Concert accident

IRVING — Fifteen people were injured Friday when a lighting and equipment scaffold buckled as workers were setting up for a series of Garth Brooks concerts at Texas Stadium. Nine people were taken to Irving Healthcare System, four were taken to Parkland Hospital in Dallas and two refused to be transported. The injuries were believed to be minor, Irving Fire Chief Richard Knofh said. Investigators were trying to determine how a portion of the steel grid — designed to lift lighting and sound equipment above the audience to give fans a clear view of the stage — buckled about noon./11A

Fair closes Sunday

The 18th annual Permian Basin Fair and Exposition closes Sunday at Ector County Coliseum. The event includes a variety of special attractions such as carnival rides, commercial and charitable exhibits, arts and crafts displays, live entertainment for all ages, livestock shows and a petting zoo. Fair hours are 10 a.m. to midnight today and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $4 for adults, $2 for seniors 55 years old and older, $1 for children 12 and under and free to those 3 years old and younger.

Selling baby

AUSTIN — A couple has been accused of trying to sell their 8-month-old baby for $10, according to Municipal Court and police records. "We don't get many of those," said Sgt. Doug Mitchell of the Austin Police Department's juvenile investigation unit. Arrest warrants were issued charging Ronald Steward, 36, and Rhonda Walker, 31, with sale of a child. The charge is a third-degree felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Southern Baptists spark controversy with breakdown of saved, hell-bound

By Jay Reeves
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — God only knows who gets to heaven, but the Southern Baptists estimate 46.1 percent of people in Alabama risk going to hell.

Since the figure from church research on potentially doomed souls was made public, it is Baptists who are feeling the fire, however.

The Southern Baptist Convention's county-by-county breakdown of who's bound for heaven and who isn't — unless they are born again and accept Jesus Christ as their savior — hit The Birmingham News on Sept. 5. It's been the buzz in some Alabama pews ever since.

Under the headline: "Baptists count the lost," the front page story included a detailed map and box listing the 1.86 million "unsaved" by county in precise percentages.

The Baptists said the numbers were only a guide on where to establish new churches and find more followers.

But some of the faithful, Baptists as well as others, are incensed.

"It is the pinnacle of presumptuousness to construct a formula for quantifying the unsaved," Jack Denver of Homewood, a self-described "practicing Christian" wrote in a letter that was among about a dozen the newspaper published from irate readers.

The Southern Baptists have done such demographic research for years, said Martin King, a spokesman for the denomination's Atlanta-based Home Mission Board, which compiled the study

President Clinton talks to Tim Hale, 13, of Sterling, Va., during the president's visit to Children's Hospital in Washington Friday. The president went to the hospital to talk to doctors and nurses about paperwork involved in running a hospital.

Clinton plans to ease load of paperwork

■ President promotes health-care plan, presses for simple one-page form for all medical claims.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton pressed on Friday for a simple one-page form for all medical claims, promoting his health-care overhaul at a hospital where paperwork grows at a pace of 6.5 feet a week.

A physician participating in the event appealed to Clinton: "Free me from the shackles and the burdens of this paperwork maze."

Clinton told reporters he hadn't decided finally on how to finance the plan, adding, "You have to give me something to announce" at next Wednesday's unveiling before a joint session of Congress.

Increased taxes on cigarettes and perhaps hard liquor seem likely. And Clinton broadly hinted the plan would include a 1 percent payroll assessment on big companies that opt for their own health-care arrangements.

Clinton's morning visit to Children's National Medical Center several miles from the White House was the latest in a series of events the White House is staging to focus public attention on his health-care reform package.

"It will simplify your life," Clinton told doctors and nurses at the hospital as the White House released a sample of the proposed national "Medical Claim Form."

The form asks a few basic questions, including a patient's name, Social Security number, health plan name and number, treatment required, whether an accident was involved and the initial and final diagnoses.

"We want to create a single claim form — one piece of paper that everyone will use and all plans will accept," Clinton said. He said such a form would go a long way toward "cutting back on all this craziness."

Clinton said the forms would go to every hospital and doctor's office in the country.

Under the administration's health-care plan, people still could "make some choices," Clinton said, "but it will essentially be one comprehensive package. No longer will hospitals and doctors have to keep track of thousands of different policies."

Artists fight back on postcards with sarcastic spin on suffering

By George Jahn
Associated Press Writer

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovnia — In Sarajevo's upside-down world, the Mona Lisa weeps against the backdrop of the city's destroyed skyline.

Instead of Campbell's, the soup can made famous by Andy Warhol carries a Sarajevo label and is bullet-pierced. An Uncle Sam poster proclaims: "I want YOU to save Sarajevo."

Sixteen postcards, creations of two exuberant graphic artists, are wildly different thematically. But all carry the same message.

"We got fed up with all the disaster and all the suffering," says Bojan Hadzihalilovic, explaining the sassy spin on 17 months of suffering in the Bosnian capital. "This is our way of fighting back."

Hadzihalilovic and wife Dalida are what remains of Trio,

Texas's collider commission chairman retires due to health

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

Charles Perry, a Midland-Odessa aviation executive and a staunch advocate of the superconducting super collider project, has resigned as chairman of the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission that oversees Texas' contributions to the multi-billion-dollar project.

"I am totally sold on it," Perry, 64, said Friday at his office at Midland International Airport. "I think it (the collider) is necessary to provide the basic technology for the country in the 21st century. I think it is a very good investment for this country."

Perry, who said he tendered his resignation to Texas Gov. Ann Richards last week, said

Musician to perform with jazz band at Midland Best Western

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff writer

Saxophonist Tom Braxton describes his music as "commercial jazz" to which fans can "definitely tap their feet" and "snap their fingers."

Braxton

"It's definitely groove-oriented music," said the jazz innovator, who is to perform here at 8:30 p.m. today at the Ramada (now Best Western) Hotel Ballroom, 3100 W. Wall Ave.

"Jazz means a lot of things to a lot of people," said Braxton, who grew up in Lubbock and graduated summa cum laude from Texas Tech University in 1983 with a bachelor of music degree. "It means everything from Count Basie to Kenny G."

Georgian conflict continues despite Russian warnings

TBILISI, Georgia (AP) — Separatist Abkhazian rebels battled Georgian troops for a second day Friday in the city of Sukhumi, ignoring warnings from Russia to halt the offensive or face the "consequences."

Russian military authorities predicted Sukhumi, the Georgian-held regional capital, could fall to the Abkhazian attackers on Saturday.

The city center came under repeated Abkhazian shelling overnight, which cut off power supplies, Georgian government officials said.

Two shells landed in a Russian military compound in Sukhumi where United Nations military observers are based. A U.N. observer team was stranded with Abkhazian forces that were refusing to let them return to base.

Georgia officials said 21 people have been killed and 118 wounded since the attack began Thursday. There were no Abkhazian casualty figures.

Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze, who is in Sukhumi, made an emotional appeal Thursday to Russian President Boris Yeltsin to use his influence on Abkhazian separatists to end the offensive and abide by the terms of a July 27 Russian-brokered cease-fire.

Since the signing of the peace accord, Georgia claims to have withdrawn 80 percent of its soldiers from the region and is accusing the Abkhazians of secretly stockpiling weapons.

The cease-fire and troop pullout had brought relative calm to Abkhazia, a former resort region along the Black Sea, after a year of fighting that claimed more than 2,000 lives.

Big test of peace involves Israeli parliament

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's unlikely new alliance with Yasser Arafat and the PLO will be tested in parliament next week, and their peace initiative may squeak through by the tiniest of margins.

If so, Rabin will have to find a way to mobilize public opinion behind his efforts or lose the momentum toward the next breakthrough: an agreement with Syria.

The choices are a nationwide referendum or new elections.

The showdown comes Monday when the Knesset, Israel's parliament, begins debate on the peace package signed in Washington with the Palestine Liberation Organization. A vote is expected Tuesday.

The proposal for a nonbinding, nationwide poll may be hard to refuse because it comes from Shas, the ultra-religious party of Sephardic Jews that holds six key seats in the 120-member parliament.

"This is the only guarantee that future agreements will not be attacked as having been made by a minority government," said Shas leader Aryeh Deri.

"If there's a majority in favor, the right-wing and the settlers can no longer shout that it's against the people," he said.

Deri suggested a referendum, which has never before been held in Israel and which will need parliamentary approval, be held Nov. 3, on the day of nationwide municipal elections.

Without Shas support, Rabin's Labor Party will command a 56-seat coalition and will have to rely on the outside support of five Arab members of parliament to get a fragile one-vote majority of approval.

Some Labor Party officials argue that such a victory is good enough but Rabin has said he wanted a Jewish majority in parliament, one that did not rely on pro-PLO activists.

Nissim Zvili, secretary-general of Labor, did not close the door on the referendum option but said such a decision could put the brakes on the peace process just as it was gathering steam.

"From one side, I would like very much to have a vote. We feel we have a very big majority that supports the agreement. From the other side, I would not like to stop the process," said Zvili.

A two-month interlude for Israeli parties to campaign could put a crimp in Rabin's ability to cut a deal with Syria, which is demanding the return of the Golan Heights that Israel captured in the 1967 Middle East war.

Right-wing sloganeering against ceding the Golan has had more of an impact on Israel's landscape than the PLO issue.

Farm fields, sides of buildings, car bumpers and balconies throughout the country have signs saying "Peace with the Golan" and "Don't Move From The Golan."

Lecturers to speak at museum

Staff report

Smithsonian lecturers will speak on folk art and exploration of the universe today and Sunday at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum and the Museum of the Southwest's Marian Blakemore Planetarium.

Admission to each slide-illustrated lecture is $5.

Jeffrey Goldstein will speak at 7:30 p.m. today at the Petroleum Museum on "An Armchair View of the Universe Through Space and Time," where he takes families on an illustrated tour of the Milky Way solar system and continues the journey to the farthest reaches of the known universe; and at 5 p.m. Sunday at the planetarium on "Looking for E.T. on a Planet Far, Far Away," where he leads participants on a search for planets beyond the Milky Way solar system and discusses the idea of extraterrestrials.

Goldstein, an astrophysicist at the National Air and Space Museum, received his doctorate in astronomy and astrophysics from the University of Pennsylvania.

Andrew Connors will speak at 2 p.m. today at the planetarium on "The Revival of Hispanic Traditional Arts," where he will discuss the revitalization of Hispanic arts and crafts by contemporary artists; and at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Petroleum Museum on "Folk Art of the West," where he will explore folk art and what it says about cultures and traditions around the cuntry.

Connors, a curatorial associate at the National Museum of American Art, is a doctorial candidate in folklore at George Washington University. He received his bachelor of arts in architecture and art history from Yale University in 1984.

The series is presented by The Smithsonian Associates U.S. and International Events, which is part of the Smithsonian's membership organization. There are more than 2.4 million Smithsonian members across the country; some 2,400 live in the Midland area.

Local sponsors for the Midland series are the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, 1500 Interstate 20, the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., and Plaza Inn.

The U.S. and International Events program visits around 15 cities each year to acquaint members and the public with Smithsonian research and collections.

Based in Washington D.C., the Smithsonian Institution is the world's largest museum complex. It comprises 16 museums and galleries — 14 in Washington, D.C., and two in New York City — and the National Zoological Park, also in Washington, DC.

For more information call the Petroleum Museum, 683-4403; the Museum of the Southwest, 683-2882; or The Smithsonian Institution, 1-202-287-3210.

Officials close Box Office Video

Staff report

Representatives of the state comptroller's office closed Box Office Video, located at 4340 W. Illinois Ave, around 3 p.m. Friday afternoon in an effort to collect back taxes, according to Jim Chaffin, district manager in charge of enforcement for the Texas comptroller of public accounts.

The comptroller's office placed signs in the store's windows stating the property had been seized for non-payment of state taxes. Police officers stood outside the store notifying customers the video store was closed.

An officer on the scene said the store's manager was informing the employees of the situtation and no one was allowed inside. He declined further comment referring all questions to Chaffin.

Chaffin, whose office operates out of Odessa, said the state does not intend to seize the store's property but will take the inventory and money to "encourage the payment of the taxes."

He said the procedure is routine but is not done very often.

"This is one collection option . . . when taxes are delinquent and after due process," Chaffin said. "It will be returned as soon as the delinquent taxes are paid or arrangements are made."

A Box Office Video employee advised the store would likely be reopened by Monday or Tuesday, but would remain closed for the weekend.

Today to be p. cloudy, upper 80s

Staff report

The weekend weather seems fit for romping in the outdoors.

The forecaster at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is calling for partly cloudy skies today and a high temperature in the upper 80s.

Winds are to be southerly at 10 to 20 mph.

For tonight, there is a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. Otherwise, the sky is to be partly cloudy, and the low temperature is to be in the lower 60s.

