NEW BAPTIST CHURCH BUILDING SANTA ANNA, TEXAS

At last the congregation of the First Baptist church are meeting in the new church building which has been under construction for one year or longer.

The building is not yet complete but the workmen finished it last Saturday to such an extent that the Sunday school and other services of the day could be held in it Sunday.

The structure is of brick with a concrete foundation, the main auditorium and gallery when properly seated will seat 800 people, and the commodious basement when completed will provide 17 class rooms for the different grades of the Sunday school, 10 of which have already been completed.

The work of finishing the remainder of the building will be continued until the entire edifice is completed, at which time Santa Anna can boast of one of the best church buildings in central west Texas, especially in a town the size of Santa Anna.

The Sunday school last Sunday morning had 249 present at the beginning of the Sunday school when the reports were made out, and it was estimated that approximately 50 more came in too late to be reported.

This building has not only cost the members of the church a lot of money, but has cost the faithful pastor and several committees much in time and effort. Such a magnificent building to do service and honor God. The doors are now open for service and may it be true said that this is the church with a welcome.

The church is now engaged in a revival meeting, with Rev. W. Y. Pond of Coleman doing the preaching. Last week, due to the inclement weather first of the week and also being handicapped by having to hold the services in other places of worship, the progress of the meeting was not what some might have expected, but it was not a failure. Bro. Pond has been doing some fine preaching, the plain kind that people can understand. He calls a horse a horse and a man a man, a shoe a shoe and other things by their right name. He preaches that sin is sin and does not apologize for what the Bible says about sin or those who practice it.

The Baptist people of Coleman dismissed their evening services last Sunday and several of the members came to Santa Anna to church, it being the first day to hold services in the new building. Several of the other denominations dismissed their evening services and joined the congregation in the revival at the Baptist church. We appreciate the friendly spirit and cooperation that exist between the different denominations in this town, and think it very commendable.

All the future services of the Baptist denomination will be held in the new church building, and now is a good time for those who have not been attending to begin to do so.

TWO ARE DROWNED

IN COLORADO RIVER
Brady, Texas, April 7.—Sterling Hornsby, 25, tenant on the D. C. Randall farm at Waldrip, 24 miles north of Brady, and his 9-year-old son, lost their lives at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning while attempting to ford the Colorado river at the Champion crossing. The river was on a four-foot rise and the swift current swept the team and wagon driven by Hornsby down stream the horses also being drowned. A party about 100 yards below the crossing heard the cries for help but were unable to render any assistance. The bodies have not yet been recovered. Hornsby leaves a wife and four children. He had moved to this county last December.

CHRISTIAN REVIVAL MEETING

The revival meeting at the Christian Church is in full swing with good crowds and fine attention. Brother E. M. Douhit, field editor of the "Christian Courier," is leading the song services. If you have not been an attendant at these services, you are the loser, for the "Gospel of Jesus Christ" is being preached.

Next Lord's Day Bible school hour will be given over to the Easter program given by the children. Make this event a success by your presence. Bible School attendance last Lord's Day, greatest any time since call of pastor here.

RIGHT—WILL—WIN

The following is a partial report of Sunday schools in town for April 9th:

This report is published in order that you who stay away may know what your school and the other schools are doing and also to "provoke one another to love and good works."

We hope in the future to be able to make this report more full and interesting, and ask the cooperation of all superintendents and secretaries others interested to that end.

The Baptist led with 249 present and 60 new pupils and an offering of $14.89. It was their first Sunday in their beautiful new church and we are expecting to hear great reports from them in the future.

The Methodist had 200 present, a good offering, one teacher absent and one tardy. They are going to strive for a 100 per cent efficiency in faculty.

The Christian had 102 present, $7.47 offering and one teacher absent. This school is likely making the best record of any considering the number of their church membership.

The Presbyterian had 66 present. We failed to get a complete record of this school—hope to have it in full next week.

The Christian and Methodist schools each are preparing Easter programs for next Sunday.

Dr. L. J. Mims, president of the Howard Payne College, has resigned his position at the head of the school. The resignation has been accepted by the board of trustees to become effective June 1. Dr. Mims was with the First Baptist church of Brownwood for nine years as pastor and has been head of the Howard Payne College for the last four years.

THEY WASTED

In front of the great churches in New York city for weeks past there has been a bread line every night, fifteen hundred strong. Many in that bread line, toward the end of the war, were selecting $12 silk shirts and asking the man in the shoe store if he didn't have something better than the $18 shoes.

The editor, along with others, urged workers to remember that high pay would not last and to keep some of it.

Sooner or later, good times will come back. Then again this and other editors will say, "Keep some of it." But always there will be a rapid jump from silk shirts to the bread line. That is why a few people have money and the great majority have none.

ELECTION SATURDAY

On Saturday of this week the voters of this Commissioners Precinct will vote upon and settle the matter that has been the confusing factor for the past two years.

It is the duty of every property tax paying voter in this precinct to come out and vote, but those who only pay a poll tax and have no property rendered cannot participate in this election. Men and their wives can vote, all those who are passed the age of paying poll tax and have their exemption certificates can vote, if they have been paying property tax in the precinct and have property rendered for taxes this year, they will be allowed to vote, all others are barred.

Those who wish to have the outstanding bonds cancelled will draw an (x) cross mark through the following:

"For the cancellation and Revocation of the Bonds."

Those who wish to vote for the bonds to stand as they are will draw an X cross mark through the following:

"Against the cancellation and Revocation of the Bonds."

We hope this is clear to all and that this matter will be settled one way or the other after this election, and feel sure that it will. There is no doubt in the mind of the writer as to how the election is going but we will not publish the results until after the count.

Coleman County Singing Convention

Last Sunday several from Santa Anna, among them being the News editor, attended the Spring session of the Coleman county singing convention at Trickham.

The convention was well attended and a large number of good singers were there. Trickham community did all that was expected of them in taking care of the visitors. A fine spread was made at the noon hour and every body was invited to eat which they did.

The good ladies of the Trickham community either know how to cook or have their husbands well trained, for we have never tasted better eats.

The next convention will meet at Rockwood on the Second Sunday in October. New officers were elected. Prof. G. E. Griffith of Coleman being the new president, R. C. Green of Trickham, vice-president.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Wherein, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our midst Mrs. J. H. Brannan, mother of our sister, Ruby Brannan, who is esteemed by us as a worthy and faithful member of this lodge, we the officers and members of Rebekah Lodge No. 367, Santa Anna, Texas, hereby offer the following resolutions of sympathy to our bereaved sister.

We sympathize with you in your great loss. We realize that in the loss of your dear mother, you have lost your best friend on earth, but we commend you to the great giver of all good through His Son Jesus Christ for consolation. In Him and Him only can peace be found. In us you have friends and we grieve with you and sympathize with you, but the God who giveth has the power to look upon you in a different way and manner and we commend you to His love for a deeper sympathy than we have power to give. Resolve further that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, a copy furnished to the bereaved and a copy be published in the Santa Anna News.

Respectfully submitted,
Gordon Owens,
Bill Vinson,
Maude Bowers,

WOLVES And STORMS

If the wolves were howling around your door—you would not open it and force your children to go out and meet them single handed and alone—would you?

If there was a snow storm raging around your home—you would not tell your little ones to go out in it and live or die as best they could—would you?

You calmly think of dying and leaving your children to face the storms of life without your care and without protection that could be theirs today by making application for a policy in the

You are—figuratively—opening the door of your home and asking the wolves to come in.

There is nothing in this world that will afford them protection against the storms of life and keep the wolves farther from the door than a policy in the International Life.

Gross receipts taxes paid to the State Comptroller for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1921, aggregated $322, 753, an increase over the preceding quarter of $360,578, according to Comptroller Lon A. Smith.

