Weekend update

Parole Info For Juries

AUSTIN (AP) — The House passed a bill Friday that would let judges tell juries the effect of parole and good-time laws on the sentences they impose.

The measure, part of Gov. Bill Clements' anti-crime package, was sent to the Senate on a voice vote after gaining initial approval Thursday, 88-38.

Under present law, juries may not be informed of the actual time a defendant might spend behind bars before becoming eligible for parole.

Clements contends this results in sentences that are shorter than a jury really intended.

Minority Bill Defeated

AUSTIN(AP) — The House defeated a bill Friday, 78-62, that would have required state and local governments to set aside 10 percent of their construction contracts for bidding by minority businesses.

Representatives had tentatively approved the bill, by Rep. Lou Nelle Sutton, D-San Antonio, on voice vote Thursday.

Some observers believed it was Mrs. Sutton's insistence on a record vote that defeated the bill.

The bill defined minority businesses as those with at least 50 percent of their ownership held by women, blacks, Mexican-Americans, orientals or American Indians.

Sieze 4 Tons Marijuana

AUSTIN (AP) — An abandoned 18-wheel tractor-trailer rig that smelled of rotting onions put Texas Department of Public Safety investigators on the scent of a major shipment of marijuana, a DPS spokesman says.

The tractor-trailer, which contained more than four tons of high-grade marijuana hidden beneath sacks of rotting onions, was seized by DPS officers Friday on Interstate 35 between San Marcos and Kyle, a DPS spokesman said.

DPS narcotics officers estimated the value of the marijuana at $300 a pound, or $2.47 million, said spokesman Larry Todd.

The truck was seized several hours after DPS officers placed it under surveillance. No one was seen in or near the rig, according to Todd.

Our neighbors over at Big Spring are in the midst of a centennial celebration.

It seems only yesterday that the entire country was celebrating the nation's bicentennial and Scurry County was celebrating a centennial.

These events continue to attract attention, however, and they usually are excellent vehicles for unifying communities and stimulating cooperation in planning and execution of big celebrations.

The current celebration in Big Spring quickly caught our attention because we were involved in a centennial celebration there more than 30 years ago. It was the 100th anniversary of Capt. Marcy's stop at "the big spring." Marcy made his journey through this area in 1849, and on the same trip, he came into Scurry County. Thereafter, the big spring from which the county seat of Howard County got its name became famous as a watering place for those heading west, or returning therefrom.

You never know what will motivate a bunch of legislators. The Texas variety apparently caught most people off guard when they voted to eliminate annual automobile safety inspections. Usually, when action of this type takes place, it is in response to public sentiment that has been forcefully expressed. In this instance, however, reaction by the public appears to have run counter to the thinking of the legislators. Hasty surveys of motorists in big cities failed to turn up people who were opposed to the auto inspections. In fact, many were reported to think they wee a good idea as a safety measure.

There is no way to determine how effective the auto inspections are in the prevention of traffic accidents, but it stands to reason that they keep some vehicles with unsafe equipment off the roads and streets.

Frankly, we thought someone was kidding when we heard the first reports that the proposal to elminate the inspections had got a favorable vote.

385 Hostages In Spain...

Gunmen Threaten To Kill Bank Employees

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Heavily armed gunmen seized the Central Bank of Barcelona today about 10 minutes after it opened, and threatened to kill one of their estimated 385 hostage bank employees each hour unless rightist military men jailed after an attempted coup were freed, authorities reported.

A newspaper in Barcelona, Spain's second biggest city 300 miles northeast of Madrid, reported finding a note purportedly from the gunmen demanding a plane to fly the jailed coup leaders to Argentina within 72 hours. The paper quoted the note, found after it received an anonymous telephone tip, as saying the assault was "to finish Red terror."

In Madrid, the Interior Ministry said the gunmen, believed to number 20 to 25, were right-wing extremists, but did not identify them with an organized group.

Defense lawyers for the 45 military men awaiting courts martial in the coup attempt — exactly three months ago today — called the gunmen's purported demand absurd and said they had doubts "about the (gunmen's) real goals."

Premier Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo called his security council into emergency session in Madrid and rushed a special police anti-terrorist force to Barcelona by plane.

The gunmen threatened to shoot one hostage an hour until their demands are met, police said. Newspapers here said the note said the killings would start within 24 hours.

Police quoted witnesses who saw the assault as saying the gunmen carried automatic weapons, pistols and submachine guns when they walked into the four-story, granite bank building at the top of Barcelona's Catalan Square about 10 minutes after it opened at 9 a.m. (3 a.m. EDT).

Later, police reports said the gunmen also carried dynamite and mined some of the bank's windows.

Bank officials said about 400 employees were in the bank, starting the normal Saturday working day, when the gunmen entered. Police said one of the employees was shot in the leg as the gunmen rounded up hostages.

The gunmen released about 15 hostages soon after taking control of the bank and ordering everyone to the main floor. Police said those released were suffering from nervous shock. They left in ambulances without talking to reporters kept behind police lines.

Cross Country Bicyclers Enjoy Snyder Stopover

Five more men have elected to stop in Snyder while going across country on bicycles. These are heading toward California from Savanna, Georgia and have so far covered 1,480 miles on their bikes in three weeks time.

Daniel Wine, his father Ned, Jimmy Faile, Phil Lewis and Scott Young are on an evangelizing tour. "The bikes are attention getters," Daniel said. People see the bikes and they're interested and that gives the men a chance to witness "one on one, and preach the gospel."

The men are with Southeastern College of Assembly's of God and are called "Spirit Riders '81." Daniel said the first free spirit tour was in 1976 when a group traveled from Florida to Calif. The next was the following year in Europe and next was a tour across the northern section of the country in 1978.

"Our mission has a purpose," Daniel said. That mission, of course, is to share and witness their relationship with God in hopes of leading people to the Lord.

Daniel added that he was totally transformed when he was saved and that he had previously been into drugs quite heavily. Since he was saved, he said he has had no more desire for such things. "The Lord sets you free and gives you a reason for living." He said he was saved at a youth camp when he was 21. That was in 1976.

So far, the group's journey has been a good one. They said the people they had met on the road have been "some of God's finest people." At a small town in Naples, they were camped by a country store when the proprietor came out and told them rain was expected so his wife had sent him out to bring in the biking group.

The couple fed the men and gave them a place to sleep for the night. "That's been what the whole trip has been like," said Daniel.

The only bad things that have happened are the usual: 15 flat tires and assorted bike problems requiring repairs.

The men are scheduled to speak at Bethel Assembly of God Church at 1411 25th St. Sunday morning (May 24) at 11 and in the evening at 6. They said they will put on a skit then talk about their experiences. The group plans to leave Snyder Monday morning.

Prisons Quiet After Rioting

By The Associated Press

Michigan prisoners who thought they were going to miss holiday meals and recreation time because of an unauthorized "lockdown" set off a riot that spread to a reformatory 100 miles away, injuring a total of 42 inmates, prison officials say.

Fires burned inside the Southern Michigan Prison in Jackson, the world's largest walled prison, and the Michigan Reformatory in Ionia before both riots were quelled early today.

Meanwhile, in Nevada, three Maximum Security Prison guards held hostage for 10 hours were released unharmed as a special weapons team stormed a cell block and pushed 23 inmates back into their cells.

Officials said all 5,600 inmates at the prison in Jackson were behind bars after the 14-hour disturbance Friday by 800 prisoners.

Authorities said the inmates had heard the guards were planning to go on strike to protest staff shortages. The guards' union denied that, saying only that guards planned to lock prisoners in their cells to make an unauthorized search for weapons.

Platoons of guards and state police that swept through the 500-inmate Michigan Reformatory had forced all the inmates there back to their cells today.

Ionia Warden Dale Foltz said officials believed the riot at Ionia was sparked by news of the Jackson uprising.

"I suspect the Jackson Prison uprising had influenced the youthful offenders in here, that that would be the way to go,"

Dormitory Expansion Meeting Set

Scurry County Junior College District Trustees have scheduled a special meeting Tuesday to discuss dormitory expansion plans.

The meeting is set for 4 p. m. in the Western Texas College administration building.

Bids on an addition to existing dormitory facilities were opened last Tuesday and they came in considerably higher then expected. The board will get its first look at the figures and some possible alternatives at the meeting Tuesday.

Monday Is Holiday For Some Offices

Monday will be a holiday for some Snyder area residents, but in many cases it will be another business day.

Government agencies will observe the holiday, along with banks and savings and loan firms.

Offices at Western Texas College and the Scurry County Museum will be closed for the holiday, as will the Snyder Chamber of Commerce office.

Some retail business firms plan to close, but a number of them will be open as usual. Snyder Public Schools also will be in session as usual Monday.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8231 and its Ladies Auxiliary will hold their annual Memorial Day service at Hillside Memorial Gardens at 9 a. m. Monday.

The annual Memorial Day feed will also be held at the VFW Post home, with serving to begin at 5:30 p. m. Following the meal, the auxiliary will install its officers for the coming year. All veterans and their families are invited to all of the VFW activities and the general public is invited to the service at the cemetery.

SHS Drama Students To Perform UIL Play

Snyder High School Drama Department will put its 1981 one-act play, "The Royal Hunt Of the Sun" on display this Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the SHS auditorium.

The show, which has won a host of acting awards, commendations and accolades from critic judges all the way to the state meet, is the story of Pizarro and his destruction of the Inca Civilization in Peru.

Spectacular costumes, colorful and brutal battle scenes and sensitive relationships between men of different creeds, provide a rich background for this highly dramatic work by Peter Shaffer, one of England's best known playwrights.

Junior Jack O'Banion won best actor for his portrayal of Pizarro at zone, district, regional and state contests. Barry Tubb and Mark Robertson were also picked for all star cast honors at every level of competition. Others receiving recognition during the play's move toward the state finals inluded Randy Cook, Hunter Crawford and Joey Forbes.

