

Governor's race has to share spotlight

Anyone who thought the U.S. Senate and governor races would hog the spotlight in the May 6 primaries had better take another look at the ballots.

First glances indicate there will be at least five hotly contested statewide races in the Democratic primary and probably more.

Even the Republicans will find an excuse to get excited over a GOP gubernatorial duel, not to mention half a dozen intra-party fights in the congressional races.

Shortly before the filing deadline at 6 p.m. Monday an unexpected rough-and-tumble contest developed for a Texas Railroad Commission seat.

Full results of the filings for the Democratic and Republican primaries May 6 may not be known for at least two days because mailed filing fees postmarked before 6 p.m. Monday will be accepted.

Jerry Sadler, the former railroad commissioner and land commissioner with a reputation for upsetting political plans, decided Monday to get into the race for the two years remaining in the term of retired Railroad Commissioner Jim Langdon.

His appearance broke up what had appeared to be a quiet campaign between Democrats John Poerner of Hondo, Gov. Dolph Briscoe's appointee, and Ray Lemmon, former state legislator from Houston.

Then, to add spice to the race, there were the filings of Jake Johnson, former San Antonio legislator and a bitter political enemy of Sadler, and Jack Strong, Longview, well-known and influential former state senator.

Just before the deadline, Republican James W. Lacy, Midland oil and gas producer, joined the contest.

The winner of the race will serve on the commission until Jan. 1, 1981.

Sadler, 70, of Grapeland lost a hot runoff battle for the commission in 1976 with present commissioner Jon Newton. Sadler led the field of eight candidates in the first primary although he said he spent only $900 for campaign expenses.

Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace got a last minute Democratic primary opponent with the filing by John Thomas Henderson of Austin.

Another filing surprise Monday was the late declaration of former state senator Henry Grover of Houston to run as an independent in the U.S. Senate race in November. He will have to support the declaration with a petition containing thousands of signatures of voters who do not vote in the May 6 primary elections.

Otherwise the big time U.S. Senate race continues as it has been, with Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, slated to meet the winner of the Democratic duel between Rep. Bob Krueger, New Braunfels, and Joe Christie, former state insurance board chairman.

The governor's race remains a big time duel among Democrats Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Attorney John Hill and former Gov. Preston Smith with the winner to meet the survivor between Republicans Ray Hutchison, former state GOP chairman, and Dallas businessman Bill Clements.

Statewide candidates filed with state Democratic and Republican headquarters included:

Governor — Democrats Ray Allen Mayo, San Juan; Preston Smith, Lubbock; John Hill, Austin; Dolph Briscoe, Uvalde, and Donald Beagle, Nederland. Republicans William Clements, Dallas; Ray Hutchison, Dallas, and Clarence Thompson, Fort Worth.

U.S. Senator — Democrats Bob Krueger, New Braunfels; Joe Christie, El Paso and Lou John Papas, Houston. Republican John Tower, Wichita Falls.

Lieutenant governor: Democrats Bill Hobby, Houston;

John Hill Westbrook, Tyler; Troy Skates, Leander, and James L. McNees Jr., Dallas.

Attorney general — Democrats Price Daniel Jr., Liberty, and Mark White, Houston. Republican Jim Baker, Houston.

Comptroller — Democrat Bob Bullock, Austin. Treasurer — Democrats Charlie Sanderson, San Antonio; Warren G. Harding, Austin, and Harry Ledbetter, Austin.

Land commissioner — Democrat Bob Armstrong, Austin. Agriculture commissioner — Democrats Reagan Brown, Austin; Joe Hubenak, Rosenberg, and Don Sewell, Nocona.

Railroad commissioner (full term) — Democrats Mack Wallace, Austin and John Thomas Henderson, Austin.

Railroad commissioner (unexpired term) — Democrats Ray Lemmon, Houston; John Poerner, Hondo; Jerry Sadler, Grapeland; Jake Johnson, San Antonio and Jack Strong, Longview. Republican James W. Lacy, Midland.

Chief justice state supreme court — Democrat Joe Greenhill.

Associate justice state supreme court, Place 1 — Democrat Franklin Spears, San Antonio.

Associate justice state supreme court, Place 2 — Democrat Sam D. Johnson, Austin.

Associate justice state supreme court, Place 3 — Democrat Charles W. Barrow, San Antonio.

Associate justice state supreme court, Place 4 (unexpired) — Democrats T. C. Chaddick, Quitman and Robert M. Campbell, Waco.

Judge, court of criminal appeals, Place 1 — Democrat Wendell A. Odom, Austin.

Judge, court of criminal appeals, Place 2 — Democrats Jim Vollers, Beaumont and Sam Houston Clinton, Austin.

Judge, court of criminal appeals, Place 3 — Democrats W.C. Davis, Bryan, and Marvin Odell Teague, Houston.

Candidates who filed declarations with the secretary of state to run as independents in the November election included:

Governor — Lawrence A. Sims, Houston; John Solon, Dallas; C. Leon Pickett, Houston, and Richard A. Peterson, Austin.

U.S. Senate — Henry Grover, Houston.

Congress, District 18 — Booker Thomas Bonner Jr., Houston.

Congressional candidates with multi-county districts who filed in Democratic and Republican headquarters included:

District 10 — Democrat Jake Pickle, Austin. Republicans Rex Repass, Austin, and Emmett Hudspeth, Austin.

District 13 — Democrat Jack Hightower, Vernon. Republican Larry Kelly, Amarillo.

District 16 — Democrats Richard C. White, El Paso and Bert Williams, El Paso.

District 17 — Democrats Charles Stenholm, Stamford; Jim Baum, Big Spring; A.L. Rhodes, Abilene; James Snowden, Tye; Fike Godfrey, Abilene; James B. Sharp Jr., Big Spring, and Crews McCulloch, Weatherford. Republican Bill Fisher, Abilene.

District 19 — Democrats Morris Sheets, Lubbock, and Kent Hance, Lubbock. Republicans George Bush, Midland, and Joe Hickox, Lubbock.

District 21 — Democrats Nelson Wolff, Leon Springs; Woodrow Glasscock, Hondo; Joe Sullivan, San Antonio; Paul Dahlgren, San Antonio and Steve Clark, San Antonio. Republicans Neil Calnan, San Antonio; Bobby Locke, San Antonio and Tom Loeffler, Hunt.

Several contests in Demo Primary

Campaign treasurer designations and filing fees for the May 6 party primary elections came due Monday evening, and with the closing of the county clerk's office Monday at 6 p.m., the ballots were finalized for the upcoming election.

One new filing came Monday. Bill Westbrook filed his designation for the commissioner of precinct four slot, joining four others for the seat vacated by Jack Buchanan, who has announced for county judge.

The only candidate for the upcoming Republican primary election is Sam Hunnicutt, running for chairman of the Republican party.

The candidates for the Democratic primary are: For county judge, incumbent Bill Tune, Frankie Boyd, Jack Buchanan, Milton Kirby, and Billie Carr.

For district judge, Jim Gregg and George Thomas.

For commissioner of precinct two, incumbent Ike Rupard, Paul Allen, Bill Bennett, and Curtis R. (Bo) Crabtree.

For commissioner of precinct four, James Baird Jr., Terry Hanson, Merle Stroup, David Barr and Bill Westbrook.

For justice of the peace, precinct one, place two, incumbent Gus Ochotorena Jr., Lewis Heflin, Jerry Roach, and Robert C. (Bob) Smith.

For justice of the peace, precinct two, incumbent Lulu Adams and Robert McIntosh.

Unopposed candidates are Peggy Crittenden, district clerk; Margaret Ray, county clerk; Frances Glenn, county treasurer; C. R. Crim, county surveyor; and Evan Evans, chairman of the Democratic party.

Democratic precinct chairman candidates are Charlie Merritt, one; Eddie Acir, two; Delano Shaw, three; Daniel B. Wise, four; James (Buddy) Barr, five; Lloyd Underwood, six; L. R. Mundt, eight; Clovis Phinney Jr., nine; Hamlin Elrod, 10; J. Alden Ryan, 11; Charles Burks, 12; Larry Shaw, 13; Alta Lee Underwood, 15; John J. Roemer Sr. and Milton Isaiah, 16; M. H. Boatler, 19; Cecil L. Hamilton, 20; Mrs. H. C. Wallin, 21; and Gary Stretcher, 22.

Vacant precincts are numbers seven, 17, and 18.

Blizzard triggers floods, blackouts

By the Associated Press

A savage blizzard with shrieking winds and whirling snow held the Northeast in a stranglehold today. Parts of Boston were blacked out, coastal towns were flooded and thousands were forced to seek refuge in hotels, hospitals, schools, a movie theater and other emergency shelters.

A state of emergency was declared across southern New England; highways and schools were closed and the National Guard was called out.

A separate storm muscled into the Midwest Monday night, also packing snow and high winds. Almost seven inches of snow fell in Chicago and highways were blocked by deep drifts throughout the Dakotas.

The storm which moved up the East Coast Monday had dumped 16.5 inches of snow on New York City by 1 a.m., and 18 inches and more were predicted for New England points.

More than a dozen people died, including three Rhode Island heart attack victims who could not be reached by rescue vehicles and two men who suffocated from carbon monoxide while marooned in a disabled snow plow truck outside Philadelphia.

Hundreds of families were evacuated from their homes by amphibious vehicles in New Jersey, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York when wind-driven surf vaulted seawalls.

Airports shut down from Philadelphia into New England. Air traffic controllers at Boston's Logan International left their posts in the 285-foot control tower, the tallest in the world, when winds were clocked at 79 mph. Gusts of 92 mph were recorded on Cape Cod.

Hundreds of stranded persons awakened today in movie houses, sports arenas and hospitals used for shelters. Hotels were mobbed in Boston and New York when commuters could not get home.

Some 500 motorists were evacuated from Massachusetts 128 at Dedham, 20 miles southwest of Boston, put aboard buses creeping behind snowplows and taken to a Dedham movie house for the night.

Some 12,000 fans who attended a college hockey tournament at Boston Garden were told to spend the night there. Cots and food were brought in, but officials said only 150 chose to stay overnight.

"We're really careful on the hunting regulations. Wouldn't it be awful if we got caught on a hunting violation with a federal judge and the Attorney General of the United States in the group?" Weaver joked.

Blacked out at 3 a.m. were Beacon Hill, the downtown and Back Bay sections, and the suburbs of Waltham, Sharon, Weston and Weyland. Scattered outages were reported in other towns served by the utility.

Bentsen to co-sponsor farm target price bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The plight of American farming echoed on Capitol Hill again on Monday as 10 congressmen testified before the House Agriculture Committee and a Texas announced from the Senate floor legislation aimed at easing the "worst cost-price squeeze in modern times."

Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen agreed to team with Republican Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas to cosponsor a bill calling for higher target prices to farmers who reduce their production.

And Democratic Rep. Ray Roberts, noting "our farmers are facing a very real financial crisis, that of decreasing prices and rapidly escalating costs," was one of 10 congressmen voicing his support in testimony before the House Agriculture Committee.

The House committee resumes testimony this morning with Rep. George Mahon, the Texas Democrat who chairs the powerful House Appropriations Committee, the first of 21 people scheduled to testify.

TODAY

A meeting of supporters of Jim Baum for Congress will be held in the Jim Baum headquarters, corner of Third and Rannels streets, at 7:30 p.m. today.

Barbecue for members of the Disabled American Veterans and their auxiliary, hosted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, 6 p.m., V.F.W. Hall with a meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Meeting of the Howard County Sheriff's Posse, 7:30 p.m., in the clubhouse on the Andrews Highway.

WEDNESDAY

Chamber of Commerce Transportation Committee meeting; Chamber Conference Room, 5 p.m.

Meeting of the Howard County Tax Appraisal Board, County Courtroom, 3 p.m.

Meeting of the Big Spring School Board, 5:15 p.m., in the Board Room. Permian Basin Regional Planning Council board of directors, Terminal, 1:30 p.m.

Offbeat: New police patches

Another memento of Webb AFB bit the dust this week when the Big Spring Police emblems were removed from the uniforms.

The old emblem held an oil derrick, a bale of cotton and a USAF jet flying across the sky.

The new emblems, which will be sewn on the uniforms in the near future, hold an American Eagle and the American Flag.

"Guess we won't have to change them again unless America goes under," Chief Stanley Bogard quipped this week.

TV's best: Laughs

NBC premieres its new "Just For Laughs," at 7 p.m. on channel two. Martha Raye, Milton Berle, Connie Stevens, Will Geer, and Tom Dreesen are only a few of the stars who answer the question "What do you do just for laughs?"

His visit a secret

Attorney General Griffin Bell hunts in Big Spring

GRIFIN BELL
Attorney General visits

By MARJ CARPENTER
Griffin Bell, attorney general of the United States, sat in the living room of R.H. Weaver, local attorney Sunday and chuckled when he read an Associated Press story in the Big Spring Herald.

The story, which was on page 6A told about Bill Brock calling Saturday for the removal of Griffin Bell from office.

One paragraph said, "A spokesman for the Justice Department said Saturday that Bell was unavailable for comment on Brock's statement."

Bell chuckled again and said, "I am indeed unavailable for comment. Let's go quail hunting."

For the past seven or eight years, Bell has come to Big Spring with Judge Leo Brewster, federal judge from Abilene, to hunt, as guests of Weaver.

Weaver said, "I didn't alert the news media because the man comes here to get away from it all. He started coming when he was judge of the Fifth Court of Civil Appeals in New Orleans."

This was the first year that he was accompanied by an FBI agent, so the local group just made plans to entertain the agent as well. "Both of them shot some quail," Weaver related.

Mr. and Mrs. Rich Anderson of Borden County, Mrs. Dorothy Garrett and the Weavers held a small dinner party Saturday night for the visiting dignitary.

