Complete Abolition Of Drilling In East Texas Advocated As Oil Men Gather

MASS MEETING SEEKS METHOD CURTAILMENT

Executive Committee of Oil-Gas Association Holds Session

2,500 WELLS PROVEN

Total Production of More Than 500,000 Barrels Predicted Soon

DALLAS, Oct. 26. (AP)—Oil men tonight were considering means for curtailing or halting drilling in the East Texas oil field, as they made preparations for a mass meeting tomorrow to devise a plan for presentation to the state railroad commission.

The mass meeting was called by the executive committee of the Texas Oil and Gas Conservation association.

2,000 Members

Officials of the association claimed that continued drilling in the field would be conducive to additional physical waste and early dissipation of the vast oil pool. They advocated drastic curtailment or total abolition of drilling. The association has 2,000 members among independent operators in the state.

"There now are approximately 2,500 wells completed in the East Texas area," W. L. Todd of Dallas, a member of the executive committee explained. "By the middle of November, there will be 3,000.

"At the present per well allowable rate of 165 barrels daily, production for the field would amount to 500,000 barrels daily."

Allowable Reduced

The state railroad commission, when it renewed proration two months ago under the new state conservation law, aided by martial law enforcement, set the per well allowable at 225 barrels daily. The field was given an unofficial quota of 400,000 barrels daily. The new law specifically forbids consideration of market demand and the commission made no attempt to directly restrict drilling for economic reasons.

Drilling continued so rapidly that the field soon exceeded the 400,000 total. The commission cut production to 185 barrels per well daily. New wells being brought in again caused the field to exceed the 400,000 barrels daily mark and the per well quota was cut to 165 barrels daily. That rate has been in effect only about two weeks but already the field has advanced in daily output beyond the 400,000-barrel mark, and faces the prospect of additional wells.

OKLAHOMA DEMAND SET AT 90,000

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 26. (AP)—Nominations by crude oil purchasers in the Oklahoma City field, made today at the corporation commission's state-wide hearing to fix allowables for November and December, indicated possible demand for the rest of the year will be about 190,000 barrels daily.

The field at present is held at 180,000 barrels daily.

Estimated demand for the state already has been set by the statewide proration committee at 545,000 barrels daily, which is within the flow set by a three-state production pact—546,000 barrels daily.

MURRAY CLUB FORMED HERE

'Alfalfa Bill' Invited to Deliver Address

With the organization of a Murray-for-President club here Monday night, belief was expressed that Gov. W. H. Murray of Oklahoma can be induced to come to Wichita Falls within the next two weeks to accept a portait of himself and to address citizens here.

Officers of the club announced on adjournment of the organization meeting that an invitation would be wired Tuesday to Governor Murray. The Oklahoma executive promised a Wichita Falls delegation who called on him at Oklahoma City recently that he would come here to accept the portrait painted by Emil Hermann, local artist, and presented by his admirers and friends here. However, he refused to set a date for the event.

So far as is known, the Murray club organized here is the first in Texas. About 30 men and women became members of the club at the organization meeting at the Kemp hotel.

Claude Miller was elected president; J. B. Marlow, vice president; Wilburn Nutt, secretary; and W. R. Wilcke, treasurer.

Move to organization followed the receipt of a letter by Mr. Miller from Judge George A. Henshaw of Oklahoma City, Murray enthusiast and leader in the 4-B clubs, which back Murray for president under the title slogan of "bread, butter, bacon and beans."

Advocacy of the Oklahoma governor's proposed candidacy for president was heard in numerous speeches by those present Monday night, and in which Governor Murray was proclaimed a Moses to lead the people from a wilderness of political ills said to have resulted in financial oppression.

Many of the charter members enlisted knew the "Sage of Tishomingo" 20 and 30 years ago when he was a Texan. Among these were J. B. Marlow, who also described several events incident to Murray's early political career in Oklahoma.

Tom Hunter, president of the North Texas Oil & Gas association, was a principal speaker in behalf of the Oklahoman's candidacy. "We have never seen a time when there has been such a crying need for a leader," Mr. Hunter declared.

Other speakers were Mr. Miller, C. C. Hudson, J. O. Cowart, B. D. Sartin, Mrs. Wilcke, and Emil Hermann, painter of Murray's portrait and the originator of the plan to bring the Oklahoman here to speak at an early date.

FREE BRIDGE 'WAR' DELAYED BY DATE MIXUP

Murray Withdraws Troops At Durant as Judge Misses Hearing

OIL FIGHT OPENS

Protest Against Oklahoma Shutdown Reaches U. S. Supreme Court

DURANT, Okla., Oct. 26. (AP)—Gov. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray's citizen soldiery pitched its tents at the Red river free bridge again today, found the "war" had been postponed and went back home—for another week, anyway.

The bellicose executive called out the national guard by telegram from a dimly lit depot at Atoka, Okla., before dawn, thus beating to the draw attorneys for the Red River Bridge Co., owners of a parallel toll span.

Judge Misses Hearing

However, a mix-up in dates caused Federal Judge John C. Pollock to miss hearing the toll bridge company's plea for a blockade on the free span, under martial law since last July. The hearing then was tentatively set for Kansas City, Kan., next Monday.

"The bridge will remain open," said Murray, after inspecting his troops at the bridge and ordering them withdrawn, "for the time being," late today. Whether the soldiers will be back on the job next Monday he wouldn't say definitely.

He learned of the court hearing delay at Atoka, where he broke a sleepless train ride from Dallas in the wee hours to wire his message of mobilization to Lieut. Col. John A. McDonald here.

Injunction Sought

The renewed controversy over the bridge is in the form of a suit, filed in federal court at Muskogee, asking for authority to block the free structure into Texas and an injunction to restrain interference with toll bridge travel.

Both bridges have been open since an "armistice" was reached in last July's fracas, which saw federal injunctive power and Texas rangers used to keep the free bridge closed and Oklahoma guardsmen called out to open it.

Governor Murray retained a state of martial law at the free bridge tonight, but he made it clear he would not interfere with the toll span.

Early today he promised that an Oklahoma congressman would "move for an investigation of some of these southwestern federal courts," contending they can not enjoin a sovereign state, its governor or his "military arm."

WASHINGTON HEARS SHUTDOWN PROTEST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. (AP)—Governor Murray's front-page action in capping Oklahoma's oil wells with the might of the militia today was protested to the supreme court.

Railroad Reports Drop In September Earnings

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—The first 31 railroads to report September earnings had net operating income of $28,044,000, a decrease of 43.2 per cent from $49,379,000 reported for the like month last year. The same carriers in August showed net operating income of $25,872,000, a decline of 42.3 per cent from August of the previous year.

Canada in Danger Of Loss on Wheat Pledge

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 26. (US)—If wheat prices do not improve, the Canadian government stands to lose $10,000,000 because of its pledge in behalf of the 1930 crop, it was estimated today. This estimate has nothing to do with the loss of $26,000,000 already estimated by the three prairie governments on their original guarantees of the 1929 pool payments.

Analysis of Schools' Enrollment Shows Little Change in Population

Despite the economic difficulties which Wichita Falls has faced during the last year, the city has had little actual loss in population, according to an analysis of school attendance figures released Monday by H. D. Fillers, superintendent.

Enrollment at the end of the first month for the 1931 team was 8,384, a decline of 629 students as compared to the registration of 9,013 for the same period last year.

"Many of our citizens are pointing to a decline in school attendance as showing sharp losses in population," said Mr. Fillers.

"It should be a matter of satisfaction to all Wichita Falls residents to know that there is little loss in registration except in the first year class. In 1930, 6-year-old students were enrolled in the first grade for the first time in history. Since the class also contained the usual quota of 7-year-old children, the registration in the first year class in 1930 rose to 1,532.

"This year we have only 6-year-old students registered in the first year class, and yet the registration shows 1,081 students. The enrollment of two ages last year, almost doubling the normal size of the class, accounts for 451 of the total decline of 629 students this year.

"In other words, with the exception of the first year class, the decline in registration in Wichita Falls's 18 schools is only 178 students, a remarkable showing for

Army Football Star Succumbs To Injury Received In Contest

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26. (UP)—Cadet Richard Sheridan of the West Point football team died here late today of a broken neck, received Saturday in the game with Yale.

The lad, unconscious since he was carried from the game in the third quarter after he had tackled a Yale player on a kick-off, had been in an artificial respirator since being brought to the hospital.

His mother, who rushed to the New Haven hospital by train and automobile from Greenville, S. C., was not at the bedside when he died. She had been taken to visit him earlier but he did not recognize her.

The body will be taken to West Point tomorrow for a military funeral. The time has not been set.

Enlisted in Army

Sheridan was an end on the regular Army varsity team. His home was at Augusta and he had entered the military academy from the enlisted ranks.

His death was the first football death among eastern colleges since 1925, when Charles Prior, Lehigh fullback, died of a broken neck.

The last player among the so-called big teams of the East to die of a football injury was Ben Byne, also an Army player who received a fatal injury in a game with Harvard in 1909.

Sheridan's mother, Mrs. Richard Sheridan, had made a swift race to be at the bedside of her son before he died.

Mother Rushes to Bedside

It was considerable time after young Sheridan was injured that she was notified. She and another son took the first train from Greenville. Arriving in New York shortly after midday, they entered a swift motor car piloted by army officers.

Motorcycle police cleared a path. Through populous Manhattan,

AUSTIN, Oct. 26. (UP)—A school board rule that a teacher cannot marry will not justify discharge of a marrying teacher unless her employment contract has such a clause, State School Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs ruled here today sustaining the appeal of Mrs. H. M. Salsman against the Weimer school board. She said she had no knowledge of the school board rule. In previous cases the right of the school board to prohibit marriage in the teacher's contract has been upheld.

It was announced by City Manager V. R. Smitham Monday that the preparation and distribution of city tax statements now will be rushed through by the same force of workers which circulated the school tax statements last week. In past years

Doctor Judd Charged With Breach Of Medical Law; Slayer Arraigned

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26. (UP)—Dr. William C. Judd, husband of Winnie Ruth Judd, alleged "trunk slayer," was ordered arrested today on a complaint charging him with practicing medicine without a license.

The complaint was issued by the city prosecutor's office at the request of Albert Carter, special agent for the state board of medical examiners.

The charge grew out of the physician's "alibi" at the time his wife shot and killed Mrs. Agnes Anne Leroi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson and stuffed their bodies into trunks for shipment to Los Angeles.

He advanced as his "alibi" the statement that he was at a clinic, in charge of the institution in the absence of Dr. Benjamin Moss. A check showed Dr. Judd was correct, but further search of records revealed that he had no license to practice his profession in California.

Records of the American Medical association, according to Carter, showed that Dr. Judd's only license

Pair Arrested by Police On Suspicion

A complete set of knob knocking tools was seized by police here late Monday night following the arrest of two young men as suspicious characters.

Ruth Nichols Escapes As Fire Sweeps Plane

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 26. (US)—Fire destroyed the plane of Miss Ruth Nichols, New York society aviatrix, today and she barely escaped serious injury or death in the flames.

Preparing to continue her trip from the Pacific coast to New York, she was warming up the motor when gasoline, believed to have flooded the ground from the accidental opening of a dump valve, suddenly was ignited.