The play, which marked the 11th appearance at the state meet for Snyder High School, has prompted a tremendous outpouring of correspondence and congratulatons from across the state.

Amber Walker, ex-SHS drama student and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Red Walker, directed this year's winning play from Georgetown. According to Lynn Murray, state drama director, this is the first time in UIL history that an ex student has come back to compete with her former teacher.

SHS Drama Director Jerry Worsham was pleased that his former pupil had done well. "If the judge did not seet fit to give the victory to Snyder, at least he granted it to a Snyder product, and that sort of keeps it all in the family."

State drama critic George Dorensen of Texas Tech University, who judged the plays, complimented the Snyder group: "Your shows have become 'the event' at the state meet...something that everyone looks forward to very much."

PUBLIC PERFORMANCE--SHS' state one-act play, "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," will be shown Monday and Tuesday on the SHS stage at 8 p.m. From left are Glen Parham, Becky Pierce, Barry Tubb and Jennifer Cole, appearing as Inca Indians. Tickets are $2 and will be available at the door.

Perfect Husbands For Rent In Dallas By Hour

DALLAS (AP) — Oh, for the perfect man. A husband who will paint your house, wash the windows, fix the car, and do all those other menial household chores with a smile.

For those who don't already have one, in Dallas they can rent two such men.

Don Cannaday and Robin Hill are Husbands by the Hour.

These two enterprising Dallas divorcees will do various odd jobs around the house — all without expecting dinner, a date or a lasting relationship in return.

Actually, Hill and Cannaday are no more than gloried handymen who've figured out a rather unique way to market their many talents.

"We just wanted a name people would remember," Cannaday said with a smile.

The two men charge $20 for the first hour, and $17.50 for each additional hour of work. They'll tackle most any chore, "but I won't do ovens," says 35-year-old Hill.

A little more than a year ago, the men were trading their skills to friends, in return for a good dinner "or a six-pack of beer." That's when someone suggested they could turn their hobbies into a livelihood.

"This woman, whose husband had died, told us that things that had been done for her before, weren't getting done now," 37-year-old Cannaday said.

"I thought about it on my way home and came up with the name," he added. "After we stopped laughing about it, we registered (the business) and suddenly began getting a lot of publicity."

Some ladies, however, were suspicious at first.

"This one woman called me up and quizzed me for quite awhile, telling me she wasn't interested in me and just wanted some work done," Cannaday said. "I agreed with her."

Hill left his job as a production manager to go into the business full-time. Cannaday, a salesman, squeezes in his "husband" work in his free time.

The jobs they are hired to do range from mundane — such as painting, carpentry and pruning trees — to bizarre.

"This one lady wanted us to fill five bullet holes in her ceiling," Cannaday said. "She put them there during an argument with two of her former husbands."

One woman hired Cannaday for an entire day to show her how to drive her new five-speed car.

About 90 percent of their customers are women, Hill said. But some couples, and a few men, call for help.

"Most of the time, though, men don't like to admit they can't do something," Cannaday said.

If a customer asks them to do a job they've never done, "we may run down to the hardware store, read the directions on the back of a box and then come back and try to do it," Cannaday said.

"But we won't accept jobs we know we really can't do," Hill added.

The two men say they don't want to remain laborers forever.

"We would eventually like to expand and become consultants. Maybe a service that lists companies or workers and refers our subscribers to them," Hill said.

Oral Confession Bill Is Advanced

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill allowing prosecutors to use defendants' oral statements as evidence against them has been changed in the House to require police to tell suspects when their words are being recorded.

The change could damage chances of passing an oral confessions bill because senators voted overwhelmingly against a similar amendment in April.

House members tentatively approved the bill Friday, with a final vote expected today.

Passage would send the bill back to the Senate for action on House amendments, including the notice requirement. If senators reject the changes, a House-Senate conference committee would try to reach a compromise before the Legislature adjourns June 1.

Gov. Bill Clements recommended the measure as part of his anti-crime program. Texas is the only state that requires confessions — with a few exceptions — to be in writing.

Rep. Ted Lyon, D-Dallas, won approval of the amendment requiring police to inform suspects when their statements are being videotaped or tape recorded.

"We are dealing with the rights of individuals. ... Did he (the suspect) know he really and truly was in a situation where he could go to prison when he said what he said?" Lyon said.

German Chancellor Likes Reagan Best

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who did not get along well with former President Carter, is finding the new occupant of the White House much more to his liking.

At a news conference late Friday, Schmidt was asked whether his discussions with President Reagan had been more satisfactory than those with Carter.

"It would not be polite to say yes," he replied, "but it wouldn't be honest to refuse that reply."

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said Friday that Schmidt found Reagan to be a "thoughtful man of deep conviction, a man who recognizes the essentiality of sound intimate relationships on a bilateral basis between Bonn and Washington."

The chancellor, Haig reported, was "100 percent satisfied" with the outcome of his first official visit to Washington since Reagan's inauguration.

At the conclusion of their meeting Friday, Reagan and Schmidt issued a joint statement in which they mixed harsh anti-Soviet rhetoric with pledges to maintain a dialogue with Moscow.

In 1769, Napoleon Bonaparte was born in Corsica, just off the south coast of France.

Attorney General Urges Passage...

Senate Delays Bilingual Bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bilingual education bill that Attorney General Mark White says is important to the state's appeal of a federal court order has been postponed in the Senate.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, a long-time advocate of bilingual programs for public school children, insisted on the delay Friday. He said he needed time to consider some "unacceptable" changes made in the bill.

Also on Friday, White sent Truan a letter urging him to "persevere in your efforts to pass a bilingual education bill."

"It is important, both for the education of our children and for the state's appeal of the recent court ruling in the bilingual education lawsuit that we have new legislation on the subject," White wrote.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice has ruled Texas must offer bilingual instruction by 1986 to all students who need it, through high school if necessary.

Truan was warned that postponement meant almost certain death for the bill.

"To postpone this until Monday would flat kill it," warned Sen. W.E "Pete" Snelson, D-Midland. "If you wait until Monday, no way you can get it through the House in time. You gain nothing by a postponement."

But Truan insisted on the delay.

"I can't live with the bill the way it is now," he said.

He had said after debate on the measure ended Thursday night that a change by Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, was "horrible" and would "gut the bill."

The amendment states that if a an elementary school student has not made enough progress in English after four consecutive years of bilingual education, he may be placed in "an alternative transitional language program, such as English as a second language."

Truan said that 96.5 percent of Texas students who are deficient in English speak Spanish.

Dallas Police Arrest Man In Bogus Check Scheme

DALLAS (AP) — A Hong Kong man who allegedly planned to bilk Texas jewelers out of nearly $1 million in precious metals and gemstones by paying for them with counterfeit cashier's checks has been arrested by Dallas police for investigation of forgery.

The 28-year-old man also is accused of using counterfeit checks to rob jewelers in New York and California of millions of dollars of merchandise and is wanted in both states on felony theft charges, Dallas officials said.

Police arrested the man at a downtown parking lot Friday after several Dallas jewelers became suspicious of his proposed purchase of $250,000 in merchandise, said Sgt. Jerry Tolbert of the Dallas Police Department special investigations section.

Tolbert said the suspect had arranged to purchase another $650,000 in goods from jewelers in Houston when he was arrested.

Tolbert said the man faces four felony charges in New York including grand theft, forgery, possession of a forged instrument and possession of stolen property. He said the man is accused of obtaining $250,000 in jewelry through the use of bogus cashier's checks in New York.

San Francisco authorities have set the suspect's bond there at $300,000 on a charge of grand theft. He is accused of obtaining between $800,000 and $1 million in jewels and jewelry from bay-area shop owners, Dallas authorities said.

San Francisco authorities could not immediately confirm the charges, however.

Police seized a printing device and a check writing machine when they arrested him, Tolbert said.

The purchaser always arranged to pay for the items on holidays or weekends, when his cashier's checks couldn't be verified with the financial institution that supposedly issued them, police said.

Senior Center Banquet Tuesday

Even though Monday is Memorial Day and will be a holiday for many Snyder institutions, the Senior Center will be open.

The annual recognition banquet will be held in the Center Tuesday evening. It is planned to honor all those who volunteer their services to the Center in many ways, Gloria Shaw, director, said. No noon meal will be served on Tuesday because of preparations for the banquet. Advance reservations were required for the banquet because of the seating limitations.

On Thursday, Senior Citizens will hear an 11:30 a.m. program on nutrition with poetry.

Daily activities in the Center include an exercise class from 11:15-11-30 a.m. and games. Ceramics classes are directed by Jean Smith on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Quilters work all day on Mondays and Thursdays and at other times as well. There are square dances on Monday evenings and round dance classes on Tuesday evenings, and an evening recreation period featuring table games from 6-8:30 each Thursday evening.

County residents 60 years of age and older are invited to participate in the Center's programs and are invited to visit the Center any weekday. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Longhorns Reach Finals In Regional Playoffs

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas, bidding for a record 21st appearance in the College World Series, and Lamar, seeking its first trip to the Omaha, Neb., tournament, were to match 1-0 NCAA Central Regional baseball records Saturday night.

The Longhorns, No. 5 in college baseball, trounced Brigham Young, 11-4, Friday night after Lamar - a Beaumont, Texas, team loaded with New Yorkers and Kentuckians - had edged Stanford, 6-5.

Texas, however, used top pitcher Tony Arnold, 16-0, in beating Brigham Young.

Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson, whose 1975 team won the CWS, said Lamar has its "best pitcher going Saturday night (Mack). He threw a one-hitter against us earlier this year, so it won't be easy."

Texas, a three-time national baseball champion, surged to a 6-0 first inning lead on six hits - four of which never left the infield - a walk, stolen base and wild pitch.

The Longhorns scored three runs in the eighth to clinch the game, with shortstop Spike Owen's bunt, his third infield hit of the game, the key play. Mike Zatopek also had three hits, including a triple, for Texas.

