CRASHES KILL THREE

Lawton Man and Two Texans Fatally Hurt In Accidents

Five persons lost their lives in accidents in Texas and Oklahoma Thursday and two of the victims, small girls, were burned to death in fires caused by the use of kerosene and gasoline, press dispatches reported Thursday night.

Three men were killed in automobile accidents, one near Duncan, Okla., and two near Athens, Texas, when a train struck a car at a crossing.

CANYON, Texas, Jan. 31. (AP)—A fire her brother started with kerosene today took the life of Mary Elizabeth Ellis, 15, when the fuel exploded and set fire to the house, burning it to the ground.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Ellis, the brother and a baby escaped from the home, 15 miles southeast of Canyon, but the girl could not be awakened in time to flee to safety. The boy was burned, and was taken to an Amarillo hospital. It was said his condition was serious.

GIRL, 13, FATALLY BURNED AT HOME

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Jan. 31. (UP)—Ruth Synder, 13, of Catoosa, was burned to death and her sister, Mrs. Edna Teel, and R. W. Teel, Mrs. Teel's husband, were burned, probably fatally, when the Teels' home was destroyed here today.

Teel was attempting to start a coal fire by pouring gasoline on it. It was believed he mistook the gasoline for kerosene. An explosion and fire followed.

The Snyder girl was asleep in the bed where she was burned to death.

LAWTON MAN DIES IN AUTO SMASH

DUNCAN, Okla., Jan. 31. (UP)—J. H. Crandle of Lawton was fatally injured and J. H. Schlumbohms sustained minor injuries in an automobile accident which occurred seven miles northwest of here this afternoon.

A. L. "Pat" Brandon escaped unhurt.

The men were riding in a Ford truck said to have a faulty steering gear. Crandle was driving. The truck suddenly turned about and turned over.

Crandle was employed by the American Tin company at Lawton. His neck was broken and he lived an hour after the wreck.

The men were on their way to a refinery south of here.

CROSSING CRASH FATAL FOR TWO

ATHENS, Texas, Jan. 31. (AP)—Two men, Doc Boyett, 56, and Macduff Larkin, 71, were killed today when a freight train struck their automobile at a crossing two miles west of Athens.

Boyett and Larkin had started on a camping trip on the Trinity river. Their light touring car was demolished.

Boyett had been city recorder for 10 years and was president of a battery company here. He is survived by five daughters and one son.

Larkin was a retired rural mail carrier, having delivered mail from Athens for 20 years. Four daughters and a son survive.

ARCHER COUNTY TO CELEBRATE 50 YEARS OF PROGRESS

Many Wichita Leaders Aided In Organization Of New Territory Half Century Ago

By C. W. ROGERS
The Record News Staff

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Jan. 31.—Old-time citizens of Archer county, aided and abetted by the younger element, the Archer County News and the Archer City Chamber of Commerce, are whooping up plans for a celebration of the "golden anniversary" of the organization of Archer county, which was started in 1879.

At the suggestion of "Jim" Scott, first county clerk, the dates will likely be fixed as July 4 and 5 of the present year, although this matter has not been definitely decided upon.

It is proposed to employ the intervening time in giving the proposed celebration state-wide publicity and in establishing contact as far as possible with former pioneers and cowmen now scattered around the United States, cowmen in particular.

It is expected that a large number of Wichitans and citizens of Wichita county will be in attendance.

Dan Hardy, Wichita Falls oil operator, and with the famous OX cattle outfit through a number of years in Archer county, has expressed the opinion that the celebration should prove an immense success, and should attract a large delegation from Wichita county. "Many Wichitans," Mr. Hardy said, "were pioneers in Archer county."

Tentative plans for the celebration have been outlined, including personnel of probable committees and definite plans are in process of formation.

The committees as suggested will probably be appointed without revision, with exception of possible additions, it was stated by Grady Bell, secretary of the Archer City Chamber of Commerce. The list follows:

Committees Listed

Organization—Judge W. E. Forgy, chairman; Zack Scott, C. E. Graham, Ernest Brown, J. D. Lyles, S. G. Helm, W. R. Slack, J. T. S. Gant, W. R. Pace, Raymond Poirot, H. W. Simpson, W. O. Hayter.

Arrangement—Sell Melugin, chairman; Jot Smyth, Louis Herron, J. R. Parkey, Ed Magg, Enoch Colgan, Ben Hull, Sam Cowan, J. L. Prideaux, Arthur Carter, Herman Weir, Charles Abercombie, James T. Longley, Ben W. Garvey, J. A. Bell.

Finance—W. H. Taylor, chairman; Jeff Hays, John P. Fleming, Alex Albright, T. B. Wilson, J. H. Turbeville, Henry Weinzapfel, H. O. Young, H. A. Power.

Invitation—Harold K. Dycus, chairman; Coff Conner, W. O. Covington, O. J. Harmonson, Henry Munchrath, Dick Meurer, George Gant, S. G. Thomas, E. H. Coburn, Henry Harmon, Turner Meade, Dan M. Powell, W. L. Andrews, W. T. Hutcheson, Charles Martin.

Entertainment—Tom Looney, chairman; W. C. Young, Collins Hays, Adolph Kunkel Jr., Joe Weinzapfel, Louis Snider, Roy Hutcheson, Jess Goodwin, Sam Newman, Grady Bell, Harry Pearstson, George Abercombie, Joe Shelton, Joe L. Matthews, Joe Fudge, Joe Eichler, Eugene Maxwell.

Andrews, Mrs. G. P. Hull and one hundred other later to be named.

In connection with completing the success of the celebration, it has been suggested by its sponsors that a round-up be made of members of the legal fraternity now residing elsewhere who either practiced in the courts of the county in the old days or served in official capacities.

Among these are A. H. Carrigan, P. A. Martin, John C. Kay, J. W. Akin, R. E. Taylor, Nat Henderson, Robert E. Huff, Edgar Scurry, Judge R. V. Gwinn, J. T. Montgomery and Ewing Claggett of Wichita Falls, former Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey and Judge Dayton Moses.

While, it is said, Senator Bailey never actively practiced in Archer, this was the first county to instruct for him for congress.

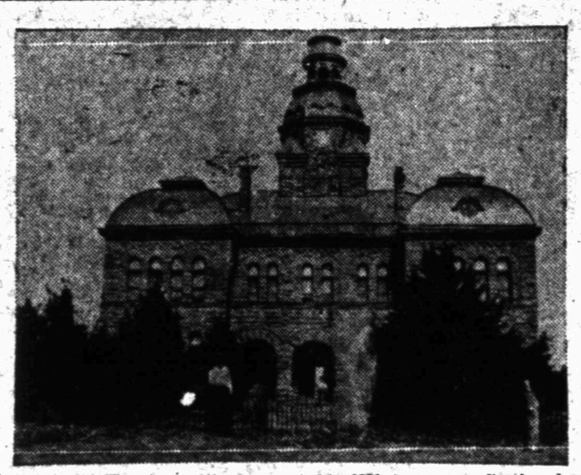

Judge Dayton Moses was a cowhand with the Harrold and East outfit in Archer county. When the ranch changed hands he went to the University of Texas and studied law. He is now general attorney for the Texas Cattle Raisers' association.

Other attorneys regarded as prospective participants in the reunion are Frank Girand, now practicing in Seattle; Lon Morris, of Walters, Okla., and his son, Tony Morris, each of whom has served Cotton county in official capacities.

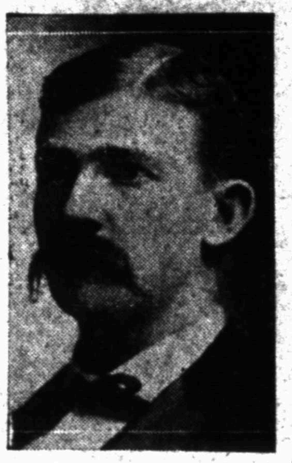

Among other Wichita citizens, not associated with the practice of law, mentioned as being sought to help make the celebration a success are John T. Young, "Uncle Tom" Gant, C. E. McCutchen, W. W. Brown, Mrs. Belle Mann, Mrs. P. P. Langford and members of the Bachman family, Jim Gant, with the Wichita Ice company and Deputy Sheriff Charley Gant.

From more remote parts attempt will be made to enlist Norman Dycus, Dallas merchant; C. J. Sanders, ex-postmaster, now in the drug business in Dallas; Chester Powell, formerly with the City National bank in Wichita Falls, now with a machinery firm in Dallas; W. H. Ingalls, with the Bewley mills in Fort Worth; Mrs. Frank E. Dycus of Fort Worth, Albert Keen, of the Daggett-Keen Livestock Commission company, Fort Worth; J. R. Berry, of the Cassidy-Southwestern Commission company, Fort Worth; Tom Ellerd, flockmaster of Vera, Texas; Eugene Lawson and Miles Lassiter, former school teachers now in oil operations in Oklahoma; Bill Ground, Donley county landowner; Will Hayter, Clarendon merchant;

Archer County courthouse, erected in 1891, two years after burning of the first courthouse, a frame structure. In 1925, during the administration of E. M. Hooper, county judge, the building was reconstructed and its appearance modernized.

Joseph D. Powell, above, for 16 years sheriff of Archer county, had the distinction at the time of his first election of being the youngest sheriff in Texas. He was then only 22 years old. He began "sheriffing" at the age of 19, serving under Sheriff Dennis Yoakum and T. M. Coulson. His terms of office extended from 1885 to 1896 and 1900 to 1906. Mr. Powell was born in Murfreesboro, Tenn., and came to Archer county in 1884. He continues to reside in Archer City, where he has been instrumental in the modern development of the town.

LAST POSSIBLE CHANCE TO SAVE PAIR VANISHES

Mrs. Le Bouef Hysterical As Meaning of Failure Reaches Her

BOTH HANG FRIDAY

Dr. Dreher Sobs in His Cell As Execution Time Approaches

FRANKLIN, La., Jan. 31. (UP)—With all hope vanished and every legal avenue closed to the attorneys who had won three stays of execution, Mrs. Ada Bonner Leboeuf and Dr. Thomas E. Dreher, who collapsed in their cells today, realized tonight they must die on the gallows tomorrow afternoon.

The former lovers will be hanged for the murder 18 months ago of Mrs. Leboeuf's husband, James.

Three Moves Fail

They had hopes of winning another postponement of the hanging until today, when three separate moves in courts at New Orleans were denied. The attorney who has fought through the courts in Franklin, New Orleans and Washington announced they had given up the fight.

Word of their decision was brought to Mrs. Leboeuf and Dr. Dreher by Sheriff Charles Pecot. The woman fainted twice, fell to her cot in a state of collapse and later became hysterical.

The doctor, clasping his hands over his face, tossed on his bed and moaned, "Oh, God. Oh, God."

Until this word arrived at the Franklin jail, the couple had their hopes bolstered through the thought that their attorneys could win a fourth postponement of the double execution.

Long Refuses Mercy

Gov. Huey P. Long has refused repeatedly to intervene, and attorneys announced it would be of no use to appeal to him again.

The governor, too, dispelled any hopes the attorneys might have held for an executive appeal, when he said:

"I have reviewed the matter carefully and I do not intend to take any further action."

The three legal moves today were made in rapid succession. Judge Wayne G. Borah heard the first appeal in federal district court and denied a writ of habeas corpus to stay the execution. A motion for a certificate of reasonable cause then was asked, but judge Borah denied this also.

Counsel In Tears

The attorneys then shifted their campaign to the circuit court of appeals, asking for a certificate of cause for the granting of a habeas corpus writ, but it was refused.

When the last petition was denied, Ben J. Daly, chief of defense counsel, wiped tears from his eyes and turned to his colleagues.

"It's all over boys," he said. "We've done our best and lost."

The gallows in the little tollyard was in readiness today for the hanging. Sheriff Pecot announced. The hangings will take place between the hours of 12 and 2 p. m. tomorrow.

MISSOURI HANGS TWO

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 31. (UP)—Two steel gallows-traps were given their final tests today while the death watchers prepared to keep their monotonous vigil over the last night of life left to Leonard R. Yeager, 30, and Thomas Lowry, 23. They will be hanged together at 6 a. m. tomorrow.

HOSTLER JURY DEADLOCKS IN ROBBERY CASE

Jury Dismissed by Court After Five Hours Of Deliberation

After more than five hours deliberation, the jury trying Freddy Hostler for robbery with firearms Thursday afternoon reported to Judge Allan D. Montgomery that it was unable to reach a verdict. The jury was dismissed without comment from the court.

Pastor For Acquittal

The court was informed that the jury had reached an impasse shortly before 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, after the case had been in their hands since 11:30 in the morning. It was learned that the vote stood 5 to 7 at the final ballot.

W. P. Robinson, pastor of the church of the Assembly of God, and a member of the jury, said after the dismissal Thursday that he had fought a hard fight for acquittal.

Hostler, with Joe Ireland and R. B. Nichols, is accused of the robbery of the Spoonts No. 1 drug store on Christmas night, 1928. Ireland, the state's chief witness, told the jury Wednesday that he and Nichols robbed the store while Hostler waited a little distance down the block in an automobile. Hostler and Ireland were arrested in the same room at the Dempsey hotel two hours after the robbery.

Second Trial Feb. 25.

Early Thursday afternoon the jury asked for the re-reading of the testimony of Ireland relating to whether or not Hostler knew the purpose of the other two when he drove the car for them. The testimony presented quoted Ireland as saying he did not himself tell Hostler of the plans, but that he supposed Hostler knew about them, and that the defendant himself had pointed out the Spoonts store as "a good place."

WOMEN FLYERS CLAIM HONORS IN TWO ROLES

One Sets New Record, Other Uses Noodle When Her Plane Crashes

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 31. (AP)—Two women, a flying flapper and a flying cashier, won laurels today on Long Island flying fields. One established a new endurance for women and the other probably saved her life by quick thinking in the air.

Early today 17-year-old Elinor Smith came down out of the chill skies at Michel field with a new solo endurance flight record for women. She had been aloft 13 hours 16 minutes and 45 seconds, beating the record held by Miss Bobbie Trout of California one hour, five minutes and 45 seconds.

Miss Gentry Crashes

This afternoon Miss Viola Gentry, older but no less daring than Miss Smith, set about winning back the endurance record she held until Miss Trout took it away from her.

Miss Gentry, known as the flying cashier because she has worked in restaurants to get money to finance flying, crashed in a practice hop preparatory to beginning her endurance flight, but saved her life.

Gully Traps Plane

With a half load of fuel she roared down the field and got into the air just before reaching the treacherous gully in which Rene Fonck piled up his ship at the start of a flight to France two years ago. But she still was low and as she passed over the gully her plane staggered in an upward air current.

At this point she apparently made a mistake, turning her plane down wind and so losing the lifting assistance of a head wind. This caused the ship to slide and fall.

The woman cut her ignition switch, thus keeping the plane from catching fire at the crash and causing a repetition of the Fonck tragedy. That plane burst into flame and two men were killed.

Miss Gentry's plane was so damaged that it will take a week to repair it, but she stepped from the cockpit unscathed and unruffled. She blamed the crash on her handling of the plane.

Mellon Cohorts Win Dry Fund Victory

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—The first test of house strength on the proposal to add $24,000,000 to the prohibition enforcement fund resulted today in a victory for those inclined to the views of Secretary Mellon that the money should not be appropriated without a definite plan of allocation.

By vote of 240 to 141, the house rejected a motion designed to prevent the deficiency supply measure, to which the huge dry law enforcement item was added by the senate last week, from going to conference for adjustment.

12,500 CITIZENS PAY POLL TAX

$300,000 Collected During Record Rush Period

When the office of the county tax collector closed at midnight Thursday, around 12,500 Wichita county citizens were qualified to vote in the 1929 elections, according to the estimates of Guy C. Raley, collector. A total of about 15,000 automobiles had been registered, he said.

At the close of the heaviest day's business the office has handled since 1925, 1,000 additional poll tax receipts had been issued during the day and the total number of automobile registrations had been increased by 1,500. Reports from branch offices at Iowa Park, Electra and Burkburnett were incomplete, and the collector was unable to give final figures.

Poll Tax Decrease

Poll tax receipts will fall 5,000 below the number for 1928, election year, according to expectations. Sixteen thousand automobiles were registered last year. The 1929 total is expected to be materially increased by late registrations.

When the office closed at midnight Thursday, the last opportunity for paying poll taxes for the year had passed. Automobiles registered on or after Feb. 1 will be assessed a 25 per cent penalty unless the owner can make an affidavit swear-

JOHNSTON IS UNWORRIED BY OUSTER MOVE

Suspended Chief Happy As He Chats Following 'Not Guilty' Plea

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 31. (UP)—A lull in the impeachment proceedings against Oklahoma's governor tonight followed Henry S. Johnston's pleading not guilty today to the 11 impeachment charges drawn up against him. The impeachment trial was set for Feb. 11.

The entire procedure today took less than 10 minutes. The session was quiet and orderly. Johnston, taking a rear seat in the senate chamber, heard his counsel enter pleas to the charges, heard the trial date set and the session dismissed.

Then he sauntered into the capitol press room, where he spent half an hour loafing with newspaper men and joking with them. He appeared unworried by the circumstances that have brought him under continual storm the last few weeks.

"No, it hasn't hit me yet," said the governor in a jocular mood, commenting on the stress of the times.

Johnston thought it a particular matter for merriment that a sports editor was helping cover the investigation and impeachment.

The course of investigation resolved itself into routine channels today concerned with the state supreme court.

Mystery Witness Awaited in Neff's Fight to Retain Mediator's Role

Special to The Record News.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The element of mystery was injected into the fight being made against confirmation of Pat M. Neff, former governor of Texas, for a place on the U. S. railroad meditation board when Chairman Watson of the senate interstate commerce commission announced that the committee expects to hear from R. C. Fullbright of Houston in an executive session and that this would close the hearings. Although there has been no announcement, it is indicated that Fullbright is familiar with the understanding reached between Neff and Senator Earl B. Mayfield when the former governor was first appointed to the board.

It is upon the alleged violation of this agreement of understanding that Senator Mayfield has predicated his charge of political ingratitude against Neff. The report is current that Fullbright will appear as a witness for Neff.

Only two witnesses were examined by the committee today. They were J. V. Kanan, vice president of the Switchman's Union of North America, and H. J. Carr, representing the grand lodge of the Inter-

I Saw It Myself

By C. W. ROGERS
Record News Staff Correspondent

The chronic calamity howler who insists that a majority of the people of this country are whizzing along to the land where it does not snow, it seems to this observer, is like a man who made a roar to the clerk of an Olney hotel the other night that the water in his room was so hot it had melted the bristles out of a $8 shaving brush. "Had you looked at each of the faucets," the clerk replied, "you would have seen that one of them afforded cold water."

