Airliner Crashes, 95 Of 117 Perish

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (AP)—A British airliner carrying 117 persons on a vacation to Yugoslavia crashed and burned today as it came in for a landing and 95 persons perished.

Officials here said 80 persons died when the plane plunged into a woods shortly after midnight in cloudy weather near the airport of this mountain city.

TWO SERIOUS

The other victims died in hospitals or on the way. Officials said that of the 22 survivors, two were in serious condition but the others were out of danger.

Rescue workers said those who survived had nearly all been seated in the back of the plane.

When the first rescuers appeared, about a dozen survivors were stumbling about, weeping in shock and hysteria.

It was the worst air disaster in Yugoslav history.

The four-engine Britannia turboprop crashed shortly after midnight on a flight from Luton Airport, 30 miles north of London.

The plane had just cleared the snow-covered peaks of north Yugoslavia's Julian Alps which rim this prosperous and modern capital of Slovenia. It was coming in for a normal landing when it crashed in a field near the runway.

The passengers were British tourists coming to Yugoslavia for a late summer vacatoin.

Survivors were rushed to the Ljubljana hospital, which issued an immediate appeal for blood donations.

Authorities in Ljubljana, 80 miles northeast of Trieste, rushed an investigating commission to the crash site.

Ljubljana police said 80 persons were killed in the crash, five others died en route to hospitals, and five others after admission to hospitals.

CHARTER FLIGHTS

The plane was flown by Britannia Airways, which operates charter flights for British travel agencies. It was the company's first accident since it was formed five years ago.

The Britannia 102 plunged into a field near Ljubljana's Brnik Airport in the vicinity of the village of Modemnda.

There was no immediate word on identities of the dead and the survivors.

Britannia Airways sent an emergency flight from Luton to bring company officials here.

The last major crash involving a British-owned airliner was on March 5 when a British Overseas Airways Corp. Boeing 707 jet crashed near Tokyo with the loss of 124 lives.

KILLED 83

The last Britannia to crash, also a charter plane, came down in the mountains near Innsbruck, Austria, in February, 1964, killing 83 persons.

Among the injured survivors were Arthur Rowcliff of Dunday, Berkshire, his wife Margaret and daughter Pania.

From his hospital bed Rowcliff said:

"We were all sitting together in the back of the plane when I suddenly felt the plane starting to fly slower. At the same time it started to vibrate. A few seconds later we crashed. The plane bounced back into the air and then hit down again.

"We were thrown out of the plane into the clear. I saw my daughter lying among wreckage as though she were dead. I managed to get her out even though my head and hands were injured. My wife Margaret seems to be even more seriously hurt."

Strong Shakes Crumble Walls

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — An earth tremor, described as "very strong" by the state meteorogical bureau, shook the quake-devastated town of Varto in the eastern Turkish province of Mus Wednesday night.

The state radio reported today the shock crumbled the few damaged walls left standing after a catastrophic earthquake erased Varto from the map on Aug. 19 and killed at least 2,477 persons in the region.

Encephalitis Toll Climbing

SEOUL (AP)—The death toll from encephalitis in South Korea since early August neared the 400 mark today, with 30 additional deaths reported.

The Health Ministry reported a total of 397 deaths and 1,788 cases.

More Rains Keep Presidio Under Siege Of Floods

By The Associated Press

More rain fell at flood-plagued Presidio in the Big Bend country and fresh showers and thunderstorms kept a broad stretch of the state farther north and east under siege today.

Up to four inches of rain drenched rural areas near Memphis in the lower Texas Panhandle overnight. The measurement in Memphis was one inch.

LESS RAIN

Presidio, where the swollen Rio Grande has blocked the auto toll road to Mexico and washed out a railroad bridge, received only .12 inch of rain in a nightlong electrical storm.

Reports of still more downpours in northern Mexico, however, raised concern over possibly a four-foot rise in the flooding stream by about Friday.

Shower activity meanwhile spread eastward in early morning from near Midland in West Texas, growing into occasional thunderstorms from around Wichita Falls and Breckenridge past Jacksboro. A broken area of showers up to 50 miles wide extended northward into Oklahoma.

Late Wednesday Farwell, in West Texas near the New Mexico line, measured 1.20 inches of rain within an hour. Hail accompanied the storm.

Thunderstorms also rumbled through North and East Texas in the evening and showers fell everywhere except in the south part of the state.

Mexican rivers pouring into the Rio Grande above Presidio sent the stream out of banks Monday. Its level dropped to slightly under 18 feet today but another rise was expected.

VAGUE REPORTS

Presidio's official weather reporter, Oliver Harper, said there were vague reports by Mexican radio "and the grapevine of a 10-inch cloudburst two days ago on the San Pedro River."

The San Pedro flows into the Rio Concho, which in turn spills into the Rio Grande. Harper said the expected new flood crest should arrive about Friday.

Presidio officials received word earlier of still other rivers cutting through dams and dikes to flood farms in Northern Mexico.

The Mexican village of San Antonio, across the Rio Grande from Candelaria, issued an appeal for a doctor and medicine to combat illness caused by the flooding. Candelaria is upstream from Presidio.

CROPS LOST

Mexican authorities said practically all crops on their side of the river had been destroyed. Flood waters also wiped out most of the cotton being grown near Presidio, but the town itself sits on higher ground and there was little flooding.

Ambulance Runs Saved By Pact

The city and the local ambulance service came to an emergency, stop-gap understanding Wednesday, guaranteeing emergency ambulance service for 30 days.

Big Spring Ambulance Service had intended going out of the emergency business Thursday if some sort of financial arrangements were not made to help the company.

O. D. Majors, owner of the service, and Lanny Hamby, his lawyer, met at 4 p.m. Wednesday with Mayor Arnold Marshall, City Manager Larry Crow, City Attorney John Burgess and Commissioner Jimmy Moorehead and worked up the agreement.

The group told Majors that if he will continue to provide ambulances for 30 days, the city will guarantee (for 30 days) to collect 80 per cent of his unpaid bills—providing the city commission passes an ordinance making non-payment of ambulance fees a misdemeanor. Such an ordinance will be drawn up and presented to the commission at the next meeting. The arrangement is renegotiable, Crow said.

Ambulance service under the emergency arrangement concerns the city, Crow said today, not the county. The city is not guaranteeing bill collection for county calls.

"Mr. Majors was cooperative and helpful," Crow said today, "and the arrangement, we feel, is reasonable to both parties."

During the next 30 days, presumably, the city and county will try to find an answer to ambulance problems. The county is awaiting word from the Texas attorney general as to the possibility of using county funds to pay ambulance fees for indigents.

Bombers Hammer Away At Commie Infiltration Route

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP) — U.S. B52 bombers hammered suspected Communist infiltration routes in the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam Today.

BUFFER STRIP

The planes from Guam unloaded tons of explosive on two target areas in the buffer strip where North Vietnamese regulars were seen infiltrating into the South.

Air Force pilots reported so many hits on an ammunition depot that it "looked like a fireworks display."

A week-long lull in ground fighting persisted another day in South Viet Nam. The U.S. command reported no significant fighting. Sought Vietnamese headquarters listed only one engagement of any size.

The allied commands announced that enemy casualties dropped sharply last week while U.S. and South Vietnamese combat losses remained about the same.

Allied spokesman said 1,009 Communists were killed and 101 captured last week. This was an unexplained drop from 1,823 Communist reported killed and 247 captured the previous week.

MORE WOUNDED

The U.S. command said 87 Americans were killed last week, compared with 91 Aug. 12-20. However, the number of wounded rose more than 40 per cent from 425 to 599. Only one American was reported missing, a decline of seven.

U Thant Rejects New U. N. Term

Council Must Find Successor

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U Thant rejected today to a new five-year term as secretary-general of the United Nations.

"I have decided not to offer my self for a second term as secretary-general," Thant said, "and to leave the Security Council unfettered in its recommendation to the General Assembly with regard to the next secretary general."

EXPIRES NOV. 3

Thant' statement, contained in a message to the 117 delegations of the U.N., gave no indication he was willing to stay on for an indefinite period while the Security Council tackles the job of finding a new secretary-general. His term expires Nov. 3.

The statement of the soft-spoken, popular Burmese, issued after heavy pressure from U.N. members to persuade him to tay on, reflected his disillusionment and dissatisfaction with the arduous job.

He said he had to "confess to a sense of dissatisfaction with the fact that the organization has not yet achieved universality of membership." This was a reference to the continued absence of Red China a a member.

WRANGLING

The Thant decision raised the prospect of new East-West wrangling over a successor, similar to that in 1961, before the Burmese was chosen.

It also threatened to raise once again the Soviet issue of a "troika" — or three-pronged — directorate which theoretically would represent East, West and neutrals.

There still was a possibility of a movement among Security Council members to draft Thant for the job, and even a possibility that he might succumb to the pressure being applied by many nations, including the United States and the Soviet Union.

However, there seemed a note of finality in Thant's words.

Thant said he had been touched and overwhelmed by the appreciation of his services expressed by heads of government and added:

"If I have not found it possible to accept their urging to be available for a further term of office, it is not for lack of appreciation and gratitude for their sentiments.

ONLY ONE

"It is my belief, as I have said more than once in the past, that a secretary-general of the United Nations should not normally serve for more than one term.

"I have similarly made it known that I do not believe in the concept of any particular person for any particular job. In the circumstances the conclusion I have reached will, I hope, be understood by all my friends and colleagues: I have decided not to offer myself for a second term as secretary-general, and to leave the Security Council unfettered in its recommendation to the General Assembly with regard to the next secretary-general.

FAITH

"I am sure that my own unwillingness to be available for a second term as secretary-general will not be misconstrued by those who know me. I have an abiding and unshakeable faith in the United Nations and its ultimate success, despite the difficulties facing the organization."

The statement from Thant immediately gave rise to conjecture over possible successors. Many have been mentioned, but it was too early to say whether any one man had anything near an inside chance.

Thant, 57, a Burmese Buddist, was elected secretary-general after the death of Dag Hammarskjold, a Swede, in a plane crash Sept. 17, 1961, in Africa. Thant then was Burma's chief U.N. delegate.

The secretary-general's post pays $65,000 a year in salary and allowances and an annual pension of $13,750 on retirement.

Faith Slips Out To Sea

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Faith sped away from the U.S. mainland today, churning the Atlantic into mountainous seas and battering a disabled Italian tanker.

Weathermen said the hurricane, packing 110-mile an hour winds, was following a path that would take her into colder climes—possibly to her death.

The Italian tanker Alberto Benati sent an SOS saying she was adrift and taking on water 500 miles east of Savannah, Ga. and 180 miles from the center of the hurricane. Two other ships within 60 miles of the Alberto Benati reported seas of 27 feet and winds of 69 m.p.h., just short of hurricane force.

The Coast Guard said the Alberto Benati apparently was not in the path of the hurricane.

County's First Bale Ginned Wednesday

Terry Fields, 18-year-old Lee community farmer, ginned Howard County's first bale of 1966 cotton at 4:22 p.m. Wednesday.

Fields is the son of Ted Fields, pioneer Lee farmer, who brought in the first bale in 1965. This year's bale is nine days later than last year's offering.

Fields, who is a student at HCJC, received $300 bonus from the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce at 11 a.m. today as a reward for his diligence. His bale is on display at the Howard County Courthouse square.

He said that his pickers roved over 15 acres to garner enough cotton to make the 2,150 pounds he took to the Luther gin. His father ginned his 1965 bale at the same gin last year. Manager of the Luther gin is J. M. Bradley.

The ginned bale weighed out 580 pounds. Last year's bale, brought in Aug. 21, ginned out 543 pounds out of 2,000 pounds of seed cotton.

The Chamber of Commerce has a $200 prize awaiting the producer of the county's No. 2 bale. Last year, Ted Fields brought in both No. 1 and No. 2.

John Currie, Chamber president, and Walter Bailey, Agriculture Committee chairman, were on hand to present Terry with his bonus check.

He farms the Petty estate and has about 50 acres in cotton. His crop, he said, is not very good—it suffered from the hot weather more than most.

He's A Winner!

Erratic Showers Deluge City, Parts Of County

The south half of Big Spring was subjected to a heavy rain late Wednesday afternoon, and over Howard County nearly all sections had precipitation ranging from showers to sizeable falls.

Some parts of town had as much as 2.0 inches in the downpour which moved in a few minutes before 6 p.m. and lasted for a little over an hour.

During the storm, power lines were reported down at two or three places. A transformer was shot on Algerita.

A car was washed off the slab in the 1400 block on East Sixth, but the driver managed to get his vehicle back on the paving.

Storm sewer troyble developed on Edwards and street lights went out on Birdwell and other points.

There was a sizeable hole washed out of the paving in the 900 block on San Antonio.

No severe damage was caused to the construction on Operation Sparkle downtown and no hail was reported in town.

The U.S. Experiment Farm reported 1.19 inches, which is credited to September because it was measured at 8 a.m. today. August produced 4.72 inches, and the total as of now is 18.29, slightly above the 65-year average of 18.26 inches.

WETTEST IN YEARS

This month is the wettest August in 21 years. It is also the fourth wettest August in the history of the county. The rainest one was in 1942 when 8.43 inches fell. Most recent August to exceed this month was in 1945 when 6.06 inches was recorded.

Over the county, the rainfall was spotted. In the Vincent community about half an inch was reported. Across the county to the west, Knott had 2.10 for one of the heaviest falls anywhere. A few miles north and east, only .20 inch fell in Vealmoor community.

Rains north along the Gail road ran as much as .60. In the Moore community, to the west of town, an inch was reported. Coahoma had from .8 to 1.00 and Moss Creek Lake gauged .50.

Elbow reported the same amount and Lomax, further west had from .50 to .75 inch. There was a report of light hail here but not enough to do damage. No other hail was reported although the dark clouds caused considerable fear that hail might occur.

In the southwest part of town 1.6 to 2 inches were reported. Heaviest rain anywhere appeared to have been in the Kentwood area. At East Twenty-Fifth Street, a guage showed 2.6 inches. Southwest of Kentwood in the Silver Heels area only .65 inch fell. Charles Morrell on West Fifth reported 2.1. Trinity Memorial Park had .50.

Most parts of the city have had 3 inches of rain or more in the past five days.

Governor Meets Marchers

Texas Gov. John Connally (left) listens as Rev. Antonio Gonzales of Houston explains the complaints of the Rio Grande Valley farm workers whom the governor met on the highway 44 miles south of Austin Wednesday. House Speaker Ben Barnes (center) and Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr (behind Rev. Gonzales) accompanied the chief executive when he met the marchers. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Connally Meets Marchers Warmly, But Refuses Help

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex. (AP) — Gov. John B. Connally warmly hugged Rio Grande Valley farm wage marchers then turned down cold their plea for a special legislative session to pass a $1.25 minimum wage law.

Connally's move — driving out Wednesday to meet the marchers who were walking 400 miles to see him — was sudden and dramatic.

The marchers were awed and nervous, at first. Some even rehearsed what they would say to him after they learned he was on the way.

But after the governor rejected the special session, and told them he would not see them at the end of their long hike in Austin Labor Day, the smiles, hugs and handshakes turned to rude shouts.

The chant — "Viva Connally!" —stopped, and some of the marchers picked up the cry, "Viva la huelga (the strike!)", "$1.25 an hour!" and "on to Washington!".

And as he walked away from the meeting in the hot sun, Texas AFL-CIO President H. S. Brown promised labor's full support to the march, which began July 4 in Rio Grande City, Tex., just across the border from Mexico.

"I don't think the problem was solved by this meeting," said Brown, who listened but didn't talk as Connally spoke to the leaders of the march — Eugene Nelson, an organizer for the National Farm Workers Association, and the Revs. James Novarro and Antonio Gonzales, both of Houston.

Connally, flanked by Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr, Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, and House Speaker Ben Barnes, walked into the midst of the marchers alongside Interstate 35 just outside New Braunfels, about 45 miles from Austin.

Connally said he was worried because marchers in other parts of the nation had caused "riots, bloodshed, loss of life and property."

"You don't need a march to see me," he added. "The door of my office is open and was open July 4."

The 40-50 marchers, mostly Mexican-American field hands who say they make from 30 cents to $1 an hour, have been orderly since they set out on foot for Austin.

"While we were pleased that Governor Connally, Attorney General Carr and speaker of the House Ben Barnes came to visit with valley farm marchers, their statements did not, however, alleviate the problems of Texas workers who are living at a poverty level without any protection of the law," said a statement by the march leaders.

It added, "They said nothing that would even indicate their support of the problems."

Connally said: "We are not sitting idly by. We are trying every way we know how to do something about this."

Hot Weather Is Expected

By The Associated Press

September started its 30-day stand with a warm day in the eastern two thirds of the nation and more hot weather appeared in prospect for the next several days.

The Weather Bureau 30-day outlook calls for temperatures above seasonal levels in the Rockies, the Northern and Central Plains and the northern Mississippi Valley.

Readings in the 80s and 90s were indicated again today in the hot belt as well as in the Southwest desert region and in the interior valleys of California.

Temperatures below normal were predicted for September in the Atlantic Coast states, and the southern half of Texas.

Torrential rains hit two Blaine and Major counties in northwest Oklahoma, leaving 10 inches of rain in two hours. Some creeks and highways are flooded. Elsewhere the main showers were confined to the area from the southern plains to the northern Midwest.

It was a little chilly in mountain areas in Colorado and frost was likely in Montana.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 42 at Butte, Mont., to 84 at Laredo, Tex.

No White Pupils Show

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—While racial integration slowly becomes a tolerated way of life over much of the Deep South, Louisiana's Plaquemines Parish stands firmly committed to unyielding segregation.

When five Negroes enrolled in a white school Wednesday under a court order, not a single white pupil showed up. White pickets bearing placards reading "don't" marched outside. There was talk of setting up a private school system.

Adjoining St. Bernard Parish got a similar court directive. Officials said, matter of factly, they would comply.

Why the different attitudes in the sister parishes? Because that's the way Leander Perez wants it.

Perez, 76, is president of the Plaquemines Parish Council. In his view, schoolroom integration would be a disaster.

His unyielding attitude on occasion has brought him in noisy conflict with the federal government, the Roman Catholic church and even the Navy.

Perez has successfully withstood every attempt — there haven't been many—to break through rigid racial barriers in the parish he has ruled for 40 years.

A constitutional lawyer by trade, Perez has amassed a personal fortune. He's a multimillionaire. There are only two kinds of Negroes, Perez has frequently observed.

"Bad ones are niggers and good ones are darkies," he says.

As for the whole civil rights movement, Perez dismisses it with this comment: "It's nothing more than the Communist conspiracy to stir up racist hate."

When the U.S. Navy tried to push nondiscrimination against Negro servicemen who lived in Plaquemines Parish, Perez looked a startled admiral squarely in the eye and roared: "We say the hell with you (the U.S. government). We'll take the initiative and declare you off limits."

For urging defiance of an edict to integrate Roman Catholic schools here, Perez was excommunicated in 1962.

Teamsters Won't Quit

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif (AP) —The AFL-CIO claims an unofficial victory over the Teamsters in the nation's first agricultural union representation election.

Arbitrators say that the vote by 1,349 farmhands is snarled by 332 challenged ballots and that final results won't be available for at least two days.

The Teamsters say no matter what the outcome, they won't stop plans to unionize the bulk of California's 80,000 farm workers.

Mexican-American labor leader Cesar Chavez announced Wednesday in Delano unofficial results of the balloting Tuesday, as counted by AFL-CIO observers. The American Arbitration Association is in charge of the election.

Chavez said the AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee had won representation for field workers at the nearby Di Giorgio Corp. Sierra Vista grape ranch and that the Teamsters were chosen to speak for the smaller group of shed workers.

Jaycees To Aid Travelers

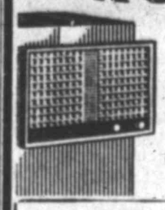

Travelers on the San Angelo Highway (US 87 south) will be in for a pleasant surprise over the Labor Day weekend.

The Big Spring Jaycees are hosting a 72-hour "rest stop" for all tourists to refresh themselves with a cup of coffee or a soft drink and doughnuts from Friday at 6 p.m. until Monday (Labor Day) at 6 p.m. Location is the roadside park four miles south of the city limits.

"Everything for the 'rest stop' is being donated," said Ron English, publicity chairman for the Jaycees. "We will have at least two persons manning the stop 24 hours a day."