Brigham Young ripped Arnold for 10 hits, including two each by Kenny Clayton, Wally Joyner, Scott Pugmire and Ralph Baldenegro, but Brigham Young Coach Gary Pullins said, "They (Texas) played great defense behind him and made some great plays when Arnold needed them."

Indy Pole Important

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Does it really matter where a driver starts the Indianapolis 500? Does a front-row start provide that much of an advantage in an automobile race that lasts 500 miles and takes more than three hours to run?

Historically, yes.

The pole-position starter has won 11 of the previous 64 runnings of the world's richest automobile race, and the car starting from the second spot on the front row has carried the winner 10 times.

The next-best starting spots for eventual Indy winners have been the outside of the front row and the inside of the third row, with six victories apiece. No other starting position has had more than four winners.

METAL WATER PIPES

Water that has stood for hours in copper, lead or steel pipes may be high in dissolved metal and can be harmful to health. Lead poisoning is a special danger. In the morning, run off a quantity of water standing in metal pipes before drawing water for drinking and cooking. Draw cold water, as hot water dissolves more contaminating metals from pipes and tanks.

Dear Abby

Wife's Lover a Skyrocket; Her Husband's a Dud

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have been married (in name only) for five years. I was a lonely divorcee (age 47) and John was a well-to-do widower (60) when we were married.

The first night we were married I found out he was impotent. I know it's not his fault, but he should have told me. (He later said he was afraid he'd lose me.)

We had everything a happily married couple could want — a lovely home, friends, trips. I can't say I wasn't living a good life, although I missed the physical side of marriage some.

Now I have met a wonderful man. He is my age (52) and it was skyrockets and Roman candles the first time we were alone together. We're in love and want to get married, but hate to hurt John.

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: If you want to justify leaving John, the fact that he failed to tell you about his impotence is sufficient. (That's probably grounds for an annulment.) Trying to keep an affair a secret will be like trying to smuggle dawn past a rooster. You'd better tell John before he tells you.

DEAR ABBY: Everybody starts out by saying they have a problem, and that's the way I am starting out, but don't throw this away yet because I get better as I go along. (Ha ha!)

I am a married man with three kids, 9, 12 and 13. I always wanted to be a writer but I can't seem to break into the field. I bet I sent 100 short stories to different magazines, but I never heard back from nobody. A person would like to be told what is wrong with their stuff, wouldn't you think?

You must know a lot of big shots in the publishing business, Abby. Can't you put in a good word for me? I don't expeck you to say I am any good unless you see some of my stuff, so I am sending you 26 stories I've wrote. If you are too busy to write and tell me what you think of them, you can call me up. I'm sending you my phone number, and if the line is busy, keep calling because my kids are on the phone a lot. In the meantime, have you got any suggestions?

LOVES TO WRITE

DEAR LOVES: Please don't send me anything, because my lawyer advises against reading unpublished material. And in the meantime, don't help your kids with their English.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old, and my parents force me to go to church every Sunday.

I hate going to church because I see people there who I know are drunkards, gossips, liars and cheats, and they are right there every Sunday saying their prayers and singing the hymns. I don't have any respect for hypocrites and our church is full of them, my own parents included.

I am only 13, so maybe my opinion doesn't count, but I don't see any sense in my going to church with a bunch of hypocrites.

ONLY A BOY

DEAR ONLY: Christ became a man at 13, and you are not too young to become a man either. One goes to church to learn about the Bible and the word of the Lord, although God dwells in one's heart, and it's not necessary to "go" to church to communicate with him.

A church is not a museum for saints. It's a hospital for sinners, so "judge not, lest ye be judged," young man.

DEAR ABBY: Re that person who knew an editor who said he would fire any reporter who used the word "very" — they should substitute the word "damned" instead.

Well, if they used my church title that way, only a very few parishioners would agree with him. Sign me . . .

THE VERY REV. FATHER DANIEL D. RESSETAR,
HARRISBURG, PA.

Doctors Say Pope Out Of Danger From Wounds

ROME (AP) - Doctors today declared Pope John Paul II out of danger from the gunshot wounds he suffered in the attempt on his life 10 days ago. They said he should be out of the hospital within 60 days.

In their daily medical bulletin, attending physicians said the pontiff's temperature was normal for the first time since he was shot in the abdomen.

The doctors said that the next bulletin would not be issued until Thursday, a further sign of the 61-year-old pope's recovery.

With his last 14 stitches removed, the pope is planning a worldwide radio address Sunday in a direct Vatican Radio hookup from his hospital room, Vatican officials said.

Italian police, meanwhile, said they have evidence the Turkish terrorist charged with shooting the pope and two American women bystanders had an accomplice.

Doctors took out the last stitches from the gunshot wounds in the pontiff's abdomen and back Friday and declared that he was making satisfactory progress. His slight fever was continuing, however, causing them to delay lifting their "guarded" prognosis.

A Vatican source said the pope might be well enough to bless the faithful at noon Sunday from a hospital balcony in addition to making the radio address.

"I was greatly pleased to find His Holiness in great shape, much better than in my two previous visits," President Sandro Pertini said after a 30-minute chat with the pope. "We had a nice talk, between good old friends.

"We agreed to eat pizza together when he gets out."

The 61-year-old pontiff is now eating strained eggs, creamed carrots, cooked fruit and juices, a Vatican spokesman, the Rev. Pierfranco Pastore, said. He sits up in an armchair and watches black-and-white television in his room at Gemelli Policlinico Hospital.

Doctors at Rome's Santo Spirito Hospital said the two women wounded along with the pope were recovering from chest and elbow wounds and receiving "an avalanche" of flowers from friends.

Ann Odre, 58, of Buffalo N.Y., "is feeling so much better" and Rose Hall of Wuerzburg, West Germany, will be discharged from the hospital Sunday, the doctors said.

An Italian police investigator said that Mehmet Ali Agca, the 23-year-old convicted killer who allegedly shot the pope, has given his interrogators the name of an accomplice.

The man, tentatively identified as Hassan Taskin, was believed to be a member of a right-wing group of Turkish nationals in West Germany called the Gray Wolves, he said.

The investigator, who asked not to be identified, said police have no evidence the alleged accomplice was directly involved in the shooting of the pope.

Soil Week Is Observed Here

Soil Stewardship Week is being observed nationwide this year May 24-31, according to Carl Williams, chairman of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District.

Since 1955, Soil Stewardship Week has been recognized in millions of churches and schools across the nation. It is designed to focus on the nation's natural resource problems and consider ways to solve them.

"This country must, at whatever cost, maintain the capacity of the land to produce food and fiber," cites the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) in its booklet for the 1981 observance. NACD sponsors Soil Stewardship Week in cooperation with the nation's 3,000 soil and water conservation districts.

"With our own population at 220 million and growing and with many regions of the world depending on the United States to supplement their food supply, the need to maintain our productive capacity becomes increasingly apparent," according to NACD.

This year's event focuses on "Society's Pressure Points" as its theme and covers such topics as soil and water consevation, urbanization, and loss of prime farmland.

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Consevation District has made copies of this year's soil stewardship booklet "Society's Pressure Points" to ministers serving churches in the district. The district also distributed some 3,000 stewardship bookmarks to elementary school students in the district.

County Judges Jim Burkett of Borden County and Preston Wilson of Scurry County have signed proclamations designating May 24-31 as Soil Stewardship Week in their rspective counties.

Teachers In The Nation Are Losing Their Jobs

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer

About 10 percent of the nation's 2.19 million public-school teachers are losing their jobs, in large part because President Reagan wants to slice federal aid to education, major teacher and schools groups say.

"We're in a real pickle. We're facing severe cuts in federal aid and we have to lay off teachers. It's going to be massive," said Anita Epstein, director of governmental affairs for the National Association of State Boards of Education.

"Teacher layoffs are inevitable," said Willard McGuire, president of the 1.7-million member National Education Association. "The lack of federal money definitely means jobs."

The proposed 25 percent cut in federal education aid was included in budget ceilings adopted last week by Congress and would come in the 1982 fiscal year, which begins October 1.

Exact numbers of laid-off teacners are not yet available because no one knows exactly how much federal education aid will be available.

The NEA is braced for federal education cuts expected to total about $4.5 billion in the fiscal 1982 budget, said NEA spokesman Howard Carroll, and braced for "upwards of 200,000" layoffs as a result.

The American Federation of Teachers is projecting "roughly 55,000 layoffs for each $1 billion in cuts to federal aid to education," said Greg Humphrey, an AFT official.

Congress has not yet voted a fiscal 1982 budget. Nor has Congress voted on cuts sought by the administration in "forward funding" — educational funds approved last year for use in the coming school year.

Most school boards are required under law to tell teachers by May whether they will be rehired. Many boards are taking a cautious course until federal aid questions are resolved.

"If you don't know how much money you'll have for fall, you don't want to get into any binding contracts," McGuire noted. "Some boards are issuing more pink slips than necessary and plan to hire some teachers back in the fall."

As many as 700,000 of the 2.19 million teachers nationwide have been told their contracts will not be renewed. Most education groups expect that 450,000 to 500,000 will be hired this fall — leaving 200,00 to 250,000 out of work.

The hardest hit areas are expected to be the Northeast and large cities where federal aid has been most substantial and where the cuts will come on top of state and local fiscal troubles.

Police Probe Hit And Run

Not much happened in the way of police activity Friday night. Officers worked one hit and run, a possible prowler and a criminal mischief.

In the hit and run, a 1977 Plymouth owned by Jacob Salazar hit a fence owned by Sam Houston at 3601 Ave. A at 5:03 p.m. The subject driving the vehicle fled the scene on foot and the car was impounded. Damage to the fence was estimated at $25. Officer Richard McCulley is investigating the incident.

Shortly after midnight Saturday, a possible prowler was reported in the 2000 block of Ave. L. A man told officer Robert Harbin someone had taken the screen off a back window at his house.