◆ ◆ ◆

If the calamity howler would look both to the right and left of him and see things with an open mind he might think differently. It requires no intensive investigation to determine that a majority of the people—of this section, it can be said with authority—are striving to their utmost to make this a better country in which to live. This applies as much so to urban as to rural populations.

At a meeting in Olney the other night, a meeting of the chamber of commerce to be more specific, there was gathered more than two hundred citizens, both men and women, from the town and rural districts. They included bankers, merchants, ministers, professional men, agriculturists, clubwomen and just plain housewives and their daughters. All of them were assembled with one purpose in mind, it appeared, to learn and plan how to help their neighbors. There were visitors, some of unusual distinction, some from distant and some from less remote points. It cannot be believed that these came with expectation of future profit, or personal aggrandizement, or to be amused. Rather the belief was compelled that they came to counsel or to receive counsel. Their presence, it is believed, is an evidence that men of substance are concerned not alone with the security of their own firesides, but with those of all their countrymen.

With the uninformed some are disposed to regard the chamber of commerce with amusement, some with distrust, but the conviction is becoming universal that the chamber of commerce exerts a powerful influence on the welfare of a community, an influence in fact more powerful than can be estimated.

This gathering of 200 was only a fraction of Olney's population but it was representative of the citizenship—its influence has been responsible for initiating the construction of splendid churches, schools and other public edifices for the moral and educational advancement of Olney but it was the support of the citizenship as a whole that completed the work, evidence of the respectability and serious thought of a large majority of the community.

Men, more than ever, it is observed, are devoting more time and more money to the moral and material advancement of their communities; women are devoting more time and more effort to constructive club work; in this section, it can be stated, the result is reflected in an epoch of progress not hitherto known.

The vast majority of the people are seriously concerned with decent living and making the most of their opportunities.

◆ ◆ ◆

A chamber of commerce meeting at Archer City followed the one at Olney. In pausing at Archer City, it was learned that preparations were being made to entertain visitors with a feast that should add to Archer's renown. Archer City, as compared to some county seats, has not much to make a noise about, but it should be remembered that Archer county until recent years was a cow country; cow men of the old school are "sot" in their ways and it requires a long time to persuade them to yield their pastures to the "nester."

Many of the old-timers are "sittin' purty" since the discovery of oil and antipathy once displayed toward the "nester" has just about disappeared, if indeed any now exists.

While there are many thousands of acres of rich land in Archer that has never been under the plow, the country will always cling to the cattle business, but on a different scale. Herds to be seen today are largely grade whitefaces, every head worth a lot of money. They are coddled and fed sometimes and do not have to rustle so hard for their living.

The old-timers strayed from the range who drift back to Archer City to the "golden jubilee" and cowboys' reunion which is planned to be held the coming summer will not recognize the new town that will greet them. They will find Will Taylor in a new brick residence big enough for an orphans' home, and John Turbeville in another big brick home nearby; many other old-timers or their sons in fine homes; they will see a newly completed $25,000 Masonic temple, a $25,000 Baptist church, a waterworks system that has made possible houses with bathtubs as common as mesquites in the pastures, and more brick store buildings than they ever thought would be in Archer.

Those who can's find their way around well can find good stocks of information at Judge W. E. Forgy's law and abstract emporium or Charlie Martin's Archer News office.

While this big blowout is to be a sort of special occasion, the welcome sign hangs out at Archer City 365 days in the year to all comers.

NATION'S TAX BILL GROWING

14 Per Cent Collected In Levies, Club Told

More than 14 per cent of the total national income in the United States now goes into taxes, according to V. Howard Ford, field representative of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who addressed the Rotary club in its regular weekly meeting Thursday noon at the Kemp hotel.

Enactment, interpretation and execution of federal, state, county and city laws; education, public construction and conservation were mentioned among the channels into which one-seventh of each dollar earned in this country goes annually. Mr. Ford also discussed the work of the organization which he represents in behalf of constructive legislation. He was introduced by Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the local chamber of commerce.

Musical numbers were given by a quartet composed of Mrs. Wayne J. Holmes, Mrs Luella B. Thompson, R. E. Shepherd and W. E. Young, who sang the quartet from "Rigoletto," and Mrs. M. M. Garrett, who sang "Pale Moon." Mrs. F. R. Collard was accompanist.

Dr. Nat F. Grafton welcomed Harry Olsen into the club as a "Baby Rotarian," and Horrace Robbins introduced the guests.

Rebuilding of Texas Prison Walls Urged

AUSTIN, Jan. 31. The walls are located within three blocks of the main business part of town and are a constant menace not only to the townspeople, but to Sam Houston Normal, also near the prison, he said.

Whisker Contest In Swing at Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 31 (US)—Bigger and better whiskers was the slogan of the University of Minnesota campus tonight.

The Alpha Delta Sigma fraternity today opened a whisker-growing contest which will run for two weeks in an effort to prove that the manhood of the state is "as good as ever" since the old-time "giants from the north" were famed as prolific whisker-growers.

European Sentiment Demands Ten Billion of Germany in Debt Parley

Editor's Note: An analysis of crystalizing European sentiment regarding the final disposition of the German reparations problem which the international committee of experts will begin wrestling with next week when J. P. Morgan and Owen Young, the American experts, arrive in Paris, is presented herewith. Universal Service calls attention to the evident accuracy of the figures which were cabled by William Hillman, of Universal Service Berlin bureau, weeks ago as the consensus of demands to be made by France at the experts' meeting, and the verification of his exclusive information in the following dispatch from Paris. Mr. Hinman, in the following cabled dispatch, also points out the drift of European willingness toward acceptance of the American opposition to immediate commercialization of the German reparations obligations.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Ten billion dollars, plus low interest, the whole to be paid off by the present German generation in installments approximating $500,000,000 annually.

Such is the crystallizing sentiment relative to the "complete and final settlement" of the reparations controversy which the American experts, Owen Young and J. P. Morgan, will find being discussed in high European international financial circles when they arrive next week to begin their arduous duties.

Conflicting Views

There is another phase of the discussion which the Americans will find emphasized. It is this: That all the influence contained in the unchallenged ability and prestige of the American experts will be necessary to reconcile conflicting national viewpoints which most interested Europeans will inevitably bring to the council table.

That is why, despite Washington's repeatedly emphasized objections, Europe is insistently demanding that Young accept the presidency of the committee of experts. With an American president it is felt that the experts will be compelled to reconcile their opinions and reach an agreement. Without such a president it is feared the whole inquiry may terminate without arriving at the long-sought definitive settlement.

Credit Flotations.

While insisting on an American president, Europe is becoming more inclined to accept the New York and Washington view that the matter of the full commercialization of German reparations may well be left until a later time. It is recognized that for Germany to pay off any such enormous obligation as $10,000,000,000 in around 30 years with annuities approximating $500,000,000 there will be necessity for flotation of great credits abroad, mortgaging the reich's resources.

But there is also the growing realization of the impossibility of devising a complete commercialization plan at the present time.

The figure of $10,000,000,000 fits in uncannily with the various reparations calculations. If ultimately approved and the payments realized, it would mean also more rapid payments of the European war debts to the United States, which are now extended to a period of 62 years. It would deprive European capitalists of the last element of excuse that they could not pay the United States because Germany was not paying them.

Debt to America

The actual present day cash value of the debts owed to the United States, as drastically scaled down by successive agreements reached at Washington, is estimated at between $5,000,000,000 and $6,000,000,000. French sources have repeatedly hinted France would be satisfied if Germany pays around $4,000,000,000 on account of the devastated regions.

These totals aggregate $10,000,000,000.

Again, using round figures, the old reparations fanciful total of $33,000,000,000 grouped "class A" German bonds at $3,000,000,000; "class B" bonds at $10,000,000,000, and the balance in "class C" bonds.

Result Awaited

It is not disputed that Germany has already paid $3,000,000,000, while the fantastic "class C" total of $20,000,000,000 may be charged off to controversial payments and loss of territory, etc. This leaves, roughly, $10,000,000,000.

Naturally, all calculations made nowadays, even by those in closest touch with financial circles following the reparations question, are the purest speculation. Under the "terms of reference" which were accepted by Premier Poincare and the German ambassador, Von Hoesch, after a long series of conferences, the experts are entirely free to consider the question in all its aspects and "draw up proposals for a complete and final settlement."

Even world politicians must stand aside and await the result.

TAX THEM, TOO

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 31. (INS)—Professional reformers would be required to pay a license fee of $1,000 annually under the provisions of a bill introduced in the lower house of the legislature today. The bill is sponsored by Robert Wardell, wet leader in the house.

Anti-Tammany Demos Meet in Dallas Saturday

Don't Let a Cough or Cold Hang On--It's Dangerous Company

With Over a Million Flu Cases Already Reported, You'd Better Get Rid of It Quick.

Why send a boy to do a man's work? Sweet, sugary cough syrups may help a simple cough, but when you are traveling along towards the cemetery with a stubborn tight old cough that lingers on and on with the most persistent devilishness, then you need a real cough medicine—and the realest destroyer of tough old coughs is Bronchuline Emulsion.

The cough may be so tantalizing that you can't sleep nights and your days may be filled with racking torture, yet that's just the kind of a cough that Bronchuline likes to tackle and conquer.

Many times a few doses will stop the hacking and loosen things up and you can depend upon half a bottle to make a two months' cough quit cold and disappear.

Whatever you do don't delay, get rid of it quick. You can't afford to fool around with makeshifts any longer—influenza is no respector of persons.

Ask Allison Drug Co. or any wide awake druggist for a bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion. There's no dope in it—or chloroform, its the creosote in Bronchuline that does the work—heals the membranes, inhibits the germs, and a couple of teaspoonfuls will usually end any ordinary cough.—Adv.

MORGAN, YOUNG GIVEN ORDERS

Coolidge Talks With Debt Experts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (US)—J. P. Morgan and Owen D. Young, American experts to the conference which is to fix the final sum which Germany must pay the allies as a war cost, received their final instructions from President Coolidge here today.

In one of the most far-reaching conferences since the close of the world war, they were closeted with the president for more than an hour.

They received his strict injunction that the United States will not consent to have the debt which the allies owe the United States confused with the sum which Germany will be asked to pay the allies.

The president was adamant on this point, it was understood after the conference. He also had some very specific views regarding the amount of German securities which may be dumped on the United States market. The president, it is understood, was authorized to assure the experts that President-elect Hoover holds the same views.

The sum which Germany will be asked to pay over a period of years yet to be determined is generally estimated at between 30 and 33 billions of dollars. This is the general view of the allies. The United States has established no fixed idea on this point, although it was discussed in detail.

S. Parker Gilbert, transfer agent of the reparations committee, recently here, went over the situation thoroughly with the president and secretary of state.

Liquor Law Violators Given Stern Justice

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (US)—The law smote heavily in Federal Judge Thomas' court today, and liquor law violators, after they got over the shock, found they were booked to languish behind iron bars for five months apiece. Those were the sentences meted out to Barnet Schwartz, David Mayer, Mickey Marks and Larry Carney, persons in the Don Royal club indictment Schwartz and Mayer, proprietors were also fined $500 each.

Mystery Enters Pat Neff Case

national Association of Machinists.

Kanan had conducted the negotiations with Neff for the employes of the Texas Terminal Railroad while Carr acted for the employes of the Fort Smith and Western railroad in a wage dispute which Neff sought unsuccessfully to mediate.

As indication that the organized brotherhoods are firm in their opposition to Neff, Senator Watson, at the beginning of the session, read a joint telegram received by the committee today from the general officers of the 18 organizations including the engineers, firemen, and enginemen, conductors, trainmen, switchmen, telegraphers, train dispatchers, signalmen and steamship clerks, protesting Neff's confirmation.

In his testimony, Kanan recited his version of meetings held with Neff over the Texas City dispute, pointing out that the men thought Neff had been sent as a mediator while the former governor has contented he was sent there merely to investigate.

The witness insisted Neff was without authority to declare the contract between the company and its employes void and that in telling the men to join one union they had construed to it mean advice to join a company union. Neff has insisted that he intended no such interpretation.

Senator Watson adjourned the meeting with the understanding that both Neff and his opponents will be permitted to file short statements covering the points on which they rely for favorable action by the committee.

Opinion here is that the report of the committee will be favorable to Neff, but it is indicated there will be a bitter fight on the floor over his confirmation.

Senator Johnson Pleads For More Powerful Navy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (AP)—A demand that America be made more powerful at sea rumbled through the senate chambers again today as Senator Johnson, Republican, California, spoke of a "world drama" which he said would be played in future on the Pacific. He pleaded for enactment of the warship construction bill now awaiting action.

Fight Over 10 Cents Costs Pair $10 Fine

A fight over a 10-cent debt Wednesday morning cost two Mexican residents of Wichita Falls $10 each when the pair appeared in the corporation court Thursday an a charge of affray.

One of the Mexicans stabbed the other in the scrap Wednesday, but his opponent slammed him over the head with a brick to even the count. Neither of them was critically injured as a result of the combat. The knife wound was very slight, though a considerable gash was opened on the Mexican's head who was hit with the brick.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

POPE'S SECRET TALK REVEALED

Vatican and King About to Settle Dispute

By PRINCE PIGNATELLI
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service)

ROME, Jan. 31.—It was revealed today that Pope Pius in his Christmas eve speech to the cardinals broke his silence for the first time on the so-called Roman question, when he verbally issued a "reserved communication to be received with the obligation of silence." It is stated that at that time the pope said:

"Ideas are being exchanged regarding the relations between the church and the state."

Negotiations Pending

That the negotiations for the settlement of the long dispute between the vatican and quirinal are still in progress is confirmed in high quarters. It is impossible, however, to give the date for the official announcement of the settlement, in spite of the reported imminent termination of the negotiations. One prediction sets the announcement for Feb. 12, which is the seventh anniversary of the pope's coronation. Another puts the date "after March 24," which is the national election day, the pope being unwilling to interfere in the internal affairs of the state.

One thing is certain, and that is that the pope, because of his superworldly position, will make the first announcement, publishing it through the "Osservatore Romano," the official vatican organ. The state announcement will follow the pope's announcement, in spite of the fact that it is customary in such important matters, for both powers to make the announcement at the same time.

Objects to Phrase

From reliable sources it is learned that the plan has the full approval of King Victor Emmanuel with the single reservation that he insists upon the deletion of the old vatican phraseology which is not respectful to the royal house, particularly the use of the word "usurpation" with which the vatican described the occupation of Rome and the papal states in 1870 by the Italian troops under the late Gen. Raffaele Cadorna, in the name of the king, then residing in Florence.

It is reported that the boundaries of the papal state have been determined and approved by both sides. Now the confidential negotiations have reached the question of the new area. Much progress has been made regarding the latter point and agreement is near.

The area of the new state is about three and a half square miles, roughly rectangular, containing the vatican buildings and gardens, St. Peter's, the Knights of Columbus institutions, the palace of inquisition, the adjacent seminaries and convents, the villa Abamelek, the villa Doria Panfili, the villa Pineta (pinewoods), Sachetti, the thickly populated strip almost dividing the three villas and the first group.

The strip contains 10,000 inhabitants who, it is reported will be citizens of the papal state, but the pope will delegate power to the Italian government, which will rule the inhabitants for the pope.

To End Imprisonment

Thus actually the pope will govern the sparsely inhabited parts while the government controls the majority of the people. Two large portions of the area are almost completely walled in and may be connected with an underground passage.

It is reported that 1,000,000 lire will be paid to the vatican treasury by the government as "indemnity for losses suffered by some religious orders" at the time of occupation. The government will nominate an ambassador to the Holy See and the vaitcan will send a nuncio to the Italian court.

Thus will the pope's voluntary imprisonment end.

Federal Soldiers Kill Guatemalan Bandit

GUATEMALA CITY, Jan. 31. (UP)—Col. Bandilio Santos, who was alleged to have been a leader in the recent military uprising in three northern provinces, was shot and killed by federal soldiers at Santa Cruz, Honduras, today, according to messages received here. Santos fired upon the soldiers as they attempted to arrest him, it was said.

Reimbursement for Farmers Is Asked

AUSTIN, Jan. 31. (AP)—The house today passed a joint resolution offered by Representative W. E. Pope of Corpus Christi requesting Texas senators and representatives at Washington to obtain an appropriation of $115,000 claimed due farmers of this state by the government.

This sum, Representative Pope told the house, was part of more than $500,000 given farmers owning land in non-cotton zones in 1918-19-20, when the state and federal governments undertook to exterminate pink boll worms.

The state already has paid its share of $439,000 to these farmers, but the department of agriculture has not yet been able to recompense farmers out of its appropriation, Pope said.

ALLEGED RUM RUNNERS BROKE

Notorious Trading Company Hits the Rocks

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

LONDON, Jan. 31. (US)—A report from Nassau to the London Exchange today of the failure of the Bahamas International Trading company, with a half million dollars of liabilities and no visible asset, winds up the career of the notorious concern, supposed to be the chief bootleg suppliers if not actual rum-runners themselves.

Whether the failure was forced by the American rum patrol or due to manipulation of the company's assets does not appear from the Nassau report.

The company was incorporated in Nassau in 1925. Its authorized capitalization was $1,100,000, with 100,000 shares issued at $5 a share. The prospectus called attention to George W. Ambrister, president; E. V. Solomon and F. Duncombe, directors, all members of the Bahamas legislature, and to the "company's warehouses within a few hours of the American coast."

At that time the London Weekly Truth exposed the object of the company as bootlegging, but the president of the board of trade admitted that the British government was powerless to act since it was a colonial and not an English company. The question of the legitimacy of the company was raised in the house of commons.

American salesmen operating here sold the stock, guaranteeing 50 per cent profits.

The London office of the Bahamas company was closed in February, 1926, when notice was given that the "shares were all sold," but there was a "new offering of shares" as late as the summer of 1927.

The Weekly Truth has consistently attacked the company as fraudulent as well as a violation of faith with America.

Trend in Cost of Living Takes Upward Turn

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (INS)—Although the cost of living in the 32 largest cities of the country was slightly lower in December, 1928, than it was a year ago, the trend since last June has been decidedly upward, the department announced today.

Since June, the cost had risen nearly one per cent but was still 0.4 per cent lower than it was in December, 1927.

