The feller on Deep Creek says, "Diet book authors live off the fat of the land."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

We still believe popcorn and a Coke are the most overpriced commodities at a movie theatre.

But according to Lynn Brisendine in the Brownfield News, there are other lessons to be gleaned from watching the silver screen.

District Judge threatens CBS producer with jail sentence

JASPER (AP) — A judge threatened a CBS News producer with jail today if she does not produce a transcript of a complete interview with dragging death defendant Shawn Allen Berry.

Mary Mapes was subpoenaed last week and ordered to turn over a transcript and outtakes from newsman Dan Rather's interview that aired Sept. 28 on "60 Minutes II."

State District Judge Joe Bob Golden told the Dallas-based producer to meet a 3 p.m. CDT deadline to produce the transcript or report to Jasper County Jail. He denied a motion by Ms. Mapes' attorney, Charles Babcock, to delay the order while he seeks an appeal.

Babcock, who defended Oprah Winfrey in a multimillion-dollar lawsuit brought by Texas beef producers, said he would proceed with the appeal, regardless.

Golden also ordered a Tuesday hearing to rule on whether Ms. Mapes must turn over the raw footage.

Berry is the third and final white capital murder defendant to go on trial in the dragging death of a black East Texas man.

Prosecutors say they want to compare Berry's statements in the outtakes to others he gave during the investigation into the June 7, 1998, death of James Byrd Jr.

"(Ms. Mapes) is clearly a witness to statements made by Shawn Berry out of court, and they are admissible against him," said Brit Featherston, an assistant U.S. attorney working with Jasper County prosecutors.

In the CBS interview, Berry said he tried to stop the attack on Byrd, but backed off when one of his alleged accomplices, John William King, threatened him. King and Lawrence Russell Brewer, white supremacists who became buddies in prison, were convicted and sentenced to death earlier this year in separate trials.

Ms. Mapes told the judge the transcripts were at her house, about 200 miles northwest of Jasper. She also said she never had the raw tapes in her possession and last saw them before Rather went to New York.

Said Babcock: "The tapes are the exclusive property of CBS and not Ms. Mapes."

Today's hearing is the first of two battles between CBS News and prosecutors over the interview. On Tuesday, prosecutors initiated proceedings to require Rather to testify about his interview with Berry.

CBS News president Andrew Heyward said the company would fight both subpoena requests.

Under the process to obtain a subpoena for a witness who lives outside of Texas, prosecutors were required to make their request to Golden, who certified that Rather is a "material and necessary witness."

The certified request was sent to New York authorities, and a judge there will decide whether to compel Rather to testify in Texas.

Jet's seals may hold clues to fatal crash

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — Investigators sorting through the debris of the Learjet crash that killed golfer Payne Stewart and five others say small pieces such as cabin seals and valves that pressurize the cabin may hold vital clues.

All of the debris was collected by late Thursday, but it could be three or four months before the wreckage is fully analyzed.

"We haven't identified the important items because of the extreme destruction of the aircraft," said Bob Benzon, chief investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board. "We're looking for small pieces that could be wrapped in the sheet metal of the airplane. It's going to take quite a bit of prying and cleaning and washing to get what we need."

The jet crashed into a field near Mina on Monday, four hours after leaving Florida bound for Texas. Investigators are trying to determine how the plane flew 1,400 miles across the country, apparently without someone at the controls. The plane crashed after running out of fuel.

One theory is that the jet lost cabin pressure soon after takeoff, causing everyone aboard to die or lose consciousness.

A high-level government official, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, feared the cause of the crash may never be known because the plane and the bodies were so severely damaged.

"I don't know if we'll ever be able to tell what happened from what we dug out of that hole," the official said.

Benzon, a veteran investigator who has probed crashes in Hawaii and Hong Kong in recent months, compared the investigation to "a giant jigsaw puzzle without the box to look at, or a crossword puzzle without clues."

The Learjet had no flight data recorder. The cockpit voice recorder was being examined by NTSB officials in Washington, but the device may provide few clues because it has a 30-minute loop that usually records over itself. Radio contact with the plane was lost hours before the crash.

The NTSB also is reviewing three Learjet accidents that appear similar to Monday's crash. Those planes continued to fly on autopilot after their crews blacked out.

World not ready for newer TB

NEW YORK (AP) — Many countries are ill-equipped to combat the spread of drug-resistant tuberculosis, already in 104 countries and the world's leading infectious cause of death among adults, a new study says.

It will take $1 billion to fight its growth, according to the Harvard Medical School study sponsored by philanthropist George Soros.

Russian prisons are among the epicenters of the hard-to-treat and potentially fatal disease. About 100,000 inmates have active TB and about 40 percent have drug-resistant TB, prison chief Gen. Vladimir Yalinin said at a Thursday news conference.

About 30,000 people with active cases are released from prison there each year, and 400 prison workers have developed TB, Yalinin said.

"These epidemics are only briefly local," said Dr. Paul Farmer, a professor of social medicine at Harvard and author of the report. "They will not remain within prisons, they will not remain within national borders."

TB is the leading infectious cause of death among adults worldwide, killing up to 2 million people each year. Eight million are infected annually by the airborne disease, which can spread through contact as casual as sitting on the same airplane with someone who is infected.

The study says a TB strategy successfully implemented in New York City in the mid-1990s — deploying health workers to watch patients take each and every dose — is the only way to cure the disease and stop the proliferation of drug-resistant strains.

While the approach required less than a year of treatment for each case, new strains of multi-drug-resistant TB may require up to two years of complex treatment, costing anywhere from several hundred dollars to several thousand per patient.

Many countries lack the funding, personnel and public health infrastructure for such an intensive method of treatment.

The report identified TB hot spots — countries where at least 5 percent of all TB cases are drug-resistant. The highest percentage of drug-resistant TB cases were found in Latvia, at 22 percent.