Officer Harbin also took the criminal mischief report at 1 a.m. Cathy Helms reported that five windows had been broken out of a house at 1805 14th, possibly with rocks.

AG Says Busing Divides Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Compulsory school busing and minority hiring quotas have "divided our people and retarded the development of a just society," just as the racial segregation they were intended to remedy did for nearly two centuries, says Attorney GeneralWilliam French Smith.

In his first major civil rights speech, Smith told the American Law Institute in Philadelphia on Friday "the nation must end its over-reliance on remedial devices aimed solely at achieving inflexible and predetermined mathematical balance."

He said the Reagan administration will seek more flexible and practical remedies for racial discrimination that will provide all Americans "a high quality education for their children and the opportunity to make the most of their individual abilities."

The text of his remarks was released here.

"For most of our life as a nation, government has differentiated between individuals on the basis of race," Smith said. "First, to further segregation. Later, to remedy segregation and its effects. In both instances, discrimination by government on the basis of race has divided our people and retarded the development of a just society."

Within hours after his speech, however, there was a reminder that new solutions are still to be found.

Late Friday, the Justice Department reached an agreement with Memphis, Tenn., which would extend for three years a court order requiring the city to meet annual numerical hiring goals for blacks and women. The goals had been imposed in 1974 as part of the settlement of a Justice Department suit charging the city with employment discrimination.

In Philadelphia, the attorney general emphasized "it would be a serious mistake to interpret this change of focus at the remedial level as a signal that the Justice Department will not vigorously prosecute any governmental attempts to foster segregation."

"We will not countenance any retrenchment here," he said. "We will not permit any of our citizens to be stigmatized by government as the result of their race."

He said the administration will take a similarly stern view of racially motivated violence.

The attorney general's aides billed the address as a major speech and a signal that he will take the lead in forming and stating the administration's policies on controversial legal questions. They said the speech was in preparation weeks before a recent article in Business Weeks criticized Smith as failing to exercise legal policy in the new administration.

Financial & tax planning

40% Profit Or More
(Tax Deferred)

It is entirely possible for your investment program to include property which will give you 40%, 80% or perhaps 100% annual return on your invested capital and create no income tax currently on the gain.

This might work as follows: you purchase a $200,000 commercial building for $50,000 down, the balance to be paid in installments. If the rents pay all of the operating expenses and debt service, but return no cash on your investment, you can still look to the appreciation of the property for your gain. If the appreciation happens to be 10% you would have a $20,000 increase in property value. This gives you a 40% return on your invested capital. Such paper gains are not taxable until such time as you dispose of the property.

If the price you paid for the property was determined by the "rental income" you might increase the total rents by certain improvements to the property. Certain residential rental property will command a higher rent by simply cleaning, painting and repairing minor items. If you were able to raise a $200 monthly rental unit to $250, you have "forced inflation." If you resell the building based on a multiple of the net rental income, you would enjoy a 25% increase over your original purchase price. This means that the unit for which you paid $200,000 could possibly sell for $250,000. If this proves to be the case, you would have a 100% return on your $50,000 investment. Even though this is hypothetical, these situations happen in the real estate world frequently.

Since your gains are not taxed until you dispose of the property and receive the payments, this makes an ideal investment package for a high bracket taxpayer. He might receive a 10% cash return which is sheltered in part by depreciation deductions and the remainder of his return would be in the appreciation of the property. The investor who would like to maintain a 25% return on his money can do so without having it all subjected to his current year high income tax bracket.

A further deferment is available if the investor chooses to exchange this appreciate property for qualifying real estate. This tax free exchanging is an excellent vehicle for levering your way into a larger commercial property without paying income taxes currently.

Seek qualified assistance when entering into real estate transactions.

Poll Reveals ReaganSupport

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans still are giving strong support to President Reagan's tax and spending proposals, even though they don't expect any major improvement in the nation's economy this year.

Two years hence, though, the public foresees a much brighter economic picture, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

As Reagan's economic proposals continue to make their way through Congress, the political impact of a vote for or against his plans is a frequent topic of discussion. The poll said a congressman's support of Reagan's proposals would garner more votes from the public than it would lose, but about about half the people said the issue wouldn't affect their votes in 1982 elections.

The public expectations for the economy in the next 12 months remain essentially unchanged since the start of 1981. Thirty-six percent said they expect the economy to improve; 23 percent expect it to get worse and 38 percent expect no change in the economic situation. Three percent of the 1,599 adults interviewed by telephone nationwide Monday and Tuesday were not sure.

The public's expectations were quite a bit brighter when asked about the economy two years from now.

Fifty-six percent of those questioned expect the economy to be in better shape in two years, while only 17 percent expect it to get worse. Twenty percent foresee no change and 7 percent were not sure.

Reagan and his aides have said repeatedly that the nation's economic ills are so serious that it will take several years to solve the problems.

Reagan's approach is responsible for much of this economic optimism, but the postive expectations go beyond just those who expect great results from the president's proposals.

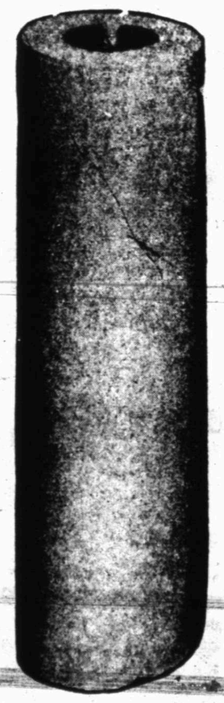

Public support for those proposals is still strong, although there are signs it has weakened somewhat, particularly on the income tax cuts.

In the latest AP-NBC News poll, 56 percent of those who had heard of his proposals said they support Reagan's plans to cut federal spending. Eighteen percent oppose the cuts; 16 percent favor some and oppose others. Ten percent were not sure.

Habib To Israel...

Hostilities Escalate In Middle East Conflict

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — American envoy Philip C. Habib flew out of war-torn Beirut to Israel today as Syrian forces and rightist Christian militias traded artillery, rocket and tank fire in escalating hostilities.

Shellfire hit the Presidential Palace earlier, forcing Lebanese President Elias Sarkis into a bomb shelter and setting set fires around the nearby U.S. ambassador's residence where Habib was staying, palace and police sources reported.

Habib left the ambassador's residence in a motorcade of six bullet-proof cars, witnesses said.

A U.S. spokesman said Habib went to Beirut's international airport and took off for the trip to Jerusalem shortly before 11 a.m. — 5 a.m. EDT — on his shuttle attempting to avert a military showdown between Syria and Israel.

Shells from the Syrian-Christian fighting earlier blasted the glass-and-stone presidential palace and at least one shell went off only 60 yards from Ambassador John Gunther Dean's mansion, a police spokesman said.

Habib spent the night in Dean's villa, which is 500 yards from Sarkis' palace and five miles east of the Lebanese capital.

Police said there was no damage at the villa but at least one Presidential Palace guard was wounded in the palace bombardment and four other civilians were injured in other embattled neighborhoods.

A spokesman said at least two shells struck the palace and several exploded in the gardens as the Christian president held urgent telephone contacts from the palace bunker to arrange a cease-fire.

The police spokesman said the artillery exchanges that broke out at daybreak tapered off to intermittent shelling at midmorning, when Habib left on his fourth trip to Israel in his 16-day attempt to resolve the Syrian-Israeli missile crisis.

It was the second day in a row that the hilltop palace and the surrounding area was hit by artillery fire. What triggered the shelling duels was unknown but observers noted that heavy exchanges of fire coincided with Habib's two earlier shuttle stops in Beirut.

Habib spent the day in the U.S. compound after talks Friday with Sarkis, a Christian, and Lebanon's Moslem Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan, a U.S. official said.

After Friday's talks, Habib said his Mideast shuttle was continuing to defuse the Syrian-Israeli crisis over Syria's deployment of Soviet-made surface-to-air missiles in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley.

Rioting

Foltz said, adding overcrowding and temperatures in the 70s probably contributed to the melee.

Eighteen inmates at Ionia and 24 at Jackson were injured, most of them victims of violence by fellow inmates, prison officials said.

Four guards also were injured at the Ionia reformatory before platoons of officers, shielded by a cloud of tear gas, forced the rioting inmates to return to their cells, officials said. A high school building, two cell blocks and a guard post were damaged by fire during the eight-hour siege.

At Jackson, fire damaged the maximum-security dining area, kitchen and a prison school building. The inmates' store was looted and destroyed by fire, as was a 30-bed housing unit.

The uprising in Carson City, Nev., began Friday night after a brief rampage in which one inmate was beaten, another stabbed and windows and furniture broken.

The pistol-toting inmate who allegedly had taken the hostages, David "Bang Bang" Wayne, 37, surrendered after prison officials agreed to let him talk to his girlfriend.

Wayne, who was serving a term for attempted murder, also requested and received 150 milligrams of a sedative, Demerol, officials said.

Senators Compromise On Congressional Areas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators had compromise talks on their minds when they approved a congressional redistricting bill that ultimately will be hammered out in a conference committee.

"What we wanted to do was get the bill in a conference committee where they can settle these details that need settling," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who had to vote once to break a tie.

The senate approved the bill 16-13 Friday.

Earlier, the Senate approved a bill reshaping state Senate districts, then sent it to the House on a 23-7 vote. Each house traditionally accepts the other house's redistricting plans.

The Senate bill pairs two senators each in the Dallas and Houston areas.

Sens. John Leedom of Dallas and Dee Travis, Garland, both Republicans, were placed in the same district and will face each other if both want re-election in 1982.

In the Houston area, Sens. Jack Ogg, Democrat, and Walter Mengden, Republican, were paired. However, Mengden has indicated he will move his residence to an open district and seek election from there in 1982.

There was no discussion or amendment offered to the congressional redistricting bill, which was a rewrite of one already approved by the House. There would be no incumbent congressmen paired because Texas gains three new congressional seats under the 1980 census.

