April Trade Deficit Is Fourth Largest

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Rising imports of oil and automobiles contributed to a $2.86-billion trade deficit last month, the fourth largest on record, the Commerce Department said today.

A trade deficit means Americans are spending more money on foreign products than other countries are spending on U.S. goods. The deficits in the past two years have led to a decline in the value of the dollar overseas and contributed to inflation in this country.

The April deficit, the 23rd in a row, indicated the trade imbalance is growing faster than it did last year, when it reached $26.5 billion.

U.S. Businesses exported a record $11.6 billion in April, but foreigners also sold a record $14.5 billion in goods to this country, the department said.

Department analysts said one reason for the record figures was accelerating inflation, which grew at a rate of about 9.3 percent early this year.

U.S. oil imports, which have been blamed for the mounting trade deficits, grew by $426.7 million, to $3.4 billion, after declining by about the same amount in March.

Despite the growing cost of foreign-made cars and trucks compared with U.S. vehicles, Americans spent $189 million more for the imports last month than they did in March, for a total of $1.2 billion in April.

The record exports were led by a $151-million increase in sales of food, a $98.7-million rise in coal exports and a $340.1-million increase in exports of machinery, including airplanes and autos.

Many of the increases in both exports and imports reflected higher prices, analysts said.

The April deficit of $2.86 billion was slightly higher than the $2.78-billion deficit for March, but it did not come close to the record $4.5-billion deficit in February.

Treasury Department officials have predicted that the trade situation will improve as other countries' economies recover from the 1975 recession and the nations become more likely to buy U.S. goods.

For the first four months of this year, the trade deficit totaled $12.53 billion, nearly half the total for all of last year.

Friday update

Soviets Blasts US

UNITED NATIONS (AP)-The Soviet Union accused the United States today of "harping on the myths" of Soviet military threat and demanded a "clear and unambiguous" American answer to a Soviet-bloc proposal to ban production of the neutron bomb.

In a speech to the U.N. General Assembly's special session on disarmament, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said neutron weapons "must be banned once and for all." He called the American-developed weapon "a particularly vicious and cruel means of mass destruction, intended specially to annihilate all things living."

Two Before Sunset

AUSTIN-Members of the Sunset Advisory Commission voted today to retain two state agencies up for review but only after internal changes.

The Battleship Texas Commission and the Board for County and District Road Indebtedness were two agencies before the commission today for a recommendation whether they should be continued or abolished.

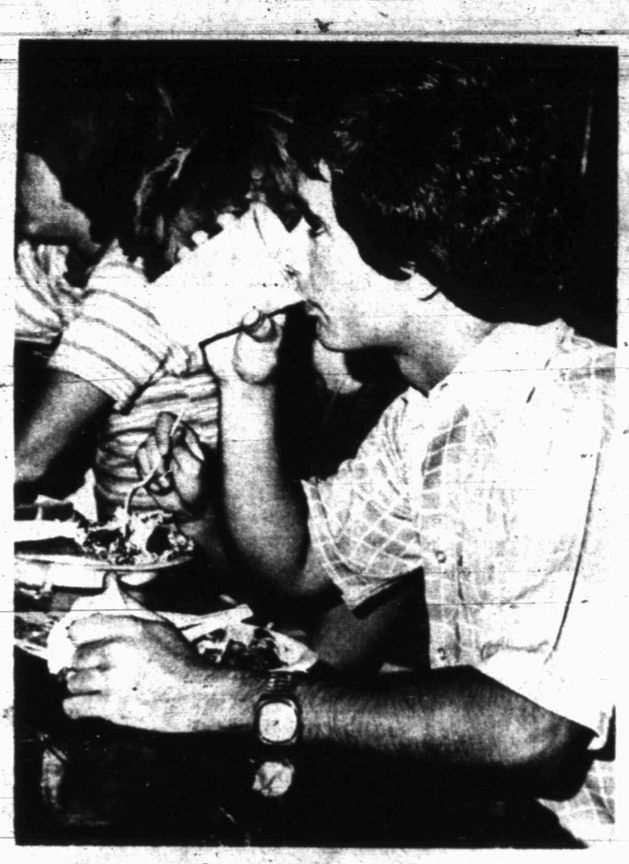

Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, moved that the Battleship Texas Commission be continued, but that all its funds be deposited in the state treasury and appropriated by the Legislature.

Boy's Hearing Set

AUSTIN (AP)-State District Judge Hume Cofer today set a hearing for June 2 on a motion by lawyers for John Christian, 13, that the youth is mentally ill and should be treated in a mental hospital.

The straight-A student is accused in the May 19 rifle-slaying of his junior high English teacher.

Christian, son of former White House Press Secretary George Christian, agreed with his parents, lawyers and state prosecutors that he should be detained at the county juvenile detention center.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Walter Buckel of the Lamesa Press-Reporter says he has been bugged by junk phone calls--those red hot salespeople who call long distance with astounding bargains in everything from ballpoint pens to office furniture. But he has figured out a way to turn the tables on them, partially, at least.

"Toy with them. Carry 'em on. Make 'em suffer a little before you reject the whole bag of worms," says Buckel.

But, he warns, be alert if they start off with an unfamiliar name.

"If you're name is Bob and they call you Bobby--be ready. If you're known as Richard and they call you Dick, if you're known by George and they call you Georgie and if you're Jim in Texas and Jimmy to a phone pitch artist, you're in for a hard sell.

"Billions of dollars are taken from business firms by the boiler room operators manning a bank of phones at some cheap hotel and pitching their wares throughout the country.

"To reject their pitch immediately is to allow them an additional pitch on another poor soul elsewhere in the nation.

"Let's break up the racket by listening attentively, courteously, at length--but never purchase anything. To allow them a full pitch without a sale is the most galling and frustrating experience they can have. Then, just in case you need any of the items they suggest you 'surely need,' go out and buy it locally and save yourself some money."

Hospital Project Attracts Bidders

There may be as many as 10 bidders on the general contract for the new addition to Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Cy Miller, hospital administrator, told the hospital's board of managers last night that major contractors throughout the region have expressed interest in the job and architects expected to have 100 sets of plans and specifications out this week. The bids will be opened June 14.

Board Chairman John Jarrell appointed three board members to serve on a long-range planning committee. A.Z. Glover was named chairman of the committee and Roy Kidd and Sam Cross will be the other board members on the panel. The head of the medical staff will be asked to name a member to serve also.

The board had questioned specifications for boilers and a pump for fire protection in the plans for the new addition to the hospital, but voted approval after reading a report from the architects citing state and federal requirements.

Miller's monthly report to the board showed a net operating loss of $15,207.08 for the month of April. Miller said this resulted mostly from purchasing laboratory supplies during the month. Supplies for 5½ months were purchased in April. Ordinarily these supplies are purchased for three months ahead. For the year, the hospital shows net income totalling $92,415.48.

The average daily census in April was 65.5, while the average daily census for the year to date is 71.4.

