17 KILLED IN STORM

Okla. Judge Freed of Murder Charge

MAINLY ABOUT People
BY H. N. F.

Stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky increased the capital stock from 6 million to 12 million dollars and declared a stock dividend of 2 million dollars. Par value of the stock was reduced from $100 to $25 and the debt limit was increased from $400,000 to $12,000,000. They also set aside 2 million dollars for stockholders to be purchased at par and placed a like sum in the treasury to be sold to employes on a plan to be worked out. Surplus and undivided profit of $10,668,442.43 was shown by the annual financial statement. Petroleum is the greatest game in the world if the players are close to that famous number on Broadway. It is said that the United States Steel Corporation is the most gigantic corporation of its kind in the world. Now why overlook Standard Oil?

President Harding has ordered house cleaning of all the departments. First to feel the axe was the engraving department where 29 chiefs were dismissed. Now it is said that 445 of the 4,000 employes of the customs service have been bounced and are jobless. Next to receive the broom and the axe will be the internal revenue bureau. Hundreds of department heads and clerks are to find themselves jobless. Even "the dry department" will not escape the housecleaners. Four hundred of the dry hounds must make way for others and hundreds of federal employes are fearful of dismissal because they have shown lack of pep and are on the black list. Of course if these men grew fat and sleek and lazy they needed the axe treatment. A laborer is worthy of his hire if he gives a hundred cents worth of service for every dollar in salary that he is paid. If he doesn't he should be told to move on.

There is a philosopher making the editorial copy for the Kansas City Star. This was the Star's dismissal of its wallop and political defeat the morning after the famous municipal election. "Well, no more politics now until the congressional primaries. Perhaps you think you can't wait, but you'll just have to." Reads like the epitah on the tombstone in an Arizona graveyard: "He done his damdest; angels kin do no more."

Steel is a barometer of trade. Pig iron is a barometer of trade. If so the motor must be a barometer of trade. March was the best month the motor industry has had since August, 1920. Automotive industries tell the story. Output of Henry Ford's plant this glass journal says, provides the only element of doubt. Practically all the other large producers turned out more passenger cars, trucks, tractors and parts than in any thirty day period in a year and a half. Moreover sales of parts manufacturers in March were as large as in any month in 1921 and probably larger. Carload shipments of automobiles and trucks and tractors in February numbered 19,600. This was a tremendous showing but the prediction is made that the carload shipment for March are certain to exceed any of the banner months of 1920 and 1921. These are prosperity straws. They show that the people are buying pleasure cars, the farmers are buying tractors and the business men of the country are buying trucks. This reminds the writer that in the fall of 1921 Roger W. Babson painted a gloomy picture of the near future of the motor industry. It is different now. He should use his brush on a prosperity picture if the figures of the trade journal of the industry are correct.

Delay in drilling into an oil structure or sands after they have been opened up may cause losses of from 5 to 50 per cent in the ultimate amount of oil produced from the well according to a statement issued by the United States Bureau of Mines. Oil, the statement reads, is an underground nomad. It moves through the deep sands layers propelled by the gas pressure behind it, ever searching for the opening which it may spout or be pumped to the surface. Regardless of the number of tracts

DAY JUSTIFIED FOR KILLING OF WIFE'S ADMIRER

Wife "Sweetest and Purest in World" He Says

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 8.—Holding that Jean P. Day, prominent attorney and oil man was justified in the killing of Lieutenant Colonel Paul Ward Beck at the Day home early last Tuesday, a coroner's jury returned a verdict here tonight recommending that no charges be preferred against Day.

The crowded courtroom was silent as it heard the verdict read. Mr. and Mrs. Day displayed no emotion as it was made public and after it had been read, they arose, Mr. Day shook hands with Coroner McWilliams and the party walked slowly from the room without a word between them.

Jury's Decision.

The text of the verdict follows:

"We, the coroner's jury, duly sworn and empanelled to inquire into the cause of the death of Paul Ward Beck, after hearing evidence introduced before us from witnesses, and after viewing the body of Paul Ward Beck, do upon our oath find and report:

"That Paul Wark Beck came to his death at the hands of Jean P. Day, and from the evidence submitted to us, conclude that Jean P. Day was justified in defending his wife and himself even though the unfortunate affair resulted in the death of Paul Ward Beck, and we therefore recommend and advise that no charges be filed or prosecution instituted against Jean P. Day."

The verdict was signed by all six of the jurors.

Day Tells Story.

On the witness stand in a packed courtroom, Day and his wife told with emotion of the slaying of Beck. In a

EIGHT TAKEN BY BOOZE RAIDERS

Rooming Houses and Cafes Visited

Eight men were taken Saturday night in a raid on several down town cafes and rooming houses conducted by Federal Prohibition Officer Tyler, Ranger McCormick and City Detective Belcher. All eight men were lodged in the county jail and will be turned over to federal officials this morning when complaints alleging the violation of the federal prohibition enforcement acts will be filed against them.

One of the men attempting an escape through the rear of the cafe was stopped by Ranger McCormick who stood outside the door. The man broke a gallon jar of whisky before being arrested but the officer succeeded in obtaining a gallon of the evidence.

Small quantities of whisky were obtained at the three places raided.

Wichitan Nets Profit Of Eleven Thousand On 15-Acre Garden Plot

Two and Half Acres of Tomatoes Win Nearly $2,000 Purse

Eleven thousand dollars returns in two seasons from a 15-acre garden tract, just on the outskirts of Wichita Falls.

Eleven hundred bushels of sweet peppers to the acre, with a cash return in one season of more than $1,400 from less than an acre and a half of peppers.

More than $1,800 realized in one season from two and a half acres of tomatoes.

Few Theories Here

When you start talking irrigation to W. H. Downing and his son, Solon, you will not get a lot of theories as to what can be done, but can secure facts and figures as to what has been done. The above items are taken from their garden account books for 1920 and 1921, to show exactly what was realized from a small garden space, with the assistance of irrigation.

W. H. Downing gave an itemized account of the returns from this garden plot at an Iowa Park Business Men's Club luncheon, which was turned into an irrigation rally, with directors and others interested in the irrigation project present. The figures were quite a revelation to a number of those present, and will be of exceptional interest to many others, both producers and consumers in Wichita county.

Heads Truck Growers

The younger Downing was chairman for the truck growers of the open market, which was instituted last year by the Civic league and the gardeners. His energetic interest in the proposition played a big part in keeping the market going during the dry spells, the women of the Civic

POLITICAL WAR IN K. K. PROBE

Witnesses Released From Jail

Sensational charges to the effect that Sheriff Fred K. Smith had acted corruptly in the selection of the special grand jury called by Judge Ed Napier in the 78th district court and principally charged with investigation of the Ku Klux Klan here, and that former Mayor J. B. Marlow, half brother of Judge Napier, had used the grand jury for political purposes, featured the Saturday morning hearing on the grand jury.

The hearing was held in connection with the ruling of Judge Napier that three witnesses, Dr. Wallace Martin of Burkburnett and J. C. Jennings and H. D. Miller of Electra should be fined for refusal to answer questions from the grand jury relative to the Ku Klux Klan and should go to jail until they were answered.

Have Appeal Up

Acting under the direction of the court of criminal appeal at Austin, Sheriff Fred Smith at 8 p. m. released the three men under $500 bond each. Their release was brought about by the action of attorneys in filing habeas corpus proceedings with the higher court Saturday afternoon. The wire from the court said that the men should be released under bond and also said that the hearings on the habeas corpus proceedings would be held Wednesday at Austin.

The charges were brought out in the motion of the counsel for the three men challenging the array of the grand jury on the grounds that Sheriff Smith had acted corruptly in its selection, and in testimony of wit-

NEFF DOES NOT INTEND TO SAVE HORNSBY'S NECK

Star State Witness Reiterates Doomed Man's Innonence

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, April 8.—Governor Neff will not interfere with the execution of George Hornsby, sentenced to hang in Belton next Friday for murder of J. N. Weatherby at Brownwood over a year ago.

Such was his declaration in a statement today discussing the Hornsby case. He said that 7,138 citizens of Bell county had petitioned him to commute the sentence to life imprisonment and 28 other petitioners, mostly from other counties, had urged him not to interfere with the sentence.

Interviews Carter

After a lengthy discussion of the case and his talk with Willie Carter, the state's chief witness in the case, who once repudiated his testimony and later said his repudiation was false, the governor concluded:

"The jury that heard all the testimony found against the contention of the defendant, and were so strong in their belief as to his guilt that they assessed the death penalty against him. The supreme court of the state, for criminal cases passed on and approved in every way the trial of the case, finding no error committed and no injustice done, and I have been presented with no new evidence that would justify me to set aside the pronounced verdict of the jury, and the legally entered judgment of the court."

It is not known when Hornsby, who is now in the Austin jail, will be returned to Belton.

Changes Story

Willie Carter, who is in jail here, late today wrote a letter to Judge Sam Snodgrass of Temple urging him to arrange another conference with Governor Neff for him, saying that the statement he made to the governor in the recent conference was untrue and that a statement he made to Judge Snodgrass in Temple was true.

NAVAL MEASURE PROVIDES CUTS

Bill Reflects Arms Parley Spirit

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The 1923 naval bill, carrying out the five-five-three ratio was reported today to the house.

It carries a total of $233,224,000, or $181,000,000 less than appropriated last year.

There remains to be appropriated in a separate measure later however, about $60,000,000, estimated by the navy department as the cost of cancellation of contracts for ships not completed and ordered scrapped.

Provisions of Bill.

Briefly, this is what the bill does: Cuts the enlisted personnel from 95,000 to 65,000 apprentices. Leaves officer total substantially intact, except for the dropping of 389 reserve officers on active duty. Authorizes commissions for only 200 of the 535 first class men at Annapolis, to be graduated in June.

Lays up 254 vessels of "non-descript character."

Eighteen battleships are allotted the United States under the naval treaty. In rounding out a fleet the bill reduces the number of destroyers in commission from 278 to 163; authorizes 84 submarines, all the cruisers and lighter auxiliary crafts.

WEST TEXAS CREEKS HIGHEST FOR YEARS

By Associated Press.

ABILENE, Texas, April 8.—As a result of heavy rains all creeks in this section are at the highest stages in years. DERELICT FERRY BOAT CAUGHT IN RED RIVER BY TEXARKANA BOYS

By Associated Press.

TEXARKANA, Ark., April 8.—A new ferry boat was caught by several Texarkana young men, running loose on the Red river yesterday afternoon. The men were viewing the high water from the bridge at Index when the boat, a very large one, and practically new, was seen floating down the stream.

The drift around the bridge piers held the boat long enough for it to be boarded, and it was steered to the bank and fastened.

No one could account for the appearance of the boat at this point, and the owner has not been found. It is thought it broke away from one of the ferries between Index and Arthur City.

By Associated Press.

All available physicians and surgeans left Baird this morning for the scene of the disaster.

DEPRESSION DUE TO LEAGUE LOSS

James M. Cox Takes Rap at G. O. P.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8. — Attributing present day "business adversity" to the failure of the United States to join the league of nations, former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, in an addresse here tonight urged a continuation of the campaign to have this country join the league.

His address was made before the National Democratts club, and was one of his few public utterances since his campaign as a democratic candidate for the presidency in 1920.

Leader Lacking

Asserting that "as one surveys conditions at Washington, he finds little ground for hope of a stable prosperity," Mr. Cox declared, "that the average person of the overage community believes there is something radically wrong in Washington, and that it consists chiefly of a lack of leadreship." There is "no captain of the ship."

Governor Cox told his audience that "while there is much regret throughout the country over the aimless way in which things are drifting it is not fair to criticize the president of the United States.

Defends Harding

"He is simply keeping his contract with the people," Mr. Cox said. "He was open and frank in expressing his opinion as to what the function of the

DEATH TOLL LEAPING WITH 80 HURT LEFT IN WAKE OF TORNADO

More Than Score of Texas Towns Swept by Fatal Gusts Unable to Report Losses Owing to Damage to Wires

DALLAS, April 8.—Seventeen persons are reported dead and more than eighty injured as a result of tornadoes and rain storms which swept from West Texas east into Oklahoma toward Arkansas early today. Tonight's tally of the dead and injured may be increased, as reports from some of the stricken towns are meager.

The list of casualties reported tonight showed:

Runnels county, near Rowena, Texas, six dead, seven injured.

Olpin, Callahan county, four dead, twenty injured.

Electra, several injured.

Cleburne, Texas, one dead, one injured.

Lawton, Okla., two dead, seventeen injured.

Dallas, five injured.

Cisco, Texas, two injured.

Ranger, Texas, six injured.

Whitewright, Texas, one injured.

Echo, Texas, six injured.

Breckenridge, Texas, three injured.

Graham, Texas, one injured.

County Fair Razed.

Johnson and Stephens counties each reported damage to $500,000. The Johnson county fair buildings were wrecked and the top blown off of the new grandstand. The highways, bridges and buildings were demolished in Stephens county. Thirty oil derricks were completely destroyed.

Rowena, Runnels county, Texas, was the first to feel the affects of the storm. The tornado swept across this county for a distance of more than 40 miles, striking in five different communities.

17 Injured at Lawton.

The latest report tonight on the number of dead in the county brought the total up to nine with about 20 injured, some probably fatally. Two churches and many homes were wrecked.

Reports from Lawton, Okla., tonight stated 17 people seriously injured were being taken care of in the Southwestern hospital. Two of them are believed to be fatally injured.

At Ranger, Texas, many oil rigs were damaged, entailing a loss estimated at $25,000. At Caddo, 100 rigs were wrecked.

It was estimated early this morning that the damage would be in the neighborhood of $150,000, but a survey has shown that this estimate is far too high. None of the better buildings in the city were injured and the ones that were totally destroyed were one and two-room houses, while the damage done to others will not be half so great as it appeared on first investigation. It is now believed that the damage can not possibly mount to over $50,000.

The storm seemed to have broken up in the Wichita foothills after unroofing buildings in the west end of a new post at Fort Sill and at Camp Doniphan. No one was reported injured at Fort Sill.

It was reported tonight that half the houses in Crystal Falls, a village with 150 population, near Cleburne, are blown down.

Disrupts Family

Mrs. Henry Z. Span, 28, was picked up dead in a field 100 yards from her delomished home in Lawton, Okla. Her 2-year-old son was picked up some distance from the house. He died later at a hospital. Three other small children of the Span family are in a hospital seriously injured. Two of them are expected to die.

Hail stripped all trees in the North Concho River valley, killing much poultry and some livestock.

Fifty negro homes in Beaumont are under water, the property damage at that point being estimated at $50,000.

Corpus Christi weather officials announced a gale of 48 miles an hour struck the city this morning, that during the entire week the wind has not fallen below 25 miles an hour.

Depot Demolished

Thirty thousand dollars damage was done at Cisco, where the Katy freight depot was demolished.

Oklahoma City reported $20,000 damage to buildings of the Oklahoma State Fair association.

Damage to oil rigs at Caddo totaled $100,000, it is estimated. A wide path by the tornado was made there.

Damage in Dallas is estimated at $50,000, the grand stand of the Texas league baseball park was partly destroyed under the pressure of the windstorm that blew across the city before noon. Damages to the field were given at $5,000. A number of homes in Oak Cliff and East Dallas were partly demolished.

3 AT ELECTRA BADLY INJURED

Debris Marks Path of Tornado

Special to the Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, April 8.—A storm, which gained cyclonic proportions in sections of the city swept down without warning this morning at about 6 o'clock and left a trail of debris over the north and east section of the city and injured some score of people.

Only three of those injured are in a serious condition as all the rest are of a minor nature and are not considered as serious.

Mrs. L. M. Cruse was badly injured and is in a serious condition in the local hospital. Her residence a short distance north of the Texas company barn and a mile north of the city was a complete wreck.

Man in Narrow Escape

Nag Hightower had three ribs broken and received painful injuries about the abdomen and head when the derrick on which he was working two miles south of the city was blown over and an 8-inch bit fell and pinned him to the derrick floor. The derrick caught fire, but Hightower was rescued before the flames reached him.

E. Gartner was badly injured and was unconscious for hours in the local hospital. His residence was west of Electra three miles at the end of the paved road and it was completely wrecked by the cyclone.

Others injured were Mrs. J. N. Nance and three children, who lived

Oklahoma Suffers Heavy Losses From Wind and Rainfall

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 8.—Central and southwestern Oklahoma was tonight pulling itself out of a mire and checking up the damage sustained in a series of wind storms and torrential rains which visited the area early in the day.

The most severe storm damage was sustained at Lawton where two persons were killed, several injured and more than a score of homes destroyed. Twenty-five families were made homeless. Chickasha was also hit by a heavy wind which caused damage estimated at $30,000. The buildings at the Oklahoma state fair grounds here were damaged to the extent of approximately $20,000 and windows were blown in downtown. Kemp and Bennington, both in southern Bryan county, reported wind damage of approximately $60,000. No one was injured except at Lawton, according to reports received here.

By Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, April 8.—Stern measures for dealing with rebels against the Mexican Central government were outlined in a presidential decree made public today. The decree is directed to Attorney General Neri.

WOMAN SUICIDE INQUEST VERDICT

Special to the Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, April 8.—Mrs. Phil Potter, proprietor of a small cafe at Bradley's corner, oil field settlement, was found practically unconscious in her place of business last night and died this morning. A small son and daughter survive.

LITTLE DAMAGE DONE IN CITY

Phone and Wire Firms Suffer

Heavy damage throughout the country from high winds were reported Saturday. Throughout the oil fields, derricks were blown down in large numbers, while the wire service out of Wichita Falls was badly crippled for a few hours. The telephone company had five cables out early in the day, while several electric light poles were blown down and minor damage to the street lighting system was reported.

The storm sewer at Austin and Third streets was undermined by the heavy rains for about 20 feet, but the damage was repaired late Saturday afternoon.

At Iowa Park several outhouses and garages were wrecked, while the home of G. W. Hamilton was partially demolished during the heavy gale.

On the line of the Wichita Falls & Southern railway, a washout was reported about a mile south of Graham, but the damage was not serious and the traffic interruption was slight.

Rains between 2 and 10 o'clock Saturday gave this city and immediate section three inches of rainfall, the largest amount for a similar period in over a year. Beginning with slight showers between 2 and 3:30 o'clock, the rain reached the proportions of a near cloudburst between 6 and 8 o'clock.

Lake Wichita, which was raised three inches by the rains of the forepart of the week, rose rapidly throughout Saturday, Holliday creek having a large flow. Without further rains, it is not expected that the lake will rise within two feet of the spillway. It was standing about five feet below the level of the spillway. It contained sufficient water for the city's needs before last week's rain.

3 AT ELECTRA—

near the stock pen. Mrs. Lewis was badly burned when her residence in the north part of the city was overturned and her clothing caught fire from an oil stove. The little 9-year-old son of Lee Wallace also received minor injuries in the north part of the city. J. A. Bruce, a local barber, received minor injuries. Others injured were Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Burlison.

Missed Business District

The storm did no damage whatever to the business district. The course of the worst part of the wind seemed to be almost north and south over the east end of the city. Small dwellings and shacks were upturned through a section three or four blocks wide, while the roofs were torn from many of the more permanent houses. In one instance a garage was blown away and the car left almost uninjured where it was standing. The brick garage of Bob Brewer in the east part of the city was blown to pieces. The main residence section of the city in the north part of town only suffered slightly and none of the houses were destroyed, although many of them had fallen flues and demolished garages and outbuildings.

In the Oil Fields.

The Fowlkes district suffered but little and it is thought that the damage in that section will be nominal. However, the district around the Piper & Sumner leases to the west did not fare so well as apparently there was a bad wind in that section. The Magnolia lost two derricks over drilling wells and it is reported that some of the wooden beams over pumping wells in that district were also destroyed. The wind was strong over at Harrold, seven miles west of this city and barns were blown over but no great amount of damage was reported. Some derricks were also blown over in the new district directly south of Electra.

Telephone Wires Down.

In certain sections of the city, the light and telephone wires are all down with the posts lying in the streets. In other parts of town, the service has not been effected in any way. A hard wind blew all over the city, but the tract of the cyclone was over a very limited area.

executive is. The campaign waged by his party was largely directed against the alleged autocratic policies of Mr. Wilson. In making the distinction which both he and his party made as between what had been, and what was to be in this regard, the republican candidate specifically promised what he would do. He has kept his faith. He doubtless believes his performance is in precise harmony with what he accepted as a mandate adopted by seven million plurality."

Declaring that the republican administration in its attitude toward international co-operation, is permitting "this republic to remain in the world view a selfish, greedy people, strapped to our money bags and unaffected by the distress of others," he said, "these intolerable conditions cannot endure."

People Fixed Policies

"Policies opposed to the general welfare," he said, "and to our moral, religious and economic tenets, must yield to the controlling will of an intelligent people.

"As we foregather tonight as disciples of the creed of Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson, let us resolve to hold the line. No great cause was ever won in a single battle. Our principles are right, and they must and will prevail."

There was not enough thought of the future and what was to be done for the common good. There was too much thought of the past and punishment for fancied wrongs."