The congressional bill squeaked by its first test for preliminary approval. After a long wait while supporters of the bill scurried about the chamber seeking votes, Hobby announced the result was 14-14, then cast the tie-breaking vote to make it 15-14. On final passage it was 16-13.

Much of the debate on the senatorial redistricting bill came on an amendment offered by Leedom, then later withdrawn. He frankly admitted it was designed to help Republicans in his district and that of Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas. It also would move minority voters into the district of Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas.

"That's political segregation," Mauzy protested before Leedom drew down his change.

A successful amendment moved 1,400 persons out of the district of Sen. Pete Snelson, D-Midland, into the district of Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso. Snelson had been given two census blocks in El Paso county to flesh out District 25, which stretches from El Paso county eastward to just west of Travis County and Austin.

Another amendment by Harris shifted 1,700 persons from one district to another in Dallas.

"We're just trading one kind of Republican for another," he said.

Nursery School Owner Arrested

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A nursery school owner was arrested on child-molestation charges after police discovered 4,000 photographs of nude children at his home, police said.

The arrest followed a complaint by one mother who said her 3-year-old daughter told her one morning as she was being dressed that "Mr. James does this to me, but he makes me lay down. If I'm good he gives me a cookie to eat, but it's so hard to eat a cookie while I'm laying down on the sofa."

E. James Meacham, operator of the Isabel's Nursery School, was booked Friday for investigation of 18 felony counts of child molestation. He was released on $45,000 bond.

Jacqueline Connor, director of the district attorney's sexual crimes program, said the charges are based on allegations that Meacham undressed and touched each of 18 children in the process of taking their photographs.

Efforts to reach Meacham were unsuccessful.

"He surrendered to us here at Parker Center this afternoon and brought an attorney and a bail bondsman along," said Detective Bill Dworin.

The nursery school, run by Meacham and his wife, Isabel, was shut down Monday by the local Community Care Licensing Agency after police reported finding the photos of nude children from the ages of 3 to 6.

The Los Angeles Herald Examiner said Friday a 24-year-old mother, who was not identified, told the newspaper she became concerned about the behavior of her 3-year-old daughter, who was enrolled in the school in mid-March.

The mother said her daughter cried almost every morning when she was driven to the school and acted afraid when she left the house on other occasions.

"There were a lot of temper tantrums and things like that," the mother said. "I had to protect her. When we went places she held onto me."

She told the newspaper she called police after her daughter made the comment on the morning of April 26 about being undressed at school.

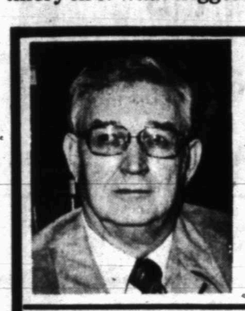

"I was very upset," the mother told the newspaper. "It's a hard thing to believe, but I don't think children can make up things like that."

The 4,000 slide photographs found at the Meacham home allegedly were of children formerly or currently cared for at the school.

Mrs. Meacham has denied any knowledge of the photographs, prosecutors said. She was not charged with any wrongdoing, Dworin said.

The nursery school, in business seven years, was licensed to handle as many as 45 children at a time, from ages 2 through 9.

Katherine Lester of the licensing agency said her office had received only minor complaints about the school in previous years. Inspection reports show that the facility drew complimentary remarks from state evaluators.

The basic liability policy sold by most companies to private passenger car owners protects against negligence. It usually applies whether one is driving his own, someone else's or a rented car. The protection also usually extends to members of the household when they drive the car and to other people who drive it with permission. It may also cover others in the household when they drive someone else's car. What is right for any particular family? The only way to be certain, is to have a conference with your insurance professional.

Dow, Martin Pledge Wedding Vows In First United Methodist Church Here

MR. AND MRS. JYMMY JOE MARTIN
The bride is the former
Dana Joyce Dow
Ted Bigham Photography

Miss Dana Joyce Dow became the bride of Jymmy Joe Martin at four in the afternoon on May 2 in the First United Methodist Church. The Reverend David Robertson officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Gene Dow and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. E.E. Wallace of Burnett, formerly of Snyder, and the late Willie Martin.

The altar was centered with a white promise candle surrounded by an abundance of white roses, gladioli, carnations, peonies and alstramarias with folliage of silver dollar eucalyptus and leatherleaf fern. Large white candles in tall brass candelabra flanked the elongated altar arrangement.

Prelude music was presented by Mrs. Earl Watts at the organ. She also accompanied Miss Sheryl Burk, Lubbock, who sang "The Wedding Song", "Charity" and "I Could Never Promise You."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Piccione gown of nylon organza with Schiffli lace embellished with seed pearls. The gown was designed with a Victorian neckline and long sleeves extending in rounded points over the wrists. Schiffli lace edged the bottom of the dress and chapel-length train. Tiny covered buttons closed the back of the gown with cabbage rose and satin ribbon streamers accenting the back of the waistline. A chapel cap covered with lace and seed pearls held the Schiffli lace-trimmed veil which also extended to chapel-length. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of white renuculi, roses and baby's breath with touches of burgandy silk intermingled with fresh greenery.

Miss Debe Longotham was maid of honor and wore a mauve gown of satin quiana featuring a wedding-band neckline and long sheer sleeves adorned with lace inserts. She carried a bouquet of silk tiger lillies in mauve tones, burgandy silk pittisporum, fresh baby's breath and greenery. Bridesmaids were Miss Jannine Heath, Van Horn, and Miss Paula Hoon of Houson. Their gowns and bouquets were identical to that of the maid-of-honor.

The flower girl was Miss Bobbi Dow, cousin of the bride, carried a white basket of silk flower petals in mauve tones. She wore a white organdy gown with long puffed sleeves, lace edged neckline and tiered skirt, with matching gloves and headband.

The bestman was Stacy Martin, brother of the groom, Mangum, Oklahoma. Groomsmen were Ronnie Rinehart, brother-in-law of the groom, Ira, and J. Dee Dow, brother of the bride. Shane Martin, son of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer.

A reception was held in Wesley Hall following the ceremony. The bridal table was covered with a white eyelet cloth and centered with an arrangement of white carnations, and baby's breath with mauve satin streamers. The four-tier wedding cake was accented with white doves and fresh renuculi.

The groom's table was laid with an eyelet runner and centered with a copper candelabrum. A copper samovar and matching appointments were used. The chocolate cake was decorated with an antique car and the inscription "Get Me To The Church On Time."

Guests were registered by Miss Carolyn Dow, cousin of the bride, Midland. The registration table was covered with an eyelet-edged cloth and centered with an arranagement of peonies and baby's breath.

Members of the house party were Ms. Sharon Malory, Mrs. Ronnie Rinehart and Miss Judy Martin, all sisters of the bridegroom; Mrs. Terry Franks, Mrs. I.R. Mack and Miss Nancy Vaughn.

For her wedding trip, the bride chose a white linen suit with black accessories. The couple is now at home in Houston where they are each employed by Rice Menger Oldsmobile.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School and attended Texas Women's University. The groom graduated from Mangum High School, Mangum, Oklahoma and graduated from Grossmont Junior College, El Cojon, California.

Preceeding the wedding, a bridesmaids' brunch was given at Snyder Country Club by Mrs. M.N. Dow, grandmother of the bride, and two aunts, Mrs. Don Dow, Midland, and Mrs. Dwight Dow, Austin. The rehersal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom the evening before the wedding on May 1.

Honey Do Club Meets

Club members present were Mrs. Price, Virginia Fogle, Verlette Kitchens, Ethel Head, Texa Jones, Sharon Applin, Linda Athey, Cindy Clamox and Shirley Bullard.

The next meeting will be Thursday, June 4.

The bride is the former
Nancy Leatherwood

Nancy Leatherwood and Larry Myers were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony at Hermleigh First Baptist Church, April 17, at 7:00 in the evening. Officiating the ceremony was Rev. Mike Black.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Leatherwood of Hermleigh. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Nyle Myers of Woodward, Oklahoma.

Given in marriage, by her father, the bride wore a white gown featuring a three tier skirt with chapel length train made of satin and covered in lace. BRIDGE

More part scores

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

When you have a part score of 60 or more the opening one notrump is a bid of game. Combine that with the normal desire of nearly all bridge players to bid the first notrump and we find players who use a notrump range of 14 to 20.

We like to bid notrump as much as anyone, but we deplore this misuse. Instead, we recommend that if your normal range is 15-17 to extend it to 15-18 and if your normal range in 16-18 you extend it to 16-19. We also recommend that you always prefer a five-card suit to notrump. In other words, don't open notrump with 5-3-3-2 if you have a big part score.

The direct raise to two notrump is clearly a slam try, but it should be a very mild one and only ask for a further bid by opener if he has a maximum. Assuming the normal one notrump is 16-18, responder needs at least 14 good points to raise to two.

Stayman should be used with these high part scores, but not without enough strength to be willing to play in two notrump.

1.) S - K Q 6 4 H - K J 8 6 D - x x x C - J x. Respond two clubs and pass a major suit response, but bid two notrump over two diamonds. This is not a slam try.

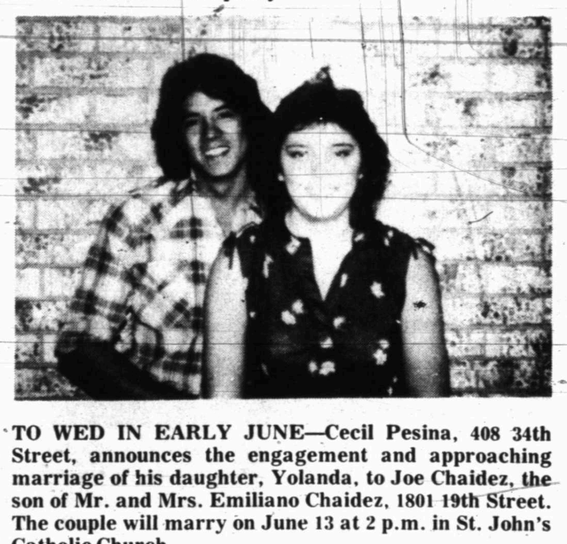

2.) S - K Q 6 4 H - K J 8 6 D - A 7 5 C - J 2. Respond two clubs. Raise either major to three as a mild slam try or rebid three notrump over two diamonds if you feel adventurous.