The sky is to be mostly sunny on Sunday. The high temperature is to be in the mid-80s.

Friday's peak temperature was 88 degrees, and the overnight low was 57 degrees.

The record high temperature for Sept. 17 is 98 degrees in 1977, and the record low for Sept. 18 is 47 degrees in 1991.

STATE

Most of the state had sunny skies and temperatures in the 80s and 90s Friday afternoon, although thunderstorms were reported on the coast and parts of West Texas.

Skies were mostly sunny over West Texas Friday afternoon, but a few showers developed over the northern panhandle near the New Mexico border.

Afternoon temperatures were in the 80s and 90s, with winds gusting up to 25 mph.

There is a chance of showers and thunderstorms over most of West Texas Saturday. Highs Saturday should be in the 90s. Lows were expected in the 50s and 60s.

South Texas also had showers and thunderstorms Friday afternoon, from Corpus Christi to Brownsville. Afternoon temperatures were in the 80s and 90s.

Saturday should be cloudy in South Texas with scattered showers and thunderstorms. Highs were expected to reach the 80s and 90s.

North Texas had sunny skies on Friday, with temperatures mostly in the 80s. The afternoon low in the region was Paris at 76 degrees. Abilene had the area's high at 89.

North Texas should be partly cloudy over the weekend, with a chance of thunderstorms both Saturday and Sunday. Highs Saturday should be in the 80s, and lows were expected in the 60s.

NATION

Showers and thunderstorms were widely scattered Friday from the Gulf Coast region to the Middle Atlantic states and along another front from the central High Plains to Minnesota.

In most places the rain wasn't heavy enough to cause flooding, though on Friday evening the National Weather Service issued a flash flood warning for the Christina River and its feeder streams and creeks in northern Delaware, where more than an inch of rain had fallen.

A slow-moving severe thunderstorm also was reported in western North Carolina, while strong thunderstorms formed in other parts of the state as well as in parts of Florida, Kansas, Nevada and Colorado.

Thunderstorms over Carbon County in southeastern Wyoming early Friday afternoon produced 3 inches of dime-sized hail along Interstate 80 east of Rawlins, the weather service reported.

Dense fog shrouded parts of Illinois, Tennessee and Arkansas during the early morning.

The temperature hit a record low of 51 in Bakersfield, Calif., and dipped below freezing in parts of the Rockies, North Dakota, Minnesota and extreme northern Maine.

Showers and thunderstorms developed along and south of a stationary front curving through the Southeast. A few thunderstorms were over northwestern and eastern sections of Florida. Light rain or drizzle fell in the Northeast.

Showers also were developing along and behind a slow-moving cold front in the central United States. A few thunderstorms were reported in central Kansas, south-central Nebraska and southeastern Wyoming.

Clarification

An editorial in Thursday's Reporter-Telegram contained a discrepancy about the observance of Constitution Day.

At one point, the editorial correctly noted that Friday, which was Sept. 17th, was Constitution Day. In another location, however, due to a typographical error the editorial mistakenly indicated the U.S. Constitution was completed and signed on Sept. 13, 1787.

MUSIC: Jazz player to bring message to Midland

(From 1A)

The music Braxton plays bears a resemblance to that of David Sanborn and Kirk Whalum, he said. "Those are two pretty prominent jazz players, and we do something in those kinds of styles."

The music Braxton plays, much of which he has written himself, combines elements of jazz, rhythm and blues, Latin, raggae, gospel and pop.

It is the addition of gospel with the other forms that Braxton said, "Makes us a little different from the norm. We mix the gospel and jazz together. Some groups are doing that a little now. As a Christian, I really enjoy that. Not only do I get to play music that I like, but I get to share that in the music that I write."

Some performers have taken hymns and made jazz arrangement of them, Braxton said. "It works quite well.

"Jazz is such an expressive music. When you're talking about music that is spiritual, then jazz is a great way to express it. The challenge is when you don't have the word and someone not singing, then you have to express the sentiment or the idea of the song through your instrument."

Braxton, who also calls his music "mainstream instrumental music" that comes from "a higher source," particularly likes the fusion of jazz and gospel.

"I think it's neat because people are finding new ways to express the timeless concepts of the Bible and the gospel, and God's not boring anyway, so he's into it."

Tickets for the Tom Braxton and No Compromise performance, being sponsored by the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs, are priced at $10 each or $18.50 a couple. Students from Midland and Odessa colleges with an ID card and students from Midland's high schools with a D-FY-IT card will be admitted for $8.25.

"It's good to be back," said Braxton, who now lives in Dallas. "I'm from the West Texas area, and I appreciate the efforts of Robbyne Fuller and James Fuller and the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs for bringing me to Midland. I'm very appreciative. I'm looking forward to the opportunity to play there."

Braxton first learned how to play the saxophone from his father, J.T. Braxton, an experienced saxophonist and educator who plays traditional jazz. He was drawn to music through his sister.

"My sister took piano lessons, and you know children," Braxton said. "I thought, 'Well, gosh, I want to do that,' "

The senior Braxton made sure his son began piano lessons when he was 10 and "first put a saxophone" in his hands when he was "around 12" and "in the sixth grade." He remained in the school music program and played in the band through high school.

For him, the piano and the saxophone "work together.

"The piano is where I do a lot of the writing. Plus I took lessons for many years and learned classical music and got my technique where it needs to be. The saxophone, you can only play one note. The piano, you've got the whole orchestra there with you, plus the synthesizers" which "synthesize different wave forms together to create some wonderful sounds.

"With sequencing — it's a great writing tool. I can sit in our living room and write a lot of music with it and with the aid of a computer as well. In fact some of the record was done on a Macintosh sequencing system."

It wasn't until he was "near the end of high school" that Braxton decided to pursue a career in music.

"Some people say, 'I picked up a horn when I was 12 and I knew.' But, I wasn't really sure. I was involved in a lot of activities. I was on the track team and ran track up until I was about a sophomore in college. Then I didn't have enough time to do both.

"I loved science so I took a lot of science through school and even thought about doing something in the medical field."

Once he made the decision to become a musician, he also realized he had to find "a niche for doing what I wanted to do. It meant going to college and getting some more training and knowledge. It also meant there was a lot of work ahead. There's a lot of competition because there's a lot of excellent musicians out there."

During his early years at Texas Tech, Braxton formed a jazz/fusion group called No Compromise. The group, which opened for such jazz greats as Joe Sample, Stanley Clark and Cab Calloway, performed together for seven years. After moving to Austin in 1985, No Compromise broke up in 1987.

"We all keep in touch with each other," Braxton said of the original No Compromise. "We are still good friends, but it was time to move on and do different things."

Braxton, who has performed with Luther Vandross, Philip Bailey and Bernard Wright, moved to Dallas where he formed Tom Braxton and No Compromise in 1989. He is the only original member of the group still associated with the band.

"I think the music has a lot of energy," Braxton said, speaking of the current lineup of players and what the Midland audience can expect tonight.

"I think it's fun. I think it's something that appeals to a wide range of people. It seems to cut across a range of ethnic groups and ages.

"Music sends a message. When you write music, it's a dimension of you. You're communicating something to that audience, and we like to communicate something that's fun, something that's positive. They'll like it. Trust me, they'll like it."

HEALTH: Chairman of collider commission retires

he is leaving the agency "to eliminate any risk factor that might cause deterioration of my health.

"It was obvious that I not keep going at this rate."

Perry, a chemical engineer, was appointed to the commission in the mid-1980s by Gov. Mark White and was reappointed in 1990 by Gov. Bill Clements. He headed up the project's land acquisition. Last October, Perry was appointed chairman of the commission under Richards's administration and has been active in the public-education aspects of the project.

Perry, who lives in Odessa, is chairman of the board of Avion Flight Centre Inc., a fixed-base operation at the aiport.

The collider, now under construction south of Dallas near Waxahachie in Ellis County, is about 20 percent finished and so far has cost $2 billion — $1.6 billion from the federal government and $400 million from Texas. The project, if funded, is to be completed in 2002.

Texas funds, which are to grow to $1 billion if the project survives, were used to acquire land for the giant atom smasher.

The fate of the project now is on Capitol Hill.

"I really fear that this country has lost the will to go spend the money for basic research that is needed if we are to keep this country ahead in the world in technological developments."

Japan is considering developing a similar project if it does not invest in America's super collider or if the United States's project is abandoned. Russia, India and China have committed to putting money into the project in Texas.

"They (the Japanese) have talked about building their own (collider) in Japan if we don't build this one," Perry said.

Already, a consortium of 12 European nations is developing a similar physics project near Zurich, Switzerland.

"They are going to wait to see what we are going to do before they spend (more) money on it," Perry said.

Perry reflected on what might have happened had the United States not funded the 1942 Manhattan Project, which produced the world's first atomic bomb. In August 1945, the United States dropped two atomic bombs over Japan, leading to the end to World War II.

"Think what would have happened if Congress had voted down appropriations for the Manhattan Project, and the Germans would have been the ones which developed the atomic bomb," Perry said. "What would the world be like today?

"We've got a similar situation here" in the collider project.

In Congress, the collider was "voted down after a number of eloquent speeches were made about the need to cut the budget," Perry said.

"The ironic thing is the manner in which they voted it down. It did not cut the deficit one penny, but it shifted the money for the superconducting super collider to other projects," Perry said.

"I think that is a sham and a farce for politicians to stand up there and say 'This is cutting the budget when they know full well that's not true.' "

The Senate is to vote on the project before it is reconsidered by the House of Representatives.

Texas already has "put $425 million into this project," Perry said.

"And Texas contractors have received contracts in the amount of $293 million. But if this is a pork-barrel project, it is pork for rest of the country," he said. "And Texas has been exporting $132 million.

"It really is a universal contract," Perry said. "It is a national project."

PLAN: Clinton promises less paperwork

(From 1A)

Answering questions later at the White House, Clinton said he planned another round of meetings on the costs of the plan and how to pay them.

Clinton said a "very good case" could be made for a 1 percent payroll assessment on big companies that decide not to join large insurance-purchasing pools that the plan envisions. Corporations with more than 5,000 employees could operate as their own insurance purchasing agents.

Meanwhile, the Democratic Party, helping Clinton to sell the package, planned to begin airing television ads on Saturday designed to counter insurance-industry attacks.

"The insurance companies may not like it, but the president didn't design it for them — he designed it for you," the announcer says in the ad being sponsored by the Democratic National Committee.

The ad is a response to a Health Insurance Industry of America ad campaign that contends Clinton's proposal will restrict consumers' choice of doctors and other health care providers. The industry spot, which began airing recently, shows a couple at the kitchen table criticizing Clinton's initiative.

Clinton asserted during his hospital visit that there are more than 1,500 insurers in America now. "Each of them has their own forms and their own different lists of what they would cover."

"We're stuck in a system where we're ruled by the form," Clinton complained.

His proposed new universal medical form contains a box at the bottom for doctors to enter various codes dealing with kinds of procedures and costs.

The White House hopes to prune billions of dollars from the nation's health bills by simplifying paperwork and cutting through red tape for doctors and patients alike.

The proposal is expected to require all health plans to adopt by Jan. 1, 1995, a single, standard form for reimbursement rather than the dozens of different insurance forms that hospitals and doctors' offices now must deal with.

SOULS: Baptists spark controversy with report and has national figures he would not disclose.

King added that the Baptists don't claim to be passing judgment.

"We don't know who's lost and who's saved," King said. "All we know is that as we understand the doctrine of salvation, a lot of people are lost."

But being lost means going to hell, King said, and he understands why others are upset with the list.

"People take offense when we say, according to Scripture, if you have not accepted Jesus as your personal lord and savior, you are not going to heaven," he said. "They don't like hearing that they're not going to heaven."

Still some are asking whether America's largest Protestant denomination with close to 15 million followers is trying to play God instead of preaching the Gospel.

It seemed especially insulting in this Bible Belt state where religion may be the only thing more sacred than college football. As elsewhere in the South, the common salutation on meeting someone for the first time is "What church do you go to?"

The Rev. Patrick Cullen of the Cathedral of Saint Paul in Birmingham said Roman Catholics viewed the index with amusement more than anything else.

"One gentleman leaving church last Sunday said we should get T-shirts saying, 'I'm one of the 46 percent,'" Cullen said.

CARDS: Artists fight back with satire an up-and-coming creative team whose future was truncated by the Bosnian war.

Before the shooting began in April 1992, Trio was riding high. It had won an award by Saatchi & Saatchi Co. for their creative texts and graphics at an international exhibition in Slovenia. And it was picked as the multinational advertising agency's representative in Sarajevo.

But the Serbs moved in and those dreams fell apart, to be replaced by one imperative: survival.

"We were in a state of shock," said Dalida, 27, of the first months of daily shelling and the growing need to scavenge for food and other necessities. "When you realize there's no water, no electricity, nothing but the chance of death, the temptation to do nothing but try to survive is immense."

