Big Gamble By Army on Tanks, Collins States

FORT KNOX, Ky. (AP)—Chief of Staff Gen. J. Lawton Collins said today the army was forced to "gamble" when it ordered production of new tank designs before service tests were made but that initial "serious deficiencies" have been overcome and the gamble won.

A speech prepared by Collins for delivery at the annual meeting of the United States Armor Association clarified a situation produced by reports many light and medium tanks failed to pass inspection. Confusion had arisen from an obscurely worded Army explanation.

The chief of staff explained that when the Korean War started there were no light tanks in production; no medium tanks had been produced since World War II, although about 800 World War II Pershing mediums were being equipped with new engines, and heavy tanks were "still only on paper."

The decision was to make a family of three new tanks—light, medium and heavy. Collins said:

"After a careful review of all factors, we decided that since the prototype of the light tank had undergone extensive testing we could afford to gamble on it. In the medium field we were not in so fortunate a position, however, we still decided to go ahead and use the new high velocity 90 millimeter gun.

"To keep the gamble to a minimum, we decided to take the newly designed turret and mount it on the chassis of the combat-proven General Pershing. This combination, now known as the M47, was placed in production late in the summer of 1951.

"We were also forced to take other gambles. Since 12 to 18 months lead time is required from the time a contract is let until the first tank comes off the production line, we decided to forego the normal procedure of building pilot models for engineering and service tests. We felt that if any deficiencies occurred they could be corrected in the early phases of production, or modified later before issue to troops.

"It is history now that we did find serious deficiencies in both the new light and medium tanks. And, as was expected, they were generally confined to the turret components. Early tests revealed 15 major deficiencies in the medium tank and about the same number in the light tank which would have to be corrected before these tanks could be considered suitable for general issue to troops.

"Most of the deficiencies could not have been foreseen as were to be expected in the production of untested vehicles. In the light tank, for example, two usual deficiencies existed. One was an engine failure, the other a torsion bar (a unit of the transmission) failure. Both were traced to manufacturing errors.

"Changes in personnel since World War II had created critical shortages of certain types of skilled workers, and the deficiencies emphasized the importance of adequately training the workman in the plant.

"All of the deficiencies which I have referred to have been corrected in the vehicles now coming off the production lines. The modifications of the medium tanks are now being tested at Camp Irwin, Calif., and the light tanks are being tested at Camp Drum, N. Y., the latter part of this month. It is our belief that the outcome of these tests will further prove that our new tanks are better than anything we have had before and more than a match for their Soviet counterparts.

"During the period that we have been working to correct the various deficiencies, both light and mediums have continued to roll off production lines. We anticipate the early models will have their deficiencies corrected by July 1952.

"Despite our troubles we are still a year ahead of the time schedule we would have been on had we waited for complete test and development before going into production. In other words, it has been worth the gamble."

Heavy tanks, Collins said, have not been given as high priority as the lights and mediums. However, "limited production" is scheduled to begin early this year and initial testing of the pilot model heavy is underway at the army's Aberdeen, Md., ordnance proving ground, he said.

Wildcat Set In Southwest Scurry County

McAlester Fuel Co. is to begin operations at once on the No. 1 T. P. Allen, a Southwest Scurry County wildcat.

Drillsite is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 75-20-La-Vaca Navigation Co. survey. That is about six miles south of the Diamond M-Canyon field and about four miles west of the Sharon Ridge 1700 field.

Projected depth for the No. 1 Allen is 8,600 feet, which should take it into the Ellenburger. Rotary tools are now being rigged up. Penrod Drilling Co. has the contract.

The project is being drilled on acreage assembled by A. J. (Al) Welborn, Lubbock independent oil operator, who turned the drilling deal to McAlester, retaining an interest in the acreage.

Welborn acquired acreage from T. P. Allen and O. W. Holladay for the well location. The other part of the acreage was contributed by Hunt Oil Co. Dry hole money contributions were made by Shell, Sinclair and Hunt.

NO. 1-A LONG

Gulf Oil Corp. No. 1-A Long, Southeast Borden wildcat, is drilling below 8,152 feet in lime and chert after a drillstem test at 7,870 - 7,922 feet. With tool open two hours, recovery was 7,922 feet of salty sulphur water.

BORDEN TESTS

Phillips No. 1-A Clayton, Southwest Borden project, is swabbing to test. It had swabbed 19 barrels of load oil in 10 hours at last report.

Underwood No. 1 Clayton and Johnson, wildcat seven miles south of Gail, is at total depth of 7,865 feet and preparing to drillstem test. The Pennsylvanian reef was topped at 7,815 feet on an elevation of 2,404 feet.

IN MITCHELL COUNTY

Richardson & Bass No. 1-8 Nail Estate, Southeast Mitchell County tester, was reported flowing oil at the rate of 135 barrels per day on the production test. No choke size was reported.

KENT COUNTY

Honolulu No. 1 Smelzer, Northwest Kent wildcat, is drilling below 7,385 feet in lime and shale.

Kewanee No. 1-G Wil Connell is drilling in anhydrite and lime below 3,200 feet.

Sun Oil Co. No. 1-B-E Bilby Wallace, Clairemont field extender, is coring at 6,661 feet in shale.

Says Cotton Support Should Be Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Gathings (D-Ark) said today he believes the Agriculture Department should insure cotton farmers a price of 40 to 42 cents a pound this year if it expects them to produce another 16 million bale crop.

The department has asked a 1952 crop of that size.

Farmers in his district, Gathings told a reporter, lost heavily on their cotton crop last year and likely will be inclined to shy away from a big crop unless assured of a good price.

"Ten of the eleven counties in my district," he said, "have been declared disaster areas as a result of the 1951 cotton failure."

Gathings is a member of a special House agriculture subcommittee which will call on Secretary of Agriculture Brannan soon. The group will attempt to persuade Brannan to announce the department will take steps to insure a "fair price" for 1952 cotton.

At present, Gathings said, cotton is supported by loans at 90 per cent of parity, or around 32 cents a pound.

What he would like, he said, would be for Brannan to agree to increase the parity price to a point which would insure farmers 40 to 42 cents a pound.

Brannan, under law, can support cotton, as one of the basic crops, at 90 per cent of parity or higher. Gathings said Brannan could support cotton at 130 or 140 per cent of parity, if he chose.

The House group also wants some assurance from Brannan that cotton farmers will be able to obtain needed fertilizer, machinery and labor, Gathings said.

In 1951, he said, these items were scarce and costly, making the crop expensive. Thus, he said, many farmers lost money.

If the plea to Brannan fails, Gathings said, the committee might consider some legislation to aid the cotton producers.

He suggested that one way to increase the support price of cotton would be to change the grade on which these prices are based.

At present, support prices are based on 15-16-inch middling cotton. By basing them on a lower grade, the support price automatically would be raised a few cents a pound.

Rep. Abernethy (D-Miss) has called for an investigation into methods by which the department assembles figures and makes its cotton forecasts. He contends the department cotton estimate dropped sharply on Oct. 1 with the result that prices shot up. He said farmers who sold earlier on the basis of previous larger estimates lost money.

FLIES TO CHILDREN

C-T1 James Giovanetto shows off his service ribbons to his two daughters in a hospital at Pekin, Ill., after flying 12,000 miles to be with them. He was allowed to fly from Japan after his wife appealed to the local Red Cross chapter for his return when their children became seriously ill. Jamie, two and one-half years old, is seriously ill with an infectious blood disease. Delaine, seven and one-half months old, is seeing her father for the first time. She has a bronchial infection.

West Proposal On Disarmament Given

PARIS (AP) — The Western big three formally proposed today that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky's new atomic proposals be shunted from the U. N. General Assembly to the newly created disarmament commission.

Britain, France and the United States circulated a resolution to that effect.

The three powers were treading carefully until they could get a chance to cauge the effect on world opinion of Vishinsky's offer to make a ban on atomic weapons simultaneous with establishment of a control system and to permit continuous U. N. inspection — rather than only periodic checks — of atomic energy facilities.

Many high sources felt that the Russian diplomat had scored a propaganda triumph that the West must counter with extreme care and delicacy.

The Western position so far was that the Vishinsky proposals offered nothing the General Assembly could take up profitably now, and the disarmament commission is the proper forum for the Russian move.

A British spokesman saw in Vishinsky's move a victory for Western persistence in resisting the earlier Russian demands for immediate and unconditional prohibition of the atomic weapon.

These modifications of the Russian position, the spokesman said, evidently resulted from the secret big four disarmament talks held last month.

This, he said, gave rise to a hope discussions on atomic control in the disarmament commission might bring the East and West closer together on the subject.

Warm Weather Stays Awhile

By The Associated Press

Texas' rainless, unseasonably warm weather probably will stay for a while.

The weather bureau said today somewhat cooler air may push into west and north Texas tomorrow but it should drop temperatures only a few degrees. No really frigid weather was in sight at least through Wednesday.

Temperatures during the night ranged mostly in the 50's in west Texas and the 60's in Central, East and South Texas.

The lowest minimum was 45 degrees at Dalhart; the highest was 66 at College Station, Brownsville and Austin.

Airplane Crash Kills Twelve

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP)—A four-engine navy patrol bomber crashed and burned tonight and eyewitnesses said all 12 crewmen probably were killed.

Several hours after the big plane crashed in a field southwest of here Navy authorities said they didn't know how many were killed.