3.) S - K Q 6 H - K J 9 D - A 7 5 3 C - J x x. Just pass one notrump. Your 4-3-3-3 distribution makes this hand unattractive. Change the jack of clubs to the queen and you should bid two notrump; while make that jack into the king and you can afford a jump to three.

4.) S - K Q 6 H - 2 D - A Q 10 9 5 3 C - K 7 4. Respond three diamonds. This is a forcing bid. If partner simply rebids three notrump, you should pass. If he bids four diamonds you can go to five or pass depending on what your partner's bidding style is. If partner bids a new suit, he is accepting your slam try and you should bid the slam.

With a part score of 30 or 40, the raise to two notrump may be given with as little as six points. You are trying for game. Now the raise to three is a mild slam try and shows the same strength that a raise to two shows when you have 60 on score.

Snyder First Baptist Church Is Setting For Jones Wedding

Karen Sue Jones became the bride of Charles Allen Jones in a 7:00 p.m. double ring ceremony in the auditorium of First Baptist Church on Saturday, May 23. The Rev. Jerry Neill officiated.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James O. Jones of 311 36th Place. Mr. and Mrs. William A. Jones of Fluvanna are parents of the groom.

The alter of the church was decorated with a rainbow candelabra flanked by two seven-branch candelabra entwined with greenery and starburst. At either end of the alter were tree stands of emerald. The aisles of the church were marked by pew markers consisting of a votive candle, greenery and apricot bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of silk faced satin and French imported Alencon pearled lace in a candlelight tone. The exquisite gown, designed by Irving Gelernter for Jena, featured an arched bodice of Alencon lace with a Queen Anne neckline. The lace of the bodice encircled the waistline with sprays of lace extending into the side skirt. Her long fitted sleeves were enhanced by insets of Alencon lace on the upper sleeve with a wide inset on the lower sleeve forming petal points at the wrists. The A-line skirt of silk faced satin was edged in scallops of the Alencon lace. Her back skirt was highlighted by a length train with lace scallops edging the train. She wore an Alencon lace-edged fingertip veil held by a caplet of Alencon pearled lace. The bride carried a caseade of Wilburn Abbey roses set in a background of cacoa carnations, baby's breath and candlelight starburst tied with candlelight and apricot streamers.

Deanna Myers of College Station was maid of honor. Matron of Honor was Judy Neill of Snyder and Pam Gibson of Fort Worth was bridesmatron. Each wore an apricot quiana formal length gown with empire waistline and flowing skirt. The gowns were topped by boleros of the same fabric, featuring a fold back collar, a tie at the front waistline and a blouson back. They wore tiny apricot rosebuds enhanced with baby's breath in their hair. Their bouquets were small cascades of cocoa and apricot carnations tied with streamers like the bride's bouquet.

The groom wore candlelight tails complimented by a ruffled shirt and bowtie of the same shade. His boutoniere was a Wilburn Abbey rose taken from the bride's bouquet and set in a spray of baby's breath.

David Beaver served as best man, with Phil Jones, brother of the groom, and Fred Ridenour as groomsmen. All are residents of Fluvanna. They wore brown regal tuxedos with candlelight ruffled shirts and brown bowties. Their boutonieres were single apricot carnations. Ushers were Kevin Jones of Sweetwater, brother of the bride, and Mike Jones of Odessa, brother of the groom. Their attire was identical to that of the groomsmen.

As guests arrived, they were registered at either of two tables. Kim Culbertson of Midland registered guests at a table covered with an apricot moire taffeta cloth overlayed with a candlelight cloth with apricot rosebuds. The table featured an engagement picture of the couple in an antique china frame and a single rose. Susie Miller of Singapore, sister of the groom, registered guests at a table covered with apricot moire taffeta overlayed with a brown cloth. The table also held an engagement picture of the couple set in a leather frame and a cocoa carnation.

Betty Watts at the organ and Bobby Wells at the piano provided pre-nuptial music and accompanied the vocalists during the ceremony. Vocalists were Susan Scott of Snyder, Pam Pate of College Station, Gary Miller of Snyder and William Sullenger of Dallas.

"Theme from Ice Castles" was played as the grandmothers entered. The mothers were ushered in as Mrs. Pate sang, "It Seems I've Always Loved You." As Denise Gary of Slaton, cousin of the bride, and Connie Huddleston of Snyder lighted the candles, Mr. Miller sang "More" and he and Mrs. Pate sang "You Make Me Feel Brand New".

As the groom and his attendants entered, Mrs. Scott sang "The Twelfth of Never". The bridesmaids entered to the strains of "We've Only Just Begun" played by Mrs. Watts. The traditional "Wedding March" was played as the bride was escorted in by her father.

Just before the couple repeated their vows, Mrs. Scott and Mr. Sullenger sang, "Let It Be Me." After the rings were exchanged, Mr. Sullenger sang "Longer." As Rev. Neill concluded the ceremony, all four sang "The Lord Bless You and Keep You." Rev. Neill presented the newlywed couple to the congregation and they exited as Mrs. Watts and Mr. Wells played the triumphant "Praise To the Lord, the Almighty One."

The reception was hosted by the bride's parents in the Garden Room of the church. The bride's table was covered with a Dresden Doll quilt handmade by the bride's mother as a gift to the couple, in shades of apricot and candlelight. A candlelight skirt completed the table covering. The centerpiece was a silver epergne decorated in apricot and candlelight fresh flowers. Nancy Jones of Sweetwater, sister-in-law of the bride, served the three-tiered wedding cake which was also decorated with fresh flowers in the bride's chosen colors. Rachael Sullenger of Dallas served punch from a crystal punch bowl. Apricot mints were served from a crystal serving plate.

The groom's table was covered with a brown floor length cloth and was centered with a drilling rig surrounded by eucalyptus and cocoa carnations. The German Chocolate cake was served by Margaret Beaver of Fluvanna. Susie Miller served coffee from a silver service belonging to the groom's family.

Beverly Duff of Snyder served cheese, melon balls, fresh strawberries, pineapple and grapes from a table covered with a brown cloth. Appointments were crystal and silver.

For the week-long wedding trip to Ruidoso and other points in New Mexico, the bride chose a navy and white polka dot sundress with a white pigue bolero. Completing her outfit were a white hat with navy band and white shoes.

Out of town guests were from Slaton, Fluvanna, Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Sweetwater, Dallas, Bryan, College Station, El Paso, Austin and Wenatchee, Washington; Carbondale, Illinois, and Singapore.

The bride is a graduate of Snyder High School, Western Texas College and Texas A&M University. She is employed as a math teacher with Shamrock Public Schools.

The groom is a graduate of Fluvanna High School, Western Texas College and Texas Tech University. He is employed as a petroleum engineer with El Paso Exploration Company in Shamrock. The couple will reside in Shamrock, Texas.

The rehersal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at The Shack.

The bride and her attendants were honored with a Bridal Luncheon in the home of Mrs. Jerry Neill on the day of the wedding.

Shoulder to shoulder

If you have narrow or sloping shoulders, you can better balance your figure by choosing clothes with slightly padded or softly tucked shoulders. Avoid fussy necklines with lace or bows, halters and clingy knits — especially when teamed with full skirts. If your shoulders are broad, forego exaggerated padding and puffed or capped sleeves. Instead, choose unconstructed jackets, and tops with dropped shoulders or raglan sleeves.

Ready to roll

Marie Osmond told to Beauty Digest magazine her most important beauty aid: "The one thing I'm never without is my electric steam mist rollers. In fact, I put them in my hair once, sometimes twice, during a show. My hair takes a beating when I'm dancing and twirling, so there's always a set of curlers plugged in backstage. That way, I can freshen up during intermission."

Sit-ups for women

These situps have been especially designed to firm up a woman's stomach in a safe, effective way. Lie on the floor with your hands folded behind your head, legs straight and toes pointed. Now, slowly curl your trunk into a postion 35 to 40 degrees off the floor. Hold the position for a few seconds, then slowly uncurl yourself back down. Do 10 to 15 times.

TO MARRY IN LATE MAY—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Irwin, 1914 Coleman, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Tammy Sue Christian, to Billy Wayne Hembree, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Clint Hembree, 2011 Moncrief. The wedding is planned for May 31 at 3 p.m. in the Bethel Baptist Church.

On Aug. 13, 1914, Japan sent an ultimatum of war to Germany.

The discovery that led to the Klondike gold rush was made in 1896. When news of the rich strike reached the outside world, a rush to the area began. In two years, Dawson grew from a few houses to a community of 25,000. Within three years all important creeks in the Klondike Valley had been staked out by goldseekers. Total value of gold production in the eight years after the find exceeded $100 million.

disappearing land

A sinkhole the size of a football field opened up and swallowed dozens of trees in a Winter Haven, Fla., citrus grove. Halfway across the nation, a 250-acre ranch was put up for sale for conversion to suburban housing near the city limits of Austin, Texas.

The two events are unrelated except for one thing. They're two of many signs that our country's once-abundant farmland is disappearing.

In the citrus-grove case, the underground water table is drying up because population pressure means more water use and the earth simply collapsed. In the case of the ranch, Austin has grown and expanded its city limits so rapidly that what was cattle country a generation ago is now prime housing acreage.

Thoughtful people around the nation are aware of this. The Reagan administration's new farm bill contains a section establishing a national policy to guard against farmland disappearance. Rep. James Jeffords, R-Vt., and Sen. Roger Jepson, R-Iowa, neither of them wild-eyed liberals, want to go beyond policy to give more federal aid to states to help deal with the problem.

