By North Korean Missile Attack...

Surveillance Flights Will Not Be Stopped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Surveillance flights will not be stopped by North Korea's missile attack on a U.S. spy plane and the United States may shoot back or launch a counterattack if it happens again, the Reagan administration says.

Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III declined Thursday to detail what steps might be taken in the event of another attack but said firing back is a possibility.

Support aircraft might be assigned to protect spy planes, which also could take action themselves, he said.

"One hypothetical option would be to take out the source of the missile" or launch a counterattack, Meese said at a news conference in Oakland, Calif.

In Santa Barbara, Calif., deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Meese was "reflecting the president's policy."

The Defense Department said a surface-to-air missile from a site in North Korea was fired Wednesday at an Air Force SR-71, a high-altitude "Blackbird" spy plane equipped with very sensitive cameras. The Pentagon said the plane was in South Korean and international air space.

North Korea today denied it fired a missile at a high-flying U.S. reconnaissance plane on Wednesday, but claimed the spy plane had "infiltrated" its airspace.

"While constantly perpetrating espionage acts against the northern half of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, today the U.S. imperialist aggressors fabricated a lie to slander us and veil their criminal nature," North Korea's official Korean Central News Agency said in Pyongyang's first public comment on the incident.

KCNA described the overflight as an "espionage act" by the United States, and said it was "part of the maneuvers to aggravate tension and start a new war in Korea..."

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger vowed Thursday that the attack would not deter the United States from continuing such flights.

"What is necessary to be done in connection with the gathering of information will not be changed as a result of this incident," he said.

The State Department called the shooting "an act of lawlessness, which constitutes a violation of international law, the Korean Armistice Agreement and accepted norms of international behavior."

Hospital Board Approves Report

The Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board of Managers last night approved the administrator's monthly report which was the only action item on the agenda.

The financial report continues to run slightly over $250,000 in the red for the year, and Cy Miller, administrator, reported that there still is a backlog of more than $300,000 in Medicare payments. In recent weeks, the Medicare receipts have been kept current, but much of the backlog from last spring still exists.

Miller also reported that staff schedules at the hospital are being reviewed in an effort to attract more nurses. He said a number of other hospitals have adjusted shifts and made various changes in efforts to keep adequate staffs on duty.

Also, Miller said repairs were being made to the clinic building, where some walls had cracked. Miller said architects and contractors attributed the problem to shifting of soil under the building.

The manager's report showed an average daily patient census of 64 for the month of July. The average for the year is 69.

Rex Robinson, chairman of the board, presided over the meeting. Other board members attending were Sam Cross, Roy Kidd, Leon Autry, John Jarrell and A. Z. Glover.

Ask Us

Q.—Why was the list of school supplies that was distributed before the term began not accurate?

A.—It was the only list available and school officials say that it is virtually impossible to assemble a flawless list in advance. Not only each school, but each teacher may require items different from others. "With a number of new teachers coming in and others changing their lists after attending workshops in the summer, it is impossible to get complete lists in advance from all of them," said Supt. Bill J. Hood. And school officials want the teachers themselves to select the supplies they desire for teaching rather than have a stereoptyed situation for all.

The SDN Column

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Preachers, like other people, are football fans. And preachers, like other people, have dreams. So it was that Doug Manning, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Hereford who also writes a column for the Hereford Brand, came up with an interesting story the other day.

"I went to sleep dreaming of the new football season," said Manning. "It had been a long summer and I needed a 'fix.' I can only go so long without my Dallas Cowboys. I had received my copy of the Cowboy Weekly and begun my annual countdown to kickoff time.

"I went to sleep with visions of long touchdown runs and great passes. Then the dream started. I dreamed Ralph Nader bought the Cowboys. Somehow the great 'champion of consumerism' decided to move into where the real consumer lives.

"In my dream, Ralph and his Raiders immediately charged into football with the same gusto they have shown in all of their other projects.

"It became immediately apparent that football must be changed. You could not expect people who gave us those irritating buzzers in cars to leave football alone.

"Ralph decided the armor plating worn by the players was inadequate. He put a big rubber bumper on the helmets. Then he put the players in inflatable protective suits. Tony Dorsett looked like the Michelin tire man. They had to pull him down from the sky....he was floating too near the Goodyear Blimp!

"Ralph decided the stands were not safe. Therefore, the people in the stands had to wear helmets due to the danger of falling beer cans and bubble gum. The danger of smoke inhalation promoted smoking sections in the end zone. And of course there had to be seat belts.

"When Ralph got through, everyone was safe, but no football could be played. Ralph's solution to all of this was to get the teams together in the center of the field and play football on one of those electronic jewels. The electronic games had to be grounded to avoid shock, of course.

"The only good thing in my dream was there was no longer any action for Howard Cosell to call. Of course, that never did stop Howard!"

Property Reappraisal Notices Go Into Mail

The Scurry County Appraisal District has announced that 1981 reappraisal notices have gone into the mail.

This moves the local property tax schedule closer to the point where the taxing jurisdictions can set their rates.

Those receiving the reappraisal notices were cautioned that these notices are not tax statements and that the property owners are not to use these to pay taxes. A tax statement will be mailed in October.

The reappraisal notices show the following:

1. The 1980 values before any exemptions.
2. The 1980 taxes before any exemptions.
3. The 1981 appraised values and homestead exemptions.
4. The 1981 agricultural values, if applied for.
5. The 1981 estimated taxes using the 1980 rates.

If "F" appears beside the 1981 appraised value, the school tax will be "frozen" because of prior age 65 homestead exemption. However, the estimated 1981 tax does not reflect the frozen amount.

Because each taxing jurisdiction may change its tax rate for 1981, the estimated tax is not the actual tax the property owner will be assessed. It is only an estimate based on the 1980 tax rates.

All taxing jurisdictions in the county will use the appraisal district's values and all taxes will be collected by the county tax office.

One Dead In Road Crash

A Sweetwater man was killed Thursday night near Dunn when his car failed to stop at an intersection and his car was crushed by a truck at about 9 p.m.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Kirby McCravey of Snyder, who investigated the crash, said Domingo Zapata, 19, who lived at 1002 West 3rd St., Sweetwater, was 10 miles south of Snyder traveling east on Farm Road 1606 in a 1976 Chevrolet Caprice Classic and ran a stop sign at the intersection of Texas Highway 208. The car was hit by a southbound 1974 Mack truck owned by C.C. Tank Rental of Colorado City, pulling an empty trailer owned by R.G. Hanks Oil Field Service. Kenneth Dwane Abbot of Colorado City was driving the truck.

The truck had only minor damage but the car was destroyed.

Zapata was pronounced dead at the scene at 9:45 p.m. by Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway of Snyder. The body was taken to Bell-Seale Funeral Home by Scurry County EMS.

Later today, the body was to be transferred to the McCoy Funeral Home in Roscoe, where funeral arrangements were pending.

A native of Coahuila, Mex., he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Zapata of Sweetwater and was an oilfield worker.

Protests Mount Against Ma Bell

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Old and sick people on fixed incomes cannot find any more money to send to Southwestern Bell each month, according to several witnesses who made emotional pleas to the Public Utility Commission.

"This is the fourth time in a row that we've had to be here to stop the largest and hungriest corporation in the world from squeezing the low and moderate income people of Texas," said Hannah Lovejoy of Houston.

The Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now (ACORN) asked PUC Hearing Examiner Carolyn Shellman on Thursday to recommend no rate hike. The phone company wants $469.8 million in increases, including a $5.45 per month jump in residential rates.

ACORN is particularly upset with Bell's "measured service" proposal, under which local bills would be calculated according to time of day, duration and distance.

Enrollment At College Reaches 925

Registration figures at Western Texas College had passed the 925 mark today, and students were continuing to sign up for fall classes, Dr. Duane Hood, director of student services, reported.

A total of 211 students were lodged in campus housing, including the dormitory complex and the three duplex apartments. However, Hood said that as of this morning, there was one place available in the dormitory.

"One student went home," Hood said. "So, anyone wanting to live in the dormitory should contact us. Every year a few will decide to leave after they get here."

Another surge in enrollment is expected next week. Some working students wait until the first of the month register. Registration will continue through Sept. 4.

Friday update

Cross-District Busing

HOUSTON (AP) — The Justice Department's decision not to continue seeking cross-district school desegregation in the Houston area will discourage others from that cause, Superintendent Billy Reagan says.

But the executive director of the Houston Teachers Association said his group will continue its appeal of a federal judge's June ruling that the Houston Independent School District is fully desegregated.

"The Justice Department decision will substantially enhance our ability to have the ruling upheld," Reagan said.

Reagan said he hoped Thursday's decision by the department "will put the metropolitan threat off of us and allow us to work even more constructively with the neighboring school districts."

Request Rejected

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The federal government has rejected a request by five Oklahoma Death Row inmates who urged that U.S. drug regulations be used to block executions by injection of lethal drugs.

Arthur Hull Hayes Jr., commissioner of the Food and Drug Administrtion, ruled in Washington that the FDA cannot declare lethal drugs illegal for executions because use of FDA-approved drugs for that purpose is "a state's choice," an Oklahoma City newspaper reported in this morning's editions.

The Daily Oklahoman reported that an internal FDA memo says the agency also was reluctant to accept control over use of drugs for executions because "it might be argued that we had control over bullets, rope and electric chairs because we do have jurisdictin over medical devices."

Arms Shipped By Lybia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Libya has shipped new supplies of Soviet-made arms and ammunition to Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon despite the month-long cease-fire in that troubled country, U.S. and Israeli sources say.

Administration officials are concerned that the deliveries by Col. Moammar Khadafy's government, which the United States has accused of supporting terrorism and subversion, could undercut the July 24 cease-fire which ended 15 days of bloody battling between Israeli and Palestinian forces.

Israel does not consider the artillery pieces and field guns as menancing to its settlements near the Lebanese border as the 130mm howitzers and BM21 rocket launchers obtained by the Palestinians before U.S. mediators helped arrange the cease-fire. But they are distressed about the steady buildup.

Man Charged For Threatening

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A man with a long history of threatening public figures has been arrested here and charged with sending letters threatening Mayor Henry Cisneros and Vice President George Bush.

John Wesley De Shazo, 43, who served five years in federal prison after pleading guilty to making similar threats against former President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1968, was taken into custody at a grocery store Thursday afternoon.

Intelligence officers had kept De Shazo under surveillance all day while state and federal arrest warrants were obtained.

Assistant Police Chief Marion Talbert said that De Shazo had a history of making threats and that identification was made from fingerprints taken from letters received at city hall this week and an "old letter" taken from the suspect's police file.

Drafts State Bill

DALLAS (AP) — The Senate judiciary subcommittee headed by Sen. Orrin Hatch has begun drafting a revised version of a proposed constitutional ban on abortion that would enable states to regulate abortion, a Dallas newspaper reported Friday.

The compromise measure is intended to broaden the political appeal of the proposed constitutional ban and is considered likely to win more votes than either current versions of the amendment or a pending bill that would outlaw the medical practice by defining life as beginning at conception, The Dallas Morning News said.

The "states rights" version might also be more palatable to the Reagan administration, which opposes abortion and endorses states rights as the foundation of a "new federalism," the newspaper said.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend of mine recently had a heart attack. He is home now from the hospital and he has started a walking program. His doctor has him taking his heart rate to tell how much exercise he should do. Is this a good way to tell how much a person is doing? What about using it to monitor yourself if you have not had a heart attack? His attack has got me thinking and I thought it would be a good idea for me to get a little more active now instead of waiting until after I had mine. If I do this, what guidelines should I follow?

DEAR READER — The heart rate is one of the best guides an individual can use during routine daily activities to tell how hard he is working his heart. Heart rate can be affected by other things such as excitement, anxiety, cigarettes, coffee but all of these responses really indicate how a person's life style affects his heart work.

The work of the heart depends upon how much blood it pumps and at what blood pressure. The heart rate is a good indicator, within limits, of how much blood the heart is pumping. And you would be smart to use it. As a general rule you might want to take your heart rate when you wake up before you get out of bed or get involved. That is your base line. Hopefully it will be below 70 a minute.

Take it again before you start walking. While you are walking you can check it again. If you are a person in good health, a rate of 120 beats a minute is adequate to cause some training of your heart. As you progress you may be able to walk faster and achieve a heart rate of 140 a minute. For older people or those with heart disease, this may be more than your doctor would like. So you should check with him if you go for higher rates. To give you more information on heart rates and their meaning I am sending you The Health Letter number 9-8, Your Heart Rate: What It Means.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

You can also use the heart rate as an indicator of what you are doing that may not be good for you. If you get excited and your heart rate jumps up, you might think about avoiding those stressful situations. And if your resting rate is on the high side, think about eliminating cigarettes, coffee and habits that cause this.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 22 years old and still have the foreskin on my penis. Because of it I am having trouble with sexual intercourse and would like to have it removed. Could you please give me some information on it and the kind of doctor to consult?

DEAR READER — If you want a circumcision see a urologist. However, I have grave doubts that is the cause of any sexual problems that you may be having. After all, there are a large number of men — in some countries, all men — who are not circumcised and who function perfectly normally. You would have to have a rather severe mechanical problem for it to be causing a limitation in that regard.

I know you won't be satisfied without an examination, though. And you might do better if all you need is some confidence and the surgery made you feel you would do better.

Year End Drop Predicted...

High Interest Rates Hurt Current Programs

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan says his administration and its economic program are being hurt just like everybody else by high interest rates stemming from the Federal Reserve System's tight-money policies.

But Reagan says the problem is temporary, caused by economic conditions inherited from the Carter administration, and is sticking to his prediction that interest rates will fall by the end of the year.

On a rare outing from the secluded ranch where he is vacationing, the president also told a California Republican gathering Thursday night that both Libyan pilots shot down by U.S. jets over the Mediterranean last week were rescued.

He also pledged to build the MX missile, although he said he hasn't decided where and how it will be based.

Interest rates, now hovering at 20 percent for short-term borrowing and at 17 percent for mortgages, have driven up the federal deficit and hampered Reagan's quest for a balanced budget by 1984.

Answering questions from the audience, Reagan said, "Let me point out one thing. The Fed is independent, and they're hurting us in what we're trying to do as much as they're hurting everyone else."

