AGED WOMAN DIED FRIDAY

Mrs. Hammonds, Citizen Of County
Since 1915, Was Buried Here
Monday Afternoon

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Ellen Hammonds, 83, were conducted at the Baptist Church here at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Rev. Geo. A. Dale, the pastor, officiated, assisted by Rev. C. C. Armstrong, pastor of the Methodist Church. Burial was in the Tahoka cemetery. Quite a concourse of relatives and friends attended the services and followed the body to the cemetery through a raging sandstorm.

Mrs. Hammonds died at the residence of her son, Ira Hammonds, six miles east of town about 10:15 o'clock Friday night. The immediate cause of her death was a stroke of paralysis which she suffered a few days prior to her death. She had been in failing health for a year or more.

Mrs. Hammonds, whose maiden name was Mary Ellen Vaughan, was born in Bentonville, Arkansas, on July 22, 1852, and therefore lacked less than four months of being 84 years of age. She was converted and united with the Baptist Church at the age of sixteen. Later, she moved with her parents to Missouri, and on June 18, 1882, she was married at Mayesburg in that state to Ferdinand Slade Hammonds, who preceded her in death by several years. To this union were born seven children, four sons and three daughters: T. I. Hammonds of Tahoka, G. C. Hammonds, deceased, W. B. Hammonds of Raymondville; Mrs. C. M. Finch of Tahoka, Mrs. B. H. Ottinger of Raymondville, Mrs. L. B. Hester of O'Brien, and M. L. Hammonds of Georgetown. All the surviving children were present at the funeral except M. L. Hammonds, who was unable to be here on account of illness in his home.

Also surviving are 22 grandchildren and 29 great-grandchildren. Of a family of eleven children, Mrs. Hammonds is survived by one brother, T. J. Vaughan of Oklahoma City, who was unable to attend the funeral service on account of his advanced age.

Other relatives present for the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Bertie Mayes of Lubbock and Doyle and Elizabeth Sanders of Anton.

Mrs. Hammonds moved to Lynn county in 1915, since which time she had made her home with a brother, Frank Vaughan, who died a few years ago, and with her son, Ira Hammonds.

Mrs. Vaughan was a noble character, greatly beloved by her relatives and friends. The News joins in condolences to all the bereaved.

George Claude Wells Burned In Explosion

George Claude Wells sustained very painful burns on the face and forehead Monday afternoon when the fumes from gasoline in a lubricating oil container ignited and exploded while he was looking into the "lubster". His father, Claud Wells, gave first aid treatment and then sent the youth to a physician.

There were very deep burns on the forehead and nose, but the injuries yielded nicely to treatment and seem to be healing satisfactorily.

Gasoline had been used to wash out the "lubster". George Claude was attempting to look into the container and complained about its being so dark he couldn't see, when a bystander, in order to afford the needed light, brought a lighted match too close to the opening of the container.

TOWNSEND CONVENTION

There is to be held in Lubbock Saturday, April 4, a convention of all Townsend clubs in this Congressional District. It will convene in the district court room at 10 a. m. The secretary of the local club, N. W. Alphin, advises that no meeting will be held here Saturday on that account; but a special meeting will be held tonight (Friday) for the selection of delegates to represent the club at the convention. A full attendance is requested tonight, and non-members are cordially invited, especially the younger people of the town and neighboring communities. A speaker will probably be here.

140,000 Apply For Old Age Pensions

Application for pensions under the new Texas Old Age Pension law have been made by approximately 140,000 persons, according to Orville S. Carpenter, state executive director. It has been estimated that 300,000 persons in Texas are eligible to receive pensions, and that number of blank applications have been sent out.

Investigators have been calling at the homes of applicants the past three or four weeks gathering the information necessary to determine their eligibility under the law.

"Payments will start just as soon as investigators complete the work," it is stated. Investigators and other employees have been working fourteen and fifteen hours a day to get the job done, it is said. It is hoped that investigations will be completed and applications approved before July 1.

Besides the state office there are twenty district offices in the set up. Tahoka and Lynn county are in the Big Spring district.

Talks, Music At Luncheon Club

At the luncheon club Tuesday a couple of popular numbers were sung without piano accompaniment by Misses Robbie Milliken, Ora Lee Stevens and Ruth Suddarth. Bill Sewell entertained with a fine vocal solo and an encore, with Mrs. Ruby D. Suddarth as piano accompanist.

Mayor Jim Dye announced that it was desired that the luncheon club select two young lady representatives to attend the fashion parade and coronation of the dairy queen together with other festivities at the Plainview Dairy Show next Tuesday night. A committee of three was appointed by the chair to confer with Miss Robb in the appointment of two representatives. The Dairy Show opens Monday morning and closes Thursday night.

G. H. Nelson announced that the Boy Scout school was to begin in the American Legion Hall Tuesday night and urged members of the luncheon club to attend. He and Mr. Barrett and Rev. Geo. A. Dale made brief talks in behalf of Scout work and Scout organizations both for the boys and the girls.

Wynne Collier will have charge of the program next Tuesday.

Lamesa, B'nfield Track Men Here

Lamesa, Brownfield and Tahoka will compete in track and field events on the Tahoka High School grounds today, Friday, beginning at 3:30 o'clock, according to Coach Prentice Walker. There will be no admission charges, and citizens of the town are invited to attend.

Tahoka has some good track men this year, as do both Lamesa and Brownfield, and there is certain to be hot competition in most all the contests.

Farmer Loses Feed In Fire Thursday

Lonnie Williams of the Joe Bailey community suffered the loss of about $500.00 worth of feed by fire on Thursday night of last week.

It is not known positively how the fire originated but it is believed that it caught from static electricity produced by the friction of a wire stretched across the top of the stack. Quite a quantity of headed feed as well as bundle feed was destroyed.

FIRE AT NEWMORE SCHOOL

Prof W. E. Simpson, principal of the school at Newmore, was a caller at the News office Saturday and reported that the school building caught fire there one night last week but that the fire was extinguished before much damage was done.

Miss Willie Lois Nevels has accepted a position with Sanger Bros. in Dallas. She is in charge of rentals in the library department of their great store.

HIGHWAY WORK GOES FORWARD

Caliche Laying On Highways 9 and 84 Giving Work to Many;
No. 9 Half Complete

The laying of caliche on highway No. 9 south of Tahoka is proceeding very satisfactorily now, weather conditions considered. The first course of caliche has been laid over more than half the distance from the Dawson county line at O'Donnell to the south limits of Tahoka, while the second course has been laid over a distance of almost four miles. Fourteen trucks and about 180 men are being employed now on this project, the men working in two shifts of about 90 each and each shift working five hours.

Somewhat better progress is also being made on No. 84 west out of Tahoka than was made the first two or three weeks. About fifty-five men and eight trucks are being used on this project. Caliche has been laid for a distance of a little more than a mile.

Highway building is a slow process but Lynn county will have some excellent highways when both No. 9 and No. 84 shall have been paved through the county. Prospects are that these highways will have been paved through the county within the next two or three years.

Rev. A. W. Shewmake of Brownfield conducted a revival meeting last week at Bethel, which is situated between Midway and Joe Bailey. He was assisted by L. M. Clements of Brownfield, who led the song services. They report a good meeting.

Freeze Damages Plains Fruit Crop

April Fool's Day played a costly trick on the people of the South Plains, all right. It brought a cold gale from the north that not only filled the air with sand and dust but that drove the temperature down far below the freezing point Wednesday night. Our government thermometer early Thursday morning registered a temperature of 24. It is believed that this cold snap killed practically all the fruit. There was little in the way of garden truck or other vegetation that had come up, and hence the damage was limited almost solely to what fruit there might have been in the country.

Lashing winds and blowing sands, however, had done much the past two or three weeks to damage the flowers and budding leaves on much of the shrubbery and young plants, so that Spring has not yet made much headway in this country. It is to be hoped that April is to bring us much more favorable weather.

Garrard Is Elected Red Cross Chairman

At a special meeting of the Lynn County Chapter of the American Red Cross held here on Thursday afternoon of last week, Tom Garrard was elected chairman, succeeding W. E. Suddarth, resigned.

On account of the fact that there was no Red Cross Roll Call and drive for funds in this county last fall, due to the absence of A. L. Lockwood, the roll call chairman, and because of the need for funds at this time, we understand that a drive is to be made in the near future.

Methodists Improve Grounds Of Church

In addition to the planting of trees, shrubs, and plants on the premises of the Methodist Church a few weeks ago, concrete walks are now being built upon and along the property on the east and south sides, and to both the front and rear entrances.

The grounds are soon to be sodded with Bermuda grass also, creating a beautiful lawn.

District Agency Supervisor H. L. Skinner of the Southwestern Life Insurance Company was here several days last week working with Mrs. Gladys M. Stokes, local representative.

"SNAG" HIT ON GRADE SCHOOL

Bids Too High On Superstructure,
But Board Hopes Trouble
Will Be Adjusted

Work in the construction of the foundation for the new grade school building in Tahoka is proceeding satisfactorily.

No contract has yet been let for the construction of the superstructure. Failure to let the contract as advertised was no fault of the school board. Both the architect and the PWA officials knew the amount of money that would be available for the project, and with this knowledge at hand the architect drew the plans for the building and the PWA authorities approved the plans. The school board, therefore, could not be expected to anticipate that no contractor would agree to take the job for the money available.

At the present time, the school board is merely pursuing a "watchful waiting" course. It is understood that the architect has taken the matter up with the PWA authorities, and it is hoped that means will be provided for completing the project.

Possibly nobody is to be blamed for the situation that has arisen. The architect explains that material has increased in price since he first drew the plans. At any rate, there is little doubt but that the project will be completed in due course of time, and when completed this district will have one of the most substantial, serviceable, and attractive systems of school buildings of any town the size of Tahoka in Texas.

Brownfield Is Due Oil Field Boom

Judge W. W. Price of Brownfield was a Tahoka visitor Tuesday. He told a representative of the News that it was his opinion that Brownfield is soon to get a big oil play and that eventually oil will be found all over the south plains.

The cause of his enthusiasm is the conduct of the Bennett well situated about twenty-five miles west and a few miles south of Brownfield, which was "brought in" a few days ago. Drillers were swabbing, he said, and undertaking to determine the strength of the well without giving it the acid. He believes that the well is good right now for 200 barrels per day.

The well is situated in Yoakum county three or four miles west of the Terry county line.

G. A. Wilson and family returned home Monday from a week end visit with friends in Canyon. They report that wheat has been badly damaged by wind and sand between Tulsa and Canyon.

New Candidate Out For Representative

"Hop" Halsey, son of Mark Halsey of Lubbock, was here last Friday a short time in a hurried swing through several counties of this Representative district, and stated to the News and several other friends here, that he is a candidate for Representative in the legislature and will make formal announcement through the columns of this paper soon.

"Hop" is a nephew of Mrs. E. I. Hill of Tahoka, and he has many friends and acquaintances in this county.

New Janitor At The Court House

Clyde Jones tendered his resignation as janitor at the court house to the commissioners court Tuesday afternoon to take effect immediately. The resignation was accepted and the court proceeded to appoint Alex Riddle to the place. Mr. Riddle began work Wednesday morning.