A recent federal study reports:

— The United States is converting farmland to non-farm uses at a rate of 3 million acres yearly.

— The nation now has 413 million acres of cropland and 127 million acres of potential cropland. Another 268 million acres of rural land have low potential for cultivation."

— In the next 20 years demand for U.S. farm products will rise 60 percent to 85 percent, and that, says Agriculture Secretary John Block, means "most of the nation's 540-million-acre cropland base would have to be in cultivation."

— Reasons: increasing pressure to export farm products to a hungry world (the harvest of one of every three acres already is exported), growing domestic demand, rising use of corn-produced ethanol.

All this, says Block, "would mean major shifts in the U.S. agricultural system: taking land away from forage and grazing uses, farming poor-quality land costly to cultivate and subject to erosion, higher food prices."

Block's worry is bipartisan. His predecessor. Bob Bergland, says: "In my lifetime we've paved over the equivalent of all the cropland in Ohio. Before the century is out, we'll pave over an area the size of Indiana."

The private non-profit American Farmland Trust Wants to head off the problem before it reaches the proportions of our oil crisis of the 1970s. Director Douglas Wheeler says 90 federal programs "have an impact" on our farmland. Unwittingly, the feds assist in land loss. Examples: water and sewer grants that "precipitate" development, interstate highways (each mile consumes 48 acres), federal dams that flood thousands of rich acres, housing subsidies, strip mining, even new airports.

On the morning of last May 4, the Japanese, under duress, acquiesced.

The Japanese agreed to curtail exports of their cars to the United States over the next three years; 7.7 percent the first year.

That same afternoon, Chrysler raised prices again!

The indifference to the public interest which has characterized some industrialists invites restraints on them all.

The antitrust chief of the Reagan administration, Assistant Atty. Gen. Bill Baxter, has been wondering if American taxpayers should have bailed out the Chrysler Corporation.

He says the bailout did not rescue the jobs of Chrysler workers. Those workers would have been absorbed by the pruchases of the bankrupt properties. Actually, says Baxter, the bailout merely bailed out the unwise investors in Chrysler stock.

Can Detroit make a comeback?

Chrysler sales last month were up 51 percent from the same month last year but -- sales of imported cars continued to claim a larger share of the American market. Now 28.7 percent -- almost one-in-three cars sold in the United States -- are manufactured outside the United States.

And the so-far best response by American car makers is to retool for the manufacture of imitation Japanese cars.

There are some exciting exceptions.

Several heretofore unheard of independents are turning out electric cars with ever-improving performance specs.

A former GM executive named De Lorean, in a factory in Northern Ireland, is turning out a stainless-steel roadster.

It's expensive; $25,000. Yet more than 10,000 people have already put down cash deposits to buy the car and the first shipload has been delivered in California.

During the big to-do about whether Chrysler should be allowed to go under, there were few public reminders that in the hectic hundred-year history of the motorear at least 500 U.S. car makers have gone broke.

The result of this culling-out was not catastrophic. On the contrary, the innovative survived and the breed improved.

Now, with curtailed imports and subsidized home-mades -- instead of encouraging and rewarding the innovators -- we are tending to perpetuate unimaginative imitators.

Among Detroit's new generation chief executive officers (CEOs) there are some who recognize the challenge, that the best way to rebuild profits is to produce for the American public the kind of cars the American public wants.

But the giants may not be sufficiently maneuverable; may be overtaken by upstarts with big ideas.

Back in the late '80s, Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber had an ominous message for most of the industrial democracies.

In a provocative study titled "The American Challenge," the French author-editor-politician looked to the future of their increasingly intermeshed economies and forecast no change in the U.S. domination that had characterized the postwar era. Only much more of the same.

The American economy was so large, so efficient and so innovative that the other countries had no real hope of competing. Worse, they were doomed to seeing the choicest portions of their own economies taken over by American owners. This process already was well under way through the acquistions of the American advance guard, the multi-national corporations that were busily buying into or outright an assortment of French, British, German and other enterprises. The alarming prospect was raised that whole national economies might be on the way to becoming little more than subsidiaries of the American dynamo.

So how accurate a prophet has Servan-Schreiber proved to be?

Come now, you know the anwer to that even if you never go near the economic columns. References to American slippage pop up as well in just about every other section of the paper with the possible exception of the comics and classifieds, and that may be coming.

That slippage can be measured in a number of ways — in annual trade deficits, in climbing sales of Japanese autos and other sophisticated foreign manufacturers in the U.S. market, in the mounting distress of domestic producers and in the yo-yo performance of the dollar in relation to other major currencies.

Now the Conference Board, the New York-based non-profit business research organization, has come out with another measurement that has unexpected relevance to Servan-Schreiber's original argument.

American firms, which wrote the book on the modern multi-national operation ("transnational" is the term now favored at the United Nations and in some other quarters), are no longer predominant in that area. The majority of the world's largest corporations, operating internationally, are today non-American enterprises.

In 1971, 280 of the world's 500 largest industrial firms were American. By 1979, the latest year for which comprehensive data is available, the U.S. share had dropped to 219. Of a more select group, the 100 largest corporations, the American representation dropped from 58 in 1971 to 47 in the most recent ranking.

In banking, working within a different time span, the shift is even more striking. In 1956, the world's largest 100 banks included 44 American institutions holding a combined 53 percent of deposits. By 1978, there were only 15 American banks in this group with 15 percent of the deposits.

Obviously, Servan-Schreiber was right in one respct — the nature of the economic trend. It certainly does appear ominous, but not for the non-Americans.

On the other hand, the reversal of the trend of a decade ago may not be quite so bad for our side as might appear.

For one thing, it must be remembered that those postwar decades were economically abnormal times. The United States, the only industrial economy that had come through World War II not only unscathed but stimulated by the demands of the conflict, would have been the world champion under any circumstances through elimination for a time of any real competition. That competition was still recovering and rebuilding well into the '60s.

For another, it was primary American policy to encourage that rebuilding to return the world economy to something like a state of pre-war normalcy, in which the United States had had plenty of competition.

And for a third, U.S. enterprises may be down but are by no means out of the economic picture. There are still more of them — 219 — than from any other country in the top 500. Japan is a distant second with 71, with Britain (51), West Germany (37) and France (27) even farther behind.

What has happened is not an American collapse but a rephrasing of Servan-Schreiber's thesis. There is still a challenge — but it is now one for the United States to meet in maintaining its still leading world position in a climate of healthy economic competition.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "One thing common to most success stories is the alarm clock."

The new senate office building under construction in the nation's capital has been the source of controversy and criticism for several years.

Like most things in Washington, what started out as a good idea for more space has turned into a monument for the elected and a nightmare for the taxpayers.

In Washington, of course, everything is done first class. Such is the case of the Philip A. Hart Senate Office Building, due to open early in 1982.

The price tag is $137 million.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan has masterminded a $137 million coverup. Last week he offered the following resolution to the full senate:

"Whereas in the fall of 1980 the frame of the new Senate Office Building was covered with plastic sheathing in order that construction might continue during the winter months.

"Whereas the plastic cover has now been removed revealing, as feared, a building whose banality is exceeded only by its expense.

"Whereas even in a democracy there are things it is as well the people do not know about their government.

"Therefore be it resolved that it is the sense of the Senate that the plastic cover be put back."

Might be a good idea to put a plastic cover over all of Washington. Maybe those screwball ideas would just stay in Washington.

If you think government agencies don't simply have to search for things to justify their existence, consider the following experience by Aeronac, Inc., an aerospace parts manufacturer, who was ordered to restore its policy of giving all of its employees a turkey at Christmas.

Because of financial difficulties, the company eliminated the practice several years ago. Company officials assumed it in their right to make decisions concerning Christmas bonuses or other benefits.

But the National Labor Relations Board did not concur in that opinion. The board not only told the company to reinstate the turkey gift tradition, but also told the company that they had to provide restitution for three years when employees did not receive their birds--plus interest.

Egg Production Remains Stable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's hens are holding at about their year-ago rate of egg production, according to the Agriculture Department.

About 5.72 billion eggs were produced in April, which was "virtually the same" as in the same month of 1980, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Thursday.

As of May 1, an average of 67 eggs were produced per 100 hens, unchanged from a year ago, the report said.

To The Daily News:

This past weekend, the Snyder Roadriders sponsored their first annual Summer Run in Towle Park. I would like to thank the following merchants and organizations who helped make our rally a success: Key Bros. Implement, Snyder National Bank, Erwin Jewelry, Molly's Attic, West Texas State Bank, Glenn Bowlin Texaco, First Federal Savings and Loan, Glover's, Jiffi Conoco, Dub's Barbecue and Catering, Hack's Grocery, Snyder Lanes, Snyder Drug, Snyder Truck and Tractor, Butler Chiropractic Office, Key Bros. Honda, Bea Owens, La Casa de Blanca, General Aviation News, TG&Y, Country Fare Restaurant, Buddy's Auto Supply, D&D Auto Supply, Chamber of Commerce, Snyder Daily News, KSNY Radio, Snyder Jaycees, SHS Band Parents Club, Snyder Police Dept., and Buchanan Implement.

Many local businesses donated merchandise for our contingency prizes, while other groups and individuals contributed their time, services and equipment.

One of the purposes of our club is to make the general public more aware of motorcycles. We hoped that this rally would show that motorcycles can be safe as well as fun. But since this was the first time for anything like this in Snyder, we weren't too sure what the public reaction would be. But, as usual, the local townspeople came through with flying colors and were there when we needed them. Each and every one of them is genuinely and sincerely appreciated.

The Mosaic law on divorce was the first to give the wife consideration and justice. Before Moses, a divorced wife was practically an outcast.