Ask Us

Q--We recently tried to enjoy a family outing in Towle Park. We encountered a terrible mosquito problem. Does the city or county have a regular program to kill mosquitoes?

A--The city and county cooperate in a mosquito control program. It is administered by the county health unit. Louie Vaughan, county sanitarian, says crews began treating possible mosquito breeding places in April. No fogging or general spraying operations have begun, but will now that rains have fallen and the weather has warmed up. Vaughan said that up to this week, the health unit had not received any complaints about mosquitoes.

Harrington Seeks Lions Governorship

A large delegation from the Snyder Lions Club left for Lubbock this morning to attend the Lions District 2-T2 and State Convention and to push for the election of Howard Harrington as the new district governor.

Judge Wayland G. Holt was to nominate Harrington for district governor today, and the election will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday. The governor's banquet is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Saturday.

Bob Watlington, president of the Snyder Lions Club, headed the local delegation. Watlington said the Snyder club had 11 official delegates and one alternate, but he expected 20 or more Lions from Snyder to be on hand for the convention in Lubbock.

Texas Speaker of the House Bill Clayton was to speak at a model luncheon today, the first major event on the convention program. The convention will close with the state luncheon at noon Sunday.

Texas Electric To Ask For Rate Hike

Texas Electric Service Co., which got a little over half of a rate increase it sought last year, is coming back with a new request.

The company announced today that it will file a request on May 30 for a 24.4 percent system-wide increase in revenues.

The request, which will be filled with the city of Snyder and the Public Utility Commission in Austin, would provide the company with an additional $110 million in revenues.

"The revenue increase is needed so Texas Electric can continue changing from expensive natural gas to cheaper, more plentiful lignite coal and nuclear fuel to generate electricity," TESCO Manager H.F. Clark said.

"Changing to cheaper fuels is helping hold the price of electricity down. The lignite coal and nuclear fuel will provide reliable energy when natural gas may not be available for generating electricity at any price," Clark said.

In 1977, customers saved more than $48 million on their electric bills because TESCO used lignite coal instead of expensive open-market gas to generate 28 percent of their electricity, he said.

But Clark explained that building new power plants that use these cheaper fuels has placed a financial strain on the company.

"Our fuel-changing program is in jeopardy because of an inadequate rate increase last year coupled with sharp increases in construction costs due to government regulation and inflation," Clark said.

Texas Electric said that smaller users would be affected less than larger users if the increase is granted as requested. For example, the company figures indicate that a present bill of $10 would be increased to $11.13, a present bill of $20 would go to $25.04, a bill of $30 would be hiked to $38.33, a bill of $40 would rise to $52.39, a bill of $60 would increase to $79.85, a bill of $80 would escalate to $107.36 and a bill of $100 would move up to $135.50.

Texas Electric's fuel-changing program has increased its construction spending sharply in recent years. About $222 million will be spent on construction in 1978. The company

wallace bowing out

Reactions are mixed to the surprising announcement by Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace that he will not seek nomination for the U.S. Senate seat to be vacated next January by the aging John Sparkman, one of several veteran lawmakers, mostly from the South, who are retiring after many years of public service.

Wallace will be missed on the national political scene where he has been making history of a kind and upsetting predictions since the early 1960s. Ineligible for a second term in 1966, following a stormy four years as Governor, his wife was elected to succeed him. She died in office and Wallace staged a comeback in his own name in 1970.

Sandwiched between terms as Governor of his state he made an unsuccessful bid for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1972. An attempt on his life during that campaign left his lower limbs paralyzed. Recent family troubles and a divorce from his second wife no doubt had much to do with his decision to bow out of the Senate race.

Wallace will be best remembered for his appearance at the front entrance of the administration building of the University of Alabama, flanked by National Guard troops, to prevent enrollment of black students. That was in 1963. He lost the battle to preserve segregation in higher education in Alabama, just as contemporaries in neighboring Mississippi had failed a year earlier.

He insists, even now, that he made his point when he defied Federal power to open tax-supported institutions of higher learning to all qualified applicants, irrespective of race or national origin. A few evenings ago over television when asked to identify that point he said it should be clear to any honest seeker of the facts.

The American people will have to make their own deductions as to what the fiery Alabaman had in mind when he said he made his point in 1963 when he temporarily blocked enrollment of blacks in the University of Alabama. The same procedure will have to be followed by those who seek more detailed explanation of his reasons for bowing out of this year's Senate race.

In any event public life in this country will not be the same without him. How much events of the past two decades were shaped by Wallace personality and actions will be something historians will have to determine. As of right now, it appears safe to say his contribution has been small and of short duration.

plane-making boom

Business has its ups and downs, perhaps no part of it more so than the aerospace industry.

It seems only yesterday that Lockheed had to be rescued from bankruptcy by a federal loan and drastic retrenchment by Boeing made Seattle an economic disaster area.

But that was yesterday.

Today, the plane makers are riding a boom with all signs indicating the best is yet to come.

Demand for new equipment is strong from both domestic and foreign airlines.

The biggest news in this respect is Boeing's nearly $1 billion deal with Singapore for a fleet of new passenger jets, the largest single sale in commercial aviation history.

Lockheed is not far behind with a half-billion-dollar sale of wide-body Tri-Stars to Pan American Airways and a smaller order from Saudi Arabian Airlines.

The final member of the big three, McDonnell Douglas, has an initial $170 million deal with United Airlines which, with options, could eventually work out to three times that figure.

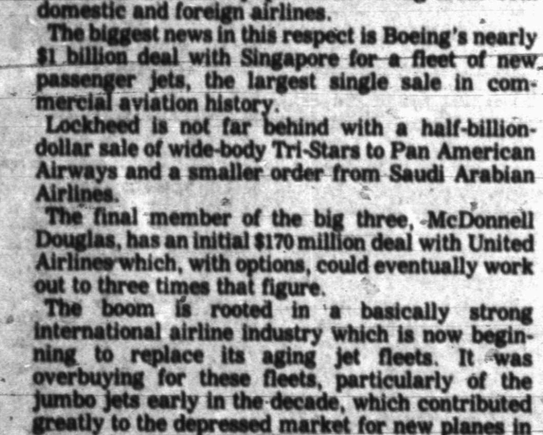

The boom is rooted in a basically strong international airline industry which is now beginning to replace its aging jet fleets. It was overbuying for these fleets, particularly of the jumbo jets early in the decade, which contributed greatly to the depressed market for new planes in recent years.

The slow market is clearly over with no indications of a similar glut again developing, although manufacturers, particularly Boeing, are preparing to introduce some new models.

A bonus for the economy in general of the aerospace boom is the effect on the U.S. trade and the currently disasterous state of the balance of payments.

U.S. manufacturers dominate the world commercial aircraft market - Boeing alone controls about half. Their exports are expected to reach $9.4 billion by the end of the current year, which should offset a considerable quantity of OPEC oil and Japanese electronics.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

In church the other Sunday, I watched a phenomenon take place that has been going on since the beginning of time but has probably set Motherhood back a hundred years.