Mr. Jones has been serving in the above capacity a little more than four years. The News is not advised as to the cause of his resignation. He has not announced his future plans but will remain here.

County Superintendent H. P. Caviness is visiting schools this week.

Norvell Redwine Is Deputy Sheriff

Sheriff B. L. Parker has appointed Norvell Redwine as deputy to fill the place of his father, F. E. Redwine, who was recently killed by a negro, Elmo Banks, in a jail break. Norvell began his services Wednesday, April 1. Miss Jewell Redwine, who has been office deputy the past several months, has resigned her position. Norvell will act as office deputy and perform such outside duties as may be necessary.

Norvell is a steady, quiet, and well-behaved young man, who enjoys the confidence and respect of the people generally. Mr. Parker stated to a representative of the News that he believed that Norvell has in him the making of a very capable officer.

Both Mr. Parker and Norvell ask for the fullest cooperation of the public in the performance of their duties and promise to do their best as peace officers.

W. J. Benson Out For Commissioner

W. J. Benson of the Dixie community announces this week as a candidate for commissioner of precinct No. 4, subject to the action of Democratic primaries this summer.

Mr. Benson has often been solicited to run for office but this is the first time that he has yielded to the temptation. He promises if elected to do his best to serve the interests of his precinct and the county and to carry out the will of his constituency. He is well qualified from the standpoint of a knowledge of the needs of the precinct and by reason of his sound judgment to make an excellent commissioner.

For twenty years Mr. Benson has been a resident of Lynn county and for the past eleven years he has resided in precinct No. 4. His residence is situated one mile east and one mile south of the Dixie school house, and by occupation he is a farmer.

He will attempt to interview the voters personally before the July primaries, but if he fails to see any of them he wishes them to know that he will appreciate their vote just the same.

Writers' Project Includes Lynn Co.

Compilation of varied material concerning the 13 counties in District 18, Works Progress Administration, has been started as a "writers' project", with Mrs. Alice G. Paw, Big Spring as district supervisor. The material is being gathered for a National Guide Book.

Tahoka and Lynn County will be represented in the book, and Frank Hill, Lynn county supervisor, is gathering material of local significance.

To be collected are interesting facts about the county which might otherwise be forgotten through the passing of time. History, legend, romance and folklore, origin of place names, geology and geography, natural resources, points of interest, flora and fauna, public enterprises, agricultural, economic and commercial development, art and literature, and other such phases are to be covered. The findings of the survey will be filed for future use, while many facts will be contained in a five-volume American Guide Book.

The information is intended to be of service to all private tour agencies, public carriers, local and national associations having to do with the conservation of historic monuments and natural beauties, chambers of commerce and civic bodies, recreational clubs and societies, historical associations, etc.

In Lynn county special emphasis will be given to cattle ranching days, history and legend. Oldtimers, and others, are requested to write their reminiscences of early days on the Plains, humorous incidents that portray life in the early West, origins of town and community names, incidents around the old landmarks such as our lakes and the canyons at the edge of the cap, and turn this information over to the local supervisor for inclusion in the Writers' Project File.

Methodist Easter Revival Started

Pre-Easter revival services began at the Methodist Church Wednesday night. These services will continue throughout next week. Only night services are being held this week but both night and morning services will be held each day next week, the morning services beginning at 10 a. m. and the night services at 8 p. m.

The Old Rugged Cross service announced for Sunday night is expected to be a most impressive and beautiful service. An illuminated cross will be used as one of the outstanding features. Brother Armstrong says that similar services conducted by him at other places have proved to be most effective and he believes this one should be very impressive also.

EDITORIAL ERROR

On The News' editorial page this week appears an editorial entitled "Prompt Enforcement of the Law," which we clipped from a recent issue of The Sterling City News-Record.

We intended to give credit to that paper for this editorial, but through a mere inadvertence we failed to do so. We wanted the people of Lynn county to know how people elsewhere feel about the way this murder case was handled by our people and our courts.

"Uncle Bill" Kellis, editor of the News-Record, pays the people of Lynn county a high compliment in this editorial, and we appreciate it.

This and several other editorials this week went in without having been proof-read, hence the numerous errors.

Half Million Farmers May Get Double Federal Benefits—
New Processing Taxes Abandoned—Clements
Quits as Townsend Plan Secretary.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

REXFORD G. TUGWELL, head of the rural resettlement administration, announced that a special committee is considering a plan under which more than half a million growers of farm products would receive double benefits from the federal government. It provides that the rural families now getting loans from Tugwell's administration to put them on their feet and keep them off the relief rolls may also receive full subsidy payments in connection with the soil conservation program now being put into operation. There are now 450,000 recipients of the Tugwell loans and the number is expected to increase to 525,000 by July 1.

R. G. Tugwell

The soil conservation subsidies are to be paid to farmers who transfer land from commercial crop production to soil conserving growth, or who resort to other "economic" farm practices. Officials said that the rehabilitation clients already are under obligation to treat their soil wisely. Before a family can obtain a rehabilitation loan it must agree to follow a farm management plan drafted by the government.

This plan stipulates that the borrower must conserve his land's fertility and grow food and feed crops for home consumption. It also includes a financial budget.

ONE of the major features of the new tax program suggested by President Roosevelt is omitted from the measure prepared by a house subcommittee and on which open hearings were begun by the ways and means committee. For political reasons it was decided that the plan for new processing taxes on farm and competing products should be abandoned. Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion for a "windfall" tax to recapture part of the refunded or unpaid AAA processing levies was accepted by the subcommittee.

A third suggestion of the President, for graduated taxes on the portions of incomes which corporations do not distribute in dividends to stockholders, was changed to provide levies on total income of corporations varied according to percentages of profits put into reserves.

The subcommittee agreed that the corporation tax rates should be so drafted as to permit corporations, particularly small ones, to build up reserves for lean years without being compelled to pay comparatively high taxes for the privilege of doing so.

The subcommittee figured on collecting some $25,000,000 from taxes on dividends going to foreigners who own stock in American corporations and $53,000,000 from temporary continuation of the capital stock and excess profits taxes.

JUST as Chairman C. Jasper Bell and his house committee were about to open their inquiry into the finances of the Townsend old age pension plan organization, Robert E. Clements, co-founder, secretary and director of the movement, resigned. He was summoned to be the first witness before the committee but said his resignation was not motivated by this, but was solely due to his opposition to political activities of other leaders of the organization.

R. E. Clements

Dr. F. E. Townsend in Los Angeles expressed his "heartly approval" of Clements' action, and it was predicted that other officials of the movement would follow the secretary's example. Clements appeared before the committee with a great mass of records, ready to "account for every penny collected." Before testifying he said: "I have nothing to hide. I'm anxious to appear. I have been responsible for financing the Townsend plan. I have collected around $500,000 and the organization has spent about $750,000. There is still $100,000 on hand."

SEVERAL witnesses who appeared before a senate subcommittee declared that the Robinson-Patman anti-chain store bill, which has administration backing, would promote rather than curb monopolies, increase the cost and lower the standard of living, and decrease employment in whole industries.

The hearing was on the Borah-Van Nuys bill, a modification of the Robinson-Patman measure, but the witnesses particularly attacked the latter, which already has been reported favorably. The house judiciary committee reported the Utterback bill, still another modification of the Robinson-Patman measure, and a bitter fight over the proposed legislation is expected.

The Robinson-Patman bill would prohibit manufacturers from making price discriminations in favor of large quantity purchasers, through advertising allowances, service charges, brokerage fees, etc. The Borah-Van Nuys bill would prohibit such allowances only when they were refused to purchasers of goods of "like grade, quality, and quantity."

ONE of the big fights within the American Federation of Labor has been settled peacefully. It was for control of the building trades department. In the past, building projects have been held up by strikes growing out of arguments over which of two unions should do a certain piece of work. The peace pact provides for appointment of an impartial referee to settle such arguments.

The pact also called for J. W. Williams of the carpenters to head the reorganization department, with M. J. McDonough of the plasterers as secretary-treasurer. Each has been the leader of one of the warring factions and each has styled himself as the lawful department president.

BENITO MUSSOLINI evidently expects another European war, and in preparation for it he announced several drastic measures on the seventh anniversary of the founding of the Fascist party. He abolished the chamber of deputies, substituting for it a council of guilds; and he also eliminated the country's large industries, leaving the medium and small private industries in existence.

Benito Mussolini

This latter move, he told the council of the 22 guilds of the corporative state, was to increase the nation's economic self-sufficiency. "When and how war will come, one does not know," he said, "but the wheel of fate turns fast."

Mussolini asserted the large industries, particularly those working for the defense of the nation, would be formed into organizations called "key industries." These, he said, "will be run directly or indirectly by the government. Some will have mixed organization."

HAVING sent Joachim von Ribbentrop back to London with a modified rejection of the four power plans for peace in western Europe, Hitler was preparing his counter proposals which British Foreign Minister Edward had requested. Meanwhile the reichsfuehrer continued his campaign tour, delivering rousing speeches in defense of his policies. Speaking in Ludwigschafen, in the heart of the remilitarized Rhineland, he said: "Those who want us to grovel on our knees before agreeing to talk with us forget we are not a tribe of savages, but a European nation looking back on thousands of years of culture."

"I stretch out my hand to France. We want peace for common sense reasons. Germany needs no more fame on the battlefield, but is now getting ready to seek laurels in the Olympic peace competition of nations. Men who relish the indecent thought of victor and vanquished are not statesmen. They must be silent when peace talks start."

Most of the continental statesmen who gathered in London to consider the Rhineland affair went home, some of them in very bad humor over the indecisive proceedings. The French, disinclined to consider any further proposals from Hitler, were urging that the French, British and Belgian general staffs get together on plans in accordance with the Locarno treaty.

IN CONNECTION with the signing of the new naval treaty by the United States, Great Britain and France, it was disclosed in London that the two first named powers have reaffirmed the 70-50 ratio for their fleets and again promised not to compete against each other in naval building. The new three power pact limits the size of battleships to 35,000 tons, retains 10,000 tons as the maximum for cruisers and provides no cruisers of that size shall be built for six years.

In the expiring Washington treaty there was an article regarding fortification of naval bases. This is not renewed in the new pact, and Japan requested information as to the future intentions of the powers. Consequently the United States, Great Britain and Japan were carrying on diplomatic conversations on that topic.

The new treaty gives the signatories certain liberty of action in the event of unforeseen naval activity by powers not signatory to the treaty. So far as America is concerned, this "escape clause" is taken to apply mainly to Japan.

FOURTEEN persons perished in Mexico's worst aviation disaster. A big trimotor plane carrying ten European tourists and four company employees crashed on the ridge between the volcanoes Popocatepetl and Ixtaccihuatl and there were no survivors to explain why it fell. Among the tourists were Prince Adolf of Schaumburg-Lippe and his wife, Princess Elisabeth.

It is possible cause for war if any cause were lacking.

Sao Paulo, Brazil, worries about reports brought by health officers from the forests of the upper Sorocabana area. In that region, where mosquitoes are thick, explorers frequently saw "monkeys with high fevers" drop out of trees and die, dozens of them, victims of yellow fever.