Federated Missionary Society Installs Officers at Annual Luncheon Thursday

Members of the Woman's Federated Missionary society entertained with their annual luncheon and installation of officers at the Woman's Forum clubhouse at 12:30 o'clock Thursday. The tables were attractively decorated with pink and green and the speaker's table was centered with a large basket of pink stock and chrysanthemums combined with green from A gift from the Wich ◆ ita Floral company.

Mrs. Knox Finley, outgoing president, acted as toastmistress and presided over the progtam, which was opened by singing "America," led by Mrs. Fred C. Barron. Rev. Patrick Henry, pastor of the Highland Heights Christian church gave the invocation.

Special numbers on the program included two violin numbers by Mrs. Jouette Bonner; two vocal selections, "Pale Moon" and "Bright Star" by Mrs. M. M. Garrett; a duet by Mesdames Luella B. Thompson and Wayne Holmes; a quartet by Mesdames Thompson, Holmes, R. E. Shepherd and W. E. Young, and talks by Messrs. J. L. Jackson Jr., J. N. Sherrill, Dr. F. A. Bash, and Bert King.

Rev. O. L. Powers, pastor of the First Baptist church who delivered the installation address, compared the organization of women's missionaries to the drop of dew that helped to make the rivers that flowed into the ocean and paid a beautiful tribute to the women who have been pioneers in the missionary work which he believes is the church of the world.

"This organization is teaching the men of the world a lesson that is hard to realize: that nothing can be successful without organization," Dr. Powers said. The sermon on the mount was not only a charter of women's rights but a charter of missions, he declared.

Mrs. W. W. Cook expressed in a few words the appreciation of the organization for the excellent work done by Mrs. Finley as president of the group for the past two years, to which Mrs. Finley gracefully responded.

Those installed into office were: Mrs. G. R. Ellis, president; Mrs. H P. Ledford, vice president; Mrs. W H. Downing, second vice president; Mrs. Jack Ginsburg, third vice president; Mrs. Ray Belcher, recording secretary; Mrs. S. E. Trevathan corresponding secretary; Mrs. R. J Goodale, treasurer; Mrs. O. T. Mrs. Ellis announced an international day of prayer to be held Feb. 8 in which all the churches of the world will participate.

How It Pays To Advertise Proven By Smoke Houses

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (INS)—It pays to advertise. The most consistent users of newspaper advertising space in the last few years, the manufactureers of cigarets, have demonstrated that fact to their complete satisfaction and are therefore planning an enormous increase in the volume, with corresponding improvement in the quality, of their advertising this year.

The American cigarette industry in 1928 turned out the huge total of 106 billion cigarets for the home markets, an increase of 9 per cent over the previous year and a new high record for all time. It will be a surprise to many tobacco users to know that cigars retailing for less than five cents accounted for more than 51 per cent of the total output of the pleasant weed in that form.

The enormous increase in the consumption of cigarets is directly tracable to the popularizing of the short-smoke over an ever-widening field, including the gentler sex. Things have progressed to the point where the indorsement of a particular brand, is accounted a very valuable asset for the manufacturer, who proceeds immediatley to tell the world about his new product.

The response from the newspaper advertising of these indorsements have surpassed the best expectations of the manufacturers and their advertising advisers. Not only in the American, but in the foreign markets have these results been shown, and in practically every civilized country the American tourist is made to feel at home through the announcement of the offering of American goods in the American way.

Manufacturers of motor cars in this country have repeatedly attributed the sensational increase in their business in the post-war period to their ability to spread effective and attractive advertising matter on the newspaper pages all over the civilized world.

Technically, the advertising profession has made giant strides in the last two decades, transforming some of the crude offerings of a few years ago to works of art that would grace any studio and rank high with the products of the masters in art, literature, painting, etc. Skill in illustrating and descriptive writing has been attracted by liberal financial compensation to the advertising field from other lines of activity in the business and educational world, and in most cases the results have more than justified the expenditure.

The schools and colleges, in recognition of the vast strides in the theory and application of the best advertising principles have established and developed advertising courses under skilled tuteiage, and are attracting a large number of high school and college graduates who desire to make advertising their life work. It is all in the line of progress and the results will show increasingly as the years roll on.

Sometimes Our Friends Act As Warnings to Us to Leave Their Ways

It Is Not Our Innate Desire to Be Patterns of Virtue That Keeps Us on the Strait and Narrow Path, But the Horrible Example We See All About Us of What Happens When We Take the Easiest Way.

We may not realize it, but among the most valuable of our acquaintances are those who are awful warnings to us—sort of human scarecrows that frighten us off from the flesh pots, and stiffen up our backbones when we are tempted to slump down and take the easiest way.

If, when we are 50 years old, we are sitting pretty on the sunny side of Easy street instead of dodging up back alleys trying to avoid the butcher and the baker and the landlord to whom we owe money, we owe our prosperity to a large extent to Tom A.

Tom is a pitiable figure—old, broken in health and spirit, shabby, down at the heel, cashing in his old friendships on small loans that he never repays, yet for 40 years he held a high-salaried position in a big company. Tom lived up to the limit of his income. He never put aside a dollar for the proverbial rainy day.

He shut his eyes to the fact that age was bound to come, and that the danger of sickness and some change in the management of his firm that might throw him out of employment hung, like the sword of Damocles, over his head. He was a good spender, and he literally blew in a big fortune on fine clothes, and cars, and restaurants, and night clubs.

So when the crash came, when his productive years were over and he could no longer compete with young men and he lost his job, and could find nothing to do because no other firm would hire an old man, he was left destitute, with not a dollar to fall back upon.

That is why the plight of old Tom is money in the bank for us, and makes us wear our winter overcoats another season, and make the old car do, and resist the temptation of a brand new radio with all the newest thingsamagig attachments. He is our awful warning against spending everything we make as we go along.

And there is Bob B. A good fellow. Kindly. Plenty of ability But nobody wants to do business with him, and in society people flee from him as if he had the leprosy, because of his colossal self-conceit. Wherever he goes he monopolizes the conversation by monologuing about himself and telling how great and wonderful he is, and what a remarkable family he has, and how he could have saved the president from making some mortifying mistakes if only he had been consulted.

Apparently he considers that the world is waiting in breathless suspense to hear every detail of his golf game, and the cute thing his baby did, and how many miles he makes in his car on a gallon of gas and how superior everything he possesses is to the poor things others have. If he ever notices how people writhe in an agony of boredom under his boastings, it does not touch his heart with pity enough to make him spare them.

Bob B. is an awful warning to us not to talk about ourselves or our affairs, and he causes us many a time to clamp down good and hard on the soft pedal when we would dearly like to broadcast our own exploits, and tell what we said to the boss and the boss said to us, and the really clever thing that our little Johnny did.

So we might go on with a hundred illustrations—old Colonel Soand-So who has gorged himself on rich food for 30 years and is an obese old creature due for an apopletic stroke any day. Sam C., who drowned a brilliant mind in drink and who is a down-and-outer instead of being a headliner among men as he promised to be in youth.

Arthur D., who went the pace that kills, and who is paying for it in premature senility, a shuffling [illegible] from chair to bed. Charles E., who forsook his faithful old wife for a gold-digging flapper who is playing around with other men, while he sits at home [illegible] his rheumatic joints by the radiator.

They are all our awful warnings that make us cut out the pie and the cheese, and take more exercise, and pass up the bootlegger liquor, and resist vamps, and that keep us herded on the straight and narrow way.

What we women owe to our friends who are awful warnings only that expert accountant, the Recording Angel, knows. But I am here to tell you that it is the red lantern, erected by some sister woman at the hair-pin turn, that keeps many a one of us from skidding over into the ditch, and prevents us from bumping the bumps of foolishness at high speed.

For example, none of us ever feel as old as we look. We are still mere girls at heart, and such being the case it is always a temptation to dress ourselves like debutantes.

We would do it, too, except for Mrs. A., who tilts the scales at 200, and looks a figure of fun in frocks that belong to her granddaughter. It is after we take one look at that awful warning that we decide on black lace and let down our hems a couple of inches.

It is after we have spent an afternoon with Mrs. B., who radiates a dark blue aura, and who spends the time telling you of her symptoms, and her two major operations, and how her husband doesn't understand her, and how ungrateful her children are, and how put upon a woman is who has to keep a house and raise a family, that you come home making a cast iron resolve to keep on smiling no matter what happens, and never to degenerate into a whiner.

It is Mrs. C.'s ill-mannered, spoiled brats, that are a pest and nuisance that braces you up to enforce discipline in your own family, and teach your youngsters obedience, and decency, and respect for other peoples' rights. Mrs. C.'s children are an awful warning. You don't want yours to be the kind of young people that everybody hates.

It is the Mrs. E.'s that save many and many a divorce, because the dullest woman can see how Mrs. E. is losing her husband by her nagging and fretfulnes, or by not making him a confortable home, or by letting herself get fat and slouchy, or dull and boring.

It is the awful warning that many a wife gets from some other wife that makes her bite back the unspoken word, or get busy with the cook book, that sends her scurrying to the beauty shop, and causes her to begin counting her calories.

It is only fools who refuse to be warned by the awful examples that we see all about us.

Soften hard water with Melo and see how easy the dishes are to wash

HARD water combines with soap to make scum. Scum leaves a dirty ring around the dishpan. Scum leaves a dirty glaze on dishes. But put a tablespoonful of Melo in the dishpan! Then see!

No scum! Sparkling dishes! The water delightfully soft and sudsy! Use Melo wherever you want soft water. It makes the soap more effective. With or without soap, water softened with Melo is an unusual cleaner. Get it at your grocer's.

PRINCESS MAY NOT WED BORIS

Though Pope Agrees, Doubt Is Manifest

By PRINCE FIGATELLI

ROME, Jan. 31.—"The marriage of Princess Giovanna and King Boris III of Bulgaria, rests on their own decision," declared a reliable authority close to court circles tonight to me.

Princess Giovanna, the third daughter of King Victor Emmanuel is over 21. The mission of the Metropolitan Stephan, of Sofia, to Rome has been successful, it is declared. The metropolitan arrived a week ago to confer with the king and the vatican regarding the religious aspect of the possible union

King Boris is orthodox while Princess Giovanna is Roman Catho- reported to have consented and it has been decided that it is unnecessary for the princess to revoke her faith. Several precedents exist. The metropolitan stated that there is no rule in the Bulgarian constitution requiring the queen to be orthodox.

In "mixed marriages" the vatican requires that the sons be raised in the Roman faith. This aspect the metropolitan conceded with the reservation that the first son will be orthodox, the others Roman, thus an accord was reached.

The whole decision now rests on the decision of the two principals. There is a general belief here, however, that the marriage will not take place.

GIRL 'ELOPERS' RETURN HOME

Four Miami Co-Eds Soothe Whoopee Feeling

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 31. (UP)—Four restive young college girls with a longing for whoopee and a talent for fibbing were safe under their respective rooftrees tonight, while all Florida wondered.

The quartet of sweet young things Monday became surfeited with the odium of life as co-eds in Miami university, and decided a change of climate would be interesting.

Agnes McCully, the eldest, who is 19, suggested Cleveland, as a likely destination because it is "such a nice city." Jane Wood and Jane Bostwick, both 18, and the mysterious fourth girl agreed, and they blithely struck out in search of adventure.

They found it surprisingly easy to secure lifts from passing motorists on the Dixie highway, and reached Palm Beach without difficulty.

When they arrived at this resort it occurred to them that their parents might be a trifle worried about them, so they decided to wire their respective families. In order to make everything right and forestall any possible objections to their absence from school, the girls invented a husband apiece and announced they had eloped.

Finding themselves in Orlando Monday they stopped overnight at a hotel. Tuesday they continued on to Ocala, where they began to question the wisdom of the proposed journey. It was a somewhat chastened quartet of co-eds who went to the police station and confessed the error of their ways.

When it was discovered that the girls were in Ocala and were rather more than willing to return home, Mrs. Wood, mother of Jane, boarded a train and fected them back.

Miss McCully was asked whether she and her compatriots in adventure would return to their classes immediately.

"It all depends on whether we are permitted," she replied ruefully.

Captain Hawks is technical advisor on aeronautics for the Texas corporation. He will be accompanied by Oscar Grubb, mechanic of the Lockheed Aircraft company of Burbank, Calif.

Bridgeman said he wished to avoid interference with such a delicate subject and therefore would not comment further.

"We have the Kellogg treaty," he added. "I firmly believe all nations signing it intend to keep it. I am perfectly prepared to trust to that."

ELIMINATION OF BIGOTRY URGED

Seminar at Columbia U. Discusses Problem

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (INS)—Elimination of religious bigotry and intolerance was the underlying theme discussed today at a religious seminar being held at Columbia university, and attended by more than 150 leading ministers, educators, jurists and professional and business men from all parts of the country.

The meeting is under the auspices of the National Conference of Jews and Christians.

Rabbi Isaac Landman, editor of the American Hebrew, and one of the speakers, said that among the questions the seminar must discuss with absolute frankness "is the one why there should be economic discriminations between Roman Catholics, Protestants and Jews in employment and other ways."

Another advocate of a fight on bigotry was President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university. He remarked, without, however, mentioning the past presidential campaign, that "to liberal Americans who love religious liberty "the events of the summer and autumn must have brought shame and humiliation."

The Rev. J. Elliot Ross, Catholic chaplain of Columbia university, said there must be "frankness and fairness" in discussions of conflicts between the various religious groups.

HISTORIC DIME MUSEUM BURNS

First Permanent Home of Minstrelsy Goes

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31. (UP)—Fire destroyed the historic dime museum today—the first of its sort, and the first permanent home of minstrelsy in America.

The old theater-museum went out in a blaze of glory. Its day long past, it was sold recently to make room for a new, larger structure.

It flamed merrily for hours, and for two of them forced a halt in all traffic. As icicles formed tonight from the smoke-blackened window frames of the bare funeral walls, the ghosts of Jo-Jo, the dog-faced boy; Zip, or What Is It; Laloo, the double-bodied boy; of giants and midgets and later-famous actors whom it housed and helped start on their way towards stardom seemed to hover round it.

It was in the old dime, so-called because admission was "ten cents to all," that the museum idea in America had its origin. The building was constructed shortly after the civil war by Robert J. Simpson as a museum and playhouse. On the stage of the old dime were presented such tabloid thrillers of the drama as "Ten Nights in a Barroom," "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Under the Lash."

Before their names were blazed in the lights and fame of Broadway, Houdini, Buster Keaton, then of the four Keatons, and Otis Skinner, who played in stock, all were seen there.

One Christmas day Philadelphians flocked in such large numbers to see "Ten Nights in a Barroom," that 32 performances had to be given.

Marilyn Miller Gives Mother Rail Ticket to Reconciliation

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. (AP)—Marilyn Miller, who dances and acts, did what the profession would call a "mother number" last night. She handed her mother, Mrs. Ada Miller, a ticket to Los Angeles, gave her a hug and kiss and helped her board a train that will carry Mrs. Miller to a remarriage to her divorced husband.

Although the stage star's marriage to Jack Pickford finished in the divorce court, she has been playing Cupid to her mother in an effort to effect a reconciliation between Mrs. Miller and Care G. Miller, from whom she separated in 1920. Miller is Marilyn's stepfather.

When Marilyn was married to Jack Pickford in the face of managerial objections, her mother was outspoken in support.

"Whatever Marilyn thinks will make her happy, I'm for it," she said.

And last night as Mrs. Miller started west, her daughter said:

"If it's going to make her happy, I'm for it."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31 (AP)—A minute inquiry into every step taken by the federal radio commission in granting the Universal Wireless company of Buffalo, N. Y., all the 40 available short wave frequencies for domestic radio communication was begun today by the house merchant marine committee.

Nancy Miller and Her Babe in Ceremonies

SAINT GERMAIN-EN-LAY, France, Jan. 31 (UP)—The girl child of former Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, and the ex-Maharajah of Indore, went through the first of a series of mystic Hindu rites of the naming ceremony here today.

In the magnificient salon of the former Maharajah's picturesque chateau, the baby princess lay as Dr. Vishnu Karandikar, robed in the flowing gown of Hindu priesthood, acted as intermediary between the child and the goddess of destiny.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories: tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as 10 times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

Don't let Rheumatism make an invalid of you.

S.S.S. stands ready to knock it out.

THOSE muscular pains, commonly called rheumatism, are generally due to a run-down condition, with the number of red-blood-cells below the normal count.

S.S.S. aids the system in building up these red-blood-cells and in getting rid of the condition of which the rheumatism is but a symptom. The body becomes strong and disease-resistant, and the rheumatic pains go.

Pains in your muscles and joints make you miserable, less efficient, interfere with your working hours, ruin your sleep. If allowed to continue, as the years pass the danger increases.

But what a change with rich, red-blood-cells in your body—Nature's building material—making the flesh firm—giving strength to the vital organs.

You can't rub rheumatism out. It is deeper than that. It must be knocked out. And the sure way is by helping the fighting blood—the red-blood-cells!

Increase your army of "workers" (red-blood-cells), and those muscle and joint pains, commonly called rheumatism, vanish. S.S.S. has brought this change about for thousands. Why not for you?

"After suffering several years, six bottles of S.S.S. completely relieved me of rheumatism. It also cleared up a skin eruption and gave me a good appetite. I think S.S.S. is a wonderful medicine."
R. L. Buie,
Southern Railway,
Knoxville, Tenn.

"I was very nervous; had hardly any appetite, and suffered with rheumatism. I tried many medicines, but S.S.S. is the one that did me the most good. I am now well, and feel like a new man."
William Osborne,

Flint, Mich.

PRINCE MIXES WITH TRAGEDY

Coal Miners Cheered by Royal Sympathy

By ROBERT WELLS RITCHIE
Record News Special Cable

LONDON, Jan. 31. (US)—"I cannot see you at all, your highness, but I thank you for calling," said Sam Wheaton as his hand groped for and found the hand of the Prince of Wales. For a long minute England's heir to the throne, who is making a three-day tour through Britain's inferno of poverty and starvation, stood looking into the sightless eyes of the man blinded in a colliery accident three years ago, and whose wife lay with a broken leg in a windowless room behind the one where they stood.

Then the patrician face of young Edward Windsor went ashen. He turned to Sir Godfrey, his personal secretary, saying in a whisper:

"This is ghastly."

Soon Homeless

Answering the prince's questions the blind man said he was to be evicted in three weeks because the house belonged to the colliery where he once worked and the company will not permit him to remain there any longer.

"I do not know where we will go, your highness, and I guess we are beyond caring," he said.

Ghastly indeed is the job which the Prince of Wales is grimly pursuing, though he is wracked with a heavy cough due to wet feet from slopping all day through the mud.