Most people remained in that mode, shellshocked into submission. Not the Hadzihalilovics.

"We're workaholics," explained Dalida with a smile. "The more you sit around and be afraid, the more you are afraid."

They began their work anew, creating posters and other propaganda materials for the Bosnian army and then doing work for the few magazines that continued to appear.

But as the world's media focused in on Sarajevo's suffering, the couple decided the pictures appearing on TV screens worldwide were telling only part of the story.

To convey that Sarajevo was a city of survivors, they silkscreened T-shirts with a variety of defiant slogans — messages carried abroad by U.N. personnel, journalists and other foreigners.

But T-shirts became increasingly expensive on the black market and did not satisfy the artistic bent of the couple. So the postcard idea was born several months ago with the marriage of the third member of trio, Lela Mulabegovic, now in Switzerland.

"We didn't know what to get her as a greeting card, so we came up with the Campbell's soup motive," said Boyan, 29. "It started as a wedding card and turned into an obsession."

More than 500 have been printed despite the hardships of a city under siege — no paper, little electricity and the danger of shelling wherever you are. And plans are to expand to 100 themes with a run in the tens of thousands, conditions permitting.

The cards cost $1.50 each. That's unaffordable for most Sarajevans, forced to get by on a government handout of $4.50 a month.

NFL Hall of Famer Walter Payton encourages students to continue their education in the Food for Thought progam.

Retired football player speaks on behalf of 'Food for Thought'

Staff report

A retired Chicago Bears player, "Sweetness," is adding a little flavor to the "Food for Thought" program which encourages students to stay in school.

NFL Hall of Famer Walter Payton, who retired from the Bears in 1987, is the celebrity spokesperson for the program sponsored by Bryan Foods.

The Food for Thought program offers grants to teachers and scholarships to students.

The competitions will be open to students in Midland this year, including the "Write About Us!" essay contest, with divisions for students in grades 7-9, and grades 10-12. Entry dates will be announced later in the fall. Entrants will address the topic of what's right in their lives.

"In Concert with Bryan" will offer the students the challenge of producing a commercial jingle that will actually receive air play. The competition will be open to students in grades 10-12.

In addition to a scholarship prize, the winner will also receive a free informal concert presented at his or her school by the music group Alabama.

Scholarships, savings bonds and computer equipment will also be awarded.

Additionally, Food for Thought includes the "Bryan Teacher Grant Awards" which gives cash endowments to innovative teachers to use for materials or special programs in the classroom. Bryan will also honor the 1994 National Teacher of the Year state finalists from 11 Southern states with cash awards and a recognition plaque.

Food for Thought programs and competitions will be offered to students in Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, Mississippi, Missouri, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas.

Payton will visit schools in the 11 states to give motivational talks. His schedule for this year has not yet been announced.

KMB joins campaign to stop cigarette litter

Staff report

Keep Midland Beautiful has joined several other affiliates of Keep America Beautiful in a campaign against cigarette litter. One way to combat that litter, according to local officials, is through the use of a pocket ashtray.

The pocket ashtray program is an important part of the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco environmental program. The reusable ashtray is made of plastic and the inside contains a fire-resistent material to prevent burning. First introduced in Japan, the pocket ashtray has promoted "courteous smoking in that country for almost 30 years."

Officials added that cigarettes have always been a target of anti-litter campaigns. "Smokers who don't take the time to properly dispose of their cigarette litter only compound the problem," local officials added. "Cigarette litter — filters, packaging and carton materials — should be disposed of in designated waste containers and not haphazardly discarded."

Keep Midland Beautiful officials added, "It is important to understand that Keep Midland Beautiful is not promoting smoking but is promoting disposing of cigarettes in an acceptable fashion."

"We chose to take part in this program because we saw it as a way to make an impact on the litter problem in Midland. If you have ever helped to clean up a park or roadside area you know how many cigarette butts you can find. By using the pocket ashtray you will be contributing to the cleanliness of your community," said Cindy Botes, executive director of Keep Midland Beautiful.

These ashtrays currently are being distributed at several places of business throughout Midland. If you or your business are interested in the program, call the Keep Midland Beautiful office at 688-4190, or 688-4195.

DEATHS

Marsha Timmons

Services for Marsha M. Timmons of Midland will be at 10 a.m. Monday at First Assembly of God Church with the Rev. Sammy Hayes officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven North Cemetery with Ellis Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Timmons died Friday at a local hospital.

Robert Tarpley

Services for Robert Garvis "Bob" Tarpley, 63, of Whitney, father of a Midland woman, will be at 4 p.m. today at the Whitney Church of Christ with Ralph Gates and Ronny Harris officiating. Burial will follow at Hillbrest Garden of Memory near Hillsboro. Marshall and Marshall Funeral Directors in Whitney are in charge of arrangements.

Tarpley died Thursday in a Waco hospital.

He was born Nov. 25, 1929, in Anson, the son of Ernest Matthew and Julia Olive (Brown) Tarpley. He had lived in West Texas most of his life and in the Whitney area for the past 3½ years. He married Willa Mae Wheeler on Feb. 9, 1947. He was a member of the Laguna Park Church of Christ.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Mike Tarpley of Big Spring and Dan Tarpley of Fritch; one daughter, Marsha McDaniel of Midland; four brothers, Ralph Tarpley of Merkel, Ray Tarpley of Columbia, S.C., Joe Tarpley of San Antonio, and Billy Tarpley of Austin; two sisters, Onida Sevey of Abilene and Leta Dixon of San Angelo; and eight grandchildren.

James Neuman Jr.

James Vincent Neuman Jr., 80, a former Midland resident, died last Sunday. He was residing in Fort Worth at the time of his death.

Neuman was born in Redwood City, Calif., and he received a geology degree from Stanford University in 1934, and an engineering degree in mining in 1937. After engaging in geological and exploration work for independent consulting geologists and with the United States Geological Survey, Neuman joined U.S. Smelting in 1941.

He moved from Silver City, N.M. to Midland in 1952. While here, he served as general manager of the oil division and became vice president in 1956.

He moved to Utah in 1966. While living in Salt Lake City, her served as vice president in charge of mining and oil operations. He retired in 1973 and continued to live in Salt Lake City until February of this year.

He was a member of the American Institute of Mining, Metal and Petroleum Engineers, the American Institute of Petroleum Geologists, and numerous other professional organizations.

Durley Simmons

LOVINGTON, N.M. — Funeral services for Durley B "Jack" Simmons, 71, father of Ruth Hubbart of Midland and Jane Iness of Odessa are to be at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Smith-Rogers Funeral Home Chapel in Lovington under the direction of the Lea County Veterans Honor Guard. Burial is to follow at Lovington Cemtery under the direction of Smith-Rogers Funeral Home.

Simmons died Friday at a Big Spring hospital following an extended illness.

He was born Feb. 22, 1922, in Charlie. He graduated from Levelland High School in Levelland. After serving with the U.S. Army Air Corps during World War II, he graduated from Texas Tech University.

He married Lily Merle Bibby on Oct. 21, 1944, in Lubbock. She preceded him in death on March 15, 1968.

Simmons owned and operated Lovington Office Supply Co. and later was an employment counselor for the New Mexico Employment Commission in Hobbs.

Other survivors include a son, Durley B Simmons II of Arlington; two sisters, Polly Cooper of Olton, and Yvonne Donaldson of Wills Point; and four grandchildren.

Jury convicts singer of 3 felonies

LOS ANGELES (NYT) — Singer Rick James was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon and two other felonies, but a single holdout juror forced a mistrial on torture and sexual assault charges against the former funk star.

The 45-year-old Grammy Award winner, best known for the 1981 hit "Super Freak," faces up to nine years in prison for furnishing cocaine to one woman in 1991 and beating another one and holding her against her will in a room at a swank West Hollywood hotel in 1992, a prosecutor said Friday.

In addition, James faces the prospect of a second trial on eight other charges stemming from the 1991 incident, in which a 24-year-old woman claims he burned her with a knife and cocaine pipe, then forced her to have sex with his girlfriend after a cocaine binge at his Hollywood Hills home.

Jurors deliberated four days on those charges, but announced Friday they were deadlocked 11-1 in favor of finding James guilty. Superior Court Judge Michael Hoff declared a mistrial on those counts, and ordered James placed in custody. James is scheduled to be sentenced Oct. 8.

Hoff rejected a request from James' defense attorney that James be allowed to remain free on $500,000 bail to have time to marry his live-in girlfriend, Tanya Hijazi. Hijazi herself is due in court Tuesday, when she is expected to be sentenced after pleading guilty to assault in the case.

"I'm not concerned that he's a flight risk, I'm concerned with community safety," Hoff said. "That's the issue. I think he's a danger."

Defense attorney Mark Werksman said the hung jury, along with the fact that James was found not guilty of three other charges, showed that the case against his client was weak.

LOCAL/AREA REPORTS

■ Auto fatality

ODESSA — A 38-year-old Odessa man, Johnny William Dowl, died late Thursday night when his 1985 Volkswagen collided with a five-door Dodge driven by Larken Joiner, 16, of Odessa, according to a spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The accident occurred at 10:55 p.m. at the intersection of 26th Street and Sycamore Avenue, according to the DPS spokesman.

Dowl, who was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident, was partially ejected from his car after it struck a telephone pole following the collision, he said.

Dowl was pronounced dead at the scene by Ector County Justice of the Peace Dennis Bright.

Joiner, who was treated for cuts and abrasions at the accident site, was wearing a seat belt at the time of the collision, he said.

The accident was investigated by DPS Trooper Martin Molotsky of Odessa.

■ Sentencing

An Odessa couple arrested in June were sentenced in federal court Friday to nine years each for cocaine-related charges, officials said.

Moises Contreras-Olivas and Griselda Contreras-Cano received the sentence as a result of an earlier plea agreement.

The two, arrested by federal agents after a reverse sting operation that culminated June 2, allegedly had ties with Columbian drug dealers and were involved in organized crime, an agent testified at a preliminary hearing shortly after their arrests.

After their time served, the two will be placed on four years supervised release, a judge ordered.

Another man was sentenced in federal court Friday for unrelated cocaine possession charges. Felix Quiroz Jr. was ordered to serve three years, four months followed by three years supervised release.

■ Register theft

A shirtless man, wielding a large knife and wearing cut-off blue jeans and white tennis shoes, grabbed the cash register at Midland's Whataburger off Big Spring Street late Thursday night, ran away with it, but apparently ended up penniless, Midland police said.

The man, in his mid-20s to 30-years old, entered the fast-food restaurant about 11:30 p.m. Thursday, held a knife and demanded that the clerk hand over to him money from the cash register, police said.

She told him that she was "unable to open" the cash register, according to police.

The man then picked up the machine and ran away.

Later that night, the cash register and knife were located a short distance from the restaurant, police said.

Police reported that there was no money in the cash register when the robber took off with it.

Compiled from staff reports.

Indictment replaces criminal charges against reputed madam

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Heidi Fleiss, alleged madam to the stars, pleaded innocent Friday to an indictment charging her with pandering and drug charges.

A six-count felony indictment issued Thursday replaces criminal charges filed last month against the 27-year-old Fleiss, accused of running a high-priced prostitution ring catering to Hollywood actors, directors, producers and studio executives.

By taking the case to a grand jury, Deputy District Attorney Alan Carter bypassed next week's scheduled preliminary hearing, a sometimes-lengthy session in open court to determine whether a defendant should be held for trial.

"The media pretty much did themselves in on this case," Carter said. "The defendant has rights. Even though I am prosecuting her, she is still innocent until proven guilty and she shouldn't be subjected to the kinds of abuse that she has been by the media."

During grand jury proceedings, witnesses testify in secret. The benefits include protecting witnesses and any sensitive testimony they might offer.

Fleiss' attorney, Anthony Brooklier, said the district attorney's decision to take her case to the grand jury was unexpected.

Fleiss also is under investigation by the Internal Revenue Service and the U.S. attorney's office for financial matters, including a $1 million loan and income tax returns claiming she earned $33,000 last year as a counselor for her pediatrician father.

The next hearing in Fleiss' case is scheduled Nov. 19, but she is not required to appear.

Bosnian factions talk peace as blood spills

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — International mediators met Friday with Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic in an effort to win his backing for a new peace plan.

Meanwhile in Sarajevo, commanders of the Muslim-led Bosnian army and Croat forces agreed to begin a cease-fire at noon Saturday, raising guarded hopes for a halt to bitter fighting in Bosnia.

Despite talk of peace, the bloodshed continued.

A Sarajevo market was shelled, killing a 2-year-old boy and at least one other person. Eight people were wounded, according to Dr. Faruk Kulenovic of the capital city's Kosevo hospital.