The only other person who knew he was in town was pledged to secrecy. She was Margaret Ray, the county clerk. The reason she knew is that a hunting license was purchased for Bell. He stays within the law on his hunting.

When she was typing it out, she said, "Sure — this is the Attorney General of the United States." Weaver answered, "Well it really is, but don't tell it around. He comes here to get away."

"We're really careful on the hunting regulations. Wouldn't it be awful if we got caught on a hunting violation with a federal judge and the Attorney General of the United States in the group?" Weaver joked.

Weaver said that Bell is from around Atlanta and will go back to Georgia after his term as Attorney General. "He had hunted bob whites in that part of the world but likes our Mexican blue quail," Weaver related.

He said that Bell arrived in Big Spring a little later than usual this year "because he hated to leave until he got the new director approved for the FBI. He thinks a lot of Webster," Weaver added.

"Griffin never did me any favors," Weaver laughed. He added, "The only time he ever made a court decision on anything of mine was when he reversed a decision that had been in my favor and ruled against me in the Fifth Court of Civil Appeals."

Then Weaver laughed and added, "We're just good friends and hunting partners. Those people under that kind of pressure need to get away once in a while."

QUITTING WEEKLY SHOW — Entertainer Carol Burnett shown in her familiar charwoman character in this 1966 film photo, is giving up her weekly comedy show on CBS. In a prepared statement read by her husband and producer Joe Hamilton, Miss Burnett said she wanted to be free of the demands of a weekly show and to replenish herself and look into other areas.

No FBI probe planned

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Agent-in-Charge Joseph O'Connell of the FBI has denied that any investigation is contemplated of a consulting contract between the governor's energy office and Planergy, Inc.

"There is no investigation being contemplated at the present time," O'Connell said Monday.

The Austin American-Statesman quoted an unnamed FBI source Saturday as saying a probe of the $620,000 contract with Planergy, which involves federal funds, would be discussed with the U. S. attorney this week.

But O'Connell said the conference he plans to have late this week with U. S. Attorney Jamie Boyd dealt with an investigation of another use of federal funds.

Peace in a week--If

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat says there could be a Middle East peace "in less than a week" if Israel agreed to return to its old borders and made Jerusalem an open city. Sadat also insisted, in a National Press Club speech Monday, on creation of a Palestinian state. Meanwhile, reports circulated that President Carter will ask Congress to approve the sale of a squadron of F-5E light combat jets to Egypt. Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., a strong Israeli supporter, said he thinks Carter is close to a decision. He said he would ask him to delay such a move.

UMW mulls pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Mine Workers union is ready to start the ratification process that could end the 64-day coal strike, but approval is not automatic. Union President Arnold Miller will have to sell the proposed settlement to his bargaining council, which proved in 1974 it is not a rubber stamp. In that year, the council ordered Miller to renegotiate portions of a tentative three-year agreement, and then turned down the pact before ratifying it in a second vote. The latest proposed contract would boost wages and fringe benefits by nearly 37 percent over three years.

YMCA membership drive goal topped

The YMCA membership drive surpassed its goal by 13 percent for the year.

"We are really pleased. We did without Webb (AFB) just like everyone else, and still came out on top," said Mike McCracken, director.

"The Y board really appreciates the support of the community in this drive," he added.

Money brought in by the drive totaled $31,075, 13 percent over the goal of $27,500. Sid Smith was the most successful recruiter, bringing in $2,105, and winning a $25 savings account at First Federal Savings and Loan for his efforts.

Those bringing in over $1,000 membership money were: Paula Talbot, Al Valdes, Danny Valdes and Louis Smith. All four teams brought in 100 percent or more of the group's goal, and these totals were: the Paula Talbot team, $6,875; Jim Parks team, $6,854; Al Valdes team, $9,872; and W. A. (Dub) Moore team, $7,891.

McElrath

'critical'

Charles Allen McElrath, who was injured in a one-vehicle roll-over on the Gail Road north of Big Spring Saturday night has been transferred to Lubbock Methodist Hospital where he is listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit.

Although early indications were that McElrath had sustained no serious injuries, it was later learned that his condition was much more serious than first thought, with possible neck or spinal injuries.

Pot plane probe progressing

"It's hard to work airplanes from a Plymouth," said a Department of Public Safety narcotics sergeant, when asked about the frequency of marijuana flights over Howard County.

The answer came in connection with the 5 a.m. Saturday morning landing of a Cessna airplane loaded with approximately 500 pounds of marijuana.

"We don't have airplanes to work this kind of thing," Sergeant Gerald Bradford said, "so when we think we have a route pinpointed, we inform customs. We get real good cooperation from the Customs Air Patrol."

One flier the Air Patrol missed, landed the stolen Cessna six miles west of Big Spring on I-20 in a rest area.

"He thought he was landing on the roadway," said Highway Patrolman Bill Jennings, "and he was a real good pilot to miss the trucks parked in the rest area."

The investigation, handled by the Department of Public Safety, the Howard County Sheriff's Office, the Texas Rangers, and state narcotics officers, is being pursued locally.

"We are pleased with the progress of the investigation," said Jennings.

The value of the load, which was packed in Mexican fruit boxes, was set at $15,000. But after being sold twice and cut into lids for street sale, according to laws officers, its value could reach $100,000.

The Cessna 206, which had been stolen from Ft. Collins, Colo., was reportedly forced down by gas fumes.

"There is no question that the marijuana came from Mexico," said Jennings, "but he had another 400 miles worth of gasoline left in his extra tanks. We think that the fumes from the two extra tanks on the floor of the plane forced him to make the emergency landing."

According to Sheriff A.N. Standard, the plane had already flown about 700 miles, putting its origin in central Mexico.

The marijuana has been taken by narcotics agents to Midland and transferred to DPS headquarters in Austin.

"We are sure there are numerous flights like this across West Texas daily — or nightly," said Bradford. "Any abandoned air strip or white caliche road in the moon light can serve as a refueling stop or an unloading area."

"We think that the pilots get about $3,000 per trip. Some of them are such expert pilots, they might very well be Vietnam vets."

"Their favorite route is apparently across the border and over Big Bend Park."

Prisoner beating quiz

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Federal and local authorities have launched separate probes into an alleged prisoner beating that resulted in a county jail inmate being hospitalized and the reassignments for three city officers.

A hospital spokesman here

vote petition

Jim Sharp revealed Monday evening he filed a petition containing more than 700 signatures to qualify him for the 17th Congressional Democratic Primary election.

Sharp, one of seven Democrats to file for the position, said he filed the petition with State Democratic Headquarters just before the 6 p.m. filing deadline. To qualify for the ballot, a candidate must file a petition containing at least 500 signatures or pay a $1,500 filing fee.

said the 19-year-old victim was suffering from a swollen nose, bruises and possible internal injuries when he was admitted Sunday.

He has not been formally charged, although police said they arrested him on several counts including assault and resisting arrest.

A report from Lubbock County Sheriff C.H. Blanchard, released Monday, said deputies saw the officers drag the man into a booking room, his hands cuffed behind his back, and slam his head into the concrete floor.

Blanchard said he reported the alleged beating to the criminal district attorney's office Saturday night because he thought the alleged beating was "an uncalculated measure." He said a deputy told him, "They worked him (the inmate) over."

"I want the blame laid to where it is supposed to be," said Blanchard. "I don't see any way that much force could have been necessary."

He was in handcuffs."

FBI agent Ben Harrison and Tom Cannon of the district attorney's office officially began investigating the alleged beating Monday. They declined further comment.

Meanwhile, Lt. Ray Huffman said the three officers have been reassigned to desk jobs pending the outcome of the investigations.

Police reports filed by the officers state the man was stopped after he reportedly threatened another Lubbock resident. The officers said the man resisted arrest and had to be handcuffed but only "necessary force" was used. The report also states at no time during the struggle was the man struck by the officers.

However, Blanchard, backing his deputies' statements fully, disagrees.

"They used too much force, that's all there is to it," he said.

Three potentially hot items may test trustees

The Big Spring School District Board of Trustees confront three potentially flammable items in their Wednesday meeting.

The agenda for the session includes two executive sessions, one for an appeal of a student suspension and possibly another for administrative employment. The student suspension recalls January's meeting when several students' suspensions were reduced after a lengthy executive session.

According to Superintendent Lynn Hise, the appeal has been made by the parents of three students in connection with an incident occurring within the past 10 days. Hise said that the punishment had been handed out under the section of the school code dealing with unacceptable behavior. The section includes sections on alcohol, drugs, and fighting.

The administrative employment will include discussion on the renewal of teacher contracts for the coming year. An executive session will be called only if requested by a board member.

The third potentially flammable item is the School Trustee election order, starting off another political race. After the order is approved, candidates for the school board may file in the school business office until March 1. Board vice president Jim Bill Little and Don Reynolds will be up for reelection.

Other routine items include a budget statement, consideration of the social security referendum, and the superintendent's report.

The meeting begins Wednesday at 5:15 p.m. in the school board room.

Rain in area totals mixed

Rainfall over the area seems to have been more plentiful towards Ackerly, and fading off further south.

Ackerly gauges recorded rainfall from .45 of an inch to .5, with Big Spring, Coahoma and Lomax, reports falling off to .3 of an inch. Further south in Garden City, even less precipitation fell, a total of .24 of an inch last night.

Officially, the U.S. Experiment Station here recorded .3 of an inch, bringing the total for the year to .66 of an inch, just above the average for this date.

Prior to this rainfall, the yearly total was approximately one-half of .60 of an inch average. Even though the rainfall is now slightly above average, it has not been as beneficial as it could have been, due to the fact that it has fallen in such small amounts, and the sun had dried up much of the moisture between rains.

BIDDING ON A LOT OF LOTS — These Howard County residents turned out to check out a bargain — the sale of Coahoma lots starting at $20. The auction started this morning at the south entrance of the county courthouse, with deputy Eddie Owens acting as auctioneer. For some of these people, the bargain is too good to pass up, even if they don't know exactly where the property is located.

Coahoma lots auctioned

A total of 47 lots inside the city of Coahoma were being auctioned off on the courthouse steps here today.

There were also seven lots in Big Spring in the auction.

The Coahoma lots were ones on which city, school and college taxes had been owed for many years. The city council in Coahoma agreed with other governmental groups to auction those off at low cost so that they would get back on the active tax roll.

Most of the lots started at an opening bid of $20 and were going for $25 to $35 on an average this morning.

Some of the more desirable lots started at $50.

Two of the Big Spring lots in the Brown addition started at $10 each.

All bidders at the courthouse this morning registered at the time the sale began with the person conducting the sale, in accordance with state law.

Deputy Eddie Owen acted as auctioneer in the transaction here this morning.

The sale was based on judicial foreclosure of the statutory tax liens on the property.

The purchasers received the ordinary type of sheriff's deed, which is without warranty, express or implied.

Mysterious booms along Texas coast

PORT LAVACA, Texas (AP) — None of these easy-going coastal dwellers are panicking, but they're still mystified by what it was that authorities said shook buildings and rattled windows last Friday.

It was about noon. Office workers were heading for lunchrooms or the corner cafe. Fishermen put down their nets and drove home or reached for brown paper bags.

"Boom...Boom..." Almost simultaneously, residents in Matagorda, Victoria, Goliad and Calhoun counties along the Texas coast grabbed telephones, calling police and neighbors to find out what happened. One startled fisherman called it a "hellacious big noise."

Port Lavaca Mayor K.A. Wallis said Monday he was working in a noisy printing shop and didn't hear the sounds. He figures it "was probably just a sonic boom."

Then again, Wallis said it had been five or six years since the area was last rocked by a sonic boom.

A spokesman at a nearby U.S. Coast Guard Station said no aircraft appeared on the station's radar screens when the booms were heard.

Demo primary interest perks

STANTON — A lot of interest has been generated in the Democratic primary in Martin County.

Many of the races are contested with County Judge Jimmy Mathis and Doris Stephenson, county clerk, escaping having opponents.

Kathleen Lewis, county treasurer is opposed by Faye Langston, who lives in Stanton and works at State National Bank in Big Spring and Helen Thraill, who lives in Lenora and works at the branch office of Midland Savings and Loan in Stanton.

For the first time, there are candidates for justice of the peace precinct two. The county has been operating without a JP at that location.

The candidates include Wes Morgan and David Standeford. Opposing Martin Gibson, incumbent for justice of the peace, precinct one are Lupe Hinojosa, and Carol Yater, former county judge.

For commissioner of precinct two, Mason Coggins, incumbent is facing two opponents, Jess Biles and George Herzog.

In precinct four, Earl Newcomer also faces two opponents including Grady Grantham, Knott and Lee Roman, Flower Grove.

Police beat Two cars, beer, tire stolen

Two cars were stolen in the city Monday night.

Thieves made off with a 1973 Pontiac belonging to Charmaine McCarty, 2510 W. 15th, during the night. The vehicle had been parked with the keys still in the ignition, in front of the owner's home.

Loss was estimated at $2,500.

A 1966 Plymouth Barracuda was stolen from the driveway of the home of Guy Heffington, 1404 Wood, sometime between 9 and 11:30 p.m. Monday. Again, it is believed that the keys were inside the car.

Loss was estimated at $500.

A spare tire was stolen from the bed of a pickup belonging to C. C. Briggs, Gail Route, while the truck was parked outside Denny's Restaurant. The incident occurred around 10 p.m. Sunday.

The tire was valued at $150.

Three cases of Coors Beer were stolen from a delivery truck in the parking lot of the Gregg Street Safeway Store, 10:35 a.m. Monday. The truck's driver saw two men drive off in a beige car with the brew.

Loss was estimated at $16.95.