Governor Neff appointed Walter L.
Booth of Sweetwater, farmer and stockman, as a member of the board of directors of A. & M. College to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. M. Wagstaff of Abilene.

At a conference of representatives

Governor Neff has called a special election for the Thirteenth Congressional District on May 13, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Lucian W. Parrish, who was to be held on Saturday, May 13. This gives the candidates more than thirty days to campaign. There are twelve counties in the Thirteenth District.

The Sheriff and other county officers similarly situated, can not have assistants in addition to the number of deputies which he may appoint under the law, according to an opinion given by the Attorney General's Department to County Auditor H. L.
Washburn of Harris County.

All National Guard division organizers in Texas met in Austin for a paid the company's gross receipts occupation tax for the year, same being based on last year's gross receipts on purely Texas intrastate business, which totaled $6,528,424.

The tax is 2 1/2 per cent, or a total of $163,211.

Although the new Representative redistricting law went into effect on Nov. 24, 1921, Governor Neff's proclamation calling special elections is based on the old law and recognizes it in preference to the new law.
When asked if he meant to brand the new law as invalid because it omits Swisher County entirely, he declined to discuss the law at this time. He did say that the election called in the 103d District presents an opportunity for a legal decision as to the validity of the new redistricting law.

Captain J. D. Fauntleroy, State Highway Engineer, who has returned from Washington, said that he was successful in securing action on a number of road projects in Texas, which were being held up because of lack of funds. According to the highway engineer the road map, with few exceptions, showing the 7 per cent system of highways was satisfactory to the chief engineer of the Bureau of Public Roads. This system contains approximately 12,000 miles of roads in Texas, which is only 7 per cent of the total mileage of the State.
The Federal Government will not aid in the construction of any road not

SUGGESTIONS FOR TREATMENT OF TREES DAMAGED BY ICE STORMS

An Old Orchard in the East With Trees Headed High and Tops Full of Water Sprouts and Brush.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The extensive injury to fruit trees in Wisconsin and parts of Michigan
by the recent ice in late February has brought inquiries to the United States Department of Agriculture as to the best methods of treating these trees and repairing the damage. The following suggestions are made by the department and apply mainly to the apple but are applicable to the cherry and other fruit trees.

The best thing to do with apple, cherry and other fruit trees which have their branches broken down or split and injured by snow and ice, is first to give them a very careful pruning, and, second, to use, as far as possible, methods of tree surgery to enable them to repair and outgrow the injury.

Proper Methods in Pruning.
The pruning of an injured fruit tree with part of its branches broken out requires more cutting and more skillful pruning than an ordinary normal tree. Each tree presents more or less an individual problem, depending on how severely it is injured. When one side of the tree has been badly smashed, the other side may require more than normal heading back to attempt to balance the fruit top, at least eventually. Sometimes long, slender branches have escaped, and these likewise require more heading back, and this may be needed a second and third year before the top of the tree can be shaped into anything like the normal. Water sprouts on the stubs of branches which in ordinary pruning would be removed, should be mostly left on an injured tree. Individual water sprouts properly located to form new branches may be selected, headed back slightly if too long,
and encouraged to grow into new limbs. Stubs from six inches to a foot or more in length should not usually be saved off on these crippled trees if they are in the right location for future framework branches. The ragged ends should be neatly saved or smoothed with a knife and the stub left to throw a mass of sprouts, as it usually will do if the top has been pretty generally taken out or removed by breaking and pruning.

Dehorning or pruning the main branches to stubs is often purposely practiced by orchardists to renew the top, and essentially the same methods can be applied in part, even though the dehorning is forced in this case.
Whenever there are any small spurs or branches on the remaining stubs, they should be left to get out new twig growth promptly. Apple trees, especially, sprout very freely from the branches, even though they may be as large as one's arm or larger, so that where there are no spurs or small branches, still new growth is likely to be produced.

While abnormally slender, high branches or extra long lateral branches may require heading in to balance up the tree, it is well to leave as much as possible of the top and not try to do all the balancing up and heading back in a single year. It will take at least three years to build a new head on a ten-year apple tree which has been badly broken up.

Tree Surgery Methods Suggested.
Trees, with split forks or large wounds made by branches being broken out, tearing and stripping of bark and wood from the main branch or main trunk, and trees with their tops smashed down beyond recovery present problems of tree surgery not covered by ordinary or extraordinary pruning. Each case requires more or less special treatment. A few types of repair work may be mentioned:

Young fruit trees under six years of age, or even older when they are not more than three or four inches in diameter, which have their whole top broken out and perhaps split at the main forks, can often be brought back into good shape by sawing off the trunk at the highest available point, at an angle of about 45 degrees, even though this leaves a trunk not more than six inches high, and painting the cut end.

Essentially the same principles may be applied to growing new branches from the stubs mentioned above in the top of the tree. A temporary cut is made just below the branch and then after the first year's growth a permanent cut just beyond a twig which is to make a future framework limb.

It is not often necessary in this case to do summer pinching, and it may be desirable in the later pruning to leave some of the weaker lateral sprouts for future fruiting limbs instead of stripping them all off as described for training up a new trunk. Forks which have split down and even bent over so that the branches touch the ground, but with the wood and bark still intact and not too badly splintered, can be pulled up with ropes and bolted back into place, using one or more bolts inserted according to the usual tree surgery methods described in Farmers' Bulletin 1178, Tree Surgery, which deals with the general problem of repairing forest, shade and ornamental trees. This bulletin can be obtained free on application to the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington D. C.

Proper Method of Treating Wounds.
If the branches are broken down beyond recovery, hanging only by splintered wood and bark, or in case of branches broken off from the tree, the wound should be trimmed and smoothed as neatly as possible with a gouge and mallet. Special attention should be given to trimming the edges of the bark neatly, particularly at the lower part of such a wound, because growth proceeds from the top and sides more than from the bottom. Ragged stubs and broken edges of the bark should be trimmed out at the bottom of the wound. The splintered wood should be removed,
leaving a smooth surface for the healing-in margin of the wound to cover.
The bottom should end in an elliptical or V-shaped point from which rain water can readily escape.

The exposed wood on all the scars where branches are broken and on all pruning wounds more than three-fourths of an inch in diameter or which may be expected to take more than one year to heal should be painted at once with a good wood paint. A mixture of 1-4 to 1-3 creosote oil and 2-3 to 3-4 ordinary coal tar has proved very satisfactory, since it is both a disinfectant and a waterproof covering. It is slightly injurious to the cut edges of the bark and while this may not be serious and is readily overgrown, if one wishes to get the best results, a coat of shellac should be applied to this cut edge of the bark and also a half-inch or so on the sap wood before the tar and creosote oil is applied. The coal-tar and creosote are the ordinary commercial materials purchased at the paint stores. The mixture should be made as thick as a very thick paint and is best applied with a stiff brush. The wounds should be kept painted annually until they are healed.

Grafting May Hasten Recovery.
The recovery of badly broken trees can be hastened somewhat by inserting grafts according to the usual methods of grafting fruit trees, though perhaps the grafts may not always be in the usual positions. Cut stubs can be grafted with two or more scions, either of the same or of a new variety. The scions for this purpose should be saved while the trees are still perfectly dormant, but the grafting is best done while the buds are swelling.

Large injuries on the trunks of the trees can be covered by bridge grafting. This consists of inserting long whip-like scions above and below the wound so as to completely bridge it over. By this method the trees can be greatly strengthened. It may be necessary to cut back the tops even more than ordinarily to prevent the wind from pulling the grafts out, and possibly to support the grafted tree top by posts and wires after the method used in supporting telegraph poles. The coal-tar creosote tree paint should never be used in contact with the cut surfaces of grafts, but only grafting wax, since this tree paint will kill the cut surfaces and prevent the union of the scion and the stock. Far-ners' Bulletin 716, Bridge Grafting of Fruit Trees, contains information regarding this practice.

