Third Surges Into Saarburg

Resistance Crushed In Saar-Moselle Triangle; British Regain Initiative

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Feb. 21—The U. S. Third Army fought into Saarburg and closed up to the Saar river on an eight-mile front today, virtually eliminating all enemy resistance in the triangle formed by the Saar and Moselle rivers in climaxing an attack that in two days has gained ten miles and overrun nearly 40 German towns.

Between the Maas and Rhine rivers on the northern end of the front the Canadian First Army's drive toward Calcar and the Ruhr gained momentum with the help of hundreds of British warplanes. Canadian troops, using flame throwers, cleaned the enemy out of the small Moyland forest and there were signs the German defense line—built up to ten divisions there—was finally beginnng to crack.

Seventh In Forbach

Far to the south doughboys of the American Seventh Army fought through the streets of Forbach, overlooking the important German steel city of Sarbruecken which now is only three miles ahead of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's forward elements.

The troops moving forward in all three of these sectors were given tremendous air support. More than 5,000 Allied warplanes roared through clearing skies and battered transportation and military targets backing up the German lines.

Patton's armor — perhaps some of the same units which a few months ago made the spectacular dash across France — smashed into Saarburg, which straddles the Saar river midway between Trier and Merzig, and then swept northward almost to the confluence of the Saar and the Moselle.

Their advance of seven to eight miles was the best single day's gain on the Western front in weeks.

Panzers Pulled Out

As the Third Army's battle inside the troublesome triangle crumbled enemy resistance, it was disclosed that the German 11th Panzer division, which for weeks had carried on a miniature private war with the U. S. 94th division, now has been replaced by an infantry division.

North of the triangle, Patton's troops closed in on both flanks of the German salient between Pruem and Echternach, reducing the Nazi-held sector of the Siegfried line in this area to less than 12 miles.

Waves of fighters and light bombers — more than 2,800 sorties — ripped at enemy defenses along the whole front and dispirited Nazi troops surrendered by the hundreds. Twenty-one Allied planes were known to have been lost and 13 others still were missing at a late hour.

Armored units drove into Saarburg on the western bank of the Saar river after establishing contact with the 94th Infantry divis-

Adolf's Retreat Takes Pounding

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, Feb. 21 — Hitler's Bavarian mountain retreat, Berchtesgaden, well within the Reich's "inner fortress," has been subjected to its first air attack of the war, it was announced today as heavy bombers of the U. S. 15th airforce completed their Ninth consecutive day of attacks on Nazi communications in southern Europe.

The raid on Hitler's private stronghold yesterday was followed up today with an extensive bombing of the Vienna railyards which were reported handling a great volume of military traffic destined for the Eastern front.

Rockets Are Used

Rocket-firing Thunderbolts of the U. S. 12th Air force made the smash at Berchtesgaden, the fuehrer's hideout in the Bavarian Alps.

Sweeping in from their Italian bases, they pumped their rockets from low levels at rail tracks, cars and locomotives and other targets in and near the town of Berchtesgaden after they found impossible flying conditions over their primary assigned target.

The original target, although it was not announced, might have been the main Udine-Tarvisio-Salzburg railroad, which passes about five miles east of Berchtesgaden.

The town itself would be of real importance as an air target only if it were being used by the Nazis in building up the inner Bavarian citadel for prolonging the war. It has been among the spots mentioned in foreign reports as a possible last-ditch refuge for top-flight Nazis after Berlin falls.

Other Bigwigs Nearby

Hitler's strongly guarded residence is at the edge of Berchtesgaden on Obersalzberg (upper salt mountain) and other high Nazis have homes in the neighborhood.

The announcement of the raid gave no indication that Hitler's home itself was hit and there is no information available as to whether he was there at the time of the American attack.

Returning pilots reported they ran into heavy anti-aircraft and small arms fire approaching Berchtesgaden, which perhaps is one of the most strongly fortified spots in Germany, but not a single shot was fired at them when they were over the town itself.

Gripsholm Back With 1,209 Repatriates

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 21. (AP) — The exchange ship Gripsholm brought home more Americans today — soldiers and merchant seamen from German prison camps, and bewildered civilians — including 75 children — for whom America was a refuge from war.

As the sleek, white ship moved up the harbor, completing her sixth mercy trip, many of the 1,209 repatriates lined the deck for a glimpse of the statue of Liberty.

Passengers included 463 American soldiers, 78 Canadian military personnel, 46 merchant seamen, 548 United States civilians and 74 Latin-American nationals.

The American and Canadian soldiers, all ill or wounded, were the first to leave the ship. It was nearly 4 p. m. — three hours after the vessel docked — before they disembarked.

The Americans were taken in ambulances to Halloran General hospital on Staten Island for physical examinations, and the Army permitted no interviews with them before tomorrow. The Canadians will go home by train.

Argentina Gets Cold Reception

By FLORA LEWIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 21—A determination to prevent any move towards recognition of the present government in Argentina materialized as the inter-American conference got underway today.

Mexican Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla, chairman of the conference, told the Associated Press that if any of the delegates wished to fight on Argentina's behalf, the "conference is prepared" to go into a detailed exposition of what the Argentine government has done.

Filed By Paraguay

The Argentine issue was launched almost immediately after the preliminary meeting this morning opened. Paraguay demanded an important position on the agenda for the Argentina case.

The chiefs of delegation, sitting as a steering committee, turned this down and relegated the Argentine question to the end of the meeting.

Padilla said he was looking for this solution of the Argentine issue: "A resolution expressing our friendship towards the Argentine people and separating the questions of the people there and of the government."

Expects No Compromise

It was clear that he expected no compromise with the government of President Edelmiro Farrel so long as it refrains from full cooperation with the other countries for hemisphere security.

Padilla refused to go into details on the record that would be brought out on Argentina if some delegations wished to drive for a resolution favorable to the Argentine government.

However, it is known that several governments represented here have prepared extensive dossiers on the activities of Nazi agents in Argentina and the position of the Argentine government during the war.

Padilla Heads Group

Today's session was a preliminary gathering of the heads of delegations to fix the agenda, elect a president and establish rules for the meeting.

Mexican Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla was named president of the conference, his nomination having been placed by Bolivia and seconded by U. S. Secretary of State Stettinius.

Padilla observed that leaving the Argentine question for discussion at the end of the meeting would contribute to the success of the gathering.

Wreck Injuries Are Fatal To Officer

TEMPLE, Feb. 21. (AP) — Major Orville H. Turner, 54 post exchange officer at North Camp Hood, Tex., and one of two persons injured in an automobile wreck Monday night three miles south of McGregor, died in McCloskey General hospital yesterday.

T/5 Edwards Leeds of New York, also was injured in the wreck.

Turner had been in the reserve and regular Army for 24 years. His wife, the former Lola English of May, Tex., lives at Little Rock, Ark.

His body was to be taken by rail to Brownwood, Tex., for burial, arriving tomorrow.

Turner was a resident of Brownwood for many years, and the Isham A. Smith American Legion post there, of which he was once commander, arranged a military funeral, the exact time of which had not been set. A firing squad from Camp Bowie, Brownwood, will take part in the ceremony.

Reds By-Pass Guben; Nazis Claim Victory In Prussia

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, 8hursday, Feb. 22—The Soviet First Ukraine Army by-passed the stout German defense hedgehog of Guben yesterday and drove to the confluence of the Neisse and Oder rivers, 54 miles southeast of Berlin and separated only by the width of the Oder from a juncture with the First White Russian Army, which was reported fighting to encircle Frankfurt 21 miles to the north.

In the Samland peninsula of East Prussia the Berlin radio claimed that a surprise German offensive had reestablished a firm corridor from Koenigsberg to the escape port of Pillou, 20 miles south.

Reds Admit Losses

Moscow merely acknowledged some advances by the enemy in that sector and said the desperate effort was costing the Germans enormously in men and equipment, while another trapped German force southwest of Koenigsberg lost 85 tanks and 400 vehicles in two days.

Moscow's nightly communique and an early morning supplement said the First Ukraine forces of Marshal Ivan S. Konev had seized a strategic ridge in the forest on the eastern approaches to Guben and had driven up to the Neisse river on both sides of the town, capturing more than 50 populated places in advances that measured seven to 13 miles on a 50-mile-wide front.

Moscow was officially silent concerning operations of the First White Russian forces of Marshal G. K. Zhukov directly east of Berlin, but Pravda, official Communist party paper, asserted the Red Army now stood but 34 miles from the German capital, and the German radio announced that Zhukov had "temporarily" slashed communications between Berlin and Frankfurt, on the west bank of the Oder 38 miles from Berlin.

Pravda did not specify the location, but this shortest distance from Berlin yet given by the Russians indicated that Zhukov had crossed the Oder, a development which the Germans long have conceded but which Moscow never has announced.

Other Nazi broadcasters said German forces were fighting defensively "between Berlin and the Frankfurt-Kuestrin front" 30-odd miles east of Berlin, but contended the Russian bridgeheads on the west bank of the Oder still were "far too small" for a major offensive towards Berlin.

The Second White Russian Army of Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky meanwhile continued its steady drive northward through the Polish corridor towards Danzig, now 3. miles away, and was honored by an order of the day from Premier Stalin announcing capture of Czrsk, 45 miles southwest of Danzig.

The Soviet communique announced that Rokossovsky also took 40 other towns in the Polish corridor, the northernmost being Pehskerfelde.

With Danzig thus endangered, the Germans penned on the Samland peninsula in East Prussia west of Koenigsberg made a desperate effort to break out to the port of Pillau, 20 miles south, before their entrapment was further solidified.

Moscow acknowledged some withdrawals in the face of this

Food Rations To Germans Are Cut

LONDON, Feb. 21 (AP) — The Berlin radio announced tonight a 12 1-2 per cent cut in food rations for all Germans.

The broadcast said the reduction was an "emergency measure to help create reserves and provide a better basis on which rations can be worked out for a new period beginning in April."

Farmers were asked to increase deliveries of foodstuffs to the utmost to help "bridge the gap between rationing period."

Electric power is now cut off throughout Berlin for several hours a day and its women, both rich and poor, have been impressed into building street barricades, reports from the German capital said.

Spirit Of Fatalism

"A spirit of innate fatalism pervades the capital" the German news agency Transocean broadcast as the city awaited a great frontal assault from Soviet armies fighting little more than 30 miles away.

Describing Berlin's last-ditch preparations, Transocean said that "women, including ladies in fur coats, work in queues which pass bricks and stones to build barricades and strongpoints in ruined buildings."

Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, 38 miles to the east, already was under assault. With the bulk of its 80,000 civilians evacuated, this city was making a stand-to-the-death to delay the big push on the capital.

Russian shells and bombs hammered the city ceaselessly and the machineguns of Red fighter planes strafed its streets, many of

Branson Kidnaping Case Goes To Jury

FORT WORTH, Feb. 21. (AP) — The case of Mrs. Melba Branson, 19-year-old Army wife charged with kndnaping two-months-old Milly McGill, went to the jury at 11:08 tonight and the jury announced it was retiring for the night and would begin deliberation tomorrow.

Testimony closed without either Mrs. Branson or Mrs. Velma McGill, the child's mother, taking the witness stand.

Mrs. Branson was accused of taking the child from a hotel room here last Jan. 9 and abandoning it next day in a San Antonio bus station.

Introduced today was a divorce petition filed by Mrs. McGill in district court here last Oct. 11. It was dismissed early this month for want of prosecution and Mrs. McGill last Saturday filed another divorce suit asking that custody of the child be given to Mrs. Branson.

Texas Newspaperman And Publisher Dies

DALLAS, Feb. 21. (AP) — Glen Devoe Davis, 61, publisher and owner of "The Texas Progress," monthly magazine published in Dallas, died today after an illness of five days.

Davis, a resident of Dallas for 25 years, came to Dallas in 1919 from Kansas City, Mo., to become associated with his father in the insurance business. Later he was city editor of the Dallas Morning News for some time.

He was publisher of the East Texas chamber of commerce magazine, "East Texas," for 12 years.

Military Prisoners Flee In Army Truck

AUSTIN, Feb. 21. (AP) — State police today broadcast a pick up order for two military prisoners who escaped from Camp Hood in a stolen Army truck.

Police said the prisoners were armed with an Army carbine rifle.

The escapees were listed as Donald E. Jones, 23, serving seven years, and David C. Speese, 23, serving 15 years.

Police said the truck bore the stenciled letters A-14-NCH or 31-458438. One of the men wore an Army field jacket with corporal's stripes.

Senate Reverses Manpower View

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21 (AP) — Drastic penalties were restored to the work-or-jail bill today, a complete flip-flop of the Senate Military committee's previous attitude.

The committee action was surprising, and not immediately clear, either.

It was brought about by an unusual coalition of friends and opponents of limited national service, those who want to force men 18 to 45 into war work and those favoring voluntary controls.