I call it the nine-year-old mother syndrome. It occurs when there are several children in the family and the mother relinquishes the responsibility for the younger children to an older child.

Actually, it's a thankless job. No pay. No respect. No training. No future. And no Mother's Day cards.

It includes taking little brother (or sister) to the bathroom when they don't want to go. Washing their faces when they don't want them washed. Wiping their noses when they don't want them wiped. Restraining them from following their "real" mother when they don't want to be restrained.

With no guidelines or experiences of their own to follow, these Midget Mothers discipline their younger brothers and sisters as they think they see their mothers do it.

The incident in church was quite revealing. First, the child grabbed the hymnal and began to lick the pages.

Midget Mother slammed the book shut on her fingers.

The child ran down the aisle toward the altar.

Midget Mother added two inches to her right arm by dragging her all the way back to her seat.

The child stood on the seat and hummed the Mouseketeer theme.

Midget Mother clapped a hand over her mouth so she could not breathe.

The child emptied her mother's purse on the seat and began to sift through credit cards and letters.

Midget Mother pinched her until a white, then red welt appeared. To alleviate the screaming, she then hoisted the child on her hip and took her to the vestibule.

Upon her return, the child slapped and blew bubbles two inches from Midget Mother's face. Pushed to the brink of her patience. Midget Mother socked her down on her lap and locked her arms about her like a straitjacket.

At this point, the mother put down her prayer book, gave a piercing look at Midget Mother and pulled the small child on her own lap lovingly.

I wondered if Midget Mother would ever have children of her own. Or get married for that matter. Or even date! Or shake hands. Or go to the park? Or have a puppy?

fuzzbuster widely used

By Ink Dipper

There's been a lot written about how citizens band radio is being used as a way of protecting against speeding tickets on the highway. This is often cited as the prime reason for its tremendous growth. Other reasons are mere window dressing, it is said.

One support of this theory is the widespread use of an instrument called the Fuzzbuster, a device its manufacturers say monitors police radar. It is reasonably small in size, sits on your dashboard, and sounds your attention when it receives the signal being transmitted by a radar. The idea is that as you are tooling down the highway at some speed in excess of 55 miles per hour you get a loud beep indicating Smokey is beaming in. You slow down to the legal limit and Smokey is left with a blank speeding ticket on his pad.

It backs up the old CB warning: "Put the hammer in your tool box — Smokey with camera ahead at I-XX." Or at least that's the way the story goes.

There are reportedly several million radar monitors in operation on the highways. The biggest manufacturer of these units is Electrolert, the company that makes the Fuzzbuster. Located in Troy, Ohio, it was founded by its inventer, Dale Smith.

The use of the Fuzzbuster is sufficiently widespread that there are laws in some states aimed at outlawing them.

However, the market potential, according to manufacturers in the field, is eight million units. Truckers represent about 40 percent of the present owners, while the other buyers are classified as people who travel a great deal in business. The units are sold through the same retail outlets as citizens band radios.

"We don't look upon the fuzzbuster as an important escape mechanism from speeding limits," said Inspector Hamp Sears, Florida State Highway Patrol. "By the time the pickup has been made by the fuzzbuster, we've got it in the patrol car, too. Besides that, we also use six aircraft on the Florida Turnpike for enforcement."

But other states, like Virginia, Minnesota and Wisconsin, view the radar detector as something of a threat to law enforcement. As for the manufacturer it is stated as Electrolert company policy that their device tends to help maintain the speed limit.

"People have a right to know that radar is in use, and this knowledge helps maintain the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit," explained Fred Huntsman, vice president of Electrolert, when asked if his instrument was not sold for the express purpose of aiding people to break the law. "We think it has exactly the reverse effect and helps the police."

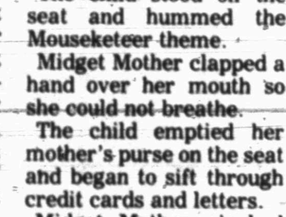

This column has repeatedly stated that it believes CB is a communications medium, and that those who bought units for the purpose of breaking the law were fadists. What you see in the Fuzzbuster and its use is your business. But CB and radar monitoring units are not to be confused.

WASHINGTON-(NEA)- President Carter's plan to shake up the White House staff operation has thus far produced more bruises than breakthroughs.

A month after the president's big head-cracking session at Camp David, there have been only minimal changes in the White House pecking order.

One publicized personnel move-the addition of a nationally renowned black to the White House senior staff-fell through when Mayor Richard G. Hatcher of Gary, Ind. rejected a Carter job offer.

For public consumption, Hatcher indicated he was reluctant to leave the city he has led for a decade for fear that Gary would once again fall into the grip of a corrupt political machine.

But privately, the three-term mayor was reportedly both embarrassed and angry to discover the White House job offer contained more show that substance. Hatcher would have been reporting not to Carter, or even Hamilton Jordan, but rather to Jordan's deputy, Lyndon Butler.

Although Hatcher was insulted by the offer, according to friends, he said nothing publicly because he did not want his constituents in Gary to think he was anxious to leave the mayor's job-especially now that he'll need re-election support.

Meanwhile, former Democratic political activist Anne Wexler has moved over to the White House from the Commerce Department and has taken over nearly all the public liaison duties of Midge Costanza.

Costanza has been stripped of all but one staff assistant and is rapidly fading from public view.

Speaking of women, the National Women's Political Caucus has proudly announced that 10 members of the House racked up perfect voting records on 16 issues the group designated as "important to women."

There's only one awkward note. All ten of the House members with 100 percent scores happen to be men-Reps. Norman Mineta, D-Calif.; James Corman, D-Calif; Edward Roybal, D-Calif., George Brown, D-Calif.; Parren Mitchell, D-Md., Robert Drinan, D-Mass., Frederick Richmond, D-N.Y., Theodore Weiss, D-N.Y., Richard Ottinger, D-N.Y. and Louis Stokes, D-Ohio.

Five of the 18 women in the House did manage to post scores of 94 (one "bad" vote or absence on the 16 test issues). They were Reps. Yvonne Burke, D-Calif.; Martha Keys, D-Kan.; Gladys Spellman, D-Md.; Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., and Barbara Jordan, D-Texas.

But three others voted "right" only half or less of the time-Reps. Lindy Boggs, D-La. (50 percent); Virginia Smith, R-Neb., 44 percent, and Marjorie Holt, R-Md., 25 percent.

No wonder liberals (especially Democrats) fret about the financial might of the "new right." Reports filed with the Federal Election Commission show 17 conservative political action units have spent more than $7.5 million since Jan. 1, 1977 to influence House and Senate elections.

But conservative candidates (mostly (Republicans) are not reaping much of the proceeds from this massive fundraising activity. Only $241,486, or a mere 3.2 percent, of all that money has actually been contributed to candidates directly or in services.