All the pruning and tree surgery
above suggested, except the grafting, should be done during the dormant season before the buds swell and the bark begins to slip. The grafting, on the other hand, should be done after the buds begin to swell and as soon as possible after the bark begins to slip, using scions, however, that are perfectly dormant.

"---and we are a healthy, happy family now"

—Louis Gingras

TINGLING with abundant energy, appetites hearty, nerves strong and steady and their faces radiant with the glow of perfect health, the entire family of Louis Gingras, 9 Harrison Ave., Providence, R. I., are an eloquent tribute to the powers of Tanlac, the greatest family medicine the world has ever known.

"I've put Tanlac to the test four times right in my own family and it hasn't failed me once," declared Mr. Gingras. "My wife, my son and my daughter, as well as myself, have all been built up from a half-sick, run-down, worn-out set of people into a healthy, happy family brimful of new life and energy."

And the experience of this family is only typical of thousands of others whose statements are on file in the Tanlac offices. Hardly a day passes that does not bring scores of such messages of praise from every part of the United States and Canada from families where mother, father, son and daughter have all found health, contentment and the joys of living through simply taking a course of Tanlac.

Take, for instance, the case of John Widner, 1571 Roosevelt Ave., Los Angeles, Calif., who says: "My wife, myself and little boy are now as healthy, happy family as you will ever see—and it's all due to Tanlac."

Or that of Mrs. John Marquis and her family of sixteen living in Manchester, N. H., at 292 Belmont St. She says: "Tanalac has been the only medicine used in our house for two years and it has kept every one of the sixteen here in the best of health."

In Chicago, Frank R. Richards, of 441 South Wood St., writes: "We will never be without Tanlac in our house after the remarkable way it has built up my wife, my son and myself to where we are the very picture of health."

Representative of New York is the case of Chas. E. Van Colt's family, residing at 129 Fourth Ave., Albany. He says: "Every member of our family is enthusiastic over Tanlac. It's certainly a medicine for all the family."

From far-away Canada comes this message: "My little girl, my son and myself are all enjoying splendid health now and Tanlac brought it all about." Mrs. Bert Hewer, 183 East Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

"We call Tanlac 'The Family Medicine' here in our Virginia home, because it restored my mother and sister to perfect health, just the same as it has done me," is the enthusiastic statement of Mrs. J. P. Robertson, Danville, Va.

And on through the list, men, women and children from every state in the Union and every province of Canada unhesitatingly come forward and tell in words ringing with sincerity of the wonderful benefits of health and happiness that Tanlac has brought into their homes that were formerly darkened by the gloom of sickness, suffering and despair.

And should yours be one of those homes where any member of the family is thin, run down and weakened from loss of appetite, caused by indigestion and stomach troubles, you have at your very door the means that will no doubt bring the sunshine of vigorous health back into their lives and yours, just as it has done in so many thousands of other cases. Do not delay. Get a bottle of Tanlac from your druggist today.

DORA YOCUM.

Synopsis.—With his grandfather, Ramsey Milholland is watching the "Decoration Day Parade" in the home town. The old gentleman, a veteran of the Civil war, endeavors to impress the young man with the significance of the great conflict, and many years afterward the boy was to remember his words with startling vividness. In the schoolroom, a few years afterward, Ramsey is not distinguished for remarkable ability, though his pronounced dislikes are arithmetic, "recitations" and German. In sharp contrast to Ramsey's backwardness is the precocity of little Dora Yocum, a young lady whom in his bitterness he denominated "Teacher's Pet." In high school, where he and Dora are classmates, Ramsey continues to feel that the girl delights to manifest her superiority, and the vindictiveness he generates becomes alarming, culminating in the incident, that some day he will "show" her. At a class picnic Ramsey is captured bag and baggage by Milla Rust, the class beauty, and endures the agonies of his first love. Ramsey's parents object to Milla and wish he'd taken up with Dora Yocum. Ramsey kisses Milla. Then Milla suddenly leaves town.

CHAPTER VII

He never saw her again. She sent him a "picture postal" from Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, which his father disengaged from the family mail, one morning at breakfast, and considerately handed to him without audible comment. Upon it was written, "Oh, you Ramsey!" This was the last of Milla.

Just before school opened, in the autumn, Sadie Clews made some revelations. "Milla did like you," said Sadie. "After that time you jumped in the creek to save her she liked you better than any boy in town, and I guess it wasn't for her cousin Milt who in Chicago she would of liked you the best anywhere. I guess she did, anyway, because she hadn't seen him for about a year then."

"Well, that afternoon she went away I was over there and took in everything that was going on, only she made me promise on my word of honor I wouldn't even tell Albert. They didn't get any wire from the uncle about the touring car; it was her cousin Milla that jumped on the train and came down and picked it all up for Milla to go on the trip, and everything. You see, Ramsey, she was earned back a couple of times in school before she came in our class and I don't know how old she is and she don't look old yet, but I'm pretty sure she's at least eighteen, and she might be over. I didn't think such a great deal of this Milla's looks myself, but he's anyway twenty-one years old, and got a good position, and all their family seem to think he's just fine! It wasn't his father that took in the touring car on the debt, like she said, she was writing you; it was Milt himself. He started out in business when he was only thirteen years old, and this trip he was getting up for his father and mother and Milla was the first vacation he ever took. Well, of course she wouldn't like my telling you, but I can't see the harm of it, now everything's all over."

"All—al over? You mean Milla's going to be—to be married?"

"She already is," said Sadie. "They got married at her Aunt Jess and Uncle Purdy's house, up in Chicago, last Thursday. Yes, sir; that quiet little Milla's a regular old married woman by this time, I expect, Ramsey!"

When he got over the shock, which was not until the next day, one predominant feeling remained: It was a gloomy pride—a pride in his proven maturity. He was old enough, it appeared, to have been the same thing as engaged to a person who was now a married woman. His manner thenceforth showed an added trace of seriousness and self-consideration.

Having recovered his equipoise and something more, he entirely forgot that moment of humble admiration he had felt for Dora Yocum on the day of his flattest prostration. When he saw her sitting in the classroom, smiling brightly up at the teacher, the morning of the school's opening in the autumn, all his humility had long since vanished and she appeared to him not otherwise than as the scholar whose complete proficiency had always been so irksome to him.

"Look at her!" he muttered to himself. "Same old Teacher's Pet!"

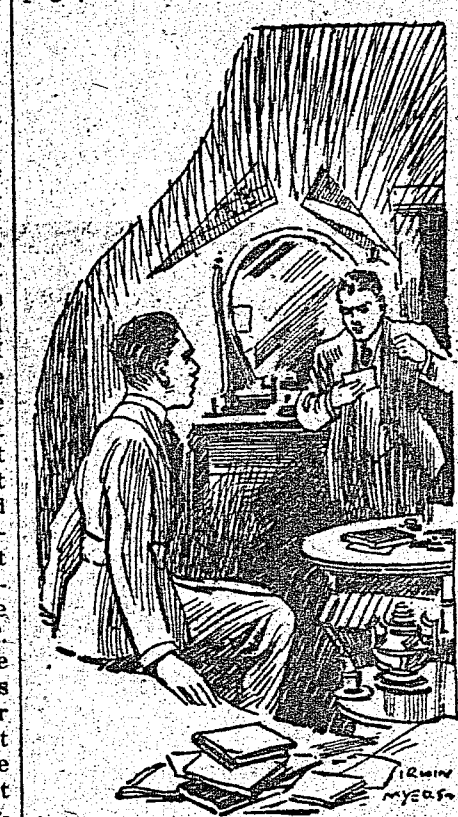

Now and then, as the days and seasons passed, and Dora's serene progress continued, never checked or even flawed, there stirred within him some lingerings of the old determination to "show" her; and he would conjure up a day-dream of Dora in loud lamentation, while he led the laughter of the spectators. But gradually his feeling about her came to be merely a dull oppression. He was tired of having to look at her (as he stated it) had he thanked the Lord that the time wouldn't be so long now until he'd be out of that old school, and then all he'd have to do he'd just take care never to walk by her house. It was easy enough to use some other street when he had to go down town.