Group Is Confused

Members of the committee were unable to agree even whether the penalties would apply to both employers and employes. The bill was in so jumbled a state that its approval in its present form was doubtful, to say the least.

Written in was an amendment making violators of the act subject to a year's imprisonment or a $10,000 fine. It was offered by Senator Austin (R-Vt), an advocate of full national service legislation. Its effect was obscure.

Final Vote Delayed

The final vote on the amended substitute bill was put off until tomorrow. There were strong indications that an effort would be made at that time to reconsider the Austin amendment, and also one adopted earlier in the day reaffirming farm workers for whom no suitable replacements are available.

The sudden reversal of sentiment on the work-or-jail principle was a complete surprise. The committee had all but perfected a substitute for the House-approved bill with its compulsory features, and had been expected to report the alternate favorably today.

Politicians Scream 'Nurse Draft' While Many Volunteers Here 'Sweat' Out Calls

POTENT political figures in Washington scream for passage of legislation to draft nurses for service in the Army and Navy—and in Lubbock 17 nurses have been waiting orders ever since they volunteered for service more than a month ago.

It was on January 16 that Mrs. Hilda Beaty of Red Cross headquarters was in Lubbock recruiting nurses. Persons qualified who were not already cadet nurses or classified as essential community workers, volunteered.

Only one of this group, who is awaiting Naval orders, has received any word from the armed forces. The other 17 are "sweating out" a reply to applications.

All applications were sent to the area office in Abilene and from there forwarded to national headquarters to be indexed and filed. These 17 nurses are beginning to wonder if their applications have been duplicated by a deluge of like requests from nurses everywhere. They're frankly puzzled about why a law to draft nurses still is being pressed when the government apparently has so many volunteer applicants it can't get around to calling them to duty.

One of the nurses awaiting orders is a former first lieutenant in the Army Nurses corps, having resigned four years ago when she was married, and her husband is serving overseas. She said that women of her profession had not learned of the increasing need for their services until recently. Since news reports have led persons to believe casualties were light, nurses thought they were doing their patriotic duty by serving in this community where a shortage exists, she added.

Since the invasion of France last June, casualties have increased by 200 times, thus necessitating a "call to arms" of nurses. The authorized ration of nurse to patient is 1 to 15 in the United States, 1 to 12 overseas.

Meanwhile, 18 Lubbock nurses are fulfilling their duty at home, in Lubbock hospitals and on special duty — and wondering what the howling in Washington is all about.

More Troops Land On Iwo

Another Division Moves Ashore As Yank Casualties Pass Tarawa Toll

By ELMONT WAITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Thursday, Feb. 22—A third Marine division, increasing the invasion force to possibly 45,000 men, has been thrown into the furious battle for Iwo to fill gaps caused by casualties already exceeding 3,600.

Disclosing the fresh commitments in a communique today, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz acknowledged that Japanese resistance rose to such a high pitch Wednesday afternoon, third day of the invasion, that the hard-fighting Devildogs virtually were stopped in their tracks.

Storm Volcano's Slopes

The reinforced Leathernecks, holding a wedge across the south third of the island, stormed the slopes of a volcano on the south tip with flamethrowers and tanks. Although unable to advance appreciably,, they hurled back a counterattack in the vicinity.

On the north end of the wedge, Nipponese mine fields and intense mortar and artillery fire temporarily halted a drive toward an airfield in the center of the island.

The American casualties on Iwo already are approximating twice Tarawa's losses.

(Waite did not elaborate on that report which was passed by the censors. Inasmuch as American casualties in the 72-hour battle for Tarawa totalled 3,151, this suggests Iwo casualties — dead, wounded, missing — possibly approaching 6,000. Nimitz' only official report on casualties, covering 48 hours, gave the figure of 3,650).

Erskine In Command

The Third Marine division, under Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine, reinforced the Fourth division under Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates and the Fifth under Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey.

Thus approximately 45,000 Leathernecks may have been committed to an operation against Japanese estimated in today's communique to have totaled 20,000 when the island was invaded Monday.

The Marines, having captured their main objective, the big Motoyama bomber airfield No. 1 Tuesday, were checked during an enveloping drive toward the island's other airfield to the north.

"Intense mortar, artillery and small arms fire is being encountered by our troops and in some areas extensive mine fields are slowing the advance," Nimitz said.

Lines Little Changed

During the afternoon (Wednesday) there was no appreciable change in our lines," he reported.

"On the south, flamethrowers and tanks are being used against well entrenched enemy troops in the Mt. Suribachi area," Nimitz added. "A counterattack launched

Corregidor Japs Blow Selves Up

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANILA, Thursday, Feb. 22.—Japanese hopelessly sealed in Corregidor's network of tunnels blew themselves up by touching off a main ammunition dump yesterday as American forces tightened the squeeze on the remaining enemy garrison there and also in Manila, where the Yanks captured the Manila hotel, one of the luxury spots of the Orient.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said the enemy on Corregidor fortress, at the entrance to Manila bay, was destroyed except for minor mopping up. He declared that a thorough combing of Bataan peninsula showed not a single Japanese left alive.

Noted Hotel Battered

First Cavalry division troops under Maj. Gen. Verne D. Mudge, fighting up the south Manila shoreline, found the big Manila hotel battered but not beyond salvage. They also captured Burnham Green, a small park nearby.

The cavalrymen thus were within 50 feet of the southern wall of the ancient intramuros, in which the Japanese are holed up for a bitter final fight. American howitzers are pounding the wall city's thick eastern wall to make way for tanks.

School Building Taken

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler's 37th Infantry division, meantime, captured the three-story Ermita Normal school, southeast of the Manila hotel, and engaged Japanese defenders in the city hall, three blocks north of the school.

"There are still thousands of Japanese on Luzon, but the bulk of the once-strong enemy occupation force has retired or been pushed back into the comparative security of mountains and valleys of the northeast.

The Japanese on Bataan were estimated several thousand strong when the Americans invaded the southern shore just a week ago to form a death vise in conjunction with a strong Yank force moving down from the north.

On Corregidor, invaded last Friday, MacArthur said more than 1,700 Japanese dead already had been buried and the count was only partially complete. The main tunnel has been blocked at both ends by explosives.

MacArthur described the Japanese within south Manila's medieval Intramuros as resisting with "savage barbarism . . . seldom displayed in a more repulsive form."

Howitzers Batter Wall

Howitzers and cannon are attempting to breach the outer wall of this medieval citadel to make an entranceway for tanks and infantrymen seeking to clean up this final enemy strongpoint in the Philippine capital and liberate an estimated 7,000 civilians held as virtual hostages.

MacArthur said final destruction of the Japanese garrison "has been slow due to the desire to limit civilian casualties as far as possible." He went on:

"It is in no sense a measure of the special skill or tenacity of the enemy, whose savage barbarism has seldom been displayed in a more repulsive form."

Japanese marines and naval defense forces make up the bulk of the Intramuros garrison.

Jap Freighters Sunk

Heavy bombers dropped 50 tons of explosives on airdrome and barrack installations on southwestern Formosa and sank a small freighter off the east coast. Another freighter was damaged.

A 1,000-ton freighter was sunk near Hong Kong as reconnaissance planes swept the China coast.

A 144-ton bombing of northern Borneo was concentrated in the Miri and Jesselton airdromes on the northern end. Runways were severely crated and many fires were observed. Fabuan airdrome at Brunei bay, Borneo, also was bombed.

Bomber Falls In Flooded Trinity

DALLAS, Feb. 21 (AP)—Three bodies have been recovered from the wreckage of an Army bomber which crashed in flooded Trinity river bottomlands near here late today.

Rising waters forced resources to abandon further search tonight.

The plane was a B-24 and had left the Smyrna Army Air field, Smyrna, Tenn., earlier in the day.

It had four men aboard.

Had Landed At Hensley

It had landed in Dallas at Hensley Field on a regular operational flight and had taken off again shortly before the accident.

According to several eyewitnesses, the B-24 was in a spin.

The crash occurred eight and one half miles northwest of Love Field about 5 o'clock.

J. S. Farine, a fisherman, said he saw the crash.

"The plane was coming almost straight down with motors roaring," he said. "I was two miles away in a boat, and the plane hit with such a crash it jarred my boat."

Flood waters covered so much of nearby lands only six men were able to reach the scene.

Fell On Farm

City ambulance driver Harry Goldberg reported the plane fell on a farm off the Joe Field road, three miles north of the northwest highway.

He said that Russell Smith, operator of a grocery store, saw the plane fall. He said it went into a spin and added he saw smoke.

Goldberg said that other reports indicated the plane did not burn after it hit the water, about six feet deep at the spot.

Error In Charge Brings Reversal Of Publisher's Libel Conviction

AUSTIN, Feb. 21. (AP)—Because of an error of the trial judge in charging the jury, the criminal libel conviction of William Prescott Allen, publisher of the Laredo Times, was reversed and remanded today by the court of criminal appeals.

Judge Lloyd Davidson's written opinion held that the jury's consideration of the question of Allen's guilt should have been limited to the "language of the statement charged in the indictment to be libelous and which was sufficient to constitute a libel."

Some of the language in the article complained of, said Judge Davidson, was libelous but other portions under which Allen was indicted were not libelous. Allen was convicted in 49th district court at Laredo and punishment was assessed at six months confinement in the county jail.

Rotary Club Loan Fund

Allen was indicted and tried on the charge of criminal libel after publication of an article in the Laredo Times referring to members of the board of directors of the Laredo Rotary club and operation of the organization's student loan fund.

"The board of directors had a perfectly legal right to use all lawful means to collect the money due the student loan fund," said the opinion. "There is no allegation . . . that the board of directors in attempting to collect such funds had violated any law. . . ."

In this connection, the opinion notes that Allen took exception to publication in the Rotary club's paper of a list of students to whom loans had been made, and those who were delinquent. Among those shown as delinquent "were members of the military service in the Army or Navy," the opinion recited.

Portions Ruled Libelous

The language of the article published on Dec. 23, 1943, "relative to the collection of funds due the student loan fund did not constitute a libel," said Judge Davidson, but "the other language in the statement where in the state charges that the members of the board of directors are referred to as 'Bundist, Hitler-minded', 'Hitler sympathizing', and 'Hitler's friends' . . . present quite a different situation."

Davidson's opinion concluded that the language was 'libel per se" and "the indictment was sufficient to charge the offense of criminal libel upon the publication of the statements which we hold to constitute libel per se, and that it was insufficient to charge said offense upon the allegation that the acts and conduct of the board of directors in collecting funds due the student loan fund constituted a libel."

Sufficiency Of Evidence

The opinion reviewed the matter of sufficiency of evidence, finding "the facts are deemed sufficient to support the conviction," then questioned the procedures.

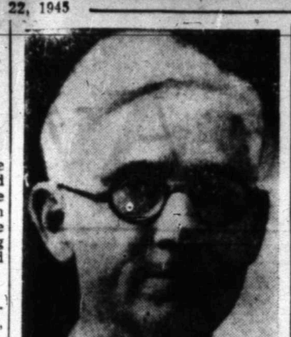

Under the judge's charge, the jury "were authorized to predicate a conclusion of guilt upon any language of the statement. . . . Such charge, then, authorized the jury to find appellant guilty upon the language relative to the collection of the funds due the student loan fund, which we hold was not libelous.

"By special requested charge, as well as exception to the court's charge, appellant sought to have the jury instructed that a finding of guilt could not be predicated upon the language of the statement relative to the collection of the funds. These were overruled.

General Verdict

"The jury returned a general verdict. . . . As thus presented, we have no way of knowing whether or not the conviction was predicated upon the language referred to, which did not constitute a libel. . . .

"We think that the situation here presented is governed and controlled by the rule that where a general verdict is returned upon an indictment of multiple counts, all of which are submitted to the jury and some of which counts are fatally defective and the punishment assesed is in excess of the minimum, the conviction can not stand."

Scout Council Sets Annual Meet Tonight

Dr. J. A. Hill, president of West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon, will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet of South Plains council of the Boy Scouts of America to be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at Lubbock hotel.

Election of new council officers and approval of the 1945 budget will be the most important business items considered, G. M. Unger, Scout executive, reported.

Awards will also be made to troops which qualified for the Silver Jubilee program during 1944, with Henry Teubel of Tulia making the presentations. The Haynes bond award, which is to be given to the outstanding troop of the council, will be made by Cecil H. Cale of Lubbock. Other awards are to be by Dr. J. O. Ellsworth and K. N. Clapp, both of Lubbock.

Nominations will be made by a committee headed by J. M. Willson of Floydada, and the treasurer's report is to be given by Jack Randall, Lubbock attorney.

Suicide Assignments Given Nazi Soldiers Guilty Of Offenses

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Feb. 21. (AP)—Hitler's army now is giving its suicide assignments to battalions of the damned, made up of German soldiers convicted of military offenses, it was learned authoritatively today.

