Fabulous fireworks crown festivities

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest blast of fireworks in America's history crowned an all-day birthday party for the Statue of Liberty and the nation Friday, booming across New York Harbor and the sailing and war ships that earlier had paraded in a majestic July Fourth salute.

"What a glorious Fourth of July! One thing America knows how to do is throw a party," said Lee Iacocca, chairman of the Statue of Liberty-Ellis Island Foundation.

There was pageantry on land, on sea and in the air, part of the four-day extravaganza marking the $66 million restoration of the statue and her 100th birthday.

The scene in New York Harbor recalled the splendor of a bygone era as 22 tall-masted schooners, square riggers, barks and brigantines from 18 nations glided by the statue.

On the island of Manhattan, the Harbor Festival provided a giant street fair of food and entertainment through the afternoon.

The Boston Pops led a musical tribute to the statue in an hour and 40-minute concert in Liberty State Park in New Jersey. The United States Marine Band provided accompaniment to the fireworks with a medley of patriotic songs.

After dark, the sky was filled by a dazzling shower of 40,000 shells fired from 42 barges in what was billed as the world's biggest pyrotechnics display.

The fireworks glittered above the harbor, illuminating the thousands of small boats anchored at the statue's feet.

So many people jammed the Brooklyn Bridge and streets in parts of Manhattan and Brooklyn that police asked the media to warn spectators to stay out of the area.

"It's been said that we Americans count our blessings too seldom, but not this weekend," said President Reagan as he opened the extravaganza. "This weekend we celebrate, my friends, we cut loose."

New York Harbor harbor was jammed with vessels ranging from the USS John F. Kennedy, at 1,052 feet the Navy's largest aircraft carrier, to Chinese junks, tugboats, fireboats spouting streams of water, sailboats and even canoes. In all, the Coast Guard estimated there were 20,000 private pleasure craft.

Police estimated that more than 1.6 million people lined both shores of the vast harbor to watch the scene on a gloriously clear day that had spectators speaking in superlatives.

"It boggles your mind to sit here and watch this. It just takes you back to the beginning of this country," said Rex Woodford, from Charleston, W.Va., who watched from Governors Island just off the tip of Manhattan.

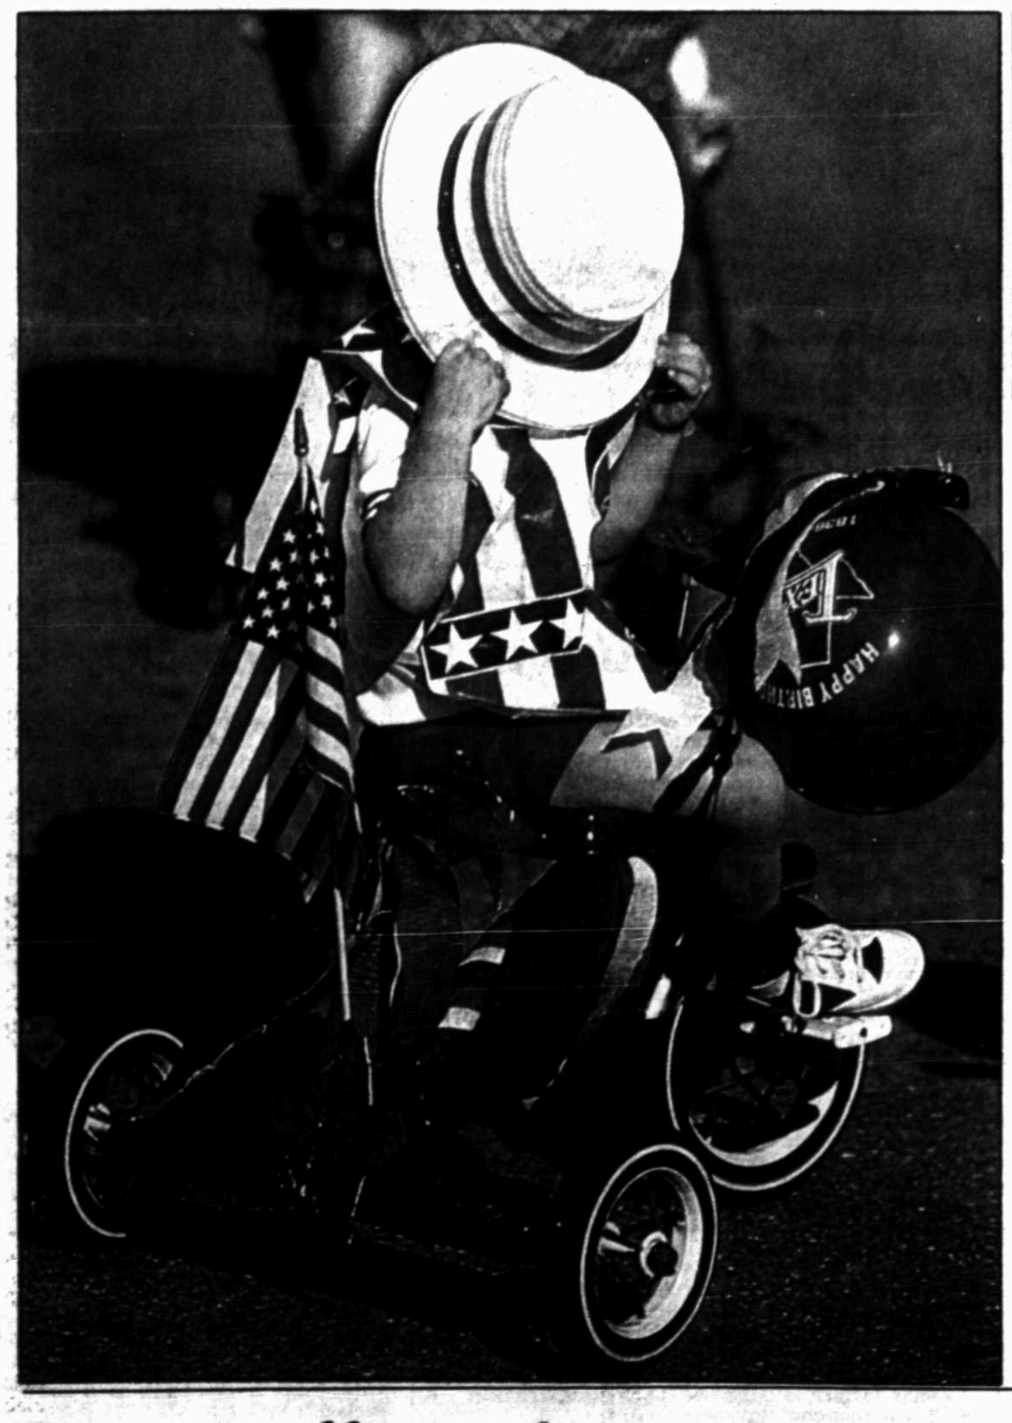
One patriot, Anibal Rivera of Jersey City, N.J., carried a brass propane torch and a 3-by-5-foot American flag as he ran along the New Jersey side of the Hudson River in what he said would be a 26-mile marathon.

On Pier 86 at 48th Street, passers-by stopped to snap a photo next to a six-foot plastic model of the Statue of Liberty. Judd Scott, of Arlington, Texas, said he would save the picture as a memento. "This is probably the closest we'll come to it," he said.

The day began with Reagan and his wife, Nancy, boarding the USS Iowa, an 887-foot battleship. The ship steamed down the Hudson River as Reagan surveyed a line of warships from the United States and 13 other countries. Every third ship along the route fired a 21-gun salute, and the Iowa responded with reports from her 5-inch gun.

Overhead, the Navy's Blue Angels and the Air Force's Thunderbirds flying teams streaked across the sky in formation. A French aerobatic team trailed red, white and blue smoke, and a Harrier jet from the British carrier Ark Royal hovered briefly over the harbor.

Then the tall ships, led by the Coast Guard bark Eagle and accompanied by a flotilla of about 200 smaller ships, began their stately procession upriver. Even those aboard were moved by the spectacle.



Sidewalk celebration

Matthew Midkiff, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Midkiff, quickly discovers that brisk winds can upset a person's poise — and hat — even in an Independence Day parade. Amy Fergeson, above, 16-year-old flag bearer, smiles as she watches children participating in the sidewalk event, the 23rd Annual Children's Parade sponsored by the Col. Theunis Dey Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The parade was staged around the Midland County Courthouse Square and Centennial Plaza.

Willie issues challenge at Farm Aid II

MANOR, Texas (AP) — Asking fans to make it "a great, historical day" for farmers, Willie Nelson staged Farm Aid II on Friday, hoping to raise millions for rural relief.

About 12 hours into the show, Nelson said the fund-raising appeared to be falling short of the $9 million collected by Farm Aid I in Illinois last year.

"According to the way the phone calls are coming in, I'd have to confess we're not approaching that now," he said. "I had hoped the phone calls would come in better than they are at this point."

He blamed it partially on fund-raising for the Statue of Liberty restoration project.

Event officials said about 45,000 people paid $20 apiece to get into the show at Manor Downs, a quarter horse track 11 miles east of Austin. The 18-hour show featured about 75 pop, rock and country artists, including Nelson, The Beach Boys, Waylon Jennings, Alabama, Judy Collins, Kris Kristofferson and Julio Iglesias.

The show caused a morning traffic jam that backed up to Austin, although several thousand people had camped overnight near the site.

Security director Mike Simpson said about 100 people were arrested, most for minor offenses. Many were held at the site and released after an "attitude adjustment," Simpson said.

Two ticket counterfeiters, with about $3,700 in cash on them, were arrested and taken to jail, he said.

Temperatures soared into the mid-90s, and Dr. Red Duke, a Houston physician and the concert's medical director, said up to 200 people had been treated by 4 p.m., most for heat-related problems.

"For the most part, it's problems with what people have ingested" combined with the heat, Duke said, referring to alcohol and marijuana use at the concert.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, a 1984 candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, told a backstage news conference that the concurrent centennial celebration for the Statue of Liberty, featuring a ceremonial re-lighting of the torch, was "an extravaganza for the very rich."

Farmers, Jackson said, "are the new huddled masses yearning to breathe free."

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told reporters, "The farm depression is a crisis that affects not just the snuff-dippers out there on the tractors, but the bean sprout-eaters in the cities as well."

Beginning the concert about a half hour after dawn, Nelson welcomed spectators to what he called "the concert for America."

"A lot of people — all the musicians backstage, all you folks out front — are here to help the American farmer," Nelson said, interrupted by cheers.

"He needs our help. And we're here to let the world know that he needs our help and he needs your help, too. So let's make today a great, historical day and a big positive day for the American family farmer."

According to Nelson and his aides, $4.3 million of the $9 million rasied at Farm Aid I has gone to rural relief projects in 40 states.

Texas traffic mishaps claim at least eight first day of holiday weekend

Associated Press

At least eight people, including a Kansas couple hurled from their motor home, died on Texas highways during the first 24 hours of the long Independence Day holiday weekend, officials said Friday.

The Department of Public Safety predicted that 45 people will be killed during the 78-hour count that began at 6 p.m. CDT Thursday and continues through midnight Sunday.

DPS spokesman David Wells said most of the deaths involved victims who were not wearing seat belts.

The first reported death came at 7:15 p.m. Thursday, when Eddie Wayne Hinds, 27, of Austin, was hit by an on-coming car as he tried to pass another car in a sharp curve's no-passing zone.

He was riding a motorcycle but was not wearing a helmet when the accident occurred on Ranch Road 2244 west of Austin in Travis County, Wells said.

Another cyclist was killed in San Antonio when his motocycle struck a lightpole at a city intersection. Stacy Vaughn Lary, 18, of San Antonio, was killed in the 3:30 a.m. Friday accident.

Chad C. Miller, 3, of Port Neches died at 9:30 p.m. Thursday when the car in which he was riding went out of control and flipped over on a Port Arthur street. He was in a safety seat, but was not buckled in, Wells said.

Lisa Zappettini, 14, of Corsicana died in a one-car rollover accident at 11:20 p.m. Thursday, 1.4 miles south of Blooming Grove on Farm to Market Road 55 in Navarro County.

She was a front-seat passenger in a car that ran off the road after missing a left-hand curve, hit a culvert, flipped onto its roof, slid 60 feet and smashed into a telephone poll. Neither she nor the car's two other occupants, who were hospitalized, wore seat belts, Wells said.

Carolyn S. Hord, 38, of Mount Pleasant died at 12:15 a.m. Friday one mile east of Mount Pleasant on Interstate 30 in Titus County.

Mitterrand won't be asked to carry message

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan, holding a Fourth of July meeting with French President Francois Mitterrand, said today he would not ask his European counterpart to carry a message to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

"I don't think that would be appropriate to impose on him," Reagan said at the start of what officials described as a working lunch. "He has his own relationship with other countries."

Reagan responded after being asked by a reporter whether he would send a message when Mitterrand goes to Moscow on Monday.

The president said he intended to discuss East-West relations with Mitterrand during their meal in the admiral's residence on Governors Island, a Coast Guard installation.

"We'll talk about things like that, yes," Reagan said. The lunch was held after they viewed the parade of tall ships in the New York harbor.

Asked whether he was concerned that Mitterrand has not expressed strong enough support for Reagan's Strategic Defense Inititive — or "Star Wars" — the U.S. president replied with a smile: "We have a very happy relationship."

Asked for his reaction to Gorbachev's recent statement that Reagan still is not serious about arms control, the president replied: "Well, then he's just misinformed."

In the letter, Gorbachev reportedly indicated that progress could be made in several areas of the U.S.-Soviet arms control relationship.

The Soviets want a response to their proposal to reduce U.S. and Soviet weapons before agreeing to a pre-summit meeting between Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze and Secretary of State George P. Shultz, American officials have said.

Asked whether he needed to resolve differences between Shultz and Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger before formulating a reply to the Soviets, Reagan said, "You see them here, my right and left hand." Reagan was seated between Shultz and Weinberger at the lunch.

"I would be lost without either one of them," Reagan added.

Mexican candidate fights vote rigging

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP) — Francisco Barrio, the leading opposition candidate in Sunday's gubernatorial elections in the northern state of Chihuahua, has vowed to give his life if necessary in defense of the popular vote.

"I personally have placed no limits, including the loss of my life," on trying to prevent vote rigging, said Barrio, candidate of the conservative National Action Party, or PAN.

"That sounds, perhaps, a little dramatic or extreme," the 35-year-old Barrio said in a news conference in this capital city of 600,000 people late Thursday.

Barrio, an accountant, resigned as mayor of Juarez, the state's largest city, located across the border from El Paso, Texas, to challenge the 57-year dominance of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, known as PRI.

But PRI officials said Friday that it isn't necessary for Barrio to stake his life because votes, not vote fraud, will put their candidate, Fernando Baeza, into the governor's palace.

The PRI has not lost a gubernatorial or presidential race since it was founded in 1929, but the PAN made strong inroads in the state in 1983 and 1984 elections.

"We have 36,000 people who are each committed to bringing 15 eligible voters to the polls," said PRI campaign organizer Mario Tarango. "That will give us the more than half a million votes we believe we need to win."

Nearly 1.3 million people in this vast agricultural, cattle ranching and mining state of 2.5 million are registered to vote in Sunday's elections.

Mayors of all 67 municipalities also will be elected.

Governor's races also are to be held Sunday in the states of Durango, Michoacan and Zacatecas.

Barrio said the PAN "expects serious attempts" at vote rigging.

The PAN has surprisingly allied itself with leftest parties in an organization known as the Democratic Electoral Movement, which has led acts of civil disobedience such as blockading highways to pressure the government into respecting the vote.

"I'm enchanted to work with any organization or party that is fighting for democracy in our state and our country," Barrio said.

Five candidates from leftist parties also are running for governor.

In a rare break with tradition, the usually silent Catholic bishop of Chihuahua spoke out against a new election code instituted by the PRI-controlled state government.

"The church looks with worry at the measures the government has taken in Chihuahua to make the election results less clear," spokesman Dizan Vazquez said.