"The good old class of Nineteen-Fourteen is about gone," he said to Fred Mitchell, who was still his most intimate friend when they reached the senior year. "Yes, sir; it's held together a good many years, Fred, but after June it'll be busted plum up, and I hope nobody starts a move to have any reunions. There's a good many members of the old class that I can stand and there's some I can't, but there's one I just won't! If we ever did call a reunion, that ole Yocum girl would start in right away and run the whole shebang, and that's where I'd resign! You know, Fred, the thing I think is the one biggest benefit of graduating from this ole school? It's never seein' Dora Yocum again."

This was again his theme as he sat by the same friend's side, in the rear row of the class at Commencement, listening to the delivery of the Valedictory. "Thinks she's just so-blime, don't she?" he whispered morosely. "She wouldn't trade with the President of the United States right now. Never mind! Just about a half-an-hour more and that's the last of you, ole girl! Yes, sir, Fred; one thing we can feel pretty good over: this is where we get through with Dora Yocum!"

Ramsey and Fred had arranged to room together at Greenfield, the seat of the state university, and they made the short journey in company the following September. They arrived here, anticipating pleasurable excitements in the way of "fraternity" pledgings and initiations, encounters with sophomores, class meetings, and elections; and also, they were not absolutely without interest in the matter of Girls, for the state university was co-educational, and it was but natural to expect in so broad a field, all new to them, a possible vision of something rather thrilling. They whispered cheerfully of all these things during the process of matriculation, and signed the registrar's book on a fresh page; but when Fred had written his name under Ramsey's and blotted it, he took the liberty of turning over the leaf to examine some of the autographs of their future classmates, written on the other side. Then he uttered an exclamation, more droll than dolorous, though it affected to be wholly the latter; for the shock to Fred was by no means so painful as it was to his friend.

"What on Earth's the Matter, Ramsey?"

Ramsey leaned forward and read the name indicated by Fred's forefinger.

DORA YOCUM.

When they got back to their pleasant quarters at Mrs. Meigs', facing the campus, Ramsey was still unable to talk of anything except the lamentable discovery; nor were his companion's burslesque efforts to console him of great avail, though Fred did become serious enough to point out that a university was different from a high school.

"It's not like havin' to use one big room as a headquarters, you know, Ramsey. Everything's all split up, and she might happen not be in a single one of your classes."

"You don't know my luck!" the afflicted boy protested. "I wish I'd gone to Harvard, the way my father wanted me to. Why, this is just the worst nuisance I ever struck! You'll see! She'll be in everything there is, just the way she was back home."

He appeared to be corroborated by the events of the next day, when they attended the first meeting to organize the new class. The masculine element predominated, but Dora Yocum was elected vice president. "You see?" Ramsey said. "Didn't I tell you? You see what happens?"

But after that she ceased for a time to intrude upon his life, and he admitted that his harassment was less grave than he had anticipated. There were about five hundred students in the freshman class; he seldom saw her, and when he did it was not more than a distant glimpse of her on one of the campus paths, her thoughtful head bent over a book as she hurried to a classroom. This was bearable; and in the flatterer's agitations of being sought, and even hunted, by several "fraternities" simultaneously desirous of his becoming a sworn Brother, he almost forgot her. After a hazardous month the roommates fell into the arms of the last "frat" to seek them, and having undergone an evening of outrage which concluded with touching rhetoric and an oath taken at midnight, they proudly wore jeweled symbols on their breasts and were free to turn part of their attention to other affairs, especially the affairs of the Eleven.

However, they were instructed by the older brethren of their Order, whose duty it was to assist in the proper maneuvering of their young careers, that, although support of the "varsity" teams was important, they must neglect neither the spiritual nor the intellectual by-products of undergraduate doings. Therefore they became members of the college Y. M. C. A. and of the "Lumen Society."

According to the charter which it had granted itself, the "Lumen Society" was an "organization of male and female students"—so "advanced" was this university—"for the development of the powers of debate and oratory, intellectual and sociological progress, and the discussion of all matters relating to philosophy, metaphysics, literature, art, and current events." A statement so formidable was not without a hushing effect upon Messrs. Milholland and Mitchell; they went to their first "Lumen" meeting in a state of fear and came away little reassured.

"I couldn't get up there," Ramsey declared, "I couldn't stand up there before all that crowd and make a speech, or debate in a debate, to save my soul and gizzard! Why, I'd just keel right over and haf to be carried out."

"Well, the way I understand it," said Fred, "we can't get out of it. The seniors in the 'frat' said we had to join, and they said we couldn't resign, either, after we had joined. They said we just had to go through it, and after a while we'd get used to it and not mind it so much."

"I will!" Ramsey insisted. "I couldn't any more stand up there on my feet and get to spoutin' about sociology and the radical metaphysics of the metaphysical bazoozum than I could fly a flyin' machine. Why, I—"

"Oh, that wasn't anything," Fred interrupted. "The only one that talked like that, he was that Blenkins; he's a tutor, or something, and really a member of the faculty. Most of the others just kind of blabbered around, and what any of 'em tried to get off their chests hardly amounted to terribly much."

"I don't care. I couldn't do it at all!"

"Well, the way it looks to me," Fred observed, "we simply got to! From what they tell me, the freshmen got to do more than anybody. Every other Friday night, it's all freshmen and nothin' else. You get a postal card on Monday morning in your mail, and it says 'Assignment' on it and—and—then it's got written underneath what you haf to do the next Friday night—oration or debate, or maybe just read from some old book or something. I guess we got to stand up there and try, anyway."

"All right," said Ramsey. "If they want me to commit suicide they can send me one of their ole 'Assignments.' I won't need to commit suicide, though. I guess. All I'll do, I'll just fall over in a fit, and stay in it."

And, in truth, when he received his first "Assignment" one Monday morning, a month later, he seemed in a fair way to fulfill his prophecy. The attention of his roommate, who sat at a window of their study, was attracted by sounds of strangulation. "What on earth's the matter, Ramsey?"

"Look! Look at this!"

Fred took the card and examined it with an amazement gradually merging into a pleasure altogether too perceptible:

GARMENT UNION WAR CHEST

Assessment of $1,000,000 Has Been Decided Upon, to Prepare for Possible Crisis.

The International Ladies' Garment Workers' union has levied an assessment of $20 each, or a total of $1,000,000, on the 50,000 members, employed in the cloak and suit industry of New York city to prepare for possible demands upon the treasury at the expiration, June 1, of the wage contract now operative.

Conditions in the industry and necessity of preparing for a crisis were discussed at a meeting of the union's shop chairmen in Cooper union.

Correspondence between the union and Secretaries Davis and Hoover relative to an investigation of the industry was the chief matter taken up.

Farm Labor in Germany.

To no section of the working class population of Germany did the political revolution of 1918 bring greater advantages than to the masses of farm laborers, according to statements frequently found in the Socialist press of the republic. Before the World war the unions had succeeded in organizing about 20,000 of these workers, and at the time of the collapse of the Kaiser's forces, in November, 1918, the membership of the Farm Workers' union was but 8,000. Then came the great revival in trade union activity all over the country, and today there are 700,000 laborers in the Farm Workers' union, while about 140,000 others are organized in what are labeled "yellow," or bosses, unions by the regular trade union press.