The hospital at Yokosuka naval base said it had been notified three bodies were being brought there. But the newspaper Asahi said only two bodies were recovered from the blazing wreckage.

Junichiro Miyazaki, a Japanese farmer who saw the big Privateer crash and explode, said none of the men escaped.

The plane was limping toward Atsugi Airbase after developing engine trouble near the end of an 11-hour reconnaissance flight. It came down through a violent rain squall, narrowly missing several houses and factory buildings.

To Investigate Department Of Agriculture

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Senators said today they will push for full-dress public hearings on three different investigations of the multi-billion dollar activities of the Agriculture Department.

"Unless we get a thorough public airing on all suspicions that now exist, it may discredit the farm program," Sen. Thye (R-Minn) told a reporter.

Sen. Kem (R-Ore) in another interview said he will "urge full public hearings as soon as possible."

Chairman Ellender (D-La) said the 13-member agriculture committee will meet Wednesday behind closed doors to consider the various requests for investigations and hearings.

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt), senior GOP committeeman, said the committee received a confidential report this weekend from the comptroller general on "shortages conservatively estimated at four million dollars" in the farms price support program.

"The report calls them 'conversions' of government commodities," Aiken said. "In a bank it would be called embezzlement but in my language it is stealing."

On Dec. 28 the Agriculture Department disclosed some losses had resulted from its $10 billion program of supporting farm crops by government loans. It said about five million was in dispute and called this relatively small, considering the vast numbers of loans and individuals involved.

Aiken said grains and other commodities owned by the government were placed in elevators and storage centers and then sold by contractors who keep the funds.

Senator Won't Run, Plans To Fight Truman

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sen. Herbert O'Conor (D-Md) will not seek re-election when his term expires this year so that he can "take part in the discussion and action on vital questions without having it thought any political consideration is involved."

In a surprise announcemnet yesterday, O'Conor said, "It is now apparent that some of my views are at variance with those espoused by others. In candor I must admit a lack of sympathy with certain programs."

He refused to elaborate on that statement but Democratic Party members in the state have previously accused him of working at cross purposes with the Truman Administration.

This was further indicated in a statement accompanying his decision not to run again.

"As senator, I have advocated and voted for a balanced budget and reduced spending through elimination of nonessential outlays. Also I have opposed, by word, and vote, proposals for socialized medicine and paternalistic experiments, as well as governmental intervention in fields traditionally reserved to private enterprise.

"In addition, I have felt compelled to adopt a vigorous and uncompromising stand against subversive influences and in opposition to policies which contributed to the strength of our enemies."

Airliner Drops In East River

NEW YORK (AP) — A Northeast Airliner, probing through dense fog for a landing at La Guardia field, crashed today in the East River in the middle of New York City. At least 33 were saved.

The airline said 36 persons — 33 passengers and a crew of three —were aboard.

However, the airline said it had been advised by the pilot that he was the last one out of the plane leaving none of the 36 aboard.

Police headquarters said it was advised by the stewardess that all passengers and crew had been rescued. Two survivors were reported seriously injured. The others required only first aid.

The two-engine Convair, apparently trying to make an instrument landing in murky weather, plunged into the river as it headed for La Guardia Field.

Police Harbor launches, Coast Guard vessels and two helicopters raced to the scene and began removing passengers as the heavy plane sank swiftly.

The crash was at a point near where the river joins the Boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx and Queens. The current, swift and deep at this spot, shoved the plane downstream.

The department of hospitals set up a temporary hospital at a Queens pier, which thronged with doctors and nurses as survivors were brought ashore from tugs.

Most of them were suffering from shock and submersion.

COULDN'T MAKE CHARGE

Mossadegh Firm In Closing Rule For British Consulates

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh stood fast today against British urging that he withdraw his order for the closing of Britain's nine consulates in Iran.

The shutdown order, he told British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd, would stand as long as he is premier. The consulates have been ordered closed by Jan. 21 because Iran charges, they have been agitating against the government and interfering in Iranian affairs.

Britain has denied the charges. Iran has no consulates in Britain, so the British can't take parallel action in retaliation.

In London political circles felt generally that the two countrites are heading for a complete diplomatic break unless Mossadegh alters his course. British officials could see no alternative to compliance with the Iranian order to close the consulates.

The aged premier, who received Shepherd from his bed yesterday, also refused the Briton's request that he intercede for the release of the jailed Reuters correspondent, Ghegham Megerdichian, an Iranian. Megerdichian had represented Reuters, the British news agency, since the expulsion last month of its regular correspondent, Leopold Herman. The government charged the Iranian newsman with false reporting and engaging in activities detrimental to the nation. He denied the charges.

Mossadegh continued to have his troubles on the home front. A scheduled session of the Majlis, Parliament's lower house, could not be convened yesterday because only 39 of the 56 deputies required for a quorum were on hand. At the session the premier had been expected to charge his opponents in Parliament with being British stooges.

This was expected as part of the government campaign to win the vote of confidence Mossadegh must ask on Jan. 22 as the result of an opposition demand for a parliamentary commission to supervise national elections now underway.

Claimant To Chiang's Post Kicked Out Of Party By Chinese

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—The Kuomintang party yesterday kicked out Li Tsung-jen, long absent claimant of Chiang Kai-shek's title of President of Nationalist China.

In New York, Li called the action comical and clownish.

"The whole thing illustrates very well how far a dictatorship . . . can go," Li said.

The Kuomintang is the ruling party of Nationalist China. It is headed by Chiang.

Chiang stepped out as President on Jan. 21, 1949, when Communist forces were sweeping through China. He named Vice President Li as acting President.

Li went to New York for medical treatment in December, 1949, and Chiang resumed the presidency on March 1, 1950.

The Kuomintang disowned Li on a technicality. It said he failed to register when the party was reorganized in 1950.

Say Planes Over Cities In China

MUNSAN, Korea (AP)—Communist negotiators shouted "lie" in a heated debate over prisoner exchange today and charged that heated debate over prisoner exchange today and charged that Allied planes flew over several cities in Northeast China Sunday.

Allied negotiators on the truce supervision subcommittee switched tactics Monday after fuming for three straight days to get an oral statement of the Communist stand on airfield reconstruction. Instead the U.N. asked the Reds to agree to restrictions.

The request got a chilly reception.

The Reds charged that Allied planes flew over Mukden, Wushien and other Chinese communities but did not say any were attacked.

A U.N. spokesman at Panmunjom said, "We assume the charge is similar to a lot of other allegations they have made and completely irrelevant to the meeting."

A Fifth Air Force spokesman at Seoul denied that any Allied planes flew over Northeast China Sunday.

The outburst of Communist temper came after Rear Adm. R. E. Libby explained that the Allied voluntary prisoner repatriation plan would be advantageous to the Reds as well as the U.N.

"If your statement has been prepared in order to deceive a part of the people of the world who are ignorant, it would be all right," said North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Sang Cho. "But it would not suit us.

"You had better not say any more that you would do us any favors.

"Should you continue to say so, it would mean that you tell a big lie."

Adm. Libby retorted:

"I do not know whether I have personally been called a liar, but I got a strong inference. I shall study the record and make sure."

Both subcommittees agreed to meet again at 11 a. m. Tuesday (9 p. m. EST Monday.)

"There is one action that your side could take which would clearly overcome the evidence of your apparent desire to gain a cease-fire for the purpose of developing air power," Maj. Gen. Claude Ferenbaugh told the Reds.

"You could agree with the United Nations Command that there be no developments of military airfields on either side during the armistice. When you take that step the world will breath easier, for you would have given your first positive indication of sincerity toward a stable armistice and therefore toward peace."

Afterward Ferenbaugh told newsmen speeches of the Communist delegates were "interlaced with more propaganda than heretofor."

"It was difficult to stay on the subject of airfields," he said.

Libby's explanation of the prisoner exchange plan obviously angered Lee.

"You say that your proposal is favorable to us," Lee said. "We never thought you would do us any favorable things and it is not possible that we can think so. All the same we cannot tell you anything especially favorable to you.

"We note that beyond that passion for (freedom of) choice by individuals for repatriation of yours there lies a sinister scheme. I will never be deceived by that statement."

Libby replied heatedly:

"I mentioned the other day that your side was apparently incapable of recognizing an honest proposal when you saw it. Your ill-considered remarks confirm and reinforce the truth of my assertions.

"As a representative of the United Nations Command I shall not sit here and listen to unfounded charges that the United Nations Command is making a deceitful proposal and is engaging in lies."

Communist negotiators Sunday accused the U.N. Command of violating the Geneva Convention by insisting that prisoners of war be permitted to reject repatriation.

Neither Red China nor North Korea signed the agreement detailing how prisoners should be treated, and both have refused to abide by its terms.

Libby argued at length that the Geneva agreement in no way restricts freedom of choice.

Carlsen Given Danish Medal

LONDON (AP)—Capt. Kurt Carlsen, hero of the Flying Enterprise saga, received a decoration today from the king of his native Denmark. Crowds of shoppers and sightseers outside cheered so loudly the presentation speech could barely be heard.

The stocky little Danish-born hero from Woodbridge, N. J., spoke only one sentense when he received the order of Dannebrog for sticking to his sinking ship until she went down last Thursday in the stormy Atlantic.

