PLANS COMPLETED FOR DYNAMITING OF LEVEE

GUARDS GRIMLY PROTECT DIKES FROM VIOLENCE

SULLEN CITIZENS STREAM INTO NEW ORLEANS BUT NO THREATS HEARD

(By The Associated Press) NEW ORLEANS, April 28.—Patrol lines tensed today along the levee protecting New Orleans and the immediate vicinity from the high waters of the Mississippi as final plans were being worked out for the creation of an artificial crescent at Poydras.

The half sullen evacuation of the parishes of St. Bernard and Plaquemine continued and concentration camps in the city were being filled as they streamed into the city. There were occasional declarations of dissatisfaction at the forced removal but there was no open threat.

Guards on the Alert Reports throughout the night kept national guardsmen and St. Bernard parish deputies on the alert and two companies of guardsmen were hastily concentrated at a point below the city when reports reached headquarters that dynamiting might be attempted there by fringe trappers.

In preparation for the cut to be made tomorrow, George C. Schoenberger, chief state engineer, and Adjutant General W. E. Toombs, took every precaution to prevent interference. No delay will be permitted, they said. The residents of the two parishes have been given ample warning to evacuate the district and the cut will be made at the time set.

Road Closed to Traffic The road from New Orleans to Poydras will be closed to traffic, with police and St. Bernard parish officers turning back all comers. An appeal was made for trucks to remove residents from the territory. Many, it was said, have been unable to remove their belongings because of the scarcity of conveyances.

Others of those remaining in the parish declare that they intend to stay there. Many of the people in the lower part of Plaquemine parish assert that their chances with the flood will take them to higher ground. For the most part, these are trappers who have gleaned a precarious livelihood from the skins of mink and have been tured since childhood to the

Testimony Goes On In Land Case Here

The taking of testimony in the Robert Lynn, J. R. Griffin and 19th civil district court here continued today, with the defendant's testimony on cross examination consuming the greater part of the morning session. Court attaches said they did not know when the case will be finished.

Mr. Lynn is seeking recovery of $5,000 said by him to have been paid into the American-Mexico land and cattle company in 1909 and 1910, for the development of a certain tract of land in old Mexico, to have been carried on by defendant, promoter of the company. Two other similar cases are on the docket for trial this week.

SLAYING ENDS DRUNKEN ORGY

'Hang-Overs' Halt Grand Jury Investigation Of Latest Murder Of Movie-Land (By The Associated Press) LOS ANGELES, April 28.—Five motion picture folk who participated in what was described by police as one of the wildest drinking parties ever to come under their attention in Hollywood, and which was climaxed by the fatal shooting of Tom Kerrick, film cowboy, were asked to refresh their hazy memories today as the county grand jury was called in special session to fix reports by the tragedy.

Kerrick was shot to death in his home early yesterday during the party at which police say gin and moonshine flowed freely. His wife, Sarah Kerrick, screen "double" who is accused of having fired the fatal shot in a jealous frenzy, was hysterical today. All she remembered was "a scuffle" with her husband and some one else and that the shooting was accidental. She is being held on a murder charge.

The other principals, according to police had not sufficiently recovered from the effects of liquor to make coherent statements. Held as material witnesses, they are Miss Iris Burns, Joe Hunt, Henry Isbell, and his wife, Anita Davis, all said to be motion picture actresses.

According to the police reconstruction of the killing, Kerrick aroused his wife's jealousy by his attentions to Miss Burns.

MURDER SOLVED NORFLEET SAYS

Robert Blake, held in Tulsa, believed man wanted in Conner slaying

Robert F. Blake, 27, who is being held in the Swisher county jail at Tulsa, in connection with the mysterious slaying of Fred Conner, Tulsa motor car dealer, on July 16, 1925, is the man who committed the murder, which has baffled peace officers of West Texas for nearly two years, in the opinion of J. Frank Norfleet, of Hale Center, internationally famous sleuth, who was in Lubbock today. Mr. Norfleet captured Blake in Fort Smith, Ark., on April 21 and brought him to officers at Tulsa.

According to Mr. Norfleet, who has finger prints to back his opinion, if Blake did not commit the murder he was at least in or near Conner's automobile, for finger prints taken from the door of the machine jibe with those of Blake's taken when he joined the U. S. army, the detective says.

Seventy-seven men have been arrested in connection with the case and F. P. Frye, Lubbock filling station dealer, will probably be called as an important witness in the trial. On the day of the murder Mr. Frye serviced Mr. Conner's car, in which the latter and a young stranger were riding and is believed to have been the last man, other than the slayer, to see Conner alive.

Mr. Norfleet, for years a Hale county ranchman, sprang into prominence when he rounded up members of a confidence gang, who had fleeced him, after a nation-wide search and many thrilling adventures.

The adjournment was taken to allow defense lawyers to prepare motions. Edgar P. Hazelton of defense counsel announced that Mrs. Snyder will take the stand in her own defense tomorrow morning.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Haddon Gray, Syracuse real estate man, took the witness stand in the Snyder murder trial today to tell of the alibi he established for his friend, Henry Judd Gray, on the day Albert Snyder was killed.

District Attorney Newcombe questioned Haddon Gray. "Did you see the defendant Gray on March 19?"

"Yes." "What did you talk about?" "Mostly business."

"Anything about his leaving Syracuse?" "He said he was going to Albany that night and wanted to know if I would help him out."

"Help him out how?" "Had 'dinner date'."

"He said he was going to keep a dinner engagement in Albany with 'Mumsie' and might be out all night. He asked me to stay in his room, answer telephone calls from his wife or office and generally give the impression that he was in his room."

"Did he ever show you a picture of 'Mumsie'?" "Yes."

"Do you know who she is?" "I do not."

"Who?" "Mrs. Snyder."

Agreed to Help Him Haddon Gray said he agreed to establish an alibi for his friend, thinking that he would be able to help him.

A date, three weeks hence, was set for the usual attempt of the French court at reconciliation in the judges' chambers.