Miners' Financial Situation.

The exact financial resources of the United Mine Workers for carrying on the strike are not known, but the international organization had about $500,000 cash on hand last August 1 and a special assessment, called in November, December and January, was understood to have collected more than $1,000,000. Ordinary revenues of the last eight months were said unofficially not to exceed expenditures.

No general strike benefits will be paid by the international organization, but its funds will be used for assisting the weaker organizations. Besides the funds of the union, many district unions have cash on hand, particularly Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, which with western Pennsylvania form the central competitive field.

Better Conditions at Detroit.

A material improvement in the employment situation at Detroit is generally expected as a result of action taken within the last few days by industrial heads and which included announcement that all employees of the Ford Motor company, many of whom have been working not more than three days a week, would be placed on a straight five-day-a-week schedule. Heads of other factories have joined the movement to find places for idle ex-soldiers, many of whom have been put to work.

The weekly report of the Employers' association, of which 79 industrial corporations are members, shows that for the week ending March 21 a total of 3,273 men was added to the pay rolls, bringing the aggregate to 129,324.

BORAH HEADS SENATE LABOR COMMITTEE

Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, accepted the chairmanship of the senate committee on education and labor, Borah was designated for the place by the Republican committee on committees of the senate. He succeeds former Senator Kenyon of Iowa, who was long chairman of the committee. Borah resigned as chairman of the senate committee on interoceanic canals to take his new post.

South African Strike Ended.

Except for infrequent sniping, there is no trace of revolution in the Rand. Joint labor executives met with the government's permission and called off the general strike. Meetings will be held by the separate executives as soon as possible, and the separate strikes will be declared at an end. As many of the executives were killed or are prisoners, however, these meetings will be difficult to arrange. The former strikers are, besieging the mining offices to get their jobs back.

Californians Will Co-operate.

Eighty-seven acres, according to Organized Labor, published in San Francisco, has recently been acquired by the Santa Barbara Fellowship. This land, which is situated two miles from Santa Barbara, on El Camino Real, is to be the site for a model co-operative colony of 300 homes. A co-operative cafeteria, kitchen, playground, Greek theater, athletic stadium, auditorium, garage store and laundry are to be erected by this home-buying co-operative association.

Pay Committee Planned.

In all future contracts for public improvements at Sheboygan, Wis., a clause will be inserted by the city council, stating that home labor will be given preference, and that the scale of wages shall be the same set by the recognized organizations of Sheboygan, as a result of an action taken by the common council.

Engineers' Insurance.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers now carries on its books insurance in excess of $187,000,000.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

GRAND ALIBI

The laundress was careless or unlucky. At any rate, some argument that should have been white always came back from the wash streaky.

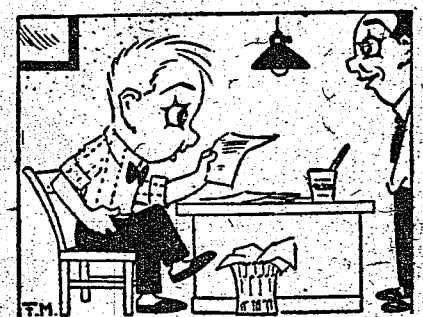

An interview was obtained, and the client made a complaint.

"Lor, bless yer, mum," replied the laundress, "ye can't expect everything perfect here below. Why, if it was, there wouldn't be nothin' to look forward to in heaven."

The Morning After.

Neighbor (next morning)—That was a wonderful jazz record you played last night, old man. What do you call it?

Young Father—Jazz record nothing! What you heard was the baby crying when the dog discovered a strange cat under the bed.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS
"This dear girl must be new to housekeeping."
"What's her plaint?"
"She wants to know what kind of soap you use for washing lettuce."

Misnamed.

They say she has a gift of song. But father cannot see. It is that light—each lesson costs The poor old man a V.

Wildcat Mythology.

"Ever hear the story of Midas?"
"No," said the busy man.
"Everything he touched turned to gold."

"Sounds interesting. But the authorities are suspicious these days. If he's a friend of yours, tell him to go slow about opening offices and trying to sell stock."

A Mean Remark.

"Keep your eye on the speedometer," said the proud owner of a filver.

"What for?" asked his friend, who evidently had a poor opinion of the craft.

"I want you to tell me when I get up to 50 miles an hour."

The Speed Boys.

Still Buck—Man, I tell you I'm the fastest guy on record. Many a time I've outrun a bullet for four miles and got away from it clean.

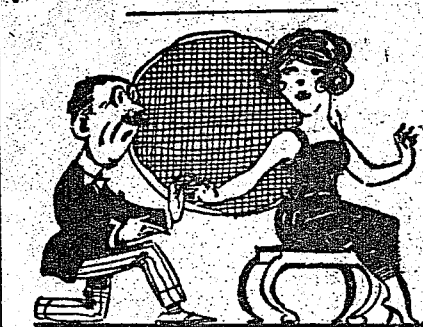

Givvy—Again—Call that speed? Shucks! I can turn out th' electric lights and be in bed before the room is dark.—American Legion Weekly.

The Tin Wedding.

Ingenu—Why do they call the tenth marriage anniversary a "tin wedding?" Bachelor Maid—Well, the romance is beginning to get rusty.

The Better Instrument.

"I composed that song on the spur of the moment."
"Well, use a piano next time and you may get better results."

SHE DIDN'T ACCEPT

"I ask you to be my wife. I don't know of any greater compliment I can pay you."

"Well, we'll take it as a compliment, Ferd, and let it go at that."

Mary's Little Curl.

Mary had a little curl. It hung beside her ear. But when she went to bed, it hung Upon the chignon.

Built to Order.

"What's the matter with Smith? Got lumbago or spinal curvature or something?"

"No," he has to walk that way to fit some shirts his wife made for him."

Help Wanted.

"There's a visitor from your old home town outside."

"Does he look prosperous?" asked Senator Sportworthy.

"He fairly exudes wealth."

"Then he must be in some trouble with the government. I'd rather face an impetuous job hunter."

A Recalcitrant Angel.

"After marriage you'll be my angel, my ministering angel."

"Now, kid, get this into your head. I'm not going to wait on you."

CALOMEL GOOD BUT TREACHEROUS

Next Dose May Salivate, Shock Liver or Attack Your Bones.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury, quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tonic straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.

Cat and Kitten.

Kitty—That man over there is staring right at my nose.

Kat—Maybe he's a reporter.

Kitty—But why should a reporter stare at my nose?

Kat—Well, they're supposed to keep their eyes on everything that turns up, aren't they?

MOTHER!

Move Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on the bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

A Blowout.

Suitor—What would you do if I kissed you?

Electrician's Daughter—I would use one hand for insulation and with the other I would create a short-circuit by a quick connection against your cheek.—Science and Invention.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system, the remedy recommended by those who may have benefited to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fully and most every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Folks and Flowers.

Mrs. Kawler—Those new neighbors of ours must be rich, judging from the clothes they wear.

Mrs. Wyse—That's a poor way to judge, my dear. Some of the most gorgeous flowers haven't a scent.—Boston Transcript.

 DICK PAULEY

For Commissioner, Precinct No. 2
 W. T. VINSON
 (Present Commissioner)
 J. R. (JOHN) PEARCE

Last week we announced that we would close our forms this week on Tuesday and go to press one day early. The several reasons for doing this are too numerous to mention, but we like the idea and are inclined to want to keep it up. When we get in all the advertising copy and contributions Monday and Tuesday, we can have more time to prepare our work and know more about how much copy to prepare for the paper.