Instead of going to prison, they go back to the front.

Such forces are known to have been used against the Russian army. Employment of troops in American uniforms at the time of the Ardennes breakthrough indicated that the convict corps had been in action in the west as well.

These troops get dirty jobs. They clear minefields under fire. They spearhead hopeless counter-attacks. They are thrown into attacks when other German troops have been stopped.

Retailers Warned On Counterfeited Rationing Coupons

Retailers in the Lubbock area of the Office of Price administration are reminded to be on the alert for counterfeit sugar, meat and shoe stamps since they have been found in other areas and are likely to show up here, C. E. Blount, enforcement attorney for the OPA, said Wednesday.

In other areas, the attorney said, the counterfeit meat stamps have been selling for $6 per 100 coupons.

Filling station operators are also advised to check all gasoline stamps for proper license numbers and serial numbers since counterfeit and stolen stamps are in circulation.

Counterfeiting of gasoline stamps has been cut 50 per cent in this area since the stamps were numbered serially about a year ago. However, he said, counterfeiting still runs ½ of 1 percent of all coupons surrendered in this area.

He explained that few such stamps have been found in the city of Lubbock because of its location. A majority of counterfeit stamps are made on the East or West coasts and are more readily passed to filling stations and wholesalers along the main cross-country highways. Motorists usually pay an average of $1.50 for a counterfeit gasoline stamp.

A counterfeit stamp is not easily detected, he said, but a station will always be protected if attendants will check the serial and license number with the book issued to a customer.

Stassen's Plan Is In Spotlight

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—President Roosevelt was taking no visible risk of opposition when he made Lt. Cmdr. Harold E. Stassen one of the three Republican members of the American delegation to the San Francisco conference.

That conference meets on April 25. It is to set up a permanent postwar United Nations organization to maintain peace by armed force, including some of ours. Stassen is for that.

To Be 1948 Candidate

He used to be governor of Minnesota and he sought the 1944 Republican presidential nomination. He is now a staff officer to Adm. William F. Halsey, jr., commander of the Third United States fleet, and is in Washington temporarily with Halsey. In a Navy department press conference yesterday, Stassen practically acknowledged his candidacy for the 1948 GOP nominations.

But he balked at discussing his ideas of a postwar world organization, explaining that he would make a public statement on that at some future date prior to the conference. It is not necessary to await that statement since Stassen is difinitely on record and in no uncertain language. He has made a number of statements of his ideas on foreign policy. As revealing as any is that of Jan. 7, 1943, in Minneapolis before the Foreign Policy association.

Proposed Permanent Federation

There Stassen proposed a permanent federation of United Nations complete with legislative, executive and judicial branches, but with powers limited to specified objectives. This permanent organization, he said, should possess a mobile land army, a navy and an air force. These would enforce the federation's code of laws which, in turn, would be designed to stimulate world trade and maintain the freedom of the air and of the seas.

"We must keep our sights high and maintain a worldwide vision to win and enduring people's peace," Stassen told the Minneapolis audience. "America, peopled by the sons and daughters of every nation of the world, can and must furnish leadership in meeting this challenge."

Plans Not Identical

Stassen's federation and the Dumbarton Oaks plan for a post-war United Nations organization are not identical. But they are sufficiently similar to assure Mr. Roosevelt of Stassen's support for the objectives sought. Stassen's federation legislature would consist of a single house or parliament. Its membership would be fixed on the basis of the number of literate persons among the populations of member nations, subject to certain modifications.

These modifications would give increased representation to nations in some proportion to the sum of their money contribution to the federation. But a nation's resources, or ability to contribute, also would be considered. Each nation would select its own representatives.

"The United Nations parliament," Stassen explained, "would select a chairman of the United Nations council who will, in turn, select seven members for the council from the parliament. The council would then become the executive side of the United Nations government."

The federation, he continued, would establish a world code of justice to be enforced by a United Nations legion. The legion would consist of modern naval forces, highly mechanized land forces and air forces. Backed with such power, Stassen would disarm the Axis, punish war criminals and establish temporary governments in enemy nations. He said there should be no wholesale reprisal against innocent Axis civilians.

To Attend As Civilian

There was no criticism here of Stassen's refusal to discuss his peace plans at the Navy department while in uniform. He said he would attend the San Francisco conference in civilian clothing and be able, at that time, to speak and think for himself. Thereafter he will return to the Navy.

Although the young naval officer and the President are in substantial accord on foreign policy, they differ at hime. The former governor is on record that:

"The New Deal climate, in its antagonism to the American productive system, cannot be repealed too soon."

Sharbutt Here For Visit With Mother

After completing 30 missions in the European theater as waist gunner on a B-24, S/Sgt. Raymond F. Sharbutt, 21, is now stationed at Lowry field, Colo., and has arrived in Lubbock on a 14-day furlough visiting his mother, Mrs. Minnie Sharbutt of 311 Ave. M.

Sgt. Sharbutt, who has been in service two years, has the Air Medal, three Oak Leaf clusters and the Distinguished Service Cross. He participated in the invasion of France on D-Day.

He was graduated from Whitharral High school.

State Auditor Would Be Budget Director Under House Proposal

AUSTIN, Feb. 21. (AP) — The state auditor would become the state budget director as well under a bill which passed second reading in the House today.

The House which refused to suspend rules for immediate consideration on final passage of the bill eliminated from it a provision that the governor appoint a budget director subject to Senate confirmation.

It adopted an amendment declaring that the auditor, an appointee of the legislature, become the budget director. Thus it changed the principle of the bill which as introduced by Rep. Joe Humphrey of Abilene intended to give the appointment to the governor who is charged constitutionally with budgeting duties.

Offered By Bundy

The auditor amendment was offered by Rep. W. A. Bundy of Wichita Falls who said its purpose was to prevent creating another state department.

The general purposes of the bill remain — a continuous study by the budget director of expenditures by state agencies, of the needs for revenue and of the quality of work produced by the departments. His recommendations for biennial appropriations and reports on operation of the budget would be made to the legislature.

While the House wrangled inconclusively on the budget bill—it may be considered again tomorrow — the Senate pitched into debate and finally set for special consideration next Wednesday a House - approved resolution submitting a constitutional amendment granting members of the armed services exemption from poll tax payment as voting prerequisite in time of war or national emergency.

Truck Load Limits

The House apparently squelched for the session the question of raising truck load limits. This is the probable effect of its refusal to print on minority report a bill increasing the limit from 38,000 pounds to 56,000 pounds. House sentiment was reflected in the 95 to 39 vote tabling Rep. Jack Lave's motion to print on minority report. Love had promised to offer a floor amendment, if the House kept the bill alive, placing the maximum load at 48,000 pounds.

The House also:

Finally passed a Senate bill authorizing the board of control to convey to the Texas A. & M. sweet potato experiment station at Gilmer 81 acres of land formerly used by the state orphans' home which has been moved to Austin.

Teachers Salaries

Finally passed a Senate bill authorizing common and independent school districts to apply to teachers salaries a $4 surplus per capita apportionment distributed last year. This application has been made in most instances and the bill removes any question of legality, sponsors explained.

Passed, with amendments which sent it back to the Senate, a Senate bill changing the qualifications of county veterans' service officers so that veterans of World war II may be eligible for appointment to office.

The volume of bills and resolutions presented on first reading increased in both House and Senate. Senate measures include those:

Creating a state board for licensing public accountants.

Authorizing the board of control to determin if an Austin office building (Tribune) may be purchased to house state departments which have overcrowded state owned structures.

Senate and House adjourned tomorrow and heavy calendars indicated that neither branch would cut short its work for the Washington's birthday holiday.

Soldier Vote Bill

Senate debate on the soldier vote resolution was shut off only when Sen. Penrose Metcalfe of San Angelo moved to set it for special order next week. Several amendments were pending.

Sen. R. A. Weinert of Seguin complained that the proposal was good within its limitations but that it did not go far enough to be of real benefit to soldiers.

"You are only exempting them from paying the poll tax," he said. "The constitution as originally framed does not permit a soldier to vote. Probably this was done for fear that a large number of troops might gain control of voting but as far as I am concerned, even if they did I would prefer it to those who have control now."

Weinert noted the poll tax exemption for members of the armed forces applied to "time of emergency."

German View Of Big Three Conference Is Given In Newspaper

LONDON, Feb. 21 (AP) — The German radio quoted the newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung today as saying the decisions reached by the Big Three at Yalta would mean for Germany:

1. Maimed and wounded of the German army would not be cared for after the war.

2. International bomber squadrons would demolish German cities of the future "each time the German people rise in wrath against the brutal methods of the powers of occupation."

3. German schools would be forbidden to teach the history of former great men and would be forced to ignore the deeds of German soldiers in this war.

Advisory Group To Aid CC Operation

Since Manager A. B. Davis will be forced by illness to remain away from his desk for several weeks, an executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce directorate has been chosen to advise M. D. Fanning and Mrs. Clarence Luce, veterans of the office staff, in the operation of the organization. The committee is composed of H. L. Allen and J. D. Hassell, jr., both former presidents of the chamber, and Roy Furr.

Condition of Manager Davis has improved considerably since his entrance into West Texas hospital last Sunday, suffering from a respiratory infection and resultant heart disturbance. His hospital room still is marked "No Vistors," but an attending physician reports Mr. Davis "doing very nicely."

The meeting was in the chamber of commerce office at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Texas Attitude Given On Gas

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (AP) — The Texas Railroad commission has taken the position that "the United States is not required, even in proof of friendship" for Mexico to provide gas for its neighbor across the Rio Grande.

The Texas commission outlined its position in a brief filed with the Federal Power commission opposing application by Reynosa Pipeline Co. of Corpus Christi to pipe an additional 60,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas daily into Mexico.

Line Is Proposed

The company proposes that the Federal Power commission construct a line to carry gas from Hidalgo county, Tex., to the Mexican border. The gas then would be piped to Monterey. The application had been for a certification of "war necessity."

It had been testified in hearings that a Mexican company, CIA Fundidora de Fierro y Acero of Monterey, would have been able to produce more steel rails, over which war materials could have been shipped, if it had been able to obtain more gas. The Railraod commission, however, said the company's failure to produce more rails was due to its failure to get and use its share of gas being piped under existing facilities."

Development Is Cited

Observing that in view of the "increased development of southwestern Texas" there is to be expected an increased demand for gas, the Railroad commission said.

"We believe that the United States should in all things be just and generous to Mexico. No other standard of conduct on the part of our nation and the state of Texas will comport with our dignity and honor. On the other hand a nation owes its first duty to its own people. The United States is not required, even in proof of its friendship, to limit its growth and abridge the safety and comfort of its own citizens that a neighboring country may correspondingly benefit."

House Indulges In Political Funmaking

AUSTIN, Feb. 21 (U.P.)—At the expense of Texas Regulars, Texas House members indulged in political funmaking today.

Rep. Tom Deen, Floydada, introduced a resolution to require members of the party that blossomed on the Texas political scene last year to wear identification buttons. They would be worn on outer garments during the day and on "pajamas or nightgowns" at night, the resolution provided.

Rep. Sam Hanna, Dallas, wanted to know if U. S. Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel were included. Deen replied that while "that great Texas regular" is not mentioned, he would be included.

Other members thought former Sens. Tom Holbrook, Austin, and Roy Sanderford, Belton, and Judge Merritt Gibson, Longview, should be heard from. They were prominent in Texas Regular activities.

After many catcalls and much applause, the resolution was sent to a house committee.

DALLAS MAN BURIED

DALLAS, Feb. 21. (U.P.)—Services were planned today for Eugene Purviance, 54, final reviewer with the regional office of the United States Railroad Retirement board here, who died yesterday. Purviance came to Dallas in 1930, spent some time in Washington, D. C., and returned to Dallas in 1940, where he has since been associated with the retirement board. Surviving were his widow and two brothers.

SOLON ANSWERS PRAVDA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (AP)—Rep. O'Konski (R-Wis) today branded as a "lie mixed with red pepper and vodka" a Pravda editorial criticizing his views on the Yalta Big Three conference.

"In fact," O'Konski told the house, "Pravda out-Goebbels Goebbels."

The Woman's Angle

SOUTH Plains men stationed in northern Europe are writing they would trade all the snow they ever saw for just a few old-fashioned sand storms, such as used to mark early spring days out here.

THE RUSSIANS

WHEN misunderstandings are being patched up in the days which immediately follow the end of the war, we earnestly hope someone will put us straight on what kind of people the Russians actually are. We know the Russians will have one champion; that is the American doughboy who today is fighting on the western front and learning how the Reds are rolling along on the Eastern front. As one soldier expressed it in a recent letter to the writer, "We really are fans of those Russians."