Will Be Dark Page

"In the calm review of history, the period and events in question will be referred to as 'the madness of 1920.' If we had lifted our voice for international cooperation, we would today be prosperous. As one surveys conditions at Washington, he finds little ground for hope of stable prosperity.

broken voice, but with a gleam of determination in his eye, Day related he killed the noted army aviator accidentally when he sought to drive Beck from his home after finding him attempting to assault Mrs. Day.

"Beck threw his arms around me, crying, 'Girl, girl, you swept me off my feet,' and asked me to come to his room that night," the wife of the wealthy oil man and attorney said.

"I saw Colonel Beck holding Mrs. Day on the divan," testified Day.

"She was fighting him. He had his right arm around her. His other hand was about her knees.

"I Protected Her."

"I got there in time to protect her and I did," declared Day.

Leaning over and pointing his finger at County Attorney Hughes, Day said in a pleading voice:

"I want to say to you boys, you can prosecute me to the limit, but don't, don't make such statements as you have to the newspapers reflecting on the purest, sweetest woman in the world."

The county attorney replied that he had tried to be fair but that it was his position as the representative of the state to bring out every angle of the case.

Spurned Beck.

"You don't know what you are saying; I couldn't do that," Mrs. Day testified, she replied to Beck when he urged her to come to his room.

Mrs. Day said she did not hear her husband enter the house when he went to get his revolver. "I don't know whether I beat his face," she said, declaring she used both hands to fight off Beck's left arm.

Mrs. Day testified she first saw her husband as he descended the stairs with a revolver in one hand. "My God, Daddy, don't do that," she said she cried.

Officer Retreated.

Beck had jumped up from the divan meanwhile and had retreated to another room, she said.

The next thing she said she saw, was the body of Beck lying on the floor.

"I didn't see the shot fired—didn't hear the report," Mrs. Day testified.

"I looked down and saw his lips move," she continued.

"I lifted his head. Then I put his head back down and the blood surged out. Then my hands were covered with blood."

Later she testified she wiped the blood from her hands and arms when an officer brought a wet towel.

"There will be people who don't believe," she said brokenly.

After the tragedy she said she moaned:

"I pray that my little girl won't live; that she won't come home."

Thinks of Daughter.

"What is there for her to live for?" she asked with a gesture of hopelessness.

Doris, the 21 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Day, a student, was at the University of Oklahoma the night of the tragedy.

"When he was struggling with you and he asked you to come to his room, you didn't think he was trying to do anything wrong then?" asked County Attorney Hughes, explaining that he wanted to bring out the intent in Beck's mind.

"I didn't think; I didn't know," Mrs. Day replied. "What would you think?" she questioned.

Mrs. Day testified how Beck had been a trusted friend. He was the idol of her daughter who regarded him as a big brother, she said.

She said Beck was not under the influence of liquor the night of the tragedy. Never before she said, had the army man given any indications that he was other than "a perfect gentleman."

Voice Strained.

When Day took the stand he spoke in clear tones but showed the strain he was under. His voice grew strained when he protested:

"I didn't intend to kill him. That is the truth."

"He jumped back and put his hand back as if to fight," the witness said, "and I struck him with all my might." Day said he did not know whether his finger was on the trigger of his revolver. He testified the weapon discharged accidentally.

"One time I caught the gun and put it to my head, but I did not shoot; I thought of my wife and my child," said Day, relating how he surprised Beck, entered the house and went to an upstairs room where he obtained his revolver.

County Attorney Hughes made no announcement of what course he would take when the coroner's jury returned its verdict absolving Day. He had previously stated that he would be guided by the evidence adduced at the inquest, but would not be bound by the decision of the jurors.

league giving him credit for the inspiration to keep on going against difficulties.

Last summer he leased the 15-acre garden from his father and operated it for himself. He had a couple of crop failures, due to the dry summer, but he managed to pull out $5,105.07 in returns from the crops that didn't fail. Taking into consideration the fact that wholesale prices were lower in 1921 than for the preceding year, the showing of $5,100 against $5,700 for 1920 is extremely good.

"Fifteen years of irrigation" the father told the Iowa Park members and visitors at last week's meeting, "has left the land in much better condition than when we started. With the results that have been obtained from the limited irrigation facilities available with the old project, one can see unlimited opportunities for orchards, for berry crops on a big scale, for immense gardens, when the big new project is in operation."

nesses called by them in this connection.

Witnesses examined included former Mayor J. B. Marlow, Police Commissioner Fitts, Sheriff Smith, Joe Jones and L. J. Bullitt, foreman of the grand jury. The latter testified, among other things, that the grand jury was not investigating any crime committed by the Ku Klux Klan—a situation which attorneys for the three witnesses declared made questions as to their membership, or the membership of others, immaterial.

May Jail Fitts

Police Commissioner J. B. Fitts, who was a star witness for the three witnesses fined, may also have to go to jail for alleged refusal to answer questions by the grand jury as to past connection with the Ku Klux Klan. Judge Napier will rule on his case Monday.

It was openly charged that the grand jury now in session has been used by J. B. Marlow, former mayor and half orother of Judge Napier, in an effort to secure support for the candidates he favored in the city election held last week.

Testifying in the hearings on the motion challenging the grand jury, Police Commissioner Fitts told of a conversation with Mr. Marlow about a week before the grand jury was called in which he said he was threatened with removal from office if he refused to aid Marlow in the city election.

"I am a friend of yours," Commissioner Fitts said Marlow told him, "and have always been. Some charges are going to be preferred against you and you can be removed from office by a district judge. If you will agree to stay with me, I will have it stopped."

"There is going to be a grand jury called and I am going to select it," Marlow also said, according to Fitts. The latter testified that he told Marlow to "go ahead" and "that I had nothing to fear."

Marlow Testifies.

Marlow on the stand previous to Fitts, emphatically answered in the negative all questions asked him by H. F. Weldon. C. C. McDonald and B. Y. Cummings, attorneys representing the three men, which implied that he had aided in the selection of the grand jury.

"Did you not tell Commissioner Fitts in a private conversation just before the grand jury was called that you would give him a last chance to line up with you?" asked C. C. McDonald.

"I did not," Marlow replied. "I did say that I hoped to God they would get a grand jury that would be fair and square."

"Did you not tell Fitts that you were going to select a grand jury of Catholics and Jews and put him out of office?" McDonald asked.

"Either you or Fitts is a liar," Marlow replied, shaking his fist at the attorney and rising in his seat. Judge Napier immediately fined the witness $100 for his action.

Other questions elicited the information from Marlow that he had talked about the grand jury before it was publicly known that it would be called. He said that his main interest in having the grand jury called was for the purpose of investigating the finding of the body of a baby in a tank on his property at the west edge of the city limits several weeks ago. He said that he did not know until after it was called that the grand jury was going to investigate the klan. He was emphatic in his statement in answer to questions that he did not suggest names for the grand jury.

The testimony of Fitts and Marlow created a stir in a court room which was filled throughout the day. It was the first information to become publicly known that the two who have been close political and personal friends had disagreed. Marlow was one of the strong supporters of Fitts in the special election held last July in which the latter was elected police commission. They supported different candidates in the last election.

The action taken Saturday by the court follows that of Friday when the grand jury which has been in session eleven days reported to Judge Napier that the three men had refused to answer questions regarding th Ku Klux Klan. Judge Napier at that time set Saturday for a hearing.

Investigating Perjury

In this connection Judge Napier in examining Mr. Bullit, who was placed on the stand by defense counsel, brought out that the grand jury was making an investigation involving a possible indictment for perjury on the part of a witness who has testified that he was not a member of the klan. Mr. Bullit in answer to queries by defense council said that the main purpose of the investigation was to determine whether or not the klan was an unlawful organization and whether officers were among its members. In reply to a question he said he was a Roman Catholic and that there were five others on the grand jury.

J. H. Jones and Sheriff Fred Smith were also called to testify in connection with the attempt on the part of the defense to show that the grand jury had been illegally selected. Jones testified that J. B. Marlow told him at his office a couple of days before the grand jury was called that if "I would give him the names of three good men he would see that one got on the grand jury. He said that he did not submit the three names and outside of the one statement did not know that Marlow had anything to do in the selection of the grand jury.

Sheriff Testifies

Sheriff Smith said that after Judge Napier had ordered him to select the grand jury he talked with Marlow at his office. He said that he talked over with Marlow the advisability of having T. B. Noble, Wiley Robertson, Fred Couper, A. N. Miller and Sam Kruger on the jury. The latter two were actually summoned, Miller later being excused. He said Marlow suggested no names to him and played no part in the final selections he made.

Judge Napier brought out in questioning the witness that he had told the sheriff not to select any members of the klan for the grand jury as he did "not consider them fit persons to serve."

Ignores Counsel

Throughout the hearing Judge Napier most of the time ignored County Attorney Fulton and Assistant District Attorney Holliday. A remark made by him when the court opened indicated that he believed the two state attorneys were not actively interested in representing the state at the hearing.

Police Commissioner Fitts was summoned by the court late in the afternoon after the grand jury had reported that he had refused to testify. He said in answer to a query that he was not a member of the klan and did not know any officers who belonged now. He refused to answer the question as to whether or not he had ever belonged to the organization. After Judge Napier had continued his case until Monday the grand jury also adjourned.

Speaking of the iron output as a barometer of trade the Iron Age reports iron production in March rose above 2 million tons for the first time since January, 1921. The Iron Age publishes inside figures. Its editor is always in possession of inside information. He reminds his readers that the trade calculations is that this present output is at the rate of 25,200,000 tons a year and the comparison not by any means devoid of significance matches this with the actual production of 23,649,547 in such a year as 1911 and with the 25,795,471 of 1909 which was classed as a very active season. Speaking of the steel trade the Age predicts that the industry enters the second quarter of the year under conditions pointing strongly to continuance in improvement in output and prices that has been so pronounced since early March. Freight cars already ordered number 34,000 or 50 per cent more than for the whole of 1921. Figures for freight cars do not include orders for 19,000 cars placed by New York Central Railway. Inquiries are in the market for 300,000 locomotives. Steel is climbing upward; iron is climbing upward; petroleum is advancing and now if the coal miners and textile workers will get busy there would be at least a return to prewar conditions. And those conditions are returning.

SAYS CALOMEL SALIVATES AND LOOSENS TEETH

The Very Next Dose of This Treacherous Drug May Start Trouble.

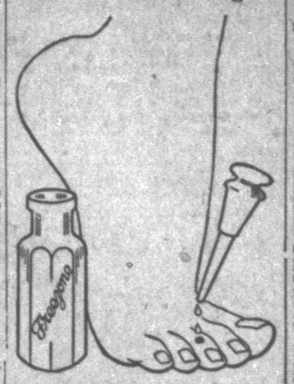

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Adv.

Hanging On Ropes 9 Rounds, Salm Scores K. O. In 10th

WALTER "NEWBALLS" BARNEY TO FRAZZLE, AND SPUDS TAKE SECOND GAME FROM BEES 3-2

By "NICK" CARTER

Walter Salm "newballed" Barney Burch to a frazzle yesterday. Result: The Spudders nosed Omaha out in the tenth canto 3 to 2 in a humdinger of a ball game. What do I mean, "newballed?" Why, that's the good old gag wherein the home club manager keeps on throwing out new, shiny, slippery baseballs for use while the visiting club is on the defense—baseballs that drive a pitcher crazy because they're so hard to handle, and that sail from the attacking bats like shrapnel.

Walter don't care about expense when seeking to win a ball game. Hang the expense, anyway! The Skipper has spent so much money on ball players this year alread, that there won't be any dividends in the fall—so why not soil two or three dozen baseballs a game? With this idea in mind, Walter kept tossing out one, two and three nice new balls to Pitchers Newkirk and Coffindaffer—while Catcher Wilder grew wilder and wilder.

"Whatcha going to do about it?" yelled Walter from the first base coaching line. "It's legal, ain't it?"

"Aw, I'll lose some o' them new balls on yuh," threatened Catcher Wilder.

"G'wan and lose 'em" grinned the Skipper. "I got lots more"

So, finally Pitcher Coffindaffer weakened under the strain, and lost control of one new, slippery baseball in the eighth inning and threw it almost to the clubhouse in an effort to catch Ray Schmidt asleep on first—and Ray scrambled all around the sacks and came home with the tieing run!

Thereafter the Spudders hung in there with their toes and waited for another break. Finally, it came in the tenth chapter. Bob Bescher, who smilingly took a whirl at first sacking yesterday, got hit with a pitched ball, and then raced to third when Jake Miller slammed a single to right. Sorey went to bat and Barney Burch issued orders to pass him. Salm had already used Bischoff as a pinch hitter, and Fred Beck was in the clubhouse ill—therefore, I guess Barney figured Walter had no emergency batters left. But he must have forgotten that the Spudders are still carrying Jimmy Maxwell's hero, "Kid" Kitchens. Frank toted that bludgeon of his'n to the plate, looked a few over and then O! Reliable just nacherally smote that horsehide down inside the third base line like a shot—and Bob trotted home with the winning marker.

And if you don't believe a word I say, read it by innings:

First.

Bees: Gislason flied to Miller. Knadler tossed out Mee. Lee was thrown out by Sorey. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Spuds: Summa flied to left. Tanner to right and O'Brien was thrown out by Gislason. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second.

Bees: Knadler threw out Manush. Griffin beat out an infield hit to third, Tex making a great barehanded stop. Herman hit for the circuit over the left field fence. Grantham was thrown out by Buddy and Wilder by Knadler. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Spuds: Tex went out to first unassisted. Bescher was thrown out by Mee. Miller singled to center and made the circuit of the bases when Manush let the ball get away to the fence, and Griffin in turn threw wild after retrieving it. Sorey walked, and went to second when Schmidt singled to center. Knadler forced Sorey at third, Grantham unassisted. One run, two hits, two errors.

Third.

Bees: McDonald threw out Newkirk and Gislason in succession. Mee dropped a Texas leaguer in right and Tex then pegged out Lee. No runs, one hit, no errors.

SCHOOL SPORTS

School Games Cancelled.

The downpour that visited this vicinity yesterday morning cancelled the games that were scheduled between the High School and Graham, and Junior high and Burkburnett high. As a result a return game has been arranged for the early part of this week between the High and Junior. The Juniors claim that they played as good a brand of baseball in the last game as the Seniors did and will spring a surprise on their older schoolmates.

Star Player Moves.

Perkins Ray, star athlete and the school's leading swatsmith, has moved his home to the city of Mexia, Texas. Ray was fast developing into a winning twirler and his loss will be keenly felt on the nine. His batting average for the number of times that he was at bat was .750 which leads his nearest rival by .350 points.

Coach Henderson was planning on shifting him to the infield, so that it would increase that department's hitting.

Ray was likewise a letter man and fine player on the basketball quintet and a member of the football squad.

According to Coach Hall, the track men have gained during the rainy spell rather than lost any of their ability, and he plans to take them to the Iowa Park track for a tryout next Tuesday, so that his boys will not be lost on a new field on the crucial day, next Saturday.

Volley ball, a noon hour activity among the high school boys, has developed a considerable rivalry as to the best male sextette in the school and as a result the fourth and fifth period boys put teams on the court to settle the argument. The fifth periodders, however, seemed to have the strongest six and beat the fours a couple Friday afternoon.

The husky male instructors of the school are planning to put a team out to show whether age and brains can triumph over youth and agility. The faculty thus far has failed to beat the youngsters, but is ready to try them again.

OPENING OF CITY LOOP POSTPONED BY WET GROUNDS

Owing to the reg'lar cloudburst of the early morning, every game in the City Baseball league was cancelled yesterday, and the league's official opening will not occur until next Saturday. Every corner lot diamond in the city was water-logged yesterday, and the City leaguers found it impossible to make their get-away in the 1922 race.

The rules of the league require that whenever weather conditions make play impossible, doubleheaders shall be played on the next date the same teams are scheduled to meet. As a result, the games marked on the regular schedule for next Saturday will automatically mark the opening of the playing season, while each club in the circuit will play a doubleheader on the next date on which the schedule calls for a game with the team that club was listed to meet yesterday.

PRESS COOP DOPE

The first news from the battlefield was the report of the sale of "Speck" Comstock to the Amarillo club of the West Texas league. Speck is a good young ball player, and a hard-working, likeable youngster—but Miller, O'Brien, Summa and Bescher on the outfield there is no place here for Comstock.

With Fred Beck still feeling rather "mis'able" Salm sent Bob Bescher in to play the initial sack. Bob played first base for Notre Dame university in 1899, but you wouldn't think he'd been away from the first cushion that long to see him play it yesterday. He was charged with two errors yesterday, but they could both be attributed to unfamiliarity with Beck's big yellow pad. Bob blocked off several nasty infield throws.

And the fans just stood up and roared whenever Bob got on the bases and began taking that old daring lead of his! He's the same old Bescher—just loves to get on, and drive the infielders crazy.

Tex McDonald and Bob retired the whole durn side in the third frame, Tex scooping 'em out of the dirt on Newkirk, Gislason and Lee and driving the apple on a line over to Bob

Herman didn't care for George Knadler's fast one on the inside. He seemed to think George was trying to dust him off, and he threatened once to come out in the diamond to argue the question. But George didn't weaken at all; just smiled that golden grin of his, and kept on pouring the pill in there.

Knadler certainly is a much improved pitcher. The big spitball fiend didn't walk a man yesterday in eight innings, allowed only 5 hits and struck out 5. In fact, there isn't a twirler on Salm's list who has turned in a poor game this season.

Every day Buddy Tanner looks sweeter at second base. There isn't any question of Buddy's ground-covering ability, while the shorter throw is just made to order for him. To see him grabbing hard ones on either side yesterday you'd think he had always played the position.

Sorey pulled a great double play in the sixth, when he raced to short left field over by the foul line, made a pretty catch of Manush's fly and whipped the ball to Buddy in time to catch Mee off second.

Sorey, incidentally, was robbed of a hit himself in the eighth, when Griffin pulled a dazzling shoestring catch on him after a hard run in right field.

Jake Miller got three hits out of five yesterday. Jakie is hitting 'em hard, just where he left off when he was hurt late last season.

No word from the Adams deal yet, the Skipper said.

BROWNS SET TO MAKE HOT RACE

Should Give Other Clubs Fight

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

The St. Louis Browns threatened the league leaders day in and day out in the 1921 American league race. And they have since been strengthened more materially—on paper at least—than any of their rivals. The Yankees, have been weakened rather than strengthened for the start of the campaign.

All of which means that Lee Fohl's team is set to make a better bid for the flag this year than he made last season. As they start to unlimber at Mobile, Ala., they have every reason to believe they have an even chance at the gonfalon and all that goes with it.

Fohl's greatest problem last year was his hurling staff. Shocker and Davis were the only pitchers who could step onto the mound regularly and render a good account of themselves. Van Gilder, Bayne and Kolp were willing and showed promise but could not fill the two vacancies in the regular staff.

While Fohl believed last fall that the coming season would find at least one of them ready for regular work he could not depend upon such a chance. So the Brown owners ended his worries by buying Dave Danforth the star southpaw of the Columbus A. A. club. Fohl and his bosses figured Danforth was worth 11 players—and paid that many for him.

With the last place of Columbus team last year Danforth held the opposition of .306 earned runs per game over a span of 329 innings. This would be a remarkable feat for a righthander facing the ball-murdering A. A. batters. For a southpaw it is a greater feat. He won 25 games—tieing with Bono of Kansas City for the honors in victories scored. There is no reason why he cannot deliver for Fohl.

Watch Van Gilder.

It wouldn't surprise the wise ones if Van Gilder proved to be the sensation of the staff. He worked in 180 innings last year and showed an effectiveness better than Ehmke, Bob Shawkey or George Uhle displayed. And this despite the fact that he was thrown into games that were apparently lost and the Browns on the rout.

For his infield Fohl now has George Sisler at first and young Gerber short, Ellerbe, obtained from Washington, may not be a wonder now but he can play third with the average youngster and ought to be better this year playing alongside Gerber. Fohl's biggest infield problem last year was the filling of the gap at second caused by the departure of Joe Gedeon. But late in the 1921 campaign Fohl tried out McManus and that young man's work more than satisfied Fohl. With Sisler and Gerber to steady him he will bear watching this year.

As to the outfield, Look 'em over. Jacobson, Williams and Tobin. Three ball-mauling, fly-chasing fiends. The trio ranks second to none in general ability.

Behind the bat Fohl has Hank Severeid, one of those rare birds who goes along quietly and efficiently for years.

All in all Fohl has reason to be optimistic of his team's chances despite the million-dollar deals the Yanks have been putting over.

FLOYD ATE HIS WAY OUT OF LEAGUE

Bees' First Sacker Has Big Bat and Appetite

By C. F. C.

There is a great man in our midst; a celebrity—the only man in the world who swings a heavier bat than Babe Ruth's and who is accustomed to eating $6 worth of food a day in a country where fifty cents will feed a stevedore. He is none other than Floyd Caves Herman, first baseman of the Omaha club, whose gastronomic ability is such that Barney Burch already is dolefully figuring that he will have to make out a new dining room budget for 1922, or cut one pitcher and a utility man off his squad.

Our hero was born of poor but honest parents in Glendale, Southern California, and at an early age started in search of a fortune carrying only a huge baseball bat and a great yearning for food. In the course of time he arrived in Edmonton, Canada, and signed a contract to play with the Edmonton club in the Western Canada league. At once his bat achieved notoriety due to the fact that it weighed 48 ounces, just four ounces heavier than any war club swung by the mighty Babe Ruth. Canada fans at once began to call him "Babe" because he was so different.

