Artesia Backs Potash Studying

Potash exploration in a large area of northeast Eddy county and west Lea county by Farmers Union cooperative will be welcomed by the Artesia Chamber of Commerce. Pres. Stanley Carper announced late Thursday.

A 25-man delegation from the Artesia Potash Study Committee will arrive in Artesia Thursday by chartered plane and will be met by the delegation. They will be met by the delegation. They will be met by the delegation.

The C of C action came from the directors of the Carlsbad Potash Study Committee. They said they would treat the delegation with "cold courtesy" according to news reports published Thursday.

Production of potash in the area is adjacent to potash production in Eddy county and is north of Southwest Potash Corp. and Potash Company of America mines.

News reports said Carlsbad directors decided "The Carlsbad Potash Study Committee shall extend order of courtesies" to representatives of Farmers Union, which is national cooperative with headquarters in Denver.

Directors at Carlsbad are reported to show opposition to the Carlsbad Potash Study Committee entering the potash field on the grounds it is "not exempt."

Artesia chamber Mgr. Paul Scott is revealing Carper's announcement late Thursday that the directors welcome Farmers Union.

Cooperatives are non-profit organizations and therefore pay no taxes," one director is reported to have said, "but otherwise they are responsible for all normal business and proper conduct."

Artesia chamber Pres. Lawrence Merchant, declared to be a "who has fought cooperatives hard," led the fight in Carlsbad against the cooperatives.

Junior Bandmen Seek Coathangers Fund Source

Have you got a closet full of coathangers just cluttering up storage space?

Someone whose willing to take off your hands and turn the proceeds from their sale to a fund enterprise will be calling you Saturday.

Members of Junior high school organizations will begin at 9 tomorrow morning to canvass for old coathangers stored in closets, attics, and other places.

Bandmen already have made arrangements to sell those coathangers to an Artesia dry cleaner price reasonable for both the band and the ambitious young coathanger.

Proceeds from the coathanger sale will go to the Junior high school band department fund, to purchase expensive musical instruments, replace uniforms, music, and fulfill other needs that have proven to Artesians to be a live-wire organization.

Artesia band director, Martin Bradbury, band director, stated out this week collection of coathangers will also aid the band effort by putting back into circulation a number of hangers which would normally be replaced by new ones.

Bandmen are expecting that Junior high schoolmen's knock on the door to buy coathangers will be a success. They'll be beat it all day.

Impatient With Adults, Child Leads Girl Scouts

By Betty Lamb

Linda Wallace's patience ran out.

This 12-year-old Artesia Girl Scout has been so concerned because her little sister's Brownie troop has not had a leader since December that she decided to do something about it herself.

Linda was unsuccessful at first in finding an adult volunteer who was willing to devote two hours a week to leading a group of second year Brownies—one of whom was her little sister, Judy.

City-Church Land Swap Solves Two Problems

Bethel Baptist's church drive for $3,000 with which to move an existing church building donated them to a new site received impetus on Wednesday night in a smooth swapping deal by Rev. Jimmy Horton and the city council.

Rev. Horton told councilmen Presbyterians had donated their present frame structure to the Bethel Baptists if the latter would move it from its present site at Fourth and Grand.

Bethel Baptists have formed an ambitious plan to concentrate their present church, which will become a recreation hall, the parsonage, and the "new church" on lot now occupied by the Bethel church at N. Easy and Church streets.

But to fit the three buildings all on the one lot, Rev. Horton told councilmen. He proposed to swap the city 10 feet of land on the south side of the lot in exchange for 26 feet on the north side.

The north side footage would give Bethel Baptists enough room for their program so they wouldn't be out of the expense of moving the present church building.

And the south side footage given the city opens up what has been a dead-end alley.

The bargaining was amicably concluded by unanimous motion of the council.

As the time neared for all Girl Scouts and Brownies to participate in the annual Juliette Low show to be held March 20, Linda was even more distressed because these girls could not participate, and since she couldn't find an adult leader, she decided to lead the troop herself.

She made inquiries and located a place for the little girls to meet. Then she selected a ballad for the girls to sing and act out and gave them each a part to perform.

She has faithfully coached them in their parts and has even found costumes for the Brownies to wear in the show.

What's more, Linda, knowing it is against the Scout regulations for a 12-year-old, no matter how willing, to lead a troop, has done what many red-faced adult workers could not do—she has found a leader this week, Mrs. C. L. Hefley has volunteered to take over the troop.

Scout organizers are wishing they had girls more like Linda. There are 50 registered and "waiting list" (waiting for a leader) Girl Scouts and Brownies in Artesia, who, for lack of adult leadership cannot take advantage of the splendid Girl Scout program being offered to almost 300 girls in the city.

Previous training in Girl Scout activities is not necessary to become a leader as training is offered free by the area director, Miss Marvel Milam, to anyone who has some time to spare and to share with girls.

"The only qualifications necessary for a Girl Scout worker is a willing heart and an interest in girls," says Miss Milam.

Any interested adult who would like to spend a few hours a week with girls is asked to call Mrs. John Smith, 805-W.

Chamber Creates Better Business Bureau Office

Creation of an active Better Business Bureau for Artesia was revealed Thursday by Stanley Carper, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Carper said that since the chamber is now a member of the national BBB, it will, "for all practical purposes, be the better business bureau for Artesia."

A. C. Sadler has been appointed chairman of the bureau, which seeks to cut down rackets and spurious promotions of all types, Carper declared.

Paul W. Scott, Chamber manager, appeared before the city council Wednesday night asking cooperation in making the Artesia BBB an effective organization.

Between $15,000 and $25,000 annually is taken from the city by spurious charities, Scott estimated in his report to the council on BBB organization.

Scott asked that when charities seek licenses to solicit, as required by a city ordinance passed last summer, the BBB be called in case of any question concerning character of the cause.

City Clerk Tom Ragsdale said he would be glad to cooperate with the BBB in any way possible, adding he and Scott had already conferred on several questionable charities seeking to solicit in Artesia.

There will be a box supper at 7 p. m., Friday, March 27 at Cottonwood gym.

Planning Board Is Studied

Consideration of a city planning committee or commission again attracted city council discussion Wednesday evening, especially after councilmen found they had no control at present over large-scale housing projects.

After one councilman asked "what about a planning committee?" a brief discussion resulted in City Atty. Neil Watson declaring he would bring state laws covering creation of a planning commission to the next council meeting March 25.

Apparent disagreement over whether the planning commission or planning committee type of organization should be created was implied in the brief discussion Wednesday night.

Setup by Law

Planning commissions are authorized by state law and are independent from city councils. The planning commissions control all subdivision platting within a three-mile radius of the city limits. It has powers of condemnation and is a distinct entity.

Planning committee as evidently favored by some council members would be formed as an advisory group to the city council, but would have no powers of its own, such as the right to reject or accept proposed subdivision plats.

It would study proposed additions to the city, lay plans for orderly development of streets and utilities, and report its findings and perhaps recommendations to the council, which would have final decision.

Whether or not creation of the committee or commission would give the city power to rule on tract housing projects was not discussed, although at least one councilman expressed an interest in having the city be able to pass on large housing proposals.

Representative Group

Asked how would be appointed to the committee or commission, Mayor J. L. Briscoe said he had already considered the matter and wanted to make the committee or commission a representative group.

Interested parties which might be represented, the mayor said, would include engineers, building and other contractors, the general public, a city councilman and others.

How large the committee would be if adopted, was not agreed.

Hermosa Drive Paving Plan Approved By Council; Work Scheduled To Start

Hermosa Drive is finally going to be paved—or at least it looked like it would be as of Wednesday night.

City councilmen voted to authorize paving of the street according to a plan worked out by City Supervisor J. D. Josey, Jr., but only after lengthy debate involving discussions of normal rainfall, floods, and city responsibility in flood damage suits.

Two council members voted against approval of the plans, feeling the city might be responsible should a flood damage property in the Hermosa Drive area as a result of paving plans approved by the city.

Owners Protest

Two property owners in the area—A. J. "Jerry" Losee and Raymond Lamb—appeared before the council's last session to protest paving plans for Hermosa because they feared it might shunt heavy rainwater onto their properties.