Two fender benders were reported Monday. Vehicles driven by Elton S. Franklin, 4009 Dixon, and Adalberto Martinez, 2110 Runnels, collided on the 300 block of Nolan, 4:12 p.m.

A parked vehicle belonging to George W. Painter, Vandenberg, was struck by a vehicle that left the scene in the parking lot of the Ramada Inn, 8:32 a.m.

National Band picks

Two Big Spring High School Seniors have been selected as members of the 1978 National High School Honors Band. Blane Hinton and Paul Ruiz will travel to Chicago, Ill. April 11 to participate in the honors band.

The band, sponsored by the National Band Association, is composed of 110 music students representing all states. Dr. William D. Revelli, director of bands emeritus at the University of Wisconsin, will conduct the group.

The band will perform a concert for the Music Educators National Conference on April 15. Blane and Paul will return to Big Spring the next day.

Blane and Paul are both senior members of the BSHS Honors Band, performing on

Don Yarbrough asks new trial

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Don Yarbrough's lawyer has filed a motion for a new trial in Yarbrough's perjury conviction, claiming the evidence did not support the conviction.

Waggoner Carr, the former attorney general who is representing Yarbrough, said Monday an amended motion would be filed later, spelling out the reasons that a new trial should be granted.

Yarbrough, former Texas Supreme Court justice, was sentenced to five years in prison Jan. 27 on a charge that he lied to the Travis County grand jury about a meeting at which he instructed an associate to forge a car title certificate.

Cotton broker is sentenced

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Childless cotton broker Vaughn B. Nowlin has been sentenced to one year in federal prison for failure to pay taxes withheld from the wages of his cotton company employees.

Nowlin pleaded guilty Nov. 30, 1977 in a Lubbock federal court to one felony count. U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward handed down the sentence on Monday.

On Oct. 26, 1977, a federal grand jury in Lubbock charged Nowlin with 39 counts of alleged tax law violations in relation to 1976 employment tax returns at three of his businesses in Childress.

The maximum sentence Nowlin could have received Monday was five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The charges against Nowlin resulted from an IRS investigation.

Tax evasion trial delayed

The income tax evasion trial of the Rev. Roy Honea, Big Spring pastor, has been postponed until April by Federal District Judge John H. Wood in Midland.

The case originally was docketed for trial last week. The Rev. Mr. Honea is pastor of the Grace Baptist Church here. The ruling was announced Monday by the U.S. District Clerk's office in Midland.

Tax appraisal unit to meet

The Howard County Tax Appraisal Board will meet Wednesday to tackle a routine agenda in the county courtroom. The meeting starts at 3 p.m.

Items on the agenda include a financial report and a progress report filed by Tax Appraiser Earl Dean.

Paul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Ruiz, 1316 Wood. Paul is captain of the color guard for the Steer Marching Band, a member of the Key Club, and an all-region and all-area participant for two years. Paul is also currently serving his second year as a member of the all-state band.

Both boys have been first chair in the Howard County Honor Band, on their respective instruments, for two years. Both plan to attend Texas Tech and major in music.

LUBBOCK — Jesse Owens, a former Olympics track star, will lecture at Texas Tech University Center Theatre at 8:15 p.m., Thursday.

His topic will be "A Life of Fulfillment." Tickets are $2 for students and $3 for the general public.

Weather

Freezing drizzle due to continue

By the Associated Press.

A variety of winter weather blanketed the Lone Star State today.

Residents of North Central and Northeast Texas awoke to find one to two inches of snow on their lawns, and many workers were expecting to show up late for work because of icy streets and highways.

The eastern edge of the Texas Panhandle also reported snow.

The remainder of the state was under a cloud cover, with scattered light rain or drizzle east of the Pecos River. Foggy conditions were reported over much of the state east of the mountains.

Dense fog, with visibility frequently below a half mile, was reported from the Pecos River northward to the Panhandle. Precipitation amounts Monday night and early today were generally less than one-quarter inch.

FORECAST — WEST TEXAS — A travelers advisory continued for the Panhandle this morning. A light freezing drizzle, mixed with snow in the Panhandle, caused hazardous driving conditions today. Intermittent light rain is forecast for the remainder of area today.

Intermittent light snow, mixed with freezing drizzle north, light rain south tonight diminishing Wednesday. Continued rather today much of the area east of the Pecos. Colder most sections tonight, central and southeast. Wednesday: Highs today and Wednesday near 30. Panhandle to low 40s. Big Bend: Lows tonight near 20. Panhandle to near 40. extreme Southwest.

EXTENDED FORECAST — WEST TEXAS — Fair and cool Thursday becoming partly cloudy and warmer Friday and Saturday. Showers and a few thunderstorms over most sections Saturday. Highs Thursday 40s north and mountains to 50s south warming to 50s north to 70s south Saturday. Lows Thursday in 20s north and mountains to 40s south moderating to 30s north and 40s south except 20s mountains by Saturday.

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow flurries will continue today in the Northeast. Rain is forecast for the central and western Gulf turning into snow over Texas and extending to the Dakotas. Snow flurries are forecast for the eastern Rockies and rain is forecast for most of the Pacific coast. Cold weather is forecast for most of the country.

Student aid program unveiled

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will announce a major national aid program for college students from middle-income families on Wednesday, congressional leaders said today.

The Democratic leaders told reporters about the announcement after breakfast with the president at the White House. They declined to disclose details of the program, saying they would leave that to Carter.

In its budget for the upcoming fiscal year, the administration proposed to set aside $700 million in contingency funds for a promised alternative to demands in Congress for tuition tax credit.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. has said that families in lower and middle-income brackets need federal assistance in sending their children to school but that tax credits would provide benefits not just to those groups but to high-income taxpayers as well.

"We cannot afford poverty programs for people who aren't poor," Califano said.

On another topic, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told reporters he expects the House to pass legislation establishing an agency for consumer protection. "It'll be very close," O'Neill declared. "But I'll be surprised if we don't win."

The Carter administration tried to gain approval for the agency last year, but the leadership withdrew the legislation for lack of support.

On the president's energy program, O'Neill said the House expects the Senate to propose a compromise on deregulating natural gas prices.

"I have great expectations that something may come in the next 48 hours," he said, adding that House members of a conference committee

Choate seeks fourth term as local mayor

Wade Choate, treasurer and general manager of Webb Federal Credit Union, announced that he would seek a fourth term as mayor of Big Spring. Mayor Choate cited ongoing industrial projects, proposed expansion of the Big Spring Industrial Park, and current city expansion and development as reasons for seeking another term.

"During the past year," Choate said, "I have been working with the Steering Committee on the Base Reuse Plan. As a result of this work, I am familiar with the contracts and processes industrial clients must go through in getting access to the Webb property. I feel by serving another term as mayor, and my previous experience in working with the Base Reuse Plan, I can help insure the orderly transfer of the property from the U.S. Government to the City of Big Spring during this critical period. I have been dealing with these agencies and representatives in the past and feel that I need to continue doing so during the next year to insure a smooth transition and to avoid any pitfalls that might develop," Choate continued.

Having served as mayor of Big Spring since being named to that position by the city council in 1972, Choate is the only person to serve as mayor since the position was decided by popular vote in 1974. He has served on the city commission since 1970 and was mayor pro-tem in 1971. During that time, the debt per capita in Big Spring has decreased from $53 to $29, which is the lowest in the area cities. In addition, the tax ratio per capita is also the lowest in the surrounding cities according to a report prepared by independent auditors.

Choate has also served as county auditor for two years and as district clerk for six years.

Wade Choate was named general manager of Webb Federal Credit Union in 1965 and has served on the Credit Union Commission for the State of Texas. He has served as Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Members Insurance Companies and is a director of the Texas Credit Union League and Affiliates.

In addition to his many professional credits, Mayor Choate has also been very active in countless civic activities and functions in Big Spring. He is a member of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce and has been a member of the Ambassador's Club. He also served on the Base-Community Relations Committee for Webb AFB until the base was closed in October 1977.

His various involvements in countless activities at different levels resulted in his being selected as the Rotary Club's Outstanding Man of the Year in 1974 and to be included in the Who's Who in Politics in the South and Southwest, the Who's Who in Texas, and the Who's Who in America.

Wade Choate is the grandson of W. T. (Bud) Roberts, first settler in Howard County, and is the son of Mrs. John Harold Choate. He is married to the former Toni LaRue Barron. They have two children, Kyle Wade, 18, and Melody, 14, both of Big Spring.

Stained Glass course will begin Wednesday

The Continuing Education Department of Howard College is offering a course in stained glass. Scott Long will teach the class.

The class will meet on Wednesday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning Wednesday for six weeks, in the Art Building.

The course will include the development of color composition, design and basic glass cutting techniques to construct a stained glass window. Supply of all glass, copper tape, and patterns will be the responsibility of the individual student. Basic colors (red, yellow, blue, green) of glass and copper tape will be in stock in the Howard College Bookstore, at a reasonable price. Registration cost is $20.00.

The class will be limited to 12 students in order for Long to give individual instruction. Pre-registration is encouraged.

You may register in the Dean of Occupational Education Office located in the Horace Garrett Building. For more information call 267-6311, ext. 26 or 70.

Gentle woman can fill the void

Rudy Perpich, governor of Minnesota, has seen fit to name a good and gentle woman to fill out the unexpired term of Hubert Humphrey in the United States Senate.

She is Muriel Humphrey, wife of the late Hubert. She will serve until a special election can be held in Minnesota next November.

Hubert often referred to his wife as "the brains of the family." Everyone who knew them were always reassured by her presence, noting that he always like to have her at his side. She was there to share the good times and bad.

While there was an emotional factor in Gov. Perpich's selection, many feel that the United States Senate will not be diluted but enhanced by having Mrs. Humphrey as its only woman member.

The late Senator Humphrey was in public life a great many years and served his state and his nation in countless capacities. She shared his life 42 years and he, no doubt, discussed a great many grave issues with her. The senator-designate, no doubt, is possessed of a unique insight into the workings of the upper Chamber. Few should take issue with the appointment, even those who might have disagreed with Hubert's political philosophy.

"There is every reason," Mrs. Humphrey said upon being notified of

Gov. Perpich's decision, "that I can undertake these duties and discharge them in a vigorous manner."

Gov. Perpich said simply, after announcing his decision: "Muriel Humphrey should be appointed to the United States Senate because she, better than anyone else could continue the programs and philosophy of Hubert Humphrey."

The Happy Warrior will be missed but not as much had Muriel been retired from public life too.

Who is in charge?

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Americans were shocked to read last week that a recent survey of teenagers showed they were completely ignorant of how American government operated as well as who was in charge.

Some of the findings: Fewer than half could name one of their senators or their representatives in the House.

About a third did not know a senator was elected. More than a third did not believe a newspaper should be allowed to publish criticism of elected officials. A fourth didn't know that the Senate is part of Congress. A third did not know that the Constitution outlines their civil rights.

WHILE THIS IS very revealing as to where teenagers' head are these days, another survey taken at the same time came up with some even more frightening data. In interviews with 150,000 people over 35 years of age, the study disclosed a startling ignorance on the part of Americans in the middle and older age groups when it came to the really important issues of the country.

For example, while 70 per cent of those questioned knew Guy Lombardo had died, only 25 per cent were aware that, although Elvis Presley had passed away, he still lives in the hearts of his fans through a multi-million dollar souvenir business. Although for all intents and purposes he is gone, Elvis will still outsell President Carter on a magazine cover.

Only 15 per cent of those questioned knew the difference between "Laverne and Shirley."

Less than a third of the senior citizens over 65 had any knowledge that Burt Reynolds was not dating actress Sally Field, who is only 31 years old.

HARVEY ROTHMERE, a teenager who had taken the survey, said the ignorance of grown-ups when it comes to rock music was appalling.

"Less than two per cent knew that one of the Sex Pistols had OD'ed on a plane from L.A. to New York."

"What's a Sex Pistol?" I asked.

"There you have it," Harvey said. "That's one of the reasons grown-ups have no idea what's going on. You media people are not doing your job. The Sex Pistols are a punk rock group from England."

"What's a punk rock group?" I asked.

"It's a group of people who play punk rock and do sickening things on the stage that make you want to wretch."

"Beautiful," I said, "but what does punk rock have to do with our generation?"

"What does the Senate have to do with ours?" Harvey retorted. "If you don't know Johnny Rotten, why should we know the name of our congressman?"

"Well, you should at least know something about the Constitution," I said.

"We don't have time. We have to keep up with Cher's divorce from Greg Allman. You grown-ups think we're stupid just because we don't know the name of the Vice President of the United States. But can anyone over 35 name the last six women Mick Jagger has taken to a disco club?"

"You owe it to your country to know something about how your government is run," I protested.

Harvey was really hostile. "Suppose we did know the name of our senator. What good would it do us?"

"Well, you could write to him about how you feel on the issues of the day."

"And then what?"

"He could write you back thanking you for your letter."

"I'd rather get an autographed photo of Lee Majors."

"Who's Lee Majors?" I wanted to know.

"I don't believe it. He's Farrah Fawcett's husband. No wonder your generation can't make it on Social Security."

Drug effect may help diagnosis

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you please tell me the difference between angina pectoris pain and a stomach problem. My doctor told me to take stomach medicine, and if the pain disappears that's the problem. If not, I am to take Nitrostat. What is that? These answers don't satisfy me. — Mrs. E.C.

The symptoms may be similar. Sometimes relief with certain medicines is one of the clues to the cause. But there are other, better ways. A detailed history of the type of pain, its location, when it occurs — after activity, meals — and so on.

For angina, a stress electrocardiogram (after exercise) should give telltale changes. For a stomach problem, an X-ray might show hiatal hernia, ulcer, or gall-bladder disease.