Fortunately for Brazil cities, the jungle mosquito that bites monkeys and gives them yellow fever keeps away from cities. The fight against disease-bearing mosquitoes and rats would keep men busy, if they were not busy already killing each other in war.

Edward VIII, new king of England, visited the magnificently luxurious ocean steamer Queen Mary in Glasgow, then went from house to house, knocking on doors, visiting some of the worst slum dwellings in all his kingdom.

Later, talking to Lord Melchett, the king put the problem of England, this country and the whole world in these few words:

"How do you reconcile a world that has produced this mighty ship with the slums we have just visited?"

A marvelously illustrated ancient manuscript of the Koran, found in a shop of an antiquity dealer of Cairo, Egypt, was bought for fifty pounds. Heaven knows how many thousands of pounds it is actually worth.

The Koran is said to have been written by a highly educated Jew, who suggested ideas to Mohammed, the latter being unable to write.

It is possible, however, that angels, supposed to have revealed divine truth to Mohammed, also taught him to write.

Good news for tree growers, fruit trees or others. You may get rid of insect pests by hammering the trunks of trees with a riveting machine, such as is used in driving rivets in city skyscrapers.

A California inventor patented the process. This writer proposes to try it in a New Jersey orchard at the earliest possible moment. The riveting is said to loosen insect pests, after which it is easy to wash them off with a strong spray of water, no chemicals needed. To save the tree from injury, it is probably desirable to put several thicknesses of old automobile tires or tubes between the bark and the riveting machine.

There is plenty of money in this country, billions of it, Jesse Jones will tell you, but it is not circulating, as unhealthy for money in a country as for blood in your veins.

You know the strange, perhaps true, story of a man who unwittingly passed a counterfeit $10 bill. It went through the hands of ten individuals, paid for $100 worth of goods, and came back to the man who originally passed it. He identified and destroyed it.

One hundred dollars' worth of debts had been paid, nobody was any the worse. Money is a queer thing.

Do not give "living toys" to your children for Easter presents. Many parents and friends thoughtlessly give children helpless living creatures, easily hurt—live chicks, or newly hatched ducklings.

The helpless creatures are roughly treated, mutilated, fortunate if they happen to be promptly killed, by children that know no better.

Doctor Townsend promises $200 a month to everybody past sixty. That would cost twenty-four thousand million dollars a year. Congressmen know it can't be done, but do not dare say so individually.

Townsend clubs have organized millions of votes. The $200-a-month promise made that easy. Congressmen do not want those votes cast against them as individuals.

The hard-working, intelligent Swiss nation is said to be disturbed by the prospect of another war as by none other.

Every Swiss under fifty is armed, trained and ready. Even in the big war nobody tried to invade Switzerland—too much hard climbing, and the conqueror would not know how to run the hotels, even if he acquired them.

The immediate business of this country is to find some way of controlling flood waters—probably not impossible.

Farmers to Get Pay in Summer

Opposition Charges
Political Maneuver;
New Farm Plan May
Not Satisfy All

By EARL GODWIN

WASHINGTON—Four hundred and seventy million dollars will be paid late next summer to farmers co-operating in the government's new soil conservation program which is the substitute for AAA. Checks will be paid for land withdrawn from cultivation and treated to whatever restoration or conservation process is agreed upon.

It is planned that the checks will begin to go out about September. They cannot go earlier because the government must wait to have final proof of the entire transaction. Republicans in congress are already growling because they feel sure the checks will be received at a time when the Presidential campaign is under way and growing hot. The administration, they complain, has deliberately planned to influence the election by these checks.

I have no doubt that many farmers will be influenced by a reminder that this is the only administration with a real farm program. But I have examined into the motives behind this issue of checks late in the year, and I find it is the only time that payments could be made. Election or not, the checks would have to go out after the harvest.

The opposition would have better ground for honest complaint had it come forward with a substitute measure after the Supreme court knocked out AAA, but it offered none.

MAY NOT SATISFY ALL

I do not know whether this new substitute for AAA work will work satisfactorily to all farmers this year. There is room for doubt, because the crop reduction program has been removed by the court, leaving the farm surplus problem just where it was. Advance reports indicate an increase in planting in the major crops, including wheat, corn and cotton. Farmers should remember that the export markets for wheat, pork and tobacco lost by the tariff of 1930, have not yet been fully regained. The huge carry-over of cotton, accumulated in the years prior to 1933, has not been reduced to normal (it is twice as large as it should be).

President Roosevelt warns agriculture that not taking advantage of the new control act may result in excessive production of such crops as wheat, cotton and tobacco.

TOLLEY TAKES UP BURDEN

Meanwhile Chester Davis, who has acted as administrator for the triple A, drops his mantle of authority on the shoulders of H. R. Tolley, famous soil erosion expert of the Department of Agriculture. Davis is going to Europe at the request of President Roosevelt, to find out just what European farmers are doing to settle their farm problems. He will find that whatever programs the European governments are adopting, they do so with greater solidarity and less internal furor than we experience in this country. Europeans run their governments generally with more cohesion between the executive and the legislative, and have no umpire to run the game to suit himself—such as our courts.

Mr. Davis will find, for instance, that in England the government has put into effect several individual programs quite similar to our AAA, and in some respect even more drastic.

MUCH IDLE MONEY

Just as the country experiences the result of the judicial limitations on solving the farm problem, it is also experiencing a somewhat similar result following the outlawing of NRA. The American Federation of Labor now charges that America's greatest producing mechanism falls of full results "chiefly because we are not permitted by the judiciary to work out our attempt to discover how this could be done." This is not a new assertion, but it is made formal by a published survey from the American Federation of Labor. Not all corporations have done so, but many have produced added profits at the expense of their employees. Nationally there is less purchasing power when the profits all go to the top, which affects the farming community whose increased income last year owed considerable to increased earnings of the industrial communities under NRA codes. There are evidences of this on every hand. One great index is the fact that the national banking system, with two thousand fewer banks than three years ago, has on hand the greatest amount of money ever deposited—nearly twenty-five billion dollars. This money is not circulating.

NOT ENOUGH JOBS

The industrial leaders are looking for a great industrial boom, but there will be danger in it if purchasing power is not spread over the great army of employables. Money will pile up; dividends will increase, and profits will be written on the books, but none of it will solve the problem of unemployment under the present system. It is a tragic fact that industry, as it recovers and goes on to new heights of production, fails to make enough jobs for the unemployed because it has turned its back on basic New Deal principles.

Had the New Deal been allowed to spread via the principles of the NRA and the AAA, there would be less need of relief in the year to come. As it is, President Roosevelt tells congress that the government will need to spend about $3,600,000,000 for relief in the next fiscal year. About $2,000,000,000 of this will be money left over—the rest must be borrowed.

Now there is enough wealth and money in this country for everyone, but it is distributed in a cramped fashion, and unless industry adopts a policy of employment instead of disemployment, there will be continued trouble. Roosevelt warns the nation in a message to congress, that unless industry takes hold and solves its share of the unemployment problem, there will be need of "further plans and policies." Business must make more jobs for workers—if not, I foresee a drastic labor and agricultural policy that will spread national wealth by measures now deemed radical.

A PROMISE KEPT

Relief has not been perfect; but it has been relief. It has given seven or eight billions of federal money direct to penniless, starving people, and it is the performance of a Roosevelt promise. There is not room to discuss the charges of dishonesty against the relief administration, but I say that the two relief field marshals, Harry Hopkins and Harold Ickes, are crystal clear in honesty. Charges of graft and inefficiency and dirty politics cannot be sustained against these men. Whatever dirty politics has been played in relief, has been done "down the line" in state or local organizations; and as fast as discovered it is eliminated. The administration now serves notice that no man on relief need pay a nickel to a politician, nor should any employee of a relief organization feel that he has to contribute to politics or lose his job.

Many will charge that the states do not contribute enough toward the relief fund, but it is the belief in Washington that the states have done and are doing about all that they can. The states are taking care of the needy unemployed, and are contributing large sums of money for public works projects which give employment and also render a lasting service in the way of schools, roads, bridges, etc. Also, an increase in state contributions for relief would probably result in sharp increases in all real estate taxes. Then, too, many states have constitutional limitations on the money they may spend. In brief, Uncle Sam is the only one left to handle the problem of the workers who cannot find work, and those interested in doing away with federal relief (or works progress as it is now called) should bend their efforts toward reducing unemployment rather than scheming some method to shift the burden of payment from one part of the government to another.

QUESTION OF ANCESTRY

All Democrats claim their political ancestry goes back to Thomas Jefferson, and there is a big family squabble now going on between the two wings of the party as to which one has the right to call itself "Jeffersonian." The conservatives in the party say that Roosevelt is no Jeffersonian; but if I am not mistaken he will answer that charge when he addresses the Young Democrats at Baltimore April 13, Jefferson's birthday. That will be a national event, and the speech will be broadcast. Then again, the President will speak before a Jeffersonian gathering in New York city April 25. On at least one previous occasion, Roosevelt used a reference to Jefferson as an opportunity to expound his whole theory of government. It may be he will do so again on one of these occasions.

Jefferson believed the menace to freedom was in such political organizations as the Supreme court and the federal judiciary, but today our most consistent menace is economic rather than political. The New Deal, being a threat to the entrenched economic interests, is therefore completely Jeffersonian. No conservative can claim to be a Jeffersonian Democrat, because Jefferson was not only a radical—he was a revolutionist.

Jefferson's philosophy of government was made to fit practical things as they existed. Having an elastic mind, it is certain that had he lived today, he would act upon facts as they are. His first fight was against narrow policies based upon privilege and authority for the few. He was the leading opponent of monopoly, private control, the authority of privilege and the concealed mastery of a few men cunning enough to rule without showing their power." The quoted words are from a Woodrow Wilson speech on Jefferson.

Jefferson would also see something which could not have existed in his day, of rather simple conditions. I refer to the poisoning of the public mind by the present day methods of blatant propaganda. A generation ago, when some industrial leader wanted to break down popular prejudice rising against him because of his methods, he would give great sums of money to colleges, libraries, etc., and the term "tainted money" became general. That's all gone, but today we have something much worse in the way of tainted news. A large section of the metropolitan press serves tainted news almost exclusively.

One strong antidote against this poison is to keep and read frequently the text of addresses and messages of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Heed this advice during the bitter campaign months to come.

SYNOPSIS

The Duke, a pleasant, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a terrific rain storm. He makes himself at home. Six years ago his father had died in China, leaving the lad, Barry Gilbert, to fight his way back to the States. He did not recollect ever having had a mother. Dosing at the fire-side, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willets; a chauffeur, Evans; a cook and a maid. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out.

"I hope not," the Duke replied, grinning broadly, and, seeing that grin, the four servants smiled, too—plainly surprised at the master's good humor.

"This is Evans, sir," the butler continued. "This is Mrs. Mulligan, Cook, sir. And Annie Jeffers, the parlor maid. If you don't mind, sir, I'll get them set, and then I'll come upstairs to report."