Today the prince visited Joseph McCan, who is still employed in a coal pit at a wage of $7.50 weekly. He and his wife and eight children live in two rooms, one of them without natural or artificial light, and completely unfurnished. They sleep on bundles of rags without blankets.

Plays With Baby

In the ugly village of Wapping square, where the wheels of the prince's car were engulfed almost to the hubs in mud, he waded to the door of the hovel of William Little, secretary of the local relief committee. Mrs. Little, answering the knock, exclaimed:

"Oh, it is the prince."

"Yes, madam, may I come in?" said the prince.

"But, your highness, the children are not yet dressed," the mother said.

"Never mind that," said Wales. Entering he found 2-year-old baby Violet toddling in pink pajamas. He swept her off her feet, and tossing her toward the ceiling, asked her:

"So, young lady, what may your name be?"

So did a fairy story come true in this grinding poverty—a real prince invading with soiled boots the eight-foot square living room and sampling a pot of stew simmering on the hob—stew with a tiny bit of meat, just to give it a flavor.

Caught at Bath

At another dour village, Bedlington, the prince invaded the cottage of Widow MacDonnell, and unexpectedly caught her 17-year-old son having a bath in a washtub in the middle of the bare room. The boy tried to wrap a ragged towel about him, but the prince laughed:

"Oh, don't mind me, young fellow, my lad. Everybody has to have his bath."

That boy had just come from his all night work on "the face," for which he receives two dollars a week.

Passing through Bedlington, the prince was told about Margaret MacAuley, 18, and bedridden from paralysis.

"I must see her," he said, and he climbed the dark stairs where he came upon the wan-faced girl, chatting with her several minutes. When he left the prince said:

"You must be a brave girl, Margaret, and get better soon."

Tragic Tour

After a sandwich luncheon at Ashington colliery, which is still operating, Wales continued his rounds until after dark. He heard tales of a whole family going to bed on washday while the mother washed all the clothes they had, and he heard of fathers and mothers who set the dinner for their children and then leave the room because "the children must be fed even if the oldsters go hungry." He saw children with homemade canvas shoes, he saw rickety children and children with swollen stomachs due to slow starvation—all this in a countryside which was once the most robust in all England.

Bill Proposes to Let Regents Make Contracts

AUSTIN, Jan. 31 (AP)—The state would be relieved of the necessity of making appropriations to build dormitories at the Teachers' colleges under a bill by Representative Shaver of Huntsville, authorizing the board of normal regents to enter into contracts for erection of the buildings.

Long Lost Fisherman Returns to Civilization

PETOSKEY, Mich., Jan. 30 (AP)—Crawling and climbing over miles of jagged ice as best his frozen feet and hands would permit, Lewis Sweet, fisherman and guide, given up for lost after he was carried out into lake Michigan on an ice floe, a week ago, came ashore at Cross Village, north of here today.

Dancer Who Drank With Prince Dies In Poverty, With Dog as Friend

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
Record News Special Cable

PARIS, Jan. 31, (US)—"La Goulue"—the greedy one—who once drank champagne at the Moulin Rouge with the Prince of Wales who became Edward the Seventh, is dead.

She died as a charity patient in a great French hospital after passing her last days in want in a dilapidated wagon house, for which she paid 20 francs (80 cents) monthly ground rent. Her only friend was a mongrel dog which she sought to take with her to the hospital.

Forty years ago when La Goulue was one of a quartette of France's foremost dancers, she was making what was then the top salary of $200 a month, and had $20,000 in the bank.

All Paris then went to the Moulin Rouge to see the great dancers and the Prince of Wales was a frequent visitor. As a girl of 17 La Goulue drank champagne at the prince's table.

In her later years before her complete collapse, La Goulue eked out a bare living selling flowers and sweets in Montmartre.

They were: John F. Wallace, Teague; E. T. Murphy, Livingston; H. N. Graves, Georgetown, and Polk Hornaday, Harlingen.

The senate committee, already selected, is made up of senators Beck, De Kalb; Parrish, Lubbock, and Woodul, Houston.

Representative Wallace said the committee likely would complete its organization tomorrow.

SNOW BURIES MIDDLE WEST

Northern States Resemble Arctic Wastes

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. (US)—The northern tier of states of the Middle West are buried under the deepest snow in 20 years, according to reports received here. The whole countryside resembles an arctic waste.

Railroads are fighting to keep main lines open. Trains from the Pacific Northwest reach here from five to eight hours late and passengers today gave accounts of seeing snow piled as high as telegraph poles along the right of way.

A light snow fell in Chicago today and more snow was forecast for tonight. The temperature dropped to 12 below zero last night. J. R. Lloyd, United States weather bureau forecaster here, said:

"There is no hope for a break in the cold weather for several days. The temperature is going down to a minimum of about 13 above tonight and even colder tomorrow. This ice and snow will remain until we get thawing weather."

The intense cold is spreading over the eastern part of the country. The Hudson river is becoming ice locked for the first time in years. Two Hudson river passenger steamers were held fast in the ice near Kingston, N. Y., today.

Four Lake Michigan car ferries with 120 persons on board have been held ice bound for four days.

Scores of towns and villages in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Michigan are snowbound. There is no automobile traffic and in some communities physicians have been unable to reach patients and funerals have been delayed until roads to churchyards can be opened.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of good water.—Adv.

PAIR DIES IN SHIP BLAZE

Fire Aboard President Johnson Injures Five

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 31. (UP)—Fire, which started today in the midship berth deck of the Dollar liner President Johnson, burned two men to death and injured six others as the vessel lay at a pier about to depart for Cuba on the first leg of an around-the-world cruise.

The bodies of the dead were so badly charred police said identification would be difficult. Five of the injured were San Francisco seamen, William Gonzales, John Tiller, John Lazzi, Leslie Jordan and John Lenahan. The sixth was a Jersey City fireman, Peter Mahoney, who refused to stay at the city hospital and returned to duty. All were burned except Lenahan, who leaped overboard and suffered from submersion and bruises.

Police and customs guards rounded up 103 Chinese members of the crew who fled to shore. After more than three hours firemen succeeded in extinguishing the flames, and the Chinese were returned to the boat.

A carelessly tossed cigaret butt was believed to have started the blaze in the bunks of the white members of the crew. The two killed were believed to have been trapped in their bunks.

EGG EATING CHAMP

PARIS-AMERICAN PHARMACAL CO., Dept. D-848, Fifth and Court Ave., Des Moines, Iowa

Capt. George Fried, heroic rescuer, says:
"Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet."

"AN S.O.S. from the 'Florida'! We change our course. We on the 'America' strain to arrive in time to rescue the men on their sinking ship, 350 miles away. Through the icy, freezing storm and high seas we plunge on—all speed ahead! Then the night-time rescue, the search lights, the whirling waves, the manoeuvering to get near the 'Florida'. Finally, the 'Florida's' crew coming off one at a time, pulling themselves through the water on the line our men had thrown them.

"These 32 men, dazed, many half clothed, needed reviving after their long exposure. Hot coffee, food and Lucky Strikes—these gave new life to many of them and we on board the 'America,' crew and passengers alike, found after the strain and struggle that there was nothing quite so comforting and relaxing as the inviting, toasted flavor of Lucky Strikes.

"Playing this game with 'Davy' is ever fascinating, ever thrilling. And we who follow the sea must be ever ready for adventure. Ours is an active life, demanding nerve control and physical fitness. In my health program I have found that Luckies are most important not only because they provide a respite for frazzled nerves and an exhausted body but because whenever I crave anything which is over-fattening, I say to myself, 'Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet'. In the toasted flavor of Luckies, I get complete satisfaction. And I find that toasting, by removing the irritants, protects my throat."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during the year 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

Cruisers and Treaties

A WELL-MEANING American who tries to read all the arguments on the business of the Kellogg peace treaty, the new cruiser bill and America's relationship to the general question of world peace is apt to get sadly befuddled.

It has been a long time since there has been such a wealth of conflicting advice. This not only brings on confusion; there is danger that it may, in the long run, create in the country a spirit that will be extremely hostile to continued peace.

To begin with, the average American cannot help feeling that his nation may lay claim to a rather clear conscience in reviewing the events of the last 15 years.

Greatly against her own wishes we were embroiled in a war of Europe's making, which cost us a great deal and out of which we got nothing.

Following the war, when we were swinging unchecked into a position of undisputed naval leadership, we voluntarily scrapped millions of dollars' worth of warships and reduced ourselves to equality with England.

This done, we observed the spirit as well as the letter of the Washington treaty while other nations did not. The result is that instead of having naval equality we now have a marked inferiority in certain essential types of ship.

Having accepted this situation for a number of years, we are now preparing to take steps which will bring us nearer to that equality. At the same time, we have ratified a treaty professing our intention to settle all international disputes by pacific means.

Those are the facts. Now what sort of advice have we been getting?

When we ratified the peace treaty we were told we must make no reservations or it would defeat the entire purpose of the treaty—despite the fact that other nations had made their own reservations.

Then we were told that if we voted more cruisers it would brand us as hypocrites—despite the fact that England and France, also adopting the treaty, are continuing to build on a greater scale than we are.

We are told that Europe is afraid of us and suspects our intentions, and that we are militaristic and that our navy is a menace to world peace.

These bits of advice, viewed in the light of our national conduct during the past 15 years, are apt to have a bad effect if continued much longer.

They are apt to arouse a deep feeling of resentment—a feeling that will lead Americans to a spirit of defiance and reckless nationalism in which our old peace-loving policy will go by the boards.

They raise the suspicion that certain millions of Europe are taking Uncle Sam for a doddering old simpleton who can be told anything and made to believe it.

And if that suspicion and resentment once take hold in this country—well, the prospect for world peace really will be endangered.

Traffic in Spain

IF YOU THINK the traffic cops of your city are strict, offer devout thanks that you are not driving a car in a Spanish city.

Primo de Rivera, Spanish dictator, recently promulgated a set of rules designed to protect pedestrians. Any motorist whose car hits a pedestrian gets six months in prison. Any motorist whose car kills a pedestrian gets 12 years. In each case the motorist is assumed to be at fault. It makes no difference how he was driving or how the pedestrian was walking. If his car hits a man, the driver goes to prison.

The Spanish dictator, if he enforces these laws, probably will save the lives of pedestrians. At the same time, it is quite likely that he will kill motoring in Spain.

Grade Crossings

THE FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT at Bellevue, Ohio, where 19 people were killed when an electric interurban car crashed into a loaded bus, forces us once more to consider the perplexing grade crossing problem.

According to stories of eye witnesses, the driver of the bus used at least a fair amount of caution. He stopped his car, got out, walked to the crossing and looked each way to see that the course was clear before he went ahead. A snow storm was in progress at the time, however, and he failed to see the approaching interurban.

The motorman of the interurban saw the bus, but it was standing still and he assumed that it was waiting for him to pass. So he did not slacken speed until it was too late.

Both drivers were attending to duty. The accident, apparently, was simply one of those things that inevitably happen occasionally at an unprotected grade crossing. They emphasize the fact that sooner or later, no matter how much it costs, we shall have to embark on a program for the elimination of all grade crossings. In this day of heavy traffic they are too great a menace.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

District Attorney William McCraw, of Dallas, believes that Dallas county needs a supplementary force of peace officers to work in conjunction with the constable's and sheriff's department in putting down crime in the rural sections. Such a bill, known as the Love bill, was read before the senate Monday and it was passed without opposition. The bill provides for a force of six men, one to be chief deputy, all members to be appointed by the sheriff and have the status of deputy sheriffs. McCraw is well known in Denton county, having recently made the dedicatory speech here for the American legion home. Some of his friends have suggested him as a possible condidate for attorney general of Texas.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—"The bonfire," remarked a native New Yorker, "has lost its potency in New York. Through the combined efforts of the fire and police departments it has been relegated to the limbo of things that have passed their prime and are verging on the border of oblivion. Furthermore, there seems small chance of the once glorious custom of lighting bonfires on gala occasions being revived; the bonfire has been found an expensive and dangerous plaything, no matter what the occasion and the reason which prompted the fire, and as the trend at present is all in favor of safety first it is difficult to vision the revival of the blaze.

"Anybody born in New York or living here a generation ago will remember the bonfire in its prime, especially at election time. For months the boys and young men in various neighborhoods had been concentrating their efforts and energies after school hours in scouring the avenues and side streets for barrels and boxes which went to make up the bonfires that blazed on election night.

"Some of them even went so far as to tear down fences in order to get the material for an extra good blaze and some just escaped the clutches of the law in their efforts to get something that would burn. For, it must be remembered, that the police were alert at this season of the year for just such emergencies and as they were hard-hearted in those days the cops did not miss an opportunity to do their duty.

"I can still picture the street fights between bands from bordering neighborhoods where the rivalry was intense. Like many other things that have small beginnings and endings, these street fights would start over the possession of a barrel or box, with two individuals whacking each other as hard as they could, and then end with a rock battle between two groups of sizable proportions, with many split heads resulting from the collision. So intense would these fracases become in some instances it would necessary for the police to jump in between the combatants and bring hostilities to a close. But the valiant efforts of the cops merely postponed the wrath of the gangs for the time being. On the first occasion when conditions were favorable the battle would be renewed until a decisive result was reached.

"Those who gathered fuel for the bonfires took their time in collecting the material. There was nothing slap-jack or careless about the manner in which barrels and boxes were gathered. Sometimes the activity commenced four or five weeks before election day and continued right up until the night before the day on which people went to the polls. The neighborhood in which each group of workers held domain was gone over day after day with a fine comb, in a manner of speaking, and everything that would burn was collected for the one big night. Naturally the rivalry was intense; what could one expect when each group concentrated on having the biggest and best bonfire in the city? Big boys and little ones were out scouting and appropriating and when they couldn't do the job alone they went and got help.

"I would have been foolish to have done all this collecting and hoarding without having a place to store the fuel and keep it safe until the arrival of the big night. This also had been provided for in advance, but by a method which would not be possible today.

"Just before the beginning of the big drive each boy in the group was instructed by some one in authority, or maybe it was by tacit understanding, to scout around a little and see if he could find a good, safe place for the barrels and the boxes which would be gathered in due course. In some places there were sheds under lock and key and it happened to be somebody's privilege to be allowed the use of these storage places. Consequently, in nearly every instance the boys adjourned and made note of all the empty coal bins in their respective cellars. The empties were duly reported to the heads and brains of the group and the decision was quickly made to use the bins. Locks and keys were supplied whenever possible and after school hours a guard was placed to keep an eye around and see that "hi-jackers" did not steal in and rob the rightful owners of their wares.

"The big night of course was election and it was fraught with dangers too. The fuel supply for the fires had to be doubly protected on this night because of the danger of raiders from other localities whose supply had either run short or never existed. These raiders as a rule came armed with clothes line noosed in the manner of lassoes and some of the boys had developed quite some proficiency in throwing the nooses over any old barrels and boxes that happened to be lying around loose near somebody else's bonfire.

"The raiders would swoop down out of the darkness like a band of Apache Indians and everything that the lassoes fell over would be dragged along with good speed over the cobblestones to the scene of the robbers' bonfires. It was risky to chase marauders for fear that a second band left in the rear would bear down and steal a good portion of the remaining firewood.

"Those were the old days; now the firemen simply step in on election night and dash the bonfires hither and thither until the blaze is extinguished. Very seldom is it necessary to have to use the hose, but when the occasion demands the fire laddies can do this with alacrity, precision and promptness. Though they were boys themselves once the firemen called to do this must obey orders."

The VICARION

The Astounding Story of an Invention Greater Than the Movies

Copyright by Gardner Hunting

By Gardner Hunting

Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

In the year 1935 Radley Brainard has invented the Vicarion, a device with which it is possible to re-create scenes out of the past. The invention is a sensational success, with all the theaters installing it in place of motion pictures. Complete Illusions, Inc., which at that time controls all the improvements on the movie, faces ruin, but when Fardinand Mortimer and Jerry Ballard, heads of the company, call on him, Brainard refuses to make terms.

Brainard's records of the past are contained in "bombs," which hold liquid air and while he is projecting one of the "bombs," which was unmarked, he sees a beautiful gossamar-clad girl, with whom he falls in love, although he is engaged to Phyllis Norman. During the first demonstration of the Vicarion, with Phyllis and her family looking on, a strange man staggers in the studio. He is unable to tell who he is and Brainard names him Van Winkle, and makes him his aide.

Brainard calls in the operator who made the unmarked record, but gains no information from him. He orders Van Winkle to investigate the making of the bomb. Brainard projects one of the three remaining bombs containing the woodland scene in which the girl with whom he is infatuated appears and decides the records were made by Jeffry Honer, a criminal whom he has employed. Honer dies of fright while listening to the voice of his dead brother which Brainard projects by means of the Vicarion and Honer's secret of the "bomb," which contains the "sunrise nymph" passes into the hands of Mortimer and Ballard.

She mad an unfamiliar turning, and opened a door into an unlighted hall. Seeing that it was short, with another door opposite, she stepped in. But the moment the door behind her swung shut and latched, she became uneasy, for the larkness was complete. She turned at once and tried then to return—but the door she had passed through was locked! She understood after an instant that she must have stepped into a service hall or an approach to fire-escape stairs. She felt her way down the short length of hall and tried the farther door. She was not surprised to find this also locked.

But presently she found the foot of an ascending stair. It could lead only to the private office floor. She started up. She was making the turning at the first landing when she heard the door close softly in the hallway above her and a voice came quickly down to her with the hollow distinctness of tones in a whispering gallery.

"Sh! He didn't see us! Wait!"

Treachery

Phyllis paused involuntarily, warned to silence by the flavor of secrecy. For a long moment she heard no more. Then there was a little stir of feet, guarded, soft.

"He went into the studio. Lucky we didn't get in there first!"

It was a woman's voice. Phyllis had stumbled upon intrigue.

A man answered. "Well, what's the idea? What have you to show me there?"

Phyllis recognized this voice. It was Van Winkle's!

"Don't you see?" returned the woman. "If he has one of those unlabeled bombs left, we can get it and find out what it contains! That's what Jerry Ballard wants to know!"

"But I don't see what good that will do Ballard."

"Stupid! It's what is in those unlabeled bombs that has got Brainard, don't you see? He knows what the scene is, and wants it—wants it nearly enough to kill himself trying to record it again. But he hasn't the index. Ballard has the index but doesn't know what the scene is. He wants us to find out—or get him into possession of a condenser so that he can. When he knows what that scene is, he will know how to play with Brainard."

"Why doesn't Ballard give me the index and let me make a new record for him?"