Antacids, which may be what you mean by "stomach medicine," may also relieve angina pain. On the other hand, Nitrostat (a form of nitroglycerine) can relieve stomach distress along with the heart pain of angina.

So you see, this approach is not always reliable. A thorough health history and physical examination are more in order to pinpoint the pain source. If the simple antacid approach shows no improvement, that is very likely what your doctor will insist upon.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been bothered with an intestinal ailment for two months. I have diarrhea. I had a checkup, including blood tests and X-rays of the colon. The tests were negative.

I was told to avoid coffee, tea, colas, and to eat fruit, but to avoid vegetables. I didn't get any detailed diet, but was told to drink milk. Do you have any other diet suggestions? I would like your booklet on colitis. — Mrs. S.B.

There are too many causes of diarrhea for me to be specific in my answer. Too many possibilities — the effects of a bacteria or virus infection, an emotional episode ("nervous bowel"), or some other interference with proper digestion of foods. Perhaps an allergy. Whatever the cause, an appropriate diet can help get you over the problem. For some reason your digestive system is not up to par. Food is not being assimilated and is entering the colon (large bowel) in an abnormal manner (your diarrhea). The X-rays show no structural abnormalities (as narrowing or obstruction) and the blood tests show no signs of infection. This narrows causes down to nerves or to the after effects of an infection in the past.

If an allergy is involved, milk would be a prime suspect, so avoiding that is worth a try. My booklet on colitis discusses diet in more depth and has a section of diet suggestions. You might study this. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald. Beware of dehydration during this time. Get fluids.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am told men can have a decrease in male hormones at middle age just as women have a reduction of their female hormone. So why isn't there any such thing as male menopause, as the doctors are always saying? — Mrs. H.F.

There may be a decrease in the male hormone (androgen) production that may produce some middle-age instability. But it is not significant, not nearly as pronounced as the woman's loss of estrogen production. In serious cases, androgen therapy can help the male. The so-called "male menopause" is a result of psychological more than of physical changes.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am nearly 16 and have missed my period for three months now. I am afraid to tell my parents for there is a possibility I am pregnant. I would like to know if there is anything besides pregnancy that would cause one to miss her period? — No name, please.

Get your head out of the sand. There are other causes, but pregnancy is the No. 1 suspect. Even anxiety about becoming pregnant can be a cause.

See a doctor or a Planned Parenthood Agency (consult the telephone directory) where pregnancy can be checked out. It certainly can be determined at three months. Whatever the cause, you cannot hide it forever. You may need medical attention, anyway.

Do you often have a "stomach ache"? If so, your stomach may not be the real trouble spot. Dr. Thosteson's new booklet, "Stomach and Other Abdominal Pains: A Checklist," tells you why. For your copy, write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Wanted: Six words

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — The deletion of six little words from the official testimony given to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last July by William E. Schaefele Jr. has triggered doubt and fear in the government of Greek Prime Minister Constantine Karamanlis over U.S. intentions in the Aegean Sea, an explosive hotbed in the crisis between Greece and Turkey.

This unreported event must be perceived in the light of a new phase-out of World Bank aid and a cutback of grant military aid for Greece. Both of these are viewed by the strong pro-Greek congressional lobby as pressure on Greece to show flexibility in its dangerous Aegean Sea dispute with Turkey over control of the continental shelf and air space over the sea.

WHAT DEEPLY disturbs Greece's powerful allies here is the overall political impact on Karamanlis, severely weakened in last November's election, and on President Carter's uphill fight to restore the integrity and strength of NATO's southern flank.

It was on July 12 that Schaefele was questioned on his appointment as ambassador to Greece. Until now, the withdrawal of Schaefele's name for that post has been attributed to Greek anger over his use of the phrase "unusual, I must admit, arrangements" governing Greece's sovereignty over Aegean Sea islands almost touching the coast of Turkey.

In fact, however, Schaefele (since named ambassador to Poland) was ruled unacceptable by the Karamanlis government not by those words. What triggered Karamanlis's wrath was deletion of the italicized words in the following State Department "correction" of Schaefele's testimony on ownership of the Aegean islands: "This ownership is based on long-standing international agreements which the United States fully supports."

SHORTLY AFTER that correction for the official record had been submitted to the Foreign Relations Committee, the State Department ordered the italicized words deleted, a fact discovered by Elias Demetracopoulos and quickly transmitted to Athens. Demetracopoulos is a Greek expatriate and former Athens newspaperman now living in Washington. He is best known for his relentless opposition to the former Greek military dictatorship.

U.S. officials vehemently deny any U.S. intention or long-range consideration of any sort for reopening the 1923 Lausanne Treaty, which gave Greece ownership of the controversial offshore islands. Indeed, not even Turkey has questioned the treaty. But the result of the deletion of that phrase — "which the United States fully supports" — caused anguish in Athens, raising the obvious question of why the phrase was struck unless there is at least some future intention of tampering with the treaty.

That a government led by as sophisticated a prime minister as Karamanlis should be traumatized by what may conceivably have been no more than middle-level bureaucratic stupidity at the State Department shows the extreme delicacy of the Greek-Turkish dispute — and the overwhelming influence on it of U.S. policy.

THUS, WITHIN days of the unannounced correction, top-level conversations were taking place within the Greek government on the "extremely dangerous" implications of any future change in the Lausanne Treaty. The chamber of horrors exposed by these conversations was what really persuaded Karamanlis to refuse to accept Schaefele as ambassador (an inalienable right of any government).

Here are a few educational conversations with a girl who is five years old, going on 15:

"Daddy, why did you get me a doctor's kit for Christmas? I wanted a nurses kit."

"You told Santa Claus that you wanted a doctor's kit for Christmas."

"Yes, but I really wanted a nurse's kit."

"Don't you want to be a doctor when you grow up?"

"No."

"WELL, WHAT do you want to be when you grow up?"

"I want to be a nurse."

"Why don't you want to be a doctor?"

"Because I'm not a boy."

"(Where did I go wrong?)"

"Jan, how do you spell 'dog'?"

"D-O-G"

"How do you spell your name?"

"J-A-N"

"How do you spell 'cat'?"

"I don't know, I'm only five years old."

"That's OK. 'Cat' is spelled C-A-T."

"I know how to spell something else."

"OK, What?"

"I know how to spell 'relief'."

"How do you spell 'relief'?"

"R-O-L-A-I-D-S"

(That damn television.)

"Daddy, when are you going to get me a baby brother?"

"One of these days, maybe you'll get a baby brother or sister."

"Well I want one to play with."

"Jan, it's not that quick and we are not going to get a baby just because you want to play with one."

"John has a new baby brother."

"Well, I can't help that. When you get married, you can have all the babies you want."

"Me and John are getting married Saturday."

(Oh, no!)

"Daddy, how old are you?"

"I'm 25 years old?"

"What does that mean?"

"That means I was born 25 years ago?"

"Yes."

"One, two, three, four five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, eleven, twelve, thirteen, fourteen, fifteen, sixteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five. Is that how old you are?"

"Yes, I'm 25 Christmases old."

"Daddy, you sure are old, are you going to die?"

"No, I hope not anytime soon."

"Well Jenny says when people get old, they die. I don't want you to die."

"I'm not going to die yet"

(I hope.)

"Daddy, does Mommy have a baby brother in her tummy yet?"

Carter to help

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — President Carter, criticized for being too aloof from party politics, has decided to use his political clout to reward congressman who support him in the legislative warfare on Capitol Hill.

He will campaign personally for the re-election of Democrats who side with him on the key issues. Several Cabinet members have already begun making appearances in the home districts of favored allies.

Those Democrats who repeatedly refuse to back Carter in Congress can expect little help from his Administration in their re-election battles. "We're more likely to help our friends on the Hill than those who aren't helping us," one top presidential aide pointedly told us.

This election-year strategy will be coordinated by Carter's congressional liaison office, which is headed by his fellow Georgian Frank Moore. Vice President Walter Mondale will also give behind-the-scenes guidance.

AT A CABINET meeting last month, for example, Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano said he had received a number of requests for political trips and asked for guidance on how to respond. The president replied, according to the confidential minutes, that "such requests should be cleared through the Vice President and Mr. Moore."

Moore has already received dozens of requests for political assistance from worried congressmen. The requests will be judged according to the political doctrine of you-scratch-my-back-and-I'll-scratch-yours.

An undercurrent of petulance, meanwhile, is still running against President Carter on Capitol Hill. He has tried earnestly to reduce the antipathy. He makes an extra effort to return congressional telephone calls and respond to congressional inquiries. He has invited key members of Congress to brief him on important legislative issues. He takes time to listen to the chairmen of crucial congressional committees.

Yet his best intentions seem to go awry. He responded to a request from Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., to expedite the removal of Republican David Marston as U.S. Attorney in Philadelphia. Our White House sources insist that Carter regarded the Eilberg telephone call as a routine political request and that he responded out of a desire to improve his relationships on the Hill. But the move backfired into a major White House embarrassment.

Congressional leaders attribute this ineptness to inexperience, not insincerity. But there is still a residue of resentment on Capitol Hill over Carter's 1976 campaign speeches, attacking the Washington institutions.

Vice President Mondale has set three immediate Senate priorities, which the president has adopted: (1) pass the energy bill; (2) confirm William Miller as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board; and (3) ratify the Panama Canal treaties.

The White House will be keeping book on how the senators vote. Similar political scorecards will be carefully checked on the House side.

This carrot-and-stick approach to congressional politics is nothing new. Richard Nixon used federal agencies from the FBI to the Internal Revenue Service to reward his friends and punish his enemies. But Carter hasn't yet used the power of his incumbency to push his programs through Congress.

MANY MEMBERS ran ahead of Carter in their 1976 races and, therefore, don't feel they owe him anything. But many of these congressmen could use Carter's aid this year. "A president and an Administration can always help in an election," one presidential adviser pointed out.

Most of Carter's top advisers — press secretary Jody Powell, political aide Hamilton Jordan, pollster Pat Caddell and media adviser Jerry Rafshoon — have urged the president privately to take to the airwaves in this effort. They want him to conduct more fireside chats, radio call-in shows and town meetings, which were so successful early in his term.

"He needs to communicate directly with the people," said one Carter confidant. "It's a question of leadership. Carter is his own best educator on the issues. He senses that he needs to do it more." In the coming months, therefore, the president will appear more often on television and begin stumping the country for his congressional allies.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am a prisoner in the state penitentiary, and I have no chance for parole for many years. My life is hopeless, and I hate it. Can you help me? — W.A.

DEAR W.A.: Over 1,900 years ago the great Christian Paul wrote, "I have learned to be content whatever the circumstances...I have learned the secret of being content in any and every situation, whether well-fed or hungry, whether living in plenty or in want" (Philippians 4:11-12). New International Version). Paul was in prison when he wrote those words.

What was his secret? He had come to know Christ as his personal Lord and Saviour, and he had learned to walk with God every day. He knew that God was always with him, no matter how difficult things seemed. I know things seem very discouraging right now, but maybe God has allowed this to happen to you because it was the only way for you to realize your great need of Him. He loves you, in spite of what you may have done in the past, and He sent His Son Jesus to die on the cross for your sins. By a simple act of faith you can invite Him into your heart. He will forgive you as you confess your sins to Him, and He will become your companion as you learn to stay close to Him.

Do you have a Bible? If not, get one, and begin reading it regularly. You might want to start with the gospel of John, or maybe in the little letter of First John. Others may laugh at you, but secretly they may admire you for your courage and faith. Also, you may be surprised to find that there are other Christians in your prison. Ask the prison chaplain about this. You also can begin reading Christian books and magazines, and probably you can listen to some Christian radio programs in your area.

I believe God wants to use this time in your life to draw you to Himself, and He may even use you to help others around you find Christ. Give your life to Him right now, and let Him begin to change you into the person God wants you to be.

WELCOME TO THE YEAR OF THE HORSE — Tourists and residents of San Francisco's Chinatown fill the streets Monday night as the community began the New Year's celebration for the Year of the Horse in a spirit of optimism. Above is the Golden Dragon Restaurant where five persons were killed and 11 wounded last September, an outburst blamed on warring Chinese youth gangs.

Year of Horse arrives

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chinatown greeted the Year of the Horse today with hope that the bleak specter of a bloody massacre has slipped away with the Year of the Snake.

It has been five months since three masked gunmen invaded the Golden Dragon restaurant and sprayed a crowd of 75 diners with bullets, killing five and wounding 11. No one has been arrested in connection with the shootings.

The Sept. 4 outburst — blamed on warring between rival Chinese youth gangs — cast a pall over the rickety neighborhood, the largest enclave of Chinese outside Asia. Sidewalk traffic thinned and once-bustling restaurants began to close early, spurring rumors that several would go out of business.

But there was a spirit of optimism among shopkeepers and street vendors Monday night on the eve of Chinatown's traditional two-week celebration of the lunar New Year.

"Chinatown has been so crowded you can hardly move," said the Rev. Tso Tin Tamm, a community leader who has lived 55 of his 77 years in Chinatown. "Everyone has been shopping for the New Year goodies — flowers, oranges, fruits, chicken."

"I knew it would just take some time before the people started coming back, especially the tourists," he said. "Time will heal."

Chinese traditionally spend the eve of Tet quietly at home, saving the biggest celebration for a giant parade at the end of the New Year holiday. But Chinatown's shops and restaurants were busy with tourist trade Monday night. And firecrackers exploded with earsplitting regularity.

The Chinese lunar calendar classifies 12 years as a cycle and names them after animals in the following order: rat, cow, tiger, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, goat, monkey, cock, dog and pig.

Chinese say the Year of the Horse — an animal they praise for its spirit, alertness, loyalty and penchant for hard work — is better than most.