"I don't know how to express my feelings, but please accept from me just a simple seaman's 'thank you,'" Carlsen murmured after Count Eduard Reventlow, Danish ambassador to London, pinned the Gold Cross of the Order, one of Denmark's highest, on the skipper's lapel.

Carlsen, who lost all his clothing when his ship went down, was dressed in a new merchant marine uniform. He looked spry and alert after a weekend rest, showing no sign of the rigors of his two weeks of battle with the raging sea.

Members of London's Danish colony thronged the club and cheered as Carlsen entered. Count Reventlow introduced him to Prince Georg, son of King Frederik of Denmark, and military attache at the embassy.

In the street below the crowd set up a chant: "We want Carlsen."

Carlsen laughed and joked as photographers crowded in on him. He went to one of the windows overlooking the street and waved to the hundreds below who were cheering him. Later he was guest of honor at a luncheon at the club.

Carlsen joins Lauritz Melchior and Jean Hersholt among the Danish-born U. S. citizens who are Knights of the Order of Dannebrog. The award is equivalent to knighthood.

Crowds also cheered Carlsen on his arrival at Paddington Station from Falmouth.

Tax Bureau Changes Sent To Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman sent to Congress today his plan for a reorganization of the Internal Revenue Bureau. It would abolish the offices of the 64 collectors and place all tax collecting employes under Civil Service except the top man.

In a message, Mr. Truman told the legislators:

"The most vigorous efforts are being and will continue to be made to expose and punish every government employee who misuses his official position.

"But we must do even more than this. We must correct every defect in organization that contributes to inefficient management and thus afford the opportunity for improper conduct."

Even as Mr. Truman's message reached the capitol, (1) a meeting of revenue collectors from all over the country was being held here to discuss the plan, and (2) a movement developed in the Senate for a substitute proposal.

Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlap called today's meeting to discuss what may be expected if Congress doesn't kill the reorganization plan.

Mr. Truman's proposal, offered in the wake of a series of Internal Revenue Bureau scandals, would create 25 district revenue commissioners. They would take over, not only the work of the 64 present collectors, but all other field actvities in their districts.

Many revenue units in the field now operate independently of the collectors, who are appointed by the White House. The new district commissioners would be selected under the civil service system.

The reorganization proposal goes into effect automatically within 60 days after it is formally submitted to Congress, unless either house votes against it.

Dunlap has indicated that many of the 64 collectors probably will not be retained in the reorganization, and that some probably will prefer to leave the Revenue Bureau.

Eisenhower's Past Statements Reveal His Thinking About Domestic Issues

What kind of a president would Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower make?

For what does he stand

What are his opinions on the day's critical issues?

Only by a study of his remarks of the past can one determine something of his domestic political ideas.

The general has endeavored to guard against answering questions with political implications, yet his philosophy can be detected, to considerable extent, by a study of some of his remarks on different occasions.

Policy clues in his spoken words indicate political ideas running to the right of center, though it must be recognized the general has established no rigid viewpoint to which his presidential candidacy might be tied.

Therefore, only the general views expressed by him in recent years offer a clue as to his leanings on domestic political issues.

How, then, does he lean? The following quotations from public addresses, letters, interviews, and testimony before congressional groups, compiled by the Christian Science Monitor, offer an opportunity to determine his views:

The Middle Position, Area of Agreement

"For us today, those principles (of American life) still dictate progress down the center, even though there the contest is the hottest, the progress sometimes discouragingly slow . . . The middle of the road is derided by all of the right and of the left. They deliberately misrepresent the central position, as a neutral, wishy - washy one. Yet here is the truly creative area in which we may obtain agreement for constructive social action compatible with basic American principles.

"Government ownership or control of property . . . if carried to the logical extreme . . . gives to it (government) absolute power over our lives.

"In all cases we expect the government to be forehanded in establishing the rules that will preserve a practical equality in opportunity among us. We, in turn, carefully watch the government—especially the ever - expanding federal government — to see that in performing (its) functions . . . it does not interfere more than is necessary in our daily lives.

Calls for End to Bias In Problems of Labor

General Eisenhower denies there is an unbridgeable gap "between those who hire and those who are employed . . . We miserably fail to challenge the lie that what is good for management is necessarily bad for labor; that for one side to profit, the other must be depressed.

"Above all, we need more economic understanding and working arrangements that will bind labor and management in every productive enterprise into a far tighter voluntary cooperative unit than we now have. The purpose of this unity will be—without subordination of one group to the other—the increased productivity of labor, of management, of all America."

—Address at Pittsburgh, October, 1950, as reported by the New York Times.

"The struggle going on in the world is for the minds and hearts of men. It is an ideological struggle. There is every possible way of going about the thing, and open warfare is only one method. And so we must not, in our thinking, get unbalanced one way or the other as we calculate the kind of measures that will give up a position from which to oppose them successfully.

"And I beg of you, as you hear us talk of morale and spirit, not to belittle those qualities. I think possibly a soldier comes to place more value on the world 'morale' than most people. He learns that Napoleon certainly did not overstate his case when he said 'Three to one in favor of morale as against the material'."

Obstacles Between France, Germany Fading

". . . I believe that France and Germany are going to continue to grow closer and closer together. We see it all around. I cannot tell you, for example, how many French generals I have heard say that with this French-German problem solved we will have made a great step forward. I think that the French and Germans really are ready to patch up many of the — let us say — obstacles that loom so big in the minds of politicians.

"I believe in it this much — when I came over here, I disliked the whole idea of a European army and I had enough troubles without it. However, I have decided that it offers another chance for bringing another link in her, so I made up my mind to go into the thing with both feet. . . ."

Strictly Hands Off On Spanish Question

Senator Wiley: "On the political side, are Britain, France, and America engaged in some collaborative plan or other in connection with Spain?"

General Eisenhower: "I have been staying out of that question, since it is someone else's business, and I am not in on it."

Senator Wiley: ". . .What is the trouble with our politicos that we can't get them to see that they have got more in common — that is, England, France, America—with Spain, especially when it is a question of preserving our own house?"

General Eisenhower: "Well, I will tell you. Senator. My part in this thing will arise when the several governments concerned will have reached some kind of negotiable position with respect to bases and armies, and then, if these are turned over to me, I will take over. As of now, I do not wish to make any suggestions . . . ."

Cites Importance Of Middle-Eastern Region

". . . So far as the sheer value of territory is concerned, there is no more strategically important area in the world than the Middle East, the so - called land bridge to Africa and Asia. This area is tremendously important in terms of what it could contribute for our whole effort.

"I have had many conversations with different people about Turkey over the years, and I have always maintained fairly close contact with them. I think they are a grand crowd, and I believe they would be a tremendous asset when we can get the problem worked out. But Turkey, of course, is only part of the great Middle East problem. We should bring in the Arab world on our side."

Urges Extreme Caution In Using Atomic Bomb

"I believe that were I in the middle of this thing (whether to use the atomic bomb in Korea), I would avoid using anything that our own people or other peoples might consider inhuman. It is imperative that we stand before the world as champions of decency. I wouldn't want to do anything that might antagonize public opinion in any way." (The general was then quoted indirectly as saying he would not object to using the bomb against a strictly military target, such as a vast warehouse area.) "We're trying to stand before the world as decent, just people, not as judges who exterminate those who oppose us."

Strong Belief That War Settles Nothing

". . . War is the least acceptable solution for our problems."

—Address to Columbia University students, Sept. 23, 1948.

"When people speak to you about preventive war, you tell them to go and fight it. After my experience, I have come to hate war. War settles nothing."

—Address at Dallas, Nov. 11, 1950, as reported by the Associated Press.

"Possibly my hatred of war blinds me so that I cannot comprehend the arguments that (its advocates) adduce. But, in my opinion, there is no such thing as a preventive war. Although this suggestion is repeatedly made, no one has yet explained how war prevents war. Nor has anyone been able to explain away the fact that war begets conditions that beget further war."

European Union Is Considered Imperative

"Personally, I am very hopeful that many of our problems would disappear if this whole area of Western Europe were one federal union. I believe it so strongly that I do not believe real security is going to be felt in the United States, in the British Empire, and other nations of the globe until that comes about. I just don't believe it. We can approach it slowly, and probably obtain a great measure of success; enough, at least to establish an uneasy truce. But I believe the day this whole area in Western Europe gets united — and once it gets united — the Soviets will never be able to hold the East Germans out of it — I believe that with all my heart."

UN Police Unit Urged With Limited Power

"I do not subscribe to any idea that a world police force or a world organization should be permitted entrance to any nation for the purpose of settling disputes among its citizens, or for exercising any authority not specifically and voluntarily accorded by the affected nation. At this stage of civilization's progress, any effort to push to this extreme the purpose of international law enforcement will defeat legitimate objectives . . .

"But by the establishment of a United Nations police of properly defined and restricted but effective powers, no nation would surrender one iota of its current national functions or authority . . ."

Sees Obvious Dangers In Me-too Subsidies

"The completely spurious argument is frequently advanced that because the federal government skims off so much of the available tax revenue it must, as a consequence, bear more of the local expenditure. This is putting the cart before the horse. If local communities do their job then there will be no need for additional centralized revenues for nation - wide subsidies of an essentially local character; and we will avoid the certain pitfalls of extreme centralization.