Warned by frantic gestures and shouts of the attendants and then by sight of the flames as they began to envelop the plane, Miss Nichols leaped from the cockpit not a second too soon.

The only protest was voiced by Joe McCasland, attorney representing Lassater. The other towns were not represented.

CREDIT SOUGHT FOR BUYERS OF U. S. SURPLUS

Farm Board Looks for Plan To Finance Purchasers Abroad

FRANCE INTERESTED

Sale of Excess Wheat And Cotton in Europe Is Objective

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. (AP)—The farm board is trying to establish credit for a prospective customer so the overflow from huge American stocks of wheat and cotton can go to Europe.

Sale of the wheat and cotton through an international credit arrangement is being discussed by the board and a representative of France. Thus far no specific amounts of the two major crops have been mentioned.

Pierre du Pasquier, economic advisor to Premier Laval, conferred with board officials Saturday and plans talks later in the week. Meanwhile, Chairman Stone of the board has gone to New York, where it was said he would attend a dinner for M. Laval.

Long-Term Credit

The board has no authority to participate in an export credit pool. It can only tend assistance in such an arrangement. It has power, however, to sell its wheat and cotton holdings on long-term credit.

The latter question, Chairman Stone said today, was an important point in the conversations with Du Pasquier. France has been reported in the market for 50,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Carl Williams, another board member, disclosed that Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, is interested in the discussions between the board and Pasquier. Meyer and W. L. Clayton, Texas cotton merchant, conferred with President Hoover on a cotton export credit pool early in September.

Bank Parley

Pasquier, it was understood, will call on New York bankers before resuming his conferences with the farm board.

Stone is keenly interested in means of freeing the wheels of international trade and says credit facilities are almost completely lacking.

He asserted today the conversations with Du Pasquier have gone only so far as the general field of international finance with the sole idea of stimulating consumption of American wheat and cotton in Europe.

He added it was immaterial to the board whether farm board stockswere sought. If a private credit corporation is set up the purchases most likely would be from normal trade channels.

The board has sold 7,500,000 bushels of wheat to Germany and the way has been left open for further negotiations.

Williams, in speaking of offers to buy, said the board has received so many that it could dispose of every bushel of wheat and every bale of cotton it owns.

"But," he explained, "the terms haven't been right."

BRITAIN VOTES ON M'DONALD

Emergency Cabinet's Fate Hinges on Election

LONDON, Oct. 26. (AP)—Great Britain's 30,000,000 voters will decide in the general election tomorrow whether Ramsay MacDonald's national government, born of the nation's financial necessity last August, shall continue to rule.

King George came back to Buckingham palace today from Sandringham to await the election returns. Party leaders voiced final optimistic prophesies after the manner of political generalissimos the world over.

Government Favored

Under the guise of insurance policies and dealings on the stock exchange, Englishmen satisfied their love for wagering on the results, with the odds largely in favor of the national government.

The concensus of political observers gave the government a majority of 150 to 200 in the house of commons—which would be ample to satisfy Prime Minister MacDonald's demand for a "doctor's mandate" to prescribe legislative remedies for the nation's financial and economic ailments.

The three-weeks' campaign has been fought much less savagely than had been predicted. The most bitter onslaughts have been interchanged by the split sections of the labor party.

Snowden Strikes

Thus Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer in the labor and national governments, has turned the full power of his invective against his lifelong labor colleagues who now are the opponents of the MacDonald ministry.

Mr. Snowden's final message to the nation was: "Make sure that the men who ran away are overwhelmingly defeated." By the men who ran away he meant those who quit Mr. MacDonald's labor cabinet, refusing to go along with the prime minister into the national emergency government.

Railroads Not Required To Give Delivery Service

AUSTIN, Oct. 26. (UP)—The state railroad commission cannot require a railroad to originate pick-up and delivery service in connection with shipments over its line, Assistant Attorney General Elbert Hooper ruled today. Where the railroads institute such service, as most Texas lines have done, the commission has the right to regulate it. The service has been put on by most lines to meet motor truck competition. Goods are called for at store doors and delivered at destination. The question was raised when the Santa Fe declined to accept such a shipment tendered by the Texas & Pacific Motor Transport Co. It was held the Santa Fe must accept the shipment, though it could not have been ordered to originate it.

BODY OF AGED MAN FOUND IN EARTHEN-HOME

Theft Believed Motive Of Assailants Who Shot Hermit

VICTIM HAD FORTUNE

Old-Time Resident of County Chose Life Of Solitude

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Oct. 26.—The nude body of W. A. (Cap) Mitchell, aged and wealthy recluse, at noon Monday was found on an improvised cot in the hillside dugout where he had lived alone for 10 years. The top of the head had been blown off. Physicians said Mitchell had been dead since Sunday night.

Justice of the Peace J. T. Rickman said evidence indicated the 60-year-old hermit had been slain by an assailant who thought he would find money in the hut. Formal verdict after the inquest was withheld pending further investigation.

No gun was found near the dugout and 70 cents in an old purse was the only money on the premises. Mitchell was last seen alive Saturday afternoon.

Woman Finds Body

The body was discovered about noon Monday by Mrs. Lum Brandon of Crystal Falls and her son Alvin, Graham gin employe. The woman explained that she and her son had climbed the rugged hillside trail to Mitchell's humble residence to inquire about the boundaries of a neighboring tourist camp involved in a law suit.

When a knock at the door leading to the underground living quarters failed to bring an answer, Mrs. Brandon opened the door. Just inside, with the head toward the entrance, lay the unclothed body, a bullet wound through the top of the head, blood stains all about.

Mrs. Brandon and the son went at once for help. A group of boys answered their call. The police were summoned.

Victim Stripped

Mitchell had been stripped of clothing except for a pair of socks. Neither weapons nor valuables was found by investigators. After the first inspection the body was moved to the Morrison Funeral home to await funeral plans.

Mitchell, whose aged mother and several brothers and sisters make their home in Graham, had lived here many years. He was known to have substantial bank accounts, to own real estate and rental property in Graham and to collect extensive royalties on oil production in Young county. His property was estimated at close to $100,000. He was 60 years old.

Despite his comfortable resources, 10 years ago Mitchell retired from society to make his home alone in the dugout on the hill one mile north of Graham. He spent little money for clothes and lived meagerly in the earthen home.

Strangers Call

The aged man was last seen about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, so far as investigators could learn. At that time he told S. Z. Crawford, filling station owner and one of his nearest friends, that two strange men who said they were from Baylor county had come to the dugout on trivial business earlier in the day.

"He asked me how many men were 'looking for him' and seemed suspicious," Mr. Crawford said.

The filling station operator said Mitchell never kept cash on his person or in his hut. The aged man was in the habit of leaving his money with Crawford at the station for safe-keeping, it was explained.

Mother Survives

Except for the mention of the two strangers, no clue to the shooting had been discovered late Monday. Deputy Sheriff Cleve Ellis is directing the inquiry.

Besides the mother, Mrs. Nancy Mitchell, two brothers and four sisters survive. The brothers are John Mitchell, Graham, and Jim Mitchell. Mrs. Bob Corley, Graham, Mrs. Fannie Wheeler, Olney, and Mrs. Mary McGowan, Fort Worth, are the sisters.

LEGION CHIEF PLEDGES HELP

Stevens Speaks Before Kansas Veterans

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 26. (INS)—Henry L. Stevens Jr., new national commander of the American Legion, in his first public appearance since taking office following the Detroit national convention in address here today before the Kansas post commanders and adjutants and before the Topeka Chamber of Commerce forum, pledged the legion organization anew to the president's unemployment relief program, and outlined the policies of the organization under his leadership for the next year.

"A job should be given with every dollar that is donated for relief," he declared, and then urged that all local posts of the legion help in getting men in touch with jobs and in creating work to care for the unemployed.

Stevens outlined work that is to be done by the organization for disabled veterans, and of the fight that is to be made in the coming session of congress for "the principle of universal service in time of war, for the future defense of the nation and for insurance in maintaining peace."

Illinois University President Lifts Old Student Discipline

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 26. (AP)—An era of intellectual freedom is dawning at the University of Illinois.

President Harry Wodburn Chase already has begun to fulfill the pledge he made to 12,000 students at his inauguration last spring—that the business of education was to set free the minds of men and that he proposed to do it here as quickly as he knew how.

Charged with the immediate destiny of the nation's third largest university, Dr. Chase was seeking qualitative thinking on a large scale. He ran the added risk of too much mental intoxication.

Students are realizing he meant what he said. No longer are records kept of their attendance at classes. The rigid discipline of past administrations, enforced by the first and perhaps best known dean of men in American colleges, has been side-tracked with the retirement last August of Thomas Arkle Clark.

Control is being decentralized, and the deans of the colleges of liberal arts, commerce, agriculture, engineering, education and music will have discretion in almost all matters concerning their separate colleges.

Dr. Chase intends only to steady the helm and steer the ship.

"If men are to be educated," he said, "they must follow the truth wherever it leads. One of the steps in an education is to make people feel a sense of responsibility for their own acts, and to take the consequences for them."

For that reason he has made the new dean of men, young Fred Turner, a man to whom students shall go for advice. Discipline has been placed in a faculty committee. Turner's office has been divorced from it but he still has advisory power to mould the morals of the campus.

GOTHAM HAILS HENRI PETAIN

French Hero Showered With Applause

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—The city of welcomes today was accorded for the first time opportunity to expend its cheering lungs and showering ticker tape on Marshal Henri Petain, French defender of Verdun, whose "ils ne passernot pas" captured allied imagination and bolstered French spirit.

The marshal, who backed "they shall not pass" with successful military tactics devised by himself, rode up to Battery park in New York's official welcoming tug, The Macom. Sirens screamed over the bay, fireboats shot water sprays heavenward and the guns on Governor's island barked a 19-round salute.

Six companies of the 13th United States infantry and their band awaited the marshal at the pier along with the usual throng of spectators. There was little cheering, but a great burst of applause as the famous soldier walked from the flag-draped pier shed to get into an open auto.

Bands from the Brooklyn navy yard and the city's department of sanitation, 300 foot patrolmen, 200 mounted patrolmen, 200 motorcycle policemen, a company of marines, a company of national guardsmen and official delegations from the police department and various posts of the American Legion joined the parade to city hall.

Tricolor flags of the French republic covered the building at No. 1 Broadway where the parade rounded the corner. More than 1,-300 persons and the fire department waited at city hall.

The marshal had been in the city since Saturday as the guest of General Pershing. He was not officially welcomed when he arrived from France because at that time he hurried to Yorktown, Va., to represent his government in the Yorktown sequicentennial celebration.

SAFETY DRIVE PLANNED HERE

Junior C-C to Launch Campaign Nov. 2

A public safety campaign will be sponsored here during the week Nov. 2-7, inclusive, by the Junior chamber of commerce.

Arrangements for the week are in charge of the junior chamber's safety committee, headed by Leon Horn. Object in the campaign, it was explained, is to call attention of the public to the large number of needless accidents which occur over the country daily, and to instill a more cautious spirit into the public, particularly motorists.

Means by which the public can be acquainted with current traffic laws are being prepared by the committee. One such method planned is to install a loud-speaking device on a busy downtown corner, where motorists and pedestrians will be hailed through the speaker when a traffic rule is violated.