The remark appeared to refer to the Federal Reserve, the government's central bank, which has followed the administration's urging in seeking to restrict the growth of money in the belief that too rapid an expansion is inflationary.

After checking with Reagan later, however, deputy White House press secetary Larry Speakes said the president was referring to interest rates.

Reagan said interest rates have soared because the market for private capital "is strained by the fact that the federal government is going into that market and competing for this investment capital."

That's "just the plain law of supply and demand," he said.

Noting that his budget and tax cuts won't take effect until Oct. 1, Reagan said, as he has before, that he belives interest rates "will be coming down before the first of the year."

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker said last week that federal spending and the budget deficit, expected to top $60 billion for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, had to be reduced further before interest rates and inflation could come down.

Asked about last week's clash with Libyan jets, Reagan said he wasn't "macabre about any loss of life or anything" but defended the U.S. action, which came in disputed waters off the coast of Libya.

"As far as we have been able to learn, both of their pilots were picked up from the sea and there was no loss of life in that incident," Reagan said. "But it wasn't the first time that they have done things of this kind. We just feel that a principle was involved."

Administration officials said previously that at least one of the two Libyan pilots was believed to have been picked up.

Asked if he had heard from Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy since the incident, Reagan relied: "No, but I noticed he has not gone home yet. He's still traveling."

The president said he has several options on how to base the MX missile, a major part of his plan to upgrade the nation's strategic weapons system, but has yet to decide.

"I don't know where we're going to put it, but we're going to have it," he declared.

Reagan said his biggest surprise since taking office has been leaks of government information.

"I've gotten so that I address some things in the Cabinet meetings to the chandelier," he quipped. "I'm sure it must have a microphone in it."

But there has been one big pleasant surprise, too, he added: "After all the horror stories about the job, I'm kind of enjoying myself."

Interest Rates Are Side Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — High interest rates, called a side-effect of President Reagan's cure for inflation, now are showing signs of becoming the worst economic woe themselves.

The latest quarterly survey conducted for the National Federation of Independent Businesses says inflation, the leading economic enemy of the 1970s, has given way to interest rates as the top problem of companies.

The president of the National Association of Home Builders, whose members have been especially hard hit, complained this week that "exorbitantly high interest rates are replacing inflation as the nation's No. 1 problem."

And the U.S. Chamber of Commerce says it is receiving more calls about interest rates than inflation.

Some economists and politicians suspect consumers also are starting to regard interest rates as the economy's leading problem, particularly people who are unable to buy a house because of record mortgage rates.

Sen. Larry Pressler, D-S.D., said last week that interest rates could be the "sleeper issue" of the 1982 congressional elections unless they come down soon.

"I am very much concerned that we are going to be identified as the party of high interest unless the issue is addressed at a high level by the president," Pressler warned other Republicans.

Reagan acknowledged the concern Thursday night at a California GOP fundraiser but said the government suffers, too, because high interest rates drive up the federal deficit.

"They are hurting us in what we are trying to do as much as they are hurting everyone else," he said.

Worries about interest rates have intensified in the past few months because the cost of borrowing money is persisting at record levels despite a significant decline in the inflation rate.

Inflation is now running just under 10 percent a year, down from 13.3 percent in 1979 and 12.4 percent in 1980. But short-term borrowing rates are sticking at 20 percent or higher and mortgage interest rates have climbed in recent months to a record 17 percent.

Administration economists say the high rates are a painful but necessary side-effect of Reagan's plan to bring inflation down by restricting the growth of the nation's money supply.

This tight-money policy has produced high interest rates, but only temporarily, according to the administration, which insists interest rates are bound to fall sooner or later as inflation continues to recede and as the president's tax cut encourages increased personal savings that can be tapped for lending.

So far, however, high interest rates are persisting longer than the administration had expected, and businesses are starting to hurt.

"High rates are really the dog that has its teeth in a company's legs now," says William C. Dunkelberg, a Purdue University professor who surveys the 500,000 firms that belong to the National Federation of Independent Business.

Yields On Bills At Record High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yields on six-month Treasury bills are at a record high as rates on short-term government securities continue to climb.

Berry's World

"It's called a 'Qaddafi.' One drink, and you become an irresponsible troublemaker."

paul harvey

All my life I have sat at the feet of some older man hungering to make his wisdom my own.

Having known little of my father (he was killed when I was three), I have tended to adopt other fathers:

Homer McKee, the uncommonly perceptive Hoosier Philosopher.

Judge H.I. Green of Danville, Ill., who looked like a Supreme Court justice should look and had a Lincolnesque gift for reducing complexities to their elements.

More recently the late David Lawrence, publisher of U.S. News, and the reitred editor of the Wall Street Journal, Vermont Royster.

Royster, in retirement, seems even more discerning.

Let me paraphrase him on the subject of crime and the courts.

At the scene of the attempted assassination of President Reagan there was a world of witnesses.

After multiple television replays, surely most everebody had formed conclusions about whether John Hinckley Jr. was guilty.

It is going to be ultimately easy for any defense attorney to argue that any jury is prejudiced, Hinckley cannot get "a fair trial."

A "fair trial" for whom?

In current trial procedure a prospective juror may be disqualified if the lawyers think he may have knowledge or opinion about almost anything connected with the case.

That is a preversion of the jury system.

The "jurata" of Norman times, forerunner of the modern jury, were men carefully selected because they WERE familiar with the matters at issue.

In English common law jurymen were always freemen of the same county, chosen precisely because they would know something of the character and reliability of any witness—as well as of the accused.

When we drafted our Bill of Rights, the Sixth Amendment provided that the jury shall be drawn "from the state or district wherein the crime shall have been committed."

This was purposely to avoid putting the defendant's fate in the hands of some distant court knowing nothing of the acused, the circumstances, the witnesses.

Only recently has trial procedure been distorted.

Now what constitutes "a fair trial" requires a jury of ignoramuses.

Impartial has come to mean ignorance.

In our preoccupation with the rights of the accused we have neglected the rights of the victim.

What about a fair trial for them?

Mr. Royster says television coverage of historic crimes can be construed as prejudicing any prospective juror. If defendants can go free on that plea, then it's open season on presidents and popes.

Judge Favors Man In Kite Flying Case

NEW YORK (AP) — What's that — a judge saying it was OK to get high in New York City?

With his tongue planted firmly in his cheek, Criminal Court Judge Jerome Becker dismissed a summons issued to Larry Cuttitta of Brooklyn, who was cited for flying a kite too high.

"The Criminal Court finds this activity by a different type of air controller one of the few permissible and legal means of getting high in New York City without breaking the law," Becker ruled Monday.

Cuttitta was handed a summons July 26 for flying his kite 1,000 feet into the New York air. The summons, which was issued by policemen who swooped in on Cuttitta in a helicopter, alleged the high-flying kite was a hazard to aircraft.

Requires Only One Year's Training...

Practical Nurses In Demand

By CAROL DEEGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Wanted: men and women interested in working as licensed practical and vocational nurses. One year's training required. Plenty of job openings.

The National Association for Practical Nurse Education and Service Inc. says there are 700,000 licensed practical and vocational nurses in the United States. "Licensed vocational nurse" is the term used in Texas and California for a practical nurse.

About 55,000 new nurses are licensed each year, but federal statistics indicate a total of 965,000 practical nurses will be needed by 1985.

"An LPN can walk into a position in most areas of the United States," said Lucille Etheridge, executive director of the association. "The demand varies geographically. California, Washington, D.C., and Texas are desperately in need of LPNs."

There are 1,300 one-year training programs in practical nursing taught at hospitals and community colleges throughout the nation. But Mrs. Etheridge says there are few vacancies and, in some cases, waiting lists for enrollment in these programs.

She said there hadn't been enough federal funds for creation of additional training programs and any cutbacks in existing funds would create even more problems.

Another concern, she points out, is that many licensed practical nurses, as well as registered nurses, are leaving their jobs. Among the reasons, she cites lack of job satisfaction, low pay and poor working conditions.

She says that in some hospitals, for example, registered nurses do the work that practical nurses have been trained to do.

"If the LPN is utilized to her capacity, to that which she's been taught in school, and she is constantly going after more education, it would help to alleviate the shortage of licensed practical nurses and registered nurses in the country," she said.

Licensed practical and vocational nurses work in hospitals, in long-term health-care facilities, in visiting nurses programs and in private duty at patients' homes. They are generally supervised by a registered nurse, a physician or a dentist, Mrs. Etheridge said.

Their work may involve caring for mothers, newborn children and the elderly; serving in hospital operating rooms, coronary care and intensive-care units; and working in home health care, emergency and specialty areas.

A practical nurse generally earns about three-fourths of the salary of a registered nurse.

The requirements vary from state to state, but in general, persons interested in training must have a high-school diploma or its equivalent. On completion of the one-year program students must successfully pass a state licensing examination.

Mrs. Etheridge said enrollments varied, but the average age of students was 40.

Practical nursing is attractive to many women who have raised families and who are now seeking to enter or re-enter the job market, she notes. It also appeals to mothers with school-age children, because they can arrange their working hours; to college graduates who are unable to find employment; and to men who have worked as emergency medical technicians.

Tuition is low or free in some schools and scholarships are available, and the short training period is an advantage.

There is also the opportunity to obtain further education and to advance into other healthcare professions, including registered nursing, she adds.

What personal qualities must practical nurses have?

"They must like people. They need to be strong, emotionally and physically. They must be able to work with other members of the health-care team. They must have academic ability. And they must have empathy for those who are ill," Mrs. Etheridge said.

The National Association for Practical Nurse Education and Service Inc. is based in New York City. It has 25,000 members nationwide. Its goal is to develop vocational education for nurses.

South's five-club call was a distinct overbid. However, South had something going for him. A player who overbids should be able to play the dummy to best advantage and South was a great dummy player.

Of course, North's jump to four diamonds had been an overbid and his jump to six was also pushy, but South wasted no time fussing at his partner or in complaining about the club lead. On any other lead South would need a 2-1 trump break and a 4-3 spade break. After the club lead he also needed a 2-1 trump break with the jack in the West hand and that same 4-3 spade break.

Now let's see South bring the slam home. He took the first club, played dummy's ace and king of spades to discard one club. Then he ruffed a spade. Both East and West followed so spades were being friendly.

Then South led a low trump. West played the three and South finessed dummy's nine. From then on it was smooth sailing. He ruffed a spade high in order to set up the last spade. Back to dummy with the queen of trumps to discard his last club. Then he conceded a heart and claimed.

Note that South needed two quick entries to dummy. Once West followed low South would be two down if East held the club jack, but South didn't care. West might have played the four from four-three, but with jack-three he had to play the three. In other words, the odds were 2-to-1 in favor of the finesse and what's an extra trick down against taking the best play for the slam?

Good Plot To "Luciano's Luck"

LUCIANO'S LUCK. By Jack Higgins. Stein & Day. 238 Pages. $12.95.

Jack Higgins, a.k.a. Harry Patterson, has a successful string of thrillers to his credit.

Some, such as "The Eagle Has Landed," have been firstclass works of fiction. Others, such as "To Catch a King," have just been adequate.

Higgins' new novel falls somewhere in between the two groupings. Its plot is excellent, but the characters around whom the plot revolves are much too sketchily drawn.

The book is set in 1943, and World War II is raging. The Allies are in a position to invade Europe, but to do so they have to take Sicily before hitting the Italian mainland. And the German and Italian armies on Sicily are ready to put up a tough fight.

To invade Sicily and keep casualties at a minimum, the Allied command decides to enlist the help of the Mafia. But the head of the Sicilian Mafia won't help. In an effort to get him to change his mind, the Americans enlist the aid of a top gang boss named Lucky Luciano.

Luciano is pulled out of prison, where he is serving a 30-to 50-year sentence, and parachuted into Sicily with a variety of other people, among them a nun. How this odd collection gets to Sicily and what it does when it gets there is the crux of Higgins' novel, and the story is a rousing one.

Unfortunately, Higgins seems to have spent a minimum of effort on drawing his characters and the reader is presented with a collection of stick figures, who get through their paces handily enough but fail as people. PhilThomas AP-BooksEditor

Lighthouse Assembly Of God...

Church Slates Sunday Dedication

By Shirley A. Gorman

Lighthouse Assembly of God has been a church in search of a permanent home since its inception in August of 1972. All that has changed now. The long wait is over. The dream about to become a reality. On Sunday the small congregation of 60 will dedicate its first official church building located at 30th Street and Avenue G. The spacious building had housed a Nazarene church until that congregation chose to build a small, more practical church on the Colorado City Highway. Now it is the new home of Lighthouse Assembly of God.

Members of the church have worked hard refurbishing the building including laying new carpet and adding a kitchen. Rev. Danny Williams, pastor, says the space available now is almost unbelievable. But it wasn't always so.

Lighthouse Assembly of God has conducted its services in a storefront on the Lamesa Highway, a grocery store and an upholstery shop. The space may have been limited and the setting not exactly a picturesque location for a house of God, but the church, its pastor and congregation dreamed of better things one day.

The fruit of their labor will culminate with a special dedication and open house Sunday which begins at 9:45 a.m. with regular Sunday School classes. The morning worship service will begin at 10:45 a.m. with Rev. J. W. Farmer, district superintendent of Assembly of God officiating. He will also speak at the 7-9 p.m. service.

Rev. James R. Jackson, pastor of First Assembly of God, will officiate at the 2 p.m. service.

A noon meal will be served and a nursery will be provided.

Rev. Williams, pastor of the church, said things looked rather bleak for them in October of last year when the store they had been worshipping in was sold and they had a very short time to find another location.

"It was unbelievable," Williams said. "From October to January we raised $20,000 for the down payment on the current building. People we didn't even know donated."

The present facility was purchased in April of this year.

Since then the funds have still been coming in according to Williams. So much so in fact that they have been able to keep up with the bills which the refurbishing project has created.

Williams has been pastor of the church since the first Sunday in January of 1975. At that time the church was only three years old.

Both Williams and his wife, Connie, are natives of Snyder; but at the time they first left town neither was actively involved in church work. That changed though and when the young couple returned to their hometown they were prepared to work at making the new church grow.