Club Owner Cries.

Floyd's appetite, however, won him greater fame than his bat. It moved the populace to envy, and the club owner to tears. Folks came from miles around to see Floyd eat. But time and again the manager of the Edmonton club was heard to remark with deep and bitter curses that he had hired a ball player and had received a boa constrictor.

Herman's insatiable hunger was such that the manager finally called for a new deck of cards, and in the deal that followed he insisted that Floyd must hit over .300 for the season before his transportation back to Glendale, Calif., would be advanced.

All went lovely for a while. Herman swung his huge war club with enthusiasm, and with less than five weeks to go he was hitting .356 in the league averages and better than .1000 in the dining room. Then he struck a slump; but it was a batting slump only; it would have broken his young heart had his appetite slumped. Within three weeks his batting average fell away to .318—and he thought with horror of the many hard railroad ties between Edmonton, Canada, and Glendale, California.

"But I was saved," our hero explains. "I met with an accident, and was unable to finish the season, so I ended with an average above .300."

Floyd Caves Herman ate himself out of the Western Canada league:

"Take him," the manager of the Edmonton club told Ty Cobb. "He is a great young ball player, but he has eaten up the dividends for two years in one season."

Detroit Weakens.

Detroit took him, but the big league club also couldn't stand the strain, so Floyd was farmed out to Omaha, Barney Burch since then having borrowed several thousand dollars from his family to help meet the terrific drain on the Western league club's resources.

So here ends the story of the lad who swings the big bat and eats the big meal. Herman is probably several years away from being a major leaguer, but his prospects are good. He is only 18 years old, weighs 195 pounds and his loosely knit frame rises six feet and two inches above the ground. He is the type that will develop, for he has the speed and natural ease of an athlete.

The Twilight Baseball league of Wichita Falls, composed of eight clubs this year, will open its 1922 season next Wednesday, April 12. As the schedule above shows, each club will play twice during the season every other club on the circuit with the season ending in July.

With "Doc" L. O. Landon, as president of the league, strict rules have been drafted by the league for the guidance of all member clubs, and a successful season is anticipated. A salaried secretary is handling the loop's books this season, and detailed records of all games and the playing averages of the team members will be kept up to the minute. All umpires also are on a payroll, while any disputes that may arise will be handled by an executive committee of three disinterested Wichita Falls business men, Claude Woods, Joe Pate and E. G. Hill.

The eight teams in the league, the North Methodists, Pond's Laundry, University Club, American Legion, First Baptists, First Christians, Wichita Falls Mill and Elevator and the Shriners, have paid in their first month's dues of $10; have turned in their lists of players to the league, and are now putting on the finishing touches to their practice work in preparation for the opening battles next Wednesday.

RABBIT DRIVE KILLS 5,000 'JACKS'

Bunnies Are Run Clear Out of County

The biggest rabbit drive yet held by the farmers and city marksmen of this section was staged Friday near Thornberry, when, according to Hunter Dempsey, approximately 5,000 jackrabbits and cottontails "bit the dust." More than 150 shooters took part in the drive, which was staged back and forth over the Clay and Wichita counties line:

"We ran many a jackrabbit clear out of the county," was Perry Wright's smiling way of describing the party.

Another enthusiast swore that he fired 125 shots and killed exactly 125 rabbits. Someone else said the enthusiast was a "gol-durn liar"—but anyway the rabbits were shot in "beaucoup" numbers.

Among those who traveled from Wichita Falls for the festivities were Dempsey, Curtis Harper, C. H. Parker, Roy Rhodes, T. J. Crawford and about a score more.

There will be another big drive on the bunnies at the Cooper school next Tuesday. A picnic lunch will be served free to all the shooters, and those who have cars and intend to go from here are urged to get in touch with the Chamber of Commerce or Little's Sporting Goods store—as there were not enough automobiles Friday to care for all who wished to make the trip.

American Legion to Stage Big Athletic "Party" Wednesday

Next Wednesday evening at the American Legion hall, the members are planning a feature entertainment which it is hoped will bring out every ex-service man in this city and county. There are several men in this organization who are fine athletes, as proven by the splendid basketball team, and a good baseball team now in the field. There are also wrestlers, jumpers, horizontal bar men, boxers and acrobats, and the post is planning to install weights and pulleys, striking bags and other equipment as soon as possible.

There are now two pool tables, one of the best dancing floors in the country, a boxing ring, shower baths, dressing rooms and the meeting Wednesday evening is a big "get-together" affair to start a rousing campaign for membership in the local post.

As there are around 700 ex-service men in and around this city all are requested to come out on the above date to help put this drive over and enjoy a good lively entertainment.

Several short, snappy remarks are to be made by Post Commander W. D. Cline, Mayor Collier and Post Chaplain Rabbi Goldberg.

The entertainment will consist of a 30-minute wrestling match, three or four sparring and boxing contests and negotiations are on now for a famous Indian club swinger, and acrobat.

This entertainment is purely a local benefit for the Post which is also going to put on the biggest and most spectacular aerial event ever seen in the southwest, if not in the United States, and as it is costing the Post a big sum, it is earnestly requested that every ex-service soldier come out, bring a friend along and boost these affairs.

Archer City Test Has Found Sand at 1,100 Feet, Report

Reports that the third test of Markley & Johnson on the Luke Wilson ranch, a few miles north of Archer City, had found the 1100 foot sand, in which oil was found in the two first tests, were received here Saturday. The showing was said to be good for production and a test is to be made immediately.

This third test was started several weeks ago, after it had been found that oil was running over the top of the hole of the No. 2 which had been abandoned some time before, and the casing pulled.

There is no production closer to this location than the old Holliday pool.

Woodman Band Planning Open Air Concerts

A series of open air concerts will be given in a short time by the newly organized W. O. W. Camp 3001 Band, according to announcement made Saturday.

Bob Windham to Run for Sheriff

Announcement of the candidacy of R. W. "Bob" Windham for sheriff subject to action of the voters at the Democratic primaries in July was made Saturday.

The announcement was as follows:

"I was born in Milam county, Texas, and have lived all my life in Texas. I have lived in Wichita county for the last five years. Thirteen months of that time I served as a policeman in the city, and seven months of that time I served as deputy sheriff of Wichita county. For the last eleven months I have been a special officer for the M., K. & T. Ry. Co.

"In making the announcement for sheriff of this county, I have no other platform than this: If elected I will enforce all the laws of the state, and will give to the voters of Wichita county an efficient and business-like administration of the office of sheriff. I will employ no other than honest and efficient deputies to help me run the office, and I will be on hand at all times to see that the office is run right."

300 Fans Compete in Record News Baseball Puzzle Contest

A very active interest was displayed in the contest in which two hundred and ninety-eight fans took part. Strange as it may seem the majority of the answers were received from the ladies, which proves beyond a doubt that the ladies of Wichita Falls are among the most ardent devotees of the national sport. So it's a safe bet that when the season opens here on Thursday next the fair sex will be well represented.

It was a difficult matter to judge the contest. Without exception the answers were good and showed a very sound knowledge of the game. After careful thought the following prizes were awarded:

1st—Mrs. L. Graves, 1111 Taylor Street, City (5 tickets.)
2nd—J. J. McKinney, Fritz Motor Company, City (3 tickets).

THESE PRIZE TICKETS ARE NOT GOOD TO OPENING GAME. Because of the contest between the various cities represented in the Texas league for opening-day attendance, the prize tickets will not be honored on opening day. They are good for any other game played during the baseball season. Prize tickets will be distributed from the Want Ad counter at the Record News office. They will be mailed to out-of-town winners on request.

STOCK MARKET RUSH CONTINUES

Many High Records Made During Week

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Week end operations on the stock exchange closed very much as they began—in a whirl of successive enthusiasm and many new high records for the sustained movements.

Early dealings were irregular in consequence of further realizing sales. These, effected generally of 1 to 4 points among Studebaker and Chandler motors, General Electric, Baldwin Locomotive, Mexican Petroleum and Electric Storage Battery. Prices soon rallied, however, on renewed buying of independent steels under lead of Gulf States, yesterday's sensational performer, as well as Bethlehem, Midvale, Republic and Crucible Sheffield.

Shorts experienced another uncomfortable time in their efforts to depress the oils, that division resisting pressure and adding substantially to the many net gains at the very active finish. Sales amounted to 835,000 shares, a record for any two hour session since 1919.

Excepting German marks which eased a trifle, all the foreign exchanges displayed a strong tone.

Despite the extraordinary activity in stock market and the resultant demand for funds, clearing house loans and discounts showed an actual decrease of slightly more than $6,000,000 and a moderate gain in cash increased actual excess reserves to about $14,660,000.

MAJOR METALS SCORE ADVANCE

Trade Improvement Status Reflected

NEW YORK, April 8.—The buying movement in steel continues. In consequence prices are stiffening and a feature of the week has been an advance of $3 per ton in spots by a leading manufacturer. Large orders from railroads for equipment and a steadily growing demand for structural materials are considered good evidences in improved business conditions generally. The steady increase in the production of pig iron is the best evidence of the improved demand, and some manufacturers are less disposed to look ahead.

In copper a steadier tone has developed. Buyers showed increased interest at the recent decline and small lots pressing for sale at concessions from the 12¾ cent level appeared to have been either absorbed or withdrawn by the end of the week. It is estimated that last month's sales for home consumption and export totaled nearly 200,000,000 pounds and the continued reduction in stocks on hand, combining with the better London market and improving domestic business conditions, has encouraged a firmer attitude among sellers. Electrolytic is still said to be available around the 12¾ cent level or spot or prompt shipment, but some of the larger producers are asking advances of ⅛ to ¼c for forward deliveries.

Tin has held its recent half cent gain, but buyers appear rather indifferent. Deliveries to tin plate mills continue liberal.

Lead remains very firm with a good general demand. Offerings for the current month are light.

Zinc is also firm and higher with a continued good consuming demand for the second quarter protecting the activity in steel circles.

Antimony, firm with a fair demand and light offerings. All of the week holdings seem to have been liquidated.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES AT GAINS

Prices Advance After Early Declines

NEW YORK, April 8.—Moderate early declines were followed by advances in the cotton market today owing to reports of unsettled weather in the south and apprehensions that it would continue over the week-end. July contracts sold up from 17.22 to 17.42 and closed at 17.40; with the general market closing very steady at a net advance of 8 to 24 points.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of two to ten points because of some further May liquidation and evening up of long accounts for over the week-end. Prominent spot house brokers were again sellers of May but they bought some of the later deliveries and after the first few minutes, there appeared to be very little May for sale. The removal of near month pressure helped the tone of the market, which soon became firmer on the eastern belt forecast for showers and the outlook for renewed rains in western belt sections.

Buying on the fear of an unfavorable weather map on Monday morning was encouraged by the large amount of cotton reported on shipboard awaiting clearance, and covering was active late in the morning. May rallied from 17.67 the early low level, to 17.90 and October sold up from 17.01 to 17.24 or about 12 to 15 points net higher. Closing prices were at approximately the best figures of the day. A report was circulating that 10,000 bales of Texas cotton which had been passed by government classers at New Orleans was being shipped here for delivery next month, but after the first 15 to 20 minutes, there were very few May contracts for sale around the ring. Traders found little or no change in reports from the domestic markets for cotton goods.

A private cable received here from Liverpool said that buyers of cotton goods in Manchester had been holding off, in the hope that proposed wage cuts would give them a lower buying basis. Telegrams received here from Texas late in the morning said that the rains had already started there and it was evidently apprehended that the disturbances would spread to eastern belt sections over Sunday.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, April 8.—Private reports of further heavy rains over north and west Texas with a cloudburst at one point were responsible for a sharp bulge in the cotton market today and a very active week-end session in which outside traders participated to an unusual extent, their operations apparently being influenced by first hand observation of cotton region weather conditions. In the early trading, it was a dragging market with more or less selling because of the dry weather over the best part of the cotton region under which offerings May dropped off to 16.59 and the list showed net losses of four to five points. When the buying movement set in there was a sharp rise which soon had May up to 16.78 and the list 14 to 18 points higher than the final prices of yesterday. The close was at net gains on the day of 12 to 14 points with May at 16.75. October traded as high as 16.57 and closed at 16.51.

While the opinion of the weather map itself was favorable enough early selling was restricted by the storm warning for the Texas coast and the fear that the disturbance over the western belt would result in further precipitation on a soil already soaked by recent rains. Weather conditions were further complicated by the appearance of what the trade considered to be a severe cold wave in the Pacific west, which some weather observers predicted would cause a pronounced drop in temperature to follow the rains. This aroused uneasiness regarding young cotton in the southwest.

CARUSO'S WIDOW DENIES REPORTS OF ENGAGEMENT

Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso and her daughter, Gloria.

Is Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso about to marry again? The buzz of Gotham gossip has it that she is to marry Lieut. Commander Arthur Wagstaff, U. S. N. Mrs. Caruso and her daughter, Gloria, will sail for Italy April 26 to settle details of Caruso's estate.

MARCH INDICATED AS GREATEST BUILDING MONTH IN HISTORY

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Building expenditures of 100 cities of the United States during March totalled $194,661,072 the greatest amount ever known in any one month in this country's history, according to Bradstreets. Big increases were noted at Oklahoma City.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, April 8.—There were reactions in the market for coffee futures today. After the advances earlier in the week there was a disposition to take profits on long contracts which was probably increased by lower milreis quotations from Santos. First prices were 2 to 7 points lower in consequence and active months sold about 10 to 15 points below last night's closing figures during the middle of the morning with May touching 9.80 and September 9.42. There were rallies of a few points on covering in the late trading, however, and the close was 5 to 10 points net lower. Sales were reported of about 39,000 bags. Closing quotations: May 9.84; July 9.75; September 9.47; October 9.47; December 9.46; January 9.43; March 9.36.

WHEAT FINISHES WITH STRENGTH

July Option Attains Week's High Mark

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 8.—Wheat advanced sharply today following a weak start. The July option touched a new high mark for the week when 1.20⅞ was attained shortly before the close. Buying by houses with eastern connections was principally responsible for the quick upturn, and at the finish, which was strong, the market showed a net gain of ⅝ to 1¼ with May 1.32¼ to 1.32 and July 1.20½ to 1.20⅝, corn ⅜ to ⅝c higher; oat were up ¼ to ⅝c and provisions showed an advance ranging from 7 to 50 cents.

While the government crop report on winter wheat issued after yesterday's close instilled a slightly bearish tinge to the market at the opening, this was short lived, as the buying demand from the eastern houses caused a reaction which sent prices to higher levels. Unfavorable reports regarding the crop in the southwest also was a contributing factor.

Corn and oats reflected the action in wheat. There was a broader trade and commission house buying led to considerable short covering. There was little, however, in the news on corn to attract attention, but the delay in oats seeding caused increased apprehension.

Provisions while rather dull, averaged higher in sympathy with grain.

Days of Darkness Past

Time was when insurance was shrouded in mystery. The buyer had to take a lot for granted. The agent himself was much in the dark. Everybody groped more or less. Experience has turned on the light.

Today there is no excuse for the insurance buyer to be in doubt as to what he needs for ample protection against all sorts of calamity to person, life and property.

The modern insurance office is posted and equipped with the knowledge made certain by experience. It must be competent to advise, select and apply the right kind and the right amount of insurance for every risk considered.

It places insurance on the basis of knowledge—knowledge on the part of the agency and knowledge on the part of the buyer. This means confidence for both parties, and that is the only satisfactory way to do business.

FITTS TO WAR ON DANCE HALLS

Improper Conduct Banned

War is to be declared on dance halls in the city which are found to be headquarters for bootleggers and which are patronized by men and women of known immoral character according to an announcement Saturday by Police Commissioner Fitts.

"Hereafter the police department will pay special attention to the manner in which dance halls are conducted," Commissioner Fitts said.

"The character of the persons who frequent them will be ascertained and the irregularities found will be summarily dealt with.

"Any halls properly conducted will not be molested and need have no fear from this warning but those who conduct the other kind of places can expect to have their names on the police court records in the near future."

Only 1,000 Feet of Highway Paved During Past Week

Due to the rains of the last week only 1,000 feet of paving was completed on the highway between this city and Burkburnett. One of the two mixers was in operation two days while the other was only able to work part of one day. The heavy rain on Saturday again softened the road bed for the industrial tracks used to haul materials to the mixers from the central proportioning plant and it will probably be two or three days before work can be resumed.

Wichita County Leads Entire State in Child Welfare

FREE CLINICS BOOST RECORD

428 Youths Treated Without Fee

Wichita county leads all counties in the southwestern division of the Red Cross in having the examination, according to the report made by local Red Cross nurses. The division includes counties in Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Kansas. In the 3,160 school children examined during the month of March in Wichita county it was found that 425 had received corrections since the fall examination.

This remarkable record, according to information from the local nurses, was made possible because of the free clinics here and at Burkburnett, Electra and Iowa Park. Several children are also being taken by the nurses regularly to eye specialists and eight have been operated upon recently for enlarged tonsils. The general hospital receives patients for the Wichita county Red Cross organization free of charge.

Wichita county is divided into three sections. Miss Dorothea Dorpat is the nurse in charge of the Iowa Park section, Miss Quinn of the Iowa Park, and Mrs. E. M. Thompson at Electra. One of the three, is always on duty at the local clinic.

NEIGHBORHOOD PARTY HONORS MRS. WARREN

BURKBURNETT, Texas, April 8.—Mrs. R. C. Warren was the honoree of a unique little neighborhood party Wednesday afternoon at her pleasant home, near Newtown, when thirteen neighbors "stormed" and spent the afternoon in jolly games, music and in the end served a splendid lunch that they had brought from their own homes. The guessing contest afforded much merriment and the prize, a silver belt, for clever answers was given to Mrs. Ralph Davis. Mrs. N. C. Sheffer rendered sweet music for the company, while Mrs. H. Taylor and Mrs. J. A. Reed decorated the lunch table, marking each place with a beautiful red rose on a chocolate fudge base.

All the ladies were attired in their aprons and house dresses, but a happier party would have been hard to find than this little band of neighbors, the personnel of which was: Mrs. Harry Ten Brink and little son, Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. A. Reed, Mrs. N. C. Sheffer, Mrs. Ralph Davis, Mrs. R. O. Warren, Miss Allie Monday, Mrs. W. B. Burgess, Mrs. W. B. Calhoun, Mrs. A. E. Payne and daughters—Helen, Ruth and Evelyn. Mrs. R. L. McAdoo, Mrs. H. Taylor and daughters—Mabell and Willa, Mrs. W. C. Doyle and son Earl, and W. B. Calhoun, Jr.

25 In Union Sunday School Class.

One of our most interesting religious enterprises is the splendid little Sunday school which meets in the home of Mrs. C. Williams near Newtown. Although there is no special church affiliations, it is a union Sunday school in which 25 people are enrolled. The Bible class of adults is taught by Mrs. Williams, the Junior students by Mrs. E. A. Payne and the little folks by Mrs. W. C. Doyle. Every religious denomination is represented among the adults of this little neighborhood Sunday school, the record of which would do credit to a chartered church school. A fine Easter program is being prepared by the children under the direction of the teachers. The children of this fine union Sunday school will have a merry egg hunt at the home of Mrs. Williams on Saturday before Easter.

SOCIAL LIFE KEEPS MRS. HARDING BUSY

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—One of the busiest departments of the White House staff during the past two months has been that of the Social Department, under the direction of Miss Laura Harlan, secretary to Mrs. Harding.

When the Hardings entered the White House they decided to go through the entire formal social programme, which had been suspended during the Wilson administration on account of the war and other reasons. The social calendar at the White House calls for four large formal receptions, in addition to the public reception on New Year's Day and four formal dinners, in addition to the more informal "at homes" of Mrs. Harding and the dinners by the cabinet officers

APRIL FOOL DAY IS CELEBRATED

Krowel deen Club Is Entertained

BURKBURNETT, April 8.—Among the parties of the week none were more enjoyable than that given the Krowel deen club on Saturday, April 1, when Mrs. R. A. Faver entertained in the home of Mrs. Rex Smith.

The guests were welcomed at the door, removed their hats, and were shown into the living room where they were greeted by a merry "April Fool," Master Billie Faver, in clown costume. He pinned on each guest a hand-painted card with laughing clown face and the words: "Please Act Foolish." Everyone took the clown's advice and "made merry as the crowd gathered.

The unusually large gathering was called to order by our popular president, Mrs. F. U. McCutcheon, and all were amused and entertained each other, in a "Mock Business" meeting. Many club secrets were revealed, as the guests responded to roll call with "Items from the Krowel deen Weekly News."

Guests next disposed of such important matters as admitting the president's wife, "Mrs. Harding," into the club. Clever speeches for and against the lady as a club member were made by Mrs. Utts and Mrs. Ensor. The lady was finally voted into the club. Mrs. Joe Davis next made a stump speech nominating Mrs. Stanley Campbell, as a delegate to Washington to inform Mrs. Harding of her good fortune. Owing to Mrs. Campbell's life of public service, her personal acquaintance and friendship with the president's wife, and other striking qualifications, it was unanimously decided that she be dispatched at once on the important mission.