Members of a vigilance committee will be stationed at various points over the city, and will take the license numbers of cars violating traffic regulations. Through the license number the car owners will be determined. A letter will be written each owner and his traffic error will be pointed out, with the request that he cooperate in the purpose of safety campaign by being more heedful of traffic laws.

Members of the ministerial alliance will also be asked to cooperate through pulpit announcements of a cautionary nature.

Texas Facts

By BILL EDWARDS

Texas' first railroad tunnel is a distinction of the Fredericksburg & Northern. There are only two such tunnels in Texas, the other being on the Fort Worth & Denver at the caprock, east of Plainview.

HELPING BUILD TEXAS

Texas again in 1933 will receive the largest amount of federal road aid of any of the states. In the apportionment recently announced Texas will get $6,770,221 out of the total of $125,000,000 appropriated for that purpose. It is nearly a million and a half more than New York will receive . . . A hard-surfaced road from Austin to Houston and Galveston was opened last week with completion of the stretch from the Brazos river bridge east of Brenham into Hempstead. Two bad grade crossings were eliminated in the new route . . . El Paso county votes Oct. 31 on a $620,000 bond issue, most of it for road construction with some flood control appropriations included . . . Machinery has been moved in for surfacing the 10-mile stretch on state No. 2 from Salado to the Williamson county line. Contract was let at $81,000 . . . Moore county will call an election to cancel a $250,000 road bond issue with the purpose of permitting construction of other than concrete roads, to which the issue as voted was limited . . . Bexar county and the city of San Antonio are joining in plans for a county-wide election on $2,000,000 road bonds . . . Solution of the muddle over the Dallas county end of the Dallas-Fort Worth highway (heaviest traveled road in the state) is in sight with the Davis street route first to be widened, but provision made for acquiring a 100-foot right of way for the Commerce street route, which would bypass Oak Cliff. Preparations for widening the Dallas county section of the highway into a four-lane road will start immediately, the state highway commission advancing the money for preliminary grading . . . Sixteen contracts involving construction of 275 miles of highway in 15 counties were let at the October meeting of the highway commission. Lettings averaged better than 25 per cent under engineers' estimates, incident to changed conditions and costs, although contractors were required to agree to a minimum wage for day laborers . . . Francitas district, Jackson county, defeated an $85,000 road bond issue and because of the poor bond market it was decided to withhold sale of $220,000 in bonds voted by other districts in that county . . . Work is soon to start on the long-talked-of Matamoros-Tampico highway along the Mexican coast, connecting with the Texas highway system at Brownsville.

The Capone Phenomenon

AN EXCELLENT example of the confusion in which modern society moves was provided the other day by a newspaper story which announced that a "Capone fund" is being collected in Chicago to help pay the expenses which criminal court litigation has brought on the gang leader.

According to this story, $50,000 a week is being raised so that Capone can keep on fighting to stay out of prison. The money comes from the speakeasies, and is obtained by the simple process of boosting the price of liquor.

And out of this arises confusion.

The overwhelming majority of Chicago's citizens, undoubtedly, are genuinely glad that the government has finally been able to drag Capone into court and convict him of a crime. He is about to get a small slice of what is coming to him, and they are pleased. In the capacity of private citizens, these people are on the side of law and order.

But a great many of them have another capacity—as speakeasy customers. And in that capacity they are actually contributing to the fund which the gangster is using in his fight to escape punishment. They want to see the man sent to prison, but they patronize beer flats supplied by his organization—and, as a result, are helping to fill his war chest.

Could there be a better example of the chaotic state in which civic consciousness finds itself today?

Capone is a menace to decent government—a jeer in the face of every man who believes that a great city can govern itself properly.

Yet he exists, not because the arch-fiend went on the loose and raised a horrendous specter to dismay us, but simply because a large part of the electorate wants something that only he, or some one like him, can supply.

He is a product, in other words, of what American society is today. The evil that he represents will never be wholly abated—no matter what happens to him individually—until American society has somehow emerged from the confusion that just now befogs it.

Building Air Giants

NEWS that the navy department has ordered the Goodyear-Zeppelin people to go ahead with the construction of a sister-dirigible to the giant Akron emphasizes the fact that this new ship will cost only about one-half as much as the Akron cost.

The Akron cost in the neighborhood of $5,000,000. The new ship will run to only about $2,450,000. The savings come because construction facilities are now fully available, methods of design and building have been more fully developed and the workers themselves are more familiar with their job.

All of this indicates that if the time ever comes when whole fleets of dirigibles are required—for transatlantic commercial service, or for war—the price of each ship can be still further reduced. Everything considered, it is amazing that a ship the size of the Akron can be built for less than two and a half million.

Railroad Relief

JUST what the ultimate effects of the Interstate Commerce commission's refusal to grant a flat 15 per cent boost in railway freight rates may be is not yet clear. There is probably more than an outside chance, however, that the railroad brotherhoods will presently be hearing about it.

When the rate increase was first proposed, it was common talk that the railroads, if the proposal were rejected, would promptly open discussions with the brotherhood leaders looking toward extensive wage reductions.

This talk may have been utterly groundless. Nevertheless, some such action would not be in the least surprising to men familiar with the situation. The railroads need relief. It may be unfortunate if they look for it in wage reductions—but it need not be unexpected.

Clear Mine Strike Picture Needed

THEODORE DREISER'S action in organizing a committee of U. S. senators and private citizens to go into the Kentucky coal fields and investigate conditions there may prove a move of considerable value to the country at large.

From all reports, something rather startling has been going on in these coal fields. When 34 miners are under indictment for murder it is obvious that a large package of trouble has been opened by some one; yet there has been such a confusion of charges and countercharges that it is hard for the man in the street to tell just what may be wrong.

If Mr. Dreiser's group can give us a clear picture of affairs it will be performing a real public service.

Veteran

Knowing full well that you were all I had—
I bowed assent and sadly watched you go,
And walked the dismal streets—a sickened lad—
Frail craft, indeed, to stand a lusty blow.

Each day I faced the challenge of your lure,
Each night your ghost played havoc with my dreams,
I searched in vain for any certain cure—
You wrecked and ravaged all my slender schemes.

But now, tonight, I know your reign is done—
Clear-eyed and gay I read your letters through,
And touch a match to kindle one by one
The record of a love that proved untrue;

And yet I know though I have ceased to care,
That heartbreak is a lovely wound to bear!

—DON WAHN.

Oh, Doctor!

The drama critics of New York have formed a critics' circle, patterned after the group of drama defenders in London. At the first meeting Dr. Henry Moscowitz of the Theater league (an invited guest), urged the reviewers to be merciful in their opinions and to avoid using wisecracks in their reports.

Why? Why not enliven the report of a dull show? Why not, when a show induces dozing, twit it in a sentence? Why not sum up "Cat and the Fiddle," frinstance, in a line—viz: "Cat and Fiddlesticks!"?

Why shouldn't the critic be readable and entertaining when the play isn't? Dr. Moscowitz headed a group to protect the public from the terrible ticket speculators. And what happened?

Most of the shows now go to the ticket speculators for backing!

It is our earnest suggestion that the Critics' circle eat an apple a day.

Classic

And what is more amusing than the wisecrack directed at that actor by one of the oracles who said: "The leading man plays the hero by throwing his chest out three inches and following it across the stage!"

Havanother

Or when Mr. Woollcott closed his review of a third-rate play by saying: "It has an exceptional cast. It can do everything but act!"

By Way of Report

Add to the long list of life's practical jokes: Saturday for most people is pay day.

Well, in 1932, when more people probably will be out of work—than at any time in the history of the world—there will be 53 Saturdays, instead of the usual 52.

You're welcome, Mr. Ripley.

Oh, Get Outta Here!

That Izzy Elinson person is in again. He insists that he knows a guy who has been stuck so many times signing notes—that he now goes around wearing boxing gloves!

Newspaper Man Stuff

An ex-sob sister for one of the local journals, happily married six years, recently caught her 4-year-old son expectorating on the floor.

"Here, here!" she growled, "where do you think you are? In a newspaper office?"

Are Cartoonists People?

Walter Hoban, one of the better crayon-wreckers, relates the one about the newspaper artist who illustrated a story in which the principal figure was a society deb. He picked a paragraph that called for a picture of the girl's bedroom and did a very good job—except that he drew a trunk in one corner. He explained, when asked, that he had never seen a femme's cell that did not have one.

Another cartoonist, nameless for the item, once made a likeness of Uncle Sam with a mustache. He stared at the finished drawing for two hours before he realized what was wrong with the picture. Do you know?

Several winters ago the late Charles Dryden did a series of tales about a peg-legged sailor, who always rested his pine ankle against the side of his bed when he retired. A so-called artist illustrated one of these yarns by drawing the old salt in the hay with the trusty peg in its usual place.

But sticking from under the blankets were two bare feet!

Nifties

From David Murray—On Broadway when a chap gives a girl a present he also gives her a past . . . The only thing Broadwayites know about the golden wedding is that it comes in bottles.

Surefire Hit!

The radio canary, Welcome Lewis, has a novel plot all worked out for a four-act play using but one character and the entire action taking place in a phone booth.

In the first act—a man falls in love with himself. In act two, he deceives himself. In act three, he kills himself, and in the last act—the receiver falls off the hook in the phone booth and the audience is informed that the jury has brought in a verdict of the unwritten law!

Quiteso, Quiteso

We miscalculated our time for our brief talk on the hairwaves last Tuesday evening. One of the items directed at South Bend, Ind., and the Notre Dame students, was among others excluded. Have a chuckle: The still photos of the flicker, "The Spirit of Notre Dame," which are displayed in front of the Mayfair theater, ought to burn up the students and knock them cold. One of the photos shows the renowned Four Horsemen, all attired in football togs, and two of them are wearing wrist watches!

Gag

Jack Osterman was loitering in front of the Palace theater the other afternoon with several other actors.

A policeman shooed all of them away—except Osterman.

"What's the idea?" barked Jack, "what am I—an amateur?"

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE ROCK THAT BURNED—The story of Burnt Rock ridge in North Carolina goes back about 50 years when Joe Loving, a typical mountaineer whose home is but a few miles from Robbinsville, was a young man. He says: "I was herding cattle at Kings Meadow, eight miles away. I kept hearing a terrible noise, like thunder or blasting, for a week before I investigated. For a long distance I could see the dense black smoke, and as I got closer the noise was almost deafening. The fire remained in one spot, and the noise was caused by the rocks exploding. After six weeks, when the fire went out, nothing could be found except holes in the rock formation." The probable explanation for the fire is that the crevices and holes were filled with peat which was ignited by a camper's fire.

Tomorrow: "The real Miss California."

THE GIRL WHO WON

By May Christie

Young and vivacious Nollie Day, public stenographer at an exclusive New York hotel, is befriended by the wealthy Mrs. Judson, a widow. One evening, Nollie goes to the theater in place of Mrs. Judson, where she meets handsome Tony O'Brien. She reveals her own identity but Tony does not hear her. Later in the evening she refrains from repeating her explanation for fear that Tony would lose interest when he learned the truth. Next day, Tony telephones and learns Mrs. Judson has gone abroad. Disbelieving the report, he comes to the hotel. He looks at Nollie without recognition but she believes it is because he has discovered her masquerade. Before Nollie can reach him, he disappears. Nollie secures a new position as secretary to Jack Brilling of Galbraith & Co. Miss Galbraith, Brilling's fiancee is jealous when Brilling takes Nollie to dinner and warns Nollie against overstepping. Brilling tells Nollie he loves her.