Bush skips debate to see wife honored

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. George W. Bush carried through with his pledge to be at his wife's side while she received an award instead of attending a debate in New Hampshire with fellow GOP presidential hopefuls.

"I love my wife. I'm glad I'm with her," Bush said Thursday as he accompanied Laura Bush into a Dallas hotel ballroom where she was honored along with three others as distinguished Southern Methodist University alumni.

"I'm glad you're with me, too," Mrs. Bush told her husband.

During an interview with WMUR-TV, which co-sponsored the debate with CNN, Bush stressed that he was not taking New Hampshire for granted and would campaign there next week.

"At every stop I answer questions and lay out my vision for America, and it seems to me that the people of New Hampshire accept my vision and want me to be the nominee," Bush said.

About 1,000 people attended the formal event in Dallas, where a video shown on two giant screens described Mrs. Bush's upbringing in Midland, Texas, and life afterward.

The first lady received a standing ovation when she walked onstage to receive the award, and she joked about her time at the university.

"In my four years at SMU, I never thought about the 'distinguished' half of the equation. I was just worried about the 'alumni,'" she said, smiling broadly. "I think I might have married into the 'distinguished' part."

Mrs. Bush is founder and honorary chairwoman of the Texas Book Festival, a gathering of Texas authors and book lovers that has raised nearly $600,000 for the state's public libraries. She also promotes women's health through the Governor's Spouse Program of the National Governors Association.

The late SMU football great Doak Walker was on Mrs. Bush's mind, as well as that of another recipient, Dallas attorney Tom Luce. Both said Walker influenced their lives.

Mrs. Bush said the 1948 Heisman winner started her on a book-reading path.

"When I was in seventh grade, I read a biography of Doak Walker. I thought he was cute," she said, drawing laughter.

Luce said that, as a youngster hospitalized with an injured leg, he received a visit from Walker that prompted a recovery and return to the football field the next fall.

"Doak told me that's what I should do," he said.

Other honorees were the Rev. Kirbyjon H. Caldwell, pastor of Windsor Village United Methodist Church in Houston; and Larry R. Faulkner, president of the University of Texas at Austin.

Caldwell transformed Windsor Village United Methodist Church from a congregation of 25 to an 11,000-member church with 120 ministries, including a private school, a food pantry, drug abuse and juvenile delinquency programs and a shelter for abused children.

Faulkner, a nationally known research chemist, became UT's 27th president in April 1998 after serving as provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs and as a chemistry professor at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. He has published more than 120 scientific papers, directed 40 doctoral theses and received numerous chemistry awards.

AMA starting its own site on Internet

NEW YORK (AP) — Seeking to give patients more reliable online health news and advice, the nation's leading physician groups are starting their own Internet site.

The American Medical Association and six other physician groups early next year will launch medem.com, an effort to combat fears that patients are getting inaccurate and misleading information online.

About 50 writers and editors will provide daily health and medical research news.

The site is free for consumers, though doctors have to pay $70 per month. Doctors can have their fee covered by a sponsoring company. No sponsors have been signed up yet.

Consumers have flocked online as an easy way to obtain detailed information about diseases affecting them and their family. Doctors have complained about patient queries sparked by questionable material found on the Internet.

Medem.com will offer the same news and information available online from sites such as drkoop.com and America Online's Health Channel, but the physician groups say their credibility gives them an advantage.

Medem, based in San Francisco, also hopes to attract consumers by providing a direct link to Web sites of physicians who sign up for the service. Through the link, medem.com will provide patients a secure service so patients and physicians can communicate via e-mail.

"Medem.com will give our patients access to information they can trust and information they can use with their physicians in order to improve their health care," said Dr. H. Dunbar Hoskins Jr., chairman of the Medem board of directors and executive vice president of the American Academy of Ophthalmology. "We felt much of the information being delivered on the Internet was inaccurate and out of context."

Analysts say the for-profit initiative will have trouble attracting consumers because of the unfamiliar name of medem.com, its relatively late arrival on the Internet scene and the AMA's close connection to doctors rather than patients.

"They are facing an enormous amount of competition online that's already gone down the learning curve to acquire and retain customers," said Claudine Singer, an Internet analyst with Jupiter Communications in New York.

Other major health-related Web sites include Intellihealth.com, WebMD.com and healtheon.com, all of which have been available for more than a year.

Along with the AMA and the ophthalmology academy, the other groups participating are: the American Academy of Pediatrics; the American College of Allergy, Asthma & Immunology; the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists; the American Psychiatric Association; and the American Society of Plastic Surgeons.

Italian man charged

MIAMI (AP) — An Italian citizen has been charged with sexual misconduct over an incident involving an American woman while the two were passengers on a cruise ship.

The federal indictment accuses Salvatore DeRosa of Naples, Italy, of committing abusive sexual contact on Oct. 16 during a voyage of the Carnival Cruise Line's MS Destiny in U.S. territorial waters.

Details about the alleged incident were not disclosed in a statement released Thursday by the U.S. Attorney's Office.

It was unclear if DeRosa was already in custody, or if officials would decide to seek him abroad.

Opponents target Bush for skipping Republican debate

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Next time, Gov. George W. Bush's rivals for the Republican presidential nomination will be debating against him instead of about him.

"I'm sure Gov. Bush will be very active in this campaign, particularly since we're moving up so rapidly in the polls," said Sen. John McCain, who trails Bush but is gaining.

McCain said he'd have preferred to have Bush participate in the forum at Dartmouth College on Thursday night because New Hampshire voters deserved it.

The Arizona senator, publisher Steve Forbes, conservative activist Gary Boer, commentator Alan Keys and Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah went ahead without Bush, meeting for the second time in a week in a 60-minute question-and-answer format.