"It is a dream come true for us," Mrs. Williams said. "This has been our goal and to see it happen is great."

The couple have three daughters: Julie, 9; Rebekah, 5; and Jessica, 2.

Lighthouse Assembly of God has many facets including a jail ministry which Williams is very proud of. Through it several inmates "have been won to he Lord" and he said he continues to correspond with prisoners who become inmates of state prisons.

In October Williams was also elected the South Plains sectional youth representative.

CHURCH DEDICATION--Lighthouse Assembly of God will dedicate its new facility at 30th and Avenue G Sunday with a series of services and activities beginning at 9:45 a.m. with regular Sunday School classes. Everyone is invited to attend the day long event. Pictured standing in front of the main entrance of the church are Rev. Danny Williams, pastor, his wife, Connie, and their three daughters, Julie, 9, Rebekah, 5, and Jessica, 2. (SDN Staff Photo)

Legendary Mine's Luck To Run Out This Year

Kellogg, Idaho AP--Did the legendary luck of the donkey run out Tuesday?

The Bunker Hill mine will be shut down by year's end, says its parent company, Gulf Resources & Chemical Corp. of Houston.

The death knell would appear to end a colorful era steeped in folklore.

The legends about the birth of Bunker Hill vary, but the most popular is that of Noah S. Kellogg and his wandering jackass.

The story goes that in 1885, Kellogg--an out-of-work-carpenter--approached friends O.O. Peck and Dr. J. T. Cooper for financial backing for his mining adventure.

Several prospectors had tried their luck--with mixed success--in the mountains near what is now the town of Kellogg. And Kellogg's first two months in the wilderness produced little more than a small pile of iron scrappings.

Kellogg showed a sample of the scrappings to Phil O'Rourke, an Irish immigrant who also had come to the mountains of Idaho to seek his fortune. He is said to have taken one look at the samples and decided they showed great promise for galena--the principal ore in lead.

O'Rourke and Kellogg, with additional backing from "Dutch Jake" Goetz and Harry Baer, a pair of saloon keepers from Murray, then set out to find the galena.

The story continues that one of the team's pack mules wandered away from the camp.

Accounts vary on who found the donkey. but one of them reportedly found the animal standing beside a huge, exposed vein of galena.

Both men, realizing they had stumbled onto somthing big, filed a claim in Murray. They named it Bunker Hill, after the famous Revolutionary War battle.

Unfortunately for O'Rourke and Kellogg, the other "partners" also laid claim to a piece of the find because, they reasoned, it was their animal the two prospectors used to find the ore.

They went to court--and everyone was given a piece of the claim. Kellogg and the others formed the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining and Concentrating Co. in 1887.

Work started in 1897 on the famous Kellogg Tunnell, which even today is the main arm of the underground mine.

The next major step came in 1916 when the company, which had milled its own ore since operations started, announced plans to build a smelting refinery.

The refinery was finished in 1917, the same year Bunker Hill joined forces with Hecla Mining Co. to form the Sullivan Mining Co.

The new company then purchased the Star mine, near Mullan, greatly increasing its capacity to produce the various ores being discovered throughout the region.

In 1920, Bunker Hill, acquired half interest in the Seattle-based Northwest Lead Co., allowing the company to manufacture finished products out of lead from its own mine.

Turning to zinc in 1926, work then started on the Sullivan Zinc plant. It was completed in 1928.

The company continued to expand during the 1930's, adding a research laboratory and enlarging its lead refinery. Growth continued through World War II and by the early 1950's, the company was one of the largest mining operations in the country.

In 1956, the company changed its name from Bunker Hill and Sullivan to Bunker Hill Co.

Declining lead and zinc prices, which this week brought an end to the company, started to take their toll in 1958. John D. Bradley, then president of the company, reported the operation suffered a first-quarter loss of $324,000 that year. He blamed the loss on "excessive foreign imports and their impact on he domestic market.".

Later that year, the first rumors of a possible closure started to circulate--but they were headed off when zinc and lead prices rebounded at year's end.

Labor negotiations also started to play a major role in the company's mounting problems--a strike in 1956 closed the mine. The dispute was settled in November of 1956 when mine workers settled on $18.03 a day--up from $17.23.

Strikes continued to plague the troubled company. A major dispute in 1977 lasted four months and idled most of the company's 1,400 workers.

Prior to that strike, the company had laid out nearly $15 million to construct the familiar 600-foot smoke stacks at its lead and zinc refineries as part of the efforts to comply with federal air pollution requirements and head off threatened lawsuits by area residents.

Declining zinc prices once again caused a slowdown in the operation this year, when 350 of 2,100 workers were laid off in May.

Lee Spradlin Named Chief

MCALLEN, Texas (AP) — A former Amarillo police chief who resigned amid charges his department mishandled a murder investigation will head the McAllen police department in the wake of allegations of police brutality.

Lee Spradlin, who resigned his Amarillo post in January after six years, will take over Tuesday, city manager Don Sission said Thursday.

Spradlin, 48, will become the fourth chief here in as many years. When he left Amarillo, the department was under fire for releasing a murder suspect apprehended hours about the slaying and then not taking the man into custody again for 11 months later.

The McAllen police department is the subject of a federal grand jury inquiry into possible criminal civil rights violations involving brutality against defendants.

It is under a federal court order to improve training and internal investigative procedures.

The allegations date back to 1976 and have prompted several civil suits against the department, the city of McAllen and individual officers and elected officials.

Chief Roy Eckhardt announced this summer he would step down as soon as a successor was chosen. Eckhardt said he felt he lacked the support of city officials in the controversy's aftermath.

His predecessor, Jack Caldwell, also resigned in a dispute over the brutality allegations. Before Caldwell, C.D. Mussey had retired.

Videotapes made at the police station booking desk have been aired on national television and show officers beating, kicking and abusing prisoners, most of whom were Mexican-Americans.

The new chief began his law enforcement career in Dallas in 1954. He rose from patrolman to commander of the department's internal affairs division.

Spradlin has a bachelor of science in law enforcement from Sam Houston State University in Huntsville.

Eckhardt, former McAllen city attorney Ted Calisi and at least nine other former or present police employees were subpoenaed to a Thursday session of the federal grand jury.

Also subpoenaed was Gregorio Moreno Vallejo, who has filed a civil suit alleging three McAllen policemen burst into his home on July 29, 1979, said he was wanted on a murder charge in Veracruz, Mexico, and took him to McAllen police headquarters.

Faulkenberry Named Pastor

Rev. Jesse Faulkenbery is now the full time pastor at Bethel Baptist Church. Previously he had served the church on a part-time basis.

Rev. Ronny Franks is the associate pastor.

Critical Churchgoer Gets the Needle

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with DISGUSTED IN YAKIMA, who wrote to you complaining about the woman who did needlework during church services.

The critical one should be paying attention to the services rather than rubbernecking around to see what others in the congregation are doing. It is entirely possible that the needlework lady is getting more out of the service than her critic who is so easily distracted. (One can knit and still listen to what's being said.)

Moreover, the critic appears to be judging her fellow (or sister) worshiper. It's none of her business what others are doing, so long as there is no audible distraction.

I doubt if the minister would be disturbed if he knew there was a needleworker in his congregation. Speaking as a minister myself, I'd much rather have a busily knitting needleworker in church than home among the absentees.

THE REV. C.W. KIRKPATRICK,
UNION CHURCH OF CHRIST, LUDLOW, MASS.

DEAR ABBY: I owe you and your column a debt of gratitude. Because of the letter from DISGUSTED IN YAKIMA, denouncing the young woman who did handiwork in church while listening to the sermon, I now understand what Christianity is all about!

Ecclesiastical platitudes such as "Love thy neighbor," "Judge not lest ye be judged" and "Satan finds work for idle hands," not to mention "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass . . ." no longer have any meaning.

DISGUSTED's signature was off a bit. Since this saintly person has obviously been commissioned by heaven to establish rules of conduct when in church and monitor the deportment of fellow worshipers rather than pay attention to the sermon, the letter should have been signed, "The Perfect Christian"!

A MERRY OLD SINNER NAMED R.F. BARRY,
KEWANEE, ILL.

DEAR SINNER: Hallelujah, brother. And amen.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: DISGUSTED IN YAKIMA has a point. I, too, would find knitting in church a distraction. In fact, any kind of motion would prevent me from concentrating. Were I to encounter a knitter in church, my only defense would be to close my eyes. But then, I wouldn't dare. Others might think I was snoozing.

EMILY IN OMAHA

DEAR ABBY: DISGUSTED should tend to her own knitting. I know several women who do handicraft work during church services, and they donate the items to Children's Hospital or the Rescue Mission, or they simply clothe their own children.

It is entirely possible to listen to an entire sermon without dropping a stitch.

IN STITCHES IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the busybody who was disgusted with the lady who took her needlework to church and worked on it during the sermon: I needlepoint because I feel guilty if I just sit and do nothing.

Doing needlepoint made it possible for me to quit smoking. It also makes it possible for me to give lovely, lasting, homemade gifts to my family. Some doctors prescribe needlework for their nervous patients. In short, it performs a therapeutic function for me, and if DISGUSTED doesn't like it—tough!

TIRED OF BEING NEEDLED

DEAR TIRED: The needleworker has it all sewed up! Score: Needleworker, 103; Disgusted in Yakima, 3.

Woman Does Anything To Save Pets Of Addicts

NEW YORK (AP) — She cajoles, bribes and even steals when necessary to separate suffering dogs from the junkies, alcoholics and former mental patients who are their masters.

Every night, Chitra Besbroda enters New York's twilight world of tenements and SRO's, single-room occupancy hotels, offering whatever cash she has to nodding addicts and others to buy their abused pets.

"The pain of not doing what I know I have to do causes me more grief than the risk I take. I know it's risky, but it's a job to be done," she said.

"Mrs. B," as the addicts call her, says she has cared for 90 to 100 dogs in eight years. She is a small, assertive woman with black hair, a middle-aged divorcee who lives on Manhattan's Upper West Side and works in detoxification centers.

She will do almost anything for an animal. When an addict demanded $100 and a color television in exchange for his starving chihuahua, she bargained him down to just the TV, ran home and brought back her own black-and-white set.

Mrs. Besbroda, a social worker trained in psychotherapy, came to this country from her native Sri Lanka in 1971. Her training in New York street life began in 1973, when she started work at a detox center in Harlem and witnessed the "unbearable grief" of some of the addicts' animals.

At lunch hours she would walk around and talk to pet owners in the area, asking about the animals, making suggestions about medical care and nutrition. And then came Teddy.

Mrs. Besbroda had occasionally heard the howls of a dog coming from a garage across the street from her clinic. When she investigated, she found an animal "starving, whipped, beaten and locked in an abandoned building all winter."

The drunken owner, who locked the dog up on weekends, threatened her life and chased her away. Mrs. Besbroda taught Teddy to eat dry dogfood through the keyhole and placated his owner by bringing him cakes, wine and beer.

Eventually, he allowed her to take Teddy home for a weekend. She didn't take him back.

Since then, Mrs. Besbroda says she has come across unimaginable cruelties, such as dogs fed hot sauce or gunpowder because their owners think cruelty is good training for guard dogs. Other starve their animals or beat them, even prick their genitals with pins.

"They're not sensitive to the pain of animals, maybe because they suffer so much themselves," she said.

Most dogs stay with their masters, she said. "All these dogs love them, that's the problem," she explained. But when they can escape to the safety of her home, "they completely forget their masters."

Sometimes Mrs. Besbroda fails. Once she called the ASPCA about one puppy in an SRO that "was like the living dead" after a diet of hot sauce and bread. The ASPCA, unable to find proof of mistreatment, trimmed and washed the puppy's coat and returned it to its master.

Soon after, the owner's brother-in-law returned from Bellevue Hospital's mental ward for a weekend and strangled the puppy with a telephone cord.

But more often, she succeeds in saving a suffering animal, sometimes by paying for medical care herself when an owner refuses or the ASPCA cannot provide a free operation.

She keeps three or four dogs at a time in her small co-op, with the overflow going to her mother's nearby apartment. Since 1979, 21 of Mrs. Besbroda's dogs have been adopted. She carefully screens prospective owners, who must sign a contract stipulating they will provide good care for the dog, return it to her if no longer wanted and allow her to visit periodically to inspect the animal's condition.

Mrs. Besbroda says she is thinking of giving up her crusade; she works full-time and cares for an 11-year-old daughter. But she has a goal left: to rescue one last SRO dog, perhaps her toughest case.

His name is Cocaine. He lives in a tiny room with about two square feet to stand in. In the winter, he is tied to a steaming radiator by a chain so short he cannot sit down. His paws are full of splinters from trying to scratch through the door.

When free, he can drink from a toilet bowl. His master never feeds him. Food comes from Mrs. Besbroda and a neighbor.

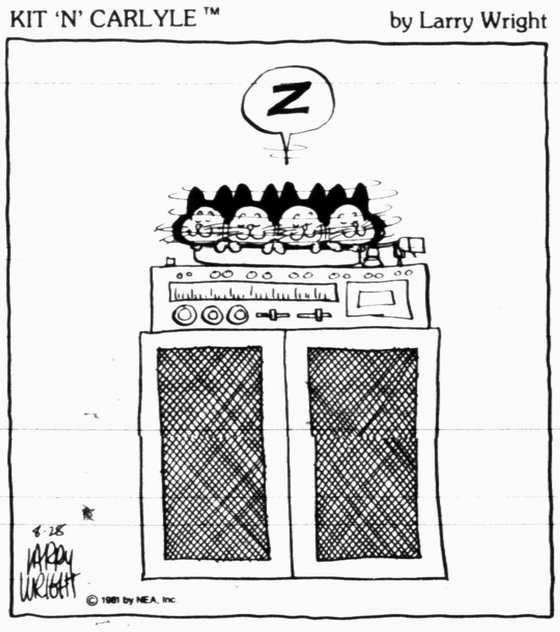

His owner, F., has had five dogs in four years, the neighbor says. Three were hit by cars and killed.

Mrs. Besbroda has tried everything to get the animal from F. — persuasion, bribery, appeals to the ASPCA and the SRO's landlord.