"Fine!" said the Duke, calculating that five minutes would get him into his clothes, and out the front door. He was climbing the steps again when Willets called.

"I never thought, sir. Your bed isn't made. I'll get the linen out and have Annie up there right away. You'll want a good fire in your room to dry things out."

"I've got a fire in the library," the Duke replied. "Don't hurry. I'm very comfortable."

They did hurry. He had scarcely got his trousers under the mattress when Annie appeared, just as he had seen her in the hall, and with a small load of immaculate sheets and pillow cases.

"Mr. Evans is lighting the furnace," she said. "The house is that cold. It's an oil-burner, Mr. Willets says. I wonder you didn't think of it. But, of course, you're a stranger here, too."

"A stranger?" What did she mean by that? Where had he been, he wondered? Evidently, not home, at any rate. So that was why Willets hadn't known he wasn't Mr. Ridder. Was Willets new? The girl was on her knees at the hearth, and the Duke ventured half a question.

"Willets isn't a stranger?" "Of course not," Annie replied. "Nor Mr. Evans. Just Mrs. Mulligan and me. We was taken on when Madam and Mr. Ridder expected to spend the summer here, and we've been let out, I guess, when they decided to go to Germany. If it hadn't been for your coming back."

"I picked just the right minute, didn't I?" grinned the Duke. "And 'You sure did!' grinned the parlor maid, spreading the linen over the arms of two chairs.

It was an amusing conversation, but it had been too long. Returning to the library, trousers still in hand, Barry Gilbert encountered the ubiquitous Willets. "I'll take those, sir," said the butler, taking them.

"Oh, never mind!" "They'll need pressing." "I'll need them." "They'll be ready for you in the morning," Willets said, with a note of finality. "Did you bring any pyjamas, sir?"

Any he would do for now. "Yes," answered the Duke. "But, like an idiot, I checked my suitcase, and I know what happened to the check!"

"I'll get you a pair of your father's," Willets volunteered. "You're very much of a size." He was taking stock of the new master. "Look like your father, if you don't mind my saying so, sir. Same figure. Same kind of face, only kinder, if you don't mind my saying so, sir."

The Duke didn't mind. It was all "a lucky break," only—how long would it last? "Mustn't over-play my luck," thought the Duke. But the real Mr. Ridder wasn't coming until tomorrow. Why make a break for it tonight? The storm was roaring, and throwing buckets of water against the windows.

The butler had gone into the bedroom, and returned with a pair of purple silk pyjamas.

"Anything else, sir?" "No, thanks."

"I'll be leaving you then. There's a lot to do—getting the rooms ready for cook and the maid. They've never been here before. Don't know their way about. Evans don't either. What time breakfast, sir?"

"Oh, say eight o'clock."

"Right, sir. Good night, sir," said the butler, bowing himself out.

"Easy!" thought the Duke, standing before the fire, with the purple pyjamas in his hand. "Too easy! Too damned easy! There's a catch in it somewhere!"

Willets implied that he had been with the family some time. Why had he never seen the son? Or even a picture of him? Why was he so willing to accept a stranger in the house at his own word—practically without question? Why did he take those trousers? "I'm trapped," mused the Duke, "or else—"

Or else what? "Or else he's no more a butler than I am Mr. Ridder. How do I know what he is? There's a lot of mighty valuable junk in this house."

It was with that thought in his mind, and himself imagined in a new and exciting role, that His Grace of Hollywood finally turned the other cheek on an Irish linen pillow slip, and dropped off to sleep.

The trousers were beside his bed when he awoke.

And all that cinema nonsense had evaporated from his mind. Just "a lucky break." A good night's rest in a warm, dry house, whose owners had suddenly dashed off to Europe, leaving the establishment to a son who happened to be unknown to the servants.

"If I belonged in a house like this—"

He squared his shoulders, and sauntered down the carpeted stairs. No need of finishing the sentence. Already, he felt a new dignity; a new, stiffening self-respect. The trousers were neatly pressed, and "Good morning, sir," said the butler, as he entered the breakfast room.

There was nothing "make shift" about the meal. Evans had been to town for cream, and bacon, and bread, and the Duke's courage rose with every sip of the steaming coffee.

"What's this?" he inquired, his eye falling up an envelope at his plate.

"A letter for your mother, sir," Willets replied. "It came after she'd left the hotel, and Evans got it when he went back for some things he was to bring out here. He forgot it last night, sir. Mrs. Ridder expected some mail from the employment agency, and places like that. She said you was to open it, sir."

Barry hesitated. He could feel a chilly something in the butler's gaze.

Sooner than return the gaze, or evade it, he opened the envelope.

A hundred dollar bill dropped out. "Well, sir!" exclaimed the butler, any doubts he may have entertained in the butler's gaze.

"Well," echoed the Duke, with that new courage born of the steaming coffee.

"Spilling good laugh," he called it, "because their papas are rich." From one of the longshoremen, Barry had discovered that he should have a mother. The old man had never mentioned it, so his son raised the question. "I lost her," his father said.

"How?" "In Algiers. You were born there."

It was years before Barry was old enough to put the two things together. "Did she die when I was born?" he asked then, and got no answer.

This was in San Sebastian, where the old man worked for an engineering concern. Soon afterward, they pushed on to England, and short-lived prosperity. Barry went to school, for the first time, and found that he had learned more from his father than the other lads from his professors. That was fortunate, because the schooling lasted only a year before Barry—fifteen now—was taken to India. "I can't stand counting houses," his father had told him. "They've given us a berth in Calcutta."

It wasn't an upper berth, and it was in another counting house. "I met a fellow today," the elder Gilbert announced, "who's got something to do with the diamond mines. I think we'll go to Johannesburg." They didn't, because, a week later, the old man found another friend who suggested Manila. From there, it was only a step to Canton, and the tea business, and a shorter step to Hong Kong, where Francis Gilbert came home one night with a fever, and died the next morning.

Barry had begged a clerkship in Hong Kong, and then worked his way to San Francisco. On the boat was a movie director. "You've got a great smile," he told the youngster. "I think I can use you."

Hollywood then, and one studio after another. Youth, and looks, and the ingratiating grin helped a lot there. And Barry learned a lot, too. How to wear clothes, and how gentlemen behaved—or Hollywood thought they behaved—in a drawing room. He was earning two hundred dollars a week, sometimes, when a wallet vanished from a coat thrown over a table "in the set."

The Duke knew who took it. She was a poor little thing, though, and desperate, and His Grace kept his mouth shut. They couldn't pin it on him, he said, and they didn't, but there were no jobs after that.

And so he'd come East. Ankle-deep in the sand, that morning at Southampton, he kept thinking of the letter he'd just burned. And of his own mother. He had missed her all through his childhood, watching the other boys with their mothers, or, at school in England, getting ready to go home to them. "I lost her," the old man had said, and never mentioned the matter again. Had she died in Algiers, in childbirth, or merely grown weary of wandering, and decided to stay somewhere with someone? "I'd like to find her," the Duke thought.

At noon Evans brought the car. "Do you know where we're going?" asked the Duke.

"Yes. I'm taking you for a ride." Almost surely, thought the Duke. And it had a sinister sound, that phrase.

"You want to get lunch, don't you?" the chauffeur added, quickly.

"I want to see the end of the island. We can eat anywhere."

The Duke sank back into the cushioned seat. It gave him a curious sense of importance—being driven like this. Along the highway they sped.

The car was slowing down now, and, looking ahead, His Grace saw another limousine drawn up at the side of the road. Evans threw out the clutch, and then put his foot on the brake.

A husky young fellow in uniform was standing in front of the other car. Beside him was a spare, white-haired gentleman. And, framed in the car's doorway, ready to alight, stood a pretty girl.

"Stop," said the Duke, quite super-erogatorily, since they had stopped. She was the prettiest girl he had ever seen, the Duke decided. He had made the same decision many times before, but this time he felt it would be final. Tall and slim and dark, dressed in an ensemble of hunter's green tweed, with a top coat to match, and a tiny felt hat perched upon her sleek black hair, she looked, somehow, like a thing turned out by an entirely perfect machine—trim, and polished, and built for speed. Her eyes were gray, the Duke was to discover later, and wide, and a little cold. Her nose was a straight line from her forehead, and her lips were bright red against the pale ivory of her face.

"Can I do anything for you?" inquired the Duke.

He was standing before her now, and her glance took him in, calmly, appraisingly, before she answered, "No, thanks."

And with that, Barry felt, she erased him from the landscape.

"Yes, you can," said the white-haired gentleman. "That is, if either of you knows anything about a car. My chauffeur doesn't."

"We'll be glad to try," the Duke said, cordially. "Have a look at it will you, Evans?"

Suddenly, Evans walked over to the open hood.

"It's the ignition," the other chauffeur told him.

"Start her up."

"She won't start."

The two men began fussing with the engine.

"It's got to go," fumed the white-haired gentleman. "I haven't had a bite since breakfast, and I'm due in New York at five o'clock."

"Hungry myself," said the Duke. "Where did you mean to eat?"

Lesson for April 5

JESUS INVITES ALL PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:15-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come; for all things are now ready.—Luke 14:17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus Kept the Sabbath.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Great Invitation.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Excuses We Make.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Response to Christ's Invitation.

In this chapter Luke pictures Jesus freely mingling with his fellowmen in worship and social intercourse. While thus freely mingling with his fellowmen, he was aware of their inner hostility to him and set forth under the parable of the great supper the sinfulness of men who reject his gracious offer of salvation.

I. The Great Supper (v. 16).

This great supper represents God's gracious provision of salvation through the vicarious atonement of Jesus Christ. Christ himself declared that he was the bread of life. As bread is to the physical body, so is Jesus Christ to the soul. It is called a supper because it is the last meal of the day. Jesus Christ's sacrificial death is God's last effort for the salvation of men.

The one who misses supper goes hungry through the night; the one who neglects and rejects the gracious offer of salvation in Jesus Christ shall forever perish. It is a great supper because its provision was made in the councils of the eternal Godhead. It was wrought out by the Son of God and avails for the salvation of all races and kindred and tongues. "There is no one whose sinful condition debars him from this precious feast."

II. The Gracious and Urgent Invitation (vv. 16, 17).

These words, "Come; for all things are now ready," reveal the attitude of God toward a sinning race. Truly it is not the will of God that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. His servants have been going up and down the world for thousands of years saying to men dead in trespasses and sins, perishing for want of the bread of life, "Come; for all things are now ready." God is never behind time. There is absolutely nothing lacking in his provision for needy souls. The only thing demanded of the hungry and dying world is that it accept his urgent invitation. Man's responsibility is to receive Jesus Christ. All who accept his invitation are assured of a welcome at his table.

III. Men's Attitude Toward God's Gracious Invitation (vv. 18-20).

"They all with one accord began to make excuse." They feigned a willingness to come, but their excuses showed that they were completely absorbed in selfish interests and, therefore, disregarded the invitation of the divine Host. This is a vivid picture of the reception which men are everywhere giving the gospel.

1. The first one was taken up with the buying of land. On this account he begged to be excused. Supper time is a poor time to go to see a piece of ground. Besides, he had already bought the ground and, therefore, he was under no necessity of going to see it at supper time.