Fighting between government and Croat forces persisted in central Bosnia near Vitez and Gornji Vakuf. Bosnian radio reported dozens of casualties in what it called the heaviest shelling since May in the divided city of Mostar in the southwest. Croatian radio reported three Croat soldiers killed and 10 wounded in battles for the city.

The central Bosnia and Mostar fighting has obstructed the passage of vital aid convoys for Sarajevo and other points.

Mediators Lord Owen and Thorvald Stoltenberg were to brief Milosevic on progress toward ending the war, which has left up to 200,000 people dead or missing and 2 million homeless.

Milosevic is widely blamed for inciting the Serb rebellion that began the war when Bosnia seceded from Yugoslavia nearly 18 months ago. His influence is considered pivotal to any peace plan.

At the cease-fire talks in Sarajevo, mediated by United Nations officials, Bosnian government and Croat commanders agreed to grant "freedom of movement on all roads to all convoys," said U.N. spokesman Cmdr. Idesbald van Biesebroeck.

The two commanders also agreed to disband all prison camps, facilitate the return of detainees and allow the evacuation of wounded, van Biesebroeck said.

"I think it's very positive if it all works," he said. Dozens of past cease-fire agreements have failed.

The cease-fire had been outlined in an agreement signed Tuesday in Geneva by Bosnia's Muslim President Alija Izetbegovic and the president of Croatia, Franjo Tudjman.

In a separate accord signed Thursday with the Bosnian Serbs, Izetbegovic agreed to the possible future secession of Serb- and Croat-held territory from Bosnia. The agreements could clear the way for a plan to divide Bosnia into three mini-states, followed by a referendum on secession of any of the states within two years.

Japanese minister: Economy's in dire straits

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's economy is in dire straits and needs radical reform, the trade minister said Friday.

Hiroshi Kumagai, who heads the powerful Ministry of International Trade and Industry, said over-regulation has stifled innovation and he warned that more jobs are likely to be lost.

The trade ministry has been a key architect of Japan's post-World War II economic expansion. Kumagai's remarks illustrate how two years of weak growth have profoundly affected Japanese planners.

Many of the reforms that Japanese officials now advocate — such as deregulation and reductions in the high prices of imports — are actions that U.S. trade negotiators have urged for years.

In place of the ministry's long-term favoritism for industry, Kumagai said Japan should build an economy in which "consumers can feel a sense of affluence."

"Our economy is in serious straits," he told reporters. "For some time to come, the Japanese economy will have to undergo a very painful time. There's no simple solution, like a miracle shot in the arm."

"We need a very radical reform of the Japanese economy," he said.

Japan's gross national product shrank at an annual rate of 2.0 percent during the April-June quarter. Most economists expect poor growth for the rest of 1993, despite a $57.4 billion economic stimulus package announced Thursday.

The package includes deregulation of 94 items, and Kumagai said more areas would be deregulated in coming months.

Eliminating barriers should encourage both Japanese and foreign companies to set up new businesses and create new jobs, he said.

Armed thugs bash Haitian ceremonies

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (NYT) — Scores of thugs, some armed with pistols, disrupted the swearing-in ceremony for Haiti's new foreign minister Friday, chanting slogans against the United Nations envoy leading efforts to restore democracy.

Prime Minister Robert Malval and his alarmed cabinet withdrew to an anteroom at the foreign ministry building. The armed thugs had come within a few feet of Malval but no injuries were reported.

The protestors allowed Malval and his cabinet to leave about 90 minutes later.

Uniformed police stood by as the thugs stormed into the foreign ministry building shortly after Malval told his small audience at the ceremony that "The Haitians' dream of democracy cannot die!." The police and a security detachment of soldiers mingled with the protestors but made no arrests, witnesses said.

Meanwhile in New York Friday, the U.N. Security Council warned that it will reimpose sanctions against Haiti unless the military puts an end to violence and disarms rampaging gunmen.

The council lifted an oil and arms embargo last month after the military agreed to restore democracy and allow the return of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, who was ousted in a September 1991 military-backed coup.

Aristide is to return to Haiti by Oct. 30 under terms of a U.N.-brokered peace plan that was crafted several months ago by U.N. envoy Dante Caputo.

The thugs who disrupted Friday's swearing-in ceremony in Port-au-Prince are known here as "attaches" who operate with the tacit backing of Haiti's army and police. The attaches are opposed to the return of Aristide and are trying to disrupt the fledgling government of Malval, who was sworn in less than three weeks ago.

Arafat, Peres, Rabin receive prize for peace

PARIS (AP) — UNESCO awarded its third annual peace prize Friday to Yitzhak Rabin, Shimon Peres and Yasser Arafat for reaching the historic peace agreement between Israel and the PLO.

A jury headed by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger selected the three men, who will receive the award and $144,000 in prize money at a ceremony later this year.

Rabin, the Israeli prime minister, and Peres, his foreign minister, shared the spotlight with Arafat, the PLO chairman, at the White House ceremony where the pact was signed Monday.

Kissinger called the agreement, which establishes principles of Palestinian self-rule for the occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank, "the most spectacular and important event" of the year.

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization prize was first awarded in 1991, going jointly to South African President F.W. de Klerk and African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela.

Last year, the prize went to the International Academy of Law in the Hague, Netherlands.

Clinton urges China to cancel apparent nuclear bomb test

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton urged China on Friday to cancel an underground nuclear bomb test, assuring the Beijing government that it has nothing to fear from the world's other atomic powers.

His remarks capped weeks of intense behind-the-scenes diplomacy, including contacts by senior State Department officials with other governments asking them to put pressure on China to scrap the planned test.

Intelligence reports gleaned from satellites and intercepted electronic signals show that China has readied its isolated Lop Nor test site for a detonation, U.S. officials say.

About two weeks ago, China drilled holes into the ground at the desert site in Xinjiang province, and about a week ago it inserted a nuclear device deep into one of the holes, said an administration official who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

"I'm still very hopeful that the Chinese will not do that, and I have asked other nations that have relationships with China to also encourage them not to do it," Clinton told reporters in response to a question about the prospective detonation.

Police interview suspects amidst racism rumors

MONTICELLO, Fla. (AP) — Law enforcement officials squabbled Friday as civil rights groups stepped up criticism of police interviewing dozens of black teenagers with troubled pasts to find suspects in a British tourist's murder.

In the glare of international media attention, police denied that charges of racism and leaks about black teen-age suspects are jeopardizing their investigation.

Authorities also disputed comments made by state Deputy Attorney General Pete Antonacci that a 13-year-old with a record of 56 arrests and a 15-year-old are the leading suspects.

Gary Colley, 34, was fatally shot during an attempted robbery at an Interstate 10 rest stop where he and his girlfriend had pulled over for a nap. Margaret Ann Jagger, who was wounded in the attack, arrived home in Britain on Friday and issued a statement read by police at a Friday morning briefing.

"I still love America and intend to return," the 35-year-old Ms. Jagger said. Colley's body was returned on the same plane. He was the ninth foreign visitor slain in Florida since October 1992 and the second in less than a week. The killings have jolted the state's $31 billion-a-year tourism industry.

EPA: NAFTA to provide border project money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North American Free Trade Agreement will provide up to $10 billion for water and sewer lines along the U.S.-Mexico border, but toxic waste cleanup plans are still unresolved, the government said Friday.

The Environmental Protection Agency is assessing cleanup needs along the 2,000-mile border, where industrial plants in search of cheap Mexican labor have generated a vast toxic waste and pollution problem, said administrator Carol Browner.

The agency plans to establish an EPA office in the border region and is developing an overall "border action plan," she said.

Mexico and the United States will spend between $8 and $10 billion for water and sewer lines, she said.

The money is to be raised through grants, expected to be about $150 a year on the U.S. side, and by user fees that will appear on the water bil's of customers in the area, officials said.

But it was unclear how much additional money might be devoted to cleanup efforts. Browner said there are no estimates yet of the need.

The United States this year is spending $230 million on border environmental problems, including money to build waste water treatment plants and water purification plants in the San Diego-Tijuana area, Arizona, Texas and New Mexico.

The Sierra Club estimated that beyond needed sewer construction, $1 billion is needed to clean up hazardous waste, on top of $100 million for municipal solid-waste dumps, and $500 million worth of air pollution control equipment on industrial facilities.

Browner, continuing the administration's hard sell of the trade pact, told a group of reporters there is "a tremendous amount of disinformation" on the environmental aspects of the agreement.

The environmental community is split on whether to endorse the trade pact, with the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth and sevaral other groups argue it provides insufficient environmental protections.

But Browner argued that endorsements from six prominent environmental groups should be accorded more weight than the opposition of many other organizations.

She disputed an argument by opponents that the trade pact would allow unsafe Mexican produce to be shipped to U.S. consumers. No produce sprayed with pesticides banned in this country would be allowed across the border, she said.

The pact does not allow one country to challenge another's environmental laws and standards as constituting unfair trade barriers, she said.

But Browner said she and her counterparts in Canada and Mexico will review the issue of whether a country can impose restrictions on imported products made in a way that damages the environment.

U.S. eyes options in Bosnia, Somalia

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Plans to send a 50,000-member NATO peacekeeping force, including 25,000 American soldiers, to Bosnia and Herzegovina after the fighting stops there will be considered by the alliance's ambassadors in Brussels on Wednesday, diplomats and military officials said Friday.

"There's no map yet, and the force's mission hasn't been precisely described, but contingency planning is moving forward," a NATO military spokesman said Friday.

The force would not be sent to Bosnia unless the U.N. formally requested it. Some soldiers may be provided by Russia and other countries that do not belong to NATO.

Washington wants the force's commander to be Adm. Jeremy M. Boorda of the United States, NATO's commander for southern Europe. Britain and France want ultimate control to be exercised by the U.N..

Elsewhere, responding to calls for the withdrawal of American troops from Somalia, President Clinton said the United States cannot allow the East African nation to revert back to a state of mass starvation and lawlessness.

"We certainly can't afford to do anything that would permit the country, after all the efforts the United Nations has made, to deteriorate to its former condition where hundreds of thousands of people are killed or starved at random," Clinton said.

He said the United States favors a political initiative to stop the increasing violence in Mogadishu, where U.N. peacekeepers are entangled in near daily clashes with the followers of fugitive warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid.

Any political initiative must enable Somalis "to take control of their own affairs in peace, in dignity and without starvation and murder," Clinton said.

The Pentagon, meanwhile, announced that 40 Army combat engineers would be sent to Mogadishu to help U.S. forces detect and clear mines.

Casting doubt on any accommodation with Aidid, Clinton said, "We don't want to do something that rewards the very conduct we went to Somalia to put an end to."

Clinton discussed Somalia in an Oval Office meeting with Italian Prime Minister Carlo Ciampi. The two leaders later spoke at a news conference in the East Room.

Gunman shoots students, commits suicide

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP) — A man walked onto a school football field Friday with a rifle and a handgun and started firing at children in a gym class, wounding four before killing himself.

Two of the students were hospitalized, but none was seriously hurt. The 29-year-old gunman's motives weren't immediately clear. He shot at random at sixth- and seventh-graders and died at a hospital less than four hours later.

"He just walked onto the field and started shooting at everybody," said Dan Bremkamp, a pupil who was on the field. "At first, we were all in shock and then the teacher said to go inside and get under a table or something."

No one saw the gunman, Kevin Newman, as he approached the field.

"There were two groups playing and he walked onto the middle of the field and started shooting," said Russell Carlson, school superintendent for the town of 14,000 in north-central Wyoming.

One the teacher, Vicky Hanft, realized what was going on she "started waving kids off the field," he said. "Fortunately, she's an experienced teacher who knew how to react in a serious situation."

Newman shot himself in the head and died at Sheridan County Memorial Hospital.

Investigators found a suicide note in Newman's motel room.

Cuban attack jet lands in America, evades detection

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A Cuban MiG jet landed Friday at Key West Naval Air Station, apparently without any U.S. agencies tracking its flight, government sources said.

The MiG-21 landed without incident at the base in the southernmost city in the continental United States, a State Department official said on condition of anonymity. Key West is only 90 miles from the Cuban coast.

The Soviet-made military jet is a single seater, but it was not immediately known how many people were aboard.

"We didn't see or chase it," a federal official said.

GOP blasts Dems for propaganda, taxes

Scott Rothschild
Associated Press writer

AUSTIN — State Republicans are accusing Texas Democratic leaders of waste, fraud and failure. The GOP also announced hiring a campaign veteran to keep the heat turned up.

Democrats defended their records, and turned the criticism back on Republicans.

Welcome to the 1994 campaign.

Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, State Comptroller John Sharp and Attorney General Dan Morales "have used their taxpayer-funded offices to churn out reams of self-promoting propaganda," State GOP Chairman Fred Meyer said Thursday.

Meyer blamed the Democrats for a 46 percent budget increase, local property tax hikes, a business income tax and the addition of 22,000 state employees.