F. resents her efforts. "Every day there's a subtle threat about killing me," Mrs. Besbroda said.

But she is determined to save Cocaine. "When I go to sleep, I see his face peering through a hole in the door. I feel very bad that I can't give him a drink of water. It's getting too much of an emotional strain. When I get him, I think my work is done."

To Begin In 1985...

Teacher Shortage Expected

DALLAS (AP) — A nationwide teacher shortage expected to begin in 1985 will be so severe it could change the fabric of America's educational system, some researchers say.

A steadily rising birthrate, combined with declining numbers of graduating teachers, already have caused shortages in the Southwest, Midwest and parts of the far West.

And the dearth of teachers has forced some south Texas school districts to hire teachers with fewer than 90 hours of college credit, a University of Texas at Dallas researcher reports.

Dr. Clifton Harris, director of UTD's Office of Teacher Education, said the districts have hired uncertified teachers under deficiency plans and have curtailed courses such as advanced math and science, languages and industrial arts.

He cited studies by his colleagues that show shortages in Missouri, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Wyoming, Utah and Nevada — particularly in rural areas and smaller towns.

The National Education Association predicts the supply of teachers, which has declined since 1972, will cross the line of increasing demand in 1985.

According to the National Center for Education Statistics, the supply of graduates declined from 317,000 in 1972 to about 180,000 in 1980 and is expected to fall to 159,000 in 1985. At the same time, the demand for new teachers is projected to jump to 165,000 in 1985.

The NEA said the number of graduating college seniors who could be certified to teach had dropped from 35 percent in 1969 to 17.3 percent in 1979.

"By 1985, it my well be that less than 15 percent of college graduates will be prepared to teach," Harris said in an analysis of national enrollment figures.

Harris, who surveyed 57 of Texas' 63 schools that graduate teachers, said 88 percent perceiveed a teacher shortage in the state.

"The preponderance of opinion is that the shortage will be severe and that it is imminent," said Harris, who does not expect supply and demand to be equal again until 2000.

In Texas, the birth rate began a sharp rise in 1974 and jumped 18,765 in 1978-79. The problem is compounded by a large number of illegal alien children, who under a federal court order must be provided a free and bilingual education — raising the demand for bilingual teachers to a critical level. The State of Texas has appealed the ruling.

Dr. James Kidd of the Texas Education Agency has estimated that by the 1984-85 school year the state will need 4,600 additional teachers for kindergarten through ninth grade.

Meanwhile, the state's supply of graduating teachers has declined an average of 534 students, or about 4 percent a year since 1974.

Harris said the south Texas shortages are caused partly by big-city districts luring away teachers. One college dean told him he signed 551 teacher deficiency plans in 30 days last fall, Harris said.

"A disturbing element ... is that persons who have failed competency tests in the South and Southeast are migrating to Texas, are being employed, and are now attempting to secure certification through deficiency plan arrangements," he added.

TEA spokeswoman Magnolia McCullough said teachers on deficiency plans must obtain certification in a maximum of three years.

Harris said he found a "dramatic change in attitudes" of college students, showing a "lack of the social consciousness that was so characteristic of the 1960s."

Texas deans and heads of education cited low salaries, working conditions, a presumed oversupply of teachers and the public's loss of respect for the profession as reasons fewer students are entering teaching.

Harris disagreed with the theory that certified teachers now working in other fields will return when the shortage is publicized, saying they are too entrenched in other professions.

To reverse the trend by 2000, Harris said those in power must raise the "ridiculously low" salaries, counter the oversupply myth and elevate the image and status of teaching.

"The strong public reaction against the school used as a device for social reform and the decline in respect for the teacher in American society make the upgrading of image and status a formidable task," he added.

All segments of the profession are applying pressure to legislators to raise teachers' salaries, he said.

Harris said school systems must consider stresses on teachers and added: "Classroom teaching as currently structured is so highly labor-intensive that is is doubtful it will survive in its present form."

To meet the severe shortages in certain subjects, a differential salary system may be necessary, he said.

Meanwhile, Harris forecast a continued elimination of courses, more consolidation of school districts "and if the shortage persists, look for microcomputer technology to step into the gap and fulfill the long-prophesized role in educational technology in the classroom."

He also predicted lower scores on standardized tests, a continued decline in college enrollment "and people coming in (to colleges) without a second year of a language or an advanced course."

"Considering the slowness with which these social and political changes occur in our culture, and the additional time needed for new college generations to respond to the need, it is not unlikely that it will take until the year 2000 for balance in supply and demand to be restored," he said.

John Hinckley Jr. Pleads Not Guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr. pleaded innocent today to charges of shooting President Reagan and three others and his attorney said defense psychiatrists feel the 26-year-old former drifter is competent to stand trial.

In a firm voice, Hinckley responded "not guilty" after the 13-count indictment was read to him as he stood, sometimes straight, sometimes crossing one leg over the other, before U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker.

Parker ruled that Hinckley was competent to participate in the arraignment, but has not yet ruled on his comeptency to stand trial.

Hinckley's attorney, Vincent J. Fuller, told the judge in response to a question that "in my opinion and the opinion (of defense psychiatrists) Mr. Hinckley is presently competent."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger M. Adelman told Parker "there's no information he's not competent" and added that a sealed psychiatric report on Hinckley "provides the basis also to find him competent."

Hinckley's white bulletproof vest showed through his dark blue suit.

Defense attorney Fuller said Hinckley may plead not guilty by reason of insanity, but added that he needs an additional 30 days to have defense psychiatrists complete their examination of Hinckley to decide whether such a defense will be raised.

Parker set a hearing for Tuesday to argue a motion by Fuller that contends Hinckley's constitutional rights were being violated because prison officials were reading what he wrote while in prison. A bail motion also will be argued Tuesday.

Before dawn today, Hinckley, a 26-year-old former drifter, was moved from a Marine brig to the federal courthouse to await his arraignment.

Snyder Police Probe Three Vehicle Mishaps

Snyder police investigated three accidents Thursday and a criminal mischief report and arrested two men for driving while intoxicated.

The first wreck, at 12:12 p.m., occurred at 400 16th and involved a 1973 Ford driven by Jerry Torres and a 1973 Oldsmobile driven by Christopher Anderson. There were no injuries but the Ford had moderate damage and the Oldsmobile had minor damage.

The next mishap was at 12:34 p.m. in the Handy Hut parking lot on College Ave. Involved was a 1979 Chevrolet driven by Delinda Everton and a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Martin Alonzo Benitez. Only minor damage was reported.

Janet Boren was treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital after she hit her head in a wreck at 4:47 p.m. on the west side of the courthouse square. Involved in the wreck was a 1974 Oldsmobile driven by James Edmond Merrell and a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Ms. Boren. Northbound traffic was detoured around the square until a wrecker removed one of the cars.

David Hill reported the criminal mischief. He told police that while his son's motorcycle had been parked at Snyder High School between noon and 3 p.m. someone cut the seat causing $175 damage.

A 25 year-old man was taken into custody at 24th and Ave. D at 11:01 p.m. for driving while intoxicated.

At 1 a.m., a 29 year-old man was arrested at 23rd and Ave. R for driving while intoxicated.

The great Secretariat finished out of the money only once in his career, winding up fourth in his first start after suffering interference.

Testimony Continues In Estate Trial Session

HOUSTON (AP) — Barbara Lapp Cameron wept as she read a letter expressing the deep sorrow her grandfather felt at the "slow and merciless loss" of his only child — whose blood link to the late Howard Hughes will determine who shares the billionaire's fortune.

The letter, penned by Hughes' paternal uncle 36 years ago, was read aloud to a six-member jury Thursday to discredit claims by 500 distant cousins who contend Elspeth Lapp Hughes was not the true daughter of New York playwright Rupert Hughes.

"I have not tried to describe my feelings about the loss of darling Elspeth — in a very brief period I suffered the sudden and accidental loss of my (third) wife and the slow and merciless loss of my only child," the letter said. "Words have been my lifelong business and speech-making my second trade; but there are no words for such sorrow and regret."

Mrs. Cameron, her two sisters and their aunt have laid claim to half the fortune estimated at between $180 million and $2 billion when Hughes died in 1976.

But the distant relatives have challenged the first cousin's blood link to the late tycoon on two issues. One group argues Mrs. Cameron's mother was the product of an illicit love affair. The other contends Elspeth drowned as a child.

The hearing to determine Hughes' paternal heirs was ordered after Probate Judge Pat Gregory ruled Hughes left no valid will or immediate survivors when he died. The judge already has awarded half the estate to 16 maternal cousins.

The letter was mailed May 20, 1945, to Mrs. Cameron's father, Ed Lapp, shortly after Elspeth died of cancer. In the letter, Rupert explained to his son-in-law that the demobilization of soldiers had caused travel disruptions that would keep him away from the funeral in Cleveland.

Mrs. Cameron's two sisters also sobbed as the letter was read and two jurors dabbed tears from their eyes.

Mrs. Cameron described her grandfather as a hard-working, devoted man who opened his home to her after her mother died. She said she left the family home in Cleveland and moved with Rupert in his California mansion.

It was her grandfather, she said, who gave her away at her wedding because her father was unable to attend.

Her attorney, Paul Freese, asked her if she had ever heard Rupert deny that Elspeth was his daughter.

"I never heard him say or do anything to indicate she was not his child," Mrs. Cameron said.

Attorneys for the first cousins also introduced certificates of birth, death and marriage, family Bible records, a divorce court judgment giving Rupert custody of Elspeth and the late author's will which identified his "three grandchildren by his deceased daughter Elspeth."

Freese said the documents solidified the Hughes legacy. But lawyers for the distant relatives dismissed the documents as "hearsay."

Aggravated Rape Charged 3 Times

HOUSTON (AP) — Sheriff's officers here have been questioning a 33-year-old man charged with three counts of aggravated rape in connection with at least 11 other rapes and attempted rapes.

James Donald McClean, arrested on an anonymous tip about 7:10 p.m. Thursday, was being questioned about a series of incidents, Harris County Sheriff's Capt. J.D. Peyton said.

Peyton said because the crimes occurred in a single area, the assailant has been dubbed the "Northside rapist."

Victims' descriptions of their assailant and the method of operation have led officials to believe one man was responsible, said sheriff's Lt. Carl Borchers.

"He gained entry into the houses by posing as an exterminator," Borchers said. "Once inside the house, he held the woman at knifepoint and raped her. We are also investigating several cases of aggravated assault in which he harmed his victims."

Five Sentenced In County Court

Five persons were sentenced in county court recently with Judge Preston Wilson presiding.

Oscar Baiza Garcia, adjudged guilty of driving while intoxicated, was fined $300 and sentenced to three days in the Scurry County Jail.

Lena Foster Hodge was fined $300 for possession of marijuana, less than two ounces.

Joel Wayne Griffin Jr. was fined $300 and sentenced to three days in jail for driving while intoxicated.

Steven Wayne Kelley was sentenced to 60 days in jail for theft.

Roberto Martinez was given 30 days in jail for resisting arrest.

Foreigners Are Getting Mugged In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "German Tourists Attacked."

"Youth Gang Robs Chinese Tourists."

"British Woman Wounded."

The dismaying headlines point up a problem which has seriously tarnished San Francisco's glittering reputation: its all-important tourists are getting mugged.

Most of the attacks are occuring in the city's Western Addition, a high crime area of rundown Victorian houses, vacant lots and low-income housing projects that lies in the path running from the well-trafficked downtown area to the lush and popular Golden Gate Park.

This month, for the first time, police are breaking down statistics to show how many tourists become victims of violent crimes in the Western Addition. Their first sampling showed that 28 tourists — 17 of them from foreign countries — were robbed in the first nine days of August.

"Going in there is like going into a war zone," said officer Mike Farnham, who regularly patrols the area. "And sending some innocent tourist in there thinking he's out for a walk to Golden Gate Park is like turning a kitten loose on the freeway."

Tourists, particularly foreign tourists, are easy marks for the bands of youths who strike like urban pirates and disappear into the low-income housing projects in the area, officials say.

"Criminals would rather rob a tourist," Rotea Gilford of the Mayor's Criminal Justice Council said. "They know the victims are not going to be here to testify against them, and the chances of being prosecuted are less."

Tourists are also lucrative targets. One family of German tourists lost passports, airline tickets home, $150 in cash, $1,500 in travelers checks and a valuable camera.

Sometimes they lose more. A British woman needed surgery after being shot in the chest and left arm during a holdup. This month, an 18-year-old German girl was beaten and raped by a young man who had befriended her after she got off a bus.

Once tourists walk among the housing projects along Fulton and McAllister streets, "they're gone," said Deputy Police Chief James Ryan. "We've had a number of purse snatches and muggings, situations where our men on stakeout have seen the crime go down a quarter of a block away. It wasn't close enough; the crooks still got away."

The problem, police say, is that visitors simply are not aware of the danger that lurks in the Western Addition.

"Tourists are not asking for advice at their hotel or finding out where they can go that is safe," said police spokesman Henry Friedlander. "Somewhere at the hotel desk they should be told, 'If you go out, let us make some recommendations.'"

Some hotels may actually be adding to the problem by handing out maps that inadvertently lead tourists into trouble. One map distorts the two-mile distance between the Civic Center and Golden Gate Park, making it look like a 10-minute stroll.

Another map appears to reduce the distance to four blocks. In fact, the route to the park is 21 blocks long and runs right through the Western Addition and the dangerous Fillmore District.

Chet Rhodes, marketing director of the San Francisco Conventions and Visitors Bureau, says bureau maps are now drawn to scale and advises that tourists should check with hotels or the bureau if they are planning a walk.

News about tourist muggings is the last thing San Francisco needs now. Tourism, the city's biggest business, was off 6.9 percent overall last year. This year, foreign tourism is down 20 percent, said George Kirkland, executive director of the visitors bureau. He added that it isn't clear how much is due to unfavorable monetary exchange rates and how much to reports of violence.

"I don't believe the violence has increased, but I think media coverage has, and as that happens, it's very bad," Kirkland said.

"It think it's bound to hurt tourism unless we can show that we are doing something about it and that a lot of the attention it's getting is not justified," Gilford said.

Gilford's council has been talking with representatives from the Western Addition and plans a "massive meeting" soon with community leaders and residents to examine the problem.