2. The second man desired to be excused in order that he might test a yoke of oxen which he had bought. Supper time is not a proper time to test oxen. Then, too, he had already bought them; therefore, there was no urgency in testing them.

3. The third excuse was perhaps the flimsiest of all. In all probability his wife would have been glad to accompany him. It is to be noted that the excuses made are plausible, as they concern things that are right in themselves. It is right for a man to have land, have oxen, and live with a wife, but when these legitimate interests crowd out God and the things of the Spirit, they are to be ignored.

IV. Guests From the Highways and Hedges (vv. 21-24).

1. The supper of the master of the house (v. 21). It should not be forgotten that God, while great in mercy, is capable of anger toward those who reject his mercy. It is a great mistake to remove anger from the character of God. To reject his mercy exposes to his fierce anger.

2. The Lord's house filled (vv. 21-23). The places of the very ones who were first bidden were filled with other guests, some of them poor and helpless, from the lanes and streets of the city and others the vagrants from the highways.

3. The awful condition of those first bidden (v. 24). The master of the house declares that none of them shall taste of his supper. Since the supper represents the free grace and mercy of Jesus Christ, to refuse him is to be eternally deprived of the high privilege of sitting at the Master's table.

Why We Are Lonely

Loneliness is often our own fault. We have not brought others enough into our own life, or we have repelled others by making too many claims upon them, or by seeking too much sympathy for ourselves.—Stopford, A. Brooke.

Goodness

As the presence of salt is not so noticeable as its absence, so the good are most appreciated when they are gone.

Let Age and Youth Agree to Differ: A Form of Agreement

Conclusion of Sage on the Problem of Life's Contrasts.

One of the most serious of life's contrasts is the continual misunderstanding which arises between old age and youth. It is trite but true that from time immemorial age has been dissatisfied with youth and youth has resented the implication. Though we ourselves had no such temptations as beset the young people of today, nevertheless our parents were just as anxious about our doings as any parent now could be. To us, their children, the problems of this perplexing day seem intricate in comparison. R. L. S. thought it out in this fashion: Let them (age and youth) agree to differ, for who knows but what agreeing to differ may not be a form of agreement, rather than a form of difference?

Lady Slane, in her attempt to live her own life after fifty years of being a satellite in the wake of a distinguished husband, is criticized by some as devoid of maternal love in wishing to live apart from her family. But is not life in most families a proof of the saying that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country? The desire to explore one's individual country becomes rather important as life recedes with all passions spent.

So much is now being written about flaming youth that it will soon believe that the whole stage of life was meant for the presentation of its own play and the footlights solo.

PATTERN 5493

Isn't he versatile—this pup that can wash, iron, sew and even play a violin? Just having him around—on tea towels or scarf ends, will brighten your day. Brighten, too, the hours you spend embroidering his amusing antics in cross stitch. They're ever so easy to do—with crosses 8 to the inch, and before you know it you've one for each day of the week. Use a variety of colors, or two shades of any color that you like.

In pattern 5493 you will find a transfer pattern of seven motifs averaging 5 by 8 inches; color suggestions; material requirements; illustrations of all the stitches that are needed.

ly to exhibit its own charms. Well, so be it, since upon its shoulders must fall the work of the world. Sir Edmund Gosse in writing his "Father and Son," endured severe criticism because he said too much (later, because he said too little) in trying to present the influence of a strictly puritanical father upon a son whose attitude toward life had changed. Stevenson's comment upon the book helped to smooth over the harshness of such criticism when he said that it was a very delicate task, very delicately done. Published in 1907, it was, to use the author's words, a record of a struggle between two temperaments, two consciences, and almost two epochs.

It seems to me that Mr. Brownell in his "Standards," has found the keynote to the lack of harmony between the two generations when he says that youth fails to consider how much more crowded the pigeon holes of age are than its own, and how much more like mine it is to arrange their contents, and that, in conjunction with the proverbial egotism of youth, is the whole cause of the difficulties that arise.

A case in point is the talk between the aged Helarius and the two sons of Cymbeline before they learn of their princely heritage. Helarius tells at length about the charms of mountain life in Wales, adding that it is nobler than attending for a check, richer than doing nothing for a bauble, prouder than rustling in unpaid silk. They listen respectfully and reply:

Haply this life is best

If quiet life be best, sweeter to you

That have a sharper known, well corresponding

With your stiff age; but unto us it is

A cell of ignorance, traveling abed.

What should we speak of

When we are as old as you? when

We shall hear

The rain and wind beat dark December, how

In this, our pinching cave, shall we discourse

The freezing hours away? We have seen nothing.

How hard it is to hide the sparks of nature, says Helarius to himself!

Find Picture of Adam and Eve on Tablet of 4000 B. C.

The great mound of Tepe Gawra in northern Iraq, composed of the ruins of ancient cities built successively one on the other, has yielded another clue to the past. This most recent find, announced by Dr. E. A. Speiser, of the University of Pennsylvania, concerns the Bible. It is a clay tablet on which are impressed the figures of a man, a woman, and a serpent. Archeologists, quite naturally, think these figures may represent Adam and Eve. And since the estimated age of the tablet is about 6,000 years, it indicates the story of the first man and woman was passed down among the ancients many years before it was recorded in the Bible.—Pathfinder Magazine.

WAR

The News editor has always had a horror of war—its wickedness and wastefulness and folly are unspeakable.

Any nation that enters upon a war of aggression is as much a murderer as is any hi-jacker who slays an innocent victim and takes his money.

Any European nation that would start a war now, out of a spirit of vengeance or for the purpose of gain, would by such act write itself down as a most execrable criminal.

But there are bullies among nations as well as among individuals. A man must fight in sheer self-defense sometimes whether he wants to fight or not. The same is true as to nations.

We frequently hear "pacifists" decry war without making any distinctions between aggressive and defensive warfare. They refer to our participation in the World War as if our entry into that conflict was a heinous crime. They even charge that our entry into it was the work of the munition manufacturers.

Such a charge is a slander upon our country and an insult to the Congress and the President of the United States of that day.

We entered the War after we had suffered insult after insult at the hands of Germany—after our women and our children had been murdered on the high seas by ruthless German submarines, not once, not twice, but a half dozen times, after we had entered repaid protests, Germany sullenly and half-heartedly listened to our protests for a while and then announced that she would again resume unrestricted warfare on ships of ours that she suspected bore munitions of war. And she unloaded all her submarine hell-boards and instructed them to do their worst. In other words she told America to get off the high seas.

What war was to be? To take our children and our women and our men to be killed and maimed?

We did not want to do that. We would not do that now or at any time.

We are tired of hearing rantings of these critics of our country. We are tired of hearing them apologize for our entry into the Great War. We did nothing to apologize for. We did exactly right. We did what any self-respecting nation would do.

We are against offensive war. We believe in doing everything reasonable to settle international differences and misunderstandings without war. We believe in war only as a last resort. But we do not believe in "peace at any price."

No red-blooded man would stand still and let some bully beat his ears down. No nation should be expected to do so.

Furthermore, no man who is a man would stand idly by and watch a big bully beat up a kid or a helpless old man, on the grounds that it was none of his business.

We do not much believe in big nations standing by and watching some other big nation bomb the life out of some little weak nation just because it wants some of the little nation's territory or tribute money.

We despise a big bully, whether the bully be an individual or a nation.

PROMPT ENFORCEMENT OF THE LAW

On the night of Friday, March 6, Elmo Banks, negro, 43, an inmate of Lynn County jail at Tahoka, caught deputy sheriff F. E. Redwine off his guard, snatched the officer's pistol and shot him to death. The negro escaped and took to the country.

Most everybody, including some negro citizens, turned out and ran the criminal to earth and captured him. The officers carried their prisoner to another country for safe keeping.

Just six days after the crime was committed the negro had been indicted by a special grand jury and was arraigned before the district court. Hon. Tom Garrard and B. P. Maddox, two noted lawyers, were appointed to defend the negro.

They went into trial before a jury composed of twelve Lynn County citizens. After a fair and impartial trial it took only a short while for that jury to render a verdict of guilty and assess his punishment at death in the electric chair—just six days after he had murdered a fine officer and one of Lynn County's best citizens.

The citizens of Lynn County set a splendid example before the world in dealing with this outrageous criminal. Instead of lynching him as has been done too often in some parts of the country, they looked to the court for a just deal, and without the delay that is usual in too many cases, and their court did not fall them in their expectations.

No doubt hot blood coursed through the veins of the friends of the murdered officer, and they felt constrained to avenge the murder with their own hands, but better judgment prevailed and they let the court do what they felt like doing themselves. The court demeaned itself with fairness and dignity by appointing two good lawyers to see that the negro got his lawful rights in the trial. Those people believed in their courts and the courts do not disappoint their confidence. Hats off to the folks in Lynn County.

BE KIND TO DUMB ANIMALS

A man's character is often revealed by the way he treats a dumb animal. Distrust the man who finds "light in cruelty, though the victim of his 'fun' may be only a bug. To torture any living thing just for fun reveals a sorry streak in the character of any person guilty of the offense. Read the following from "Ye Wyze Guye" in the Slaton Slatonite last week.

A crazily bewildered and terrified rabbit plunged headlong against the glass door of Martin's jewelry store last Saturday morning in a frenzied effort to reach some place of refuge in an unfamiliar world, then, leaving a splash of blood on the panel, made off down the street and was chased by some boys down toward the station. Whether the jack rabbit had been driven into town by dogs or whether someone with a misplaced sense of humor had brought it in, we could not learn, but if anyone can think of a sight more pitiful than a wild thing hedged completely in by strange walls and cars and people, with no possible way of escape in view, we don't want to hear it. Sport is sport, but those who enjoy the agony of even a rabbit ought to see a psychiatrist.

Well, Oklahoma and Kansas paid West Texas a visit Monday. They came by air. About the only result is that we have even more good soil now than we had before.

Many a Friend Recommends
BLACK-DRAUGHT

People who have taken Black-Draught naturally are enthusiastic about it because of the refreshing relief it has brought them. No wonder they urge others to try it! ... Mrs. Joe G. Roberts, of Porterville, Ala., writes: "A friend recommended Black-Draught to me a long time ago, and it has proved its worth to me. Black-Draught is good for constipation. I find that taking Black-Draught prevents the furious headaches which I used to have." ... A purely vegetable medicine for the relief of

CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS

Old Bell county, where Jim Ferguson and the editor of this great weekly grew up, had another wet and dry fight Saturday—and she went dry. The wets were trying to vote whiskey back but the dries won by a majority of 200. Bell county has a large German and Bohemian population, and most of them vote wet, but the dries won any way. Bell county has been the scene of many a wet-dry fight. Several of them were pulled off while Jim and the editor still lived there. Jim was always on the wet side while the editor was a dry. But we never fell out about that. We always liked him personally but could not vote for him often because he always stood for things we opposed. But Jim had a bushel of brains even in those days. What great things he could have accomplished for Texas had he dedicated his life to the cause of righteousness! But what we started out to remark is that good old Bell county remains in the dry column after 21 consecutive years of prohibition; and it used to be one of the wettest of the wet.