Makes every coffee cent count—because of its concentrated flavor

The economy of M·J·B is merely a lesson in simple arithmetic. Here it is:—

M·J·B is a concentrated coffee. That means it is extra-rich in strength and flavor. We blend it that way—always have. And that's why you can use less of M·J·B to the cup and still enjoy a fine, flavor-rich cup of coffee.

Now consider that the average family uses 40 cups of coffee per week and you begin to realize how M·J·B makes every coffee-cent count. You get more in the way of coffee contentment and it costs you less in the long run. Isn't that, after all, the only kind of economy that counts?

CRACK SHOT TO BE IN LUBBOCK

Ad Topperwein To Show Local People Many Stunts On Friday Afternoon

Ad Topperwein, claimed to be the greatest living fancy and flying target shot with rifle, pistol and shotgun, who is with the shooting promotion division of the Winchester Repeating Arms company, is to give an exhibition of his skill with the rifle and other arms Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the municipal park just east of the city. It was announced here today by Walter Myrick, of the Myrick Hardware company, under whose auspices the exhibition is being conducted.

Mr. Topperwein is a native Texan, living at San Antonio, and the varied program that he will offer is of interest not only to immediate followers of the shooting game, but to the entire population, as his program is varied, and of such unique nature that one cannot help but be attracted by his skill, Mr. Myrick said.

Has Many Stunts

He shoots at objects of varying sizes, such as oranges, apples, bits of coal, walnuts, marbles, etc., and has reached such a stage of perfection in his control of a rifle that he can eject a shell from his gun and drive a bullet through it from his rifle and revolver held in almost every conceivable position.

On thirteen occasions Mr. Topperwein has broken the world's record shooting flying targets with a rifle, Mr. Myrick said. At one time he hit 4-954 one and three-quarters inch targets out of 5,000 thrown into the air at a distance of 25 feet, and on another occasion he hit 3,800 out of 10,000 two and a quarter inch blocks thrown at the same distance, missing only one.

Makes Marvelous Runs

Another marvelous exhibition cited by Mr. Myrick was a shoot by him for ten successive days at 2 1/2 inch blocks thrown into the air at a distance of 25 feet, when he missed only four out of the first 10,000 and only nine out of the entire lot of 22,500. During this exhibition he made straight runs of 12,219; 12,292 and 12,540. Another performance which brings out a different phase of his skill is the drawing of pictures in perfect outline with bullets shot from his rifle. This is done as fast as he can pull the trigger on his rifle.

During the war Mr. Topperwein was instructor of trap shooting at the school of military aeronomy at Austin, where he was of great service to the government. He will be at the Myrick store during the morning Friday and up to the time of the shoot where he will answer all questions regarding various phases of his work, care of guns, etc., Mr. Myrick said.

The exhibition is being held primarily in the interest of shooting. It will be free and everyone is invited to attend.

Border Troubles Threaten Poland, Russia-Lithuania

(By The Associated Press)

WARSAW, April 28.—After several months of complete calm along the Polish-Lithuanian and Polish-Russian frontiers, the newspapers report that several sanguinary conflicts have occurred recently. Bands of Lithuanian irregulars, they state, have twice crossed the border and fired on block houses. Polish frontier guards are said to have driven them off, but the raiders escaped carrying off their wounded.

The Polish press suggests that these incidents are due to the failure of Lithuania's efforts to get the Vilna question reopened before an international forum.

On the soviet border, the newspaper says, bandit gangs made several incursions into Polish territory, recrossing the frontier after pilaging.

(Each Poland-Lithuania claim Vilna, and efforts to settle the dispute have thus far been unavailing. In January League of Nations circles at Geneva expressed concern over the Russo-Polish situation, central European statesmen being apprehensive that any renewal of difficulties between Poland and Lithuania over the Vilna problem might lead to serious trouble.)

DILLON GIVEN TERM IN JAIL

Two Year Sentence Passed By Jury In Pro-Law Case In Lubbock Court

A verdict of guilty, with punishment fixed at two years in the penitentiary was returned by the jury in the case of J. W. Dillon, charged with violating the prohibition law in 72nd District court. The jury was out about three hours before reaching a decision.

Two witnesses, J. B. Adams and Henry McClesky, called as state witnesses in the trial of Don McCombie on liquor charges, which opened just after the jury had received the Dillon case, failed to appear and were fined $100 each by Judge Homer Pharr. Attachment papers for the arrest of the two witnesses were ordered issued by the judge, and the trial was continued until next week.

The Dillon case, which marks the third conviction secured by prosecution counsel since the opening of this term of court, is the last case on this week's docket. Court will re-open next week with the trial of the M. Lucera case, involving charges of violating the prohibition act.

In both the Germany and Ruby trials, preceding the Dillon case, involving alleged misappropriation of funds, convictions were secured, and punishment set at five and two years respectively.

New claimant to the world's longevity record is Teku Oglu Ali Aglu, who claims to be 147 years old. He is in good health and says he remembers events that occurred 124 years ago.

MRS. HAMILTON SCORES POINT

Woman Charged With Slaying Son For Insurance Has Lead On Prosecution

(By Associated Press)

OKMULGEE, Okla., April 28.—Defense attorneys in the trial of Mrs. Mae Hamilton, charged with murder in connection with the death of her son, John Courtland Hamilton, have launched an effort to discredit the testimony of physicians appearing as state witnesses. They attempted to lay the ground work for their contention that they boy died of ptomaine poisoning from stale watermelon and not from a poison administered by his mother to claim insurance.

Tom Payne, defense attorney made a motion for disqualification of Dr. Robert M. Isham, a state witness who had examined the vital organs of the dead body but was overruled.

Dr. Isham, under cross examination admitted that many ptomaines are similar to the poison which Mrs. Hamilton is accused of giving her son. A mishap in analysis, he said, might lead to the conclusion that ptomaine caused the death.

Charles Parsons, Oklahoma City insurance agent, told of selling a $2,000 policy to Mrs. Hamilton on the boy's life. He testified under cross examination that it was hard to sell the insurance to her.