Before the war we used to be furious because an English man or a European visited here briefly and then went home and wrote a book telling all about the Americans. But is that any worse than the Americans who have gone to Russia on war missions and after a few weeks have returned to "tell all" about those peoples with their outstanding ballet, their inefficient factories, their shoddy clothes, their black bread and their strong drinks. Some of these reports have not gone unnoticed in Russia because these hasty good willers are characterized "vodka visitors."

We've often heard that Russia is out to convert the world to her form of government. We wonder.

And there is the matter of morals in this land of the dashing horsemen, the nationalized women. We'd always heard that marriage bans were treated lightly there; that a divorce was as easy to get as a three-day pass. And yet when Hemingway's book, "For Whom The Bell Tolls," was being put in Russian language, the translator said a lot of the American writer's works could not be translated because they would shock Russian readers.

TELEPHONE ETIQUETTE

A LITTLE but irritating situation often occurs when you return a telephone call without a name. You have no idea who is at the other end of the line and often as not the question will be "Who is this?"

The correct way we believe is for you to give your name and ask "Did someone at that number call me?" There is something maddening about a strange voice demanding to know your name.

TODAY'S GAG

IT was at an observatory. A distinguished scientist was scanning the heavens through the large telescope. Intent upon the sight, he remarked to his colleagues without turning around: "It's going to rain."

"Because," said the scientist, still peering at the heavens," my corns hurt."

DISCHARGED GI'S

DISCHARGED GI's are so anxious to get back in to civilian clothes they want alterations on their new suits "done in the next ten minutes"; they shun cheap clothing and buy good quality suits—averaging about $45 in price; they don't shop around, but go to one store and buy as nearly a complete outfit as the store can supply. The men usually pay cash, even when they are invited to open a charge account; they seldom shop alone but usually have wife, mother or sweetheart along to approve their selections.

Most returning service men like fairly lively patterns; when they buy dark blues it is usually because there is a wedding in the offing. Brown remains a favorite but nothing approaching the Army olive drab uniform, thank you.

Younger veterans generally have gotten too husky to wear the suits they left at home when they went into the service. Older ones usually gave their suits to younger brothers, cousins, the yard man or perhaps to father upon enlisting. So it's a fresh start from scratch for most of them.

Most of the discharged GI's are keeping a suit of woolen undies for hunting and fishing trips, so they tell haberdashery clerks.

JAP CRUELTY

IN the movie version of Lawson's "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," a young flier in answer to his question, "What shall we do if forced down over Japan?" is told "Just don't let it happen." And Amreicans upon first hearing of the real raid breathed sighs of relief upon learning none was forced down over the capital city.

Since the B-29 raids were instituted, Tokyo has warned that any "American savages" parachuting from planes on Japanese soil will be killed on the spot. According to John B. Hughes, who is to lecture here next Thursday under auspices of the Lubbock branch, American Association of University Women, our fighting men long ago gave up hope of receiving any merciful treatment from the Japanese. No American in the Pacific relishes the idea of being taken prisoner by the Japs because most of our men have seen some gruesome evidence of what happens to the captives of Japan, Hughes adds. He says both army and navy agree that no expense and no effort is too great to save one American from the prospect of Jap capture.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Saves You Big Dollars, and It's So Easily Mixed.

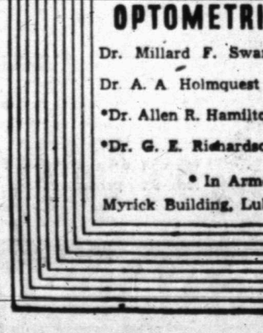

Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable, for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and 1 cup water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's so easy! Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold promptly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Byrnes Pleased At Response To Midnight Curfew On Amusements

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (U.P.)—War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes expressed pleasure today at "the immediate response" to his midnight curfew order for entertainment places.

State and city officials have promised to help enforce the midnight closing time, for entertainment places, Byrnes said, and representatives of the entertainment field have "already pledged cooperation."

The War Manpower commision, with cooperation of state and municipal enforcement agencies will be responsible for enforcing the order when it goes into effect next Monday.

Advisory Board Approval

Byrnes revealed that before issuing the curfew "request" on Monday, he won for it the unanimous approval of his war mobilization and reconversion advisory board. This 12-man group consists of representatives of business, labor and agriculture.

In view of the board's approval, Byrnes said, the gratifying public response to the fuel, manpower and transportation savings measure "was not unexpected."

It was understood that War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt will have enforcement machinery set up within 48 hours.

"The War Manpower commission will also be prepared to give any interpretation or explanations which may be requested," Byrnes said.

Others Cite Confusion

But other officials admitted to some confusion about the situation.

The original announcement said the curfew would apply to movies, bars, sports arenas and other amusement places. Byrnes said WMC would punish violators by making it difficult for them to retain manpower. The War Production board, Office of Defense Transportation and Office of Price administration were asked to help WMC "to the fullest extent of the law" in policing the order.

Officials of the four federal agencies said they had not been officially advised of the order. And any inquiries to Byrnes' office, they said, have brought this response: "The announcement speaks for itself."

Not WMC's "Baby"

A source close to Byrnes said the curfew was now "the WMC's baby exclusively" and that further policy would be decided by Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt.

One government official said that local police authorities will be called upon to report violations to local WMC offices but that compliance measures would probably be left up to the manpower agency.

Officials were not in complete agreement over whether exceptions would be made for movie houses, bowling alleys and similar spots which stay open after midnight especially for late shift war workers.

Red Cross Stressed At Rotary Luncheon

As guest speaker at the luncheon of Lubbock Rotary club Wednesday noon in Hilton hotel, W. C. O'Mara, Lubbock county chairman of American Red Cross, said "the Red Cross is your organization."

"You as individuals make up the Red Cross," he said. "The Red Cross is staying at the side of our boys on the battlefronts of the world, thus enabling you to be with them through this organization."

He told of the many ways in which the Red Cross is aiding the men in our armed forces and their dependents. He was introduced by G. P. Kuykendall, chairman of the Red Cross War Fund drive for Lubbock county which opens March 1, who urged the support, financially and otherwise, of every one present. Geo. W. Dupree was program chairman.

Visiting Rotarians were J. R. Leuenberger of Lamesa, F. F. Calhoun of Lander, Wyo., and H. O. Dean of Sweetwater. Vice President C. H. Cale presided in the absence of President C. A. Bestwick.

"Allotment Day" Is Held In U. S. Court; Four Women Tried

SHREVEPORT, Feb. 21. (U.P.)—Federal Judge Ben. C. Dawkins turned his attention to routine matters again today after observing "allotment day" in court yesterday.

Four young women entered guilty pleas to charges of having multiple servicemen husbands — without benefit of divorce—and to the illegal collection of servicemen's allotments.

Chloteen Freed, also going under the name of Rosa Stevens, was given one year in prison after pleading guilty to receiving $1,300 under the servicemen's dependent allowance act. The mother of one child and expecting another, she told Judge Dawkins that she had been married to many servicemen.

Hazel Swazea of Shreveport received a suspended sentence on the condition that she return $560 she had gotten illegally through allotment checks.

Anita Hall, a negro, admitted forging the name of the payee to a government check and cashing it for $20. She also was given a suspended sentence and put on probation.

Louise Hudson, 17, of Braman, Okla., was ordered held for further investigation. She told the court that she had married four servicemen without the formality of divorce, and had received allotments from each.

PAMPA, Feb. 21 (Special) — The Pampa Harvesters, winners of the north half in District 1-AA, won the opening game of the playoff series with the Plainview Bulldogs, winners of the south half, here tonight, 35 to 26.

The Harvesters moved into the lead early in the second quarter, and were never headed off after gaining the lead. The Bulldogs jumped into a quick lead, and at the first quarter turn were leading 10-5.

The Harvesters began to click in the second quarter, and came from behind to take an 18-13 lead at the halfway mark, pouring 13 points through the meshes, while holding Plainview to three points.

The Bulldogs held their own through the third quarter, but the Harvesters finished strong, and rolled to the victory without being pressed too hard.

Scoring honors for the night were divided, with John Thompson of Plainview, and Randal Clay of Pampa each getting 13 points. The game was rough and fast.

The second game of the series will be played Friday night at Plainview, with the third game scheduled for Monday, if needed.

Baseball Asked To Cut Travel

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (AP) — The 1945 World Series may be cancelled, the annual All-Star major league game is definitely out, and the whole sports world will have to curtail its travel sharply as result of a government decree today.

The action, which took the form of a "request" by the Office of Defense Transportation, was addressed initially to baseball, which was asked to cut its travel by 25 per cent, as compared to 1944.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 21 (AP) — The National Intercollegiate basketball tournament has been given the "green light" by the Office of Defense Transportation and will be held here March 12-17, Emil Liston, managing director, announced today.

Other Sports Hit

But the ODT is formulating an over-all "home field" policy which is expected to cut at least one-fourth of all passenger miles travelled by athletic teams, amateur and professional.

Some intersectional football games and basketball contests apparently will go by the boards.

However, the action came as somewhat of a relief to those baseball fans who had been fearing outright cancellation of the National pastime in 1945. It tends to give the game a sort of lease on life, on a clarified basis, provided the ODT "requests" are observed.

1—Games will be played only in the home city of one or the other competing teams . . . except at Army and Navy establishments where the military will provide transportation.

2—Team rosters, when travelling, will be reduced to a minimum.

3—The World Series games will be held only if transportation and war conditions at the time permit.

4—All clubs will re-examine their schedules and make such further transportation savings as are possible.

Major league leaders "voluntarily pledged full co-operation" with the government conservation program in a conference with Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT director.

League Heads Pleased

Ford Frick, National League, and Will Harridge, American League, baseball's official two-man committee, went over the situation with Johnson and said they were "very well pleased with the whole thing."

This year's game was scheduled for Boston in July.

Frick felt that ODT's request will not pinch baseball "too hard" since the regular schedules remain unchanged, "which is the important thing."

Cross country trips by basketball teams from the West or Southwest into the Garden would not be the home court of either team.

How this policy will apply to golf and tennis tournaments and similar events in which individual travel is involved has not been determined.

Minor leagues were not specifically mentioned in the ODT's request to baseball, but the general idea will be applied to them also.

Cancellation of exhibitions, it was explained, will not affect contests held on the "home field" of either team.

Time and war developments will tell whether the World Series must be cancelled but right now it falls into the same category under ODT's policy as the All-Star game, which "is out," as Frick expressed it.

West Texas, Kermit Invade Tech Gym Friday, Saturday

One of the most colorful weekends of the basketball season are slated for the Texas Tech gym Friday and Saturday night, where high school and college basketball will be blended into a pair of double headers that will offer the tops in basketball for local fans.

The Lubbock Westerners will battle the Kermit Yellow Jackets in the openers each night, with the Texas Tech Red Raiders playing the West Texas State Teachers college Buffs in the finale.

Adams Coaches Kermit

The Yellow Jackets, coached by Burton Adams, former coach at Littlefield, and last year a member of the staff of physical education at Texas Tech's pre-flight, have one of the top schoolboy fives in West Texas.

The Yellow Jackets have won the District 6-A crown, and the right to play in the regional meet for the second year in a row.

The Red Raiders have hit a belated stride on the basketball floor, and have won their last four games in a row, and will be ready to shoot the works against the West Texas Teachers.

May Miss Stars

Both the Westerners and Red Raiders may be crippled for the opening night's battle, with draft calls hitting the ranks of both clubs. The Westerners will have R. W. Moyers, star guard, out of the city Friday, while Texas Tech expects to take the floor without a couple of stars, Don Grove and Gene Hardey. All three may be back for Saturday's games.

Both Coaches Polk Robison and Dixie White are hopeful of having the clubs at full strength for both games, but have been working to perfect a lineup without the use of these stars should they not be available for this week's games.

Coach White's bid for the use of Bob Galey was turned down by school officials, who ruled that Galey had not been enrolled in Lubbock schools long enough to permit him to play. Galey has been playing with the B team, and has been a consistent star, averaging 16 points a game for six games.

The program will present two of the best college and high schools clubs that could be put together on one floor, and attendance for these games is expected to reach a new high.

Leaders Win Clean Sweeps In Bowling

Hub Laundry and Coca-Cola bowling fives strengthened their positions at the top of the City-Commercial league race at the Plamor alleys Wednesday night by turning in clean sweeps over Optimist club and S. and Q. Clothiers, respectively.

The Lions club won two over Armour's and Meads Bakery won a pair over DeKalb Oilers in other games.

J. A. Peel of the Laundrymen, was high for the single game scoring honors with 223 pins, while Terrell Mathews of Coca-Cola had the best series with 601 pins.

Hearing Pushed For New Fishing Rules

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 21 (AP) — Micro, a well-pickled dwarf bass, somewhat pale around the gills, was the star witness today at a public hearing before a House committee which recommended unanimously that a law be enacted abolishing closed season on game fish.