Josey proposed a paving plan which he declared would take care of normal rainfall in the area. He pointed out Hermosa Drive is on top of a natural ridge which drains north and south.

From Thirteenth street to Ninth on Hermosa there is a 9-foot fall, the engineer said. There is 4 foot fall from Ninth to Heath and from Heath to First another fall, according to measurements at center line of Hermosa.

By cutting six inches off the large crest on Hermosa at Heath, Josey said, all "normal rainfall" could be drained from Hermosa.

Vote Against

But Councilmen Marshall Rowley and W. H. Yeager voted against approval of the engineer's plans. They felt the city might be liable for flood damage should heavy rainfall drain from Hermosa onto Catalina Drive, which is lower than Hermosa.

Josey had pointed out the city would not be responsible for flood damage if it did not interfere with natural and existing drainage of rainfall.

Josey said Sam Sanders, paving contractor, is ready to begin paving Hermosa.

Rowley in opposing approval of the engineer's plan before further study said "I just don't feel right—it just doesn't look right to pass approval of the plan as it now stands."

Councilmen discussed possibility of building a concave street, of drainage ditches south of Catalina Drive, of deeper cuts on the Heath-Hermosa crest, and other proposals to alleviate.

Pooh-Pooh Floods

City Pushes Plans To Control TV Aerials, Service

Artesia will be ready when television rears its ugly head in the form of TV aerials early this spring.

Mayor J. L. Briscoe told city councilmen Wednesday night he had already asked an Artesia appliance dealer to investigate regulations on TV installations, especially aerials.

In high winds of the Southwest, aerials not securely guywired and fastened could easily topple over, perhaps causing power shortages or fires by hitting power lines, Mayor Briscoe pointed out.

Glen Clem, local appliance dealer, reported he had made a preliminary investigation of regulations in other cities, and that a national (Continued on Page Six)

Chamber Slates Annual Banquet For March 30

Annual banquet of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce has been set for Monday, March 30, according to Stanley Carper, president of the organization.

The banquet will be held at Veterans Memorial building at 7 p. m., March 30.

Fred Phelps, manager of the Clovis Chamber of Commerce, has been signed as principal speaker for the banquet, according to Paul W. Scott, Co of C manager.

Scott, who was assistant manager at the Clovis chamber before coming to Artesia, stated Phelps is one of the outstanding chamber of commerce officials in the Southwest.

Reservations for the banquet are being requested, George Ferriman, chairman of the arrangements committee, has announced. Tickets are priced at $2.50 and will be on sale Friday at the Chamber of Commerce office, and other downtown firms.

Reservations for tickets to be picked up the night of the banquet may be made, Ferriman added, by contacting the chamber office, phone 192.

Assisting Ferriman in planning are A. C. Sadler, Bob Bourland, and Thad Cox.

Finals in Spelling Contest Will Send Winner to El Paso

Finals in the Artesia Spelling Bee have been set for 7:30 p. m. Thursday, March 26, in Central school auditorium. Winner of the final spelldown will be Artesia's representative in regional competition at El Paso.

Spelldowns in schools in the Artesia public school system will be held during the week of March 23-27, a week before the system-wide spelldown.

Central Park, Roselawn, and Junior high school will pick their top three spellers to enter the system-wide final spelldown. Hermosa, Carver, and Loco Hills schools will choose one pupil apiece for the system-wide spell-down.

In addition, each of the seven schools will send their best speller to the county spelling contest in Carlsbad, scheduled a few days after the Artesia contest.

Winners of the county spelling bee for the last two years have been Artesia students. Bobby Jo Hanson was last year's county winner and Jo Ann Faulk the winner in 1951.

Prizes to be awarded in the Artesia spelling bee by the Artesia Advocate, sponsor of the local quiz, will include a major portion of the winner's expenses to the regional spelling bee in El Paso and a Webster's Collegiate Dictionary for the runner-up.

First-place winner in the Artesia spelldown will not take part in the county contest, having already won his or her opportunity to go to El Paso.

Arrangements to select a word pronouncer and board of judges are rapidly being completed for the March 26 spelldown at Central school.

Fifty-Five Gallon Trash Drums Will Be Illegal in Two Weeks

Those 55-gallon drums everyone uses as trash cans are finally going to be outlawed—this time for sure.

The ban goes into effect two weeks for next Tuesday.

City council early this year ordered an ordinance passed late in 1952 which outlaws the 55-gallon drums to be staved off until the whole thing had been fully discussed.

City Supervisor J. D. Josey Jr., pointed out Wednesday night "the fly season is about here again and we've got to do everything possible to control them."

"I suggest," he added, "that we start by doing away with the drums so we can have fly-tight lids on all trash and garbage containers."

Councilmen agreed the ordinance they had been holding off should at least be placed into effect following a two-week warning to the public through a proper, published legal notice.

The ordinance forbids trash or garbage containers larger than 30 gallons being used. Container smaller than 30 gallons are, of course, permissible.

But containers for wet garbage and trash must have fly tight lids, since they are a flybreeding source.

City councilmen, debating how they'll outlaw the drums, decided it would be invasion of private property to simply haul off the drums after the two-week warning period is up.

Will Ignore

So after March 31 city trash men just will ignore the 55-gallon drums, unless residents specify they want the drums to be hauled away.

After adoption in November by the council the ordinance was held off after controversy, especially among businessmen, developed. A businessmen's delegation told the council it would be impossible for them to have enough 30-gallon containers to contain all "unwholesome matter" which the ordinance says must be put in containers with a fly-tight lid.

Josey said Thursday a notice would be published in next Tuesday's Artesia Advocate setting the deadline two weeks from Tuesday, or March 31.

Penalty for not putting trash and garbage in the specified receptacles is $25 fine or five days in jail—or both.

Rather than simply removing the objectionable 55-gallon drums as councilmen first decided to do, owners or users of the drums who do not provide proper receptacles will be cited in court.

Girl Scouts Begin Practices For Anniversary Celebration

Artesia Girl Scouts have completed plans to join the international organization in celebration of the 41st birthday of the first Girl Scout meeting.

The local program will be held March 20 in the high school auditorium at 7:30 p. m.

The program, under the direction of Mrs. Othel Olson, will include several ballads representing various countries where the Girl Scout program is carried out. Troops are working in teams with one troop singing the ballad and the other acting it out.

The program will be as follows: troop 11, new Senior troop, present colors; troops 4 and 6, "Hansel and Gretel"; Holland; troops 8 and 21, "Tancid"; Czechoslovakia; troops 14 and 23, "Musikana"; Germany; troops 18 and 22, "Nice Girls Don't Chase the Boys"; France; troops 7 and 16, "Mexican Hat Dance"; Mexico; troop 19, "Deaf Woman's Courtship"; American; troops 3 and 20, "Where Are You Going My Pretty Maid"; England; and troops 10, 12 and 17, "Auld Robin Grey," Scotland.

The troops are to practice this program honoring the founder, Juliette Low, at 7 p. m. March 19 in the high school auditorium.

Each year every Brownie and Girl Scout brings pennies for each year of their age. This year, Mrs. Donald Knorr, local program chairman, plans to use some toy transportation to present the money which will be used for the exchange of overseas campers—girls from this country go to international camps in Switzerland, Germany and France, and girls from abroad come to the United States.

The month of March has been set aside by Mayor J. L. Briscoe as Girl Scout Month in honor of their birthday and also to publicize the official cookie sale which will begin March 28 at 9 and continue through that week.

During this month also there is special emphasis being placed on the need for leaders and assistant leaders. No previous training is needed and anyone interested in working with girls is asked to call Mrs. John Smith at 805-W.

Meeting Seen Very Soon on State Program

Correspondence between Carlsbad and Artesia school board promises to result in an early conference of the two boards aimed toward solving county school problems by reorganization steps.

Supt. Tom J. Mayfield said Thursday the two boards had exchanged correspondence this week with a view toward an early meeting to discuss school reorganization in Eddy county.

"I anticipate the two school boards will hold a joint meeting in the near future," Supt. Mayfield declared yesterday afternoon.

Discuss Plan—

Carlsbad school officials met on Monday evening to discuss the matter but what action was taken is now known.

