenty years since good farming land could be purchased here for as low as six dollars per acre.

DEPUTY SHERIFF IS WARM FRIEND OF NEW KONJOLA

"New Medicine Certainly Made Good In a Wonderful Way in My Case," He Declares

MR. THOMAS W. WARREN
Results are what count, and Konjola can be counted on for results.

and results are what sufferers need and want. Don't hesitate about Konjola if stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels are out of order, or if rheumatism, neuritis or nervousness make life miserable. Now read the grateful words of Mr. Thomas W. Warren, deputy sheriff, Arkoma, Oklahoma, who says:

"This new medicine, Konjola, certainly made good in a wonderful way in my case, and I thought there was no medicine under the sun that could get my stomach and kidneys right. Three years ago I had a bad attack of the 'flu' and this left me in a terrible condition generally. Soon rheumatism set in, and my condition was alarming. Medicine after medicine failed, and the outlook was dark indeed."

"I was induced to try Konjola by the many endorsements this medicine was winning all around me. Well, Konjola proved to be the very medicine I needed. In four weeks my friends were asking me what in the world I had done to look so well. And you can bet that I told them that Konjola and Konjola alone was responsible for my recovery and for my new health."

Konjola is sold in Perryton at the Perryton Drug Co., and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, it has pleased the Great Creator of the universe to call Brother Haskel Lawrence from labor on earth to rest and immortality in the Grand Lodge above, where the Supreme Grand Master himself presides; therefore, be it

Resolved, that we acknowledge the wisdom and goodness of our Supreme Grand Master, and bow in humble submission to the inevitable edict from the Supreme Grand East; yet we mourn the death of our brother as of one whom we shall never more meet at the altar of Masonry until we gain admission into the Celestial Lodge on high, where he has preceded us; and we deplore his loss to the fraternity, to his family and friends, and to the community in which he lived. He was a just and upright Mason, a kind husband and father, an honorable and useful citizen, a sincere God, his country, his family, his neighbor, a man who endeavored always to perform every duty—to his lodge, his neighbor and himself—honestly, faithfully and well.

Resolved, that in token of our sincere friendship and sympathy in the dark hour of this great affliction, and as a pledge of our fidelity to the memory of our deceased brother, we extend to the bereaved widow and orphan, and to his surviving relatives, the fraternal right hand of Free and Accepted Masonry; and with it the assurance that the Great Light, given to God and man, will guide them and us safely to that spiritual building, eternal in the heavens, where their loved ones now dwell, where the broken circle shall be reunited never again to be parted, and where they shall dwell together in peaceful happiness forever and ever.

Goldfish as Pets

Have you a jar of goldfish? They are in the vogue just now. And the reason why isn't that the goldfish are any different from goldfish of a few years ago, but that the glass jars for holding them are different. They are more attractive than they ever were before. Therefore everybody wishes to have goldfish.

There was a time when all pet goldfish—they are never pet goldfish in one way, but all tame goldfish—lived in globes—just big or little or medium sized globes of glass.

But that was a long time ago and the methods of keeping goldfish have developed largely since then. For now one has a truly lovely thing wherein to keep one's goldfish. It may be any shape one desires, and one chooses the shape to suit one's taste and one's rooms.

One of the prettiest of the new holders for fishes is a bowl that swings from the ceiling or from a bracket high up on the wall. This globe looks like a big Japanese lantern, with a lacquered base of red or hanging from it, and cords at the green or black, and a colorful tassel top swinging it from its hook or bracket. This is a particularly decorative bit of furnishing.

There are also all the charming fish bowls or holders that stand on supports of metal. These are sometimes just little frameworks that are placed on the table. Sometimes they are the high ones standing on the floor. The metal is finished usually in an antique bronze finish.

Sometimes the fish bowl is iridescent in color and this is particularly attractive. For it suggests all the brilliancy of a soap bubble captured and made tangible.

You know, don't you, that there are supposedly harmless liquids which you may dissolve in the water? You may have blue or green, red or yellow tinted water.

And then there are colored marbles sold especially to pile in your fish globe. These, too, are a pretty trick as they make the fish globe more interesting in color.

Veal Ramakins

Little left-over pieces of veal and ham, one ounce of butter, one dessertspoon of flour, one teaspoon of beef extract, one small onion, little lemon juice, pepper and salt. Mince the scraps of veal and ham. Pour a cup of boiling water on the extract, put the butter in a small pan, and when melted mix into it the dessertspoon of flour, then stir in the cup of broth. Continue to stir until quite smooth. Remove from heat, and when a little cool stir into it the minced meat, seasoning of pepper and salt, the very finely minced onion, and a squeeze of lemon juice. Now heat all thoroughly, and pile up in little ramakin cases, sprinkling finely chopped parsley over the top.

PISTOLS

The Massachusetts legislature is considering a bill to prohibit the manufacture of pistols within the state.

Nowhere else in the world are pistols sold so freely as in this country. And nowhere else in the world are there so many murders. Rifles and shotguns are used for sport. Pistols are made for shooting only one kind of game. Think that over. The only purpose for which a pistol is made or used is to kill human beings!

The knowledge that one carries a pistol invites attack. Most shootings arise from the fear that the other fellow will shoot first. The unarmed man is less likely to be shot than is the gun-toter.