Baeza, 44, said, however, that no results will be manipulated on his behalf.

A federal congressman and former mayor of his hometown of Delicias, the PRI candidate said this week he would fight corruption.

"We will vigorously combat all forms of corruption and inefficiency and elevate ourselves with courage, decision, virility and patriotism," he said.

The PRI, which controls the congress and never has lost a presidential or gubernatorial race, was founded in 1929 to unify a country embroiled in turmoil.

Its pervasive power went practically unchallenged until 1982 when Mexico fell into a severe economic crisis.

In what was seen as a referendum on the PRI, the PAN won mayoralties in seven major Chihuahua cities in 1983 mayoral elections, including the capital and Juarez. In mid-term elections last year the PAN won four of 10 congressional districts.

Despite the intense focus on the state elections here, the atmosphere in this capital city was calm on Friday.

CONCERT

The money has funded telephone hot lines for farmers, Future Farmers of America scholarships, legal aid and purchases of seed for farmers who otherwise wouldn't have been able to make this year's crop, said Bill Wittliff, an Austin screenwriter who is overseeing the fund.

In a pre-concert interview, Nelson said he hoped Farm Aid II would raise at least $9 million more. However, no announcements of how much money was being raised were made during the day Friday.

The concert was being carried live on the cable television channel VH-1, and viewers were being asked to phone a toll-free number to make donations.

Clad in shorts, a sleeveless T-shirt, sneakers and his customary bandana, Nelson roamed the stage and introduced many of the acts, frequently joining them for a chorus or two.

Many performers voiced personal reasons for donating their time to the show.

"I can't imagine a reason for not participating. It's important enough to everybody that if you've got a chance to help in any way, you should take advantage of it and do it," said J.D. Souther, a Los Angeles songwriter who has penned lyrics for the Eagles and Linda Ronstadt.

"I grew up in Amarillo, Texas. There's a few farmers on the other side of my family, and I'd like to keep their farms and keep them in business. I want us to keep eating American food that's grown and sold and processed here," Souther said.

David Allen Coe said Nelson's friends feel deeply about the Farm Aid cause.

FATAL

She was westbound on a motorcycle when a car ran over her from behind, Wells said.

A couple from Hugoton, Kan., died at 2:05 a.m. Friday in Kress, north of Plainview, after they were thrown from their motor home. Wells said the vehicle hit a car that had pulled in front of it from a side street.

The motor home spun around and rolled onto its left side, throwing out James Charles Sanderson, 45, and his wife, 44-year-old Jean Sanderson.

Three other people inside the van — including the Sanderson's daughter, Sherry, who was the only person in the two vehicles to have buckled her seat belt — were hospitalized in satisfactory condition, Wells said.

Two teen-agers in the car were in critical condition at Central Plains Hospital.

South of San Antonio, meanwhile, Fred J. Mendoza, 22, of Floresville died after he slid out of control on his motorcycle at 2:45 a.m. Friday on U.S. Highway 181, Well said.

Texans share varied Independence Day

By ALAN SAYRE
Associated Press Writer

While thousands of Texans celebrated Independence Day with singer Willie Nelson at his Farm Aid II concert, Friday was a personally historic moment for several hundred immigrants who marked their first full day of U.S. citizenship.

Nearly 40,000 tickets were sold for the concert, held to raise money for financially strapped American farmers, and crowds began streaming into a race track near the Central Texas town of Manor at 6 a.m. Thousands of others spent hours in an 11-mile traffic jam.

Beginning the concert about a half hour after dawn, Nelson welcomed spectators to "the concert for America."

"A lot of people — all the musicians backstage, all you folks out front — are here to help the American farmer," Nelson said, interrupted by cheers.

"He needs our help. And we're here to let the world know that he needs our help and he needs your help, too. So let's make today a great, historical day and a big positive day for the American family farmer."

The concert had 75 acts that covered the spectrum of popular music, including the Beach Boys, Waylon Jennings, Judy Collins, Kris Kristofferson, Jerry Jeff Walker, the rock bank X, Steppenwolf and funk rocker Rick James.

In San Antonio, 188 immigrants — one for each defender of the Alamo — gathered at the Alamo to be sworn in as citizens on the eve of Independence Day.

"I feel it now," said Boris Borin, who came from the Soviet Union six years ago with his wife, Galina.

"This is a magnificent land," San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros told the new citizens. "Here, individuals have rights. Here, it is possible to be what one wants to be."

Also Thursday, about 300 immigrants took the oath of citizenship in Dallas and were urged to wield their new-found clout as citizens. The new citizens had come from 54 different countries and ranged in age from 3 to 76.

"I never had the chance to to take an oath like that," U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer told the group at Old City Park. "By taking that oath you have joined a very select group. That's the 50 people who signed the Declaration of Independence."

A family of South Africans were accompanied by a cheering section of American friends as they received their naturalization certificates. Bridget and Anthony de Bruyn and their four children came to Dallas in 1977, said Mrs. de Bruyn.

"My sister's been living here for 16 years and we came over to join her," she said.

Mrs. de Bruyn said the family decided to become American citizens because they like the way of life here.

"It's been a wonderful opportunity," she said.

Immigrants also were given the oath of citizenship during ceremonies in Harlingen and El Paso.

Farm Aid II wasn't the only popular gathering spot for Texans on Friday. South Padre Island and Galveston experienced the usual flock of thousands to their beaches.

Port Isabel police detective Alonzo Ramirez said about 80,000 people were gathering at South Padre beaches.

"It's a nice, clear and sunny day. There are lots and lots of sailboats, and all kinds of boats out there," Ramirez said. "Everything's open and packed."

The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band will perform at a street dance tonight, beginning at 8:30 p.m. in the parking lot of the Midland Park Mall. The dance concludes two days of acitivities during the Fourth of July Weekend in Midland. The dance is free.

Life in Dermott quietly comes to close

DERMOTT (AP) — The last store was closed and the last letter delivered as this tiny West Texas railroad town quietly sank out of existence.

Dermott, once a bustling community now whittled down to two residents, officially came to an end Thursday when postmaster LaVerne Herring retired. No replacement will be appointed because the rural post office in this community, located 15 miles northeast of Snyder, serves so few customers.

The town boasted as many as 75 residents in the 1920s when it was part of the cattle and cotton transport system, serving the Santa Fe railroad as a water and coal supply point.

But once the railway closed, the fortunes of Dermott declined with it, said Scurry County Commissioner Earl Sneed.

"It's been that way with small towns since the railway quit — that, and the passing of time," he said.

When the railroad left, the hotel, which served as a dance hall during World War II, eventually closed as did two service stations, the bank and several grocery stores.

Mrs. Herring, one of the two residents of Dermott, said she hopes to sell the building, which has been in her family for 76 years.

Her uncle, Luther Edmonson, became the second postmaster in 1910. He then passed the title to Mrs. Herring's father, Aubry Edmonson, in 1926, who passed it to Mrs. Herring when he retired in 1963.

"We're gonna miss it, we really will," she told the San Angelo Standard-Times. "It's been slow because of the oil price, but it's a wonderful spot for a business. I'm not leaving because business is slower, I've just been at this for 34 years and it's tiring."

The town was named after its first postmaster, S.T. McDermott, who ran a crossroads store and post office at the turn of the century. The town formed near the Roscoe, Snyder and Pacific Railroad built in 1909.

The town later acquired a hotel and a bank when the Santa Fe Railroad began laying track. In 1923, the township built a school whose two teachers served until its consolidation with Snyder Independent School District in 1947.

"I've lived in Dermott all my life and moving to Snyder isn't far, but I still have mixed emotions," Mrs. Herring said. "Really, we aren't leaving Dermott — Dermott left us."

Dermott's last businesses were the post office and a small store operated by Mrs. Herring's sister, Velma Lee Edmonson. Mrs. Edmonson closed her store Monday.

Some of the mail customers said they will miss the old post office.

W.T. Steel, who lives 1½ miles from the Dermott post office, said he has been getting mail from the station all his life.

"I'll miss it," he said. "I moved here when I was 3 months old and I'm 67 years old now. I've gone there ever since I was a kid and now its gone down plumb to nothing."

Controller will 'help others,' not take cut

HOUSTON (AP) — City Controller Lance Lalor says he will not accept a 3 percent salary decrease, but instead promises to use that percentage of his income to help employees hurt by the pay cuts.

The Houston City Council passed the reduction for all city employees on June 26, but an escape clause gives elected officials, such as Lalor, the chance to exempt themselves from the measure.

A total of 49 people were allowed to exempt themselves from the pay cuts, but Lalor was the only one to do so, according to the finance director's office.

The deadline for filing an exemption was Thursday.

Murder case uncovered

EL PASO (AP) — A murder case spanning five states was uncovered after police in this border city made what they thought at first was a routine arrest.

Terry Lee Brown, 36, of Swepsonville, N.C., was being held at the El Paso County jail on $75,000 bond under police charges of being a fugitive from justice for auto theft, said Jerry Tolbert, an investigator with the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Brown was arrested late Tuesday night on Interstate 10 east of El Paso on an investigation of speeding and driving while intoxicated. Later, he told the arresting officer that he stole the pickup truck he was driving and had killed its owner, said Tolbert.

"It started as just a routine traffic stop," said Tolbert. "He (Brown) just volunteered the information."

Idaho authorities on Wednesday found the body of a woman in the brush along Idaho Highway 3 about 38 miles south of Coeur d'Alene based on information provided by Brown, Tolbert said.

The body, fully clothed, was identified Thursday as that of Elizabeth Ann Canfield, 74, of Upton, Wyo., said Robert Burton, assistant district attorney in Kootenai County, Idaho.

Convictions dismissed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal appeals court has tossed out conspiracy convictions against drug kingpin Bonnie Burnette Erwin and 10 others in a case involving an East Texas-based gang known as the "Erwin Organization."

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals also reversed tax evasion convictions of Erwin's wife, Jo, and a racketeering conviction of his brother, Don, as well as two perjury convictions of Grace Davis of Elgin.

The appeals court, which agreed with defense attorneys that the government was too broad in its conspiracy claims, acquitted Jo Erwin, Don Erwin and Ms. Davis of those charges. It also said Bonnie Burnette Erwin, also of Tyler, could not be retried on the conspiracy count.

Bonnie Burnette Erwin is now on Texas' death row after conviction in a slaying that was included in the federal accusations against him. He also was sentenced to life without parole on Jan. 25, 1985, after being convicted of racketeering, conspiracy and several other charges in federal court in Dallas.

'Intuition' saved lives

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Call it intuition. Call it experienced judgment. Or call it luck. But whatever it was that drove maintenance supervisor Fred H. Pfeiffer to check a bridge on Interstate 10, it probably saved lives.

Pfeiffer found the eastbound bridge over Rosillo Creek in east Bexar County close to collapse, and he immediately closed it to traffic Tuesday afternoon.

Wednesday morning it buckled and fell of its own weight, plunging into the creek. No one was injured.

"It was just one of those things," said Pfeiffer, a supervisor with the State Highways and Public Transportation Department. "Something told me to go out and look. I felt I had to go over there.

"Chills run up my spine when I think I almost didn't go," he told the San Antonio Light.

One suspect in custody

DALLAS (AP) — One man was in custody today following two apparently unrelated bank robberies within minutes of each other.

Officers said they arrested a man a few minutes after the Swiss Avenue Bank was robbed Thursday. The man who held up the First Texas Savings office in north Dallas about 15 minutes later was still at large, officers said.

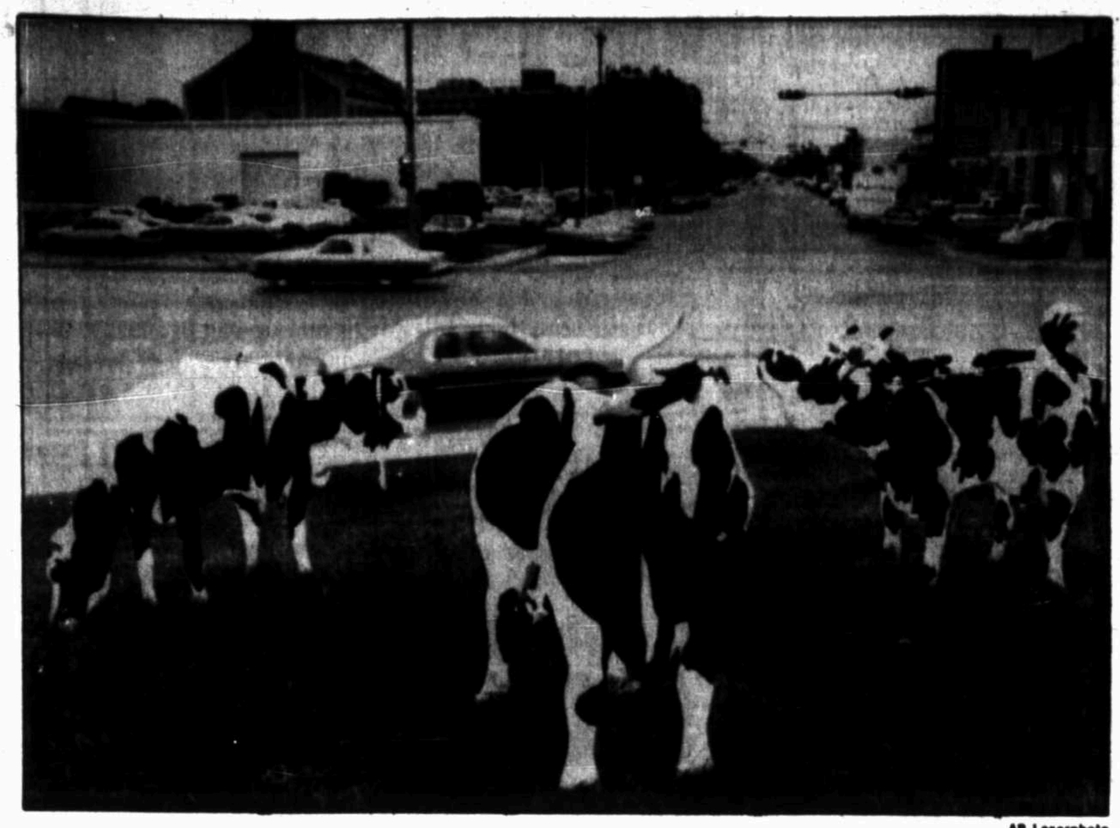
Abilene suffers 'udder disgrace'



AP Laserphoto

An artist has reclaimed Abilene's herd of sculpted wood Holsteins following a series of attacks by vandals. Because the display was popular in this West Texas city, efforts now are under way to fund replacement of the "stillstock."

ABILENE (AP) — A Dallas artist says the vandalism of his sculpture "Herd of Cows" is an udder disgrace and has ordered the exhibit herded up and moved out.

The eight wooden figures, painted black and white to resemble Holsteins, had been a popular sight in downtown Abilene since they were put out to pasture in early June as part of the city's annual outdoor sculpture exhibit.

But the exhibit has also attracted less-than-welcome attention, being moved, flipped over or placed in compromising positions.

The last straw came Thursday, when one of the cows was missing from the herd and horns were missing from two cows and a bull. The crime has prompted a newspaper campaign to commission a new exhibit and a private reward for recovery of the statue.

Police are billing the theft as the Crimestoppers' "Crime of the Week."

Lynn Barnett, director of the Abilene Cultural Affairs Council, sponsors of the exhibit, said the group was embarrassed and upset about the missing cow.

Artist Wayne Amerine said he demanded his cows come home after the theft.

"They are the original cows," he said from Dallas. "They mean quite a lot to me."

Amerine said the exhibit was destined for a museum.

The Abilene Reporter-News has started a campaign to commission Amarine to create a special herd for the West Texas town.

Houston jurors debate fate of Cynthia Ray

HOUSTON (AP) — Jurors in the murder trial of Cynthia Campbell Ray spent the Fourth of July trying to decide whether she helped her former boyfriend kill her father.

Ms. Ray, 30, could face life in prison if convicted. Her ex-boyfriend, David West, 30, has pleaded guilty to murder in exchange for a life sentence.