Slaying Of Woman Baffles Officers

PHILADELPHIA, April 28. (AP)—Police today were unable to definitely assign a motive for the murder of Mrs. Mary McConnell, 53, who was found strangled under a bed in her home in West Philadelphia last night.

A cloth such as used for dusting furniture was tied tightly around her throat, and a stocking had been draped over the neck as though to hide the knot.

Denial was made by police that there was any sign of a hard struggle between the woman and her assailant. The house was in an orderly condition.

The police were baffled in assigning a motive by the fact that while three rings were missing other pieces of jewelry and many valuable articles about the house were not disturbed.

A description was obtained from a neighbor of a man seen leaving the house about 11 p. m. yesterday.

SERVICE

In every feature of the Tire's construction, Quality enters. That's where Quality counts. That is the real secret of success with the Dayton. Should it prove any wonder to you, then, that its service is remarkable?

A GREATER weight of rubber on the tread than any other tire possesses—and it is Pure Gum rubber, for never an ounce of reclaimed rubber has ever been placed in a DAYTON.

Two to four MORE PLIES of extra strong Cord Fabric, with greater amount of rubber between each ply—a more flexible sidewall construction—a heavier and stronger Bead Base. Indeed the DAYTON is the Highest Quality Tire on the market—the GREATEST tire EVER built.

The Pharis Tire, although not in this Peak Quality class with the Dayton, is at the same, EQUAL to any of the Highly Advertised First Line tires. Then our Prices! They are without the pale of comparison. Competition cannot match them. Then may we serve you?

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET REPORT
NEW YORK, April 28 (AP)—Prices of oil shares continued downward at the opening of today's stock market, several of them dropping to new minimums for the year, but the list otherwise showed numerous points of strength. Standard Oil of New Jersey, California Petroleum and Barnsdall A opened at new lows. Initial strength was displayed by Frequent Texas, Mack Trucks, General Motors, Case Threshing Machine and American Waterworks, the last two named opening at new highs. Falling off in freight car loadings, together with estimates of the heavy losses of some railroads penetrating the Mississippi flood area, caused free offerings of some of the southwestern railroads, especially Missouri Pacific common, which lost 2 1/2, and preferred, which dropped 2 1/2 points. Texas and Pacific went down to 75, more than 10 points under its recent high when the question of a resumption of dividends was being agitated. Shrinkage in steel ingot production, indicating a less favorable trade outlook, stimulated offerings of steel shares. U. S. Steel going under 109. Dupont, International Nickel, Colorado Fuel, Eastman Kodak and Hudson and Manhattan were depressed sharply. Renewed accumulation of Banker and Aroostook, in consequence of the hope that the federal current earnings forecast carried the price up nearly 3 points to 83 1/2, a record for all time. South Porto Rico sugar, which had a violent upturn last yesterday again spurred upward, touching 195, a new peak price.

Spanish pesetas scored an overnight gain of 11 points to 17.68 and Italian lira dropped 4 to 5.33. Otherwise foreign exchange opened steady with demand sterling ruling around 4.85 3/8 and French francs above 3.91 cents.

Guards Grimly Protect Levees While Plans Go On To Dynamite River Dikes

south of the spillway which will take the water to Lake Borgne. She's Stay On Job
"I work for Uncle Sam," she said. "I'll keep that light burning until Uncle Sam comes and takes me away. If the water comes over my store, I'll take my children, my cows and my chickens to the levee by the lighthouse. You may leave a tent if you want so I will have somewhere to live."
An occasional negro plantation hand, warned of the impending danger, would shrug his shoulders and say "let her break."
Thousands Leaving Doomed Parishes
NEW ORLEANS, April 28 (AP)—Five thousand residents of St. Bernard and Plaquemine parishes in Louisiana were abandoning their homes today and carrying all their portable possessions to New Orleans under the menace of Mississippi flood waters to be loosed tomorrow by the deliberate breaking of their protecting levees.
The acres along the dusty highways leading to New Orleans where men, women and children were trudging behind every kind of wheeled conveyance was strikingly similar to those enacted 12 years ago when the civilian populations of France and Belgium fled before advancing hostilities.
Cut Levees On Friday
The great crevasse, designed to sacrifice the two parishes in an attempt to save New Orleans from flood waters, will be created at noon tomorrow in a manner as yet undesignated by engineers who feared that revelation of their plans might arouse troublesome resistance.
Although many of the parish residents received the official edict of banishment from their homes with good grace, bitter resentment was apparent in the hearing of others. Many farmers and trappers patrolled the levee with avowed intention of opposing any move to break it, despite assurances of city and state officials that complete reimbursement would be made for all damages.
Patrolmen On Guard
State militia and New Orleans police patrolled a levee above New Orleans to prevent an attempt to dynamite it and save the two parishes at the expense of flooding the city.
Despite the spectacular phase of the lower Mississippi flood, the crest of the waters still was far upstream.
As the flood continued to spread over Mississippi and Arkansas, Ashley county in the latter state was inundated and 600 persons were driven to refuge in Hamburg. The exodus from McGehee, mostly under water, continued with the refugee ranks at Monticello, the concentration point, numbering upwards of 5,000. There was grave danger of heavy loss of life at Belzoni, Miss., and its immediate vicinity and plans were made for hurried relief.
Epidemics were reported at fourteen refugee camps scattered over Arkansas where measles, mumps, whooping cough, pellagra and malaria were prevalent and it was stated the situation was becoming acute. Many of the refugees refused to be inoculated and vaccinated.
In that connection the state health authorities of the seven flood damaged states, were called to meet in Memphis today with Dr. William R. Redden, national medical officer of the Red Cross to adopt a program of health conservation in the inundated regions.
Estimates at Clarkdale, Miss., relief headquarters were that 10,000 persons were in danger at Hollandale, Arcola and Belzoni.