IRISH

Wherever you go you can find folk of Irish descent. And wherever you find them you will find them with a finger in the political pie. Politics and fighting seem to be gifts with which every Irishman is born. One of the greatest leaders of the American Revolution was General Sullivan. A McMahon was a Marshal of France and afterwards President of the French Republic. Admiral O'Higgins is one of Chile's national heroes. O'Reilly street in Havana is named for a Cuban patriot of Irish descent. One of the members of the French cabinet which took office in February is named Hennessey. Tradition has it that the Obregons of Mexico were really O'Briens. Three Presidents of the United States have been of Irish stock. Men of practically unmixed Irish descent control the governments of New York and Boston and of many other American cities. The secret seems to be in the Irishman's innate ability to adapt himself to his surroundings, a quality which many other races seem to lack.

CHINA

The North China Republic seems to be on the way to firm establishment on the basis of democracy as we understand it. That part of China has been free from war since 1928. The name of the old city of Peking has been changed to Peiping, which means "City of Peace." The leaders of the Nationalist party have inaugurated an educational program looking toward the establishment of a constitutional representative government.

It may take China a hundred years, and probably will, to lift its people to the levels of civilization as we understand it, but the present movement is the most hopeful of any which have been undertaken.

SALVATION

Fifty years ago, on March 10, 1880, six young women dressed in strange-looking blue bonnets with red ribbons across them and wearing blue capes lined with scarlet, landed at Castle Garden. They were the advance guard of the Salvation Army, sent across the Atlantic by General William Booth, that inspired son of a Jewish pawnbroker, to carry his militant Christianity, with the aid of the bass drum and the cornet, into the slums of America.

They and their successors have reached down to levels which the churches had never plumbed and lifted thousands of hopeless, weak and miserable human beings into a new life of faith, hope and courage.

No other organization or sect so endeared itself to our soldiers in France as did the Salvationists, with their human, simple, selfless helpfulness. No other religious organization today holds the respect of all intelligent church people as the Salvation Army does. It has proved itself the friend of the poor and the unfortunate. Its leaders and

CORPORATIONS

The business corporation, the shareholders in which have no liability for the company's debts beyond the amount of their investment, is only 100 years old. In 1830 the Commonwealth of Massachusetts enacted the first law permitting manufacturers to incorporate. Today more than nine-tenths of the nation's business, aside from farming, is done by or through corporations.

Corporate farming is the next step. Farmers are learning about corporations and corporate management through their selling cooperatives. In several sections corporations are operating farms successfully.

The most important thing we have learned about business corporations in 100 years is that their success depends almost entirely on their management. They do not

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physicals and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant. This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. FARNSWORTH NEWS

The Farnsworth school made the most points in any competitive track meet ever held in Ochiltree county. This is the second cup awarded to this school by the county in as many years. This was accomplished in the 1930 Ochiltree county meet. Nearly all of the entries in district events are going to the district meet. As far as athletics are concerned, this has been a very successful year for this school. Both boys and girls received the high award in basketball. For this they were awarded sweaters, not letters as most schools do. This is unusual for a school of this size to award event letters.

The Farnsworth Eagle Farm Home Boy Scout Patrol No. 27 have had no meetings for three weeks due to other activities. Earl Wade is to be Asst. Scoutmaster to help conduct meetings.

There is a report of the measles in this community. Miss Stump is back to school after a week of illness. Mrs. Steed taught during her absence.

BOY SCOUTS

The scouts who met last Wednesday evening enjoyed a very good meeting. The business and games were held on the courthouse lawn. Scouts will be busy the next few days as the trees have come and we are to help place and set them out.

Boys don't forget we meet each Wednesday night.

BANK AT HARDESTY

Optima, Texas county, became a town without a bank Tuesday. The state banking board authorized directors and stockholders of the First State Bank to move the institution to Hardesty, also in Texas county, according to Charles Alexander, assistant state bank commissioner.

A state bank charter was issued to the First National bank of Vian, Sequoyah county, which decided to surrender its national charter. Oklahoma. Guymon Herald.

Show Film Fashion

Edwards' Toggery Presents Newest Styles On Ellis Theatre Movie Screen

Popular styles of the new season are featured in the natural color film fashions release being displayed Monday and Tuesday of next week at the Ellis Theatre, through the courtesy of the ready-to-wear department of the Edwards' Toggery.

Fritzi Brunette appears in a sleeveless creation of Hazel pink crepe with a dainty collar at the back which is shirred at the shoulder. Uneven hemline is offset by a belt at the waistline to give the flared effect.

Ever popular June Marlowe models a trim tailored suit of Blue Zashella with a chic blouse of grey. The buttonhole pocket and single button that fastens the coat gives this suit an effective finish.

One of the most popular and beautiful youthful players in the movie colony, Dorothy Gulliver, presents a smart sleeveless dress of Capucine flat crepe with a clever detachable cape. The dress is treated in a very unique way by bias strips forming squares and ending in inverted pleats.

An effective combination of colors is reflected in the chiffon gown worn by Georgia Hale—background is black with red and white flowers. Circular cuffs and skirt are set on in points. The sash at the waist gives this frock a very youthful line.