The firm of Hunter Bros., added to their market and grocery this week one of the nicest refrigerators. The new counter is of triple glass and is not only attractive but perfectly sanitary. It is commendable in this live firm to pride themselves with such fixtures.

Col. H. W. Kingsbery was a business caller at this office first of the week. Mr. Kingsbery had inserted a little want ad in our classified column last week, and informed us that he found a ready sale for his advertised goods. Another satisfied customer is that of Amos Taylor of the Plainview community, who called at this office a short time back and paid for a little ad to run 4 weeks, before the time expired he notified us that he is satisfied with the results, all his millet seed is gone and we can discontinue the ad.

Several of our readers have taken advantage of our special subscription offer and have renewed their subscriptions, also some new ones have been added. Our readers will confer a very much appreciated favor on us if you will speak a good word for the paper to your neighbors and tell them they can read it one year for $1.00.

The fire department was called out to a rent house of Mr. Campbell's in the eastern part of town Tuesday morning, where they did some quick work in extinguishing a fire. A very little damage was the result, wherein considerable damage would have developed in a very few moments had it not been for the quick work of the firemen.

An appreciated advertising customer is one who takes enough interest in his business to prepare a good ad, because a well prepared advertisement inserted in the local newspaper will always bring results. Advertising will not build a business without being properly backed up, but no business will gain very much achievements without advertising. There is a well known Mail Order house in Texas who sell direct by advertising, selling more goods in this vicinity than any store in Santa Anna, and the buyers pay the freight, but people buy what they read about and there is no way of offsetting a greater part of the mail order selling would be to wake up and advertise. The editor of this paper has not got the nerve to get out here and raise the devil with the reading public about buying at home when the other fellow is pushing his advertised goods in their homes.

Wonder what benefit a merchant thinks he is doing the town in buying green stamps and other such things printed in some foreign town or hamlet, and offering them to customers as a drawing card for business in lieu of using local newspaper advertising. The newspaper force is working to advertise the town and its resources, the advantages our town has over other trading centers, and some merchants think so little of the local newspaper they never spend a cent with them for advertising or offer any encouragement to the force in any kind of way, then wonder why it is that business is dull. Well, a blind man ought to be able to see the point.

The News would like to secure the services of some competent man or lady to canvass the county for new and renewal subscriptions to the News. We will give a liberal contract as we can if some competent person will undertake the work.

POLITICS AND RELIGION

Bryan Eagle: State Press of the Dallas-Galveston News told Ben Hargel of the La Grange Journal at the McAllen press association last June that he never fell out or became angry with man or woman over their politics or religion. When pressed for an explanation, S. P. told Ben his reason was because he had not met a person who had enough of either to fuss about.

Much of what we call politics is personal prejudice. We are prejudiced in favor of one candidate or against other candidates. We call it politics when it is, in fact, personal preference. And our religion sometimes, especially when we get mad about it, is not religion so much as it is egotism. The truly religious are never bigoted, never egotistical. The genuinely religious man not only believes in God, but in the providence of God. To believe in the providence of God is impossible without also accepting the conviction that a providential God has provided for the defense of his own kingdom and the victory of the righteous at the universal Armageddon. A great many people think we are helping God when we are denouncing people we don't like. Also we assume we are helping our candidate when we are denouncing his opponents. No man really believes in God as long as he believes God has failed in his purpose with the world. No man is a real friend to a candidate to "romp on" individuals or groups whom the supposed friend hates. The monkey was not truly a friend to the cat by reason of using the cat's paw. Narrow-mindedness is always the greatest menace to what we call civilization. The Lord would not have made the world and the firmament vast if he had expected his children to be petty and spiteful.—State Press in Dallas News.

AFTER NORRIS' GOAT

Pastor J. Frank Norris of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth is now enjoying the kind of publicity he likes. Other Baptist pastors and laymen of Fort Worth and Dallas, headed by Truett, Scarborough, Groner, Vining and others, are attacking Norris' paper, The Searchlight, charging Norris with all sorts of unbaptist and non-baptist behavior. Norris, meantime, is up in New York holding a revival meeting and trying to beat Billy Sunday at the salvation game. One of the mysterious things in Texas is the ability of Rev. J. Frank Norris to hold a big place in religious circles. He was once indicted by three grand juries for burning his church. He is laughed about and condemned by Baptists generally as a disturber and a trouble maker. Yet he holds on; commands a big congregation and big pay. Norris has something on the average preacher. He is either the simon pure article as a man and a minister, or he is a pastmaster in pretence.—Brownwood Semi-Weekly News.

The writer has been reading both papers, The Standard and The Searchlight, and we are siding with Dr. Norris. However, to read the Standard and not read the Searchlight, one would think that Dr. Norris ought to be took out and "Ku-Kluxed" but to read both sides of the questions, we think any intelligent human would be bound to say that Norris is right.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam O. Curry, formerly of Poverty Flat, neighborhood, announces the marriage of their daughter Miss Rita Ruth Curry to Mr. Sam Claud Curry of Fort Worth, Texas, on Saturday, the first of April. The young couple will stay at the home of the bride's parents (2619 Roosevelt) until the July vacations when they will move to the middle west, where the groom will take another position and resume his work as General Manager of the United States Post Office Mailing Division.—Contributed.

THE STATE OF TEXAS

To the Sheriff or any Constable of Coleman County—Greeting:
 You are hereby commanded to summon L. W. Wright, by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Coleman County, to be holden at the Court House thereof, in Coleman, on the 15 day of May, A. D. 1922, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 6th day of April, A. D. 1922, in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 2662, wherein Sarah Wright, is Plaintiff, and L. W. Wright, is Defendant, and said petition alleging that Plaintiff and Defendant were married August 16, 1919 and that the marriage relation still exists and that Defendant abandoned Plaintiff about December 1, 1920, and was guilty of excesses, cruel treatment and outrages rendering their living together insupportable. That the marriage between Plaintiff and Defendant was procured by fraud and false representations on the part of the Defendant. That one child was born to Plaintiff and Defendant, of said marriage, to-wit: Leslie W. Wright, a boy of the age now of one year. Plaintiff prays for dissolution and annulment of the bonds of matrimony, for the custody of said child and general relief.

Herein I fail not but have before said Court, at its aforesaid regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Given under my hand and the seal of said Court, at office in Coleman, Texas, on this the 6th day of April, A. D. 1922.—W. E. Gideon, Clerk District Court, Coleman County, Texas.

Income Tax Auditors Attend School
 Washington, D. C., April 5, 1922.—Uncle Sam conducts a school at Washington in which he trains auditors and inspectors for the express purpose of checking up your income tax returns. Each month a new class of 125 "goes to school." They must first pass certain civil service requirements of bookkeeping knowledge and experience.

In the school they receive six weeks' intensive training in the technicalities of the income tax law, by means of lectures and individual instruction by experts. They are paid full salary while under instruction.

The Civil Service Commission has announced that it will hold an examination on May 3 throughout the United States to test the qualifications of applicants for positions of auditor and inspector under the Income Tax Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

enue. The entrance salaries offered range from $1.00 to $3.00 a year. Full information and application blanks may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., or from the Civil Service Board at the post office or customhouse in any city.

Let us hope the Egyptians will not find their new liberty another sort of plague.

FREIGHT CHARGES

Fred W. Putman, of the Minnesota railroad commission, says that the railroads, by high rates, have lost in 18 months 23 per cent of business they used to have had at low rates. One estimate dealing with something that seems correct, is probably as good as another.

But no one can deny that high freight rates, in the midst of a period of generally falling prices, help to strangle business.

Only a certain percentage of the public income can be spent for transportation. Freight charges regulate volume of traffic.

LIBERTY NEWS

We were blessed with another good rain Saturday morning.

Several of our Liberty people attended the singing at Trickham Sunday.