"Very frankly I firmly believe that the army of persons who urge greater and greater centralization of authority and greater and greater dependence upon the federal treasury are really more dangerous form of government than any external threat that can possibly be arrayed against us. I realize that many of the people urging such practice attempt to surround their particular proposal with fancied safeguards to protect the future freedom of the individual. My own conviction is that the very fact that they feel the need to surround their proposal with legal safeguards is in itself a cogent argument for the defeat of the proposal."

Strongly Opposed To Federal Aid to Schools

"I definitely oppose every unnecessary intervention of the federal authority and the federal treasury in what should be local business and local responsibility.

"I am well aware that there are certain sections of this country where the tax revenue potential of each will not provide for all of the children in that area that level of education deemed generally required in discharging the duties of enlightened electorate.

"In such areas I would heartily support federal aid, under formulas that would permit no abuse, no direct interference of the federal authority in educational processes and no opportunity to expand the flow of federal money into areas where need could not be clearly demonstrated. I would flatly oppose any grant by the federal government to all states in the union for educational purposes. Such policy would create an ambition—almost a requirement — to spend money freely under the impulse of competition with other localities in the country. I would completely decry and defeat the watchful economy that comes about through local supervision over local expenditures of local revenues.

"In short, unless we are careful, even the great and necessary educational processes in our country will become yet another vehicle by which the believers in paternalism, if not outright socialism, will gain still additional power for the central government.

"In no way should my position be interpreted to mean that I am opposed to Federal contractual arrangements with schools for scientific research which is essential to the public interest. Federal government support of such ventures, and even certain types of fellowships and scholarships to meet unusual federal requirements, would not weaken local government or sap community enterprise. These specific items are a far cry from a blanket usurpation of local responsibility and obligation."

GI Bill for Korean Vets Is Considered

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.(AP)—The GI Bill of Right appears headed for some changes this year as Congress considers proposals to extend its benefits to veterans of the Korean conflict.

Chairman Rankin (D-Mis) of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee said today hearings on such legislation will get underway Feb. 6.

So far the committee has under study 20 bills on the subject. Their principal theme: give the Korean War veterans the same treatment accorded the men of World War II.

One of the measures — drafted by the American Legion — calls for marked changes, however, in the educational and training provisions of the servicemen's readjustment act.

And another along this same line will be introduced soon by Rep. Teague (D-Texas) on behalf of a special committee that has been investigating the Veterans' Administration's handling of GI education and training.

The Teague committee, which uncovered a host of abuses of the training program, is still analyzing results of its nation-wide inquiry. It wound up hearings late last month.

Rankin told reporters he is confident Congress will act on behalf of the Korean veterans. But he steered clear of predicting what changes might be made in the act.

His committee, he said, will hear testimony from the Veterans Administration, the General Accounting Office, the Bureau of the Budget and four veterans' organizations in the opening days of the inquiry.

He expects the hearing to last several weeks. Once a measure is agreed upon, it's a good bet little time will be lost in getting it to the House floor.

The legion-backed bill, which will serve as a starting-point for hearings and committee discussion, would provide education and training benefits to personnel who served in the armed forces after June 27, 1950.

Here are some of its provisions:

Training would be limited to a period equal to the time a man actually spent in the armed forces;

Any person who had not passed his 23rd birthday on June 27, 1950 or the date he entered the service would be considered to have had his education interrupted;

If his education had not been interrupted by the military service, he would be entitled to only a maximum of 12 months training;

A trainee would have to begin his benefit training within two years of his discharge and complete it within 17 years;

Avocational and recreational courses — such as dancing, bartending, personality - development, fishing, golf, etc — would be banned;

Tuition and fee payments for schooling would be limited to one-half the amount the schools regularly charge non-veterans, with a ceiling of $300;

Subsistence payments during full-time training would amount to $80 a month for a veteran without dependents, $100 for a veteran with one dependent and $125 for one with more than one dependent;

On-the-job and on-the-farm training would be provided under certain conditions;

Schools permitted to provide training or education to veterans would have to meet certain conditions and have the approval of state agencies.

Some of these provisions would meet some of the criticisms raised by the Teague committee.

Teague favors limiting educational benefits somewhat, giving supplemental help to veterans who are willing to foot part of their bills instead of giving a lot of aid to a limited number of them.

Too, he wants to change the procedure of paying for education and training. Instead of having the VA pay the schools directly, he believes the payments should go to the veterans who, in turn, would take care of their school costs. He believes this would reduce VA operating costs.

Teague also wants stricter penalties for abuses of the program, whether by the trainees or the schools.

Most of Teague's proposals are expected to be embodied in the bill that emerges from his committee.

Perhaps the largest gun ever built was "Little David", designed by the U. S. Army to attack the German Siegfried line in World War II but never used.

Arkansas Traveler

Texans are prone to brush Arkansas aside as a veritable Dogpatch inhabited by characters out of Li'l Abner, only worse. To disparage Arkansas is a treasured Texas tradition.

But if the election of J. William Fulbright to two terms in the United States Senate is any indication of the political maturity of the Dogpatchers it is time for Texans to quit feeling sorry for their Arkansas neighbors.

Senator Fulbright, one of the most brilliant minds in the Senate, whose election reflects credit on the voters of Arkansas, is scheduled to address the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet here Feb. 15. His use of Snyder as a sounding board for his often-quoted opinions will be a compliment to this city and will put us in the biggest spotlight in Texas that week end.

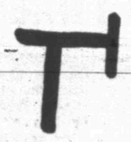
It takes more than peanuts to entertain a speaker of this stature, and the Chamber of Commerce will have to sell more advance tickets than ever before to avoid going into the red on the deal.

The arrangements committee apparently plans to sell tickets to the banquet and dance that will follow at the same price they have brought in the past, $3. That means more will have to be sold.

Entertaining Senator Fulbright is a community venture of the utmost importance. In this competitive world, it does our city a lot of good to attract for this annual event a speaker of national renown, while neighboring cities with three times our population can trot out nothng more impressive than a minor state official.

It's everybody's responsibiliy that it doesn't fall flat. The success of the rally, which will have press and radio coverage from all over the state, will depend upon how we support it with our pocketbooks. Your buying two tickets isn't going to put it over. We'll all have to buy extras, and see that we have some out-of-town guests here to use them.

TEXAS BRANDS



By JOHN M. HENDRIX

The Double T brand had its beginning in 1854 in Missouri, and was started in that state by J. H. Russell. It made its appearance in 1858 or 1860 in Williamson and Travis Counties in Texas. The Double T has been used by descendants of the Russell family in Texas and is still in use in Upton and Crane Counties.

The Double T appears to have had its greatest importance in the very early '80s in Williamson, Travis, and Blanco Counties when it appeared on 25,000 to 30,000 cattle. From these ranges J. D. Russell, a member of the Russell family, sent many trail herds to Kansas and the northwest.

Prospect Good For Hospital Construction

Work on the new county hospital is to begin sometime in the next few days if final approval of plans is given tomorrow in Austin, Herbert Brasher, engineer on the project, said.

Edgar Taylor, county judge, said today that he would leave tomorrow morning for Austin to meet with Brasher and officials of the state hospital board to seek final approval. Minor changes in the plans for construction were made at Dallas last week in agreement with suggestions of Federal Security Administration officials. Ralph Bryan, administrator, said he believed the hospital board would approve the plans with these minor changes if presented in the next few days, Judge Taylor reported.

The judge said Brasher, of the Lubbock firm of Butler - Brasher Engineering Co., told him work at the site could begin very soon after approval of the plans.

Word came from Washington last week that steel priority would be assured for the project for this quarter if work is started during the quarter.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete late yesterday. The body had already been taken to Denton.

Survivors in addition to Mrs. Sitton include three other daughters, two sons, two brothers, one sister, 15 grandchildren and six great - grandchildren.

Reshuffle Contracts

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Government contracts are being reshuffled to help communities where civilian production cutbacks have put workers out of jobs.

Defense Production Administrator Manly Fleischmann announced over the week-end government contracts are being shifted about to help hard-hit areas, even though in some cases it costs more money.

The first area to receive such help is Detroit, where automobile production curtailment has caused serious unemployment.

City, County, School Taxes Are 82 Per Cent Collected

Almost 82 per cent of all taxes assessed in the county in 1951 for operation this year has been collected, according to reports of the three assessor - collectors.

Sixty - six per cent of school taxes assessed throughout the county has been paid, 75 per cent of Snyder's city taxes, and 89 per cent of the county and state taxes. The percentage of the grand total was 81.7, according to figures compiled at the first of the year.

INTEREST AND PENALTY

A balance of $514,712 is due to be paid this month if the taxpayers escape the penalty and interest rates automatically assessed on delinquent taxes Feb. 1. Penalty is placed on all delinquent taxes, the penalty increasing monthly, and interest is charged and also compounded on both taxes and penalties. Penalty and interest rates are uniform for school, city, county, and state taxes. Discounts are offered for early payment of county, state, and city taxes, but the state does not allow discounts on school tax.

This month, there is no discount on any tax and no penalty or interest. Tax payments may begin Oct. 1 of each year, the discount for October being three per cent, November payments discounted two per cent, and December one per cent. February penalty is 1.5 per cent; March, three per cent; 4.5 in April, six in May, 7.5 in June, 11 in July, 11.5 in August, 12 in September, 12.5 in October, 13 in November, and 13.5 in December.