This bass, technically appearing under the name micropterus punctulatus treculli, came into the committee room with some claims to distinction. It had not only been caught, but its catcher had been caught.

Micro Brought Fine

Will Tucker, executive secretary of the Game, Fish and Oyster commission, explained that the luckless negro whose bait Micro took had been apprehended by a warden and paid a fine for violation of the game laws as they are now written.

"This was an unfortunate incident," Tucker said, "For we have found that this variety of bass seldom grows larger than 10 inches, no matter how old it gets or how much it eats."

Micro, floating with complete unconcern in a bottle of formalin, was only seven inches long. Tucker went on to say that about one-third of the bass population of all Texas west of the Brazos is made up of fish of this type, which would never become legal no matter how hard they tried.

Under terms of the bill recommended favorably to the House by the committee on game and fish, Micro would have been legal. Marion Toole, chief aquatic biologist for the Game, Fish and Oyster commission, reported that this fish's scales revealed it was at least three years old. A well-fed three year old bass of another species would have been much larger.

After a close examination by each committee member, Micro, head down in a bottle, was returned to the game department's laboratories where it may some day occupy a special niche if the wide open season bill is finally enacted.

Bill to House

It has already passed the Senate, and goes next to the floor of the House for consideration.

Only opposition to the bill came from Rep. Isom P. Hydrick, jr., of Marshall, who said the people of Harrison county were afraid Caddo lake might become "a dumping ground" for all the fishermen east of Dallas if the bill were enacted.

He had a petition with 500 signatures backing him up. A Travis county citizen quickly popped up with a petition signed by 1,000 fishermen who want the bars let down.

The committee then, without a dissenting vote, brought out its favorable report on the bill. Briefly, the measure would abolish closed seasons on all fish, lower the size limit on bass from 11 to seven inches, abolish the size limit on all other species of fish.

Tucker said biologists now favor this procedure to balance the population of desirable fish.

Girls Play For District Crown

ABERNATHY, Feb. 21. (Special) —The cream of the crop will start firing here Thursday night in the District 18 tournament to name the South Plains entry in the state girls basketball tournament with two games scheduled on the opening card.

Three of the top favored teams in the field of 12 clubs will start firing Thursday night with Meadow and Littlefield meeting in the opener at 7 o'clock in the "sudden death" round of play.

New Home and Cooper battle in the nightcap, with Cooper favored to win this battle. New Home defeated Cooper 24-22 in the first game of the season for Cooper, but since that time, Cooper has won twice, 26-14 and 36-18, over New Home.

Meadow and Littlefield are both listed among the top teams of the race, and ranked among the "top five favorites." Both have been consistent winners this season.

Other favorites will be New Deal, with a season's record of 20 wins and four losses, Anton with a record of 12 wins out of 16 games, Cooper's season's record is 22 wins and six losses. Other top teams that will see action will be Wilson, Lorenzo, Whitharral and Union (Dawson), with all the teams classed as champions in their own right.

Play will be resumed Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with the night session at 7 o'clock. The finals will be played Saturday night at 9 o'clock.

Matador Evens Up With Lockney Five

MATADOR, Feb. 21 (Special)— The Matador Bullfighters evened the series with the Lockney Longhorns here tonight, winning the second game of the playoff series for the cage championship in District 3-A, 38-31.

Lockney won the opening game of the series, 57-37, at Lcokney.

Harp poured in 16 points to lead the Matador attack, while Carroll was high for Lockney with nine points.

The Bullfighters bounded away to a quick lead, and held it most of the way, but never held more than a six point lead until the final minutes. Lickney led one time during the game.

Matador led 15-11 at the first quarter, 22-19 at the half, 31-26 at the third quarter, and protected this lead through the final session.

The third game will be played Friday night, with officials picking the Wayland college gym at Plainview as a neutral floor on which to settle the championship series.

District 4A To Pick Champ At Levelland

LEVELLAND, Feb. 21. (Special) —The tops in Class A basketball on the South Plains will be thrown together here Thursday night as District 4-A starts the two days of battling that will name the champion of the district for the regional tournament in Plainview March 2-3.

Play will start Thursday night, with two games on the opening card. The opener will start at 8 o'clock. Play will be resumed Friday morning at 11 o'clock, an afternoon session will start at 3:30 o'clock, and the finals will be Friday night at 8:30 o'clock.

The Levelland Lobos and Sudan Hornets will represent the north half of the district, with the O'Donnell Eagles and the Slaton Tigers wearing the colors of the south half.

Early critics indicate the race to be a toss up, and point to the facts that O'Donnell has beaten Levelland, Levelland and Sudan have split even for the season, and O'Donnell and Slaton broke even in the tournament play for the south half at Denver City.

Opening the tournament will be the host team, Levelland's high scoring Lobos, and Slaton. O'Donnell and Sudan will follow. The pairings beyond this will be determined by the outcome of the opening games in the double elimination meet.

Idalou Five Winner Over Lubbock Squad

Cage fans at Idalou were treated to a high scoring duel Wednesday night as the Idalou Independents nosed out the Groce Furniture five from Lubbock, 52-48.

Bob Galey of the Lubbock five was the sensation of the game, pouring in 22 of his team's points, while T. M. Cox looped in 16 points. Bill Kelley paced the winners with 18 points.

Beau Brummel lived the last ten years of his life in Caen, and died there in an insane asylum.

Those Empty "Pledges"

Public Checks Acts, Not Words

MOST people properly would characterize as senseless the old saw, "When is a door not a door? When it's ajar."

But if that is senseless, how about: "When is a no-strike pledge not a no-strike pledge? When it is meaningless."

The rank and file of the American people have been hearing for several years now about the noble "no-strike pledges" by various segments of organized labor. They read or hear a stentorian statement by first one great labor czar after another about "no-strike pledges," and turn to another page of their newspaper, or twist the dial on their radio, and learn that we still have strikes, pledges or no pledges. Sometimes they aren't called "strikes." They're "work stoppages," or "continuous union meetings." But in the final analysis, they interfere with normal operations on the home front. A strike by any other name is still a strike.

A case in point regarding meaningless "no-strike pledges" was noted two days ago when an individual named Emil Rieve, president of the CIO Textile Workers union, "freed" his 100,000 members from the "no-strike pledge" they allegedly had previously subscribed to. Reive's action came, he said, as a result of his disapproval of the War Labor board's attitude toward his demands for a wage hike for his members. In "freeing" his members from whatever "no-strike pledge" they'd ever agreed upon, Rieve openly invited a strike vote—and, more important, proved that a "no-strike pledge" is only a "pledge" as long as a union head wants it to be. It's a one-sided proposition, like the man and wife who "decide everything together—on the basis of whatever she wants."

IT is entirely possible that the wage increases sought by the textile and packing unions are just and deserved. It is entirely possible, as Reive declares, that textile manufacturers have been guilty of applying pressure on government authorities to block the wage hike demanded. We have no desire to attempt to judge either of these matters, because our information regarding them is nil. However, judging from past performances, the textile and packinghouse workers will get from the government agencies involved everything that is coming to them, and then some.

But the main point is this:

The National Labor Relations board, and, later, the War Labor board, are governmental agencies designed and installed for organized labor.

These agencies were placed into being, doubtless justly, by an administration which is, more than anything else, a labor administration.

When they were formed and given authority, it was with organized labor's approval. Yet in more instances than anyone can enumerate, organized labor has refused to cooperate, or accept decisions, by these agencies which are, after all, organized labor's very own agencies.

By its actions in this regard, much of organized labor wants to play in the ball game—and be umpire, too.

That sort of a one-sided proposition simply cannot work to either the interests of the government, of labor, or of management—and, what is greatly more important, it cannot work to the best interests of the majority of Americans who are not connected with either organized labor, or with management.

No Quick Reconversion

AS Allied hopes rise once more for an early end of the European war, the outlook for industrial reconversion is different than it was six to nine months ago. Last summer, some of the top authorities in Washington were thinking in terms of a major shift back to the production of civilian goods the moment the final defeat of Germany was assured.

Today, it seems more than likely that war output will be kept near its present level—and even higher—for many months, regardless of whether the Nazis collapse, or continue their hopeless struggle.

The original plan was to cutback war production 40 per cent within a short time after V-E day. None of this kind of talk is coming from War Production board officials now. The present estimate is that reconversion and cutbacks in military output will be "very slight and very slow" to start with. Cutbacks for the first six months are not expected to exceed 15 per cent and it is considered possible that over-all military production will not drop more than 20 per cent until Japan is defeated.

These new estimates may turn out to be as over-pessimistic in the course of time as the original ones were over-optimistic. But they are predicated on a number of facts not altogether unfavorable in themselves. The most important is the unexpectedly rapid progress which has been made in the Pacific war. This has opened up the opportunity of finishing off Japan much sooner than had been hoped by increasing the supply of arms and ships sent to that area.

All right-thinking Americans are most interested in winning both ends of the global war as quickly as possible. If we can save months, weeks, or even days, by holding up on reconversion, then by all means reconversions should be held up.

The Way Our People Lived

By W. E. Woodward
(Copyright, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.)

A GEORGIA TOWN IN 1897

IV

Mr. Cecil Lowther had been in Augusta only five days but he had already become a man of distinction. This was due to gossip which, as most people of mature intelligence have learned, is a powerful force in small communities—and also in large communities. Harvey Earle remarked to a group of his friends that Mr. Lowther had a remarkable resemblance to the Earl of Lonsdale. He had seen a painting of the noble lord, and, "God bless me!" he said, "this Mr. Lowther is his very spit and image."

"He couldn't be the Earl's son, could he?" This from Henry Jewell, a cattle breeder.

"By gum! I have it!" exclaimed Nat Poole, editor of the Chronicle "Why, we-all must be blind. The family name of the Earl of Lonsdale is Lowther. I read that just the other day, and this fellow must be his nephew, or some relative, if not his son."

"Related in some way, I guess," said someone else. "But why is he coming here to buy cotton? It's a good jaying job, of course, but I shouldn't think he'd need it."

"He doesn't need it," chuckled Joseph Hutchinson, with a laugh. "Them young Englishmen are up to all kinds of pranks—shooting tigers in India and running little shops in distant places, and exploring, and conquering native states, just for the fun of it. I wouldn't put it beyond him."

When the day of the Earles' dinner came around Mr. Lowther was considered not only a close relative of an English lord, but also a man of wealth and culture.

Notwithstanding Kitty Earle's anxiety over the dinner, and her gnawing fear that something would go ridiculously wrong in the service, or that some dish would be burnt to a crisp or hardly cooked at all, everything was just perfect—or as nearly perfect as one might reasonably expect.

Following the custom of that epoch there was a prodigious amount of food. The dinner began with turtle soup; Augusta was too far from the coast to have oysters at any season. Then came fried trout with melted butter; and after the fish came a succession of roasts. Roast ham and baked sweet potatoes came first; then baked wild turkey with a dressing made of walnuts and corn meal, and some vegetable dishes, asparagus, beans, and boiled rice.

Following the baked turkey there came a sherbet, then a course of cold venison and cheese, with stewed corn. The desserts included huckleberry pie, sweet potato pie and corn fritters with syrup.

Before the guests went to the table a glass of sherry was served, and during the dinner one might have a choice of Madgeira wine or beer. There was neither coffee nor tea, but milk was given to those who desired it.

"D'you know old Balaam Gunter, any of you?" Joseph Hutchinson asked during a lull in the conversation. "I mean Balaam from across the river in South Carolina." His glance circled around the table and rested on William Clayton. "Oh yes, William, you know him, unless my memory's wrong."

"Old Balaam," said Mr. Clayton ponderously. "Surely. I used to know him well. Bought his cotton but I haven't seen him in several years. Has anything happened to him beyond the usual mishaps of life?"

"I saw him today," said Mr. Hutchinson. "He passed through Augusta in quite a caravan. Balaam, his wife, sons, daughters, niggers, horses, cows, goats, and even some coops full of chickens. Going to Alabama. I thought maybe some of you had seen him and his folks."

"I did see them, I think," said Ella Clayton. "They came across the bridge and passed right by me on Washington Street. Were there three big covered wagons, pulled by oxen?"

"Yes, three large wagons. Conestoga wagons," Mr. Hutchinson continued. "Old Balaam and the men rode horses."

"The older man had on a leather coat and a coonskin cap with the coon's tail hanging down his back."

"That's right. Well, I was riding around the town as I do every day, to look after things, when I saw Balaam and his string of wagons ambling along, and I rode with them as far as Rocky Creek."

"There are so many Carolina people crossing that bridge every day on their way to Alabam, as they call it, that I don't pay attention to them any more," said William Clayton. "Lots of land in the middle section of South Carolina is worn out. Poor farming methods. The land is not rich in the first place, they never rotate the crops, never use fertilizer, and the rains wash the soil into gullies. Then when they can't make a living any more they start for Alabama to ruin some more land."

