Galloway to Get Gate Along With Benton, Sullivan and Steengrafe

When they step out on the field next year you won't recognize the Spudders.

You may take that for granted, for the simple reason that J. Alvin Gardner, president of the club, is planning a wholesale shakeup during the winter that will remove from the roster practically all of the oldtimers and most of the new ones, who have been on the scene only a season or two.

You may take it for granted that not one of the warriors, who set Wichita baseball mad with its Texas league and Dixie series conquest in 1927, will be on hand for the start of spring training next March. It is just possible there will be one of two exceptions, but even that is not probable.

Prexy Gardner admits that some deals have been made, but for various reasons announcement is being withheld; others are in the making and still others are not likely to be consummated until the winter meeting of the minor leagues.

Old Favorites Go

The clean sweep is not likely to be restricted to the playing ranks, either. Though Prexy J. Alvin Gardner and Manager Jim Galloway both declare that nothing has been done in regard to the pilot's position for 1930, it is a near certainty that Bad News Jim will not

CALLS SWAMP POLE SITTER

Benny Fox Turns in Fire Alarm Monday

One thousand two hundred and eighty-five telephone calls and two long-distance messages in the first eight hours of his test was the record established by Benny Fox, world's champion flagpole sitter, who ascended the pole on top of the Marshman hotel at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The two long-distance calls came from Walters, Okla., both about the same time shortly before 9 o'clock Monday night.

Benny predicts over 3,000 calls during the first 24 hours of his stay. He had little time to read or rest Monday afternoon or evening, he said in a telephone conversation with The Record News, being kept busy answering the calls which came in at the rate of one every 30 seconds, according to the reports of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company. He answered questions varying from the time of day to what he was thinking about as he sat there. Some of the queries were interesting, some funny, some difficult and mostly inane.

When asked what he would do in case of rain, Benny answered, "Sit here and get wet." He has no raincoat and only a leather jacket to don in case it becomes cold. The perch is decidedly uncomfortable, he said, especially in view of the fact that movement is limited to a few square inches and that he is locked to the pole. The Record News reporter spent the better part of 30 minutes before he could catch Benny's telephone when the line was not busy.

COUNCIL VOTES $1.40 TAX RATE FOR NEW YEAR

Levy Held to Same Figure As Last Year by Transferring Sewer Tax

PATTON BALKS PORT

Expenditures for Improving Kell Field Delayed By One Vote

Setting the city tax rate at $1.40 on the $100 property valuation the same figure as that of last year, the city council Monday night passed, unanimously an ordinance providing for the division of this tax among the various expenses and funds of the city.

It was pointed out that the tax of eight cents, formerly levied for maintenance of sewer facilities, had been removed from the taxes or property owners and had been put into other levies which required more money for operation than was formerly collected. The sewer tax was replaced by having the disposal plant operated by the revenue from the water department and the tax rate, therefore, was not raised. Raising of the rate would have been necessary if the sewer maintenance had not been transferred to the water department. The city tax rolls have been completed in the office of W. Ralph Hyer, city and school tax assessor and collector, and it remained only for the council to set the rate.

Airport Balked

Balked in their effort to pass the airport ordinance on an emergency by the "no" vote of Alderman J. H. Patton, the council was forced to accept the defeat on the second reading of the ordinance and pass it over until the third reading next Monday night, when a majority vote will pass the measure.

Alderman's Patton's vote was the only dissenting note in the council's plans to provide $10,011 for operating, maintaining and improving the Municipal airport which was taken over by the city government Aug. 1. Heated argument followed the expression of disagreement and several of the councilmen almost rose to their feet in attempting to explain the advantages of an airport of the modern type for the city. Alderman Patton's only reply was:

Opposes Expense

"I don't think the city should spend money out there on that prairie. A man is entitled to his own opinion and that is mine."

The argument continued while Alderman Patton remained impassive. It was pointed out that any city of any size needs an airport and should have one, operated and maintained by the city. Several of the aldermen described such dis-

Discussion of Choking Gets 'Scientific' In Earle Peacox Trial

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 23.—If, and when, an individual is choked to death there is a certain manner and method to be pursued ere it becomes a thoroughly uncomfortable, to say lethal ceremony.

At least one so gathered from a discussion in the old court room at White Plains this afternoon, during the trial of youthful Earle Peacox for the murder of his wife, Dolly, last April, which proceeding will hit its high spot tomorrow morning when Peacox takes the stand in his own behalf.

Under the amiable debate of Sydney A. Syme, the attorney for the defense, and Dr. Asmos O. Squires, the Westchester county medical expert, the process of choking the life out of an individual with the hands, seemed to lose some of its more morbid aspects, and took on the interest of a scientific experiment.

Where, and how, the fingers must be placed around the neck, and the amount of pressure to be employed was gone into at length by the attorney and the medico. The hyoid bones also came in for a good going over. It seems you can choke a party by grabbing him, or her, as the case may be, above or below these bones, and putting on the squeeze.

You see, the idea is that the state of New York has been trying to prove that Earle Peacox strangled his wife to death by what they call "manual strangulation," whereas Attorney Syme is endeavoring to show that she probably died of the knockdown that Peacox administered with a right hand punch, and that her killing was therefore more or less of an accident from a little family squabble born of jealous rage. The fact that the dead girl's tongue was out between her teeth is cited by the state as proof that she died of strangulation, but

Small, Selected Group Sees Coolidge Wedding

Florence Trumbull Becomes Wife of Former President's Son In Simple, Brief Ceremony

By BOYD LEWIS

PLAINVILLE, Conn., Sept. 23. (UP)—Major and Mrs. John Coolidge came tripping out of the First Congregational church here today.

The major's wife, who a few minutes before had been Florence Trumbull, smiled graciously at the throng of spectators massed around the church entrance. As for the major, he blushed and stumbled.

It was a great day for Plainville—the wedding day of John Coolidge, son of the ex-president, and Florence Trumbull, the governor's daughter. Fully 10,000 persons were crowded around the old church when the bridal party arrived.

Cal Displays Grin

First came the big car carrying Calvin Coolidge and his wife. The former president grinned broadly and the crowd cheered. Mrs. Coolidge waved a gloved hand and the crowd cheered again.

Governor Trumbull and Mrs. Trumbull got out of the next car. Another big cheer from the spectators. Then John and Florence jumped out of the Trumbull car and scurried into the protecting privacy of a long, brown canvas canopy, leading from the street to the church door.

A moment later the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march came pealing from the church.

Eighty Guests

Inside were about 80 selected guests. Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge sat in the front pew, along with Mr. and Mrs. Trumbull.

John and Florence marched slowly down to the altar, where the Rev. A. Kenneth Wells awaited. As the procession neared the altar, Florence turned slightly and smiled to her mother. John also glanced sidewise and exchanged a smile with his mother.

The ceremony was brief. John and Florence repeated the words after the minister in firm, even tones. Florence promised to love, comfort and honor her husband. The ritual doesn't ask that she obey him. John gave his bride a wedding ring set with 13 diamonds.

Members of the wedding party left the church as quickly as they had come. Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, when they emerged from the brown canopy, looked very solemn.

Lindbergh Lands In Dutch Guiana

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 23. (AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, at 4:20 o'clock this afternoon, adding to his record the accomplishment of a new airmail line, bringing the northeastern coast of South America closer to the United States by 14 days than heretofore.

Earth Tremors Break Dishes in Kansas Town

MANHATTAN, Kan., Sept. 23. (INS)—Dishes were broken and pictures shaken from the walls by two distinct earth tremors which aroused residents here early today. The first shock was felt at 4 o'clock; the second at 5 o'clock. Earth tremors are not uncommon in this area, according to A. B. Sperry, geologist of the Kansas State Agricultural college.

Judge Freed on Charge Of Drunken Driving

OKMULGEE, Okla., Sept. 23. (UP)—Judge P. L. Gasoway, of the Coalgate district court, was freed of a charge of driving his automobile while intoxicated by a directed verdict of a jury in Okmulgee district court today. The charge was filed during the last campaign when Gasoway was running for the supreme court.

DONLEY CHILD LOST 30 HOURS

300 Men and Airplane in Search for Boy of 3

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, Sept. 23.—Buster Gray, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gray, missing since late Sunday afternoon, was found early tonight sleeping peacefully by the roadside three miles from his home, which is 16 miles northeast of here. "I knew daddy would find me," he boy cried when found by anxious searchers.

He had left his home, he said, to look for some older playmates. He had spent the night sleeping on the road and had had no food in over 28 hours. The ordeal had not affected him, apparently, his parents said.

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, Sept. 23.—More than 300 people, residents of Clarendon, McLean, Alanreed, Lelia Lake and the Naylor community in the northeast section of Donley county have searched since Sunday afternoon for Buster, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gray.

The youngster had wandered away from the home about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon and was clad only in a pair of striped unionalls when last seen. He has brown eyes and answers readily when called.

An airplane was called from Amarillo and searched the canyons for more than two hours without any result today. Bobby Deuel, the pilot is connected with the T.A.T. of Amarillo.

The family thinks that the child was probably carried away and asks anyone who sees a youngster answering the description to notify them at Clarendon, care of Van Eaton's ranch.

CRASH KILLS TWO

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 23. (UP)—Dr. Conrad Cantrill, 30, dentist here, and Paul Shouse, 26, son of a Greenfield, Mo., banker were killed today when their motor car crashed into a freight train at a suburban crossing. Robert Daugherty, 25, was injured critically.

POLICE CHIEF FIRES OFFICER FOR SHOOTING

Burns Releases Thornton After Fleeing Man Is Wounded

WARNING GIVEN

Police Can Use Guns Only In "Dire Necessity," Says Chief

Investigation into the wounding of Perry Cowan, shot through the arm late Saturday night during a police raid on an alleged dice game near the Scott avenue bridge, resulted in the discharge of Elmer Thornton, city plainclothes officer who fired the shot, it was announced Monday by Frank Burns, chief of police.

In a conference Monday morning with George D. Fairtrace, city manager, Chief Burns pointed out that it is a regulation of the department that "unjustified shooting" on the part of an officer is equivalent to automatic discharge. The wounding of Cowan, he said, was found to have been unjustified. The entire department has been instructed many times, Chief Burns said, never to use guns except in case of "dire necessity."

The investigation further revealed that following the shooting, Cowan did not stop but ran on until he reached his home. Officers Thornton and Tom Poe brought the others arrested in the game to headquarters for questioning. A call to the station later notified police that Cowan had been wounded and was at home. City Detective W. E. McDonald was then sent to the home to take Cowan to the hospital.

Cowan's condition Monday was reported better. Physicians stated that parts of the bullet had lodged in the arm although the main part of the missle had gone through, fracturing the bone of the right arm above the elbow.

Ousted Lawton Councilman Files Answer to Board

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Sept. 23.—Another emphatic episode was recorded in municipal politics today when C. R. Simpson, whose seat was last Tuesday night declared vacated on a charge of drunkenness, filed with the city clerk a written request addressed to the mayor and city council, asking that all acts and proceedings of the council taken at said meeting with reference to his case be set aside and held for naught.

The document sets forth that any city official against whom charges are preferred is entitled to a hearing and that written charges shall first have been preferred against him, that he is entitled to be represented by counsel.

New Memorial Coins Sought in House Bill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Coinage of half dollars to commemorate the 125th anniversary of the Lewis and Clark expedition into the northwest territory was asked in a bill today by Representative Hudspeth, Democrat, Texas.

Governor Accused

Gov. Flem D. Sampson of Kentucky is charged with receiving gifts from publishers of text books. He will go on trial in October.

PARKINS GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

Wichitan Also Fined $250 In Barratry Case

Paul E. Parkins, local insurance man, was sentenced to 45 days in jail and fined $250 Monday afternoon when a jury in the county court at law found him guilty of barratry charges. Perkins was indicted in July along with E. A. Martin, Wichita Falls attorney, who is named in four separate counts and against whom disbarment papers were entered Monday afternoon. The attorney is to be brought to trial Tuesday afternoon in the first barratry count.

Brief Hearing

Trial of the case Tuesday afternoon required only a few hours, the defense offering no testimony beyond the cross-examination of state witnesses. Wayne Somerville, county attorney, represented the state and Bob Crain was counsel for the defense.

The basis for the state's case was laid in the testimony of Mrs. Lena E. McCarty, widow of John A. McCarty, who died in a local hospital on June 30 of this year. Mrs. McCarty told the jury that on the day after the funeral of her husband, four men, including the defendant and E. A. Martin, came to her brother-in-law's home near Iowa Park and proposed the employment of Martin as attorney to collect insurance on a policy held with the Mutual Benefit Health and Accident Association. The visitors stayed three hours, Mrs. McCarty said, and left taking with them a contract which gave Martin the power of attorney and promised him 25 per cent of any money collected whether or not a suit were filed.

New Trial Sought

Others who testified for the state were Dr. P. L. Woodall, E. W. Wright, brother-in-law of Mrs. McCarty, and a neighborhood child, Gladys Washington.

In his cross examination, Mr. Crain sought to prove that Parkins had been merely a spectator. The defense counsel announced immediately after the verdict was read that he would file a motion for a new trial.

Miller Huggins Not Expected to Survive

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (UP)—Miller Huggins, diminutive manager of the New York Yankees team, was not expected by physicians to live through the night at St. Vincent's hospital, where he is suffering from influenza and erysipelas.

Physicians were fighting hard for the popular manager who made the Yankees one of the outstanding baseball machines of all times, but they were despondent, and feared that he could not withstand the desperate illness that attacked him.

Passing of Archbishop Mourned by All France

PARIS, Sept. 23. (UP)—All of France mourned with Paris tonight as the archbishop of the metropolis lay dead. Louis Ernest Cardinal Dubois, archbishop of Paris and third in seniority of the seven French cardinals, died at 5:20 p. m. today, several hours after he had dropped into a coma.

House Recesses Again After Brief Session

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Convening after an all summer recess, the house today held a nine-minute session and recessed until Thursday without transacting any business.

Texas College President Attacked By Javelina, Mascot of Team

KINGSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 23. (AP)—Dr. R. B. Cousins, president of the Texas College of Arts and Industries here, was confined to his home today as a result of injuries suffered late yesterday when he was attacked by a javelina while walking on the school campus.

The wild hog, a mascot of the college football team, escaped from its pen, and attacked as Doctor Cousins passed. The college president received gashes on the leg from the hog's three-inch tusks and was bitten on the hand several times.

The animal's head was sent to the Pasteur institute at Austin for examination. Another javelina in the pen was killed.

MATCH TOSSED INTO COTTON STARTS FIRE

Harvey Sample Room and Farris Barber Shop Also Wrecked

TWO-HOUR BATTLE

Central Seed and Feed Company Heavy Loser In Blaze

Flames which spread with such rapidity that they formed a wall of fire about a man who was telephoning the fire department destroyed the building occupied by the Central Seed and Feed company, a cotton sample room of K. O. Harvey and company and damaged a barber shop owned by Coy Farris at 418 Indiana avenue about 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. Damage in the spectacular blaze was estimated at nearly $50,000.

The blaze broke out when a carelessly tossed match fell into some cotton in the sample room of the Harvey company. The tiny room, measuring about 10 by 12 feet, was crowded. S. D. Johnson, operator of a cotton gin at K. M. A. saw the match drop into the cotton and attempted to grab up the large bundle of burning material, but the blaze seared his face and hands and he was forced to drop it.