COUNTY AND STATE

Total assessment for both county and state taxes is $1,797,051, of which $1,616,166 has been paid, leaving a balance of $176,885. The assessment is figured on a combined county and state rate of $1.57 for each $100 of the county's total valuation of $114,207,131. The county tax rate of $1.05 gives it an assessment of $1,313,381, of which $1,193,619 is paid, leaving a balance of $119,762. The county's assessment is 91 per cent collected, according to these figures reported by Jim Ikard, assessor-collector. The state tax assessment in the county is $479,670 at a rate of 42 cents on the $100 valuation. Collections to date amount to $422,547 which is 88 per cent of the assessment, and the balance is $57,123.

A total of $128,690.85 in city taxes was collected by Jan. 1 which comprises 75.4 per cent of the assessment, J. D. Scott, assessor-collector, said. The unpaid balance is $43,807.

The assessment for 1951 totaled $169,133 at a $1.50 per $100 valuation rate on a total valuation of $11,275,557, Scott said.

City tax paying began with a rush Oct. 1, and has tapered off gradually since then. October's collections totaled $85,273.62. November's collections were $22,701.91, and $17,250.54 was collected in December.

Most of the business firms, corporations, oil companies, and other large tax payers took advantage of the discounts, which leaves most of the outstanding taxes on residential and small business property, Scott added.

SCHOOL TAXES

In the Snyder school district, 68 per cent of the assessment has been collected, amounting to $566,339, according to H. W. Scarborough, assessor - collector. This leaves the balance at $272,036. The total assessment is $828,375 at a rate of $1 per each $100 of the $82,837,485 valuation.

Ikard, who is also assessor-collector for the other school districts in the county, listed their figures as follows:

Ira, $3,786,986 valuation, $1 rate, $37,870 assessed, $17,433 paid, 46 per cent, $20,437 balance;

Hermleigh $2,012,565 valuation, $1.50 rate, $30,187 assessed, $18,730 paid, 62 per cent, $11,457 balance;

Fluvanna, $838,495 valuation, $1 rate, $8,385 assessed, $6,068 paid, 72 per cent, $2,317 balance.

Hobbs, $159,060 Scurry County's portion of valuation, $1.50 rate; $2,385 assessed in this county, $1,612 collected, 67 per cent, $773 balance.

The Hobbs school is in Fisher County, and most of its taxable district also is there, but the district extends into Scurry County. The figures above are for Scurry County's portion of the district.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Admitted to Snyder Hospital yesterday afternoon was Jerry Cloud, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Cloud, Jr., route No. 3, who accidentally shot himself in the foot with a .22 calibre rifle. Hospital attendents said his condition was good this morning.

Admitted Saturday was Alvin Koonsman, route No. 2, who fell and broke his knee cap.

Dismissed this morning were James Bellamy, Arah Route, accident patient, and Connie Pierce, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Pierce of Snyder, medical patient.

Firm Suggests Linoleum In Remodeling

New floor covering is one of the best ways to liven up your house and give it a new appearance, G. R. Rhodes, manager of Burton-Lingo Lumber Co., 1510 Twenty-fifth Street, says.

The firm is dealer here for Congoleum - Nairn linoleums. They have a wide selection of colors and color combinations in both inlaid and printed designs.

"We have whatever is needed to fit into all the new interior decorating schemes," he said.

Rhodes says they specialize in Congoleum - Nairn because of its long reputation as the leader in the floor covering field.

ASPHALT TILE

Another type floor covering which the firm sells much of is asphalt tile. The tile, in a variety of colors, is especially popular with owners of business houses where the floors must look good after much heavy use.

Asphalt tile is almost a life-time floor covering in most cases, he said. It is especially popular with service station owners because it will withstand cleaning with harsh detergents and even gasoline where grease must often be removed.

BUILDING MATERIAL

Burton - Lingo Lumber Co. handles a complete line of building materials including all building materials, bath - room fixtures, building hardwares, farm supplies, barbed wire, pipe, and plumbing supplies.

A free planning and estimate service is also offered by the firm on both new construction and remodeling. They also have an experienced linoleum mechanic on their staff who can install linoleum properly so that its life will be greatly extended.

Three Youths Arrested In Stolen Car Here

A report from a hitch - hiker this week end led city police to the arrest of three juvenile delinquents who had stolen an automobile in Arkansas and were on their way to California.

Police said a man entered the station Friday night and told them he had ridden here with three teen - agers in a 1941 Chevrolet with Arkansas license plates, who told him they had stolen the car.

After a chase for about 25 miles on the Lamesa Highway, police officers apprehended the youths and one, 17, told of having stolen the car from his grandfather and $30 from his grandmother and were on their way to the West Coast to join the Army. The other two were 16 years old.

Police called the father of one of the boys in Little Rock, Ark., and he came to Snyder last night to take them and the car home.

Weldon Swan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thurber Swan, 601 Twenty-fourth Street, was home over the week end from Tech at Lubbock. Weldon had as his guest Don Wolf of Fort Worth, who is also a student at Tech.

Car Destroyed When It Strikes Culvert

A 1947 Ford coach driven by Ray Clinton Campbell, 20, of 1803 Eighteenth Street, was demolished when it overturned east of town this morning. Campbell, who was alone at the time of the accident, was not injured.

Campbell told Bill Zimmerman, highway patrolman, that he ran off the road onto the shoulder and lost control of the car. The car hit a ditch culvert and overturned. The accident occurred about three and one-half miles east on Highway 180 about 1 o'clock.

Enters Guilty Plea

Ervin Williams, 28-year-old Snyder Negro, was fined $123.50 this morning when he pleaded guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated. He was arrested last night. His driving privileges were suspended for six months in accordance with mandatory state provisions.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Tipping of Knapp had as their guest over the week end J. C. Fulton of Midland.

Mrs. Welch Scrivner of Dermott was a dinner guest Saturday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Trusell, 2311 Twenty - seventh Street.

Mrs. Silas Devenport, 2405 Twenty - seventh Street, Miss Mary Belle Weathersbee, 1708 Twenty-seventh Street, and Miss Ila Ruth Newton, 2711 Avenue V, visited Sunday with Mrs. Devenport's daughter, Miss Mary Lou Devenport of Graham.

A&M Shooting For Tie In Conference

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

Texas A&M fights for a first place tie in the Southwest Conference basketball race this week as leading Texas Christian takes time out.

The Aggies will lose the services of their play-maker, All-Conference Guard Jewell McDowell, after they battle Southern Methodist at Dallas tonight and Baylor at College Station Friday night.

McDowell graduates at mid-term and ends a brilliant string at Aggieland. The general observation is that A&M will be much less effective without the great little floor man.

But anyway, if A&M wins its two games this week it will be deadlocked with Texas Christian for the lead. TCU has won four straight, A&M two. The Christians whipped Rice and Baylor last week while the Aggies were also licking Rice.

Texas, loser to Texas Christian week before last, tumbled Southern Methodist and Arkansas last week and holds down third place with a 2-1 record.

TCU rests this week with one of the best season marks in the nation. The Frogs have won 14 and lost one, scoring 942 points with their fastbreak and straight-lane tactics. They had a little trouble with firewagon Rice last week and George McLeod, the big Frog center, was held to a bare seven points by the bristling Owls, but TCU, as usual, had it in the stretch and won 42-30. Baylor's muchly beaten Bears were just a whistle stop on the TCU victory road. The Frogs lamBasted Baylor 75-57.

While A&M and SMU clash in Dallas tonight, Arkansas and Baylor will be getting together at Waco.

Tomorrow night Rice and Texas clash at Houston. Saturday night Arkansas and Rice rangle at Fayetteville.

McLeod is far in front in the scoring race. The Texas Christian center has looped in 273 points. Second is Ralph Johnson of Baylor with 185. McLeod also leads in conference scoring with 75 points. Harvey Fromme, his teammate, is next with 42.

In the South China Sea 3½ miles of communication cable was recently cut from the line between Hong Kong and Amoy. This is usually the work of thieves because cable material, unraveled and melted down, makes top black market items.

St. Edwards Faces Trouble

By The Associated Press

St. Edwards, boasting one of the best season records in the state, runs into real trouble this week.

The big state conference pacesetter, which has won 11 and lost one, clashed with Trinity of the Gulf Coast Conference and high-scoring Stephen F. Austin of the Lone Star Conference.

St. Eds has no conference games this week but neither does East Texas Baptist, which is tied for the lead in the championship race. Each has won six conference games. East Texas, however, has won 11 and lost five in season play.

Last week St. Edwards nosed Texas Wesleyan, 68-67, to knock the latter from the unbeaten ranks in the title drive. East Texas Baptist blasted Daniel Baker, 82-68, to keep pace.

The week's schedule:

Monday — Daniel Baker vs St. Mary's at San Antonio, East Texas Baptist vs Sam Houston State at Huntsville.

Tuesday — St. Edwards vs Trinity.

Wednesday — Daniel Baker vs Lutheran Concordia College at Brownwood.

Thursday — East Texas Baptist vs Sam Houston State at Huntsville.

Friday — Southwestern vs Texas Wesleyan at Fort Worth, St. Edwards vs Stephen F. Austin.

OPEN SEASON

By DALE WALTON

"Snyder is large enough to attract someone to come in and operate a professional baseball club," Hal Sayles, president of the Longhorn Baseball League and editor of the Abilene Reporter - News, said last week.