"Because the index is sealed in an envelope that man Honer left, and Ballard doesn't dare open it for fear Brainard can read it by condenser when he does!"

The man Van Winkle did not reply at once. Phyllis, thrilling at having detected treachery to the man she loved, her loyalty instantly enlisted to thwart it, no matter what the opposing forces or causes, tried to still even her breathing to listen. Van Winkle was a fraud then—a spy! But who was this woman who was conspiring with him? She seemed to be the instigator of conspiracy.

"But how do you know," began the man slowly, "that Brainard wants this thing enough to—to matter?"

"Ballard found him out," said the other. "And I haven't watched him now for weeks for nothing."

Phyllis' mind leaped to conclusion. This woman had "watched him for weeks!" His secretary? The pretty one? She did not analyze her selection between the two women who most intimately served Brainard. But she did not doubt that she was right.

The pair in the hallway above were silent for a time. Then the girl spoke again.

"We'd better get out of this now. When he comes out of the studio again, we'll slip t .."

"He may spring the latch again on the door."

"He may. But he hasn't noticed that it didn't lock when he closed it in the three days since I changed it."

They were still again as if listening. Then Phyllis heard the door open. She took three quick upward steps and looked across the floor of the hall above at the figures that went out into the light beyond. She had guessed them right!

She ran hastily up the stairs. She found the upper door locked, as the lower one had been. As she hesitated, she heard steps of some one passing outside. She knocked on the door. It opened, and young Rex Welling looked inquiringly into her face as she stepped past him.

"Thank you," she said. "I locked myself out."

He bowed and went on through the hall and away. She turned to an outside window and looked out. There was a view from here of the blue Pacific and the bluer arch of the sky. Phyllis looked at them with a sense of not having seen them for weeks. Abruptly she recognized that she was close to the small studio door. Without stopping to consider what might be her purpose, she followed the instant impulse to try its latch. It opened to her touch.

She expected to find Radley there, of course. Had the conspirators not said that he had gone into the studio? But he was not there! The room was dimly lighted, but silent and without other occupant than herself. She started with sudden sense of opportunity! Opportunity for what?

She turned and sprung the catch in the edge of the door and then tried the outside knob. It did not now turn—the door, closed, would lock itself again. No one but Radley himself could interrupt her. She whirled and looked about the white room. It was as she had seen it last—it seemed now so long ago—just as she had seen it last, except for the long condenser at the rear wall. She stared at it an instant. Then her eyes went to the door of the closet where Brainard had kept his bombs. It was ajar.

What did she intend to do? She had thought she had come in here to warn Radley of a plot against him. But why, now, did she stay? Why was she starting across the white floor with her eyes fastened on the half-open door? She had no intention of spying out a secret of the man she loved; yet there in that dim nook where she could see the edges of the trays lay the reason why he had turned away from her—the reason why she had lost his love! What was she meaning to do?

His Secret

She reached the closet and opened the door, without understanding her intention. There under her hand in the top tray lay rows of bombs, their bright brass labels turned upward to the eye. Conspicuous among them was one because it bore none. It was the only one unmarked. She drew out the other trays hastily; in each the rows of little brass faces, frankly gleaming, were complete.

She had seen bombs slipped into projector niches many times, and switches turned. There was no mystery about it. In a moment she could see what this bomb contained—this unlabeled bomb. She could know what it was that Radley Brainard wanted—wanted enough almost to die for—when he no longer wanted her! She would know what his enemy wanted, as a club to hold over him, or to break his power. She would know what the conspirators schemed to get—she could keep Brainard's secret! She could keep his secret—if it were a secret to keep! She took the bomb up in her hand—little blued steel sphere, that might contain anything. Who had a better right to keep his secret?

But she did not turn to the niche of the projector. There was a window over beyond the closet door. She went to it and raised its heavy shade. Outside were the blank walls of a white-tiled court. Light fell within them from above, where the roof was close at hand. She fooled at the bomb she held; then she raised the sash. Still she was uncertain as to what she meant to do, and why. A little steel cap, like an inserted thumbscrew was the only break in the smooth surface of the steel ball. She turned it. The scene would escape if the cap were turned! She remembered the night in her father's library when Brainard had told them that. She stood still with the bomb in her hand.

She seemed to hear a trickle of water. Then the sweet note of a woodland bird. There was a vague flicker of scarlet against the background of white, then a shimmer of green and gold! The echo of an echo of a calling voice—then silence. But the girl stood breathless, with the sense of having looked into unseen eyes!

She did not know why she had done what she had done, or what would be its effect. Except that she had let slip through her fingers the secret. The secret!

There was a sound at the door. Keys! She whirled and thrust the empty bomb back into its tray; then paused to reclose its cap. Then she sprang back to the window and ran it down, snatching at the shade. Both were safely closed when the studio door opened.

Involuntarily she stepped back as Brainard came into the room. Her hand touched the gauze curtain that divided the studio in halves. She barely noticed that it brushed against her.

He did not see her. He strode to his condenser control-board, then stopped short beside it. After a moment she saw that his fingers tapped slowly upon it. She heard them—simple little rhythmic beat—simple as any mere vibration, beating out a record. What was the record? It stopped her heart. Was it what it sounded like—a record of agony in a great inner struggle?

He turned. His eyes were wide with a far-off, unseeing gaze. In them his whole expression centered—the rest of his dark face was lost in them as if by eclipse. Slowly he moved them, at last, and looked at the bomb closet—with fascination, as Phyllis had done. He put the back of his wrist against his forehead, and shook his head. Then he put his hands over his face and bowed his head down into them with a slow, hard gesture that was like a silent groan.

The girl took a forward step, and hesitated. What would he feel when he knew that she had intruded here? She shrank back. He raised his head, almost as if he had heard her. But he had not. He straightened and walked slowly across the room. At the half-open door of the closet he paused. He was not six feet from where Phyllis stood. The impulse nearly overcame her to rush to him, to cry out his name, to throw her arms around him, to claim the old sweet relation without which she felt sometimes that she could not live. But she stood still.

He took up the unlabeled bomb in his hand. He weighed it, considered it, put his other hand gently over it, almost with a caress. Then with it clasped in both, once more he bowed his head upon his hands. At last he turned and put it into the projector's niche with a slow gesture of finality. He touched his switches. There was a flare of red light. In it Phyllis saw him turning back to sink into a chair.

She started forward. "Radley!" she cried. But she found herself behind the curtain. She tried to sweep the sheer fabric aside; but it tangled like a spider's web about her hand. "Why," she said, "I'm caught. I—don't know how I got in here. And—I can't get out!"

No sound came from him. She looked out at him. He sat upright in his chair, staring at her as if she were from another sphere.

"Radley!" she cried out at him in alarm.

He made no movement. She remembered that there was an opening in the center of the curtain, through which he had showed her the lens on that first night, when he had exhibited his records to the family here. She took half a dozen steps toward the center of the room and then stopped. He had not moved! His eyes were as wide and fixed as if he were dead!

She tried again to push the curtain aside. She could not find the opening.

"Radley!" she repeated, faintly.

Then with sudden suspicion that he was merely staring at her to show his displeasure at finding her here, she drew back a step. "Don't you see what you are doing to me?" she asked him. His manner was incomprehensible.

He sat rigid. Involuntarily her hand went up against her lips. Abruptly all the heartbreak of the last weeks seemed to center in this moment. Was he halting her here? She could not quell the tears that rushed to her eyes.

"How can you—treat me so?" she whispered.

He sat motionless. She caught at the curtain. It moved, and separated at her touch. She stepped out from behind its folds.

The man started up out of his chair. "Great God!" he cried.

She whirled away from him and ran to the studio door. The knob turned under her hand and she flung it open. Next moment she was in the hall and the door had swung closed and locked behind her.

Someone was in the hall, near the office doors. She became aware in a moment that it was the secretary, Miss Arden. Oh, watch! As Phyllis looked at her, however, the other girl quietly opened the office door and went in.

Phyllis turned to the window out of which she had looked in that earlier moment when she had paused here. She gazed out at the blue Pacific and the sky. And her mind began to grasp the whole painful incident that had passed, and she understood in a flash what had occurred.

Brainard, unprepared for her presence in the studio, making ready to project a record—the record in that unlabeled bomb—had thrown the switches and—found her. Phyllis, there in the light beyond the screen! He had thought she was a product of his machine—as she had thought the record of her mother real! Strange, fateful reversal of effects—as if the Vicarion, like some sentient power, had suddenly taken to playing tricks with those who had thought they had it in control!

For an instant there was a ludicrous side to it. She had walked out from behind the curtain upon him! She had come real—escaping out of the clutches of his Vicarion before his eyes!. But if amazement at her appearance there explained his action, was it not inconsistent with the fact that she was now completely outside all his reckonings?

Horror and Power

The impulse came to her to return and tell him what she had done. But the locked and muffled door was between them now. She had not warned him against the traitors in his employ. But she had locked the studio door—and the scene they had planned to see was beyond their reach. Exposure of the conspiracy would wait. And as to any confession she might make of having meddled with his affairs—the slangy phrase came back to her, "You have no secrets I don't know!" He knew her secrets—if he was interested to know them. She had not chosen to know his!

She heard a step behind her; she turned and found Van Winkle at her side. He smiled at her, with that placid manner of his at which she had so often marveled. Now she marveled no more.

"Is Mr. Brainard in the studio?" he asked, putting his hand at the same time on the knob of the door.

"I can't get in,' she answered him evasively.

He tried the latch; it did not turn. He nodded, then looked at her curiously, she thought. Why had she not guessed what this veil was that curtained his glance? Oh, how he had played with her! What a fool she had been! What a daring notion, his attempt to play the part of a man without memory—yet how successful! What masterly acting—what depths of duplicity!

Radley himself had been deceived. What should she do now? Might she not turn the tables on him? How simple an incident had betrayed him! It was the old story—how easily the clever trickster tripped! But she must not let him suspect that she knew his treachery; if he should, he could easily, with his access to the condensers, reconstruct the episode of her eavesdropping. To be sure, she had listened in the dark. But she had gone in and out of lighted doors—and there had been the moment when he and the Arden woman had left the dark hall, when she had looked after them and when light must have touched her as well as them! If he knew—what would he do to save himself? For, on the other hand, their movements were open to Radley's all-seeing eyes, as well. It wanted only the spark of suspicion to bring upon them a consuming flame!

Her heart quailed; she remembered the suicide of that air pilot in the San Francisco hotel! Horror crept over her like a chill. Was she, with all her assumption of immunity to the great contagion, with all her notions of rescuing others from disaster—was she herself involved? The Vicarion had not yet touched her keynote, but were her fingers also caught in the cogs?

In one flaming picture all this stood before her mind—as nothing the Vicarion could ever project would do. Then this very idea gave her a sense of power. Her means and weapons lay within the mind! Out of reach of the deadly condenser!

"Well," Van Winkle was going on, "he knows that the new 'airdrome,' as they call it, is opening today. I was only going to remind him."

Phyllis smiled at him.

"Would you like to go down and look at the first of the big spectacles?" he asked. "I have places—though the crowd is ready to smash the walls."

"Of course," she assented readily.

They went to the elevators together. He took a cap from his pocket; he had been prepared. . . found a car waiting at the c b, cluttered now with the repair w k going on upon the Bonmar's bow d front. She was suddenly aware t at she had come and gone here for days without seeing present events in the course of their occurrence.

It was a short drive to the new show-ground. But when they approached the place she was amazed at its extent. Gray concrete walls extended as far as her eyes could see in the glimpses she had as the car moved through the enormous crowd. Dust and trees hid the farthest reaches.

Record Bank Deposits Index To Conditions

DALLAS, Jan. 31. (AP)—Gross deposits in Eleventh Federal Reserve district banks on Dec. 31, reaching a high record for all time, reflected a conclusion of a successful farming year in which Texas and New Mexico crops were 87 and 95 per cent, respectively, of normal.

The New Mexico rise toward normalcy was more marked than that in Texas, the 1927 figures having been Texas 73 and New Mexico 65 per cent.

Crop Values Increase

Texas 12 major crops had a total farm price on Dec. 1 of $647,747,000, an increase of $37,182,000 over 1927. The hypothetical value of all crops was $783,000,000 as compared with $736,000,000 the previous year. While corn production was 20,185,000 bushels under 1927, the total yield was larger than the average, and will provide farmers with an ample supply for 1929 crops, the federal reserve district business review, released today, showed.

In spite of lower prices, the Texas cotton crop, which exceeded that of 1927 by 798,000 bales, brought $30,657,000 more than last year with a total production of 5,150,000 bales.

Retail merchandising showed a seasonal increase of 47 per cent as compared with November, but a 2 per cent decrease over the heavy volume of December, 1927. While December sales did not come up to earlier expectations, the total for 1928 was generally satisfactory, showing a gain of 2 per cent over 1927.

Banks Gain

Combined net demand and time deposits of banks rose to $974,968,000 on Dec. 12, a gain of $11,829,000 over a month earlier and $59,651,000 over Dec. 7, 1927.

Livestock also benefited during December, rains replenishing the supply of stock water and bettering the ranges except in a few localities.

Receipts of cattle and calves at Fort Worth showed a heavy decline under both the previous month and the same month last year, and after prices had shown a sharp upward trend early in the month they reacted and most gains were canceled. During the remainder of the month the market followed an uneven trend, tending toward lower levels. Hog prices reflected a further decline, while sheep and lambs worked to higher levels.

December receipts and exports at Houston and Galveston were smaller than the previous month, but showed a substantial increase over the corresponding month last year. Houston's seasonal exports were 1,443,682 as compared with 1,061,799 last year; Galveston's 1,701,689 and 1,306,759.

Cottonseed received and crushed was smaller than the previous month, but larger than last year, and the production of cottonseed oil, cake, meal and linters at Texas mills was larger than a year ago.

Oil Output Higher

Partly because of lifted proration orders in some sections, crude oil production reached another high level, the total output amounting to 23,339,700 barrels for December, an increase of 1,177,750 over November. There were 602 completions, of which 316 produced 242,376 barrels. The daily average output of crude in Texas rose from 700,128 barrels in November to 715,561 in December.

Building operations in the district showed a further increase in December and for the third consecutive month were larger than in the same month last year. The figures: December, this year $9,755,373, last year $8,686,751, and November, 1927, $8,692,371.

DEPORTATIONS IRK MEXICANS

Protest to American Government Planned

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 31. (US)—The ruthlessness with which Mexican nationals are being deported from Texas will be brought to the attention of the American government, it was stated here today.

Under a new policy of the United States immigration service, Mexicans who have been in Texas for 10 and 12 years are being sent out of the country. Many have families and considerable property, their children being American born.

Complaints received by Consul General Santabanez of Mexico here state that well-to-do Mexicans are seized and hurried across the Rio Grande without being given time to dispose of their property or make arrangements for their families.

The immigration authorities charge the Mexicans entered the United States illegally.

Until recently immigration regulations were not strictly enforced. Many of those being deported are said to have fled into the United States from Mexico as political refugees during the revolutionary period in Mexico.

Charges are also made that Mexican citizens, after months of labor on Texas ranches and plantations, have been hustled out of the country by immigration agents before being paid for their work. The charges would indicate that ranchers and contractors employ Mexicans, delay paying them and finally notify immigration officers that the Mexicans have no legal status and have them deported with only the clothes on their backs.

"I am going through the Change of Life. At times I would cry for hours. I got tired of going to the doctor so I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I had taken the first bottle I began to get better. I have taken eight bottles now. I feel that it has saved my life, also doctor's bills. I work for a family of six, washing, cooking and do all my own work. People say I look like 25."—Mrs. Cora Calahan.

MRS. F. C. HELMING
822 E. Harrison St., Portland, Ore.
"Lydia E. Pinkham did for me what doctors failed to do. When the Change of Life began I was very poorly. Now at 55 I do all my own work, attend two dances a week and it is hard to make people believe I am over 40. I never see a woman in ill health but I advocate your medicine because I know its value. Every woman should take it, not just for a month or two but until they have passed the critical period."—Mrs. F. C. Helming.

ARCHER PLANS HOME COMING

County to Observe Its 50th Anniversary

T. H. Marberry, Breckenridge oil operator.

Archer county, around the time when it was organized, was a cowman's paradise. On luxuriant growths of grass and weeds cattle browsed into wealth. The foundations of numerous big fortunes were laid in this period. Many Archer county cowhands of that day later came into fame or fortune.

The north end of the county, according to information supplied by one of the best posted old-timers remaining in Archer, was controlled by the T-fork and 99 outfits.

Cattle Paradise

The T-fork brand was owned by the Stone Land and Cattle company, headed by John H. Stone. Headquarters of the ranch was near where the town of Dundee now stands. The company was dissolved about 40 years ago and Stone, now believed by the informant to be dead, headed for the ranges of Arizona.

The 99 brand was owned by the late Luke Wilson and his brother, Medford Wilson, Charles W. Word of Wichita Falls and the Dickey brothers, W. R. Portwood, last heard of at Seymour, was a range boss for the outfit.

On dissolution of the partnership, it was said, the Wilsons got the west portion of the lands, Word the east portion and Dickey brothers the central portion.

Allen Palmer, foreman of the 99 ranch, died last year while visiting in the home of Joe A. Kemp in Wichita Falls. His home had been in Alpine, Texas, for many years.

Bill Coleman, now of Wichita Falls, was foreman of the TL outfit, owned by Dickey brothers after division of the lands.

In the central portion of the county the OX and the Circle were the big outfits.

The OX was owned by Harrold brothers and East. E. B. Harrold went to Fort Worth and was an official of the First National bank up to the time of his death some 10 years or more ago. L. W. Harrold died in California. "Doc" Harrold died in Fort Worth.

Seth Stiles, foreman of the OX, hit the trail for Arizona, where he now owns a big ranch. John Turbeville, one of the last bosses in the outfit, now lives in Archer City and is taking life easily. Dan Hardy, another hand of the old days, is in Wichita Falls, engaged in real estate and oil operations. The renowned Tex Rickard, known as "Dink" in these parts, was a hand working with the OX under John Turbeville.

The Circle ranch, which extended into Clay county, was owned by the Ikards, E. F., Will and "Cap," the latter a Texas ranger in earlier days. Fayette Ikard was foreman of this outfit.

In the south part of the county the TIP brand was run by the late W. W. (Bill) Mann, whose widow now resides in Wichita Falls. Bob Hardy, brother of Dan Hardy, was his foreman. His son, John Mann, laid aside his lariat, spurs and other trappings and went into the furniture business in Wichita Falls, where he is now to be found at the Star Furniture company store.