They sparred at times, but it was no slugfest as they stated their positions on taxes, abortion and assorted other issues, without much argument. It was not direct debate. They got questions in turn, 90 seconds to answer, no rebuttal time.

In the New Hampshire polls, McCain trails Bush by 12 to 16 points. The others are far behind, registering in single digits. McCain said he does not discount them, recalling that he was down there, too, not long ago.

But he says he is gaining traction, and he sought to add to it Thursday night by sticking to his message of reform, a point he made on almost every question put to him. He said patients' medical rights, school voucher funding, money to meet the needs of military families, and his standard, political finances, are all in need of reform that can't happen until the power of special interest money is curbed.

"Perhaps in the future, at a forum like this, if we call it a fund-raiser he might show up," said the magazine heir, who is financing his own campaign.

Bush already has said he will come to the Republicans' debate in Manchester, N.H., on Dec. 2. And the absentee got a solo interview on WMUR-TV, a local station, two hours before the hourlong debate it co-sponsored with CNN.

He said he regretted missing it, but preferred to be at a ceremony honoring his wife, Laura, at Southern Methodist University in Dallas. "I'm sorry I'm not there, I look forward to the debates, I've got a lot to say," Bush said.

"I know I've got a lot of work to do, I take nothing for granted," he said.

Only a front-runner would get that TV treatment. But it also showed that Bush is wary of the absentee argument against him. His campaign issued statements explaining his absence. He had planned to stay out of debates until January.

Bauer did take a slap at Forbes on another point, saying that his proposed flat tax would favor corporations over families. "Gary, you're wrong," Forbes countered.

McCain urged Republican openness to differences on the abortion issue, repeating that he is firmly opposed to the practice. None of the more conservative candidates challenged him on it.

"We can have respectful disagreements on specific issues, and we can work together on this one," he said of the party's most divisive social policy dispute.

Vice President Al Gore and former New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley, the Democratic candidates, met in their first question-and-answer debate Wednesday night. When the moderator at the GOP forum asked who in that crowd had watched the Democrats, McCain's hand was one of those that went up.

McCain said the Democratic contest might have a bearing on his, because about one-third of New Hampshire voters are independents and can vote in either party primary on Feb. 1. So independents could be pivotal. "Sen. Bradley is appealing to a lot of independents," he said before the debate. "I am, too."

Individual acts of love must conquer society's racial hate

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1999 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: If you have been reading this column for the last two days, you will have seen that racism is an issue that troubles many of us. Today will be my last in this series.

DEAR ABBY: You can't teach your children to be on the defensive, as one of your black readers wrote, without having these children looking for discrimination. A basic law of physics teaches us that for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction. In life, sometimes there's an overreaction. Our best defenses against discrimination are education, patience, understanding and time. And remember, we educate our children every day, by our words, our deeds, our values — and most of all — by our thoughts.

ANDERSON, S.C., READER

DEAR READER: That's true. Children form their attitudes by watching their parents — often when the parents don't realize they are being watched. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am a bus driver and have had the opportunity to meet white racists and black racists — and believe me, there are both.

The vast majority of people are not prejudiced. They are cautious, as well they should be. The whites, blacks, reds and yellows mostly want to just be accepted as another person on this planet.

We aren't going to become color-blind, ethnic-blind or religious-blind just by snapping our fingers and passing a couple of laws. We can only control ourselves, and hope that our own attitude will rub off on those around us. May God have mercy on us if this attitude isn't one of love.

PROUD MINNESOTAN

DEAR ABBY: Martin Luther King Jr. once said: "People don't get along because they fear each other. People fear each other because they don't know each other. They don't know each other because they have not properly communicated with each other."

We must begin to communicate with each other. No matter how much it hurts or how bad it sounds, we must begin the dialogue of truth, facts, feelings, misunderstanding and understanding. The solutions to all our problems are found in us.

Now is the time to make the decisions necessary to bring about closure and healing. The survival of our nation depends on it. In our homes, at work, at school and in our everyday lives, we must be about destroying the hate that is destroying America. We can never heal the hurt and pain within our nation until we've healed the hurt and pain within ourselves. Removing racism and discrimination from our society must begin with one person at a time. It must start with me — then with you.

LARRY D. HARRIS, NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR ABBY: The world is a vastly different place than it once was, although the vestiges of our past remain. The only way to end racism in our society is for each individual to take responsibility for his or her own emotions and actions, and to act in a way that is fair to all concerned. You can find hate in a lot of places — sometimes without looking very hard. But you can also find friends.

MICHELLE IN GALVESTON, TEXAS

DEAR MICHELLE: I agree. Regardless of skin color or ethnicity, our aspirations are very similar. We want to be liked and respected as individuals; we want our children to do as well or better than we have. It's the American Dream.

We live in an increasingly diverse society, and if we can value each other and live in harmony it will greatly enrich us. If we cannot, then greed and suspicion will drive us apart. The choice is ours.

Two-day auction of actress' belongings tops $13.4 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Bidders hoping to get a piece of Marilyn Monroe memorabilia once again drove up prices on everything from books and scripts to furniture and clothing. A two-day auction of her belongings ended with final sales of more than $13.4 million.

The highest of the more than 500 lots auctioned Thursday was a traveling make-up case with a pre-sale estimate of between $1,000 and $1,500. The case, which included an assortment of cosmetics, sold for $266,500 to Ripley's Believe It Or Not!

Other high bids Thursday included $145,500 for a temporary driver's license issued to Monroe in California in 1956, also purchased by Ripley's, and $90,500 for the printed certificate of Monroe's conversion to Judaism signed by Monroe and husband Arthur Miller. The buyer was not identified.

Bids again soared above pre-auction estimates. A day earlier, 54 high-profile items brought in more than $5.6 million, including $1.26 million for the formfitting dress Monroe wore to serenade President Kennedy with "Happy Birthday" at a Madison Square Garden party in 1962.