Miss Galbraith enters the office just as Nollie frees herself from Brilling's embrace. Nollie is discharged.

Mrs. Judson gives Nollie a letter Tony had written her abroad. Intending to help Nollie and set the matter straight, she phones Tony to learn he has left on a vacation.

Mrs. Judson asks Nollie to become her secretary and visit her ranch.

CHAPTER XXIX

"What extraordinary foolishness you say, Yvonne!" exclaimed Rhoda Vane to her maid irritably.

"But, Madame, eet ees quite true. The young man at the lodge who is a sweetheart of the parlor-maid's hede . . . he have seen them down by the lake together."

"Seen whom? Who do you mean?" Miss Vance glared at Yvonne's reflection in the mirror.

"Mees Nollie, and the dark, handsome young gentleman who was here playing cards yesterday."

"You mean they're there today . . . by the water?"

Yvonne nodded knowingly.

"And the day before yesterday, also. He is in loff with the young lady."

"Nonsense, Yvonne. You French are too romantic."

"But eet ees so. Charles—he have seen Meester O'Brien keesing her."

"What?" Rhoda sat up. Two red spots came in each cheek that the ice wasn't responsible for. "The secretary carrying on like that? Mrs. Judson shall be told about it."

"Oh no, madame. That would be unkind. She was very amiable to me last night—today. I do not wish that through any story of mine Mees Nollie goes in trouble."

Yvonne was distressed. She was sorry that her love of romance had led her into gossip that might bode ill for the young secretary.

There were thunder clouds on madame's brow. With quick Latin intuition Yvonne realized that madame was jealous.

How foolish she had been to speak! Why couldn't she have kept her mouth shut about the beautiful love-idyll down by the lake?

"I shall do as I think fit. Attend to my face Yvonne, and stop arguing."

The French maid pursed her lips. She had a temper of her own.

She put the rouge on with a lavish hand, so that Rhoda rebuked her.

"Don't paint me like a clown, as though I were going before the footlights."

Yvonne removed the offending rouge with cream and tissues.

"Now, just a soupcon, high up on the cheeks. I want to look pale tonight, so use the green powder."

The maid—after Rhoda had had a bath—slipped over her head a gown of eau-de-nil chiffon.

"And fluff my hair out more. Fix a curl or two in the neck. Not quite so Madonna-ish."

Tony would be here tonight. Rhoda would see to it that her cue would be quite different.

She went down to the wide, low living room with its log rafters.

A fire crackled on the hearth again. Rhoda had the room to herself.

Was that chit back? It was nearly seven. Mrs. Judson should be informed of her conduct.

But in view of her own confession about Tony, that would be a little awkward.

"Sour grapes," the thing would seem. Her hostess would think her jealous of the child Nollie.

The morning paper rested on a rack. Rhoda turned its pages idly.

"And so he's married her at last!" exclaimed Rhoda, peering at the illustration.

"Who's married whom?" Mrs. Judson had stepped in.

Rhoda looked up from the paper. "Why, Jack Brilling!"

"You know him? But of course you do. Madeleine's father has a place not far from here. I'll bet the honeymooners turn up and I have to invite them to dinner."

"Don't you like Madeleine?" inquired Rhoda.

Jinny Judson's thought had flown to Madeleine's jealousy of poor Nollie.

But don't speak about that now. She wouldn't trust this Rhoda.

"I don't care for Madeleine, either. She's a stupid old maid, as selfish as can be," declared the visitor.

"Well, she's a bride now, and maybe that will sweeten her considerably."

"And Jack will flirt as he has always done. And she'll watch him like a hawk after a hedge-sparrow."

Mrs. Judson laughed tranquilly. "Let them fight their own battles. What do we care? Where are the cocktails? Where's Nollie?"

"Haven't seen her all the afternoon. I expect she's grabbed herself a beau. She looks a shrewd little thing," said Rhoda with assumed nonchalance.

Mrs. Judson considered this. She is jealous as the devil—and her pride is hurt. This may be amusing."

So ruminated Jinny, who wasn't at all attracted by Rhoda.

"I told her to go out," was all she said. "She doesn't look too strong. She seems quite happy, roaming by herself. The quiet air and sunshine are good for her."

Rhoda's lips tightened, but she made no comment.

The telephone in the hall rang. Mrs. Judson went to answer it.

"Ho, can you imagine—it's from the bride and groom! There's to be a kind of a reception at the father-in-law's lodge up here tomorrow night. He's loaned it to them for the honeymoon."

"Indeed? They included me? Was it Madeleine who spoke to you?"

Mrs. Judson laughed cynically. "No, it was the happy bridegroom—Jack Brilling."

"Bored already?" Rhoda laughed shrilly.

Mrs. Judson had hung up. Rhoda went out to the foyer and lifted the receiver off its hook.

"Say, what's their number?"

"Iroquois 182. What's the idea, Rhoda?"

"Oh, Jack knows Tony O'Brien. He might as well include him in the party, too," said Rhoda, nonchalantly.

HARMON ROAD WORK PUSHED

First Contract to Be Completed in 11 Days

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Oct. 26.—Within the next 11 days the first contract let in Harmon county on highways will be completed, according to Major Danford, resident engineer of this city. This is only a beginning of the program to be carried out during the year.

At this time Danford is running a survey at a point 11 miles east of Hollis through Gould to the Jackson county line and it is understood that as soon as this survey is completed the contract will be let by the highway commission of the state.

All the work done to date has been done on U. S. Highway No. 62, known in the Southwest as the high, dry, cool, short cut to Carlsbad, N. M.

When present surveys are completed Danford will start surveys on the farm-to-market highways running north of Hollis and south of Gould, which were contracted for last week.

Altogether this will give Harmon county a good road program that will take care of the unemployment situation for the year, as the contract provides that none but Harmon county labor shall be used on the farm-to-market roads.

With the 11 miles almost completed and the balance to be contracted within the year it will give Harmon county 67 miles of standard grade highways at a cost to the county of $125,000, leaving a balance of $200,000 of the bond issue voted for highway purposes some three years ago.

Two Achievements Of U. S. Farm Board Named by Magazine

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (UP)—Although many disappointments are noted in the record of the federal farm board, that organization has been successful in two important achievements which have been given little public attention, the current issue of the business magazine, Fortune, said today.

"In two years, Fortune said, "the farm board has put the cooperative stamp on a greater commodity tonnage than the cooperatives alone were able to accumulate in their 65 years of troubled existence.

"Its wheat stabilization activities in the winter of 1930-31 averted what threatened to be a major collapse of agricultural credit, a collapse which carried with it the definite prospect of a national panic."

Compared with these two successes, the magizine cited the farm board's losses in grain stabilization of $200,000,000, and criticized its use of public funds for operations which it "shrouds with less openness than the minimum required of any corporation listed on the New York stock exchange." The magazine also declared that many of the board's employes seem overpaid.

Methodist Women Pick Tulsa for 1932 Meeting

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 26. (UP)—Tulsa, Okla., was selected for the convention next year of the women's foreign missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church in America at the closing session today of the 62nd annual convention of the society.

Mrs. Francis J. McConnell, New York City, vice president at large, and Mrs. Dorr Dierfendorff, Madison, N. J., second vice president, were elected today. All other officers were re-elected.

Author Is Honor Guest At Writers Luncheon Monday

Ruth Cross, a former Texas girl, Mrs. Palmer in private life, was honor guest at a luncheon sponsored by the writer's department at the Woman's Forum Monday during the interval between her arrival via American Airways at 12:12 and her departure an hour and a half later. More than 50 women waited her arrival to be seated at the luncheon tables where pink roses, ageratum and other autumn flowers made a beautiful setting.

Mrs. M. T. Clements, chairman of the department, graciously presented Mrs. T. A. Hicks who gave a charming introduction.

Miss Cross in response told of the trip by airplane she was making over the state of Texas by courtesy of the American Airways company, and stated that the winding rivers, the wide prairies and far distant Texas views reminded her of the value of perspective in writing. The short address that followed was the story of how she goes about writing a book.

Many people, she said, asked her where her plots came from, but asserted that her life was full of plots for stories and she at times had to run away from them. "Sympathy is the greatest tool in a writer's workshop," she said. "The sympathy and ability to put yourself in other's places will give you stories in abundance."

Miss Cross told of her inspiration when she was 14 years old to write something of the cotton fields of Texas as Mary Wilkins had written stories of New England. Her sympathy with Texas subjects was encouraged by the man with whom she studied story writing in the East and her publishers encouraged her study of the state; this feeling, she said, was the nucleus of "The Big Road."

Writing Technique

Miss Cross talked directly to members of the writer's department and interested all with her story of the technique of writing. With two lifelike characters and a dramatic situation, she said, the plot was born. She takes several interesting characters, puts them in this dramatic situation, likening it to an incubator or the subconcious mind, and lets them hatch a year or two while she goes ahead with her housekeeping or digs and plants in the garden she loves. The radio and legitimate drama were stressed by her as helpful to original work. Music over the radio and the characters in plays add point to the characters in the subconscious mind until the people of a writer's story are more real than those around her.

When the plot is complete she puts a rough synopsis on paper, likening this to an architect's blueprint; then she outlines chapter by chapter and this, she said, was like the framework of a house. The next step is making a rough draft with a fountain pen, not halting for fine phrases but getting the rhythm, the tempo, feeling and sweep of the story, like an artist's rough sketch before he finishes a picture. Next comes the draft on the typewriter, which she revises as she goes along and when this is finished, she said she really gets down to work. "I have grown as lean as Dante," she said, "chasing the right word." The value of style and technique, she stressed particularly at this point, stating that it took her four years to write "The Golden Cocoon." She added however, that one gains facility in writing and "The Big Road" was a much easier book to write.

The publisher was next touched upon, the speaker saying that an author without a publisher bore a suspicious resemblance to no author at all. She gave interesting points to writers who had not had work published for their final press and publicity work.

A slender, erect figure with eyes that looked as if they might see beneath the shell of everyday life, Miss Cross impressed her audience as a person of charming personality. She spoke quickly, clearly and with the ready words of an accomplished talker.

Books Autographed

Miss Ann Cargill of the Cargill Book and Stationery company, who met Miss Cross in Dallas and was instrumental in bringing her to Wichita Falls, was present with a number of volumes of "The Big Road," which the author autographed for their purchasers.

Mrs. Orville Bullington, who was a schoolmate at the University of Texas, drove her to the airport to catch the outgoing plane. Miss Cross goes from Wichita Falls to Austin where she will make an address to university students; from there she will go to Mexico and back to Austin to do research work for her next book, a story of the Southwest which she stated she hoped to make a volume of real authentic historic value. "The spotlight is turned on the Southwest now," she said. "We can expect to see great things in the next 25 years. All parts of the country have had their traditions made famous in literature and it is the turn of the Southwest now."