Pickup Stolen

A 1977 Johnston-Slumberger pickup stolen Aug. 20 from East 23rd and Ennis Creek Road was recovered in Odessa Thursday. The pickup was found in an apartment complex parking lot where it was believed to have been for several days. No arrests have yet been made in the case.

V-Ball Meet Underway At Local High School

Sweetwater and Seminole were to have opened play in the Snyder Varsity Volleyball Tournament this morning. Snyder varsity was scheduled for action at 2 p.m.

The Mustangs and Indians were to begin at 9 a.m. in the two-day, 14-team tourney. At 10, Lamesa and Snyder junior varsity contested, followed at 11 by San Angelo Central and Celburne.

Other teams involved in the tournament and their playing times included El Paso Burgess versus Central junior varsity at noon, Hereford versus Snyder varsity at 2, and Brownfield versus Abilene at 3.

At 4, the Burgess-Central JV winner will play Big Spring. Both Big Spring and Plains drew byes in the opening round.

Snyder varsity teammembers include Toni Elrod, Becky Harrell, Shana Koonsman, Susie Lee, Kathy Northcott, Becky Bylant, Sherri Rich, Sabrina Robinson and Lisa Waller.

The local junior varsity team consists of Susan Brim, Tracy Fortune, Mona Green, Patricia Gregory, Wendy Hodge, Lisa McNew, Lisa Loyola and Cari Walker.

Snyder managers are Shahala Blair, Dana Hines, Tonya Neblett and Lynne Robertson. Coaches are head volleyball coach Joyce Elrod, and assistant Patty Grimmett.

Attitude Strong At UT Austin

AUSTIN (AP) - Coach Fred Akers says the 1981 Texas Longhorns are "showing some of the same attitude" in preseason workouts as the 1977 squad, which finished the regular season No. 1 in the nation.

"If we stay healthy and play up to our potential, we could have as good a football team as we've ever had," Akers said Thursday.

Akers' first Texas team in 1977 was 11-0 - scoring a school record 431 points - before losing to Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl and falling to No. 4.

"I think our team, in general, has the best attitude and more enthusiasm than any since I talked with you before the 1977 season," Akers told sportswriters visiting SWC schools.

Despite temperatures of more than 100 degrees on Texas' artificial turf, Akers said he "had not heard one complaint about how hot it is or how hard the workouts are."

Akers said kicking, especially punting, would be a "big, big, big part of our football team. And at this point, it is suspect until we prove it. Punting hurt us badly last year."

Akers said John Goodson "is the best practice punter in the country," kicking as far and as high" as former Longhorn Russell Erxleben, who punts for the New Orleans Saints. Goodson, however, was inconsistent last year in averaging 38.2 yards on 58 punts.

Raul Allegre, a transfer from Montana, will do the placekicking, Akers said.

Akers said the "strength of the offense should be the offensive line," which averages 267 pounds and includes four-year starters Terry Tausch and Joe Shearin. Akers said Tausch, 6-foot-4 and 266 pounds, is even "more mobile" than Jerry Sizemore, a former Texas star who starts for the Philadelphia Eagles.

He described as "quite a blow" the apparent academic loss of second-team tight end Rick Hosto, who also was Texas' backup punter. Akers said he would know by Aug. 31 whether Hosto would be eligible.

More experience in the secondary and at end, along with veteran linebackers Bruce Scholtz and Doug Shankle, "should make us a very competitive defensive team," Akers said.

He said Scholtz, 6-6 and 240, "should be as good as anyone (in the nation)."

Jaycees To Host Softball Tourney

Snyder Jaycees will host a softball tournament beginning noon Saturday and concluding Sunday at Winston Field. Purpose of the tournament is to raise funds to sponsor individuals to Camp Road Runner and help defray the Jaycee Humble-Smith School debt.

Camp Road Runner is a summer camp for mentally handicapped individuals. Each summer campers attend and "learn about caring and doing for themselves, as well as getting along with others", according to Joy Lloyd, chairman of the camp committee.

Tournament proceeds will help individuals from the West Texas area, who want to attend the camp.

The Jaycee Humble-Smith School project was conducted in order to remodel the existing facitities for its students. The school is for special children age 7 and under who are not able to enter the regular classroom at this time. Part of the proceeds are intended to help defray cost of renovation, which has already been completed, according to Robert Pinkston, Jaycee tournament chairman.

Several locals teams and groups from Lubbock, Sweetwater, Midland, and Hobbs, N.M. will participate in the tournament.

Astros Fall To NY Mets

NEW YORK (AP) - For the second time in three days, late-inning lightning struck at Shea Stadium. And for the second time, Joe Sambito was hit by it.

"We sure collapsed in a hurry," said the Houston Astros' relief pitcher after letting the game get away Thursday in a 3-2 loss to the New York Mets. "It all happened on just three pitches."

Sambito, who was beaten 2-1 Tuesday night on Mookie Wilson's eighth-inning home run, was talking about another eighth-inning situation that blew up in his face.

With Alex Trevino on first base via a one-out single, Sambito struck out Wilson on a 3-2 count, but the runner stole second on an extremely close play.

That was the first pitch that Sambito was talking about.

Then in succession, both Frank Taveras and Hubie Brooks tatooed first pitches for hits that drove in the tying and winning runs. Taveras' game-tying hit was a looping liner to center that Sambito thought was playable and Brooks' game-winner was a shot just inside third base into the left field corner for a double.

Cowboys Expect Ground Game From Houston

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys fully expect the Houston Oilers to jump back into their ground-oriented I-Formation for Saturday night's National Football League exhibition game in Texas Stadium.

"We wouldn't be surprised to see them in a two tight-end attack, even with John Reaves starting at quarterback," said the Cowboys' Ermal Allen, an assistant coach who scouts upcoming teams for Coach Tom Landry.

"With the Snake (Kenny Stabler) coming back you've got to figure they will want to start getting their blocking down for the regular season," he said.

With Gifford Nielsen out at least a month, John Reaves is expected to start for the Oilers.

Stabler, who came out of retirement to sign a two-year contract, will be in uniform and available, although he probably won't play.

"I made my decision to come back after Gifford was hurt," said Stabler. "This team deserves to win. The players on this team want to win really badly, and I hope I can help them."

Stabler helped the Oilers to an 11-5 record last year under Coach Bum Phillips, who now is at New Orleans.

New Coach Ed Biles, who was the Oilers' defensive coordinator under Phillips, designed a split backfield for this season which was designed for a more balanced pass-run attack.

All-pro running back Earl Campbell was not expected to carry as big a load as he had in the past.

However, Stabler's re-emergence signals the return to a ground control offense with percentage, short passes.

Jim Shofner, the former head coach at Texas Christian and now Oiler offensive coordinator, is redrawing the Houston offense.

The Oilers are 1-2 in the preseason, the same record the Cowboys have compiled.

Houston lost 27-17 last week to Tampa Bay as Nielsen suffered his shoulder injury, and Dallas whipped Pittsburgh 24-14 behind the passing of quarterback Danny White.

Rutledge Leads Rams In Win Over Vikings

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - What would the Los Angeles Rams be without a quarterback controversy?

The seeds of a new one were planted Thursday night during their 34-31 victory over the Minnesota Vikings in a National Football League exhibition game when reserve quarterback Jeff Rutledge came off the bench to direct three second-half scoring drives.

Rutledge had replace Pat Haden, sidelined by leg cramps, in the third quarter, who got his starting slot back after Vince Ferragamo defected to the Canadian Football League following a long debate on which should be No. 1. But Rutledge did not feel he was ready to take Ferragamo's place in the controversy.

"Yes, I enjoyed playing but Haden is the No. 1 quarterback and I'm not ready for any controversy," said Rutledge.

Rams coach Ray Malavasi also was pleased with the performance.

An Anaheim Stadium crowd of 60,141 saw Rutledge, a three-year veteran from Alabama, complete seven of nine passes for 156 yards and two touchdowns as the Rams closed out their preseason with a record of 2-2.

Rutledge fired touchdown passes of 38 yards and 22 yards to Preston Dennard to put the Rams ahead for good.

This was Rutledge's first appearance since receiving a sprained neck in the game with the New England Patriot Aug. 10.

Up to that point, the Vikings had established a 17-7 lead behind the play of linebacker Matt Blair, who returned an interception 99 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter, recovered a fumble in the third to set up another Viking touchdown and blocked a Los Angeles extra-point attempt.

Steve Dils, who replaced starter Tommy Kramer after the Viking quarterback injured his knee, brought the Viking offense to life in the fourth quarter, but the rally fell just short.

Dils hit third year tight end Bob Bruer with a 5-yard pass to make the score 34-24, and then running back Sam Harrell drove over from the one to bring the Vikings within three points.

Dils finished the game completing 17 of 34 passes for 195 yards.

Both teams were hampered by penalties in a sloppy exhibition. The Rams were penalized 17 times for 104 yards while the Vikings were hit for 93 yards on 11 penalties.

The Vikings lost one of its last links with their glorious past Wednesday when cornerback Bobby Bryant announced his retirement. The 37-year-old former University of South Carolina player was the last player left on the Vikings roster who was with the club in 1967, Bud Grant's first year as head coach. Now only one player, Ron Yary, remains from Minnesota's first Super Bowl team.

Miami seeks its third unbeaten preseason in the last six years when the Dolphins host the Kansas City Chiefs, 1-2, tonight.

Also tonight, Tampa Bay visits Atlanta, Buffalo travels to San Diego and Baltimore is at Seattle, in a battle of the only two teams who have gone winless in preseason.

Tigers Scrimmage Cubs At 5, 6:30 Tonight

Brownfield's Cubs invade Tiger Stadium tonight, giving Coach George Byerly's Tigers a final preseason workout before the 1981 football season opens Sept. 4.

Respective junior varsity teams are slated to begin scrimmage action at 5. Varsity units are expected to be on the field at approximately 6:30 p.m.

According to Byerly, the varsity squads will go through a brief controlled scrimmage first, with each team running a set number of offensive plays. Coaches then plan to clear the field, sending in plays from the sidelines to better recreate actual playing conditions.

"We're going to have to do it for our first game, and I think it would be good if we did it Friday (tonight)," the coach said earlier in the week.

Under the scrimmage plan tonight, a turnover would give the opposing defense possession of the ball, as in a regular game. Each team would get four downs, and coaches would relay plays in from the sidelines - unlike a controlled scrimmage.

"I'd like to play it just like a regular game, except for kicking," said Byerly. The kicking game would be left out because of the possibility of someone getting injured before the season. The teams may run through kicking formations, however, but would not actually have contact.

Byerly noted Thursday afternoon that Glen Parham has been released by his doctor and will begin full workouts with the team. Parham, recovering from knee surgery, alternated at split end for the Tigers last year. Byerly indicated he also wanted to try the 6-1, 175-pound junior at a halfback slot. It was not known whether he will participate in tonight's scrimmage, however.

Rangers Hold On Late To Get Past Brewers

MILWAUKEE (AP) - The Milwaukee Brewers muffed two early chances to chase Danny Darwin Thursday night, and Texas' hard-throwing righthander didn't give them another.

Darwin, 8-6, pitched out of a bases-loaded, one out jam in the third inning and retired 20 of the last 21 batters to face him. Leon Roberts backed him with a homer and a double for four runs batted in as the Rangers defeated the Brewers 5-1.

"I was shaky to start with, but getting the bases loaded on me made me concentrate and made me bear down more. When I had to concentrate, it was there," said Darwin, who pitched a four-hitter for his first victory since June 7.

The Brewers scored their only run in the second inning with help of three bunts, one of which Darwin misplayed.

Ben Oglivie led off with a walk and Gorman Thomas, trying to shake a slump, beat out a bunt toward third. Ted Simmons sacrificed, and Oglivie scored when Darwin threw wildly to third on the play.

Roy Howell sacrificed Thomas and Simmons to third and second, but Darwin struck out Robin Yount and Jim Gantner.

The Rangers tied at 1-1 on a triple by Mickey Rivers and a single by Bump Wills in the third, and the Brewers mustered their final threat in their half of the inning.

After Thad Bosley opened with a single and was thrown out trying for a double, a walk to Paul Molitor, a double by Cecil Cooper and an intentional walk to Oglivie filled the bases. But Darwin struck out Thomas and retired Simmons on a pop foul.

The Brewers, held to one hit by Dennis Lamp of the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night, have managed only one hit in their last 20 innings.

Faculty Tourney

Dave Foster, Dick Lancaster, Marilyn Lancaster, Bill Halbert and Janet Halbert fired a four-under-par 31 to take top honors in the fifth annual Western Texas College faculty golf scramble Aug. 21 on the WTC course.

Two teams tied for second place in the nine-hole affair. They were Frank Williams, Mike Otto, Duane Hood and Kathy Stephens, 32, and Pat Doran, Jerry Baird, Don Newbury, and Xan Harris, also 32.

Four other teams comprised of four faculty members apiece competed, with scores of 36, 36, 36 and 38.

Format was best ball with individuals hitting, selecting the best ball of the group, and all members hitting from that position.

Coordinator was Bob O'Day, WTC pro shop director.

Stephenson, Pyne In Lead

DENVER (AP) — Jan Stephenson and Julie Stanger Pyne each fired 4-under-par 68 to share the first-round lead in the $150,000 Columbia Savings Classic.

Stephenson and Pyne held a 1-stroke over veteran Janet Coles, with eight golfers another shot back at 2-under 70, including Nancy Lopez-Melton and former champions JoAnne Carner and Sandra Haynie.

WINNING FACULTY TEAM -- Janet Halbert, Marilyn Lancaster, Dave Foster, Bill Halbert and Dick Lancaster won the Western Texas College Faculty Golf Tournament, held at the college course recently.

Andrews will run for loop title

Monahans has been picked to win the powerful 2-AAAA football district for 1981, but tradition and talent always seem to lift Coach Bill Shipman's Andrews Mustangs to the head of field.

This year, Andrews is expected to offer up another contender, led by blue-chip quarterback

Monhans

leadership.