The rest was gobbled up in direct mail costs, survey research, salaries and other types of overhead.

Ronald Reagan's "Citizens for the Republic" leads the list, spending $2.2 million of which $22,000 has gone to congressional candidates.

The National Conservative Political Action Committee is second, spending $2.1 million-$33,051 of it in contributions to candidates.

what is prudence?

NEW YORK (AP) - Back in 1974 Congress enacted a law that required managers of corporate pension funds to follow the same investment principles a "prudent man" would use in handling his own money.

What is prudence, everyone asked? But Congress was silent; it did not specify how the prudent man behaved, nor whether his behavior was uniform, and it said nothing about how you measure the concept.

The reaction was stunning. It included disbelief, fear, anxiety and, above all, confusion - utter confusion, among lawyers, trustees, managers, consultants, government officials, executives, employees.

Many managers retreated into a conservative, defensive position, and found it no defense at all, because it left them personally liable to the accusation of putting their interests ahead of the employees.

ERISA, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act, utilized a broad philosophical concept to define what almost inevitably will take a court decision to refine into the lean specifics of law.

That did not stop the publication Pensions & Investments from trying. It convened a conference of eight authorities on fund management to formulate guidelines for operating under ERISA.

Bruce Marcus, a financial consultant then sat down with the tapes and, supplying his own insights as well, produced a $49.50 volume, "The Prudent Man," a major effort, but an effort only.

Who is the prudent man? Well, you can still take your choice of definitions and hope for the best. Says Tom Richards, corporate pension fund manager for Allis Chalmers:

"I believe the prudent man is a fiduciary who completely understands the risk and return characteristics of his fund, and is capable of defending the rationale for assuming his fund's risk exposure."

Says Marc Gertner, a pension fund attorney: "Prudence ... requires a state of selflessness. The fiduciary acts in the sole and exclusive best interests of the participants, to carry out the purposes of his trust without regard to his personal interests or desires."

Marcus sought to synthesize the various views into guidelines, but whether he succeeded can really be determined only by those fiduciaries who might seek to use them.

"Essentially," says Marcus, "the fund - and all activities pertaining to it - must be viewed solely in the light of the best interests of the beneficiaries and not the corporation."

Second, "the unique configuration and needs of the fund must be delineated on paper. This must be translated into clear and specific objectives."

Next, "A realistic investment strategy must be devised, based upon the objectives of the fund. This strategy must then be properly communicated and adhered to ..."

And finally, with emphasis: "The judgment of success is not the greatest return. It is the degree to which the objectives of the fund are met."

If you are a fund manager you can take it from there, cautiously and prudently.

Rails hardly ever use flight as a means of escape, hence making them especially vulnerable to predators.

Today's hand is presented as a double-dummy problem. The question is: Can you make six spades against the trump lead?

We will give you a hint. A really good player would make the hand at the table.

South makes his contract by developing a heart-club squeeze against East. If East held five hearts it would be a cinch, but hearts break 4-3 and South has to find a way to get in three leads of hearts without getting rid of dummy's king of clubs.

Here is how he does it. At trick two he leads a heart to dummy. Then he plays a low heart and discards his losing diamond. East wins and leads a diamond (best). South wins in his own hand, enters dummy with the jack of trumps, ruffs a heart and runs off his trumps.

South is down to four clubs. North holds three clubs and a heart. East is forced to chuck a club in order to keep the high heart making all of South's clubs good.

This is a penalty double. West has a good hand with strong hearts.

Build Safety Into Home

COLLEGE STATION--Build safety into the home by eliminating structural barriers, says Pat Seaman housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Concentrate on ways to minimize danger of falls from one level to another, she advises.

To reduce this danger, eliminate outside steps wherever possible--or plan alternate entrances without steps.

For example, choose a level lot or place the house so its entrance is level.

A sloping walk--with only a one-inch rise per foot of length--also might replace outside steps entirely, the specialist suggests.

Indoors, provide handrails for safety beside steps. Risers should measure seven inches or less in height.

Split-level home plans may prove impractical for some families. One or two steps in unexpected places invite trouble, Ms. Seaman warns.

As a precautionary measure, install firmly-anchored grab-bars above the bathrub, in the shower and beside the toilet. Also avoid crowding bathroom fixtures into a small area.

Wide doorways are another "must"--with a recommended width of at least 32 inches and preferably 36 inches.

Also, select for wide halls, ample closets, shelves no higher than 72 inches, and light switches located conveniently at both the top and bottom of stairs.

Wide closet openings--with either sliding or double-fold doors--eliminate the hazard of groping for articles. In such closets, clothing is easily seen or reached, the specialist adds.

Mrs. Mondale Tries New Haven Pizza

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)-Joan Mondale, touring local cultural sites, got a taste of a culinary art form that some say originated in New Haven--pizza.

For a pre-dinner snack, Mrs. Mondale's staff treated her to a sausage and mushroom pie ordered from Pepe's Pizzeria, which claims to have originated the pizza two generations ago.

During her tour Thursday, the vice president's wife also saw "Lipstick Ascending," a pop-art sculpture by Claes Oldenberg.

"It's wonderful to see the 'Lipstick' at last," said Mrs. Mondale, a fan of Oldenberg.

The 20-foot-high tank-like tracks graces a corner of the Morse College courtyard at Yale University. Reactions to the sculpture are said to range from awe to obscene.

Controversy Mars Burkburnett Playoffs....

Tigers Downed In Bi-District Bid

By BILL McCLELLAN

BURKBURNETT - A steaming cloud of controversy shrouded yesterday's high school baseball bi-district playoffs here yesterday, which saw Burkburnett edge Snyder for the crown, 3-1.

The Tigers, who posted one of their best records with a 24-9 season, pushed the best-of-three playoff series to a double header by winning the first game 1-0 at Hayes Field before the Bulldogs rallied to take the title.

Left-hander Mitch Mackey gave up only three hits in the pitching duel while loser David Nix handed out seven hits to the Tigers.

"We were surprised, and the coaches were too, that David Nix did so well," spoke Snyder Coach Albert Lewis of the Bulldog pitcher beseiged - until yesterday - with a lackluster year. "It just shows that competitors and athletes rise to the occasion. And Mackey rose to the occasion for us, too. We desperately needed that one."

Mackey showed his staying power in the second inning after giving up a single and a double to the Dogs. The junior fanned the next batter, then loaded the bases with a walk to Baber. But "rising to the occasion," Mackey fanned the next two players to retire the side and keep Burkburnett from doing heavy damage.

Snyder got its lone run in the fifth inning. Scott Crenwelge slapped a single and Mike LaPointe added another as the Tigers began to click. Senior three-time all-district player Alvin Ollison then belted a double to score Bobby Degrate - running for Crenwelge - and put the Tigers on the scoreboard.

"It was Alvin's last big contribution for SHS and we really appreciated it," remarked Lewis. In both games we had a hard time scoring, but in that one we got the hit when we needed it."