Baseball Is Next.

A baseball game between the "Fats" and the "Leans" was decided upon; "Hank Utts" and "Fluffy Hill" were voted as club mascots, and a committee appointed to order gold collars, set with diamonds, for each of them. Next was held a hard-fought beauty contest—and in a club composed "entirely" of beautiful women! Luck was with Mrs. Jewel Covington, and she was presented with an exquisite bouquet of spring radishes and onions. Mrs. Fisher made the presentation speech, and Mrs. Covington gracefully responded, while she sniffed her fragrant(?) bouquet. During this contest, clever campaign speeches were made by Mesdames Allgood, Hill and Pogue.

Little Misses Velta Camp and Nancy Elizabeth Faver gave two interpretative dances: "Folly" in costume of yellow and white, with clown caps and ruffs; and "April" in silk green dresses with flowers of pink and white. Mrs. Armstrong, teacher of the little girls, directed the music for these dances.

Mrs. Faver next read a "Club Write-up of the Last Open Meeting" in which she disclosed some rather surprising facts(?) She stated that our last club meeting was held on the Roof-Garden of the Burkburnett hotel, at 6 a. m. on March 15th; also touched on the important business matters which were disposed of at this meeting. She stated that each member had been assessed $1,000, to go into a fund for erecting a home for "Retired Jazz Hounds and Lounge Lizards,"—after the building of which we decided to open up lunch rooms for Krowel deen husbands on club days. She said that we were next whirled away in swift aeroplanes to the Burkburnett Country club where our "gentlemen friends" awaited us. Here we enjoyed a short program composed of costume dances by club members, heated debates, solos, and dramatic readings. She stated that in the club grill we enjoyed a banquet, the menu of which was never seen on land or sea, after which we were startlingly informed that we danced until morning in the club ball room. Last, the costumes worn by each club member were described in detail and we feel sure we would never recognize ourselves "thus attired." It was voted that we send this authentic(?) write-up to the New York World.

Club Prophecy.

Our club president gave us a humorous club prophecy, in which she promised us all manner of delightful things in the future. Some of us are to become movie stars, other noted singers or speakers, and still others will tour the African jungles, or become missionaries.

The program was concluded when two noted swimmers — Mesdames Utts and Ensor in bathing costumes, were introduced in a lengthy speech touching on each lady's renown and skill as a swimmer, and the guests were invited into the dining room to witness a "swimming match" between these two noted ladies. We were much disappointed to see only a common, ordinary match, peacefully swimming in a pan of water, on each side of which posed the two "bathing beauties."

In a contest, in which our hostess had sketched in pen and ink humorous caricatures of each club member, the prize, a smiling clown doll went to Mrs. Allgood.

An ice-course was served by the hostess, assisted by Mesdames Haynes, Ensor, and Elsie Smith.

Club members and guests enjoying this merry party were: Mesdames McCutcheon, Rex Smith, Loe, Haynes, Williams, Campbell, Allgood, Spicer, Ensor, Davis, Bob Robinson, Blain Robinson, Hill, Utts, Pogue, H. I. Johnson, W. L. Johnson, Covington, Fisher, Blum, Faver, Elsie Smith, Berry, Armstrong, Judson Mahon from Dunkirk, Ohio, Hoyt from Colorado Springs, Mrs. Campbell and Miss Campbell, both from out-of-town.

The "Club Babies" and their small guests made up a separate little party of their own. They were: Little Misses Frances Johnson, Martha Jane McCutcheon, Emojane Smith, Velta Camp, Martha Ann Smith, Vivien Johnson and Nancy Faver. Little Masters John Porter, Jerry Covington, William Audrey Smith, Robert, Billie and Jack Faver. The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Oscar Fisher.

A large collection of beautiful flowers testified to the very strong affection and high esteem in which this good woman was held in these communities. The burial followed the church funeral, in the Burkburnett cemetery, under the management of Undertaker J. P. Wright, of the Miller Undertaking company. Active pallbearers were as follows: M. B. McClain, M. E. Thompson, Tony Edmonston, N. B. Madden, May and J. T. Camp.

BURK SOCIETY

Last Friday afternoon about 4:20 o'clock the members of the Beta Beta Club hiked to the river. An attractive place about three miles north of town was chosen as an ideal place for the campfire, where the girls had a delightful time roasting weiners; bread, pickles and fruit were also served. Those enjoying this delightful occasion were: Misses Zebie Gray, Ella Alvey, Mildred Ellis, Fern Morgan, Louise Allison, Lela Brady, Eleanor Burney, Donna Gebhart, Thelma Rigney, Leona Owens, Rose Boutwell, Bel Turner, Neppy Floyd and Miss Leah Hayes. On returning home Miss Boutwell had the misfortune (?) to fall over a barbed wire fence and tear it down. Seven of the girls held up a man in a Ford roadster and rode back to town while the other seven walked. Every one returned tired but happy.

The Krowl deen club met with Mrs. Oscar Fisher in her pretty home on Fourth street, honoring one of its members, Mrs. W. L. Walker with a "Good Luck Shower." After the guests assembled, a contest was held in which Mrs. Rex Smith was the successful player, and was presented with a prize, which in turn, was presented to the honoree. Little Martha June McCutcheon then appeared dressed as a rainbow girl and led Mrs. Walker down the rainbow trail to a "Pot of Gold" which proved to be many beautiful and useful gifts from the other members of the club. A delicious salad course was served to the following members of the club: Mesdames Nate Ensor, W. R. Hill, W. R. Thomas, Blain Robinson, J. E. Haynes, W. L. Walker, Joe H. Davis, R. H. Henry, W. D. BANDITS ENTER CHURCH AND DEMAND COLLECTION

By International News Service.

HOLLIDAY, Ill., April 8.—While the congregation was listening earnestly to the religious counsel of Elder F. A. Ditrick three bandits entered the Church of Christ and demanded the evening's collection.

The boldest of the three walked calmly down the center aisle, unmasked, and told of their mission. Elder Ditrick invited the stranger to take a seat, as the contribution box had not yet been passed.

The intruders declined, however, and departed.

HOUSTON, Texas, April 8.—The present plans of the war department are to send the Texas Artillery to Fort Sill in September for two or three weeks' training at the school of fire at the Fort, it has been learned at headquarters of the 36th Division, exas National Guard. It is the opinion of General Hulen, commander of the 36th Division, that the entire brigade of the Texas artillery will be ready for the Fort Sill encampment.

The brigade of artillery of the 36th Division will be commanded by Brig.-Gen. Claude V. Birkhead, of San Antonio, it has been announced. The brigade will consist of two regiments of line artillery, the 131st Field Artillery, which will come from West Texas and will be commanded by Col. John B. Golding, of Amarillo; and the 132nd Field Artillery, which will come from East Texas and will be commanded by Col. Arch Allen of Dallas.

Col. Golding was a Lieutenant Colonel in the artillery of the 36th Division during the war and Colonel Allen was a major in the artillery of the same division.

SPRING BRINGS OUT LAKE MAIL RUNNERS

By Associated Press.

MACKINAW CITY, Mich., April 8.—After a winter of unusual hardship, due to ice conditions, mail carriers who keep residents of outlying islands in touch with "the outside," are beginning to enjoy their long boat trips in the straits or lakes.

After months of pushing their boats through slush ice or dragging them like sleds over ice none too firm, the representatives of the postoffice department declare it is a real pleasure to head their small crafts into open water again.

Although his exploits are little known outside the Northern Michigan country, the lake mail carrier presents one of the most romantic figures in the country today. While workers in other parts of the country are taking advantage of all the advancements of science and invention to aid them in their work, the carriers are performing their daily task just as it was being carried out 50 years ago, fighting single-handed against the forces of nature.

NEWEST HOMES UNIQUELY BUILT

Furniture Vanishes at Touch of Button

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 8.—The hidden trap-doors, secret chambers and underground passages of the old romances are rivaled by ingenious novelties in home furnishing which are being produced this year. A house fitted throughout with the new devices would have all the mystery and surprise of a fictitious Gothic castle, but with modernness and domesticity as the keynote. This new romanticism in dwelling-house equipment was evidenced at the annual Own Your Home exposition in the Coliseum here.

For in these days twin beds swing into the clothes closet; an ironing board unfolds at the pressure of a button; a seat emerges from a panel secreted in the wall of the kitchen and the rear door may be equipped with cabinets in the lower panel for the delivery of groceries, with a set of trick locks to prevent the re-opening of the door, and with automatic signs to indicate when the cabinets are full.

An electric, double-spindled sewing machine masquerades as an assembly of card tables or bookcases. A substitute for swinging doors has been devised which slides gently from view, apparently into nowhere.

Bathroom devices include a half-length tub arranged to enable one to bathe in a sitting posture. A ledge in front extends a foot deeper than the rest of the tub, forming a foot-basin. There are shower attachments.

Inventions intended to simplify kitchen work include a detachable spout for the faucet, which may be used in spraying lettuce or rinsing dishes.

To meet vacation demands there is a summer home in the form of a tent house which can be put upon a permanent foundation, it is represented, in a few hours. It is said to be popular in the East.

In the new devices cultural and esthetic cravings as well as utilitarian needs are remembered. In one, music from a talking machine is synchronized with that from an automatically set and electrically operated player piano.

Among numerous novelties in heating is a hot-water heating system with a furnace and tank smaller than an ordinary stove and adapted for a place in the kitchen of a four-room house. Another heating device is a fan intended to push the air from hot-air plants into the rooms before heating the radiator flanges, and which is claimed to reduce the time required to heat a house by 20 minutes. An automatic heat regulator is designed to cut off the draft when the temperature of a room reaches 70 degrees and to start it when the temperature falls.

INDIVIDUALITY IN HANDSTITCHED PATTERNS

It is the handwork on a dress that raises it out of the wholesale class and puts it into a class by itself. It is the handwork on a dress that raises its value far above the level of machine-made things—and it is the handwork on a dress that gives it its individuality. Therefore, if you would have a unique dress, see that there is a touch of handwork on it.

Above are three dresses each with a handstitched pattern worked out on it in silk. Each pattern is small and simple, and polka-dots the whole dress. This is a stunt that the home dressmaker can do—she can select, or design, her own motif, and then apply it to the dress, thus stamping it with individuality.

In the upper sketch to the right, a simple wheel motif was chosen. It dots the whole dress at distant intervals, and is consequently very effective. The dress, by the way, is a simple chemise model, with a deep bertha with inserts of accordion pleats over each arm, matching the skirt panels at the sides. The pleatings are plain.

In the lower sketch, a cubist design was selected. It is made up to two squares of different colors, with a wiggly little line below. This design is on a pongee dress, and is also on a pongee "chinky" parasol to match.

A dahlia design was worked out on the dress in the photo, with the result that it was found pretty enough to be put in the movies and worn by Agnes Ayres, Paramount star, who will be seen with Jack Holt in William deMille's latest picture, "Bought and Paid For." The skirt was polka-dotted with this motif, but the waist was left plain—the motif only bordering the neckline, and appearing in a group of three over each elbow. A ribbon of a dahlia shade circles the waist and hangs below a deep hem.

OLDEST TWINS INFORM PUBLIC WHY THEY ARE

By Associated Press.

WOODVILLE, Ohio, April 8.—William H. Sr., and Henry Bruns, eighty-eight years of age, who claim the distinction of being the oldest living twins in the United States and who recently celebrated their 88th birthday here after being residents of this village for almost sixty years, give the following recipe for longevity:

Hard work—and plenty of it.
Taboo tobacco.
Don't worry or fret.
Smile at trouble.
Regular meals and sleep.
Live the Golden Rule.

The biggest thing in life, they say is "keeping busy" and they have accumulated a tidy fortune by doing it.

A man without ambition is worse than a man without a country in their opinion.

Neither twin has ever ridden in an automobile, they said.

Starting in business in 1864 in a general store, William was on the job every day, except for an occasional illness, until December 7, 1918, when fire destroyed the establishment.

Henry was his clerk one year, then his partner, and then launched in business for himself, building a gristmill in 1865. In this business Henry also established a record for work, being on the job continuously until 1921 when fire "retired him."

Since quitting the store and mill the twins have devoted their time to their extensive land holdings here, visiting their farms almost daily and "helping do the chores and other odd and end jobs."

Born in Hanover, Germany, February 4, 1834 the Bruns brothers came to America at the age of eighteen years.

Both are married and have families.

SEMENOFF ACCUSED OF 'BUTCHERING' BY AMERICAN SOLDIERS

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Declaring he had received charges that American men, women and children had been "butchered" in Siberia by General Semenoff, Chairman Borah of the senate labor committee, announced today he would endeavor to bring about deportation of the anti-bolshevik leader now under bail in New York after arrest in connection with a civil suit.

Senator Borah said the charges had been laid before him by officers and enlisted men of the American expeditionary force that served in Siberia and were supported in part if not fully by an official deport to the American government by Major-General William J. Travers, who commanded the expeditionary force.

EDUCATION ON MAIL! UNCLE SAME TEACHER POSTOFICE STUDIED

By Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 8.—Representing months of careful study and research, a postoffice manual for introduction into the schools of the country has been completed and sent to the postmaster general for final approval. Favorable action is expected to be taken by Dr. Hubert Work, postmaster general, following which ways and means of publishing the text in book form will be decided, as will the method of its entree into the public school study of the nation.

The manual, composed of eight chapters, tells what the postoffice is, from the inside as well as the outside its history and origin, and also how to use the institution most efficiently. It is designed primarily for children in the upper classes in grade school, such as the seventh, eighth and ninth years, but it is so prepared that teachers can adopt portions of it for lower grades.

It is the belief of postal heads that many millions of dollars could be saved annually if users of the post office were properly informed of its functions. With the institution of the manual, the coming generation will be more enlightened as to postal intelligence, they believe, with resultant benefits in less errors and costly mistakes, both to the individual and the postoffice department.

MARRS IN FAVOR OF CONSOLIDATED SCHOOL

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 8.—The advantages of the consolidation of school districts was pointed out today by S. M. N. Marrs, first assistant state superintendent of public instruction in a discussion in his office. "Much interest has been manifested in the last ten years in the consolidation of rural schools," he said, "and the slogan 'fewer schools and better schools' has been heard at almost every gathering of progressive educators.

"Well informed people recognize the limitations of the one teacher school," he said, "and it is commonly agreed that where conditions will permit, the smaller schools should be consolidated."

40 NATIONS AT GENOA SESSION

Credit Plan Aim of Confab

By Associated Press.

GENOA, April 8.—Representatives of more than 40 nations, including Russia but minus the United States, were here today prepared for the opening Monday of the Genoa Economic Conference, regarded here as the most momentous assembly since the Versailles peace deliberations.

All eyes are upon Russia, for it is the first time this great nation has participated in world affairs since the overthrow of Kerensky's provisional government in the spring of 1917. After more than four years of experimental government, Nikolai Lenine, Russian premier, has abandoned much of what he previously considered essential to Bolshevism and has consented to participate in a conference called by "capitalistic nations."

On the ground that the gathering will be political rather than economic, the United States has declined Italy's invitation to send representatives. The American people, Secretary Hughes said in declining the invitation, are anxious to assist Europe in recovering its economic life but feel that they cannot involve themselves in European politics.

Decision to call the Genoa conference was reached by the Allied Supreme Council meeting at Cannes early in January. Rapidly diminishing European exchange, billions of dollars in unpaid debts, German reparations, necessity of reconstructing devastated areas, the Russian situation and hope that the United States would lend itself as a stabilizing influence constituted the pressure behind this decision.

Berlin to Speak Out.

Germany, represented in a passive capacity in nearly all European conferences since Versailles, is expected to play a more active part at Genoa. Many observers even go so far as to predict that Great Britain and Germany will dominate the assembly by working hand-in-hand for the salvation of their industrial lives through the resurrection of their markets in the east and south.

The conference will seek to accomplish some means for the granting or extension of foreign credits to the most enfeebled countries and will then attempt to set up machinery for assuring such foreign capital that the fruits of its investment will not be lost.

LEGION FRIENDLY TO LABOR FACTION

By Associated Press.

TEMPLE, Texas, April 8.—"The American Legion is not unfriendly to labor," declares State Commander Wayne Davis in a letter to Texas State Federation of Labor officials, made public in part here today by Robert McKinley, federation secretary-treasurer. In accepting an invitation to address the state labor convention, which convenes in El Paso, April 17, Commander Davis wrote:

"I want to thank you in the name of the American Legion in Texas for your wishes of esteem for our organization, and to assure you that we appreciate it. With my best efforts I have to encourage the friendly relationship between the American Legion and all labor organizations. As you probably know, for a time there were some who thought that the Legion was unfriendly to labor. This hurt our membership in some of the towns in Texas, and we appreciate very much your kind efforts in assisting us to teach these men that the American Legion is not unfriendly to labor."

The invitation for Mr. Davis to address the convention was extended by President Slater of the Texas State Federation of Labor.

SHAME BOOKED FOR OLYMPIC

Fox's New Film to Show Monday

"Shame" the William Fox special production which enjoyed a spectacular run at a prominent Broadway theater in New York, has been booked for the Olympic Theater beginning next Monday. It is said to be a most impressive picture.

The story deals with the life of a wealthy young man of San Francisco who was born in a distant country. David Fielding is made to believe that his mother was a native woman and that he is a half-caste. The thought preys upon his mind until he is driven frantic. He takes his infant child and flees to the snowfields of Alaska in his determination to shun mankind. Among his adventures there is a bare-handed fight with a wolf in his lonely cabin. The mystery concerning his dread secret is cleared up in striking fashion, it is said.

The production was directed by Emmett J. Flynn, a young man who won fame by his direction of the William Fox special, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" the Mark Twain classic. The cast of "Shame" is headed by John Gilbert, whose vivid characterization in the role of David Fielding resulted in his being promoted to stardom by Mr. Fox. Others in the cast are Rosemary Theby, Doris Pawn, William V. Mong and George Siegmann.

The action takes place in three countries and the spectacular effects of the production are declared to be unsurpassed.

Famous Play of Stage Is Thrown On Silver Sheet

To the millions of theater-goers who enjoyed that greatest comedy-drama hit of the speaking stage in John Golden's presentation of "Turn to the Right" by Winchell Smith and John E. Hazzard, and to the other millions who longed to see it, the news that this universally popular play has been transferred to the screen will prove a joyful notice.

This highlight of the stage characterized as "the play of mirth and morals" in its celluloid version is presented by John Golden and Marcus Loew and will be shown last half of this week at the Olympic Theater. It is a Rex Ingram production distributed by Metro Pictures and the youthful director who won international fame for his wonderful screen portrayals of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and "The Conquering Power" has added further laurels by this latest cinema offering.

"Turn to the Right" is the story of a small town youth who, unjustly sent to prison, pals up with two crooks. But having served his term he decides to go back to the little home, arriving in time to find that the hard hearted village skinflint is about to close out a mortgage on the homestead. With the aid of his two crook pals a way is found to beat out the old skinflint, and then the two crooks under the homey influence of the aged mother find a new road to life and love.

All that delightful mixture of heart throbs and smiles which won such a wonderful tribute from the public in the stage play has been preserved and intensified in the screen version. In the leading feminine role is Alice Terry who won her way to fame in "The Four Horsemen" and "The Conquering Power" while playing opposite her is Jack Mulhall who has made a reputation on both stake and screen. Others in the cast are Harry Myers, who was the Yankee in "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court"; George Cooper, Edward Connelly, Lydia Knott, Betty Allen, Margaret Loomis, William Bletcher, Eric Mayme and Ray Ripley.

"Turn to the Right" was adapted by June Mathis and Mary O'Hara and photographed by John F. Seitz. Technical direction was by A. J. Myers and Harold Grieve. Starrett Ford was production manager.

PLENTY OF PEP IN THIS GEM PICTURE

Enraged because Sheriff "Bull" Weyman was using crooked means to take from him a ranch that he had won in a poker game, Larry Connell, a cowpuncher in a Western border town, finally blew up the Sheriff's office with dynamite before he won the right to live peaceably.

Learning that he could not be protected by the law owing to the deplorable fact that a weak-willed judge was in the power of the Sheriff and his henchmen, Connell took the law in his own hands and by proving himself a two-fisted fighting man was finally able to rout the Sheriff and his gang and rid the town of a few undesirable citizens, thereby receiving the heartfelt thanks of everyone in the place.

It seems that the Sheriff labored under the impression that he could "trim" Larry in a poker game but much to his dismay got up from the table dead broke and with Larry owning his ranch. The Sheriff went the limit in crookedness to get the property back again.

For a time there was excitement aplenty in the little town. In addition to the Sheriff and his pals, Judge Hyland was a party to the crooked work but through no fault of his own Connell had to go through some tough fighting, take risks that at times almost spelled sure death but finally won out and won the judge's daughter as well.

All the wonderfully exciting details of this remarkable story of Western life are depicted in the big film feature, "Rounding Up the Law," starring Big Boy Williams, which is to be shown at the Gem theater on Wednesday.

YANKEE SCHOOL IDEA BARRED BY SWEDES

By Associated Press.