Fire Spreads Rapidly

An attempt was made to recover a sum of paper money and checks which were in a cash register, but the flames were gaining rapidly and they were forced to flee. Only Mr. Johnson remained behind to call the fire department. When he turned from the telephone to leave, he found a wall of flames between him and the door. He dashed through, his hat and clothing being scorched.

By the time the group had left the sample room, the fire had spread with amazing rapidity through the walls into the feed company, where hundreds of bales of hay and sacks of feed and seed were stored. By some freak, the fire spread to the large space occupied by the feed company and did not enter the small barber shop which was separated from the blaze by only a thin wall. Damage in the barber shop amounted to about $100, due to water and because of the removal of all fixtures, according to Mr. Farris, the owner.

The Harvey company's sample room suffered damage amounting to about $500, according to fire department officials. Nothing was saved from this room due to the explosive-like rapidity of the flames. Jim Hannay, manager of the sample room, was unable to state the exact amount of money and checks in the cash register.

Smoke Hampers Firemen

Total damage to the feed company amounted to between $40,000 and $50,000, according to Ira Mike, owner. A real estimate cannot be obtained, he said, until it is determined how much of the stock can be retrieved. Damage to three incubators in the hatchery department of the company will amount to about $3,000. Several other incubators were damaged only on the outer portion by water.

Firemen were hampered at several points by the dense acrid smoke issuing from the smouldering feed and hay. The fire reached down into the depths of tall stacks of baled hay and the firemen were forced to tear down the stacks in order to reach the smouldering interior. Five companies fought the blaze for almost two hours, their hose making a labyrinthian maze on the streets, tying up traffic and preventing several cars from leaving the scene. Hundreds of spectators gathered around the place and police were kept busy directing traffic and aiding the firemen. Volunteer workers aided at several points in carrying hose and removing smouldering bales of hay to the street.

Allison Is Speaker At Advertising Convention

DALLAS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Various phases of advertising, including the telephone and the radio, were discussed here today by speakers at the annual convention of the 10th district, Advertising Federation of America. Approximately 200 delegates attended the session, presided over by Lorry Jacobs of Dallas, first vice president of the district. Speakers to address the afternoon session included James H. Allison, vice president of the Wichita Falls Daily Times.

PEACOX'S ALIBI GIRL QUIZZED

State Closes Evidence in "Torch Murder" Case

Attorney Syme got Doctor Squires to admit that this was not actual proof of choking.

"Lift" Demonstrated

The crinkly-haired attorney, who is said to have defended another case of a fellow choking his wife to death 20-odd years back, and lost it, went through a demonstration of what he called the "fireman's lift," showing how Peacox had carried the body out of the flat, and Doctor Squires said it was possible that the girl's tongue might have fallen between her teeth during the carrying.

Doctor Squires also admitted that the chemist's examination had disclosed no traces of ether in the body, but he said ether very quickly disappears. The state has been trying to set up that Peacox used ether in the towel that he wrapped around the dead girl's head, though the defense claims this towel was merely to keep the blood from dripping.

After both Syme, and District Attorney Coyne had plied Doctor Squires with questions at length, they both released him, and Judge Tompkins, who seemed a bit impatient with the boys all afternoon, said ...-like:

"And get away from here as soon as you can, doctor."

Slouched far down in his chair, the slim fingers that the state claims throttled the life out of Dolly Peacox toying idly with a pencil, Earle listened to the proceedings today with no great show of interest. The state rested at 2:50 o'clock, and Attorney Syme made a perfunctory motion for dismissal of the indictment which charges murder in the first degree, on the ground that the state had shown no premeditation, but Judge Tompkins said the jury would pass on that, and during his attorney's remarks, Peacox aroused from his lethargy, and listened expectantly.

Earle Has New Tie

He was still wearing the same rusty looking suit of black clothing that he has worn from the beginning of the trial, but he sported a sassy looking bow tie today instead of a four-in-hand. He keeps his face clean shaven. But he is one of those dark-complected fellows whose jowls always come up blue-black from the razor.

Frances Newman, the "alibi girl" who had been hobnobbing with Peacox after he and his wife split up, and who had obligingly agreed to tell a yarn for him that he expected would help him out in the event he was suspected of the murder of Dolly, was recalled to the stand today by Attorney Syme, and questioned with reference to certain discrepancies in what she had told on the witness stand, and what she said in a written statement.

This discrepancy had to do with Peacox's language referring to his wife. On the witness stand, Frances said he had declared he "would get her some day." In a written statement she had said his remark was "she would get hers some day." The written statement had been handed to her while she was on the stand as a witness for the state, and she was told to read it carefully, but her oral testimony came out different.

"Why did you change it?" demanded Attorney Syme, and as she failed to answer at once, he said, "I want the record to show that the witness hesitated."

Judge Tompkins took a hand in questioning the somewhat bewildered Frances, and finally she said:

"I thought it was the same thing."

Attorney Syme tried to get in a couple of questions such as "Don't you know you were testifying against a man who might be electrocuted," but Judge Tompkins wagged his grizzled head no to these.

The girl, who was an employe in a Broadway dance hall when she met Peacox, had on a fancy colored light dress this afternoon that looked very summery. It wasn't the same dress she had on Friday, which she said was purchased for her by the detectives. This one was quite flouncy. She also wore a different hat, a gray felt, tight fitting around her muddy blond hair. She had on a lot of gew-gaws, such as a pin that shone brightly as a vagrant ray of sunshine hit it from a side window, and a cheap bracelet. Her small voice was even smaller than when she was first on the stand, and Judge Tompkins had to lean over and asked her to repeat her answers on several occasions.

Mishaps Take Human Toll

Bowie, Vernon and Frederick Report Tragedy

A drowning near Vernon, a series of automobile accidents at Bowie and a farm mishap near Frederick, Okla., had exacted a toll of two dead and 10 injured Monday night.

Clarence Daugherty, 10, was probably fatally injured in an accident on a farm near Frederick late Monday.

Floyd Barton, 16, was drowned in a tank near Vernon Sunday.

Reed Couch, 10, was fatally injured at Bowie when an automobile struck his bicycle.

FREDERICK BOY SERIOUSLY HURT

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 23.—Dragged beneath the wheels of a motor truck when the cotton sack he had attached to his body became entangled on the vehicle, Clarence Daugherty, 10, was probably fatally injured today.

The boy, son of A. N. Daugherty, was riding on the truck with W. E. Holcomb on the latter's farm 14 miles southeast of Frederick, when he leaped to the ground, catching the cotton sack on the truck. The wheels rolled over his chest and abdomen.

Physicians at the Frederick hospital held little hope for the boy's recovery as they prepared Monday night to perform an operation in an effort to save his life.

DROWNING VICTIM'S BURIAL AT VERNON

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 23.—Funeral services were held here this afternoon for Floyd Barton, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Barton of Vernon, who drowned while swimming in the Bourland tank, five miles east of here, Sunday afternoon.

As his companions disappeared behind a small hill to dress after the swim, young Barton dove in for a final plunge and apparently was stricken with cramps. He called for help, but when his companions arrived death had overtaken the swimmer.

Two hours later the body was recovered by a searching party which had been led to the spot by Barton's companions. The youth is survived by his parents and two sisters, Ethel and Eva.

BOWIE BOY KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Special to The Record News.

BOWIE, Texas, Sept. 23.—Funeral arrangements were being made late today for Reed Couch, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lamb Couch of Bowie, and nine other persons were recovering from injuries of various degree—all the result of automobile accidents in and near this city late Sunday and Monday.

Young Couch is to be buried Tuesday afternoon, it was announced from his home, but further plans had not been made.

The youth was fatally injured Monday morning when an automobile struck a bicycle he and his brother, Roy, 12, were riding to school. The automobile was driven by Miss Thelma Crain, home economics teacher in the school the boys were riding to.

As the boys were peddling down one of the main streets, the wheels of the bicycle encountered heavy gravel and became unmanageable, witnesses said, and before they could steer clear of the middle of the road, the automobile bore down on them. The accident was described as wholly unavoidable.

Miss Crain alighted from her car, placed the fatally injured youth in the automobile and rushed to the hospital. He died about two and one half hours later. His brother was shaken up, but not seriously hurt.

J. H. Jackson and Arthur Scruggs are recovering in a hospital here from injuries sustained in a pile-up of seven automobiles on the Bellevue road four miles from here Sunday evening. Six other persons were less seriously injured and went their way after receiving emergency treatment here.

This accident occurred when two cars smashed just over the brow of a hill. As the view was obstructed, the other cars piled headlong into the ditch.

HARRY ADAIR'S JURY SELECTED

Slaying of Temple Marshal Laid to Defendant

Special to The Record News.

WALTERS, Okla., Sept. 23.—A jury of 12 men, all subject to challenge by either state or prosecution, had been selected when court adjourned late today in the trial of Harry Adair on a charge of murder in connection with the death last May of City Marshall J. D. Graham of Temple, near here.

In event challenge should decrease the number of the jurors, the court late today ordered a special venire of 40 men to appear Tuesday morning. Eighty-two men of a regular venire of 86 were used in securing the tentative jury today.

Adair is charged with shooting the Temple officer to death after the latter had told Adair, alleged to have been intoxicated, to go home. Evidence at the preliminary hearing May 13 sought to show that Adair returned to his home, secured a gun and sought out the officer on the main street in Temple. The officer was shot in the head and killed instantly.

Questioning of veniremen today indicated that the death penalty will be asked and that the defendant will plead self defense.

The trial is attracting much interest.

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Sept. 23.—Six jurors had been selected in the case of Virgil Pointer up to 6 o'clock Monday afternoon, and the special venire of 60 men was just about exhausted. Pointer is charged with the murder of his brother, John, alleged to have been committed last June 16 between Turkey and Quitaque.

How a Family Doctor made Millions of Friends

FIFTEEN years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became one of the best-known members of his profession. A single prescription made him famous. And for forty years it has continued to make friends.

As fast as people could tell others about the marvelous way this prescription corrects constipation and relieves other troubles caused by sluggish bowels, demand for it spread until Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it filled in quantities; bottled and distributed through drug stores.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people would never think of using anything else when they're headachy, bilious, feverish, or weak; when breath is bad, tongue is coated or they are suffering from nausea, from gas, or lack of appetite, etc.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as you buy it from your drug store is made in accordance with the original formula from only herbs and other pure ingredients. It is pleasant tasting; its action is thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children. Above all, it represents a doctor's choice of what is safe for the bowels.

POLE SITTER ENJOYS MUSIC

Ear Phones Bring Pole Sitter Entertainment

Benny is enjoying music from a phonograph and radio in the hotel below. He read The Daily Times Monday afternoon and said that he intended to keep up with the news through The Record News and Times each morning and evening.

His meals will be served only twice a day, at 6 a. m. and at 8 p. m., prepared under the direction of his wife, who is a graduate nurse. Mrs. Fox and their 11-months'-old boy have a room in the hotel. Between the two meals, Benny will be served milk or other light foods when he becomes hungry, he said.

When a fire broke out in the Central Feed and Seed company about 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, Benny saw the dense columns of smoke and immediately called the fire department, his alarm reaching the fire station only a few moments behind that of the persons at the fire. His view from the lofty perch is excellent, he said, and he obtains great pleasure from watching the hurry and bustle of humanity below him as he sits in solitude and contemplation, when a lull in telephone messages allows.

He will not remain on the pole longer than 100 hours unless he can by doing so obtain money which he can donate to charity organizations, as he has done at several other cities where he made endurance tests, he said. In the event his remaining there longer than four days, four nights and four hours will bring money for such a purpose, he will gladly remain, he declared.

"If the weather remains as it was Monday afternoon," Benny said, "it will be quite unusual, for about 50 per cent of the weather in my other tests was disagreeable. My wife is afraid of the changeable weather in Texas, since I went through a cyclone at one time in Central Texas."

GENEVA HASTE DRAWS SCORN

Conference's Hurry Called 'Scandal'

GENEVA, Sept. 23. (AP)—The League of Nations assembly moved on toward adjournment at such a pace today it drew rebukes from delegations of Great Britain, Canada and Norway.

Rushing of the assembly's work during the last few days of the session has become a scandal, Lord Cecil told the disarmament committee, while Sir George Foster condemned the "haste to get home—or other places."

Dr. Lange of Norway insisted the three items under consideration today by the committee should not be considered, as proposed, in a plenary session this afternoon and this move for retarding the pace of the proceedings was adopted.

THE New PACKARD STANDARD EIGHTS

offer the outstanding luxury, comfort and engineering improvements which the world expects from Packard

THE new Packard Standard Eights offer important engineering advances and greatly enriched fittings and appointments. They are more beautiful, more convenient, more luxurious than ever before.

These superb cars, outstanding in the fine car field, are now on display at our show rooms. We want you to see them—drive them and then compare them point by point with your ideal of what a truly fine car ought to be.

You will find that they differ from the costlier Packards only in size, power and degree of individuality available in color, upholstery and details of appointment. For the new Standard Eights are Packards through and through—distinguished, smooth and fleet.

Eleven Roomy and Luxurious Models

The new Packard Standard Eight line includes eleven beautiful body types. Prices at the factory range from $2375 for the popular Five-Passenger Sedan to $2775 for the Seven-Passenger Sedan-Limousine.

All models embody the new inside, adjustable sun visors, adjustable driver's seat and steering gear, newly-perfected shatter-proof glass, dashboard lockers—and the improved powerplant with its four-speed transmission and still further refined Packard straight-eight engine.

Packard Transportation Costs No More

If you want a new Packard Standard Eight there is no reason why you should not have it. Operation and maintenance costs are not greater because first cost is more. Even if first cost is twice as much, final cost is no greater if the better car is driven twice as long.

Analyze ownership costs in the light of these facts and you will find that you, too, can enjoy the luxury of Packard transportation—at no greater expense.

Thousands of motorists have found this true. Two out of three who buy Packard Standard Eights give up other makes of cars to do so!

We cordially invite you to see the new Packard Standard Eights—and to drive one. We will gladly explain the costs of ownership, so that you can compare them with your present motoring expenses. Your old car will be accepted as cash, and you may buy out of income if you prefer.

session as "unprogressive and behind-the-times."

The matter was dropped shortly thereafter and the regular business of the meeting resumed. In the reading of the ordinance, it was pointed out that only a small amount of the appropriation would go for improvements from which the city would realize no revenue. It was shown that $4,400 of the money would be used for gasoline and oil which would be sold at the port. The $1,200 set for a passenger waiting room would be paid out by charging a rental of $25 monthly for use of the room. The other larger amounts would be used in providing an office, a gas line and sidewalks, and in paying salaries and wages, the remainder to go for smaller items and miscellaneous needs of the port. City Clerk W. E. McBroom pointed out that in the month of August, the port lacked only $15 of paying for its own maintenance.

Employe's Claim Heard

A report from the committee appointed to investigate the claim of H. L. Robinson, who was alleged to have suffered total blindness in the employ of the city, stated that the city was not legally liable but suggested that the council give him $1,000 in view of his long service and low wage. The aldermen suggested that the payment be made in monthly allowances instead of a lump sum, since the city could not legally pay the latter if it were not legally liable. The matter was referred to City Attorney Thelbert Martin who will report on the legal status of the case.

J. L. Jackson Jr., representing the property owners on Ohio avenue, came before the council asking that a joint meeting of the members of the equalization board and the complaining taxpayers be arranged so that the latter could present their reasons for desiring a lower tax and the board reconsider the values set. This matter was referred to City Manager George D. Fairtrace with the instruction to arrange a date for such a meeting with the members of the board, probably to be held following the council meeting next Monday night.