Announcements Made

Mrs. M. T. Clement, department chairman, announced that the next program of the writers would be by Mrs. James P. Bowen and Mrs. Ann Barker on Nov. 5, when a travelog on the orient by Mrs. Bowen and negro dialect poems by Mrs. Barker will make a timely and interesting feature for the luncheon hour. This program is exchanged with L. N. Cason who will give a monolog in March.

Mrs. W. Newton Maer announced the coat showing to be given at luncheon at the clubhouse Tuesday by P. B. M. company and Mrs. James P. Bowen announced the list of her committees in the writers white elephant exchange at the flower show in November. Dates of the flower show, Nov. 11 and 12 were given by Mrs. J. C. Mytinger, chairman of the Garden club, which is sponsoring the show and Mrs. T. A. Hicks told of the junior buffet supper and dance to close the festivities Saturday evening, Nov. 14.

and you do . . . when the blood has the "feel" of enough rich red cells

So frequently work, worry, colds and sickness reduce the red-cell count in the blood . . . then our spirits go down as the blood cells are lowered.

The process may be so gradual that we wonder "what is the matter."

It is well to give thought to those invisible—yet precious red-blood-cells—the "ships," if you please, that "sail" in the blood, carrying nourishment to all parts of the body.

"That tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness.

Why not take steps to overcome this trouble? A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health.

You cannot be low in strength and be happy—let's be happy.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Get Acquainted With Your Stomach

If a superhuman being were to draw a diagram of a human, he would probably draw a stomach and surround it with the nervous system and muscular and excretory organs. Napoleon said that "an army fights on its stomach." It is as true of the whole human race as it is of an army. Your stomach influences your life a great deal more than you know. Many people fail in school or in business because their stomaches are not functioning properly. The last time you got angry or jealous or disappointed, your stomach probably had more to do with it than you realized. If your stomach is upset, you may not feel any pain in the stomach itself but will, nevertheless, be mentally and emotionally unbalanced, so that the happenings of everyday life, which would ordinarily not distress you, may cause a great deal of anguish and unrest. You cannot expect to accomplish much in this world if you have a bad stomach.

Have you ever noticed that when you miss a meal you have a gnawing feeling? You have probably supposed that this feeling was because you were hungry. Clear your mind of that false notion just as soon as you can. If you have that gnawing feeling, it means that you have gastritis, which simply means stomach inflammation. That feeling which you think is hunger is produced by the inflamed stomach walls being irritated by excessive acid gastric juices or by rubbing against each other.

Although stomach trouble often produces no symptoms in the region of the stomach itself, if long-continued, it will produce certain definite symptoms, among which are discomfort and distress in the stomach, gas, gnawing or burning, cramp-like pains, headache, coldness or chillness which may only extend to the hands and feet, rumbling noises, throbbing in the abdomen, nausea, vomiting, confusion, nervousness and emotional upsets.

A patient with indigestion is likely to suffer from undue worry over his condition. An extremely rapid heart beat, shortness of breath, oppression and heaviness through the chest, wakefulness, dizziness, spots before the eyes and a general feeling of weakness are other symptoms. The symptoms are frequently diagnosed as indigestion. It has been my experience that a nervous stomach is one which has been irritated through many years of wrong eating habits and that a nervous digestive disorder will yield as readily to the right treatment as any other digestive trouble.

In chronic gastritis the patient is generally thin, due to long continued interference with nutrition. Chronic gastritis is also called catarrh of the stomach since the mucous membrane lining the stomach is degenerated and throws off quantities of mucus, which the patient notes in the vomited material. Chronic stomach trouble is the last stage before ulcers form.

I do not wish any one to try to diagnose himself, but, if you do have any of these symptoms, I believe that it is wise to have a thorough examination by a reliable diagnostician to try to ascertain just where the trouble lies.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Body Odor

Question—Miss Adele B. writes: "I am a young girl 20 years of age and have been bothered with body odor for about a year and a half. I have used different powders and bath salt but none of them seem to do much good. Would you please tell me, if possible, some cure for this embarrassing situation?"

Answer—Your trouble is probably caused by a deep-seated toxemia. In such cases the toxic elements are thrown out through the skin and bacteria often enter through the pores, producing an odorous perspiration. Even though the perspiration evaporates and is not noticed, the odor remains. A fasting and dieting regimen such as outlined in my cleansing diet course would prove beneficial. I would also suggest that you take hot epsom salts baths, in which a pound of epsom salts and one-quarter pound of baking soda should be dissolved, about three times a week, followed by cold showers. Sun baths would also be very helpful.

Meniere's Disease

Question—M. Y. J. writes: "Will you please tell me what are the causes, symptoms, and cure of Meniere's disease?"

Answer—Meniere's disease is inflammation and congestion of the semi-circular canals, and the symptoms are pallor, dizziness and various eye and ear disturbances. This condition could be greatly helped by following a fasting and dieting program to cleanse the system of existing toxins.

Chilblains

Question—Walter asks: "I am greatly troubled with chilblains. What remedy would you suggest?"

Answer—The best treatment for chilblains is to give yourself a treatment each day by immersing the feet alternately in hot and cold water. This will help the circulation and will usually get rid of all the bad effects which have come from having the feet frost-bitten.

Cotton Rate Cut Clears Situation In Quanah Area

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Oct. 26.—The Texas Railroad commission issued orders recently that the rate from Quanah to the sea be changed from an 89-cent rate to 66 cents per hundred on all cotton. The original rate was 65 cents per hundred. The order was made effective Oct. 22.

This change has removed the tangle in which all cotton men north of Quanah had become involved. It will do away with most of the trucking that cotton men were forced by the 89-cent rate to resort to in order to get their cotton to Chillicothe or to Crowell in order to save the high rate they would have been forced to pay to those points where the zone rate had remained the same as in the past.

The rate in Oklahoma remains at the same high point, and authorities state it will probably be several weeks before the Interstate Commerce commission can act in order to make the Oklahoma rate proportionate with the revised rates in Texas. Cotton men will truck their cotton into Texas from Oklahoma points in order to make a saving on the freight rate. Cotton men state there will be 15 to 20 thousand bales brought to the Quanah compress from outside points for shipment to Texas ports, if the present speed of cotton movement is maintained.

The rate for Childress has been lowered to 71 cents per hundred and all points on the Fort Worth & Denver railway north of Chillicothe have received a reduction.

PONIES DRILL IN SECRECY FOR COMING TILT WITH TEXAS

TEAM SHOWS VIM AND VIGOR

'Rope Them Steers' Is Motto Of School

DALLAS, Oct. 26. (AP)—The Southern Methodist university Mustangs today knuckled down to the serious business of preparing for the University of Texas Longhorns whom they meet in a crucial contest here Saturday.

Southern Methodist university environs were plastered with placards of blood red lettering bearing the score of the 1930 Mustang-Longhorn clash. The Mustangs found them on the walls in their dressing room. When they went to work on the gridiron they found them prominently displayed on the fences.

More than the usual precautionary measures were taken to guard the secrets of the Mustangs. All gates leading into the stadium were padlocked. Admission could be gained only through the main office and then only close friends to the school and newspaper men were permitted to pass.

The Ponies started the week with a warning that the University of Texas record thus far this season could not be expected to have any bearing on Saturday's game. Ponies drove through practice sessions with more than the customary vim and vigor.

"Rope them Steers" and "outdo Harvard" reverberated about the playing field.

Captain Neeley, on the sick list Saturday, returned to his position at guard today. Bob Gilbert, quarterback, was not among the uniformed ones. He was not expected to return to the team for another week.

Army Football Star Succumbs

Westchester county and into Connecticut the motor car roared at from 65 to 80 miles an hour. The mother reached the hospital about three hours before her son died, rushed to the respirator and spoke to her son. He did not stir. She was led away.

Following the boy's death, Mrs. Sheridan left the hospital with Capt. and Mrs. L. C. Warner of West Point, in whose automobile the trip was made from New York. They were to go to the Warner home to spend the night.

Double Fracture

The 21-year-old cadet's neck was fractured in two places during a thrilling moment of the Saturday game.

A "flying wedge" of Yale players swept down the field toward the Army goal, with Robert Lassiter, Yale halfback, carrying the ball. Sheridan, who weighed only 148 pounds, flung himself head foremost in the charging mass of players and brought Lassiter down. He lay stretched out on the turf, unconscious, after the other men had been pulled off the pile.

He was taken immediately to New Haven hospital where three famous specialists, attending a meeting in New Haven, rushed to his side. They were Dr. Harvey Cushing, noted brain and nerve specialist of Boston; Dr. Ernest Sykes of St. Louis and Dr. Samuel Clark of New Haven.

Emergency Operation

These three performed an emergency operation. One of the fractured vertebrae was hindering the process of breathing. It was adjusted. Then it was found that the nerves which control the lungs had been damaged and Sheridan was placed in the respirator.

The specialists said the blow the youth received was apparently of such tremendous force that it amazed them he had not died on the field.

Cadet Sheridan was named for the famous British statesman and dramatist of a century ago. He was an honor man at the academy and was admitted from the regular army rather than through the customary channels.

In his first year he stood fifth in his class in scholarship and he maintained the same high standard during his second year. He was president of the second year class and won a corporalship because of his scholastic standing and his soldierly qualities.

FOOTBALL TAKES THREE LIVES

Week-end football injuries resulted in three deaths, a United Press survey revealed Monday.

In addition to the death of Sheridan, Michael Kockick of Herminie, Pa., died at Greenburg, Pa., from pneumonia which set in after he had been injured in a football game a week ago.

Antone Zapocka, tackle on the Rhinelander football team, died of a fractured skull received in a game with Clintonville.

At least 11 players were injured in games throughout the United States over the week-end, all requiring hospital attention.

Knute Rockne's Son 'Carries On'

In years to come another Knute Rockne may be directing football teams to national fame. A son of the late Notre Dame coach of that name has started a gridiron career at a Kansas City boys' school. In the following article he tells some of the things he learned watching the "Fighting Irish" perform.

By KNUTE ROCKNE JR.
(Written for The Associated Press)

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 26.—I have played football ever since I can remember but my first experience as a member of a team playing a regular schedule was here at the Pembroke school for boys in Kansas City.

I began playing in the first grade and have not missed a season since then.

Last year coach used me as a halfback but this year has changed me to a quarterback. Our team is composed of boys who are 12 and 13, all weighing between 80 and 100 pounds.

While I like to run the ball and tackle, I believe blocking is the most important part of the game. If every boy on a team would block one boy the ball carrier should be able to dodge the 11th boy on the other team and make a touchdown.

Usually this does not happen because some one misses a man. Blocking takes more nerve than tackling or carrying the ball.

Some boys are hard to block because they sidestep quickly. I used to watch the Notre Dame team practice and they spent a lot of time on blocking.

A team must have a good line. I have noticed that we fellows in the backfield can't make much distance unless the line makes a hole for us. I used to like to watch Tim Moynihan block the men on the other teams.

I think if a boy intends to go out for a certain position he should watch some man who is good and practice on the things that are important. I try to shift as fast as I can when running with the ball as I noticed Jack Elder used to make many of his long runs that way.

KNUTE ROCKNE, JR.

Knute Rockne Jr., son of the late football wizard of Notre Dame, as quarterback of a Kansas City boys' school team, is shown above getting pointers from Coach Chet Benefiel. Young Rockne has a few ideas of his own gathered from watching the "Fighting Irish," particularly that blocking is the paramount feature of the game.