Carlsbad and county school boards were to have jointly conferred Wednesday afternoon, but Supt. Mayfield, who was in Carlsbad that day, said the scheduled meeting was not held due to absence of some board members.

It is believed a meeting of the county and Carlsbad boards was in the making, either yesterday or today, although Supt. Mayfield said he did not know when such a meeting was scheduled.

The Artesia school superintendent expressed optimism that when the Artesia and Carlsbad boards go meet, agreement can be reached on solution to the school problems in the county.

Disagreement

Chief areas of disagreement in the past have been:

1—Location of a line proposed by a state-appointed survey committee to divide the county into two school systems with centers at Artesia and Carlsbad, and

2—Inclusion of Loving into the proposed reorganization.

Machinery suggested by the state survey committee after its December study recognized Loving would probably oppose inclusion of its school system in the reorganization. It suggested a third school district be set up for Loving.

Carlsbad and Artesia boards in January tentatively agreed on a division line for the proposed re-districting of Eddy county's schools. It was located three miles south of the east-west line suggested by North Eddy county in its Artesia county bill, defeated by the legislature.

Here in Artesia to coordinate the work of 37 member agencies and provide for social planning, there has been formed a council of Social Agencies. Four-H Clubs Offer Challenge To Boys, Girls

Four-H club work offers a real challenge to teen-age boys and girls, says Vonnice Jasper, assistant county agent.

Programs include projects in clothing, baking, beef calf, swine, health, entomology, needlecraft, food preparation, frozen foods, leathercraft, crops, home improvement and tractor maintenance.

Junior leadership in project clubs gives 4-H'ers an opportunity for growth in leadership ability and in citizenship. It gives busy leaders a chance to make the club program more interesting and varied.

Teen-agers, through 4-H, have an opportunity to plan and help carry out the programs they take part in. As junior citizens, they are learn-

Beginning Early in Century, 4-H Boys, Girls Given Chance to Improve

Since their beginning in the 1900's, 4-H boys and girls have given millions of rural youth opportunity to improve themselves, their families, and their communities. They have learned methods of farming and homemaking by actually conducting specific project demonstrations.

During National 4-H Club Week, March 7-15, 4-H'ers will be giving you a chance to know about their plans for the coming year and their work in the past years," says L. S. Kurtz, 4-H club leader.

They will be enrolling new members in their clubs. Rural youth between 10 and 21 years of age may join any one of the 4-H clubs in Eddy county. They do not hold their meetings during the school hours. See the officers, local club leaders or county extension agents. Last year there were over 8,600 New Mexico young people enrolled in 4-H clubs," Kurtz added. "Each member is 'Learning to Do by Doing' scientific methods of farming and homemaking," explains Kurtz. "Opportunities are provided them in the development of citizenship and leadership qualities. They work together through organized clubs on planned program and community projects."

Some 600 interested adults in New Mexico serve as leaders of the clubs. The training which 4-H club members receive develops a pride in the proper care and cultivation of our land—man's most important labor.

"With only about 15 per cent of our nation's growing population engaged in farming," Kurtz points out, "it is a challenge to all of us to offer encouragement and assistance to our interested youth in keeping the 'bread basket' of our nation filled in future years."

Archaeologist Addresses Knife-Fork

A lively, fruitful meeting of the Knife-Fork club is due to be held when the members enter Count Byron de Prorok at next get-together of the organization.

The affair, according to Marjorie Rowley, the local president, is in charge of the committee arrangements, will be held at the Lutheran Parish Hall at 7 p. m. Friday.

A large majority of the members are planning upon being on hand to hear de Prorok. For years he has been a popular speaker in the Knife-Fork club and the men and women are anxious to hear him.

Prorok has wandered over the face of the earth during most of his life. He was born in Mexico and before the turn of the century he received his formal education in Geneva, enjoys a title, has a castle in Norway and has spent most of his life, when not leading expeditions to Egypt and other sections of the Near and Middle East, in the Near and Middle East, in the Near and Middle East.

He is, in fact, what one might call a cosmopolitan. Prorok's honors have been many. There are few European honors which he has not won.

He has also been honored by the Government of Egypt. In the summer of 1948, de Prorok led his expedition into unknown lands of Morocco, Mauritania, the Mountains, Sahara, Sudan and the Nile.

As a result of his experiences he has written several books, including "Dead Men Do Tell Tales," "Quest of Lost Worlds," "Mysteries of the Great Sahara" and "Man's Africa."

Beta Sigma Phi Girl of Year Secretly Chosen

Mrs. Bob Williams and Mrs. W. C. White were hostesses to Alpha Alpha chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Tuesday evening in the Williams home, 811 Mann.

Mrs. Wallace Beck, president, conducted the business meeting. Plans were discussed for the Founder's Day banquet to be held on April 30, and the chapter's "Girl of the Year" was chosen by secret ballot. Her identity will not be revealed until the night of the banquet.

Mrs. Ralph Vandewart presented the report of the nominating committee as follows: President, Mrs. Ed Wilson; vice president, Mrs. Ben Stevens; extension officer, Mrs. Bob Williams; recording secretary, Mrs. Cal Hall; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John Simons Jr.; treasurer, Mrs. Roy Richardson; city council representatives, Mrs. Wallace Beck and Mrs. Huck Kenny.

Election of officers will be held at the next meeting at which time the president will call for nominations from the floor.

Mrs. Bill Brittain, who recently moved to Artesia from Amarillo, was welcomed into the chapter.

In presenting the program for the evening on "Speech," Mrs. John Simons, Jr., explained that speech is more than use of the voice in language expression. Tone of voice, facial and bodily expression, not only add color to speech, but can even change its entire meaning. She gave pointers on good conversation as well as good public speaking.

Refreshments of congealed salad, nut bread sandwiches and coffee were served by the hostesses to the following members: Mmes. Beck, Brittain, Vandewart, Wilson, Stevens, Hall, Simons, Richardson, Kenny, Herman Ford, John Daugherty, Fred J. Keiser and Ken Schrader.

Burt Lancaster, Nick Cravat Star In Landsun Epic

Once again the "The Crimson Pirate," Burt Lancaster and Nick Cravat match and often out due their incredible feats of daring they introduced in "The Flame and the Arrow."

A Norma production distributed by Warner Bros., "The Crimson Pirate," begins its local engagement at the Landsun theater on Sunday.

Eva Bartok has the leading feminine role in the Technicolor sea epic.

Photographed on location at Ischia near the Bay of Naples, the new film presents Lancaster and Cravat as a colorful buccaneer chieftain and his loyal mate pitting wits and brawn against the evil forces of Baron Gruda, a Spanish nobleman during the 18th century.

On a vast set, representing the capital town of a Spanish island, Lancaster and Cravat are called upon to vault from the house tops into open windows and give the chasing militia a merry run-around. In one sequence the two actors jump from high story windows and as the soldiers come dashing around a corner, they are ensnared in a gigantic fish-net, sprung by Lancaster.

The intertidal pair next takes to a huge balloon for the amazing rescue scenes of the island beauty, Consuelo. Presumably designed by an 18th century scientist with plenty of foresight into the future, the balloon flies from the island

Available with fully automatic Fordomatic transmission for the first time, this new 1953 Ford F-100 Series of pick-up and panel delivery trucks meets nearly 50 percent of all hauling needs. It also is available with four other transmissions including automatic overdrive. The F-100 features an entirely new "driverized" cab termed "the roomiest, most comfortable truck cab on the road"; a new one-piece, curved windshield and a 4-foot wide rear window.

New Ford Trucks Go on Display Today With Host of New 'Driverized' Features

Ford will introduce the broadest line of trucks in the company's 50-year history when its 1953, all-new trucks go on display at Artesia Auto Co., local Ford dealership today.

Covering the widest range of ratings and designed for the greatest economy and driver comfort ever known in a commercial vehicle, the 1953 Ford trucks will be offered in four distinct lines, in 20 new series, and in more than 190 models.

All of the new trucks will feature new, one-piece curved windshields—largest in their field—with swept-back pillar posts and 55 per cent greater visibility. And the new F-100 series of light duty trucks will be equipped for the first time with Fordomatic fully-automatic transmissions or automatic overdrive as optional equipment.