A suggestion that the curb in the center of the street on Ninth street from Van Buren west should be removed and the street car tracks lowered was made by Mayor J. W. Akin. It was pointed out that the danger of automobile accidents on that street made it advisable to remove the curbing and lower the tracks in the same manner as in the case of Ninth street east of Van Buren. The matter was taken into consideration by the aldermen and will be considered more definitely at a later meeting.

The main business of the meeting will be the announcement of details concerning the 1929 chest campaign and the annual election of officers and board members. A. E. Kelly, executive director of the campaign, will state the amount which will have to be raised and the dates for the campaign. J. T. Harrell, president of the chest, will give a short talk outlining the activities and achievements of the organization during the past year.

WOMAN'S DEATH BRINGS PROBE

Officers Study Circumstances of Mishap

HOUSTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Despite the inquest verdict today that the death of Mrs. Letia Hayes, 40, of Port Arthur, was due to an automobile accident, the Liberty county sheriff's department was conducting an investigation.

Mrs. Hayes was found in a dying condition on the Beaumont-Houston highway between Devers and Liberty. Four boys who brought her to a hospital here said they found her lying on the roadside.

P. A. Olive and J. A. Campbell, Port Arthur refinery employes, said their automobile figured in a minor collision with another car and that when they got out of their machine they saw the woman lying near the road. They sped to Devers to call an ambulance.

Liberty county officers were working on the theory Mrs. Hayes was riding in the car that collided with Olive's machine and she was thrown out by the impact.

Four Arrested In Sheriff's Liquor Raid

A few minutes after they arrested John Bemrod in the act of hurling a half gallon jar of alleged whisky against the street curb, deputy sheriffs Monday afternoon returned with a search warrant for the house Bemrod had left, adding three prisoners to their capture and seizing a glass pitcher full of liquor.

Charges of the possession of whisky were filed against Bemrod before United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz. Bemrod later was released under a $500 bond.

Rebecca Rogers Charge Dismissed

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Sept. 23. (UP)—Judge J. B. Price today allowed a motion by the state to dismiss the arson charge against Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, former Texas university coed, whose trial on a charge of robbery with firearms ended in a hung jury at New Braunfels last week.

The arson charge grew out of the burning of a building at Round Rock, Texas, Sept. 10, 1926. Becky was subsequently tried, the state contending that she fired the building to distract attention of citizens so that she might rob the Farmer's State bank. The trial ended when the jury failed to agree on a verdict.

1000 Brook — Call for Information 4360

Last week new Cadillacs, LaSalles and Fleetwoods were presented to the public and were immediately recognized as unprecedented triumphs in fine car perfection and value. Whatever car you own or hope to own, ride in these new models. In every major and minor factor they entirely supersede the highest standards and ideals that previously prevailed.

Nowhere else in the world can you find what these new cars offer

THE new Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods presented last week are new models from end to end, inside and out. They offer, however, something far more than mere newness. In sum total they represent an actual far-reaching achievement in engineering, body designing and value-giving.

To say that Cadillac has surpassed itself is to say that there is literally nothing in the highest field of motoring with which to compare them.

Offered at a lower and wider price range for every one of the 50 new body styles they vastly extend the Cadillac-La Salle-Fleetwood market.

If you have not already inspected these new cars, be prepared for the most beautiful examples of body designing that have ever left the Fisher-Fleetwood studios. Be prepared for larger, roomier, and still more comfortable interiors, lavishly and luxuriously finished and appointed.

Be prepared, when you take the wheel, for a more flexible V-type, 8-cylinder engine delivering still greater power.

And above all, be prepared for new driving and handling-ease that will prove nothing less than a revelation.

A wealth of features, improvements and refinements, clamor for inspection and a driving test. Take advantage of the opportunity that is gladly given you to drive these cars in traffic and on the road. Then draw your own conclusions.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values. Cadillac-La Salle delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

Clothes have Changed... so have Washdays

CLOTHES are prettier, but much daintier than they used to be. The family washing contains so many delicate garments that you hesitate to send it out to be subjected to ordinary laundering methods.

Let the Maytag wash them for you at home. It makes the weekly washing a pleasant task of an hour or so. The seamless, cast-aluminum tub and gyrafoam washing action wash so gently that dainty garments are safe....so thoroughly that no hand-rubbing is necessary even on soiled edges of collars and cuffs.

Thousands of Women

everywhere know that a Maytag saves time, clothes and money. Phone for a trial Maytag washing. If it doesn't sell itself, don't keep it. Deferred payments you'll never miss.

For homes with outdoor wiring, the Maytag is available with an built gasoline motor.

SHADOW THINGS

The strangest things I've ever seen
Are shadow figures on a screen.
They haven't legs or hands or feet;
In fact, they're not at all complete.
They really aren't alive, you know;
You sort of just imagine so.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

It is strange the sympathy that love of beauty engenders. Through such a sympathy, we had a view Sunday of a lovely home in Country Club estates.

While getting the names on a guest list, we called Mrs. Walter Campbell and while talking she spoke to us of her blue water lily. A lily that would not remain in blossom for many days, but unique in its color and beauty. We could not rest until we had seen it.

We cannot attempt to describe it. Taller by far than its humble pink and white sisters, it stood a graceful shaft of stem bearing a diadem of celestial blue that shaded toward the tips of the petals into a faint purplish tint. It was large as a dinner plate with a heart of gold. The broad leaves had been cleared from around its base, and deep in the placid water it looked upon itself, as lovely a reflection as ever tempted Narcissus.

Between the great pads of lily leaves, silver and gold fish darted their gleaming way. Mrs. Campbell whistled softly and stooping, dipped her hand in the water, holding a cracker. Like little flames they darted to her. At one time we counted 18 crowding to nibble the food.

Pink and white lilies lay peacefully on the bosom of the water; the green of a lawn as well sodded as if it had been there for years, covered the yard. Poplars stood graceful as nymphs of the forest. But in it all, there was nothing so beautiful as the lily of celestial blue.

Homes built now by people who can express themselves therein, are entrancing to lovers of personality. We were fortunate enough to become acquainted with the interior of such a home in Mrs. Campbell's lovely place. And we count ourselves fortunate that we went in through the kitchen. Just fancy kitchen cupboards lined with a rosy glow!

And the adorable ironwork in her dining room! The wrought iron covers for the shields, and leading from the dining room into the hall, double iron gates in a graceful make that suggested Spain though Mrs. Campbell said they were "made in Wichita."

Somehow we have always thought of Oriental rugs in terms of jewels and we walked on jewels to see some things that we wish everyone who loves beauty could see. We stepped down into the spacious drawing room to view a Chinese lacquer cabinet inlaid with brass carving that must have been in each line, two inches deep. A thing of beauty that Mrs. Campbell had made into one she might use, a desk. We doubt if there is another piece of furniture like it in the city.

Everything in Mrs. Campbell's home is the acme of good taste, but we must speak particularly of the old hooked rug that lay on the floor in her daughter's room. Time has taken from it a little brightness. You have seen sometimes, dear old ladies who wore a flush like a faded sweet pea in their cheeks? Somehow, this rug made us think of them. A lovely design in lovely colors. It almost made us break a commandment.

On the day bed in her own room lay a silk quilt in the log cabin pattern; another thing made more lovely by age, and an example of an almost extinct art.

We met "Jimmy" Campbell, as we left; that is what his friends call him. A tall, good looking, clean cut young American. We have never met Miss Dorothy Campbell. But we have seen her lovely little bluebonnet pictures at the forum and we know that she is a lover of art. And since we have met the mother and watched her greet her tall son and his friends; since we have seen her quiet dogs, and court gold fish, and stand at the windows that wear cool blinds in her upstairs rooms and look down lovingly at her blue lily, we do not wonder that in the forefront of the next generation of citizens, the young "Campbells are comin'."

Lucy Hansell W. M. S. Has Forum Luncheon

Members of the Lucy Hansel Woman's Missionary society entertained with a luncheon at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Monday at 12:30 o'clock for the first official meeting of the fall season.

Thick, wavy hair!

You, too, can have long, soft, abundant hair. It's simply a matter of using this easy method; approved by hair-specialists; endorsed by stars of stage and screen; used by millions who haven't time for the more laborious treatments.

Tonight when you arrange your hair, just put a little Danderine on your brush. Then as you draw the bristles through your hair, see how the scalp is toned and soothed. See how the hair becomes softer, easier to manage; how its natural color is brought out; how it takes on new brilliance and lustre!

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; helps stop falling hair; keeps hair and scalp healthy; encourages the growth of long, silky, abundant hair. Five million bottles used a year. That proves Danderine's effectiveness!

A book full of dictation, and she must go home; what can she tell her employer? One more girl who hasn't heard of Midol. In misery at least one day of every month, and a tiny tablet now banishes such pain in five to seven minutes! Not a narcotic, mind; nothing that has the slightest effect on the natural process of menstruation. Midol acts directly on the organs themselves, and avoids the painful part—the part that is not natural. You may have tried other things for relief at such a time, but ask about Midol; purse-size aluminum case is fifty cents.*

*Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

CHAPTER IX

Killing each separate louse is a tedious business when a man has hundreds. The little beasts are hard and the everlasting cracking with one's finger nails very soon becomes wearisome. So Tjaden has rigged up the lid of a boot-polish tin with a piece of wire over the lighted stump of a candle. The lice are simply thrown into this little pan. Crack! and they're done for.

We sit around with our shirts on our knees, our bodies naked to the warm air and our hands at work. Hale has a particularly fine brand of louse: they have a red cross on their heads. He suggests that he brought them back with him from the hospital at Thourout, where they attended personally on a surgeon-general. He says he means to use the fat that slowly accumulates in the tin-lid for polishing his boots, and roars with laughter for half an hour at his own joke.

But he hasn't much success today; we are too preoccupied with another affair.

The rumor has materialized. Himmelstoss has come. He appeared yesterday; we've already heard the well-known voice. He seems to have overdone it with a couple of young recruits on the ploughed field at home, and unknown to him the son of the local magistrate was watching. That cooked his goose.

He will meet some surprise here. Tjaden has been meditating for hours what to say to him. Hale gazes thoughtfully at his great paws and winks at me. The thrashing was the high-water mark of his life. He tells me he often dreams of it. Kropp and Muller are amusing themselves. From somewhere or other, probably the pioneer cookhouse, Kropp has bagged for himself a mess-tin full of bean... Muller squints hungrily into it but checks himself and says: "Albert, what would you do if it were suddenly peace time again?"

"There won't be any civil life," says Albert bluntly.

"Well, but if—" persists Muller, "what would you do?"

"Clear out of this!" growls Kropp.

"Of course. And then what?"

"Get drunk," says Albert.

"Don't talk rot. I mean seriously—"

"So do I," says Kropp, "what else should a man do?"

Kat becomes interested. He levies tribute on Kropp's tin of beans, swallows some, then considers for a while and says: "You might get drunk first, of course, but then you'd take the next train for home and mother. Peace time, man, Albert—"

He fumbles in his oil-cloth pocket-book for a photograph and suddenly shows it all around. "My old people!" Then he puts it back and swears: "Damned lousy war—"

"It's all very well for you to talk," I tell him. "You've a wife and children."

"True," he nods, "and I have to see to it that they've something to eat."

We laugh. "They won't lack for that, Kat, you'd scrounge it from somewhere."

Muller is insatiable and gives himself no peace. He wakes Hale Westhus out of his dream. "Hale, what would you do if it was peace time?"

"Give you a kick in the pants for the way you talk." I say. "How will it comes about exactly?"

"How does the manure come on the roof?" retorts Muller laconically, and turns to Hale Westhus again.

"Tjaden, I command you as your superior officer. Stand up!"

It is too much for Hale. He shakes his freckled head:

"You mean when the war's over?"

"Exactly. You've said it."

"Well, there'd be women of course, eh?"—Hale licks his lips.

"Sure."

"By jove, yes," says Hale, his face melting, "then I'd grab some good buxom dame."

Everyone is silent. At last Muller pulls himself together and says: "And then what?"

A pause. Then Hale explains rather awkwardly: "If I were a non-com, I'd stay with the Prussians and serve out my time."

"Hale, you've got a screw loose, surely!" I say.

"Have you ever dug peat?" he retorts good-naturedly. "You try it."

Then he pulls a spoon out of the top of his boot and reaches over into Kropp's mess-tin.

"It can't be worse than digging trenches," I venture.

Hale chews and grins: "It lasts longer though. And there's no getting out of it either."

"But, man, surely, it's better at home."

"Some ways," says he, and with open mouth sinks into a day-dream.

You can see what he is thinking. There is the mean little hut on the moors, the hard work on the heath from morning till night in the heat, the miserable pay, the dirty laborer's clothes.

In the army in peace time you've nothing to trouble about," he goes on, "your food's found every day, or else you kick up a row; you've a bed, every week clean underwear like a perfect gent, you do your non-com's duty, you have a good suit of clothes; in evening you're a free man and go off to the pub."

Hale is extraordinarily set on his idea. He's in love with it.

"And when your 12 years are up you get your pension and become a village bobby, and you walk about the whole day."

He's already sweating on it. "And just you think how you'd be treated. Here a dram, there a pint. Everybody wants to be well in with a bobby."

"You'll never be a non-com, though Hale," interrupts Kat.

Hale looks at him sadly and is silent. His thoughts still linger over the clear evenings in autumn, the Sundays in the heather, the village bells, the afternoons and evenings with the servant girls, and fried bacon hours in the ale-house—

He can't part with all these dreams so abruptly; he merely growls: "What silly questions you do ask."

He pulls his shirt over his head and buttons up his tunic.

"What would you do, Tjaden?" asks Kropp.

Tjaden thinks only of one thing. "See to it that Himmelstoss doesn't get past me."

Apparently he would like most to have him in a cage and sail into him with a club every morning. To Kropp he says warmly: "If I were in your place I'd see to it that I become a lieutenant. Then you could grind him till he yells."

"And you, Detering?" asks Muller like an inquisitor. He's a born school-master with all his questions.

Detering is sparing with his words. But on this subject he speaks. He looks at the sky and says only the one sentence: "I would go straight on with the harvesting."

Then he gets up and walks off.

He is worried. His wife has to look after the farm. They've already taken away two of his horses. Every day he reads the papers that come, to see whether it is raining in his little corner of Oldenburg. They haven't brought in the hay yet.

At this moment Himmelstoss appears. He comes straight up to our group. Tjaden's face turns red. He stretches his length on the grass and shuts his eyes in embarrassment.

Himmelstoss is a little hesitant, his gait becomes slower. Then he marches up to us. No one makes any motion to stand up. Kroop looks up at him with interest.

He continues to stand in front of us and wait. As no one says anything, he launches a "Well?"

A couple of seconds go by. Apparently Himmelstoss doesn't quite know what to do. He would like most to set us all on the run again. But he seems to have learned already that the front line isn't a parade ground. He tries it on though, and by addressing himself to one instead of to all of us hopes to get some response. Kroop is nearest, so he favors him.

"Well, you here, too?"

But Albert's no friend of his. "A bit longer than you, I fancy," he retorts.

The red moustache twiches: "You don't recognize me any more, what?"

Tjaden lifts his head. "I do, though."

Himmelstoss turns to him. "Tjaden, isn't it?"

Tjaden lifts his head. "And do you know what you are?"

Himmelstoss is disconcerted. "Since when have we become so familiar? I don't remember that we ever slept in the gutter together?"

He has no idea what to make of the situation. He didn't expect this open hostility. But he is on his guard; someone has already dinned some rot into him about getting a shot in the back.