That the proper cultivation of our lands is the best possible preventative of soil erosion is perfectly apparent to any one who has eyes to see. In spite of the frequent sandstorms that have visited this section of the state recently, very little sand or dust has been picked up from our cultivated lands. This is due to the fact that nearly all our cultivated lands have been listed up and the freshly turned soil does not blow, except in the very loose or "blow" sand. Every farmer in this section of the state knows the remedy for soil erosion without any lessons from the Government. He knows that converting farm lands back into pasture lands is not the remedy, except in rare cases. His trouble has been that, following long drouths, his land has sometimes been too hard in the late fall and through the winter and spring to plow. By the use of the tractor, however, the soil can be broken most any year. The Government experts may not know it, but it is our pasture lands that are now furnishing much of the sand and dust for these sand and dust storms.

Governor James V. Allred had a birthday Saturday. He was just 37 years of age, the youngest governor in the United States, and one of the shrewdest and brightest. May he have at least 37 more years of active, useful life. By the way, there are several other men in Texas who think they are running for governor at this time, but our prediction is that Jimmie will get so many more votes than the whole "push" put together that they will not even get market up as in the "also ran" class.

The Supreme Court of the United States rendered fourteen decisions Monday, all unanimous. One of the most important was that in which it held the Sugar Institute, Inc., was violating the Sherman anti-trust law. It ruled that the organization of sugar refiners had acted in "unreasonable restraint" of competition in steps interpreted as compelling "adherence to prices." Government lawyers had procured an injunction in the lower courts enjoining the Institute from continuing 45 co-operative practices, and the action of the lower court was sustained. The sugar trust is one of the most powerful in the nation. We are glad that the Government has discovered that there is an anti-trust law intended to curb just such combinations in restraint of trade.

ATTEND GINNERS' MEET

A. J. Edwards, Claude Donaldson, W. O. Henderson, Garland Pennington, all of Tahoka, P. W. Goad of New Home, Mr. Rowland of New Lynn, and probably other Lynn county gimmers, attended the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Texas Gimmers Association which was in session in Fort Worth this week.

This was the first meeting of the convention ever held in Fort Worth. The Lynn county men report a very fine meeting.

Roger Curry of Haskell is here this week visiting his sister, Mrs. Borden Davis, and brother, Charlie Curry, and families.

SOCIETY

Club and Church News

CHURCH OF CHRIST NOTES

Services last Lord's Day were a little off all away round even to the preaching, I guess.

Some things I can't understand: Why people will claim membership in a church and never attend its services. Why people who say they have been born again will make all or most of their plans for the care of the flesh. How people will talk of going to heaven when they die and are walking every day in the other direction.

Some things that will kill a Christian's influence: Telling smutty jokes, backbiting, and gossiping. Smoking, chewing and spitting. Spending the Lord's Day riding, picnicing or even fishing. Dancing, playing pool and bridge for prizes.

A little humor now and then is relished by the best of men.

Doctor's Son: "When my father performs a major operation he gets $500 for his skill."

Lawyer's Son: "That's nothing. When my father tries a big case, he gets a fee of $1000."

Preacher's Son: "Huh! When my father preaches they take up an offering and it takes eight men to carry the money to the altar."

Some things to think about: Where are you going to spend eternity? What if today were your last on earth, how would you use it? What do your children think of your religion? If every member of the church were just like you, what kind of a church would it be? Thanks for the flowers you gave me last week. I had rather have them now than on my grave. Send in some more if you wish.

I will fill the pulpit at O'Donnell next Lord's Day, but every member is urged to be present here, to help and please the Lord. Come to the friendly church.—R. P. Drennon.

NEW HOME H. D. CLUB

"We learn that it is best to give children an allowance, letting them learn to both spend and save wisely by experience," said Mrs. H. A. Parris to the New Home H. D. Club in the home of Mrs. G. N. McWhorter March 27th.

It is only by handling and spending that children learn the value of money. Of course children must be old enough to count money before much is given them. A child should earn his money when possible. By giving children money for their home work, they will learn to appreciate the value of money.

The entries for the Meat Show were checked. Several ladies plan to attend the judging at Lubbock Saturday.

The following were present: Mmes. H. A. Parris, J. H. Izard, T. J. Poindexter, J. R. Strain, G. N. McWhorter, W. P. Roberson, Boswell Edwards.

R. C. Wood and daughter, Rose Maud, accompanied Deen Nowlin as far as Hubbard City, where they visited relatives, last week. Mr. Nowlin went to Houston.

PHOEBE K. WARNER CLUB

Apple and plum blossoms in their beauty and fragrance decorated the home of Mrs. E. I. Hill on Thursday afternoon as the members of the Phoebe K. Warner Club met for a Federation program. Mrs. L. E. Weathers, president, presided.

A very interesting business meeting was concluded by selecting a pioneer woman to be the club guest at a luncheon given at the Hilton Hotel on Monday of the District Convention, which luncheon was in honor of pioneer women. Mrs. Alley was chosen.

Following the business, the program chairman, Mrs. Mathis took charge.

Outstanding Women of Today—Mrs. Slaton.

Pioneer Medical Women—Mrs. L. E. Turrentine.

Reading, which was awarded first place at State Convention in Dallas, written by Mrs. Evans, given by Mrs. Rafe L. Richardson.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. Mathis served a delicious plate of roasted nuts, ice cream and angel food cake to Mmes. L. E. Turrentine, Carl Griffing, Truett Smith, Pete Hegl, W. O. Henderson, Rafe L. Richardson, L. E. Weathers, and Walter Slaton.—Reporter.

PETTY 4-H CLUB

The Petty 4-H Club girls met at the school house Thursday, March 26. We didn't have a program but worked on our notebooks.

Kathryn Osborn has her cold frame planted. Mustard, carrots, beets and lettuce were planted in the cold frame.

Those present were: Donnie Mae Porter, Ina Mae Carrell, Wilma Doris Crews and Veda Porter.

PLAY AT JOE STOKES

A two-hour play entitled "A Hoodooed Coon" will be presented by the Joe Stokes Amateur Dramatic Club at the Joe Stokes school house on Friday night, April 17, beginning at 8 o'clock.

This is said to be a roaring comedy, and each player well adapted to his or her part.

The Hilton string band will entertain before and between acts.

Registration of Texas voters in 1936, the Centennial year, is estimated.

Gun Girl

The gun which Helen Stamp, Texas Exposition Ranges, holds, is from the collection of A. W. Discher, of Dallas. Eighteen notches on its stock attest to its efficiency in frontier Indian fighting. This, an 1827 Spencer Indian and Buffalo gun, and others from the Discher collection will be displayed during the Exposition which opens in Dallas June 6.

Try CARDUI For Functional Monthly Pains

Women from the 'teen age to the change of life have found Cardui genuinely helpful for the relief of functional monthly pains due to lack of just the right strength from the food they eat. Mrs. Oris Haynes, of Essex, Mo., writes: "I used Cardui when a girl for cramps and found it very beneficial. I have recently taken Cardui during the change of life. I was very nervous, had head and back pains and was in a generally run-down condition. Cardui has helped me greatly."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

NEW WATER WELLS ARE CONNECTED UP

The City has finished laying the new water main from the new wells a mile north of town to the city reservoir, and the water was to be turned into the main today.

Henceforth, Tahoka should have a superabundance of water for all purposes.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to publicly express my thanks to all the officials and employees in the court house, past and present, for the many kindnesses and courtesies shown me during the four years and nearly three months that I have served as keeper of the building and grounds. Their kindness has been genuinely appreciated.—W. C. Jones.

NAZARENE SERVICES

There will be week-end services starting Friday night at the Church of the Nazarene, according to Rev. J. R. Hodges, the pastor. Services will begin at 7:45 each evening.

Rev. S. E. Tate of Post will be the speaker.

Hooper Cook of Slaton dropped in on the editor Tuesday morning for a pleasant call. Mr. Cook and the editor were warm friends in Bell county quite a number of years ago. Like hundreds of other Bell county folks both drifted west in the course of time, and we had been almost neighbors for ten years without knowing it.

Mrs. C. T. Tankersley of West Point is delighted because of the recent birth of a grandson. Walter G. Denman the Third was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Denman Jr. of Lubbock in West Texas Hospital on Wednesday of last week. The little fellow weighed a little more than six pounds. The mother is the former Miss Nola B. Tankersley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Tankersley, and is a graduate of the Tahoka high school.

SINGING AT DIXIE

Here's a tip, folks, and a good one too. If you have visitors in your home Sunday that are hard to entertain, just politely mention that this is First Sunday and that means a big singing at Dixie at 2 p. m. So, bring 'em along and your worries will be over. You don't have to worry about your book. But, for goodness sakes, don't forget to wear your red necktie.—Reporter.

Mrs. Claude Donaldson and children are visiting her sister and family and their mother, Mrs. J. C. Roberts, in Altus, Oklahoma, this week. The children tendered the mother a surprise birthday dinner Sunday. Mrs. Roberts has often visited in Tahoka.

Official opening of the Caddo Lake State park near Marshall on May 4 and 5 will be made the occasion of a Marshall Centennial year celebration.

John F. Cearley, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Alphin, who has been teaching at Barnum Springs, has recently accepted a position in the First National Bank of Post. Mrs. Cearley is finishing her term as principal of the school.

Uris Howard of Crosbyton is here visiting his sisters, Mrs. Frank Hill and Mrs. Harley Henderson, and families.

All the farmers are just about through farming and are waiting for a rain.

Rev. Atterberry of Abilene, district superintendent of the Nazarene Church, preached to the local congregation Sunday night. A large crowd attended and enjoyed his message.

Several members of the Nazarene Church went to Ropes Sunday to attend the Young People's Rally.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Gray and family spent the week end at Lubbock visiting Mrs. Bray's sister.

Mrs. Robert Richard spent Monday shopping in Lubbock.

Mrs. Cathy, who has moved into our community this year, has been very ill ever since she moved here. Let's visit her and welcome Mr. and Mrs. Cathy and family to our community.

Several have had the flu lately. Mrs. Spears and children spent last week visiting Mr. and Mrs. Pete Wetzel.

Mrs. Howard Smith spent the week end at Lubbock visiting relatives.

Rev. H. J. Bingham and little daughter Glenora and son Bernie moved back to Post. We are going to miss them very much, but hope they like their new home.

Singing Saturday night was attended well, but our pianist was ill. So, under the circumstances, we couldn't have our regular class. We had several special selections. Let's not be discouraged but hope for the better next time.

Next Saturday night and Sunday is Rev. Robertson's appointment at the Baptist Church. Everyone welcome.

The New Lynn Volley Ball Girls lost the county championship to O'Donnell girls last Wednesday. Yet, we are proud of the efforts they put forth.

Keep a Good Laxative always in your home

Among the necessities of home is a good, reliable laxative. Don't be without one! Do your best to prevent constipation. Don't neglect it when you feel any of its disagreeable symptoms coming on. "We have used Theodor's Black-Draught for 21 years and have found it a very useful medicine that every family ought to have in their home," writes Mrs. Perry Hicks, of Belton, Texas. "I take Black-Draught for biliousness, constipation and other ills where a good laxative or purgative is needed. I have always found Black-Draught gives good results."