Eagle killers fined $6,000

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge, who fined three West Texas men a total of $6,000 Monday for conspiring to hunt and kill protected golden eagles, warns that future violators face prison terms.

Acknowledging that some would consider the punishment too lenient, U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. warned of "the maximum consequences" for anyone who violates the controversial law protecting the eagles that prey on newborn lambs from West Texas ranches.

Ranchers say they should be allowed to use helicopters to hunt and kill the predatory birds they claim decimate their herds of lambs. But environmentalists say the birds are decreasing in number and should be protected.

Wood, in an unusual 10-minute speech from the bench, said the case was the most controversial he has tried in eight years as a federal judge.

On Dec. 9, a federal court jury convicted Real County Commissioner Lanny Leinweber, former government predator trapper Andrew Allen and Real County ranch foreman Norman M. Pape of conspiring to illegally hunt and kill the eagles.

Pape, 45, and Allen, 31, also were convicted of illegal airborne hunting and of killing eagles.

Each count of the conviction carried a maximum punishment of one year in prison and a $5,000 fine. There was one count against Leinweber, three against Allen and five against Pape. Wood fined Pape $3,000. Allen was fined $2,000 and sentenced to a year's probation. And Leinweber, 41, was fined $1,000.

Testimony during the trial showed that about 70 golden eagles were killed on helicopter hunts over Real County ranches between December 1975 and January 1977.

All three defendants denied killing any eagles or conspiring to hunt them. They said they had hunted from the air, legally, for predatory coyotes, bobcats and wild boars.

Judge Wood said he thought the men might have been acquitted if they'd claimed self-defense of their property, rather than denying any involvement in killing eagles. He said the jury's verdict was supported by evidence in the week-long trial.

Wood also said he had received "a mountain of presentence mail, reports, petitions, newspaper articles and other material, almost all of which contend that eagles are predators and destroy livestock and should be exterminated as mortal enemies of the area ranchers."

He said violating the law was not the proper method for changing it, although he said the law protecting golden eagles "is probably one that needs Congressional attention."

But Wood warned that violation of the present law would not be tolerated.

"This case, and its widely publicized ramifications should serve as an ominous warning to those who have threatened continued future violations of these laws, rather than changing or modifying them through appeals to the congressmen," he said.

While bald eagles are on the endangered species list, the golden eagles are not officially considered endangered.

The government's star witness was Gerald Heintzelman, a 31-year-old helicopter pilot who said he flew the men on eagle-hunting trips.

Heintzelman testified that while Allen, Pape and Leinweber all flew as "gunners" on flights, only Allen and Pape shot any eagles.

Heintzelman, an undicted co-conspirator in the case, was granted immunity from prosecution for his testimony. He also said he had received $1,200 from the government for "living expenses" since agreeing to cooperate with prosecutors late last summer.

Prosecutors said the case was the first of its kind ever to go to court in Texas.

Ranchers have sought unsuccessfully in the past to get government permission for controlled hunting of the golden eagles, which were not originally covered by a federal law which protects American bald eagles. But they were later included because they are virtually indistinguishable from bald eagles until they are two years old.

Subpoenas on file in the office of the federal court clerk here that a federal grand jury is still investigating alleged eagle killings in Real County.

Smoke alarms warning

DALLAS (AP) — The popularity of those small, smoke-sniffing objects hanging in millions of American homes may soon make it tougher to find one — at bargain prices anyway.

Wilbur Ogden, inventor of the first battery-powered smoke detector, said Monday that competition has slashed the price on the little lifesavers to the point where profit margins are at a minimum for producers and retailers.

"There are companies with smoke alerts on the market now for $20 that are offering $5 rebates but some of them are hurting," he said. "They used the rebate as a gimmick thinking only about 20 percent of their customers would file for the refund. As it turned out, the percentage has been closer to 80."

Ogden, executive vice president of Fyrnetics, Inc., was in town advertising his line at the National Home Center Home Improvement Congress & Exposition. By late this year, he said, the price of smoke alarms should slip to a permanent low for the less exotic models — about $15.

The inventor predicted some of the smaller manufacturers will go broke or switch to more profitable products.

But the demand will still be there.

"Americans realize the value of smoke detectors to both their homes and lives, and they're going to continue buying them," he said. "We have three different models now and there will be more in the future."

One Fyrnetics detector offers a radio control unit that sounds an additional alarm in another part of the home. It can receive signals from the first unit up to 200 feet away.

Ogden said a family on vacation can leave the radio control unit at a neighbor's home and be assured his own house is protected. Cost of the unit is about $100.

What began in 1967 has turned out to be just what Ogden expected.

"Eight to 10 million detectors were sold in 1977," he said, "and the figure should be that high or higher this year."

Hustle 3

Looking back on year

By Bill Albright
Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce
Industrial Growth and Development

This edition of Hustle 3 marks a milestone for me in Big Spring. It's number 52, which signifies a full year of communicating thoughts and sharing ideas with you. Sometimes these words may seem to be of limited significance of themselves, but when we look at all the other means of communicating that we have used over the past year, I believe we have achieved a relatively successful measure of understanding. Many of you have mentioned that you've either read the column or listened to the radio program. Your comments have been appreciated and I assure you I will continue to accept ideas and suggestions in the interest of building a better Big Spring Area.

I do express appreciation to the Big Spring Herald, KBST, KBYG, KFNE-FM and KHEM for their fine support and I look forward to an even more profitable expression of community unity in 1978.

The 12th annual Washington Reception sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will provide a wonderful opportunity for some of us to follow up on action at the Congressional and Federal Agency level in two areas of importance to our local economic situation.

A number of us are expected to be in the group that goes to Washington for the March 6th affair. We will plan to continue emphasis concerning our economic progress in creating jobs in the Big Spring Area and strengthen our support to allow the agriculturalist to operate at a profit.

The meeting will include an informal reception followed by dinner. A highlight of the event will be a presentation of gifts manufactured in West Texas to our Texas legislators and their spouses. It provides a fine opportunity to visit with our Texas Delegation and let them know our interest in their activities and how they can help us. For those who wish, it's also a great opportunity to visit our nation's Capital and see our Federal Government in action. If you want further information, you'll need to act quickly due to reservation and registration requirements. Call the Chamber office, 263-7641.

Whatever the action of the Texas Tech Medical facility decision, you can be sure that the Big Spring delegation did themselves proud. The presentation before the Board of Regents was most professionally done and conveyed an accurate picture of Big Spring as the 'Medical Center' of the Permian Basin. Special recognition to the narrator, Winston Wrinkle and to Barry Callan who put slides and script together. Many others assisted in various ways and the whole team exhibited a really fine demonstration of HUSTLE! HUSTLE! HUSTLE!

Loraine town meeting set

LORAIN — A town meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Loraine School cafeteria.

Discussions will be led by volunteers from the Texas Committee for Town Meeting, a non-profit organization which has held town meetings throughout the state.

Programs have also been scheduled in Sterling City, Hermleigh, Maryneal and Roby.

Girl scout cookies being sold

It's girl scout cookie time in Big Spring. The girls are going door to door selling cookies with 32 per cent of the profits to go to improvements for their camp.

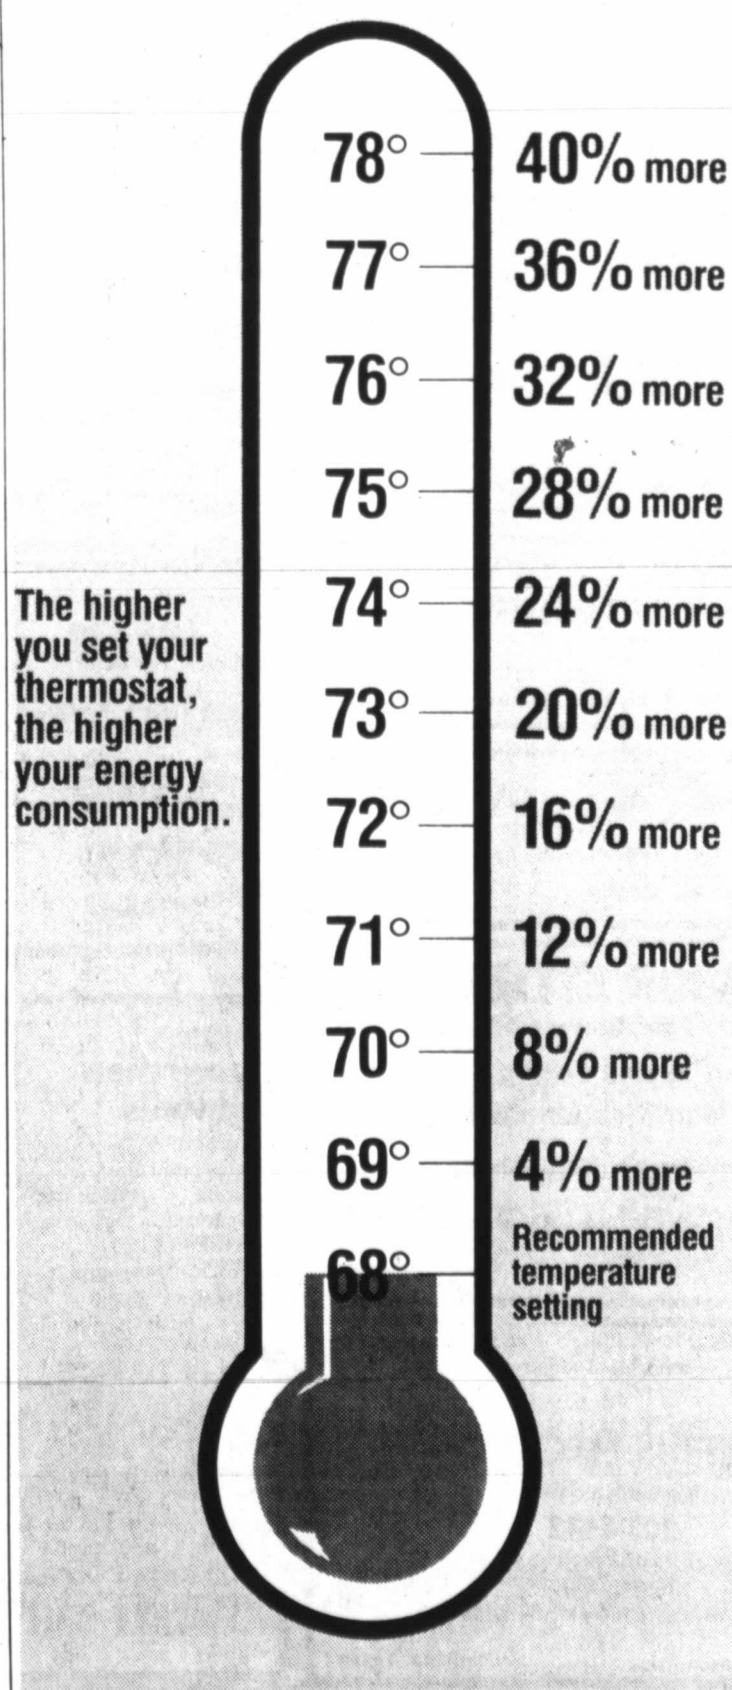

Other money includes 20 per cent to their troop treasury, 16 per cent for troop camping, 12 per cent to the council administration, six per cent to established camp, six per cent to future camp improvements, six per cent to camperships and awards and only two per cent to the national and international events.

Girls in grades 1-3 who are Brownies can earn a cookie patch by selling four cases and a Brownie overnight trip at camp with her dad if she sells seven.

For junior scouts grades 3-6, can sell four cases for a cookie patch, nine for a 1/4 campership; 14 cases for half of campership, 18 for 3/4 and 22 cases for a full free campership.

Cadettes to seniors may earn cookie currency credit for other council events and wider opportunities such as back pack trips and national events.

"Try lowering the temperature in your home to 68° this winter. You'll save on your heating bill!"

"A setting of 68° during the winter is the one Texas Electric recommends for both comfort and energy efficiency.

For each degree above 68° the energy used for heating your house is increased by approximately 4% per degree.

As shown by the chart the difference between the recommended thermostat setting and 74° is 24%.

At 78° the increase in energy usage is 40% or more.

Clearly, the lower you set your thermostat the lower your heating bill is going to be. And after last winter, one of the coldest on record, we think a lot of people are going to be trying their best to use less energy.

Remember to change the filter in your heating system regularly, too. A dirty filter causes your heating system to work longer and that costs you more. Check the filter at least once each month.

All forms of energy are costing more these days. If you're serious about saving energy and money, request a copy of our energy efficiency tips booklet on the comment portion of your electric service bill."

THE LADY IS A SENATOR — Sen. Muriel Humphrey, D-Minn., walks in a hallway on Capitol Hill Monday where she was sworn-in to fill the unexpired term of her late husband, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn. The 65-year-old grandmother is the Senate's first woman member in five years.

Mrs. HHH eager to get started

WASHINGTON (AP) — An eager Sen. Muriel B. Humphrey is picking up her husband's unfinished legislation where he left off while keeping Minnesotans guessing whether she'll run for election in her own right next fall.

Beginning a 10-month term as an appointed senator, the 65-year-old widow of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., is promising "to help people wherever I can and pass the legislation Hubert had underway."

The new Sen. Humphrey, who becomes the only woman in the 100-member Senate, also says she doesn't intend to "leave things hanging," but wants about two months "to decide whether to seek election to the remaining four years of her husband's term."

"I feel a little like the astronaut when he stepped off the space ship on the moon," she said Monday after being sworn in by Vice President Walter F. Mondale, her husband's political protégé.

"I must say that I don't know of another day that felt quite like this, except the day Hubert and I were married," she said. "I just hope with all my heart that I can do a good job and fill the shoes that he filled."

Hubert Humphrey died of cancer last month.