But the cloud of controversy occurred as early as the fourth inning of the first game, when Bryan Vincent, pinch hitter, slapped a would-be double that scored Mackey from first base. Vincent beat the ball to the bag, but the referee ruled him out, and the run came off the boards.

"He (the referee) told me two versions," relayed Lewis. "He said he felt like Vincent beat the ball to the bag, but that Magill (secondbaseman) blocked him off and never let him get to the bag. Then he told me he definately did reach the bag first, but his hand came off. It was a question of getting to the bag and staying on the bag."

That call, however, was minute compared to one the home plate umpire made in the second game.

To open the second contest, Vincent snapped a single and Mackey doubled to bring him in for the first - and only - Tiger run.

Freshman pitcher Tony Degrate handed out a single and a sacrifice in the bottom of the inning to score King and tie the totals, but Magill's homer minutes later put the home team one point ahead. Sid Everton, who pitched Monday's 12-inning marathon for the Tigers, replaced the youngster atop the mound.

"I just felt like it was torture, but he went out there and did a real fine job," commented Lewis of Everton. "And again, Mr. (Kevin) Burks continued to amaze me and everyone. I really thought we would score four or five runs off of him, but we just couldn't do it. He threw the ball harder and it was moving more that it did down here (Snyder)."

Burks, who with the win is 13-3 on the season, hurled Monday's 12-inning win for the Bulldogs also.

The second major controversy - and the most obvious one - occurred in the fourth inning. Mackey drew a walk to first base and Crenwelge powered a single into the outfield. Mackey came in for what appeared to be a score at home, but the umpire called him out.

"That changed the complexity of the ball game," said Lewis. "It just kind of whipped us down. It affected their (Snyder players) attitude. They just felt it was all useless."

It's not so unusual for losing teams to complain, but Lewis had this to relate:

"After the game, some of the Burkburnett fans and administration came over to apologize to us. They didn't want to take anything away from Burkburnett, and we didn't want to either, they played a great game, but we just wanted what we earned.

"The administration, I mean their athletic director and school principal and some of the local fans mentioned the fact that they (the umpires) were inept. They just hate that it turned out that way. No, I don't think the calls were intentional, and I don't have anything but praise for them (Burkburnett players and fans)."

One other time during the game, LaPointe slapped a hit and was called out when the Burkburnett first baseman supposedly tagged him.

"Yes, that was another time," Lewis spoke. "The Burkburnett player just smiled when the guy made the call. But it wasn't his fault."

The final Bulldogs run came in the fourth inning as Robertson knocked a single and Barber drilled him in with a deep sacrifice fly. Everton found himself in trouble again in the fifth after Magill and Nix both singled, but the junior fanned two batters and short stop Richard Crayton threw out the other.

Likewise, Burks showed his talent when in the fifth and sixth innings a Snyder player reached first base. Burks fanned four batters during the two innings to retire the side each time.

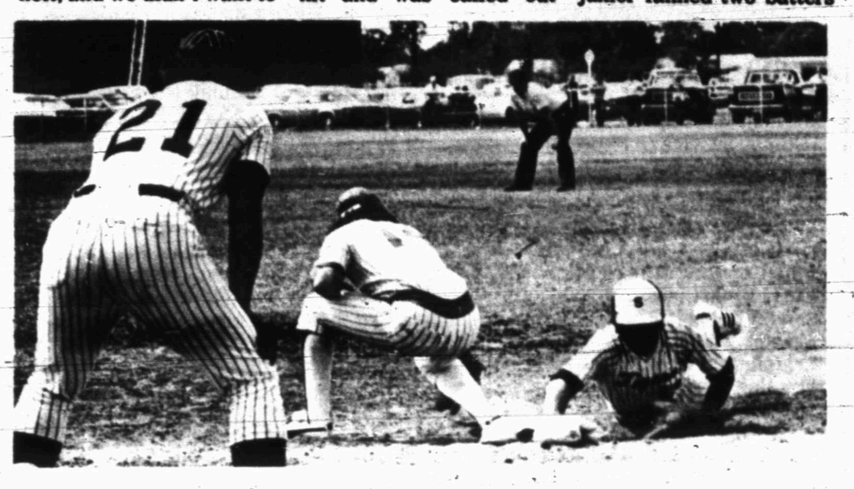

The final controversy came in the seventh inning when an apparent ball was called a strike. Batter Dray Sikes had two marks against him at the time, and was flabergasted when the umpire called "the ankle high" pitch a strike.

"Yeh, I thought that one was a little low, too," added Lewis.

For Snyder, it was just another insult added to the injury.

For the year, "I'd like to thank the adminsitration and the fans as a whole for their support," said Lewis. "We're sort of disappointed that we didn't get further, but we did have a good season. We had 20 suited up and we'll lose five so we feel like we'll still be pretty strong another year."

Graduating will be catcher Tracy Witherspoon, second baseman Dray Sikes, center fielder Alvin Ollison, and outfielders Mike LaPointe and David Zajicek.

CLOSE CALLS? — Yesterday's bi-district playoff series in Burkburnett was muddled with several questionable calls. At top, even the umpires couldn't dispute that pinch hitter Bryan Vincent was safe on this attempted pick-off, but the officials did weight several verdicts against the Tigers which were hard - at least for Snyderites - to comprehend. In the bottom photo, a trio of Tigers look on in disbelief after a questionable call. (SDN Staff Photos)

Washington Ties Pro Cage Series

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) - The monkey is off Washington's back.

After nine straight losses in the National Basketball Association's championship finals, the Bullets have finally won one, beating the Seattle SuperSonics 106-98 Thursday night.

And they did it the way they know best, by going to their strength. Forwards Bobby Dandridge and Elvin Hayes bounced back from poor performances in Sunday's series opener to score 34 and 25 points, respectively, mostly from within 15 feet of the basket. The Bullets outrebounded Seattle 48-39, Washington center Wes Unseld hauling down 15.

"We followed our game plan perfectly," said Washington Coach Dick Motta. "We got the ball down low to Elvin and Bobby D, where it belongs, and we crashed the boards."

With Illinois Legislature...

Carter Holds Surprise Town Meeting

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) - President Carter held a surprise "town meeting" today with members of the Illinois Legislature playing the role of citizen-questioners.

Scheduled to make a formal address at a joint session of the legislature, Carter announced at the outset he was distributing copies of his text and, after speaking briefly and informally, would invite the legislators to "ask me any question that you have regarding national and international affairs."

The first question gave the president an opportunity to promote labor law revisions, now the subject of a Senate filibuster in Washington, and to argue that the wage rate between the North and the South have narrowed significantly in recent years.

In his opening remarks, Carter declared that "the eyes of the nation" are on the Illinois Legislature because it is soon to vote on ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, a proposal it has rejected in the past.