He also announced the hiring of Ray Sullivan, who recently worked for U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, to lead a statewide campaign to "focus on Richards' policy failures and the failures of other leading Democrats to live up to their promises."

'Governor Richards (other democrats) have used their taxpayer-funded offices to churn out reams of self-promoting propaganda.'

— Fred Meyer, state GOP chairman

Richards' spokesman Bill Cryer defended the governor, saying that the current state budget has a lower increase from a previous budget since the 1950s, the crime rate is down, students are scoring higher on school tests and the number of Texas jobs has increased more than any other state.

"We're getting into the silly season of Fred Meyer churning out a press release a day and the press getting response," Cryer said.

Morales' spokesman Ron Dusek said, "The attorney general said he is too busy with his official duties of running the attorney general's office to respond to political rhetoric."

Bullock said through spokeswoman Mary Jane Wardlow, "I'm not surprised that Fred Meyer has hired a political consultant."

Andy Welch, a spokesman for Sharp, called Meyer's charges "baseless."

Welch said increases in the budget and state work force were mostly the result of federal requirements and public demands for more prisons and law enforcement.

He said that the Legislature was able to avoid a tax increase last session because of money-saving changes proposed by Sharp, which were endorsed by Meyer. Welch noted that one Republican group was so impressed with Sharp's cost-cutting recommendations that they asked him to switch parties.

"Now that the election is approaching, it's Republicans whose feet are shaking in the sand because the Democrats brought about all these good things," Welch said.

Scaffold injures 15 before Garth Brooks show

IRVING (AP) — Fifteen people were injured Friday when a lighting and equipment scaffold buckled as workers were setting up for a series of Garth Brooks concerts at Texas Stadium.

Nine people were taken to Irving Healthcare System, four were taken to Parkland Hospital in Dallas and two refused to be transported. The injuries were believed to be minor, Irving Fire Chief Richard Knofh said.

Investigators were trying to determine how a portion of the grid — designed to lift lighting and sound equipment above the audience to give fans a clear view of the stage — buckled about noon.

Rob Devlin, a 25-year-old independent contractor, said he was on the grid with two other workers. He described the grid is 100 feet wide and 190 feet long.

"It snapped in half and I held on," Devlin said. "All three of us took control of the situation and did what we had to do to get the hell out of there."

Bruce Hardy, president of the Texas Stadium Corp., told radio station KRLD that the shows will go on as scheduled. He said stadium officials won't know why the grid collapsed until the equipment can be lowered and examined.

Officials with Glenn Smith Presents, Brooks' concert promoter, could not immediately be reached for comment.

Brooks, the best-selling country artist in history, sold out three shows Sept. 23-25 at Texas Stadium, which seats 65,000. A free lip-sync concert was added Sept. 26 to film close-ups and retakes for a television special.

Knofh said the grid buckled but never actually crashed onto the stage. Workers on the structure and underneath on the stage were hurt. No one was pinned, he said.

Devlin said he and Ed Shugart slid down using cables, helping the third worker who was injured.

Shugart said lights and speakers were being attached to the grid while he and the others were checking the cables. The center of the grid collapsed and the structure swung for about a minute, he said.

Shugart said he heard pins popping before the grid gave way.

8th grader who killed mom gets adult court trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A suburban Houston eighth-grader will be tried as an adult for the May 17 fatal shooting of his mother, a crime the boy said Satan told him to commit.

State District Judge Robert Lowry waived Juvenile Court jurisdiction Thursday over the 15-year-old and ordered that Harris County grand jurors consider indicting him in the shooting of Arlette Merritt, 47.

Prosecutor Kris Moore provided the judge with evidence that suggested the teen was fascinated with Satanism and, in collaboration with a 14-year-old neighbor, had created a 10-name "hit list" of people they wanted to kill, including relatives, his church pastor and school officials.

Arlette Merritt was shot twice in the head with a .22-caliber rifle. Her body was found on the couch at her home in Kingwood, a northeast Harris County community.

When Harris County sheriff's deputies took the youth into custody, they found him sobbing and holding his mother's picture, saying: "The devil made me do it."

The teen-ager told authorities he heard the devil's voice speaking to him when he listened to the heavy metal rock group Megadeth. A psychologist told Lowry the youth needs anti-psychotic medication to control auditory hallucinations.

The accused co-defendant in the killing awaits prosecution in juvenile court.

ACLU supports producer of safe sex cable show

AUSTIN (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union will cover legal expenses for the producer of a program about safer sex, who was indicted for broadcasting explicit sex scenes between two men on a public access cable TV channel.

A spokeswoman for the ACLU's Central Texas chapter said the group will lend support to the two Austin attorneys representing Terrell Johnson.

Johnson and the show's host, Gareth Rees, were indicted three weeks ago by a Travis County grand jury on charges of violating Texas obscenity law and recklessly exposing minors to sexually explicit materials.

"The ACLU is promoting this as one of its cases because it believes the case involved First Amendment freedom of speech issues and the importance of educational programs," said Larry Sauer, Ms. Johnson's attorney.

The August episode of the monthly "Infosex" program included a tape of two men engaged in oral sex and other sex acts.

Ms. Johnson has defended the program as an educational tool to help stop the spread of AIDS.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Curb your impatience if you find higher-ups peering over your shoulder. You could be in line for a promotion or thrilling assignment. Shared experiences make romance more meaningful as Christmas approaches. Retirement can be a fantastic experience, depending on your attitude. Stay on your toes early in 1994. Obtaining professional advice then could result in a business leap forward in late spring. Use a summer vacation to get back to your roots.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actors Jack Warden and Robert Blake, singer Frankie Avalon, catcher Ryne Sandberg.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An upbeat attitude and fashionable attire will capture the attention of someone important. Your work or personal life gets a welcome boost. Romance will be sublime tonight.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Someone who may have opposed you in the past could switch sides. You feel more sure than ever about establishing definite goals. Spend part of the day making essential preparations.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your friendly and cooperative attitude helps you stand out from the crowd today. An exchange of news and views leaves you better informed. Someone asks for a special favor; oblige if you can.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Catching up with the odds and ends of family life is rewarding today. Paying an outstanding bill eases your mind. Perform more household services for yourself to save money.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Not a good time to take financial risks. If your funds are invested somewhere safe, leave them there. Your keen powers of persuasion win support for your key goals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): People around you could draw the wrong conclusions, causing an annoying mix-up. Slow down and be more precise. Good news from someone at a distance will add to your enjoyment this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You could catch the acting bug while attending a stage performance. Seek out people who share your interests and make you laugh. Romantic partner gives you a choice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Certain people think you are spinning your wheels, but you know better. Follow your intuition and you will be able to surmount almost any barrier. Your dreams of romance can come true.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Happiness comes in a variety of forms today. Let romance simmer while you concentrate on a project. This can be a very important period for personal growth.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your social connections begin to pay off in business. Group gatherings prove more rewarding than one-on-one meetings. A child wants to discuss an unusual situation. Listen attentively.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Domestic settings have great appeal now. Your place or a close friend's is the best meeting ground tonight. Others declare you a great host! You gain fresh insights from a cautionary tale.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Strong desires will drive you to work or play today. You click with a newcomer. Sharing a tough task leads to a new feeling of tenderness. Curb a tendency to splurge on luxuries.

Actress Davis to get married to director at old winery ruins

KENWOOD, Calif. — Actress Geena Davis is getting married this weekend in California's wine country and is spending $700,000 to do it, according to a published report.

Davis

Davis, who starred in "Thelma and Louise" and won an Academy Award in 1989 for "The Accidental Tourist," will marry director Renny Harlin at the ruins of an old winery built on the Kunde family ranch.

The 1,000-acre ranch, along Highway 12 about 50 miles north of San Francisco, was chosen because Davis wanted "something scenic, secluded and private," The Press Democrat of Santa Rosa reported.

Crews have been busy building a facade of an Old West town and have covered the area with a tent to keep helicopters from filming the wedding from above.

Davis, who was married to actor Jeff Goldblum for three years, first appeared on the big screen in the 1982 comedy "Tootsie." She also has appeared in "A League of Their Own," "Beetlejuice" and "The Fly."

Harlin has directed "A Nightmare on Elm Street 4: The Dream Master" and "Die Hard 2."

READING, Pa. — The crowd went wild at the National Hot Rod Association vs. Indy Car Drivers charity softball game when they introduced the pinch runner for Rick Mears.

"Where the hell are the singing cats?" asked car owner and actor Paul Newman, repeating the line he used on the opening night of David Letterman's CBS-TV show.

Newman advanced to second base on a hit, but was later thrown out at the plate.

He shrugged it off, though.

"Why they get a 68-year-old guy to run bases is beyond me," he said Thursday night.

One reason, he said, may have been a little-known secret from his past.

"I was one of the great baseball players for the Cleveland Indians in the 1930s," Newman deadpanned.

INDIANAPOLIS — Like many other first-time parents-to-be, Gov. Evan Bayh and his wife, Susan, are excited and more than a little nervous.

"We're very happy, as I said a little nervous . . . and it's just, there's nothing quite like the feeling of knowing you're going to be a parent," Bayh said at a Thursday news conference at the Governor's Mansion.

The 37-year-old governor and his 33-year-old wife, who works part time as a lawyer for Eli Lilly Co., were married in 1985, the year before Bayh first won political office as secretary of state.

As the son of then-U.S. Sen. Birch Bayh, Evan Bayh spent part of his childhood in the public eye. Asked if they were concerned about their child growing up in similar circumstances, the Bayhs said no.

"It would be of more concern to me if I was going to be in the governor's office for a longer period of time," Bayh said. "Even if all goes according to the way we hope it will, our child will only be about 2½, not even 3, by the time we leave office."

Bayh became the nation's youngest governor when he was elected in 1988. He was re-elected in 1992. He said it was too early to speculate on his political future.

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Life imitated art for actor Adrian Paul of television's "Highlander."

In a scene that could have come out of the syndicated series taped in Vancouver, Paul fought off the forces of evil Thursday by tackling a theft suspect and holding him until police arrived.

Paul, who plays a 400-year-old sword-wielding immortal who protects the helpless, had just left his trailer to shoot a scene in the downtown Gastown district when a man came running toward him.

"Some guy was running down the alley and I heard someone screaming to stop him," Paul said between takes of the show which makes its second-season debut this month.

Paul tackled the man, and set worker Robert Crippen helped hold him until police arrived.

"We took a screwdriver out of his pocket and then just waited for the police to arrive," Paul said. "When the police officer arrived, he asked: 'Where's your sword?'"

Paul didn't think the man was armed and played down the risk.

"It just happened very fast and I reacted," he said after nabbing the man accused of stealing a video camera from a tourist.

LOS ANGELES — Steve Martin and Victoria Tennant have separated after nearly seven years of marriage, the actor's spokesman said.

"It's an amicable separation," publicist Paul Bloch said Friday.

The couple have taken no other action beyond separating, he said.

Martin and Miss Tennant married in November 1986.

They starred together in the 1991 comedy "L.A. Story."

Experts: Brittle steel caused Titanic to sink

NEW YORK (AP) — Many more passengers might have survived the Titanic's collision with an iceberg 81 years ago if the liner had been made of sterner stuff, said a study of this century's greatest peacetime sea disaster.

In a report made public September 16, maritime experts said the ship's steel plating suffered "brittle fracture" in the icy waters of the North Atlantic. A better grade of steel might have held up longer after the collision in 31-degree water and more lives might have been saved, they said.

Whether the Titanic could actually have stayed afloat after the collision is "problematical," said William Garzke, a New York naval architect. He was co-author of the report, presented at the centennial meeting of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers.

Garzke said that question will remain unanswered without first-hand study of the liner's hull, partly buried in the seabed 12,000 feet down.

The Titanic report was part of an extensive review of research by manned and robot submersibles. Another section dealt with findings about the German battleship Bismarck, sunk by the British in 1941.

Pronounced "unsinkable" by its owners, the British firm Cunard White Star, the Titanic was on its first voyage, from Southampton to New York, when it hit an iceberg off Newfoundland on April 14, 1912.

Of the more than 2,340 people aboard, about 700 were able to get off during two hours and 40 minutes before the Titanic sank at 2:30 a.m., its orchestra supposedly playing "Nearer My God To Thee" in the final moments.

The report is the latest revision of history concerning the fabled ship. The hulk was located in 1985 by explorer Robert D. Ballard of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

Four later expeditions by research minisubs and robots revealed that the ship broke into two main pieces, and that the iceberg did not rip a 300-foot gash in the hull, allowing multiple compartments to flood.

Garzke and Dana Yoeger, of Woods Hole, another of the study's five authors, said it further demolishes the "gash" theory, which has been nurtured partly by news accounts, books and movies about the Titanic.

They said videotapes and two separate laboratory analyses of metal plates brought to the surface show "brittle fracture" damage.