The new senator said she is eager to get started on her husband's unfinished work and promised to "come to work at 9 in the morning and put in a full day, just like Hubert did." But she said she also realizes that it will be impossible to complete work on all the pending Humphrey legislation in just 10 months.

Her husband's Senate staff is intact and Mrs. Humphrey said she intends to lean on it for any expertise she may lack.

At the top of her agenda is the Humphrey-Hawkins full-employment bill, which has been stripped of most of its mandatory job-creating provisions and diluted mostly to an expression of intent.

Next in priority is the sweeping reorganization her husband charted of the U.S. foreign aid program.

Other unfinished Hubert Humphrey bills concern urban and rural development, child and adult nutrition, agricultural trade expansion, solar energy, small businesses and aid to the handicapped and victims of crime.

Both Humphreys had a special interest in the problems of handicapped children that was stimulated when their first grandchild, Vicky, was born mentally retarded.

Sen. Humphrey already has been named to seats on the Senate's prestigious foreign relations committee and on the governmental affairs committee, but has yet to receive subcommittee assignments.

Rupard asking voters for second term support

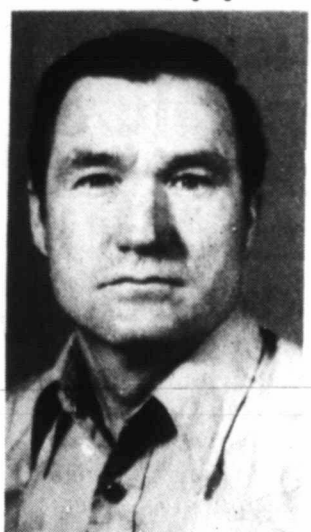

Ikie Rupard is asking voters to support him for a second term as County Commissioner Precinct Two.

A lifelong resident of Howard County, Rupard owns a service station and grocery store in the Sand Springs community, where he and his family make their home.

Ikie is married to the former Jackie Griffith, also a longtime Howard County resident. They have four children — Christie Ferguson, Kathie Rupard, Susie Rupard and Mike Rupard. The girls have finished public schools. Mike is a ninth grader at Coahoma.

"I'll make the same promise I did when I originally sought this office," Rupard, a Democrat, said. "I'll do my best and try to offer the best services to the public possible. I will continue to look after the tax dollar. Money spent unwisely by any governmental agency is money wasted."

Rupard said he thought the cooperation of the commissioners' court was ideal and the commission itself had been able to work extremely well with other governing bodies within the city and county.

Rupard said he was also proud of the highway improvement program carried on by the county since he had become a member of the commission.

Rupard will be offering for a four-year term on the commission, subject to action in the May 6 First Democratic Primary election.

Mrs. Goodman Retires

Mrs. Irene Brown Goodman, who has completed over 26 years of service with Texaco, took early retirement from the Producing Department, Central U.S., Midland Division of Texaco Inc. at Midland, effective Feb. 1, it was announced by Mr. J.C. Josefy, Midland District Superintendent.

Mrs. Goodman is a native of Howard County and attended Knott High School and Howard College. She joined Seaboard Oil Company at Midland in 1951 as a Production Steno-Clerk. Seaboard was merged with Texaco in 1958, at which time Mrs. Goodman's title was changed to Steno-Clerk. She became Senior Stenographer in 1962 and served in that capacity until retirement.

She is a member of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodman live at 1109 S. Moran in Midland. They have two children: Hugh L. Goodman of Kokomo, Ind., and Rhea Dell Hodgson of Mobile, Ala.

Officer Lonnie Smith was born and raised in Big Spring where he attended Big Spring High School and the local Reserve Police Academy. He decided to enter law enforcement to "help people in need, and because the job has always been interesting to me." He had previously worked as a carpenter with the Big Spring Independent School District. He, his wife Carla and son Lance attend the Baptist Church. Smith lists his hobbies as hunting, fishing and camping.

Billie Michael Eggleston, 1505 Hilltop, is a native Big Springer, and proud of it. Eggleston became a police officer in July of last year after working as a mechanic. He said he wanted to join the police force because he would like "to help my fellow man when the opportunity arises and to meet new and interesting people every day." He is a 1968 graduate of Big Spring High School, and has 480 hours credit with the Permian Basin Law Enforcement Academy. He attends Trinity Baptist Church. His hobbies are hunting and fishing. He has a wife, Linda, and three sons, Scott, 6, Travis, 4, and Michael Evan, 5 months.

Milton Kirby has spent more time as a Sheriff's deputy than most people have spent in the county. He is a Baptist with three years military experience. Kirby's 30 years of laws enforcement have not hardened his attitude towards people, however. His cheery, joking manner is well-known around the Howard County courthouse, as well as his professional manner as a law enforcement officer. Kirby was born in Fisher County, and has never expressed a wish to leave Texas. His long roots here will keep him in Howard County, continuing his excellent record as a deputy.

She won six first place trophies in the fashion competition and entertained the audience with her singing, and modern and tap dancing. Jana Hanson (left), 13, a 7th grader at Coahoma Junior High and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Hanson, won 10 first place trophies in fashion and was the overall winner for the Miss Southern Belle category. Her dress, shown here, was made by her grandmother, Mrs. Leonard Hanson of Big Spring. Jana's talent presentation included a comedy routine, modern dancing, and singing "You Light Up My Life" while accompanying herself on the piano.

Soapy sagas can help with laundry

In the damp, dark corners of the laundry room, homemaker-heroes battle the wages of dirt and grime against villains disguised as static cling and ring-around-the-collar in their own daily versions of the "soap." The trials and tribulations of sorting, bleaching, to fill or not to fill the wash tub, are enough to make anyone throw in the towel — and soap — and run off to a Chinese laundry.

To relieve washday woes and yawns, Speed Queen, makers of home laundry appliances, offers "A Soap Opera for the Washboard," a guide to laundry care as told through the cookie-cutter characters of TV's daytime dramas.

On the staff at Main Street Memorial, brain surgeon Dr. Steve, a commonly cheerful and courteous guy, is suddenly crabby, cranky and generally out of sorts. Tuning in, we find him holed up like a hermit in fear that the world will find that underneath that strong, stalwart exterior, Dr. Steve wears pink shorts. The reason, according to sleuths at Speed Queen, is that Dr. Steve has not taken time to properly sort his laundry before the wash.

A careful diagnosis of the doctor's dilemma reveals that a red T-shirt popped into a load of whites and turned everything pink with embarrassment! Dr. Steve wouldn't have to take his own medicine if he'd followed these basic rules:

Sort whites with light colors; darks with non-colorfast items.

Wash lightly-soiled clothes separately from heavily-soiled garments lest the dirt from the latter settle onto the former.

Match clothes according to fabric and construction. Avoid mixing heavyweights with lightweights and delicates since the weaker construction may not stand the strain of pulling against heavier items.

Separate lint-shedders like towels from lint-attractors like corduroys and permanent press or fuzzy lint will cover all.

In the house on the hill, Mrs. Danforth, the town matriarch, is drained. The servants whisper that she leads a double agent, others claim she's a go-go girl on the late shift.

Idle gossip to the contrary, Mrs. Danforth's problem is simply that she's not using her energy wisely — not her own, not the country's. Thus, the dark circles, drawn face and exorbitant utility bills.

City Council P.T.A. elects new leader

Sherry Wegner was elected president of the Big Spring City Council Parent-Teacher Association at their Friday morning meeting at the First Christian Church. Mrs. Wegner was elected after the resignation of president Janette Burns was read.

Also elected was Jan Whitehead as vice president. J.B. Cushing presented the devotional.

The District President, Mrs. Pansy Carrell, was introduced to the members. Mrs. Carrell helped them plan the Spring Conference which will be April 4 at the United Methodist Church in Big Spring.

Superintendent of Schools Lynn Hise spoke to the council about Public School Week which will be March 6-10.

The Masonic Lodge will sponsor a breakfast at 7 a.m. March 6.

Local acts are 'stars'

An Odessa act, billed as "Pat and Jim", took first place at the "Stars of Tomorrow" talent contest held at 8 p.m., Jan. 3, at the Municipal Auditorium.

Second place went to Beverly, 4, and Brandon Burnett, 7, brother and sister team of Big Spring, for their duet of "Jesus Loves Me."

Soloist Joan Lankiet of Big Spring, employee of Denny's Restaurant, placed third for her rendition of "You Light Up My Life."

The talent contest was a prelude to the International Gospel Music Festival.

Clubs invited to ceremony

Edna Womack, president of Texas Bouquet Garden Club, announced recently that Mrs. J.K. Summerhill, past director of Texas Garden Clubs Inc. District I, has invited all Big Spring Garden clubs to attend a dedication ceremony for the Blue Star Memorial Highway Marker.

The ceremony will take place at 11 a.m. next Saturday on Highway 385 six miles south of Crane.

TWEEN 12 and 20 A definition of love

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
Copley News Service

Dr. Wallace:

I've been reading your column for quite some time and I really "blow my mind" when I read about all those 14- and 15-year-olds who say how much they are in love. I'm 20 and my girl is almost 18 and she tells me she loves me and I tell her the same thing. We went together for a year, broke up, then got back together. I dated other girls when we were apart, and had fun but it just wasn't the same.

Would you say that this is real love? I have been thinking of marriage and I hope you can help me. We have a few arguments but even the best of couples do that. Don't they?

S.R., Goshen, Ind.

Dear S.R.:

Great philosophers have spent their entire lives trying to define love and have failed. Ask 50 people what love is and you might get 50 different answers.

My definition of love (male-female) is sharing total trust, loyalty and honesty with your

I'm straight. Do you think I should change? I'm only 12 years old.

Janet, St. Louis, Mo.

Dear Janet:

Don't worry what people think about you. You set your moral standard and you must live by it.

If a boy won't go out with you because you are too straight, he must be more interested in something else than he is in being with you. Don't change.

Questions may be sent to Dr. Robert Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Friends Unkind To Her Face

DEAR ABBY: I have just had an operation that has altered my facial expression. Some nerves were severed and now half of my face is permanently paralyzed.

The operation was easy to endure compared to the pain I have suffered from the remarks of some of my friends. One woman said, "Now you will know how the rest of us plain Janes feel. Welcome to the club."

Another said, "It will be harder for you than the average woman to adjust to being homely. That's one of the penalties of having had good looks and suddenly losing them."

Abby, I have never been vain about my looks, knowing that real beauty comes from within.

I am crushed at these so-called "condolences" in the name of friendship. What would you make of such friends?

BETTY

DEAR BETTY: Strangers.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 21-year-old college graduate who never has been married. A year ago I fell in love with Phil, a wonderful man who is perfect for me in every way. He's 33, divorced and has a 15-year-old son, Sonny. And that's the problem.

Sonny has lived with his father since he was 2. Phil was married at 17 and divorced at 18. Sonny's mother wasn't much good, but Sonny has a fierce loyalty to her, and for some strange reason, he doesn't like me. He has said some cruel things to me, such as, "You don't really love my Dad, you just want his money," and "You're too young to know what love is," and "It's just a crush," and "You'll never take my mother's place."

Meanwhile, I am very much in love with Phil and I know he loves me, but he keeps stalling the marriage because Sonny is so hostile to me.

How long should it take a 15-year-old boy to adjust to a stepparent? I feel that I'm losing Phil. How can I win Sonny's trust and love and get Phil to marry me?

LOSING OUT

DEAR LOSING: Sorry, it's Phil's move — not yours. If he loved you as you love him, he'd deal with Sonny. In the meantime, if the wedding is off because Phil's son doesn't like you, you are obviously No. 2 in a winner take all contest.

DEAR ABBY: My father (age 62) is having an affair with a young woman and the whole family knows about it. Everybody but my mother, that is.

This isn't the first time my father has been involved. If it were really a love affair I could understand it, but these girls are always much younger (about my age—30) and they wouldn't look at my father if he didn't have money.

I just hate to see Dad make a fool of Mom this way. I considered typing Mom an anonymous letter, giving her Dad's current girlfriend's name and address and where she works. But I discussed it with my older brother and he said I shouldn't do it—it would hurt Mom too much.

Well, I think it would be doing Mom a great big favor. What is your opinion?

ANONYMOUS DAUGHTER

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Your brother's advice was good. Take it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D.B. IN POTOMAC, MD.: You appear to be a very intelligent person, but what you don't know about transsexualism would fill a book. And it has! Please read "EMERGENCE" by Mario Martino (published by Crown). It's a complete female-to-male autobiography, well written and easily understood. And write again after you've read this eye-opener.

Guest speaker cites women's achievements

Dr. Judy Cornes, an English instructor at Odessa College, was guest speaker at the Saturday meeting of Beta Kappa Chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International.

Judy Blick, Karen Adams, Joy Burness, Mary Nell Hise, Allene Hamilton and Anna Walker were hostesses of the event, which took place at the Big Spring High School cafeteria.

Dr. Cornes related the experience of Emma Willard, who in the 19th century was given permission to establish a seminary for women but was given no funding for that purpose.

Even with the odds against the venture, it served as a prelude to the present achievements of women.

She noted that 93 per cent of the increase in college enrollment in 1977 was made by women.

Also, last year there were 49 women college presidents.

Dr. Cornes also cited the achievement of Nancy Hanks, a former Colorado University chancellor, as head of the National Institute for the Arts for the past eight years. The institute, though very insignificant eight years ago, now provides hundreds of thousands of dollars for arts and humanities projects all over the nation.

Woman are making strides individually in all areas of endeavor — administration, arts, engineering, etc. The status of women in 1977 was good, according to Dr. Cornes. Women are making strides as human beings, not just as women.

Chapter business included the announcement that a $50 donation had been made to both the March of Dimes and to the volunteer program of the Big Spring State Hospital from the proceeds of the "silver" dinner held in December.