The jury, which had asked to review parts of several witnesses' testimony, had not indicated Friday how they were divided in the case, said court clerk Betty Conway.

Jurors wanted large portions of testimony read back to them.

Teachers urged to push for board

NATION

CHICAGO (AP) — The leaders of the rival teachers' unions urged their convention delegates to join the movement for a national teacher standards board to elevate the status of the profession.

Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, was expected to emphasize that message today in his keynote address to 3,700 delegates at the opening of the AFT's biennial convention here.

In Louisville, Ky., 7,000 National Education Association delegates today voted their support for the formation of a national board, as NEA President Mary Hatwood Futrell urged in her address Thursday at the kickoff of her union's annual meeting.

The two unions, which together represent most of America's 2.3 million classroom teachers, customarily hold their conventions over the Fourth of July.

Shanker and Ms. Futrell both served on the Carnegie Task Force on Education and the Economy, which in May proposed the national standards boards.

McAuliffe addresses convention

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The husband of Christa McAuliffe, in his first speech since her death in the Challenger explosion, urged 7,500 teachers Friday to take political action to prevent the teacher-in-space program from becoming "a public relations ploy."

Steven McAuliffe brought tears to many eyes and was applauded and cheered during a brief speech before the delegates to the National Education Association's annual convention.

McAuliffe, with his parents-in-law and his children, Scott, 9, and Caroline, 6, accepted a posthumous "Friend of Education" award to his wife. Mrs. McAuliffe, 37, selected to be the first "ordinary" citizen in space, died Jan. 28 along with the six other people aboard the space shuttle.

Previous winners of the highest honor offered by the 1.8 million-member teachers union include Lyndon Johnson, Jimmy Carter, Hubert Humphrey, George McGovern and Thurgood Marshall.

NEA President Mary Hatwood Futrell wept as she introduced McAuliffe and his family. "She was a strong association member," Futrell said. "She filled her time with us. She exhibited the reality of a teacher's dream."

"One thing I'd like you to understand," McAuliffe said. "Christa was the most selfless person I have ever met."

He recalled his wife's keen wit.

Once, after needling his wife with the saying, "Those that can, do. Those that can't, teach," she shot back: "Those that can, do. Those that can't, marry lawyers." McAuliffe is an attorney.

McAuliffe drew prolonged applause and cheers when he urged NEA members to stay involved in politics:

"Christa knew, as you know, that the voters want the best education and the best teachers for their children. But wishing it won't make it so.

"If I can leave you with one thought, it's this: If you in this hall do not carry on her work, and sit on the sidelines, then her efforts will have been in vain.

"You will have turned the teacher-in-space program into a feeble substitute for desperately needed help. You will have turned it into a public relations ploy for teachers.

"With her family's blessings, I hope you will return to your states and use Christa's efforts and her spirit to get involved in the political arena effectively, to recruit education's candidates, to unseat those who support education with their words, but not their appropriations, and most of all, that you stay in education," he said.

Accepting the "Friend of Education" plaque at the end of his speech, McAuliffe interrupted the applause with a last word:

"My son would like to step up to the mike and thank all of you," he said. Then, looking at the sea of television cameras and microphones, he added: "But he says he doesn't like reporters."

NATION in brief

Philadelphia's city strike puts stress on celebration

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Striking city workers heckled the mayor at Independence Hall on Friday as the walkout by 14,000 municipal employees left trash littering city streets and dampened the celebration of the Fourth of July.

"This is a very, very happy day, and one of those basic rights we celebrate is freedom of expression," Mayor W. Wilson Goode said after he was booed by pickets at the building where the Declaration of Independence was adopted 210 years ago.

"The union has every right to express themselves, but they have no right to interfere any way with anyone else. That's the beauty of democracy," he said.

Fireworks would go on as scheduled, he said, but the city had to cancel Friday night's concert tribute to the Statue of Liberty because of threats of violence by some strikers.

Negotiators find accord

BRIDGETON, Mo. (AP) — Negotiators for Caterpillar Inc. and the United Auto Workers reached a tentative settlement on a new contract for 17,000 workers Friday, ending 30 consecutive hours of bargaining.

Spokesmen for both sides described the settlement as innovative and historic.

It was the first time the company and the UAW have reached an agreement without a strike since 1976, James Ward, a Caterpillar vice president and the company's chief negotiator, said at a news conference following the bargaining session.

"This is an agreement which is innovative in some very important areas of job training and in the job placement process, which gives added protection to senior employees for job retention," Ward said.

Bill Casstevens, chief negotiator for the UAW, said the grueling bargaining session was worth the end result.

Ford raises car prices

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. raised its car prices by an average of 2.9 percent Friday, but also announced new buyer incentives including loans at 6.9 percent to 9.9 percent interest or cash bonuses of up to $600.

Ford said it made the moves to keep up with industry leader General Motors Corp. while still maintaining profits.

"We tried very hard to continue to hold the line on car prices for the balance of the 1986 model year, but have concluded it is not practical to do so," said Louis E. Lataif, vice president for North American sales operations.

On June 29, GM announced discounted interest rates of 5.9 percent to 8.9 percent on most cars and many light trucks.

Lataif said the increases still leave Ford prices well below those of Japanese competitors, which have raised prices several times this year because of the rising value of the yen.

Alcoa walkout to end

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Leaders of the Aluminum, Brick and Glass Workers International union voted Friday to accept a contract with Alcoa, ending a 34-day walkout against the nation's largest aluminum manufacturer.

The agreement will be presented to union members after local contract issue disputes are resolved this weekend, said Ernie LaBaff, president of the ABGW.

He declined to reveal how the union's local presidents voted, but said: "I think it was a realistic vote. I think people knew what we were up against."

Reforms sought before sending Philippines funds

By HENRY GOTTLIEB

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration will fulfill a promise to send aid worth $262.7 million to the Philippines in the next nine months, but is waiting for more assurances of economic reform before giving that country a freer hand in spending the money, U.S. officials say.

At issue is whether the government of President Corazon Aquino will be permitted to stick $100 million of the U.S. funds into the general budget account for use at will, or must earmark the money for specific projects approved by the United States.

The aid issue is likely to be a major topic of discussion when Mrs. Aquino makes her first visit to the United States since taking office. She is scheduled to meet President Reagan on Sept. 17, and has been invited to address a joint session of Congress while she's in Washington.

"We are interested in how the aid will fit into the country's long-range plans," said a U.S. official working on the aid program. "We think they have enough money in their budget to ride it out for the rest of the year; the budget isn't going to collapse."

The official said Secretary of State George P. Shultz told Mrs. Aquino during a meeting in Manila on June 24 that the United States wanted the Philippines to define its economic plans before deciding if the strings should be detached from the U.S. aid.

"I think they understand what we want to know," the official said.

Much of the U.S. concern will be satisfied in September, when the Philippines is scheduled to issue its economic goals and reform measures for the next six years, said the official, speaking on condition he not be identified.

The International Monetary Fund, which is trying to work out a program to restructure the Philippines' $26 billion debt, is also eagerly awaiting the Aquino government's six-year plan. The program also will effect how other donor countries structure their aid plans for the Philippines.

After Mrs. Aquino took office in February, the United States pledged to send $505.4 million to help the Philippines recover from what Shultz called the "economic mess" left by the 20-year rule of ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Of that sum, $35 million in food aid was dispensed this spring. During his recent trip, Shultz handed over $200 million for the Philippines to use as "budget support," which gives the government wide latitude in deciding how to spend the money. Another $7.7 million in food aid is also in the pipeline.

Of the $262.7 million still to be sent, $21.3 million will be in the form of food aid and $141.4 million will be for specific development projects. The remaining $100 million will either be earmarked for specific projects or simply put into the budget as Mrs. Aquino hopes it is.

The official said all the money should be in Philippine hands by the end of next March.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs committee panel that deals with the Philippines, has proposed an additional grant of $250 million, but the State Department has declined to recommend cuts in aid to other countries to gather the sum.

Administration officials, meanwhile, are working on the aid package for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

The current plan is to send $133 million for economic support, $7.7 million in food aid and $102.7 million in military assistance. In addition, Shultz has responded positively to a proposal by Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, for an additional $100 million in economic support.

After she met Shultz in Manila, Mrs. Aquino said she also wants to remove some of the strings from the U.S. military assistance. Of the proposed military aid, $50 million would be in the form of loans to buy U.S. military equipment.

Pope tours Colombian countryside, supports fight for 'ancient ways'

POPAYAN, Colombia (AP) — Pope John Paul II walked on a path of flowers to a roofless church in guerrilla country Friday, where he told Indian peasants he supports their desire to regain sacred lands and preserve their ancient ways.

Earlier in the day, the pope broke protocol at a Pacific coast fishing village populated by poverty-stricken descendants of African slaves, walked into a tin-roofed shack and blessed the grizzled patriarch of the large family inside.

John Paul told the people of Popayan "You are struggling for the defense of your culture represented in your languages, your customs and way of life, for the defense of your human dignity and also for the obtaining of rights due you as citizens."

"May your struggles always be in the religious line of love to all other brothers in accord with Christian morals," he said, continuing his theme against violence and class warfare.

The pontiff, 66, appeared to be wearying on the fourth day of a week-long visit to Colombia, his first to this country and his seventh to Latin America.

He arrived in this Andes mountain city 240 miles southwest of Bogota in the late morning to find that residents had strewn flowers along the entire route from the airport to the Roman Catholic cathedral.

The roofless church was laced with scaffolding, being rebuilt after an earthquake that killed 5,000 people on March 31, 1983, which was Holy Thursday. The church also was devastated by three previous earthquakes.

John Paul's message, delivered from a thatched-roof podium to an audience including many Indians in traditional dress, alluded to priests who have helped in the struggle to recover ancestral lands.

They include the Rev. Alvaro Cue, the first Indian priest in the area, who advocated land reform and was shot dead near Popayan in mysterious circumstances two years ago.

The area around the city is one of Colombia's poorest, largely neglected by the government.

WORLD in brief

Foreigners join festivities

Associated Press

From Moscow to Manila, foreigners joined in that grand old American tradition of mixing politics with Fourth of July celebrations, even prompting a walkout by Jimmy Carter and American diplomats in far off Zimbabwe.

Former President Carter and U.S. Charge d'Affaires Edward Lanpher led about 40 Americans out of a Fourth of July diplomatic reception in Harare, the capital, after a Zimbabwean minister attacked U.S. policy on South Africa.

Minister of Youth David Karimanzira accused Washington of indirectly supporting South African "terrorism."

"It was offensive," Lanpher said later.

Soviet newspapers published a message of congratulations from the government to President Reagan. But the newspaper Moscow Pravda complained that official U.S. propaganda was using celebrations of the Statue of Liberty's centennial to fan chauvinism in the United States.

It said that "from the intervention against Grenada to the bombing raids on Libyan cities, and the repression of dissidents in its own country up to the announced wars against countries whose policies are unsuitable to Washington — this is the 'freedom of America.'"

In Manila, police gunfire, tear gas and smoke grenades dispersed about 5,000 leftists protesting at the U.S. Embassy against what they consider American intervention in the Philippines. Several injuries and detentions were reported.

The demonstrators later were allowed to make speeches demanding removal of U.S. military bases in the Philippines.

Filipino-American Friendship Day, a national holiday, coincides with Independence Day. The Philippines became fully independent July 4, 1946.

Probe has new director

MOSCOW (AP) — The director of the government commission investigating the Chernobyl nuclear accident has been replaced, a Tass report indicated Friday.

There had been rumors that the man replaced, Boris Shcherbina, 66, a deputy premier, was seriously ill from radiation exposure.

The Soviet newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda reported at the same time Friday that an accident during cleanup operations at Chernobyl showered firemen with dangerously radioactive water.

The official news agency Tass, in a report on discussions by the commission with other officials, did not announce a change in chiefs, but its report on Friday indicated a new man was in charge.

Shcherbina was named commission chief right after the April 26 disaster that killed at least 26 people. The Tass report Friday said the government inquiry is headed by Vladimir Gusev, also a deputy premier.

Vietnam accuses China

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam accused Chinese forces Friday of firing 15,000 artillery rounds into Ha Tuyen border province and of staging 11 commando probes into its territory last month.

The Vietnam News Agency said shells hit Thanh Thuy village and other populated areas. It said that on June 1, International Children's Day, the Chinese shelled a school in the province, killing two students and wounding five students and a teacher. Vietnam had reported the school shelling earlier.

The agency said local armed forces captured "many intruders, shot afire a military truck and an ammunition depot."

Both countries have been accusing each other of border violations since 1979, when Peking's forces staged a brief but bloody invasion of northern Vietnam. Independent access to the area is almost impossible, but many analysts believe both Vietnamese and Chinese charges are exaggerated.

Land donation studied

MASSA, Italy (AP) — A magistrate began questioning local officials Friday to determine whether they committed a crime by donating land for a monument to the anarchist who killed King Umberto I at the turn of the century.

Sixteen members of the council of this Tuscan town, 70 miles west of Florence, last year voted to donate a small plot of land for the monument to Tuscan-born Gaetano Bresci.

Bresci killed the Italian king in Monza, near Milan, on July 29, 1900, then committed suicide in prison.

A local anarchist suggested the monument and promised to pay all other expenses.

Magistrate Vincenzo Di Nubila said he notified the council members they were under investigation for the possible offense of defending a crime — the assassination of the king.

The council's action drew protests in Parliament.

At least 20 wounded in Pretoria bombing

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A bomb exploded outside a crowded supermarket in a white Pretoria neighborhood Friday, wounding at least 20 people, the government said.

It was the second urban bombing in two days and the 12th since a nationwide state of emergency was imposed June 12.

Two women had their legs blown off in the blast, the South African Press Association reported. It quoted a witness, who spoke on condition he was not identified, as saying he saw injured people sprawled on the sidewalk minutes after the blast, including two women "with their legs blown away from the knees down."

About 10,000 black miners walked off their jobs or staged slowdowns to protest detentions of union leaders under the emergency. They halted production at four diamond mines and disrupted some shifts at Free State Consolidated Gold Mines.

Rain could sweep Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Rain in the form of thundershowers may grace Midland today and Sunday.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is predicting about a 20 percent chance of rain this weekend.

And he is calling for isolated afternoon and evening thundershowers Sunday, when the high temperature is to be in the mid-90s.

The high temperature today is to be in the upper 90s. Winds are to be southerly at 10 to 20 mph. The low tonight is to be in the low 70s.

Friday's peak temperature was 94 degrees, which wasn't even close to the record high of 106 degrees for July the Fourth in 1983. The overnight low was 68 degrees, and the record low for the date was 60 degrees in 1972.

STATE

Mostly sunny skies prevailed across Texas July Fourth as a weak ridge of high pressure continued to dominate the weather pattern across the state.

A few scattered clouds shielded the sun in some locations. A high pressure ridge was drifting slowly off to the east as a trough of low pressure developed over West Texas.

Gusty southerly winds were sweeping across most of Texas at speeds generally in the 15 to 25 mph range. Winds in excess of 30 miles an hour were reported over parts of North and West Texas.

Temperatures were in the 80s over the western mountain region and parts of East Texas while readings in the 90s were common across the rest of Texas. The late afternoon extremes ranged from 84 degrees in Longview to 99 degrees at both Laredo and McAllen.

The forecast calls for fair to partly cloudy skies Saturday with a chance of widely scattered showers and thunderstorms over sections of East and West Texas, the National Weather Service said.

In North Texas, widely scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms are expected to the east, with windy and hot days through Sunday. Highs will be in the mid- to upper-90s. Lows will be in the mid-70s to upper 70s.

West Texas will have clear to partly cloudy skies with widely scattered thunderstorms in the Panhandle Saturday night. Highs will be in the 90s to near 102 along the Rio Grande. Lows will be in the mid- to upper 70s.

In South Texas, mostly sunny and hot days with fair weather at night are predicted. Highs will be in the 90s and up to 105 in the Rio Grande plains.