Outstanding features of all the 1953 Ford trucks, according to Robert Bourland, general manager of Artesia Auto, are the completely new "driverized" cabs, and the elimination of double-clutching through use of new synchro-silent transmissions on all models. Shorter wheelbases, wider front treads and repositioning of springs make all 1953 Ford trucks easier to handle and to steer, more maneuverable and with shorter turning radius.

Other important features, Bourland said, are four-foot wide rear windows; new wider seats with five feet of hip room comfortably seating three men; exclusive Ford counter-shock seat snubbers which absorb road shocks for a softer, smoother ride; greater ease of servicing all models and Ford's exclusive offering of either three V-8 or two 6-cylinder modern, high compression engines noted for their economical operation. Engines range from 101 horsepower to 155 horsepower.

Material Controls, Shortages Stopped For Builders

For the first time in more than 10 years anyone in Artesia can build or modernize a home and other building without having to worry about either materials shortages or government controls, according to T. C. Stromberg, local lumber and materials dealer and member of the public affairs committee of the National Retail Lumber Dealers association.

"As of March 1, anyone can construct any type of building and can use any desired types of materials without securing permission from the federal government, provided the necessary materials can be obtained without priority assistance," Stromberg said.

"Inasmuch as all types of lumber and other building products are available in full supply, this means that everyone is free to start building without fear of delay due to scarcities or governmental red tape."

"Some controls still remain over critical metals used in manufacturing certain building products, but even so the output will be sufficient to meet all foreseeable demand."

"Lumber and most other building materials have been decontrolled by OPS, and average prices of building products are below the ceilings formerly in effect. No important increases are expected."

"An adequate supply of mortgage funds for home owners and others also is anticipated locally, although difficulty in arranging FHA and VA housing loans is reported in some areas owing to the fact that the government has kept interest rates on those loans at a level which makes them unattractive to lenders."

Warren G. Harding was the first U. S. President to use an automobile for inaugural ceremonies.

'Junior Miss' Is Chosen as Annual Junior Class Play

One of the merriest and fastest-paced comedy-hits to come from the pens of two noted writers of wit and satire, Jerome Chodorov and Joseph Fields, is "Junior Miss," selected as the next attraction to be presented by the junior class of Artesia Senior high school.

An outstanding theatrical success when it was originally produced by Max Gordon on Broadway in 1941, it is described as a "delightful and winning comedy of much charm and brightness," by the New York Herald Tribune, and "an amazingly humorous investigation of adolescence . . . the charm of which lies in making all recognize their own experiences with youngsters of the same age," by the Chicago Daily News.

It will be presented here at the high school auditorium for three performances beginning April 14 at 8 p. m.

"Junior Miss," a dramatization of a notable series of stories by Sally Benson in the New Yorker, relates the story of a more or less typical American family, named Graves, with two daughters who are about to become grown-ups.

From father Harry's irascible and domineering boss to Lois' never-ending procession of teenage boy-friends, there is rarely a quiet moment in the living room of the Graves' Manhattan apartment. Harassed father Harry is forever taking Lois' complicated and undecipherable telephone messages, and dutifully laughing at the heavy-handed humor of his employer.

When it almost seems as though a few moments of peace might descend upon the Graves household, young Judy's 13-year-old friend, Puffy Adams, usually shows up—the adolescent girls whom you'd love to strangle.

Added to these complications is the mysterious "Uncle Willis," who suddenly turns up after a 10-year absence, but refuses to talk about where he has been.

Chodorov and Fields, who with this play and their "My Sister Eileen," have established themselves as old masters of uproarious laughter and biting satire, have heaped situation upon situation, crisis upon crisis in this comedy, until the Graves family, with their friends, relatives and enemies, are reduced to a state of complete confusion, and New York audiences were reduced to helpless merriment during the play's run there of two years.

"Junior Miss" is an hilarious comedy of the American family, and as the action proceeds, audiences are frequently able to discover similarities between the Graves family and the family next door, or across the street, or up the block—even their own family.

Girl Scouts Are Real Travelers After Train Trip

Girl Scout troop 20 became full-fledged travelers last Saturday night when they rode the train from Carlsbad to Artesia in a history-making trip complete with sack lunches and 107 drinks of water.

The engineer and conductors made the trip unforgettable for 15 troop members, three guests and three adults by showing the group through the engine and through Pullman cars.

The Carlsbad trainmaster and stationmaster gave each girl a cardboard train together with pins and information about railroads.

The girls were driven to Carlsbad by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Stromberg, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Carper, and Mrs. Raymond Lamb. Mrs. Carper and Mrs. Stromberg led the troop.

Mrs. Lamb provided lunches which the girls ate on the train in honor of the 11th birthday of her twin daughters, Nancy and Nonny.

Funeral Rites for Dr. L. H. Pate Held in Carlsbad

Funeral services for Dr. L. H. Pate, former Lake Arthur resident, were held Monday afternoon at 3 p. m. at the Methodist church in

MRS. C. P. BUNCH

Carlsbad, with Rev. Joe Emanuel officiating.

Dr. Pate died Saturday morning at his home at 714 N. Canyon street. He was 79.

He was born in Springfield, Ark., June 10, 1873. He married Nancy Annie Petty in 1895 in Arkansas. Four children were born to them in Arkansas. Mrs. Pate and the oldest child, a daughter Alma, died, and were buried in Lake Arthur in 1910. The other three surviving children are two sons, Ted H. and Dr. H. Dibreil Pate, who practices medicine in Carlsbad and a daughter, Mrs. Mildred Outlaw of Post, Texas.

He later married Miss Ida Hammonds of Lake Arthur in 1913. She survives him.

He is also survived by five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Dr. Pate was graduated from the medical school of the University of Arkansas at Little Rock in 1905 with top honors in his graduating class. He moved with his wife and family to Lake Arthur in 1907 and set up practice as an M.D.

He practiced medicine until 1914, when he moved to Carlsbad where he practiced for 39 years in the same location. He also studied surgery at the college of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City in 1919.

Dr. Pate was the last surviving member of Lake Arthur Masonic Lodge No. 35, which was chartered Oct. 28, 1908. He was also the first master of this same lodge. Masons held graveside service for him.

He was a steward in the First Methodist church for 40 years.

The entire community is saddened over the loss of a friend on whom so many had come to lean on and depend upon.

Push, Planning Put Over 4-H In Eddy County

It takes a "heap 'o" push and planning to get things done! That's true in the kitchen, in business or on the farm or ranch.

And push and planning are a couple of good reasons why so many Eddy county boys and girls are taking part in the county 4-H club program sponsored by the extension service, points out Frances McGee, assistant home agent.

Those 4-H programs just don't happen. They are the result of co-operation between the 4-H members, the local club leaders, the parents, the business men of the community, and the extension service.

It is the local folks who furnish the spark that makes the county 4-H program a success, Miss McGee says. The leaders furnish the "know how," the parents provide the push which gets the less glamorous jobs done, and the businessmen offer the incentives in the form of awards for work well done.

So it is that parents, school personnel, businessmen and teenagers are all important to a successful 4-H program.

organization had sent him sample rulings.
One, for instance, calls for tall TV aerials to be secured by a set of guy wires every 20 feet and topped by a red blinker if more than 94 feet above ground level, Clem said.

The dealer said he and other dealers planned a meeting in Roswell Sunday to discuss preparations for the advent of TV in the Roswell area, and would have further reports after that.

Councilmen also briefly discussed licensing of dealers and TV servicemen after Clem pointed out dealers in other cities sell service contracts to TV servicemen. "Some such servicemen pick up money for those contracts, then leave the city," Clem said.

Councilmen indicated they would study steps to prevent this. Artesia appliance dealers have said this week it is expected TV will be available in Artesia from the Roswell station on May 1 or very shortly thereafter.

Drillers Leave Early Monday For Training

Artesia Drillers will leave Monday for spring training in McAllen, Texas, in the Rio Grande Valley, Mgr. Earl Perry reminded unbelieving fans Thursday.

"Most people," Perry said, "find it hard to believe that another baseball season is already upon us—but in less than a month we'll be playing our first exhibition game right back here in Artesia."