Almost all of the Notre Dame backfield run with their knees high, especially when hitting the line and I think this is good to practice on.

Some boys' teams try to have a lot of trick plays. But they usually don't work because too much time has been spent on the signals and not enough time on practicing blocking. I think a few plays are enough, but they take plenty of practice to go off right in a game.

The RAMBLER'S CORNER

By FRED D. THOMPSON

The Rambler batted .500 in predicting the outcome of last week's class B games in district three and four, but two class B games were postponed on account of mud, and so there remains the uneasy thought that had these games been played my average would have been lowered to at least .500.

The Chillicothe-Seymour game was not played. We couldn't have lost on that one, since we were wise enough to pick Chillicothe. The Burk-Megargel game also was postponed. We picked Burk and gave the Megargel bunch 13 points. That prediction will stand, but when those two teams meet anything might happen.

The three winners we picked were Olney, Bridgeport and Graham. We figured the Olney bunch would take things easy against Munday and beat them only about 40 to 4, but lo, they rolled up a score of 74 to 0. Decatur is much weaker than we had thought. We gave them 14 points, but Bridgeport rolled up 32 while holding Decatur scoreless. The Graham-Jacksboro game we doped about right. Our prediction was Graham 13, Jacksboro 6 and the outcome was Graham 18, Jacksboro 6.

Nocona and Bellevue fooled this department. Bowie trounced the Indians of Nocona 14 to 0. We figured Nocona to be at least 20 points better than Bowie, and still think so, despite their loss. Nocona was without two of their main backfielders, Zachary and Fenoglio, when they lost to Bowie.

Bellevue gave a lurch and upset Newcastle, 12 to 6, in a thrilling game. Newcastle had beaten Bellevue in a practice game early this season and appeared to be pretty strong. We doped Newcastle to win, 21 to 0.

In the class A games, the Rambler batted a clean 1.000. We did not venture a prediction of the score in the Quanah-Coyote game, merely stating that Quanah would undoubtedly win. They did, undoubtedly. Had we ventured to predict a score, however, we never would have predicted that the Coyotes would score a touchdown against that bunch. That they did score against Quanah will go down in history alongside Governor Murray's oil edict, the winning of the Spanish-American war, and the American Legion's boisterous campaign for beer and bounties.

Vernon, whom we thought two touchdowns better than Electra, saved our neck by being only one touchdown the better, and in winning 6 to 0, we hear, they did not exactly make the Tigers look bad. Electra outplayed the Lions, we hear—but we'll not go into that. This part of the corner is devoted to reviewing the outcome of the Rambler's predictions and we're through now.

On the Sidelines

Near Dan Stallworth, Indian coach, at the Quanah game Saturday sat Gordon (Fats) Conley, genial president of the Quanah school board—the former Texas university star. Near him was his business associate, Mr. Jones, and dawgonnit, I haven't got his initials straightened out yet. I believe he's J. T. L. Jones. I'm certain of the T. L., but not of the J. He has so many initials, I hear, that in Quanah they call him "Alphabet" Jones. Mr. A. B. C. D. E. F. etc. Jones. Just keep calling the signals until you get 'em right, or get the other team offside.

I met some other Quanah folks, among them J. A. Koch, the bull of the woods of the Quanah Tribune-Chief. Mr. Conley, Mr. Alphabet, etc., and Mr. Koch peppered me continually with rahzzberry, as did some of the other Quanah folks. It appears that several weeks ago I made a catty remark about the Quanah team bowling over a bunch of "set-ups" in their practice games. It also appears that two of those alleged "set-ups," Gould and Duke, had pretty powerful teams and that the other two, Eldorado and Olustee, had at least pretty fair outfits. Gould beat Childress and Olustee scored on Quanah. The fact that we slurringly spoke of these teams as complete and unadulterated "set-ups" seemed to arouse the ire of some of the Quanah gentry, and when my identity first became known out there on the sidelines, it was not at all difficult to see that some of the Quanah folks would have taken utmost delight in ripping a right uppercut to my unshaven chin. I must be a pretty good politician, because I got out of that hostile atmosphere unscathed, and indeed, parted from those same men with violent handshakes and expressions of brotherly love.

In avoiding complete extermination and possible lynching, the Rambler resorted to that old standby—complete honesty. We confessed that all we knew about those Oklahoma outfits early in the season was what we read in the public misprints; and that we had no idea Quanah had such a rip-snorting team. Well, honesty works.

I also met Mr. O. L. Bell, who administers justice in Quanah from his post as county attorney. But last Saturday night Mr. Bell was gloomy, and of the opinion that there is no justice in the world. Quanah had won, all right, but at the same time the Baylor Bears had been taken for a ride by the Texas Aggies. Mr. Bell's reason for gloom is easily seen. He formerly played on the Baylor team.

A Proud Mother

A little behind the Quanah bench sat Pug Norman's mother, in an automobile. Mrs. Norman, it was explained, is an invalid, yet she attends every game in which her son participates. Mrs. Norman must have been a proud mother last Saturday. She could not very well cheer her son on, because she was so far removed from the field. But every time old Pug slashed down on the field on his end around play, Mrs. Norman would toot the horn of the auto in which she was sitting. That auto horn, folks, was tooted quite a few times!

LEAGUE BARS OKLAHOMA CITY

Texas Loop Turns Down Western League Offer

In a courteous but emphatic manner, the Texas league at its recent meeting in Dallas voted to bar Oklahoma City and Tulsa from membership in the Texas circuit, J. Alvin Gardner, league president, revealed here Monday.

The league took this action in executive session and no publicity concerning the move was released, at the request of E. J. Humphries, secretary of the Oklahoma City club who appeared before the league armed with unanimous permission of the Western league club owners to seek berths for either Oklahoma City or Tulsa in the Lone Star loop, Gardner said.

Humphries on his return to Oklahoma City was quoted in an interview with the Daily Oklahoman as saying the Texas league clubowners "didn't even show me the courtesy of acting as if they were really interested in our proposition." The story adds that Humphries "figuratively had to force his way into the Texas league meeting, but finally got the floor."

Owners "Indifferent"

"He outlined his proposition," the interview continues, "and then left the room so that the clubowners might debate the proposal. Evidently there was no one who went to bat for Humphries for his offer was rejected in an indifferent manner."

President Gardner denied Humphries had been given such abrupt treatment. "He explained his plan to us in detail," Gardner said, "and when he started to leave the room I called him back, in order that he might answer any questions that club owners might put to him. He then sat in our midst and discussed the proposition with us. He was accorded every attention, and his proposition was thoroughly studied.

"His proposal was turned down because the Texas league feels it had a compact circuit composed of towns just as willing and able to support baseball clubs as cities in Oklahoma. Oklahoma City, despite its big population, has not proved to be such a good baseball town. Last year's attendance, with normal admission prices, was only about 38,000. This figure, however, was boosted to around 50,000 or 60,000 by "two bit" days and other bargains. The Texas league feels it can do as well as Oklahoma City, and without having to go to the additional transportation expenses that the inclusion of Oklahoma City in this circuit would involve. As for Tulsa, it has no baseball park, and even if it had one, we would not think of including Oklahoma City or Tulsa in the Texas league."

Sports Didn't Lose

President Gardner also denied reports from Oklahoma City that the Shreveport baseball club "lost a young fortune in 1931 and positively would not operate in 1932."

"The Shreveport club didn't lose a nickel in 1931 and positively will operate next year," Mr. Gardner said.

Humphries was said to have suggested to Texas league owners that the Wichita Falls club, which had a bad season this year, might be transferred to Shreveport, and the Shreveport franchise transferred to Oklahoma City.

"The plan was out of the question," said Gardner, "since Shreveport has no intention of leaving this league."

L. C. McEvoy, active manager of the Browns, attended the Dallas meeting, Mr. Gardner said, and while the league did not discuss with Mr. McEvoy the possibility of Wichita Falls losing its franchise next year, the club owners asked him the direct question: "Will the St. Louis Browns operate a club in the Texas league next year?"

Gardner said McEvoy answered the Browns "positively will."

Genaro Knocked Out By French Puncher

PARIS, Oct. 26. (US)—Frankie Genaro, former American flyweight boxing champion, was knocked out in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout here tonight by young Perez, of France.

Genaro was dropped by a right to the stomach and a left hook to the jaw. He attempted to finish the round by rising and rushing at Perez, only to find that he had been counted out. The first round was the Frenchman's. Shortly after the second round began Perez's hard lefts and right crosses had Genaro reeling before the telling stomach blow was delivered.

Sports World Mourns Death Of Charles Comiskey, White Sox Owner

CHICAGO, Oct. 26. (AP)—The sports world today mourned the death of one of its outstanding figures—Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox of the American league, one of the wealthiest and most famous figures in baseball history.

"The Old Roman," as he was affectionately known, passed on in his sleep early today in his summer home at Eagle River, Wis., after a long illness. He was in his 73rd year. With him, was his son, J. Louis Comiskey, treasurer of the White Sox, the only surviving member of the immediate family.

The body of the baseball magnate, the only man in major league history to rise from the ranks of a player to owner of a club, will arrive here tomorrow. Pending the return of his son no plans for the funeral have been made. It may be held Thursday.

Helped Organize League

Expressions of deep sorrow came from leading baseball figures of the nation. His death, they said, removed from organized baseball one of the leading forces which developed the American league.

"If ever a man fought to preserve the good name and the honor of our game, it was 'commy,'" wired John A. Heydler, president of the National league.

Comiskey's death was a shock to William Harridge, president of the American league, who said the league owed Comiskey a debt of everlasting gratitude for his valuable assistance in developing the organization.

"Mr. Comiskey was one of the founders of the American league, and fought shoulder to shoulder with Ban Johnson for clean baseball. He made a legion of friends throughout the baseball world."

Just what will happen to the vast baseball property which Comiskey left behind, remained uncertain tonight. Comiskey park, home of the White Sox, with a seating capacity of 52,000, is one of the monuments to the sport he left. The park, together with the franchise and club has been estimated to be worth from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000.

Fourth Leader to Pass

It was shortly after the world series scandal in 1919, when the White Sox threw the world's championship to the Chincinnati Reds to satisfy bribing gamblers, that Comiskey, shattered in spirit and health, began to fade from baseball, leaving Harry Grabiner in charge. He spent most of his time at his summer retreat in Wisconsin.

By a strange fate, death robbed the American league of four of its greatest leaders this year. Ernest Sargent Barnard, successor to Ban Johnson as president of the league, died suddenly at Rochester, Minn., March 27. The next day the fiery Johnson, who with Comiskey, organized the league, died in St. Louis. Jimmy McAleer, one of the early stars of the American league, and former manager of the St. Louis and Washington clubs, passed on at Youngstown, Ohio, April 29.

Lions Go Through Heavy Workout

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Oct. 26.—The Vernon High school Lions went through a stiff workout session Monday afternoon as the coaches prepared for the practice game Friday with the Altus, Okla., Bulldogs. While the Vernon mentors realize the Altus game will require a strong offensive game, they are not losing sight of the clash with the Quanah Indians on Armistice day, Nov. 11.