In North Texas, widely scattered afternoon and evening thunderstorms east. Otherwise windy and hot days and fair and very warm nights tonight through Sunday. Lows tonight and Saturday night 74 to 78. Highs Saturday and Sunday 93 to 98.

In West Texas, clear to partly cloudy through Sunday. Widely scattered thunderstorms in the Panhandle Saturday night. Otherwise isolated late afternoon and evening thunderstorms through Sunday. A little warmer south Saturday, not quite as warm north Sunday.

In South Texas, some late night and early morning cloudiness. Otherwise, mostly sunny and hot days, generally fair at night. Lows tonight and Saturday night in the 70s, low 80s in the immediate coast. Highs Saturday and Sunday in the 90s between 100 and 105 Rio Grande.

Firecracker 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Buddy Baker's misfortune was Tim Richmond's good fortune Friday in the Pepsi Firecracker 400 NASCAR stock car race. Baker whacked the wall just eight laps from the end as he avoided a spinning car, giving up the lead to Richmond, who managed to pick his way through the spinning cars and debris without damage.

He beat surprising Sterling Marlin to the finish line by 1.39 seconds.

Bobby Hillin Jr., former Midland, Texas, High School footballer, was third, followed by defending Winston Cup champion Darrell Waltrip and Kyle Petty. Hillin earned $24,545 for his best finish of the season...

Golf

CROMWELL, Conn. — Tim Simpson shot a 5-under-par 66 for a record 130 and a two-stroke lead over Tom Watson after two rounds of the $700,000 Canon-Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open. Watson, looking for his first PGA Tour victory in two years, stayed close as he shot a 67 to go with an opening-round 65 and was one stroke ahead of Dan Forsman, who shot a 68 Friday, and Roger Maltbie, who closed in on the leaders with a second-round 67.

U.S. Open champion Ray Floyd and Hubert Green both missed the cut with a 1-over-par total of 143. Scott Verplank, who finished 15th in the U.S. Open in his professional debut, failed to make the cut for the third straight tournament.

SUGAR LAND — Amy Benz, leading a professional tournament after 36 holes for the first time in her career, shot a 1-under-par 71 Friday and held her two-stroke lead in the LPGA Mazda Hall of Fame Championship. Benz, who started the second round two strokes ahead of Judy Dickinson and Lauren Howe, had three birdies and two bogeys to finish with a 6-under-par 138 total for 36 holes.

Amy Alcott, who overcame a double bogey on the par-4, 375-yard 10th hole to register a 2-under par 70—140, was alone in second. Deb Richard shot 70-141 for third. Pat Bradley, the leading money winner on the tour this season and the first female golfer to surpass the $2 million mark in career earnings, and Penny Hammel were at 143...

Len Bias

BALTIMORE — Detailed tests done on Len Bias' heart show that he probably used cocaine prior to his fatal dose on June 19, according to the state's medical examiner Dr. John E. Smialek. DHe said tests on Bias' heart found microscopic damage to several muscle fibers, representing what usually is a cocaine-induced disease."Based on those changes and the autopsy findings, it would be my opinion that he probably used (cocaine) sometime in the past," said Smialek.

Smialek also said that new toxicology studies indicated that Bias had used the drug at least once "an hour or two" before the fatal dose. But there is no way to determine how many times he may have used the drug...

Vikings' Rhymes: 'There but for....'

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — "It could have easily been me," said Minnesota Vikings receiver Buster Rhymes, reflecting on the recent cocaine-related deaths of athletes Len Bias and Don Rogers.

Rhymes, who said he started using cocaine as a junior at the University of Oklahoma, has twice been admitted to a drug treatment center since the start of 1985, his rookie year with the Vikings.

"I've had some reactions myself," Rhymes told the Minneapolis Star and Tribune in a copyright story published Friday. "Once or twice I went into convulsions. Maybe not convulsions ... but there were periods when I started to. I had tremors and stuff like that."

Rhymes, 24, said the cocaine intoxication deaths within eight days of Bias, the Maryland basket All American, and Rogers, a star defensive back for the Cleveland Browns, should let people know that drug abuse "is very fatal."

"This disease ... can kill," he said. "Their death will have a lot of effect on my future use. It messes up the lives of many people — good people and bad people. You know that the use of drugs is causing trouble all over, not only in sports, but in society generally. It is bad."

Rhymes said he once played a college game under cocaine's influence but said that, although he continued using the drug as a member of the Vikings, he never played a NFL game while high.

While at Oklahoma, he said, he paid for the cocaine with money he got from agents seeking to represent him as a pro and from selling his complimentary football tickets.

"The finances were there for me," he said. "You know there are some agents who will give you money; I am not going to disclose any names. The money was there for me to buy drugs. I first started using drugs in 1983 but my use didn't get real bad until my senior year at Oklahoma. I used them off and on and it was affecting my play. My performance went down; my school work went down. It messed up my life in every aspect."

Rhymes was constantly in the doghouse of Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer and, after being drafted by the Vikings in the fourth round in 1985, he found himself at odds with then-Vikings Coach Bud Grant for skipping three straight practices.

Grant fined Rhymes $4,000 and suspended him for a game after he left the team and missed three days of practice while taking drugs in Oklahoma City.

"I was in Oklahoma City getting high when I jumped the team last season," he said. "When you are getting high and using drugs, you neglect your responsibilities. You don't do the things you are supposed to do. Football has always been a big part of my life. I always wanted to be the best I could be at it. But drugs were making me forget about all of the things that I really want to achieve in my life."

Rhymes just completed his second stay at the Hazelden Foundation in Center City, Minn. He will finish his therapy in a local halfway house on July 28, the day the Vikings begin training camp in Mankato, Minn.

"I'm going back with the team and give everything I've got," said Rhymes, who was one of the top kickoff return men in the NFL last year. "There isn't enough I can say about the Viking organization. I owe them a lot of gratitude. They stood by me all the way. And the Vikings paid all of my expenses.

"I'm grateful to God that I am still alive."

Angels drop fifth straight

From Staff Reports

SAN ANTONIO— San Antonio's Dodgers were turning the Midland Angels first road trip of the second half Texas League West Division pennant race into a disaster.

The Dodgers again rallied from behind to take a 3-2 decision over Midland to spoil the Angels Fourth of July and run the losing streak to five in a row, four right here.

Chris Gwynn knocked in the game-winner with a single in the sixth.

Midland took a 1-0 lead in the first when Pete Coachman doubled and came home on James Randall's grounder to second.

In the second, Kevin King powered a triple to centerfield and then scored on Dante Buchette's infield grounder to make 2-0 in favor of the Angels.

San Antonio tied it up when Gwynn singled, Ken Harvey walked and both runners moved up on an error and scored on Gary Newsome's sacrifice fly and Jeff Brown's single.

Sherman Corbett took the loss to slip to 5-5 for the season while Bob Hamilton got the win, his sixth in nine decisions.

The Dodgers and Angels meet again tonight at 7 p.m. and finish the series with a single game Sunday.

After that, the teams take a break for the Texas League All-Star game in Shreveport before returning to action next Thursday with Midland opening a 10-game homestand against Shreveport and Jackson.

When Midland left the Tall City after a 7-4 homestand against El Paso and Beaumont to start the second half, the Haloed Ones were battling for first place in the TL West race. However, the five straight losses has taken some of the starch out of the team, but that's understandable.

Abilene team wins 30-mile Bikemaster's

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

They came from Abilene looking for a challenge from San Angelo.

Instead, the Abilene Century Riders rode off with the Tall City's Bikemaster's Sesquicentennial 30 mile race Friday, taking first second and third place overall.

"We were hoping the team from San Angelo would be here, we're just starting to ride as a team and wanted to beat them today," said Alex Schleyer, the overall winner with a time of 1:15:50.

"They had been beating us pretty regularly, but last week we got them in San Angelo in the Beta-Bocker City race," said club president Donald Fraley, who came in second at 1:15:56.

The top Midland finisher in the race was Neal Turnscello who was fourth at 1:15:59. Midland's Joe Fassio was fifth in 1:16:00.

Becky Durham was the top female rider in the 30 mile race, finishing in 1:21:15. All proceeds from the second annual race will go to Crime Stoppers to help prevention of crime in the area.

In all, 128 riders participated in the Fourth of July special, which included an 8.6 mile race to kick things off. Greg Guzman, riding in the 19 and under class, took overall honors in the shorter distance with a time of 24:00.

For the women, Gretchen Stierholz was the overall winner with a 28:15 in the 8.6 mile ride.

BUT IT was the seven-man contingent from the Abilene Century Riders that dominated the race, leading from the start and riding in a pack until closing with a two-mile sprint.

It was a team concept of cycling, much like that employed by the teams that participate in the Tour de France, with one strong rider "earning" the right to benefit from the drafts of others and sprint out to the victory.

Schleyer "earned" his victory Friday, according to his teammates.

"He's our strongest rider, he's proved to be the meanest, toughest we've got," Fraley said.

"We had pretty good speed on the way back, never less than 27 miles per hour," said Schleyer, of the race that went 15 miles south on Rankin Highway than turned around. "Going out, the wind was slowing us down to 14 or 15 MPH."

Martina Navratilova

Navratilova seeks fifth singles today

By ROBERT MILLWARD

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova goes for her seventh Wimbledon title, including her fifth singles crown, Saturday when she faces Hana Mandlikova of Czechslovakia in a clash of the two champions of serve and volley.

The 30-year-old Navratilova can tie Britain's Dorothea Chambers in Wimbledon's all-time list of winners and move one behind American Helen Wills Moody, who won eight titles between 1927 and 1938.

She also can tie Suzanne Lenglen's record of five Wimbledon women's championships in a row. Navratilova is unbeaten in six Wimbledon finals.

Mandlikova seeks her first Wimbledon title and a repeat of last September's U.S. Open championship when she beat Chris Evert Lloyd in the semifinal and then toppled Navratilova.

She also beat Navratilova, who was born in Czechoslovakia, in their only other Wimbledon encounter in the 1981 semifinals.

The final will pit the champion's overwhelming power and consistency against the inspirational but erratic moods of the No. 3 seed.

The 23-year-old Mandlikova, who lost tamely to Lloyd in the 1981 final, has been producing her best-ever Wimbledon form, dropping only one set on her way to the final, including a 7-6, 7-5 semifinal triumph over Lloyd, the second seed.

But Navratilova is in even hotter form. She has not surrendered a set in the competition and during her six matches has dropped her serve only four times, while losing only 25 games.

"I'm excited because I think I'm playing well," Navratilova said. "I'm serving better than I have in a very long time.

"It's my seventh final and I'm really excited to be here. I've never lost a final here."

In the semifinal, she gave a tennis lesson to 16-year-old No. 10 seed Gabriela Sabatini, crushing the Argentine 6-2, 6-2 in their first-ever meeting.

By contrast to Thursday's semifinal, when Navratilova was stepping into the unknown, she and Mandlikova have clashed 24 times.

Navratilova has won 18 and Mandlikova six, the last 12 meetings in either a final or semifinal.

"I am confident after the U.S. Open, and beating Chris here is great," Mandlikova said. "But, as I said at the U.S. Open, I have to play against a serve-and-volley player and that's going to get tough for me."

Although Mandlikova triumphed at Flushing Meadow, Navratilova has won their last four meetings. They include their last grass-court encounter in the semifinal of the Australian Open, when she came from a set down to win 6-7, 6-1, 6-4.

Lendl, Becker reach finals at Wimbledon

By BOB GREENE

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Top-seeded Ivan Lendl fought off the upset bid of Slobodan Zivojinovic, outlasting his Yugoslavian foe 6-2, 6-7, 6-3, 6-7, 6-4 Friday to gain the men's singles title match at Wimbledon.

Lendl, playing his second straight five-set match, will face defending champion Boris Becker of West Germany on Sunday.

The 18-year-old Becker displayed his power game in his semifinal match when he stopped Henri Leconte of France 6-2, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

But it was the battle between Lendl, reaching the final at Wimbledon for the time in his career, and the unseeded Zivojinovic that highlighted the long day on the All England Club Centre Court.

And it was Lendl, a Czechoslovak known for his stoic, expressionless on-court demeanor, who lept for joy when he finally wrapped up the match to keep alive his chances of winning his second consective Grand Slam title. He won the French Open last month on the clay courts at Roland Garros stadium.

"I had a hard time swallowing the fact today that I broke him five times and he broke me once and we went five sets," said Lendl, who served 18 aces in the match, equaling the total of Zivojinovic.

With the victory, Lendl erased more of the doubts about his ability to win close matches. He had lost the first five Grand Slam finals in which he played, but has won two of the last three. He captured the U.S. Open crown last September, to go with the French Open last month.

Zivojinovic hard serve and all-around powerful game gave Lendl all he could handle. But handle it, he did, although it took 3 hours, 26 minutes to close out the victory.

"I told myself, 'It may take a half hour, it may take an hour, it may take until tomorrow, but don't give in because the guy got four straight points against you.'" Lendl said.

That came in the fourth-set tiebreaker, when Zivojinovic, who also reached the semifinals of the Australian Open last year, reeled off the first four points. Then, after Lendl won his first point of the tiebreak, the 6-foot-6 Yugoslav won the next three points to take the set and level the match at two sets apiece.

In the seventh game of the fourth set, Zivojinovic threatened to quit playing when David Howie overruled a line call and gave Lendl an ace.

Steve Carlton

Carlton ends 8-year silence with conference

By STEVE WILSTEIN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Steve Carlton put on a San Francisco Giants uniform for the first time Friday and broke his eight-year ban on interviews by saying he thinks he can pitch until he is 50 years old.

"I would've walked away from the game," the 41-year-old left-hander said at a news conference, "if I were having mechanical problems or had a sore arm."

But he felt that despite his release by the Philadelphia Phillies he could still be a winning pitcher and help the Giants win the National League West title.

Carlton, who will start Sunday against St. Louis, threw warm-up pitches for 10 minutes before holding his news conference.

"I've been throwing every day," said the Carlton, who agreed to terms with the Giants Thursday night. "My arm is sound."

He received a standing ovation from the large crowd when he was introduced during the Giants' game Friday with the Cardinals.

Carlton would not discuss the circumstances that led him to stop talking to reporters, but the last words he was quoted as saying in public were "policy is policy" in 1978.

Asked if it will be emotional when he eventually faces Philadelphia, after spending 14 seasons with the team, Carlton said, "I try to take the emotion out of the game. It only adds to losing, not to winning. I am a science-type pitcher."

"This is great," Carlton said as he stood with San Francisco Manager Roger Craig in the Giants' clubhouse.

He said it had been 10 years since he held a news conference, and joked, "Pardon me if I make any mistakes."

Carlton said he is open to learning the split-finger fastball from Craig.

"I'm always open to new pitches," said Carlton, who mixes up a knuckleball with his fastball and curve.

Asked why he decided to lift his ban on talking, he said, "You can't make a move like this and not talk to the media. I can't say if it will continue in the future."

Carlton met privately with Craig, club President Al Rosen and owner Bob Lurie before throwing warmup.

The arrival of the four-time National League Cy Young award-winner and 10-time All Star came with the Giants leading the NL West by a half-game over Houston, and the team felt the addition of Carlton would help it go all the way.

"He'll fit in here nicely," said pitcher Mike Krukow, who played with Carlton in Philadelphia in 1982. "The way he works on the field, his habits, he's a champion and I think he's going to bring that demeanor into the clubhouse.

"We do have a lot of youth around here, and I can't think of a better prototype of professionalism than Steve Carlton. He's the best."

Carlton said, "I didn't come here to coach, but if someone wants some help, I'll give it."

Rosen said after announcing the signing of Carlton that many times pennant contenders have reached out for an available veteran to bring them through the stretch and often the veterans "get that last gasp for a year or two."

"Maybe a Steve Carlton on our ballclub, which has so many young players on it, might be a stabilizing influence because he has done everything there is to do in baseball," Rosen added. "He's been in pennant fights, he's been on world championship teams and he knows what it is all about."