This final payment brings the total of the season's advances to $11,797,212, and completes the sixth year for the association.
The distribution of this final payment will be made to 45 county-wide meetings scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Members in other counties will receive their checks by mail direct from the association office here.

ing that he was helping in a mild filtration.
"Just what did you do?"
"I went to the defendant Gray's room, mailed some letters he had left there, phoned the desk not to disturb me, and hung the 'don't disturb' sign on the knob of the room door. Later I rumbled the bed and made it look as though it had been slept in. That was the next day, March 26."
The witness said the defendant "telephoned me late that afternoon and invited me to supper."
"Did you go?"
"Yes, with Charles Platt in his car. That was about 6 o'clock, we went to Gray's room."
"What was the conversation?"
"Told of fleeing."
"He said that when he had got to Albany he found a telegram from 'Mumsie' telling him to go to her home in New York. He said he went there and when her husband returned unexpectedly he got in a closet. He told us that when he came out of the closet he found that the husband had been killed."
"Did he show you anything?"
"He showed me some blood stained clothing and again showed me the picture of his 'Mumsie,' the picture of that woman there."
"Did he have any explanation for the way the husband got killed?"
"Yes, he told us about a dark man, apparently a burglar, ransacking the house."
"What was done with the articles he showed you?"
"Mid the Clothing
"He said 'I must get rid of these, will you help me?' I suggested we take the stuff to Platt's office, which we did, in a black suitcase which we put on a shelf."
"What then?"
"I took the defendant Gray home with me. While my wife was getting supper, he played marbles on the floor with my children."
"Did you see Gray in jail here?"
"Yes."
"Conversation?"
"I said, 'Bud, did you do it?' and he said 'Had, I did. I said 'why did you?' and he said 'I don't know.'"
As Haddon Gray gave this evidence against the man whose intimate friend he had been since their early school days, Judd Gray still sat motionless with his eyes on the floor.
Mrs. Snyder listened to the testimony eagerly and a fleeting smile crossed her face as Haddon Gray spoke of seeing her picture.

Agitation For Highway Construction In West Texas Is Begun By Men Here

ASK COMMISSIONERS FOR HEARING DURING C. C. MEET AT WICHITA

Since the announcement a few days ago that the State Highway department has allotted or promised to allot practically all the funds that will be available this year for highway construction in Texas, leaving largely out of their program of permanent improvement the western part of the state, considerable agitation has been under way here to bring about a realization by the state board of the importance of West Texas being given at least their pro rata part of the funds.
To the end that such might be accomplished, plans are now under way here to have the state commission hold "open house" to West Texas delegations at Wichita Falls during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention May 16 and 17, when they will be advised of actual conditions regarding highways as they prevail in this part of the state.
Commission Unadvised, Claim
It is the pronounced opinion of several leaders in highway circles here that the state commission does not realize the great development program that has been going on in this part of the state for several years, particularly the past four or five years, and that in the light of this, members of the commission are prone to look upon West Texas as largely undeveloped and underserving of assistance from the state in highway matters.
These men point out that West Texas for several years has been pouring her tax money into the state coffers to be distributed by men holding this opinion of West Texas, and they claim that West Texas has not been given a fair chance in the distribution, particularly as this relates to highway construction matters.
Construction Is Problem
In the maintenance program, many feel that this particular part of the state has been dealt with fairly with an allotment of approximately $400,000 for this year and much additional equipment, but construction of permanent roads now holds the center of discussion.

Lubbock county has prepared and is ready for execution plans and specifications on approximately 70 miles of grade and drainage structures pursuant to hard surfacing highways across the county in six directions. These plans were laid away early this year when the resident engineer's department of the county was discontinued, but these are still available, and it is understood that efforts to have the county's plans for improved highways rejuvenated, are to be reopened in the near future.

Whether or not any definite action is planned in the immediate future by the county commissioners court in the situation, has not been learned, but county officials recently were requested state participation in the program already outlined and planned. Appeals are going up from all portions of West Texas for state participation in highway construction, and the "open house" of the commission at the convention, if it is arranged, is designed to show to members of the commission the true conditions as they exist, and the efforts of West Texas people toward permanent highways.

Ft. Worth Couple Saved Years of Suffering

Both Wife and Husband Gladly Credit Tanlac With Remarkable Properties as Tonic and Health Restorative

What a tragic thing it is when man and wife go through life together, rear their children to success and happiness, and then find ill health descending on one of the loving pair!
This situation confronted the family of Thomas Riley, retired stockman—the beloved "Uncle Tom" of the entire neighborhood around 1304 Vernon Castle Boulevard, Ft. Worth, Texas—when his wife Bridget began to break down in 1922.
"I lost my appetite," writes Mrs. Riley, "and when I did eat I suffered a great deal from indigestion. I frequently had splitting headaches, couldn't sleep well, and was nervous. Nothing tasted good to me—not even water. I lost energy and patience, and had to give up housework."
"When I was down flat on my back, my daughter, Mrs. Annie Croughan, insisted that I try Tanlac. Before I had finished the first bottle, I was back on my feet and able to do all my housework. My appetite picked up. Nervousness disappeared. I gained 10 lbs. and felt like a new person."
Mr. Riley, with muscles of steel even at his age, took Tanlac at the first touch of rheumatism, and looks as if he had never had an ill in his life. Texas is full of men and women who have taken Tanlac at the right time and are now enjoying the blessings of good health and strength. Tanlac is Nature's remedy, made from roots, bark and herbs. If you have need of a tonic and restorative, ask your druggist for Tanlac—today!

SAINT AND SINNER

JIM, Junior, and his bride, Fay, insisted upon Jim Lane's lunching with them, so that Faith and Bob were free to lunch alone and to talk unhampered of Cherry's trial. They had long since tacitly agreed to shun the subject of the trial and its probable outcome when Cherry's disreputable father was with them.

"Wait, Bob!" Faith cried, seeing the headlines. "Your aunt, Mrs. Albright, has been robbed! Here, sonny!" She dropped a nickel into the boy's dirty hand and took the paper.

"Cherry's daughter victim of jewel robbery," she read aloud. "She was robbed on Saturday while she was attending the trial, dear, and the loss has just been discovered."