The WO ranch was of smaller proportions than some of the others and was owned by Luther Clark, last heard of in Quanah, Texas.

The JJ was owned by the Harmonson brothers, W. P., Pete and another whose name was not recalled.

The CLA-bar was owned by L. C. (Clate) Garvey, who died at Archer City, where his widow and children now reside.

The Muleshoe ranch was owned by Jasper Herron, who died in Archer City many years ago. His sons, L. C. Herron, Archer City banker, and Sam B. Herron, Archer City merchant, continue to manage the ranch.

The figure 3 brand was run by Ben and "Babe" Cobb. The latter died in Jack county and the former now in Oklahoma.

There were many outfits smaller than the ones named.

First officials of Archer county were: County judge, Alfred Ingalls; clerk, J. S. Scott; treasurer, William Cound; tax assessor, William Hutton; sheriff, W. W. (Bill) Mann. The first courthouse in Archer City, a frame structure, burned in 1888; a two-story courthouse was erected in 1891. During the administration of E. M. Hooper, county judge, 36 years later, the building was remodeled into a structure modern in appearance.

First settlers included F. M. Bachman, W. B. Hutcherson, R. H. East, John Baxter, George Baxter, J. P. Hart, L. W. Hart, S. S. Moorehead, W. W. Mann, Billy Scott, W. W. Duran, none of whom are living, and others whose names could not be recalled at the moment.

S. S. Scott, first county clerk, now lives near Archer City. His first supplies consisted of a pen and a ream of legal cap paper, he said. Mrs. Scott, a sister of the Harrold brothers, died last Dec. 12.

First blacksmith shop was owned by the late Louis Heston, who became judge and served several terms.

Among early day barbers were Bert Thompson, now living at Quanah; Arthur Howard and Albert Fonville, now residents of Wichita Falls; "Snip" Snyder, now a citizen of Junction City, Texas, and Huse Goodwin, at last accounts a resident of Claremore, Okla.

Dennis Yoakum maintained the first hotel in consequence.

Early day editors were R. Luther Taylor, who made his stake in oil in recent years and now is engaged in banking in San Antonio; Harry and Frank Daugherty, who published the Dispatch and later published the Wichita Herald in Wichita Falls; Oliver Dunlap, now at Edna, Texas, and Ralph Shuffler, who went to Olney and now publishes a news paper, three times declared the best country newspaper in Texas by the Texas Press association. Charlie Martin, present editor of the News, was born in Archer county about the time of its organization. Frank Daugherty died in Wichita Falls some 10 years ago.

The first physician to practice in Archer county was Dr. R. O. Prideaux, now at Graham. In those days the physician had no regard for distance and answered calls of distress on horseback, their medicine and instrument bags attached to the saddle, in order to travel speedily over the trails to distant ranch houses. Dr. C. M. Mayes, first physician to practice in Archer City, has the last 20 years been a resident of Los Angeles, where Bob Hardy, ex-cow hand, now resides.

The Rev. Father Joseph Reisdorph was the first Catholic clergyman and founded Windthorst college at Windthorst.

Atticus Webb's Star

The Rev. Atticus Webb, now of Dallas, nemesis of the rum demon and head of the State Anti-Saloon league, was among the first Methodist ministers in Archer City.

Professor Cummings of the University of Texas was the first geologist to locate in Archer City. After two or three years' residence he returned to the university, it is said.

The Rev. J. H. Longan was among the first Baptist ministers to locate in the county.

Sam Moorehead was the first mayor of Archer City. F. M. Power, banker and pioneer, now occupying the office.

Judge W. E. Forgy is one of the veteran practicioners of law in Archer county and in addition to his extensive practice heads an abstract company. Judge Forgy has been in the county seat since it was a cow trail, it is said. After satisfactorily answering the question pertaining to the rule in Shelley's case, he promptly hung out his shingle as an attorney and has been at it ever since.

"When I first came to Archer City," Judge Forgy said, "this was almost exclusively a cattle country, with a little desultory farming here and there.

"Unlike most cow towns, it was peaceful. There was never more than one or two saloons and no open gambling. The cowhands were frolicsome but not rowdy. Once in a while some fellow would let out a round of shots from his six-gun to disturb the quiet of the night but there was little devilment.

Recalls Rickard

"Oh, yes, I knew Tex Rickard, 'Dink' we called him. 'Dink' was a good cowhand, took his fun in a quiet way and was known as a fair hand at poker."

In reminiscences of early days in Archer county one of the citizens of the country who prefers to conceal his identity under the pen name of "Old Timer" contributed this story, of more than local interest, to Charlie Martin's Archer County News:

"It was at a roundup in the OX pasture, about 12 miles west of Archer City. The boys had rounded up several thousand head of longhorn cattle and Bud Covington and Seth Stiles were cutting out the 'big jaws,' locoes, mavericks and strays. Bill Baxter and the writer were holding the 'cut.'

Story on Carrigan

"About the time old Bud brought out of the herd a 'big jawed' steer at the rate of a mile a minute, a stranger was riding upon a 'spike-eared' bronc and there was a near collision.

"The 'spike-eared' horse shied, plunged and almost 'spilt' the stranger and did scatter a rack of books tied behind the saddle.

"The stranger, after getting his mount quieted and picking up his books rode up to me and asked 'the straightest shoot to Spring Creek, Throckmorton county.'

"I pointed out the direction but told him there was a barbed wire fence in that direction that he would encounter in about five miles and that he would have to turn off his course several miles to a gate.

"He said that he wouldn't bother, as he had a pair of wire nippers in his pocket.

"He asked me what would be the chance to get something to eat with us. I told him the chance was good, that we had just killed a maverick and it would soon be noon.

"I rode up to the chuck wagon with him. He introduced himself to the boys and explained that his having so many books did not mean that he was a book agent, but that he was a lawyer on his way to Throckmorton county to defend a client charged with murder.

"'I hope to prove,' he further explained, 'that my client did what he did in self defense and that the knife wound across the abdomen of his big, fat adversary would not have proved fatal had it not been for a durned fool 'doctor' at Spring Creek neglecting to reduce the swelling and instead cutting off about 25 pounds of the patient's abdomen with a pair of sheep shears in order to close the wound.'

"We told him that we knew the 'doctor' and that he was a fine school teacher and good poker player at Archer City before he got a fool notion to make a doctor or lawyer and hung out his shingle as a 'physician.'

"The young bronc-rider lawyer said he would advise the doctor that he had best stick to school teaching or poker or the practice of law, where he would not be so dangerous.

"That lawyer that asked me for 'the straightest shoot to Spring Creek' must have gone that way, for old Bud, who had charge of all the outside fences on the OX ranch, found the wire cut in that direction and ever afterwards when he found a hole cut in the fences he would cuss that 'straight-shooting attorney.'

"But this 'straight-shooting, bronc-riding attorney' was later our district judge for many years and today is one of the foremost lawyers in the state. He has always been a 'straight-shooter,' the Hon. Alf H. Carrigan of Wichita Falls.

"The 'doctor' must have taken his advice, for today he is one of the most successful attorneys in Texas, but all his old-time friends still call him 'Doc'."

$11,500 Damages Asked For Injuries in Crash

A suit for $11,500 damages, growing out of an automobile accident on Twelfth and Burnett streets on Dec. 5, 1928, was filed by Mrs. M. C. Grubbs against A. H. Hudgins in the office of the district clerk Thursday afternoon.

The petition alleges that the car in which Mrs. Grubbs was driving was struck by another automobile owned by the defendant, that the Grubbs car was wrecked and its driver sustained severe and permanent injuries.

SOVIET OUSTS LEON TROTZKY

Fear Held For Life of Red Army Fighter

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

BERLIN, Jan. 31. (US)—Leon Trotzky has been banished from Russia. He was ordered expelled on Jan. 15 by the political bureau of the Communist party and there are grave fears he has been assassinated before reaching Turkey where he was headed.

So declares the Volkswille, Trotzky's organ in Berlin, which announced a week ago that the Russian Communist party had decided to expel the Russian Robespierre.

"Is Trotzky still alive? Where is he?" asks the Volkswille as the Rote Fahne (Red Flag), the communist organ in Berlin today confirmed the news that Trotzky must leave Russia.

Announced Banishment

"The Soviets will banish Trotzky and his family from Russia because he is the leader of a group trying to overthrow the soviet system and cause disaffection in the red army," says the Rote Fahne. "Trotzky is openly deliberately fighting against the proletarian dictatorship."

The Volkswille says:

"We reported a week ago that the Russian communist party had decided to expel Trotzky to Turkey. This news we had in a letter from Moscow. We now have confirmation of this news in another letter from Moscow, written on Jan 20, with the information that the decision had been carried out about Jan. 15.

"Trotzky has been taken from Alma Ata. He left that day. Where he was taken by his jailers is not known. We ask the Russian government—we ask the representatives of the comintern—where is Trotzky? Is Trotzky still alive?

Modern Robespierre

"Following the ninth thermidor of the French revolution the head of Robespierre fell under the guillotine. It was a day of victory for the counter revolution. Has Trotzky's head also fallen now?

"At least his life is in the greatest danger. We must not forget that Voroschilov said that Trotzky has been taken where the news will not reach Russia quickly if something happens to him. The international workers demand that the co-worker of Lenin, meritorious leader of Russian workers, and organizer of the red army be preserved to the workers.

"Trotzky does not oppose revolutionary policies, but the policies of Stalin."

Vorwaerts, organ of the German socialists, says:

"The expulsion of Trotzky is a new method of terror against bolshevistic turncoats."

The soviet embassy here refuses to confirm or deny that Trotzky has been sent out of the country.

DEMPSEY DENIES THREAT TO TRANSFER FIGHT TO CALIFORNIA

MIAMI BEACH RETAINS FIGHT

Halting of Racing Will Not Stop Mill, Jack Says

By FRANK GETTY

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (UP)—For a time today it appeared as though Jack Dempsey had made a major blunder as a promoter.

The former champion was quoted as saying that if racing in Florida was stopped by the present anti-gambling agitation, the Sharkey-Stribling fight probably would not be held there, but would be taken to Los Angeles.

Whether this was propaganda for the bookmakers or for California is not clear at the moment, but Dempsey has issued through the United Press an emphatic denial that he ever voiced the possibility of the heavyweight bout being removed from Miami Beach.

With fight fans in many districts preparing to go to Florida to attend the bout next month, it is unfortunate that Jack should have been quoted as expressing any doubt about the affair coming off as scheduled.

Doesn't Help Fight

If this business of calling off the fight every 20 minutes and then calling it on again continued much longer a good many fans will wisely say:

"I think I will take my share of it over the radio."

It is easy to understand that the race track folks in Florida should desire to use a threat by Jack Dempsey to remove the fight, as a club over the head of the reform element.

The fight means a lot to Florida, particularly to Miami Beach, and if it were taken to California there would be something besides the ocean breezes moaning underneath the palms.

Dempsey said he had an offer of $250,000 from Los Angeles. In a day or two he probably will have an offer of $500,000 from Mexico City. Offering such sums for a prize fight is the favorite pastime of some people. Only they never explain what they propose to use for money.

Ringside Seats Sought

"There never has been any intention of removing the Sharkey-Stribling fight from Miami Beach," said Dempsey tonight.

"If the Florida tracks close, it may have some slight effect upon our receipts, but I doubt it. For the sake of the Rickard estate, I would like to see the Miami Beach Kennel club run, and for those people who enjoy horse racing I would like to see the jockey club run, but racing or not, the fight goes on."

A tremendous battle for ringside seats started early today with a demand for 500 from the Madison Square Garden club of New York, 300 by the Boston Elks and large blocks here and there, everyone apparently feeling that life will hold no happiness for a man who sits back of the first seven rows on the night of Feb. 27.

Famous Golf Shots of 1928

Nine Feet of Worry—Bang!

By PAUL R. MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

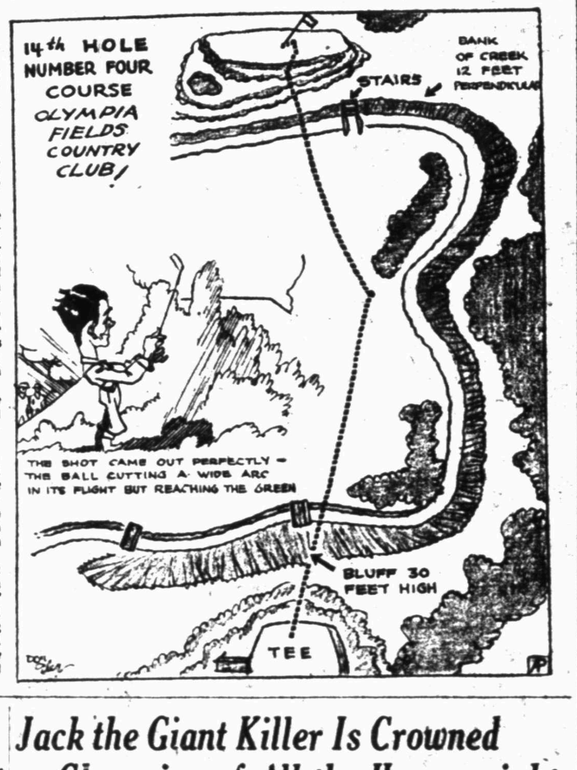

Johnny Farrell felt his greatest golfing thrill when he sank that famous nine-foot putt on the 36th green to defeat Bobby Jones for the national open championship, but the shot he credits for his triumph was made with a spoon.

The shot was made by the smiling Irishman on the 32nd hole—a 445-yard stretch—on the Olympia fields course, where the play-off was held.

Johnny just had squared the match with the Atlanta shotmaker when they tackled the 32nd hole. Both played good woodens well down the fairway, but Bobby's ball stopped to the left, giving him an open shot to the green, while Farrell's was to the right with a heavy willow bush between him and the green far up on the slope. Jones derricked his ball nicely and it landed 15 feet from the pin for an easy four.

Realizing a straight shot to the pin might land in the bush and an iron might find the hollow approaching the green, Farrell decided to risk a sliced spoon shot, letting the drift of the ball take it around the bush and up on the green. The shot came out perfectly, the ball cutting a wide arc in its flight, but reaching the green where he was able to halve it in four to keep even with Bobby.

"That was probably the best shot I have ever made in competition and the shot that won for me," Farrell said. "I got my greatest golfing thrill when I sank that long putt on the final green, but that spoon shot kept up my courage when just one bit of faltering would have lost everything for me."

Jack the Giant Killer Is Crowned Champion of All the Heavyweights

Dempsey Battered Willard Into Helplessness in Third Round Of Sensational Fight on Torrid Day at Toledo

By JACK LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1929, by the New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—When Tex Rickard began to promote the Willard-Dempsey battle at Toledo for the heavyweight championship of the world he was badly bent financially. As for Jack Kearns, he was only one leap ahead of the sheriff. It was necessary for Rickard to dig up a bank-roll man in a hurry. He was wrestling with this problem when he happened to run into Frank B. Flornoy, whom he had known years before. Frank had cleaned up a young fortune in cotton and he volunteered to back the Toledo venture.

Several years later, Flornoy, then somewhat down on his luck, was to become Rickard's matchmaker in the old garden, a post that he held until the present garden was opened. He was on Rickard's payroll in various capacities right up until the time of the promoter's death.

Rickard didn't have much faith in Jack Dempsey, the challenger. He thought him too small for the gigantic Jess Willard and felt that he wouldn't make any better showing against the champion than had Frank Moran three years earlier.

It is probable that many fans shared Rickard's opinion of the comparatively unknown challenger, for the fight failed to draw the way Texas hoped it would. Despite the expert ballyhoo that Rickard applied to building up the contest the gate was far below his expectations and to the day of his death he could offer no explanation of this except that people figured Dempsey to be physically outclassed.

Crowd Disappointment

The promoter had expected a crowd of 50,000. The arena, which had cost him $120,000 to build, had a seating capacity of 80,000. On the day of the fight only 19,000 persons paid their way in. The battle took place on the Fourth of July, 1919, and Rickard always claimed that it was the hottest Fourth on record.

Tex had anticipated a million-dollar gate, or very close to it. The actual receipts amounted to $452,000. The fight did not lose money, but it failed to return the profits Rickard and his associates had expected.

Years afterward Rickard said, speaking of the Jack Dempsey who was challenging for the heavyweight crown:

"I really had a sort of a guilty feeling when I signed him up to fight Willard. He looked so small alongside the giant champion. I could picture Jess simply lifting that kid right off his feet with that terrific uppercut. I thought a little better of him when I watched him in training at Toledo, for he certainly had astounding speed and the ability to hit with either hand. But I never did think he had a chance of winning and I guess nobody else did, with the exception of Kearns and Dempsey himself. That is the reason Jess was such a top-heavy favorite in the betting."

"There was hardly any Dempsey money in sight, although I know of one man who bet $200 against $3,000 that Jack would stop Jess in the first round. But that was a freak wager. He came within an ace of collecting, at that."

Willard was the personification of confidence. He didn't expect the fight to be more than a good workout for him. And for that reason he neglected his training. If there was one thing Jess loathed more than fighting it was training and he never passed up an opportunity to shirk his work. When he entered the ring he was soft and flabby.

The morning of the fight Tex met Jess in the barber shop of the Hotel Secor. He was having a shave, a shampoo and a haircut. He told Tex that he'd stop Dempsey inside of 10 rounds. No razor had been near Dempsey's face for three days prior to the fight and he entered the ring looking more like a hobo than ever and scowling ferociously at the well-barbered Willard.

An amusing incident in connection with that famous fight is worth recording here. Battling Nelson, who had lost his lightweight title to Ad Wolgast, blew into town a couple of days before the battle and, failing to find a room, slept in a tent near the arena. It seems that Emil Thiry and Larney Lichtenstein, two Chicago fight managers, had the lemonade privileges at the arena. The night before the battle the two parked a huge hogshead of lemonade near Nelson's tent. It was discovered by Bat that night just as he was about to turn in. The weather was terrifically hot and Nelson, thinking the barrel contained water, jumped into it and took a bath. All next afternoon fans were drinking lemonade in which Battling Nelson had bathed.

How Jack Stopped Jess

At the tap of the first gong Dempsey charged out of his corner like a maddened bull. His first punch, after he had broken through the champion's guard, was a short right hook that landed squarely on Jess's jaw. Willard sat down with the most amazed expression on his face ever seen inside a prize ring. In a second the place was in an uproar as the crowd sensed for the first time that this was to be a fight.