Carlton was just 4-8 with a 6.18 earned run average and 62 strikeouts in 16 starts when the Phillies gave him his unconditional release on June 26. He was 1-8 in 1985 and missed most of the season after going on the disabled list in June with a strained rotator cuff in his left shoulder.

But Rosen said he had made some inquiries about Carlton's health after being telephoned by Carlton's agent on Thursday and was satisfied that the signing was worth the gamble.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

"You just don't get a crack at a pitcher like this or player like this if he is going good, because the other club is going to keep him," he said.

Carlton is in his 22nd major league season. He is second in career strikeouts with 3,982, trailing only Nolan Ryan of the Astros.

Rosen said Carlton gave him three reasons for signing with the Giants.

"He knows Roger Craig and respects him very much," he said. "He's looking forward to working with someone he considers a pitcher's manager.

"Secondly, he likes the personnel on the Giants' ballclub. He thinks we have a chance of going all the way.

David Moore captures 8K Holiday run

From Staff Reports

David Moore came home with the official title — and the warm-up suit that went with it — but Ralph Edwards ran the fastest time in Foot Locker's Sesquicentennial 8K run at the Midland Park Mall Friday.

Edwards, who manages the Foot Locker at the mall, withdrew his name from prize consideration, but his 26:27 outpaced Moore by 33 seconds. But Moore, graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y., gladly took home the spoils of the victors. Second place officially went to Bob Jones, while Joe Hernandez took third.

For the women, Donna Weatherford was the top finisher with a time of 31:37.

Dallas Cowboys sign rookie draftees Topper Clemens, Tony Flack

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys signed two more draft choices to a series of one-year contracts Friday, team officials said.

The Cowboys signed eighth-round draft choice Topper Clemens, a 5-foot-11, 205-pound running back from Wake Forest, and 12th-round pick Tony Flack, a 6-1, 184-pound defensive back from Georgia.

Terms of the contracts were not disclosed, said team spokesman Doug Todd.

Four of the Cowboys' 14 picks in the recent NFL draft have now signed with the club, which opens training camp Sunday in Thousand Oaks, Calif., Todd said.

Golden Sport of Sports Golden Age returns

Winston Churchill played it. So did the Bengal lancers. So does the Prince of Wales.

It was Will Rogers' favorite sport. Darryl Zanuck got the movie moguls to play it in the '30's.

It's the last stand of the aristocracy in this century. It's not for the masses. It'll never replace bowling – or even tennis.

Listen, you heard of Bobby Jones, Jack Dempsey, Babe Ruth, even Gertrude Ederle, right?

OK, how about Tommy Hitchcock Jr., Stewart Iglehart, Foxhall Keene, Harry Payne Whitney, Winston Guest, Laddie Sanford, Devereux Milburn, Eric Pedley?

Draw a blank, do you? Well, in the Roaring Twenties, the Golden Age of Sport, these were also household names of sport. They kept up with the Joneses, all right. They were as famous as Super Bowl football players today. Averell Harriman got his name in the papers the first time with them.

THEIR sport was polo. Now, the formula for success in polo is "First, you take 10 horses ...." That alone rules out most of the civilized world. It's not a blacktop sport. You need more than an empty lot or a pair of cleats or a basket. What you need, really, is your own bank or oil field – or country. It's the sport of princes.

It's hockey on horseback – one of the most tremendously exciting sports in the world. Particularly, if you're a horse.

It was invented by the Persians some time in the dawn of the last millennium but it migrated to India where the British Raj discovered it about 1860 in the province of Punjab. The British mounted troops and the tea planters were equally thrilled by the horsemanship of the Assamese heathens, particularly by their ability to strike a moving ball from a moving horse at a fixed target.

The British being British, they soon devised a set of rules to go with the game, put a goal in and put up an inscribed tray for victors. They wanted to give the young subalterns something to do on the days when the Khyber Pass was silent and the wogs were in their tents.

It was a dashing game played in pith helmet and knee boots and was a splendid diversion of the far pavilions of Empire. If the battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton, the Charge of the Light Brigade was probably lost because polo didn't come along in time.

It was the 10th Hussars, no less, who brought the game back to Blighty and formed the Hurlingham Club, which, to this day, is the Vatican of polo.

JAMES GORDON Bennett, the newspaper tycoon, brought it to America where it was played on the site of what was to become the home park of the baseball New York Giants. It's a point of some chagrin to purists of polo that the term "Polo Grounds" refers today to a baseball stadium and not the noble purpose for which it was first used.

The game even had its fashion impact. The "polo" shirt is with us today as THE leisure shirt, not greatly changed from the days when Hitchcock first showed up in one on horseback.

The game took the North Shore of Long Island by storm. Like golf and tennis, it was resolutely amateur in those days. Like everything else, it became too competitive for the dilettante weekend athlete and, gradually, professionals such as the great Cecil Smith of Texas and Bob Skene of Australia came to dominate it.

The game suffered a decline in the postwar era when the remount posts of the U.S. Cavalry were given over to tanks. Before that, the light-horse generals were only too happy to include polo in their exercises as excellent combat training.

THE CHARM of polo is that, like golf, it can be handicapped. Players are graded according to their abilities. A scratch player is designated as a 10-goal player (there are usually only a handful of them in the world) and a team whose handicaps aggregate less than their competitors are allowed the number of goals between their total and the number of the other team's.

There are four players on a team. There is no goaltender although the "No. 4" back is generally considered to have the goal as his major responsibility.

The No. 1 is generally regarded as the attacker, the playmaker, the point guard of polo. Eric Pedley was universally considered the best No. 1 in the game in his day. Pedley once scored 12 goals in an international match against England and 9 in another. Strangely enough, he was never a 10-goal player – eight was as high as he rated. But, in another sport, his nickname would have been "Magic."

The No. 3 position is generally considered the cleanup hitter, the Babe Ruth in the lineup. The mounts are as important as the players and are usually identified as "ponies." This is because they used to be, by law, no more than 14 hands high (a "hand" is 4 inches) and they seldom weighed more than 600 pounds. This is no longer true. Polo ponies today are full-sized thoroughbreds indistinguishable from their race-track brethren.

Parrish homer boosts Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) — Rookie Jose Guzman and Greg Harris held Detroit to eight hits and Larry Parrish hit a solo home run as the Texas Rangers beat the Detroit Tigers 2-1 Friday night.

The Rangers scored both their runs in the fourth inning, on Parrish's 13th homer of the season and Curtis Wilkerson's RBI triple.

Guzman, 8-8, pitched into the eighth and allowed all eight hits. The only run against him was unearned. He struck out four and walked only one. Harris retired all five batters he faced, getting one to hit into a double play.

Detroit starter Jack Morris, 7-6, went the distance, giving up 11 hits and two walks, striking out eight batters.

The contest and post-game fireworks drew a crowd of 42,705, the second largest since the franchise moved to Texas.

The Rangers took the lead in the fourth when Parrish homered, Steve Buechele singled and Wilkerson tripled to right-center.

The Tigers cut it to 2-1 in the top of the fifth on consecutive one-out singles by Dave Collins and Lou Whitaker and Buechele's throwing error at third.

The Tigers had runners in six of the first seven innings, but couldn't break through against Guzman.

By winning, the Rangers maintained their half-game lead over California in the American League West.

Red Sox 6, Mariners 5

BOSTON — Dwight Evans hit a three-run homer in the fourth inning and Rich Gedman added a solo shot an out later, powering the Boston Red Sox.

The Red Sox, who have won all six of their games with the Mariners this season, had 14 hits on Friday as they built a 6-0 lead, then held on.

Jeff Sellers, 2-3, a rookie right-hander, allowed five hits and five walks in 7 1-3 innings for the victory. Sellers gave up three runs on Danny Tartabull's homer in the eighth.

Joe Sambito finished for his eighth save, giving up Jim Presley's two-run homer with two out in the ninth.

Jim Rice started the fourth by reaching first on a fielding error by shortstop Spike Owen. Don Baylor grounded a single through the middle and Evans followed with his 10th homer, a 400-foot drive into the Boston bullpen in right-center.

Boston's Wade Boggs had a double and a single, raising the best average in the majors to .376.

White Sox 2, Yankees 1

CHICAGO — John Cangelosi broke an 0-for-31 slump with a triple leading off the bottom of the eighth inning and scored the winning run on Ozzie Guillen's sacrifice fly.

Chicago starter Richard Dotson, 7-7, pitched a five-hitter in his first complete game sincer Sept. 26, 1984, walking one and striking out one.

American

New York starter Bob Tewksbury, 5-3, allowed only six hits as he suffered the loss. New York pitchers have only five complete games this year, and have lost four of them.

Ron Kittle had three of the White Sox's six hits, including an RBI single in the first. The Sox improved their recored to 8-3 under new manager Jim Fregosi while the Yankees lost the sixth of their last nine outings.

Indians 10, Royals 3

CLEVELAND — Andre Thornton homered, went 4-for-4 and drove in three runs Friday night before the major leagues' largest crowd in 13 years as the Cleveland Indians extended the Kansas City Royals' losing streak to seven.

The game and a fireworks display afterward attracted 73,303 fans.

The Indians had 15 hits in their fifth straight victory. Cory Snyder hit a two-run homer and Brook Jacoby had a two-run double.

The crowd was the largest in baseball since April 7, 1973, when the Indians drew 74,420 for their opening game.

The Indians also have baseball's third and fourth largest crowds of 1986, 61,411 and 61,340. Cleveland has drawn 683,323 in 38 home dates, surpassing last season's major league low of 655,181.

Royals starter Danny Jackson, 4-6, surrendered five runs in three innings to take the loss as the defending champions moved to within one defeat of equaling the club's all-time longest streak.

Phil Niekro, 5-6, allowed eight hits, struck out two and walked one in his third complete game. His 305th career victory tied the 47-year-old knuckleballer for 15th place on the all-time list with Eddie Plank.

The Indians took a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Julio Franco walked, Joe Carter singled and Thornton singled home a run before Jacoby's double.

Angels 9, Blue Jays 1

TORONTO — Jack Howell hit his first two home runs of the season and Don Sutton pitched a four-hitter for his 302nd career victory.

Howell hit a solo homer in the fourth and a three-run shot in the fifth.

Sutton, 7-5, pitched his third complete game of the season. The 41-year-old right-hander, 4-0 in his last six starts, struck out three and walked two.

Howell gave the Angels a 5-1 lead and knocked Dave Stieb, 2-9, out of the game with his three-run homer in the fifth. Wally Joyner and Reggie Jackson opened the inning with walks and Howell hit Stieb's first pitch over the fence in right-center.

Gooden, Dystra stop Astros, 2-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Dwight Gooden pitched a five-hitter and Len Dykstra doubled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning Friday, leading the New York Mets to their eighth straight victory, a 2-1 decision over the Houston Astros.

Gooden, 10-3, won his seventh straight start against Houston and raised his career record against the Astros to 8-1.

Dykstra, who doubled off Nolan Ryan in the first inning and scored on a single by Keith Hernandez, put the Mets ahead again with one out in the seventh against Dave Smith, 1-5.

Smith, pitching for the first time since June 22 because of a pulled muscle in his back, relieved in the seventh and walked Rafael Santana on four pitches. After Gooden sacrificed, Dykstra hit a drive off the right-field wall.

Gooden took a three-hitter and 1-0 lead into the seventh but Kevin Bass tied the score with one out with his 12th home run of the season. After Bass homered, Gooden walked Jose Cruz. With two out, John Mizerock singled pinch runner Tony Walker to third but Gooden struck out pinch hitter Alan Ashby to end the inning.

Gooden struck out four and walked five in pitching his eighth complete game of the season. Ryan, the all-time major-league strikeout leader, fanned six in five innings and raised his career total to 4,160.

Ryan, making his third start since coming off the disabled list after an elbow problem, gave up one run on three hits. The Astros have been limiting how much Ryan works while he comes back from his injury.

Giants 6, Cardinals 1

SAN FRANCISO — Rookie Randy Kutcher homered for the second game in a row and drove in two more runs with a single in a five-run fourth inning Friday as San Francisco handed St. Louis its eighth consecutive setback.

Mike LaCoss, 8-3, gained the victory, holding St. Louis to five hits while striking out three and walking only one.

Kutcher's leadoff homer in the bottom of the first inning, his fourth since coming up from Phoenix of the Class AAA Pacific Coast League on June 18, tied the game 1-1. Kutcher has hit safely in 14 of his 16 games with the Giants.

Vince Coleman opened the scoring for St. Louis in the top of the first by walking, stealing second, going to third on Ozzie Smith's bunt single and coming home on Willie McGee's single.

The Giants went ahead 6-1 in the fourth inning, scoring five runs on four singles, a double, a hit batsman and an intentional walk.

National

Reds 4, Phillies 1

PHILADELPHIA — Tom Browning allowed only two hits in 7 2-3 innings and Eric Davis homered and sparked another rally with a walk to lead the Cincinnati Reds.

Until Browning, 6-7, gave up Von Hayes' bad-hop, base hit to right on a 1-1 pitch in the seventh, the left-hander had only allowed two baserunners, a walk to Hayes with one out in the fifth and a one-out walk to Ron Roenicke in the seventh.

Expos 11, Braves 5

ATLANTA — Mike Fitzgerald drove in four runs, including two in a five-run fourth, and Floyd Youmans and Dan Schatzeder combined on a five-hitter for Montreal.

Youmans, 8-5, won his fourth straight game, giving up all five hits, striking out five and walking seven before needing relief help in the ninth from Schatzeder. Rick Mahler, 10-6, was knocked out in the fourth after allowing seven runs and eight hits.

Padres 2, Cubs 1

SAN DIEGO — Pinch-hitter Bruce Bochy homered with two outs in the ninth inning inside the left-field foul pole.

Bochy lined a 3-1 pitch off loser Roy Fontenot, 3-4, five feet inside the pole. Bochy's fifth homer of the season was also his game-winning pinch-homer this season.

Bochy's homer made a winner of Rich Gossage, 4-3, who had given up an eighth inning leadoff homer to Gary Matthews that tied the game 1-1.

Matthews' was his sixth home run of the season.

Lance McCullers, making the first start of his two-year major league career, worked 6 1-3 innings, striking out four and walking one before yielding to Craig Lefferts, who finished the seventh. McCullers' longest stint was 3 2-3 innings in his second appearance last year.

After hitting Davey Lopes with a pitch at the start of the game, McCullers retired 13 straight batters before Jody Davis hit a line drive that right fielder Tony Gwynn was unable to scoop on the run.

A polo pony has to have a lot of Jake LaMotta in him. Or Lyle Alzado. He has to like to brawl. He is asked to charge into other horses, to "ride them off" while a mallet is ricochetting off his face or a ball is smacking him in the ribs. They used to strive for this combativeness by breeding polo horses to range mustangs but again they have found that thoroughbreds have a wellspring of love of battle that can be programmed.

POLO was made for Santa Barbara. And, on July 13 on the oceanside greensward there, the Assistance League of Southern California Day Nursery Auxiliary will present an event called the Third Annual Golden Mallet Invitational Polo Tournament. It is actually the kickoff day of the week-long high-goal America Cup tournaments featuring some of the best poloists in the world.

To show you that polo hasn't changed that much, the Maharaja of Jaipur will be in attendance.

A polo tournament is not likely to knock drug scandals or even a baseball player trade off the front of the sports pages but the cause – day care for the children of low-income working families – is 10-goal. And polo can be one of the most beautiful and exciting sports to watch in the whole fabric.

This is the best cavalry the country has seen since the James Gang – or Jeb Stuart. Custer should have had these horsemen. And, just remember, when they refer to the "Four Horsemen" in this game, it's not sports page hyperbole – it's the real thing.

Congress told it is outspending allotments to stem terrorism

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department plans to construct a new chancery, a school, Marine guard quarters, housing units and support facilities in Moscow for $30 million have so far cost more than $167 million, and the work goes on.

The State Department also planned to complete a new chancery in Cairo in 1985 for an estimated $27 million. But by last March the building was not finished and cost estimates had risen from $40 million to $43 million.