The question about the gutter makes Tjaden so mad that he becomes almost witty: "No, you slept there by yourself."

Himmelstoss begins to boil. But Tjaden gets in ahead of him. He must bring off his insult: "Wouldn't you like to know what you are? A dirty hound, that's what you are. I've been wanting to tell you that for a long time."

The satisfaction of months shines in his dull pig's eyes as he spits out: "Dirty hound!"

Himmelstoss lets fly too, now: "What's that, you muckrake, you dirty peat-stealer? Stand up there, bring your heels together when your superior officer speaks to you."

Tjaden winks solemnly. "You take a run and jump at yourself, Himmelstoss."

Himmelstoss is a raging book of army regulations. The kaiser couldn't have been more insulted. "Tjaden, I command you, as your superior officer: Stand up!"

"Anything else you would like?" asks Tjaden.

"Will you obey my order or not?"

Tjaden replies, without knowing it in the well-known classical phrase.

"I'll have you court-martialed," storms Himmelstoss.

We watch him disappear in the direction of the orderly room. Hale and Tjaden burst into a regular peat-digger's bellow. Hale laughs so much that he dislocates his jaw, and suddenly stands there helpless with his mouth wide open. Albert has to put it back again by giving it a blow with his fist.

Kat is troubled: "If he reports you, it'll be pretty serious."

"Do you think he will?" asks Tjaden.

"Sure to," I say.

"The least you'll get will be five days close arrest," says Kat.

That doesn't worry Tjaden. "Five days clink are five days rest."

"And if they send you to the fortress?" urges the thoroughgoing Muller.

"Well, for the time being the war will be over so far as I am concerned."

Tjaden is a cheerful soul. There aren't any worries for him. He goes off with Hale and Leer so that they won't find him in the first flush of the excitement.

NEW MACHINE

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 23.—The Home Baking company on North Main street has recently installed a new model doughmaking machine, which is now in operation, according to Art Wright, proprietor of the company. The machine is the first of its kind to ever be installed in a shop in this part of the country, it is said.

A Message to Underweight Men and Women

The only supremely good health building tonic that is also the one great weight producer known to modern science the country over is McCoy's Tablets.

They build flesh where flesh is needed—sunken cheeks, neck and chest—and many a man and woman, skinny and scrawny have thanked McCoy's after a few weeks treatment for the decided improvement in looks and figure.

Many times the increase in weight is astonishing—one exceedingly thin woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days.

McCoy's takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.—Adv.

HELPS TO KEEP CHILDREN WELL!

Texas Lady Tells About Her Family's Use of Thedford's Black-Draught

Hillsboro, Texas.—Mrs. Oscar Williams, of 104 West Paschal street, this city, says that she has used Thedford's Black-Draught in her family for the last six years, and tells of giving it to her children, when needed.

"It has been a great help to me in keeping them healthy," she explains. "I give the children Black-Draught for colds and constipation.

"Whenever any of the children are cross or feverish, I start giving them Black-Draught in small doses. It isn't long until they are lively and full of energy. I use Black-Draught with them because it keeps the bowels clean and clears the system of impurities.

"I grew up to think Thedford's Black-Draught was 'the only medicine.' My mother used it in her family. I've taken it myself since childhood. It relieves biliousness and sick headache. I am hardly ever without it in my house.

"I always feel fresh and more able to do my work after I've taken a course of Black-Draught."

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

That ancient prejudice which hoarded gold with the fanatical zeal of the miser has vanished. Under the sheltering wing of AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE flourish thousands of banking institutions to which the individual safely entrusts his wealth.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful, corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

EVEREADY LAYERBILTS

This is the original LARGE SIZE Eveready Layerbilt No. 486 for heavy duty—price, $4.25, only 25 cents more than the Eveready cylindrical cell battery of the same size, No. 770. There is another Eveready Layerbilt in Medium Size, No. 485—price, $2.95, only 20 cents more than the Eveready cylindrical cell "B" Battery No. 772.

HIT A HOME RUN

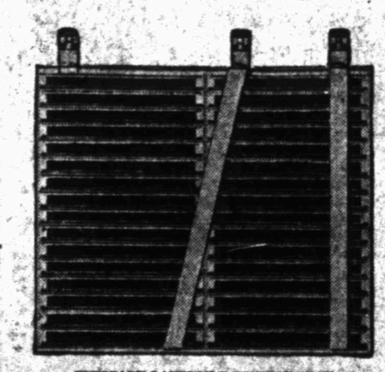

EVERY TIME THEY COME TO BAT

THE World's Series by radio! There's a thrill! And it's a real one when your receiver is powered by Eveready Layerbilts. Now is the time to buy new ones for a whole season of happy radio enjoyment. Eveready Layerbilts are the unique "B" batteries built of flat cells that make connection with each other automatically. There are only two broad connecting bands inside, each ⅜ inch wide, and only five husky solderings.

This is far better than the ordinary way of making a "B" battery out of separate, individual cells. In such a battery, there are 29 fine connecting wires and 60 solderings—89 places for trouble to develop.

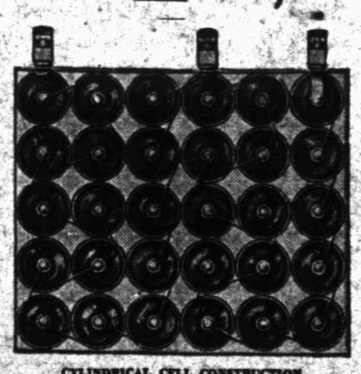

Eveready Layerbilts also pack more active materials in a given space, and so they last longer. To get the most for your money, the most in convenience, reliability, economy, service and satisfaction, insist on Eveready Layerbilts. Be sure the name is on the label.

BROADWAY, JUNIOR
Daily Editorial

IT LIES AT the end of the line—this village of a thousand souls—an isolated community, surrounded by wheat and cattle ranches and Indian reservations.

Except two huddles of houses up the creek, there isn't another hamlet in the whole county.

But don't jump at conclusions, and set imaginary scenes with movie yokels on verandaed store fronts, or Maud Mullers hanging at the gate to watch the trains go by.

Broadway and Main street may be three thousand miles apart, but they're not separated by an inch in spirit.

Wide-payed thoroughfares course our entire village—there are broad sidewalks, sewers and electric light standards at each corner.

The old hand-pumping fire outfit has been replaced with automotive equipment snuggled behind trigger-aprung doors.

Shops, with modern cut-in windows, display just what New York, Chicago and San Francisco are wearing the same week.

The standardized fronts of chain grocery, drug and apparel store units evidence how far (and inexorably) big business is penetrating for trade.

The ramshackle opera house of other days has blossomed into a trig, brick cinema with upholstered seats and sophisticated stage settings.

The dance floor door accommodates a hundred couples, and they wear dinner coats and evening frocks and trot to the strains of an orchestra, not a loud speaker.

GUESTS at either hotel may have suites with baths, and table telephones linked to the entire continent and Europe, besides.

Grade and high schools are up-to-date, commodious—and sanitary.

Manual training, draftsmanship and domestic science are taught; and fenced athletic field has grandstand and bleachers.

A nine-hole golf course occupies the river slope and a heated municipal swimming pool adjoins the club house.

One finds electric ice boxes, cook stoves and laundry machines in the average household, and higher priced cars than Henry makes, in most garages.

Silk stockings and undies dangle exclusively from wash lines.

America's past the hayseed era We're all dressing, playing and eating alike.

When the governor comes fence-minding, the chamber of commerce (and there really is a chamber of commerce) can draw on local stocks for imported delicacies, including hors d'oeuvres and marrons glaces.

And at least one privately owned aeroplane will be at his service.

Neither prosperity nor extravagance is specializing in particular neighborhoods nowadays.

We're all spending our heads off and breaking free from inferiority complexes.

Judy O'Grady feels that she's entitled to every comfort and finery of the Colonel's Lady—and her husband is proud to foot the bills—even in the hinterlands.

Cold, hard figures warn the crossroads they haven't the earning power to sustain present paces of improvement, and invoke bond issues and tax assessments to support the contention.

1895—Much newspaper notice about a proposed South Texas baseball league.

Autumn Fever

SPRING FEVER, puzzling and devastating malady that it is, is the subject of much literature. Everybody knows how it starts and what its effects are, and everybody knows that there is no cure for it. It is a disease that must be allowed to run its course.

Thus far, however, there has been no real study of spring fever's companion ailment—that insidious, enervating affliction that strikes in the fall of the year and that might, for want of a better name, be called autumn fever.

It has quite as many victims as spring fever, and it is quite as severe in its effects. But for some reason it doesn't get talked about quite as much.

Autumn fever comes on by degrees. The patient at first is conscious of nothing more serious than a vague unrest. The old familiar job seems to lose its appeal. The daily routine grows subtly monotonous. There is a strange desire to quit work, an uncomfortable knowledge that it will be almost a year before vacation time comes around again.

Then, about the time that the leaves begin to litter lawns and sidewalks with a swishy, crackly carpet, the victim is smitten by melancholy. He begins to feel his age. The wasted opportunities of former years rise before him to stir remorse. In severe cases he may take to reading sad poetry—or even, if the attack is unusually bad, to writing it.

In all of this there is no cause for worry. The sufferer always recovers. What is happening is simply this: The victim has fallen in with autumn's prevailing mood. The fag-end of summer, dying, tries to take his spirit along.

There is no sunlight quite like the sunlight of late September. It is bright and clear, yet its rich warmth is gone. It plays odd tricks with familiar scenes; well remembered houses, streets and country meadows take on an expectant air, as if the stage were being set for some great event. The autumn haze that hangs over woodland and hill creates a sense of unreality. The solid earth becomes an insubstantial stage setting, soon to vanish like the smoke from the piles of dead leaves that burn in fence corners.

This illusion works powerfully on the mind; the more so, since this is one of those cases where the borderline between illusion and truth is so hard to define.

For what, after all, is the prevailing mood of autumn? Simply this: That life is an adventure in which nearly all of the great chances are missed—an adventure conducted, in strange beauty and splendor, amid settings that are no more enduring than cloud-rack, an adventure in which the goal that is reached is always unlike the goal that was sought, an adventure in which only the adventurer has any reality.

It is worth suffering an attack of autumn fever to find that out. The gay optimism of spring soon passes. We quickly find out that when a May morning tells us we can conquer the earth, it is simply lying to us. Autumn's message, less exhilarating, is more solid. There is more truth in it.

A Mighty Nimrod Goes Forth

WE WAIT to hear the tramp of feet of those who march to enlist under Judge Sartin's banner to form a third party in Texas to grip the Tammany tiger and fling it from its lair. We expect to be waiting for some time and when we hear any tramping we expect it will be the feet of sturdy patriots seeking power and office. And we doubt very much about there being any lair in Texas at all. What Judge Sartin thought was a tiger may after all turn out to be only a peaceful housecat. And what he thought was a tiger's cry may be only a friendly meow. Certainly the most ravishing sound we have heard in the woods has been our fellow townman's call to the hunt. It fills the trees and reverberates from hill to hill. Its mighty noise is sufficient to make any cat, whether domestic or Tammany, quail and start scratching to hide its very tail.

We are inclined to the friendly meow hypothesis from all the signs we have seen-hereabouts. The animal just hasn't sounded like a tiger either in the county chairman's statement to the anti-Smith delegation or in the state chairman's letter. It seems to us that we note a gentle purr and a stretching of the neck to be stroked. Of course a doughty hunter with his gaze on Washington might get a wrong perspective and think he saw a tiger instead and attempt to kill the kitten, but his stroke may be so mighty as to overreach.

Any way as long as we hear such plaintive and friendly meowing we don't expect to see any great scurrying of those who saved us from the dreaded tiger last fall either for the housetops for safety or behind the Nimrod's banner to join in the hunt.

If there is to be any great beating of the brush hereabouts for the feline we believe it will be done mostly by the mighty hunter himself, of course, with great virtue and much sound.

Danger in the Home

MARK TWAIN'S famous remark that bed was the most dangerous place one could possibly be, since statistics showed that more people died in bed than any place else, is called to mind by figures tabulated on the eve of the meeting of the annual safety congress in Chicago.

These figures show that of the 96,000 accidental deaths in the United States last year, more than 24,000 took place in the home. Only automobile traffic exceeded the home accident list as a cause of deaths.

Apparently, one might deduce from this that next to the automobile one's own home is the most dangerous place one can be.

What is quite obvious is that we are a mighty careless nation of people. The home accident toll could be slashed to an inconsequential figure if we were anywhere nearly as prudent and thoughtful as we ought to be.

Quotations Worth Noting

"I for one am constrained to believe that if prohibition is a 'noble experiment,' then the San Francisco fire and the Galveston flood also should be listed among the noble experiments of our national history."—Irvin S. Cobb.

Lines to a Pot of Glue

Whenas my lady turns a baleful eye
Upon the tough, tenacious swain I am,
And tells me she no longer cares a damn
If I should croak at once, or by and by;

When friendships, each and every, go awry
The very hour I'm tumbled in a jam;
When every human link is proved a sham,
And dissolution crumbles every tie:

Do I repine? Do tears o'erflood my cheek?
Nay, to my desk my stubborn feet repair,
And there do rise no burst of rhetoric,
No vehemence, nor melancholic pique:

For, though all else on earth that bond forswear,
I know that you, of all things—you will stick! —CLERIC.

Haw!

Hannen Swaffer, of the London Express and Variety, reports that St. Yawn Ervine is in a lather again. Swaffer rides his contemporary for two full columns, arguing that Ervine's writings are dull, and adds: "I wonder what you Americans did to Sinjin Ervine. Something must have happened in New York that we have not heard of over here. I would like to find out what it was, because Sinjin late has become an old woman. He is a little peevish now and then. I am afraid you New Yorkers are entirely responsible. You have scared him.

"When he returned from New York he complained to me that I had said something or other that he had had fights there, whereas, he said the only people he had quarreled with were Heywood Broun and a person called Walter Winchell.'"

Add small town bores who didn't make good in the big city.

A Form of Criticism

Alexander Woollcott made his debut before the WOR microphones the other night and his introducer said that it was a happy privilege to introduce Mr. Woollcott "because we have something in common—we are dramatic critics."

"Well," yelled a studio attache, "there's nothing commoner than that."

Kaufman's Kute Kracks

Speaking of Alexander Woollcott's debut before the mike as "Town Crier" for WOR, he lost $2,000 while playing poker with George S. Kaufman of the New York Times and other friends three evenings before. The great loss prompted Woollcott to leave the game a half-hour before schedule and he failed to show up for the next game the following night.

"Hmmm," hmmm'd Kaufman as he read the radio page of the newspaper yesterday, "it says here that Woollcott is to be a radio crier. I suppose that scene the other poker night was a dress rehearsal."

Titter

After seeing the "Cock-Eyed World" the other night, Izzy Ellinson argues that the movies are still in their sinfancy.

Gag

A woman who is seeking divorce evidence told her attorney that her husband talks in his sleep, so the counselor advised her to sit up one night and listen to his chatter. For two nights she watched and listened without result, but on the third night he mumbled things and the frau was all ears. The following morning she saw her lawyer.

"Well," he beamed, "you look like you have good news. What did he talk about?"

"I forgot to tell you that he is a Broadway columnist," was the reply, "so naturally he talked about himself."

Incidentally

Variety once said of a main stem paragrapher: "There isn't enough mustard in all Coney Island to cover the dog he's putting on!"

The Reasons

"What's the matter with that guy, you always snub him?"