Perry, who has busily gathered an outstanding team together in the in-between months since player drafts in Phoenix last December, will drive several of his players by bus to McAllen.

Leave in Morning
The team will leave Artesia at 8 a. m. Monday morning.

With Perry will go Les Mulcahy, catcher; Jackie Wilcox, infielder; pitchers Clark Presley, Len Ruyle and Ken Foster, Glen Pine, infielder; Frank Calo, catcher and outfielder; Bill Haley and Joe Fortin.

Slated to join the Drillers at McAllen are Frank Fernandez, back from the 1952 pitching staff; Omar Rivera and Fidel Alvarez, a pair of rookies from Cuba; Pete Joe Calderon; Eldon "Pete" Pichan, outfielder; John Warren, NDS catcher; pitchers Ralph Carrier and Milton Marshall and infielder Paul Halter.

New to the Drillers will be Mulcahy, Wilcox, Foster, Calo, Fortin, Rivera and Alvarez, Calderon, Warren and Carrier.

Back from the 1952 lineup are Marshall, Halter, Pichan, Fernandez, Haley, Presley and Perry himself.

Gradually Start
In McAllen the Drillers will gradually limber up from the lay-off since early September before embarking on an exhibition series in latter part of their training.

They'll return to Artesia April 14 for the first of a series of exhibition games against teams in the West Texas-New Mexico league. First Driller home game will be April 22 against Carlsbad.

"It's possible it'll rain here again," Rowley declared. "I believe it will."

Paving of Hermosa has been held up by one problem after another, largely centering on the drainage problem. There was talk Thursday a court injunction preventing paving of the street might be sought by residents in the area.

Southwest Potash Co. while giving Carlsbad Potash Company of America valuation. The original proposal by the state survey committee gave the proposed Artesia district a segment of PCA valuation, which was violently opposed by Carlsbad board members.

The state board of education had told the two school boards they must get together in agreement on reorganization before it will act in the matter.

George Harley, president of the Carlsbad board, and Virgil O. McCollum, a member, have both issued statements saying they recognize the "injustice" of the present situation.

backing formation of the BBB, said he was anxious to see it be made an effective organization.

"For instance," he said, "there was a gentleman in here this week seeking donations for a home for boys in Texas. He drove out of Artesia in a Cadillac. We should be able to check on people like that. I'd like to know about these solicitors who drive Cadillacs."

Scot told the city council the BBB would be active in its work in the "very near future."

Half-Million Farm Workers Get Social Security

Half a million U. S. farm workers have had social security protection since regular full-time farm work began to count toward social security benefits for farm workers two years ago.

Any farm laborer doing regular, full-time farm work, is required by law to have 1½ per cent of his wages deducted, and the employer is required to pay a like amount, making a total of 3 per cent, to be turned into the Director of Internal Revenue for social security benefits to the farm worker.

If the farm work doesn't meet the requirements as a regular, full-time job month after month with the same employer, then it doesn't count towards social security even if the worker would like to join up.

The amount of a family's payments under social security depends on how much they have each month in cash wages and how many dependents can qualify for payments. For instance, a 69-year-old farm worker, who had worked on farms all his life, was making $200 a month in cash wages, but decided to ease up a little and change to part-time work.

After checking with the social security office, he found that he would receive $70 a month, and his wife who is 66 years old will get another $35 a month, making a total of $105 a month in social security payments for both of them.

Any social security office can give information concerning eligibility of farm workers for social security benefits. The address of the local office can be obtained from any post-office.

Cattle Slaughter Fails to Stop High Inventories

The big cattle slaughter this past fall was far from enough to halt the upswing of cattle inventories.

The bureau of agricultural economics estimates there are 5 million more cattle in the U. S. than a year ago. With average range and pasture conditions, cattle numbers are expected to increase nearly 15 per cent this year.

Cattle feeding prospects indicate that present conditions are somewhat more favorable for the short-term feeder than for the long-term operator, according to the BAE.

That's just opposite of the 1946-1951 period, when best returns came from long-term feeding. The long-term feeder has been favored by generally rising cattle prices, relatively low feed costs, and a narrow price spread between upper and lower grades of slaughter steers.

In short-term feeding, however, cost of feed is relatively less important and cost of feeder steers is relatively more important. For that reason, short-term operators gain an advantage from lower priced feeder cattle. Prices for feeder steers this past fall has averaged more than a fourth lower than a year ago. This has been particularly tough on Western cattlemen, the BAE points out.

Kansas State College economists reported recently, that, during years when poor pasture conditions prevailed at the end of the grazing season, the price of good stocker steers tended to increase earlier in January than during the years of normal pasture conditions.

The Kansas economists concluded there should be a strengthening of prices of good stocker steers during the next six weeks. Prices should continue steady to stronger in March.

Circular on Beef Cattle Available For 4-H Members

"Your 4-H Beef Calf," a new extension circular, is now ready for distribution. The publication gives information on selecting a calf; feeding, feed-stuffs, and rations; sanitation and disease; fitting; and keeping records. Author of the publication is W. E. Flint, extension animal husbandman in beef cattle production at New Mexico A&M college.

In his introduction to the circular, Flint says, "When you carry a 4-H beef calf project, you are training yourself for a future career as a livestock producer. You learn how to care for cattle, so that they will develop into fine examples of their breeds and will furnish more and better meat for the hungry tables of America."

"You also learn the importance of home-grown feeds, especially roughages, and how they contribute to the fertility of the farm. But don't expect to learn all this without a lot of hard work. Raising a beef calf is a tough job, but you will find that the reward is more than worth the effort."

The circular is profusely illustrated with many humorous drawings by former extension staff artist, Mrs. Elsie Svendsen. Copies of "Your 4-H Beef Calf" may be obtained from county extension offices or from the extension service, State College.

Study on County Underground Water Announced

A comprehensive study of the underground-water resources of Eddy county was published this week by the bureau of mines and mineral resources, a division of New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology at Socorro.

The third in a series of county-wide water studies conducted by the bureau in recent years, the Eddy county work comprises 169 printed pages and 10 maps, in addition to photographs and charts.

It covers five major and 13 minor water areas in the county, and includes records of more than 450 wells and springs, together with 99 chemical analyses of representative well and spring waters.

Its title is "Ground Water Report No. 3: Geology and Ground-Water Resources of Eddy County, New Mexico." Similar studies have been published on the ground-water sources of Colfax and San Miguel counties.

The Eddy county report was several years in preparation, and was financed jointly by the state bureau of mines, the state engineer, and the U. S. geological survey. In southeastern New Mexico, most water for domestic livestock, irrigation, municipal, and industrial uses comes from the ground. The report thus has particular value to persons or organizations planning to develop a water supply in that sector of the state.

Copies are available from the Bureau of Mines for a price of $2.50 each.

Biblical Archaeology Topic or Knife-Fork Meet Tonight

Archaeology of the Bible will be Count Byron de Prorok's subject at tonight's meeting of Artesia Knife and Fork club.

The count is famous for many things. He is probably the best known living archaeologist in the world, a speaker of distinction, a man of mean ability and one of the fellows in the world.

According to Marshall Rowley, president, and chairman of the committee on arrangements, the affair will be held at 7 p. m. tonight at Presbyterian parish hall. The Prorok has been a popular speaker in various Knife and Fork clubs for a number of years. Accordingly, it is expected that a large number of the members will be on hand to hear him deliver his talk on archaeology.

Byron de Prorok was born in Mexico way, just before the turn of the century and he was born in Geneva, Switzerland. The name "Count" is an ancient Norman title and he might well be called a cosmopolitan. He has a castle in Normandy and a town house in New York. He is just as much at home in Cairo or Alexandria as he is in London.

Many honors have accrued to him. As a result of his explorations of ancient civilizations, he has been decorated by most of the nations of Western Europe and by the government of Egypt. The Prorok has reportedly dug up mummies and explored more ancient civilizations than any other man and in his castle he possesses the largest mummy collection in the world.