Sayles, who said the Longhorn League is interested in taking Snyder into the fold, explained that no franchise on any ball club is definitely available at this time, but he added that a strong possibility exists for Snyder to secure a professional club and enter league play.

The big need for Snyder now is developing playing facilities, not buying a club, Sayles said. Lighting equipment is no problem, but the defense effort might hinder the building of a ball park.

If Snyder made any attempt to build a park, financial backing from several person would be a must. The building of a park large enough to pay would require more expense than building a football stadium. The main expense is the construction of a grandstand section with protective roof and net wiring.

Dayles said he will come to Snyder this week to discuss the possibility of building a professional club backing here if anyone indicates interest. He asked that those interested in seeing a club in Snyder call or write the Daily News as soon as possible. He added that he desired to meet with interested persons before the Longhorn League meeting in Abilene Thursday.

Several sports fans in Snyder attempted to arouse interest about three years ago, when officials of the professional club at Vernon expressed a desire to locate at Snyder. The Vernon club asked that Snyder build a park and rent it to the club, and interest fell down.

Many now believe that Snyder is well suited to support a team which can win enough games to remain in the upper bracket of a league better than can Sweetwater or other cities of that size.

MOST FASCINATING SPORTS ITEM OF THE WEEK

France scored its first win on Scottish territory in 40 years yesterday in a victory in the Rugby Union International match, defeating Scotland 13 - 11. Forward Jean Prat and Guy Basquet scored all France's points.

Basketball Going According To Form; Five Still Unbeaten

NEW YORK (AP)—Except for the Pacific Coast Conference and the Ivy League, the college basketball leagues have been going—surprisingly enough—very much according to form.

Of course, the season still is young, and with only five major teams remaining on the unbeaten list, anything might happen. But so far the powers have been powerful and the patsies have been rolling over and playing dead in most sections.

On the Pacific Coast, Stanford, the pre-season favorite, is riding along in second place in the southern division, having taken two beatings. In the northern division, Washington, which was figured as the logical champion, also is in second place with one defeat.

In the Ivy League, it appears that defending champion Columbia is going to find the going tough. The Lions had lost three games before they started loop operations and were promptly plastered with a 69-65 defeat by Cornell Saturday night—their first in the league since 1950.

The Big Ten boasts two of the unbeatens, Illinois and Iowa—the others are Kansas, Duquesne and St. Bonaventure—and they, of course, share the league lead with marks of 3-0. Their season's records also are identical, 10-0.

The question they're buzzing in the Big Seven is: "Aren't those Kansans ever going to lose" At the moment the answer seems to be "No." Dr. Phog Allen's operatives have won 12 in a row—two in the league—and have a date with Nebraska tonight, a team that has won but four and lost nine.

Even in the Southwest Conference where they put the whammy on the team that's tabbed the favorite, things are very serene, indeed. Texas Christan was rated the team to beat and, sure enough, there's TCU right at the top with 4-0 and 14-1 for the season.

In the Southern and Southeastern the two perennial rulers, North Carolina State and Kentucky, respectively, stand at the head of the class. The Wildcats, however, are second to Vanderbilt, which has a 3-0 mark to Kentucky's 2-0.

The Missouri Valley shapes up as a two-team race between St. Louis and Oklahoma A. and M., as usual. The Billikins have won their three loop starts and the Aggies have won their only league game.

Meanwhile, two more unbeatens have bitten the dust. Seton Hall bowed to Sienna, 55-52, after winning 12 straight, and Florida, which had won 10, was trounced by Kentucky, 99-52.

Other important Saturday results included: Illinois 67, Michigan 51; Iowa 78, Indiana 59; Duquesne 78, Syracuse 67; St. Bonaventure 65, Niagara 42; St. Louis 71, Detroit 64; Washington 49, Oregon State 41; Kansas State 71, Nebraska 36.

North Texas State To Face Bitter Enemy In Court Game Tonight

By The Associated Press

North Texas State, which created something of a sensation last week by knocking over Oklahoma City University to end a fine winning streak for that team, plays Oklahoma City U. again tomorrow night.

This time it will be in Oklahoma City where the champions of the all-college tournament will be expected to reverse the decision.

North Texas, favorite for the Gulf Coast Conference championship, beat the Sooners 51-49.

The Eagles also started the conference race by licking Trinity twice, taking the first game 84-65 and the second 54-59.

Midwestern, third member of the league, was beating McMurry of the Texas conference 77-51 and Wayland 75-65 to maintain the best season record. Midwestern has won 10 and lost three. North Texas has won nine and lost five but played a tougher schedule.

There are no conference games this week. The schedule:

Monday North Texas State vs. Austin College at Sherman.

Tuesday Trinity vs. St. Edwards at San Antonio. North Texas State vs. Oklahoma City University at Oklahoma City.

Saturday — Trinity vs Southwest Texas State at San Antonio.

Ben Hogan Takes Club

The Colorado City squad defeated Hamlin in a non - district match 52 - 30 and Roby 49 - 32. In four games with Roscoe, the Wolves won two.

Mrs. V. Y. Rejebian of Dallas will speak at a dinner given tomorrow night by Mr. and Mrs. C. T. McLaughlin. Active in civic and social affairs, she is a book reviewer and has a weekly radio program of national and international news commentaries.

TALK OF THE TOWN

By SUE HOLMES

Mrs. V. Y. REJEBIAN, who will speak at a dinner given tomorrow night by the C. T. McLAUGHLINS has a storybook background for her interest in national and international affairs.

One of the best known book reviewers in the state, the Dallas woman is beginning her sixteenth year as a reviewer. This part of her career was begun quite by accident, she says, through Franz Werfel's book, "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh." Seven years ago she started a weekly radio program which is a commentary on news of national and international affairs.

More civic and world - minded than many native Americans, she was born in Brusa, near Istanbul, Turkey, of Armenian parents, during the turbulent years when the Armenians were the victims of Turkish persecution. After weathering the war years in Istanbul, she went to England where she learned to speak English. Leaving the cliffs of Dover, she came to Los Angeles where she attended high school, UCLA and taught in Beverly Hills. After her marriage, she moved to Texas where both their children were born. And since then, it's been a constant clip of reviews, speeches and club work.

• • •

Good news from the woman's clothing market in Los Angeles! Prices for warm - weather fashions are about the same as last year and a good many are lower. The public seems to have demanded lower prices, and manufacturers are complying. A report from the markets advises that quality is good . . . better tailoring and better fabrics in almost every wholesale line. With soaring prices in almost every line of goods, it's real music to hear of price slicing.

Shower Honors Mrs. Benny Sims, Recent Bride

Mrs. Benny Sims, the former Miss Charlene Stewart, was honored at a miscellaneous bridal shower Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Billy Don Martin, northeast of town. Miss Wanda Jean Rainwater and Miss Rheta Rhodes were co - hostesses.

The honor guest's colors of pink and silver were used on the refreshment table. A miniature bride and bridegroom under an arch centered the table, and napkins were printed with "Charlene and Benny." Punch and cookies were served.

About 50 guests were invited.

THE STARS

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) Vanessa Brown, once a Quiz Kid, thanks television for substituting sex appeal for brain appeal.

Around Hollywood, she has been known as a pretty weighty thinker. She came to Hollywood with the reputation of having spouted facts on the radio with the Quiz Kids. While pursuing her movie career, she also attended UCLA. She managed to get through after five years and walk off with an A.B. and a B-plus average.

But the publicity of being a brain did not exactly further her movie career.

"You know how things get exaggerated in Hollywood," she explained. "Because you can add one and one, you immediately get the reputation of being a mental marvel."

As a result, she was largely limited to playing staid, reserved roles. She was a proper Bostonian in "The Late George Apley" and a prim maid in "The Heiress." The studios wouldn't presume to ask her to pose for cheesecake.

Her fortunes began to turn when she was cast as the scantily clad Jane to Lex Barker's Tarzan. But her sexy scenes were largely stolen by Cheetah the Chimpanzee. Not until she ventured eastward for TV did she get the roles she was seeking.

"In my television roles, I have played fiery, exciting women," she remarked, "It has been a complete reversal of what I played on the screen. Also, last summer I played for the Theater Guild in Shaw's 'The Philanderer.' It was a part similar to that of Scarlett O'Hara."

Such activities have brought renewed interest in Vanessa's film career, but this time as a glamor girl and not a brain.

TV has also given her a chance to display the plunging neckline. "But the scene was ruined because they decided my neckline was too low. They covered it up with some lace."

Such things do not happen in TV, she admitted, although "if you don't use discretion, someone else will use it for you."

Vanessa is here to make a film called "The Fighter" and then returns to New York for more TV. She has appeared on about 50 TV shows and has crossed the continent 16 times in the past year. A couple of seasons ago, she toured through the U. S. in "As You Like It" with Katherine Hepburn. She doesn't mind the gypsy existence.

Speaking of knowledge, I asked Vanessa if she believed brains were a handicap for a girl. Her reply: "Not if she keeps them well hidden behind a low neckline.