"That wasn't Balaam Gunter's trouble," said Joe Hutchinson. "I asked him why he was going to a wilderness to start over at his age, and he said his part of South Carolina was getting too crowded and he couldn't stand it, so he's going where there ain't any neighbors."

"Crowded!" exclaimed Robert Harrison. "Why over there in that Godforsaken backwoods the houses are miles apart. What does he expect to be? The only inhabitant?"

"Balaam said that this spring a newcomer settled down within half a mile of his place," Hutchinson said, "and there are several neighbors within two or three miles. He said he felt hemmed in, so he's on his way."

Brownwood Woman's Son Is Liberated

BROWNWOOD, Feb. 21. (U.P.)—Mrs. Hart Millhollon thought she would "fall right here at the telephone," when she was told by the War department that her son, Roy Keyser, 27, had been liberated from the Japanese in the Philippines.

She had not heard from him since shortly before the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

Keyser had served three hitches in the Army and had been in the Philippines for more than 15 years where he married a Filipino girl and was the father of two children, Mrs. Millhollon said.

New Housing Project Is Planned In Dallas

DALLAS, Feb. 21. (U.P.)—Plans were being made today to ask approval of a new city housing project to relieve the critical shortage, according to Ray Morrison, national housing agent.

Morrison and other housing officials planned to confer later in the week with city officials on the situation and seek their advice, preparatory to laying requests before the area production committee.

The production urgency committee must approve the plan before construction is authorized. Several weeks ago, the committee rejected a proposal to build 300 new homes here.

The Dallas Home Builders association and other local housing organizations were making plans for conferring with the production urgency committee soon.

HEARS BAD NEWS

BEAUMONT, Feb. 21. (AP) — Yesterday Mrs. C. Toups took her son Wilbur to the bus that was to transport him to Houston for induction into the Army.

When she returned home a message awaited her telling of another son, Nolan, having been killed on Luzon Jan. 26.

The third and last son Herbert is with Gen. Patton's Army.

Looking At Life - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

ONE of my Avalanche readers sent me a letter asking me to define happiness for her.

"You seem to be so happy" she writes. "Sometimes I think I am happy, too, but at other times there is a feeling in me that seems to be a longing for an unattainable something.

"When I feel that way everything looks so futile and so small, I don't seem to have done anything worthwhile or to have earned the right to live.

"Do you ever feel that way—and how can one know what happiness really means and whether one is happy?"

BRANDEIS

Well, dear reader, you have asked me a very difficult question to answer — about as difficult as to tell you what love is or how to know when you are in love.

What is happiness?

Whenever I am asked to define something, I look it up first in my dictionary, then in the Bible and finally in my Book of Quotations.

Usually I get enough out of these three—to form my own opinion.

"Happiness", according to the dictionary, is "the enjoyment of pleasurable satisfaction, attendant on welfare." The synonyms are felicity, beatitude, blessedness, bliss.

That doesn't get us very far, does it?

Now let us see what the Bible says.

According to Proverbs, 3, 13—"Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding."

* * *

And now to the Book of Quotations.

There are almost a hundred quotations under that classification and not two of them seem to agree.

Of all the definitions I think the best is that of Samuel Johnson in Boswell's Life:

"All who are happy are not equally happy. A peasant and a philosopher may be equally satisfied, but not equally happy. Happiness consists in the multiplicity of agreeable consciousness. A peasant has not capacity for having equal happiness with a philosopher."

* * *

NOW I'll tell you my idea of happiness.

First of all you must have an aim in life.

Then you must do your best to reach that aim.

Happiness lies not only in reaching it but in doing something every day to reach it.

Happiness is progress.

There is no happiness in ease or in wealth or in power, but only in what that ease and wealth and power helps you to achieve.

There can be happiness in the humblest task if that task is your aim and your purpose.

Happiness is not something static and stagnant. It is mobile and fluid.

Yesterday's happiness may well be today's disappointment and frustration.

Happiness is evanescent. There is no such thing as permanent happiness any more than there is a permanent sunrise or permanent spring.

Happiness may well be the termination of anxiety and fear of pain and misery.

Happiness must be fought for and earned.

I have seen many a contented cow but never a happy one.

Does that answer your question, lady from Texas?

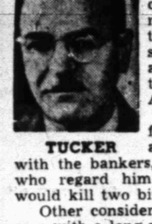

Democrats Forewarned

Radicals Aim To Kidnap Party

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

HENRY WALLACE'S frankness—or naivete—in avowing his 1948 presidential ambitions to talkative friends will be the chief factor in his undoing if the Senate finally refuses to confirm him as Secretary of Commerce. He also handicapped himself by elaborating on his strategy for holding Southern states, where he is anathema to the old-fashioned political bosses and business interests.

When President Roosevelt promised him any cabinet post but State, War and Navy, Mr. Wallace and his advisers figured that only two positions offered advancement up the ladder—Agriculture and Commerce. The man occupying either office has millions in largesse to distribute where it will do the most good in winning the nomination and the election.

TUCKER

Agriculture hands out checks to the farmers, and also manages billions in loans through allied agencies. Had the lending authority not been taken from Commerce, that unit would have been the source of funds and commercial and industrial opportunities for the other influential segment of American economy.

Having served as the farmers' friend, Wallace thought it advisable to become better acquainted with the bankers, manufacturers and businessmen who regard him as an economic orge. Thus he would kill two birds with one stone.

Other considerations entered into his choice. A man with a long memory, he would have the added pleasure of revenge on Jesse H. Jones. He would also be in a position to do good for the "common man" of the cities—the workers—as he judged he had for the people who till the soil.

HOSTILITY: Mr. Wallace entertained no illusions—and said so—about his ability to gain the political support of Western and Middle Western farmers. The states in that area, including his home commonwealth of Iowa, have been swinging Republicanward in racent presidential elections. But he did expect to hold the territory below Mason and Dixon's line by his work for small growers, tenants and agricultural laborers.

His tieup with Sidney Hillman, he explained, would get sufficient mass loyalty in the cities and on the plantations to put him over. As the CIO has organized the unskilled industry groups and mobilized them behind FDR, so he expected them to be lined up for him in 1948.

Meanwhile, the Hillman organization plans to stage an even more intensive campaign in the South for abolition of the poll tax and other legal restraints on the groups normally in sympathy with Mr. Wallace's philosophy. They will do the necessary spadework for their favorite. Providing they can quality their supporters for the caucus and ballot box, they believe that they can win in this area even in the face of political and economic hostility.

STETTINIUS: Thus the Wallace-Hillman organization would transform—or try to—the Democratic party into a worker-farmer group, with the accent on the "forgotten men" of 1933 tradition. They have taken a few pages out of FDR's book of electioneering miracles.

They think they have another great asset. At the moment it looks as if the Democrats will be as short of first-class presidential timber four years hence as they have been for the last 12 years, save for Mr. Roosevelt. The only prospective opponent they see is Edward R. Stettinius, jr., Secretary of State. And they doubt whether he could gather the popular backing they hope to corral for the Iowan.

It is this behind-the-scenes struggle for control of a historic American political party, together with its social and economic implications, which makes the Wallace nomination fight so significant and spectacular.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

SINCE it was announced at the Crimea Conference that blows will be showered on Germany from the north, as well as from all other directions, many laymen look for that promised offensive any moment.

Only the combined General Staffs know the place and the hour—and they're not talking. But military experts caution against too early a D-day, as amphibious operations between, say, Holland and Norway would be imperiled by heavy winter storms; ice is an important handicap in the Baltic.

LEMAN

The British would like to take the southern tip of Norway. V-bombs are now striking not only at London but in the Midlands. The missiles may come from subs in the North Sea but this is doubted by specialists. Balistic authorities calculate that the weapons are hurled from somewhere north of Denmark. Stockholm reports substantiate this theory.

The harassed English people would rejoice if the Soviet Baltic Fleet should strike the large Danish island of Bornholm that lies between Stettin and Sweden. This is said to be the lair where Nazi scientists are experimenting with newer and more powerful robot bombs. Recently Danish map surveyors were arrested for coming too close to the testing grounds.

DENMARK: The Germans apparently anticipate this Russian incursion.

The Danish underground in New York is informed that a large force of Nazi marines has strengthened the garrison. At least 10 warships—including Hitler's last undamaged aircraft carrier—have steamed into the harbors. Todt engineers have been adding to the number of fortifications but they are plagued by quicksands.

Danish officials here think that the Allies will leap ashore on their homeland. The Nazis fear it, and have recently ordered all communities in Jutland to stock up with provisions.

More land mines have been strung along the beaches; the laying of them has already cost the lives of Danish laborers who were forced to handle the explosives. Airplane hangars have been installed by burrowing into the sides of the huge sand dunes.

TRAPPED: The Brownshirts have cleared out the residential quarters near the Copenhagen harbor.

This move is not an invasion precaution, but to house the staffs of Nazi men-of-war who fled from East Prussia and Danzig at the approach of Soviet troops. The cruiser Nurnberg has been spotted in port. Thirty Danish ships are assembled to evacuate Reichswehr units trapped in Pomerania.

Copenhagen patriots blew up torpedo boats in the navy yard and opened the sea cocks on transports that were scheduled to sail for Norway to bring back soldiers. Armed saboteurs broke into the factory once owned by Ford, which had built manay anti-invasion E-boats, and wrecked the ships with electric welders.

Although the Norwegians and Danes are doing their part to prepare the way for the Allies, a landing would be extremely difficult to make at this season. Off Jutland breakers constantly pound three rows of reefs. Navigation in the treacherous currents from Holland to Schleswig-Holstein is exceptionally hazardous in winter and spring gales.

Mines infest the shallow waters and inlets on the northwest coast of Europe. An expedition through these fields and across wave-lashed sand bars might be at as great a cost as the terrible price paid for Tarawa—a littoral that in many ways strikingly resembles it.

Such a diversionary operation may not be risked until northern Germany is on the verge of collapse. Even if our troops land safely, the flat country is an ideal terrain for hostile planes and armored divisions.

"Something Is Happening In The Country"

Wallace Fight Mirrors A Trend

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—When there is so much feeling stirred up over an appointment to the President's cabinet as there has been over the selection of Henry Wallace as Secretary of Commerce, then there is something significant going on in the country as reflected in Congress.

STOKES

This is especially true when the fight is over a public figure of recognized administrative ability who already had served for eight years in the cabinet of the same President and for four years as Vice President of the United States.

The clash of strong forces was plain in the senate.

It was even more apparent in the House where the fight came to its climax.

Hottest In Modern Times

The battle over Henry Wallace turned out to be the hottest, and the bitterest, in modern times over a cabinet appointment. The only comparable fight was that which resulted in the defeat of Charles Beecher Warren, nominated by President Cooliidge as Attorney General, which was on an issue in some respects the reverse of this one. Mr. Warren was opposed by Democrats and Republican insurgents of that day on the issue of his law practice for big corporations and "trusts."

But that fight was confined to the Senate, and Mr. Warren was a private citizen and not a familiar figure who had held important government posts. The fight over Mr. Wallace spread into the House because the compromise engineered by the Senate required passage of a bill to take from the Commerce department the RFC and associated lending agencies. The House got even more frought up than the Senate over the former Vice President.

IT ALMOST kicked Mr. Wallace clear back into private life. The compromise sponsored by the Senate, devised to assure his confirmation as Secretary of Commerce without the lending agencies, was saved by only eight votes. That was the margin that prevented sending the bill back to a committee which would have buried it. Such a move probably would have resulted in the defeat of Mr. Wallace's confirmation by the Senate. Now it seems certain that he will be confirmed when the Senate votes March 1.

The success of the compromise after a head-on battle between the two shows that a balance still is maintained. And this seems to assure that, in the fight to come in the postwar period, this give-and-take will continue, which will be fortunate.

It's Just The Beginning

This was the opening of the struggle that will go on in the postwar period between the forces of conservatism, on the one hand, and progressivism, on the other, in plans for employment and the extent to which government shall participate. Both sides rallied in this fight in which Mr. Wallace became the symbol because of his ideas and because of the effective way in which he can express them.

In the debate, both in House and Senate, there boiled up the bitterness against the change in the government's approach to current problems, both economic and social, that has been manifest almost since the start of the Roosevelt administration. The advocacy of more change from the vanguard of the New Deal is exemplified in Mr. Wallace now, rather than in President Roosevelt.

"SOCIALIZATION" was the cry of the Wallace foes, and it was frantic and undoubtedly sincere. In its most extreme forms, it represented certainly an order that has gone.

On the other hand, there was raised up an ideal that just as certainly cannot be achieved, but surely is more representative of the modern world of technology in which we are living.

If Mr. Wallace had been confirmed as Secretary of Commerce with jurisdiction of the lending agencies, the country would not have been wrecked, as his foes charged. Neither, on the other hand, would he have solved all the tough problems of the day, as some of his champions would make out, though he, himself, is practical enough not to have many illusions.