Firms donating coffee include Furr's, Piggly-Wiggly, Safeway, Hull & Phillips, Newsom's, Kwikies, Seven-Elevens and the Friendly Food Center. Providing doughnuts are Lon's Pastry, Big Dipper Donut Shop and Rudd's Pastries. Ice will be supplied by Southland Ice and the Spanish Main, and Pepsi-Cola is furnishing the soft drinks.

West Texas Cities Get New Turbo-Jet Service By TTA

Trans-Texas Airways is moving on schedule with an extensive modification of its Convair aircraft into turbo-power.

A new turbo-jet Silver Cloud 600 this week was formally put into schedule on West Texas flight, which serves Abilene and Midland, and the company introduced the faster, quieter planes with ceremonies at the two cities.

As TTA proceeds with its modification, there is evidence that it would want to put the new turbo-jets on the flights which serve Big Spring by October or November. Whether or not the present runway and ramp facilities will accommodate the modernized plane is a question. TTA has made requests for consideration of airport improvements here, including longer runways.

If the local facility is not up to standards required for safe handling of the Silver Cloud, it is not impossible that Big Spring could lose its air service. TTA eventually will phase out all its old DC-3's, and will convert all its Convair 240 models into the turbo-jet.

The company is so modifying some 25 aircraft, at a total cost of $15, it has been announced by R. E. (Dick) McKaughan Jr. of Houston, TTA president. Five of the planes have been converted, and modification is completed on another plane about every 30 days.

McKaughan said all the conversion is to be completed by the latter part of 1967.

Meanwhile, as TTA phases out its old DC-3's, these will be replaced by a pure jet, the new DC-9, a twin-jet craft designed to cruise at 580 miles per hour. The company has ordered 15 of the new jets.

The Convair modification, Rolls-Royce engines replace the old piston-prop type, and the plane's cruising speed is upped from 240 to 325 miles per hour.

The newest turbo-jet service is on a schedule that leaves Dallas westbound at 1:20 p.m., stops in Abilene, Midland, Hobbs, Carlsbad and Roswell and terminates in Albuquerque. There are turbo-jets now in use on other TTA schedules.

Nugents Move Into New Home, Go Out Shopping

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Nugent have set up housekeeping in their brick duplex apartment, guarded by concealed closed-circuit television cameras and Secret Service men.

One of their first chores was to stock up on groceries, including frozen pizza and dog food.

President Johnson's daughter, Luci, and her husband of 3½ weeks pulled up in front of their apartment in Luci's dark-green sports car at 4:10 p.m. Wednesday.

Since their Aug. 6 wedding, elaborate security equipment has been installed. Three closed-circuit television cameras, their lenses barely visible in wooden containers matching the trim of the duplex, are trained on the front, side and back yards.

A hut with a one-way glass window was built for the Secret Service at the end of the carport. Also constructed was a high privacy fence along the side and back. Their refrigerator was moved in just 10 minutes before they arrived.

"We're awful tired from a long trip," Luci told a bystander.

Less than two hours after they arrived, they drove to a nearby supermarket and bought $30.13 worth of groceries.

They took their time shopping talking about many purchases, sipping bottled soft drinks and signing autographs for other shoppers.

Their four bags of groceries included milk, cereal, scouring pads, potato chips, dill pickles, paper towels, apple juice, canned mushrooms and mayonnaise.

Luci and Pat plan to attend the University of Texas this fall. He will work on a master's degree in business administration. She said recently she would not go to school full time, but would take two liberal arts courses.

Federal System Back In Nigeria

The Daily Times, Nigeria's largest paper, reported that leaders of the four regions and representatives of the capital district would meet in Lagos Sept. 7 to discuss Nigeria's future.

Martin replaces Dr. John Q. Anderson, who resigned.

Medicare Cost Squeeze May Push Bills Higher

CHICAGO (AP) — With doctors' fees and hospital charges on the rise, private patients in some hospitals are facing the possibility that a medicare cost squeeze could develop to boost their bills still higher.

A cost-squeeze showing hasn't developed yet, with the medicare program only two months old, but officials attending the annual meeting of the American Hospital Association indicated in interviews and speeches that it might.

Dr. Philip D. Bonnet of Boston, immediate past president of the AHA, predicted nurses' strikes for higher pay in various parts of the country, prospective wage boosts for other hospital employes, minimum wage legislation and unemployment compensation coverage could boost patient fees by as much as 25 per cent in the next year.

Hospital rates went up 7.7 per cent in the last 12 months while physicians' fees went up 5.7 per cent.

Robert M. Ball, Social Security commissioner, said the one-millionth medicare patient is expected to be admitted to one of the nation's hospitals next week but the costs and government reimbursement features of the program still are under study.

Ball told the hospital administrators, however, that the government's formula for reimbursing hospitals for "keeping abreast of the times" would be re-evaluated promptly as experience is gained under the program.

A major issue is the current formula under which the government pays hospitals operating under medicare 2 per cent of their operating budget as a cost-plus feature. Such funds, for example, would be used to train personnel to operate a kidney machine or other technical equipment which could become obsolete in a few years.

The new AHA president, George E. Cartmill, president of Harper Hospital, Detroit, said in an interview:

"We feel we could live with the 2 per cent formula but too many factors have been knocked out. We believe it will be shown that hospitals have been losing money. If the reimbursement is insufficient to cover costs, hospitals will have no alternative but to raise their bills to cover these additional costs."

He said Blue Cross and other health insurance policies would be hiked in such event.

AHA spokesmen take the position that costs uncovered for medicare patients should not have to be passed on to patients footing their own medical bills.

Auto Safety Legislation Over Hurdle

WASHINGTON (AP)—A landmark safety package that would give the government broad authority to deal with slaughter on the nation's highways is one short step from final congressional approval today.

Both houses gave unanimous approval Wednesday to the bill that would grant the government power to set mandatory safety standards for all new cars, buses and trucks starting with 1968 models. Power to develop standards for automobile tires and, eventually, the sale of used cars also is included.

The House action came on a 365-0 vote, and two hours later the Senate acted by voice vote.

The House also passed 360 to 3 a highway safety bill that would provide $322 million in federal aid to help states and communities establish safety programs covering such things as vehicle inspection, driver education, improved highway design and maintenance and traffic control.

Final approval of the highway bill is expected in the Senate today, sending it to the White House. Some congressional sources said they expected President Johnson to sign both bills on Labor Day — next Monday — in the auto capital of Detroit. But the White House has not announced definite weekend travel plans for the President.

The signing will cap more than a decade of congressional debate on how the federal government can reduce accidents, which last year took nearly 50,000 American lives and injured some 250,000 persons.

Final approval would mean that starting with 1968 models, new cars manufactured or sold in this country would carry as standard equipment such safety features as head rests, shoulder harness anchorages, dual braking systems, retractable steering columns, safety door latches and additional interior padding.

Some car makers already have announced plans to make some of these features standard equipment in 1967 models.

The major impact of the legislation may not be felt for a number of years, however, until (1) The state safety programs take effect, (2) Millions of new cars are manufactured with safety features and (3) The safety standards are extended to cover used cars as well.

The two bills, which contain total authorizations of $381.8 million over three years, would set up this timetable for federal action:

Jan. 31, 1967 — Secretary of commerce must issue initial auto safety standards, effective for 1968 models.

Jan. 31, 1968 — Revised safety standards are to be issued for 1969 models.

One year after enactment of the legislation — the secretary must issue a report, including new legislative proposals if necessary, on the need for used-car standards.

Two years from enactment—Secretary must issue used-car standards and tire labeling and performance standards.

Details Of Safety Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)— Major provisions of the auto-highway safety package:

New cars—Secretary of commerce required to set safety standards starting with 1968 model cars, buses and trucks.

Used cars—Secretary required to develop standards for the sale of used cars within two years of enactment of bill.

Tires—Secretary required to set tire grading and labeling standards within two years of enactment of bill.

State highway programs—States required to establish safety programs, including vehicle inspection, driver education and highway design, by Dec. 31, 1968, or face loss of 10 per cent of their federal highway aid.

Penalties — Failure to meet federal auto safety standards, to certify cars as meeting standards or to notify purchaser of defects subject to civil penalty of $1,000 per violation up to a total of $400,000.

Cost — Total of $381.8 million over three years, $267 million for state and local safety programs, $55 million for research, $51 million for auto safety program, $5.8 million for tire safety program and $3 million to study the need for a federal highway accident and injury test center.

First Gift To United Fund

The United Fund campaign for 1966 is, in point of fact, under way, with its first major gift. This, a check for $150, came from the Shell Companies Foundation, and was presented Wednesday to local UF officials. Shell participates in the various communities in which it has operating interests, and has a number of Shell Pipe Line Corporation employes in Big Spring. The Shell gift is being presented by F. L. Underwood (second from right), supervisor of the Personnel and Industrial Relations Section of Midland, to R. L. Tollett (second from left), who heads up the UF's out-of-town division. Looking on are C. M. Dawkins (left), gauger foreman at Roberts; and Dick Ream, general chairman of this year's UF campaign.

Youth Urged To Expand Purge Without Coercion

TOKYO (AP) — Red China's new strong man, Defense Minister Lin Piao, called on the militant young Red Guards Wednesday night to expand the purge now sweeping the Chinese mainland but warned them against coercion and force.

"Don't hit people," Mao Tze-tung's heir apparent told 500,000 young Red Guards and other revolutionary youths in Peking's Square of Heavenly Peace.

Lin, 59, said he spoke for Mao, who rode around the square at his side during the rally. But the 72-year-old chairman of the Communist party did not speak.

The teenaged Red Guards have been carrying out a nationwide purge of foreign and pre-Communist influences as part of the "cultural revolution" ordered by Mao to strengthen the hold of his ideas on China. The youthful purge has been marked by violence and the humiliation of its victims.

Lin, according to the New China News Agency, called on the Red Guards to carry out their campaign by reasoning and not by coercion or force.

Lin told the youths to "further develop the cultural revolution — smash four olds (old ideas, old culture, old customs and old habits) and deal a heavy blow to a handful of bourgeois rightists."

But coercion or force, he said, "can only touch their skins" while reasoning can "touch their souls, show their counter-revolutionary features, isolate them to the maximum, discredit them, pull them down and smash them."

Premier Chou En-lai gave the same advice in milder language.

NCNA said Mao was "beaming" through the speeches but did not mention the state of his health. It said there were loud cries of "Long life to chairman Mao!"

From elsewhere in the Communist world came a report of opposition to the purge inside China and condemnation from other Communist parties.

Radio Prague, in Czechoslovakia, reported that 40,000 workers in North China clashed with Red Guards and more than 140 persons were injured. Radio Prague and the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said the street fighting took place in Ching-Tao, which is usually spelled Ting-Tao in English. It is in Shantung Province.

Has Operation

North's Race Violence Has Slowed Up

By The Associated Press

A smattering of racial incidents and demonstrations spotted the Midwest Wednesday night in sharp contrast to the violence-marked nights earlier this week.

In Benton Harbor, Mich., where National Guardsmen were on call under a declared state of emergency, scattered groups of Negroes knotted around a filling station. There was only a minor disturbance, in contrast to three previous nights of violence.

State troopers dispersed the crowd but not before a few rocks and bottles were thrown. No one was hit.

Police released Willard Benfield, 36, a white man who had been arrested and arraigned on an open homicide charge in the fatal shooting of a Negro, Cecil Hunt, 19, during a demonstration.

Benton Harbor Police Lt. Alfred Hauwetter said today Benfield was released because the bullet extracted from the victim did not match Benfield's gun.

Bobo Is Named Lamesa Chief

LAMESA (SC) — James P. Bobo, about 45, is Lamesa's new police chief. He succeeds the late H. Morris Zimmerman who died three weeks ago.

Bobo, who has been with the department for 19 months, was appointed police chief by the city council at a special meeting on Wednesday afternoon upon recommendation by City Manager C. A. Taylor. As soon as he was approved for the job, Mayor Douglas Black administered the oath of office to Bobo, who has been acting as chief since the death of Zimmerman.

His first act was to name Earl Allred as assistant chief. Allred with the department 10 years, is a captain on the Lamesa force of 16 members.

Prior to coming to Lamesa, Bobo was chief of police in Ruidoso, N. M. He also served as a deputy sheriff and for six months as acting sheriff of Dawson County just before he allied himself with the police department.

He is married and he and his wife, Sylvia, have two children. Billy Bobo is now in Korea and Paul Jean, the daughter, is at the home here.

RETIRES TODAY

Times Have Changed And Now So Has Pat Murphy

By TOMMY HART

E. S. (Pat) MURPHY

Although he's been practicing for the event for the better part of a month now, E. S. (Pat) Murphy Jr., officially goes into retirement today as assistant superintendent (business) of schools here.

There's an ancient saw—and, oh, so true—that "it's hard to put a fire horse out to pasture." To help resist the urge to report to his former duties as watchdog of the business end of school activities, Pat and Mrs. Murphy plan to be on vacation when classes take up here next week. They will likely depart this weekend for a leisurely trip that will take them to parts of Colorado and New Mexico.

Murphy, a native of Hubbard City, has devoted 39 of his 65 years to the teaching, coaching and school administrative professions. Since the fall of 1942, he has served the local school district as its business manager.

STARTED AS COACH...

When Murphy interrupted his schooling at McMurry College to begin his coaching career at Clyde High School in 1925, he hired out for the princely sum of $100 a month. He got a $5 a month raise, retroactive to the start of school, the first year, but grossed only $945 for the September-through-May tenure, however, having been hired under a nine-month contract.

Living wasn't bad in those days, however, he recalls. His house rent came to only $10 monthly, and his players and patrons of the school brought in fresh vegetables and other food staples.

When Murphy assumed his duties as business manager of the schools here, the district's budget ran something less than $1 million annually. That outlay had grown to more than $4 million a year when he stepped down, with vast growth reflected in the number of personnel hired, classrooms added and salaries paid.

BIG DIFFERENCE

The schools currently have a total of 650 persons employed and the payroll runs anywhere from $225,000 to $235,000 monthly. It was Murphy's assignment to keep track of every penny of the school's money and see that it was wisely spent. He was sort of a human computer, able to quote figures on any budgeted item that might come up for discussion.

When Murphy took over the office, the local schools had nine custodians of buildings and two maintenance men on its payroll. That staff has now grown to 33 custodians and a supervisor, and nine maintenance men plus a supervisor. In addition, the district hires three fulltime painters. It operates 18 school buses, compared to one when he was named to the job.

Whereas the school district embraced 25 square miles back in 1949, it now covers 210 square miles.

Among additions to the system that have been made since he assumed his duties are the Airport, Marcy, Park Hill and Kentwood elementary schools, the senior high school, Lakeview school, Goliad Junior High plus additions to other buildings, a new football stadium, maintenance shops, dressing rooms and assorted other structures.

THREE SUPERINTENDENTS

As school business manager, he has served under three superintendents — W. C. Blankenenship, Floyd Parsons and Sam Anderson. Under all three, the white-haired Irishman has functioned with a frank tongue and a twinkle in his eye.

A star football and baseball player at McMurry, where he learned his lessons well under R. M. Medley, Murphy coached at Cross Plains, Abilene High, Odessa High and El Paso Austin, in addition to Big Spring.

He fulfilled two coaching contracts here and on three different occasions was associated with Abilene High's coaching staff.

The son of a building contractor, Pat himself built a small sandwich shop hard by the McMurry campus to help pay his way through college. Murphy, a scrappy 140-pound four-year letterman quarterback at Abilene High School, turned down a tempting offer from Texas A&M to enroll at McMurry. A football injury he suffered in college might have nipped a promising baseball pitching career in the bud, too. The Houston Buffs made him an offer before the mishap. In his salad days as a pitcher, West Texas was noted for its numerous sandlot leagues, and Murphy played in several of them.

BEST TEAMS

He remembers his 1932 El Paso Austin High and 1940 Big Spring teams best among his football teams. Both emerged as district champions and today he maintains a reasonably close relationship with players on both of those teams.

Pat was out of coaching from 1941 until 1946. During those years, he became a Trades and Industries instructor, first at Odessa and then here. Though that was his primary occupation in Odessa, he managed to find the time to help Bob Harrell with coaching duties one fall.

His wife, the former Marguerite Watts, daughter of a one-time San Augustine sheriff, also taught in the local system. She retired about two years ago. One son, Robert Eddie, was born to the union. Eddie now resides in El Paso, where he is employed as senior mathematician of the research division with the El Paso Natural Gas Company.

FISHING, GARDENING

The Murphys have maintained their home at 808 W. 18th St. for the past 19 years. He welcomes the chance to do the gardening when he can find the time and maintains a small fishing house near the Sour Dough division at Lake J. B. Thomas. He likes nothing better than to venture to the lake and wet a hook.

Murphy has no intention of quitting work altogether. Some months ago, he agreed to become the area agent for a firm selling custodial supplies to schools and business firms. He can work at this when he feels like it and plans to cover an area that includes Colorado City on the east and Wink on the west.

Murphy learned that an occasional tranquilizer pill helped soothe his nerves after a day at the office. One of his days could become especially trying when an irate parent would call him to complain about a menu being served in a school cafeteria or that a school bus had not been routed close enough to a family home.

As his day of retirement approached, however, he found less and less need for the tranquilizers. It may take a while to get used to the idea of sleeping late, but he's ready for the challenge.

Negro Educator Retires From Prairie View Post

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (AP)—Dr. Edward Bertram Evans, grandson of a slave, says the two things in life he considers important are making friends and an opportunity to serve his race and mankind.

The 72-year-old educator retired Wednesday as president of Prairie View Agricultural and Mechanical College, to which he has devoted his life.

He came to a tiny cluster of buildings on the prairie southeast of Hempstead in 1918 as a teacher. During the next 48 years he served as athletic director, acting director of arts, sciences and agricultural divisions, registrar and, since 1948, president.

"The only job I have ever held has been in some category at Prairie View," he said.

Evans holds the view that if you are going to be successful you have to like people.

He said one of the high points in his life came many years ago when, while a fourth grader, he was selected the most courteous student in school.

"That did something for me," he said. "Since then I've tried to be a sensible citizen.

"When you extend courtesy and friendliness to people, you love them. There is no person in the world I hate."

One of Evans' most trying moments came in 1963 when Prairie View students demonstrated in Hempstead, claiming merchants were discriminating against Negroes.

Evans addressed the students, pleading for patience and moderation.

"I am interested in the same things for my people that any other self-respecting Negro is interested in," he said in recalling the incident. "But I favor arbitration over violence and civil disobedience. I do not believe in violence in any form."

Under his guidance, Prairie View has become the largest predominantly Negro college in Texas. Enrollment has mounted from 1,475 to about 3,500 and its physical plant has increased in value from $2 million to $16 million.

Court Hears Guilty Pleas

A parade of guilty pleas kept Judge Ralph Caton of 118th District Court busy all of Wednesday afternoon.

Carolyn Wagers, who was brought back from the state prison earlier this week, pleaded guilty to a charge of passing a forged instrument. Judge Caton sentenced her to serve two years in prison. She currently is serving a sentence imposed in another court.

Patsy Johnson, charged with assault with intent to murder, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three years in prison. The sentence was then probated on good behavior.

Wayne Morgan, charged with the felony of writing a worthless check, drew a three year probated sentence.

Vernon Collins Ford, charged with DWI second, drew a fine of $350 plus an 18-months jail sentence, which was probated. He has six months in which to pay the fine.

William D. Graham, charged with DWI second, was fined $250 and given a one-year probated jail sentence. He, too, has six months in which to pay the fine.

George Raymond Maxwell, DWI second, was given a three-year penitentiary sentence with probation continued on good behavior.

Soviets Refuse Arms Control Bid Of Johnson

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today rejected U.S. President Johnson's bid for an agreement on arms control despite the Viet Nam war.

Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, said an American withdrawal from Viet Nam was needed before the two countries could work together toward international accords.

The party organ was replying to Johnson's speeches at Arco, Idaho, on Aug. 26.

The Pravda article did not refer specifically to Johnson's proposal for U.S.-Soviet cooperation toward a treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons.

Instead it rejected the possibility of improved U.S.-Soviet relations while the Viet Nam war continues and criticized Johnson's speech without telling its readers what the President said. But it was clear that the Soviets were rejecting Johnson's proposals.

Club Hears Puckett

The Rev. James Puckett entertained the Hi Noon Optimist Club Wednesday, with color slides and a discussion of his recent visit to Rome, Italy. His talk included the places of worship, as well as the Coliseum. The club meets in the Downtown Tea Room.