Study: Health gap remains among racial, ethnic groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — Life expectancy has hit an all-time high of 75.5 years and infant mortality is at an all-time low, but the United States is failing to reduce health disparities among racial and ethnic groups, the government said Wednesday in its annual survey of the nation's health.

Infant mortality dropped last year to 8.5 per 1,000 live births, but the rate among black infants was double that of whites, the Department of Health and Human Services said in a statement accompanying the report. Preliminary statistics showed overall infant mortality declined 4.4 percent from 1991's rate of 8.9 per 1,000, the department said.

Americans also are cutting back on smoking and cholesterol, and reducing chronic diseases and premature deaths, the department reported in the survey, "Health, United States, 1992." But no progress is being made in reducing homicide rates, increasing prenatal care for many women and raising low birth weights, especially among black infants.

"This report documents some troubling health patterns — in particular, continuing disparities in health status, depending on education, on where you live and your race," Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala said at a news conference. "It also documents the need for strong prevention strategies to combat major health problems."

The 390-page survey included a separate report, "Healthy People 2000," the first evaluation of the national effort to meet 300 health goals by the turn of the century. Those goals include increasing the healthy life span, reducing disparities in health care among racial and ethnic groups and making preventive care available to all Americans by the year 2000.

The mixed findings underscore the need for health care reform, Shalala said.

"The report contains compelling evidence of the need to restructure our health care system so that all Americans can receive the care they need at an affordable cost," she said.

Shalala called attention to the rising murder rate, noting that homicide has become the 10th leading cause of death in America.

"And it is the second leading cause of death for young women and men aged 15 to 24," she said. "This is tragic and it is preventable."

Another "preventable tragedy" highlighted in the report is the spread of AIDS, Shalala said. Five years ago, AIDS was the 15th leading cause of death in America; last year, it was No. 8, she said.

The AIDS death rate increased by 60 percent from 1987 to 1989, but has increased at a less rapid pace since then. It increased 10 percent from 1991 to 1992.

Among the other findings:

—Thirty-seven million Americans had no health insurance last year, an increase of 6 million since 1987. The uninsured comprised 21 percent of blacks, 32 percent of Hispanics and 11 percent of whites.

—Education apparently can help lengthen life. Death rates for 1989 and 1990 for men and women age 25 to 44 without a high school education were three times the rates for college graduates.

—Asian Americans had the lowest mortality rates for many of the major causes of death. Blacks had higher death rates for many of those causes.

—American Indians had the highest suicide and motor vehicle crash-related deaths.

—From 1980 to 1990, the age-adjusted death rate for heart disease, the leading cause of death for men and women, declined 25 percent, continuing the downward trend of the 1970s.

—About a quarter of adults exercise moderately five or more times a week, but only about 14 percent participate in vigorous physical activity.

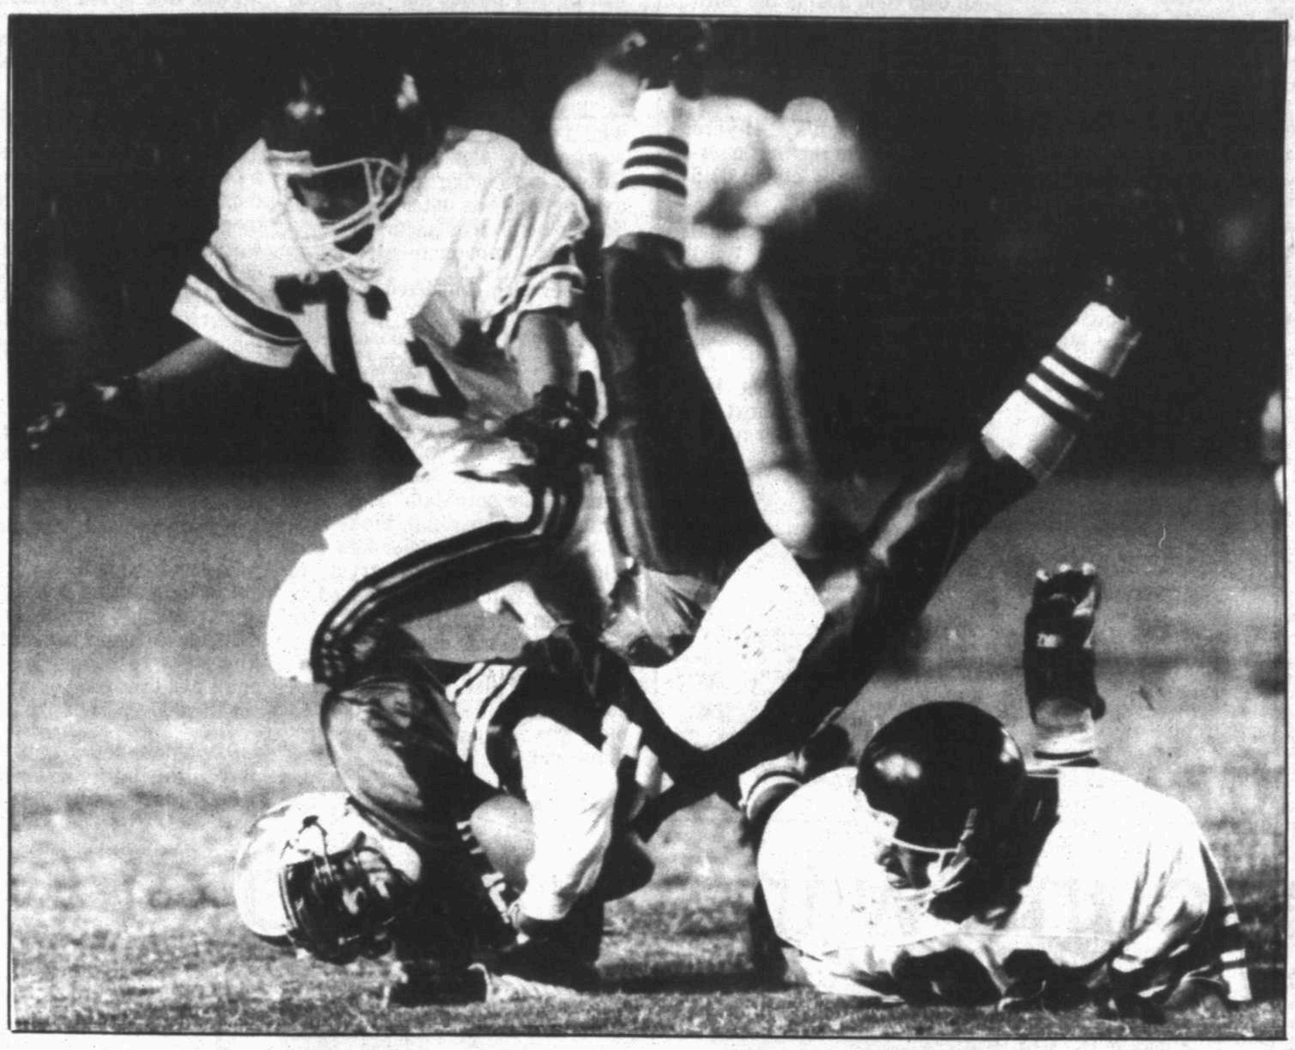
MHS homecoming blitzed



Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Midland quarterback Johnny Paredes is upended by Andrews defenders Cuit Guevara (right) and Hector Caballero in the first half of the Bulldogs' homecoming football game against the Mustangs.

■ Andrews hands the Bulldogs a 40-0 defeat in their homecoming and first game of the season at Memorial.

By Mike Butts
Staff writer

There was only one way to look at Midland High's 40-0 homecoming loss to Andrews Friday: the Bulldogs got pounded by a better football team.

But the substantial crowd of Midland fans had to have one question as they filed out of Memorial Stadium: why did Andrews coach W.T. Stapler appear to keep shooting for more points when he had the game well under control?

The Mustangs (3-0) dominated the game with an overpowering running attack, and even tossed in some seldomed-used passing to storm to the easy win. Andrews scored on all four of their first half possessions on the way to a comfortable 27-0 lead at intermission.

But Stapler didn't seem satisfied with a 27-0 or even a 40-0 lead, passing the ball with a 34-0 third-quarter lead and going for two points on a point after touchdown when his team led 40-0 in the fourth quarter. Stapler finally put some second teamers in the game with 5:40 to play.

"Didn't you see me drive down the field and put in backups?" Stapler said of his team's last possession. "I wasn't trying to run up the score. There's not anyway I'd do anything to embarrass Reeger and his kids."

Reeger played down the possiblilty that Stapler was rubbing it in against his Bulldogs (0-3).

"If that doesn't suit us we need to coach harder and play harder," Reeger said. "That's not (in) our control. I really don't think there's anything out of the ordinary there at all."

Maybe not. But with a 19-0 lead and in control of the game late in the first quarter, Andrews faked a field goal and passed for a touchdown that made it 27-0. In the Mustangs defense, kicker Josh Humphries has had problems replacing injured Eric Langehennig. And Stapler said after his 22 starters he doesn't have enough players to substitute much when the game is well in hand.

"We only suit up 32 kids," Stapler said. "That leaves 10 over there on the sidelines and one is a kicker so that leaves nine."

Whether or not Stapler let his troops run over a weaker team longer than necessary, Reeger admitted his team still has a long way to go to compete with the likes of a team with Andrews' skill. The Bulldogs ran the ball fairly well in the first half. They got at least two first downs on three of their four first half drives. And quarterback John-

AMARILLO — It's a bird. It's a plane. It's actually a Midland Lee passing game. Robert E. Lee's infantry may choke.

Midland Lee's seventh-ranked Rebels made a debut of sorts here Friday night in a 56-12 win over Amarillo Palo Duro, a team that was supposed to test the state-ranked Rebs. The debut? Courtney Turner bombs of accuracy that made Dick Bivins Stadium look like the Middle East. A real passing game from the maligned Lee wishbone attack was almost like cussing in church.

Turner completed six of eight passes in less than three quarters of play for 165 yards and three touchdowns. It was a night he was waiting for.

"We finally got a chance to throw the ball and I would say it was effective," Turner said. "A lot of people don't know that we have the people to catch the ball when we do throw."

Turner connected on two TD tosses to halfback Phillip Sims and another to wideout Undra Graves. It could have been four had Graves and Sims not gotten tangled up going for the same ball on a 42-yard completion.

One newspaper suggested Lee coach Earl Miller should scrap the wishbone this week, but he wouldn't bite on that one.

"What do you think?" Miller asked back after being questioned about it. "I'm not getting into all that. I'm well pleased with this team. To have back-to-back 300-

Texas, Syracuse search for respect

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' youthful defense may be forced to grow up a little quicker than it would like. That's because sixth-ranked Syracuse's quarterback Marvin Graves is mad.

The Longhorns' matchup today with the Orangemen is becoming a battle for respect. Syracuse was leapfrogged in this week's poll by Notre Dame and Tennessee.

Graves is upset that his Orangemen (2-0) did not move up in the rankings after beating East Carolina 41-22 last week.

"We are going to have to go down to Texas and run all over them," he said.

But Syracuse coach Paul Pasqualoni

Midland Christian School band director Larry Daughety had some simple instructions for the Mustang band Friday night.

"Get ready to play the fight song," Daughety said before the Mustangs football team took the field. "You're going to play that song so much, you'll be sick of it."

The band played the fight song every time the football team scored. The team gave the band plenty of opportunity to be sick of it by halftime. Seven Mustangs combined to score nine touchdowns to lead MCS to a 68-18 win over Loraine in six-man action.

The Mustangs, the two-time defending Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools champions, raised their record to 3-0. The game ended at halftime due to the 45-point rule in six-man football.

MCS plays host to Three Way Friday. Kickoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Smith's game role limited

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Emmitt Smith, the NFL's newest multimillionaire, put on his pads Friday for the first time since January but said he doesn't expect to be worth his money right away.

"Just give me the ball and let me go until I fall," said Smith, who became the wealthiest running back in the NFL Thursday night when he ended a bitter contract holdout by signing a four-year, $13.6 million contract to return to the Dallas Cowboys.

Smith's financial package was frontloaded so the Cowboys could avoid a big hit when the salary cap kicks in next year.

Smith's total package for 1993 will be $7 million, which includes a $3 million salary and $4 million in bonuses, some of it deferred. He got a $2 million check up front.

The Cowboys, who lost two games while Smith locked contract horns with owner Jerry Jones, travel to Phoenix Sunday night. Smith may not play much.

"I held out my rookie year and arrived on Tuesday and played on Sunday," Smith said. "This time I'm starting work on a Friday. It's a much different situation. It remains to see how much I can do in two days. I'd love to play and I think I can do some things to help."

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson has ruled out all but a small role for Smith against the Cardinals.

"I'll decide prior to the game whether to activate Emmitt," Johnson said. "If he is available, it would only be on a very limited basis.