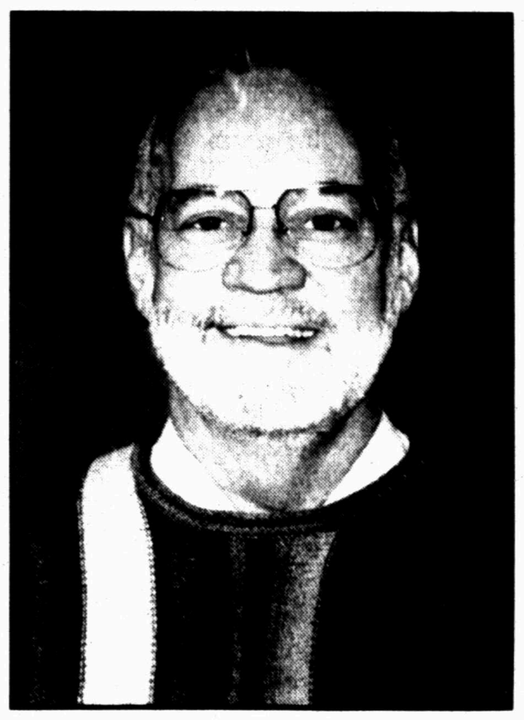

Other big-ticket items that went Wednesday included a platinum, diamond-encrusted ring given to Monroe by Joe DiMaggio ($772,500) and a baby grand piano once owned by Monroe's mother ($632,500).

Big 12 gearing up for crucial contests

By The Associated Press

With all Big 12 teams prepping for conference games on Saturday, the league's oldest and most-contested rivalry heats up again as the weekend's highlight game.

The Nebraska (6-1, 3-1 Big 12) and Kansas (3-5, 1-3 Big 12) match-up Saturday game at Lawrence caps a series which opened in 1892.

Nebraska brings in a 30-game string of victories against KU, while the Jayhawks hope to break an eight-quarter scoreless streak vs. the Huskers.

Texas kicks off the Big 12 weekend with their game against Iowa State — a two-game series the Longhorns lead at 2-0.

Both squads move the ball extremely well on offense, but Iowa State's rushing attack (264.6 yards per game) will show off its six-place national ranking in the Big 12 TV Game of the Week at Ames, Iowa.

In other games, Texas Tech (4-3, 3-1 Big 12) takes on Missouri (3-4, 0-4 Big 12) at Columbia.

The Red Raiders have adjusted the offense after a season-ending injury to All-America RB Ricky Williams and making up in receiving shortcomings.

Missouri has also tinkered with offense after replacing eight starters, including four-year starting QB Corby Jones and star RB Devin West.

Kansas State (7-0, 4-0 Big 12), a star in NCAA DI-ATop rankings, plays Baylor (1-6, 0-4 Big 12).

KSU is first in the division's pass efficiency defense (68.2 rating), fourth in scoring offense (40.8 points per game) and fifth in scoring defense (11.7).

The Bears improved their passing game at the start of the year with a potential school-record passing percentage near 60.

Oklahoma (4-2, 2-1 Big 12 Conference) travels to Boulder for their game against pass-happy Colorado (4-3, 3-1 Big 12).

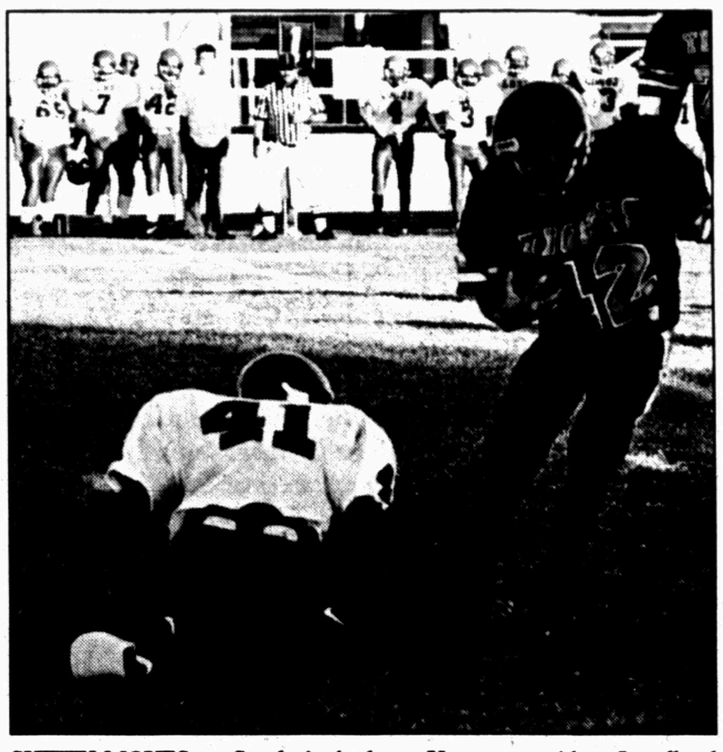

In fact both teams are likely to make a lot of throws as Oklahoma completes 66.1 percent of its passes (187-for-283, 2,069 yards).

Oklahoma State (3-3, 1-2 Big 12) travels to College Station for their match-up with Texas A&M (5-2, 2-2 Big 12).

The Aggies — ranked in the Top 25 nationally — will turn on a big play passing attack averaging 16.1 yards per completion.

Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum goes for his 100th win as a head coach.

SHS freshmen race past Lobos in finale

Snyder scored early, late and often Thursday night, running over the Levelland Lobos, 48-13, in freshman football action at Tiger Stadium.

Billy Pena registered three of the Tigers' four first-half touchdowns. The powerful fullback rumbled in from three yards out, and hauled in a 70-yard scoring toss from Colby Driggers to give Snyder a 14-0 advantage. Pena booted both extra points.