STOCKHOLM, April 8.—Announcement, that Mrs. Katherine Tingley, theosophist leader of Point Loma, Calif., intended to establish a Raja Yoga school on the island of Wisingso, in Lake Vattern, one of the beautiful spots of Sweden, has evoked a protest from the school council of Wisingso parish.

The council adopted a report stating that Mrs. Tingley's project was "a movement to spread and implant the ideas of theosophy, diametrically opposed to the Christian foundation on which the Swedish school system is still based."

The council added that the community of Wisingso had no sympathy for Mrs. Tingley's reported project and that reports of her presence in Sweden to prepare for the establishment of the Raja Yoga school "had aroused a general feeling of apprehension."

Friends of Mrs. Tingley have announced that she has decided not to erect the proposed school at present.

DID CHINESE DISCOVER AMERICA LANGUAGE IS FOUND IN IDAHO ROCKS

By Associated Press.

BOISE, Idaho, April 8.—Symbols and signs, chiselled, it is believed, ages ago, were discovered recently on lava rocks in a remote section of Owyhee county, southwestern Idaho.

Many of the inscriptions bear striking resemblance to Chinese alphabet characters of today, it was said, although archaeologists say they may be anywhere from 400 to 30,000 years old.

Discovery of the inscriptions, which are said to be a mine of archaelogical treasure, was made by Robert Limbert, a Boise taxidermist. Their exact location will not be made public until they are examined thoroughly this summer by a number of scientists who are coming here.

The volcanic rock, on which the inscriptions are carved, is scattered over a thirty-acre sagebrush flat. In the immediate vicinity are several large caves, around the entrance of which the rocks also are inscribed. It is believed these caves never have been explored. Possibly, it is said, they contain many relics of scientific value.

A HEART MOVEMENT.

Returned Doughboy — Yes, the bullet struck me here in the chest and came out of my back.

Young Miss—Mercy! It might have gone right through your hear!

Doughboy—No, miss, my heart was in my throat at that moment.

An old funeral custom in some parts of England is the presentation of a black pipe to each of the men who serve as pallbearers.

STILLMAN FIGHT GOES TO CANADA

Woman on Hunt for Witnesses

(By Central Press)

MONTREAL, April 7. — Movie cameras will click off the next scenes in the domestic "tragedy of the Stillmans" when the hearings of the case are held here and the witnesses begin to come in in the garb of the "north countree."

The exact date for the hearings has not been set but it is believed that they will be held soon, now that the New York courts have granted them.

Many of the charges made by James A. Stillman, New York millionaire, against his wife, Anne Urquhart Potter Stillman, arose out of her alleged misconduct with Fred K. Beauvais, Indian guide, at the Stillman summer home at Three Rivers, north of here.

For months Mrs. Stillman has been tramping over the northern wilderness seeking witnesses to clear her name of her husband's charges.

Follows a summary of the famous case.

The Principals

JAMES A. STILLMAN, former president of the National City Bank of New York. Born a master of millions. Accumulated many more. Forty-five, tall, straight-built, smooth shaven, offish toward men, courtly toward women.

ANNE URQUHART POTTER STILLMAN, famous in her youth as "Fifi" Potter. Auburn-haired, hazel-eyed, of statuesque figure, vivacious, witty, fond of outdoor life. Forty-two.

The Corespondents

FRED K. BEAUVAIS, accused of being the lover of Mrs. Stillman and father of Guy. Twenty-six, dark, handsome, born of French-Indian parents. Favored guide at Stillman home at Three Rivers.

FLORENCE HELENA LEEDS, mother of little Jay Leeds and alleged mistress of Stillman. Small, slender, titian-haired. Twenty-five. Said to be daughter of a plumber. In 1910 in "chicken chorus" of "The Century Girl." Then became Mrs. Harold Franklyn Leeds with a luxurious apartment, maids and motor cars.

The Innocent Victims

BABY GUY STILLMAN, born in New York late in 1918. Registered as son of Mr. and Mrs. Stillman and as such heir to the Stillman millions. Sturdy, brown-haired with a babyish prattle unaware of position.

BABY JAY LEEDS, born in New York, September, 1918. Registered as the son of Franklyn Harold Leeds and Florence Telena Leeds. A pretty, healthy, lovable child. May, under certain conditions, have a claim to the millions of alleged father, known as Leeds.

The Mysterious Man

FRANKLYN HAROLD LEEDS. Mrs. Stillman declares—and there seems to be substantial evidence leading at least to lend credence to her belief—that Leeds is none other than her husband. Descriptions identical. Said to have possessed the same car in 1918 that Stillman possessed in 1919 and 1920.

Charges and Counter Charges

Stillman asked a divorce on grounds that Mrs. Stillman had been intimate with Beauvais and that he was the father of her youngest child Guy.

Mrs. Stillman denies these in toto and makes counter charges against Stillman, alleging that he maintained "Flo" Leeds in luxury and that this woman's son, known as Jay Leeds, is Stillman's son also.

BARELY PASSABLE MARKS ARE BARRED

By Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 8.—Yale has again adopted her former "quality credit system" for the undergraduate schools in the university under which students who merely manage to rank just over the passing figure will not be graduated.

Under this system it will be necessary that work done shall be better than that determined by the passing mark in an examination. A student may technically obtain the passing mark but he may be refused a diploma because he has failed to show promise, application or general good work in his course.

CAST IN NOTED DIVORCE CASE

Central figues in divorce case and helpless infant victims of "battle of mud." Top, Mrs. Anne Urquhart Potter Stillman, left, defendant in divorce action of her husband, James A. Stillman, lower left, who names Flo Leeds, actress, upper right, as the mistress of her husband. Center, left to right, Baby Jay Leeds and Baby Guy Stillman, whose parentage is challenged in the charges and counter charges. Lower right, Fred K. Beauvais, Indian guide, named by Stillman as corespondent.

WINE-DRINKERS PAY TAX AND GO BROKE

By Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 8.—Russia's newly rich speculators, merchants and others able to buy sweetmeats, wine, and silks and patrons of high-class restaurants have begun to pay a large proportion of their money to the government in the shape of a luxury tax.

One of the principal aims of the tax is to provide for the upkeep of schools.

"We must remain true to our principles, to take from the rich to maintain the poor," Commissioner of Education Lunacharsky said.

Lunacharsky declared Russian teachers were too poorly paid. "If villages can maintain churches, they must be made to maintain schools," he said.

As a result of the new taxes which were first effective March 1, prices of meals in restaurants and of various luxury articles increased greatly, some as much as 50 percent.

DIPLOMATIC MAIL BY AIR

PARIS, April 8.—For the first time ever known diplomatic pouches will be carried by airplane during President Millerand's trip through Algeria and Morocco. They will land once in Spain and drop the pouch for the French embassy. Thirty automobiles will make up the president's escort, and for five weeks they will visit every important point of the two French colonies.

CLARENDON, Texas, April 8.—"Royal Big Bob," one of the fine boars owned by W. T. McBride of Lelia Lake, died Friday afternoon from pneumonia. This boar, which headed the McBride herd of hogs, was one of the finest in the county, having been the winner of the first prize at the Dallas fair in 1920, and having also won the prize at the Memphis Tri-State fair four times. Mr. McBride had been offered $5,000 for the animal.

"TEN NIGHTS IN BARROOM" HERE

60-Year-Old Classic at Empress Today

The announcement by the Empress theater that they have secured a showing of a big special, "Ten Nights in a Barroom," for the first half of this week should prove of interest not only to motion picture fans but to all lovers of the theater. This famous old play has been a stage favorite for over 50 years and in book form is said to be second in point of circulation only to the Bible.

Scenario By Expert

The screen version was made by L. Case Russell, who has 500 produced pictures to her credit, and she has followed the story faithfully but has taken full advantage of the great opportunities offered by the screen, with the result that the film version shows much that the stage production was forced to omit. The picture was directed by Oscar Apfel and produced by Blazed Trail Productions, Inc., in the heart of the Adirondacks. The star is John Lowell, who is supported by Baby Ivy Ward, who plays the part of his daughter, Little Mary Morgan. An excellent supporting cast aids in making the picture a great acting classic, and many special features are promised.

Surprise Promised

A very fine musical setting has been provided by the Arrow Film corporation, who are distributing the production. A big surprise is promised the movie fans in connection with this showing. "Ten Nights in a Barroom" is known to almost every man, woman and child in this country and the picture will be awaited with great interest, for the story is one which should lend itself to the screen far better than the average.

SCHOOL CENSUS SHOWS GROWTH

Local Population Still Grows

A small but regular increase in the number of Wichita Falls children of scholastic age is shown by the school census for 1922-23, taken during the month of March—the increase being approximately 200. A total of 6000 school children are shown by this census as against 5,901 last year.

Figures announced for the last 12 years by W. W. Brown, business manager of local schools and the official in charge of the taking of the census show that only once did Wichita Falls show a decrease in its scholastic population, that loss being in the census taken in 1917, and which showed a loss of 99 over the previous year. The largest single year's gain was shown in 1919. In 1911 the total enrollment was only1883.

On its showing this year the Wichita Falls schools will receive an allowance of about $78,000 from state funds, added to the nearly quarter of a million collected annually in local taxes.

The growth in the school population is shown by the following figures for the last 12 enumerations: 1911, 1883; 1912, 1905; 1913, 2539; 1914, 2668; 1915, 2962; 1916, 3437; 1917, 3338; 1918, 3555; 1919, 4312; 1920, 5792; 1921, 5901; 1922, 6090.

Helen Running for Governor of Kansas on Free 'n Easy Platform

Here's Her Platform.

Says pretty, auburn-haired Miss Helen Pettigrew, Kansas' twenty-year-old candidate for the governorship of her state:

Light wines and beer—but no whiskey!

Cigarettes, if you want them!

Wear as little or as much as you please!

Dance if you please and jazz if you please!

Down with war!

More women in public office!

(By International News Service.)

KANSAS CITY, April 4.—Helen of Kansas, like Helen of Troy, has stepped out after some historic fame. Pretty and petite, auburn-haired and blue-eyed as her Trojan predecessor, Miss Helen Pettigrew, twenty years old, is seeking the governorship of Kansas.

The Central United States stand shocked over the announcement of this fair campaigner, who would smash all blue laws and have a mild programme of "wine, women and song."

Calmly Miss Pettigrew has entered the melting pot of politics with the declaration that if she is elected there will be a general repeal of the present "blue laws" that carry "don't, shouldn't or mustn't" provisions.

This most unusual candidate, naturally has unusual methods of campaigning. Meet her campaign manager—Miss Alice Pettigrew, eighteen years old—who also is her sister. Instead of the old-time "speaking bees" young Miss Pettigrew has evolved the novel idea of holding "political dances" at which her candidate appears—to dance and talk.

Sister Manages Campaign.

Helen of Kansas, however, had had little experience in public appearances. She needed training. So her sister-manager, in order, that Helen might become inured to the demands of public speaking, sent her into vaudeville for three weeks. Her particular part was posing as one of a group of statuary. Soon she acquired "presence" and knew that she could face the public without appearing self-conscious. She then resigned from the stage.

Cigarettes cannot be legally sold, bartered for nor given away in Kansas. Jazz dancing, even to phonograph music, is contraband in many cities, while if you use your own car to take home a prescription of "spirits frumenti" from the drug store you're liable to get pinched and have the car sold at auction.

Here's where Helen of Kansas comes in. She says:

"There is a great rank and file of voters who are sick of the march of reforms throughout our state. We are like any other good folk in the main but radical leadedrs get legislation enacted that makes us appear ridiculous. I am sick of it. The blue laws must go!"

Her Ideas on Cigarettes.

The Misses Pettigrew are daughters of Sherman Pettigrew, a building contractor.

She doesn't smoke herself, but here's her idea on cigarettes:

"It is a right under the Constitution of the United States for the people to smoke if they want to, and for myself I care not whether men and women smoke cigarettes or not. I certainly am opposed to the trend of legislation, which now forbids the sale of cigarettes, to go on until people will be jailed for smoking them.

"It certainly can't be unAmerican for a woman to advocate privileges guaranteed us under the Constitution of the United States. I can see no harm in light wines and beer as beverages for respectable people and there surely is a better outlook for women if they make any improvement in their looks by artificial touches; most of the good-looking ones do it now, anyhow."

This is a political adage in Kansas.

"You never can tell where lightning will strike—in Kansas!"

And as time draws near for candidates to be hominated thousands of voters, smiling "up their sleeves" are winking one eye—and wondering how many more are doing the same.

To do his duty was the assessor's sole aim, but the farmer did not help him very much.

"How much land have you got there?" asked the official.

"Oh, about 20 acres," was the offhand reply.

"Twenty acres!" exclaimed the assessor. "Why, there is more than that in those five fields alone, ain't there? Suppose you stretch it a little."

"Look here," said the farmer, "this is a farm, not a rubber plantation!"

The dishevelled stranger made his way into the police station.

"Are you the sergeant in charge?" he asked.

"I am," replied the stout man in uniform, who was seated at a desk and writing in a large ledger."

"I'm lost," said the dishevelled man.

"You are—eh?" replied the stout man in uniformity as he continued writing. "Well, if you can prove that anybody's missing you, we'll take up the case."

Army Aviator Who Set Altitude Mark Will Make Attempt to Beat It

(By International News Service.)

DAYTON, O., April 5.—Lieutenant John A. Macready, McCook Field aviator, who established the world's altitude record of 40,800 feet last September, is engaged in making scientic preparations for another history-making flight which may cost him his life.

In setting the record he went as high as it was possible for him to go, with the Le Pere plane equipped as it then was. In other words, he reached an altitude where the atmospheric pressure was only three pounds to the square inch, and the supercharger refused to function properly in that rarefied strata of air.

A supercharger of greater capacity and efficiency has been constructed, and upon its efficiency he believes it will be possible to reach 55,000 feet. At any rate, that is the altitude he hopes to reach in safety, if his plane, motor and body hold together and do what is expected of them under conditions existing at that tremendous altitude.

A number of things may happen. For one thing the supercharger may not work, the engine may fail, the plane may crumple and the pilot's body may explode.

Body May Blow Up.

Macready is going to make the attempt fully equipped to meet any of the first three emergencies. However, should his body go to pieces, as is the case when an animal is placed in a bell-jar and all air removed, Macready would be but another martyr to the science of aviation.

Although he realizes that certain dangers exist in the realm of air which have never been penetrated before, Macready is calmly proceeding with his plans. On the occasion of his eight-mile ascent the world was astounded, and so was he. He had merely set out for a joyride to see how high he could go. At 40,000 feet he because groggy; he suffered intensely from the cold and experienced a puffy feeling due to the thin atmosphere. And then his supercharger refused to function properly. In other words, he could not force the plane one foot higher. After vainly trying to gain a higher altitude for fifteen minutes he changed his tactics and began descending and was in a normal physical condition when he landed. He knew that he had almost reached the roof of the world, but was not sure of his record until official calibration had been made in Washington. The official figures did not materially change the unofficial records, and a new king of the air was proclaimed.

The date of the flight has not been fixed. Everything, however, will be in readiness when Macready decides that conditions are right for the event which may startle the scientic world.

All Precautions Taken.

All precautions will be taken, and special instruments will be installed in the Le Pere because of the importance attached to the flight from a scientific standpoint. If successful the flight will serve to be a guide for future development, and the action of reduced air pressure on plane, engine, pilot and all his devices will be carefully noted and compiled.

The one big question hinges on what will occur in the human body when projected into an atmospheric pressure never before penetrated.

Macready is training himself for the trip to the heretofore unknown realm. He is taking the best of care of himself, gets the proper amount of exercise each day and sleeps like a log. When he starts for the upper region he expects to be in as physically fit condition as it is humanly possible for him to be. He knows from past performances that his physical condition will stand him in good stead.

Announcement of the time of the flight may be made a few days in advance, and it may be that Macready will sail away without informing the public of his intentions, as he did last September. Officers at McCook Field, however, will watch the birdman through telescopes with powerful lenses.

WOMAN'S HAND MOVES HARDING

President to Shift Nomination?

By B. N. TIMMONS,
(Record News Washington Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, April 8.—President Harding may withdraw the nomination of George W. Upton of Ohio, as a member of the Federal Trade Commission, which has been hanging fire in the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee for more than five months. Behind this nomination is a story illustrating the new power of women in politics.

The general concensus of expert opinion, following five months investigation into Upton's qualifications of filling should be abolished.

Upton is the husband of Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, vice chairman of the Republican National committee and a "wheel horse" in the last presidential campaign. She also was a star performer in the suffrage ratification and through her generous physical proportions and aggressive personality, became known as the Amazon of the suffrage movement. She is the daughter of a former Republican congressman from Ohio and a woman of fine mental attainments. As a stump speaker, she has few equals. Her work for the Republican ticket in 1920 was prodigious and she could have had any reward within reason.

But here woman's loyalty asserted itself and she made it known that she would ask for nothing if only "George" could be taken care of with an appointment of dignity and prestige. President Harding promptly recognized the fine spirit back of this request and named George W. Upton, the husband, to a vacancy on the Federal Trade Commission, after first considering him for the United States district court in the District of Columbia. Back in Trumbull county, Ohio, where the Uptons live, the people were somewhat aghast at the honors which had come to George Upton, a kindly, generous soul, who had not been a shining success in any of his business undertakings. Senator Pomorene of Ohio, a member of the committee, was one of the framers of the law which created the Federal Trade Commission and has always kept a watchful eye to see that no incompetents are placed in position to make the law a failure through improper administration. He looked into the qualifications of this nominee from his own state and was surprised to learn that though he was represented to be a lawyer, he was not known as a practitioner before the courts of his home community. An examination, undertaken at the instance of the committee, revealed that Mr. Upton's name had not appeared on the docket in his home county as a practicing lawyer as far back as the examination went, covering a period of twelve years.

The nominee for the Federal Trade Commission was called on to explain this and he said that he had not practiced, but his work had been restricted to tutoring young lawyers at the Trumbull county bar. Telegrams went out to the president of the Bar association and, at the request of the committee, an effort was made to find some of the young attorneys whom Upton had tutored. The search failed. A referendum on Upton was then undertaken among his friends and neighbors in Ohio and the strongest endorsements he secured merely certified that he was a "good man" and his neighbors would like to see him get something at Washington. The committee's investigation showed that many of those who recommended Upton thought he was to be appointed to a clerkship instead of an important administrative position.

It appears that Upton was best known to fame as the inventor of a fishing reel, which, however, was never successfully marketed. The committee's record discloses that the man who bought one-half interest in the patent rights for this invention threatened suit on the ground it was worthless but Upton was represented as being "execution proof" and the matter was dropped.

The Republican members of the sub-committee which has been probing Upton's record to determine his suitability for the commissionership have been compelled to yield in the face of the evidence that he is not qualified.

The sub-committee spent several hours on the case Saturday, and it is understood President Harding was notified today that the members of the sub-committee found it impossible to "O. K." his appointee. The White House is expected to withdraw the nomination within the next few days and find another place for the Ohioan which does not require senatorial approval. If the president stands firm, however, the Republican members of the sub-committee, being in a majority, will send the nomination into the Senate without any recommendation whatever, in which case Upton stands a chance to be confirmed by a purely administration vote. Many of the Old Guard senators have a very poor opinion of the Trade Commission anyway and would like to see its work nullified.

OLD AUTO CASINGS USED TO MAKE SHOES

(By International News Service.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 8.—The fate of worn-out automobile tires—at least those of Los Angeles—has been found.

After serving their purpose here the old tires are sent to the west coast of Mexico and made into shoes.

And making shoes from the discarded "cords" and "fabrics" is simple. The old tires are cut into lengths, both ends sewed up at the toes, a strip tacked on for a heel, and they have as wearable a shoe as ever was made, it is claimed.

To make such a shoe costs only from fifty to seventy-five cents.

The business of this new trade is amazing. Sam L. Kreider, steamship agent, is the authority for the statement that the last shipment of old tires from here to the west coast of Mexico totalled 200 tons, and more consignments will go soon.

Many Americans Lost to Their Nation Because of Fast Living, Declares Medical Authority

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 8.—"Americans live too hard and too fast. The chances of death after fifty years of life are increasing instead of decreasing. In the last twenty years the death rate during the first five years of life has been greatly lowered, but for the later years of life it has not. It is poor economy to educate and train business men and women only to lose their services to the community and State when they reach middle life."

These are some of the deductions made by Dr. M. P. Ravenel, professor of Preventive Medicine, in charge of the Public Health Service Laboratories at the School of Medicine of the University of Missouri. The Bureau of the Census has recently sent advanced information on new life tables, which are soon to be issued. This will be the second official publication on life tables ever issued in the United States, and figures are now available for the last twenty years.

"People are interested in health largely because they are afraid to die," Dr. Ravenel, who is also president of the National American Public Health association, continued. "The true motive for health should be efficiency and not the mere prolongation of life.

"The results obtained by our Census Bureau show that the death rate at practically all ages is higher for men than for women, and the women showing the lowest death rate are those living in rural communities. For both sexes rural dwellers show a lower death rate, age for age, than for persons living in cities.

"While the average span of life has increased for both sexes there is no evidence that there has been any actual increase in the years of life. This is explained by the fact that practically all classes of people are living longer on the average, and the greatest cause of this average increase is the saving of life in the first five years.