"We're happy he's back, but he has missed a tremendous amount of work. He should be ready for the Green Bay game" on Oct. 3.

The Cowboys put in several plays for Smith on Friday and he scored on both of them, a 20-yard run off tackle and a short swing pass.

"Emmitt gave us some spark," Johnson said. "The coaches and the players were excited to see him back. It's still hard to tell what kind of shape he's in."

Johnson was asked if he planned to use Smith as a decoy against the Cardinals.

"Decoy," Johnson snapped. "Any other questions?"

Quarterback Troy Aikman thinks Smith should play a lot.

"They don't pay somebody that much to sit around," Aikman said.

Smith cautioned Cowboys fans about expecting too much too soon.

"I'm not God Almighty," Smith said. "It's going to take a lot of work for me and the team to jell together. I feel Derrick Lassic deserves to start against Phoenix. He's been working all week."

Smith praised Lassic, a rookie, say-

Abilene, Keller tie

ABILENE — Mac McGilvray kicked a 32-yard field goal in the fourth quarter as Keller drew to a 39-39 tie with Abilene Cooper, the Cougars' first tie of the season.

The game was a wild see-saw affair, featuring eight lead changes.

Keller dropped to 2-0-1 with the outcome.

Cooper's Mike Rose, who had two TDs, led all rushers with 20 totes for 193 yards; Keller's James Calvin rushed for 144 yards on 26 carries. Calvin also scored three touchdowns.

Keller scored three times in the fourth quarter, on a Calvin touchdown, McGilvray's field goal, and a safety to forge the tie. Cooper scored twice in the final eight minutes.

The Cougars open the 1993 District 4-5A season next Friday against Abilene High.

Temple dooms Central, 29-17

TEMPLE — Delarius Wilson scored twice in the fourth quarter to lead 9th-ranked Temple to a 29-17 win over San Angelo Central.

The Temple win avenges a loss last week against Odessa Permian.

Temple amassed 388 total offenive yards while holding Central to 218 yards offensively.

For the Bobcats, Elliott Bowman scored on a 1-yard run and Gary Morgan sprinted in from the 23 as Central jumped out to an early 14-0 lead. Temple tied the game at 14 before the half and Central saw another lead, 17-14, in the third quarter on a Scott Foster field goal from 21.

Temple's three fourth quarter scores, however, put the Bobcats away.

Central, 1-2, will host Lubbock Coronado next Friday.

OHS defeats Eastwood, 17-12

ODESSA — The Odessa High Bronchos improved to 3-1 with a 17-12 squeaker win over El Paso Eastwood Friday night at Odessa' Ratliff Stadium.

The Bronchos' Tony Bass scored on a 39-yard run in the second quarter to put OHS ahead to stay for good, 14-12.

An OHS field goal in the third quarter, which gave the Bronchos' their winning margin was the final score of the night for either team.

Ronice Parrett's 44-yard touchdown run in the first quarter was the only other OHS score of the evening.

El Paso Eastwood, 1-2, had touchdowns from Craig Byrd, on a 19-yard run, and Jimmy Russell, who grabbed an 80-yard scoring strike from quarterback Roy Torres.

The Bronchos open the 1993 District 4-5A campaign next Friday against Odessa Permian.

LEE: Turner passes Rebels to win mile trips and play like this, you can't ask for more. We scored 28 points on 24 plays in the first half. That says enough about that."

(From 1B)

What Miller didn't know right after the game was that in the third quarter his Rebs scored 28 points in just 15 plays.

Lee's much-talked-about passing game made its debut in the first half as Turner completed four-of-five passes for 122 yards and two touchdowns.

The word was that Lee could throw the ball. It proved it quickly in this game. Turner hit Graves with a 43-yard TD pass to open the scoring in the first quarter. Graves got behind the Palo Duro defense and was untouched as the Turner bomb was accurate to the tune of a computer missle.

Turner also connected for a 23-yard screen pass TD to Phillip Sims in the second quarter, but this TD came on a juking run by Sims after the catch, leaving Dons straddled on the field.

Lee could have had another TD pass when Turner hit Sims for 42 yards. The problem was that Graves and Sims both broke free of the Palo Duro defenders and tripped over each other trying to make the catch. Lee marched in with Marlon Henry taking it in from eight yards out.

"I didn't see Graves until I caught the ball and we got tangled up. I was just going for the goal," Sims said.

Graves added, "I think the ball was thrown to me, but hey, we came up with the catch anyway."

But Turner's arm wasn't the only story in the first half as his feet gained 81 yards with one carry covering 64 yards for a another Lee TD and a 28-0 lead at the half.

Palo Duro made two scoring threats against the Lee defense, but twice Rebel linebacker Chris Connally, coming off an injury, made fourth down tackles to halt PD drives. Scott Stapleton, Kevin Jordan and Brian Quinonez were solid on defense in the first half to help keep the Dons scoreless. PD didn't score until Miller emptied his bench late in the third quarter

"I think our defense was getting a little tired when Palo Duro made those drives in the first half. Stopping them on fourth down twice was big in the game and kept them out of the end zone," Connally said. "We heard this was the team to test us, but I think we did a good job of getting our stuff together."

Then there was Melvin Dunson, who didn't touch the ball until late in the third period. His first run was for a 55-yard touchdown. He ended the night with 98 yards rushing and continues to lead the whole Lee team in yards rushing.

"I just have to do my job when I get in the game. I don't get impatient to play," Dunson said. "I'm satisfied this year to play this role. You have to have good backups and I just take care of my chances out there."

PD didn't score until the last play of the third quarter when Vedeis Williams broke for 80 yards against the Lee reserves. Jermaine Gilbreath later broke a 92-yard run for the other score, the second longest TD run in Dons' history.

Steve Williams kicked the first six extra points for Lee while Alex Hale gave him a breather to connect on the final two. Hale also got to play quarterback, completing one of two passes for 10 yards, and also punted once for 17 yards.

Lee now will face Midland High in the opening game of the District 4-5A season Friday at Memorial Stadium. Now we're back to square one. Will it be the infantry or air force that shows up?

Giants rebound with trouncing of Cincinnati

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — San Francisco piled up 17 hits, including Matt Williams' homer, to beat Cincinnati 13-0 Friday night behind Bill Swift's seven-hitter, ending the eight-game losing streak that cost the Giants first place in the NL West.

■ NL Roundup

Swift (18-8) beat the Reds for the fourth time this season and Williams hit his career-high 35th homer to jolt the Giants out of the third-longest losing streak in San Francisco history.

The Giants got their 90th victory for the first time since 1989, when they won lost to Oakland in the World Series. They have the second-best record in SF history at 90-56, trailing only the 1962 team that won 103.

But the eight-game skid let Atlanta overtake the Giants and head into Friday's games with a four-game lead in the West.

Williams, their hottest hitter during the slump, put them ahead with a two-run homer in the first inning off the facing of the upper deck in left field. Williams has homered in seven of the last 13 games, with eight homers over that span.

The Giants added two more runs in the fifth off John Roper (2-4) and piled up nine more off the Reds beleaguered bullpen.

Marlins 2, Cubs 0

CHICAGO — Jack Armstrong pitched three-hit ball for 7⅓ innings as Florida beat Chicago to snap a four-game losing streak.

The loss was only the third in 14 games for the Cubs and snapped a three-game winning streak.

Armstrong (8-15) ended a personal six-game slide and earned his first victory since July 17. Bryan Harvey got the last five outs for his 44th save in 47 chances.

The Marlins, shut out three times in their previous eight games, took a 1-0 lead in the first against Mike Harkey (10-9) when Walt Weiss walked, went to third a single by Bob Natal and scored on Orestes Destrade's sacrifice fly.

Alex Arias, a former Cub, hit his second career homer into the left-field seats in the second inning. His only other homer came last April off Greg Maddux.

Astros 3, Padres 0

HOUSTON — Pete Harnisch pitched his second one-hitter of the season to extend his winning streak to five games, and Houston beat San Diego.

Harnisch (15-8) pitched 5⅓ hitless innings until Jarvis Brown's bunt single with one out in the sixth. Harnisch fielded the ball in front of home plate but Chris Donnels failed to field the throw on a close play at first base.

Dave Staton walked in the second inning and Harnisch hit Phil Plantier with a pitch in the fourth for the only baserunners prior to Brown's hit in the sixth.

The Astros finally got to Andy Benes (15-12) in the seventh when Steve Finley and Luis Gonzalez hit singles and Ken Caminiti doubled down the first-base line for a run.

After Kevin Bass was intentionally walked, Donnels, playing first base for the injured Jeff Bagwell, doubled over right fielder Derek Bell's head, scoring Gonzalez and Caminiti.

Harnisch, who pitched a one-hitter against Chicago on July 10, struck out seven and walked one. He leads the NL with four shutouts.

Braves 2, Mets 1, 10 innings

ATLANTA — Ron Gant did it again Friday night when he delivered a run-scoring double in the 10th inning to give Atlanta a victory over New York, keeping the Braves four games ahead of San Francisco in the NL West.

Gant, making a strong bid for the MVP award, has 17 RBIs in his last six games. He hit a grand slam against Cincinnati on Tuesday and won Wednesday's game against the Reds with a three-run homer homer in the bottom of ninth off Rob Dibble.

The win was Atlanta's fourth in a row, ninth in 10 games and 30th in 36, a blistering .833 percentage.

Gant's game-winning hit took one bounce and hit off the centerfield fence scoring Otis Nixon, who led off the inning with a walk. Jeff Blauser sacrificed Nixon to second before Gant's long drive off Mike Maddux (3-8).

Mets center fielder Dave Gallagher was playing shallow and Gant's shot sailed over his head.

Jay Howell (3-3) pitched a hitless 10th for the victory.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning on Fred McGriff's RBI single off starter Sid Fernandez. The hit scored Nixon who led off with a bunt single, stole his 41st base and took third on Gant's fly to center before McGriff's hit.

Pirates 2, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS — Pinch-hitter Rich Aude snapped a seventh-inning tie with his first major-league hit as Pittsburgh beat St. Louis.

The Pirates have won five games in a row, a season high and their best streak since they won six straight last Sept. 24-29 on their way to the NL East title. They've also won five in a row on the road.

Kevin Young doubled with one out and Aude, a second-round draft pick in 1989 who was called up Sept. 8, singled off Tom Urbani (1-3).

The Cardinals stranded 10 runners — six of them in scoring position — in the first five innings. In the fourth, Gregg Jefferies fouled off several pitches from reliever Dan Miceli on a 3-2 count with the bases loaded before popping out to end the inning.

The Pirates used their fourth consecutive rookie starting pitcher and Paul Miller struggled in his second major-league start, working around five hits and two walks in 3⅓ innings. Blas Minor (8-6), the Pirates' third pitcher, allowed a hit and struck out three in two innings.

Joel Johnston worked 2⅓ innings before Mark Dewey finished for his sixth save.

Pittsburgh took the lead in the second when Jeff King got a leadoff double and eventually scored on a wild pitch with two outs.

Ray Lankford, starting in center field for the first time since separating his left shoulder while making a catch at the wall Aug. 29, led off the fourth with his seventh home run as the Cardinals tied it.

Rockies 12, Dodgers 3

DENVER — Colorado beat Los Angeles for their eighth straight victory at Mile High Stadium and set a major league single-season attendance record of 4,054,587.

Daryl Boston had four RBIs and Charlie Hayes hit a two-run homer to help the Rockies win their fifth straight game overall.

The Rockies' season total broke the record of 4,028,318 set by Toronto last year. The victory over LA attracted a crowd of 56,679.

David Nied (4-7) gave up no runs and five hits in five innings for the victory. Willie Blair pitched 3⅓ innings and Gary Wayne finished.

Tom Candiotti (8-8) gave up seven runs off nine hits in just 1⅓ innings, his earliest exit ever.

Colorado scored six runs in the second inning. Eric Young doubled, stole third and scored on Nied's suicide squeeze. Boston hit a two-run double and Andres Galarraga added a sacrifice fly. Hayes then hit his home run to left, No. 23, to make it 7-0.

Jerald Clark, who hit the game-winning three-run homer Thursday against Houston, hit a his 12th homer to make it 9-0 in the fourth.

Galarraga added two more in the fifth with a two-run double and Joe Girardi hit an RBI single. Galarraga extended his hitting streak to a career-best 15 games, going 2-for-3 with two RBIs to raise his average .383.

Expos 8, Phillies 7, 12 innings

MONTREAL — Montreal stayed alive in the NL East race with a hard-fought victory over first-place Philadelphia as Delino DeShields hit a sacrifice fly in the 12th inning.

The red-hot Expos moved within four games of the Phillies with the win. Montreal is 21-3 since trailing Philadelphia by 14½ games on Aug. 20, while the Phillies are 11-14 in that span.