Individuals, Business Both May Feel January Tax Bite

WASHINGTON (AP) — The current guess on Capitol Hill is that if President Johnson proposes a tax increase it will include hikes both on individuals and business and it probably will not reach Congress before next Jan. 1.

No administration tax program has been drawn up, con- But some spoke of what they regarded as informal probes — for example, of what Congress might think of restoring corporate income tax temporarily to its old level — 52 per cent instead of the present 48 — or ing might induce Congress to boost the individual income tax.

The lawmakers got a succession of reminders this week that the possibility of a tax boost intended to curb inflation and help finance operations in Viet Nam is a live one.

On the questions of what kind of boost and when to expect it, some reasoned this way:

The amount of extra revenue sought will be determined by what the White House and Defense Department decide must be provided in extra funds for Viet Nam. Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, told his colleagues to expect something between $5 billion and $15 billion.

Using the midpoint, $10 billion, as a working figure, it is easy to calculate, realistically, that only a minor part of this extra spending would be absorbed by cutting domestic outlays.

Since fiscal projections have the budget approximately balanced except for Viet Nam expenses, the choice apparently is between more taxes and the biggest deficit in years — one that would clearly strengthen the inflationary forces already worrying the White House and Congress.

A 4-percentage-point increase in the corporate income tax would yield about $3.2 billion. Or, $2 billion could be picked up by suspending the 7 per cent investment credit allowed businesses for spending on new plant and equipment.

Howard Deputies Hit The Road

Howard County sheriff's deputies are on the road today for the most part.

Bill Whitton is en route to Huntsville, returning Carolyn Wagers to state prison. She was brought to Howard County to enter a guilty plea to a forgery charge.

A. G. Mitchell is en route to El Paso to take custody of William Nichols, wanted on a felony complaint.

Sam Roberts was in Denver City this morning to get James Allen Mitchell, who is charged here with theft by bailee.

And, to add to the list, Sheriff A. N. Standard, who hasn't had a chance for a vacation, was taking a few days off this weekend.

U.S. Engineers Get New Offices

FORT WORTH (AP)—The new district office of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers is in the recently completed Federal Office Building in Fort Worth.

The district office, which has more than 650 employes here, includes the second, third and fourth floors of the building. It marks the first time the Fort Worth district offices have been under one roof since organization of the district in 1950.

Colleges Wanting Doubled Appropriations Next Year

By LEE JONES

AUSTIN (AP)— Those who run Texas' higher education system want to spend twice as many tax dollars—over two-thirds of a billion—in 1967-69 than the amount currently authorized.

This hope, which school officials won't abandon easily, will be one of many spending problems for the 60th legislature in January.

General revenue appropriations requests for higher education total $689.5 million, compared with $329.6 million appropriated for 1965-67.

Sales tax receipts, but not college tuition, go into general revenue.

The $689 million includes funds for junior colleges, universities, senior colleges, medical and dental schools, the Coordinating Board, central offices of the University of Texas and Texas A&M systems, the board of regents for state senior colleges, several Texas A&M Extension and research services, and four museums.

Educators say that although college and university spending shot up in 1965-67, with support from Gov. John Connally, even bigger appropriations are needed to keep pace with enrollment and competition from other states for faculty.

The biggest item in the total is for the 22 state-supported senior colleges and universities. Their requests total $443,782,940, compared with 1965-67 appropriations of $234,931,950.

Formulas issued by the Coordinating Board account for about 85 per cent of the college and university budget requests. The board boosted the size of the formulas this year. It also changed the base of appropriations requests.

The board, following Connally's recommendation that faculty salaries be kept "slightly above" the national average for tax-supported schools, set a target of $500 above that average.

Where the old system would have based total appropriations requests on enrollment in the 1966 fall semester, the new system uses enrollment forecasts for the two years in which the funds actually will be spent.

The coordinating board also is requesting $10 million for research grants and $44.5 million to compensate for unforeseen the four-year schools.

Other proposed increases include: Medical and dental schools, $70.5 million compared with $45.5 million; coordinating board administration, $1.7 million, from $773,000; system offices and board of regents, state senior colleges, $2 million, from $944,000; A&M services, $49.7 from $18.2 million; other expenses, including museums, $1.5 million, from $1.46 million, and junior colleges, $65.8 million, from $26.9 million.

The 22 senior colleges and universities are asking for a 69.8 per cent boost in funds for faculty salaries—up from $159.2 million to $270.5 million, by far the biggest item in their budget requests. Their requests for research funds total $24.5 million, a 232.7 per cent boost from the current $7.4 million.

Government Helps Indians Get Off Welfare Rolls

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Minnie Trader wants to be a beautician.

So do lots of other girls, but Minnie has a special problem: There aren't any beauty schools in Emangak. So she is going to one in Chicago. And that's where the Seattle Orientation Center of the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs comes in.

Minnie, 25, who grew up in an Eskimo village on the Kuskokwim River in western Alaska, is one of about 750 Eskimos, Aleuts and Indians from the 49th state who have passed through the center since it was founded three years ago.

Like the others, she is getting a helping hand from Uncle Sam under a program designed to provide Alaska natives and Indians with jobs and training to keep them off welfare rolls.

The Seattle center, housed in seven units of a motel, was established to ease the transition from village to city life for the Alaskans. Many of them have never ridden a bus, used a telephone, shopped in a supermarket or made a budget. On arrival here, they are given an allowance—$25 a week for single persons and a little more for families — and left to do their own budgeting. The bureau pays their rent.

Mrs. Jimmie Owens, a transplanted Texan who heads the center, periodically gives them assignments which require them to take buses to designated locations, shop for specific items and report back by telephone. They also visit factories, libraries and other institutions.

At group counseling sessions, in the dinette of the headquarters motel unit, the problems they encounter are thrashed out. After they finish here, the Alaskans go on to vocational schools or training jobs in other parts of the United States.

"Don't sell our students short because they don't know some simple things," says Mrs. Owens. "How would you make out if someone plunked you down in the middle of Beaver, Alaska, and told you to make it on your own? It would be a rough go."

Mrs. Owens knows what she is talking about. She has visited 19 native villages in Alaska since coming here from Dallas, where she was an employment officer for the bureau. To prepare for her assignment, she got a crash course from a team of psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers.

She and her assistant, social worker David Harley, say 5 to 8 per cent of those who come to the center return to Alaska without completing the course. Some have drinking problems. Some withdraw into themselves and refuse to speak. One became so depressed he wouldn't eat.

Tells 'Em What They Want To Hear

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle said today there was no chance of peace negotiations to end the Viet Nam war until the United States agrees to a timetable for the withdrawal of its armed forces.

He told 60,000 cheering Cambodians that, although the time was not yet ripe for a negotiated settlement, "short of the universe rolling toward catastrophe, a political agreement alone could bring back peace."

De Gaulle did not call for withdrawal of American forces as a prelude to negotiations — as North Viet Nam and its Communist supporters have demanded — but said:

"The possibility and even more, the opening of such a vast and difficult negotiation (to end the war) would obviously depend on the decisions and commitments which America would previously have chosen to take and enter into to repatriate its forces at an appropriate and fixed period of time."

No matter how long the war goes on, De Gaulle said, "France holds as certain that it will meet with no military solution."

There was no immediate comment from the State Department in Washington.

Legionnaires Select Davis As Commander

WASHINGTON (AP)— Handsome, grey-thatched John E. Davis, former Republican governor of North Dakota, was unanimously elected national commander of the American Legion today.

He succeeds L. Eldon James of Hampton, Va.

In a rather rare display of unanimity, other candidates withdrew before the roll-call, the rules of the 48th annual convention were suspended and Davis was elected by acclamation, amid cheers, band music and the skirl of bagpipes.

The other candidates were William Eugene Galbraith, Beemer, Neb., and Bernard F. Gratton, Emmett, Idaho.

Davis, 53, is a combat veteran of World War II.

A member of a pioneer North Dakota family, he is a farmer, cattleman and lives in Bismarck.

His political career includes service as mayor of McClusky, state senator and governor, 1957-61.

Other business on the program of the legion's 48th annual convention today includes installation of Mrs. A. J. Ryan Sr., of Dania, Fla., as national president of the legion auxiliary.

Born and educated in Chicago, she is the wife of a World War I veteran who is a Florida real estate man.

Corpus Says Epidemic Over

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A St. Louis encephalitis epidemic here was declared at an end Wednesday. Dallas took the same step a week ago.

Officials were studying complaints, however, that mosquitoes which carry the disease were still highly concentrated in South Dallas neighborhoods.

Aerial spraying broke the epidemic in both cities.

Dr. R. W. Metzger, Corpus Christi health director, said experts could not find any culex mosquitoes, the type that spreads encephalitis.

He said 93 persons from this area have contracted the disease since the epidemic began. Two died.

In Dallas there were 91 confirmed cases and 22 suspected, with seven deaths.

The state total is 11, counting one at Amarillo and one at Tulia.

Thieves Steal On-Blink Cycles

Motorcycles were popular Wednesday. Two were stolen, eager thieves taking one which was in a shipping crate, police reported.

Officers said two motorcycles were stolen from outside Hopper's Cycle Shop, 1101 Gregg. One motorcycle in the crate was disassembled, and the other one had an out-of-commission motor, police said, which may have the thieves working hard to get their stolen property running.

Stock Market Widens Gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Selected blue chips were strong as the stock market widened its gains early this afternoon in livelier trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.74 at 793.15.

Profit taking was apparent as the session began with a slight and irregular rise. The selling wa transitory, however, and once it was digested the market shaped a more well-rounded advance.

A number of glamor stocks which had falled in early trading recovered and showed net gains of a point or more. A good representation of key stocks in many sections of the list were up sharply.

Teachers Get Welcome, Begin School Preparations

New teachers in the Big Spring Independent School District glimpsed into educational and community opportunities in Big Spring with a reception in their honor Wednesday evening and a lecture at the Howard County Junior College auditorium this morning.

Dr. John McFarland, longtime superintendent of schools at Houston, spoke to the new teachers on "Better Learning Opportunities for Each Individual" at this morning's session. Dr. McFarland is a member of the department of education at Texas Western University in El Paso.

The orientation-workshop was to continue this afternoon in the vocational building, where high school teachers were to meet with John F. Smith, principal. The junior high teachers were to meet in the Goliad library with Roscoe Newell, Runnels principal.

Elementary teachers were to meet at various schools with principals in charge.

Supt. Sam Anderson presided at the Wednesday night welcome for the three score new teachers at the Big Spring Country Club. Various civic and business leaders were on hand to welcome them to the community. School personnel were introduced at the reception.

Expelled Nun Dies Suddenly

HONG KONG (AP) — One of the eight Roman Catholic nuns expelled from Red China died today less than 24 hours after she crossed the border into Hong Kong. Death was attributed to heart failure and strain.

She was Sister Eamon, the former Mary O'Sullivan of Cork, Ireland. She collapsed at the border Wednesday and was wheeled across in a baggage cart.

After the Franciscan nuns crossed the border, Sister Eamon and Mother Mary of the Cross, 76, a Canadian, were taken to a hospital. They were reported suffering from fatigue.

Mother Mary, who headed the group from Peking, was reported in satisfactory condition today but had not been told of Sister Eamon's death.

Sister Eamon will be buried in Hong Kong Friday.

The other six nuns spent the night in seclusion at a convent school. Officials said the nuns, who range in age from 60 to 73, needed rest and could not be disturbed.

They were attached to the Sacred Heart Academy in Peking, a girls' school run by the Franciscan Missionary of Mary to teach children of foreign diplomats.

The academy was closed Aug. 25 after a mob of teenaged Red Guards broke in the 100-year-old school.

Hunters Advised Of Game Season And Regulations

The game population of Texas has been built to its highest level in 100 years, Royis Tucker, Texas game warden for Howard and Martin counties, told the Downtown Lions Club at the Settles Wednesday.

Tucker, who spoke on the eve of the opening of dove season, reviewed game laws and pleaded for cooperation by hunters. He also pleaded with hunters to always secure permission to go on private property, and not to go back with friends unless new contacts are made.

Here are some of the highlights from his talk:

Both dove and quail prospects are the best in several years. There are a few deer and quite a few turkeys in Howard County this year. (Two deer recently were killed out of season in Howard County.)

Dove season opens Sept. 1, closes Oct. 30; 12 bag limit per day, 24 possession limit. One feathered wing must be left on bird, as with all game birds this season.

Quail season opens in Howard County Nov. 12, closes Jan. 31; 12 bag limit, 36 possession limit on or after third day. (In Scurry County the season opens Dec. 1, closes Jan. 16.)

Duck season opens Nov. 19, closes Jan. 7.

Goose season opens Oct. 25, closes Jan. 7.

Sandhill crane season (west of US 87) opens Oct. 29, closes Nov. 27, bag limit two per day, four possession limit.

Deer season opens Nov. 12 in Howard County, closes Dec. 31, two bucks bag limit.

Turkey season is same as deer season.

Bus Terminal Opens Friday

Continental Trailways will hold grand opening ceremonies for the new Big. Spring bus terminal at 10 a.m. Friday.

H. L. Glisan, Dallas-based vice president of the nationwide bus system, said that the company was happy the doors of the new facilities could be opened before the Labor Day holiday weekend. When all of Continental Trailways executive visited the city Aug. 22 to inspect the new building, they decided to open it as soon as possible.

"Big Spring is very important to the bus company's operation," he said, "and we all feel a part of the community. We want the traveler to have the best impression on visiting the city while riding our buses."

The new terminal, although not large, is modern in design with all convenience facilities. It is completely air conditioned.

Frank Rice, a 12-year veteran Big Spring terminal manager, said that five schedules pass through the city daily, traveling east and west.

The new terminal is located at East Third and Nolan Streets, across from the City Auditorium.

On hand for the ribbon-cutting ceremonies by Mayor Arnold Marshall will be the Ambassadors Club of the Chamber of Commerce and various city and county officials.

Continental Trailways has completed new terminals in the past 18 months at El Paso and Marshall and will complete new facilities at Abilene in late September. The new downtown Dallas terminal is set for completion next year. Rice said that this will mean new stations across the state of Texas on a line serving Big Spring, part of the over-all improvement policy being undertaken by Continental Trailways across the nation.

With recent approval for merging with eastern bus companies, Continental Trailways now has service in 43 states over 67,000 route miles.

Expected here with Glisan for the grand opening are L. B. Strahorn, Dallas, director of traffic for the system; G. G. Rountree, Dallas, vice president of sales.

Others expected from Dallas are Ed Bennett, architect, R. D. Babcock, superintendent, Gene Brown, assistant general manager, Van Lewis, area director of sales, Ed Weinmister, manager of package express, John McCormick, director of public relations for the system, and R. M. Stewart, district sales manager.

Local Trailways Agent Has 16 Years' Service

Frank Rice, agent and supervisor at Big Spring's Continental Trailway station, is a 16-year Trailways veteran and has spent 12 of those years with the Big Spring office.

Rice has been in Big Spring before, serving with another bus line from 1930-1936. Prior to his career with the bus lines, he was a railroad fireman for the Chesapeake & Ohio Railways. He is a native of Russell, Ky.

He and his wife, Mae Belle, live at 1739 Purdue and have two children, a son, Charles Franklin Rice, who is married and serving with the U.S. Navy, and a daughter, Phoebe Ann Rice, now in California, who will be returning to Big Spring soon. The family are members of the First Christian Church.

Post Made Other Big Contributions

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — The short, stocky pilot with the patch-covered eye grinned at his lanky companion and revved up the engine of his second-hand Lockheed Orion for another takeoff into the Alaskan fog. Only 15 miles to go to Point Barrow.

The Eskimo, who had just given the men directions to Point Barrow, said trouble began almost as soon as the pontoon plane lifted from the waters of Refuge Bay. The engine faltered and then quit.

The red-winged monoplane, only 50 feet into the air, wheeled to the right and plunged into the icy waters off the bleak shoreline.

The Eskimo and his wife were the only witnesses that day — Aug. 15, 1935 — to the accident which killed famed humorist Will Rogers and Wiley Post, globe-circling pioneer of the air.

Some of the technical achievements Post marked up have made little-publicized contributions to modern flight.

For example, his interest in high altitude flight led Post — working with B. F. Goodrich Co. engineers — to design a workable pressurized flight suit.

During high altitude tests over Bartlesville, Okla., in 1934, Post ran into other troubles connected with reduced air pressure. The engine's ignition system failed, and radio condensers changed their tuning, making selective listening almost impossible.

Post drew on his own observations and World War I training in radio operations to design a sealed system into which compressed air was forced to maintain sea level pressures at high altitudes.

"The supercharger, pressurized radio and oxygen techniques Post pioneered are routine for all commercial and military flights today," says Dr. Stanley Mohler, director of the Federal Aviation Agency's aeromedical research program.

"Easiest Travel on Earth"

Tells 'Em What They Want To Hear

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle said today there was no chance of peace negotiations to end the Viet Nam war until the United States agrees to a timetable for the withdrawal of its armed forces.

He told 60,000 cheering Cambodians that, although the time was not yet ripe for a negotiated settlement, "short of the universe rolling toward catastrophe, a political agreement alone could bring back peace."

De Gaulle did not call for withdrawal of American forces as a prelude to negotiations — as North Viet Nam and its Communist supporters have demanded — but said:

"The possibility and even more, the opening of such a vast and difficult negotiation (to end the war) would obviously depend on the decisions and commitments which America would previously have chosen to take and enter into to repatriate its forces at an appropriate and fixed period of time."

No matter how long the war goes on, De Gaulle said, "France holds as certain that it will meet with no military solution."

There was no immediate comment from the State Department in Washington.

Legionnaires Select Davis As Commander

WASHINGTON (AP)— Handsome, grey-thatched John E. Davis, former Republican governor of North Dakota, was unanimously elected national commander of the American Legion today.

He succeeds L. Eldon James of Hampton, Va.

In a rather rare display of unanimity, other candidates withdrew before the roll-call, the rules of the 48th annual convention were suspended and Davis was elected by acclamation, amid cheers, band music and the skirl of bagpipes.

The other candidates were William Eugene Galbraith, Beemer, Neb., and Bernard F. Gratton, Emmett, Idaho.

Davis, 53, is a combat veteran of World War II.

A member of a pioneer North Dakota family, he is a farmer, cattleman and lives in Bismarck.

His political career includes service as mayor of McClusky, state senator and governor, 1957-61.

Other business on the program of the legion's 48th annual convention today includes installation of Mrs. A. J. Ryan Sr., of Dania, Fla., as national president of the legion auxiliary.

Born and educated in Chicago, she is the wife of a World War I veteran who is a Florida real estate man.

Corpus Says Epidemic Over

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A St. Louis encephalitis epidemic here was declared at an end Wednesday. Dallas took the same step a week ago.

Officials were studying complaints, however, that mosquitoes which carry the disease were still highly concentrated in South Dallas neighborhoods.

Aerial spraying broke the epidemic in both cities.

Dr. R. W. Metzger, Corpus Christi health director, said experts could not find any culex mosquitoes, the type that spreads encephalitis.

He said 93 persons from this area have contracted the disease since the epidemic began. Two died.

In Dallas there were 91 confirmed cases and 22 suspected, with seven deaths.

The state total is 11, counting one at Amarillo and one at Tulia.

Stock Market Widens Gains

NEW YORK (AP) — Selected blue chips were strong as the stock market widened its gains early this afternoon in livelier trading.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 4.74 at 793.15.

Profit taking was apparent as the session began with a slight and irregular rise. The selling wa transitory, however, and once it was digested the market shaped a more well-rounded advance.

A number of glamor stocks which had falled in early trading recovered and showed net gains of a point or more. A good representation of key stocks in many sections of the list were up sharply.

Thieves Steal On-Blink Cycles

Motorcycles were popular Wednesday. Two were stolen, eager thieves taking one which was in a shipping crate, police reported.

Officers said two motorcycles were stolen from outside Hopper's Cycle Shop, 1101 Gregg. One motorcycle in the crate was disassembled, and the other one had an out-of-commission motor, police said, which may have the thieves working hard to get their stolen property running.

Expelled Nun Dies Suddenly

HONG KONG (AP) — One of the eight Roman Catholic nuns expelled from Red China died today less than 24 hours after she crossed the border into Hong Kong. Death was attributed to heart failure and strain.