"How much?" Bob asked innocently, but there was a rather grim smile on his handsome, tired face.

"The loss is estimated at forty thousand dollars," Faith told him breathlessly, her eyes jumping down the column of type. "It says that this is the fourth big jewel robbery in the last six months, and not a single arrest has been made yet. The chief of police is quoted here as saying it looks like the work of one gang, directed by a 'master mind.'"

"Old stuff!" Bob snorted contemptuously. "Just a nice, machine-made little alibi that Morehouse trots out when he's fallen down on the job. What's that headline about Cherry?"

"Bates testimony blow to defense," Faith read aloud, dispiritedly. "A subhead says, 'Cherry lays blame on Wiley, when confronted by preacher.' I knew the papers would seize on Bates' testimony as a sort of confession, and you can imagine what they'll do with Anderson's evidence about Cherry's saying, 'To think I got rid of Ralph Cluny for a thing like you!' The late afternoon papers will be shrieking that Cherry confessed to killing Cluny. Bob!"

"She dropped the paper to the floor of the car and laid a trembling hand on his arm. 'We've got to do something! Do you realize that Churchill has nothing—nothing—to combat all this terrible evidence with, but Cherry's own unsupported word? And when he puts her on the witness stand Banning will simply tear her to pieces. We've got to do something, Bob!'"

"I've been hoping that Crowell, Churchill's investigator, would turn up something," Bob admitted dejectedly. "Seems to me a good detective could have got hold of something, in connection with that threatening letter, but Churchill says they have run into a blind alley on that lead."

"Have you forgotten all about old Phil, the beggar?" Faith asked, reproach creeping into her tired voice.

"No, darling, I haven't forgotten about him. I've got a man stationed to watch Phil's corner and to report to me if the beggar shows up, and I've been down in Shanty-town—Peach Tree Hollow—twice lately, to try to trace him. If he's living down there he's got the whole dirty district in cahoots with him to hide the fact. Looks to me like somebody's told him that I'm looking for him and he's hiding out. Old Kelly, who runs the news stand, you know, has promised to get word to me the minute old Phil shows up. Here we are, honey. Let's have lunch and try to forget about it all for an hour. It breaks my heart to see you looking so tired and discouraged. I wish you'd stay at home one day from the trial and try to get some rest."

"Stay at home when Cherry is fighting for her life?" Faith flamed at him. "Bob, I believe you've given up hope! You're beginning to believe she did it! And if you doubt her—No, don't touch me! I don't want to be made love to! I want Cherry to be free! I don't want anything else in the world!"

Starvation Fad Is Real Menace To Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN, Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

OF all of the people of the world, Americans are apparently more addicted to and the readiest victims of food fads of one type or another.

The explanation lies, no doubt, in high-pressure advertising methods and "eat more" campaigns planned primarily for the promotion of single items of diet, when a diet should actually be widely assorted and well balanced.

The most vicious of all of the food fads, strangely enough, is the starvation fad. Undoubtedly most Americans overeat. The obvious corrective is to eat just enough food to satisfy the body's needs.

Investigators have estimated that a man at hard muscular work requires 4150 calories; a moderate worker, 3400; a desk worker, 2700; the person of leisure, 2450 calories per day. A child under one year requires about 45 calories per pound of body weight, or about 900 calories per day.

The number is reduced from the age of six to 12 years to about 35 calories per pound, or 2700 per day. From 18 to 25 years, it is still further reduced to about 25 calories per pound, or 2000 per day.

At 30 years one may have 2750 calories per day if he weighs about 152 pounds; at 40 years, 2500 for a weight of 154 pounds; at 50 years, 2300 calories for a weight of 150 pounds; at 70 years, 2000 calories for 134 pounds; and at 80 years, 1750 calories for a weight of 130 pounds.

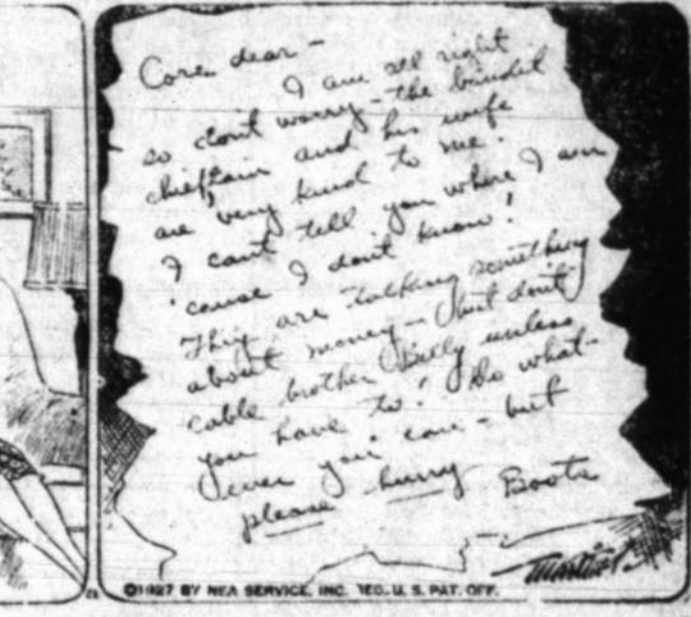

These figures indicate the importance of calories to sustain body loss during the time of greatest energy, the gradual reduction of food intake with increasing age, and the importance of the reducing of weight after 40 years of age in relation to longevity. Of this more will be said later.

Nevertheless, at every age the human being requires a certain amount of food to sustain his physical mechanism. An occasional starvation period may be worth while in relation to disease, but long continued fasts or starvation as a routine is merely a fad and should be severely discontinued.

As A Woman Sees It

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE biography of a successful inventor tells again the story of a man's triumph due to his mother's faith in him.

A popular actress told a reporter sent to interview her recently, that she would have given up discouraged years before the public ever heard of her if her young husband hadn't persisted in his faith in her ability and convinced her of her talent for acting.