But he representts an idea which will not be downed, and that, too, might as well be recognized.

Two Health Measures Under Consideration

AUSTIN, Feb. 21. (AP) — Two stringent venereal disease control bills, proposed by Rep. George Parkhouse of Dallas, last night were referred by the House public health committee to a sub-committee.

These bills, as explained by Parkhouse, provide that no marriage be performed until both the man and woman provide the preacher, justice of the peace or other official permitted to perform a ceremony, with a certificate from a licensed physician stating that the person is free from syphilis.

A 15-day leeway between the examination and the marriage is permitted.

The Tower of Babel, at the Chaldean city of Ur, in lower Mesopotami has completely disappeared.

Circus Officials Draw Sentences

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 21. (AP) —Six officers or key men of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus were sentenced to heavy terms, three of them in prison, today on charges of involuntary manslaughter for the big top fire which cost the lives of 168 persons here last July, but the court stayed execution of sentence for all but one to permit them to get the '45 show started.

Execution was stayed until April 6, two days after the circus is due to open in Madison Square Garden.

Stay Benefits Claimants

The court acted after Chief Defense Counsel William E. Hadden pleaded such stay would permit the circus to rebuild damaged equipment. He said a stay would benefit "one group and one group alone, the claimants in and around Hartford."

State Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, Jr., told the court he was offering no objection "in the hope that it will result in substantial benefit to the bereaved families of the fire victims."

Six Are Sentenced

Sentenced to from two to seven years in prison were George W. Smith, 51, general manager, and Leonard S. Aylesworth, 52, chief tent man; from one to five years, James A. Haley, 46, vice president and a director; to one year in the county jail, Edward R. Versteeg, 44, chief electrician, and William Caley, 35, chief seatman, all of Sarasota, Fla.

David W. Blanchfield, 57, of Hartford, chief truckman, was given six months in jail.

Stayed under varying bonds were the sentences of all but Caley.

The corporation, itself, was fined $10,000 on its plea of no contest to voluntary manslaughter.

STOCKS ERRATIC MIXED

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—After an abrupt decline on Marriner S. Eccle's recommendation of additional taxes on wartime speculative profits in equity securities and real estate, today's stock market recovered in irregular fashion and closed with prices mixed.

Nervous selling in the early proceedings rolled up many losses of 1 to more than 2 points.

Stocks closing with a show of strength included American Smelting, up 2 points, International Nickel up 1½, Dome Mines up 1¼, Allied Chemical up 2½, Montgomery Ward up 1⅛, Howe Sound up 1 and Home Stake Mining up 2⅛.

Off fractions to a point were Chrysler, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, Goodyear, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Johns-Manville and Douglas Aircraft.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—After registering gains of 35 cents a bale on mill buying and covering, the cotton market turned reactionary on scattered liquidation today to close 5 cents a bale lower to 20 cents higher.

Easiness was due in part to belief that prospects were against extension of the CCC purchase program proposed by Senator Bankhead. The threat of a strike in the textile industry over the WLB handling of the wage decision also made traders cautious.

Spot cotton markets were quiet.

Affirmed: L. B. (Bud) Pugh, Lynn; Norris Ward, Palo Pinto; Cecil McClendon, Morris.

Reversed and remanded: William Prescott Allen, Webb; Fritz Dinklage, Mills; John Limicy, Hall.

Pugh's Conviction At Tahoka Confirmed

Conviction of L. B. (Bud) Pugh, who on Sept. 13 was sentenced in 106 district court at Tahoka to 25 years in the penitentiary for murder with malice of Con Burns, O'Donnell deputy sheriff, was affirmed Wednesday by the court of criminal appeals, the United Press announced from Austin.

Burns, about 64, was slain at O'Donnell. Pugh, operator of a wrecking company there several years, and Burns had quarreled months before, witnesses related.

Burns allegedly asked Pugh to "get off the street," indicating his belief Pugh was under influence of liquor. Pugh drove to his residence, returning soon with Mrs. Pugh and their young son.

The shooting followed soon afterward.

Texas Bird Storage Law Declared Illegal

AUSTIN, Feb. 21 (AP) — Will Tucker, executive secretary of the Game, Fish and Oyster commission, said today that federal laws relating to storage of migratory birds still apply despite enactment of a law recently by the Texas legislature relaxing storage regulations.

Tucker said that a federal law permitting the retention of migratory birds in cold storage for a period of 45 days after the close of the season, is still in effect. That period ends March 6.

News Briefs

The final program of the Sunday school teachers training school, which has been conducted at the First Baptist church for the last three nights, was held Wednesday night, it was reported. Attendance at the school was termed "gratifying" by one church official, and another stated that much enthusiasm was evidenced. Members of 11 churches of the South Plains region took part in the program, Rev. L. L. Richardson, pastor of the College Avenue Baptist church, announced.

Discovery of two headless cows would help, members of the sheriff's department said of their investigation in connection with the finding of two bovine heads near a gravel pit in the vicinity of South Plains Army Air field. One appeared to be from a roan, 2 or 3 years old, the other from a black yearling with a white triangle on the face.

A war-spawned domestic tangle, involving grounds for a charge of white slavery, received the attention of police and military authorities Wednesday night. A Hobbs Army Air field soldier accused his wife of taking their 2-year-old son and coming to Lubbock last Saturday with another Hobbs soldier. Police discovered the couple living together in a local hotel room early last night. The child was with them. Officers indicated that the case would be passed to military authorities for disposition.

1st Lt. Van Ed Watson of Midland, who has been missing since Feb. 3, 1944, has been officially declared dead by the War department, according to word received here by his grandmother, Mrs. W. E. Watson of 2109 Main. Lt. Watson and his crew aboard a four-motored AAF bomber were lost over the North sea.

Battle For Iwo

by the enemy east of Mt. Suribachi shortly after noon was thrown back. Numerous land mines have been encountered in this vicinity. Four of our tanks were knocked out of action."

The five-star fleet admiral, who earlier disclosed that Marine casualties up to 8 a. m. Wednesday—embracing 48 hours of invasion activities—exceeded 3,600, said in today's communique that more than 850 Nipponese dead had been counted. He made it clear this was an incomplete count, made during the heat of the most bitter battle yet fought on a Pacific island.

Warships Pound Island

All during Wednesday, battleships, cruisers and destroyers poured their shells into enemy strongpoints, thus building up a bombardment total which in the first six days exceeded 8,000 tons.

The all-important battle of supply was being won. As new supplies hit the beaches, the admiral was able to report that mortar fire on the beach area was diminishing.

He added however, that loose volcanic ash was impeding the movement of equipment. In some places it prevents the passage of particularly heavy stuff.

Iwo's No. 1 airdrome was captured the second day of the flaming battle. The Marines are headed presently toward the second one some 700 yards to the north.

Fourth Moves Frontally

The Fifth Marine division on the southwest coast is on one flank of the two-runway field. The Fourth division is making a frontal assault after its capture of the three-runway bomber field.

The admiral's communique did not divide the casualties, but his report that 3,063 wounded have been evacuated indicated the dead at close to 600.

The American casualties on Iwo are running high as compared with those on bloody Tarawa in November, 1942. In the 76 hours required to take Tarawa 988 Marines met death and 2,163 were wounded.

Iwo and Tarawa, however, do not approach the Marine casualties at Soissons, France, in World war One. There 1,400 Leathernecks fell in a single hour.

Worm Way Up Volcano

On Mount Suribachi, an extinct volcano already isolated on the island's southern tip, the Devildogs wormed their way 100 yards up perilous slopes. The mountain is 546 high. Its rugged slopes and caves contain heavy guns that dominate the battlefields.

Pulverizing naval gun barrages were being thrown against Japanese strong points. The Marines were using artillery and were heavily supported by carrier planes. A Japanese counterattack Tuesday night and almost constant infiltration attempts were thwarted by the Leathernecks with the aid of warship flares that lighted the battle areas.

An eye-witness account from Morrie Landsberg, Associated Press war correspondent, said there is not a single place on the island's eight square miles where a Marine might say "they can't reach me here." The entire island, he added, is a battleground with the Japanese having all the cover.

which Transocean said were "now deserted and dead." Trolley service was halted and stalled street cars were converted into anti-tank barriers.

The Moscow radio reported new riots inside Germany, including a hunger march by hundreds of refugees in Stassfurt, south of Magdeburg. The report said that the marchers stormed a food store and the regular Army intervened when SS Elite Guards attempted to fire on the mob.

Moscow also told of disorders in Munich which were said to have developed into pitched street battles with tank-supported SS units intervening after the city police refused to fire on civilian crowds.

Light And Lovely Slavenska Charms Packed House Here

Light and lovely, with emphasis on grace and force, Mia Slavenska, leading prima ballerina whose dancing critics have compared with the splendid technique of the Russian ballerina Pavlova, completely charmed a packed house at the Lubbock High school Wednesday night.

Completely mistress of her technique, Slavenska created in the minds of the record audience a dream-picture of floating about with no effort at all—dancing in a lovely fluid grace of motion. At the height of her artistic powers, she displayed during one evening all the brilliant facets of her great art.

Shares Honors With Partner

Although the program was obviously designed for this most beautiful ballerina of our time, she shared honors with her dancing partner, David Tihmar, and other members of the troupe. The emotional content and musical patterns of Cesar Franck's "Symphonic Variations" were interpretated with impeccable technique by Slavenska with such seemingly small things as the tilt of her head, the graceful movement of her fingers.

From the famous old Delibes ballet "Coppelia" or "The Girl with the Enamel Eyes," Slavenska and Tihmar gave a performance that was both elegant and brilliant. Perfect coordination, and ability to perform the most difficult of dance patterns was accomplished with apparent effortlessness. Versatile dancing of Audrey Keane, Joseph A. Harris and Norma Vaslavina was impelling.

"Salome" Portrayed

In the portrayal of "Salome," the woman who believed herself immune to the dangers of her abominable inheritance of crime and vice, Slavenska's whole being seemed to be absorbed in the mood she was expressing. She indicated her thoughts were directly keyed to what her feet, arms and legs were doing. Her coppery hair, fair skin and mobile features made it a pleasure to watch her swan-like movements.

Mia Slavenska, star of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, scored another triumph Wednesday night and gave Lubbock audiences a renewed appreciation of the ballet. There was expressed belief that she is destined for even greater world acclaim.

ion, which had paved the way for the swift new plunge into enemy territory by crossing the Moselle river in a two-day attack to the south. Today the doughboys drove on a mile and a half beyond Onsdorf, which is three and a half miles northwest of Saarburg.

British Regain Initiative

British empire forces gained the initiative on the 25-mile northern assault front after two days spent repelling fierce German counterattacks and drove forward up to a mile toward the vital Ruhr. Scots troops crushed the last Nazi resistance inside the bubbled fortress city of Goch after two days of bloody house-to-house fighting.

With sunshine flooding the battle zone, Field Marshal Montgomery's forces drove the Germans back at points two miles from the road center of Udem and cut the Goch-Udem railway in a mile advance. On the west flank Scots pushed more than a half-mile across flat, open country southeast of captured Hommersum.

Canadians pounded and jabbed at German defenses outside Moyland, key to the adjacent stronghold of Calcar, whose capture would lay open a big stretch west of the Rhine. Fifty Nazi battalions—mostly elite troops—now had been identified on this front, but their counterassaults clearly had failed to halt the Allied drive.

Roer Drops Further

The Roer river, behind which all or part of at least three great Allied armies await the signal to slam on into the Reich, dropped two more inches in the past 24 hours and the speed of its current had increased 25 per cent in three days. The Germans, nervously awaiting a full-scale Allied onslaught, stepped up their artillery fire in that sector.

Activity flared anew on the Alsatia Rhine, where the Germans put a small force across the river near Fessenheim, seven miles south of Neuf Risach, under cover of an artillery barrage. French forces were believed to have the situation in hand.

The terrific force of Patton's attack in the Moselle-Saar triangle appeared to have doomed any hope the Germans had of making a stand in that area short of the Saar itself. Enemy losses were described as extremely heavy as second-class German troops failed to stand up to the blow.

See Big Steel Center

From captured heights in Forbach, Patch's Seventh Army troops had a clear view of the big German steel center of Saarbrucken, blackened by eight straight days of American artillery shelling last December. Three miles east of Forbach other American units took high ground north of Etzling which overlooks Spicheren and a forested area across the Saar river in Germany.

The Seventh's new push, together with that of the Third some 35 miles to the north, renewed the American threat to the great coal and steel treasures of the Saar after a lapse of more than two months.

Little Relief From Weather In Sight

Little relief from the low temperatures registered over the South Plains area Wednesday, when a chilling "blue norther" swept over West Texas, was forecast for today.