"In 1909 a white female was entitled to expect three years longer life than white males, and in 1910 this had increased to three and one-half years. Except for negroes, there has been a general improvement for all classes up to the age of forty for men and fifty for women.

"There has been a decided improvement among all classes of population in the infant death rate. Again, we find that children born in the country show a considerably lower death rate than those born in the city. However, it is not as great as it was in 1901, which indicates that the widespread efforts which have been put forth to better conditions in our cities have met with success.

"Our Life Is Less."

"Comparing ourselves with the following foreign countries, Australia, Denmark, England, France, Germany, Holland, India, Italy, Japan, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland, we find that, except for France, India and Japan, our expectation of life both for men and women is less favorable than in any of the foreign countries mentioned.

"In Norway, for example, which shows the lower annual death rate for the first year of life, for every thousand the rate is eighty-one deaths for males and sixty-seven deaths for females, while for the corresponding class in this country the rate is 127 for males and 105 for females. The most striking thing about these figures is the great improvement in our death rate during the early years of life and the lack of improvement after fifty years of age—in fact, after fifty the conditions in regard to certain diseases have become worse instead of better.

"The American lives too hard and too fast. It is poor economy to educate and train business men and women only to lose their services to the community and State just about middle life, when they should be at their best.

"This is the problem which confronts physicians and sanitarians at the present day and one which demands the closest consideration not only from professional persons but from the community at large."

MINERS' TRIALS MAY LAST 110 YEARS AT COST OF $7,000,000

(By International News Service.)

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., April 8.—If every one of the 500 or more men indicted as a result of the miners' so-called "rebellion" last August were brought to trial it would cost the State of West Virginia $7,000,000, and the trial would last 110 years, according to H. W. Houston, chief counsel for the United Mine Workers. Trial of these many men is scheduled to begin at Charlestown, Jefferson county, April 24.

"Obviously the State will never attempt to try all of these cases," Houston said. "Hundreds of the 500 or more indictments will be nolle prossed. In my opinion, not more than six United Mine Workers officials will be tried as a result of the so-called insurrection."

Theoretically, if the State intends to try all the cases, it will be the biggest legal action in American history. But the task of trying so many men is impossible, according to Isaac Scott, acting secretary of district 17, United Mine Workers. Scott declares it is the intention of the defense to subpoena 10,000 witnesses who are widely scattered, and it would be impossible to assemble them all on the same day.

TEXAS OYSTER OUTPUT GAINS

$3,000 Increase in Tax This Year

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 8.—Texas will show a large increase in the production of oysters this year over last year, according to W. W. Boyd, game, fish and oyster commissioner, when all figures relating to the industry are received at his office. The season closed April 1 and the only oysters that may be sold now are from private beds. According to Commissioner Boyd the tax receipts so far this year are $3,000 more than they were last year at this time.

There are thousands of acres in the state oyster beds, extending from Galveston to Rockport in the water along the gulf, Commissioner Boyd said. In many places the oysters are so thick, he said, that they grow only to the size of a man's thumb, and it is necessary to use a dredge to thin them out on the reefs so that they can attain their proper size.

The dredge used to break up the thick beds on the reefs was in operation from September 1, 1921, to April 1, of this year, according to Commissioner Boyd, and will be placed in operation again in the fall, probably on September 1, with the opening of the oyster season.

The oysters sold now, Commissioner Boyd explained, are those grown in private beds, planted by private individuals who pay rent to the state for the use of the beds.

The dredge was self supporting until March 1, Commissioner Boyd said, through the sale of oysters and other work.

The total tax on fish and oysters for 1921 was approximately $27,500. For 1920 it was $26,000.

There were 47,140 barrels of oysters taken from the state beds in 1921 on which tax was collected and a tax was paid on 4,162,092 pounds of fish the same year. The tax on oysters is 1-2-cent a barrel for wholesalers and 2 cents a barrel for retailers. The tax on fish is $1 a thousand pounds for wholesalers and $2 a thousand pounds for retailers.

In 1920 there were 39,462 barrels of oysters taken from the beds and 3,591,460 pounds of fish.

The increase in the production has been gradual, according to Commissioner Boyd. He expects about the same, if not a little greater, percentage of increase in 1922 over 1921 as was had in 1921 over 1920.

Reef cultivation can not be done this summer because of lack of funds, the appropriation for the work having been used up. Cultivation will start again September 1, according to Commissioner Boyd.

Obregon More the President, Less the Soldier, Than In Past

Mexico's Chief Executive Not Finding His Task of "Preserving Equilibrium of Warring Forces" Easy; Expected to Be Harsh, His Mildness Is Surprise.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 8.—Alvaro Obregon has been an enigma as president of Mexico. Today he explained the puzzle to me in part.

"The people of Mexico have entered upon a transitional stage," said he. "I feel that my duty, so far as I can, is to preserve the equilibrium between the warring forces."

Before he is hastily classified as a Middle-of-the-Roader, ah we would say in the United States, let his genesis and career be considered. He began as a small farmer at Navajoa, which is the smallest sort of a station on the edge of the Yaqui country in Sonora. He became a merchant in a small way. Circumstances forced him to take up arms and he displayed unquestioned military genius. He is the only Mexican general who ever gave Francisco Villa a thorough whipping. That alone, in a country in which war veers from operations on a more or less grand scale to the most annoying guerilla fighting, is sufficient to stamp him as a real leader of men. But his fame as a fighting man does not rest upon this achievement alone.

Had Control Over His Men.

There was every reason to anticipate that as a president he would show himself somewhat heavy handed. The implication is not that he was unduly harsh as a soldier. On the contrary, his reputation was that of a fair and merciful leader. But that he was stern and masterful when conditions demanded, there can be no denial. His control over his men was absolute. A weak man—or a man who is undecided in policy—cannot maintain that control over men accustomed to the practices of bush fighting. His men, too, were in good part of Yaqui blood, and the Yaqui is cousin to the Apache.

"Obregon will make free use of a blank wall and a firing squad," was the prediction freely made when he became the president of Mexico.

He has done nothing of the sort. It may be that a country tired of war has been somewhat disappointed. It is hardly possible for a stranger to assess the real sentiment of Mexico, but it has seemed that any measures which would restore peace would have been welcomed. Mexicans themselves say that Mexico hoped for an iron hand, such as that which "Don Porfirio" manifested in his earlier days as dictator-president. In the face of the most constant temptation to the ruthless use of force, President Obregon has refrained. He has captured rebels in the field time after time, and given them their lives. It is true that many rebels have been shot. But for the most part, his acts have been governed by mercy.

Has Been Classed as Radical.

Yet, he has been classed as a radical. He has supported the constitution of 1917 and the laws which have been enacted under it, and which would be regarded as radical in any country in the world, save Russia, perhaps. He has been outspoken in his advocacy of the agrarian laws, under which it is possible to take the lands of the great proprietors and sell them on the easiest terms to the poor. The proprietors in turn are offered bonds payable at some more or less indefinite future date. He has been charged in print with being a sort of a statesmanlike Robin Hood, whose desire is to take from the rich to give unto the poor. He has persistently refused to sign a treaty with the United States through which recognition might come. On the whole it has been difficult to reconcile his mildness in act with the overturning doctrines which he is charged with holding.

President Obregon talked freely to me today on the motives which have governed him in his administration of the affairs of the presidency. I have called it an "explanation" but that, of course, is not to be accepted literally. He gave no indication that he felt that he owed any one an explanation. His statements came in the course of a friendly chat. I shall not attempt to quote him literally, for that would be impossible. Where quotation marks are used it is to be understood that the effort is to convey the sense of what he said as it came to me.

In Stage of Transition.

"The people of Mexico," he said, "are in a stage of transition. The things of the past are disappearing. A new future is opening before us. We are trying to undo the wrongs of the past without creating a new set of problems which in turn must be met."

He glanced hastily at the history of Mexico. There is no need to review what every school boy knows, nor to more than refer to the unquestioned fact that in the time of the Spanish conquest and later a simple and primitive people were deprived of their lands and made to labor for those whose chief claim to possession was that of force. He made it apparent that he believed that the same process of accretion by the rich and powerful and loss by the poor has continued in Mexico to the present.

"The rich have a psychological advantage over the poor," said he. Not only have they power by which their riches may be increased, but they have been accustomed to think in a big way—in a predatory way. They know how to make money and secure mines and lands and the poor man does not. We are each limited by our horizons. The rich man's horizon is wider than that of the poor devil."

It is his conviction that the rich should be restrained in this exercise of power. The gentleman who had volunteered to act as my interpreter—although President Obregon speaks so clearly that he was intelligible even to one whose knowledge of Spanish is negligible—is a representative of a great corporation. The president addressed him directly at this point.

"You rich men cannot be permitted to have your own way," he said. "We are all human, whether we are rich or poor, and have the selfish frailities of humanity. There are few of us who would not seize any opportunity to add to our holdings."

But he made it very plain that he does not propose to embark upon a crusade against the rich.

"The rich have their place in society as well as the poor," said he. "We cannot do without either, or the special talents of either. Without the rich man the development of any country is very slow under modern conditions. But the poor must be given their chance for development, too. It is my hope to see each small farmer in Mexico own his land, if he wishes to do so. But I realize that before this can be brought about there must be a process of education. Reforms too hastily enacted are dangerous. There must be a fair readjustment."

Finds His Task Difficult

He recurred to a phrase that he had used several times during the talk.

"I am trying to maintain the equilibrium between these contending forces," said he. "The man engaged in the fight sees only his own side. I must see all sides, and be fair to all sides. At times it is difficult."

He made but a brief reference to the political obstacles which it is common knowledge he encounters from time to time.

"If I act with one group of men today," he said, "it is because I believe that group is right in its stand on the particular questoon under consideration. Unfortunately these men are too ant to welcome me as a recruit to their forces. They rejoice over much. The men against whom I have acted are resentful and consider me an enemy. The next day conditions may be reversed. Another matter may come up, and it is possible that I may act with the men I overruled the day before, and against my friends of yesterday. The same process is repeated. The ones believe they have finally secured my adhesion. The others regard me as having abandoned them."

Like a Genial Philosopher

He said this in no complaining way. On the other hand, his attitude throughout was that of a genial philosopher. It may be said that he dealt in platitudes, but, after all, a platitude is simply the statement of one of the common sense rules by which our lives are ruled, and which we too often neglect. He might have made a few vigorous and sweeping statements that would have found their place on every front page. He preferred to give the outlander an idea of the problems encountered by the president of Mexico.

He is more the president and less the general than he was two years ago, when he took office. He is not so ruddy. Perhaps he is not quite such a "good fellow" as he was then. The responsibilities of office have given him poise and dignity. He impressed me two years ago as a good-natured, kindly, likeable man, who might upon occasion be reckless out of sheer enjoyment of his risk. He was not long out of the field then and the marks of the campaign were still evident upon him. Today the native shrewdness that was evident then is still apparent, but something has been added to his stature. He fairly sparkled with animation when he spoke of the beasts and birds which as a farmer and cattleman and soldier were his daily joy to study. When he recurred to the duties of his present position he became grave—almost stern.

Alvaro Obregon is not finding his task of preserving the equilibrium an easy one. But to that task he is giving his whole strength.

NEW AUTOMATIC RADIO INVENTION

(By International News Service.)

NEW YORK, April 4.—An automatic radio receiving device that will automatically pick up and print press dispatches sent in wireless code!

That is the latest device, just perfected, for the radio enthusiast. The machine, when adjusted, runs like a clock and requires no operator.

The device has been perfected and patented by William G. H. Finch, an experimental engineer, of Buffalo who is an associate member of the Institute of Radio Engineers and other technical societies. He has been identified with radio development since 1908, holding one of the first licenses granted by the government early in 1913. During the World War he organized and had charge of the Radio First Field Artillery, N. Y. G.

Finch's radio device enables anyone to receive broadcasted code messages from any distance, a record being made of the message, which is printed automatically on a tape. It can pick up news dispatches.

Gives Practical Demonstration.

During the past year Mr. Finch gave practical demonstrations of his invention at the Hoboken radio station of the Delaware & Lackawanna railroad. The navy department cooperated in one practical demonstration which was successful.

Radio engineers declare the Finch invention has advanced the new field of radio telemechanics. The device has proved that explosives can be ignited by radio at almost any distance—that a moving body can be controlled in the same fashion, by radio waves or motors; bells and other indicating devices can be manipulated, whether they be visible or audible to the manipulator mattering not at all.

The simplicity of the Finch invention permits a novice to set it into operation.

The machine can be tuned in to any desired station and the apparatus adjusted so that it will pick up and record any message emanating from the station tuned to.

"Can Be Tuned In."

"For instance," Mr. Finch said, "many ships carry only one wireless operator, who, of course, cannot be on duty all the time. M device can be tuned to the 600 -meter wavelength—the one reserved for 'S O S' calls—and when such a call is received it can be so arranged that the ship's whistle, audible or visible indicating devices, will be operated, at the same time making a graphic record of the message sent, whether the operator be present or not.

"This is accomplished by a supersensitive radio relay, the important part of the invention and without which the feat could not be accomplished. When the instrument is tuned in and the ether impulse, like water flowing into a pipe, comes into contact with the supersensitive relay a series of impulses corresponding to the received impulse will be accurately transmitted and recorded."

Mr. Finch heartily endorses the stand taken by Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who holds that the private experimenter should be assisted and not hampered by regulations affecting radio activity. Mr. Finch came from the amateur-experimental class.

MANILA, P. I., April 9.—The total resources of all Manila banks on February 11, 1922 were $148,355,000, according to the report of B. F. Wright, special bank examiner, just submitted. The deposits amounted to $58,400,000 and the total net circulation to $21,000,000.

Miss Belle Kearney, who is fighting for the United States senatorial nomination in Mississippi, has established her campaign headquarters in Jackson, with Mrs. John Clark in general charge.

JAPS CLEAR MANILA OF ALL ITS HEMP

By Associated Press.

MANILA, P. I., April 9.—Out of the total of 803,598 bales of hemp exported from the Philippines during the year 1921, Japan bought 168,300 bales, or more than one-fifth of the total. Hemp dealers say that the Japanese have continued to buy during the first two months of 1922, clearing the market of considerable stocks of damaged fibre suitable for use in paper making.

Duke Views Report Of Women in Lords As 'Blooming' Joke

(By International News Service)

LONDON, April 8.—"When women enter the House of Lords I shall laugh," says the Duke of Rutland, father of Lady Diana Manners. "If any of them sit near me I shall be able to guess their feelings, and we will all give way to merriment together.

"And so when the report of the committee recommending Lady Rhondda's claim comes before us I shall probably play the coward—or the discreet—and not vote either way.

"If I were a woman and wanted to annoy the peers I would take my seat in the Lords just to see what happened. It may provide the privileged with some amusement, and it will certainly give them entry to a very comfortable club.

"They will not be kept very long from their homes by our debates, because our sittings rarely occupy more than a few minutes. And that in itself may prove an attraction.

"I don't know Lady Rhondda, although I believe she is an excellent business woman and active and clever. I don't believe that in the case of the House of Commons the admittance of women has added anything in the way of dignity, charm or usefulness."

BIG PURSES IN ROUND-UP HERE

Burnett Plans Big Rodeo in May

Tom L. Burnett, who has won an international reputation as a producer of cowboy sports, and who last month produced the Fort Worth rodeo, which was pronounced the greatest cowboy sports contest ever staged in the United States, has announced that he will produce the roundup here May 3, 4, and 5.

Mrs. Burnett will present a number of new features. He says that the roundup here would be even better than that which he produced last year.

Offices have been opened at 706 Ohio avenue and Mr. Burnett's entire force has moved to the city. Negotiations have been made with various division passenger agents of the different railroads entering Wichita Falls for special rates during the roundup.

It is Mr. Burnett's desire to give Wichita Falls the greatest roundup ever staged in the United States—his facilities being owner of the Triangle ranch, and being, it might be said, the godfather of the principal cowboys and cowgirls in the contest game, places him in a position (by the large purses he will offer in the various events) to attract the best talent in the world to the roundup here.

One of the special features will be calf roping, for which there will be rung up the largest purse ever offered in this event in the southwest, and which is sure to attract the best ropers in the world to compete in this event at the local roundup.

Downpour Speeds Up Oil Operations in Wichita County

SOUTH ELECTRA HUMMING NOW

New Work Going on in This Area

Splendid rains which visited the Wichita Falls district the first part of the week, were easily the outstanding feature of interest to oil operators, insuring as it did, a water supply for weeks, where there had been uncertainty at the best, and in most instances practically no water at all. Already the increased water supply is showing it's effect in the preparations for new drilling and several deep tests for the south and southwest Electra wildcat territory which has been of much interest lately, that have been held up for several weeks are getting under way.

In the way of wildcat developments the Griswold No. 1 Waggoner, southwest of the producing area in the South Electra pool, was the only actual development. This well was established as an oil producer in the 1,930-foot sand, though a test has not been possible. The outside casing is being pulled, then the well will be put on the pump. It is expected to make anywhere from 50 to 150 barrels.

Just south of the Griswold well the Carteret well is pumping around 50 barrels of oil, from the sand at 1,926 feet, but is making some water.

E. S. Griswold has acquired an interest in the Waggoner test started by Joe Howell several weeks ago, between the Griswold deep well and the older pool, and will drill the test to completion. It is now about 600 feet deep, failing to pick up the 470-foot sand, which has been encountered by other tests to the north. The 900-foot sand which is found in this district will be the next objective of this test, which will be drilled to whatever depth necessary to get oil.

Two New Wells.

The 470-foot pool has two additional producers this week, the No. 5 of the Petroleum Producers, 20 barrels, and the No. 2 Waggoner of Fred Gates, also 20 barrels. This pool is running northwest and southeast from the discovery wells, the developments show.

The No. 2 Waggoner of J. J. Perkins and the No. 3 of Riner and Bailey are drilling in this new shallow pool, as is the No. 6 of the Petroleum Producers company.

The No. 1 Waggoner of McCallister and Brown, south of these shallow producers, is reported drilling below 1,000 feet.

The Bankers Petroleum company, No. 1 Waggoner, north of the 500-foot producers, is drilling below 900 feet.

North of the Bankers lease the Carter Oil company's No. 1 Waggoner, section 33, is to be a deep test, of several which will give added importance to this section, where the shallow sands are being developed.

About a half mile southwest of the 470-foot producers the Panhandle Refining company is rigging up for a deep test their No. 1 Waggoner.

West of the shallow wells the Fall Schupp No. 1 Waggoner has already started drilling, now down around 700 feet. This is to be a deep test also.

In Main Pool.

Reports from the main South Electra pool show the 1,950-foot producer of McDaniels and others increasing it's production on the swab to 150 barrels. The well had an initial flow of 70 barrels, when first drilled in, and was permitted to produce naturally, while tools were rigged up to clean out. Put on the swab the first of the week it improved materially, it's showing adding considerably to the importance of the new sand for this part of the pool.

The No. 3 on this lease is reported drilling around 1,500 feet. This well is to be completed in either the 1,900 or 1,800-foot sand, if possible since it is only 50 feet from the 1,950-foot well, and could not be completed in the same sand.

Offsetting the No. 2 of McDaniel and others the Griswold Oil company is rigging up it's No. 24 to go down to the 1,950-foot sand.

The Gladiolus will also drill for this deep sand, on the north edge of it's Burnett lease, offsetting the McDaniel lease.

The Griswold Oil company's No. 21 is reported completing on the 1,800-foot sand. No. 23 is drilling around 700 feet. No. 24 is the new location mentioned above.

On the Gladiolus Burnett lease two wells are completing, the No. 45 on the sand at 163 feet, and the No. 46 on the sand at 1,886 feet. Nos. 47 and 48 Burnett are new locations this week.

Just north of the McDaniel lease, Quimby and others No. 1 Burnett is reported to have started drilling with a Star.

The Bridwell and Heydrick No. 11 Waggoner is preparing to complete in the 1,950-foot sand. This is the most northern test on the lease, and is close to the 1,950-foot producer of McDaniel and others.

Texas Completing Two.

The Texas company's Nos. 214 and 215 Waggoner are completing in the 1,600-foot sand. Nos. 216 and 217 on this same lease are drilling around a few hundred feet. The No. 218 Waggoner is an offset to the Eureka-Spencer and D. Yarmett well, in section 31.

In the shallow pools south of the main South Electra pool there have been several new wells completed recently. The Kentucky Oil company's No. 1 Waggoner got the 900-foot sand, with 15 barrels production.

The Virginia Oil association's No. 17 Burnett is a 20-barrel producer in the 780-foot sand.

The Carter Petroleum company's No. 5 Burnett is reported good for 20 barrels in the 400-foot sand.

The deep test of Waggoner and Kolp, the No. 5 Waggoner, has been abandoned as dry below 1,800 feet, it is reported. This test is on the edge of the town of Electra. Several nice shallow wells drilled recently surround this deep test.

A New Sunshine Hill Well.

A new producer is reported from Sunshine Hill shallow pool, the No. 8-A Ward and Tood of the Scott Petroleum company, 30 barrels from the sand at 930 feet.

South Burkburnett.

A new producer for the recently opened Laning and Moninger pool north of the Texhoma, and two wells in the old pool, were reported completed this past week. The No. 1 Murdock of Tom Hunter, south of the Laning and Moninger discovery well is producing around 150 barrels, from the 1,200-foot sand.