"Oh, he's all right, I guess, but he is the type who never removes his hat in an elevator when a lady enters it until the other men do. . . . He likes to make an "entrance" into a theater after the first curtain lifts. . . . He's the kind of a guy who, when he turns over a salt-shaker, throws some of the spilled salt over a shoulder. . . . Once he made a somewhat amusing remark and keeps repeating it everytime he gets a new audience, and he wastes his time telling other people not to waste theirs.

Honeymoon

God built the earth
In seven.
In one day
You built heaven!
—Mary Carolyn Davies.

Flip Quips

In the Ed Graham manner: She was a good gal as good gals go, which wasn't far. . . . She's the kind of girl who drives poets into ecstasies and ordinary men into speakeasies. . . . "Well," said the ham as he received his notice, "I've been thrown out of better plays than this!" and then there was the young man who was managing a flock of wild oats, and he went from one night club to another, and sow on far into the night.

Merciless Truth

And many a Broadway fourflusher wishes he didn't have to.

Always Belittlin'

Then there's the one about the dialectician and his little son, Irving, who paused at the stage door of a small-time vaudeville theater. Two actors came out and Otting ejaculated: "Ooooh, poppa, looka, Eckters!"

"Sharrup!" scolded the father, "dun't make fun—you never know what you'll be some day!"

Quiteso, Quiteso

At her Valley Stream roadhouse the other evening La Guinan was hurling clackers at the ringsiders with great force. "Hey! Look out there," cried a spender as he covered his face, "you're liable to knock my eye out!"

"And if I do," retorted La G, "you'll brag about it for the rest of your life."

In Fewer Words

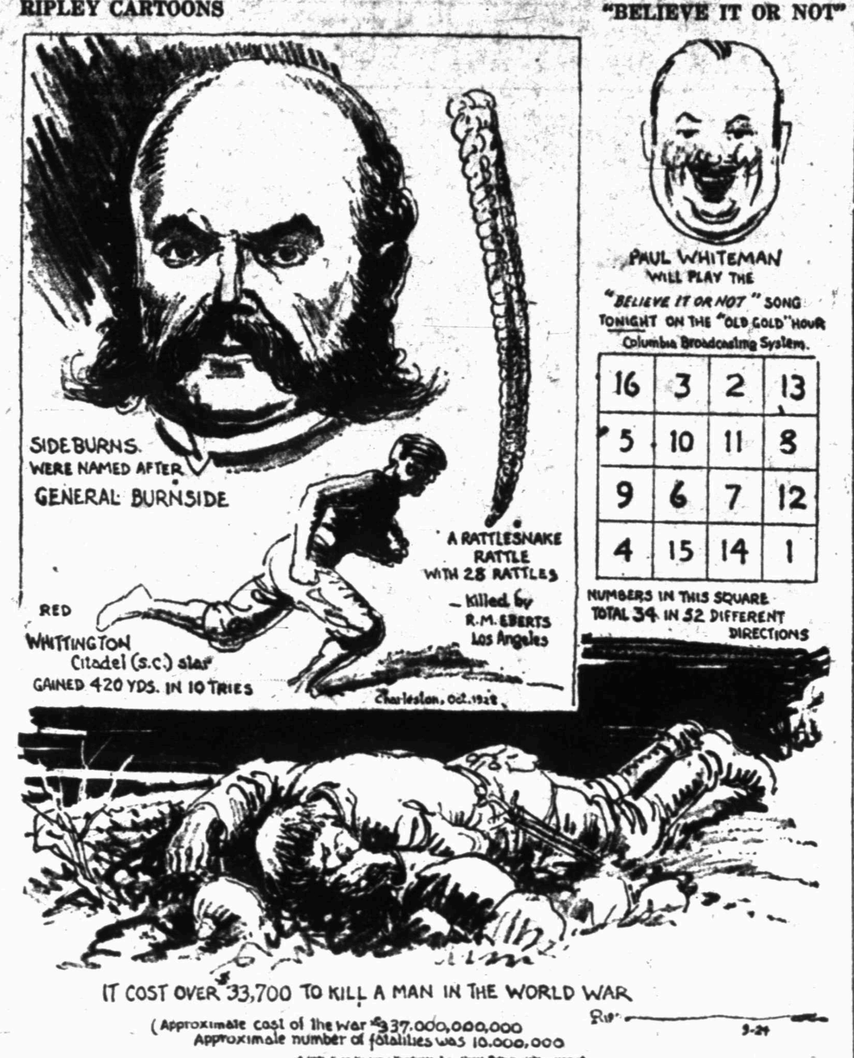

It was Herbert Bayard Swope who once observed: "The most successful way of being an unsuccessful journalist is to try and please everyone," but if you asked a columnist, the big idea is not to try and make new friends but to hold the old ones."

Nifty

Hilda Ferguson, phormer "Follies" phrail, who now is starring in her own act, "Gold Diggers," was offered $10,000 by a magazine to write her autobiography as a Broadway show girl.

"How thrilling!" chirped another Ziegfeld femme, "when are you going to do it?" "I'm not," flipped Hilda, "I can get twice that much from some men not to."

CHATTY—GODDESS OF CAB

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, through Mrs. Van Nuys, a wealthy customer and old friend of the family, gets Chatty a position as switchboard operator at the Van Nuys offices. Chatty meets Billie Langenau, a file clerk, and Agnes Herford, private secretary to Mr. Van Nuys. Chatty falls in love with a young bond salesman, David Jordan, but when she gossips and causes Agnes to resign her position David drops Chatty. Chatty has dates with Bryant Dunning, a new salesman, who is married but says he has left his wife. Chatty has many parties at Winnie Talcott's house. Winnie is Mr. Van's new secretary.

One day Chatty overhears David talking on the phone about taking a new position at the Midas Bank. Later she sees him copying names. Wishing to get even with him, and believing him stealing the bond buyers lists, Chatty tattles to Mr. Van. Mr. Van is very angry, as he has given David permission to copy the lists. Chatty has to apologize to David or leave the leaves, and is unsuccessful in getting another position. She continues to have dates with Bryant Dunning, although her mother urges her not to do so.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER LX

Chatty climbed into the battered car in a daze. She didn't think; she just felt.

But it was a wonderful feeling!

David, too, was silent. He started the car. Chatty almost wept at the familiar balking and clutching of the ancient machinery.

The car started with the familiar jerk — and Chatty could have hugged its battered mud guards for the thrill she got out of the well remembered suddenness with which it got into motion.

She didn't know where he drove.

She didn't care.

All she knew was that it wasn't —home.

Late? What difference did that make? None at all! David—David was by her side. He wanted her. He had been afraid to ask her. He had sent to the garage for the old, the battered, the well loved Pride of America.

A mile—two miles—five miles. He did not speak, neither did she. Open country. Lights disappearing. A friendly moon. A lonely road.

David stopped the car.

Chatty trembled. If she should be mistaken—if this was a dream—

"Chatty!" It was not a dream. That was David's voice; oddly shaken and trembly, but David, without a doubt—

"Chatty, dear!"

"Yes—Dave."

Silence.

Then: "Can you forgive me?"

David, asking her to forgive him! The world was upside down.

"For what, Dave?"

"For all the unkind things I said! For lying—saying I never wanted to see your face again! Oh, Chatty, my darling, I love you—I love you! I have always loved you! I loved you even when I despised you—when I thought—when—"

"When I went wrong, David!" put in Chatty.

Suddenly her wits, her senses, came back to her. This was her man—and in distress! She had made another mistake—he wasn't angry with her, he wanted her! And he was pleading with her. She must help him.

"But I never forgot you!" he cried. "There has never been anyone but you. The other girl—she married a rich man. I was glad!"

"They were your flowers, in the hospital?" breathed Chatty, softly.

"Yes—yes! I was afraid to send them with my name. You were not wanting me. But you were my girl—in trouble! I had to send them, sweetheart."

"And your flowers—on my desk."

"Didn't you know?" he demanded. "Didn't your heart tell you?"

"No. I—I thought you were through. I was trying to be good—for you, Dave. But I had no hope—"

"Then you do forgive me? You do want me? Do you love me?" demanded David.

His arms were around her now, straining her tight, tight to his breast. "Oh, my dear, my dear! Tell me you love me! Tell me you will marry me! Tell me I've been a fool, a dolt, an idiot, to leave you so long—tell me, girl, tell me!"

Chatty told him!

Not with words that are heard by ears—but the words that whisper from lips pressed to lips.

No hot passion, as in Bryant Dunning's kiss, in this; just a long clinging together of lips that would not let go, that gave their pledge of love given and received, that wiped away the unhappiness, the pain, the weariness of months, as a sponge wipes away the chalk marks on a blackboard.

"Oh, my little girl!" breathed David, when he allowed her to draw breath. "It's been so long! I've been so lonely, so heart sick. I thought you'd never come back to me!"

"How did you learn—that I was trying?" asked Chatty.

"Agnes told me. I talked to Tolson. I talked to Billie. I even wired to Winnie. I went to see your mother. They all told me the same story—and yet I was afraid. Tell me again that you love me!"

Chatty smiled at him, tenderly, in the darkness.

"What's the use of telling you, Davie? The whole world knows it! I made no secret of it—mother, Billie, Agnes, Winnie—they all knew it!"

"But I didn't believe them! I didn't see how you could, after what I said!" cried David.

"David, dear, I said often that I hated you, because you told me the truth about myself!" stated Chatty. "But I didn't—I hated myself! I was all you said, and more. But I made amends as best I could—I confessed—I told—I humbled myself—"

"Yes, I know. Agnes told me," put in David.

Silence again.

Punctuated with soundless kisses.

And tears—for Chatty's full heart overflowed.

David understood, nor tried to check the waters of happiness that fell from Chatty's eyes.

Suddenly conscience whispered.

"Mother will be worried!" cried Chatty. "Oh, David, I hate to say it, but—hadn't we better go home?"

"Mother will not be worried!" crowed David. "I saw her this afternoon! I told her it would be a late party, and that I would be responsible! Why do you suppose Billie broke it up at midnight, but to give me an hour or so? Come here!"

Chatty came.

More silence.

More kisses.

Then, very softly: "Chatty, dear."

"Yes, Dave—my Dave!"

"When will you marry me?"

"Whenever you say, Dave. Tomorrow, next week—any time."

It was not "tomorrow," but a month later.

Mrs. Chatterton demanded a month to make the trousseau.

Billie Mayhew demanded a month to let Chatty earn enough money to buy herself some fancy underthings.

Winnie insisted on a month, so she and Jim could be back from a trip, in time for the wedding.

Agnes refused to admit the possibility of their being married under a month.

"Because I am going to be married then—and we'll have a double wedding—and you've got to wait!" she cried.

So it was a month—and then the wedding day.

It was, like Billie's, a simple wedding. Mr. Ellerby did not like display and formality; Agnes was naturally a quiet girl, David wanted only Chatty, and Chatty didn't care whether she was married in a gingham apron or in a kitchen, so it pleased Dave.

So Chatty and the girl she had wronged were married in the same church in which Billie had taken her nuptial vows. Mr. and Mrs. Van Nuys were present, arm in arm, and with the daughter who had worn the scarlet dress and gold slippers.

Girls and men from both offices were there in force.

But Chatty saw only David.

At the altar she made him the dear old, same old, ever old and ever new promises.

Afterwards in the cab going to the station, she made him another.

"Never—never again will I chatter!" she vowed.

David stopped her mouth with a kiss.

Chatty Jordon is a successful, happy, contented wife.

A little David and a tiny Billie crawl around her knees.

They love her dearly. David thinks no family in all the world is like his.

They have many warm friends; some old, like Billie and George Mayhew, Winnie and her Jim.

Some new, pleasant, loyal, good friends of whom Chatty is very, very fond.

They like David's wife immensely.

Only one criticism do they ever make.

"She's so nice and sweet—but she doesn't gossip at all, does she?" they say to each other. "I wonder why?"

But Chatty doesn't mind the reputation she has for silence.

Chatty has learned her lesson, for good and for all time.

She never talks. If she ever wants to whisper gossip, she has only to look at a certain photograph—now all her own—to keep her tongue where it belongs.

"Davie—my Dave!" she whispers.

(The End)

The Once Over
By H. I. PHILLIPS

Everybody's merging. It's the country's leading sport this season. Banks are merging, circules are merging, oil companies are merging, food companies are merging and all over upland and lowland great industrial combinations are being proposed, which would make Theodore Roosevelt turn over in his mausoleum.

PHILLIPS

The latest proposition, from President Lorae of the Delaware & Hudson is for merging his line with 16 other eastern railroads, bringing practically all the eastern lines under one tent and making it possible for a passenger to fall from an upper berth anywhere on the eastern seaboard under one mismanagement.

The idea is all right as far as it goes but it doesn't go far enough. Before the railroads of America can give perfect service with minimum trouble and expense they must merge with the big corporations handling commodities required for good railroad service. Elmer Twitchell has some great ideas along this line.

"I am for merging all the railroads," says Mr. Twitchell, "and then merging with the biggest mattress, chain store, food and pajama companies. This will mean more comfortable berths at lower prices, cheaper Pullman dinners and pajamas supplied by the road without extra charge.

"I would take in the big mail-order houses so passengers can shop while on a long railroad journey; in fact I would put a chain-store car on every train for the convenience of women passengers.

"I would take in the big hotel chains and taxicab companies, too, so a railroad ticket would cover the entire cost of a trip away from home, including hotel, food and sight-seeing trips. I would make it possible for a couple going on a honeymoon to go to any ticket-office, state their needs and have the entire honeymoon trip arranged and a house rented and furnished for them upon their return.

"If I had my way I would merge the railroads with the banks, utilities and oil companies, bringing them all into one cooperative system. Then a man could run into any bank for 10 gallons of gas, a Pullman menu or a railroad journey, dash into any railroad station to deposit money and stop at any gasoline pumping-station to reserve a parlor-car chair or a lower berth.

"That," concluded Elmer, "would be service. On with the mergers, let the small competitors fall where they may!"

Chillicothe Lions Club Favors Bond Issue

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, Sept. 23.—The members of the Chillicothe Lions club have come to the conclusion that the only way to solve the problem of city improvements is to vote a bond issue. The new projects under discussion are the extension of sewer and water, city hall, more adequate quarters for the fire department, a community house and city park. Whether or not an effort will be made to put these improvements through with a bond issue will be thrashed out at the next regular meeting of the Lions club.

HENRY ALLEN SILENT BARBER

New Kansas Senator Started as Haircutter

By FRASER EDWARDS

(Copyright, 1929, Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—In view of the fact that Henry Justin Allen, recently appointed junior senator from Kansas, began his life's work as a barber, it seems almost incredible that he might have died a sort of "mute inglorious milton" but for an accident. More precisely, it was a narrowly averted accident that might have meant much to Henry.

When Henry was barbering his way through Baker university at Baldwin, Kan., he was one of those strange anomalies—a silent barber. To those who know Henry now as a chatty individual, either standing or sitting, it surpasses belief that he was inarticulate on his feet and it is necessary to stand while administrating a shave or haircut.

Debate Cheer Leader

Henry had the lung power all right, but they had such a low regard for his oratorical attainments at Baker that they merely took him along as cheer leader for the team at the intercollegiate debating contests, which in that day ranked with present day football in the college curriculum.

This gave Henry an inferiority complex in the forensic convolution. He had something in him crying for expression, but it stuck on the tip of his tongue. Hence, he decided the next best bet was writing and became a newspaper reporter.