The backfield is largely untested, however, though Monte McGuire (6-4, 180) did start two games at quarterback. He'll be the replacement for all-league talent Rusty Roark and Ricky Boysaw, a defensive starter last year, will try and fill in for graduated Michael Ramsey, who shared the district rushing title in 1980.

Boysaw, 6-3, 205, returns at linebacker for the Loboes and Sanchez will pick up again at end. The rest of the troops will be new, or carried over from the offense.

Keith Brooks.

"Brooks may be the best single player in the district, and one of the best in the state," said Snyder coach George Byerly. Indeed, the 6-1, 195 Brooks rushed for 657 yards and passed for another 437 as a junior last year. His 20 touchdowns, coupled with a few extra points conversions, made him the second leading scorer in the district with 82 total points, just behind graduated teammate Van Pearcy.

Replacing the Notre Dame bound Pearcy in the Wing T offense will be one area of concern for Shipman. But Pearcy's backup, Brent Petross (6-0, 165) returns, and Jamie Gonzales (150) had 299 yards to credit in 1980 which should help fill the hole.

Gonzales may also take a turn at split end.

The only other offensive starter back is 6-1, 212 Jeff Ashabranner, who will likely be moved from tackle to tight end.

Defensively the Mustangs are in better all-around shape, though the present setup calls for several players to go both ways. Brooks is expected to return at a cornerback slot and Petross will take the safety role again. Flores is back at monster and Adam Smith will be moved to linebacker. Also back is Rumaldo Falcon, 6-1, 190 noseguard, and Gonzales can take up slack at a defensive back position where he saw limited action during the last campaign.

Inexperience is the keyword in both the offensive and defensive line, but Shipman feels the talent is on hand. Whether Andrews can repeat its 10-1 season of a year ago will depend on how fast the team can mature together.

The Mustangs open at Seminole this year, Sept. 4, then entertain Midland Lee on Sept. 11 before hosting Snyder in their first 2-AAAA ballgame Sept. 18.

Bulldogs have veterans

ing back offensively and defensive safety.

Pierson also expects a lot of help from juniors Kevin Walker (5-6, 123) at split end and cornerback, and Scott Chapman (5-8, 140), also at split end and cornerback.

Other Bulldogs looking to see some action are sophomores John Slaughter (5-6, 130) and Albert Reyna (5-7, 120), and freshmen Philip Carter (5-7, 149), Don Crane (5-6, 120), Jay Baze (5-4, 119), Barry Ezra (5-0, 128), Cecilo Juarez (5-6, 129) and Chris Reyna (5-6, 117).

Mike Holmes will work with Pierson again as coach of the Bulldogs. Trainers are Tommy Crane and Pattie Blagg. Manager-trainer is Jay Goswick.

Panthers want faster start in '81

Fort Stockton got off to a slow start in 1980 but warmed up to finish 5-5 for the season, 4-4 district, which included a 57-0 topping of Snyder and a couple of other pretty hefty wins.

Coach John Blocker attributed the shaky beginning to an inexperienced front line which didn't give his backs the time they needed. This year, the situation is reversed, with veteranship along the line and replacements to be found for key runners Tracy Pasqua (1,264 yards) and Brad Jackson (991 yards).

Making holes for the backs will be all-district center Bobby Nunez (6-3, 230), considered one of the best linemen in the conference this year. Other key personnel will be 6-1, 205 Ellis Parker and 6-1, 190 Dudley McKissack at tackle and 6-0, 200 sophomore Cecil Bradshaw at tight end.

The QB spot looks to be 5-10, 155 senior Jerry Gray, with David Richardson (5-11, 185) coming in to fill at tailback for the vacated Pasqua. Richardson rushed for 142 yards in limited duty last year. The other offensive spots hadn't been settled.

Defensively, Nunez will hold down one tackle spot, Parker and Missack at the ends, and 5-6, 175 Ronnie Chavez and 5-11, 180 Jody Mehan, linebacker positions. Ramsey Railsback, 5-7, 185, will be at noseguard, with Russell McQuairt (145), Gray, Eddie Duarte (170) and Raymond Morales (180) as the secondary.

Fort Stockton opens with three straight home games: Canutillo on Sept. 4, Alpine on Sept. 11 and district opponent Lake View on the 18th.

Ector hopes to climb out of district cellar

District 2-AAAA prognosticators have picked Odessa Ector repeat as dwellers of the cellar in the conference this year, and apparently for some good reasons.

The Eagles return only few starters from a team that finished 0-1-9 in 1980. Add that to continued reports all spring that the school was going to close, and the departure of veteran head coach Ralph Johnson, and the situation seems improbable for a competitive year.

Van Grady, as assistant under Johnson for two years, has been given the reins and it will be his challenge to get the Eagles flying high once again.

Experience is limited throughout the team, but can be found in the offensive backfield where 6-1, 185 fullback Anthony Miller and 6-0, 165 tailback Johnny Johnson spent some time last year. Miller accounted for 256 yards last year and Johnson gained 114 before suffering a season-ending injury.

Along the line, 5-9, 165 center Darryl Smith and 5-9, 165 guard Arturo Hinojos saw some action last year. Also back is 5-7, 150 David Gonzales, who played quick guard, and 5-11, 235 quick guard Mark Rodriquez.

Besides the 235-pound Gonzales and strong tackle Arturo Garcia (5-11, 225), the Ector line averages between 160 and 170, and will be among the smallest in the district.

The defense will be almost totally new, especially in the secondary where Grady will have to rebuild from the ground up.

Odessa opens the season at home against Amarillo Caprock - the only team which didn't beat the Eagles last year - followed by a trip to El Paso Bel Air on Sept. 11. Ector opens loop play by entertaining Pecos on Sept. 18.

Tradition Pecos' key

It's not a greatly experienced Pecos Eagle team which will take the field against El Paso Riverside on Sept. 4, but coach Daylon Whitehurst's troops can boast leadership - 29 seniors.

The Eagles welcome back only a couple of offensive starters and three defensive starters, but one of those is 5-11, 160-pound veteran quarterback Bill Weinacht. Weinacht threw for 460 yards and two touchdowns out of Whitehurst's Wing T offense last year, starting only six games.

Though starting backs Jeff Bryant and Alvin New are gone, the ball won't be handled by unfamiliar mits. Geno Aguilar (5-11, 170) picked up 185 yards in a part-time role last year and Bobby Jenkins (6-1, 175) had 244. And Weinacht will find a well-known target in second team all-loop Danny Tarango as wide receiver. Tarango, 6-0, 170, caught eight passes for 176 yards and two touchdowns.

Where Pecos will have to learn fast is along the offensive line, where virtually no starters remain. Whitehurst has good prospects however in 5-10, 190 Mark Lyles, 6-0, 185 Eddie Peterson, and 6-2, 210 David Whitehurst, among others.

Defensively, 5-9, 165 Henry Avila returns as noseguard, and 6-2, 230 David Stickles has done some duty at tackle. The rest of the line and linebacker spots need to be filled, and Tarango and 5-8, 145 Russ Salcido are the only holdouts from the 1980 term.

Boasting one of the top programs in the district, Pecos has made a history of coming on strong despite a lack of experience early in the season as last year's 7-2-1 record indicates. District 2-AAAA coaches have predicted a fourth place finish for the Eagles this year.

After opening with Riverside at home, Pecos will trek to Carlsbad, N.M. on Sept. 11 and play at Odessa Ector for its first conference tilt on the 18th.

Lamesa to be improved

At Lamesa, the password is "believe". The Golden Tornadoes have been down for so long, they've gotten a reputation of folding when the going gets tough.

1980 may have changed all that.

Under new coach Jim Warren, the Tors went 3-6-1 last season and played several other close games. With proof they can win - and nine starters returning - Lamesa may be a much tougher team in 1980.

Returning to lead the offense will be quarterback Sam Hansard, who tossed for 533 yards and four touchdowns in '80. Fourteen interceptions led the league last season, but Warren believes a year under the gun will make the 160-pound Hansard a better cannon this time around.

Aiding Hansard will be returning wideout Robert Gomez, who snared four passes for 82 yards and two TDs. Returning linemen are 195-pound guard Rusty Ratliff and 205-pound guard Steve Teague.

Defensive returnees are Teague and Ratliff, who will probably go at linebacker slots, and 175-pound defensive back Steve Archer. Hansard also fills a backfield spot, as does 160-pound Jim Freeman.

With Hansard at the helm, Warren expects to go to the air frequently in 1981 again but will rely on speed from Archer (tailback) to assist the running game.

Lamesa will open the season at Lubbock High on a Saturday (Sept. 3), then host rival Brownfield on Sept. 11 and begin district play at Monahans on Sept. 18.

Ira will remain tough in 1981

IRA -- WITH some of its speed and veteranship passed along to graduation, the teeth on Ira's Bulldogs may not be quite as sharp in 1981, but Coach Tom Pierson believes his team will still be a bunch to be reckoned with.

"We'll be in the middle of it, I think," he said, speaking of the always-tough 2-A six-man district. "We've been picked to finish fifth in our district and I'd have to say that's probably about right considering the players we lost and all, but really, I think we'll go higher than that."

Many had pegged Ira to win the district last year, but Pierson and his cohorts ran into problems when an official ruled a frequently used option off of his "Quail" offense as illegal. That "took the wind out of our sails," said Pierson, and the Bulldogs finished with a 6-3 record; tied for third place in the district.

IT WAS too late for 1980, but the ruling has now been cleared up to allow the play - an option to the tight end - for 1981. Just how high Ira can finish this year depends on a lot of things. The Bulldogs are capably led by a trio of two-way returning starters and have decent size and perhaps excellent strength. What's lacking is speed to go with Pierson's option-type "Quail" offense.

But most of Ira's speed left when all-league talents Wade Pierson, Robert Mitchell and Scott Kesner graduated, and Scott Sharp elected not to play again this year.

"As far as speed is concerned, we're going to be hurting. There's no way getting around that," said Pierson. "But on the plus side, we have pretty good size and tremendous desire. We've got a better attitude this year than last year and I thought at the time last year's attitude was beautiful," he pointed out.

Much of the desire and "want to" comes from a strong freshman unit, which, according to Pierson, "is already pushing our older kids. They're making them work harder."

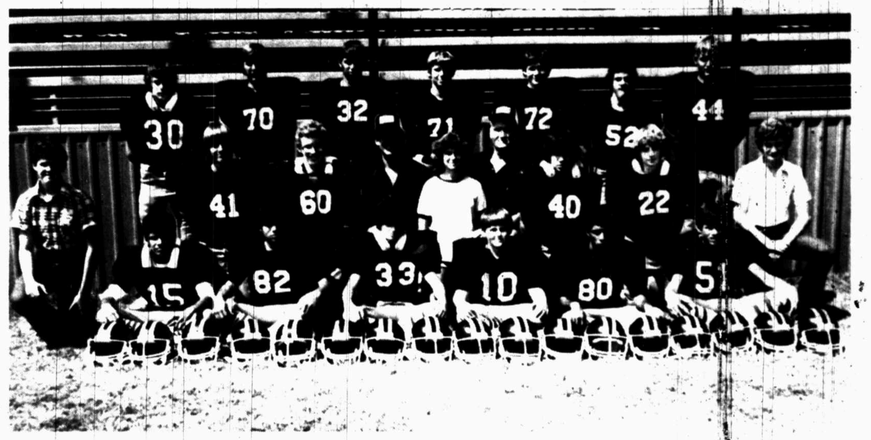

Another Bulldog assets will be conditioning and just plain old hard hitting.

"I HAVEN'T seen a group hit as hard as this one in a while and coaches out there will tell you last year's group hit you hard," smiled the coach. "So we're going to be a physical team. I think right now I can say we'll be as physical as anybody in the district."

As for conditioning, the Bulldogs held two-a-day workouts prior to the start of school, whereas most other 2-A squads just worked out once.

"I think it will tell late in the game. We're going to be able to stick with people and it's going to show," said Pierson.

"Realistically, we'll have to play to 100 percent of our ability to win because there are some very good football teams in this district. We'd have to make no mistakes and have no injuries and have some luck. But we're going into the season with the belief that these things can happen. We're going to surprise some people, I think. As long as we keep our desire up and keep learning, we're going to be fine."

TOM PIERSON

Bulldogs can count on three veterans to lead

IRA – Ira High School fields a team 17 strong for 1981., including 10 lettermen and three returning veterans.

Leading the charge this year will be the team's only returning seniors, Jimmy Elam and James Crowder. Elam, 5-11, 170, will probably be moved from tight end to split end offensively and will return as middle linebacker

Crowder, 5-11, 170, quarterbacks the Bulldogs' "Quail" offense and plays cornerback on defense.

The other vet is junior Shane Smith, a 5-8, 184-pounder who played center and defensive lineman last year.

The trio will likely get starting nods again this year, according to Coach Tom Pierson, in his second season as football coach of the Bulldogs.

Remaining starters from the junior class will probably come from 5-11½, 190 Scott Groat at tight end and defensive line, and 5-10½, 165 Jeff Kellner at running back and linebacker.

Sophomores who appear to be making their way into the lineup at present are 5-7, 135 Danny Denson at running back and safety, and 5-5½, 135 Andres Jaurez at split end or runn-

Mustangs could be even stronger

It didn't take long for first-year coach W.T. Stapler to get slumping Sweetwater back on track, and if returning experience and enthusiasm mean anything, the Mustangs will be in the thick of the 2-4A race in 1981.

The Mustangs shocked the district when former Conroe mentor Stapler took a 1-9 team and made it 6-4. That success could happen again this season because the team returns six offensive and five defensive players.

Keeping Sweetwater fans on the edge of their seats again will be sophomore quarterback Scott Richardson and senior runningback Danny Williams. Richardson threw for 811 yards and six touchdowns as a freshman in 1981 and Williams aided the 'Stang ground game with 361 yards and eight TDs. Almost all of the offensive wall returns, but Stapler indicated he may make some switches in his offensive and defensive personnel. Last year's starters however, included David Jones (210) at denter, Jeff Perry (175), and Steve Medlicott (180) at the guards and Boyce McLoud (220) and Barry Chance (205) at the tackles.

Stapler has indicated he may put Dean Roberts (168) at center and transfer Eric Vering (195) at a tackle, and replace the other side with Vance Payne (168) and Kary Kent (180).