During the summer of 1948, de Prorok led his twentieth expedition. This one was to the unknown lands of Morocco, Mauritania, the Sahara, the Nile. Along with anything else, de Prorok has

Count Byron de Prorok found time to write several books. Among the most important of them have been "No Man's Africa" and "Dead Men Do Tell Tales."

State Aids 689 Dependent Children

In Eddy county 689 recipients received aid to dependent children from the New Mexico department of public welfare, Alva A. Simpson, Jr., state director said today. The amount paid to these recipients—according to current monthly figures—in this county was $12,568.

Within the state there were 18,469 persons who received this aid in 5,058 families. Total New Mexico ADC assistance amounted to $359,775, the welfare director said. A breakdown showed that 16,437 non-Indians, 1,512 Navajos, and 520 Apache and Pueblo Indians currently received ADC.

Automatic Pistol Reported Stolen

Theft of an automatic pistol from a truck parked at Veterans Memorial building last Friday night has been reported to police by Luke Ray of Lake Arthur.

Ray said the pistol was in a homemade holster. It was identified as a Colts Woodsman pistol.

Cause of Disease Discussed By Local Doctor

This is the actual case record of a Chiropractic patient, who states:

"For many years I had been ailing. Finally I submitted to the removal of a toxic inward goitre. The effects of this resulted in paralysis of my left side. I could not walk without assistance, and had no use of my left arm and hand. In addition to this I suffered with severe headaches.

"After a year of being handicapped in this way, I decided to take the advice of some good friends. I placed myself under the care of a Chiropractor. After two months of scientific Chiropractic care, the use of my left leg and arm was restored; my nervousness and headaches subsided, and I was happy to discover that I needed to wear my glasses only when reading or sewing, whereas I had worn them at all times previously. "I have worked steadily now for three years and I look and feel younger now than I did ten years ago."

It is not right to say "everything possible has been done" unless Chiropractic is included!

For further information about Chiropractic you are invited to consult Dr. Kathryn Behnke, Palmer Graduate Chiropractor, 408 W. Richardson, phone 861.

Leveling Speeds Irrigation on Mills Farm

IRIGATING land leveled in January and February of 1952 on the H. H. Mills farm at Lake Arthur shows how much leveling speeds irrigation. Note water standing in furrows from one end of field to other. In the foreground water is being siphoned from a ditch. Yield on this field is three bales per acre. (SCS Photo)

Mills Works Out Leveling, Fertilizing Program, Increases Yields Six Times

By KEITH J. DAMPF
SCS Technician, Artesia

no doubt, have heard growing two blades of where one used to grow. Mills of Lake Arthur, three bales of cotton one-half bale used to is the story in Mills' words "I bought this in 1941. The average yield for preceding years was 265 lbs of lint cotton per acre. Last year I had 75 acres in cotton. It had three bales per acre. This year the yield was due to a rotation including alfalfa and cotton. The barnyard and commercial areas leveling the land and application of water."

er buying the farm in 1941, first job was to build an over-reservoir which holds the water for 14 hours. He irrigates the reservoir to refill the night.

Out Program—
1949 a soil and water conservation plan was worked out with Central Valley soil conservation district. The farm consists of 280 acres irrigated land and 280 range. It is located one mile west of Lake Arthur.

The first job undertaken with assistance from the SCS was the leveling of 53 acres in 1952. "The reason I leveled this was I liked to irrigate leveled says Mills. "Unlevel land is too hard, and besides I don't like for the waste to be running off my land." course the increase in yield leveling, which he says was 20 per cent, was very well. In addition, it only takes one day to do the irrigating where it used to take two. "The saving of in irrigating leveled land is a lot in a year's time," said.

1950, Mills leveled 72 acres. In 1951, 72 more acres were leveled and the remaining 33 acres in 1952. About the same amount of water is used as before. Benefits come from lower labor costs in irrigating and increased yields.

Keys On Producing—

Last year, 20 tons of barnyard manure per acre was applied on five acres, which were planted to cotton. This land had been in alfalfa for eight years. "I wish I had kept a record on this," says Mills, "because after the other cotton had quit making, the part that was manured just kept on producing. Since I averaged three bales to the acre on the entire field, I figure I must have made about four bales to the acre on the manured part."

The manure paid off so well in 1952 that Mills bought 2,300 tons already this year and is applying it on his cotton ground at the rate of 20 tons per acre. He is putting this on his farm and also on the farm of Jack Spence, a neighboring place which Mills operates.

All of the leveling on this farm has been done with farm tractor and scraper. The scraper is owned in partnership with R. T. Spence. Mills says that by using his own equipment, the leveling was done much cheaper and he could do the work whenever he wanted to. The scraper was also used in leveling the Spence farm.

Cattle raising is an important enterprise on this farm. The herd consists of 32 cows and 43 heifers and calves. Mr. and Mrs. Mills' children, Celia Marie, 8, and Catherine Ann, 5, own a large part of the herd. It was started when Joe Kintz gave his granddaughter, Celia Maria, a white-faced Hereford calf in 1945.

Loss Into Profit—

"Cows are used to turn a loss into a profit?" says Mills. The cattle are grown on alfalfa hay that gets rained on, straw from small grain, grazing in cotton fields in the fall and grazing from alfalfa fields in winter.

Mills says "Alfalfa furnishes a lot of good grazing in the winter, but it also takes care of another problem—that of greenbug control. Grazing the alfalfa destroys the greenbug's winter home, freezing them to death. I've had greenbugs reduce my first cutting of alfalfa by one-third. By grazing alfalfa in winter, I have very little damage."

"I have 15 acres of permanent irrigated pasture, which was seed-pays off good, too. Cattle raising has a place in my kind of farming and with cattle, I need some irrigated pasture."

"Whatever the price of beef, I'll make money on cattle. They only use stuff which there is no good market for."

Mills concluded, "The soil conservation district program has been a great help to me. I believe in taking advantage of the services which the district has to offer. We should make the best possible use of our soil and water—not waste them. My children and your children will need both."

More Than Mere Talk

EVERY NOW AND THEN we find those individuals who want to voice a complaint or have their say regarding some individual, his or her conduct, and they want someone to publish this in a newspaper for them.

But publishing statements regarding individuals is more than mere conversation—it is a permanent record of those remarks. It is something tangible that can be picked up, studied, and even submitted as evidence in court.

Conversation is rather cheap. We can say and do many things we dare not print. We can talk about this or that individual and it may be slanderous and even libelous but it is very difficult to prove that the remarks were made.

That isn't true about published statements—they can be proven.

It is also true that the mere fact some one individual knows something or saw something doesn't make it so and it doesn't provide the witnesses necessary to prove and establish these statements in court.

Newspapers oftentimes take chances but they have a definite goal they are working toward if they do this.

Newspapers do not intentionally and deliberately accept statements which are libelous and publish them merely because someone thinks they should do this or because someone believes these things should be said.

There is more involved in a libel suit than merely the damages sought. There is the expense of employing legal counsel, the expense of going to court, and the expense of gathering and collecting evidence and witnesses.

And that always costs money. Certain things are privileged and can be printed. Other things are not privileged and can not be published without the danger of a libel suit.

The personal life of an individual is his or her own affair. When they become public officials there is a little more freedom and when they are seeking public office and things are printed or published about them as a protection to the public—even more freedom can be enjoyed.

But no one can legally condemn the personal life of some individual or hold them up to ridicule or embarrass them even though the things they want to say are the truth.

Experience has taught most newspaper people that oftentimes individuals may say things and they may want the paper to say them, but if the paper is sued they will not take the witness stand to help defend the paper and to swear to the truth of the statements.

That is one reason why newspapers want records on the things they publish. They want to be able to have these records so they can use them to prove their statements if that becomes necessary.

A man may be drunk and intoxicated and make a spectacle of himself but unless he is arrested and so charged with those whose duty it is to enforce the law the average newspaper isn't going to comment on the intoxicated condition of that individual.

They are merely trying to protect themselves and rightfully so.

As we have stated libel suits are always costly whether they are won or lost.

And newspapers aren't free to just publish everything and anything although sometimes those who want to use the newspapers to help them reach certain ends seem to think so.

The final decision as to whether something will or won't be published will have to rest with the newspapers — after all the newspaper is the one who will be sued if suit is filed and the paper is responsible for what it prints or publishes whether it is in a news-article, a letter to the editor, an editorial, or an advertisement.