Dr. Ann West is Leaving For Dallas

Dr. Ann West has announced that she will remove to Dallas about the middle or the latter part of next week to practice her profession. For the past four years she has been practicing medicine in this county, her home being with her mother, Mrs. W. J. West, nine miles north of Tahoka.

Dr. West states that she will be glad to have any of her friends call at the home before her departure. She hopes to be back about the first of September for a brief visit.

Dr. West is the only woman physician in Lynn county, and possibly the only one on the South Plains. She removed with her parents to this county when a young girl in 1917. She attended Wayland College, Baylor University, and the Tech College, and she is the first ex-student of the latter institution who has received a degree in Medicine. She took her Medical course in Baylor Medical College and served as interne in Baylor Hospital, Dallas, the only woman interne that institution had had in eight years. She is a successful practitioner of Medicine and her many friends in this county who hope that she will meet with splendid success in Dallas, though they deeply regret her removal from Lynn county.

W. C. Renfro, T. J. Renfro Jr., H. C. Renfro and daughter Miss Jewell, S. T. Blanton, Renfro Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Renfro, all of McLennan county, arrived here Wednesday morning, called by the serious illness of T. J. Renfro, who resides a few miles south of Tahoka.

D. G. Phipps, formerly of the Wells community, who removed to San Antonio last fall on account of Mrs. Phipps' health, was here Friday. He reports that Mrs. Phipps is much improved and that they are well pleased with their new home, though it is difficult for him to get accustomed to city life. He says that all the carpenters and brick masons in San Antonio are busy and that the city is enjoying a steady growth.

Stomach Sufferers

If you are suffering from indigestion, atonic dyspepsia, sour stomach, gas pains, "raw stomach," inflammation of the intestines (enteritis), gastric acidity and sick headaches, due to excessive acidity, you can't afford to ignore these warning signs. You should try at once the Doctor's Prescription, known as Gasa Tablets. If you allow these conditions to become worse, the acids may eat into the delicate mucous membrane of your stomach and intestine and possibly cause dangerous ulcers. Gasa Tablets are pleasant to take and they start to work in just a few minutes to give gentle, effective relief of pain and discomfort caused by excessive acidity. They soothe the raw, inflamed lining of the "acid stomach" and help convert starchy foods into dextrose, which is so essential to energy of the body, and preservation of health. Because of their remarkable success in many cases of acidity and digestive troubles resulting from acid conditions, Gasa Tablets are offered now to sufferers under a guarantee that the first bottle must produce results or money back. For only a few cents a day, you may now have the benefits of this Doctor's Prescription which has helped so many other sufferers to a greater joy of living. Ask your druggist today for Gasa Tablets. Take just one or two of these quick-acting, soothing, antacid tablets and see how they help your stomach to "tackle a hearty meal." At—

CLUB WRITERS MEET

The Lynn County Writers' Association met in the county court room at 3 p. m. March 28.

Mrs. Garland Pennington, president, read a bulletin entitled "Get the Story" by Miss Minnie Fisher Cunningham, Extension editor. The bulletin stressed the importance of reporters giving a full account of every item discussed in order that the reader may be informed as to all proceedings.

Miss Robb criticized the reporters severely, and justly so, for their brevity.

Each reporter present wrote a report of an imaginary demonstration.

Every member present expressed himself as being benefitted by instruction received at each meeting attended. We regret that all members were not present.

We voted to meet again May 30, at which time Miss Robb will give a demonstration and each reporter will write it up.

We hope our editor may meet with us and give us some pointers on writing our reports for publication.

Reporters present were: Donnie Mae Porter, Petty 4-H Club; Mrs. I. M. Draper, Midway H. D. Club; Mrs. Boswell Edwards, New Home H. D. Club; Mrs. Chester Short, Dixie H. D. Club; Mrs. Garland Pennington; Mrs. S. G. Anthony, Wilson H. D. Club.

H. D. COUNCIL MEETING

"Cheese aged is usually more expensive than fresh," Miss Sylvia Robb, home demonstration agent, told county council members at their meeting in Tahoka March 14.

American cheese made in demonstration at the Legion Hall in January was exhibited and sampled by council members and visitors, and was declared to be of the finest quality.

Four clubs reported full exhibits in the Meat Show at Lubbock beginning March 31st. Members with entries in the Meat Show receive free tickets to a banquet at Lubbock.

A sketch of the importance of vegetables in diet was given by Mrs. McGinty and Mrs. Greenwood of Wells Club. Eat more vegetables for tonic.

Members present: Mesdames Lee Cromer, A. L. Dunagan, J. W. Lowrey, Fred McGinty, D. L. Greenwood, I. M. Draper, G. A. Edwards, J. R. Strain, R. W. Barton, Dee Howrey, M. O. Canaday, Garland Pennington, R. L. Littlepage, Paul J. Lawson, and H. O. Hargett.

The All Sew Club met with Mrs. J. A. South March 26.

Mrs. C. E. Woodworth will be hostess April 9.

Bunny salad, salad cracker, cookies and Kaffee Hag were served to the following members: Mmes. Howell, Leslie, Woodworth, Lockwood, Jones, Mathis, A. I. and C. A. Thomas.

JAM

By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

SPREADS JAM ON PIECE OF BREAD

IS STARTLED BY CRY FROM FISHMAN TO LOOK OUT, IT'S GOING TO DRIP

LOOKS JUST IN TIME TO SEE A LITTLE BLOB OF JAM DRIP ON TO "HOLE CLOTH"

ATTEMPTS TO SCOP IT UP WITH KNIFE, FISHMAN CRYING TO STOP HE'S JUST MAKING IT WORSE

AT SAME MOMENT FISHMAN BELLOWS TO HOLD HIS BREAST OVER DRIP AGAIN

IN ALARM DROPS KNIFE WHICH CLATTERS FROM PLATE TO TABLE CLOTH, AND WITH BOTH HANDS HOLDS BREAST OVER PLATE

IS SAID TO PUT BREAD DOWN WHILE FISHMAN CLEANS SPILLS UP, JAMS SO, FISHMAN CRYING LOOK OUT, HE'S GOT JAM ON HIS HANDS TOO

AUTOMATICALLY WIPES HANDS ON HIS SWEATER

CHASSERON SAYS HE FINCHES HIS BREAST INTO JAM COFF OF BORDS IS ADOPTED, IS THE RELIEF OF ALL CONCERNED

For Example

The case before the court had been going on for many days, and concerned a claim that involved wearisome technicalities. Things were not improved when a counsel made a speech of unnecessary length. He said:

"Then, my lord, comes the question of bags; they might have been full bags or half-full bags; or, again, my lord, they might have been empty bags."

"Or," interrupted the sorely tried judge, "they might have been wind-bags."

Easily Adjusted

Screeves and written a play, and it was his first. Incidentally at the same time it was the worst thing his friend the producer had read for some years.

"Sorry, my boy," remarked the producer, "but I couldn't do this—it's too long for the stage."

"But, I say," expostulated Screeves, "surely a little thing like that could be fixed up—couldn't you lengthen the stage a bit?"

After First Look, Dumb-bell Louged to Look for Life!

It is true that once in a while, at a dinner, for instance, a woman is put next to a man who stolidly stares at his plate and answers "yes" or "no" to everything she says, writes Emily Post in the New York Herald Tribune.

I remember one occasion when a certain very attractive young woman struggled throughout the soup course and the fish course and half-way through the meat course without getting so much as a glance in her direction. Finally she said firmly:

"Will you please turn your head and look at me?"

He turned a face that was quite blank unless slightly raised eyebrows meant a glimmer of inquiry.

"I want to be sure you know," said she, "that I've tried my best to talk to you, and now I'm going to try no more."

Whereupon she turned to the man on the other side.

The end of this incident sounds like fiction, but I vouch for its truth. She is now the wife of the first man.

NEW KITCHEN STOVE MAKES ITS OWN GAS

Housewives Marvel at Coleman Range That Lights Instantly Like City Gas—Cooks a Meal with 2c Worth of Fuel

A new kitchen range that offers every cooking convenience of the finest city gas range is now available to housewives, wherever they live.

W. C. Coleman, pioneer inventor of gas-pressure appliances, brings to a lifetime of inventive genius his crowning achievement in this amazing new Coleman Range.

Safety Range. This new stove makes its own gas from ordinary, lead-free gasoline. A patented method of carburization converts liquid fuel into gas, much the same as in present day automobile engines.

The Coleman Range lights instantly, like city gas. Its fuel-saving Hand-A-Blu Burners, another of Mr. Coleman's outstanding developments, produce a clean, clear-blue flame, so hot that a low flame does an average family meal for five takes about 2c worth of fuel.

Coleman Ranges are finished in gleaming porcelain enamel. Their pleasing colors combine outstanding beauty with unequalled performance.

Readers of this paper wishing full information about these wonderful new Coleman Ranges will receive beautifully illustrated literature and a valuable stove check chart by simply addressing a postcard to Mr. W. C. Coleman, Dept. WU-236, Wichita, Kansas.—Adv.

Science Is After Those Other Vampires, the Bats

Science has been investigating the vampire bat recently, in an effort to cope with tropical diseases which are transmitted by its bite. Captive specimens have been kept under observation, and it has been found that they do not suck their victims' blood, as was supposed, but lap it up with their tongues as it comes from the tiny wound made by their long, sharp teeth.

The bats are so skilled in attack that you don't know you've been bitten. Men will go on sleeping peacefully while the vampire bat drinks their blood, though, as has been proved by experiment, they will start up awake at the slightest touch of the finest hypodermic needle.—Answers Magazine.

Cardui Helps When Nerves Seem "On Edge" Every Month

Women who find themselves in a painful, nervous fix, suffering every month, may have some functional trouble which Cardui should benefit. "At times, I felt like I must scream if a door slammed or there was an unusual noise," writes Mrs. P. A. Odum, of Haines City, Fla. "I did not feel like doing my housework, and as I had other work besides, I felt more like lying down. A friend of mine asked me to try Cardui, which I did. After my first bottle, I felt much better. I continued taking it until I had taken six or seven bottles. By this time I was so much improved I was able to leave it off."

If not benefited by Cardui, consult a physician.

No Need to Suffer "Morning Sickness"

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia Wafers

These mint-flavored, candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste matters that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them.

Start using these delicious, effective anti-acid, gently laxative wafers today. Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letterhead. Select Products, Inc., 4402 23rd St., Long Island City, N. Y.

The Original Milk of Magnesia Wafers

Fabric Accent on Pretty Woolens

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SUIT yourself this spring—it's quite the smartest thing to do. To state it more emphatically, a suit or "composed" ensemble tailored of handsome woolen weaves is a fashion "must" this spring. You are not the type to wear a suit? Before you jump at conclusions see the endless variety of suits in the spring style parade. There is no question as to finding an affinity suit this season.