She was Sister Eamon, the former Mary O'Sullivan of Cork, Ireland. She collapsed at the border Wednesday and was wheeled across in a baggage cart.

After the Franciscan nuns crossed the border, Sister Eamon and Mother Mary of the Cross, 76, a Canadian, were taken to a hospital. They were reported suffering from fatigue.

Mother Mary, who headed the group from Peking, was reported in satisfactory condition today but had not been told of Sister Eamon's death.

Sister Eamon will be buried in Hong Kong Friday.

The other six nuns spent the night in seclusion at a convent school. Officials said the nuns, who range in age from 60 to 73, needed rest and could not be disturbed.

They were attached to the Sacred Heart Academy in Peking, a girls' school run by the Franciscan Missionary of Mary to teach children of foreign diplomats.

Hunters Advised Of Game Season And Regulations

The game population of Texas has been built to its highest level in 100 years, Royis Tucker, Texas game warden for Howard and Martin counties, told the Downtown Lions Club at the Settles Wednesday.

Tucker, who spoke on the eve of the opening of dove season, reviewed game laws and pleaded for cooperation by hunters. He also pleaded with hunters to always secure permission to go on private property, and not to go back with friends unless new contacts are made.

Here are some of the highlights from his talk:

Both dove and quail prospects are the best in several years. There are a few deer and quite a few turkeys in Howard County this year. (Two deer recently were killed out of season in Howard County.)

Dove season opens Sept. 1, closes Oct. 30; 12 bag limit per day, 24 possession limit. One feathered wing must be left on bird, as with all game birds this season.

Quail season opens in Howard County Nov. 12, closes Jan. 31; 12 bag limit, 36 possession limit on or after third day. (In Scurry County the season opens Dec. 1, closes Jan. 16.)

Duck season opens Nov. 19, closes Jan. 7.

Goose season opens Oct. 25, closes Jan. 7.

Sandhill crane season (west of US 87) opens Oct. 29, closes Nov. 27, bag limit two per day, four possession limit.

Deer season opens Nov. 12 in Howard County, closes Dec. 31, two bucks bag limit.

Turkey season is same as deer season.

Bus Terminal Opens Friday

Continental Trailways will hold grand opening ceremonies for the new Big Spring bus terminal at 10 a.m. Friday.

H. L. Glisan, Dallas-based vice president of the nationwide bus system, said that the company was happy the doors of the new facilities could be opened before the Labor Day holiday weekend. When all of Continental Trailways executive visited the city Aug. 22 to inspect the new building, they decided to open it as soon as possible.

"Big Spring is very important to the bus company's operation," he said, "and we all feel a part of the community. We want the traveler to have the best impression on visiting the city while riding our buses."

The new terminal, although not large, is modern in design with all convenience facilities. It is completely air conditioned.

Frank Rice, a 12-year veteran Big Spring terminal manager, said that five schedules pass through the city daily, traveling east and west.

The new terminal is located at East Third and Nolan Streets, across from the City Auditorium.

On hand for the ribbon-cutting ceremonies by Mayor Arnold Marshall will be the Ambassadors Club of the Chamber of Commerce and various city and county officials.

Continental Trailways has completed new terminals in the past 18 months at El Paso and Marshall and will complete new facilities at Abilene in late September. The new downtown Dallas terminal is set for completion next year. Rice said that this will mean new stations across the state of Texas on a line serving Big Spring, part of the over-all improvement policy being undertaken by Continental Trailways across the nation.

With recent approval for merging with eastern bus companies, Continental Trailways now has service in 43 states over 67,000 route miles.

Expected here with Glisan for the grand opening are L. B. Strahorn, Dallas, director of traffic for the system; G. G. Rountree, Dallas, vice president of sales.

Others expected from Dallas are Ed Bennett, architect, R. D. Babcock, superintendent, Gene Brown, assistant general manager, Van Lewis, area director of sales, Ed Weinmister, manager of package express, John McCormick, director of public relations for the system, and R. M. Stewart, district sales manager.

Local Trailways Agent Has 16 Years' Service

Frank Rice, agent and supervisor at Big Spring's Continental Trailway station, is a 16-year Trailways veteran and has spent 12 of those years with the Big Spring office.

Rice has been in Big Spring before, serving with another bus line from 1930-1936. Prior to his career with the bus lines, he was a railroad fireman for the Chesapeake & Ohio Railways. He is a native of Russell, Ky.

He and his wife, Mae Belle, live at 1739 Purdue and have two children, a son, Charles Franklin Rice, who is married and serving with the U.S. Navy, and a daughter, Phoebe Ann Rice, now in California, who will be returning to Big Spring soon. The family are members of the First Christian Church.

Post Made Other Big Contributions

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — The short, stocky pilot with the patch-covered eye grinned at his lanky companion and revved up the engine of his second-hand Lockheed Orion for another takeoff into the Alaskan fog. Only 15 miles to go to Point Barrow.

The Eskimo, who had just given the men directions to Point Barrow, said trouble began almost as soon as the pontoon plane lifted from the waters of Refuge Bay. The engine faltered and then quit.

The red-winged monoplane, only 50 feet into the air, wheeled to the right and plunged into the icy waters off the bleak shoreline.

The Eskimo and his wife were the only witnesses that day — Aug. 15, 1935 — to the accident which killed famed humorist Will Rogers and Wiley Post, globe-circling pioneer of the air.

Some of the technical achievements Post marked up have made little-publicized contributions to modern flight.

For example, his interest in high altitude flight led Post — working with B. F. Goodrich Co. engineers — to design a workable pressurized flight suit.

During high altitude tests over Bartlesville, Okla., in 1934, Post ran into other troubles connected with reduced air pressure. The engine's ignition system failed, and radio condensers changed their tuning, making selective listening almost impossible.

Post drew on his own observations and World War I training in radio operations to design a sealed system into which compressed air was forced to maintain sea level pressures at high altitudes.

"The supercharger, pressurized radio and oxygen techniques Post pioneered are routine for all commercial and military flights today," says Dr. Stanley Mohler, director of the Federal Aviation Agency's aeromedical research program.

Jim Kaat Can Help With Attack, Too

By The Associated Press

The people who write those baseball dictionaries may not completely agree, but Jim Kaat says pitching can be defined as allowing the other team fewer runs than your team is getting for you.

And that may explain why Kaat's interest in the Minnesota run production is so intense that he often participates in it himself.

Several times this year, the Twins' lefty has had a hand in his team's scoring and Wednesday's 11-2 victory over Boston, Kaat's 21st, was more of the same.

He led off the third with an infield single and scored shortly thereafter on a single by Tony Oliva. In the fourth, he blooped a single into short left and in the sixth he singled once again and came around on Cesar Tovar's triple.

• In the eighth, Kaat struck out, but by then it hardly mattered; he had enough runs to protect two victories.

In expostulating on his pitching theories after becoming the league's winningest pitcher and tying Sandy Koufax for tops in the majors, Kaat said he's pitching no better now than he ever did.

"You can't classify a man who wins 20 games as any better than a man who wins 17 or 18," he said. "I guess it is sort of a pitcher's luck. But scoring and defense aren't luck entirely and they're the difference. And you've still got to hold them to less runs than you get."

Elsewhere in the American League, Chicago took a pair from Detroit, 7-6 in 12 innings and 3-1, Washington and Kansas City split a doubleheader 3-0 and 0-4, Baltimore took Cleveland 5-1 and California bounced New York 5-1.

Kaat wasn't the only one swinging the big bat for the Twins. In all, there were 14 Minnesota hits including Bernie Allen's two-run homer, Tovar's two-run triple and Harmon Killibrew's two-run double. Tony Conigliaro hit his 25th homer for Boston.

Detroit hit four homers in the opener, but they all went for nothing when Tommy Agee scored an unearned run in the 12th for the Chicago victory. In the nightcap, Gary Peters fired a three-hitter and Pete Ward hit his first homer of the season.

Mike McCormick pitched his second straight shutout for the Senators in the first game, a four-hitter. Frank Howard hit his 17th homer. In the finale, Paul Lindblad and Jim Nash teamed up for the triumph. Joe Noosek drove in two runs with a triple.

Frank Robinson's 43rd home run, his fourth hit of the game, put Baltimore ahead in the eighth inning after Sam McDowell had held the Orioles to four hits. An error, a wild pitch and a single got Baltimore three more runs in the ninth.

Homers by Jose Cardenal and Joe Adcock and the five-hit pitching of Dean Chance took care of the Yankees and ended a three-game California losing streak. The Angels got two more runs in the sixth on an error by Bobby Richardson and a walk to Jackie Hernandez with the bases loaded.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Even Louisiana State University has gone with a 7:30 starting time for its home football games.

That leaves District 2-AAAA schools in a very small group which insists on sticking with the 8 o'clock kickoff hour. The odd thing about the league's reluctance to change is the fact that most of the representatives within the district are ready to advance the kickoff hour forward 30 mintues but San Angelo and Abilene people are still holding out.

Josh Sullivan, the former Big Spring High School baseball player who is now stationed with the U.S. Marines in San Diego but who shortly starts a long tour of so-called sea duty that will take him to Viet Nam, sat on the 50-yard line during a recent AFL football exhibition between the San Diego Chargers and the Miami Dolphins.

The ticket was supplied by Lance Alworth, the Charger star, with whom Josh became friendly while Alworth was visiting servicemen who had been injured in the Viet Nam campaign.

Josh sat immediately behind a man who looked very familiar to him. Ultimately, curiosity got the better of Sullivan and he tapped the fellow on the shoulder to ask his name.

Turned out it was Danny Thomas, the TV comic, part owner of the Miami club.

Sullivan says Miami has a very impressive club, is likely to win a few games before this season is history.

No college in the Great Southwest has a better balanced athletic program than the University of Houston, although officials there would probably trade some of their success in other endeavors for a stronger football team.

Here's the record Houston can point with pride to:

BASEBALL — The Cougars and Texas are the only two teams in the state that have played in the NCAA district playoffs three or more times in the past decade.

BASKETBALL — The Cougars and SMU are the only major teams in Texas that have performed in four post-season tournaments (NCAA or NIT) since 1956.

FOOTBALL — Of all the major teams in Texas, only Houston and Texas have had nine or more winning seasons in the last 15 years.

GOLF — Houston has the best record in the country, having won the NCAA championship nine of the last 11 years.

TENNIS — Houston teams are one of two in the state that have finished as high as seventh nationally at least three times since 1956.

TRACK and CROSS COUNTRY — UH is the only Texas team in ten years that has finished among the nation's top 15 teams four times. Houston also holds the all-time record for the most points scored by a Texas team in the NCAA championships. In cross-country, the Cougars are the only team in the Southwest that has ever won an NCAA championship. UH is also the only Texas team that has produced two national individual champions.

Since 1956, Houston has produced 13 NCAA individual champions. No other school in the state has done as well. During the same time, Cougar teams have won ten NCAA team titles, more than all other Texas schools combined.

Lamesa and Kermit scrimmaged in football last week and reports from Kermit sources say the Gold Tornadoes are much farther along than they were this time a year ago.

Big Spring has only a little more than a week in which to get ready for the Tornadoes. The two teams clash Sept. 9 in Lamesa.

Steers Will Put In Full Day Before Barbecue

Members of the Big Spring High School football team will put in a full day of work before repairing to the amphitheatre at the City Park for the annual barbecue staged by the Quarterback Club.

The meal will not be served until 7:30 p.m. The athletes need time to shower and dress after their afternoon of toil.

Those owning membership tickets to the Quarterback Club can take their families to the barbecue. The ducats are priced at $5 per family. Tickets for the barbecue itself will be sold at the gate.

Those who do not have the membership tickets can purchase them by calling either Everett Whatley or James Duncan, co-captains of the booster organization.

Coaches and their wives and cheer leaders will also be special guests of the club.

* * *

The Steers have escaped serious injury in workouts to date, although fullback Kirby Horton was hospitalized Wednesday as a precautionary measure after he was knocked out during a drill. No concussion occurred, the attending doctor said.

Quarterback Gary Rogers and tackle Steve Riordan are recovered from leg miseries. Rogers was also sick in bed with a high fever but is on the road to recovery, coach Herman Smith said.

Palmer Still Eyeing Sweep Of Big Titles

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — While some skeptics are preparing his golf obituary, Arnold Palmer still talks confidently of winning the Masters, PGA and U.S. and British opens in a single year.

"It's always been my goal, and I still think I have a chance to do it," the jet-flying millionaire pro from Latrobe, Pa., said after watching another tournament slip away last weekend in the Philadelphia Classic at the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club.

PLENTY OF TIME

"It's just a matter of getting in the right frame of mind. I plan to rest a month. I've reorganized my business so it doesn't make such heavy demands on my golf. I'm only 36. I've got plenty of time left."

Palmer came close to the professional grand slam in 1960 when he won the Masters and U.S. Opens, missed the British Open by a stroke and led the PGA through the first round. Since the 1964 Masters, however, he has failed to win a major crown and has fallen into a slump that has seen him capture only four tour tournaments in two years.

This year, after winning the Los Angeles Open and the Tournament of Champions, he blew a seven-stroke lead in the last nine holes to Bill Casper in the U.S. Open at San Francisco, then lost the playoff by four shots. He shot a 77 in the final round of the Insurance Open at Wethersfield, Conn., less than two weeks ago and blew the lead on the final day Sunday in the Philadelphia Classic.

This sudden shift of fortunes has caused many golf observers to predict that the great man may finally have run out of his magic elixir and that losing the Open as he did will create such a psychological impact that he may never wip another major crown.

"A STATE OF MIND"

Palmer, his boxer's physique trim and tanned, ridiculed such pessimism during the Philadelphia Classic — his last tournament appearance until the World Match Play event in England in late September.

"In competitive sports, I think age is a state of mind," he said.

"You must remember Ben Hogan didn't win a major championship until he was 35 and he was 40 when he won the Masters, National Open and British Open in 1953. If you feel out of it, you are out of it. If you feel in it — as I do — you have a voice."

What is the difference in the Palmer of 1958-63 and the Palmer of 1964-66?

"I find it harder to stay aware," Arnie said. "For the last couple of years I have allowed myself to get covered up with business affairs, and it has affected my golf. But better organization has taken care of that."

There has been a tendency toward bad last rounds, as contrasted to spectacular come-from-behind finishes in the early career — is there an explanation?

"It's true I seem to play better when I am behind, when I have a target to shoot at. But even when I was winning, I always had one bad round in a tournament. It just happens that they are coming on the last round."

Is there an attack of putting nerves, such as that which plagues Ben Hogan.

"I thought once that my putting had gone sour. Then I found out that it was just that I wasn't getting the ball as close to the hole. I have good putting days and bad. My job is to put all the pieces together. I will."

Bucs, Giants Retain Momentum In Race

By The Associated Press

Pittsburgh's fans fanned the Pirates past the Los Angeles Dodgers, but Juan Marichal enjoyed anything but a breeze against the New York Mets.

Some 31,000 spectators were on hand with their paper fans wednesday night as the Pirates edged the Dodgers 4-3 while Marichal sweated out his 20th victory as San Francisco nipped the Mets 2-1.

The results left the Pirates and Giants tied for first place in the National League with the third-place Dodgers falling three games back.

The fans who came to watch the Pirates play received free fans as they entered the park. They put them to use in the fourth inning after Roberto Clemente reached first base on Jim Lefebvre's error.

When everyone in the stands started waving the fans, the Dodgers complained to the umpires. And while the umpires waited for the breeze to stop, the game was delayed for five minutes.

Once it resumed, Willie Stargell singled off Don Drysdale, but Donn Clendenon lined out, ending the inning.

The spectators didn't wave the fans much in the next inning, but quite a few — of the paper kind —were tossed onto the field as the Pirates erupted for four runs.

One of Marichal's problems, on the other hand, was that the Giants didn't do any erupting at all. They trailed 1-0 until the seventh inning and didn't go ahead until the ninth as Marichal waited to gain his fourth consecutive 20-victory season.

Another problem for the ace right-hander was the backstrap muscle he pulled in his right shoulder while striking out Ron Hunt in the ninth inning.

"I felt something pull," Marichal said after the game. "It worries me, but I hope it's nothing serious."

Elsewhere in the NL Philadelphia whipped Houston 10-5, Cincinnati trimmed Chicago 7-5 and Atlanta defeated St. Louis 8-5.

The Pirates loaded the bases on singles in the fifth inning, and Gene Alley drove in the first two runs of the game with a two-out single. Clemente and Stargell then singled across the other two runs. The Dodgers rallied for their three runs in the sixth on Willie Davis' homer.

Rich Allen sparked the Phillies past Houston, collecting four hits, including a two-run homer in the first inning. John Callison, Bill White and Cookie Rojas also drove in two runs each as Chris Short gained his 16th victory against eight defeats

Bill Hands blanked Cincinnati through six innings, but the Reds exploded for their eighth straight victory on Gordy Colemen's three-run homer in the seventh and Art Shamsky's pinch-hit, three-run homer in the eighth. Shamsky's blow climaxed a four-run rally with all of the runs being unearned.

Joe Torre, Rico Carty and Mack Jones hit homers in Atlanta's triumph over St. Louis. The Braves went ahead 6-5 in the sixth inning when Felipe Alou singled home Clay Carroll and scored on Ed Mathews' double.

Odessa-Midland Pro 11 Opens At Home Saturday

ODESSA — Permian Basin football fans will get their first look at professional football, Texas' league style, Saturday night at WT Barrett Stadium in Odessa when the Odessa-Midland Comets, newest members of the Texas Professional Football league, host the Sherman-Denison Jets in their home opener and first league game. Kickoff time is 8:30.

The Jets opened league competition last week against the Dallas Rockets with a 28-7 triumph while the Comets fell to the Burkburnett Kings, 26-0, in an exhibition game at Uvalde. This was the first game in history for the Comets and penalties, interceptions and fumbles ruined a fine effort.

Burkburnett played 22 veterans from last year's league champions, and the King's four year record is now 46-6-2.

The Comets with some great individual brilliance by such players as co-captain Bob Windham, 6'6 265 pound center from Texas Western, and the New York Jets, and co-captain Gene Williams from Kermit who played at Texas Western, Richard Kellar, former Permian and West Texas State standout, will still pose a threat to the older clubs in the league before the season is over.

Comet defensive standout against Burkburnett were linebacker Elden Ford, former allstater from Douglas High in Oklahoma City, and Jack Evans, former all stater from Iowa.

The Sherman-Denison Club is paced by HB Bill Hooten from East Texas State who scored three times last week against the Dallas Rockets, and QB Hayseed Stephens former collegiate passing leader at Hardin-Simmons, and who quarterbacked the New York Titans in 1962.

The Comets with the exhibition game under their belt and another week to sharpen the offense, are expected to enter the game in top physical condition. In the first year of operation the Comets have no salaried players or coaches, but will share with the stockholders in net receipts at the end of the season.

The Comets are all employed in the Odessa-Midland area and football is a labor of love with most of them . . . They have been working out since July 15.

Byron Townsend, head coach of the Odessa-Midland Comets was an all time great at Odessa High School, and later at the University of Texas. Townsend played pro ball with the Los Angeles Rams, and in Canada.

John Hatley, 6'3 275, Comet defensive coach and a member of the defensive unit, played at Sul Ross and Baylor, then with the Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals, Philadelphia Eagles, and wound up his big league career with the Denver Bronchos.

The Sherman-Denison Jets are coached by Duncan McCauley, a former fullback with the Washington Redskins. McCauley is employed full time as coach and general manager of the club.

The Texas Professional Football league has had a satisfying start, with large crowds at all pre-season exhibition games. The loop has ambitions to expand to 12 teams next year and also have working agreements with the Major Leagues. Other league games this Saturday night will be Pasadena at Tulsa, and Dallas at Burkburnett.

All SWC Teams Now Undergoing Drills

By The Associated Press

More than 600 young men with a strong idea of winning hit the gridirons of the Southwest Conference today.

A record 219 lettermen will be in the eight camps as the league looks toward what could be its greatest season yet.

Southern Methodist and Baylor already had broken the barrier and the other six conference members joined them today.

Some pre - training news filtered in Wednesday night.

At College Station, Coach Gene Stallings of Texas A&M found out that his squad was in top shape for the start of practice. The players ran the "Aggie mile," and only two failed to make the set time of 6:18.

Gil Smith, the Aggie sprint star who has turned his attention to football, raced it in 5:09 to lead all the others.