CAPSULE REVIEW: "The Greatest Show on Earth" is not exactly that, but it is a lot of show. A Cecil B. DeMille epic is never small, and this one just about contains the whole Ringling Bros.-Barnum and Bailey circus. There is also a troupe of Hollywood actors who act out an involved plot calculated to extend the long duration of the picture. They perform circus tricks with almost as much conviction as they read the labored script. Stars include Betty Hutton, Cornel Wilde, Dorothy Lamour, Jimmy Stewart, but the most convincing are Charlton Heston and Gloria Grahame. One expects spectacle and corn from DeMille and he supplies vast amounts of both. It will be one of his biggest successes.

Fritz Smith, 2308 Thirth-second Street, and J. O. Dodson, 3009 Avenue S, returned home Thursday from Encino, N. M., where they had been visiting with Mr. Dodson's son and daughter - in - law, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Dodson.

Sylvan Rich
1079
For Martini Diminutive

PERFECTLY PROPORTIONED! Without detracting from the fashion goodness, Sylvan Rich designs a newsy Spring suit that's scaled perfectly to fit the diminished proportions of the woman who is five feet five or under. The jacket has a very Parisian asymmetrical closing, a tiny mandarin collar and arched hip pockets that tend to whittle your waistline . . . all points that flatter that petite figure. The skirt is fashionably slim without being tight. You could make Sylvan Rich's diminutive suit in almost any woolen fabric — but because of its dressy airs, we recommend you use a smooth, solid colored fabric. It's also adaptable to velveteen for gala occasions. Size 12 requires 2-¾ yds. of 54-inch fabric. Pattern available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. To order Pattern No. 1079, send $1.00 to Spadea Fashions, Inc., Dept. 163, Box 258, Madison Square Station, New York 10, N. Y. For Air Mail service, include an additional 25c. Halting traffic to allow school children who are out for lunch to cross the street is Bob Knollenberg, a 15-year-old eighth grader, one of the 10 boys in the Junior Patrol who spend their school lunch hour at safety work. Bob has been a member of the patrol since it was organized in 1950.

Junior Patrolmen Big Help To Officers Here, Keenan Says

Perhaps the Junior High School is contributing more aid to Snyder's understaffed police department than is any other organization.

Their aid is in traffic direction on the streets around the school campus by the Junior Patrol, a squad of 10 junior high boys under the sponsorship of the police force, whose job is to take care of safety measures around the school and relieve policemen to other duties.

They are actually policemen—complete with badges and identification card, and Horace Bostick, faculty sponsor of the group, said uniforms will be supplied later.

ORGANIZED IN 1950

The patrol was organized in 1950 at the school as an aid to city police in keeping traffic and campus play orderly at the school, and, according to Herman Trigg, junior high principal, the system is working out fine.

Trigg said the boys spend their noon hour at the school at traffic direction to prevent jams and possible accidents or injuries to school children, and they also serve as an example for other children to follow in relation to safety.

The patrol is limited to 10 boys, and the waiting list of those who wish to serve is always long. About 30 junior high boys have worked with the patrol at different times.

Since the group was organized, Trigg said, it has contributed much to helping hold down juvenile delinquency in the school. Trigg commented that the patrolmen got most possible delinquents straightened out during their first year of operation, and the school has had little trouble with juvenile vandalism or harmful pranks this year.

TWO ON DUTY

They have also relieved city patrolmen who would ordinarily have to work traffic at the school, and only two city policemen stay on duty during heavy traffic hours at the school to aid the boys.

Police Chief Ray J. Keenan was quick this year to give the patrol recognition for the help they have been giving the police department, and he sponsored a trip recently for the boys to Abilene to attend the Shrine Circus, feeding them and treating them to an all-day outing, and he sent patrolman Bill Love along as their escort.

Two vacancies now exist in the patrol, Trigg said, and they will be filled from the waiting list. Members are Bob Knollenberg, Carl Yancey, Harold Search, Norman Spurlock, Gary Gladson, Adrain Banks, James Whitaker, and Hobert Payne.

ASK MILDRED

Send your questions to Mrs. Mildred Sparks, County Home Demonstration, Agent, Courthouse, or to the Daily News.

I have heard that Carnation milk can be used as sour milk by adding a little vinegar. Could you tell me how much vinegar to use for one cup of milk? C. S.

Listed here are the proportions used:

For every cup of sour "cream" desired, use 1 cup of Carnation milk and 1 tablespoon of vinegar.

For every cup of sour milk desired, use ½ cup of carnation milk, ½ cup cold water, and 1 tablespoon of vinegar.

For baking, use 1 teaspoon baking soda to each cup of soured milk or "cream."

I am going to a strange town to a shower being given for my daughter, who is a recent bride. The bridegroom's mother lives there and so does my daughter and her husband. In the receiving line at the shower, whom shall I stand beside? Mrs. T.

Emily Post says, "At the very friendly small party only the hostess receives and the bride usually introduces her mother to her friends personally." The custom of the town is usually followed. If there is to be a receiving line you will probably stand to the right of your daughter and she will introduce you to the guests

• • •

Should the sides of a cake pan be greased? J.

No, only the bottom of the pan.

• • •

Recently at a home demonstration club meeting, one of the women said it is such a time saver to cut a circle of wax paper to fit the bottom of the cake pans. You are always assured of the cake's coming out of the pan in good shape and it makes washing the utensil easier.

ENVOY TO REDS—George F. Kennan, outstanding Western authority on Russians, is new United States Ambassador to the Soviet Union; replacing Admiral Alan G. Kirk.

More Cold Due In California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More floods and snows were in prospect today for California, already beset by its worst winter in half a century.

The new wind-blown storm carried more rain toward Northern California lowlands—where 2,500 had to flee their homes the past week-end.

It bore more snow to the Sierra Nevada—where main highways to Nevada already were blocked and transcontinental trains either stalled or running 30 hours behind schedule.

The new storm was expected by tonight to spread rains to rain-soaked Los Angeles and snows to the traffic-impeded mountain resort areas of Southern California.

The Reno area of Nevada was so piled with snow that road crews worked far into last night seeking to free trapped motorists.

Everybody from millionaire to truck driver felt the gathering effects of the storm.

George Vanderbilt, millionaire son of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, arrived with his wife in a special car on a train that was 29 hours late. The train, Southern Pacific's City of San Francisco, had spent 18 hours in a snowshed up in the mountains at Norden.

On snow-blocked U. S. Highway 40 up in the Sierra on the road to Reno, drivers of marooned trucks had to sleep in shifts at Baxter because of overcrowded bedding facilities.

"I'm kind of lucky," said driver Bill Ellison, of Sparks, Nev.

"I only share a double bed with seven other guys . . . We sleep in shifts of two at a time."

Most of the 2,500 who had to get out of flooded homes in the San Francisco Bay area returned and began digging away the mud.

More Threats Of Bombs Are Given In Florida

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) A Baptist pastor reported two more telephoned threats at his church last night.

The Rev. G. E. Hodges, whose secretary said Friday an anonymous caller threatened him and his church with "the same thing . . . as happened in Mims, Fla.," has been given police protection.

(Negro leader Harry T. Moore and his wife were fatally injured by a bomb at Mims Christmas night).

Four city policemen and two county officials stood by at tonight's service, when 2,000 crowded into the Beaver Street Baptist Church to hear the Rev. Hodges give his promised answer to the threats.

He called the anonymous callers "yellow livered devils who don't have the nerve to show their hides."

Pin Curlers Cause Fuss In High School

ANTIOCH, Calif. (AP) — The pin curler fuss at Antioch High School seems about to begin all over again.

Fifteen-year-old Theola Barton said she would return to class today and her hair would be in pin curlers.

Last March the teacher sent her home. The principal backed up the teacher, saying pin curlers were a state of "undress." Theola's irate parents declined to send her back.

For keeping her out of school, the parents were fined $10 apiece Friday. Promptly Mrs. Amos Barton scolded the sentencing justice of the peace and walked out leaving him her five youngest children.

She collected them again Saturday night after the justice threatened to cite her for child abandonment. But both mother and father said they would go to jail before they'd pay the fines.

The climate of the Azores varies from 45 to 86 degrees.

High Altitude Weather Data Very Important In Air War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14 (AP) — As far as weather is concerned, Russia would have the edge in case of war with the United States — for the first day.

This is true both in the old-fashioned military concept of weather, involving rain, clouds, surface winds and ice and from the new viewpoint, which rates high-altitude winds as the No. 1 military weather problem.

Weather moves from west to east—both surface weather and the pattern of the upper winds. America's Allies lie in the path of Russia's weather, but Russia is not in a position to know what weather is brewing for the United States.

The international exchange of weather information, in which even Russia cooperates, now gives practically every country in the Northern Hemisphere complete weather data every day. These would promptly cease if war started, and the Russians would fight thereafter under the handicap of their geographical position.

If they wished to unload atomic bombs on the U. S., they would have to make minute calculations as to the fuel load their planes would need. If they sent planes from the east, unexpectedly strong headwinds could eat up the gas load before the target was in sight.

And if the air armada ran blindly into something called the "jet stream" it might be scattered or stopped dead.

If it came from the west, from air bases such as those on the Kamchatka Peninsula, northeast of Japan, it could ride the western tailwinds, and particularly the jet streams, to save fuel. But the Russian flyers would have to know where the jet streams were that day and what the general wind conditions were aloft.

The jet stream is the newest of the discoveries of meteorology. They were detected through World War II high altitude bombing and now are crucial in the whole theory of flight at very high levels.

Bombers flying to Tokyo sometimes met such strong headwinds that ground speed at times was reduced almost to zero. Heading east from Tokyo, ground speed was nearly double indicated air speed.