Miss Ida May Day called on Mrs. H.
O. Norris, Mrs. Will Holt and Mrs. J.
W. Taylor Friday afternoon.

Mrs. J. T. Taylor spent a few days this week in this community visiting her son and daughter, John Taylor and Mrs. Floyd Walker.

Misses Gladys Burk and Gladys
Hasford spent Friday night with Mrs.
Howard Norris.

Bryan Brown attended the show at Coleman, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Norris, Misses Gladys Burk, Gladys Hasford, Gyna Woodard and Raney Duggins were among those who attended the play at Concord Friday night.

Misses William Sheffield, Oma Mc-Cahey and Owen Brown called on Mr.
and Mrs. Norris last week.

Dad Belser was driving in Santa Anna Sunday.

The little child of Hershal Fowler has been real sick the past week.

Grandmother Brannon of Brownwood spent Thursday night with Mrs.
Merle Belser.

We have prayer meeting at Liberty every Sunday night. Lets every body come and bring some one with you.

James Leigh and wife were in Coleman Friday on business.

Grandmother Brown spent a few days with her son, Henry, this past week.

Mr. Howard Norris called on Mrs.
Gene Bell Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Walker and children spent Saturday night with Mrs. Walker's mother, Mrs. J. T. Taylor of Santa Anna.

Mr. J. W. Taylor and family, Howard Norris and wife and Miss Hasford

RED BANK HAPPENINGS

As it rained last week and we did not have any bridge across Red Bank
we couldn't get the news in.

Everybody is more cheerful since the nice rains and all are wearing smiles these days.

Miss Mabel Newman of Live Oak visited her sister Mrs. Vince McClure
last week.

The party at Mr. Brandon's Friday night was well attended and enjoyed by all.

Misses Ruby Smith and Nettie Nicholson spent Sunday with Misses Mellie Bell and Lillie Roseman.

The singing at Wagon McClure's
Sunday night was attended by a large crowd.

Our school closed Friday with a picnic on Home Creek. All report a nice time, with lots of good things to eat, even if they didn't catch any fish.

Mr. L. E. Bell with Mr. and Mrs.
Conrad Bell, visited relatives at Liberty Saturday.

Mrs. Sam Elliot and Miss Sallie Clayton of Shield were callers in the Nicholson home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Weston spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wheatly.

We were visited Tuesday by another sand storm. I don't know where all this sand is coming from, it surely comes a long ways. I can't see how it could blow here after so much rain.

John A. Nicholson of Fort Worth has been here to see his little son John Jr., who has been quite sick.

Miss Mellie Bell visited her sister, Mrs. W. M. Winslett at Brown Ranch
Wednesday.

Modish Suits for Spring; Hand Embroidered Wraps

IF WE were all asked to sum up our idea of good dressing in a word or two, it is safe to predict that "tailored suit" would be the answer sung by a wide chorus. To wear a well-fashioned, tailored suit is to gain that poise, which only the consciousness of being correctly attired, assures. This season the smart tailor plays the leading role in costume and it is interpreting its lines in beguiling new colors, fabrics and silhouette.

The materials outclass the usual weaves, and there are fascinating effects in new twills, an especially fine one being called pin seal. Sand color and gray suits, classic in their simplicity, are quite the rage. With these one must wear matched hosiery, patent leather strap low shoes or later still the combination patent leather with gray or sand suede. The climax of fine ensemble is reached in the dyed fox fur bon which is harmonized to either the gray or sand.

TWO-PIECE SUIT AND SPORT SUIT

fects in new twills, an especially fine one being called pin seal. Sand color and gray suits, classic in their simplicity, are quite the rage. With these one must wear matched hosiery, patent leather strap low shoes or later still the combination patent leather with gray or sand suede. The climax of fine ensemble is reached in the dyed fox fur bon which is harmonized to either the gray or sand.

Black and white rises boldly on fashion's horizon. Every display stresses this idea. White suits with black woven patent leather belts, and shoes two-toned, in black, with white; hosiery with embroidery clocks, black or white or vice versa, topped with a black hat laden with white flowers, or fruit, this is of style dictation.

In reference to linings, crepe de chine

terial adding the touch of distinction through self hand-embroidery.

Embroidery done on cloth is accomplished in perfectly matched floss. The solid over and over stitch is favored and the effect is almost like embossing or rich brocade.

The vogue for elaborate sleeves invites one to lavish most of the stitching over this area, and a fair idea of results is illustrated in the two modish wraps herewith portrayed.

All-over polka-dot effects produced with immense French knots are extremely effective such as is here shown in the blouse-coat. This is very rapid work and interpositioned among motifs of the solid embroidery, it takes but a short time to cover the full peasant and flowing sleeves.

Exquisite results are possible by accurately matched to the cloth, referring to the sand or gray suits, it opens real mode.

The navy blue suit returns in full glory. The semi-tailored two-piece suit, shown to the left, is navy blue gabardine, with fluted grosgrain ribbon sewed flat in scroll pattern.

The smart vogue of the sports suit pictured is accented in cloth of black with white cross bar. The lapels are faced with white flannel.

Why not hand-embroider your new spring wrap? You can, if deft with using coarse matched floss on the new covert or poiret twill suits and wraps which are so sought after, in the new sand shades.

It is also in keeping with the vogue to embroider the crepe de chine lining along the slip stitched edge which joins it to the outer cloth.

EASTER LESSON

LESSON TEXT—John 20:19-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is risen indeed.—Luke 24:34.
PRIMARY AND JUNIOR TOPIC—The First Easter.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why We Observe Easter Day.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Effect of Belief in the Resurrection.

I. Jesus Manifests Himself to the Disciples, Thomas Being Absent (vv. 19-25).

He appeared to several of His disciples at several different times during that day. This is the first appearance to the disciples as a body. The rumors of His several appearances on that day caused the disciples to assemble to talk over the matter. For fear of the Jews, they met in a private room and barred the door. While they were discussing the strange happenings of the day, the Lord mysteriously appeared before them with the greeting of good cheer, "Peace be unto you." He did not come with a message of their failure and desertion. At His birth the angels announced "Peace." Just before He took His departure, He said: "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you" (John 14:27). "Let not your heart be troubled" (John 14:1); and now the first word after His resurrection is "Peace." Having calmed their fears, He gave them an unmistakable evidence of His resurrection.

"And when He had so said, He showed unto them His hands and His side. Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord." Their doubts needed to be scattered, and His peace needed to be upon them. Consider:

1. The disciples' commission (v. 21). "As my Father hath sent Me, even so send I you." This commission was not simply to a class, as the eleven, but to all Christians. In Luke 24:33 we find that there were others there in that meeting besides the eleven when Jesus showed Himself to them and commissioned them, showing that the commission is not confined to a class or order, but is wide as the Christian body itself. All Christians, therefore, are envoys and representatives of Christ. The exercise of this great function is not merely optional with the individual, but is obligatory upon him. The Lord placed it upon a plane with His own commission from the Father—"As my Father hath sent Me, so send I you."

2. The disciples' equipment (v. 22). "He breathed on them, and said unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost." The mission of the disciple is a very great one, but every one who goes forth in its execution He clothes with the power of a new life by the bestowment of His spirit. No one who has this equipment shall ever fail. The Lord's representatives have His life in them. The barrenness of our efforts is due to our failure to take by faith our equipment.

3. The disciples' authority (v. 23). "Whosoever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whosoever sins ye retain, they are retained." This authority was not by virtue of office, but by virtue of having the Holy Ghost. This would give the spiritual discernment to know who had or who had not repented, and consequently, to pronounce pardon or not.