Hawks wrangled out of victory

By DANNY REAGAN
Sports Editor

The Howard College Hawks wrested the first half of Monday night's contest against the Odessa College Wranglers, but the visitors bested their hosts in the second half, and that was the margin of victory.

Ahead by five, 49-44, at intermission, the Hawks fell victim to turnovers and an effective OC point-guard stall late in the game to drop an important Western Junior College Athletic Conference clash, 91-85.

OC spotted the Hawks with eight miscues in the first frame, but the locals couldn't capitalize on the gifts as thoroughly as they would've cared to.

Regardless of the inconsistent play on the part of both squads in the first half, there were a few exciting moments. Big Joe Cooper aroused both benches with a sky-diving block early in the second quarter.

Another block by big "Coop" a few minutes later was called goal-tending.

Speedy little Elroy Green, subbing for an injured Casey Wilder, dazzled the partisan crowd with his fleet-footed act, which included a picture-book full-court pass to Russell Sublet for an easy lay-up.

Late in the first half, a six-point swing occurred in the span of :25 seconds when Eugene Williams connected on a three-point play, the Odessa coach was hit with a technical foul (that Robby Randolph sunk), and Eugene followed with both ends of a one and one seconds later.

Randolph and super sophomore Russell Sublet were both hitting the long jumper during the first 20 minutes, and Sublet had 16 points under his belt by halftime.

In a second half that saw only five fouls called on the visitors, and 13 whistled on the Hawks, the locals fell victim to a briefly-inspired OC crew.

HC came smoking out at the first of the second half, and Sublet hit a 25-footer to give the Hawks their biggest lead of the night, 51-44.

Slowly but surely, however, that lead evaporated, and with 12:42 left in the game, the Hawks held their last lead of the night, a slim 60-59 margin.

Eugene Williams and

Allen Bonds came alive to keep the Hawks close, as Williams hit eight within a span of five minutes before he fouled out with 5:30 remaining.

Russell Sublet took up the slack after that, and Robby Randolph and Allen Bonds punched holes in the effective OC point-guard stall.

During the final minutes, the sound of the referee's whistle was a death-knell for the Hawks, however, and even though HC had the ball with :28 seconds left and only down by four, Odessa seemed assured of the win. They had been lucky all night.

"I was proud of our guys," said Head Coach Harold Wilder. "We played super in some stretches and not so hot in others. If we had had just a little consistency, we could've beat 'em."

Wilder indicated that the success of the first half was due to the attacking of OC's zone in the last five minutes of the second period, and the turning point of the second half came when a turnover put OC ahead, and the visitors went into their stalling tactics.

HC is now 5-8 in conference play, 15-11 on the year, and travel to play Clarendon Thursday in their next game.

Poll positions stay same

By the Associated Press

The top five teams in The Associated Press College Basketball Top Twenty won all their games last week and so each retained the same position it held last week. But it was another story for many of the other ranked teams.

The teams that were ranked sixth through 20th last week combined to lose 13 of 31 games and jockeyed for position with three new teams entering this week's poll.

Kentucky, 16-1, routed Southeast Conference rivals Georgia 90-73 and Florida 88-61 and remained atop the heap with 1,140 points.

The Wildcats received 52 of 57 first-place ballots cast by the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Second-place

Arkansas received two first-place votes, No. 4 Notre Dame got two and sixth-place New Mexico received one.

Arkansas, now 21-1, beat Southwest Conference foes Texas 75-71 and Rice 69-48 and received 879 points to remain No. 2. Third-ranked Marquette beat Penn State 73-60, then was forced to two overtime periods before prevailing over South Carolina 69-66. The Warriors, 17-2, received 836 points.

Fourth-ranked Notre Dame, 16-3, garnered 723 points as the Irish beat LaSalle 95-90 and Davidson 100-76. UCLA, No. 5, beat Stanford 101-64 and California 94-75 to improve its record to 16-2. The Bruins received 566 points.

New Mexico, 17-2, beat Wyoming 94-91 and Colorado State 91-82 and leaped from 10th to No. 6. North Carolina beat Mercer 73-70 and Virginia Tech 101-88, but lost to Furman 89-83 and fell from sixth to seventh with an 18-4 record.

Kansas, 18-3, beat Oklahoma State 83-65 and Oklahoma 69-68 to remain No. 8. Louisville beat Marshall 85-69 and Cincinnati 83-76 to stay at No. 9 with a 14-3 mark.

Michigan State, 16-3, fell from seventh to No. 10.

Hope Classic begins Wednesday

PALM SPRINGS, Calif.

(AP) — The 19th annual Bob Hope Desert Classic — the only 90-hole event on the Professional Golf Association tour — gets underway Wednesday at four locations.

A field of 128 professionals and 384 amateurs will play 18 holes each at Bermuda Dunes, La Quinta, El Dorado and Indian Wells Country Clubs Wednesday through Saturday.

The field will then be cut to the 70 low pros and ties for Sunday's final round at Bermuda Dunes in the $200,000 tournament.

Tom Watson, the No. 1 PGA money-winner last year, and seven former Hope Classic champions are among the entries.

Watson, whose 1977 earnings of $310,653 places him third on the all-time 12-month earning list, is off to a fast start this year with consecutive victories in the Tucson Open and the Bing Crosby Pro-Am last month.

Among former champions shooting for the $40,000 first prize are Rik Massengale, who won last year with a 23-under-par score of 337, and five-time winner Arnold Palmer.

Other past winners of the Hope Classic in attendance will be Hubert Green, who captured the Hawaiian Open Sunday in a playoff with Bill Kratzert; Billy Casper, Bob Rosburg, Tom Nipote and Doug Sanders.

Also competing will be, among others, Kratzert, San Diego Open winner Jay Haas, Lanny Wadkins, Bruce Lietzke, Lou Graham, Lee Trevino, Dave Hill, Lee Elder, Jerry Heard, Gene Littler, Andy Bean, Tom Kite and Jerry McGee.

The field was filled Monday with 12 players qualifying, led by Don Pooley and Woody Blackburn, who carded 5-under-par 67s.

Don Iverson, Bobby Baker, Jim White, Allen Miller, Bob Zender, Chris Piggot, Perry Leslie, Rex Caldwell, Monte Kaser and Bill Galloway were the other qualifiers.

Among the amateurs playing will be former President Gerald R. Ford. NBC will televise portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Steer fems win

Behind the red-hot hand of 6-2 Rose Magers, the Big Spring girls' basketball team, shooting 26 of 32 free throws, pulled off the surprise of the season here Monday night in District 5-4A play, a 58-55 win over Abilene Cooper.

Magers, who started hot and just got hotter, ended up with a sizzling 39 points, 17 of which were free throws.

Big Spring had lost to Cooper 70-24 earlier in the year.

Penny Ray followed with nine for Big Spring, while Nora Billalba added six and Jamie Hulan scored four. The win is the second in second half play for the locals and brings their league record to 2-3. They

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A time when you can wisely be preoccupied with all of the little affairs of everyday life that require considerable meticulous attention in order to have harmony in your life. Study right ways and means by which you will be able to more easily eliminate confusion.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get work done that will bring more order and neatness around you, give you a sense of well-being. Take time to have a good talk with mate, loved one for constructive purposes.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Know what your true goals are and go after them in a positive way and get right results. Don't waste time envying others — get busy and make a better life for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study your position in your community and do whatever will help improve it. Make collections and pay pressing bills. Show you are alert and wide-awake.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to improve conditions around you and then get busy doing just that. Make a new friend who can be of help to you far into the future. Avoid one who is a self-seeker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle obligations meticulously and get good results. Know what is truly expected of you by mate, loved one and try to please.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Meet with partners and work out plans that bring greater success in the future. Find better ways of having better health. Don't fritter precious time away foolishly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) With all that work ahead of you, you hardly know where to begin, but get at the most important first. Have a talk with fellow workers and arrange duties wisely, intelligently. Accomplish much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take time to plan future amusements well so they work out fine. Show more thought for mate also. Good day to get budget in order.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Attend to those matters that will make your home more efficient and harmonious. Do more entertaining at home.

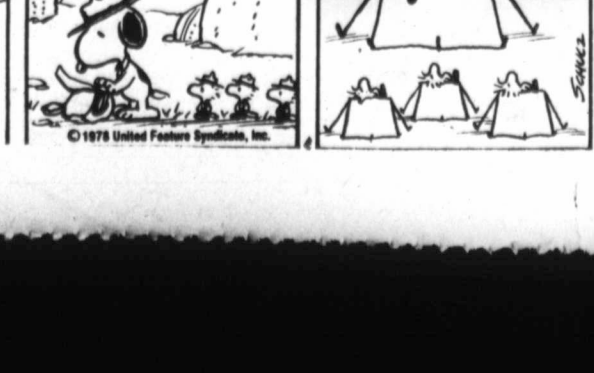

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take care of important errands early. Write letters and look into the details of a trip you may be planning soon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Use good practical sense in handling money matters and get fine results. Business problems are best settled if you get the aid of an expert. Be a leader instead of a follower.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study your reflection in the mirror and see where you can improve appearance and health. Good friends can be of assistance to you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand the big issues of some plan or project and the manner in which it can be accomplished. The vision here is remarkable as are the intuitive faculties. Teach early the importance of work and how to handle money wisely.

Farm Ag not being treated as stepchild

HOUSTON (AP) — Rep. George Mahon, D-Texas, says he has received assurances from the Carter administration that agriculture will be dealt with equally with other U.S. industries involved in foreign trade.

Monday Mahon told delegates to the National Cotton Council he had received the assurances from Robert Strauss, Carter's special ambassador for foreign trade.

"For the first time in these trade talks, agriculture is not being treated as a stepchild or as something to be dealt with at the end of the day," Mahon said.

"This is particularly important as one out of every three acres in agricultural production is for export and one out of every four dollars in agricultural income is from exports."

Mahon also told the delegates that although no dramatic or immediate legislation on farm prices seemed likely, Congress will take whatever steps necessary to improve price levels.

"I am of the opinion that, if price levels do not improve in the marketplace for the 1978 crops, and then if the administration does not use its discretionary authority to improve prices in certain areas, then the Congress will pass legislation to ease the farmers situation."

Cotton Council President Jack G. Stone, Stratford, Calif., told the delegates the higher minimum wage which went into effect in January has made it harder to hold down costs.

"Our nation's agriculture makes a major contribution to the balance of payments, and any erosion of our ability to make that contribution is not in our interest nor is it in the national interest," Stone said.

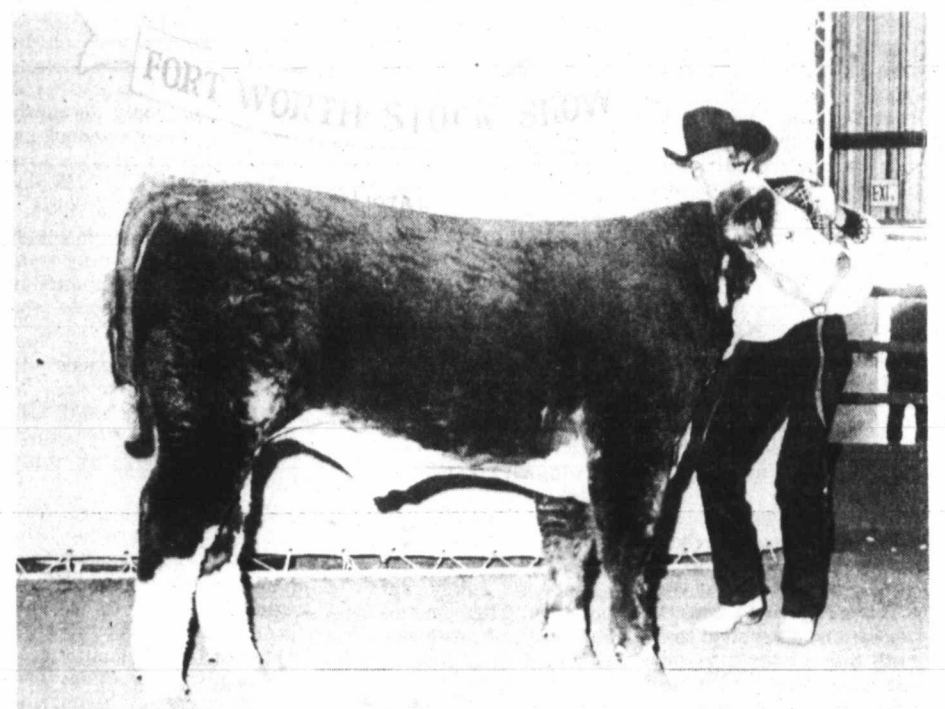

Stone said a new farm law could help producers and other segments of the industry over the next four years.

"This is what usually happens when we go through the gyrations of prices too low or too high," he said.

The 1977 law offers solid legislative improvements,

Stone said, that include a mechanism designed to moderate extreme price fluctuations and avoid export embargoes and market losses.

Interior Secretary Cecil D. Andrus was to speak to today's general session.

RESERVE CHAMP — Ty Zant, Big Spring, exhibited the Reserve Champion Hereford steer of the 1978 Southwestern Exposition and Livestock Show, Ft. Worth. The steer weighed 1,160 pounds.

LOCAL WINNER — Reserve champion Angus steer at the 1978 Fort Worth Fat Stock Show was this entry of Ron Brooks, Big Spring. Ron's brother Regan is at the halter. Their parents are Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Brooks. The steer, winner of the medium weight class, weighed 1,000 pounds and was bred by Hilbert Brothers, Algona, Iowa.

Korea offers to buy heifers

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Korea was to buy 5,000 female beef cattle from the United States to help improve its livestock industry, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The offer to buy the heifers — weighing around 500 pounds each — was announced by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service in a routine report called, "Export Briefs."