One of Henry's first assignments was covering a secret Populist convention in Salina. Henry hid in the rafters and was busily taking notes when a pop-eyed Populist spied him. He was hauled down and a drum-head court martial took about two minutes to decide to hang him to the rafters. That decision broke the floodgates of oratory in Henry's breast.

"Gentlemen, gentlemen—" trumpeted Henry in a voice that could have been heard for half a mile. And with that auspicious opening, demosthenean eloquence flowed from him for 15 minutes. The Populists were almost convinced that Henry should be elected governor, but finally compromised by kicking him out of the door. But Henry got the story.

Arithmetical Mistake

Thus did Henry become a spellbinder of the first order. He would have come to congress years ago, but for a fatal mistake in arithmetic. In 1901, he entered a sort of trick primary with Charles F. Scott, another editor, for the Republican nomination from the old second Kansas district.

The boys in Wyandotte county, in which Kansas City, Kan., is situated, asked Henry how many votes he needed and promised to supply them. The boys protested at Henry's low estimate, but Henry always was a conservative at heart. When the count was taken, the county gave Scott more votes than it had adult population and Henry went back to newspaper work.

No sketch of Henry Allen would be complete with mention of his alter ego, William Allen White of "Henry and Me" fame. In fact, even the people of Kansas have a hard time telling which is which. Henry gets mail addressed to "William Henry Allen" and Will gets letters for "Henry Allen White." Just recently Henry got an invitation to a waterways meeting addressed to "Senator William Allen White," but the postman knew who it was for.

White Irked Him

Henry exhibited his tendency toward conservatism when he threatened to prosecute his boon companion, Bill White, for jeering at his industrial court during the railroad shopmen's strike in 1922. Bill posted a sign in his Emporia Gazette office window to the effect that he was 48 per cent in favor of the strikers and his sympathies would increase two per cent each day the strike lasted. Governor Henry went so far as to have a warrant served on Bill by one of White's relatives but the case never came to trial.

It used to be a triumverate of "Vic, Henry and Me" when all three were rip, snorting, ring-tailed roarin' Bull Moosers. But Victor Murdock, another Wichita newspaper man, went Democratic after President Wilson appointed him on the federal trade commission. Bill remains an unreconstructed rebel and Henry was turned conservative and grown a kewpie figure.

As director of public of the Republican national committee last year, Henry qualified as an expert on propaganda. So it was natural that he should be selected to serve on the naval affairs sub-committee which is trying to find out whether William B. Shearer, the naval expert, who likes to call himself "the big drum" was a propagandist or just an "observer" at the Geneva arms conference in 1927. Henry's report should be interesting.

McKellar Attacks Naval Agreement

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. (INS)—The first rumble of senate opposition to the British-American naval agreement broke out today.

In a speech detailing America's position in world affairs, Senator McKellar, Democrat of Tennessee, attacked the Hoover-MeDonald agreement as one which assigns to the United States "an inferior naval position."

"There never was a worse time for us to have an inferior navy than right now," McKellar said, after citing America's enormous foreign trade, the tremendous sums owed this country by foreign debtors, and the envy of American prosperity that exists abroad.

Rescue of Woman And Three Men Reported

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. (UP)—Rescue of one woman and three men from the Swedish steamer Carljerhard, aground off Elizabeth City, N. C., was reported to coast guard headquarters here today by the Kill-Devil hill station near here.

Sixteen persons remained aboard the vessel and are being brought ashore by a breeches buoy. The ship was bound from Canada to Tampa with a cargo of plaster.

Fires Endanger Three Backwoods Villages

DULUTH, Sept. 23. (UP)—Three backwoods settlements in northern Minnesota were threatened with destruction today when high winds fanned into roaring walls of flames 60,000 acres of timber lands which had smoldered with peat and brush fires during the last fortnight.

NEW MUSICAL DEVICE ON SALE

'Theramin' Is Played Simply by Waving Hands

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (UP)—A new musical instrument that anybody can learn to play in a few hours is to be placed on the market before Christmas by the Radio-Victor Corporation of America.

If you are tempted to say, "Well, what of it?" Go right ahead and begin reading about something else. But remember that you probably passed up a small item in the newspapers several years ago announcing that the first saxophone had been imported.

This new instrument is a Russian invention called the Theramin, after Prof. Leon Theramin, the young Russian radio dabbler who hit upon it. All you have to do is wave your hands in front of it in a certain way and it will play "Ramona." Wave them another way and it will "Snookie-Ookie" or "Wait Till the Cows Come Home" or "Melody in F." In fact, it will play anything dictated by the musical taste and knowledge of the operator, and play it good and loud, too, should the performer so fancy.

Professor Theramin brought his invention to the United States several months ago and demonstrated it to a select audience of musicians and social register dowagers at the Plaza hotel. He called it "ether music" at the time, and proved himself quite a virtuoso as well as an inventor.

By waving his hands in front of the contraption the handsome professor drew forth a strange and not unpleasing sound, something like a soprano feeling her oats, something like a violin as heard over the radio and something—portentiously—like a saxophone operated by one of these triple-tongued red hot boys from Harlem.

The first of the commercial production Theramins is on display at the radio world's fair in Madison Square garden. Others, for the present, will be "sold direct to elected number of about 50 outstanding music firms in various parts of the country."

The Theramin is in appearance somewhat like a small radio, with a metal rod projecting upright from one and a metal loop from the other. When the human hand—any human hand—is brought into the sensitive electric field surrounding the vertical antenna, the field is so affected that audio-frequency notes, or sounds, are produced. These are amplified and passed through a loud speaker. The closer the hand to the vertical antenna, the higher the pitch of the sound.

The horizontal looped antenna is for the other hand. The closer the hand, the smaller the sound but when the hand is moved away the volume may be increased "to an intensity exceeding that of the most powerful stringed instrument."

Wilson Named Athletic Head at Frederick

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 23.—John Wilson Jr. was elected president of the high school athletic association in an election held Thursday morning. Wilson received 182 votes to 159 for Winford Davidson, his opponent. Miss Clara Mae Ball was elected as vice president. Other officers are: Miss Janie Mathis, secretary; Walter Cole, treasurer, and Jack Pace, yell leader. Clifton McCormick, principal, will be supervisor of the association.

KIP'S FATHER TURNS BITTER

Rhinelander Must Secure His Own Money

CHICAGO, Sept. 23. (INS)—Any divorcing that Leonard Kip Rhinelander does will have to be done with Kip's funds and not his father's.

Maj. Philip Rhinelander, his father, said so today when he stepped from a train en route home after a vacation in Omaha. Young Rhinelander has filed suit for divorce against Alice Jones Rhinelander, the dusky daughter of a New Rochelle, N. Y. hack driver.

"Is it true that you have disowned Kip?" Major Rhinelander was asked.

"That is something that I don't like to talk about," he replied. "No, I didn't visit him when I was out West and furthermore I do not intend to visit him. What he does now is no concern of mine."

Major Rhinelander was asked what he thought would be the outcome of his son's latest efforts to obtain his freedom from marital bonds.

"I think the whole mess is a great tragedy. It has caused me much discomfort and annoyance. I don't care to discuss it further."

Gunshot Wounds May Kill Missouri Sheriff

FARMINGTON, Mo., Sept. 23. (UP)—Sheriff William London, St. Francois county, probably will die of gunshot wounds received late yesterday when he was shot while attempting to arrest Charles Kassabaum, a farmer, physicians reported today.

The officer sought to arrest Kassabaum for beating his aged father, father.

the Call that Burnt the Beefsteak

"And company'll be here any minute!"

WHEN Phil Allen came home from work he found his wife in the kitchen, regarding the blackened ruins of a steak with tears in her eyes.

"And the company'll be here any minute!" she wailed, looking up at him despairingly.

"Why honey!" Allen sympathized, "how did it happen?"

Carefully, Mrs. Allen lifted the smoking skillet and started toward the sink.

"I can't" she observed bitterly, "I simply can't go clear to the front of the house to answer the telephone, and watch a meal at the same time. I just didn't know I'd left the fire turned up so high!"

Allen hurriedly picked up his hat.

"Tomorrow I'll order an 'extension' telephone put in back here," he said. "And—don't worry, dear. The butcher shop's still open."

the year round for the proper preservation of food"

Here Are Three Advantages of Ice for Food Preservation:

1 ICE IS PURIFYING. Food odors are absorbed by the melting ice film and ELIMINATED through the outlet. This goes on all the time, every hour of the day.

2 ICE PROTECTS FLAVOR. It maintains proper atmospheric balance of cold air (easily 45 degrees in the milk compartment), dry air, moist air and pure air to preserve food juices and flavors. There is less drying out.

3 ICE IS CHEAP. A survey of 20,000 ice bills shows an average year 'round cost per home of $3.54 a month. And you have no initial investment but the cost of an ice box.

GUY RETURNS TO FILL BACKFIELD GAP IN COYOTE RANKS

55 ASPIRANTS NOW IN FIELD

Pack Works Hard Making Ready for Lawton

Coach Barry Holton's harsh words before a student assembly last week bore fruit Monday, when a squad of about 55 men turned out to bite dust and heave and sweat in the daily scrimmage grind.

"Ye are not men," quoth the anxious coach last week, lamenting the fact that only 44 stalwarts had deigned to don the heavy pads. Monday an array of lads turned out, and chief among them was Bob Guy, veteran back and one of the hardest tacklers in the district, who announced in the showers Monday that he was back to stay. Guy had moved to Michigan, but the Coyote call reached him even at that distance, and he's back now to fill the hole left by the graduation of Percy Mills, last year's fullback.

Hodgkiss Back

Captain Monk Hodgkiss is also an aspirant for the fullback berth, but Coach Holton has indicated he will be shifted to tackle to strengthen the forward wall.

Monday the pack continued hard workouts in fundamentals and plays in preparation for next Friday's battle with the Lawton team. The Lawtonites, Coach Holton reports—and he ought to know, for he went prowling around the Lawton camp last week on an inspection trip—is big and powerful, and superior to our gang in weight and height, and so a thriller is promised when the Lawton bunch invades our territory next Friday. Despite the advantages of the visitors, Coach Holton said he gave the pack a good chance to win, if they will work.

Pep Squad Trials

Preparations for this game are also going on in other fields. Tryouts for the pep squad leadership are to be held today at the regular assembly. The band was organized last Friday with a membership of over 30 musicians. Both the band and the pep squad will be on hand at Friday's game, and plans of these organizations during the year include trips to Lubbock and Amarillo when the pack treks to those points.

Four teams are outstanding in the pre-season dope for district No. 1. The Coyotes loom as one of the strong teams in the district, with Electra, Amarillo and Lubbock in the group.

Quanah Athletic Field Is Nearing Completion

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Sept. 23.—The grandstand at the newly acquired athletic field of Quanah High school is nearing completion and will be in readiness for 1929-30 season of sports by the end of this week.

The field itself has been graded and scraped and leveled used to make it one of the fastest fields in this section, and will in time be covered with Bermuda grass. A road is being cut from highway No. 5 to the field located on East Eleventh street just outside the city limits, and travelers on the paved highway will be able to get to the grandstand from the pavement.

After-Match

"No mi-Gosh, you've gone and done it,
Dished the works, and spilled the beans,
Just as I supposed we'd won it—
You know what the lickin' means
How the deuce they came to rate you
With a handicap like that
Goes beyond me. They should gate you
From the club, and that is flat."

"If your monologue is ended,
Get to diggin' in your jeans;
'Quickest said is soonest mended,'
You were rotten on the greens.
Quit your talkin'. I can fix it,
And you needn't even ask—
There's no call to take and mix it,
Take it straight and from the flask."

The Ten Best Teams

"Anybody," writes L. P., "can pick the 10 best football teams after the season is over, but how about taking a chance before the season starts?"

In the first place nobody can pick the 10 best teams even after the season is over without running into violent disagreement with something like 10 million debaters, all set to talk your two ears off. In fact it is about as easy to name them now as it will be in December. Here are some teams that will bear watching among the first 10—Stanford, Pittsburgh, U. S. C., West Virginia, Illinois, Minnesota, Michigan, Army, Notre Dame, Georgia Tech, Florida, Oregon. Teams good enough to crowd some of these out will be Princeton, Harvard, Navy. Thinking the matter over at this point it seems to be a mistake to try to name the 10 best football teams either in September or December. Those inclined to write is disagreeing passionately with the list mentioned can forget these few lines were ever written.

In the East

Certainly two of the strongest teams in the East will be Pittsburgh and West Virginia. Carnegie Tech has a good chance to be included in this list.

One trouble is that the schedules arranged will make some of the best teams look bad before the year is out. It will be something of a miracle if Notre Dame, Army and Yale, to mention only three teams, can take the pounding they will face from one Saturday to another.

The luck of injuries and accidents is another factor. Dartmouth had a star team wrecked last fall before the season had barely more than opened up. Al Marsters limping on one leg was half a team gone to seed, and he wasn't the only Dartmouth entry rendered null and void. The break of the schedule and the run of injuries can make all the difference in the world. A lot depends upon the physical and mental condition of a rival team on a certain date and no one can figure this out. A football team can change its character 50 per cent from one Saturday to another.

Dear Sir: When the world's series is over and the shouting's done how about giving Jimmy Dykes credit due him for the victory of the Athletics in the American league? Foxx, Simmons and the rest did their share, but Dykes was the man who plugged all gaps on the team. Jimmy played short, second, third and once in a while was at first. Had it not been for him Connie would have suffered when Hale, Boley and Bishop were out of the game. Dykes is unquestionably the best utility man in baseball and Mack was lucky to have him.

A Misquotation

Dr. Harold Pattison writes that it was not Shakespeare who wrote: "Beware when men speak too well of thee." The correct quotation should have been from St. Luke 6:26, to this effect: "Woe to you when all men shall speak well of thee." At least there is every proof here that at times a knock is better than a boost.

The new tennis champion is 36 or 37 years old and the new golf champion is 34. These ages do not belong to old age. Neither do they belong to that portion of youth which is always waiting to be served. Apparently there are times when it is served with a fast one under the left ear.

Crippled but Confident Steers Take Off for Bouts With Barons

Moore and Frazier Probably Will Be Wallflowers in Birmingham Fracas Wednesday and Thursday

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Crippled but confident, Milt Stock and his performing Steers left tonight for Birmingham, home of the Southern association titlists, and a shot at their second Dixie championship in four years.

For the next week the Mavs and their adversaries will spend most of their time settling their diamond dispute or commuting to the scene of the next conflict. It is a 24-hour haul between the contending cities, with only one day set aside for travel between go-rounds.

Games are scheduled at Birmingham Wednesday and Thursday, after which the clubs will come here for three more Saturday, Sunday and Monday. If a sixth is necessary it will be played at Birmingham. A seventh site would be decided by the flip on a coin.

Strength Unimpaired

Although the Steers looked the part of champions in taking three out of four from Wichita Falls in the Texas league playoff, they saw their strength impaired for the Dixie series. Neither Jim Moore, slugging left fielder, nor Victor Frasier, whose sensational twirling beat the Spudders twice in the playoff, was likely to see service in the two games at Birmingham. Both will accompany the club tonight, however.

Moore's knee, injured in the first tilt at Wichita Falls, still was swollen today and it was doubtful he would be certified for the Dixie classic. If not, his outfield post will be patrolled by "Red" Harvel, who did very well against the Spudders. The loss of Moore's .364 clubbing average takes considerable punch from the Steer lineup.