At Waco, Tommy Smith, the ace pass receiver injured in an auto crash on the way to practice Saturday, was going full speed Wednesday.

Southern Methodist gave way to the sports writers and photographers as the annual conference tour started.

Future Challengers?

They may be too young for serious competition in this year's Big Spring Invitational Golf Tournament but the two boys pictured above have been getting in practice licks at the Country Club this week with an eye to future play. They are Barney Gulley (left) and David Pickle. The big tournament opens Friday and continues through Labor Day. (Photo by Danny Valdes)

Bob Wright Is Entry

In the wake of a half inch rain which fell on the Country Club Wednesday, pro Jerry Green relocated the pins to guard against possible damage of greens on the eve of the 35th annual Big Spring Invitational Golf tournament.

The big meet gets under way Friday with the qualifying round and continues through Monday.

Traffic will not be slowed on the course today, Green emphasized, as entries seek to get in final practice licks for the tournament but Green did want to take every precaution possible to protect the greens, which are in near-perfect condition.

Bobby Wright, an entry Wednesday, will be assigned the role of defending champion even though Bernard Rains and Al Kloven teamed up to cop the 1965 title, when the meet was a partnership event.

Wright won the championship in 1964, the last time it was an individual event. It was Bobby's second such crown in a decade, incidentally. He has to be regarded as one of the big favorites in this year's tournament, since he always plays the Country Club course so expertly.

The field mounted to 60 Wednesday, with many of the Country Club members still to come in.

Others who registered and paid $20 entry fees included Gil Gingold, Bobby Suggs, R. P. Nicholson, Charles Sweeney, Bob Hawkins of Lamesa, Joe Billo of San Angelo, Randy Nicholson, Dan Inglish of Fort Worth, Ed Wilkerson and Mike Ritchey.

Match play gets under way Saturday, with 32 players making up the championship flight. First round losers in that division will go into the President's Flight, which will offer the same prizes to winners as in the other flight. Survivors will engage in match play again Sunday but the final four players in each flight will engage in medal play Monday to determine winners.

Flight winners in each flight win $160 sets of irons. Runners-up earn sets of woods while consolation round winners qualify for $50 golf bags. Friday's medalist will earn a pair of golf shoes.

Tournament entries will be treated to a barbecue Friday night and to a dance Saturday evening. Other entertainment is also scheduled.

Rug Salesman Is Amateur Leader

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — The college kids are getting a lesson in finesse at the 66th annual U.S. Amateur Golf Championship.

When 150 of the nation's top amateurs finished the first round Wednesday of the 72-hole tournament, only five of the power hitting young limberbacks expected to dominate the competition were among the top 17. Only Roger McManus, a 42-year-old rug salesman from Hartville, Ohio, beat the par out of historic Merion Golf Club's tight little course.

Lining up his putts through thick spectacles and then placing them in his pocket when he stroked the ball across the greens, McManus fired a 32-37—69 to lead the field into today's second round by a stroke.

Instead of such power-hitting young turks as Jim Wiechers (81) the Western Amateur champion from California; Bobby Cole (80), the British Amateur champion; Jack Lewis (73), the North - South Amateur titlist; Eastern Amateur champion Marty Fleckman (74); Bob Dickson (77), runner up in the National Amateur last year, and Sherman Finger (75), Pacific Coast collegiate champion, the old gaffers were at the head of the class.

Such names as Dick Runkle, 38, Los Angeles (71); Kai Thomson, Novato Calif., 39 (72); Ed Tutwiler Jr., 47, Indianapolis (72); Billy Hyndman, 50, Huntingdon Valley, Pa. (72); and Dr. Ed Updegrass, 44, Tucson, Ariz., (72); were among the leading finishers.

Bob Murphy Jr., 23-year-old defending champion from Nichols, Fla., shot an opening-round 73.

Leuschner Named Bowling Prexy

President for the Big Spring Women's Bowling Association for the 1966-67 season is Joycee Leuschner.

A short meeting was held with the secretary and treasurer of the association Monday night.

Joycee, living in Big Spring for only one year, has taken active interest in bowling and competes in several leagues and is a member of a traveling league. Besides being a president for the association, she is also enrolled at Howard County Junior College this fall to take some night courses, after working as a receptionist for the First National Bank.

Tubbs Returns To Dallas Club

DALLAS (AP) — Jerry Tubbs, Dallas great linebacker who retired after last season, is returning to the Cowboys as insurance that there will be a top middle linebacker on the field during the coming season.

Lee Roy Jordan holds the job and Tubbs will be playing only if Jordan gets hurt. He also will be assistant coach.

Filly Shows The Boys How To Run In Hambletonian

DUQUOIN, Ill. (AP) — The filly Kerry Way put the big boys in their place in the Hambletonian.

The big, strong daughter of famed Star's Pride, sire of the last three winners of the historic classic for 3-year-old trotters, won in straight mile heats Wednesday and set a world record.

Kerry Way became the 11th filly in the Hambletonian's 41 years to win the trophy and the first since Emily's Pride in 1958.

"She has to be the greatest filly I've ever driven," said 62-year-old Frank Ervin. "After all, she set a world record. We got the job done with Kerry Way's grit and determination."

Kerry Way, the 2-year-old trotting champion of 1965, had a slow start this year when a new boot infected her ankle. Her record now is five victories in 10 starts and she will go for more at Indianapolis next week.

Kerry Way, owned by Gainesway Farm of Lexington, Ky., sped the two opening heats in 1:58 4-5 and 1:59 3-5 for a combined time of 3:58 2-5—a world record for 3-year-old trotting fillies on a mile track. It erased the old mark of 3:58 4-5 by Elaine Rodney at Lexington in 1960. Ervin, a native of Pekin, Ill., captured his second Hambletonian in 15 appearances and now has 101 drives of two minutes or lower.

Polaris, the Yonkers Futurity winner reined by George Sholty, finished second in both heats, being defeated by 3-4 length in the first and a neck in the second in a thrilling stretch battle that brought some 23,000 fans to their feet.

With a field of 12, the Hambletonian grossed $122,540, fourth largest. Kerry Way boosted her two-year earnings by $60,044 to $207,186.

Polaris collected second money of $30,022 for owners Patrick Digennaro and Anthony Lecesse of Scottsville, N.Y. Shatter Way, at unofficial odds of 25-1 for the betless race, was a surprising third after a 4-3 finish. He was shipped from Sweden for the event and earned $14,410 for owner Kurt Hellberg of Mellerud, Sweden.

Fourth place, worth $9,607, went to Carlisle with 3-7, and fifth money of $6,004 went to Armbro Gazelle, 6-4. The other finishers in order were Brokers Choice 7-5, Governor Armbro 5-11, Rocket Rodney 12-6, Our Rainbow 8-9, Careless Vlado 9-8, Starlight Way 10-10 and All American 11-12.

Duffers Start Tourney Friday

The first annual Men's Texas Handicap Golfer's Association tournament will start Friday, September 2 and extend through Monday, September 5 at the Big Spring Country Club, Municipal Golf Course and Webb AFB, in Big Spring. In order to join T.H.G.A., all golfers must have an attested handicap score. T.H.G.A. has been furnished handicap scores by local club professionals.

Golfers can join T.H.G.A. by purchasing a membership card from their local pro for $1. Each 18 holes of tournament will cost members $1. Golfers may play four days, using their lowest score in their bid for T.H.G.A. championship.

Club champions and co-champions will advance to Zone play on September 10 and 11, all to be played at the golfer's home course.

The T.H.G.A. Labor Day Weekend tournament will not interfere with local club tournaments. If a T.H.G.A. member's club is having a tournament on Labor Day weekend, he can play in the T.H.G.A. tournament on September 2 only, and if he plays in his local club's tournament, he can play all four days to lower his net score.

All profits from this association will be donated to the National Foundation for Delinquent Boys and Girls in Texas.

Ticket Sales Slowly Mount

Sale of season tickets to home games of the Big Spring Steers have mounted to 878, with applications on hand from about 80 other persons who have indicated they will drop by the School Business Office to pay for their ducats.

Only those who actually have anted up the required $7.50 for the five pasteboards are counted by school officials. The business office is located at 807 E. 13th St.

Adult ducats for Big Spring's opening game with Lamesa, which will be played in Lamesa a week from tomorrow night, have arrived but will not go on sale until next Wednesday and then only to those holding season tickets here. The remainder will be made available to the general public one week from today, starting at 8:30 a.m.

The Lamesa tickets, and 937 of them were included in the shipment here, are priced at $1.50 each and are good for locations in the east stands of Tornado Stadium.

Student tickets for the Lamesa game will be sold for 50 cents, whether they are purchased beforehand or at the gate.

TRAVELER'S OBSERVATIONS

San Francisco Forgets The Quake With Tall Buildings

By HOUSTON HARTE

AT SEA — San Francisco has recovered not only from the earthquake of 1906, but fear of repetition. The new Wells Fargo Bank, 43 stories high, a shining tower that dominates the skyline of bridges and apartment houses, may set a new standard of future construction.

Those who remember what San Francisco looked like even 10 years after the earthquake might be filled with misgivings as they witness the new skyline of this city, no matter how much more strength the builders feel they are able to put into present-day construction of high-rise apartments or office buildings. Undoubtedly it is there in theory. We can hope it is there if a new shake comes.

San Francisco appears to have lost little of its old flair. The cable cars are as small as ever and just as crowded. They remain a typical example of the worst transportation system of any major city in the nation. It is impossible to get from one part of the bay area to another without coming into San Francisco. With two great bridges which paid for themselves in record time the municipal transportation system of buses is almost as slow as the old ferry system which made The Ferry Terminal at the foot of Market Street the hub of the bay area.

Its cafes and restaurants are still as elegant as ever. They still offer more attractive eating than most any other U.S. city. Nothing is cheap. In the Sheraton Palace Hotel where you stand in line to get in for lunch even at 2 p.m., the same "lamb stew" which is served at the Sheraton's Dallas Hotel for $1.60 costs in this two-story glass domed patio $3.15.

The city is what you would call "open." On downtown Geary Street, three blocks from Union Square, between the Clift Hotel and a theatre where "Half a Six Pence" started a run on July 26, you see a narrow entrance leading to a cocktail bar where a sign advertises "Topless Dancers. No Cover! No Minimum!"

"Half a Six Pence" packs them in hefe. It is one of the examples that cheers many of us because it is without the slightest tinge of smut. It is nothing but pure comedy without a suggestion that is off color or depicts a sexual situation that the liberal critics defend in the name of art. In San Francisco the best and the worst are in the same block. The smut doesn't seem to be doing too well.

In San Francisco and here on the Matson Lines' SS Monterey, women's 1966 dress styles have revealed that an old reliable, if seldom exposed, part of women's wear has come into its own. Drawers, as they were known years ago, and now universally referred to as pants or panties, have become almost the most important piece of a woman's wardrobe.

It does not seem to bother anyone else and I am getting used to seeing all of a woman's legs and half of the thigh exposed when any woman, who believes that the hemline belongs just at the knee, feels she must get off her feet and sit down.

This has created a new industry. It seems to me there must be many styles in pants, with different lace ruffles at the bottom.

I would think they should be made of strong material. White does not go with everything so there is the color problem to create another element in this fast-growing market that is a corollary to the hem line.

It does not make much difference whether it is a shift, a sack or a tent. The length is just the same and the emphasis is on the pants. The exposure is par for the course. The tent is a little easier to sit in unless you are in the wind — and you can't get on deck without being in the wind even on the placid Pacific.

Bonds Increased To Fight Crime

DALLAS (AP)—Dallas, seeking to reduce the cases of juvenile crime, increased bonds for the second time in slightly more than two weeks.

The latest move raised the bond to $100 for those charged with malicious mischief, destruction of private property, resisting arrest and interfering with a police officer making an arrest.

Soviet's Luna Operating Well

MOSCOW (AP) — The unmanned Soviet satellite Luna 11 was orbiting the moon today with all systems functioning normally, an official announcement said.

This appeared to rule out speculation early today that a 4½-hour silence in the signal meant the Russians might be attempting to bring it back to earth.

The lience remained unexplained.

Tass said Luna 11 had completed 37 orbits of the moon by 4 p.m. Moscow time today. It was the first official word on the satellite since a belated report that it had gone into orbit around the moon late Saturday night.

BIG SPRING DAILY HERALD

SECTION B — BIG SPRING, TEXAS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1966 — SECTION B

Tough Or Tender — It's Chic Either Way

Tough and soft chic — that's another name for the Good Girl, Bad Girl fashions Gayle Kirkpatrick designed for Atelier recently. On the far ends are so-called bad girl styles with hearts of gold beneath slithery leather, hobnail belts and helmets. The same girl, center, is sweet as syrup in soft suede discotheque dress or leisure pants and mock alligator tank top.

Designer Says 'Wild Ones' Not Delinquents In Fashion

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—By creating good girl and bad girl fashions Gayle Kirkpatrick has seemingly made it simple to tell who is which. But you can't count on this.

Misses who can be very, very good may very well select the same garb as those who can be horrid. Indeed, the avant garde stylist made his collection in four shades of go-together suede and leather so that the parts of all outfits would be interchangeable.

Labeling ladies, however, was not the method in his madness. Kirkpatrick's point was that those so-called wild young ones, characterized as the black shirts in France, the rockers in England, the motor cycle mob in this country are certainly not delinquents in fashion. Actually these tomboys, hobnails to the contrary, were the first to appreciate how sensuous supple leather can be sliding over the form, and therefore, how very, very feminine.

Nor has the beauty of leather, especially nubby suede, been lost on the female whose interests tend toward lolling languidly in leisure pants or primping prettily for parties. Who knows how good these good girls are? They are just called that because they do the things people expect girls to do.

Maybe conform and non-conform are better terms than good or bad. Kirkpatrick, after mulling the whole thing over, decided tough chic and soft chic were better names.

The designer's interest in leather goes back to his association with Rudi Gernreich, the California creator of the topless bathing suit. Even then the team stitched up some leather swim suits which some buyers said were strictly for the beach.

Individualist Bonnie Cashin used to have the versatile pelts all to herself. She whipped them into rugged country living togs, although she was also among the first to shoe a miss from head to heels in leather dinner gowns.

Recently the English has found the charm of animal skins, especially when interpreted as audaciously as the mods are capable of doing.

They brought a whole planeload of their styles to these shores. But they were too late to colonize. American leathers were firmly entrenched.

PUBLIC INVITED TO GOLF DANCE

The public is invited to attend an informal dance Saturday at Big Spring Country Club which is being held in conjunction with the Labor Day Golf Tournament. Dancing will begin at 9 a.m. with music by the Bobby Burns orchestra of Amarillo. Large parties should make reservations by calling the club. The charge is $3 per couple.

Troy Lankfords Tour Tennessee

WESTBROOK (SC)—Mr. and Mrs. Troy Lankford accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Claxton of Colorado City on a vacation this week to Tennessee and Kentucky.

Dale Byrd and Elmer McMahan visited in Lubbock and with Larry Bell in Levelland during the weekend.

Guests in the W. A. Bell home during the weekend included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walker and daughter, Virginia, of Odessa, Mrs. Leslie Bassinger and daughter, Neta, of Andrews, and Mr. and Mrs. John Bell and Mrs. A. K. McCarley, all of Colorado City.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Webb had as guests Sunday, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Campbell, and their daughter, Linda, of Odessa.

Modern Baths Become Colorful

Modern bathrooms are a pleasure, not only in convenience, but in looks.

The bathroom has been changed from its clinical white to a galaxy of colors. New materials, wall-coverings that are washable, paneling, tile, and a host of other items have found their way into the new baths.

Views Differ On What Women Wear To Work

NEW YORK (AP) — A British doctor tells girls to wear ski pants to work in winter instead of short-short skirts. Some American women hold no brief for the idea, one declaring that skirts "might be a menace to health but ski pants won't attract as many eyes."

Apparently the eyes have it for a host of ladies who readily acknowledge that they dress to please men, not the weather, an Associated Press sampling of women's views reveals.

Dr. Geoffrey Taylor, an expert on illnesses caused by low temperatures, said at his laboratory in Cricket Malherbie, England, that "these skirts, four inches above the knee, are ridiculous as protection against the British winter."

"Girls would be more efficient employes if they wore ski pants and men would work better if they wore long underpants," Dr. Taylor said.

Counters Sharon Gunderson, a housewife of West Los Angeles, Calif., "I just don't see what difference it would make. You can get just as sick being overheated in ski pants as you can getting frozen in short skirts."

Susan Cobourn, 23, of Columbus, Ohio, thinks ski pants for work "are too uncomfortable — not enough freedom. Besides, women are risking their femininity just being in the business world, let alone wearing pants while doing the work."

Sandy Jack, 20, San Francisco secretary, avers, "Short skirts and ski pants can be equally distracting."

Muriel L. Donohue of Boston says she doesn't like the shorter skirts, but adds that ski pants "are too tight for the shape women are in."

Dr. Taylor's suggestion didn't get the cold shoulder from all women.

Joan O'Keefe, 21, of Chicago, notes: "Even if everything else is covered up and your knees aren't it's enough to make you chilly through and through."

A young lady assistant chemist for the Illinois Institute of Technology, says of short skirts: "On most people they look very ugly because very few women are built like fashion models."

Flo Casto, an office worker in Charleston, S.C., was enthusiastic about Taylor's idea, saying, "I think that would be just great. I wouldn't have to worry about getting dressed up."

But two New York City women won't buy the idea.

Sheila Seleznow, 30, an elementary school teacher, said: "I don't think skirts are ever a menace, no matter how short. I don't think women should wear pants to work."

Anita Duncan, 28, a book designer: "Ski pants belong on the ski hills. Short skirts don't bother me, but I acknowledge they may bother some — especially if they're men."

Marion Diane Holbrook, recent college graduate now with a Dallas, Tex., electronics firm, offers:

"The solution is simple: Wear leotards with short skirts and both sides in the controversy — not to mention the men — will be happy."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Plastic Tops Paper

Dear Heloise:

I have wallpaper on the upper part of my kitchen, and it was always getting soiled around the stove, while paper in the rest of the room would still be clean.

This time when I papered my kitchen, I covered the wallpaper around the stove with clear adhesive-backed plastic.

HELOISE

Now the wallpaper stays clean, and I just wipe dirt and grease off the plastic with a soapy rag or sponge.

This is also very good around door knobs and light switches as the clear plastic can be wiped clean just like glass . . . Mrs. Philip Snyder

Dear Heloise:

If you have an infant, string some of your pretty greeting cards on a clothes hanger and hang it up out of his reach, but where he can see it.

You have an inexpensive mobile that is pretty and colorful in his room and will entertain him . . . Mrs. W. E. Liberge

Dear Heloise:

After using the fruit out of a can, I always have leftover juice.

I put this juice in a plastic container and freeze it to use when making gelatin. The frozen juice can be removed easily by placing the container under hot water for a few seconds.

Certainly adds flavor to gelatin . . . Mary Castro

Dear Heloise:

I have a good idea to get more wear out of your girls' shorts:

My granddaughter had some that wore out in the rear end.

I got two colors of iron-on patches and cut them in different shapes — stars, moons and oblong, and ironed them on over worn spots. These make darling "Raggedy Ann" shorts.

I cut her name out of a different color and ironed it on the colored patches.

You can use your own ideas, but my granddaughter's shorts looked real cute . . . Mrs. Sheriff

Dear Heloise:

Is there any way to clean a straw hat? And will the same method work for synthetic straw? Mrs. Arthur Morris

* * *

Dear Mrs. Morris:

There are so many types and makes of straw hats that I hesitate to suggest a cleaning method that would apply to all of them.

Yet I'm sure that many of our readers have cleaned their straw hats to extend their usefulness.

So . . . if any of you sweet readers will write to us in care of this paper, and let us know how you clean yours, we sure will be grateful.

Let's all help each other any way we can.

I send my love . . . Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Servicemen are often on the move several times a year, and their relatives and friends are always having to write their new address in their book.

To avoid a mass of crossed-out addresses in my address book and a messy appearance, I tape his current address over the old one.

When he moves, I write his new address on masking tape, rip off the old tape and replace it with the new address . . . Serviceman's granma.

Dear Heloise:

I came upon this idea the other day when I was making pizza (the kind you buy in a box with all needed ingredients included).

I always had trouble with the cheese because it would be lumpy and all go in one spot.