Trey Roland extended the lead when he grabbed a 10-yard TD pass from Logan Hill. Pena's kick was true for a 21-0 margin.

Snyder stretched the deficit to 27-0 at halftime when Pena found the endzone on a five-yard run.

Levelland trimmed the tally to 27-7 early in the third quarter, before Driggers leaned across from a yard out to rebuild the lead. Pena plunged in for the two-point conversion.

Snyder's defense turned offensive when Junior Martinez and Michael Murphy forced a fumble, and Chance Greenwood returned it 60 yards for a touchdown. The Pena kick ran the score to 42-7.

Josh Gutierrez had an interception for the Tigers.

Snyder finishes its season with a record of 5-4-1.

5 Rangers file for free agency

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball shifted immediately into business mode in the hours following the World Series, with Atlanta's Otis Nixon among the 20 players who filed for free agency on the first day.

Cowboys change helmets for safety

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are turning to a new, lightweight helmet in the hope that it will reduce the risk players face of head and neck injuries.

The new headgear, designed by the Southern Impact Research Center of Knoxville, Tenn., and made by Bike, are 1.5 pounds lighter than the standard, 4.9-pound helmet.

Miami Dolphins trainer Tony Egues, who serves on an NFL board that studies concussions and head trauma, says the lighter helmet can help reduce the number of concussions and neck injuries.

"In the fourth quarter, muscle fatigue occurs and players hang their heads lower," Egues told The Dallas Morning News. "With lighter helmets, they can keep their heads higher, which reduces the impact to the cervical spine."

The Dolphins already are using the new helmet, which features a shell containing two types of foam padding. Similar helmets are also gaining widespread use at the high-school and collegiate levels.

The helmets were expected to arrive Friday.

Eigth grade gridders fall to Steers

Snyder ran up against a herd of angry Steers Thursday night, as the Tigers dropped a pair of eighth grade football games to Big Spring at Travis Field.

Snyder Gold had some success through the air, but couldn't punch it into the endzone, falling 24-0 to the Steers.

Boicy Martinez nabbed a pair of receptions for 52 yards, with Isaac Ramon hauling in another for 11 yards. All three passes came from Marcus Villarreal.

David Fitts led the Tigers on the ground with 47 yards on nine carries, and Jacob Rodriguez recovered a fumble.

Snyder Gold finishes its season with a 4-4 mark.

"I'm really proud of how these kids improved over the year," Snyder coach Derek Price said. "This same group of kids went 1-7 last year, but they worked hard and came a long way this season."

Snyder's defense turned offensive when Junior Martinez and Michael Murphy forced a fumble, and Chance Greenwood returned it 60 yards for a touchdown. The Pena kick ran the score to 42-7.

Josh Gutierrez had an interception for the Tigers.

But that would be all the points Snyder could muster. Despite a strong effort from Jon Thomas and his defensive mates, the Steers reeled off 24 unanswered points for the win.

Davis Love leads field at Tour Championship

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman wore knickers. The plane pulled a banner. Black ribbons were everywhere. The memory of Payne Stewart was so pervasive in the first round of the Tour Championship that Davis Love III quit trying to avoid it.

When he tapped in for a bogey at the end of a sad, strange and sometimes shocking first round Thursday, Love found himself at 7-under 100 through 27 holes and in the lead by one stroke over Tiger Woods.

And he couldn't have cared less.

"The focus is not on us, not on the tournament and not on the scores," Love said. "It's on the loss of a lot of fathers and husbands."

Three days after Stewart and five others were killed in a freak plane crash, the top 29 players on the PGA Tour tried to get back to work on at Champions Golf Club.

And that's just what it was.

"It just didn't excite me," Love said. "The fun doesn't last very long. It was more like work."

That might not be the hard part.

The most gut-wrenching day of the $5 million Tour Championship could come today when no golf is played. Instead, most of the field planned to be in Orlando, Fla., for Stewart's memorial service.

"It's going to be tough to come back on Saturday," Tom Lehman said.

Dr. Gott by Peter Gott, M.D.

Why does pressure vary arm to arm?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: The blood pressure in my right arm is 50 to 100 points higher than that in my left. Why?

DEAR READER: Because the arterial circulation is a free-flowing hydraulic system, the pressure within it does not ordinarily vary from arm to arm, arm to leg, or leg to leg. Small differences in blood pressure recordings are usually due to normal fluctuating blood pressure or to technical differences in how the pressure is recorded. For instance, a person with a thin arm will appear to have a lower blood pressure than a thick-armed individual, because the larger arm requires a pressure cuff that is wider in order to record an accurate figure.

In your case, however, the difference between the arms is significant and suggests a condition called subclavian stenosis. Occasionally, such patients will exhibit a higher right arm pressure because of narrowing of the subclavian artery (or the aorta) that feeds the left arm. Such a narrowing causes an elevated pressure in the right arm but not in the left. It is a dangerous condition and can lead to stroke unless the constriction is surgically corrected. Most doctors are alert to this possibility; this is the reason we take blood-pressure recordings in each arm if the pressure on the right side is elevated.

Subclavian stenosis (or aortic narrowing) is unusual. I have seen but two cases in my 30 years of practice. However, once it is discovered, it can be treated and permanently cured. The diagnosis is made by special tests, including magnetic resonance artiography.

I suggest that you discuss your discrepant readings with your doctor. If he or she verifies your figures, you will need further testing.

To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my new and completely updated Health Report "Hypertension." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My sister lives in South America and was recently diagnosed with an unusual skin disease called pemphigus vulgaris. What is this condition?

DEAR READER: This affliction, which is also present in northern climates, is unusual, serious and sometimes known as Brazilian wildfire. The cause is unknown. The disease is marked by the sudden appearance of skin blisters that may involve large areas of the body, eventually burst and peel (like burns), leaving the patient unprotected and susceptible to secondary infection.