There's a whole family-tree of suits in the fashion picture, related as far as the perfectly stunning woolens that fashion them, yet entirely different in the final analysis of color moods, silhouette and general style. If you are too heavy at the waistline to wear one of the trim little man-tailored short-jacket suits, there is a consolation prize awaiting you in the picturesque cape-and-skirt models tailored of some one or other of the gorgeous tropical woolens that make color glory and novel weave their theme. Such a costume is pictured to the left in the illustration. This is a Bruyere ensemble of a nubby gray and green mixed summer tweed. This type is a decided favorite with smart Parisiennes.

The classic tailleur developed in men's wear suitings is an outstanding fashion, with definite preference for the single breasted type with its flattering sweep of long lapels. Both hard and soft finished worsteds are used in these suits, with sharkskins, herringbone weaves, distinct checks, chevrons, serge types, monotone and chalk stripe flannels and wool gabardine all important.

Men's checked worsteds is the practical fabric for the good looking spring suit to the right in the picture. It has a classic single-breasted three-button jacket with traditional flap pocket.

ets and a slim straight skirt. The back panel of the jacket and the skirt are correspondingly slashed at the sides.

The new mixed or composed ensembles are appearing with coats in contrasting color and fabric. The "baby reefer" of fingertip length with double-breasted closing and man-tailored styling of lapels and pockets is frequently seen in covert cloth, or in wool gabardine, in beige, tan, navy or gray worn over tailored suits or with the one-piece dress of contrasting woolen. A reefer coat of the sort described centers the group shown. It is tailored of a very fine wool gabardine. Note especially its new length. The latest "baby" swaggar coats also adopt this new length, also a hiplength.

The newest tweeds (in the lead for travel and country wear) are in rich deep colorings accented with flecks and nubs of contrasting shades. There are also many soft lovely tweeds in natural and pastel colors with over-patternings in bright color. Casual assemblages are smart in informal suits, the skirts frequently being in monotone or flecked tweeds and the jackets in gun club patterns, bonnet's tooth or shepherd checks or conservative glen plaids.

A leading fashion is the adaptation of the masculine morning suit with striped skirt and oxford gray jacket in men's wear worsted, frequently bound with braid. Another favorite in this class is developed in men's wear flannel with pearl gray skirt and steel gray jacket with revers of the lighter skirt fabric.

TRICKY GLOVES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

As front page news novel fabric gloves are "it" in a big way this season. Not only are gloves creating a sensation because of their startling colors but they are given to tricks that are as practical as they are intriguing. A really wonderful idea is the glove with a zipper pocket in the left wrist to hold your small change. See it in action as pictured above. Another cute idea is the glove with an unbreakable crystal inset on left wrist (see picture) so that your wrist watch is visible without turning back the cuff. This year there is an endless variety of beautiful mesh glove fabrics of hemberg brought out.

Knife-Plated Sleeves
Some of the new sleeves now shown are knife-plated

SPRING HATS REVEL IN TOASTED TONES

In addition to black and plenty of navy blue—especially a dark purplish shade—the prominent colors in hats for spring and early summer are toasted tones, blond tortoise shell, burnt straw, natural beige, fawn, tomato red and soft tints of washed blue, as well as tones of grayish blues on the slate side.

Bright red is used a great deal in combination with black, with navy blue and with white. The greens are represented by soft tones of reeds.

Pastel tones in general are foreseen for spring and summer, and among them is a soft shade of pale faded pink that is sponsored by all the leading milliners. This color is called old pink by certain houses and ashes of roses by other designers.

Sequin Embroideries Far From Being Exhausted

The vogue of sequin embroideries is far from being exhausted. Such houses as Maggy Rouff and Chanel use sequins in wide designs on sheer rayon crepe grounds or on chiffon or lace dresses. Ardanne embroiders with sequins in plastic material the two ends of a long scarf or panel in the same fabric as the evening dress, and fastens this scarf to the wrist where the embroidery gives a bracelet effect. Lelong obtains changeable effects on chiffon dresses by disposing sequins in degrade tones.

Spanish Shawl Scarfs

Spanish shawl scarfs are being shown with some of the new spring hats. They are made of knitted black silk edged with fringe and are worn knotted loosely about the neck like a fichu.

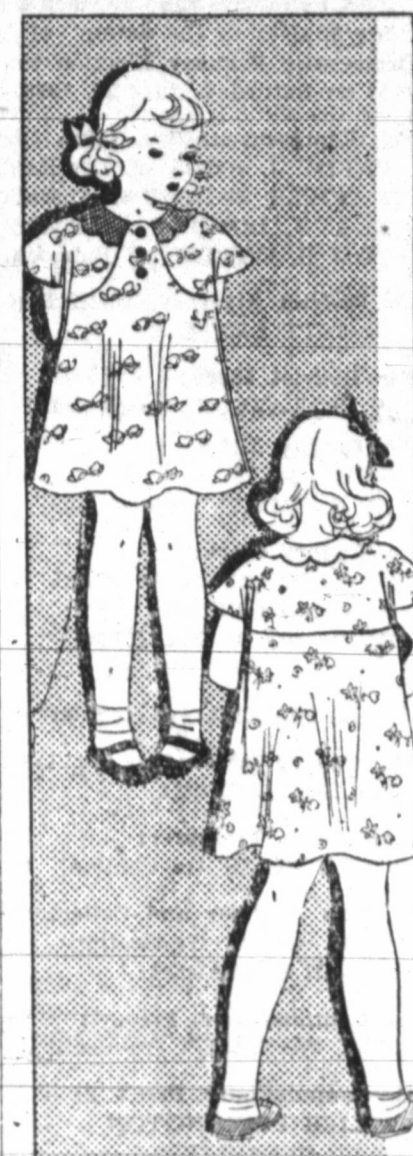

Shoe Colors

Newest shades for women's footwear in London include wine rose, burgundy, berry bloom, cassowary and raspberry.

For a Change

You can vary a simple shirtwaist frock of white or pastel silk by a change of color every day or so in silk necktie and scarf sash to match.

Distinctive Dress With Scalloped Collar for the Charming Little Girl

1833-B

Any little girl from two to six will look simply charming in this distinctive tiny frock which has a high waist finished off with a dainty scalloped collar, and three little buttons.

The shape of the collar gives the dress a fetching demure look that is adorable on all little girls. Notice the soft flare of the skirt and the loose short sleeves—simplicity is the keynote. This design requires a minimum of time and effort to make. Try it in gingham, wool challis, muslin or a silk with a wee little flower design. You can also make this version in a simple crepe which is used in party frocks.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1833-B is available for sizes: 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Iceing for cake may be prevented from cracking by adding one tea spoon of cream to each unbeaten egg. Stir all together, then add sugar until the iceing is as stiff as desired.

Set your alarm clock to notify you when baking period is completed. You may then continue your work in the other part of the house without worry.

Baking powder biscuits, corn breads and muffins may be freshened by brushing them all over with cold water and heating in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for five or ten minutes just before serving.

FEATURE CROSBY FILM

'Anything Goes,' which opens at the English Theatre Sunday for a three days run, is a jolly, tuneful entertaining picture. Bing Crosby is the featured player in this song-studded Paramount presentation of the popular Broadway musical comedy which broke records during its New York run. He is assisted by such favorites as Ethel Merman, Charlie Ruggles, Ida Lupino and Grace Bradley.

All the famous Cole Porter songs which were universally popular are heard in this mirthful picture. He has provided a number of others which are equally as good as 'You're the Top,' 'Anything Goes,' and 'I Get A Kick Out of You.' Additional songs by other music makers are included.

Outstanding in the lyric line are the parodies on 'You're the Top,' which Crosby and Miss Merman sing. These take the audience by storm with their unexpected lines, and prove the high spot in the entertainment. Nearly everything under the sun is introduced in these parodies, from Ethiopia to stratospheric flights.

The bright dance routines by LeRoy Prinz deserve mention, as does the fast-paced direction of Lewis Milestone. The audience is carried headlong from amusing escapades to diverting songs, and from spectacular night club scenes to madcap comedy.

Crosby is a knight errant aboard a transatlantic liner. His borrowed passport gets him into trouble, for it belongs to a public enemy. That passport forces him to tumble in and out of sundry disguises with hilarious consequences. The whole ship becomes a madhouse of fun, when Crosby stops at nothing to divest passengers of their costumes. In the end, he gets his reward with an elusive romance.

'Anything Goes' is amusing entertainment through and through. It is heartily recommended to one and all.

Mrs. C. T. Tankersley says that that bunch of fishermen who went down into the Big Bend country on a fishing expedition a couple of weeks ago were too modest to do, any talking but that they brought back a couple of fine fish, one weighing 23 pounds, caught by Cody Bragg and one weighing 25 pounds caught by one A. M. Cade.

Sen. W. H. Bledsoe
Died Monday Eve

Former Senator W. H. Bledsoe, 66, died at his home in Lubbock Monday night at 11:03 o'clock of pneumonia, which developed from a cold contracted a week before. For a year and a half he had been in very ill health, having suffered a light stroke of paralysis in 1934 and having suffered from a cerebral ailment since.

Funeral services were conducted at the home Wednesday afternoon, with Rev. W. P. Jennings of Plainview, former pastor of the First Christian Church of Lubbock, and Dr. J. M. Lewis, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Lubbock, officiating. A number of Tahoka friends attended the funeral.

Senator Bledsoe was for a number of years an outstanding member of the Lower House of the Legislature at Austin. He was then elected to the Senate and soon became one of the leading members of that body. His ability, resourcefulness and powers of leadership won him statewide recognition, and for a number of years he wielded a powerful influence in the government and in the political life of this state.

He, as a member of the Senate, and R. M. Chittwood of Sweetwater, as a member of the House, were authors of the measure which created the Texas Technological College, and they were primarily responsible for its passage.

Judge Bledsoe was not only eminent in the field of statecraft but he was an able lawyer and for many years was one of the leading practitioners at the bar throughout West Texas. He had hundreds of friends and admirers among the members of the Bench and the Bar throughout Texas and thousands of them in the other walks of life.

The News genuinely regrets the passing of this able and useful citizen.

SINGING AT CENTRAL

There will be singing at Central Church, 10 miles east of Tahoka, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. M. E. McCord announces. New books have been received and the people of that community are seeking to revive their regular singings. The general public is invited.

Baptist Pastor Is Preaching Series

The pastor, Rev. George A. Dale, preached the fourth of his series of sermons on the story of the Prodigal Son last Sunday night. The subject was Realization of Sin, suggested by the statement that he 'came to himself.'

The subject next Sunday night will be Unconfessed Sin, suggested by the attitude of the elder brother. Sunday school attendance was off a bit last Sunday. A little visitation and work on the part of teachers, officers, and others is expected to bring out a better attendance next Sunday. There is a fine class for every age at the church and an excellent class for men at the English Theatre.

The W. M. U. Circles had a joint meeting at the Church Monday afternoon, and the pastor gave a skeleton outline of the book of St. John together with some of the peculiarities of this book.

The pastor is bringing some fine studies at the mid-week prayer meeting. If at all possible, you should be there next Wednesday night.

Excellent song service and helpful sermon each Sunday morning. The pastor and the church extends you an invitation to be present next Sunday morning.

R. E. Barnett and family, who have been living on the West place north of town, left last week for Artesia, New Mexico, to make their home.