Carter, who responded with a grin and wave to pro-ERA demonstrators as he entered the Illinois Capitol, said the outcome of the votes here may well determine the ultimate fate of the equal rights proposal.

The president said he knew the pressures that were on the legislators and he urged them to vote their consciences and convictions.

In the speech text he distributed, he noted Illinois has one of the few state constitutions that guarantee equal rights to all citizens and he said, "I hope that you will carry out your historic responsibility by voting to add an Equal Rights Amendment to the federal constitution as well."

Illinois is the only major Northern industrialized state that has not ratified the ERA.

Carter's spoken remarks on the subject drew no audible reaction but the legislators, who remained silent throughout his low-key informal speech, gave Carter a standing ovation as he launched into the question-and-answer session.

The exchange between legislators and the president was reminiscent of the town meetings Carter has held in different sections of the country. He broke no new ground in responding to questions on topics ranging from the administration's Middle East policy to prospects for a rollback in scheduled Social Security tax increases.

Carter was spending much of today politicking in Illinois and West Virginia and flew to Springfield after an overnight stay in a private home in a Chicago suburb.

Bentsen Seeks Support For Angel Dust Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Recalling more examples of bizarre behavior exhibited by those under the influence of "Angel Dust," Sen. Lloyd Bensten continues to preach the virtues of a bill that would increase the maximum penalty for trafficking in the devilish drug.

The Texas Democrat quoted from an unpublished report by a Washington doctor that stated PCP - angel dust - "presently remains the major drug of abuse in the Washington metropolitan area."

Bentsen's comments came during a Thursday speech as he tried to rally Senate support for a bill that would increase the maximum penalty for trafficking the PCP from five years in prison and a $15,000 fine for first offenders to 10 years and a $100,000 fine.

Phencyclidine - PCP - is legitimately used to cure rubber and to tranquilize large animals, such as elephants.

Its effects on the human mind are devastating, the report said.

And Bentsen offered his Senate collegues several grotesque examples.

A school teacher observed a student carving initials in his arm during class while under the drug's influence, Bentsen said. Another high school student walked through a plate glass window, falling among the razor-sharp glass splinters and thrashing madly.

"Abuse of this very dangerous drug is increasing to epidemic proportions nation-wide and the consequences are staggering," Bentsen said Thursday. "Experts have now established that even short-term use of angel dust can produce treatment-resistant schizophrenic psychosis in certain individuals.

"Dr. Paul Luisada, deputy medical director of St. Elizabeths Hospital in Washington, D.C., reports that a sudden tripling of schizophrenic patients admitted to his institution during 1973 was later traced to PCP abuse," Bentsen continued.

In a report given in February to the National Institute on Drug Abuse conference on phencyclidine, Luisada stated that angel dust epidemics began during 1973. "Similar admissions rose from a trickle to a flood, peaking in February, 1974 at the rate of one-third of the first in-patient admissions," said Luisada. "The epidemic ended even more suddenly ... following by several weeks a police raid on a local PCP laboratory."

Since late 1974, however, angel dust abuse has been steadily rising, continued Luisada. "By the beginning of 1976, the Drug Enforcement Administration was calling the Washington area the PCP capital of the country.

"However, despite a proliferation of local laboratories and in raids on these laboratories, admissions to our center for PCP psychosis began a slow but steady decline. At the same time, experienced drug users presenting themselves for treatment of other drug abuse problems began referring to PCP as a drug to avoid 'because it makes people crazy.' Meanwhile, the suburbs began experiencing noticable increases in the incidence of PCP psychoses."

Class Of '58 Plans Session

A work session for the reunion of the class of 1958 will be held in the First United Methodist Church Sunday at 2 p.m.

Members of that class are urged to attend and to bring their list of classmates and writing material.

Probation Revoked

The probation of Robert Lee Mahoney was revoked Thursday in 132nd District Court and the 23-year-old man was sentenced to serve a two-year jail term.

He had been placed on probation Dec. 16, 1977, after having been arrested on a drunken driving charge Sept. 4. The probation was revoked because of a subsequent drunken driving arrest in Nolan County.

Sources indicated Mahoney planned to appeal the revocation.

Damage Suit Filed Against Penney's

A civil suit seeking $187,000 in damages has been filed against the J.C. Penney Co., Inc., by a former Snyder woman who claims she and her daughter were injured nearly two years ago by a falling glass door.

The suit was filed earlier this week by Mary Smelser in behalf of herself and her daughter, Lela Smelser. Although presently residing in Norman, Okla., the mother and daughter were living in Snyder in June, 1976, at the time the suit alleges the incident occurred.

The suit alleges a glass door fell on top of Mrs. Smelser as she was attempting to leave the local J.C. Penney Store. The suit also claims that the daughter, whose age was not given, saw the accident.

Mrs. Smelser is seeking $177,000 to cover her claimed injuries, mental anguish, hospital bills, and expenses of hiring employees to replace her at her job. An additional $10,000 is being sought for alleged emotional trauma her daughter reportedly underwent in seeing the accident.

The plaintiffs are represented by the local law firm of James Rosser and Ernie Armstrong.

County Court Trial Begins

The jury trial of Lyndon Baize began this morning in county court with the selection of a four-man, two-woman jury.

Baize is charged with a misdemeanor count of driving while intoxicated. He is represented by James Clark, a local attorney.

Earlier in the week, a four-woman, two-man jury delivered an acquittal in the trial of Herman Lewey Jr., who was also charged with driving while intoxicated.

Lewey was represented by Pete McKenney, a Colorado City attorney.

County Court Cases Heard

Four men were sentenced in county court proceeding this week.

Byron Keith Wortham received a $100 fine and a 30-day jail term, probated for six months, following his entry of guilty plea to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Donald Ray Brown and George Whylen Johnson, who were also charged with DWI, received $100 fines and three-day jail terms. Both men entered guilty pleas to the charges.

A Post man, Angel Rivera, was levied a $100 fine and a 30-day jail term after he pleaded guilty to a DWI charge.

Two Vehicles Are In Mishap

A minor traffic accident in the 3100 block of Ave. U was investigated Thursday.

The mishap involved the collision of a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Thelolee Potter and a parked 1966 Chevrolet owned by C.E. McCormick.

The mishap occurred at 10:30 a.m.

Atlantic City Opens Casino

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)-The dice will roll on the Boardwalk today as Resorts International Hotel kicks off the first legalized casino gambling outside Nevada.

The last roadblock was removed when the New Jersey Casino Control Commission voted late Thursday night to grant a certificate of operation to Resorts.

The Florida-based conglomerate, which owns two hotels and operates two casinos in the Bahamas, has spent $40 million to renovate the former Chalfonte-Haddon Hall hotel.

"Atlantic City can be revived as the Queen of Resorts," Gov. Brendan Byrne proclaimed as he announced the commission's unanimous vote to about 2,000 people at the premiere of the hotel's Las Vegas style show.