Officials said the Korean government is interested in buying 2,500 non-registered purebred Herefords and 2,500 Aberdeen-Angus of similar quality.

The announcement said that persons interested in selling cattle to Korea can contact Ben Thompson, Office of the International Marketing Director, Livestock and Meat, FAS, USDA, Washington, D.C., 20250, or call him at 202 447-4884.

Thompson told a reporter that the Korean offer is the largest beef cattle order from the United States in some years. He said Korea has been buying dairy breeding cattle, perhaps 5,000 to 7,000 head in 1977 and probably an equal number will be bought this year.

Even at commercial market rates, the 5,000 heifers would have a U.S. farm value conservatively estimated at $200 a head or a total of $1 million, Thompson said. And since Korea wants the heifers to be of top quality for breeding, the value probably will be substantially more, he said.

Pet project pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is trying to pump a little more life into one of his pet projects: a billion-bushel grain reserve plan he says can help boost market prices for wheat, corn and other grain.

Bergland announced Monday that beginning March 1 farmers will be able to place some of their 1977 wheat, oats and barley directly into the federally supported reserve program without waiting for their current government crop loans to mature.

The "early entry" of corn and sorghum into the reserve will be announced later, he said.

Under previous rules, farmers were required to wait nine months for the USDA loans to mature before extending them into three-year contracts which provide for the grain reserve.

The program is aimed at building a reserve of about 670 million bushels of corn and other feed grain and about 330 million bushels of wheat from the 1976 and 1977 harvests.

Bergland contends that if farmers cooperate to the hilt in the program, it will help raise grain prices by removing the commodities from the open market.

As of Feb. 1, however, only 84.2 million bushels of wheat from the 1976 crop — but no corn or other feed grain — were in reserve. No 1977-crop grain was included because of the nine-month rule which now will be suspended as of March 1.

Bergland, who left last Monday for Europe, also was expected to announce a decision on the 1978 feed grain set-aside program. It was tentatively announced last fall that farmers will be required to set aside 10 percent of their cornland from production this year to qualify for federal price supports.

A 20 percent set-aside program has already been announced for 1978. Officials said a feed grain decision could be announced today if it is cleared by the White House.

Bergland planned to be in Europe the remainder of this week for meetings in Paris of the Organization for Economic Cooperative Development.

The grain reserve program allows farmers to store grain for three years and to collect advance government payments to help them pay the cost of stockpiling it. These include 20 cents a bushel annually for wheat, corn, barley and sorghum and 15 cents for oats.

Plow back resolution adopted by farmers

SUBLETTE, Kan. (AP) — Farm strike supporters from southwest Kansas have adopted a resolution to cut their 1978 wheat crop by 50 percent.

About 75 strike supporters attended a meeting here Monday, unanimously adopting the motion, according to Rayburn Powell, a Sublette area farmer and strike spokesman.

Ridin' fence

Those who care

with Marj Carpenter

In the past two weeks, I've been lucky enough to attend two events that made me start thinking about people who work with youth.

It takes a special kind of patience. A couple weeks ago, I went to the District Girl Scout banquet here and sat there admiring the local people who work with the scouts. This also includes boy scouts, although it happened to be the girl scout banquet.

I've done some of that Girl Scout work and it's similar to the news business. Some days it's fun some days it's no fun at all.

It was the Permian Basin Girl Scout council that I served on and that part was no fun. Now the eight years with two different troops that went from the second to the tenth grade together — that was fun. Part of the time.

We had such great experiences as killing a rat-lesnake while en route to the McDonald Observatory, getting lost in a woods at Timberlake out of Fort Worth, and I personally fell into the water and went under at Six Flags, got caught with the troops in a half storm at Fort Stockton at Comanche Springs Park and slid down the mountain by the Indian Paintings at Camp Mitre Peach peeling my leg from the hip to the ankle.

But like I say, some of it was fun. I remember taking a girl to a doctor hit in the mouth with a baseball bat during a game and another who cut her hand open with a Vienna Sausage can. It wasn't all fun.

And it takes lots of patience. Then on this past Saturday, I attended the annual Food Show for the local 4-H girls. Those little girls and one little boy were standing behind their especially set tables featuring a menu prepared and planned by them. And as we went around the circle in a tasting tea getting a taste of all that good food, I thought about 4-H work.

I never did work with 4-H kids, but my oldest girls belonged to a club a few years. She made her first skirt for 4-H for a dress review and I can still remember how proud she was of that pink-flowered masterpiece.

She should have been — because her mother was no seamstress and some 4-H leader had really done well to teach that kid to sew.

There won't be a bad cook in the room full at that 4-H event here Saturday. And more marriages have broken up from bad cooking than a lot of other causes. A guy can eat only so many television dinners or cook his own meals so many times without getting a little bit disillusioned in the process.

But I didn't mean to get off on that subject. I only want to take a few moments to commend those people who work with youth.

Wednesday happens to also be the anniversary of Boy Scouting. I could talk about that a while too, since I also had a Boy Scout at my house.

But to all of those groups — and the leaders who help with them... your reward has to be with the way those kids appreciate it and the way those kids turn out.

My first Girl Scout troop had 24 girls in it. They are now 28 years old. Twenty of them have bachelor's degrees and three have master's degrees. I'd stack that bunch of young women against any other 23 young women in the nation. One died of Hodgkins disease at 21.

They're great — and every scar, and every adventure is a happy memory. Nowadays, my youth work is with church young people — another field I've spent quite a few years investing time in.

And when you work with youth, your patience runs thin and your blood pressure boils, but you get to see the results — and they're worth it.

So here's a salute to all who work with youth — out where I ride fence.

Katy may abandon line

An official of the Katy Railroad said Monday the firm may abandon a line which runs between Altus and Burk Burnett, Texas — a move that would leave several grain elevators without rail service.

The stretch of rail runs through Tipton, Frederick, Hollister, Loveland and Grandfield in Oklahoma.

Abandonment of the line is being considered because it does not produce enough revenue to finance needed renovations, Katy general counsel W. A. Thie said from the firm's Dallas office Monday.

Rehabilitation — replacing the ties, ditching and some rails — would cost $3 million," Thie said.

"This is what we call a granger line. It's used for agricultural products. I doubt if there's been a passenger down that line in 25 years."

Some 90 percent of the line's business is done in June and July when grain elevators are handling the wheat harvest, he added.

"That's two months out of the year that most of the money is coming in. The other 10 months the line carries lumber and fertilizer, mainly," he said.

Interstate Commerce Commission requirements dictate that legal notice of the proposed abandonment be posted for six months. The notice went up last month.

Meanwhile, Katy officials are awaiting the completion of a feasibility study.

Satellite debris poses puzzle

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Debris from the maverick Soviet spy satellite has been located in at least a dozen spots in the wilds of northern Canada, but searchers have not determined whether the satellite's nuclear reactor survived the fiery plunge into the earth's atmosphere.

"It's too soon to say," Dr. Roger Eaton, a scientific adviser to Canada's Atomic Energy Control Board, told a news conference Monday when asked if the pieces of metal collected so far provided any clues to the fate of the reactor's core of about 100 pounds of uranium 235.

The search for the core, which would be lethally radioactive, has been in progress since the satellite re-entered the atmosphere Jan. 24 and disintegrated in flames over Canada's Northwest Territories.

Canadian and American detectors mounted on Canadian military C-130

Hercules planes have found no radioactivity high enough to be coming from the core.

But Col. David Garland, whose Namao Base is headquarters for the search, said the core "could be buried in ice or tundra and shielded by the terrain" somewhere in the Switzerland-size search area.

He said low-level, close-formation aerial searches will be made with navigational equipment that will allow "deadly accurate" pinpointing of sources of radioactivity.

The debris recovered has been shipped to an atomic laboratory in Pinawa, Manitoba, for analysis that the government hopes will provide some clues to what may have happened to the core.

Eaton said one difficulty facing scientific investigators is that they have little idea of the design of the satellite or its nuclear power plant.

If the core survived the stresses of re-entry into the atmosphere, scientists believe it will most likely be found near the tiny weather outpost of Warden's Grove, 920 miles northeast of Edmonton. The largest fragments that have been found were recovered near there from a crater burned in the ice of the Thelon River.

About 25 pounds of metal — a perforated canister, several pieces of tubing about 3½ feet long and tiny specks — were taken from the crater during the weekend.

Investigating scientists said the canister and tubing were obviously not enough to have created the entire crater, which is nearly 10 feet across at its widest point. But they said they drilled through the river ice and found no radioactivity or other large debris.

Eight other sources of radioactivity spotted by instruments in the Warden's Grove area are also to be investigated. A bulldozer was parachuted into the area Monday to carve out an airstrip for a base camp for 30 people at Warden's Grove. Smaller fragments of the satellite have been found on the northeastern tip of Great Slave Lake, near the tiny community of Reliance, about 240 miles southwest of Warden's Grove. One was giving off significant amounts of radiation.

$128 million verdict

Pinto maims teen

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A California jury has awarded nearly $128 million in damages from the Ford Motor Co. to a teen-ager who has had 52 operations since being maimed in the explosion of a Ford Pinto's gas tank.

"This is probably the loudest noise that the jury has made in any civil suit in American jurisprudence," Mark Robinson, attorney for 18-year-old Richard Grimshaw of Orange, said after the verdict was returned Monday.

A spokesman for Ford Motor Co. in Detroit termed the award "a staggering amount of money," but said the automaker would have no further comment on the verdict until the firm's lawyers had been consulted.

Under Monday's decision by an Orange County Superior Court jury, Grimshaw was awarded $125 million in punitive personal injury damages and $2.84 million in compensatory damages.

Since the May 1972 accident that burned 95 percent of his body, Grimshaw has undergone 52 operations and will have to undergo 20 more, Robinson said. The youth, who was 13 when the accident occurred, lost four fingers, his nose and left ear.

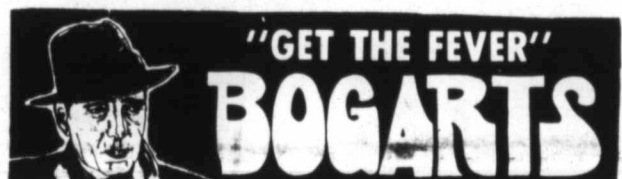

Grimshaw was a passenger in the car driven by 52-year-old Lily Gray of Anaheim, who died in the accident. The jury awarded her family $665,000 compensatory damages. No punitive damages were sought in her death.

Mrs. Gray was a neighbor of the Grimshaws, who at the time lived in Anaheim.

The entire passenger compartment of the 1972 Pinto ignited when it was hit from behind by another vehicle traveling about 35 mph on Interstate 15 near San Bernardino. Evidence at the seven-month trial indicated that because of faulty welding, the gas tank was punctured by the impact and that burning gas leaked inside the car.

Robinson said three similar suits involving Pinto gas tanks have been filed, but that this was the first effort to obtain punitive damages. The highest compensatory damage award in the other suits was for $3.3 million in a 1975 Florida suit, Robinson said.

Entomologist meeting set

Howard County Entomologist James Lee as well as David Foster, Pecos, and David Kattes, Colorado City, will attend the 26th annual meeting of the Southwest Branch of the Entomological Society of America.

The Lubbock meeting is expected to draw between 200 and 250 members Feb. 14-16.

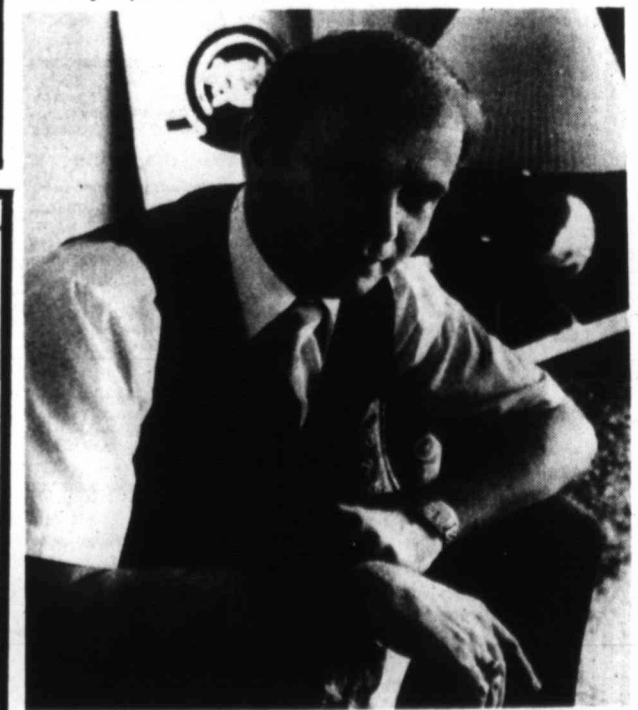

The society is the largest for entomologists in the nation, and regional meetings allow for exchange for research information as well as serving as a business meeting.

Dr. James K. Wangberg, a member of the entomology faculty at Texas Tech University and also a member of the local arrangements committee, said the chief interest of entomologists in the High Plains area is in insect control on croplands.

"It is a multi-million dollar business in the Southwest," he said, "and farmers on the High Plains can spend as much as $35 an acre to control insects which infest crops."

Among the 625 members of the society's Southwest Branch are teachers, researchers, government agency employees, and entomologists engaged in agricultural and industrial pest control businesses and private consultants.

OUT OF THE CLOSET — Seattle City Clerk Wayne Angevine is letting his homosexuality be known, after a policeman filed an initiative that would put a popular vote the city's law prohibiting job discrimination against homosexuals. Angevine, 42 and a former state senator, says he had his first homosexual contact about five years ago and began moving out of the "closet."