The Indians are regarded as the Lion's strongest opposition for a conference title and are favored by sport critics of the district. The Vernon team will be planning for the Quanah game throughout this week's practice sessions in preparation for Altus.

Much of the scrimmage work for the week will present Altus plays as observed two weeks ago when the Bulldogs downed the Mangum, Okla., High school team. The Lions came through with the Electra Tigers last Saturday in good condition and the first string center, Maney, is expected to be in the line-up Saturday. He was on the sidelines at Electra with an infected ear.

PERMITS INCREASING

The commerce department has issued 4,674 student pilot permits as compared with only 2,834 issued last year. An increase of slightly more than 11 per cent in passenger air traffic has been reported.

DEMPSEY BOUT IS PROPOSED

Mauler May Meet Carnera Or Campolo

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—Jimmie Johnston, Madison Square garden promoter, announced today an offer of 40 per cent of the gate receipts to Jack Dempsey for a match in Miami, Fla., next February against the winner of the Primo Carnera-Victorio Campolo heavyweight match here Nov. 27.

The former heavyweight king, who has been staging a barnstorming trip along the Pacific coast in preparation for another comeback, will be in Chicago within three days Johnston said, for a discussion of the match.

The Garden annually stages a heavyweight match in Miami. Until the Dempsey bout was considered, it was generally understood that Max Schmeling would defend his heavyweight title against Mickey Walker there this winter.

Nocona Gin Damaged When Drive Bursts

COYOTES GET BACK TO WORK

Pack Starts Preparing For Electra Game

With only two players on the injured list after the gruelling tussle with Quanah's fighting Tribe last week, the Wichita Falls Coyotes yesterday began preparations to meet the Electra Tigers here next Saturday.

Malcolm Mauldin, guard, was slowed up in the practice session with an injured shoulder, received in the first quarter of the Quanah game. Greenwood, an end who played a stellar game against the Indians, went into the game with an injured shoulder last week, it became known yesterday, but managed to stick it out and play one of the best games of his career. He had injured his shoulder in practice last Thursday, it was learned. He did not work out with the team Friday but played in the game the next day.

The Coyotes showed plenty of fight and pep in losing to the Indians last week, but Coaches Holton and Lindsey realize that if the Pack is to beat the Tigers, it must fight even harder, and play a more consistent game. With that goal in view, the team yesterday was drilled in some of the fundamentals it was not able to master against Quanah—notably the running of interference. Withrow was the whole show in gaining against the Tribe through the line, and what little yardage he was able to gain was obtained with little or no assistance from his mates. If the Coyotes expect to gain against the Tigers, the boys must first learn that a ball lugger can't get anywhere unless considerable blocking is done.

Coach Holton yesterday also drilled the team in punting and passing, and gave the team a brief outline of plays they may expect to be confronted with in the Electra game. Starting today the team likely will be drilled heavily in breaking up the Electra plays.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (AP)—Cotton was lower today under liquidation or realizing by buyers of late last week.

January contracts sold off to 6.67, making a net decline of 29 points, and closed at 6.70, with the general market closing barely steady at net losses of 26@28 points.

The opening was barely steady 10@16 points lower under southern selling orders, while there was also foreign and local selling promoted by large ginning figures and reports of favorable weather in the South. There was increased pressure from southern sources in the late trading. December sold off to 6.58 and March to 7.01 and the market closed with a point or two of the lowest.

The report of the census bureau showed ginnings of 9,498,041 bales prior to Oct. 18, which was within the range of recent private estimates but appeared to be slightly above expectations. It indicated an outturn of 4,087,627 bales for the first October period, or the highest for that particular period on record, and had a tendency to emphasize bearish features in the statistical position. This, combined with the increased southern hedging, was commented upon as tending to revive the fear of the early crop movement.

The easier ruling of grain and stocks probably had a contributing influence on the decline and in some quarters there were expressions of disappointment over the absence of more definite features in the Washington announcement regarding the recent conferences with the French premier.

Liverpool cables reported that hedging and liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling in that market and said the demand for cotton cloths and yarns was well sustained with more mills reopening. Exports today 56,146 making 1,447,674 so far this season. Port receipts 77,614. U. S port stocks 4,220,560.

Futures closed barely steady, 26 to 28 lower. Spot, quiet; middling 6.65.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26. (AP)—Cotton developed a decided reactionary tendency in today's moderate trading. A weakened technical position as a result of the recent good advance, indifferent cables, the large ginning total of the census bureau and easier stocks induced considerable liquidation by recent buyers. In addition there was nervousness over the British elections. The close was steady but at the bottom showing net losses for the day of 24 to 28 points. Liverpool is due tomorrow 5 penny points down on New Orleans.

The census bureau reported total ginnings to Oct. 18 were 9,498,041 which was larger than expected. The total shows that the ginnings for the last period from Oct. 1 to 18 totaled 4,089,734 bales, believed to be a record.

Liverpool came in unchanged to 2 penny points worse than due. Private cables stated that there was hedging and liquidation offset by trade calling. Manchester cabled that the demand for cloth and yarns was well sustained and that more mills were reopening. First trades here showed gains of 9-12 points, but prices continued to ease off after the start on liquidation by recent buyers and selling on the large ginning total.

After fluctuating erratically for a time during the afternoon, prices turned easy again in the late trading with stocks and on uneasiness over the British elections tomorrow and made new lows 24-28 points under the previous close with December at 6.57, January at 6.68 and March at 6.81. The close was at the bottom and 24-27 points net lower for the day.

Port receipts 76,835, for week 128,469; for season 3,110,955; last season 4,114,773; exports 55,367; for week 111,259; for season 1,412,839; last season 1,993,805; port stocks 4,302,584; last year 3,513,560. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 124,885; last year 125,820. Spot sales at southern markets 55,000. Last year 47,955.

Futures closed steady at net declines of 24 to 28 points:

Securities Markets React Poorly To Hoover-Laval Announcements

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 26. (US)—The securities markets gave a lukewarm reception today to the outcome of the Hoover-Laval conferences. The public announcement which, of course, presented mainly generalities, apparently was a distinct disappointment to the markets. That behind the scenes there may have been more significant conclusions not yet considered properly prepared for public disclosure, was not considered by the market. It was hoping against hope that some definite, concrete program would emanate from the widely-publicized meeting of the two governmental authorities. When nothing immediately promising was forthcoming, the market suffered a general price reaction. Bonds, despite sharp declines in several specific issues, closed only moderately lower. The turnover in stocks was not much above a million shares.

There may be surprise that the Hoover-Laval statement brought forth no constructive response marketwise. But for those who maintain an even keel the fact has been apparent always that to emerge from a world-wide depression of unprecedented magnitude requires ponderous shifting of economic currents. And these cannot be cacomplished overnight by politicians or by financiers.

The Laval visit leaves in the public mind a bewilderment of thought which reflected itself in the market. Yet it is unfair to say at this stage that nothing was accomplished. The very declaration of Franco-American accord, subject to parliamentary approval to be sure, on necessity for debt revision is bound to find appreciative response in the so-called international banking field.

This column insistently has proclaimed that material downward revision or complete cancellation of the war-created debts was a major portion in the "price" demanded by the banking fraternity for lending its support to the securities markets. Is it not a fact that the bankers secured an important concession in the Hoover-Laval discussions? Congress here and France's parliament, of course, constitute another barrier to consummation of the bankers' demands, but at least they have won an important milestone. Pending determination of the outcome of the debt-revision scheme when it faces political reaction, the bankers are proceeding slowly in the markets.

Furthermore, it is to be remembered that not all of a political conference's results are publicly proclaimed immediately upon its conclusion.

Lacking the incentive which had been anticipated from the conference, in the way of actual plans, the constructive factors in the market withdrew and prices declined rather easily. The comparative ease of the decline may have been in part a reflection of the absence of a short interest, though it is probably true that the actual short account increased today. The action of the market encouraged some new commitments on the short side. This was true of New York Central, which again was subjected to sale by an active bear clique, according to report. All of the rails, however, were lower, so that genuine liquidation played a leading role in their weakness, rather than merely short-selling. Some of the more favored issues during the recent upturn were down the most. Thus, Allied Chemical reacted more than three points on profit-taking. The stock had enjoyed a vigorous recovery from its recent low. The best-grade buying in Allied is mainly for the long-pull and on a scale downward. The stock is certain to be one of the most favored issues during a sustained advance. Steel common dropped almost three points net. The coppers reacted with the remainder of the list. Anaconda's setback of almost two points emphasized the speculative character of recent buying.

The business world's reaction to the revival program initiated by the banking fraternity will be put to a test tomorrow when the steel corporation directors meet to consider dividend action on the common stock. If, as reported, the directors are inclined toward making their contribution to the stabilization program an actuality, the regular dividend will be voted. Should they cut the rate, it will be proof of lack of faith in an early revival. Washington influence has again been exerted against the steel corporation to maintain its rate so as to not disturb sentiment.

The same problem will face the General Motors' board when they meet soon on the dividend. More than all the talk, the directors' action will reflect the judgment of business executives.

Barley—No. 2, 38@40c.

Sorghums—No. 2 milo, per 100 pounds, 76@77c; No. 2 kaffir, 75@76c.

Basis delivered group three: Oats—No. 2 red, 24@25c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 26. (AP)—Acting in unison with the stock market and burdened by heavy profit-taking sales of wheat, all grains showed a downward trend today. Notable reluctance which European importers displayed in following wheat price advances on this side of the Atlantic had a bearish effect. A further drag on grain values came from denials that any concrete proposals were pending for extensive French or German purchases of United States government sponsored wheat holdings.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝@1⅛c lower, corn ⅝@1¼c down, oats ¼@½c off, and provisions at 5@30c decline.

In some quarters, wheat market downturns were looked upon as largely a natural reaction from recent sharp advances. Helping to confirm this belief was the fact that substantial buying of wheat futures developed at times. North American wheat export business lacked volume, the total amount of wheat taken since Saturday for overseas shipment being estimated at only 500,000 bushels. Besides, a bearish construction was placed on word that the federal farm board had indefinitely postponed giving up figures as to the size of wheat stocks remaining under government control.

Best rallies in wheat prices resulted from reports showing absence of rain in sections of domestic winter wheat territory that most needed moisture. Kansas unofficial advices said that in 16 southwestern counties not to exceed 15 per cent of the crop had been seeded, and that the outlook was for 25 per cent curtailment of Kansas wheat acreage as a whole.

Corn and oats receded with wheat. Selling of corn against purchases of wheat had a bearish effect on corn.

Provisions responded to hog market declines.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, Dec., 54¼@⅝, 56½@⅝; May 59@59¼, 61⅝@½; July 59⅝, 61⅝. Corn, Dec., 46⅝@⅞, 37⅝@⅝; May 41⅛@⅝, 42@42⅛; July 43⅛, bids.

Negro Women Charged With Robbery of Man

Cora Hawthorne and Alberta Smith, negro women, were charged with robbery before Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs Monday morning in connection with the alleged hijacking of a white man on the railroad tracks near Ohio avenue Saturday evening.

Police Officer F. M. Dowdy, who with Officer George Garrett made the arrests, signed the complaints. The two women are accused of having taken $2 in cash and a cake of soap from the man, using a gun as a means of persuasion.