The Judson Oil company's No. 10 Dodson in the 1,050-foot sand, on the old Camp lease, is reported a 100-barrel well. The Wirt Franklin No. 4 Cropper, in the 1,300-foot sand is a 40-barrel pumper.

In the old Ramming pool the W. G. Skelley's No. 9 Ramming is reported a 40-barrel pumper in the 1,250-foot sand.

Young County's Production Climbing Near 10,000 Barrels Daily After Big Gasser is Brought in By Eureka Co.

No. 5 Scott Makes in Neighborhood of 16 Million Ft. on Jump

Young county's production during the month of March totalled approximately 307,000 barrels, according to figures based on the pipeline runs, giving the daily production an average of approximately 9,900. February's runs were 249,500 barrels, an increase for the month of 57,500 barrels, or a daily increase of approximate by 11,850 barrels.

Of the production total the Bunger pool ran almost a third, or 100,000 barrels. The Ralco company's big new 3,700-foot well on the Roark, which was producing the last two weeks of the month, helped materially to make this nice increase. The recovery from the bad weather also supplied a certain percentage of the increase, and there were also a number of completions, particularly in the Bunger district.

The week's sensation was the Eureka Producing company's No. 5 Scott, in the South Bend townsite, which came in making a large gas flow at 3,483 feet. The well made around 16,000,000 feet of gas when first drilled in. This is above the depth in which the North American's sensational 3,500-foot producer was completed some time ago, and it is considered there is a good chance of getting the big oil producing lime by drilling deeper. However, the gas output makes it of commercial value.

Making 300 Barrels.

The Roxana-North American No. 11-A Ford, which had an initial production better than 500 barrels from the 2,200-foot sand, drilled in last week, is reported still flowing better than 300 barrels a day, through a ten-inch hole. This well was originally intended for a 3,500-foot lime test, and is a twin well to the No. 11 Ford, which is drilling deeper from the 2,200-foot sand. Production in the No. 11-A is remarkable because of the size of the hole.

The usual progress is reported from the drilling tests in the South Bend district, with the activity, as usual centered around the Bunger district. However, there have been no new developments in outside tests. The Mahlstadt Mook well is still pumping 30 or 40 barrels daily, from the 1,700-foot sand. Several other tests are to be made in this pool, three miles east of the Bunger producers, it is reported, but the locations have not yet been made.

Holding Up Production.

The Ralco No. 1 Roark is holding up it's production nicely, making around 740 barrels daily this week, according to the late reports from the field. The Texas company's No. 1 Jake Jones is rigging up to drill to this 3,700-foot lime.

Around the Penn Cities wildcat on the Herron, north of the newly opened 1,700-foot sand in the Mahlstadt Mook Williams, several tests are drilling for the 2,300-foot sand opened up by the Penn Cities No. 1 Herron. This company's No. 2 Herron is still held up by a fishing job, around 2,000 feet. The No. 1 Horner, same company, is drilling around 2,000 feet. Meek and others No. 1 Herron has shut down, after spudding in last week.

The No. 1 Horner of Wells and Spelling is still a rig.

In the north end of the pool Fred Foster has made two new locations, his No. 1 Durham and No. 1 Mehaney.

New Domain Pumping.

The new Domain wildcat on the Graham, north of Eliasville, and several miles from any production, has been rigged up to pump, and is making around 50 barrels. It is in the lime at 3,400 feet.

Kanowa Shot Again.

The Kanowa Oil and Gas No. 1 Stovall, reported several weeks ago on a 3,500-foot lime, was given a second shot this week, but has so far failed to respond. This test, which is a short distance north of the Panhandle's McCluskey producers, was at one time reported to be making considerable oil, these reports proving premature.

Fowlkes District Has Its Second Producing Well

Fowlkes' new 1,600-foot sand has its second producer, in the T. F. Hunter No. 1 on the Roberts tract of the Mona Marie Oil company. This well, which is north of the discovery well, started swabbing Friday and was estimated good for 100 barrels.

Two other tests to the north of the Magnolia's well are on the scand and now standardizing, but it will be some time next week before they are completed. The T. F. Hunter No. 1 Roberts, lease 2, was standing 400 or 500 feet in oil Friday night, while preparing to standardize to drill in.

The second test on the sand is the No. 2 Roberts of the Sooner Oil company. The No. 1 which has been shut down for some time around 900 feet, is reported preparing to drill deeper, now running 8-inch casing.

OLD WELLS YET HOLD MUCH OIL

Expert Seeks Method for Recovery

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Great quantities of oil, perhaps as much as 60 or 80 per cent of the original reservoirs, are left under-ground in the United States when wells are abandoned because no means have been determined whereby it is possible to recover more than a small percentage of the oil, according to A. W. Ambrose, chief petroleum technologist of the Bureau of Mines. This failure to effect a greater recovery of the underground oil, said Ambrose, is due to the exhaustion of the subterranean gas flow.

"The manner in which gas serves as an expulsive medium was recently shown by an experiment at the petroleum experiment station of the Bureau of Mines." Ambrose asserted. "A steel container about three feet long and three inches in diameter was filled with sand which was then thoroughly saturated with oil. The amount of oil introduced was known by weight and measurement. After the sand had been saturated, gas was forced into the container under a pressure of 200 pounds to the square inch. Then a valve at one end was opened and the gas allowed to escape, bringing with it perhaps 18 per cent of the oil put into the container.

"In other experiments," Ambrose continued, "the amount of oil recovered varied from 15 to 25 per cent, depending on the pressure and other conditions. After the gas had forced out 18 per cent of the oil, the container was held in a vertical position for the purpose of determining how much oil would drain out, but the capillary force exerted on the oil was so great that only a negligible quantity of oil drained from the sand.

"This simple experiment emphasized the fact that gas is the predominant factor in moving oil to the well and that when the gas is gone the production is gone," declared Ambrose. "In any event, it is unquestionable that large quantities of oil are left under-ground, and, whether the figure is 60 per cent or 80 per cent, it is too large. In certain parts of the Appalachian fields the practice of foreign compressed air or gas into a central well, from where it goes to adjoining wells and carries the oil with it, has caused wells to produce as much oil as they had up to the point when considered ready for abandonment.

"There are undoubtedly other means of effecting a greater recovery," Ambrose concluded, "and these questions should be studied and applied before the wells are abandoned."

TALKS HIMSELF DRY FOR WINE; GRABS UP GLASS—OH! WATER

By Associated Press.

PARIS, April 22.—After speaking 15 minutes at the opening session of France's National Week for Wine, Henri Cheron, minister of agriculture, became thirsty. Reaching for a decanter filled with sparkling liquid, the minister poured out a full tumbler, raised it to his lips and then, suddenly, after a single swallow set the glass aside on the table with every sign of disappointment. It was water.

Guests and correspondents, after listening for hours to long dry speeches inquired for the buffet. There was none. But for a near-by cafet visitors and correspondents might have been attending a prohibition meeting in dryest America.

•HELLO! HELLO!

(By International News Service.)

BUCYRUS, Ohio, April 8.—There were twenty-two billion telephone messages carried over the telephone wires of the United States during the year 1921, an average of over sixty million messages a day, according to the report of W. S. Vivian, of Chicago, vice-president of the Telephone Men's association, speaking before the Rotary club here on "The Service of the Telephone."

JOHN O'NEIL'S TEST HAS SHOW

Rio Bravo No. 1 Is On 800 Sand

John O'Neil's No. 1 Rio Bravo, in secton 31, South Electra, has the 800-foot sand with a good showing, according to the field reports. Whether the well will be completed here or drilled deeper is yet to be decided, it is understood.

The cable tool test on this same lease is drilling below 700 feet. This shallow sand is the same encountered by the Harvey-Cullum No. 1 Rio Bravo in the No. 1, which drilled deeper and opened up a deeper sand. The O'Neil lease is between the Harvey-Cullum and the Eureka Producing company's No. 1 Spencer-D'Yarmett, both discovery wells in two different sands.

Two new locations were made during the week by Mr. O'Neil, both in the South Electra section, and materials are now moving on.

The No. 1 Rio Bravo in section 19, northeast quarter, is in Wilbarger county, and the No. 1 Waggoner is in section 18, not far from section 31 operations.

The No. 2 Stringer in section 23, H. & G. N., east of Electra, is drilling around 250 feet, for the 400-foot sand, from which the No. 1 has been producing for several weeks.

The Harvey-Cullum No. 2 Rio Bravo resumed drilling Friday after a week's shut down, fishing for tools in the hole. The well is now down around 1,750 feet.

The No. 2 is located 75 feet from the No. 1, and is to be drilled for deep production.

HONG KONG WOMEN WERE APPREHENSIVE OF BRITISH 'HEROD'

(By International News Service)

LONDON, April 8.—Many Chinese residents of the Port of Hong Kong refused to fill up their census papers because they held the belief that the British authorities were taking the census for the purpose of procuring a number of children to bury under the piers of a new bridge.

Thus relates Mr. J. P. Lloyd, the Hong Kong census officer, in his report to his government.

"The prevalence of a widespread belief among Chinese women of the middle and lower classes in the alleged inhuman designs of the Public Works Department on infantile life undoubtedly affected the number of children of both sexes recorded between the ages of four and ten years," says Lloyd's report.

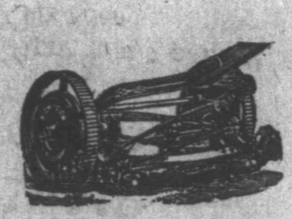

"The rumor referred to is, in short, that the government intended to build a huge bridge across the harbor to Kowloon, resting on ninety-nine piers, and that a certain number of young children of both sexes were required to be buried alive under the foundations of each pier in order to insure its stability.

"In the perverted view of the frightened mothers the very object of the census was to enable the government to make a suitable choice of its victims. In some districts mothers removed their children forcibly from school, while many children were locked indoors for days and not allowed to go out. Newspapers, however soon killed the rumor."

BUCYRUS, Ohio, April 8.—"I would trust some of the inmates of the penitentiary to take a check on my personal account for several hundred dollars to the bank, knowing they would return safely with the money, and I know men outside the penitentiary whom I wouldn't trust that far," declared P. E. Thomas, warden of the Ohio penitentiary, addressing the Rotary club here.

The Spectacular Fad for Bird Fans

And Why the Federal Attorneys Are Investigating the Newest Device of Fashion and the Slaughter of Songsters in Thousands to Satisfy a Craving for Novelty.

By May Wilkinson Mount

THE latest fad of society women in this country—fans adorned with the stuffed bodies of wild European birds—has created a stir not only among the elite but among those officers of the Federal and State governments whose duty it is to conserve wild life. Sportsmen, too, have raised an outcry against the new fashion which even the bird lovers admit is the prettiest and the nearest approach to the bizarre fancy of the American aborigine yet presented to an already fashion-bewildered public.

The fans are very expensive. The cheapest one can only be purchased for $40. The dearest rises to the costly figure of $1000. Each one is a work of art in itself. On the frame of the fan is the stuffed body of the sweet-throated song bird the fan is called after. But the little songster's wings and tail are replaced by imitation wings and tails made with the clever use of dyes from domesticated European fowl. The tiny cardinal bird would think he were looking into a mirror through a magnifying glass were he to see how cleverly his beauty is reproduced.

Desired Because Forbidden!

Manufacturers of the fans and importers declare that inasmuch as the fans are already made up before they reach this country they are not in conflict with the laws. The authorities do not agree with them. The controversy makes them more valuable and sought-after by the society women because it lends to the possession of one the charm that men find, for instance, in violating a sumptuary law.

"Fine feathers make fine birds" is an axiom that will be self-evident during the coming months, for no princely savage ever assembled more gorgeous plumage for the adornment of his regalia than American women will disport during the seasons before us.

The ostrich may poke his head in the sand for awhile. His curled and colorful plumes have given place, in fashionable society, to the feathers of his smaller rivals, the cardinal, paroquet, macaw, oriole, guinea hen, duck, radiant-hued game fowls, barnyard chicken—as differentiated from other varieties—and jays. A motly and gaily-appareled feathered company have yielded their coverings and taken refuge in the frying-pan to keep out of the cold.

Waves of color swept across the ocean from Paris, splashed the dull costumes of yesteryear with chrome-yellow, apple-green, periwinkle-blue, scarlet and purple, and, seeking expression novel, beautiful and radiant, at once, found this in feather fans.

Coquettish maidens will smile at their adorers behind huge birds and butterflies, and languidly flirt with a great sweeping wing that once lent impetus to the flight of a pair of guinea-fowls.

Or an audience at the opera will earnestly seek to discern what matron of society, in the front of the horseshoe, is hiding behind an enormous butterfly, its velvety body stretched well down upon the broad tortoiseshell stick of her fan, its beautiful wings striped with plumage of bluejay, dove, cardinal and, one would imagine, canary.

Triumphs of colorful art, as they are, the birds which rest their gentle heads on the sticks of milady's fan, and spread their broad pinions for her pleasure, are not a haphazard of color-splashes, but a careful blending and contrast of hues—such as one sees in many rare species of birds. Pink cockatoos verging into dove-gray and deepening into purplish-mauve make a wonderfully beautiful combination of feathers, with darker plumage on the head and tail of the bird. And iridescent effects are produced in green parrot feathers combined with crimson and brown or peacock hues.

Well for the farmer's peace that his guinea-fowls will have no opportunity of seeing a replica of themselves framed in crimson, blue, mauve or green! Were that attractive view to awaken their vanity and set them cackling their demands, either the guineas or the farmer would be compelled to abdicate. An energetic guinea-hen has no equal in the feminine world for emphasis, persistence and noise.

How the Fans Are Made

Another bird, which is popular with borders of vivid feathers along the outer wings, is the quail, or its like in plumage, where numberless markings in browns and tans form a beautiful ground for frames of brighter hues.

As for wings, no bird has ever possessed more perfectly shaped wings or any more alluring than are to be found in fans. Imagine, for instance, a wing of white-flecked gray, with a broad edge of light blue or mauve across the top. Or a pinion of vivid scarlet, or iridescent peacock hues, where all manner of blues and greens vary their color with every swaying movement of the fan.

In every case the fans are supplied with wide sticks of dark or light tortoiseshell, and they fold, like the wide edge and point of a bird-wing, adding, whether opened or closed, a decorative touch to any costume.

Only small feathers are employed in making the fans, overlapping with that softness of surface and color which can only be found in bird plumage. Often the pointed wing-feathers of small birds add an attractive border to the irregular outline of the fan's upper edge.

This use of small feathers is particularly effective where spots of contrasting colors are applied to butterflies, as the tiny feathers blend into the broad surface of the wings and seem parts of them.

It may be that Paris produced these colorful fans as a relief to the sombre costumes that have prevailed for some time. But America is flooded with color in dress materials and the birds and butterflies and wings that will wave in jewelled fingers at ball and opera will accentuate richness in bright effects and bring a new and attractive note into dress accessories.

Nothing as daring or as beautiful as these big feather fans have ever been introduced in New York, and so certain are arbiters of fashion that feathers will flutter unrestrainedly through the coming seasons, that even the lovely eighteen-inch Spanish fans, which compete with birds and butterflies for favor, are adorned with iridescent and colorful sequins, overlapping in designs that carry out the method of feather designs in fans.

Fashioned After an Enlarged Photograph of a Brilliant French Butterfly.

Just where the reign of feathers will end one cannot predict. Certainly plumage will be dominant in autumn millinery for, already, diminutive fans are in this country to be used in trimming hats, and an infinite variety of little feather fans are built on a large hairpin, to be worn at one side of the head and just back of the top of milady's coiffeur.

A prevailing color in these fans for the hair is blue—every light shade of blue, verging into periwinkle and mauve and often adorned with rhinestones and other jewels, especially in the framework of the fans. Indeed, some fan shapes for the hair are made entirely of jewels in solid or openwork designs.

In these miniature fans, of course, that bright note of this season—scarlet—is very evident, both for millinery and for the hair. The English call this shade of red "pink," and it may be a tribute to the fair English bride across the sea that America has made it the popular trimming color of today, whether it be found in sleeve, scarf, hat, opera-cloak, or swaying fan, lending life and motion as well as warmth of hue to a costume.

Spanish plays and music have brought the fan into general prominence and use once again in America, and next there will be classes to teach the language of fans; for every senorita knows how to express the gentle fan-flutter of encouragement to an ardent swain, and every Don the fan-clash of rejected love.

Deputy Federal Attorney Frederick L. Kopf of the Eastern District of the Federal Court of New York, which embraces the hundreds of miles of coastline of Long Island, where smugglers of the feathers might find a safe place to land, declared that he will use every means in his power to prevent the use of the stuffed birds as ornaments on fans.

"I have been informed," said Mr. Kopf, "that thousands of these beautiful little songsters are being slaughtered in Europe to satisfy the craving of American women of fashion for gay plumage. Under the law only the feathers of the domesticated ostrich can be imported except when brought in for museum or other scientific use. If domestic fowl in Europe are camouflaged into song birds by dyes, well and good, but if any fan comes to the attention of the Federal authorities having on it the stuffed body of a wild bird, quick action will be taken.

"Section 8707 of the United States Compiled Statutes reads as follows:

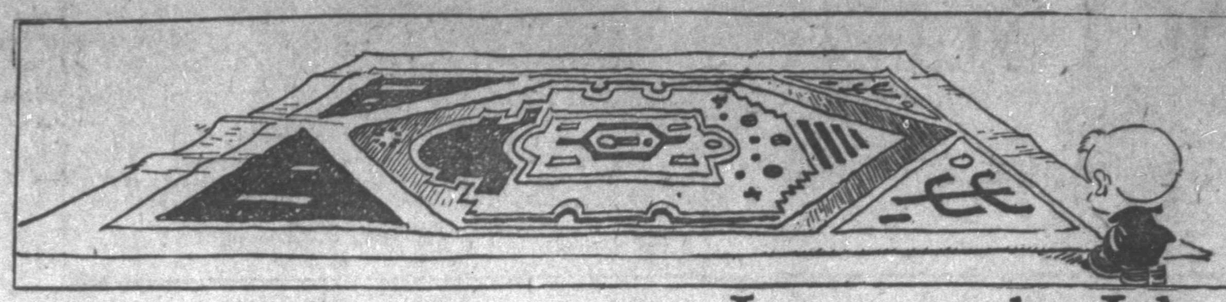

"'All dead bodies, or parts thereof, of any foreign game animals, or game or song birds, the importation of which is prohibited or the dead bodies, or parts thereof, of any wild game animals, or game or song birds transported into any state or territory, or remaining therein for use, consumption, sale, or storage therein, shall upon arrival in such state or territory be subject to the operation and effect of the laws of such state or territory enacted in the exercise of its police powers, to the same extent and in the same manner as though such animals or birds had been produced in such state or territory, and shall not be exempt therefrom by reason of being introduced therein in original packages or otherwise.'

"Section 9940 of the Federal Code (Sec. 10,411 of the Comp. St.), in the section concerning the importation of wild birds, reads in part:

"'No person shall import into the United States or into any territory or district thereof, any foreign wild animal or bird except under special permit from the Secretary of Agriculture.' (The section then provides for the necessary importation of birds for research or for museum work.)

"Section 5291, sub-division 347 of the U. S. Compiled Statutes for 1916, specifically provides:

"'That the importation of * * * the feathers, quills, heads, wings, tails, skins, or parts of skins, of wild birds, either raw or manufactured, and not for scientific or educational purposes, is hereby prohibited.'"

THE SUPER-GERMAN

By H. N. F.

Bismarck was the most profound and farseeing statesman in the history of the Teutonic people. He was a genius, a man of destiny and a man of iron. To him coming events cast their shodows before. He had the gift of prophecy. He made the German Empire. When the dethroned Kaiser became the Emperor of Germany he dismissed Bismarck. It must be true that Mediocrity loathes Genius. As long ago as 1886 the Iron Chancellor predicted that a victorious enemy would cripple the German nation for at least a generation. He warned his minister of war that Germany would be called upon to defend both the western and her eastern frontier "in the next war." He also predicted that the "present German Empire would not remain intact after a lost campaign." All that he forecasted came to pass. A victorious enemy humbled the Teutonic people. Down tumbled the Hohenzollern dynasty. Rich provinces were torn from that Empire welded together by the hand and the brain of Bismarck and it will take more than the passing of one generation for the Germans to restore even their lost economic prestige or win their place at the table of nations. Supermen are born; they are not made. Bismarck was a superman.

TEXAS TOMORROW

Colonel Richard H. Esmonds of the Manufacturers Record of Baltimore has published the Blue Book of Southern Progress. These are some of the facts about Texas: The state has invested in manufacturing about $589,000,000 or more than 62 times the capital invested in manufacturing in 1880. Her present manufacturing capital is nearly half the total capital invested in manufacturing in the entire South in 1900. Value of manufactured products in 1920 was $999,996,000. Texas has $361,600,000 invested in mines, quaries and wells. Texas is now producing 100,000,000 barrels of petroleum or 16,000,000 barrels more than the entire South produced in 1910. Value of the farm crops of Texas was last year $424,471,000. National bank resources in Texas in 1920 were over $908,000,000 or $203,000,000 more than the national bank resources of the entire South twenty years ago. Texas is spending in public schools over $31,000,000 a year which is more than 7 times the 1900 expenditures. Texas leads in petroleum production; Texas leads in Southern pine production; Texas leads all states in cotton production; Texas is a large producer of wool and mohair; Texas has west fields of lignite; Texas has bituminous mines and its soft coal output is very large; Texas has reservoirs of natural gas—in fact Texas has all the raw materials that enter into manufactures and there is no valid reason why Texas some day should not be foremost among the manufacturing states.