Well, I put the cheese in a large-holed shaker and ended that problem . . . A Long Time Reader

England Looks Toward Even More Discontent

LONDON (AP) — As England swings toward another winter of economic discontent, people here are again asking: "Who really won the last war?"

Britons look out from the island home they defended with blood and treasure. They see the French sitting on huge gold reserves and trying to dominate Europe. They see German workers going on Mediterranean vacations while British trips are cut short to save foreign currency. And they wince as Japanese traders cut into old markets.

Economists generally agree about the main causes of Britain's economic sickness, although different schools weigh them differently. They disagree about possible cures — more unemployment, devaluation, more nationalization, Common Market entry.

INTERLOCKING CAUSES

The chief causes interlock. Insufficient and ill-judged investment leads to technological backwardness. Deep social conflicts between management and labor fuel a wage-price spirial. Britain's obligations as an international banker and international policeman put the economy in pecarious balance.

It is like spinning a top on the head of a pin.

West Germany, France and Japan have faced few of these problems, or not all at once. The French and Germans have almost trebled their national product since 1950. Britain's rose less than one-third.

Fred Catherwood, chairman of the government-sponsored National Economic Development Council: "We are trying to do too much with too little."

Andrew Shonfield, economist and director of studies at the Royal Institute of International Affairs: "Change takes place, but it takes place too slowly. Because of the delicacy of the situation, we haven't dared to make the big choices. The initiative for change would be bigger if there wasn't this danger of international upset."

INVESTMENT

The seed of economic growth is investment — not only in industry but in its underpinnings such as roads, schools or ports. Lloyd's Bank calculates that in 1955-63, at the height of the postwar boom, Japan plowed back 33 per cent of its national income, West Germany 25 per cent, France 20, Britain 16.

This low figure is only part of Britain's story. Following traditions, Britons invested heavily abroad. For every three pounds invested at home, one went chasing profits abroad. If those pounds had stayed home, Britain might be up with France or Germany.

Even during the postwar austerity days, when the United States lent Britain $3.8 billion for economic recovery, $4.2 billion went abroad in private capital — more than half of it to the United States. Several billion pounds of wartime payments were released to former colonies and the white dominions.

PAYING NOW

Shonfield: "The United States and Britain were acting in collusion to promote stability in delicate areas of the globe for which we are paying the price now."

Some of the money that stayed home seemed to be planted in the wrong places.

A survey by the magazine Metalworking Production showed that during the past five years — a boom period — the proportion of 10-year-old machine tools in heavy industry increased by 1 or 2 per cent. One out of four machine tools was prewar.

Ship-building, with the highest proportion of outdated tools (74 per cent), has lost one order after another to the Japanese.

If anything, booms show up weakness in the British economy rather than its strengths. Three separate booms have ended in trade deficits, heavy capital exports and shortages of labor that encourage workers to push for higher wages. Each time the government choked off the boom by boosting taxes and interest rates, and cutting down on investment.

SELECTIVE

F. W. Paish, retired London University professor who has long favored more cautious growth through higher unemployment: "The key is not large investment, but selective investment. When you're being pushed by full order books, you simply turn to expanding the way you always have."

An economist for one of Britain's biggest unions casts an envious eye on his West German brothers: "The unions there cooperated early in the 1950s and held back wage demands for jam tomorrow. The employers used the money to invest. Now they've got jam today. We haven't."

Why didn't the unions cooperate here — even under a Labor government? The answer lies in generations of social conflict. From 1895 to 1914, foreign investment tripled, but the profits didn't enrich the British workman. During that period, the Labor Ministry estimated that the pound's purchasing power declined 20 per cent while wages stayed steady.

Obeys Law But Disagrees

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Jim Johnson, the Democratic party's nominee for governor in Arkansas, thinks school desegregation guidelines are illegal, but he has enrolled his twin sons in a class that will have Negro students.

"I promised that I would obey the law," Johnson said. "I still believe the federal school desegregation guidelines are illegal because they go beyond the civil rights law."

Johnson's wife Virginia enrolled the twins, Danny and David, 6, in the first grade of the Conway elementary school Wednesday. The boys' teacher said she understood there would be three Negro children in their class.

Johnson, running against Republican Winthrop Rockefeller, came to prominence in state politics as a spokesman for segregationist groups.

Murphy, 64, left Presbyterian Hospital in Los Angeles Wednesday accompanied by his son, Dennis, 27. The senator carried a bouquet of gold-flecked chrysanthemums, a gift from President Johnson.

The former actor plans to remain at home for about 10 days, then return to Washington.

Teacher Pistol-Whipped On First Teaching Day

JOURDANTON, Tex. (AP)—Born in a log cabin, A. H. Jungerman had to struggle for an education.

At the age of 23, he had only a fifth-grade education "and I didn't know how to punctuate or anything."

The struggle paid off and he eventually was graduated from college. But he got pistol-whipped on his first teaching assignment.

Now 83, Jungerman lists his current duties as follows:

News editor of the Atascosa Monitor; correspondent for the San Antonio Express; official U.S. Weather Bureau reporter; custodian of the civic center; and secretary of the fire department (he still rides on the back of the truck).

"The only time he is at home is when he is either eating or sleeping," Mrs. Jungerman said.

Known as the "Old Prof" around Jourdanton, Jungerman says the log cabin he was born in in Fayette County "is still standing and in good shape."

His father hand-hewed the logs and shingles for the cabin.

Jungerman tells how he was pistol-whipped when he first taught school:

"This man had three children in school, and he was a bad guy, he had already killed a man or two.

"The oldest daughter carried a knife and said if I ever reprimanded her, she would cut my guts out.

"The two previous teachers had quit because they were afraid of this man.

"But one day, the girl misbehaved. I tried to admonish her but she jumped out of a window and ran home.

"The next day, the father came to school, but he was a coward, and since I had a coat on and looked him straight in the eye, he backed off.

"About a week later he caught me in town with shirt sleeves on. He came at me with a big knife and I decided to stand my ground.

"I managed to get the knife away from him, but he pulled a big pistol and whacked me across the head with it."

Jungerman goes on to say that he kept fighting and finally "spooked" the man.

Dalhart Banker Pleads Guilty

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)—W. R. Koehler, 31, former vice president of a bank at Dalhart, Tex., pleaded guilty to misuse of bank funds totaling $829,330 and got a three-year probated prison term.

Koehler told U.S. Dist. Judge Joe B. Dooley that "to this day, I am unable to account for these actions." He also said his law violations caused his family and himself great embarrassment and that he had been getting professional help.

Judge Dooley sentenced him Wednesday to three years in prison on each of two counts, the terms to be probated and to run concurrently.

Koehler was ordered to work with co-trustees of the bank in disposing of his assets.

College Parking To Be Increased

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Texas A&M is constructing 1,100 new paved parking spaces on campus, with long range plans for 900 more.

DEAR ABBY

Baseball Is First

DEAR ABBY: I wish they would outlaw baseball! My husband is such a big sports fan he has two TV's going in separate rooms, and he carries a transistor radio around to keep track of a third game. When we go out for an evening he has to have the transistor plugged in his ear to keep up with a baseball game somewhere.

We can't go to bed at night until he finds out how the teams did all over the country. He ignores me completely, and we have been married only four months. I am not an old bag either. I am 36-24-36.

STRIKING OUT

DEAR STRIKING: If Sports Fan ignores you during the seventh inning stretch and after the scores are all in and the lights are all out, he could have bigger problems than you. Let me hear how you wind up the season.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who just loves to write letters. I think she must be a frustrated novelist. She will start a letter on Monday, add to it on Tuesday, keep adding to it every day until she finally closes on Friday. One of her letters can be 15 or 16 typewritten pages — single spaced.

She never has any news, it's just a lot of drivel. But what really gets me is this. She works for a doctor, and she uses his business stationery, his envelopes, and I'm sure his stamps and his TIME. To me, it's out and out stealing. Is there some tactful way to bring this correspondence to an end?

HATES TO WRITE

DEAR HATES: Yes. Don't answer.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was married on the spur of the moment and we didn't have time to order formal announcements, so I wrote letters to our immediate family telling them about our new son-in-law. I also enclosed a picture of the couple taken on the day of their marriage.

Of the 11 letters I wrote, nearly five months ago, only one relative bothered to send my daughter a wedding gift. I have sent dozens of lovely gifts to those relatives for graduations, weddings, etc., so naturally, I was stunned.

My husband says they are under no obligation to acknowledge our daughter's marriage because we sent no formal announcements and had no wedding. Don't you think a handwritten announcement should have brought some acknowledgement? SHOCKED

DEAR SHOCKED: An "acknowledgement," yes. A gift, no. Gifts are ALWAYS optional.

Off-Campus Students Use Devious Devices For Food

By JO ANN PHINIZY

Ever wonder why college students come home believing they are one step beyond starvation? Why does the aroma of home - cooking find them when all else fails?

Russ McKiski, 2102 Merrily, a sophomore at Texas Tech, is beginning to suspect he has the answer. He, and his roommate, lived off - campus and did their own cooking.

As he explained, "I don't know if we were actually cooking, or just eating. Anyway, we had breakfast pretty well worked out.

"If it was an early class day, those instant breakfasts would keep you alive until coffee break. If there was time, we usually scrambled eggs with Jalapeno peppers and doused them with Tabasco. With milk, of course; we drank two gallons a day."

From breakfast on, the two roommates ate more by device than by plan.

The roommate was Harold Finney of Waco. Finney's uncle owns a Tech cafe known as the "Chicken Box."

"We ate chicken quite often," Russ said, "or pizza and hamburgers."

SEMI-DUTCH

The favorite system was inviting dates over for supper. This became a method that "costs like crazy," so the arrangement was usually "semi-Dutch." The girls would supply the trimmings and do the dishes while the boys would buy and cook the steak.

The steak was always barbecued, and Russ has a version of sauce that is a marvel of simplicity. He mixes any brand of barbecue sauce with a can of beer and mustard. It has, he says, the triple threat of flavor, tenderizer and marinade.

RUSS McKISKI AND NEIGHBOR, PAM LEMONS

When money was in scarce supply, Russ had a third method of finding food. He has a sister, Kay, who lives and works in Lubbock. She's real handy to have around; and, "because I'm her brother," Russ could always find extra grazing grounds in her apartment.

All else failing, Russ sometimes did his own cooking chores. One of his stand-bys was to simmer pork chops in mushroom soup and serve on a single platter surrounded by cooked rice and English peas.

"Not bad," he said, "and a great saver on dishes."

Russ also believes that people are missing a trick when they fuss and bother with making hash. It's much easier to skillet-brown meat balls, then stew them awhile with a can of mixed vegetables and a can of tomatoes.

ROQUEFORT DRESSING

Russ thinks he solved all his cooking problems — except one. At the beginning of the year, he acquired a gallon jar of Roquefort dressing. He kept it until the end of the spring semester and never stopped searching for someone who could eat it, or for something it could be put into.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. McKiski, Russ is a pre-medical student at Tech and he has an abiding interest in music. He played trumpet in the Red Raider band and has played with the Midland - Odessa Symphony Orchestra.

He worked part of the summer in Lubbock. Then he accompanied his father, band director at Goliad Junior High School to the band school at McMurry College, Abilene, and the Texas Band Masters convention at San Antonio.

In selecting his recipes, Russ borrowed from his mother's collection. His theory is that he eats anything she cooks.

ANGEL CAKE FILLING

1½ cups milk, scalded
3 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
1 heaping tbsp. flour
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 tbsps. water
½ pint cream, whipped
½ tsp. vanilla

Dissolve gelatin in water. To beaten egg yolks add sugar and flour; then stir into scalded milk. Cook slowly until custard coats spoon. Remove from heat, and mix in dissolved gelatin. When completely cool, add whipped cream and vanilla.

Slice your favorite angel cake in three rounds; spread each with the filling, and top with sliced, sweetened strawberries. Stack the three layers for "a really tall lucsious" dessert.

PINEAPPLE UPSIDE-DOWN PUDDING

4 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup brown sugar
1 small can sliced pineapple

Beat the eggs separately. To the yolks add the sugar, flour and vanilla; then fold in the whites to form batter.

Put brown sugar in a cake pan; lay slices of pineapple on top and pour a little of the pineapple juice over this. Dot with butter, about a fourth cup. Pour batter over this and bake.

LEMON CHESS PIE

4 eggs, beaten
2 cups sugar
¼ cup lemon juice and grated lemon rind
¼ cup melted butter
¼ cup milk
1 tbsp. flour
1 tbsp. cornmeal

Mix ingredients and pour in unbaked pie shell. Bake one hour in slow oven.

CONGEALED APRICOT SALAD

1 large can apricots
2 small pkgs. lemon gelatin
1 pkg. cream cheese

Add water to apricot juice to make three cups liquid. Heat and dissolve gelatin in this liquid. Sieve the apricots and add to the gelatin mixture. Divide this in two parts, and put first half in mold to set. Chill.

Soften the cream cheese with mayonnaise and milk until it is ready to spread. When the gelatin in the mold is set, spread with the cheese mixture, then pour in the remainder of the gelatin.

Include Spaghetti In Baskets Filled For Labor Day Picnic

If the weather is cool on that day you have the last picnic of the season, you might like to consider taking along a main hot dish—spaghetti with tomato sauce and beef.

With a wide-mouth vacuum jug in the family kitchen, this main dish can be carried to the picnic place. Just add the cooked spaghetti to the piping-hot tomato sauce and beef and ladle them into the jug.

Although at home spaghetti tastes best when it is served in long strands, we suggest that if you pack it into a jug, you cut it in short strands. You can do this after the pasta has been cooked and drained.

A finger salad will go well with the picnic spaghetti. For this you might choose cherry tomatoes, carrot and celery sticks, slices of finochio (if you can get it) and the inner leaves of romaine lettuce.

What's for dessert? If a bakery in your neighborhood sells Italian-style cookies, these would make a pleasant ending for this menu.

BEEF CUBES

SPAGHETTI WITH TOMATO SAUCE AND BEEF

2 tbsps. olive oil
2 lbs. lean chuck beef, cut in about 1-inch cubes
1 large onion, finely chopped (¾ cup)
3 cans (each 8 ozs.) tomato sauce
½ cup water
1 bay leave
1 tsp. garlic salt
½ tsp. crushed basil leaves
¼ tsp. oregano leaves
2 tbsps. salt
4 to 6 qts. water
1 lb. spaghetti

In a large heavy saucepan, heat the oil; add the beef and brown; remove beef with a slotted spoon. Add onion to oil in saucepan and cook gently until golden. Return beef to saucepan. Add tomato sauce, ½ cup water, bay leaf, garlic salt, basil and oregano. Cover and simmer, stirring occasionally, until beef is quite tender—1¾ to 2 hours. Remove from heat. Tilt saucepan and with a large kitchen spoon skim off most of fat. Makes over a quart.

Shortly before the beef is cooked, in a large kettle, bring the 4 to 6 quarts water to a rapid boil; add the salt. Add the spaghetti; as the ends under the water soften, push down any ends that are not in the water. Boil uncovered, stirring a few times, just until tender. Turn into a colander to drain. Serve hot spaghetti with tomato sauce and beef. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Labor Day, Fresh Corn Sets Feast

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When I was young, Labor Day weekend meant feasts of fresh corn and watermelon. We children would have felt cheated if there hadn't been plenty on hand so that we could eat our fill.

But my mother, like many other cooks, knew that corn and watermelon had a special virtue. In those days lots of drop-in company was the rule—and always welcome. These two foods could be served on short order.

CREAMY FRESH CORN

6 to 8 ears fresh corn
3 strips bacon (halved crosswise)
2-3 cup water
1 tsp. salt or to taste
½ tsp. sugar
2 tsps. flour
¼ cup milk
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. butter or margarine

Husk corn and cut the kernels from the cob. Scrape cob well with a tablespoon to remove all the pulp and milk—there should be 3 cups. Cook bacon slowly until crisp in an 8-inch skillet; remove and drain on paper towel. Stir corn into hot bacon fat and then add water, salt and sugar. Stir and cook 5 minutes, uncovered. stir milk gradually into flour, keeping smooth. Add to corn and cook and stir constantly for a few minutes or until thickened. Mix in pepper and butter. Serve hot garnished with bacon. Makes 6 servings.

Cooking Dove Begins Soon

Even the popular quail takes a back seat to the mourning dove as the favorite of Texas hunters.

But the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department notes that numbers alone are not all that maintain the fleet dove on the sportsmen's pedestal.

Cuisine quality is another determining factor. The bobwhite fan probably will gird for an argument but the Department suggested that it doesn't require a gourmet to detect the deliciousness of a properly prepared dove.

For that reason hunters are urged to preserve their birds properly, shading them from afternoon sunshine and drawing them just as quickly as possible, if—actual picking is not convenient.

Then, there's a morsel fit for the most discriminating by using the following or any one of many available recipes:

Flour
Salt and Pepper
½ cup salad oil
½ cup chopped onion (preferably green)
1½ cups water
1 cup sherry
½ cup chopped parsley
Salt, pepper, and flour doves. Brown in oil in heavy roaster in 400 degree oven. Add chopped onions and water. Cover, reduce heat to 350 degrees; cook until tender. Add sherry; baste during cooking. Add chopped parsley to gravy before serving. Serves 6-8.

Earl Of Sandwich Set Style For Smorrebrod

The Earl of Sandwich didn't realize how far his name would travel when he put a piece of meat between two slices of bread. Today, sandwiches may be spread, stuffed, or stacked, and served hot or cold. They became popular for packing and carrying for meals away from home. Some sandwiches, however, just aren't meant for the lunch box. Such is the way with Salami Smorrebrod, an open-faced sandwich, borrowed from the Scandinavians. An ideal booster for the Sunday night supper or late-evening snack, this sandwich is to be eaten with knife and fork.

The most popular filling for the sandwich, either plain or fancy, is a sliced luncheon meat. With so many varieties packaged, you should get to know them all. There are baked loaves such as pickle and pimiento, olive and old-fashioned. Semi-dry and dry sausages include salami and cervelat. The handy vue-vac packages let you know what you're buying and the well-known packer's brand assures you of its goodness. You will want to keep a supply in your refrigerator for snacks and ready-in-a-jiffy summer meals.

Salami Smorrebrod begins with slices of sandwich bread on which are piled curly leaf lettuce, slices of tomato, cucumber, and salami. You can pile as high as you like because it's a knife and fork food. For decoration and added tang, top with sour cream and crumbles of blue cheese. To continue in the Scandinavian tradition serve a pot of steaming coffee. The dessert is an all-American strawberry shortcake.

SALAMI SMORREBROD

2 pkgs. (4 ozs. each) sliced hard salami
6 slices sandwich bread
Lettuce
12 slices tomato
24 slices cucumber
½ cup dairy soured cream
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
6 tbsps. crumbled blue cheese

To assemble sandwich, cover a slice of bread with lettuce. Cover lettuce with 2 slices of tomato. Arrange 4 cucumber slices on top of tomato. Shingle 3 or 4 slices of salami on top of cucumber. Blend together sour cream and Worcestershire sauce. Spoon some of sauce over sandwich. Sprinkle one tablespoon blue cheese over top. Continue making remaining sandwiches in same manner.

Cheese Pinwheels

Cheese Pinwheels taste good! To make them, roll out biscuit dough, sprinkle with grated cheese and roll up in jelly-roll fashion. Slice and bake.

Wins Prize In Cookout

For Labor Day entertaining, here is the $10,000 prize-winning recipe from America's Cookout Championship that is just the ticket for a spectacular holiday meal.

"Polynesian Stuffed Chicken," developed by Donald Thoennes, Cleveland, in a recent national barbecue competition "for men only," is a showy dish, comparatively inexpensive and easy to prepare.

Leaving nothing to chance, Thoennes carefully controlled the fire of his barbecue grill by lining the firebox with guilted foil to produce maximum, steady heat radiation.

POLYNESIAN STUFFED CHICKEN

1 (5-lb.) roasting chicken
½ cup wild rice
1 lb. ground lamb
1 egg
1 cup chicken stock
1 onion, finely chopped
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped cooked mushrooms
¼ cup olive oil
¼ cup slivered almonds
½ tbsp. finely chopped parsley
1 tbsp. finely chopped pimento
2 tsps. salt
¼ tsp. ground nutmeg
Dash thyme
Freshly ground pepper
Quilted heavy-duty foil

Line firebox with guilted foil; let coals burn down until covered with gray ashes.