These incidents were reported to lawmakers this week by the General Accounting Office, Congress' investigative arm, to illustrate that costs for improving security are often understated.

There are many reasons for the growing costs, the report said, including new security standards, a lack of qualified contractors in some countries and disagreements among U.S. officials.

The State Department official who runs the program to beef up security at U.S. embassies conceded that initial cost estimates were too low, and said they were due to tougher security requirements and contractors' delays.

Robert E. Lamb, director of diplomatic security for the State Department, said construction costs had increased on the Moscow and Cairo projects, but said "security considerations forced more stringent security standards and design changes, adding to building costs. In both of these locations, lack of qualified contractors caused delays and increased costs as a result."

Lamb also defended the department's building program.

"Despite the difficulties in building embassies in remote and often hostile environments, the department believes its record in recent years on building projects has been good," he said in a prepared statement. "The department is on record that it will complete its worldwide building program on time and that it will use stringent fiscal controls to avoid cost overruns."

The GAO report said that when there is a conflict over building plans among U.S. officials, it is usually between the ambassador and security staffs. Sometimes security projects take so long to get started a new ambassador with "different ideas" has taken over and disagreements reoccur, the report said.

"State needs a mechanism to ensure that disagreements are resolved expeditiously," said the report to Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., and Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairmen of the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs committees, respectively.

After terrorists attacked the U.S. Embassy in Beirut, killing 14 people including two Americans, Congress appropriated $343.4 million in emergency assistance last year to improve the security of American facilities overseas.

The State Department is seeking another $4.5 billion over the next five years to carry out a massive embassy replacement program and other security improvements.

Work on the projects in Moscow and Cairo began before the State Department started its new embassy security program.

Budget-cutters in Congress have moved to trim the project outlays, prompting criticism from Secretary of State George P. Shultz. "One of these days, there'll be another tragedy at some embassy," he warned last month.

The GAO report focused on the use of the 1985 emergency appropriation, particularly $177.5 million that was to be spent on 13 facilities the State Department considered particularly vulnerable.

Among the new security requirements are a minimum of 100 feet between the building and auto entrances and that walls be built around the perimeter to cushion the effect of an explosion.

As of last November, the report said, the cost of 11 of the 13 projects was found to be underestimated — one by $19.3 million. Overall, the State Department concluded it would take an additional $89.1 million to complete the security improvements above the $343.4 million originally provided by Congress.

Ex-worker says shortcuts led to crash of heli-stat

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — A man who worked six months on the Heli-Stat project says he left the company that built the ill-fated airship because officials tried to cut corners to save money.

"The design was substandard by aviation standards," said Ronald Hochstetler. "I can tell you that for a fact. Stress was not on quality, but on expediency. They were trying to do it in a cheap way. That's why I left the company."

One crewmember was killed and three others were injured when the airship crashed Tuesday at the U.S. Naval Air Center in Lakehurst, N.J.

The craft consisted of a helium blimp supported by the front portions of four surplus Navy helicopters mounted on an aluminum frame. Tubing and reinforcements connecting the helicopters to the rest of the ship couldn't pass several stress tests, but the company, Piasecki Aircraft Corp., didn't change the design, Hochstetler said.

"They were trying to build it with junk parts, surplus parts. ...," Hochstetler said.

"They were saving as much money as they could. We were told we didn't have to worry about it being a gold watch," said Hochstetler, now an assistant project director at North Carolina-based Airship Industries.

The phone at Piasecki's Lakehurst, N.J., office went unanswered today. A Philadelphia number for the company given out by directory assistance was not in service.

Nick Grand, public affairs officer at the U.S. Naval Air Center, declined comment on Hochstetler's leaving the company because Piasecki is a private company that leased space from the center.

The 342-foot-long airship was intended to harvest remote timber and was being built for the U.S. Forestry Service.

Navy officials said the blades cut into the helium bags and the helicopters caught fire when the ship crashed.

Hochstetler, who worked on the project from November 1984 to May 1985, said company employees were so sure something would go wrong that they took cameras to pre-flight tests. "All the employees stood behind cars, trucks and buildings, expecting something to go wrong."

In 1982, a General Accounting Office report called the Heli-Stat a white elephant.

"In your heart, you really wanted that thing to work," Hochstetler said.

Grand said the Forest Service decided to scrap the project after the crash. It had been criticized by several agencies earlier as a $36 million folly that might not be structurally sound.

The craft originally was projected to cost $10.7 million.

Just a Piece of Paper?

The Declaration of Independence is just a piece of paper. On it were written words—beautiful words, hot words, words with bite. At first only two people signed it; later 53 members of that august gathering affixed their signatures. Even later four more signed.

But, it's just a piece of paper. Actually, the paper on which it was written became so fragile that in 1894, it was permanently sealed in a steel case to keep it from light and air.

Yet, that piece of paper became the script for a people bent on liberty and freedom. It contained words that could spell death or mean life to a new nation struggling for birth. That piece of paper launched a revolution which produced a national spirit that gave reality to hopes and dreams for freedom.

And that piece of paper has been splattered by blood of many who believed in it's purpose, and their blood became the seeds that built America.

Freedom is not a piece of paper! It is an idea, a concept, a lifestyle, an experience; and, our forebearers believed it a right.

The original Declaration of Independence has faded, but it's ideas, concepts, and words are burned forever in the souls of this nation and etched on the hearts and minds of persons for whom life is liberty and for whom freedom is more precious than life itself.

(Footnote: Revolution that produces freedom is never completed. Each day its reality must be maintained by those privileged to enjoy it.)

Times, finances changing for TV ministers

By GEORGE ESPER

Robertson

Falwell

Roberts

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — After three decades on the air, Jerry Falwell and Pat Robertson are still going strong but finding that tougher competition for the religious dollar and other economic and political factors are forcing changes for television evangelists.

Between them, Falwell, founder of Moral Majority, and Robertson, who's considering a run for the presidency, have laid off more than 250 employees and slashed their budgets by a total of $34 million because revenues have fallen short of estimates.

TV preacher Oral Roberts has given his law school to Robertson, has closed his dental school and is delaying construction of a $14 million religious center partly because of financial problems. His $150 million City of Faith Hospital in Tulsa lies half empty.

"There's only so many letters and pleas for emergency help to go the extra mile that people will go along with," said Peter S. Hawkins, associate professor at Yale Divinity School. Hawkins said he feared the televangelists are turning Christianity into a spectator sport.

Robertson said his surveys indicated contributions were off because younger people who are buying homes and bearing children have less to give; perennial large contributors from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana are giving less because they've been hurt by falling oil prices, and a building boom of "superchurches" serving enormous congregations in cities like Phoenix, Tulsa, Houston and Orlando, Fla., is draining away dollars.

Rob Nordin, a spokesman for Oral Roberts, said television ministries probably overextended themselves when they had excess funds coming in.

"What we've seen in the last decade has been a proliferation of television ministries," Nordin said. "As a result of that, I think we've seen that the pie has been cut into more pieces and some of the pieces that used to be quite large are not nearly as large as they were."

Talk of a bid for the Republican presidential nomination, said Robertson, has spotlighted his Christian Broadcasting Network's annual budget of $200 million.

"People hear of these large sums which are not the net income," said Robertson, president of the network and host of "The 700 Club" program. "They're total budget figures and they sort of scare people."

In the case of Oral Roberts, some of his employees have expressed resentment over his lifestyle while they have gone without pay raises for three years and some were laid off two years ago.

The Tulsa Tribune reported that Roberts drives a Mercedes, lives in a $500,000 home in Tulsa owned by Oral Roberts University, owns a home of equal value in Rancho Mirage, Calif., and uses for entertainment a $2.4 million home in Beverly Hills owned by his organization. Roberts' headquarters confirmed the existence of the car and the houses but said it could not put a price tag on them.

Falwell believes there's a general softening nationally in contributions to conservative religious and political causes.

"We're in a state of apathy in this country," he said in an interview at his headquarters here. "It's a very real spiritual apathy, and I think most of the churches are feeling this."

Falwell said he had no political ambitions. But Robertson, son of the late U.S. Sen. A. Willis Robertson, is testing the waters with the 21 million evangelicals who are registered voters, 80 perent to 85 percent of them Republicans.

"I'm looking at some polls that are being taken to indicate the feeling of the evangelical people particularly, but also the feeling of conservatives," Robertson said in an interview with The Associated Press in Washington during a visit.

"We're seeing a return to faith," he said. "Between 60 (million) and 70 million people say they're born-again Christians. The religious television and radio has had a major impact on that."

Jeffrey Hadden, a sociology professor at the University of Virginia and the author of "Prime Time Preachers," estimates that at present, even with all of the hoopla, no more than 20 percent to 25 percent of evangelical and fundamentalist Christians are active politically.

"You have another 75 percent of that group of people potentially," he said, "but I'm not sure whether it can happen."

Falwell blames the softening in contributions partly on a national perception that conservatives are in charge.

"That perception," he said, "is hurtful when people feel there's no cause to support anymore. The only true part is that Ronald Reagan is doing well. The House of Representatives is clearly not a conservative House. The Senate is a razor-thin majority on any issue."

Despite the cutbacks, Falwell says Christian broadcasting is not in disarray.

"We are stronger on television and radio than we've ever been and our income is up," he said. "We had anticipated growth this year equal to last year's and it hasn't been there."

He said revenues were growing by 3 percent or 4 percent while spending was up about 15 percent to 18 percent, "so we had to quickly make the adjustment."

Falwell cut 225 employees and about $5 million from the $25 million annual payroll for his program, The Old Time Gospel Hour, and the church-run Liberty University. His annual budget is $100 million.

"We're cutting out a lot of projects that we would have done this year, and in essence we're cutting about $10 million total in the next 12 months, which will bring us back to stability," he said.

Robertson said that in the fiscal year that ended March 31 his organization had forecast a 22 percent increase in contributions and a 40 percent increase in sales on the cable network, but contributions were up by only 7 percent and cable sales by 26 percent. The cutbacks, including the layoff of 41 employees, will save about $24 million.

Protest reinstates Methodist hymns

By SKIP LATT

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Thousands of complaints were enough to convince a United Methodist Church committee that "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "Battle Hymn of the Republic" belong in the denomination's new hymnal.

The panel, in reaction to more than 8,000 cards, letters and petitions, voted Wednesday to rescind a previous decision and keep the two tunes in the songbook, said Bishop Reuben P. Job, who heads the committee.

The committee had voted May 17 to delete the hymns because of their military references.

"All of us were surprised with the intensity and volume of the mail received," said Carlton R. Young, the hymnal's editor.

Reaction from letter-writers ranged from "stupid" and "No way!" to a plea for the hymnal committee to "recognize the diversity of the church membership."

Only about 40 letter-writers supported dropping the hymns, Young said. Conferences of the United Methodist Church in 12 states also voted to ask the committee to retain both songs.

But several committee members still voiced concerns over the inclusion of the hymns during Wednesday's debate.

The Rev. Beryl Ingram-Ward of Bellevue, Wash., argued against "Onward Christian Soliders."

"I have scoured the New Testament and found that the tradition for a warrior Christ is not found in the Scripture," she said.

The hymn's refrain is: "Onward Christian soldiers, marching as to war, With the cross of Jesus going on before."

Randy Smith, a committee member from Houston, said the panel's actions were "not a vote for war or peace. I don't think anyone in this room is for anything but for total peace. What we're talking about is imagery. And that's different to a lot of people."

The 200-year-old hymnal was last revised in 1966, and the new book is set for publication in 1988 or 1989. Changes must be approved by delegates to the denomination's 1988 General Conference in St. Louis.

The committee has sought in other hymns to remove sexist language such as "mankind" but leave traditional masculine terms for God such as "Father" and "King."

The United Methodist Church has some 9.4 million members.

World events, prophecies discussed through church

Rev. Stevens

The Rev. L.L. Stevens of Lake Jackson, Tx., is guest speaker for a prophecy revival 7:30 each evening, July 9-13, at the 1st United Pentecostal Church, 5110 West Illinois.

The Rev. Stevens will be covering events in our world today, especially in the Mid-East, showing how Bible prophecy is being fulfilled. Prophetic subjects include:

— "The nation of Israel as God's prophetic time clock"

— "Can the European economic community be found in the Bible?"

— "Is the man called the Anti-Christ alive today?"

— "How close are we to Armageddon?"

These and many other subjects will be discussed.

The Rev. Stevens attended the East Texas Baptist College at Marshall and the Apostolic Bible Institute in St. Paul, Minn. While pastoring, he taught 13 years at Texas Bible College in Houston, majoring in prophetic subjects. He has spent years preparing a multi-media seminar called TREASURES OF PROPHECY, that is unique, exciting, and authentically based upon historical and Biblical facts. For the last seven years he has traveled in all parts of North America and is a much sought after speaker at camp meetings, prophecy conferences and churches.

Pastor T.H. Chapman extends an invitation to all to attend the informative services.

Prophecy Church meets

The Church of God of Prophecy with headquarters in Cleveland, Tenn., is having its annual State Convention for the West Texas section of the state at Midland Center through Sunday. It began Friday night.

At noon Sunday, the State Overseer will appoint pastors for the churches in West Texas.

John Miller, host pastor, and pastor of the Church of God of Prophecy at 5301 Thomason, invites the public to attend any or all of the sessions.

Approximately 500 people are expected to attend the convention.

Cumberland sets tenets

The highest court of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church met in Odessa the last week in June. The 156th General Assembly had the responsibility of receiving and deciding issues brought before it from lower church courts and making other decisions affecting the governance and program of the small denomination.

The Cumberland Presbyterian Church, a 100,000-member body located primarily in the southern United States, elected the Rev. James Knight of Bowling Green, Ky., as its new moderator. Knight is chief administrator of the church's denomination, having served as president of its Board of Missions and on its committee to revise the church's statement of faith.

Meeting concurrently with the General Assembly, the 21st annual meeting of the Convention of Cumberland Presbyterian Women celebrated "God's Peace" through worship, study and fellowship. Betty Bumbers, founder of Peace Links, a network of women which educates and motivates for peace activity, was keynote speaker for the convention. Ms. Bumpers spoke on "Women as Peacemakers."

During its 156th session, the General Assembly took the following action:

— reaffirmed a vital role for young people in the planning for and implementation of the unification process with the Second Cumberland Presbyterian church. the Second Cumberland Presbyterian Church is a predominately black denomination which was separated from the Cumberland Presbyterian church shortly after the Civil War.

— approved funding for a broad program of education for church volunteers across the denomination.

— affirmed plans for a Mission consultation to be held during the latter part of the decade "to set priorities and directions for mission engagement during the next nineties."

— recommended that congregations organize resources to be responsive to and supportive of farmers in crisis.

— expressed support for Dr. Allan Boesak and the work of World Alliance of Reformed Churches in South Africa and encouraged church members to denounce apartheid to state and national officials.

— declined to encourage Cumberland Presbyterian churches to offer sanctuary to persons fleeing persecution in other countries, but requested its Commission on theology and Social concerns to prepare study papers on the Sanctuary Movement.

— endorsed a plan regarding the church's health insurance which would require the denomination to underwrite 50 percent of each group member's premium by 1988.

Midlander Harvey Hansen, elder in the St. Andrews Cumberland Presbyterian Church, Odessa, attended the General Assembly. He served on the Institutions Committee.

The Cumberland Presbyterian Church was organized in 1810 and has 50 presbyteries arranged into 10 synods. In addition to ministries in the United states, the church carries its mission to Japan, Hong Kong, Columbia, South America and Liberia, West Africa. the church holds membership in the World Alliance of Reformed Churches.