Clarence Burleson and John Bratcher have been charged with burglarizing a box car, it was learned Monday from George Anderson, assistant district attorney. The two men were arrested Friday night by Jesse Leverett, special agent for the railroad. Complaints were filed Saturday by H. G. Ellis, railroad agent.

Troops Withdrawn as Judge Misses Hearing

river bridges, the Champlin Refining company sought court action to reopen the wells.

Prevention of further interference by troops was one phase of its suit, but in a broader sense the refining company aimed at state conservation laws under which the governor acted.

Powers Tested

George S. Ramsey, of Tulsa, and H. O. Glasser, of Enid, attorneys for the company, said their challenge of the curtailment act was intended to clarify the police power of the state in regulating private industry.

The Oklahoma corporation commission and Governor Murray brought their power into play when oil, in common with other commodities had sunk to a low price level.

Last August the governor ordered the wells closed until the price climbed to $1 a barrel for crude. The militia was sent into the fields to see that the order was obeyed.

Laws Attacked

Only last week the court consented to take up one angle of the case. This was an appeal from a refusal of a three-judge federal court to grant the Champlin company an injunction against the corporation commission's order restraining oil production.

The new case, however, broadened the suit to an attack directly upon state conservation laws. Should the court decide to take up the appeal, the two cases probably will be merged.

Governor Murray receded from his assertion that the wells would stay closed until oil reached the dollar a barrel level. The price went up sharply but not to a dollar and some wells were permitted to reopen. They are still under military control, however.

Mrs. Ruth Judd's Attorneys Split

SLAYER STAYS ON COAST WEEK MORE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26. (UP)—Winnie Ruth Judd, arraigned on a fugitive warrant, must remain in jail in Los Angeles a week or more before she is returned to Phoenix to stand trial on a murder charge, it appeared tonight.

District Attorney Buron Fitts of Los Angeles, and County Attorney Lloyd Andrews of Phoenix, were cooperating in attempts to obtain her extradition as speedily as possible, and hoped to advance arguments on a writ of habeas corpus.

The writ is returnable Nov. 3 and necessitates holding Mrs. Judd here until that time.

Hearing on the fugitive warrant was set for Nov. 9, but this was not expected to interfere with extradition proceedings before that time.

Aside from the arraignment, little of importance occurred in the case today except that Mrs. Judd's attorneys split over plans for her defense. Richard Cantillon and Milan Medigovich withdrew from the fight, leaving their partner, Judge Louis Russill, to handle the matter alone. Cantillon explained he and Médigovich had been unable to agree with Russill "on matters of policy regarding our client."

Mrs. Judd's calmness was broken tonight when photographers attempted to "catch" her reading a personal letter from her minister-father.

"Is nothing sacred to you?" she cried, trying to conceal the letter. She begged to be left alone.

The letter from her father, the first personal note she has received since she was arrested, did not put her in a happy frame of mind for the night. It seemed to imply an under-current of hopelessness, and she wept when she read it.

"My dear daughter," the letter said. "You have many friends. Even the law is your friend and not your enemy. Above all, remember Jesus was accused of being a friend of sinners. He did not deny it because he knew it was the truth. He is the judge of the supreme court and he is your friend.

"Your mother and myself will come to you as early as we can and will do everything we can do lawfully for you. Frame all answers to questions with full consideration to the judgment day of Jesus Christ where all must meet."

It was signed, "your affectionate father, H. J. McKinnell," and was written in Bloomington, Ind.

Bodies of Slain Pair Found in Oklahoma Hills

IDABEL, Okla., Oct. 26. (AP)—Two nude bodies, past identification, were found today in the Kiamichi mountains near the Arkansas border, near Ultima Thule.

Officers, working on the theory of a slaying by robbers, sought to learn if one of the bodies was that of a Louisiana brush company official, missing since Oct. 18, when he left by motor car from a DeQueen, Ark., hotel. The man's name was understood here to be Etheridge.

It was the third death in a week at the same spot. Jack O'Dell, youthful farmer, was found dead there a week ago.

CITY COUNCIL

With Aldermen R. O. Harvey, J. N. Prothro and C. E. McCutchen present, the city council met in official session Monday night for the reading of minutes of the preceding meeting. After adjournment, Councilmen Harvey and Prothro, Mayor Walter Nelson Jr. and City Manager V. R. Smitham discussed informally progress now being made toward the collection of both city and school taxes for 1931.

Optometry Leader to Conduct Graduate Clinic In Eye Diagnosis

A series of graduate clinics in eye diagnosis and correction will be conducted here for three days beginning Wednesday, Oct. 28, by Dr. A. M. Skeffington, internationally known diagnostician and correctionist, according to information given Monday by Dr. G. W. L. Spencer, local optometrist.

Dr. Skeffington is a director of the graduate foundation of optometry, and only recently has returned from a summer spent in research work in Vienna and London clinics.

Clinics are to be held here twice daily at the Kemp hotel, it was announced, the first being offered at 7:30 p. m. on Oct. 28. Dr. Spencer predicted that many optometrists from this section of the state will take advantage of the instruction offered in Dr. Skeffington's clinics.

U. S. Court Upholds Texas Truck Law As Commission Opens Protest Hearing

AUSTIN, Oct. 26. (AP)—Preliminary to adopting rate tariffs and promulgating regulations governing operation of common and contract carriers under the recently enacted truck law, the Texas Railroad commission today started a hearing in which all concerned were to be given an opportunity to make proposals and enter protests.

A suggestion by contract carriers that the hearing be postponed on grounds insufficient notice had been given was rejected. It was claimed that a full 10 day's notice had not been afforded. The commission held that an emergency existed for immediate placing into effect provisions of the new law.

Under the old law, superseded by the one (house bill 335) enacted by the regular session of the 42nd legislature, the commission was not empowered to regulate rates of contract carriers, or class B truck operators.

The new statute, upheld by a two-to-one decision of the three-judge United States rates contract carriers shall charge for their services on the highways. The law directs that the minimum charge for contract trucks shall be the same as that for common carrier trucks (class A).

The court opinion sustaining the constitutionality of the law was filed to Houston simultaneously with today's hearing. The decision had been announced some time ago, but the formal opinion never had been made public.

Pending a formal order of the commission placing rates and regulations under the new law into effect it issued Aug. 22 a general order directing contract motor carriers to temporarily observe and apply as a minimum the rates applying to common carriers.

College Annual Wins High Rating

The 1931 edition of the Wai-Kun, Wichita Falls Junior college yearbook, has been accorded first class honor rating among publications of its kind by the National Scholastic Press association, R. O. Jonas, faculty sponsor announced Monday.

Mr. Jonas, who works with Miss Madge Davis in directing the year book, said the ratings means that the Wai-Kun this year was among the four or five best junior college publications in the United States. Perfect rating was given the class sections and the business management of the book. The handling of the theme was graded as almost perfect.

Miss Ruth Brice was editor-in-chief of the 1931 edition; Norman Tittle and Springer Williams were business managers; and several students were members of the staff.

Mrs. Debie Stanford of Houston, Texas, owns a flying school which caters to women only.

Chivalry was at its height from 1100 to 1400.

Approximately 100 men who will aid in putting on the annual roll call of the American Red Cross in this county next month gathered at the Memorial auditorium Monday night in the American Legion room to hear an address by H. M. Baker of St. Louis, disaster relief director for the midwest area.

Methods of organizing their campaign, and ways of completing the roll call promptly, were discussed by the speaker. J. Will Gray, director of the roll call, announced that H. R. Dudley, C. C. Kirby, O. T. Alles, V. N. Armstrong, and Dr. L. I. Lucey will head the five divisions into which the workers will be organized. Free postal delivery will be afforded residents of Marlborough addition beginning Nov. 2, O. P. Maricle, postmaster, announced Monday.

A total of 19 homes will benefit from the addition to the postal service here. Outdoor Club

About nine representatives of the Junior College Boys' Outdoor club went in a group to Lake Wichita Sunday afternoon to examine the new clubhouse site, which they are preparing to occupy. A. F. Edwards, sponsor of the boys, related that all the members of the club report that they are pleased with their new acquisition, and the members intend to make good use of the house near the lake this coming season.

Seniors Name Leaders

W. A. Bachman was elected president and Chas. A. Lindsey, sponsor of the May graduating class of the Wichita Falls High school at the regular meeting period Monday morning. The remainder of the organization was deferred until the next regular meeting of the class, according to Principal S. H. Rider.

Mid-Year Seniors Meet

Miss Lona Belle Spruill was elected by a large majority to serve as sponsor of the mid-year senior class of the high school, when members of the January graduates assembled in the little auditorium of the school for a social and business session.

After the choice of a sponsor, a musical program, as arranged by Marion Reesby, was given, with J. R. Holton, president of the class in charge.

The program consisted of a vocal solo, "Purple Road," by Miss Loudell Bridges, who played her own accompaniment. Marshall and Glenn Wharton, playing guitar and mandolin respectively, gave three numbers.

Bob Vigus, Anna Lee Cherry, and Levita Finley were named to serve as the committee for selecting the class colors and costumes. They will meet and report on their work later.

All-College Picnic

The all-college picnic Tuesday afternoon starting at 4:30 at Weeks park will be a weenie roast, according to A. F. Edwards, sponsor of the Boys' Outdoor club, which is sponsoring the all college outdoor affair.

Edwards and the club members are urging all college students to join in the frolic and be at the park promptly at 4:30 p. m. There will be plenty frankfurters for all, and plenty of games and fun will follow the stuffings.

The British pound is at bay. In many respects the battle of the pound has as dramatic episodes as any battle fought with saber and cannon.

Wichita County Boys Now Feeding 25 Calves on Home-Grown Grain

Seven Hereford calves were bought by G. C. McGown, county farm agent, Monday morning from Herman Mitchell of Iowa Park for members of the Wichita County Boys Beef Feeding club, and will be distributed Tuesday afternoon, it was announced Monday.

The distribution will take place from the stock pens at Iowa Park at 4 p. m. Tuesday, Mr. McGown said. Edwin Muller and Eldon Morris, both of Burkburnett, each will take two calves; while J. H. Miley, Carl Goetze and William Stewart, all of Iowa Park, will take one each. Selection will be determined by drawing, it was announced.

Tuesday's distribution will bring the total of calves now being fed by members of the Wichita county club to 25. They will be fed until next March upon grain raised by the boys themselves during 1931. According to Mr. McGown, the feeding club is being financed by the City National bank, which advanced the money for purchase of the calves.

Man Given 90 Days For Merchandise Theft

Ninety days in jail was imposed upon a Wichita Falls young man by a jury before Judge Irvin J. Vogel in the county court at law Monday on charges of theft and receiving and concealing stolen property.

The charge originated in the theft of merchandise from the automobile of a Goree merchant here several weeks ago. The car was parked before a local hotel. City officers recovered the stolen goods within a few hours.

Wichita County Agents To Attend Convention

G. C. McGown, county farm agent, and Miss Ethel Luise Webb, county home demonstration agent, will leave Tuesday afternoon for Amarillo, where they plan to attend a three-day convention of farm and home demonstration agents representing the Northwest Texas district, together with key bankers of all counties included in that district.

Wichita county is the southernmost county in the area for which the Amarillo convention is being held. Both local workers expect to return Saturday morning.