The casino opens with 893 slot machines, 60 blackjack tables, 10 craps tables, 10 roulette wheels, three baccarat tables and three wheels of fortune. Already about half the size of a football field, the casino is to expand soon into one of the largest in the world.

In five nights of test runs last week, thousands of excited sighteers jammed the casino. They carelessly bet $100 bills in play money on the tables and real nickels, quarters and dollar coins in the slot machines, which could not accept slugs.

4 Charged In Burglaries

The four men cornered outside a Fluvanna residence by a group of farmers early Sunday morning have now been charged with two counts of burglary each.

Named in the felony charges are Robert Mena, 24, Samuel Barrientez, 22, and two brothers, Luis Fuentez, 24, and Johnny Fuentez, 18.

Court records indicate the man are accused of burglarizing the Snyder home of Mary Powell and a home owned by Tissie Silverberg near Fluvanna. Both burglaries are alleged to have occurred May 21.

Bond for eacn of the four men was set at $5,000.

Textiles are the nation's third largest industry, employing more than three million people, reports Marlene Odle-Kemp, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

will spend more in 1978 and 1979 than it did during the entire decade of the 1960s.

"Fortunately, our customers don't have to pay for all of this construction program today. But our revenues do have to be sufficient to encourage people to invest the hundreds of millions of dollars needed for construction," he said.

"Texas Electric's financial condition, which means our ability to attract people's savings, has deteriorated sharply in the last year. Eventually, we could reach the point where people might not invest in our company at all."

Because of TESCO's deteriorating financial condition, the company canceled plans to borrow money in January to avoid losing its top credit rating.

"If our credit rating is downgraded, we'll have to pay higher interest rates on the money we borrow. And that means higher costs for our customers," Clark said.

TESCO has six lignite-fueled generating units in operation and another coming on line this summer. The company also is building three more lignite-fueled units and a nuclear-powered generating plant. The plants are owned jointly by Texas Electric, Texas Power & Light and Dallas Power & Light.

Wayne To Mark Quiet 71st

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP)-When John Wayne celebrates 71 years today, it will be nothing like his rip-roaring birthdays of yore.

"I keep thinking I'm well, but when I try too much I realize I'm not," said the actor, who underwent heart surgery April 3. "It hurts where they cut me open. When I do too much I feel sore."

Wayne said he was getting stronger every day, and doctors advise he can return to work in July. He spoke by telephone from his sprawling house beside Balboa Bay, sounding like the John Wayne of 20 years ago.

At appearances earlier this year, his voice was only a raspy replica of his familiar California drawl. He had also seemed cranky and depressed.

"Getting the voice back was a residual I didn't expect out of the operation," he remarked. "I had undergone all kinds of tests to find out why my voice had gone bad, and nobody could tell me. I just couldn't get any timbre out of it.

"There's a blood vessel that runs from the heart to the vocal cords, and one of the valves wasn't working. The operation fixed that."

The faulty heart valve was replaced with a similar part from the heart of a pig during surgery in Boston.

Should She Lie For Daughter's Sake?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who is in a home for unwed mothers, has decided to put her baby up for adoption. She's not even sure who the baby's father is, so I think she's doing the right thing. (She's only 14.) She doesn't even want to see the baby after it's born. She says it will be easier to forget if she doesn't.

Abby, even though it would be a lie, what harm would there be in telling her that her baby died at birth? I wouldn't ask the doctor to tell the lie—I will take all the responsibility myself. I just want the doctor and the people at the hospital where she will have the baby to back me up on my story.

My daughter has suffered enough already, and it will be much easier for her if she thinks that her baby died. Then she won't have to go through life wondering where her child is. I can see only good in this lie, but if you think I'm wrong, please tell me why and I'll do as you say. Thank you.

HEARTSICK IN SEATTLE

DEAR HEARTSICK: Although your intentions are good, you can't accomplish good through evil acts. Please, dear, abandon this dishonest scheme. Regardless of how well-intentioned it is, it's wrong.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am bragging, but my problem is that I am too attractive. When I was in high school I never had any girlfriends because they were all afraid I'd take their boyfriends away from them. When I went to work I had to quit one job after another because my bosses were forever making passes at me. Now that I am married, I have the same problem.

All of my husband's friends proposition me, and I have to tell them off. And we don't have any married couples to go around with because the wives are afraid of the competition. Sometimes I wish I were born ugly. What's the solution?

"RED" IN REDWOOD CITY

DEAR "RED": Face it, dear, if you aren't consciously inviting the attentions of the opposite sex, you must be doing so unconsciously. No man in his right mind makes a pass at a statue. He needs some encouragement. A woman who has to beat off every man she meets should find out why.

DEAR ABBY: I recently became engaged to a very pretty girl. She's from a good family and so am I. All our friends and relatives think we are just right for each other, but the more I see of her, the more doubts I have about how this marriage would work out.

She can be sweet as honey one minute and very sullen and pouty the next. She has at times revealed a side of herself that I never saw before. She's spoiled, demanding and selfish. And stubborn, too. I'm not saying I'm perfect, but I don't think I could take this girl's unpredictable moodiness for a lifetime.

What I am trying to ask, my Dear Abigail, is this: How does a gentleman break an engagement?

IN DEEP IN INDIANA

DEAR IN: The same way a lady breaks one. He simply tells his intended in the kindest manner possible that he's decided to keep his bachelor button and forgo the orange blossoms. You may be in for a few unpleasant moments, but you'll both survive it. Better a broken engagement than a broken marriage.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Reaction Mixed On Newman

UNITED NATIONS (AP)-Actor Paul Newman, the latest in a series of entertainers the United States has dispatched to the United Nations, is drawing mixed reviews from diplomats, though he seems to have won over secretaries and spectators.

"I'm not trying to be cynical, but I just don't see much merit in this practice of bringing in actors and actresses to U.N. meetings," says a Western European who asked anonymity.

But a Dutch diplomat said he was "grateful" that Newman agreed to participate in the General Assembly's special session on disarmament. "We could use all the help we could get to publicize the importance of disarmament," the diplomat said.

Newman, who has starred in "Hud," "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," "Slapshot" and many other movies, has been besieged by fans and well-wishers since the session began.

"I'm just learning the job," Newman told the Associated Press. "I'm trying to feel my way in."

Hope May Hit Road WithBurns

WASHINGTON (AP)-Bob Hope may be going "On The Road" again, and this time with his longtime friend and fellow comedien George Burns.

Hope said Thursday that "George and I are discussing his taking the part Bing Crosby would have played" before plans for the movie were dropped when Crosby died last fall.

"It'll be nice working with God," Hope quipped in referring to the title role Burns played last year in the film comedy "Oh, God."

"On The Road To Hong Kong" and "On The Road To Singapore" were just two of several "On The Road" films that Hope and Crosby starred in during the '40s.

Hope made his comments to reporters after an hour-long special session of the House of Representatives that paid tribute to the comedian's 75th birthday, which is Monday.