Pemphigus is associated with circulating antibody proteins that attack normal skin. Therefore, it is considered to be one of several auto-immune diseases, in which people become allergic to their own, normal tissues.

Pemphigus vulgaris once carried a 95 percent fatality rate. Now, however, with steroid and cortisone therapy, it is entirely treatable.

Cleveland mayor orders high school closed following threat

CLEVELAND (AP) — Authorities ordered a high school closed today after they uncovered an apparent plot by students to stage "violent acts" there.

According to a published report today, several South High School students admitted planning an attack with guns and explosives, similar to the one carried out by two students at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colo., last April.

"We're talking about a plan to disrupt the school with violent acts," Mayor Michael R. White said Thursday night at a news conference at City Hall.

A South High student learned of the plot Wednesday morning and alerted her parents. One of the parents notified the school, The Plain Dealer reported today, citing a source close to the investigation. The school has 1,500 students.

On Thursday, some students dressed in black got the attention of school security officers. They were questioned about the rumored attack and were sent home with parents, the newspaper said.

At Columbine, Eric Harris, 18, and Dylan Klebold, 17, killed 13 people and wounded 23 others at the school on April 20 before killing themselves.

South High's homecoming game and dance scheduled for tonight were canceled.

Police and school security checked the high school locker by locker Thursday night for weapons and explosive devices, White said. None were found.

White said some "documents" that were found Thursday appear to be evidence of a planned attack. He refused to specify what those documents were. Eleven students at the school face possible disciplinary action, the mayor said.

Execution hinges on woman's confession

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Richard C. Johnson was scheduled to die today for killing a state trooper, but his execution has been put on hold following a controversial confession from a Nebraska woman.

Johnson, 36, faced lethal injection for the September 1985 shooting death of Bruce K. Smalls during a traffic stop. Johnson, of Morehead City, N.C., also was convicted of killing a Virginia man who had given him and two other hitchhikers a ride.

The South Carolina Supreme Court on Thursday stayed the execution in response to statements from Connie Hess, a fellow traveler of Johnson's whose testimony was used to convict him.

Recanting last week in a sworn affidavit, Hess said it was she, not Johnson, who killed the trooper. She also said the third hitchhiker killed the Virginia man. Johnson was given a life sentence for the driver's slaying.

Hess, who was 17 at the time, said she confessed now to ease her conscience. She said she lied originally because "the solicitor told me I would fry" if she committed the crime.

The justices said they needed more time to examine the case and promised to rule no later than Nov. 10.

John Blume, Johnson's lawyer, called the delay "a good sign," but added: "I would hesitate to read too much into it."

Hess' confession is complicated by her history of mental illness, state Attorney General Charlie Condon said. Hess lives in a Norfolk, Neb., supervised facility for the mentally ill, and all evidence in the case shows Johnson to be the trooper's killer, he said.

"We want every last question that the court may have in this case answered satisfactorily before the execution is carried out," he said.

The trooper's mother, Thelma Blue, appealed to Gov. Jim Hodges to give clemency to Johnson.

"Killing Mr. Johnson if he is innocent would be an abomination," she wrote.

Also Thursday, the U.S. Supreme Court granted a stay an hour before Virginia planned to execute a 31-year-old man for robbing and killing a couple in 1993. The justices agreed to hear the appeal of Michael W. Williams.

Barbara Hartung, one of his attorneys, said the court agreed to consider portions of the 1996 Anti-Terrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act, a wide-ranging law passed after the Oklahoma City federal building was bombed in 1995. The law generally limits the circumstances under which state inmates can make federal appeals.

And in Texas, a man convicted of raping and fatally beating a 94-year-old woman as she watered her flowers was executed by injection Thursday.

Domingo Cantu, 31, was the 28th inmate executed in Texas this year and the 82nd nationwide, the most since 83 were put to death in 1952.

2 arrested when teen girls run away

LAKE JACKSON (AP) — Two people have been arrested on charges that they persuaded two teenage girls to run away to Mexico to escape turn-of-the century doomsday predictions.

Tara Burmeister, 22, and her husband, James Nelson, 28, face two misdemeanor charges each of harboring a runaway and enticing a child. They were arrested in Dallas on a routine traffic stop and then taken to Lake Jackson.

The five-week disappearance of the teen-agers led citizens to tie yellow ribbons around oak trees to show their concern after the girls' parents said they believed the teen-agers were abducted by religious cultists.

The FBI assisted in returning the girls to Texas after they called their parents from a pay telephone in Parral, Mexico.

The 15-year-old girls left behind handwritten letters telling their parents that God told them to leave.

After being brought back home, the girls told authorities the adults told them of an impending nuclear holocaust and the potential for a Y2K disaster.

The girls, described as church-going Christians, said they were told Mexico was considered a safe refuge and that there was the possibility of doing missionary work.

The class A misdemeanor charge of harboring a runaway could result in a one-year jail term and a $4,000 fine for each of them. Enticing a child is a class B misdemeanor carrying a possible 180 days in jail and a $2,000 fine.

Crash kills 21 people

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A Pakistan navy aircraft crashed today during a reconnaissance flight, killing all 21 military personnel on board, said a navy official.

The P-3C Orion American-made aircraft was over the coastal regions of southwestern Baluchistan province when it crashed, said officials.

The cause of the crash was not immediately known.

The aircraft disappeared from radar screens shortly after it took off this morning, officials said.

A search and rescue operation was launched and the wreckage of the aircraft was found six hours later near Pasni in Baluchistan.

Columbine killings re-enacted during new haunted house

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — A haunted house featuring a re-enactment of the Columbine school shootings was briefly shut down after sheriff's deputies confiscated two guns organizers had used as props.

A judge on Thursday allowed The Potter's House Christian Center to re-open its haunted house as long as it agreed to remove the real guns and post extra security.