A group of scholars at the University of Chicago organized all the facts, and in 1947 announced their findings. They christened the newfound phonomenon "The Jet Stream."

One of several jet streams flow around the Northern Hemisphere all the time. They are narrow wind currents found at about 20,000 feet in the latitudes between Central Mexico and Northern Alaska.

They are from 100 to 300 miles wide, about one mile deep and from a thousand to several thousand miles long. Like ribbon-shaped snakes, they streak around the globe at 100 to 300 miles per hour.

Sometimes they soar to 40,000 feet or drop to 15,000. They live only a few days, then split up or dissolve.

"The winds in the upper atmosphere are our No. 1 problem today," says Col. Thomas S. Moorman Jr., deputy commander of the Air Weather Service of the Air Force. "And the jet stream, as you can see, is the central problem there."

The air weather service, with headquarters at Andrews Field, Md., conducts weather work for both the Air Force and Army. It works in cooperation with the U. S. Weather Bureau and the Navy Weather service.

The service issues daily forecasts of the position and strength of the jet streams and the force and currents of other high altitude winds.

The upper winds are now considered so important because in this age of atomic warfare the carrier of the super weapon is a high altitude, long-range bomber. All preparations for attack must be based on calculations of fuel and bomb load.

Bombers operate at very high altitudes primarily for the sake of safety against anti-aircraft artillery and fighter planes, which in the rarefied air can't make sharp turns for the attack.

Jet bombers are still rare, but since jet engines perform best at very high altitudes, those levels will be the habitat of the bombers of the future.

Clouds, rain, surface winds and ice today are still a controlling factor in tactical aviation and other low level flying. In Korea most aviation stops in bad weather, except for B-29 bombing missions, which are guided by radar.

But the new all-weather aircraft, which can navigate, fire guns and rockets and drop bombs through electronic controls, have almost abolished the deterrent effect of clouds and darkness.

The U. S. Air Force has few all-weather fighters at this time — none in Korea, according to an Air Force spokesman. But the Air Force recently has decided to build its entire fleet of interceptors — the planes that beat off attacking bombers — of all-weather craft.

This will take a long time and a lot of money. An F-86D, the Sabre Jet, with full all-weather equip-handling equipment, comes to about $624,682. But the Air Force figures there is no use having interceptors that can intercept only in cloudless daylight.

For modern bombers the ideal time to attack is on a cloudy night. Radar bombsights can pick out large targets, such as factories and cities, about as well as human eyes. Radar controlled anti-aircraft artillery can find them, but not nearly so easily as in clear daylight. All-weather fighters can reach them, but at high altitudes the bomber has the edge.

So weather from the earth's surface to the sky's ceiling would be as important in another war as it always has been.

Cadillac Has Had Back Orders Since Just After World War—

DETROIT, Jan. 14. (AP)—Opinions differ widely among auto makers regarding a possible over all new car shortage this year, but for Cadillac buyers it is already here.

As far as Cadillac is concerned the shortage that appeared with the resumption of production after World War II never has been wiped out, despite record output volume.

Cadillac, which marks its golden anniversary this year, built and sold 110,000 cars in 1950, the industry's record year. Last year it turned out 103,200. Despite this second best output volume in its history Cadillac reportedly has something like 88,000 unfilled orders on file.

Like most other car makers Cadillac has its 1952 models in production. They will be introduced within the next couple of weeks. Details, of course, are being kept secret, but industry quarters hear some significant engineering advances are being incorporated in the new models.

It isn't any secret that General Motors has been perfecting a new idea in power steering. Rumor has had it for several months that the steering aid, when ready, would be offered first on the larger cars in the GM lines. That would mean Cadillac and Buick's roadmaster and perhaps the Oldsmobile "98."

It is no secret either that General Motors has redesigned its hydramatic transmission to provide a dual performance range. This already has been demonstrated on the 1952 model Pontiacs. It is expected to be announced for the new Cadillac and Oldsmobile lines — and perhaps later in the competing makes that offer hydra-matic under a contract arrangement with GM.

The "dual performance" consists of two driving ranges — one for long distance highway driving and another for city traffic and mountain driving. By providing something akin to overdrive the one driving range reportedly offers unusual fuel economy, while the other gives all the pull and power needed for quick acceleration.

Cadillac's share of the industry's overall output last year was 1.94 per cent. Even if this share isn't cut back in the slightly lower allotment given General Motors by the National Production Authority (NPA) it isn't likely to be higher. Thus, with a lower industry-wide total output this year, Cadillac isn't going to catch up with its unfilled order backlog.

It probably wouldn't catch up with it if production quotas were going up instead of down. Most Cadillac owners realize this and it isn't uncommon for many of them to take delivery of a new car and place an order for another at the same time.

In advertising and promoting its 1952 model cars Cadillac plans to stress the golden anniversary theme throughout the year. The Cadillacs of 50 years ago, incidentally, were one-cylinder, four passenger models carrying a list price of $850.

Since then Cadillac has built 12 and 16 cylinder models but eventually discontinued them in favor of the V-8. Its present engine has been described as one of the most efficient and at the same time most economical of any stock engines in full sized automobiles.

CITIES COMPETE FOR MOST HEAT

EL PASO, Jan. 14. (AP) — El Paso's going to battle it out with California, Arizona and New Mexico to settle just who has the hottest winter sun.

The El Paso Chamber of Commerce today accepted a challenge to join in an ice-melting contest next Tuesday.

Phoenix, Los Angeles and Carlsbad, N. M. are the other three contestants entered.

Since Carlsbad started it off by challenging the other cities, it makes the rules:

On Tuesday — weather permitting — seven 300-pound blocks of ice will be stacked. The sun is supposed to melt the ice.

When the ice is reduced to 100 pounds, the time will be computed and checked with the times it takes to melt a similar amount of ice in the other contest cities.

NEW AAU HEAD—Douglas F. Roby, Detroit manufacturer and former Michigan footballer, was named president of the Amateur Athletic Union at Daytona Beach, Fla., convention.

DOROTHY THOMPSON SAYS

Eisenhower Backers Facing Strong Foe in Taft Forces

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

This column has not, for months, doubted that General Eisenhower would allow his name to be entered as a Republican candidate for president, and would accept the nomination if offered. He is a responsible citizen. It was unthinkable that he would have permitted his supporters to go as far as they have unless he intended to reward their efforts. Although, as a member of the Army on active duty, he couldn't say "Yes," he certainly could have said "No." The absence of the "No" implied the "Yes," and we predicted that his position would be publicly clarified during January.

• • •

He has been, and still is, in a complicated situation. He wishes to remain on duty as long as he can, which necessitated someone else announcing his candidacy for him. His statement, following and supporting Senator Lodges letter to Governor Adams, is not ambiguous, but it prevents his conducting his own pre-convention campaign. To resign to seek the nomination would prejudice the European policy he has been promoting, should he fail to obtain it, whereas the nomination of another, while he stood aloof, would not.

The general could never have doubted his popular appeal, but he has been skeptical of his strength with party machines, with which Senator Taft has a long jump over other candidates, though here the senator may be approaching his maximum strength.

We interpreted Mr. Stassen's move as designed to block Taft, eventually in favor of Eisenhower. He must have known the general's willingness to run if nominated, yet entered with the general's consent.

Though Taft is strong, the anti-Taft forces in the party are in some cases fanatic, either from personal dislike, or because they believe him too rigid, and capable even of alienating would-be friends. They believe he holds no appeal whatever for youth—and in this I should guess they are largely correct. They are not convinced he could win a national campaign against Truman, and apparently the president is willing to make the test.

We are convinced that the president would not run against Eisenhower, which would leave the democrats without a well-known candidate. The president is most effective when he jumps in with both feet and brass knuckles. He would be in high form blasting at Taft but disarmed in advance against a man to whom he would have yielded place in democratic ranks, whom he himself appointed to a position of highest responsibility, and whom he has only praised.

That there is widespread public distrust and contempt of all professional politicians is, I think, true, and if so, it would operate in the general's favor in an electoral campaign. But the delegates who nominate candidates are themselves professional politicians, interested, among other things, not only in policies but in patronage. From their viewpoint, Eisenhower is an unknown quantity.

The issue will actually have to be fought out, in the absence of the general, between one group of professional politicians and another, one with their candidate on hand, the other with their candidate waiting for a draft. This does not make it easy for the general's backers, and also presents technical difficulties.

There has never, as far as I know, been a comparable situation, so one can make no predictions on the basis of past experience.

We're neighbors

Wherever you live in Texas, the oil industry is your neighbor.

For the Texas oil industry is the bread-and-butter, the opportunity, the daily work of some 190,000 Texas men and women.

The girl who sits next to you in the bus; the hearty-looking man who waves as you pass on the highway; the family behind you at the PTA; in Texas, they all could be, some certainly are oil workers. Bookkeepers, stenographers, executives, drillers, roughnecks, stillmen, geologists, salesmen, pipe liners, petroleum engineers—the oil industry supplies the livelihood of all, and many more.

Neighbors of yours, these people are, folks who pay taxes like yours, spend their money in the stores you patronize, drive the same kind of automobile, send their children to the same schools.

. . . The oil industry is more than a balance sheet, a set of statistics, an investment in derricks and pipe-stills. In Texas, it's the family next door.