If we dig down to the roots of anyone's success, we're almost sure to find them growing in someone's faith in him. Everybody is sensitive and responsive to praise. They talk about the callousness of the young people today. Don't you believe it! The chances are that their parents have made a better job of bringing them up, that's all. They are not full of fears and the wrong kind of inhibitions. They are sure to feel that they are going if amount to something, that's all. And they will.

Who Is In Debt?

will cutting his only son off with exactly one penny.
In the will, the doctor explained this action by stating that the son had forfeited any right to share in his father's estate by his "unfilial and unlawful treatment" of his benefactor.

Newspapers don't know anything about the private history of either this doctor or his son. It may be, for all we know, that the son was an ingrate who had proved a terrible trial to his father; and on the other hand, it may be that the father was a domineering tyrant.

What we would like to get at is this:
How long is it going to be before we parents outgrow the notion that our children are under deep, inescapable debts to us? How long are we going to continue to feel that we are their "benefactors" simply because we clothe and feed and educate them?

It would seem as though the shoe usually ought to be on the other foot.
If anyone should feel a indebted,
shouldn't it be the parent?

No child asks to be born. He is brought into existence in spite of himself, and his parents are in duty bound to give him the best upbringing they possibly can. In simple justice they can do nothing else. The best home, the kindest treatment, the finest education possible—these are the child's rights, and no parent can in fairness give anything else.

Why, then, try to pose as the child's benefactor? When one fulfills an obvious duty one should not go around claiming credit for extreme generosity and kindness.

We are very fond of talking about the "duty" that children owe their parents. All too often we forget that parents owe their children far greater duties. Far worse than a disobedient child is the parent who, through thoughtlessness or selfishness or plain ignorance, gives his child anything but the best care and training he is able to give.

As for filial love and respect—any parent can have them who deserves them. Love and respect are not things that can be forced. Every child gives them gladly where the parents are worthy of them.

Let's lament a little less about undutiful children, and a little more about undutiful parents.

Vacation Grounds

Wholly aside from any political effect, it may have, President Coolidge's forthcoming vacation in the west will be a good thing for the country.
It will call the attention of many people to the splendid summer vacation grounds of the middle and far west.

States like Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota have enough charming little lakes to last a lover of the outdoors for many years. Further west there is a climate that, in the summer months, can compare with California's or Florida's; there are the boundless imposing prairies of the Dakotas and Nebraska; there is Iowa, with its green hills, quiet lakes and winding rivers; there are the tonic sage-brush plains of Wyoming; the mountains of Montana, Idaho and Utah; the immense, haunting emptiness of New Mexico.

It is well that the president's trip will call these things to the country's attention.

What Price Laughter?

Gilbert Swan, who writes entertainingly of New York's fads and fashions, tells of a prominent musical comedy star who refuses to laugh heartily at anything, even the most side-splitting joke.

She explains that laughing heartily is bad for the voice. Desiring to retain her voice, she abstains from laughter.
Somehow this seems to us like a dreadfully high price to pay. Laughter is humanity's one weapon against an-nihil, relentless forces. Life without laughter must be a joyless sort of affair.

THE PLAINSMAN

Says:
They're going to blast a levee near New Orleans soon. Maybe the sound of the explosion will wake some of the old nesters up down there. We understand from reliable sources that many of the citizens of the Crescent City have not even heard of the passage of the prohibition laws.

Much of Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Louisiana, Illinois, Tennessee and Kentucky are under water and great loss of life and property has been entailed as a result. The city of New Orleans is located about 20 feet below the level of the Mississippi, the waters of which are held back by mammoth dikes. Much of East Texas, a portion of South Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Arkansas has been swept by tornadoes, cyclones and hard winds, taking lives and causing damage toll in dollars.

New York banks, what you have said about the sandstorms of the plains—which at their worst, do little more than make you temporarily uncomfortable.

"Our credit business is operated on a strict thirty day basis and everybody who owes us always comes around on the first of the month and pays off," said Spencer Wells in a speech before the Rotary club. He must have been speaking of Utopia, however, and not any average American city. The Plainsman remembers the time when people paid their bills
—and it hasn't been so long ago either.

He remembers when, if something unforeseen came up—and it had to be paid in a hurry—a check was drawn and cashed at a bank. The man who owed another a debt came around and talked to him about it. He explained the situation and paid at least a part of the debt in addition to making arrangements for other payments to clean it up. However times have changed in these days of rampant credit and many men are finding that their credit is no good for their good.

It has gotten to the point now where the public merely smiles when a man habitually "beats his bills" and his position in the community is just about as good as that of the man who pays off like a slot machine, a most sad state of affairs.

There are some people who find fault with you no matter what you do and the Plainsman considers it a compliment to be found fault with by such people.

Old Masters

Along within the day's enormous game.
He holds unshared the silence of the sky.
Far down his bleak, relentless eyes
descend.
The eagle's empire and the fal-con's home—
Far down, the galleons of sunset rest.
His huzzards on the sea of morning lie.
Severe, he hears the broken tempest sigh.
Where cold steers gleam like scattered foam.
And least of all he holds the human swarms.
Unwitting now that envious men prepare
To make their dream and its fulfillment one.
When, poised above the caissons
of the storm,
Their hearts, contemptuous of death, shall dare
His roads between the thunder and the sun.

What Kind of a Fit Will It Be?

WASHINGTON LETTER

WHEREIN THE SPANISH
AMBASSADOR LETS SOCI-ETY DOWN VERY HARD
By RODNEY BUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, April 28.—It is hard to recall off-hand whether or not Emily Post, the authority on which olive fork to use for tips, olives and how many petals to remove in demanding an artichoke, wrote anything about ballyhooing some personage as the flourish of one's party before inviting said personage.

It is not, Emily must have considered such warning superfluous.
It has been the habit of numerous small-time New York social clubs to advertise that some celebrity or other would be guests of honor at the club's next shindig. Whereupon the tariff would be boosted to $125 a couple instead of the customary 75 cents.