Stock was expected to save his ace, Frasier, for the first game here Saturday. The youngster pitched two masterful exhibitions against the Spudders with only three days' rest between. He was complaining of his arm after yesterday's game and the club physician advised him to give the flipper a rest. A drive from Bennett's bat caromed off Frasier's arm in the sixth inning Sunday and did the member no good, although it did not impair his effectiveness at the time.

Morale at Height

Outside of that the Texas league kings were in prime shape and anxious to get at the Barons. The fact that teams from this circuit have been almost unanimously successful in previous Dixie series has heightened Steer morale. The Barons, from all reports, are not as powerful as the club that lost to Houston in last year's Dixie series, hitting almost 30 points less as a team.

Whitey Glazner, veteran, right-hander, who set the Spuds down with four hits in the playoff, was a likely choice to go against Birmingham Wednesday, with either Sergeant George Connally or Charlie Barnabe, a southpaw, on deck Thursday.

In order to get within the 18-player limit for the Dixie series it was necessary for Manager Stock to cut little Gene Moore, southpaw rookie, from his roster.

MRS. FISK IS GOLF MEDALIST

Woman's Championship Playoff Starts Today

Mrs. R. R. Fisk was medalist in the qualifying round of the woman's city championship play at the Municipal golf course Monday. She turned in a score of 86. Mrs. W. E. Millican, with a score of 97, was runner-up. The championship round will be played Tuesday.

Gardner Plans Complete Change of Faces

be on the scene. The change is quite likely to result from a mutual understanding between the club-owner and the present manager. There is little likelihood of Galloway being an applicant for the job. Gardner and Galloway long have been close friends, and their year and a half of business relations have brought no change in that attitude, but undoubtedly there is a mutual understanding between the two that a change promises to benefit both.

As for the playing personnel, it is no certainty that as many as two of those who participated in the playoff series against Dallas will answer the roll call next year.

Turgeon and Fitz

The two oldest players in point of service, Turgeon and Fitzgerald, will be among the casualties, according to present plans. The second sacker came to Wichita Falls in 1923 and Fitzgerald the following year. A deal already has been made for Turgeon, but Fitzgerald's status is not quite so clear. It is a good guess, though, that he will be among those missing when the spring training gong sounds.

Pete Lapan, who came here shortly afterward, already is on the auction block and will go to the highest bidder. He is among those definitely labeled for a change of scenery.

The veteran pitchers of the club, Milt Steengrafe and George Payne, the only remnants of the great mound staff of 1927, are not to be left out of the house cleaning plans. Payne's future already has been assigned to another club in a higher class league, and Steengrafe is due to pass on during the winter months.

Rabbit Benton, the last of the Dixie stars of two years ago, will pass in the same deal with Turgeon.

Some May Stay

This year's outfield, with the possible exception of Gullio and Sullivan, is to be swept clean. Red Bennett's services already have been disposed of. Gullio is the property of the Tulsa club and was here on option. Sullivan is in bad with the management, and consequently, his status is undetermined.

The veteran pitchers unaccounted for are Hal Wiltse and Andy Messenger. Of all the flippers, Wiltse's chance of remaining are best. Messenger in all likelihood will go back to the San Antonio Indians.

The youngsters, White, Galeria Cromer and Parker, according to present plans, will be brought in next spring for further trials. Hopkins is the property of the St. Louis Browns.

First Baseman Bud Stapleton stands little chance of returning as the result of his action in refusing to return to the club for the titular playoff. Duke Hermann, whose third base play provided one of the year's big disappointments, will be disposed of.

Rookie Infielders

The rookie infielders, Burrows, Scharein and Lewis, are sure to be called in for spring training.

The one player of all the regulars, who seems sure of a place in the 1930 pennant scheme, is Jack Crouch, who served most of the season as understudy to Lapan. Though he didn't hit as well as was expected, he rates as a great prospect, and the probable first string catcher when the next campaign starts. Art Bradbury, the young catcher from Abilene, will be brought in for a trial.

Loss of the playoff series to Dallas did not figure in Prexy Gardner's plans for a new deal next year. In fact, some of the deals that already have been made had started long before the Spudders won the second half race.

The Spudder owner simply believes that most of the oldtimers have worn out their usefulness here, that a change of scenery will do them good and that new faces will mean new interest in the club.

Hafey's Homer Scoring 2 Brings Win

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Helped by Chick Hafey's 26th homer of the season, which came in the eighth and scored Bottomley too, the Cardinals took the first game of a series of three from the Cincinnati Reds here today, 6 to 4.

A triple by Bottomley, scoring Wilson, brought the Cards' first tally in the fourth off Ben Frey, Nashville recruit, who hurled for the Reds. Fred Frankhouse was the Cardinal pitcher.

Health and Diet Advice

The "Asthma" Chest

The diagnosis of asthma is never difficult. The word asthma comes from the Greek words "to blow." But the fact is that the asthmatic has the most difficult time in drawing air into the lounge. Inspiration is jerky and gasping, with the hopeless feeling of suffocation and tightness in the chest. In some cases there is very little evidence of mucus in the lungs or throat, but after the struggle for air has gone on for some hours this mucus will often form from the irritation to the lungs.

When there is a noisy whistle to the breathing, this is an indication that there is considerable mucus present.

The rapidity of cure depends in a large measure upon just how much bronchitis exists, and how much mucus is present. Those cases with little or no mucus usually respond very quickly and the breathing becomes normal within two or three days after the proper dietetic regime is started.

In some cases there is so much mucus as to simulate tuberculosis and sometimes we do see a combination of tuberculosis and bronchial asthma. In these cases it is of course more difficult to effect a rapid cure, but the wheezing and violent gasping for air can always be relieved within a short time.

Asthma undoubtedly runs in families, and most cases begin before the 30th year. A young child in the family has the same shaped chest as one of his elders who has been asthmatic, it is reasonable to expect that the child with the narrow, tight chest will have the same tendency to developing this disorder. This is likewise true of tuberculosis. Physical characteristics are certainly inherited to some extent, but the child with the tight chest who shows by his physical characteristics such a strong tendency to develop asthma or tuberculosis can, through proper training with breathing exercises, develop the tight chest into a strong flexible one.

It is said that good singers are born that way. We know that a good singer must have a good chest and good diaphragmatic control, and we know that those with the physical build of a singer never develop asthma. If one with a strong chest is born with a good sense of tone and pitch, he say, through musical training, become a good singer The narrow chested boy who does not have this good sense of pitch and tone may never be able to sing well, but at least he can develop as strong a chest as any opera singer who has ever lived. This is providing the physical training through physical culture and breathing exercises is started at an early age.

I am convinced that more attention should be paid in our public schools to all kinds of corrective exercises, but if our school authorities do not consider that the children have time enough in school for such exercises they should at least find time during the school hours for having the child develop the chest and diaphragm. Every small immature chest can be developed into a strong one, and if this were started in the first grade of school and continued through the public school years, I am very sure that such disorders as asthma and tuberculosis would be almost entirely eliminated.

Tomorrow, "Preventing Asthma."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dark Spots

Question—G. D. asks: "What would cause a dark spot to appear on each cheek about the size of a dime?"

Answer—Dark spots are caused by some faulty formation of color pigment in your skin. This is usually due to a faulty metabolism, and can be prevented by a correctly balanced diet.

Reducing Diet

Question—Mrs. K. J. H. writes: "Kindly print a diet to be followed by a person 60 years old, of apoplectic build who is getting stout very rapidly. We know that starchy foods are fattening, yet what articles of food are there that will give a varied diet and keep up one's strength?"

Answer—It would be all right for you to follow the weekly menus which appear in this column each Saturday. The only change you need to make is to substitute some kind of fruit for the meals which contain starches. If you have high blood pressure, it will slowly reduce under this non-starchy diet. You will see that there are plenty of foods other than starches which you can use and which will "keep up your strength" and at the same time, not be fattening.

Dry Skin

Question—Reader writes: "I am a young woman, but my skin is so dry I am ageing terribly. I use a great deal of cold cream, but I know it must be some inward trouble. When I wash my skin it hurts and burns for some time after. I know you have helped others, so please tell me what course to take."

Answer—Use plenty of olive oil with your meals, and increase the amount of butter and cream you are using. A temporary treatment which will help is to rub the entire body each day with coco-butter, using only a small amount, but rubbing it well into the pores.

CANADIAN OIL HEAD IN OKLA.

Chief Engineer Studies Conservation

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 23. (UP)—A study of conservation measures in Oklahoma's flush fields is being made by T. G. Madgwick, chief petroleum engineer for the Canadian department of interior.

Madgwick held a conference today with Governor Holloway, W. J. Armstrong, chief conservation officer, and the Oklahoma corporation commission.

Although the Canadian government has no conservation regulations and there is no immediate demand for it, Madgwick said that the government plans conservation moves. He is making the investigation for a joint dominion and provincial commission relative to regulation for the Calgary field which is producing 200,000,000 cubic feet of wet gas a day.

Of special interest to him, is the plan of gas storage under ground and control of high pressure wells, he said.

"My trip through the Oklahoma City fields has convinced me that high pressure wells can be shut in successfully," Madgwick said.

The Canadian engineer is being conducted through Oklahoma by C. H. Hopp, of the United States mines with headquarters at Bartlesville.

Madgwick branded the use of crude oil for fuel as criminal.

"Oil is the most valuable natural resource civilization has and should be kept in its natural reservoir, the earth, as long as possible," Madgwick said.

"It certainly should not be used for low grade purposes such as fuel oil."

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (AP)—An early decline was followed by rallies on covering and trade buying in cotton here today. After selling up from 18.67 to 18.82, December broke 18.60 under southern selling and liquidation. Closing prices were the lowest of the day with the market barely steady at easiness of 9 to 16 points.

Market opened steady at a decline of 3 to 7 points under selling which seemed to come largely from the South. Prices stiffened up during the middle with October advancing to 18.46 and 19.05 making net gains of about 6 to 12 points on the more active positions. The demand tapered off at these figures, however, and the market weakened again in the late trading under a renewal of southern hedging. The lowest prices of the day and movement were reached in the late trading when October sold at 18.22 and March at 18.84 or about 10 to 16 points net lower on the active positions.

The report of the census bureau showing 3,653,038 bales ginned prior to Sept. 16 compared with 2,500,781 last year and 3,504,995 two years ago appeared to be not far out of line with expectations and seemed to have little apparent effect on the immediate market.

Exports today 14,975 bales, making 740,390 so far this season. Port receipts 59,566, U. S. port stocks 1,016,490.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23. (AP)—Cotton showed a disposition to advance during the morning session today under stimulation of big bullish construction of the cotton ginnings prior to Sept. 16 which the census bureau placed at 3,653,038 running bales or about what the trade expected. This advance attracted heavy realizing and hedge selling after which there was a loss of the early advance and more besides. December, which closed Saturday at 18.55 and advanced to 18.61 in the early trading, reached 18.82 up 16 points and later dropped to 18.43 and closed at that price, 15 points net lower for the day. The general market closed easy at net declines of 5 to 16 points.

Liverpool came in as free to 1 point better than due and first trades here were 3 points up to 1 down. Prices eased. October dropping to 18.72, December to 18.52 and January to 18.59 or 6 points below Saturday's close.

By the time the demand was supplied October traded up to 18.39 and January to 18.72 or 15 to 17 points above the early lows and 8 to 11 points above Saturday's close.

October then dropped to 18.13, December to 18.43 and January to 18.50 representing 23 to 26 points down from the highs. The close was at the lowest, showing net losses for the day of 15 points on all three months.

Port receipts, 61,872; for week, 117,853; for year, 1,388,019; last year, 1,179,057. Exports, 14,139; for week, 30,345; for year, 715,646; last year, 723,973. Stocks, 1,023,064; last year, 850,826; stocks on shipboard, 102,174; last year, 92,681; spot sales, 76,347; last year, 56,142.

Professional Selling After Money Rate Advance Brings Price Drop

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 23. (US)—Advance in the call rate from 8 to 10 per cent influenced further professional selling that closed the market net lower again today. Steel, a few Specialties and Utilities moved higher but the list as a whole remained irregular throughout. Steel finished 4⅞ higher, Fox gained 6⅜, Best 7 points, Commercial Investment Trust 3⅛, Anaconda 3¾, and Lehan & Fink 3⅝. Radio dropped 4⅝ further, United Aircraft 6¾, Westinghouse 5⅞, Allied Chemical 4, while other industrials closed about a point lower on the average. Rails and oils were very quiet and irregular. Other coppers followed the recovery in Anaconda coincident with more optimistic trade advices as to the metal price outlook. Turnover declined to the 3,500,000 share level.

No one knew of any good reason for the 10 per cent money rate so that nervousness was enhanced and professions found it less difficult to depress prices. It had been hoped that definite easing in money conditions would be experienced this week and that comparatively low rates would be enjoyed for the next month or so. Now there is worry that the money powers will continue to push rates up spasmodically and that the result will be continuance of the downward price trend for awhile longer. Failure of Steel Common to hold its rally is responsible for more bearishness than the advancing of the money rates as it is, accepted as indication that the steel bankers are bankers are not averse to seeing further correction in the market. Steel, together with other industrials, harbors a large short interest, however, and should selling threaten to get out of hand it is expected that insiders will use it to rally the whole market.

Radio and United Aircraft were the favorites for professional selling. In both companies the actual earnings are far below the enthusiastic forecasts that were in flotation coincident with recent pool work. Eventually Radio's earnings will be added to by the several acquisitions and working agreements it has made but the results will not be obtainable in time to prevent a disappointing showing for the current year. Large holdings of United Aircraft, taken on when the company was first formed, remain undisturbed by the current disturbance as insiders feel that their stock will be the leader of the group when the stabilization of the industry is effected and competition grows less keen.

Best & Company's climb to new high while the rest of the list was slipping reflected expectation that improving incomes over the next several months would result in record earnings for the year. Montgomery Ward and other store stocks received supporting orders as this group is about to enter what is normally the most prosperous season of the year. Baldwin Locomotive officials, it was reported, were planning announcement of acquisition of the two companies within the very near future. The recapitalization recently announced is part of the plan of controlling interests to strengthen capital structure and to branch into other industries that will give the company a diversified output and make it independent of periodical slumps in railroad demand.

Another development in the plans of the Eastern utility magnates was announcement of the five for one splitup of General Gas stock which was first forecast here several weeks ago. Higher return to stockholders is expected to follow authorization of the new stock. The management also has plans for close working arrangements with another important organization. Electric Bond & Share Interests were reputedly preparing to announce their grouping with Electric Investors. Both companies are holding such stocks as United Gas, Public Service and others that have joined outstanding advances recently.

Poll of Radio Listeners Reveals Queer Collection of Preferences

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

CHICAGO, Sept. 23. (UP)—Strange and startling facts concerning the tastes, when and if there are any, of radio listeners were revealed here today by Richard E. Smiley, director of the Institute of Radio Research.

The institute, designed to guide broadcasting stations in their selection of programs, has just completed an international poll of radio set owners to learn what they liked to hear most of all. And the results of the poll, Smiley admitted, have left him and the broadcasters thoroughly nonplussed.

Whistling Preferred

"Here we've been sending out broadcasts of good music, jazz, opera, news and the like," Smiley said, "and we find that a large percentage of radio listeners prefer a selection of whistling as the best sort of entertainment before going to sleep."

The institute learned further that the most rabid of all the radio fans, the one with the most vehement likes and dislikes, are those making forced sojourns within the prisons of the country.

In that connection the poll revealed that prisoners, to a man, look with considerable disfavor on the widely played "Prisoner's Song," the one that wails for the wings of an angel. Rather they much prefer "Auld Lang Syne," Smiley said.