Jess had hardly staggered to his feet before another shot on the chin, this time a left, sat him on his haunches again. It was at this moment that something went wrong with the bell. It rang before it should have and many people believe to this day that had the round gone the regulation three minutes Willard would have been knocked out.

From that moment until the fight ended in the third round Jack Dempsey battered the huge champion into a bruised and bleeding pulp. His jaw broken, his eyes closed, his nose gushing blood, Willard was a pitiful spectacle. He had no chance against the fury that was Jack Dempsey. Jack floored the big cowboy with almost every punch.

A new heavyweight champion had been crowned.

Some declare to this day that Willard quit in that fight. Tex never believed this. He never questioned Willard's gameness. He said afterward that it was simply impossible for Jess to continue against the storm of blows that Dempsey rained on him in merciless fury.

Schmeling 7 to 5 Choice Over Risko

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (AP)—The stamp of comparative greatness will be awaiting Max Schmeling, German heavyweight, at Madison Square garden tomorrow night.

Schmeling has only to defeat decisively the stumbling block of his division, Johnny Risko, to step near the head of his class. "Monks" will get his chance over the 10-round route where Jack Sharkey, Tom Heeney and Paulino Uzcudun failed. The bout is Schmeling's first against a topnotcher since his American invasion.

Risko, the Cleveland baker boy, is in fine condition. He will scale about 191 pounds, a half dozen more than Schmeling.

The betting favors Schmeling, 7 to 5.

SANDE TO RIDE IN THE DERBY

Greatest Jockey Plans To Make Turf Comeback

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. (UP)—Love of the saddle has drawn Earl Sande, acclaimed in racing circles as the greatest jockey of the generation, back to the turf.

The slight, modest rider whose remarkable judge of pace and natural horsemanship brought his employers more than $2,000,000 in 10 years, is "keeping fit" and hopes to run in the Kentucky derby this year, he told the United Press tonight.

"I hope to be able to run in Maryland and Illinois," Sande said. "It may be the track rules won't permit it, because I am an owner. I certainly intend to ride in the Kentucky derby, however."

Quit Riding Last Year

Sande deserted the saddle on Sept. 15, 1928. He was having trouble making a desired weight. Dieting, he felt, was injuring his health. he now weighs 116 pounds—three pounds more than when he stepped from the pigskin and hopes to lose at least five pounds of that in training.

"Keeping fit," Sande said, "consists of riding at Bowie when the weather is favorable and indulging in strenuous weight-reducing exercises."

He makes a daily trip to Bowie where his stable is wintered.

News of Sande's intended return to the saddle was favorably received in racing circles, where his career has been as colorful as the spectacular race he has run.

From a rider of horses at Western fairs, Sande in a decade became America's premier jockey.

In 1923 he rode Zev, famous Rancocas colt, to win the Kentucky derby and repeated in 1925 with one leg up on Flying Ebony.

His First Comeback

Shortly after this he was injured on the track at Saratoga and rushed to a hospital where his life was despaired of. Even though the broken bones mended, skilled surgeons said Sande would never ride again.

But under the watchful care of his wife, a neice of Sam Hildreth famous trainer of the Harry F. Sinclair stables, Sande returned to the track.

Word that Sande would ride the famous colt Sarazen at Havre de Grace brought thousands to the track. Many wondered if the tradition of the track would hold good and if Sande's nerve would be affected by his accident.

The race was one of the most spectacular in his career. Although his mount got away to a poor start he clipped two-fifths of a second off the six furlong record. The crowd acclaimed Sande.

He was ruled off at Pimlico in 1927 on charges of "crowding" but later was reinstated.

Basketball Shots

By TED VOSBURGH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Among the miracle workers of basket ball a place must be made for Francis A. Schmidt who has lifted the University of Arkansas from total eclipse as far as the game was concerned to a position of overwhelming dominance perhaps unmatched in the entire country.

There was no gymnasium at Arkansas when Schmidt, who won his spurs at the University of Nebraska, went there in 1922. The students were playing basket ball on a dirt court then, but Schmidt soon had a gymnasium built and intercollegiate basket ball was begun there in 1924.

In the following year the Razorback team came close to winning the Southwest conference championship, losing out in the final game. In 1926 Arkansas won the title and its supremacy has not even been threatened since.

With three Southwest conference cups already on the shelf, the Arkansas team of six-footers has been piling up incredibly one-sided scores this season and seems a sure shot for the title again.

The average score for its first six games was 52 points to 23.

Some of the conference records gained by the Razorbacks at that stage were:

Highest single game score—old record of 59 set last year by Arkansas cracked twice with 66 against Texas Christian university and 69 against Baylor.

Most conference games won in succession—20, six of them this year and others last season, when team had ever-victorious record. Including non-conference games, winning streak numbers 28 and team is going strong.

Individual high scoring record—26 points by Wear Schoonover, all-conference forward, in Baylor game Jan. 18.

Incidentally, Schoonover, who is leading the scorers, and Tom Pickell, 6 foot, 5½ inch center, are the principal offensive threats of the team, and Eugene Lambert, veteran guard, is the keystone of the defense. Lambert and Pickell are co-captains, the vote for the captaincy having twice resulted in a tie.

Of the 12 men in the Razorback squad, nine are more than six feet tall.

Last year four men of the five on the all-conference team were Arkansas players, and this year it looks as though the pickers might do worse than name the entire five.

An interesting angle is that Arkansas is located so far away from most of the other conference institutions that the Razorbacks play their games in pairs, usually meeting conference foes on successive nights.

The annual cry for a college basket ball organization along the Atlantic seaboard which would be more representative than the present Eastern Intercollegiate league can now be heard at institutions not enrolled in the six-team circuit.

At New York University public sentiment as expressed by the campus daily favors an eight-team organization consisting of Fordham, New York university, City college of New York, Army, Navy, Colgate, Georgetown and Holy Cross, with the winner to play the victor of the present Eastern league, numbers Pennsylvania, Princeton, Columbia, Yale, Dartmouth and Cornell.

At Fordham, one of the East's strongest basket ball colleges, the idea is approved, but a 12-team loop is proposed to consist of Fordham, N. Y. U., C. C. N. Y., Syracuse, Colgate, St. John's of Brooklyn, Army, Rutgers, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Georgetown and Catholic university.

Yet no definite organizing is being done and despite a few beatings here and there the six teams that banded together back in 1911 keep rolling along, not pretending to award any more of a championship that that of their own select circle.

COURT UPHOLDS LEASE SALES

Robison Sustained in His Land Contentions

AUSTIN, Jan. 31. (AP)—The district court today sustained J. T. Robison, state land commissioner, in his contentions that under a Texas supreme court ruling it was mandatory that he offer oil and gas rights in Texas university lands for sale when requested to do so.

The court also held invalid that section of the law passed by the present legislature, in repealing the 1925 law and withdrawing the leases from the market, which specifically named the sale of Jan. 2 as having been canceled by the act.

Judge J. D. Moore said in his opinion that bidders on leases offered in the Jan. 2 sale had "vested rights" which could not be abrogated by legislation probably retroactive. The repeal law was passed Jan. 11, three days after the legislature convened.

Under the opinion the temporary injunction issued Jan. 1 to enjoin the sale advertised for Jan. 2 was dissolved.

Judge Moore's decision was oral and he said he would reduce it to writing.

Bidders who made offers on tracts in the January sale had intervened in the suit, claiming their rights were in jeopardy and alleging they believed they were high bidders.

$50,000 Auto Accident Suit Goes To Trial in District Court Here

A suit asking $50,000 from J. W. Culberson and others for alleged injuries suffered by W. P. Thurman in an automobile accident here on Jan. 30, 1928, will go on trial before Judge Allan D. Montgomery Friday morning.

Mr. Thurman was struck by a car driven for the defendants by D. J. Cuibirth as he was crossing Ninth street at Bluff, according to the terms of his petition. The plaintiff was thrown on a distance of 60 feet by the blow and suffered permanent injuries, his allegation says. Both legs were broken, one in three places, and numerous other injuries were suffered, the petition declares. Breaks in one leg have caused it to be shorter than the other and recovery will never me complete, he alleges.

Mr. Thurman is represented by the firm of Davenport and Crain and Henry Strasburg, member of the firm of Townsome, Wright, Gormby and Price, of Dallas.

*Cream Cheese Dressing: Mash with a fork the desired quantity of cream cheese, adding as much thick cream as necessary to form the consistency of a salad dressing. Mix in enough cooked spinach, which has been chopped and drained, to give a good green color. A little chopped cucumber may also be added. Add a little more cream if the mixture seems too heavy. This dressing is especially good over a salad of water cress and lettuce, the piquancy of the water cress seeming to blend well with the cheese flavor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mental Poisoning

Question: W. L. J. asks: "Is there such a thing as 'mental poison?' Doubtless you have heard the old saying that "Worry will kill." Will you explain the process from the brain to the nervous system?"

Answer: There is no doubt that destructive emotions, such as worry, anger, fear and anxiety will produce poisonous substances within the blood. I have written numerous articles dealing with the value of a mental calmness for maintaining health. It is believed that the ductless glands are active in the formation of some of these toxic substances. There is yet room for much scientific investigation about "mental poisons."

Dried Limas Beans

Question: H. J. writes: "Having but little means, I would like to use the dried kidney beans or the limas. Will you kindly instruct me as to which of the two is best, and if about an hour's slow boiling would be about right, and if a little soda would make them less gassy."

Answer: Dried limas are a little less gas forming than the other beans and are much more alkaline forming. They should be very well cooked if they are to be digestible. Beans always have a tendency to producing flatulence. I do not advise the use of soda in beans.

Lump and Cancer

Question: Mrs. H. W. writes: "I have a small lump in my breast—been there 13 years. It has not altered in size during that time. Do you advise it being removed or do you think there is danger of cancer? I dread an operation, but cancer still more."

Answer: Operations for lumps in the breast are entirely successful if the lump has not become cancerous, so you need not fear such an operation, and in fact, it may allay your fears of your trouble if you

BORGER, Texas, Jan. 31.—The sixth location made by the Phillips Petroleum company in Moore county, to be known as the Phillips-Taylor No 1 in section 244, is announced by officials of the company here.

Location of the new test is on the W. H. Taylor farm and is in the southwest of the east half of the northwest quarter of the section.

The new test is on a line between the Byrd-Armstrong field in the extreme eastern part of Moore county, 12 miles west of Stinnett, the county seat of Hutchinson county, and the Morton well in section 191 completed more than a year ago by A. D. Morton and associates of Bartlesville.

Completion of the rebuilding of the rig on Phillips No. 3 James, on the Matilda Robinson survey in eastern Moore county, is expected in a few days and the producer will again be put on the pump.

The rig was destroyed by fire Ja. 20. At that time it was producing nearly 1,000 barrels of oil a day, the best producer of the Phillips company and also one of the best in the field.

Officials hope that the well will not be harmed by the destruction of the rig.

No. 1 James is producing about 250 barrels per day and No. 2 about 20 barrels.

Rig construction at No. 4 is well under way. Spudding in as expected early in February.

Phillips-Stella Barnett No. 1 in section 192, Moore county, a mile south and west of the Morton well is drilling below 2250 feet.

Dixon Creek No. 1 Sneed in section 65, block G and M 3, Moore county will be a good producer, it was announced at the offices of the Dixon Creek Oil company here today, although C. S. "Chuck" Moore superintendent, could not be reached to announce the actual production.

At the same time it was learned that the well will be shot with nitroglycrein.

Gas to the amount of 3,000,000 cubic feet is coming from the well. Reports are that the production will runn nearly as high as the Phillips No. 1 which is around 1,000 barrels a day.

Dixon Creek-Sneed No. 4 is being cleaned after a straightening job.

No work has been done towards building rigs for Nos. 2 and 3, which so far are only locations.

Reports are that the Devonian No. 1 Sneed rig will be skidded over some distance and a new hole started. Two sets of tools have been lost in this hole, which is down past 3,100 feet.

It is understood that rig building for locations 3 and 3 in Moore county, all on the same survey, will be started as soon as the company is satisfied that No. 1 is a good producer and that No. 4 is also in the same class.

No. 1 is 40 feet above sea level at 3315 feet. It is the first of the Dixon creek tests to come in with good production.

COURT ORDER STOPS TAXES

Panhandle Co. Wins Temporary Injunction

Collection of county and school taxes on all the Young county leases of the Panhandle Refining company is stopped by the terms of a temporary injunction granted Thursday afternoon by Judge Allan D. Montgomery in the 30th district court. A hearing on the merits of the case was set for Wednesday, Feb. 6, in Archer City, where the 30th court will hold its next term.

By the terms of its petition, the company alleges that the county's valuation of $794,260 is excessive, especially as it applies to the Ed N. McCluskey lease. The leases, numbering between 40 and 50, should be valued at $202,230, according to the company figures.

The chief contest centers around the 147 acres of the McCluskey lease, which the county has assessed at $759,600, as against the company figures of $167,570. The petition declares that the valuation is excessive in that the county's figures are based on an erroneous assumption of oil production. The situation of that lease is peculiar, the papers explain, asserting that certain wells were valued at the hight of production which immediately dropped to much lower figures.

The company is to be represented in its suit by R. C. Stanford, company attorney.

Texas Co. Buys Burk Refinery

Another absorption plant was added to the Texas company's chain of gasoline plants in Texas by the purchase of the Omar Gasoline company's refinery on the A. Michna farm in the old Burkburnett-northwest field in Wichita county, for a cash price of $360,000.

The plant, which is one of the best equipped in the district, has a daily capacity of 13,000 gallons of gasoline, taking gas from the wells on the adjacent leases, and the old receivership area.

The new owners of the property will assume charge of the plant operations today and no plans as to the future improvements have been announced.

BUYING WAVE AIDS REFINERS

Central Valley Area Shows Better Demand

Special to The Record News

TULSA, Okla., Jan. 31.—Oklahoma refiners reported an unusual wave of buying from jobbers over the Central Mississippi Valley states, who realize that spot refinery prices are at rock-botton levels. Many refiners had discounted the crude cut before it occurred and their spot range of prices for U. S. motor grade continues at 7 to 8 cents, with the average sales at 7¼ to 7⅜ cents. Minimum sales at Chicago were 7 cents.

The 60-62, 400 endpoint, grade of gasoline is at 7⅜ cents, and the 64-66, 375 endpoint grade, at 8⅞ cents.

The 41-53, water white, grade of kerosene is quoted at 5 to 5⅛ cents, against 5⅜ to 5½ cents on January 1. Fuel oil is firm at around 65 to 70 cents a barrel.

Sales managers report bright stocks steady and advancing, and cylinder stocks strong and in good demand.

While the Standard Oil Company of Nebraska tankwagon and service station reduction of one cent a gallon is plainly understood, many refiners are still seeking an analysis of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio's change. Its tankwagon price was advanced one cent a gallon, making a new price of 17 cents with the high test at 20 cents. The service station price was unchanged at 19 and 22 cents. Dealers previously had been allowed a differential of 3 cents, and this is now cut to 2 cents.

Late Oklahoma Field Reports

TULSA.—Gypsy Oil company has 3,000 feet of sulphur water in the hole from Wilcox sand topped at 4,385 and penetrated to 4,395 feet on a test south of Little River pool. The failure is No. 1 Corad in the southwest corner of the southwest of 27-7-6. It is shut down for orders.

Barnsdall Oil and Gas company brought in a 70,000,000-cubic foot gas well with 1,300 pounds rock pressure in south Little River test No. 1 Barlus in 26-7-6. Sand was penetrated from 3,146 to 3,158 feet, where they are shut down.

In the Knox gas field, southwest of Chickasha, the Oklahoma Gas Utilities company has 37,000,000 cubic feet of gas in sand series penetrated to 2,400 feet in No. 1 School Land in the northwest of the south west of the northwest of 36-5n-8w, Grady county.

Maud pool late Wednesday reported its first big gasser, while salt water showings and very small oil production constituted the remainder of the day's news from that flush sector.

Gypsy Oil company's No. 3 Bourassa, in 7-8-5, picked up 48,000,000 cubic gas with 1,455 rock pressure in the Misner sand, which had been penetrated from 4,047 to 4,049 feet.

Three new producers were added to Greater Seminole field in the 24-hour period ending at 7 a. m. today, and the big field gauged 297,747 barrels from 1,346 wells. This was a new high peak for the year.

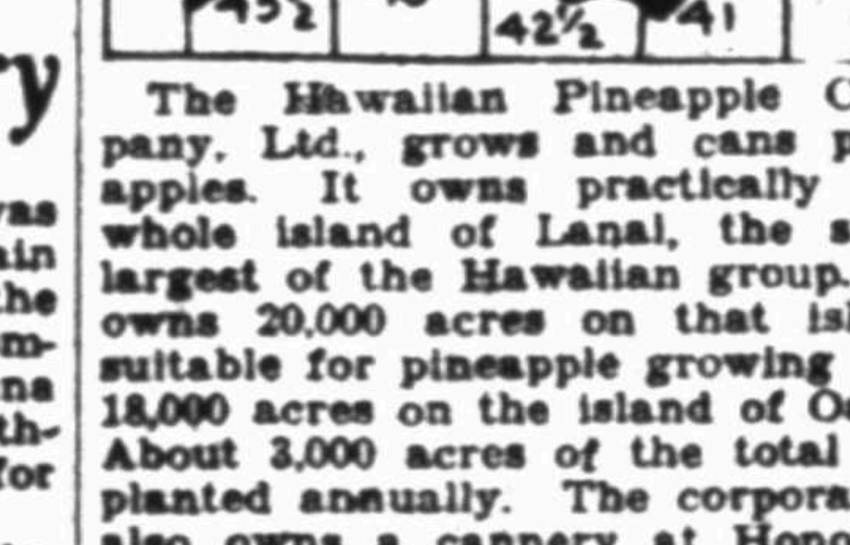

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Ray M. Collins, umpire of the Seminole field and special agent of the corporation commission, has declared that the general oil situation looks much more favorable to him than at any previous time.

In the south Oklahoma City field Ramsey Petroleum corporation found its second showing of gas in sand at its No. 1 Fortson, in the center of the southwest of the northeast of 24-11-3w last night. Broken sand was encountered at 4,030-53 feet. Drillers were reaming down today preparing to core a head and test the sand.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK Jan. 31. (AP)—After declining early under further liquidation, the cotton market rallied today on trade buying and covering. May, which sold off to 19.62 under early pressure, advanced to 19.80 and closed at 19.79. The general market closed firm at net advances of 8 to 17 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 to 4 points in response to steadier showing of Liverpool and the market for Egyptian cotton at Alexandria. The initial advance met a renewal of liquidation from Wall street, southern and local sources which soon turned prices easier. Notwithstanding Liverpool's showing, apprehension of labor troubles in Lancashire may have increased the disposition of old longs to liquidate their holdings. There was also comment on reports of labor troubles in one of the textile sections of Germany.