Perhaps the mercurial of the more maneuvered portion of Washington society is not to be compared with the ladies and gentlemen of the Royal Social Club of Mulberry street or the Twenty-second Ward Beef-Steak and Black Bottom associates—perhaps, we say. But it is now certain that the Spanish ambassador, Senor Don Alejandro Padilla y Bell, and the Spanish ambassador's wife, Senora Dona Carmen Sotrustegui de Padilla, are neither taking lessons in social etiquette from these social organizations nor lessons in Spanish social customs from the aforesaid mercurial.

All of which is part of the hitherto unwritten history of the swell-elegant Mi-Careme fiesta recently promoted by the queens of the local jungle.
This fiesta was what is often known as a ball, or dance, and the surplus, if any was to go for a few timbers to prop up the roof or decrepit Mon-tebellia, one-time abode of Thomas Jefferson, toward which all devout Democrats face as they kneel to pray for another honest Democratic president in the 1944 election.

Wouldn't it be just too picturesque for anything to have a real Spanish fiesta, someone suggested. You bet it would, and let's call it Mi-Careme because Mi-Careme was the occasion when all good done and sororitas came up for a breath of air in midland! So everyone began to feel very Spanish; there was much humming of stray bars of "La Paloma" and "That Wonderful Kid From Madrid," and in a burst of enthusiasm it was announced that Senora Dona Padilla and Senora Dona Padilla would be the guests of honor. Yes, indeed, they would occupy a specially decorated box.

In a moment of extreme mental activity, someone thought to break the news to Senora Dona Padilla.
And then Senora Dona Padilla broke some news to the committee.
"Mi-Careme? How lovely! But really, that isn't a Spanish custom. It's French. It is true that some people do dance in Spain during lent, but no one I know. So sorry! I've never been to a mid-lent dance in Madrid,
and really I couldn't do it here."

Mi-Careme is simply the French word for mid-lent. Spain says it differently.

The ambassador himself was "appealed to" in the privacy of his boudoir he has been laughing about it ever since.

But the social lioness must possess the hide of a rhino if she would lead the pack. Nobody wanted to wear French costumes. The flirts had been named Mi-Careme and that was all there was to it. Perhaps Senora Dona Padilla would consent to adjust the mushrooms for certain favored ladies and see that just the right amount of lace hung about. Oh yes, certainly—which meant that there would be something Spanish about it all after all.

COURT ROOM LOUDSPEAKERS

At the trial of Henry Judd Gray and Ruth Snyder, charged jointly with murdering the woman's husband, loud-speakers are installed in the Long Island City courtroom to counteract faulty acoustics.

The acoustics are pretty bad in a good many courtrooms, thanks to the architectural tradition that such a room must have a high ceiling and an echo. The original idea of that may have been to provide an atmosphere of dignity or to give proper resonance to the voices of the lawyers. An old-fashioned lawyer, in an impassioned plea, does love to hear his voice rolling back to him from the walls and ceiling. Loudspeakers may direct the sound where it will do the most good.

Everybody, we may assume, present at that sensational murder trial, will get an earful. But we may doubt whether loudspeakers are as dignified as old-fashioned acoustics.

We're getting pretty far nowadays in making dramas of our murder trials.
—Gainesville Register.

WHY? WHY? WHY?

The average Texas farmer gets up to the alarm of a Connecticut clock buttons his Chicago suspenders to a pair of Detroit overalls, washes his face with Cincinnati soap, sits down to a Grand Rapids table, eats Chicago meat, and Minneapolis flour cooked on a Sears Roebuck stove. He goes out to the barn and puts a New York brick on a Missouri mule fed with Colorado alfalfa, plows the farm covered by a Vermont mortgage with an Illinois plow. When bed time comes he reads a chapter from the Bible, printed in Boston, says a prayer written in Jerusalem, crawls under a blanket made in New Jersey, only to be awakened by a Texas dog, the only home property on the place, and then he wonders why he can't make money raising cotton.—Lockney Beacon.

BARB'S

Hunting Eggs
One of the time honored customs of Easter Sunday is the hunting of eggs. Many a flapper thinks so well of the pastime that she continues it all year round. An old custom of Sweden is the eating of as many eggs as possible on Easter Sunday to gain an extra amount of strength.
Proving the milliners over there, too, know what they're about. Early risers on Easter Sunday are supposed to see the sun whirl round three times and dance up and down. In this country there are those who don't even have to go to bed to see that—Easter brings spring, though, and the poets and house cleaners. We wish some of the best house cleaners and some of the poets we've read could be brought together.

An eastern pastor resigned because the congregation insisted church suppers. Those wild parties always do cause trouble.

Judging from the sounds in England, Mr. Churchill is having his troubles in trying to hudge the budget.

So the French ambassador, M. Paul Caudet, was roped in as the guest of honor; full advantage was taken of the fact that some of the Latin-American diplomats will go anywhere where refreshments are served, and an allegedly Spanish dancer was imported from New York.

Whether the French ambassador groped for smelling salts when he arrived and found himself surrounded by Spanish costumes for Mi-Careme has not been revealed.

He probably muttered:
"Carraaaa!"

IN NEW YORK
SEE-SAWING
and
DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, April 28.—The barely tourist, who sets out to see all of New York's "sights" in two days' time, seldom fails to get on one of the lantern-bedecked buses and take a trip through Chinatown.

There the Barker regales him with fearful tales of the dark and sinister practices that the inscrutable Celestials indulge in behind the frothy fronts of the Ringo Mott and Pell street tenements. The tourist looks about him, observes that the neighborhood differs from other neighborhoods only in that it is rather more peaceful, and concludes—rightly—that the Barker is kidding him.

Yes, for all the exaggerations of the bus-barker, New York's Chinatown is at times a highly picturesque color which a Chinese colony in a strange land always acquires.

In proof of this remark might be cited the recent peace festival of the On Leung and Hip Sing Tong, in which the rival leaders celebrated their latest burial of the hatchet after their most recent war.

Immediately after the peace agreement had been reached, a white flag with red border, inscribed with Chinese characters, was raised on a flagstaff on the roof of the Hip Sing Tong headquarters on Mott street. These were flags of peace, telling all Chinatown that the war was off.