Pastor Henry Houghton stressed that the guns had only been used as props and that they were loaded with blanks.

Houghton said the church is using the Columbine skit, complete with earsplitting gunshots, to scare teens and others into accepting Jesus.

The depiction is similar to one at "Hell House" at Trinity Church in Cedar Hill, Texas, which sparked anger this week among some in Littleton, Colo.

Two young gunmen killed 13 fellow students and a teacher at Columbine High School before killing themselves last April. More than 20 other people were wounded.

The skits feature young actors dressed in trench coats re-enacting the shooting. It ends with the gunmen being sent to hell.

Nancy Shakowski, a parent of two Columbine students, said she was "repulsed" by the notion of Columbine being used in a haunted house display.

Trinity's youth pastor, Tim Ferguson, has said he must scare teen-agers in order to save them from sin and another attack like the one at Columbine. Houghton said The Potter's House skit is intended to get a similar message across.

"We're doing this to present the gospel," Houghton said. "It's the world we live in. ... Yes, we're trying to scare them. But they see twice this much violence on TV every week."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Any inequities in arrangements you need to make with others today could set the stage for future problems. It can be easily defused by establishing fairness through setting a fair example.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even if a friend is getting the better end of a bargain today, put friendship above your materialistic concerns. No need to worry, all will balance out in the long run.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you know in your heart that you are extending your best effort today, don't be fretful over what associates may or may not think. Performance, not appearances is what really counts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The way to defuse a wily antagonist who tries to put you down in front of friends today is to treat his or her comments with indifference, like someone firing a pop gun at a battleship.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might not be able to so in one fell swoop, but something that has been disturbing you can be changed for the better today by taking things one step at a time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Criticism or finger pointing never resolves anything, so should a violation of a friend require discussion today, say what needs said with tenderness and understanding.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be on guard today so that you're not taken advantage of by some unscrupulous character who crosses your path. Unfortunately, not everyone is as honest as you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) One of your greatest assets today is your ability to awaken a spirit of cooperation in others. You have always known that enthusiasm is what propels helpfulness.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When you are motivated by unselfish actions today, situations will work out far better than you or anyone else anticipates. Be a giver, not a taker at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A pal who lacks your talent for fitting in with the ease you do in unfamiliar groups and surroundings may be envious of you today. Do what you can to include him or her into the activity.

The knowledge usually helps

By Phillip Alder

What did George Bernard Shaw feel "stamps a man at once as an educated gentleman"?

South cruises into three no-trump. West leads his fourth-highest heart, the six. How should declarer plan the play? Do you agree with North's use of Stayman to try to find a 4-4 spade fit?

Taking the second question first, there are some experts who recommend never using Stayman with 4-3-3-3 distribution. Still, if your count is only just enough for game — about nine points — there is a case for hunting out the suit fit. If the opener has a weak doubleton, four of a major might make when three no-trump fails. Here, though, with 12 points, I would just jump to three no-trump.

South played low from the dummy at trick one, East winning with his queen and returning his second heart. Then, when declarer took the diamond finesse, he lost five tricks: four hearts and one diamond.

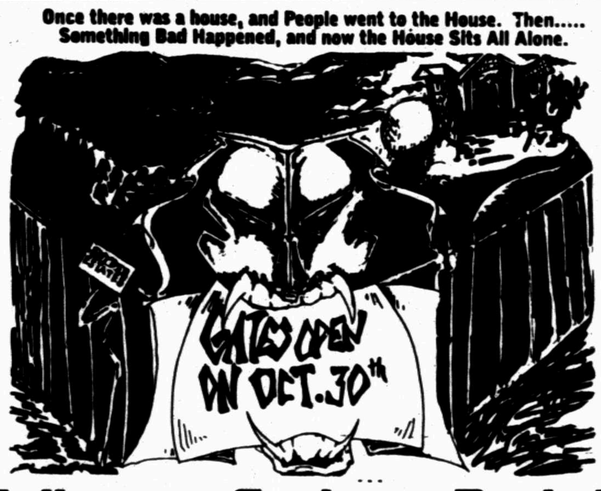

If the hearts are breaking 4-3, it doesn't matter what South does. But what if the suit is 5-2? Then East rates to have queen- or king-doubleton. And if that is the position, declarer survives by winning the first trick with dummy's heart ace. Then he takes the diamond finesse. It loses, but the heart suit is blocked.

True, if West has king-queen-fifth of hearts and the diamond king, South needs to play low from the dummy at trick one, but that is against the odds. For one thing, West might have led the king, not low.

Shaw was of the opinion that knowing Greek marked a man — or woman, I trust — as educated.

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:

Seventeen (17) days after this publication the City of Snyder intends to request the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs (TDHCA) to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-383), for Project No. 719779 to be used for the following project: Construction of 19,100 linear feet of water line, fire hydrants, and service connections in the North and Central areas of the City.

Finding of No Significant Impact

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and accordingly the above named City of Snyder has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (P.L. 91-190). The reason for such a decision not to prepare such Statement is based upon the fact that all environmental concerns could either be minimized or mitigated.

An Environmental Review Record for the proposed project has been made by the City of Snyder which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the office of the City Manager, City of Snyder, 1925 24th Street, Snyder, Texas 79550 and is available for public examination and copying upon request between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City to the address set forth above. Such written comments must be received at the address specified within sixteen (16) days after this publication. All such comments so received will be considered and the City will not request the release of funds or take any administrative action on the project prior to the date specified in the preceeding sentence.

Release of Funds

The City of Snyder will undertake the project described above with Community Development Block Grant under Title I from its program year 1999 under grant numbered 719779 from the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The City of Snyder is certifying to TDHCA that Dayton Robertson, in his official capacity as Mayor, consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the City of Snyder may use the Block Grant funds and it will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. TDHCA will accept an objection to its approval only on one or more of the bases and the procedures described in 24 CFR Part 58.75. Objections are to be addressed to the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs, P.O. Box 13941, Austin, Texas 78711.