Prices made new low ground for the present movement, selling off to 19.60 for March and 18.93 for new October contracts, or about 7 to 9 points net lower. Offerings, however, tapered off enough to suggest that liquidation had pretty well run its course around these figures. There also appeared to be more trade demand. This started some covering by recent sellers, and the market was firmed during the afternoon. March sold up to 19.78 and the new October contracts to 19.17 in the late trading. Closing prices were within a point or two of the best.

The afternoon rally was accompanied by talk of a firmer technical position as result of the recent liquidation. Part of the buying was believed to represent expectations of a reaction from the decline of about 80 points from the high prices touched during the middle of the month. New crop months on which prices had been easy yesterday, were relatively steady today. May sold about 63 points over the new October contract at the close, compared with a difference of 71 points at the close of yesterday.

Liverpool cables reported continental buying with trade calling and covering in the market there. The market for Egyptian cotton futures in Alexandria was about 5 to 18 points net higher. Exports for the day were 61,761 and 5,623,729 for the season. Port receipts 38,409. U. S. port stocks 2,252,301.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 31. (AP)—Good trade buying and price fixing which started covering by shorts was responsible for a recovery of over $1 a bale from an early decline in the cotton market today. Reports of labor trouble in Berlin and talk of mill curtailment caused May contracts to ease off to 18.98, but the subsequent rally carried the option to 19.18 and it closed at 19.17, net 9 points up. The general market closed steady at net declines of 8 to 10 points.

Liverpool cables were higher than due at the start here, and first trades showed advances of 2 to 4 points. Prices improved a little further after the start until active positions showed net gains of 2 to 5 points, but the slight bulge attracted selling which became general when a cable was received from Berlin, Germany, stating that 350,000 mill workers faced a lockout as a result of labor disputes.

Before the offerings were checked March sold down to 18.94, and May and July to 18.98, or 11 to 15 points down from the early highs and 9 to 10 points under the previous close. A good trade demand developed on the scale down and there was evidence of price fixing which induced covering and by midafternoon all the early loss was recovered.

The highs of the day were made in final trading when March sold at 19.15, May 19.19 and July 19.17, or 19 to 21 points above the lows. Final prices were at or near the top.

Stocks Quiver in Spirited Rally As Money Situation Is Relieved

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. (US)—Spirited rally occurred in the stock market today as money conditions eased slightly. While the official call rate held at 7 per cent throughout, funds poured in to an amount that effected lowering of the rate outside. Short covering resulted that was added to by new buying of individual stocks because of special developments, and as a result all groups closed higher.

Carbide gained 7 points, Allied Chemical 6, Kennecott 6⅜, Cash Register 4⅛, and Wright Aero 6. General Motors and Steel recovered over 2 points each while other active industrials gained from 1 to 3 points.

There was more aggressive demand throughout the rail list that put Central up 4, Canadian Pacific 5½, with others gaining from 1 to 2 points. Oils joined in the recovery but in a rather laggardly manner, meeting continued liquidation. Volume of trading increased to 4,600,000 shares.

Renewed strength in Great Northern Ore resulted from knowledge of pending developments which mean better things for stockholders. Within a day or two, it is expected announcement will be made of closing of leases for large acreage on the Mesaba range. Holdings acquired are placed at close to 50,000 acres. The property is so situated as to permit of most economical shipment both by rail and to the lake ports. Even without the return from the additional property, the income of Great Northern is such as to permit of a larger dividend so that at least $1.25 a share payment is expected next month. This will mean that at the least $2 a share will be paid the last half of the year and it is possible that an even larger distribution will be made.

Steel in Demand

Bethlehem Steel enjoyed renewed demand by reason of expectation that the current quarter will show record earnings for this period. Interests who issued a special study of U. S. Steel just before that stock jumped 10 days or so ago have concluded a similar analysis of Bethlehem outlining its favorable earnings and prospects for even higher payments. There was resumed buying of Real Silk by insiders due to expectation of further increase in earnings. Electric Autolite continued to be favored coincident with rumor that the shares would be split up again. Coppers were helped by likelihood of another one-quarter of a cent advance in the price of the metal. Activity in Loew resulted from report that Warner had outbid Fox for control.

Rail Shares Improve

Improvement shown in car loading figures and the expectation of important merger developments were responsible for the better demand for the rail shares. Car loading figures are sufficiently above those of a year ago to indicate satisfactory earnings statements from leading carriers for the next several months. Private advices told of meeting at Baltimore of Baltimore & Ohio and Reading railways interests looking to a combine that would take in Western Maryland and possibly the Wabash. The theory was advanced that, after the admonition to the commerce commission from the administration a fortnight ago, the railroad leaders were preparing to take the bull by the horns and try to hasten more favorable treatment from the commission.

Money Easier

Maintenance of the rediscount rate at five per cent and the satisfactory showing in the reserve statements should offset in part the further increase in brokers loans of $116,000,000. There was quite a little worry early in the week that the rediscount rate might be raised. However, the cables advices that no change was made in the Bank of England rate caused relief which was augmented as money conditions eased, and borkers were able to get loans below the official rate. Easing in the call money market was looked on as marking the close of the month-end period of tightness so that lower call rates were forecast for next week.

TEXAS LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Jan. 31. (AP)—Trading in most classes of cattle and calves here displayed a little more life during today's session. Hogs a little lower and sheep steady.

Trading in slaughter steers fairly active, with a clearance made well before the noon hour. Sales ranged from $9.25 for lightweight common cattle to $11.50 for big steers that weighed over 1,300 pounds. Values fully steady.

The supply of bulls was light with a fair demand at steady values for all kinds. The better heavy bulls sold around $8.00, while common, light bulls sold around $6.25.

A few cars of slaughter yearlings on the heavy calf order included in the day's trading and sold about steady with the week's decline for this class. Some of the better ones sold around $11.00, while the common packages old around $7.50.

Cows fairly active, with sales appearing 15c to a quarter higher on the better kind of cows that have found lower values during most days of the week. The supply was light, with some of the best in car lots due to sell around $8.25, which canners and cutters sold readily at $4.50 to $5.75.

The calf supply was very light and generally lacking in quality. Buyers paid steady values for the day's receipts, with some of the cars more on the order of light yearlings and due to sell a little above the $11.00 mark. The bulk of the cull calves sold around $6.00.

Trade in stocker classes of cattle at steady values, with a light supply on hand. One load of good stocker cows sold at $9.00.

The sheep supply light, and moved at steady values, with wooled feeder lambs at $14.00 and shorn feeder lambs at $12.00, and shorn fat wethers at $9.50.

Hogs at Fort Worth followed the decline on northern markets and sold 5c to 15c lower, best rail hogs selling at $9.30, and the truck top at $8.65. Bulk 175 to 250-pound butchers at $8.35@9.30, and packing sows sold at $7.50@8.00.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 31. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—Fat lambs met a fairly broad demand and values were strong to 25c higher at most markets. Choice fed lots scored $17.25 at Chicago for the day's top. Mature classes were on a mostly steady basis although prices at Kansas City were around 25c higher with fat ewes selling up to $10 at that point. Supplies totaled 31,500 against 33,456 last Thursday and 39,474 a year ago.

Fed steers and yearlings sold on a mostly weak to 25c lower basis as a rule, although Chicago reported some strength of the better grades of light steers and yearlings. No strictly choice grades were offered and the bulk of the short feds cleared from $11@13. Fat she stock held about steady and the limited supply of stockers and feeders was taken at steady to weak prices. Lower prices of fat steers and disagreeable weather has curtailed the country demand to a minimum. Shipments this week were less than half that of the previous week. Total arrivals were 22,450 as compared with 21,668 a week ago, and 29,129 a year ago.

Hog prices were slightly lower at most markets against yesterday's average, but some strength was noted on closing rounds. The day's top rested at $9.75 at St. Louis on choice light weight selections. Offerings at the 11 markets totalled 128,700 against 123,886 a week ago, and 153,569 a year ago.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. (AP)—Crop scare buying made wheat values jump today, but predictions of comparative warmth tomorrow forced profit-taking that more than wiped price gains out. Earlier, the chief factor was fear that extensive damage to winter wheat would result from severe low temperatures and unprotected fields, especially in Nebraska.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅜c to ⅜@⅝c off, oats ¼c to ⅜c down, and provisions varying from 5c setback to an equal advance.

Highest prices of the day in wheat came at the outset, and the lowest were at the close. Nebraska advices received during the opening transactions told of 15-below-zero temperatures and of entire absence of snow in numerous places. All over the state the crop outlook was described as very unpromising, and there was word also of frigid conditions in Kansas and Missouri, with a new cold wave looked for tonight throughout Illinois and Indiana.

Argentine advices of widespread rain had a weakening effect on the corn market, although drought damage to part of the Argentine corn crop was reported as beyond repair. Current estimates today put the Argentine exportable corn surplus this season at 100,000,000 bushels less than that of last season. Oats were unsettled, but averaged lower with corn and wheat.

Packers' selling and downturns in hog values tended to ease down the previous market.

TERRACE WORK GIVEN START

Farmers Improving Land, Planting New Crops

Terracing of farm lands for the better conservation of moisture and plant food is to be given a real start in Wichita county this year with work already begun on preparation of several tracts northeast of Electra under the direction of G. G. McGown, county farm agent and demonstrator.

Approximately 250 acres of land belonging to Marchman and Schlaffke of Electra, adjacent to China creek about 10 miles from Electra, is now being terraced, and other tracts totalling about 500 acres in the same vicinity will be prepared before planting time, it was reported.

Terracing of sloping ground not only retains a great amount of moisture which otherwise would be lost before being utilized by growing crops but also prevents the escape of much potential plant nutrition which is washed away with unrestricted drainage following heavy rainfall, according to Mr McGown.

A general increase in the number of farmers who keep a considerable number of cows and chickens, and who develop truck gardens, has been noted in the county, it was said. A larger production of row crops for feed is anticipated this year than has been grown previously in the county.

Plans are now being completed for at least one calf club, financing of the project having been arranged this week. Approximately 10 boys, chosen from rural schools, will purchase Jersey heifers to be carefully selected for them, and assume the care of the animals with the agreed intent of developing additional dairy stock.

TWO FILE FOR CITY COUNCIL

Daniel and Spoonts Out For Board of Aldermen

Two new petitions for candidacy to the city council were filed at the office of W. E. McBroom, city clerk, Thursday, and the petition of R. O. Harvey, filed Wednesday for place two was withdrawn to allow the circulation of a new petition for him for place three.

The new petitions were those of Roy Daniel for place three and J. M. Spoonts for place two. Leon L. Deaton, who now is filling an interim appointment in the council, said he would not seek reelection when his term expires in April.

The withdrawal of Mr. Harvey was made by J. L. Randall, circulator, and a new petition was made out for Mr. Harvey for place three, now occupied by Alderman Roy Carter. The change was made in the office of W. E. McBroom, city clerk, with the explanation that the original Harvey petition should have read that Mr. Harvey's place was number three instead of number two.

Under the law a new petition must be circulated and signed with the correct place designated on the petition.

In speaking Thursday of his intention of retiring from office as soon as his short term is ended in April, Mr. Deaton said:

"In order to clarify the local situation and in view of the fact that I have no personal, political ambitions to satisfy, I consider it desirable at this time to make the following statement:

"Our city council has appointed me to fill out the unexpired term of Alderman A. W. King, resigned, which honor I greatly appreciate and I shall give the very best service of which I am capable to my city in filling out this unexpired term.

"There seems to be more or less speculation as to my intentions, hence this statement.

"I am reliably informed that three of our most mature and substantial business men, namely, C. E. McCutchen, R. O. Harvey and J. M. Spoonts, are going to be candidates for the three places to be filled in our city council next April. It is certain that these men are not politicians and in agreeing to offer their services for these important positions, they are doing so in an effort to forward the best interest of this city under the city manager form of government. If these gentlemen should be candidates, I here and now pledge them my hearty support and I will not be a candidate myself. It is my desire to assist in keeping our local city government out of politics so far as it is possible."

Shooting of Wood Up to Grand Jury

Circumstances surrounding the death of Clifford E. Wood, fatally shot here two weeks ago, will be laid before the 30th district grand jury in its final session before adjournment Friday. O. C. Heither, charged with murder in connection with the shooting, is at liberty under $3,500 bond.

Indictments are to be asked in connection with two recent whisky raids in Electra by members of the sheriff's department.

The grand jury, impaneled Jan. 2, will be dismissed by Judge Allan Montgomery after its final report Friday.

Retired Minister Talks

"In a Short Time Orgatone Has Built Me Up. I've Suffered Twenty Years," Says Wichita Man

"I've suffered twenty years and Orgatone has built me up in a short while," said R. E. Helms, of 300 Polk street, a retired minister, while talking with the Orgatone representative, recently.

"I had a severe case of stomach trouble and everything I ate would sour on my stomach, and I would belch up hot water. Gas formed on my stomach and bothered my heart, which would beat so fast at times, I thought it would run away with me. I had to take soda all the time, and never had any appetite for I was afraid to eat. I was bilious and dizzy all the time, and was very nervous. I never got very much sleep for I just couldn't seem to rest. I was in a very run-down condition and kept going down hill, every day. My system was getting worse every day and I realized that something must be done, but everything I ate, didn't seem to do me any good.

"I was reading the paper one day and noticed a stomach preparation, Orgatone. I got a bottle and have commenced to get better ever since. I simply feel better and stronger than I have in twenty years. My indigestion is better and I eat anything I want, without it hurting me. I do not have any more of those dizzy spells and my nervousness has all gone. The gas does not form on my stomach any more, and I feel better than I have in years. I am glad to endorse Orgatone, for it is the best stomach medicine I ever heard of, or have ever taken. Anyone who will take it will soon learn of its value."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison's Drug Store, 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. Out-of-town customers are being supplied promptly by mail upon receipt of price, one bottle $1.25 or six bottles for $6.25—Adv.

STRAND: Dorothy Mackaill and Milton Sills in "The Barker." Three vitaphone vaudeville shorts. Pathe news.
OLYMPIC: Tom Lewis and company in musical comedy. On the screen: "The Leather Neck." Fox news. Comedy.

GEM: "The White Outlaw." Serial. Comedy.

Reginald Denny in "The Night Bird" at the Majestic theater

◇ ◇ ◇

Friday is the last day of the interstate vaudeville at the Majestic theater.

◇ ◇ ◇

Likewise, Saturday is the last day of Milton Sills in "The Barker" at the Strand Theater. This is a part-time talkie, and has aroused considerable interest. It is also the best sound picture which the First National company has released so far.

◇ ◇ ◇

William Boyd's picture, "The Leatherneck," is at the Olympic theater Friday and Saturday. It is one of the most successful William Boyd pictures, from the box office point of view, that the country has seen. That means the folks have liked it. As it is an added attraction to the Tom Lewis musical comedy show at the Olympic, it should be well attended.

Majestic Bill Is Cure for Anything

By The Record News Critic

The current vaudeville bill at the Majestic theater is a cure-all. It's good for the blues, that tired feeling peculiar to business men, and for the mind.

Koran, the crystal seer supreme, headlines the program and rightly so. He answers perplexing questions of would-be divorces, worried parents, ambitious youths, weak hearted lovers and others with such accuracy and speed that the ordinary matinee fan is astounded.

Then there is Jack Pepper. That boy is all his name implies and he is another "singing fool," who calls Dallas home. Two goofs, or something, add clever slapstick to Jack's act.

Clifford and Marion are seen in a few minutes of hilarious dumbness aptly calculated to make the most snaguine laugh right out loud Swift Sisters and Scott are showing a lot of speed in songs and dances. Serge Flash, the king of rubber ball manipulators, does some unbelievable things with the pretty bouncing spheres and yesterday he was rewarded with as much applause as anybody received, which was plenty.

Fire Prevented By Chilled Pedestrian

A man, clapping his hands together to keep them from freezing, probably saved the Pond laundry, Sixth and Ohio, from burning Thursday night when his eye saw a flame inside of the laundry. He turned in an alarm and the fire was quickly extinguished by the firemen with a loss of about $100.

The man said he had been walking along Ohio street toward the business district and felt half frozen. "Anything that looked warm would attract my eye as I was hurrying home," he said. "Just as I came up even with the laundry I saw the blaze inside. At the same time a man in a garage across the street saw it and ran for one phone as I ran for another."

SCOUT LEADER HERE

John Campbell, deputy regional executive of the Boy Scouts of America, spent Wednesday and Thursday in Wichita Falls and vicinity in the interest of Wichita Falls area activities.

Scout organizations in Burkburnett were visited by Mr. Campbell Thursday. He will spend Friday in Electra and Vernon, and on Saturday will be in Graham.

ing the car had not been driven after the closing hour Thursday. Ten per cent delinquent penalties will be written on all county and state taxes still to be paid.

Mr Raley said Thursday night that the crowd had been bigger than any since 1925, but that it had been easily handled except for a few days due to property left off the tax rolls. The waiting lines were steady but not cumbersome and the crowds were at all times orderly, he said.

$30C,000 Deposited

Guarded by members of the sheriff's department and city police, Mr. Raley and his deputies Thursday night transferred around $300,000 to the vaults in the City National bank. Between $30,000 and $50,000 of the amount was in cash.

The money, placed in canvas bags and carried by Mr. Raley and Roy A. Jones, chief deputy, was rushed from the side entrance of the courthouse into Sheriff W. G. Bralley's car. Charles R. Parker, deputy in charge of automobile registration, accompanied the group.

Led by a car bearing officers and followed by a similar guard, the official car drove to the back entrance to the bank, and the money was put inside the vaults within less than five minutes from the time it left the collector's safe.

While Sheriff Bralley and Lesley Humphries, specially employed guard, guarded the office itself, Deputy Sheriffs Charlie Gant and George Garrett helped escort the money. S. O. Ham, state highway officer, drove the sheriff's car. Ellis Sommers, W. W. Belcher, Ralph Rohatch and John Lowery of the city police were the other members of the guard.

Guards Eat Snacks

Mr. Raley said Thursday night that the office had handled more money during the day than at any time during his term of office. The crowd came steadily to the windows all through the day and up until a late hour Thursday night.

Deputies in the collector's office took no time off for meals Thursday, but ate picnic fashion in the back office at slack moments. Both the automobile license window and the poll tax windows remained open for business constantly from 7 a. m. until midnight.