II. Jesus Manifests Himself to the Disciples, Thomas Being Present (vv. 26-29).

Thomas was absent at the first appearance of Jesus. His absence deprived him of a vision of the Lord. Absence from the assembly of believers always occasions loss. The other disciples go to Thomas at once with the glad news of the resurrection, but he will not believe. His stubborn disbelief is such that he doggedly declares that unless he sees the prints of the nails, etc., he will not believe. It is right to demand evidence, but to prescribe terms is rank unbelief. Note:

1. The Lord's kindness to those who have difficulties. Thomas deserved rebuke, but the Lord kindly supplied the evidence which he demanded.

2. The revelation of the Lord transforms a doubter into a possessor.

III. The Conclusion of the Gospel (vv. 30-31).

In these verses John's arguments are summarized, and an explanation is given as to why he wrote this Gospel. Many other things could have been written, but these that he wrote he judged adequate to prove his point: To prove that (1) Jesus of Nazareth was the expected Messiah; (2) that He was divine—the very Son of God; (3) that those who believe on Him as God's only Son—the Messiah—would receive eternal life. Eternal life is in Him and only He is appropriated by faith can men be saved.

What Christ Saw in World. Christ saw much in this world to weep over, and much to pray over; but He saw nothing in it to look upon with contempt.

GAIN IN CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

Fifty Denominations Report Gratifying Increase Made During 1921—Baptist Figures Unavailable.

New York.—An increase of 761,727 church members in 1921 is reported from 50 denominations, in a survey made by Dr. H. K. Carroll, who several years ago compiled the first official census of religions for the United States government. The reports from which the survey was made were obtained direct from each of the 50 denominations, and therefore represent their own figures.

Four of the chief bodies of the Baptist group are missing from this survey for the reason that their statistical year is the calendar year, and no returns for 1921 were available. "If Baptist increases for 1921 were included, the total gains of 1921 would almost certainly reach 850,000," Doctor Carroll states.

The 1921 increase compared with that of 1920, which was 814,094, ac-ording to corrected returns, Doctor Carroll notes. The present survey will appear officially in the Christian Herald on April 1.

Doctor Carroll's figures show that communicants in 1921 totaled 43,523, 266 as compared with 42,761,479 in 1920 and 36,095,085 in 1911. The net gain for the ten years is reported as 7,427,521, or somewhat more than 2 per cent per year. There was an increase of 88 in the number of churches in 1921, as compared with a decrease of 1,030 in 1920.

BIG DAMAGE BY EARTHQUAKE

Eruptions of Last December in Chile Prove to Be Worse Than at First Supposed.

Valdivia, Chile.—Entire mountains were destroyed in the violent earthquakes and volcanic eruptions which took place in southern Chile near the Argentine border last December, says Erick Volkman, who has returned from a visit to the desolated district. Destricted pasture lands, forests and cattle are only now becoming known here.

"The center of the disturbance was in the region known as the Cordillera Pelada, southeast of Puerto Monte," Mr. Volkman said. "The lava composition is almost entirely volcanic, covered with hot rocks, whose heat had parched the forests and destroyed pastures."

"The surface is strewn with flaming gases and steam, from which arises a strange odor of wood burning. The rocks have no consistency and the lava field, about 3,100 feet above sea level, apparently still is in process of formation. Subterranean rumblings are still very violent."

The affected area is sparsely populated and no casualties have been reported.

The waters of the Rinihue river, Mr. Volkman also reported, have been poisoned by the gases and acids derived from the mass of eruptive material, including huge stones, that fell in its bed.

WHY?

DOES WATER RUN OFF A DUCK'S BACK?

EXAMINATION of the feathers with which the back of a duck is covered will show that these are placed so that they overlap, in the same way that shingles are placed on a roof or scales on the body of a fish. And the purpose of this overlapping is the same as in the case of the shingles or the scales—to prevent water seeping through and causing injury.

In addition to this protective growth of feathers, the duck has a form of water-insurance in the shape of an oily secretion which is formed by the glands at the base of the feathers and which permeates the feathers themselves, rendering them thoroughly waterproof and impervious to the weather. By this combination of "shingled" feathers and oil, the duck is assured that no water will get through his body covering and injure the tender skin beneath—for, even if his oil glands should cease to function, he still has the protection of several layers of close-lying feathers, or, if his feathers should thin out, he can depend upon the oily secretion to shed the water. Only birds which are by nature intended to be at home in the water possess this protective oil gland. (Copyright.)

NATURE OF THAT ARGUMENT

In Colored Man's Opinion It Distinctly Belonged to the Wet-and-Dry Class.

White questioning prisoners with a view to selecting honor men, the other day, Warden Thomas of the Ohio penitentiary drew from a southern negro his idea of what constitutes wet and dry argument.

"What brought you here, Sam?" the warden asked.

"A lil' cuttin' scrape, boss," Sam replied.

"Had you been drinking?"

"A lil'."

"What started the fight?"

"An argument."

"Was it a wet and dry argument?"

"Yes, sah, boss, it was a wet and dry argument." Myself and the nigger Ah was drinkin' with run out of beer. Ah ust him to get some more beer and when he refused Ah busted him one. He busted right back and then Ah done a lil' cuttin'." It was a wet and dry argument, boss."—Columbus Dispatch.

From Six to Seven.

The Woman was entertaining two small pieces, who between sips of canebic tea and bites of jelly sandwiches were giving her a glowing account of some recent festivities. "How very jolly!" commented the Woman; "and of course you played games and had ice cream and a birthday cake?"

"Yes, indeed," affirmed Dolly; "a splendid rosy-pink one on it!" cried Nelly. "How lovely!" enthused the Woman; "and how many candles were there?" "We didn't count 'em, did we, Dolly?" was the reply, and then, with a puzzled frown, "and she's seven years old, auntie, seven years old, and she looks just exactly the very same as she did last Sunday, when she was only six!"—Chicago Journal.

Dry.

"How did the wedding go off? Any hitch?"

"No, nor hootch."

Doubtful.

When Will There Be A Disarmament of Dining Tables?

Suppose everybody would recognize the fact that there's no gain but much loss in keeping up hostilities with the stomach!

Suppose the ancient aggravation of improper food on indignant digestive organs should be settled with guarantees of sensible diet and tranquil digestion!

The saving would be beyond all possibility of counting.

Yet millions go on declaring war on the stomach and accepting war in return—loading up on starchy, heavy, unbalanced and highly-seasoned food at breakfast or lunch—and wondering why comfort, happiness and efficiency are out of reach.

Grape-Nuts makes a friend of the taste and an ally of the stomach.

There's a charm and satisfaction to this delicious food which prompts appetite to say, "There's a meal!" and digestion to answer, "Thank goodness, here's peace at last!"

Grape-Nuts is the perfected nutriment of wheat and malted barley—sweet, crisp, and wonderfully nourishing. It digests quickly, and provides the necessary elements, including the vital mineral salts, for body, nerve and brain.

Order Grape-Nuts from your grocer today, and let a delighted taste pass a treaty of peace along to an enthusiastic digestion and assimilation.

Jazz, Gasoline and Brimstone
Col. Mayfield, of Houston, in his weekly publication says the high school boys and girls of Dallas are falling victims of the jazz, dance and automobile outing evils. Spare the rod and save the child.—Lubbock Avalanche.

We know something of Billy Mayfield and his pen. He has challenged the cause of righteousness in South Texas. He speaks the truth when he says the jazz dance and the automobile are responsible for much wreck and ruin in the cities. We can say to the credit of our smaller towns that the dance is not the predominating evil, but we can say with him that the automobile is joy riding more young people into hell than all other agencies of evil combined. The rod should be applied liberally if there is no other method of keeping boys and girls out of cars Sunday afternoon and nights. A prominent minister puts it this way, "A jitney and a few gallons of gasoline can take a couple to hell quicker than any other way.—Lockney Beacon.