At the same time a notice was pasted on an old bulletin board which hangs at the intersection of Pell and Mott streets—the deadline during a Tong war. Pell street is Hip Sing territory in war time and Mott street is On Leung territory, and the neutral Chinaman passes from one to the other in fear and trembling when there are hostilities afoot.

This notice apparently told of the armistice; for presently Chinese began to tiptoe up and read it turning away to dive into nearby houses to avoid the stings. Presently Chinatown became imbued with a festive air.

Once more the streets became populated. From within the houses could be heard the music of those strange Chinese musical instruments which, they say, no white man ever learns to admire. Rice wine began to flow, and the odor of ceremonial roast pig floated in the air.

Furthermore, and most important, Chinamen who are members of the two Tong began to unlock their front doors.

The police for several days refused to trust too implicitly in this armistice, and continued to send triple patrols through Chinatown.

"You never can tell about the Chinese," said one police captain.

The peace, incidentally, came just too soon for one Chinese. This man, who reached New York on the day the armistice was signed, is a famous killer, but belongs to neither Tong. When a Tong war is on he recruits a force of hatchetmen and hires out to the highest bidder. He came to New York from Chicago expecting a harvest—but they signed the peace treaty just about the time he was getting off his train.

Paralyzed Lad Will Die Soon, Believed

ROANOKE, Va., April 28. (P)—A thin wreath of smoke rose from a cigaret held to the swollen lips of Walter L. Booth, yesterday and between occasional puffs the 18 year old motherless lad, who lies paralyzed in a hospital here, spoke to his father and mother of an early death to which he feels he is doomed.

As life to the sufferer seemed nearing an end, an almost constant smile was on his face. His features were drawn and pallid but the cheer of his disposition served to revive the waning hope of his loyal attendants.

The one hundred and fiftieth hour in which artificial respiration has been used to keep his helpless body alive was reached last night.

Know the Advantages of Feeding Fresh Milled,
Prime Cottonseed Meal
For Baby Chicks
Experiments from unquestionable resources indicate the positive advantages of feeding baby chicks a certain mixture of feeds containing in addition to tender greens, small grains, etc., a small percentage of freshly milled cottonseed meal. They grow quicker and are healthier.
For Growing Pullets
The Feed mixtures for growing pullets differ very little from baby chicks other than the addition of a larger quantity of protein feeds. Prime cottonseed meals becomes more important in Pullet feeding for quick growth and weight.

For Laying Hens
FEEDING LAYING HENS
Various experiments have been conducted at the Texas Station to determine the value of Prime Cottonseed Meal, 43 per cent protein, as a feed for laying hens. The results as published in Bulletin No. 317, show for an average of the years, 1921-1922 and 1922-1923, as follows:
Average Results of Two Experiments
Lbs. feed Eggs Lbs. feed Eggs
Per bird Produced Per doz.
Protein Concentrate 59 138 5.2
Animal Protein 54 125 5.3
Animal Protein and Vegetable Protein 57 138 5.0 50 Birds in each lot These experiments give good evidence of the usefulness of prime cottonseed meal as a feed for laying hens.

ATLANTIC CITY—Mrs. Richard D. Morgan, Dupont heiress who eloped, will try to struggle along with a servant or two in an apartment in a choice location in Philadelphia when the honeymoon is over. She will dispense with her maid and secretary.

Why Not?

NEW YORK—A fellow who paid $100 for a hot dog concession at the Snyder-Gray trial is out that much and a little more. A smiling man with a wheel barrow of lumber appeared in front of the court house and started hammering. A policeman, asking how come, was shown a receipt and a permit. It took an hour to convince the raving concessionaire that he had been fleeced.

Poor Man

HOBOKEN, N. J.—The most henpecked husband in the world has been discovered by Judge Carsten. William Keuntje received one five cent cigar daily from his wife and one package of gum per week. The Mrs. had him arrested, when in a rebellious mood, he turned over only $34.25 instead of his full week's pay of $34.75 as usual. The judge showed her from the court room.

He Wins

NEW YORK—Having called her wealthy elderly husband an old fool and a dumbbell and stayed out late at nights at card parties, Mrs. Julius F. Fleischer, ex-stenographer, was cruel, says the findings of a referee. The husband won a separation suit with costs of $4,186 charged to the wife.

Still Watchful

NEW YORK—Chauncey Depew at 93 keeps an eye on what is doing in Wall street. Folks who noticed him visiting friends there could think of no particular reason, especially since New York Central, of which he is chairman, was firm and his slogan is "the optimist always wins."

Made Money

CHICAGO—Clarence Saunders, who owned $150,000 two years ago, now regards himself as a millionaire. Explaining his rise to the Illinois Manufacturer's association he said he borrowed $12,000 and most of it went into newspaper advertising, which worked wonders.

A Complaint

NEW YORK—Sir Charles Higham's latest description of President Coolidge is that he is one of the fifty people in the world who can say yes or no without asking advice.

Poor Chicago

NEW YORK—Max West, who has just got out of the workhouse where she spent ten restless days for insisting on presenting the play "Sex," thinks Chicago will stand for it. She announces she intends to produce it there and also another play which New York even did not get a look at it after some trouble about it in Bridgeport, Conn. She gave the warden $1,000, proceeds of her jail experiences, to be used for a prison library; also gave him a poem about the uncomfortable things she had to wear.

Accident Probe Made On Davis And Wooster

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., April 28. (AP)—Lieutenant Commander D. H. Vance, head of a naval board which investigated the death Tuesday of Lieutenant Commander Noel Davis and Lieutenant S. H. Wooster in the crash of their trans-Atlantic plane, American Legion expressed the opinion yesterday that both men were killed instantly.

"I don't think either of the men knew what happened to them," he said. "The impact was enough to render them unconscious if not to break their necks and even had the shock not killed them, the fumes from gasoline would have, for one of the tanks became loosened in the crash and gasoline poured into the cockpit." Davis' face was crushed and his companion's neck was broken.