Another Improvement

WE AT The Artesia Advocate are mighty proud of the shiny, miracle-performing engraving machine now installed in our shop.

It means we no longer have to send pictures to Roswell and Clovis to be engraved, a time-consuming process which made timely news pictures almost impossible and cost so much the volume of pictures to be used was limited by budget dictates.

It means we can offer to our advertisers and printing customers the latest in electronic reproduction of photographs and other "art," especially in this day and age when it is realized that "eye appeal is buy appeal."

As one result of the machine's installation, we can work toward developing contemporary theories of photo journalism, which has its origin in the oft-quoted comment that one picture is worth a thousand words.

Sizeable annual investment in rental cost of the machine and its expensive materials reflects the faith of The Artesia Advocate that the city is growing, and that as soon as they can be economically justified, latest methods and tools will be employed to improve the quality of this newspaper and its many services to the community.

We're mighty proud of this machine; we're still a little bewildered with its maze of tubes and wires, its electric eye and nearly white-hot stylus which punches into plastic 360 times every second. Even though the layman can't appreciate how it works, it is all too apparent the machine does work in a way to benefit all those who rely on the newspaper.

We'd like to show our newest offspring in The Artesia Advocate shop to any of you who are interested.

Dog Poisoners

REPORTS OF AT least three dog deaths due to a strangely quick-acting poison stir protests in Artesia this week from every pet owner, parents in the vicinity of the poisoning, and all of us with humane feeling in our make-up.

No end justifies the means the dog poisoner has chosen for his vicious practice. Certainly the practice of many pet owners in letting their dogs run loose is careless, irresponsible, and unfair to dogs.

Yet the carelessness of those owners is not just cause for poisoning a dog, for a cruel mind to take matters unto itself and kill any dog which takes the bait indiscriminately.

Probably no act can stir more wrath than the action of the dog poisoner. His is an unforgivable act which cannot be condoned by any reasonable person.

Those of us who own dogs might remember in our wrath that it is our duty to take care of our pets, to protect them. For after all, we have domesticated them, taken them from their natural way of life. It is not right to allow a dog to roam at will where he can destroy, be a menace to children, chase cars, and commit all the other distasteful acts of the undisciplined dog.

We hope our police are successful in apprehending the person who has committed these dog killings, although we must realize it is a difficult job.

At the same time, let's give better protection to our pets and make sure we are not allowing them to become an obnoxious nuisance, removing any justification an unreasonable person might seize on.

More Than Money

OPERATING A successful Boy Scout program in any district requires money, but day-to-day success of the program demands far more than money in the way of devoted contributions of large chunks of time.

Many folks who commented on the difference in the goals of the Boy Scout and Girl Scout organizations during recent fund drives came to realize this. While the Boy Scout fund drive was pegged for $7,000, Girl Scouts sought only $3,000.

Inquiry into both organizations produced this agreement: Girl Scouts can operate for less money because their paid staff is smaller. Boy Scouts have difficulty in finding men to volunteer work, and so they must employ men to get the job done.

At one time there was only a scattering of paid employees in the Boy Scout movement; most of the organization was conducted by volunteers who gave unstintingly of their time. As a result Boy Scouting then had something which made it richer than all the fund drives in the world could give it.

Sometimes it's mighty easy for us men to give a sizeable cash contribution and think we've fulfilled our obligation to such program by Boy Scouting. But it isn't money alone that makes such programs as the Scout movement go. It requires the devoted service of a community's manpower dedicated to the welfare of youth—and money can't buy that.

Evangelist Going Into Pool Halls, Drug Stores Of Carlsbad to Teach Boys on Neighborliness

AN EVANGELIST/SAYS HE'S going into the pool halls, drug stores and street corners of Carlsbad's South Side to talk to the boys there into being good neighbors.

At least that's what evangelist Eddy Clayton, self-styled rain-maker and goodwill dispenser, tells the Albuquerque Journal.

Evangelist Clayton's trip to Carlsbad, he told the Duke City paper, is prompted by reports of four boys in Carlsbad being arrested in an attempt to avert a gang fight involving 50 youths.

The evangelist said "I'm going into the pool halls, drug stores, and on the street corners on Carlsbad's South Side and talk to the boys on being good neighbors. The boys of today will be the men of tomorrow and we've got to learn to live together."

SPRING WENT DOWN FOR the county Tuesday as the first general snowfall of the season blanketed New Mexico from border to border. Rodeo up in Northern New Mexico had about eight inches of snow. Clayton had two, Santa Fe and Albuquerque a trace.

Accident Points Up Need for Enforcing Laws On Intersection Stops, Stern Punishment

DRUNK DRIVERS

A fatal accident Saturday night at a street intersection, and the police report yesterday that since Jan. 1 there have been 32 arrests for drunken driving, points up a couple of things that must be remedied.

One is that drivers have become entirely too careless in their driving approach to street intersections, and the other is that the city needs a more stern way to punish drivers who endanger the lives of the people by plotting their cars while drunk.

Anyone who drives the city regularly knows that a big percentage of drivers rarely take the precaution to slow their speed at intersections, and that many of them crash these points at speed far in excess of 25 miles per hour. How the police can stop that feature of the accident problem is one that can be solved only by appealing to drivers to exercise care.

But there could be a way devised that would make it rough for the potential murderers who drive while intoxicated. Instead of the usual $150 fine and surrender of driver's license, if the police court could also add six months in jail, and see to it that the violators served every day of it, it probably would have considerably more effect than the present fine.—Roswell Daily Record.

FINE PROBING JOB

We believe the joint House-Senate committee that has just completed an investigation of the state penitentiary deserves a bouquet.

Resisting what must have been a natural temptation to play politics, and make headlines, the committee conducted its investigation with a calm air that has reassured the state.

The committee found conditions that need correction, but it did not try to pin down scapegoats. Prison officials and board members cooperated when they discovered it was no witch-hunt. The press, too, taking its cue from the committee was restrained.

Perhaps the chief trouble at the prison, a fact brought out by the investigation, is that the penitentiary has been operated as a place of confinement, rather than a place to rehabilitate those who have broken the law.

A new prison building is needed, one to separate and classify the convicts. Better trained guards are also a need. The lax discipline which permits such things as convict drinking parties, and the employment of a guard with a record as a homosexual must be tightened.

We think the membership of the investigating committee that brought those things to light has done a service for New Mexico.—Current-Argus.

HE BROKE HIS PICK

On the heels of a published report that Congressman John J. Dempsey opposes the proposal to divide New Mexico into two districts for election of congressmen, a supporter in the state senate declared that from the way things are shaping up the measure will be approved when ever it comes to vote. It was first approved and sent to the senate.

Congressman Dempsey takes a different view of the matter than does Congressman Fernandez, who would be as much affected by the districting bill as Dempsey. Fernandez declared that he would be neutral in the matter, believing that it was the duty of the legislature to make the decision. Since both representatives are from Santa Fe only one can be elected if the districting measure passes, and therefore one has as much at stake as the other.

So we will have to conclude that Dempsey is thinking about his own political future instead of proper representation for the state.

Claiming bias, that hearings should be heard, and several other matters that seems to have as little actual bearing on the matter as the first two, the congressman says that he fears that electing from districts instead of at large would be a detriment to the state.

By the same token we would assume that the congressman believes that in states where many congressmen are elected that the same thing would apply. That is,

Shed a Tear for the Rhinoceros—He's on Way to Join Extinct Dodo

Shed a tear for the rhinoceros—he's on his way to join the passenger pigeon and the dodo. The bad news comes in a National Geographic bulletin:

A valuable horn and a frustrated love life have brought the tough old rhinoceros to the brink of extinction.

Virtually without enemies except for man, these huge, herbivorous mammals are members of a family that was world wide in prehistoric times. Now, however, only five species of rhinoceros remain. Some of the species are thought to number less than 100 living members.

The Great Indian rhinoceros with shieldlike folded skin and single nasal horn has been reduced, to several hundred individuals living mostly in Assam and Nepal. The Javan rhinoceros also is vanishing, while the Sumatran rhino, smallest of the five species, is believed to be reduced to some 50 animals.