A maximum temperature of 37 degrees was reported Wednesday by the Texas experiment substation east of Lubbock, but at midnight the mercury had dropped to 30. Light snow flurries were observed in Lubbock, but the powdery flakes melted as they hit the ground.

VARIETY OF WEATHER, FLOODS SWEEP TEXAS
(By The Associated Press)

A variety of weather — from snow in the South Plains area to floods in North Texas — swept Texas Wednesday, bringing death to at least one person.

John Ransincion, 74, a Dallas county farmer, was drowned while attempting to rescue livestock from rising floodwaters of the Trinity river. His body was recovered.

Heavy rains had pushed the Trinity to 34 feet, six feet above flood level. Waters are still rising.

Lowlands Warned

Residents of lowlands around Dallas were warned to leave their homes and to take livestock to higher ground as the Trinity river roared out of its banks.

The stream was 4.4 feet above flood crest and due to go higher, U. S. Weather observer A. M. Hamrick said.

Flood danger at Fort Worth where water had surrounded a number of homes and flowed into a church, was abating.

Behind the huge Denison dam across Red River between Texas and Oklahoma, Lake Texoma gained 1.61 feet from heavy rains on its watershed, inundating another 3,000 acres of land. Denison Army engineers said 76,500 acres now were under water.

Permanent FEPC Is Urged by House Group

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (AP)—Creation of a permanent Fair Employment Practices committee is urged by the House Labor committee, which says such action is necessary to guarantee minority groups "economic freedom."

Expressing its views yesterday in a report approving legislation to establish the agency, the committee said:

"The opponents of the bill are attempting to confuse the issue by bringing up the question of social equality. We repeat, there is nothing in the bill concerned with anything other than economic equality."

The FEPC, now operating under a presidential order, has the assignment of preventing job discrimination because of race, color or religion.

Reps. Fisher (D-Texas) and Hoffman (R-Mich) filed minority reports.

Fisher contended that under the proposed bill a permanent FEPC could "designate any number of agents, any one of whom could be empowered to conduct trials against employers anywhere in the land."

violent push, which now has been in progress for three days, but said the fighting there cost the Germans 60 tanks Tuesday. Other German forces caught in East Prussia southwest of Koenigsberg were squeezed closer and lost nine communities, Moscow reported.

The Germans on Samland apparently were hoping to make a "Dunkerque" escape from Pillau, but Moscow accounts said Russian planes were covering the Baltic coastal area and Danzig bay waiting for German ships.

Other Areas Bombed

Other Russian planes Tuesday night and Wednesday morning raided Stettin and Stargard and the besieged Silesian center of Breslau, hitting trains and war factories, the Soviet communique said.

The communique acknowledged that on the north bank of the Danube river east of Komarom the Germans still were counter-attacking heavily but said they were repelled afresh and lost 38 tanks Tuesday.

Behind the lines in Silesia, the capital city of Breslau remained under close siege.

In the Moravia-Silesia-Poland border area some 75 miles southeast of Breslau, the German radio said the Russians were attacking with five divisions of infantry and one armored division and had captured Gross Keukirch, 10 miles from Ratibor. The Russians ignored that sector, which the Germans have been treating with increasing importance.

U. S. Subs Sink 25 More Jap Vessels

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (AP) — Pushing their war of attrition against Japanese shipping, already reeling from staggering losses, American submarines have chalked up another 25 kills.

The latest toll, announced in a Navy communique today, included three warships—an escort aircraft carrier, a destroyer, and a large converted cruiser.

Non-combatant vessels claimed in today's report included 17 cargo vessels, 3 cargo transports, and 2 transports.

The report raised to 1,045 the total of Japanese ships of all types sunk by American submarines since the start of the war, of which 110 were combatant ships and 935 non-combatant.

Constable Abolition Plan Clears Hurdle

AUSTIN, Feb. 21. (AP)—Submission of a constitutional amendment which would abolish the office of constables in Texas cleared a Senate committee hurdle without debate today.

The legislation was authored by Sen. Ben Ramsey of San Augustine who also received committee approval on a second constitutional amendment to consolidate the offices of district and county clerks in counties under 15,000 population.

Sen. Pat Bullock's constitutional amendment to pay available school funds on a scholastic attendance basis instead of on a per capita basis met opposition from Senators L. J. Sulak of La Grange and R. A. Weinert of Seguin who said they believed the proposed method would handicap their schools.

J. A. Rix of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at Fort Worth and Mrs. Roger Williams of Austin appeared in behalf of the legislation.

An amendment by Kyle Vick of Waco proposing a supreme court of nine members was approved by the comittee without opposition.

Worms, Nuernburg Lashed By Heavies

LONDON, Thursday, Feb. 21. (AP) —The massive Allied aerial assault against Germany's battered rail system was continued last night with a heavy RAF attack on the Rhine valley choke point of Worms after 1,200 American heavies smashed Nuernberg in daylight for the second straight day in one of the most concentrated air blows of the war.

Berlin also was hit twice during the night by British bombers which kept the nine-day aerial offensive rolling through the darkness. Altogether more than 5,000 Allied warplanes joined in the day's attack on Germany, many of them giving close support to Western front troops.

Worms, 12 miles north of Mannheim, is a keypoint in the communications system supplying the enemy forces in front of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's attacking Third Army.

Woman Charged In Death Of Husband

ORANGE, Feb. 21. (AP) — Mrs. Norma Alma Simpson, 43, today faces a charge of murder in connection with the Feb. 3 death here of her husband, Allen A. Simpson, 58, a shipyard worker.

She is being held in county jail. A grand jury now in session may study her case.

Justice of the Peace J. P. Swain returned a verdict of "death due to normal cause, probably heart attack" when Simpson died. Swain said a brother of Simpson's later had asked an invetsigation be made.

County Attorney W. P. Sexton filed the charge of murder. Mrs. Simpson made a statement to him.

The Simpsons had been married about a year.

Liberated Nurses Arrive In Hawaii

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21 — Despite the hardships that 4,000 Allied nationals, mostly Americans, underwent as internees in the Philippines the bulk of them apparently prefer staying there to going home now they have been liberated from the Japanese.

Arthur Feldman, Blue network war correspondent, said today in a broadcast from Manila that only 900 of them had registered a desire to leave on the first available relief boat.

Feldman said many expressed a preferance for staying to help rebuild Manila's shattered sectors.

Dallas Youth Is Held On Bad Check Charge

DALLAS, Feb. 21. (U.P.)—A 17-year-old youth was held today by city police for cashing $383.71 worth of bad checks in three months at chain grocery and drug stores in the city.

A four-car police blockade closed in on the youth Tuesday and he was arrested by a University Park patrolman after fleeing from a local grocery store, where an employe questioned a $25 check.

The youth said he had given part of the money to his mother, telling her he had earned it. The balance he spent for movies and ice cream sodas.

New World's Record For Bicycle Riding Claimed By Fireman

DALLAS, Feb. 21. (U.P.)—The Houston Fire department might do well to send one of its members out on a bicycle rather than a fire truck.

Jack McDonald, 26, a former Dallas man, today claimed a new world's record for bicycle riding. He traveled the 251 miles from Houston to Dallas in 15 hours and two minutes—stopping every fifty miles for rest and food.

McDonald, who holds a medical discharge from the Army, clipped two minutes from a record he set last Sept. 9, from Dallas to Houston.

In August, 1943, he was recognized by the American Bicycle association as setting a new record in covering the 335 miles over the Cascade mountains from Vancouver to Portland, Ore., in 22 hours and 40 minutes.

Fashions in the United States are a two and a half billion dollar industry.

Home Canning Sugar Rations Will Be Smaller; 20 Pounds Is Limit

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21. (U.P.)—Rations of sugar for home canning this year will be smaller and will be harder to get, the Office of Price Administration revealed today.

Under a drastically curtailed rationing program, 20 pounds will be the limit of the canning allowance for one person. Any one family will be held to 160 pounds of canning sugar.

No Stamps Validated

No ration stamps will be validated for canning sugar. All allotments will be made deirectly by local ration boards. Rations will be determined according to an OPA scale of estimates, with a limit of one pound of sugar for each four quarts of fruit or fruit juices.

Major reasons for curtailing this year's program, Price Administrator Chester Bowles said, is that sugar stocks are the lowest they have been for any February since the war began. The loose rationing system which prevailed last year resulted in an over usage of 300,000 tons, OPA said. This, it said, helped to bring about the stricter program for this year.

Same As Last Year

The total 1945 home-canning ration will be 700,000 tons, the same amount allocated in 1944. Stamps and certificates for 1,000,000 tons actually were issued last year, Bowles said.

The 1944 system "made it too easy" for people to get sugar, Bowles said, so "we simply had to tighten up." Otherwise, he said, all requirements might not be met.

He noted that sugar production in Cuba, chief U. S. source, is down from last year while military needs continue high.

Ships Hauling Supplies

"Ships that might otherwise be bringing sugar into the United States are hauling supplies to the battlefronts," he said. "Manpower and machinery for the refineries are scarce. Production cannot be measurably increased."

Even so, the total amount to be rationed this year will allow for as much home canning as was actually done during the peak years of 1943 and 1944 "if only those who need it get the sugar," Bowles said.

Family Limit 250 Pounds

Last year all ration book holders were entitled to an initial allotment of five pounds each, regardless of need. Ration boards could issue purchase certificates for an additional 20 pounds per person. The family limit was 250 pounds.

Other changes in the 1945 home canning sugar rationing system:

1. Rations will be issued only on the basis of actual need. Applicants must give the amount of canning done last year and the amount of fruit expected to be canned this year.

2. The initial application, to be made on an OPA form to the ration board, must be accompanied by spare stamp 13 from ration book four for each member of a family covered in the application. This will identify the applicant as a ration book holder. Further applications can be cleared without the stamp which will remain in ration board records.

3. Within the maximum allowance of 20 pounds, only five pounds per person will be allowed for canning other than fruits and fruit juices.

4. OPA district offices will announce dates when issuance of coupons will begin and end in each area. These dates will be related to the canning season in the area. No applications will be accepted after Oct. 31, 1945. Coupons will be denominations of one and five pounds, which will be good through Nov. 30, 1945. No more than two applications will be accepted from any family.

5. Persons producing home canned foods for sale will be limited to the amount allotted for this purpose in 1944.

Negro Killer Has 10 More Days To Live

AUSTIN, Feb. 21 (U.P.) — Henry Williams, negro, convicted killer of a Gonzales county constable, today had ten more days to live.

Williams has been sentenced to the electric chair at Huntsville state penitentiary March 4 for the murder of Constable A. O. Hamon, in Gonzales county, on Sept. 7, 1943.

His execution was originally scheduled for Feb. 2, 1945, after he was convicted by a jury in Gonzales county. However, a 30-day reprieve was granted by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson. A previous appeal for retrial was denied by the district court.

Testimony showed that Hamon went to William's home with two warrants for the negro's arrest. During an exchange of bullets, Williams was wounded in the shoulder. The constable, also wounded, ran off. Williams followed and killed him.

Resources, Central And South America, Are Cited By Texan

HOUSTON, Feb. 21 (U.P.)—Dean Emeritus E. J. Kyle of Texas A. and M. college, newly-appointed U. S. ambassador to Guatemala, said today that his efforts in that South American country will include promotion of Guatemalan agriculture and commerce.

Declaring "the greatest resources left and as yet hardly touched are the resources of Central and South America," Dean Kyle said the United States should aid in the development of those resources after the war.

"The agriculture of Central and South America, down to the southern part of the coffee zone in south Brazil, is complementary to ours rather than being competitive, and this is most fortunate," the new ambassador said.

"We'll have the planes and ships and the opportunity for building the greatest commerce the world ever has known, if we think and plan constructively.

"We even should assist the countries to the south in placing their products which are competitive to ours, to a reasonable extent, so that disastrous competition shall not be fostered in the years following the war," he said.

Dean Kyle spoke at a Houston Chamber of Commerce luncheon in his honor.

'Pochismos' Abolition In Mexico Is Urged

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 21. (AP) — A campaign against interlarding Spanish with English words and slang phrases is being pressed in the northern border state of Nuevo Leon.

The drive has been organized by Governor Arturo de La Garza and is being taken very seriously by the people, Senator Ramiro Tames of that state said today.

Under the plain commercial signs in Monterrey and other Nuevo Leon cities must be in Spanish or be preceded with a Spanish translation.

To be oblished are conversational North Americanisms— "pochismos" they called in Mexico—such as greeting or saying good-by in English, the frequent use of "O.K.", "And How," "You're Telling Me?", words such as "lobby" and hundreds of others imported from the United States.

Tames asserted the campaign will "in no way hurt those who really wish to learn English, for both Mexicans and North Americans are convinced that each should be able to speak the other's language in order to understand and be understood—but without 'pochismos,'" which destroy the purity of Spanish.