"When a man hath taken a wife... and it come to pass that she find no favor in his eyes... then let him write her a bill of divorcement, and give it in her hand... and when she is departed... she may go and be another man's wife." — Deut. 24:1-2

Jailhouse Lawyer Wins A Difficult Decision

By WAYNE SLATER
Associated Press Writer

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — The client was a convicted murderer suing the police who had arrested him. The jury was a dozen fair, square Hoosiers from the heart of Indiana. The odds the convict would win were maybe a million to one.

"Lawyers don't win cases like that," said Indianapolis attorney Niles Stanton.

But Richard Lee Owen took the case. And the jury ruled against the police and for his convict-client.

Owen is a blond, bespectacled 34-year-old high school graduate and former bank robber serving time for attempted murder. He's not a lawyer, but he knows the law.

A fellow inmate at Indiana State Prison complained that his arresting officers had kept him 10 days in jail without a hearing. That's illegal, Owen told the prisoner. Then he filed suit, persuaded a federal judge to let him argue the case and gave the jury an impassioned, law-and-order argument.

"When those sworn to uphold the law break the law, then we have no law," Owen argued, enlisting in his clarion call the Constitution, the Founding Fathers, freedom, justice and the sanctity of law.

The jury awarded his client $11,250 in damages.

Outside lawyers were surprised, but not the cons back at Indiana State Prison where Owen is considered one of the premier "jailhouse lawyers" in the country.

From his cell, Owen publishes a bimonthly law review, teaches, writes, does paid research for outside attorneys, handles an average of 35 inmate cases at a time and oversees an impressive 1,500-volume law library, purchased in part with money from one of his heists.

Owen, like other jailhouse lawyers, learned his law behind bars.

Last year, 23,287 federal civil suits were filed by prisoners — twice the number of a decade ago, according to the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. And the number is growing.

One reason for the increase in jailhouse lawsuits is two decades of U.S. Supreme Court decisions gradually giving inmates greater access to the courts.

Most jailhouse lawsuits are imprecise, ill-conceived and illegible, according to prosecutors and judges, who say they are clogging dockets and costing courts money to handle.

"It's a problem, it's growing and it's costing taxpayers a ton of money," says Kenneth Meyers, a federal magistrate in Benton, Ill.

"I spend 75 to 80 percent of my time on prisoner litigation and a good portion of that just dealing with frivolous petitions," Meyers says. "Prisoners have gotten the idea that every time they are denied any little thing, any privilege, they can file a complaint."

For instance:

— One inmate sued when he ordered a tube of "pale" yellow paint from the commissary, but got "light" yellow paint.

— A woman inmate demanded that prison officials pay for a sex-change operation.

— A homosexual filed suit following the transfer of a cellmate.

— When a guard allegedly took money from a prisoner to buy marijuana and spent the money instead on an evening at a motel with a friend, the inmate filed suit demanding that the state of Illinois buy him his marijuana or return his money.

— A prisoner in Nebraska made a federal case out of a lost hobby kit.

— In North Carolina, a group of inmates sued — and lost — in an attempt to form a union behind bars.

Prison officials say money, drugs and cigarettes are frequently fees charged by jailhouse lawyers for their legal help.

Jerome Rosenberg, a wellknown self-taught lawyer, started practicing in 1963 in the "death house" at New York's Sing Sing prison. He claims in one case to have received a $10,000 check from a satisfied client.

Fees of $300 or $400 a case are not unusual, according to one former practitioner.

Jailhouse law has become such big business that entire cells are sometimes transformed into well-stocked minifirms, prison officials say.

"We had a guy transferred from Pontiac prison to Menard and it took a separate truck just to load his belongings — papers, books,, typewriter, the whole shot," says Miike Vujovich, an assistant attorney general in Illinois.

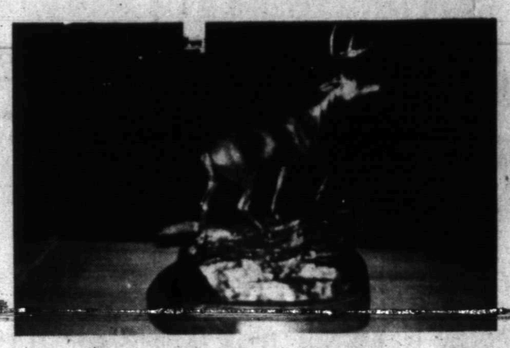

Taxpayers usually foo the bill for all sides.

Public money is used t stock prison libraries with supplies, including photocopying machines, paper and postage. And public money goes to pay the salaries of prosecutors, judges and their office staff.

In 13 federal court districts, the government has hired administrators whose sole job is to handle the growing number of prisoner cases. Some states have established separate divisions to do the same thing on the state level.

Each prisoner complaint has to be read, investigated and evaluated. Sometimes there are hearings and ultimately trials. And everything costs money.

Geologists say another major eruption of Mount S. Helens is unlikely but smaller explosions may continue for decades. Before 1980, Mount St. Helens last came to life in 1831 and had sputtered intermittently for 25 years.

PERMANENT EXHIBIT—This bronze titled, "The Cross," will become a permanent exhibit in the Snyder High School Library. It was given by the class of 1951. The sculpture is by Dubb Tubb of San Angelo, formerly of Snyder, and was cast in bronze by Dr. Robert Taylor of Snyder.

SHS Given Bronze

Members of the 1951 graduating class presented Snyder High School with a bronze scuplture to be permanently located in the school library for all to view and enjoy.

The sculpure, titled "The Cross," by Dubb Tubb, was given in memory of deceased classmates and teachers of the class.

Those known to be deceased include Ethel Lynn York (Mrs. Dubb Tubb), Peggy Smedley, Doyle Lee, Glenn Holmes, S. R. Hambrick and Jimmy Early. Deceased faculty members are J. L. (Broadway) Browning, Thelma Leslie, Kathryn Northcutt, M. E. Stanfield and T. D. Wiman.

The Class of '51 organized the first student council, elected the first Mr. and Miss SHS, and was the last class to go on a senior trip. They have scheduled their 30-year reunion for June 20.

Members of the class present for the presentation of the bronze sculpture during the awards assembly Wednesday were Joe Sentell, Jo Ann McCormick, Martha Huddleston, Patsy Sitton, Patsy Williams, Freida Dever, Ann von Roeder, Peggy Martin, Don Head, Clarence Minton and Nelly Jo Smith.

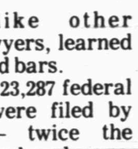

"Checkmate" comes from the Arab victory cry in battle, "The King is dead." Check is a corruption of Shan, or king.

Alcohol no aid to sex

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am married to a man with a drinking problem. When I have tried to explain to him that alcohol affects his ability to perform sexually he tells me it has nothing to do with it. Sometimes I refuse him because of this, since it becomes too painful and exhausting after trying for a half hour to an hour to fulfill his needs. Do you have any medical information on this?

I have been a faithful wife for 26 years, but when I refuse he accuses me of having "friends" that I am "taking care of." I go to Al-Anon meetings when I can sneak them in. They tell me it is characteristic of alcoholics to believe mates are unfaithful when they cannot perform.

DEAR READER — If your husband were a student of Shakespeare he would know that Porter in Macbeth said, "Lechery, sir, it provokes, and unprovokes; it provokes the desire, but it takes away the performance." The adverse effects of alcohol on sexual performance have been known for hundreds of years.

Many men who drink do not realize that their performance leaves something to be desired. One lady told me that a friend of hers claimed it made him a better lover. I told her the best way to find out how such a man really performs is to ask his partner. This is not unique to sexual performance. Even though a person under the influence of alcohol can hardly drive down the road, he oftens thinks he is driving with great skill.

Alcohol is a feminizing drink. Actual measurements of testosterone show that it is decreased in men after drinking alcohol. It has a direct effect on the testicles and destroys testosterone that is already formed. This is further explained in The Health Letter number 14-6, Alcohol Can Be Dangerous to Your Health, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

With decreased male hormones it is little wonder that such men often develop enlarged breasts. Alcohol relieves inhibitions, provoking the desire, but it is a nerve depressant that decreases normal responses. A young, frightened, inexperienced male may gain courage from the bottle and do better but otherwise it is not useful to improve sexual performance.

Argentina, U.S. Sign Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Argentina have signed an agreement calling for "expanded scientific and technical cooperation" in the fields of agriculture, livestock and forestry.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Thursday that it was "a significant step toward furthering positive relations with Argentina."

Block and Jorge Aguado, Argentina's minister of agriculture and livestock, signed the agreement Wednesday, officials said.

Move Made To Collect GI Bill Debts Of Vets

The Veterans Administration and the Department of Justice have begun a nationwide effort to collect debts owed by veterans who attended school under the GI bill, according to E. H. (Dan) Dever Jr., Scurry county Veterans Service Officer.

Most of the money owed to the agency stem from educational overpayments while the veteran was in school, or from defaulted education loans. VA's aim is to collect debts of under $1,200 in instances where the veteran has not made any repayment arrangements. The veteran will first be notified by letter of the indebtedness, then be advised that approximately 30 days remain after receipt of the letter to pay the debt in full or make other arrangements for payment before the necessary court action is taken.

Debts in excess of $1,200 are being referred to the Department of Justice for collection. They are prepared to litigate the matter in court and also will utilize various post-judgment remedies such as taking liens on properties, garnishing salaries and attachment of bank accounts and other liquid assets.

These combined collection actions are being take pursuant to Public Law 96-466 and a recent "Memorandum of Understanding" between VA and the Department of Justice.

Veterans who need information about VA programs may contact Dever's office in the administration building at Western Texas College.

Prairie View Bill Advances

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill that would let Prairie View A&M share in the Available University Fund won final House approval Thursday.

A 98-33 vote sent it to the Senate.

Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, said she pushed the bill when Attorney General Mark White failed to give a requested opinion on whether Prairie View was the college for "colored youth" designated by the 1876 Texas Constitution.

The House earlier sent the Senate a constitutional amendment that would entitle Prairie View to a sixth of Texas A&M'S share of the Permanent University Fund.