The two species of rhinos that inhabit Africa also are depleted. The smooth-skinned black rhinoceros that ranges through much of the continent is diminishing in number, while rhinoceroses are nearly extinct.

The white rhino ranks as the world's second largest land animal, after the elephant. He stands nearly six feet at the shoulder and weighs up to three tons, and his own two horns are often long enough to be carved into canes.

Some timely reflections on freedom by Jasper E. Crane in a symposium appearing in the Princeton Alumni magazine: It is the environment in which man's self-control thrives, his personality develops. Freedom is we could assume that unless we knew better.

We've always been personally fond of Congressman Jack, and we've believed that he was a good official. We still believe he is, but he's broken his pick with us now.—Roswell Record.

LET'S GET BUSY

The survey report by penologist Douglas C. Rigg, submitted to a joint House-Senate investigating committee, proved to be a masterpiece of constructive criticism combined with concrete suggestions for improving our decaying penitentiary. Rigg's report should be used as a blueprint for progress by the legislature, the governor, prison board and prison administration.

In essence, the Rigg report showed that our prison is a mess, and pointed the way to make it meet at least minimum standards.

Let's get busy. — New Mexican, Santa Fe.

indefinite. The use of the plural—freedoms—or the designation of various kinds of freedom is apt to obscure or even destroy the meaning of this precious possession. It is more precise to speak of freedom in its manifestation in the various areas of life. Some demand religious freedom, seemingly oblivious to other concerns; others call for freedom of speech, as if that were all that mattered; still others urge economic freedom, claiming that then human rights will be secure. What America stands for is freedom. We know what it is, and we want its exercise in all branches of life.

Cacophonous note on music in the automotive age from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A composer whose music embraces sounds produced from old car parts is writing over the heads, we fear, of most automobile owners. Lou Harrison's "Cantata III for Percussion Orchestra," which will be played at a concert in the Museum of Modern Art, employs tire rims and brake drums (Harrison says old Studebaker and Ford brake drums are the most musical).

Harrison's old-car music simply does not seem apt to sound like the old-car music most people are used to. It seems esoteric. Why not some old-car music in a popular vein, for instance the ping-pong and wheeze of a gallant veteran making its way up a hill, the rattle of a door whose rattle has grown deep and rich with many openings and closings, the sharp report of a blowout in a tire that has gone round and round just once too often?

There would be old-car music that was old-car music.

School Studies Creation of Advisory Board for Public Voice in Athletics

SCHOOL OFFICIALS ARE mulling over an idea aimed at giving the public—at least the vocal sports-minded public—a voice in how the school's athletic and activities program are being operated.

These ideas are the results of what last fall seemed to be conflicting views of how these things should be run and what their place should be in the school.

Set-up of an athletic-activities advisory council is one answer being tossed about for suggestions by the school administration. It would include school board, administration, and public participants. It would, however, have advisory powers only, since the board of education is legally responsible for conduct of the school's affairs and must therefore make final decisions.

If the people feel they are not being heard in running of their schools such a panel might prove to be the answer, provided it is in fact truly representative of the public and is balanced in an attempt to draw together the many diversified views as to what is needed.

Chief of Police Frank Powell before entering law was (and still is) a licensed mortician, employed at one establishment in Oklahoma for 10 years and a second for four years before being elected police chief in Durant, Okla., in May of 1945.

The chief also worked a year in a funeral home from May 1951 when he left office, until May 1952 when he came to Eddy county.

COUNCILMAN J. L. WALKER has received commendation from his conferees of the city's most exclusive club for his fill-in as boss of the police department in the interim between resignation of Earl Westfall and employment of Chief Powell.

Walker devoted himself to that two week's job, sometimes going home far after midnight (around 3 a. m. one time at least, according to officers). He was at the department constantly.

It is a tribute to Walker and especially to the men of the de-

Stalin's Death, Speculation Crowds Other Events During Week in Capital

By JOHN J. DEMPSEY
Congressman from New Mexico

Washington, March 12.—Death of Prime Minister Josef Stalin of Russia, and speculation in Washington official circles concerning what effect it may have upon the international situation, overshadowed in a great degree most other events of consequence in the nation's capital during the past week. The principal concern, naturally, was about what turn of trend it might cause in the cold war in Europe and in the Korean conflict.

Consensus from informed sources is that the passing of Stalin will have little or no effect on the present status in Europe and in Korea. I share the belief of those who feel that the Communist program of aggression has been definitely formulated for some time to come and that a man with the cunning and astuteness of Stalin made certain his successor would carry out the program.

That is borne out by the naming of Georgi Malenkov to fill Stalin's shoes. So long as the power is centered in the small group of leaders in the Kremlin—the chosen heirs of Stalin—fear of the purge will be the greatest deterrent to internal upheaval. Hope for that eventuality, at least under existing conditions, would appear to be very dim.

Gen. James Van Fleet, former commander of the U. N. forces in Korea, now retired and relieved of the restraint imposed by active duty, told a startling story of serious shortages of ammunition for the fighting men in Korea in his testimony before the Senate Armed Services committee. There has been a shortage of ammunition and hand grenades in Korea for at least 22 months, he said, despite his frequent reports of desperate need for those supplies.

"In my 20 years in the Senate I have never been more shocked," said Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) in writing to Defense Secretary Wilson, demanding a full report from the Pentagon. Sen. Byrd demanded that those responsible for the tragic bungling be properly punished.

What is difficult to comprehend is why there should be shortages of any materials required by the armed forces of this country when we have been spending 50 billions a year or more on our defense program. Coupled with the waste and inefficiency in procurement for the armed services that was revealed in hearings by the House committee last year, it is clearly evident that the secretary of defense, the partment that during the term when there was no regular police chief the work of the organization smoothly continued, and there was no disciplinary delinquencies, and things were kept on a snuff generally.

BOB KOONCE, MANAGER of the Casa Bonita duplex project, made it clear to council Wednesday that the project he administers is completely connected to sewer lines, and ways has been, and that connections are set in as rulings rather than bolted to a concrete floor with the pipe down below.

Councilmen said they did know which project all the regularities had occurred, Koone assured them it was in Casa Bonita.

There is still some speculation as to how two houses in a project other than Casa Bonita could be certified by the plumbing inspector without being connected to city sewer lines.

ONE OF THE MOST ENTHUSIASTIC campaigns in Artesia in long time is that of the Baptist church to raise $3,000. It can move the present Presbyterian church building from Fourth and Grand over to Chestnut street. Rev. Jimmy Horton is voted to the job and is attracting widespread support.

Presbyterians gave their present church building to the Baptists. Surveys of the church building, built before 1910, shows it to be so structurally sound that it can be moved without fear of falling apart midway.

TELEVISION MEN REPORT the station in Roswell should be on the air sometime shortly after May 1. Some Artesians are ready worried about regulations over such matters as installation of aerials, licensing of operators and new dealers to avoid fly-by-night, an other problems of TV age.

It's to be pointed out Mayor J. L. Briscoe already has an appliance dealer checking regulations adopted by cities to control erection of antennas, which wouldn't last during some of our wind storms. That's looking ahead.

President, and the Congress

a manifest duty imposed upon them to see that a more efficient and economical job is done. Noteworthy also that, up to time, none of the glaring mistakes that caused the waste of billions of dollars, has been corrected, so far as the Congress is concerned.

Gen. Van Fleet's statement coupled with his stated opinion that the handicaps caused by shortages and the fumbling of U. N. has done in regard to armistice have strengthened Communist position in Korea should warn the Congress that must keep a tighter rein on defense program and the ministering it.

The Vermejo conservancy tract near Maxwell is now under construction. After a two-year battle for it by the landowners and the New Mexico Congressional delegation. Following authorization by the bureau of reclamation, work is being started once by the Colorado Constructors, which was awarded the contract on a bid of $850,212. Estimate by the engineers is $1,160,000. The contractors have 720 working days to complete the job which includes the building of three dams, a dike, and enlargement of three reservoirs. The total estimated cost of the entire project is $2,919,000. The district is in full operation will be a big factor in the economic progress of Northern New Mexico.