Other plans call for moving Jones from center to defensive guard where he saw some action last year, to go along with honorable mention selections. David Hendrix (220) at tackle and Pat Gerald (170) at linebacker. Also returning is end-tackle Joe Head (188). Williams will likely be back at a cornerback slot as the only member of the secondary returning.

The Mustangs open the campaign Sept. 4 at Clyde, then host Big Spring on the 11th. An open date on Sept. 18 helps the team prepare for its first district encounter of the season, Sept. 25 at rival Snyder.

Chiefs welcome huge senior class

Coach Jim Slaughter is counting on a handful of returning starters and 34 seniors to help make 1981 a strong year for the Lake View Chiefs. That promises good leadership qualities and experience for the Chiefs, who fell to 4-6 last year after losing 33 seniors in 1979.

Returning to the explosive backfield is 6-0, 165 pound junior Troy Butts, who was sidelined with an injury during the 1980 season. The fullback may be a strong suit too, if 195-pound Guy Dickey fullfills Slaughter's hopes.

Also back offensively is 150-pound senior Ed Scott at the flanker, and 175-pound guard Derek Rushing.

But if the returnees seem slim, they are big, and Slaughter feels his line could average 220 pounds. Probable starters include 5-9, 240 center Juan Varquero, who played defensive tackle last year, and a pair of 6-1 200-pound guards, Jerry Jackson and Billy Skinner. The tackles could be even bigger if 5-9, 214 Jimmy Walters, and 245-pound Buddy Harris win starting roles.

Slaughter will have to come up with replacements for his top ground gainers, ballcarrier Garry Gonzales (819 yards, five TDs) and quarterback Steve Hernandez (93 yards, two TDs rushing; 1,304 yards, 11 TDs passing).

Defensively, Rushing leads the line. He'll be backed by returning end Jerry Young (170), and Guy Dickey (195). Scott, a second-team all-district choice in 1980, will be back at defensive halfback. The remainder of the positions will be filled by inexperienced personnel, though Slaughter said he "feels good about the talent we have".

Lake View opens the season Sept. 4 at Del Rio, then hosts Stamford on the 11th. The Chiefs open the loop campaign at Fort Stockton on the 18th.

Monahans is coaches pick

Monahans is the pick of the coaches to continue playing when all other District 2-AAAA members have hung up their cleats and if an offensive line is the key to a banner season, the Loboes will do just that.

One reason the Loboes have been pegged finish on top is schedule. Monahans opens with 3A opponents Kermit and Crane on Sept. 4 anfl 11, and begins district play against second-division Lamesa on Sept. 18, all at home. The Loboes do travel to always-tough Pecos on Sept. 25, but then entertain predicted cellar-dweller Odessa Ector Oct. 2 and are open Oct. 16.

The almost tailor-made schedule gives coach Dick Winder time to rebuild his graduated offensive backfield, and realize some help for a basically inexperienced defensive unit.

Offensively, Winder brings back five players to his 'I' formation, including 6-1, 206 pound senior center Randy Roark, an honorable mention selection last year. Another honorable mention cog is 5-9, 175 senior guard Bobby Jarrett. Also back is the other guard, 5-9, 175 Tommy Sanchez.

Back for another season is 6-1, 185 senior tackle Gary Nall, and 6-2, 190 senior tight end Mike Campbell; more reasons Monahans has been picked to win the district - senior

You got to know when to hold 'em. Know when to fold 'em. Know when to walk away, and when to run. You never count your money, when it's sittin' on the table. There'll be time enough for countin', when the dealin's done.

HERMLEIGH -- Last year Coach Clarence Spieker's Cards were like a freshly opened deck. They lacked experience and with only two seniors and few returning starters they went 1-8.

Now, in 1981, a year wiser and deeper in desire and experience, Hermleigh is ready to make another round of the District 2-A six-man table.

HERMLEIGH BRINGS back eight starters - the entire regular crew - to a staff that boasts 16 lettermen and eight seniors. Spieker won't make any predictions concerning the Red and White this year - there's still a lack of team speed to be dealt with - but one gets the feeling that the Hermleigh Cardinals have a definite chance to be "countin' when the dealin's done.".

"WE LOOK much better this year than last year because we know what we're doing out there," said Spieker, who will be handling the Cardinals alone in 1981. Assistant Randy Peel took the head coaching job at xxxxx. "The kids experienced a lot last year and they've retained a lot of that knowledge. They know what the game is all about now, whereas last year they were learning as they went. It's given us a better start. We haven't had to spend as much time on certain things as we did last year."

Hermleigh traditionally runs out of a tight 'T' formation with a little bit of the 'I' thrown in for variety, and utilizes a 2-3-1 defense.

"Let's just say I think we'll be stronger than we were a year ago. We're more experienced and we've got a terrific attitude."

Most of that attitude - leadership - comes from the eight seniors. Six were full-time starters and another started early in the season before being injured.

In all probability, the Cardinals will be led by four all-conference talents, including 6-3, 200-pound middle linebacker-halfback Kenny Riley. Riley was first team all-district and second team all-area as a linebacker in 1980. He was also second team running back.

Though he lacks blazing speed, Riley manages to cover the field well defensively and his size and strength gives him overpowering qualities as a running back. He also handles punting duties for the Cardinals, and most coaches feel he is one of the top talents in the district.

"KENNY IS a hard worker. He concentrates on what he's doing 100 percent," said Spieker. "He knows his job and does it to his ability on every play."

If so, Riley's dedication is an example of the 1981 Cardinals. "Our seniors as a group are good, good leaders," added the coach. "They show what's needed by their actions, not by words."

Adding extra strength and experience are first-team offensive end selection Daniel Martinez (185); second team offense end Ted Olsen (180), and second team safety Dennis Jones (145).

All four started two-ways in 1980 and will be hard pressed to get out of the lineup again this year.

Other returning starters are seniors 150-pound Darrell Mayo, center; 135-pound Robert Mullins, linebacker; and 130-pound halfback Mike Nachlinger and 130-pound junior quarterback Kevin Roemisch, both juniors. Mike Nachlinger also put the boot in Hermleigh's kickoffs last season.

Sophomores Anthony Roa (145-halfback) and Martin Fuentes (250-center) also saw action last year, as did junior Daryl Nachlinger (160-end, extra-point kicker) and senior Pat Kincaid (170-end). Kincaid started for several games last year until sidelined with an injury.

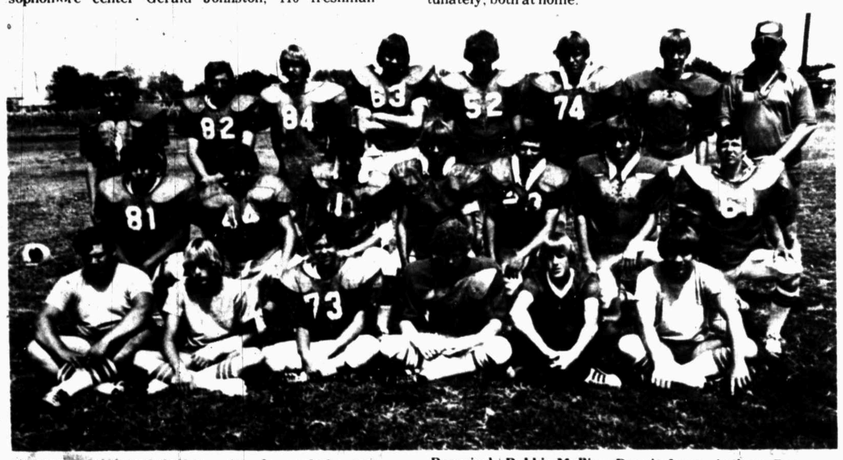

The remaining members of the squad - all of which may get some experience in - include 210 senior end Billy Wallace, 126 junior end Tom Henry, 150 junior end Cary Gunset, 155 junior quarterback Davy Peterson, 120 sophomore center Gerald Johnston, 110 freshman quarterback Darren Hughes, 145 freshman end Jeff Gannaway and 115 freshman end Todd Dunnam.

Speed, or lack of it, is Hermleigh's major problem in 1981.

"We don't have team speed like Borden County or Trent of Highland," pointed our Spieker. "Hopefully, our experience will put us in the right place at the right time in most cases. We should be able to do okay if we don't make mistakes."

SPIEKER ONLY nods and smiles when predictions are mentioned. He'd rather leave that to someone else. But he will say his Cardinals "have a chance to be in the top four." Matter of fact, Texas Sports picks the Cardinals third in 2-A, behind Highland and Trent.

Hermleigh opens with tough opponents Dawson there and Wellman at home, and begins district play with back-to-back stronghorses Trent and Highland - but fortunately, both at home.

Basics the key at Borden County

TO WIN THE tough 2-A six-man conference this year Borden County will have to defeat some of West Texas' best teams - and to do that, the Coyotes will have to build up their offensive blocking, projected Coach Randy Roemisch.

"We'll have to beat Trent, Hermleigh and Highland, I feel like, to have a chance at winning district," the fifth-year head coach said. "Grady and Ira both lost quite a bit of seniors but could be tough. McCaulley had a long way to come the last time I saw them, but if they come that far they could be a threat too."

Borden County begins its second year in the 2-A six-man district, heralded by many to be one of the toughest all-around conferences in the state.

"For us to contend, our blocking has got to be better. We're solid in four or five spots both ways, but we've got to have some people come through for us. I really don't know how well we can do this year. It depends on a lot of things."

BORDEN COUNTY was known for its tough defense last year - especially early in the season - but offensively the Coyotes bogged down too often. Roemisch cited lack of adequate blocking as the major reason.

"We've got people with the ability and talent to come through for us. It's just a matter of getting them to know what we want them to do. To have a successful season we can't have the kinds of breakdowns we did at times last year. We're going to have to be consistant. And," he grinned, "we're going to have to score one or two touchdowns."

Meanwhile, new uniforms have given the traditionally proud Coyotes a new, fresher look: columbia blue pants, white jersies with columbia blue letters and striped blue, red and white short sleeves.

"WE THINK IT'S a good change," relayed the coach, who said the new uniforms are basically a result of the old ones wearing out. "The kids seem real enthused about it. And, I think a lot of people were getting tired of the others (more red, different shade of blue).

Borden County has been picked to finish fourth in preseason polls, behind Highland, Trent and Hermleigh. That's fine with Roemisch, who would rather let another team take the hot seat.

But, said Roemisch with a smile, "I thought we had a good shot last year. To me, our shot is better this time around."

Outsiders beware! It's a long way home from Gail, Texas. Especially if there's a Coyote nipping at your tail.

Coyotes will bite back hard in 1981 campaign

GAIL -- COACH RANDY Roemisch hopes a year's experience of six-man football will make his Borden County Coyotes a saltier team to deal with in 1981, and with a 6-4 finish last year, that could spell trouble for other District 2-A members.

Borden County returns three three-year starters to the pack this year, including two-way all-district selection Jym Rinehart, and all-conference players Jr. Benavidez and Mike Peterson.

Several others, including Jibber Herridge, Tim Buchanan, Darrell Greene, Kevin Telchick, Sam Williams, Scott Jones and Phillip Benavidez saw action last year and are among the 16 lettermen returning.

With 21 players out this season, Borden County may field one of the areas largest six-man teams. But experience in the type of game itself may be the Coyotes' greatest foe in 1981, as it was last year.

"We're in good shape as far as football experience is concerned," said the coach, "but we may be lacking six-man football experience. We learned a lot last year, but it seemed like we learned more early in the season than towards the end."

1981 will be Borden County's second season to play six-man ball, following four years of 11-man and, before that, a deep history of 8-man ball. "The kids were just getting used to 11-man when we went to six-man so it's been like starting all over again," he added.

The graduation of all-2-A standouts Van York, Troy King and Maurice Herridge has also caused some changes, leading Roemisch and assistants Lynn Maxwell and Bill May to make an offensive switch from the 'T' to the 'I' this year.

RINEHART, A second-team all-district quarterback as a junior last year, will likely move to a runningback spot, for instance.

"Jym is a good all-purpose player for us and we don't want to restrict him by keeping him at quarterback," said Roemisch of the 5-10, 136-pound athlete. "As a quarterback in six-man ball he would be pitching or passing the ball off a lot. We want Rinehart to be handling the ball more."

And the Coyotes have capable hands to replace Rinehart at the QB spot, Roemisch noted.

"Both Darrell Green (5-9, 128) and Kevin Telchik (5-7, 120 jr.) have the intelligence to play quarterback. They're both pretty smart individuals," added the coach.

Rinehart will probably repeat as a defensive safety again in '81, where he won first team all-loop honors last year. Though starters have yet to be determined for the Coyote squad, other key personnel will include offensive end-fensive system. Converting from the Veer to the Straight 'T' has been taxing mentally for the players, and that, coupled with a lack of speed and veteranship at some positions means a fast maturing job if the Tigers plan to bid for the title in 1981.

As for the lack of speed, Byerly said, "We're going to have to be a ball control offense. We don't have much speed at any position so we're not going to break many plays. So we'll have to execute well and be consistant in what we do."

On the current depth chart, Gafford is listed as starting at tight end, backed by David Delce and Israel Ortegon. At left offensive tackle is Harlin. His backup will be dictated by needs at other positions.

Echols has been moved from his fullback role of a year ago to left guard and will be backed by Loyd Sands. At center will be Gressett, who saw some action at the post last year. Current backup at the position is Ronnie Lindsey, who has missed some workouts and scrimmages with a broken finger.

At right guard is Bryan Limmer, backed by Bawcum. Darrell Robertson mans the right tackle position, with the injured Barry Davis serving as second in line.

Three players are listed as starters at split end, which Byerly will use to send in plays from the sidelines. They are Roemisch, Britt Vincent and David Miller. Listed as backups are Mike Luera, Felix Canales, Parham and Wallace. Wallace is another player currently out with an injury (knee).

At fullback will be Raymond Jeffery, with Matt Davis at relief. Shaw will move from the starting tailback slot to the right halfback in Byerly's 'T' this year with Tracy Neves as his backup. The left halfback slot will be commanded by Casey Peterson and Herrley.

fullback Jr. Benavidez (5-11, 171) who doubles at middle linebacker, and offensive end-fullback Peterson (5-9, 150), who will also see action at defensive end.