Wash chicken; pat dry with paper towels. Parboil rice for about seven minutes. Drain and combine with remaining ingredients. Stuff into chicken. Secure chicken carefully on spit, being sure it is balanced. Cook six inches from coals for about 1½ hours, basting with sauce every 15 minutes. When chicken is done, let stand for 10 minutes before carving.

Basting Sauce — Melt 2 tablespoons butter; blend in 2 tablespoons flour until smooth. Add 1 cup chicken stock and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add 1 (8-oz.) jar orange marmalade mixing well. Keep warm on back of grill.

Hollywood Executive Chef Discusses Crepes Framboise

William Harmon, executive chef of the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, has probably satisfied more famous appetites with his many culinary masterpieces than most chefs even dream about, and from his extensive repertoire he has selected a superb version of an old classic to set our palate a-quiver.

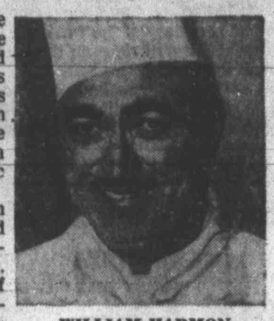

Flaming desserts, served with a flourish and the lights turned low, put the nicest possible finishing touch on a fine dinner. Impressive and the epitome of elegance, they call for soft conversation and flickering candlelight — and, besides, though they appear difficult and mysterious, they're really very easy to make.

Crepes Framboise, if you want to be old shoe about it, are nothing but raspberry pancakes — but, ooh, such pancakes. And with Grand Marnier, that etheral essence of fine cognac and orange zest, they reach the heights of sublimity.

Here's Chef Harmon's secret, easy as pie, though much better, of course, and sure to impress all your friends.

WILLIAM HARMON'S CREPES FRAMBOISE

For batter to make four crepes, sift together four tablespoons of flour, a pinch of salt and two tablespoons of powdered sugar. Whip two eggs and add half a cup of whipping cream.

WILLIAM HARMON

Now add the sifted dry ingredients and half a cup more of cream alternately, to avoid lumping. Stir the batter until it is smooth, then add a half-teaspoon of vanilla extract and three tablespoons of melted butter.

Cook in a seven - inch saute pan, browning slightly on both sides.

For the sauce, heat a quarter cup of raspberry sauce and blend in a tablespoon of butter. Add a cup of fresh raspberries which have been steeped in two tablespoons of sugar and one tablespoon of Grand Marnier.

Roll the raspberries in the four crepes, pour the sauce over all, sprinkle with a tablespoon of sugar, then pour another tablespoon of warmed Grand Marnier over them and set afire.

Serve these from a chafing dish which will keep them bubbling hot.

For proper study light from a table lamp, use at least 150-watts of illumination. The lamp should be tall enough to spread light evenly over the work area and should be properly shaded to shield the eyes from the light source. A diffusing bowl is recommended to soften the light and prevent glare. If your children's study light doesn't meet all these requirements, visit your dealer's and see the new study lamps. Good home study light protects against eyestrain and fatigue . . . makes learning easier because seeing is easier.

Thailand Next For A Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. J. W. Fulbright intends to throw the limelight of a Senate inquiry on the American buildup in Thailand to explore whether it carries the explosive of another Viet Nam.

Fulbright said he feared it might and argued the administration was keeping Congress and the public in the dark.

However, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said administration officials were reluctant to testify on the situation at an open hearing.

A source said that tentatively closed hearings are planned for about Sept. 19, with the committee still negotiating with the administration in hopes of later staging open hearings, such as the ones on Viet Nam and China.

Fulbright disclosed his plans and voiced his concern during a committee hearing Wednesday on Pentagon handling of news coverage of the Viet Nam war.

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., asked Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester why there wasn't more information from Thailand "where we have almost as many men as we had in Viet Nam a year ago."

Sylvester, the Pentagon's top public information officer, said he didn't want to discuss Thailand in an open hearing but would be happy to behind closed doors.

Fulbright for weeks has been voicing concern about the growing American presence in Thailand, across the border from Viet Nam. He has cited published reports of construction of large bases including what has been described as the longest airplane runway in Southeast Asia.

Fulbright said if Congress and the committee was to fill its function of giving advice and consent it should be informed of plans before developments become an accomplished fact.

"I don't want to be a rubber stamp if I can help it," said Fulbright.

And he told Sylvester, "We ought to know what your plans are in Thailand — if it's going to be another Viet Nam."

An out-of-control car crashed into the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Doug Pollock of Dallas. The car with the throttle wide open charged between two trees and up the steps of the home through a wall, passed the length of the living room and on into the dining room. Mrs. Pollock in the kitchen at the time escaped serious injury. Penne Pollock, 14, had been seated on the front steps of the home just moments before. The driver and a passenger in the auto were treated for cuts and shock. Investigators say the accelerator had stuck. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Car Blasts Into Residence

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The roar sounded like a dynamite blast and police rushed three fire trucks and four cruisers to the scene in University Park.

Mrs. R. Doug Pollock felt the shock and fled through the back door as dust boiled into her kitchen. Then she went into hysteria.

Beyond a jagged hole, 8 feet high and 12 feet wide, in the front wall of her home dust swirled amid debris that had been prized furniture.

In the dining room, 30 feet into the house, stood the station wagon of Mrs. Annie B. Clarke.

In shock and suffering a leg cut, Mrs. Clarke climbed from the car. John Clarke, 13, cut on an arm and leg, followed his mother.

Penne Pollock, 14, had been playing on the front porch minutes earlier with two cats. After a frantic search, she was found visiting a friend down the street.

A police sergeant, who found the scene unbelievable, said we still aren't able to say what caused it."

He said tracks of the car indicated it went out of control 400 feet from the Pollock home as Mrs. Clarke tried to halt at a stop sign.

The car still was at full throttle, investigators said, as it roared up six steps and vaulted into the brick house.

Beaumont Beats Drum For Light Garbage Cans

BEAUMONT (AP)—The city has declared war on 55-gallon drums used by residents as garbage cans.

Sanitation Superintendent D. M. Blanchette said there's a good reason for the crackdown:

"Those 55-gallon drums hold so much garbage that they become quite heavy. We've lost many man-hours due to strained backs and pulled muscles because of these drums."

South capitalized on a knowledge of his opponent's bidding habits to land his slam contract in hearts by means of an unorthodox line of play.

South opened the bidding with one heart and North gave a jump raise to three hearts. Observe that with 13 points in support [counting one extra point for promotion of the trump honors], and four hearts, he has the minimum requirements for his call.

East's bid of three spades is somewhat akin to barking at the moon. There is little prospect of buying the hand at a reasonable cost, and the information given to the opposition may prove very useful during the play.

South chose to ignore his opponent's action, and with 21 points, he proceeded to check back for aces and kings via Blackwood. When it developed that the partnership was missing one king, South decided to settle for a small slam in hearts. East considered taking a sacrifice at six spades, and tho he finally passed, it was obviously with great reluctance.

West opened the five of spades; and East's eight dislodged declarer's king. Trumps were drawn in three rounds, as East discarded two spades. The king of spades was cashed and the seven was ruffed in dummy as West shed a diamond.

At this point, declarer has two legitimate plays for his contract. He may first lead a small club from dummy toward the queen in his hand. If East has the king he is obliged to put it up, thereby establishing South's queen. North's ace of clubs provides a subsequent parking place for the five of diamonds.

If the club play fails, South can always fall back on the diamond finesse, as a last resort.

Declarer decided, however, not to play East for the king of clubs. Having observed his opponent in action over a period of time, he had noted that East was inclined to compete vigorously during the auction, holding little more than distributional values whenever he was convinced that the other side could score substantially on a deal. If he held a high card or two, however, he was usually willing to defend.

Declarer cashed dummy's ace of diamonds and continued with the deuce. When East showed out, South went up with the king. His only hope now was to find West with the king of clubs and project an end-play against him.

South led out his two remaining trumps and West was obliged to discard down to the lone queen of diamonds in order to protect his club holding. At trick 11, declarer exited with a diamond. West was in and was obliged to lead from the king-seven of clubs. South took the last two tricks with the queen and ace of that suit.

A Devotional For The Day

The Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it. (Genesis 2:15)

PRAYER: O God, help us to find joy in rising each day and going to our work because we know that for us to labor is Thy will for us. Let the evening come with Thy benediction and the satisfaction of work well done. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Go Slow On Retirement

The Texas Legislature shied last session at a conference committee rider for mandatory retirement at age 70 in the executive branch. The issue is likely to come up again next session, but the Legislature will have to go slow on any such theoretical reform because retirement is linked to a grave state salary problem.

State employes can now retire at 50 with 30 years service or 60 with 10 years; but few do because of inadequate pension benefits. And if more did, the state government would be crippled, because salary scales are not high enough to attract and keep qualified personnel.

The four top appointed administrators in the state government are now in their 60s. Pay supplements from outside sources, a questionable expedient that should be checked, already are necessary to attract competent high-echelon executives.

Recruitment at the division - head and specialist levels and throughout the classified employment structure is difficult. Last year the state government had to hire 8,375 employes to increase total classified employment only 545—that is, hire 15 to gain one—because of the loss of skilled personnel to private enterprise, other states and the federal government.

An acute case in point is Texas' excellent Highway Department, which earlier this year hired 13 engineers while losing 37. It is 10 per cent deficient in authorized engineering personnel, mainly because salaries are far below federal, private and the Western states' average for such professionals.

Gov. John Connally will recommend upgrading state salaries next session. The Legislature will have to respond to that appeal generously before it can seriously consider mandatory retirement in the administrative branch, such as now exists in the judicial branch.

Shhh! No Sleeping Allowed

The County Council of West Suffolk, England, unmindful of the venerable tradition of the nodding scholar over his books, has approved an ordinance making it an offense to go to sleep in a public library. Offenders are subject to a fine of up to 5 pounds (approximately $14).

This assuredly is cruel and unusual punishment against which all American citizens are properly protected by the Eighth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The scholar who nods over a weighty reference text, or the casual reader overcome by the cool air conditioning of summer or the blessed heat and refuge from a winter's storm, or even those who have dined wisely but too well, deserve more consideration than to be hauled off to face a magistrate.

We prefer what may be classified as a touch of chivalry that still lingers in some parts of the South and practiced by Mrs. Phyllis Burson, La Retama librarian.

"We can't have dozing in the library," she said. "We awaken them and tell them that we do not allow sleeping in the library."

But what if the book is so boring it puts you to sleep?

Whither Inflation And Why?

WASHINGTON—Former President Truman is a well-meaning person, but he has never forsaken the political environment in which he spent most of his life. The statement which he has just issued criticizing the Federal Reserve Board for raising interest rates is not an economic analysis but the political reaction of one who has been taught to believe that bankers are inhumane individuals who thrive on the plight of the borrowers of money.

"We know from long experience," writes Mr. Truman, "that a drastic rise in interest rates works a hardship on the consuming public. It only benefits the privileged few."

PRESIDENT JOHNSON apparently appreciates this palpable maneuver—made just before the congressional elections two months hence—to transfer the responsibility for the messy economic situation of today to the shoulders of the Federal Reserve Board and the bankers. Mr. Johnson quickly issued a statement also deploring the high interest rates, but said he couldn't agree with Mr. Truman that "our economy is in danger of a recession or depression."

NOT A WORD did Mr. Truman or Mr. Johnson speak in behalf of any plan to increase taxes or to cut down government spending or to impose wage-and-price controls as a means of curtailing the demand for goods which has brought higher prices and a creeping inflation. Maybe the restraints that should be applied will come anyway after election, but right now it is deemed expedient for the Democrats to blame the other fellow for all their mishaps.

MR. TRUMAN says that during his administration, when the Korean war caused a maladjustment in the economic life of this country, he didn't accede to demands for higher interest rates. But he did get a wage-and-price-control law and did put restrictions, too, on consumer buying. None of these correctives has been requested from Congress as yet by the Johnson administration. It has been feared that this might provoke public resentment before the coming congressional elections. Mr. Truman said:

"Of course, no one wants runaway inflation. But I think it is fair to say that that kind of inflation is no longer possible in the United Sates. What is more likely to happen is that we will bring on a precipitous deflation, if we persist in high interest practices. The result could be a serious depression."

WHAT, INDEED, has brought about the artificial boom of today? To overcome the slowing down in business which had occurred in 1959 and 1960, the Democratic administration began to sponsor measures designed to bring "prosperity." The idea of a general decrease in taxes which came in 1964 was popular as a sequel to the tax credits and liberalization of depreciation allowances given businesses in 1962 to influence them to increase their purchases of durable goods. Both the Kennedy and the Johnson administrations brushed aside apprehensions about big deficits in the federal treasury and relied on an artificial stimulus to the economy by means of huge federal subsidies.

THE OBJECTIVES, of course, were worthy, but, as so often happens in giving too much weight to political considerations, the pace was too fast. Inflation was unwittingly encouraged.

Now, however, that the economic balance has been adversely affected in part by domestic conditions and in part by unsound economic situations abroad, the time has come for moderation. Though painful, this can avert the serious depression that is so often the result of mismanagement of public policy and of being too much concerned with immediate political benefits.

Billy Graham

My doctor advised me to engage in premarital relations to help my morals as well as my health. What should I do? I. S.

For one thing, change doctors!

Your doctor may know medicine, but he certainly doesn't know much about the rules of mental or spiritual health. In the first place, how can your morals be helped by being immoral? How can you break the laws of God and man without hurting your conscience, damaging your body, and crippling your soul? Does your doctor not know that fornication is not only a spiritual sin, but could leave you a psychological cripple as well.

Medical reports have proven that chastity is no deterrent to good health. To remain clean is not only good for the body, but is a strengthening discipline for the soul. When God gave us the seventh commandment, "Thou shalt not commit immorality," He was not being arbitrary. He gave us that command because He knew that restraint is best for the individual and for the society in which he lives.

God's laws are not to be thought of as inhibitions or deterrents to happiness and health. On the contrary, those who break His laws in their search for happiness, find that it eludes them. Jesus said, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you." I would suggest that you take the advice of the Greatest Physician.

Farmers Could Feel Inferior

PRAGUE (AP) — Farmers have a slim chance of marrying, the Czechosolvak paper Zemedelske Noviny wrote, because girls consider farm work inferior and farmers undesirable mates.

The paper complained about the "silly ideals" of the girls and worried about the state of mind of the farmers who cannot find a harmonious family life. It said these men eventually lose confidence in people, in society and eventually in themselves.

'A COUPLE HUNDRED BILLION WOULD HELP'

James Marlow

Not Much Resemblance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Years ago, before he became the Senate's Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana said a man in a job like that should speak out and up as his conscience tells him.

He has been following his own advice ever since, sometimes in ways that must gall President Johnson who may ignore Mansfield's proposals but never quarrels with him in public.

These have been three of Mansfield's main themes:

HE ACHES to see the Vietnamese war ended, never gives up thinking a meeting between President Johnson and French President Charles de Gaulle might do some good and wants a big reduction in U. S. forces in Europe.

Johnson has been all for peace in Viet Nam, too, but he has been cool on a meeting with the Frenchman and is against pulling troops out of Europe.

Johnson had been the Senate leader until the 1960 elections made him vice president. Then in 1961 Mansfield succeeded him. Except for that, there is not much resemblance between the two.

THE PRESIDENT, a tough egotist, handled the senator two ways — rough and sweet. Which he used depended on which he thought was needed.

At 63 Mansfield is retiring, modest, cautious, gentle, an ex-professor, ex-soldier, ex-sailor, ex-Marine, ex-miner who prefers logic and reason to the whip and is tolerant of an antagonistic view.

He didn't have any illusions about what lay ahead when he became Senate leader. One of his first statements after being chosen was: "I look forward to a period of harmony and unity."

BUT HE ALSO said: "Actually, the leadership is a headache. You can't please everyone. Every senator is a prima donna in some way."

Nevertheless, while the harmony may seem subdued and the unity often invisible in a place where Democrats have far outnumbered Republicans for years, senators under Mansfield have managed to avoid much fuss and feuding.

And the Republican leader, Illinois' Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, who can exude great quantities of brotherliness, said on Mansfield's 62nd birthday: "Mike, we love you."

BUT, WHILE Mansfield's heart may be in the right place, some of his most persistent hopes and proposals have landed in the refrigerator.

Middle Age Freedom

NEW YORK (AP) — Freedom isn't just for the birds. It's for middle-aged people, too.

In some ways there is no freedom quite so enjoyable as the freedom middle age brings — if one is simply wise enough to realize it.

For example:

IN MIDDLE age you are freer to tell the truth, because you probably wear glasses and therefore are less likely to get slammed in the nose.

Nobody calls you a sissy if you carry an umbrella on a cloudy day. At your time of life it's the proper thing to do.

You are free to leave a cocktail party before midnight. Everyone realizes that you simply must get your sleep.

It is no longer necessary for a husband to greet his wife's friends with a real kiss, usually more of a chore than a thrill anyway. A quick peck on their faded cheeks will satisfy them just as well — and think of the head colds you avoid!

YOU ARE free to read naughty books without fear of being corrupted. History records few cases of a man over 40 being led astray by a bad book.

The range of interesting diseases you can acquire widens appreciably. Compared to them, the ailments of youth seem maudlin or picayune. Who wouldn't rather listen to a mature man discuss his gout than a callow youth rant against his acne?

You feel free to give advice. Giving good advice is unquestionably one of the greatest human pleasures, and it is widely accepted as an inalienable right of the middle-aged and the elderly. It is unimportant whether the advice is followed. In fact, it is better if your advice is disregarded. Then, when disaster inevitably ensues, you are free to indulge in another satisfying middle-age luxury, saying: "Well, I told you so!"

AFTER 40 or 50, you are at liberty to become more tolerant. Hatred, bigotry and prejudice tend to elevate the blood pressure, and you can discard them as health dangers. Why burst an artery hating an enemy? That would only give him satisfaction. It is far, far better to forgive him — and let him bust a blood vessel in frustration.

Your are free now, because of a higher income, to eat and drink all the things that would probably have killed you if you could have afforded them in your youth. But you probably don't want them anymore.

MIDDLE AGE is the time to be bold and unconventional and experimental and a breaker of patterns. For then, no matter how big a fool you make of yourself, a charitable world will probably only say in judgment: "Poor fellow, and at his age — he must be getting senile."

She Sees Her Weight Problem At 11

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am overweight. I don't eat very much but it could be heredity as my grandmother (mother's mom) is overweight, too. My dad said it could be glands. If it is glands, what could be done to lose weight? I am 11 years old. —OLGA

The reasons why some people get fat and others don't are very complicated, but they all come down to a single basic fact: If you eat more than you use up in energy, you get fat.

Why do some people eat more? Why do some use up less energy? Those are the questions to consider.

You say, my young friend, that you "don't eat very much." Are you sure? After all, you obviously DO eat more than you need, or you wouldn't be overweight.

Heredity may play a slight part in eating habits. But most doctors (including me) believe that it is very slight when compared to the eating habits we acquire while young. Maybe your grandmother, being hefty herself, subtly taught you to like the things that make people fat—sweet stuff of all kinds plus (and this is even more important) those containing fats (more calories than sugar). That's why pastry is so fattening. It contains both sugar and fat. A piece of fruit or some gelatin for dessert is much better for you.

Do you eat between meals? What about candy bars and pop? Do you raid the icebox? My advice is to eat three solid meals a day but to take a hard look at desserts and between-meals nibbling.

Now how about burning up the energy in your food? Usually the overweight person, perhaps just because he is too heavy, doesn't get much exercise. He'd rather sit. And sometimes he sits and eats! An hour or two of good brisk exercise every day can make a lot of difference.

Your father mentioned glands. It is true that glandular ailments sometimes are important. Sometimes! An experienced endocrinologist (glandular expert) told me not long ago that he sees a lot of heavy children whose parents think the condition may be the result of "glands."

Actually, he said, it almost never is. If he can get the youngsters to change their eating habits, and get them going on vigorous, daily exercise, he hardly ever finds that the glands need treating.

A metabolism test should come pretty close to settling the question of whether glands are involved. If that IS the problem, then pills will help.

The real answer usually is to avoid the gooey desserts and candy, and to learn how much fun physical activity can be.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, requesting a copy of the booklet, "How To Control Emphysema," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Around The Rim

Well, For Instance—

"You are always defending the city's policies," a taxpayer charged me the other day, "why don't you write something about the things they don't do." My protests went unheard, as he pressed the point. "The city is dragging its feet in many areas," he insisted.