Sunday, July 6, 1986

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: You find a new field of study that could bring you both wealth and prestige. Find someone who has the expertise to help you market a clever idea. Your generous and kindly manner makes a big hit with members of the opposite sex. Choose a mate whose values are similar to your own.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: First Lady Nancy Davis Reagan, Merv Griffin, Sylvester Stallone, singer Della Reese, actress Janet Leigh, Pat Paulsen, singer Bill Haley, naval hero John Paul Jones.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Even if you feel energetic, you should try to get some rest today. A very busy week lies ahead. Compete with family members on a fair basis. Your personal magnetism is a powerful weapon.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The unexpected arrival of a child or friend gives you high hopes. A romance may be developing between you and a younger member of the opposite sex. Be patient with offspring.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Playing more of a supportive role will help a child find his or her niche. Let go of negative people and thoughts. A new love interest develops. Clear the air with mate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Meeting a problem head-on will give you greater self-confidence. A romantic relationship may be based on false assumptions. Talk candidly with partner. Love flourishes in an atmosphere of trust.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your values may be put to the test today. With an outsider's assistance, a domestic situation continues to improve. You find that someone really is trying to reach out to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Socializing with people who are interested in cultural events will prove beneficial. Take the lead in arranging a date or social function. You profit from staying in the background at a family gathering.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Unfounded fears have been coming between you and your family. Be more philosophical about what you are asked to do at home. Give a business or romantic partner the benefit of the doubt.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put your best work out front so that family and friends can appreciate what you are doing. Get rid of situations and things that have cluttered up your life. Secrecy could hurt romance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Keep your blunt remarks to yourself lest you permanently damage a valuable relationship. You cannot afford to be tactless with those who are close to you. Know your priorities and stick to them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't hold back just because you are afraid of someone's reaction. Lay your cards on the table. Loaning you money does not give a friend or associate the right to run your life.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Love is all around you today. Realize that it not always possible to predict how someone will react. Emphasize your desire to stand on your own two feet. Avoid sounding too emotional.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Family members may try to influence you to change your goals. Listen carefully and then make up your own mind. Be patient, not passive, in romance. Play a waiting game for now.

Vallee dies while watching celebration

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Crooner Rudy Vallee, hailed by President Reagan as an American institution, died while watching the Statue of Liberty celebration on television, and his publicist said Friday that was a "happy way for him to go."

Vallee, who died Thursday night at age 84, had been ill with throat cancer and had suffered a slight stroke while in the hospital.

Vallee, idolized in the 1920s and '30s as the first star crooner in a string that ran from Bing Crosby to Frank Sinatra to Elvis Presley was with his wife, Eleanor, at their Hollywood home when he died.

"Rudy was watching the unveiling of the Statue of Liberty and he remarked, 'I wish we could be there; you know how I love a party.' Then he took a big breath, and he died," Mrs. Vallee said.

Vallee was hospitalized in February for treatment of throat cancer shortly after recording the song "Junior Movie Star," Harris said. It has yet to be released.

A Mass was scheduled for Saturday at St. Charles Roman Catholic Church in North Hollywood, Mrs. Vallee said. Vallee will be buried privately in Westbrook, Maine, where his parents are buried.

A baritone with a nasal voice, Vallee burst onto the music scene in the Jazz Age of the 1920s. In the 1930s, he was one of radio's biggest draws, and he went on to star in movies and on Broadway.

He was born Hubert Prior Vallee on July 28, 1901, in Island Pond, Vt., and grew up in Maine. He took a year's leave from Yale in 1924 to play at the Savoy Hotel in London, where he found the song that became his theme — "My Time is Your Time."

Fame came in 1928, when his band, the Yale Collegians, signed on at the Heigh-Ho Club in New York City. He used a megaphone to project his voice over the noise of the patrons. His greeting, "Heigh-ho, everybody!" became another trademark.

Vallee and his band were soon broadcasting as many as 25 shows a week on three stations. It was Prohibition, the flapper era, and audiences lionized the Ivy League lifestyle.

His hits included "Springtime in the Rockies," the University of Maine's "Stein Song" and Yale's "Whiffenpoof Song."

Vallee won new fame in the 1960s in the Broadway musical "How To Succeeed In Business Without Really Trying." He repeated his role in the movie.

Vallee married four times — to Leonie Cauchois in 1928, a union annulled the same year; to Fay Webb, 1931-36; and to actress Jane Greer, 1943-44. He married Eleanor Norris in 1949. He had no children.

PEKING (AP) — Italian tenor Luciano Pavarotti gave a triumphant final performance Friday at the Great Hall of the People to end his first tour of China.

The audience of 10,000 broke into prolonged applause at the end of the recital. The 51-year-old tenor returned for three encores.

Vice Premier Qiao Shi, who greeted Pavarotti on stage after the performance, said the tour had made a great contribution to ties between the Italian and Chinese people.

Culture Ministry officials said it was rare for a foreign musician to sing at the Great Hall and they could not remember anyone as prominent as Pavarotti having done so before.

Pavarotti, regarded by many as one of history's greatest tenors, arrived in Peking on June 22 with the Genoa Opera Company, which staged Puccini's "la Boheme" in Peking with Pavarotti in the lead role of Rudolfo.

ASTI, Calif. (AP) — Not to be outdone by Clint Eastwood's move into politics, comedian Pat Paulsen has taken the helm of Asti, a cluster of buildings he owns in Northern California wine country.

As mayor, he rules four people: his wife, Jane, and their three children.

"I ran for office because I had a right to," Paulsen said before taking office Thursday. "Besides, I own the town. It's good for me to get a little experience, because I'm going for the big one in '88."

Paulsen

Paulsen, who ran for president in 1968 on the STAG Party ticket, declared himself mayor two months ago after Eastwood was elected mayor of Carmel-By-The-Sea.

More than 300 people showed up for Thursday's ceremonies. Paulsen arrived in a rusty 1927 truck at City Hall, a barn filled with free beer and snacks.

Paulsen's candidacies date to the Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour on television in 1968. His STAG — Straight Talkin' American Government — Party offered answers to such problems as the Gross National Product: "I suggest we simply not buy these vulgar items."

LONDON (AP) — Paul Scofield and Howard Rollins met a rapturous reception in the London opening of Herb Gardner's current Broadway hit "I'm Not Rappaport."

The pair were cheered at the Apollo Theater by Thursday's opening-night audience that included playwright Tom Stoppard and actors Richard Harris and Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

Critics followed suit Friday, applauding Scofield's first appearance on a London stage since he played Oberon in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in 1982.

The 64-year-old actor plays a feisty octogenarian named Nat, who shares a Central Park bench with a scrappy and aging man played by Rollins.

LONDON (AP) — Former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is recovering steadily from pneumonia and is determined to resume his normal activities soon, his grandson said Friday.

Macmillan, 92, the Earl of Stockton, was said by his doctors Friday to have overcome the pneumonia infection, according to Viscount Macmillan. He said his grandfather was up and about at his home near London.

"Obviously he will be taking things easy," he said.

Battery Park long on liberty, short of justice

By PAUL GRONDAHL
Hearst News Service

NEW YORK — For those possessing two subway tokens, a yen for standing on tiptoes and a modicum of chutzpah, there was plenty of liberty here at ground zero on Independence Day '86.

Justice, however, was in short supply.

For the tens of thousands of anonymous revelers who jammed Battery Park, the free vantage points came at a cost. Gawkers lined six- and seven-deep along the sweep of Manhattan's southern tip vied for momentary gaps of daylight in the human wall. A small percentage of the throng, who had either spent the night or arrived there around dawn, was lucky enough to catch fleeting glimpses of the tops of masts of the afternoon parade of 22 tall ships in Operation Sail '86. The more adventurous scrambled up into the branches of trees where the view was unobstructed. Police soon chased them down.

A few blocks away at Battery Park City, the 15,000 spectators who had paid $60 per ticket were treated to a subdued charm

Nobody stood. Bleacher seating, with ushers clad in red, white and blue semi-formal attire, was very calm and orderly. They were provided a running color commentary on the passing ships over loudspeakers. Their seats were so close to the spectacular flotilla gliding past up the Hudson River that when one spectator spotted a friend on a passing yacht and yelled "Hey, Norman!", Norman answered back. And then several hundred people took up the "Hey, Norman!" chant until Norman cruised out of earshot.

They were also near enough to have their loud and prolonged boos heard by the crew of the four-masted barkentine "Esmerelda" of Chile, a controversial OpSail entry for her reputed use for torturing prisoners after the coup by Gen. Augusto Pinochet in 1973.

Police had barricaded the Battery Park City compound from the streetwide stream of ticketless pedestrians. A New Jersey cop flashed his badge at one of New York's finest and expected to waltz right into the reserved seats. "Sorry, man," he was told. "Nobody gets in without a ticket. You should have stayed in Jersey."

Those first-time visitors to the Big Apple were straining for reference points to describe the vast crowds. Said an Indiana television reporter doing his stand-up, or on-air summary of the event, "There are 12 million people here. That's 25 times as many people who show up at the Indy 500 each year." When he had finished, his cameraman shot him a weird look. "Well," the reporter reasoned, "that's their only frame of reference for something this big."

It was hard to get a frame of reference here. It all seemed so unreal. Normally surly IRT conductors were bidding straphangers a Happy Fourth, tossing out patriotic slogans. The entirety of lower Manhattan was closed to cars. The cavernous curvatures of the financial district's streets were transformed into fast-moving streams of humanity that swept one up in their wake. For a mile or more in every direction from Battery Park, hundreds of Liberty theme booths lined both sides of the streets — offering a vast variety of ethnic foods, street entertainment and every conceivable souvenir.

Democracy made an appearance. On one small stage in the midst of the noisy excess, people quietly laid bare their souls into a single microphone that was being recorded for the archives of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C. It was an open mike, uncensored. Participants were only gently encouraged to tailor their remarks to Lady Liberty's legacy and their own personal or familial cultural heritage.

Aribel Gonzalez told his story over the loudspeakers for hundreds of listeners, how he came to New York in 1974, with $5 in his pocket, fleeing Castro's regime in Cuba. He said this country gave him opportunity. He proudly noted that for 20 years he has been a sales representative "for one of the biggest companies in America" — Anheuser-Busch which brews the Budweiser beer he sells.

Debra Britt, a New York City Parks department worker, belted out "America The Beautiful" and her soul-inspired styling drew shouts for an encore. She obliged. After the last note drifted out over the park, she bolted down the stairs of the stage, gave a round of high-fives to her friends and proclaimed, "That felt great!"

She didn't have to pay a cent for the fleeting rush of fame. Maybe there was justice after all.

A volley of fireworks, left, light up the Statue of Liberty Friday — a spectacular, special Fourth of July tribute to the symbol's 100th birthday. Earlier in the day, above, sailors of the Spanish tall ship Juan Sebastain de Elcano hang from the yard arms and bow for a better view of the statue's face as their craft joins a parade of about 200 in Operation Sail.

Parade of ships honors Lady Liberty's heritage

NEW YORK (AP) — Young sailors danced aloft in the yards amid spanking white sails and New York Harbor glistened in the sun Friday as tall ships paraded in honor of the Statue of Liberty and American independence.

More than 200 sailing ships — tall, not-so-tall and small — made their way up the Hudson, then turned back downriver to their berths for the rest of the weekend.

As the ships glided through the harbor, their wakes rocked an estimated 20,000 small private boats and cabin cruisers anchored in choice spots for viewing the four days of festivities celebrating the statue's 100th birthday.

The spectacle was, in President Reagan's words, "as colorful as fireworks, as majestic as Lady Liberty herself."

"Perhaps indeed these vessels embody our conception of liberty itself ... to be free as the wind," Reagan said as the lead ship of the parade, the U.S. Coast Guard three-masted bark Eagle, went past the Governors Island reviewing area.

On the Belem, France's three-masted bark, young cadets in dress whites performed a low-kick dance step balanced aloft in the yards.

"This has been unbelieveable. I wish I was an artist so I could paint these boats," said Anna Modfila of Queens, dressed in red, white and blue.

More than 1.6 million people watched the ships from the New York and New Jersey shores, police estimated.

At Liberty State Park in New Jersey, spectators stood seven and eight deep to view the sweeping panorama of boats at anchor, helicopters aloft and Manhattan's skyscrapers.

"The whole thing is fantastic," said Dana Nix of Bonham, Texas, who won her prime viewing spot by arriving at 5 a.m.

Steve Masone, 62, volunteer captain of the Gazela of Philadelphia, a 103-year-old wooden square-rigger, called it "the most moving day I'll ever have afloat."

"The idea of the gathering of the ships is tremendously exciting to me," said Gazela crew member Nancy Linden, 39. "It's the beauty of them, the implication of distant places and long oceans. I'm a terrible romanticist."

The tall ships were led into the harbor by two New York City fireboats, one of them spraying red, white and blue plumes of water.

Four boaters suffered minor injuries when the pleasure boat they were on collided with a Dutch sailing vessel, the Ohderhoek.

'No bad seats' available for fireworks show

NEW YORK (AP) — The Big Bang moved from theory toward blazing reality Friday as 20 tons of fireworks were set to whistle and ka-boom, marking the Statue of Liberty's centennial with what organizers called the most spectacular pyrotechnics display the country has ever seen.

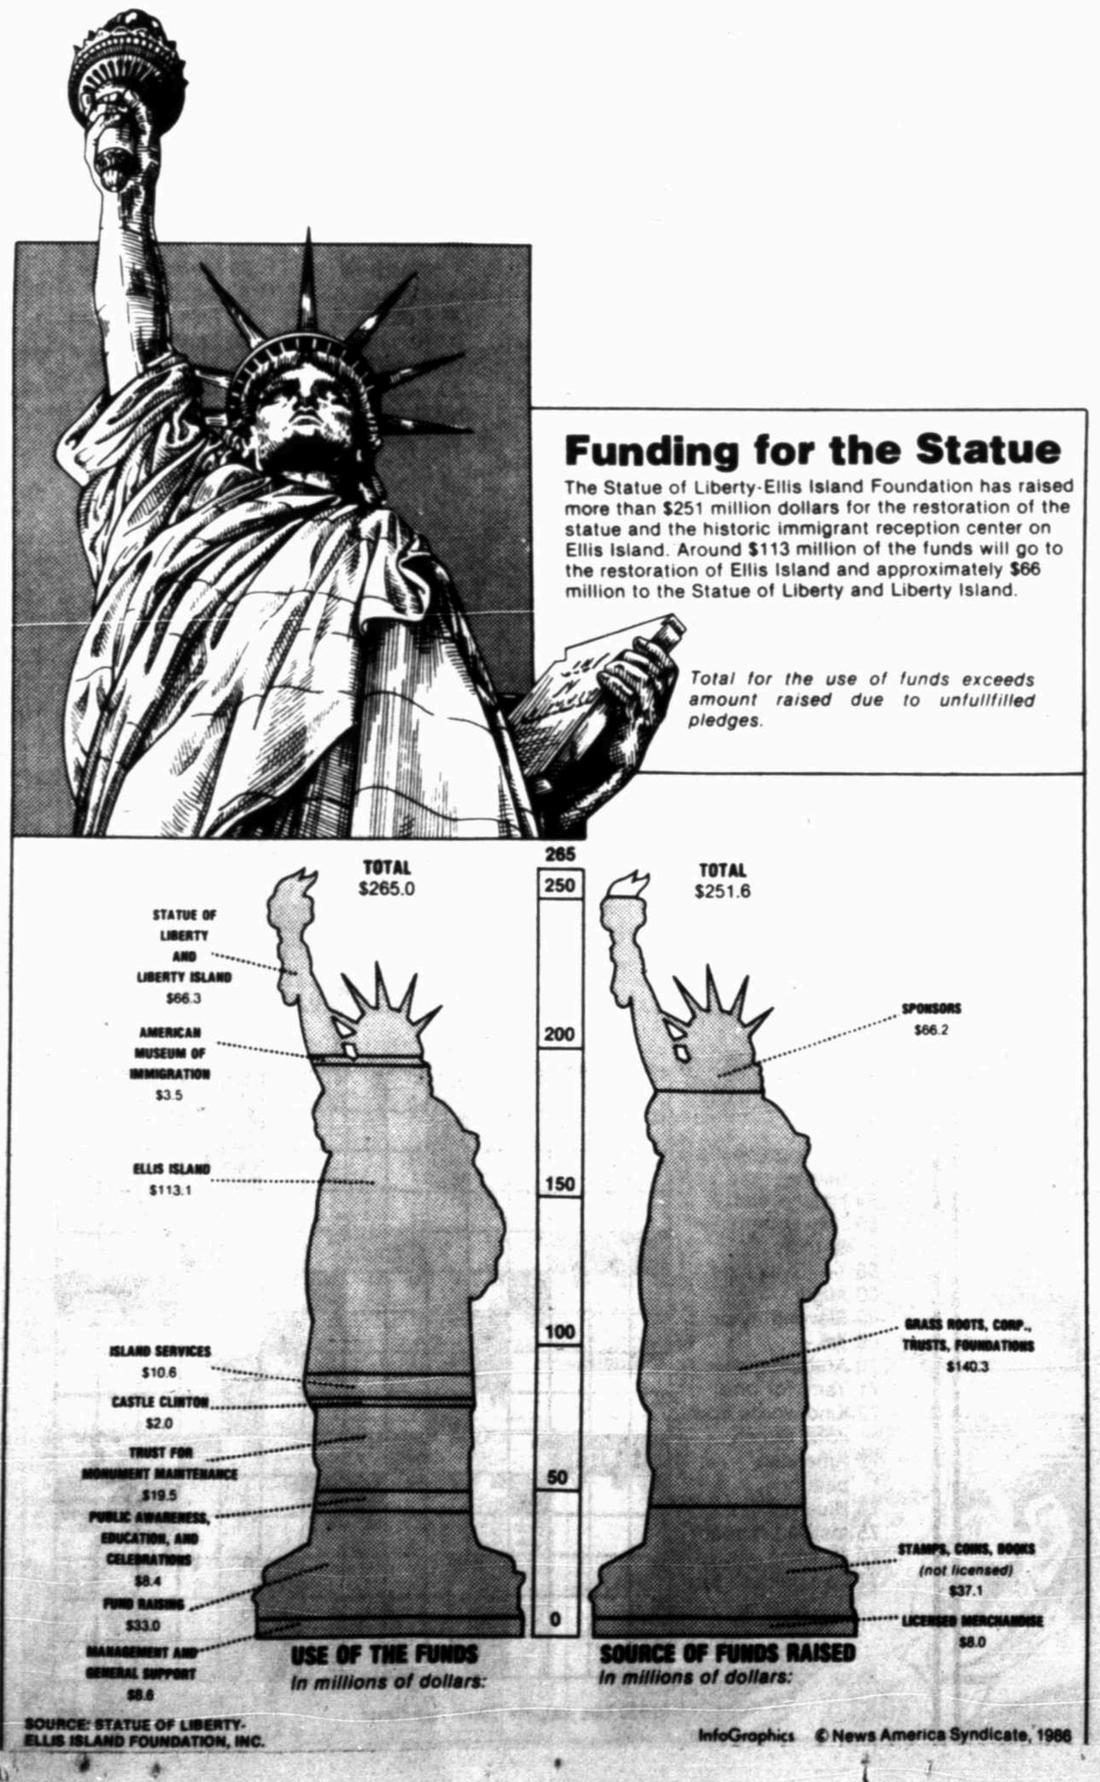
"There will be no bad seats," said Tommy Walker, the show's director.