A PLACE WILL also be found for 5-8, 150 Jibber Herridge, "one of our better special teams people last year" at offensive or defensive end, and for 1981 backup center Tim Buchanan, 5-9, 155.

Another player who saw quite a bit of action last year was runningback-linebacker Sam Williams (5-8, 148 soph.), who rushed for 128 yards against Hermleigh, and Jones (5-10, 155 soph.) of whom Roemisch said "has college potential as a deep snapper if he wants to work at it hard enough."

Others who will help the 1981 squad include center-end Michael Vaughn (5-10, 241 sr.), offensive-defensive end Chip Smith (5-11, 220 sr.), center-linebacker Glen Gray (5-7, 150 sr.), center-end Doug Love, (6-0, 158 jr.), offensive-defensive end Roscoe Massingill (5-10, 142 jr.), offensive-defensive end Keith Williams (6-0, 154 jr.), fullback-linebacker Fred Burns (5-10, 162 soph.), offensive-defensive end Charles LaRue (5-11, 161 soph.), center-end Glen Bacon (5-6, 191, fresh.), back-linebacker Kirby Williams (5-9, 140 fresh.), and end-linebacker Dennis Buchanan (5-6, 136 fresh.).

TIGER HIGHLIGHTS AND LOWLIGHTS

1923 Records are temporarily unavailable, but a 1924 newspaper refers to Snyder High School's football team, "only in its second year" of competition. This was the beginning of the present day Fightin' Tigers.

1924 Coached by J.A. Roberts and M.S. Lewis, early SHS grid teams had short seasons of four to seven games, but long quarters - 11 minutes. There was no real scheduling; teams played whoever was available. District play was soon to follow, however.

1925 Snyder experienced more ties than wins in its first two years of recorded football history. The team went 1-4 (scoring a total of 9 points) in '25, and 1-4-3 in 1926. Snyder played Loraine three times in '26, tying the 'Dogs each game; 7-7, 0-0 and 0-0.

1930 It didn't take long for Snyder to begin winning. After seasons of 4-5-1 in 1927 and 5-5 in '28 and '29, Snyder won its first class B championship under the guidance of Coach Ottis (Red) Moore. The 1930 squad posted an 11-2 season, averaging 27.4 points offensively and allowing only 4.2 per opponent. The Tigers recorded six shutouts, including a 21-0 whipping of Stanton in bi-district and a 45-0 romp over Albany in regional - at that time, the highest goal achievable.

1931 Moore's Tigers repeated the trick in 1931, defeating Stanton again for bi-district, 33-12, then polishing off the season with a 13-0 regional win over Commanche. Snyder traded some heavy blows with its opposition in 1931. The Tigers were ripped on three straight occassions, 71-0 by Lubbock, 46-0 by Abilene and 25-0 by Slaton. To reverse the situation, Snyder grabbed wins of 67-6 over Rotan, 41-0 over Roby, 41-0 over Roscoe and 52-0 over Stamford.

1932 Another district championship for Coach Moore's Tigers. Snyder went 7-2-1 for the season, losing its bi-district bid to Wink, 7-6.

1933 The 1933 team did not vie for any postseason honors, but allowed only 19 points scored all season and recorded seven shutouts in a 7-1-2 record. A 6-2 loss to eventual conference champion Rotan was Snyder's first district loss in four years.

1935 Bad times. The Tigers suffered their worst defeat in school football history, falling 75-0 to larger Lubbock High.

1936 Snyder won district (still class B) with a 5-4-2 season record, averaging 9.1 points offense and giving up 9.6. Coach W.W. (Red) Hill's team lost its bi-district bid to Littlefield, 25-12.

1938 Not a banner year in Tiger history, Snyder was shutout five times.

1939 First year in class A, Snyder again did not compete for postseason honors, but staged six straight shutout games.

1941 The lowest point in Tiger history? Perhaps. Snyder posted a season record of 1-9, scoring only 25 points all year while giving up 243. The Tigers were shutout seven times and scored only six points in their last seven games.

1942 Biggest victory (point-wise) in school's football history, an 89-0 thrashing of little Fluvanna.

1943 Season was shortened to only four games because Coach Frank Weaver joined the Navy, making Snyder ineligible for district play. According to newspaper reports, team captain Bobby Hicks was a guiding force for the coachless Tigers.

1945 Another low point as Snyder suffered six shutouts, scoring 23 points in nine games for a 2-6-1 record.

1948 For the first time since 1941, every opponent managed to score against the Tigers. In fact, Snyder got whipped badly, allowing 23.9 points per opponent while scoring only 31 points in a 1-7 season which included five shutouts.

1955 On the upswing again, Snyder fashioned a 9-2 (8-0 district) record, scoring an average of 26.5 points an outing and allowing 7.9. Won district (3-1A) with John Conley at the helm but lost to Garland for bi-district, 18-13.

Quarterback slot yet to be filled

Snyder hopes to build offensive strength this year around the Straight 'T' and eight or more returning starters, but for solidity to take place Coach George Byerly and his staff are looking to some as yet untested talent.

That role will be at quarterback, where Snyder has three candidates in the running; senior Darryl Boone and juniors Brent Beck and David Nicholson.

"I think we have a real good, competitive situation for quarterback," said Byerly. "We're looking for three main things out of our quarterbacks. First, we're looking for leadership and not ability. The quarterback has to be a general on the field of our offensive team. Next, he must be a fierce competitor. Then comes ability. He's got to be sharp mentally, but that goes with the first thing I said, leadership."

The coaches will make a decision several days before the first ballgame, scheduled for Sept. 4 in Big Spring.

"We want to select a quarterback as soon as we can. I don't like to go into the season with two quarterbacks. We want an individual where the team knows he is our quarterback. Fortunately, we're in the situation where we'll have good people right behind him in case we need them," added the coach.

Returning as the nucleus of the squad are tight end Curtis Gafford, left tackle Trey Harlin, left guard Ross Bawcum, center Steve Gressett, right tackle Barry Davis and split ends Glen Parham and Brent Roemisch. Also back and ballcarriers Perry Echols, Mark Shaw and Kirk Herrley. It should be pointed out however, that injuries have forced Davis and Parham to miss workouts, and it will be several weeks before either is expected to help the team this year.

Some of the experience Snyder gains from returning personnel will be diluted because of another problem - clearing a new of-

Big 'D' strong point in 1981 Tiger camp

When the 1981 football campaign has ended for Snyder High School's Fightin' Tigers, Coach George Byerly wants District 2-AAAA members to have a vivid memory of at least one thing.

"I think most people would agree that in any sport championship teams play good defense. I'd like for it to be a tradition that when a team plays Snyder it sees a defense that swarms the football," stated the coach.

Only 28 strong, lacking speed and depth, Snyder will go into battle in 1981 utilizing its strength and desire - and in some cases, experience.

"I don't think it's any secret. We're just going to have to go out there and whip people. We don't have a great deal of speed. We can't finesse too many opponents. We're just going to have to be tougher," Byerly said.

Defensive returnees include 1980 all-district linebacker Matt Davis, and cornerback Casey Peterson. Brent Roemisch also saw some action last year as a defensive safety.

Lack of overall numbers and returning defensive starters will lead Byerly and his staff to work several players both ways. The returning offensive players - several of whom will see defensive action as well, include tight end Curtis Gafford, left tackle Trey Harlin, left guard Ross Bawcum, center Steve Gressett, right tackle Barry Davis and split ends Glen Parham and Brent Roemisch. Also back and ballcarriers Perry Echols, Mark Shaw and Kirk Herrley.

At present however, that number is somewhat inaccurate since Parham is reccuperating from knee surgery and Davis has been limited in workouts after receiving a non-football related concussion. Also on the "injury" list are Keith Wallace (knee) and Ronnie Lindsey (broken finger).

"We hope all of our injured players will eventually be able to help us," said Byerly, "but right now we can't afford to count on them. We've got to utilize the players we have. I think it will probably take some time before these (injured) players are able to help us, even after being released by a doctor, because they've missed so much. Even then, they'll have to beat someone out to get a position."

Byerly produced a list of starters and backups but stressed the list is not definite and is subject to change.

The present defensive lineup has 5-10, 205 senior Bryan Limmer at left end, backed up by 6-0, 195 senior Echols. At right end will be 6-0, 180 pound senior Raymond Jeffery. He'll be relieved by 6-0, 160 pound senior Gressett.

At tackles will be 6-0, 180 senior Darrell Robertson (right) and 6-1, 205 senior Harlin (left). They'll be backed by 6-0, 210 junior Bawcum and 5-10, 160 senior Loyd Sands respectively.

Strong backer will be Gafford (6-0, 190 junior) or Shaw (5-11, 170 senior) and at weak backer will be Herrley (5-9, 165 junior), backed by Lindsey (6-0, 160 senior).

At Sam backer is Matt Davis, a 5-10, 180 junior, backed by 5-8, 150 junior Tracy Neves. Strong corner is another returning starter, 5-10, 160 junior Peterson, with 6-0, 150 junior David Nicholson serving as relief.

The other returning backfield starter is strong safety Roemisch at 5-9, 150. The junior will be backed by Mike Luera (5-10, 160 junior), Israel Ortegon (6-0, 160 senior), Felix Canales (5-10, 150 senior) and Parham (6-1, 175 junior).

The other tentative starters defensively are 6-0, 165 junior David Miller at weak safety and 5-11, 155 junior "Willie" backer Britt Vincent. Backing up the weak safety will be David Delce (6-10, 165 junior), Darryl Boone (5-9, 135 senior) and Wallace (6-2, 165 senior). Relieving at the counter post will be 6-0, 155 junior Brent Beck.

"Right now, the defensive talent is there. It's just a matter of learning what to expect from us (the coaches) and learning to execute in each position. Our secondary is our most experienced group (defensively) and yet they are still pretty young. Of our linebackers and front four, six of the seven kids who started last year are gone (or are out indefinately with injuries)."

1956 Under Conley again, Snyder clawed out a 10-1 record, recording seven shutouts and allowing its opponents only 2.9 points a game. Snyder offense averaged 26.6. Team had allowed only six points after eight games. Lost to Graham in a tough bi-district clash, 7-6.

1959 Snyder finished the season with a 5-5 record, 3-1 in district play, to deadlock with two other teams for the title. A flip of the coin sent Lamesa into post-season work.

1960 A district representative with a 4-7 record? Snyder shared the title with a 3-1 loop mark and earned representation rights. The Tigers gave a tough fight for the bi-district title but lost to Brownwood, 29-20.

1963 Snyder fashioned an 8-3 mark, 5-0 in loop play under coach Horace Bostick. Lost in bi-district to Graham, 19-0.

1969 Snyder recorded early upsets when it tied No. 1 ranked Lubbock Estacado and defeated ranked Dunbar. A 4-1 zone record (6-4-1 season) put Snyder in the district playoff where Estacado repaid the debt, 38-3.

1972 Snyder left the AAA ranks for two years to make the 4A circuit, going 2-8 in 1972 and 6-3-1 in '73. District opponents included Lubbock High, Conorado, Monterey, Hereford and Plainview.

1974 Back in AAA, Snyder went 6-0 in district play with Maurice (Mo) Hodges at the wheel but lost to Brownwood 42-0 in bi-district competition.

1978 Snyder's Tigers were 4-0 in loop play and 9-3 on the year. Coach Mike Jenkins' crew posted the school's first bi-district victory since 1931, before falling to Estacado in regional competition, 27-9.

1980 In a newly formed district and back in class 4A (this time because of new UIL class designations), Snyder suffered its worst season since 1972; before that, since 1951. Snapped winning streaks over Big Spring and Sweetwater at 8 and 7 games respectively and suffered third greatest loss in school's history to Fort Stockton, 57-0.

1923 Records are temporarily unavailable, but a 1924 newspaper refers to Snyder High School's football team, "only in its second year" of competition. This was the beginning of the program.

1935 Bad times. The Tigers suffered their worst defeat in school football history, falling 75-0 to larger Lubbock High.

UNDER NEW HEAD COACH GEORGE BYERLY...

Tigers my be building, but time for winning is now

BY BILL MCCLELLAN

COACH GEORGE Byerly doesn't like to consider 1981 as a rebuilding year for the Tigers, who fell to 2-8 their first year in the newly formed District 2-AAAA and are under a new coaching staff this time around. He intends to get Snyder High School back in the title role as soon as possible.

"We're going into this season and every season to win and we're going into each ballgame to win," said Byerly, who took Snyder to back-to-back basketball championships in 1979-80 and 80-81 before taking over the football program this year. For 1981, just competing with the rest of the district won't be enough.

"I don't like to say 'we'll compete' because to me that's like saying you're going to lose. So we're not going into the season just to try and compete. We're going into the season to win and to take each game one at a time, and try to build and learn from each one," Byerly stressed.

"YOU COULD call it a foundation year if you want. We're laying down a cornerstone for the future. But we have kids that are capable of winning right now."

Ironically, Byerly doesn't feel any pressure as head football coach at Snyder High School. And that's something he'd like to see change.

"I don't feel any pressure from outside, and I wish I did," he said. "I think there ought to be pressure from the parents and from the community because that where it starts. They have to have the desire to have a winning team. If I feel pressure the kids will feel pressure. And if they're competitors they'll rise to it."

With a new staff and a new system, perhaps the community is taking a wait-and-see approach. But Byerly doesn't want that.

"I feel pressure right now, but it comes from within," he pointed out. I put pressure on myself because I want to win. I think anybody in this business ought to. It's not the winning but the desire to win that's important. If you have the desire to win and you keep trying, you're going to get there. If you lose that desire, then you're not going to be successful."

That desire to excell spreads throughout the community, but it starts at home.

"I DON'T think it starts with the kids or with the coaching staff. It has to start at home," stressed the coach. "If the kids feel the pressure to play and play well, I think that's what they'll do.

"There's no reason there are not 25 or 30 seniors on our ballclub every year. We're big enough to have that situation. We've got good facilities and good kids., There's no reason why we can't have great senior tradition like other teams in this district," added the coach. "These are some of the things we're working towards."

It seems the future of Snyder football is in good hands.