I SUGGESTED he take up the matter with City Hall. He only laughed: "You can't fight City Hall." After a continuing exchange of opinions, I finally asked for concrete examples—something that could be pointed to with criticism.

"Well," says he, "what about the big vacant lot at the corner of Virginia and Fifteenth? The city has a huge water reservoir buried on the lot, part of our Master Plan. This lot would make a nice neighborhood park. Instead, the city has allowed it to become an eyesore—littered with waste paper and broken beer bottles."

I LATER drove to this lot, adjacent to the water filter plant—which incidentally is probably the city's best maintained building and grounds. Like most vacant lots, it didn't add a lot to the area, but I saw no broken bottles and there was not a lot of litter around, although there was some. However, it is unusual that the city has not taken some steps to improve the lot, such as planting grass. There is ample water available, and certainly a park would be welcome in the area.

IN ANOTHER AREA, my critical friend was more vehement.

"That Scurry Street is a disgrace to a city that has just spent $4.3 million dollars to improve the city," he said. I readily agreed this street seems to have been left out, but pointed out there are plans in the works to do something about it.

"Do you know," he said, "it is the only paved street in Big Spring that has head-tall weeds growing in it?" He referred to the block beyond Tenth Street where the curb was left out in bygone years. "That's dangerous," he pointed out," and you can't alibi it as too expensive. The city could spend a few dollars to cut down weeds on its own street, before it goes around forcing folks to clean up vacant lots."

(CITY CREWS have since cleaned out the area he was talking about, but probably some more permanent work could be done to improve the situation.)

I suggest there may be other areas that could stand some improvement, and many of them are getting regular attention. But it's doubtful any of them can be solved without some expenditure of money. Unfortunately, the city has no great untapped source of funds, and many projects will have to await a bond issue or tax increase.

AT THE SAME time, there are some improvements that might be made with current budget money. Hopefully, the administration is way ahead of us on these with target dates for getting the jobs done.

Glory, Glory Hallelujah!

WASHINGTON — The Veterans of Foreign Wars held a parade in New York City last week along Fifth Avenue from five o'clock in the afternoon until midnight, and much to their surprise they discovered that, instead of being cheered, many residents complained about the noise.

The VFW, which was holding its convention in America's leading "fun" city, read into the complaints an un-American plot and demanded the names of all those who called in.

Commander-in-Chief Andy Borg of Superior, Wis., said every resident of Fifth Avenue should have been on the sidewalks cheering Tuesday night, "instead of being upstairs in their beds," and it was time Paul Revere rode down Fifth Avenue and awakened the country to its greatest danger since 1776.

BUT IT WAS left to Vice Adm. Leland Lovett (ret.) to provide us with the most telling argument in favor of the late night VFW parade. He told a story that Julia Ward Howe had been awakened by the tramp of federal troops down Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington during the Civil War.

"She did not call city hall," Adm. Lovett said. "Instead she was inspired to write the lyrics of the 'Battle Hymn of the Republic.'"

I WAS RATHER skeptical of Adm. Lovett's statement, so I went down to the Library of Congress to check up on it, and, sure enough, he was right. This is exactly what happened.

Miss Howe was in bed in her apartment overlooking Pennsylvania Avenue, trying to get some sleep, when she heard an Army band beneath her window and the sound of troops marching on the cobblestones.

Her mother, who was trying to sleep in the next room, came in and said, "This is ridiculous. I'm going to the city hall and complain."

JULIA REACHED for a pencil and pad. "Wait, Mother, I think I hear something."

"I should hope you would. No one can sleep around here."

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord," Julia started to sing.

"Are you sick, child?" her mother said anxiously.

"He was trampling down the vinyard where the grapes of wrath are—are . . . oh, mother, what rhymes with Lord?"

"Bored, gored, ford, hoard, stored."

"THAT'S IT. Now let's see. 'He has loosed the fearful lightning of His terrible swift' . . . give me a word that rhymes with stored."

"How about sword?"

"I'll leave it until I can think of something better."

Julia's mother said angrily, "They just seem to be marching on. I'm going to call the police."

"Marching on? Of course, why didn't I think of it. His truth keeps marching on. Now I need a chorus."

"WHY DON'T YOU stop that silly songwriting and worry about your poor old mother."

"I can't help it. There is something inspiring about the tramp of boots."

"Glory, hallelujah! Is that the kind of daughter I raised?"

"What did you say, Mother?" Julia cried excitedly.

"I said, 'Is that the kind of daughter I raised?'"

"No, the first part."

"I said, 'glory, hallelujah.'"

"Mother, that's my chorus!"

"Julia, I wish you'd give up this crazy idea of writing songs. You know they'll never sell."

May Get Less Worrisome

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the final column by Mr. Dawson, as he retires today from the Associated Press staff.)

NEW YORK (AP)—As Americans head into their last long holiday weekend of summer and wonder what fall will hold for them, many are worrying lest the big stock market plunge means that another recession is on the way. But a big drop in stock prices hasn't always foreshadowed a decline in business by any means. Stock traders aren't that all-knowing.

THE MARKET got its hold on public psychology because the big crash of 1929 was followed by the depression of the 1930s. The public blamed all its ills of the 30s on what happened in Wall Street at the end of the 20s.

Since World War II, however, a stock market break, as often as not, hasn't fazed the economy in the least.

At the end of the war, stock traders began looking for signs of a recession. And stock prices fell 20 per cent between May and November, 1946. But business ignored the goings-on in the market and continued a steady rise for 2½ more years.

THE MARKET scored a little better as a soothsayer in the summer of 1948. Stock prices dropped 10 per cent, and the first postwar recession stretched from late 1948 till October, 1949. But it was a mild downturn and not the postwar depression many stock traders had predicted.

The Korean War started in mid-1950 and stock prices beat a retreat. But business boomed till the recession of 1953-54. Stocks had recovered their daring before that, and continued upward even as business faltered.

PRESIDENT Eisenhower's heart attack in 1955 brought a sharp break in stock prices, but business ignored it and rose for two more years. The economy prospered even while stock prices were falling 12 per cent between July, 1956, and February, 1957.

Another recession hit in August, 1957, and stretched until early in 1958. But stock prices rose 39 per cent between February, 1957 and July, 1959. They then turned down by 11 per cent until October, 1960. The last recession had already started and stretched into February, 1961, but stock prices were rising during most of its duration.

WILL THIS YEAR'S stock market plunge be as poor a forecast of the economy's future, as the 27 per cent plunge in 1962 in stock prices? The economy has expanded fairly steadily since early 1961. It ignored the 1962 stock market.

After Labor Day, things could look a lot less worrisome. It's happened before, it could happen again.

Trash Tosser Calls Invited

ATHENS (AP) — Athens Mayor George Plytas is resolved to keep the city clean even if it keeps him awake.

He told Athenians that anytime they noticed uncollected garbage they should telephone the director of health and protest.

"And if the director is unavailable," the mayor said, "you can phone me at home."

Phones Are Dear

ATHENS (AP) — The installation fee for putting in a telephone in Greece has been raised from 3,500 drachmae ($116.66) to 4,500 drachmae ($150). The ministry of finance ordered the increase to cover pay increases to telephone company employes.

JUBILEE FLIGHT— A replica of the B&W seaplane, the first aircraft built by the Boeing Company, takes off from lake near Renton, Wash. Flight of the 75-mile-an-hour biplane was part of celebration of 50th anniversary of the founding of the firm.

QUICK TURN— Despite the searing heat of the day, this girl must have been in a hurry for a tan. She used reflector on sidewalk in New York midtown area.

NORTH BY NORTHWEST— The giant jacket section of a drilling platform is eased under bridge at Vancouver, Wash., on the first leg of voyage to the Cook Inlet of Alaska. The monopod will be positioned offshore on inlet floor to drill for oil.

DEEP SECRET — British sailor practically disappears while carrying out maintenance work on a missile at the Royal Navy Polaris School in Fasiane, Scotland.

A NEW PART— Virna Lisi, usually a blonde temptress, is a disheveled brunette for role as peasant wife in "The 25th Hour" now before cameras in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

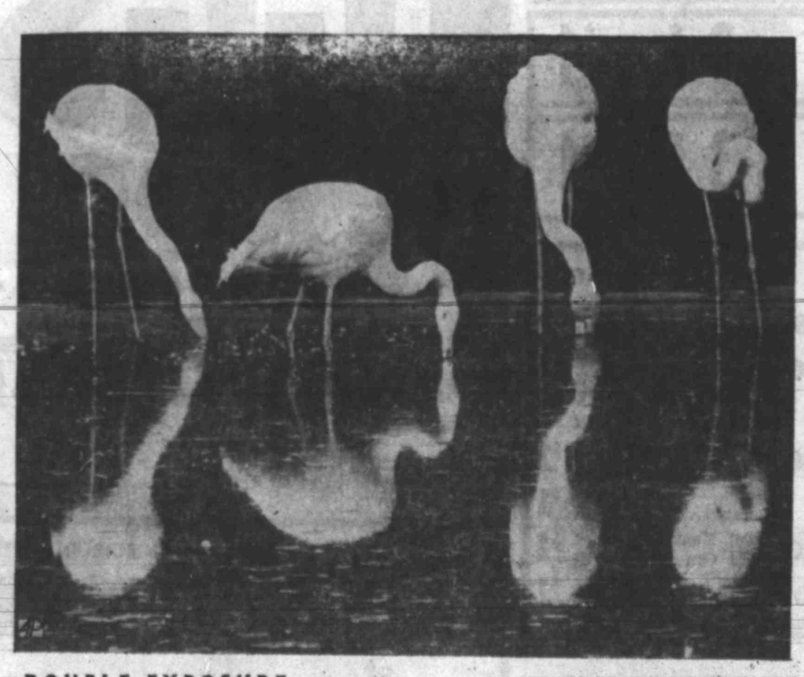

THE ORDER CHANGES— The ornate building style of the period prior to World War I is in contrast with the post-World War II apartment houses in Bucharest, Romania.

LUCKY SATYR — Austrian actress Susan Denburg holds hand of a satyr statue on set near London. She stars in the horror film, "Frankenstein Created Woman."

SLOPED WASH— Tethered workmen clean down conical roof of the new Roman Catholic cathedral in Liverpool, England. Structure's topped by 80-foot glass tower.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE— The reflections of the images of four watering flamingoes make odd patterns in a pool of water at the Whipsnade Zoo near Dunstable, England.

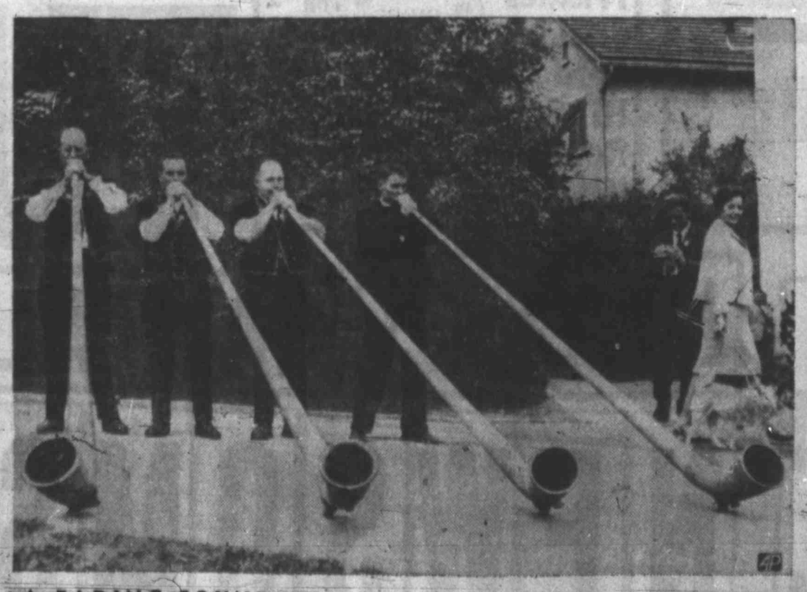

A LA ESPANOLA— Caroline Methven models a nightdress which apparently was inspired by the costumes of Spanish flamenco dancers. It was previewed at London show.

TUNE TOPPER— London antique dealer Bennie Gray plays a piano shaped like the hat of Napoleon III. It was a gift from Queen Victoria to the Empress Eugenie.

THE HAIRY TOUCH— It's a case of "his and her's" in this wig display at a New York fashion accessory show. The models are Robert Sphatt, left, and Jane Gallop.

A FADING SOUND— Alpine herdsmen blow their long horns at annual folklore festival held at Coire, Switzerland. With the number of mountain herdsmen diminishing each year, it would appear that the sound of the Alphorn will be a rarity in the future.

BEWILDERED— A little boy appears overwhelmed by his huge piece of cake and cup of fruit juice at party given by American noncoms at Cu Chi, South Viet Nam.

CRAZY QUESTIONS

C-C Gets Inquiries From Frog Legs To Tumbleweeds

By JERRY MONSON

Want to know . . .

Where to buy fresh frogs' legs? What are the job opportunities in Australia? Where 60 dozen raw oysters can be ordered?

Very simple. Just dial AM 3-7641, and don't be surprised if the voice on the other end of the line says, "Your Chamber of Commerce."

The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce not only serves as a melting-pot where 15 chamber committees pool ideas for community-county improvement but also plays the roles of a tourist agency, information service, community center and public relations bureau.

"The Chamber of Commerce hopes to make the community a better place in which to do business and earn a living," said Carroll Davidson, manager, "but it also aims to provide any needed services to the community."

VARIED REQUESTS

One of the chamber's many functions is to provide information about Big Spring and Howard County (and occasionally about job opportunities in Australia) to encourage visitors to become residents.

The phones at the chamber ring upwards of 150 times a day. Staff members Edith Gay, secretary, and Ann Belew, receptionist, must be able to switch conversations from industrial development to an inquiry of "Can you take pets to Mexico?"

"Many times the conversations begin with, 'I didn't know who else to call,'" said Miss Gay.

Some of the daily requests that pour into the chamber come from more than 1,000 miles away.

Davidson recalls a woman in Maine who wrote the chamber during the Christmas season, asking for three tumbleweeds, a certain width and heighth.

SUPPLY TUMBLEWEEDS

"She wanted to stack them up, spray them with spray-snow, and have an original indoor snowman," Davidson explained. "It took us a while to find tumbleweeds to fit her specifications, but we finally came up with three and shipped them to her."

Mrs. Belew said that requests from all over the country for cactus, the history of oil, and the mileage distances between towns are not unusual.

"We've even had calls from people who want to know if there is a Chamber of Commerce in Brazil," she said.

"And, we've had calls from people asking how do they keep their neighbors out of their homes when no one is there."

People in Chamber of Commerce work have to be versatile. Something different happens every 10 minutes of the day.

DISTINGUISHED INQUIRERS

Davidson likes to tell a certain story which happened during last year's concerts in Big Spring by the Buffalo Pops Symphony directed by Authur Fiedler. Davidson was walking down Main Street during the afternoon of the concert and saw two strangers.

"They were wondering where they could purchase an Indian blanket," he said, "because they thought that every Texas town had them for sale."

Davidson said that he offered to help the men find some type of hand-woven blanket or rugs, even if they were not Indian-made.

"They kept asking questions about the area, so I drove them to an oil field, a cattle ranch and around Scenic Mountain Drive.

"Only much later did I find out the men were the conductor and the concert master of the Pops Symphony. The chamber received a Christmas card from them this past year."

TRY FOR ANSWERS

The chamber does not know all the answers to the assorted requests that find their way into the offices, he said.

"But we will do our best to put people in touch with others who might be able to help them," Davidson said. "Or, we will try to find out the answer ourselves."

Fresh frogs' legs, anyone?

'That Was A Strange One!'

Store Wasn't About To Take Cleaning On Sale

DALLAS (AP)—It was a cute trick but it didn't work.

A customer, 31, bought a comb for 29 cents at Sage's Department Store, then went into the vacuum cleaner department and put the 29-cent price tag on a $65 cleaner.

He tried to make it through the door, armed with his 29-cent receipt for the comb, but a security officer halted him and charged him with theft.

Baylor Planning Religion Course

WACO, Tex. (AP)—Baylor University, the largest Baptist school in the United States, has started a plan leading to the doctor of philosophy degree in religion. Although pastors will be welcome, it will be aimed at preparing teachers of religion for colleges and universities.

Purse Snatcher Loses Foot Race

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "It was automatic," the pretty legal secretary said. "I didn't see any policeman so I hit him over the head with my shoe."

Barbara Werner, 34, was describing how she foiled a purse snatcher in downtown Pittsburgh Wednesday.

The 5-foot-3-inch, 104-pound woman dashed through crowded streets and caught up with the thief, staggering him with a well-placed poke to the head.

She got her purse back, too. It contained $240.

White House Drew The Kennedys Much Closer

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — The White House probably drew the John F. Kennedys closer together than they had ever been before, says Paul B. Fay Jr., a long-time friend of the late president.

Fay, former undersecretary of the Navy, writes of the Kennedy relationship in his book "The Pleasure of his Company" to be published Sept. 7, by Harper & Row.

"The roles of President and First Lady tended to demand that they stand apart from others, which in turn gave them many more hours together," Fay writes. "Since their roles complemented each other in so many ways, Jack did a poor job of trying to conceal his pride in Jacqueline's accomplishments as First Lady."

Fay — nicknamed "Red" — and Kennedy had been close friends since World War II when they served together as PT boat officers in training and action in the Pacific. Kennedy appointed Fay undersecretary of the Navy in 1961 and he served until 1965.

One day in 1960, when Kennedy's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination was widely recognized, Fay says, the two were playing golf at Cypress Point Club. Fay said he asked Kennedy about a rumor that the Kennedys were having marital differences.

The story was going around, Fay told him, that "Jackie is staying with you only until you are nominated or the election is over, and then is going to divorce you." The information was supposed to have come from one of Mrs. Kennedy's closest friends.

Fay said he wanted rebuttal directly from Kennedy so he could kill the rumor at its source.

As Fay relates it:

"Jack looked at me calmly as though I had just told him that his shoe was untied.

"'Red,' he said, without a flicker, 'The story is false, but I wouldn't feel all that confident about killing it if I were you. People who spread stories like that don't want to accept a denial. I think I know the girl in New York who is spreading that report. She and Jackie go to some of the same parties, and, amazingly enough, Jackie says she is always very friendly'."

Fay also mentions briefly the rumor of a "secret marriage" by Jack Kennedy before his marriage to Jacqueline.

"The President was less disturbed by that irresponsible gossip than I was," Fay notes. He said he urged the President to make a statement at a press conference about it.

Fay writes:

"Resigned and unconcerned, Jack said, 'Red, if I make a statement to the public on everything I have been accused of, I'd spend all my time on radio and television trying to keep the record straight. If people want to believe such tales, no denial on my part is going to convince them differently.'"

Networks Playing It Safe---Again

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV - Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—One of the biggest agents in show business, says: "They're playing it safe this season."

And in those few words he summed up Hollywood's consensus on the caliber of the regularly scheduled television series turned out in the studios here.

They are an assortment of comedy, adventure, Westerns and variety shows cut, with few exceptions, from patterns which have proved popular.

The studio product, made with professional skill and approximately the same amount of inspiration invested by commercial bakers in today's batch of loaves, will provide the basic television fare in the season that starts Tuesday.

And if that were all, it would be easy to predict that the shows, as a whole, would be no more impressive or stimulating than those of last season, which will certainly not go into the books as one of television's golden years.

Fortunately, the three major networks are in competition to leaven their schedules — and perhaps coincidentally polish their images — with an especially large number of special programs.

ABC, for instance, is engaged in the production of an impressive series that will amount to weekly specials under the title of "Stage '67." These range from original dramas and musical comedies to documentaries. Ingrid Bergman will appear in a one-character drama, "The Human Voice," and Truman Capote will narrate an adaptation of his "Christmas Memory" among other off-beat entries.

There will be productions of such plays as Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," Tennessee Williams' "Streetcar Named Desire" and "The Glass Menagerie" and Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," to mention a few on all networks.

There will be special reruns of recent hit motion pictures, including "The Music Man" and "Bridge on the River Kuai." There will be a 90-minute production of the Lerner - Loewe musical, "Brigadoon," — and many more.

Cool Schools To Tax Bond Plans

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas School Board found that it will cost approximately $64 million to air condition the district's 160 existing and planned school buildings.

The board said it would consider the estimate and possibly include a portion of it in coming bond plans.