For the International Fireworks Spectacular, called the Big Bang by everyone working on it, 40,000 projectiles were loaded on 40 barges at 10 points around Lower Manhattan and on two barges in front of the statue.

Forty tons of mortar tubing stabilized in 600 tons of sand encased the fireworks, and 250 miles of wire were used for detonation.

Aerial shells, ground displays, fountains, candles and rockets make up a display using more than four times the number of projectiles fired in the Brooklyn Bridge centennial in 1983, said to be the one of the largest shows in the nation.

Three companies, Pyro Spectaculars of Rialto, Calif.; Fireworks by Grucci of Bellport, N.Y.; and Zambelli Internationale of New Castle, Pa., joined for Friday night's display as part of a collaboration that made up Walker's All-America Fireworks Team.



Reagan, Mitterand take time out, discuss need for Soviet summit

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan and French President Francois Mitterrand, tending to affairs of state in the midst of a majestic Statue of Liberty celebration, agreed Friday that a new U.S.-Soviet summit is needed to get superpower arms controls talks moving, the White House said.

Spokesman Larry Speakes, briefing reporters after Reagan and Mitterrand held an 80-minute working lunch on Governors Island in New York harbor, conceded that "perhaps there is some disagreement" over Reagan's proposed Strategic Defense Initiative, or "Star Wars" missile defense system.

Mitterrand has balked at French participation in planning for the potential space-based defense network.

But, Speakes said, "The U.S. president and the French president see eye to eye on all major facets of relations with the Soviet Union."

Speakes quoted Reagan as telling Mitterrand, "I believe the Soviets may be more serious than ever before about working out an agreement" to limit superpower nuclear arsenals. He said Reagan also reiterated that the Strategic Defense Initiative is "not negotiable, not a bargaining chip." He said Mitterrand did not respond on the issue.

Speakes said that Reagan did not discuss in any detail the negotiations for a summit meeting between administration officials and representatives of Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

But the spokesman said but "there is a desire on the part of both leaders (Reagan and Mitterrand) that there be a summit...and they both agreed basically on the approach."

The two presidents agreed on "the need to negotiate, the need to reduce" nuclear arms, Speakes said.

Reagan, who says he wants another summit with Gorbachev, said he was not asking Mitterrand to carry a message to Gorbachev.

"I don't think that would be appropriate to impose on him," Reagan said of his French counterpart. "He has his own relationship with other countries."

Reagan's comment came at the start of a working lunch with Mitterrand in the admiral's residence on Governors Island. In the morning, the Reagans and Mitterrands joined to watch the passing of tall ships past the Statue of Liberty, the refurbished symbol of historic ties between the United States and France.

Reagan seemed overwhelmed by the show he and his wife, Nancy, got earlier aboard the battleship USS Iowa in the Hudson River. After viewing a parade of naval warships from the United States and 13 countries in Europe, the Western Hemisphere and Asia, the president told his Navy hosts he had "no words to describe my pride," according to White House spokesmen.

This holiday show, Reagan exclaimed, was "absolutely brilliant."

Reagan, capping his Liberty Weekend with a visit to the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy, saluted the courage of Americans in uniform and prayed "that the call for their courage will never come."

In remarks prepared for delivery aboard the Kennedy in New York harbor, Reagan set the stage for what was billed as the largest fireworks display in U.S. history.

"Tonight, there is much to celebrate and many blessings to be grateful for," he said. "So while it's good to talk about serious things, it is just as important — and just as American — to have some fun. Now, let the celebration begin."

The centennial of the Statue of Liberty, presented to the United States by France as a token of friendship, comes at a time of a strain in relations between Reagan's administration and Mitterrand's Socialist government.

Mitterrand refused to allow U.S. warplanes to fly over France on their way to bombing raids on Libya in April, and has balked at French participation in Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, the space-based missile defense system known informally as "Star Wars."

Asked Friday whether he was concerned that Mitterrand has not expressed strong enough support for Star Wars, Reagan replied with a smile, "We have a very happy relationship."

Mitterrand also has rejected overtures by Gorbachev to engage in direct arms reduction talks with the Soviet Union, saying France will continue to modernize its nuclear force unless there is a sharp cutback in U.S. and Soviet arms.

Asked for his reaction to Gorbachev's recent statement that he still is not serious about arms control, Reagan replied, "Well, then he's just misinformed." Reagan said he and his advisers are still "talking about" the administration's reply to a recent Gorbachev letter.

In that letter, Gorbachev reportedly indicated that progress could be made in several areas of the U.S.-Soviet arms control relationship.

The Soviets want a response to their proposal to reduce U.S. and Soviet weapons before agreeing to a pre-summit meeting between Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze and Secretary of State George P. Shultz, American officials have said. Reagan and Gorbachev met for the first time last November at a summit in Geneva.

Boston Pops lead all-star Liberty concert

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Boston Pops, giving its first Fourth of July program away from home, joined an all-star lineup of entertainers Friday for an Americana Concert serenading the Statue of Liberty in the shadow of her torch.

At Liberty State Park, just 1,750 feet from the statue, a 120-foot-wide stage surrounded by red, white and blue bunting and flanked by posters of the statue's face was readied for the concert, a prelude to one of the largest fireworks extravaganzas.

Also on the concert bill were Barry Manilow, Johnny Cash, Melissa Manchester, Whitney Houston, James Whitmore, Clamma Dale, John Denver, Simon Estes and Joel Grey, as well as military bands and choruses.

Pops conductor John Williams, whose "Liberty Fanfare" provides a theme for the weekend's events, selected a program honoring American composers. Ms. Manchester prepared a medley of George Gershwin tunes, the Pops was to perform a tribute to the marches of John Philip Sousa and the finale had Manilow leading the cast and audience through "America the Beautiful."

Free tickets to watch the 1½-hour program from blankets and lawn chairs set up on a park field were awarded to 15,000 people by lottery, and organizers had to turn away would-be fans who tried to get in without passes Friday.

Spectators began arriving at midday, staking out spots on the Liberty State Park field with blankets and lawn chairs as the performers wearing blue jeans and straw hats tuned up onstage.

The Pops' decision to play outside Boston for the first time ever on July Fourth irked Boston fans, millions of whom have flocked to the Charles River for concerts every Independence Day since 1929. To soothe their traditional audience, the Pops vowed never to leave home again on the holiday and planned a concert in Boston on Saturday.

Williams, who wrote the score for the movies "Star Wars"and "E.T. — the Extra-Terrestrial" and wrote the Olympic fanfare, considered the Liberty Weekend invitation an honor for his orchestra and the city

Water plays big role in celebrations

Associated Press

The land of the free looked to the water for a good part of its Fourth of July celebration, with "Old Ironsides" booming its cannons in Boston Harbor, tall ships parading in New York and paddle-wheelers straining toward the finish line in St. Louis.

Helen, Ga., staged its parade on the Chattahochee River, red, white and blue sailboats and paddleboats plied the Cumberland River in Nashville, Tenn., and competitors in the Pacific Cup yacht race took off toward Hawaii from San Francisco.

In Windham, Conn., an estimated 1,500 residents turned out and tuned in for the town's "boombox parade." Because organizers couldn't line up a live band, they asked townspeople to bring portable radios and tune into a local station which was broadcasting parade music.

The USS Iowa, with President Reagan aboard, led the second day of fanfare for the rejuvenated Statue of Liberty. The battleship slid down the Hudson River, acknowledging 21-gun salutes from warships of 14 nations, and 22 tall-masted ships tested the winds around Manhattan.

In Boston, the USS Constitution took its annual lap around the harbor, firing a salute which was answered by pealing bells from the tower of Old North Church.

Among the 420 passengers and crew aboard the 188-year-old Constitution were Joe and Marcie Haggerty, who had flown in from Burbank, Calif., earlier in the week.

"I'm 60 years old and it's the greatest thing in my life," Mrs. Haggerty said. "I just feel so American. Don't you?"

About a dozen members of the Greater Boston Union of the Homeless mounted a quiet protest outside the former Charlestown Navy Yard in Boston, where the Constitution is berthed.

"This is a time when the country is spending tremendous amounts of money restoring its great symbols. We're saying, What about giving meaning to those symbols," said Dennis Culhane, an organizer of the homeless group.

Washington was just as James Watt once wished it would be, enjoying a sedate, family-style holiday with no giant concert by the Beach Boys.

"I got the shirt ripped off my back right over there last year," said U.S. Park Police Sgt. Andrew Smith, who stood near the reviewing stand for the parade on Constitution Avenue. He noted there was no comparison between this year's families with strollers and last year's rowdy, beer-swilling concert-goers.

"It stinks," said ice cream vendor Derek Fox, 17. "There's no big bands. You're getting all the wine-and-cheese type coming down with coolers."

Watt, while secretary of the interior, banned the Beach Boys in 1983, but Nancy Reagan brought them back for 1984 and 1985. This year, there were several small concerts by no big events.

More than 3 million people were expected for the VP Fair, a three-day bash along the Mississippi riverfront. The fair opened Friday with the completion of a 1,039-mile race between the Mississippi Queen and the Delta Queen, which began last month in New Orleans.

The fair is an offshoot of the Veiled Prophet Parade, which was held Thursday night. The parade is staged by the Veiled Prophet Organization, a secret, 109-year-old social group which also puts on a debutante ball every year. The VP Fair is run by a separate organization.

A concert featuring the Philly Pops orchestra, the Stylistics and Phyllis Nelson was canceled in Philadelphia, because Mayor W. Wilson Goode said the musicians had been threatened by striking municipal workers.

"But we will have fireworks," Goode said. "July Fourth in Philadelphia would not be the same without fireworks."

Negotiations to end the strike are to resume Monday. Meanwhile, Philadelphians were asked to bring their own garbage bags to various celebrations.

A nine-year-old girl suffered second- and third-degree burns, and seven other people were injured in Dunwoody, Ga., Thursday night when a rocket veered into a crowd of about 40,000 people in a shopping mall parking lot.

The girl was in stable condition Friday.

Fireworks were blamed for an explosion in a Sioux Falls, S.D., garage which burned four children aged 5 to 12 on Friday morning. Firefighters said the blast blew the walls of the garage off the foundation.

Gatlinburg, Tenn., makes a point of having the first Fourth of July parade in the nation — at one minute after midnight. A U.S. Navy band and a float bearing a replica of the Statue of Liberty were part of the show this year.

At Tennessee's Reelfoot Lake, five young bald eagles were given their liberty as part of the Cumberland Wildlife Foundation's nationa "Save the Eagles" project.

It was "Star Trek Day" in Chattanooga, with visits from actors James "Scotty" Doohan, Nichelle "Uhura" Nichols and George "Sulu" Takei.

A thousand or so people dressed in red, white, or blue were recruited to form a "living flag" on the capitol steps in St. Paul, Minn. "Our flag also is going to sing some patriotic songs," organizer Ron Sonntag said.

Atlanta, which claims to have the biggest parade, featured more than 100 bands and floats, with Judge Joseph Wapner of the television show "The People's Court" as grand marshal. Bristol, Rhode Island, which claims the oldest parade at 201 years, welcomed the Budweiser Clydesdales and a contingent of Vietnam veterans in battle fatigues.

Capitol's Fourth of July features 'lighter' mood

WASHINGTON (AP) — With all eyes on New York for the Statue of Liberty festivities, the nation's capital enjoyed a sunny, mellow holiday that sharply contrasted with raucous and sometimes violent Independence Days in the past.

There was plenty of strolling room along the grassy grounds around the Washington Monument, which last year teemed with more than half a million people who came to hear the Beach Boys and other rock groups.

Moderate crowds did, however, gather along adjacent Constitution Avenue to watch a parade that included high school bands, District of Columbia fire trucks and police vehicles and a float carrying 7-year-old Grand Marshal Bobbie Jo Buckley, who holds the title of "Little Miss America."

The National Park Service estimated there were 90,000 people in the monuments area by early evening. A service spokeswoman said there had been half a dozen arrests.

People sat and stood politely along the parade route, where there seemed to be a good viewing spot for everyone. Warm-up entertaiment on the reviewing stand consisted of a square dance troop and Colorado recording artist Chris Holloway singing some of his patriotic specialties.

No giant concert was scheduled this year, but musical events around the monuments and Capital Mall included military jazz and Dixieland bands, The Captain and Tennille, Sara Vaughan and a group called the Singing Sergeants.

At the Old Post Office Pavillion, country, Latin and gospel groups performed.

The low-key atmosphere seemed to suit this year's crowd, and the authorities, just fine.

"I got the shirt ripped off my back right over there last year," said U.S. Park Police Sgt. Andrew Smith as he stood beneath a shady tree near the reviewing stand. He noted there was no comparison between this year's families with strollers and last year's rowdy, beer-swilling concert-goers who shoved and fought as the hot afternoon wore on.

"We wouldn't have come down this year if it was like last year," said Debbie Knight of Manassas, Va., who with her husband Tom and their 12-year-old son watched the parade on Friday.