Now Is Time To Spray Pecan Trees

Two applications of insecticides will be needed this season for good control of the pecan nut casebearer. Egg laying by the casebearer moth has extended over a longer period than usual this year.

The first application of insecticide should be made May 26, 27 or 28 and this should be followed by a second application seven days later, according to Billy Roach, County Extension Agent. Eggs are being layed farther down on the pecans this year instead of on the very end as usual, which makes them harder to find.

For homeowners a spray mixture of 2 tablespoons full of Malathion, 1¼ tablespoons full Benomyl and 2 tablespoons full of zinc sulfate (36 percent) per gallon of water should give good results.

Commercial growers or larger pecan orchards may want to use a spray mix containing Zolone or Guthion in combination with Benomyl and zinc sulfate or NZN.

Benomyl is included for the control of scab disease and zinc sulfate is added for control of rosette.

All spray mixes should conform to the label instructions on the pesticide container.

Two Vote Election Cost $15,000

BROWNSVILLE (AP)- Officials in this border town figure it cost the city several thousand dollars to stage an election that drew two voters.

Citizens here responded to last Saturday's Brownsville Health Clinic Board election with a resounding yawn.

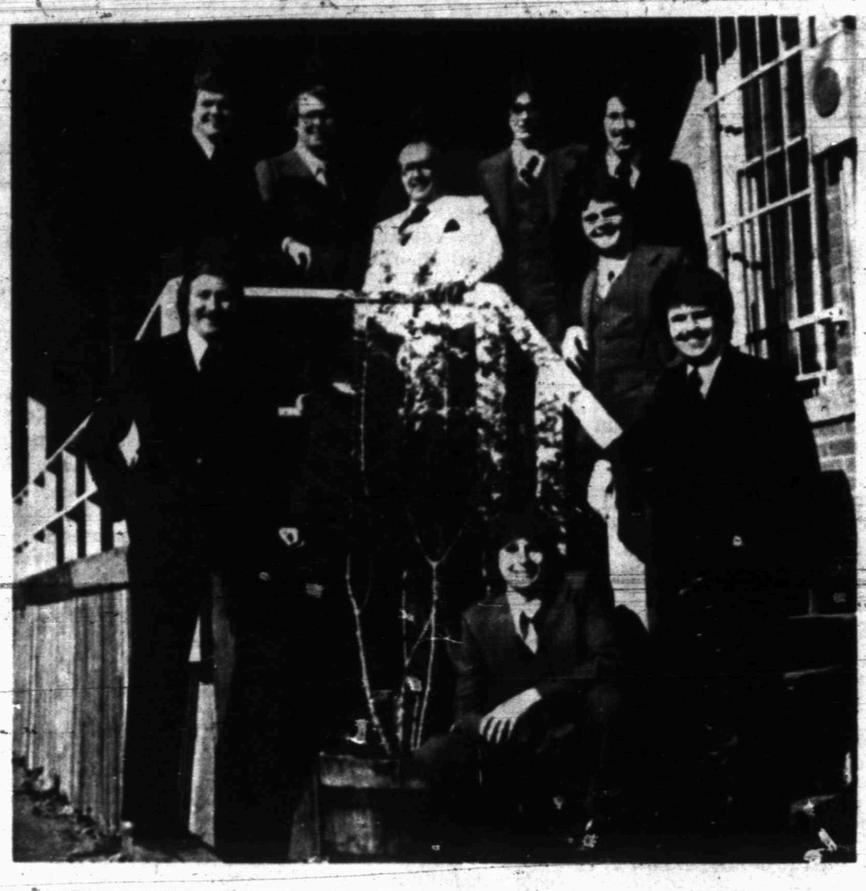

There were two runoff races on the ballot. One race drew a pair of ballots while the other drew none.

The elections were ordered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The federal agency provides more than half the funding for the clinic.

City Attorney Jerry Zwernemann said it cost $15,000 to stage the runoffs and the initial balloting on May 6. In the first election, 46 votes were cast in 11 races.

City manager Jim Baugh said, "If you want their (HEW) money, you play the game their way."

HEW officials have decided the runnoffs will be decided by coin toss.

HERE SUNDAY NIGHT — The Singing Christians of Tenaha will sing in the Sunday evening worship service of First Assembly of God, 1809 College Ave. The service will begin at 7 p.m. James Christian and his son, Wayne, are joined by Rusty Oxford, Danny Hollis, Danny Bob Smith, Gary Goss and Kevin Bailey, Ronny Ricks and Emory Atkins in the group of gospel singers. The public is invited to attend the service, said the Rev. James Jackson, pastor of the church.

Male hormones and hair

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if estrogen causes a woman to grow hair on her face. Since I started taking it I feel better but I am growing hair on my face. I've asked two doctors; one said it would and one said it won't, so could you please let me know.

DEAR READER — The main estrogen hormones will not cause you to grow hair on your face. However, some of the medicines women take after the menopause, for a variety of reasons contain combinations of hormones, including some male hormones in some preparations.

Male hormone does increase the prominence of hair on the face. You may be surprised to know you have had the same amount of hair all along but the hair shafts become thicker, darker and hence more noticeable. The very fine hair you usually have may not be noticed.

You should know that women normally have increased prominence of hair on their face at the time of the menopause and thereafter. It may also be more prominent during the onset of puberty and during pregnancy. Your increased hair prominence may be from your menopause, not your medicine.

At the time the ovaries stop, the adrenal gland becomes the major source of sex hormones. Often it produces more male hormone than female hormone. The change in balance has a lot to do with many of the changes a woman notices after the menopause. The skin may change, hair changes on the scalp, the voice may change and hair may be more apparent on the face.

When doctors give female hormones they often give enough to limit symptoms such as hot flashes. There is still an increase production of male hormone in some women from the adrenal gland and this will cause some of these changes.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause, to give you more information on female hormones and what to expect with the menopause. Others who want this information cand send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Just what is neuralgia? Is it inflammation of the nerves? I have pain from the back of the neck to the left shoulder blade and around the left rib cage. My family doctor says it is neuralgia. My 87-year-old husband has rather severe pain in the back of the neck and it seems to radiate to the skull. Does not act like a headache. Could this be neuralgia too?

DEAR READER — Neuralgia means pain along the course of one or more nerves, usually in a periodic fashion. Since you have innumerable nerves you can have neuralgia almost anywhere.

If a nerve between the ribs is involved the pain will be between the ribs and it is called intercostal neuralgia. If it involves the trigeminal nerve over the jaw area it is trigeminal neuralgia. Neuralgia is also classified as to its cause. If a diabetic has pain in a nerve because of changes associated with diabetes it might be called diabetic neuralgia.

Unless the disease causing the neuralgia is identified the term neuralgia is merely descriptive. You could have neuralgia because of changes in your spine, if the nerve roots in that area are under pressure. The same could be true of your husband if he has arthritic changes in the neck. Your doctor probably has a pretty good idea of what is causing your pain and what he can or cannot do for it.