FIGHTING FOR OIL

Ere the coming of the world war Russia received her petroleum supply from the Baku field or the Persian producers. All this reminds the writer that the Standard Oil tanker China Arrow is on its way from Los Angeles to Vladivostok carrying approximately 80,000 barrels of oil. This is the first cargo of oil to leave the California port for Russia since the world war started. Edward L. Doheny is a Californian. He discovered the petroleum wealth of Southern California and the bulk of his great fortune was made by lucky strikes in the Golden State. Now he has vast interests in Mexico, he is on the ground and his report is that the Mexican wells and fields will be producing oil in large quantities for years and years to come. This is another blackeye for publicity agents who have been insisting all along that salt water has ruined many of the larger gushers and others have become exhausted. Everywhere the wide world over geologists and scouts of American companies are searching for the surface signs of the golden sands below and the Baku wells in the Caucasas territory are certain to be gathered in by American Titans who have billions behind them some day. There is a battle royal on for the control of the petroleum fields the petroleum supply of the world.

GOODBYE MARGOT

Margot Asquith sailed back to England last week. Margot is the George Harvey of the petticoated contingents of two worlds. She writes like a iconoclast, stings like an adder, talks like a feminine Solomon and if St. Peter welomed her at the pearly gates she would criticize the cut of his robes. Margot did not find a thing in America to appeal to her. With the sole exception that the very rich violated the prohibition laws and kept plenty of moisture in their cellars while the mass were compelled to drink water. England's drink bill last year was $2,400,000,000. It would be splendid for the wage workers and wealth producers of the "tight little isle" if prohibition made it impossible for them to saturate themselves with intoxicants every day of the year. A wage worker has no business to drink. He toils for his money. Why should he swallow it after earning it? A rich man who pickles himself in briny alcohol pays the price in the end. His kidneys evaporate, his liver enlarges and his brain cells refuse to perform their function. Any former human tank or soak knows this. There is a well known Democratic politician in Texas who was engaged in the liquor traffic many years "in the good old days." He never touched the stuff. This was his slogan: "It is made to sell and not to drink." He sold it but he refused to drink it. His name? Well, he was the jig dancer of Democracy at Baltimore and he jigged again for the Democrats of the nation when McAdoo went down in the city of San Francisco. He did not jig because McAdoo went down. He did jig with all the anger that a man can carry because Cox had gone up.

MORE FOOD

Statistics of the current food supply show that there is not enough food in the world to supply the normal consumption. According to Dr. E. D. Ball, U. S. department of agriculture, the immediate restoration of full buying power would result in the almost immediate disappearance of surpluses. In the fifty years following the Civil War, our cotton production increased five times, our wheat production four times, our corn production three times and our population only two and three-quarter times. But, says Dr. Ball, "The peak of agricultural production per capita of population was passed in 1898. Agricultural production almost kept pace with population increase for some little time after that date but in the last decade it has steadily and ever more rapidly fallen." What does this mean? It means that measured in dollars, the United States, today, is a food importing nation, that is, we import more sugars, tea, coffee, spices, nuts and tropical fruits than we export of wheat and meat. It is estimated that by the end of this century, our population will be over 220 million and that we will begin to import the staple foods in from fifteen to about thirty years from now. If we are to escape this, we must either place more land under cultivation or produce more from the land already in crops. In this connection, Dr. Ball states that "the larger areas of our rich, fertile and easily tilled land have already been taken up and that the increase in farm area in the future will be relatively slow * * * National progress in the future must rest even more squarely back on the food-producing power than it has in the past." If that is true, he says, we must continually increase our acre production which essentially means the conservation of our principal national resources, the fertility of our own lands.

KLUX—PAST, PRESENT

Former Policeman J. D. Crawford of Dallas should congratulate himself. He was sent to trial for being a flogger. There appears to be many floggers at Dallas as 57 cases have been recorded by the sleuths of the law. Phillip Rothblum positively identified the former policeman as chief among his floggers. Crawford produced an alibi. His friends, his relatives and his mother-in-law knew where he was every hour the day and the night of the date of the flogging episode. Judge Phil Barry Miller defended the former policeman. Now it is said that Crawford is a member of the Ku Klux Klan. It said that he isn't a member of the Ku Klux Klan. Judge Miller is the campaign manager of Senator Culberson. He is not a member of the Ku Klux Klan. Judge Miller is of one of the oldest Catholic families of Texas and South Carolina. He is barred by the Klan. His father was a Confederate soldier in South Carolina and no doubt the Millers away back in reconstruction days were members of the original Ku Klux Klan whose founder was General Bedford Forrest, one of the fighting soldiers of the Confederacy.

OIL AND FREE LIST

An American correspondent, writing from Zapata, Texas, says several hundred thousand acres of land situated on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande almost opposite Zapata have been leased by American interests for oil exploitation purposes. T. A Rial of Oklahoma, and associates are preparing to install three derricks upon the Naranjo ranch of one hundred thousand acres, which borders the Rio Grande. Near Guerrero, in the state of Tamaulipas, opposite Zapata, Jones & Buchanan have leased a tract of 130,000 acres and are already installing a rig, these operators moving there from the Tampico field. A big French syndicate which has been doing extensive operation in Mexico has let a contract to the Riley Drilling company for a test well on a big tract of land in the state of Nuevo Leon and not far from Monterey, while they have also let another contract to the same drilling concern for drilling a well for the Texas-Mexican Petroleum company in the state of Tamaulipas, not far from Zapata. The Transcontinental Oil company with forty-one thousand acres in Tamaulipas, the Corona Oil company (Dutch Shell) with thirty thousand acres in the same state, the Atlantic-West Indies company with fifty-five hundred acres and the Mexican Gulf Oil company with thirty-five thousand acres in the state of Nuevo Leon have all begun arrangements to start extensive drilling compaigns. The Wasteca Oil company, Sinclair Oil company, Empire Oil and Gas company, Mexican Aguila (Eagle) Oil company and other big concerns are acquiring holdings in the states of Tamaulipas and Nuevo Leon. If protection is a good thing why should Mexican crude be kept on the free list? If all American industries should be protected from the competition of foreign rivals or foreign articles or wares of commerce then why should the petroleum industry be overlooked? Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Arkansas and Louisiana are producers of petroleum. Democrats placed oil importations on the free list. Are the Republicans going to keep oil importations on the free list?

WATCH GENOA

Major Lloyd George of the British army is the son of his father, David Lloyd George, prime minister of Great Britain. And the son knows whereof he speaks: "My father is going to Genoa because it is his duty. He is going there to bring the nations of Europe together. His object is to bring peace to all Europe and to revive trade. Therefore it would have been a mistake to leave Russia out of the conference." Major Lloyd George is the sane son of a wise father. Why should Russia be left out of the conference? Why shouldn't peace be brought to all Europe? Why shouldn't trade be revived? This isn't a one power world. Should the spirit of anarchy seize upon all Europe American would not escape. Should repudiation of bankruptcy sweep over Europe disaster would overtake America. Europe owes the government and the people of the United States 15 billion dollars. If the allied governments repudiate the war loans it would not help matters. These war loans would be paid by the American wealth producers. If a cancellation agreement was made it would not help the American tax payer. He is carrying the 11 billions loaned to the late allies in the world war. Cancellation or no cancellation the debt must be paid. If Europeans who borrowed the money refuse to pay it then it must be paid by the American people. All the world needs peace. All the world needs trade revival. All the world needs employment. All the world needs producers of wealth and buyers of goods. Russia cannot be kept out in the cold without disastrous results all around and if Germany is unable to meet the payments then Germany should be given time.

WHY GROWL NOW

Senator Harry New of Indiana subscribes to the doctrine that to the victors belong the spoils. He favors the substitution of a Republican for a Democrat wherever it is possible. He is honest about it. Woodrow Wilson, while he was president, retained thousands of Republicans and mugwamps in official places. That didn't help him any. When the slump sign came they refused to subscribe to the Democratic campaign fund. They declined to become active partisans and hundreds of office-holders who had been classified as Democrats advertised themselves as Republican Independents when it was known that Warren G. Harding had been swept into office by 7 million majority. If the Demorats have been holding the fat offices for eight years, if they have grown fat and lazy why should they growl when they are told they must get out in order that lank and lean and hungry Republicans may step in? Business is business. Wise political bosse or leaders take care of their follower. This may be a rank violation of the civil service laws, a return to the political dark ages when the boss was the whole show but there are millions of hungry Republicans in this land of ours, they crave official rap and they must be fed if they are to be held in line.

WHEN WE DIE

Benjamin Bosse died the other day in the Hoosier state. He was only 47, he was mayor of Evansville, chairman of the Democratic state committee, and the slated candidate of his party for governor, the wealthiest man in Evansville, president or director of 25 of the leading business concerns of the city as well as the active head of one of the largest furniture factories in the United States. He was a wage worker at eleven. He had to hustle for himself. He sold newspapers and ran errands and performed small jobs and yet he found time when he had mounted the last rung of the business ladder to devote a large part of it to civic affairs and beautification of his city. He was serving his third term as mayor when he died. He had built more improved streets and parks and play grounds and school buildings than any mayor in the history of Evansville. On the funeral day public buildings and business houses were draped in mourning, trade was suspended, all the schools were dismissed and a vast concourse followed the hearse to the silent city. He came out of Poverty Flats. He was one of the winners of his state. When he died all the people were sorry. It is something to have lived a life of activity and benevolence as Benjamin Bosse had lived his.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

HUNTING THE GUNMEN BY FLIVVER

In flivvers now the coppers trail
The bandits; but they can't get near 'em,
Because when they're within a mile
The deafest bandit's bound to hear 'em!

o o o

Hunting bandits in a fleet of flivvers is the latest idea in Police Departments. Any person who has ever tried sneaking up on anybody in a Sheet-Metal Elizabeth without being heard will appreciate what a fine chance of success the idea has.

o o o

Heretofore the bandits have been under a disadvantage. They have not always been able to detect the approach of a minion of the law. But from now on they need never fear being taken by surprise, unless they are suffering from complicated ear trouble.

o o o

One thing is certain: the flivver will mean the biggest police shake-up in years.

o o o

The bandits held their regular meeting last evening and expressed hearty approval of the Hunt-'Em-With-Noises idea.

o o o

The honorary president of the Gunmen's Union issued this statement: "Personally, I think we could not have fared better if we had suggested the idea ourselves. The new system will keep the police in repair shops, where they can't bother us!"

o o o

Bandits ..... Rolls-Royces
Professional bondsmen ..... Packards and Cadillacs
Policemen ..... Ford roadsters
Detectives will follow on Pogi-sticks and stilts.

How the Police Reports May Read

"Was notified bandits were shooting clerks in the United Cigar Store at 2345 Blank street. Stepped on gas and started for scene. Car stalled after going about two blocks. Spent two hours trying to find whether it was the carburetor or the ignition system. Finally left car and walked to scene of shooting. Could find no trace of bandits. Returned to spot where I had left flivver. Found somebody had stolen it. It serves them right.
"Patrolman Moriarity."

o o o

"While driving down Main street I heard volley of shots in next block. Turned corner too sharply and front tire rolled off. Was putting on tire when I saw two gunmen hop into large red Stutz and start off. Gave pursuit, but had to give up chase after five blocks as I had no telescope or field glasses. Would like six weeks' leave of absence as I am suffering from serious bruises and abrasions due to rough riding.
"Seargeant Cassidy."

"Six gunmen waylaid rent collector on my beat this noon. I saw robbery but had to go back ten blocks to get car out of garage where I had left it to have radiator repaired. Then gave chase to gunmen, but they had roller skates, and so outdistanced me. Ran out of gas just outside of city limits. Towed back to Socony station, but found gunmen had stolen all the gasoline and shot the proprietor.
"Borrowed gas from passing autoist and continued chase until tire blew out. Pushed car to tire store. Found bandits had just stolen all the tires and wounded clerk. Decided to give up chase. Would like retirement on pension under disability clause.
"Lieut. Callahan."

o o o

"Heard screams and pistol shots at 10 a. m. Later found that messenger had been shot and robbed, gunmen getting away safely. Was unable to do anything as I was under my car at the time trying to plug up a leaky gas tank.
Sergeant Gibbons."

Folks Back Home

Sketches by J. H. STRIEBEL

By Robert Quillen

UNCLE GUS

Uncle Gus blew noisily into a lantern chimney and began to polish the glass with a fragment of cotton cloth. Occasionally he paused to study his handiwork, and in these moments of idleness became communicative.

"The' was a woman in here while ago," said he, "asked me didn't I think gals was mo' lackin' in virtue than they use' to was. I couldn't say much, her bein' a woman, but I thought a plenty.

"Ever'body keeps scoldin' modern gals fo' bein' bold an' wearin' clothes what ain't modest an' it gits me kind o' riled. What in heck has clothes to do with bein' decent? Would men be plumb corrupted an' wicked if they wo' knee pants an' went barefoot? Was ever'body low down when it was the fashion to wear no mo' than a loin cloth? If ever'body was to git too hard up to buy clothes, wouldn't the' be no mo' virtue? Huh! Virtue ain't th' product o' dressmakers. Virtue is a matter o' right raisin' an' right thinkin,' an' the' is many a short skirt acoverin' a pure heart."

THE BRAN CURE

When I was a small boy, my paternal grandsire—who was much given to applying the rod lest the child be spoiled—taught me to avoid bran as a pestilence. At that time bran was a cow feed. Its use in muffins would have seemed no less strange than the use of corn fodder in sauerkraut. But I liked it. I considered it a delicacy. And when my appetite clamored for attention between meals, I sought the feed room in the cow barn, delved into a sack and feasted.

One day my grandsire caught me in the act, expressed his opinion of one who would consume cow feed in a world full of orthodox rations, and threatened to warm my jacket if again he found me in the feed room.

I tried to remain virtuous, or at any rate I tried to avoid getting caught; but luck was against me, and one day he appeared in the doorway and blocked my one avenue of escape. He did not warm my jacket. He invited me to have another helping—nay, he insisted, and forced his hospitality upon me; and when I had eaten until swallowing seemed futile, he caught me by the scruff of the neck and held me with one hand while his other scooped bran from the sack and stuffed my unwilling mouth. Then he left me on the floor and went away, and when I had coughed the bran from my bronchial tubes I was weaned.

His methods did not appeal to me at the time; but I think of them and lift my hat to his memory when parents tell me they can't do a thing with their children, and again when officials or laymen complain that a certain law can't be enforced because people no longer have respect for law.

AUNT HET

"The world wouldn't need so many rescue homes for fallen girls if it had enough jails to shelter the no-account men they fall for."

THE GIRL ACROSS THE STREET

Love may be blind, but it does not lose the sense of smell. For a time there appeared danger that the girl across the street, being enamored of romance and earnest to the point of recklessness in her pursuit of the butcher boy, might by surrendering too easily make herself appear of little value and thus forfeit the love of the gallant Hiram. But if the blindness of love has made her incapable of seeing any fault in him, it has not lessened her ability to discover imperfection in the wares he delivers from his father's meat market.

This morning he delivered a roast and found her sweeping off the front walk. She smiled a confession of her love, but even while smiling tore the paper wrapper and sniffed. Her remarks, while apparently earnest and eloquent, were not at first audible across the street; but as Hiram backed to the gate, the scorned and rejected roast in his hand, her voice lifted to delight the neighborhood.

"And you tell your father," she concluded, as she turned back to the house, "that we don't mind eating old meat, but we like to have it age in the cow. Tell him that roast has been allowed to have its own way until it's spoiled. And tell him to send us something nice and fresh that's been killed since the war."

The reverberating slam of the door punctuated her closing remarks, and Hiram turned away with a face no less red than his despised roast. Is this then, the end of it all? Shall romance be shattered by an ancient cut of beef? Alas, the fate of empires hinges on trivial matters.

ENVY

Michelangelo, having done an exquisite piece of work, stepped back a pace the better to admire it. Perhaps he boasted a bit, for he was not above it. And a fellow craftsman made a name for himself by crushing Michel's face with a maul. Again the Angel painted a wonderful picture in competition with the matchless Leonardo; and again envy rose against him and scraped the picture from the wall. The name of the little-souled one is unknown, but his envy robbed the world of a master-piece.

Envy crucified Christ; shot Lincoln when his work was finished; drove daggers into the body of Caesar. Every great and good man the world has known has been tripped and harassed by envy. Every great and good work has been done while Envy stood near and scoffed or voiced its malice in the cry: "Crucify him."

Envy makes wars. We only hate the man who bests us in fair competition. While a nation remains humble and weak, we patronize and encourage it. But when it grows great and threatens to take our markets from us, we find a great moral principle under cover of which we can appeal to arms and reduce our competitor to impotence.

The alien does not arouse our hate while he is content to handle a shovel and do our dirty work. We begin to dislike him only when he prospers, sets up a shop, and offers goods at a price that weans our customers away.

To be successful in any particular is to be envied; to be envied is to be hated. For envy is the sire of malice, and only the world's unknown failures live through their days untouched by hate.

WILLIE WILLIS

Little Willis Willis is carrying his left hand in a sling. He confessed to the doctor that he had scratched the back of it with a rusty nail in order to get blood enough to sign his name to the oath of the Fearless Band of Deadly Comrades.

The Theatre

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1922, by Frank Crane.)

"Conceived in Godhead, born beside the altars, slain in the brothel and born again in the soul of man, endlessly repeating in its own person the story of its immortal and rejuvenate god, Dionysus, the theater has lived the whole history of Europe. No word has spanned such range of time and forms and morals. No art has so changed and so remained the same."

This is a sentence from Kenneth Macgowan's recent volume "The Theater of Tomorrow."

It is an interesting book, written by one who not only knows the theater as it is, and the theater as it was from the beginning, but has also a rather definite notion of what the theater will be in the future.

He tells us that the history of the theater begins beside Dionysiac altars more than twenty-five centuries ago as a religious ritual.

It began in the open air.

It began as a crude form of that instinct which impels man to believe that he is more than a passing brute and that he is in some way a child of destiny.

It began with neither audience nor actors, only villagers, partaking in mystic ceremonies, praying with their bodies to the high gods for the desire of the soul.

The theater, which is now frowned upon by some circles of religion, was once the heart of religion, as in Athens where forty thousand citizen spectators were jammed into a bowl on the hillside of the Acropolis to watch the dancers and hear the actors tell them over and over the stories of their heroes and their gods.

The drama was reborn in the middle ages and here also its place was first before the high altar in the church.

The miracle plays became too popular and had to be taken out of the church and set up in the open where there was room for all to see.

Gradually the drama was altered with time, and through a long evolution has reached the condition in which it is found today.

It is even now in a further stage of development by means of the moving picture play.

It has always been my conviction that while the theater cannot be successfully made a platform for propaganda, for the simple reason that all art is debased when it finds any other end and excuse except the joy of self-expression, at the same time there is no single instrument so powerful as the drama as a means of cultural development.

And this means not only diversion but the satisfaction of the profoundest needs of the intellectual and emotional life.

Morals are not made nor advanced particularly by didactic teaching. They are the result of suggestion and of inspiration.

The theater of the future will become religious when people have learnt that religion is not a side issue of life but is the very essence of life itself and carries with it the secret of life's profoundest and most subtle satisfactions.

SHORT ONES

By ROBERT QUILLEN

Variety affords the spice of life and a motive for many divorces.

The white race will continue dominant only so long as it acts white.

No, no; bucket shops do not deal in tinware. "Beware" is their motto.

At times one suspects that civilization is merely progress in laziness.

You have noticed, perhaps, that very few of the professed woman-haters wear blinders.

The beautiful things now used to fill stockings make the Christmas joy last all the year.

Nothing less than a California climate could have a movie hero's suit pressed and dried ten seconds after he falls into the lake.

The easiest way for girls to save their honor when asked to ride by strange men is to keep on walking.

It is probably just as well for Europe that the "safety first" motto wasn't in vogue in Columbus' time.

It is clear that Irish freedom won't be sufficiently enthralling to deprive us of our regular cop supply.

No doubt Will Hays will be sorely tempted to call on the Marines when the movie bandits hold up a train.

Europe appears to be laboring under the delusion that our army on the Rhine is merely making a social call.

The devil has an easy time. He merely offers a profit and lets men invent the moral principle to excuse taking it.

"Night reveals us stripped of the veneer of civilization." Not, however, if we pull down the shades.

The water shortage in London is annoying, no doubt, but fortunately citizens have a very satisfactory substitute.

Nature is merciful, and never lets a prominent citizen know how smoothly the world moves on the day after his death.

It is customary to drop the pilot after reaching deep water, but what is mere precedent in the case of Lloyd George?

The first reformer was doubtless a cannibal who had chronic indigestion and therefore eschewed meat as a matter of piety.