Prisoners Tune In

"Radio is practically the sole medium by which the 375,000 inmates of the state and federal prisons in the United States keep in touch with the world outside the gray walls of their exile," he continued. "There are thousands of radio fans, in fact, the number inside the walls is the same as the number of prisoners, but only a few have radios. The convicts in a measure overcome this difficulty by hooking up an inordinate number of headpieces or earphones to every set in operation.

"In the state prison at Sioux Falls, S. D., for instance, there are 420 receivers connected with one set alone."

Analysis of the replies received showed that the majority of prisoners live in the past, rather than on hopes for the future, Smiley said.

Thus, broadcast of stock and market reports left them cold. Neither did they particularly enjoy bedtime stories.

Some of the Replies

More than a million and a half ballots in the poll were distributed. Some of the questions asked and representative answers follow:

Q.—Do you like men's or women's voices best over the radio?

A.—Men's unless they're tenors.

Q.—Who makes most use of your set?

A.—The neighbors.

Q.—Do you consider radio a cultural agent?

A.—No, I think its an advertising agent.

Q.—Do you consider radio a utility or a piece of furniture.

A.—I consider it a phonograph that doesn't have to be wound.

One man added as a postscript to the questionnaire that as far as he was concerned radio was of little or no value because his mother-in-law insisted on operating his set most of the time and that "her taste is awful, even worse than her daughter's."

Because of the large number of winter tourists in Egypt, Cairo is becoming one of the leading rug markets of the world.

AMARILLO BOY VISITS HOOVER

Pony Rider Hitches Nag At White House

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. (AP)—Hitching his pony, Molly, to a tree on the White House lawn, Boyd Jones, 15-year-old Amarillo, Texas, lad, today delivered to President Hoover an invitation to visit the Tri-State fair in his home city.

The youth rode his pony all the way from Amarillo to deliver the invitation. He wore chaps and spurs and a battered sombrero as he went to the executive's mansion to keep his appointment with the president.

He also presented Mr. Hoover with a copy of the book, "Them Texans," by Gene Howe, editor of an Amarillo newspaper.

Texas Has Great Future In Dairying, Says Expert

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Sept. 23.—"Texas is destined to become the greatest dairying center of the world," declared H. S. Mobley, agricultural expert working with the extension service of the International Harvester company, in addressing a group of business men and farmers of this section at the high school auditorium recently.

Mr. Mobley said that Texas would reach this place in the dairy industry because of her climate and adaptability of her soil to grow all varieties of feedstuff.

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Sept. 23.—D. H. Taylor, manager of Quanah Cotton Oil company and allied interests has received notice that he has been licensed to practice before the Interstate Commerce commisson. For several years Mr. Taylor has been recognized as among the foremost rate men in the southwest, and has handled all cases for his company. His appointment and lecense comes as a fitting recognition of his ability, and will enable him to appear before the commission in any matters of interest either to his company or other firms.

Revolters' Gun Battery Shell Troop Ship

SHANGHAI, Sept. 23. (UP)—A concealed gun battery of the revolutionary forces of Gen. Chang Fat-Kwei near Itu, 20 miles from Ichang, shelled a Nationalist troop ship en route to Ichang from Hankow today, killing a Chinese messboy and wounding 40 soldiers, reports reaching here said.

The reports said the troop ship, presumably carrying troops of Gen. Chang Seishu, who had been dispatched from Nanking to halt the reported advance of General Crang was struck by several shells.

RESERVE BANK DEBTS SLICED

Boards Credit Policies Are Outlined

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23. (UP)—Notwithstanding a sharp demand for currency to pay harvesting expenses and finance the autumn quickening of trade, member banks in recent weeks have been able to cut down their debt to the federal reserve system by $40,000,000.

Auguring an unusually strong reserve banking position, this development was outlined without comment by the federal reserve board today in the September federal reserve bulletin.

The bulletin contains the first official explanation of the change of policy inaugurated by the board Aug. 9, when the New York bank raised its rediscount rate to 6 per cent concurrently with a reduction in the reserve bank buying rate for acceptances.

The principal factor in reducing the member bank debt, according to the board, was a growth of $80,000,000 in reserve bank holdings of acceptances during August, a growth in currency demand. This in turn, is traced by treasury authorities to the unusual plan adopted by the board for coping with the credit situation.

"These changes," states the bulletin, referring to the August rate alterations "together with an earlier reduction in buying rates on July 12, had the effect of substituting at New York a differential favor of the official bill rate, for an earlier differential in favor of the official discount rate.

"The changes in buying rates by bringing these into line with open market rates for bills, constituted a factor in larger offerings of bills to the reserve banks."

The board offers little further in justification of its widely discussed "plan," which has been the target for much criticism of late in both banking and brokerage circles.

EIGHT QUALIFY IN HOBBS CASE

Jury Completed Today in Assault Trial

After a day spent in the questioning of 37 members of a special venire, eight jurors had been chosen in the 89th district court late Monday afternoon for the trial of Art Hobbs on criminal assault charges brought by a 17-year-old Wichita county girl. At 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, when Judge Allan D. Montgomery adjourned the court, the state had taken 11 of the 15 jury cuts allowed and the defense had claimed 12. Members of the venire had been exhausted and both sides had agreed to choose the remainder of the jury from the regular panel for the week.

Only six of the 37 men questioned were excused for cause. Questioning for the state was conducted by George W. Anderson and Mike Anglin, assistant district attorneys. Hobbs is represented by E. F. Fruechte. Fifty witnesses have been summoned on both sides of the case and the trial is expected to extend through Thursday, Mr. Anderson said.

College and School News

Try-outs for prospective pep leaders will feature the Tuesday morning general assembly program, according to Miss Davida Olinger, instructor of girls gymnasium and pep squad sponsor.

At the close of school Monday afternoon all prospective leaders held a brief try-out meeting in preparation for the contesting Tuesday morning. Following the assebly, ballots will be cast for the four leaders of the high school pep squad this fall. Votes will be cast for both boy and girl leaders, one of each, and an assistant for each.

Prospective candidates who will participate in the contest Tuesday morning include: Girls—Dorothy Hartman, Charlotte Joiner, Catherine Corbin, Olive Humphery, Betty Jane Sehman, Mary Sue Elliot, Lorene Burnett, and Lillie Opal Nichols. Boys—Tomer Donohue, Bog Clayton, Clarence Ashton, Vernon Black and George Nelson.

Frank Haley will deliver a talk on pep at the Tuesday assembly.

College Assembly

Talks by Dean Stephen S. Rider, R. O. Jonas, Coach E. A. Baggett and by various students featured the first college assembly of the year Monday morning during the half hour period.

R. O. Jonas urged participation of all college students in school activities this term, while Coach Baggett of the college Indians urged attendance at all football games this season.

Miss Mamie Raobrn was re-appointed chairman of the college assembly program committee by Dean Rider. No separate class meeting of the freshman and sophomore groups were held. Private meetings of the two various groups will be held at the next assembly.

Miss Sellers Improving

Miss Verna Sellers, instructor of English and sponsor of numerous college activities, is reported improving after a severe illness. She is expected to meet her classes either Wednesday or Thursday.

A new road material, consisting largely of petroleum oil shale, has been perfected in Australia.

LUMBER MEN END MEETING

Trip to Diversion Closes One-Day Convention

A picnic dinner and fishing expedition at the club house of the Wichita Falls Hoo Hoo club at Diversion lake Monday night concluded the one-day convention here of the Lumbermen's Association of Texas, the Southwestern Lumbermen's association and the Southwest Oklahoma Lumber Dealers' association.

Delegates from a half-dozen states, and from as far away as Kansas City, Mo., and Seattle, Wash., were here for the meeting, a total of 64 being registered for the convention. A majority of the visitors will leave Tuesday morning for Amarillo, where the International Hoo Hoo convention opens Wednesday.

Addresses by J. A. Kirkpatrick of Waco, president of the Texas association and Charles R. Black, president of the Southwestern association, featured the afternoon's business session. Mr. Kirkpatrick paid tribute to the services given the people of the nation by lumbermen and pointed to the excellent longtime values received by purchasers of homes. Mr. Black, talking on "The Mystery Man of the Lumber Industry," told the dealers that each operator is the "mystery man" of his own business who can bring success to it by the use of common sense and adherence to the rule of selling his "own merchandise at a profit." A round-table discussion on problems concerning the industry concluded the afternoon's session.

During the morning session which opened at 11 o'clock at the Kemp hotel, Don Bowie welcomed the visitors on behalf of the Wichita Falls Hoo Hoo club. Clay Thompson of Oklahoma City made the chief address on "Line Yard Problems," a technical discussion of operation problems. H. W. Galbraith of Amarillo also made a brief address. R. S. Hathaway of Lawton, Okla., president of the Oklahoma association, presided at the morning meeting, and Mr Kirkpatrick at the afternoon meeting. Delegates were guests at a luncheon at the Kemp hotel at 12:30 o'clock, at the end of the morning session.

SUES IOWA PARK

Woman Asks $5,100 for Alleged Damages to Her Land

Cleaming that the handling of a sub-irrigation system from the sewage disposal plant has ruined her lands, Miss I. D. Cameron, holder of a 99-year lease on city acreage, Monday afternoon filed suit for $5,100 damages against the city of Iowa Park.

The plaintiff alleges that the property has been flooded, rendered unfit for use, and made uninhabitable by the failure of the city to properly engineer the disposal system. The papers filed Monday afternoon set forth that by the terms of the lease the city was to establish the underground irrigation system by the use of loose tiles covering 25 acres of the land to allow the flow of liquids from the plant. Miss Cameron claims that the system was improperly installed.

COUNTY SHOWS CASH BALANCE

Auditor's Report Reveals $515,000 on Hand

Wichita county closed the month of August with a balance of $515,506.55 in the treasury, according to the figures in the monthly auditor's report submitted Monday morning at the regular meeting of the county commissioners court. A summary of the report indicated that receipts totaling $26,227.41 were received during the months and that $74,917.35 was disbursed. The report was formally accepted by an order of the court.

Information reached the commissioners in the course of the meeting that J. W. Williamson, recently appointed justice of the peace at Iowa Park, is preparing to submit his resignation. L. L. Kuntz, commissioner from the precinct, said that the press of other business has led Mr. Williamson to decide to give up the new office. A formal notice is expected before the court next week.

The meeting Monday was adjourned early in the afternoon, only a small number of routine matters having been brought before the court.

Junior C.-C. Plans For Iowa Park Fair Stunts

Preparations are being made by the Junior chamber of commerce for a one hour program with which afternoon activities at the Wichita county fair at Iowa Park will open next Friday, Sept. 27, which has been designated "Wichita Falls" day.

Details of the program will not be announced until Wednesday, according to those in charge, but it was stated that a band concert, various vocal ensemble numbers, and dancing specialties will be included. One brief talk will comprise the speaking program, it was announced.

Friday is the regular meeting day for the Junior chamber of commerce membership luncheon, and it was said that the membership generally will attend the county fair in lieu of the usual noonday meeting.

Unsealed Telegrams for Jewish New Year Comply With Mosaic Law

Unsealed telegrams will be delivered by the Western Union Telegraph company during the celebration of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, which starts at sundown Oct. 4, according to announcement made by Charles Pogenpohl, manager of the Western Union office.

This special service has been provided in order that Orthodox Hebrews may comply with a Mosiac law which prohibits their tearing anything during the holidays.

The exceptionally large number of greeting telegrams sent during the Jewish New Year celebration has induced the telegraph company to provide special facilities for their transmission this year, Mr. Pogenpohl said.

Not only will additional operators and messengers be assigned to offices in Jewish sections, but the company has also provided a special Jewish New Year blank and envelope which will be used for all greeting telegrams. In addition, a number of suggested phrasings for these messages have been compiled for the convenience of patrons.

The company has also announced that it has made provision for the sending of cabled greetings to European countries. Messages may be sent for as little as $1.25 to these countries, Mr. Pogenpohl stated.

KGKO PROGRAM

Station KGKO will broadcast the following program Tuesday night, Sept. 24:

7:00 to 7:10—Moss and Hambone.
7:10 to 7:30—Scott old fiddlers.
7:30 to 8:00—Navigator hour.
8:00 to 8:30—All-American Hawaiians.
8:30 to 9:00—Late release reproductions.
9:00 to 9:30—Violin and piano classical program, Mrs. Maurice J. Adams.
9:30 to 10:00—KGKO Bluebird orchestra.

Nursery Library Books Collected

Books for juveniles are now being collected under the direction of Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, pastor of the First Christian church, for the establishment of a library at the Wichita Falls Day Nursery, according to his announcement at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon.

It was announced that L. A. McDonald of Denton, district governor of Kiwanis International, will be present for the next meeting of the local club on next Monday, Sept. 30. Other reports from the Texas-Oklahoma Kiwanis district convention held at Tulsa early this month were given by Dr. R. H. Peterson, district trustee; Julian Bobo, convention program committee chairman; J. L. Jackson Jr., district committee chairman; Paul Pearson and Walter Nelson Jr., the latter two having attended unofficially. Election of Judge E. L. Mitchell of Clinton, Okla., as district governor for next year, was announced. The convention selected Lubbock, Texas, as its 1930 meeting place.

Jack Ward, pianist, and Charles Doran, tap dancer, both instructors in the Wichita Falls Academy of Fine Arts, presented a program of entertainment.

MEETING POSTPONED

There will be no regular meeting of the Advertising club Tuesday due to the meeting of the tenth district, Advertising clubs of America, in Dallas, according to A. E. Kelley, president. The club will hold its regular meeting next week when reports from the convention will be heard.

Aviation Committees Meet Tuesday at C.-C.

The aviation committees of both senior and junior chambers of commerce will meet in the directors' room at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, according to officials of the organization.

It was indicated that proposed improvements on the Municipal airport will be discussed in Tuesday morning's meeting. Paul Hines heads the junior chamber committee, and J. A. Gardner that of the major body.

Satisfied drivers meet the SAFETY POINT
Seventy-six manufacturers of cars, trucks and busses prefer and use Willard Batteries in their product. They know Willard quality.
More than a million car owners a year replace with Willards. They have learned from experience that Willards of the correct electrical size are the greatest value in batteries.
Willards are priced at the safety point.....the lowest point that affords known value. Pay less than Willard prices and you invite trouble and early battery failure.
WHY will there be THREE MILLION Willards sold this year? WHY have 76 car manufacturers selected Willard to serve them? Why does Willard last longer and give less trouble? BECAUSE IT HAS QUALITY.

Wichita Falls is the great central market of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma. Its buyers gather merchandise from every corner of the world. Its stores and shops reflect the latest and best in apparel, furniture, furnishings and novelties. Variety, economy and a wholesome competition are factors which combine to make Wichita Falls a desirable place for shopping. Wichita Falls merchants are eager to serve the needs of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma people and for this reason they unite once each month in dedicating a special day for the benefit of out-of-town buyers.

Come to Wichita Falls Suburban Day

Next Thursday will be Suburban Day. Wichita Falls merchants invite you to inspect their displays of fall and winter merchandise.

The vogue for black and brown, the rising popularity of velvet, the new skirt length and all the other innovations of the season are authoritatively represented in Wichita Falls stores and shops.

If you desire things for the home, you can buy them advantageously and economically on Suburban Day. Men will delight in the quality and variety of showing in clothing and haberdashery.

Read the Suburban Day advertisements in the Daily Times and Record News next Wednesday. You will find on every page a goodly reason for making a shopping trip to Wichita Falls.