Objections to the release of funds on bases other than one of those stated above will not be considered by TDHCA. No objection received later than thirty-three (33) days after this publication will be considered by TDHCA. The Chief Executive Officer of the City of Snyder is Dayton Robertson.

Navy Blue Angels jet...

Investigators examine wreck

MOODY AIR FORCE BASE, Ga. (AP) — Investigators are examining the wreckage of a Navy Blue Angels jet to determine why its landing approach during a clear noon hour ended in a stand of pines, killing its two crewmen.

The F/A-18 Hornet crashed during a training flight on Thursday on a farm about three miles north of Moody Air Force Base in southern Georgia. The precision flying team canceled a performance at Moody this weekend and planned to return today to its home base in Pensacola, Fla.

"The team is obviously in mourning right now," Cmdr. Jack Penn, a Navy spokesman in Pensacola, said today. "The town here in Pensacola is grieving too."

Penn said two Naval investigators arrived at Moody late Thursday and were examining the wreckage today.

Pentagon spokesman Ken Bacon said the Navy would search aggressively for any procedural or maintenance problems that could have caused the crash.

"This is its premier flying team, a team that performs to the amazement and pleasure of crowds all over the United States," Bacon said. "You can be sure the Navy will do whatever it can to make sure that this team is at the very top of its ability to fly."

Killed in the crash were Lt. Commander Kieron O'Connor, 35, of Burtonsville, Md., and Lt. Kevin Colling, 32, of Castle Rock, Colo., said their flight leader, Cmdr. Patrick Driscoll.

O'Connor had been with the 14-member team since last November, while Colling had joined recently and was being trained, Driscoll said.

"I had the privilege of flying with both these pilots in the fleet," Driscoll said. "They are two of the best naval aviators I know. This is a tragic loss to the families, to the Blue Angels and the U.S. Navy."

O'Connor was profiled in a recent issue of "The World of Hibernia," a magazine about Ireland and the Irish around the world. He recalled watching the precision aviators as a child. Joining the team was a "dream," he said.

"I first saw the Blue Angels when I was only 8 years old. I still recall what watching them perform did for me," he said.

The flying team, based in Pensacola, Fla., has six F-18 Hornets that execute high-speed acrobatics.

At the time of the crash, the jets were not in formation and were circling to practice arrival procedures as the pilots familiarized themselves with the terrain, Driscoll said. The jet that crashed was in the vicinity of another, but not as close as the aircraft usually fly during performances, Driscoll said.

Harry Cooper, a 55-year-old farmer, said he heard the crash from his home about a half-mile away.

"I thought maybe one got a little fast and went through the sound barrier," Cooper said

Budget showdown looms as last spending bill approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans moved another step toward an inevitable budget showdown with President Clinton, passing and sending to the Senate the last spending bill of the year in the face of a certain veto.

"We've put our mark on it, he'll put his mark on it in the form of a veto, and that's when negotiations really start," House Appropriations Committee Chairman Bill Young, R-Fla., said Thursday after the House passed a huge bill to fund the District of Columbia and the health and labor departments.

The spending measure, approved on a near party-line 218-211 vote, also carried a 0.97 percent across-the-board cut in federal agencies' budgets, which Clinton has said he would not accept. Senate passage was expected early next week.

It was the last of the 13 spending bills needed to fund the government in fiscal 2000, which began Oct. 1. Congress already has passed and Clinton has signed two short-term measures that have kept the government running nearly a month into the new year.

Neither the Republican-led Congress nor the president was ready to let the budget fight produce a federal shutdown.

So Clinton today signed a measure letting federal agencies function through Nov. 5 as the two sides work through their differences. The House had passed the extension by a 424-2 vote; Senate passage was by voice vote.

Picking his own battles, Clinton acknowledged what has been a political fact in Washington for many weeks: That his proposals to extend the solvency of Medicare and Social Security, and create a new Medicare prescription drug benefit, would have to wait until next year.

"I think they're making a big mistake," Clinton said of GOP opposition to handling those matters in Congress' few remaining weeks of 1999. He added, "We can come back to all that early next year."

Thursday activity includes one arrest

One arrest was made Thursday and one offense report filed in a light day of activity for local law enforcement officials.

Deputies took a 20-year-old male into custody at 9:55 p.m. in the 6200 block of College for public intoxication.

Lena Clark spoke to officers at 1:15 p.m. at the police department in reference to the theft of her wallet. Officers filed a report for Class B theft.

A two-vehicle accident occurred at 10:11 p.m. in the 5400 block of College Avenue.

Involved were a 1993 Pontiac Grand Am driven by Kristen Leigh Harless, 16, of 8612 Blockline Road in Ira and a 1998 Plymouth Neon driven by Elizabeth Colleen Covey, 19, of 5210 Etgen Blvd.

Hershey's delayed due to problems with new computers

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Problems involving a new computer system have disrupted distribution of Hershey's chocolates, so some little ghosts and goblins will be disappointed — or snacking on rival Mars bars — come Halloween.

Hershey Foods Corp., the nation's largest candymaker, announced a 16 percent drop in third-quarter earnings per share earlier this week. Hershey Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Kenneth L. Wolfe acknowledged that the company's distribution woes have led to lost sales and increased costs.

He said the company had hoped to get customer service back to normal by the end of the month but that the goal would not be met. He said the company still expects to improve through the end of the year.

He gave few details, but The Wall Street Journal reported today that spot shortages of Hershey's products have prompted many stores to replace their usual supplies of the company's candies with other brands.

Sales have increased for rivals like Mars Inc. and Nestle USA without any special promotions to boost sales, the newspaper said. Some customers, industry analysts said they believe the problems could persist.