Montreal won its 11th straight at home. The Phillies have droppped seven of their last 11.

Marquis Grissom, who drove in the tying run in the seventh, doubled off Mitch Williams (3-5) and stole third before DeShields won the game.

Hentgen pitches Toronto to sixth straight victory

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Pat Hentgen pitched surging Toronto to their sixth straight victory, giving up only two hits in eight innings Friday in a 4-2 win over Minnesota.

Toronto began the day with a three-game lead over Baltimore and New York in the AL East.

Hentgen (18-8) is second in the league in victories to Jack McDowell's 21. Hentgen gave up one run, struck out five and walked three. He has won four of his last five starts.

Duane Ward pitched the ninth inning and recorded his 41st save. He gave p Kent Hrbek's 21st homwe run.

Kevin Tapani (9-15), the reigning AL player of the week, had his two-game winning streak stopped. He lost to the Blue Jays for the third time this season.

Joe Carter hit a two-run single in the third inning. Rickey Henderson walked and stole second, and

■ AL Roundup

Roberto Alomar singled and stole second, setting up Carter.

Devon White led off the fifth with his 15th home run, making it 3-0. Henderson's two-out single in the sixth scored Ed Sprague.

Henderson stole three bases and Sprague had three of Toronto's 12 hits and walked once.

Hentgen shut out Minnesota on one hit for five innings. In the sixth, David McCarty walked with one out, Kirby Puckett doubled and Hrbek had an RBI grounder.

Indians 3, Tigers 1

DETROIT — Jason Grimsley won as a starter for the first time in more than two years, and pitched Cleveland past Detroit.

Grimsley (2-4) lowered his ERA from 8.10 to 6.75, allowing just one run on five hits in 5⅓ innings. He walked three and struck out five.

Grimsley's last win as a starter came on April 28, 1991, with Philadelphia. Jerry DiPoto worked the ninth for his ninth save.

David Wells (10-9), who started the season with a 9-1 record, extended his winless streak to five starts. He gave up three runs on eight hits in eight innings.

In the Indians first, Mark Lewis doubled in his first at-bat of the year and scored on Albert Belle's two-out double. Candy Maldonado hit a solo home run in the Cleveland second.

Grimsley shut out the Tigers on three hits in the first five innings. In the sixth, Travis Fryman looped a double with one out and scored on Kirk Gibson's two-out single.

After Eric Davis walked, Jeremy Hernandez relieved. Davis and Gibson pulled off a double steal, and Mickey Tettleton was intentionally walked, loading the bases. Hernandez got out of trouble when third baseman Jim Thome made a leaping catch on Alan Trammell's line drive.

Carlos Baerga singled in the eighth, stole second, took third on Wells' wild pitch and scored on Belle's sacrifice fly.

Brewers 2, Orioles 0

MILWAUKEE — Cal Eldred cooled Baltimore's pennant chase, pitching a three-hitter for his second major league shutout as Milwaukee blanked the Orioles.

Eldred (16-14) outpitched Ben McDonald (12-12), who also allowed only three hits. The Orioles began the night three games behind first-place Toronto, which played at Minnesota.

Eldred walked two and struck out five in his seventh complete game this season. McDonald, who had a three-game winning streak snapped, walked four and struck out four in his sixth complete game, and third in the last four starts.

McDonald and Eldred waged one-hitters through five innings, ae Brewers leading 1-0 on Dave Nilsson's sixth homer in the second.

The Brewers scored again with two outs in the sixth on Greg Vaughn's infield single off first baseman David Segui's glove, Robin Yount's blooper to right that moved Vaughn to third and McDonald's wild pitch.

Baltimore, 12-4 in its last 16 games, just missed a run in the third. Chris Hoiles walked and with two outs Brady Anderson hit a long drive to right-center that at the last second climbed the wall for a ground rule double, forcing Hoiles back to third. Mark McLemore walked to load the bases but Mike Devereaux bounced out.

Anderson had a single behind first for the Orioles' second hit in the sixth and Mike Pagliarulo singled in the seventh.

Yankees 5, Red Sox 4

NEW YORK — Just when it seemed like the New York Yankees' pennant hopes were washing away in the drizzle, they managed to cling to the AL East race by the barest of margins.

Angels 2, Rangers 1

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Pinch-hitter Stan Javier tripled home the go-ahead run in the eighth inning and the California Angels spoiled Nolan Ryan's final game at Anaheim with a 2-1 victory over the Texas Rangers on Friday night.

Ryan, pitching at the site of his fondest baseball memories, gave the 60,326 fans a game to remember. He went seven innings and allowed one run — it was unearned — on four hits, striking out five and walking none.

When Ryan left the game with the score tied at 1, he doffed his cap as he walked off. He returned twice from the dugout as the crowd gave him a standing ovation. While Craig Lefferts was warming up, the crowd chanted "Nolan, Nolan."

Lefferts (3-9), however, then gave up the run that hurt the Rangers in the AL West race.

No. 13 UNC gets big game

Associated Press

■ College Roundup

North Carolina coach Mack Brown knows what it's like to lose. Tonight, he could be the biggest winner of the college football season.

But he says it's not his biggest game even if his 13th-ranked Tar Heels are at home against No. 1 Florida State.

"The Wake Forest game my third year here, when we had to win to eat, was the biggest game," says Brown, who believes so-called "big games" are all relative.

That's because Brown had three 1-10 seasons in his first six years as a head coach, two of them coming in his first two years at North Carolina.

"If we would have come in here and won instantly, people wouldn't have talked about Tulane," Brown said of his 11-23 record with the Green Wave. "But when you lose football games, people are going to question and gripe because they come to watch you win."

It's better now.

In three games this season, North Carolina has scored 134 points, four fewer then they scored in 11 games in 1989.

"More than appreciating the progress we've made, I make sure in my mind that I'm not going to coach a football team that's that bad again," Brown said.

The Tar Heels (3-0) have made steady progress under Brown, who with his enthusiastic personality has been able to attract top players from across the country.

"He's patient. He does things honestly," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said of Brown. "North Carolina's got the resources it takes to build a great program."

In other games tonight involving teams in the Top 25, No. 7 Colorado will be at No. 20 Stanford, No. 16 Texas A&M will take on Missouri and No. 21 California is at Temple.

In afternoon games, it was No. 2 Alabama vs. Arkansas, No. 3 Miami vs. Virginia Tech, No. 4 Notre Dame vs. Michigan State, No. 5 Tennessee at No. 9 Florida, No. 6 Syracuse at Texas, No. 8 Nebraska at UCLA, No. 11 Ohio State at Pittsburgh, No. 14 Penn State at Iowa, No. 15 Arizona at Illinois, No. 19 Brigham Young at Colorado State, No. 22 Boston College at Northwestern, No. 23 Arizona State at Louisville and No. 24 Wisconsin vs. Iowa State.

Brown, 42, says he realizes he made some mistakes in his career.

"I kicked myself some because I took jobs that weren't very good to start with," he said.

"I had and still have, in some cases, very little patience. So, I wanted a job. At that age I didn't realize you shouldn't just want a job, you should want a job where you have a chance to be successful."

Now, he's at peace with his abilities as he prepares for the biggest game of his coaching career.

In some other games:

No. 2 Alabama vs. Arkansas

Both teams are 2-0 overall and 1-0 in the SEC, but Alabama is a 17-point favorite to extend its winning streak to 26 games as it defends its national championship.

No. 3 Miami vs. Virginia Tech

Big East foe Virginia Tech (2-0) comes in as No. 3 Miami (1-0) opens its home schedule where it has won 51 consecutive games.

No. 4 Notre Dame vs. Michigan State

Randy Kinder, a high school star running-back from Lansing, Mich., is expected to get a chance to shine for Notre Dame (2-0) when the Irish take on Michigan State (1-0). The Spartans are traditionally tough against the run.

No. 8 Nebraska at UCLA

Quarterback Tommie Frazier led Nebraska (0-2) to 17 touchdowns and three field goals already this season. The Bruins (0-1) will start quarterback Wayne Cook, who two weeks ago played his first full game since he graduated from high school in 1988.

No. 11 Ohio State vs. Pittsburgh

Ohio State (2-0) lost 42-10 in its last visit to Pittsburgh (1-1) in 1988.

Wallace not slowed by broken axle

Associated Press

■ Racing Roundup

DOVER, Del. — Rusty Wallace won his third pole of the NASCAR season with a near track-record 151.464 mph lap Friday to give himself an inside shot Sunday to keep the pressure on Dale Earnhardt in the Winston Cup points race.

Wallace's crew had to scramble to fix a broken axle on his Pontiac before qualifying for Sunday's SplitFire Spark Plug 500 at Dover Downs International Speedway. His 23.768-second lap on the 1-mile oval left him just short of Ernie Irvan's record 151.541 mph lap in June in a Chevrolet.

Irvan, now driving a Ford with the former team of the late Davey Allison, nearly clipped Wallace from the pole with a 23.812-second, 151.184 mph lap at the end of qualifying.

Jeff Gordon, in a Chevrolet, and Geoff Bodine and Mark Martin, in Fords, rounded out the starting top five in the $820,700 race. Earnhardt will start ninth.

All 20 drivers who nailed down starting spots Friday beat the fall event record of 148.075 by Martin in 1988.

The pole comes as Wallace needs some breaks to catch Earnhardt with seven races to go. He is in second place, 284 points behind the five-time champion, with 185 points possible for one driver in a race. After a victory last weekend at Richmond, Va., Wallace thinks momentum is on his side.

"I think any time somebody wins the previous week they bring a little momentum with them," said Wallace, who won the title in 1989. He has won six races and has finished no worse than sixth in his last four events.

Wallace, winning his 15th career pole and first ever at Dover, has never won on the high-banked track. He has finished third here three times, the last time in May 1992.

"I've got a good car but this is the longest race on the roughest racetrack as far as the asphalt. The asphalt's really rough here," Wallace said.

Wallace said the car was good from the start of practice Friday, but after getting tires ready for qualifying, he went out to the track for one last bit of practice.

"I pulled out of the garage and I heard this wild, crunching, breaking sound in the rear of the car," Wallace said. "It broke an axle.

"We did a little thrashing, put it all back together and got it all just right."

He had made only six practice laps before qualifying.

Irvan said of his near miss, "It just wasn't our day."

The race will be Geoff Bodine's first for the team of the late Alan Kulwicki. He bought the team during the season but retained his driving duties with Bud Moore's team until this week.

SplitFire Spark Plug 200

DOVER, Del. — Terry Labonte won the pole Friday for the $194,933 SplitFire Spark Plug 200 Grand National stock car race at Dover Downs International Speedway with a track-record lap of 147.366 mph.

Labonte led five other Chevrolet drivers who beat the Busch Series track record of 145.926 mph, set in June by Ward Burton in a Buick.

Labonte was only 29th fastest later in qualifying for Sunday's Winston Cup event on the 1-mile oval.

"That's our first Busch pole this year," he said. "We've run good in that car just about everywhere we've been. We qualified second with it a couple of times, but we're still looking for our first win with it."

downplayed the rankings.

"We are very grateful to be where we are," he said.

But Pasqualoni points to Texas (0-1) as one of his team's first early hurdles on a path toward a national championship.

The game is a chance for the Longhorns, who are talented but start seven underclassmen on defense, to gain instant credibility. Two weeks ago, Texas opened the season with a 36-14 loss at Colorado.

run at a third-straight state championship.

"We like to think we are the Mojo of six-man football," Blake said, referring to perennial power Odessa Permian. He then apparently had second thoughts about equating a Midland school with Permian. "We need to find us a slogan. Maybe 'The Pony Express of six-man football.'"

If MCS is "The Pony Express" the lead horse is senior Clay Gunter. Gunter had 68 yards on five carries, including a 34-yard run for a score. He had a 44-yard catch and run for another score and intercepted a pass to set up a third touchdown.

"We've got four tailbacks," Blake said, "and they're all pretty good kids, but (Gunter) has more speed than he had last year. He's the quickest. He probably runs close to 4.5 (seconds in the 40-yard dash). The others aren't far behind."

Loraine managed to stay close early in the game behind the efforts of Cory Woodel.

Woodel ran for a 60-yard touchdown and threw for a 33-yard score out of punt formation to make the score 16-12 MCS with 4:24 remaining in the first quarter.

The wheels then fell off for the Bulldogs. Loraine turned the ball over on four of its next five possessions. The Mustangs scored after each one.

Gunter's 34-yard run and a 37-yard touchdown pass from Chad Bayley to Lathan Houghton highlighted the onslaught. The closest thing MCS had to trouble was when Bayley missed the extra point after the Mustangs' seventh touchdown.

Neil Truex, who threw the 44-yard touchdown to Gunter, said there is one downside to the Mustangs' play this early in the season.

"I wish we could play a little longer," Truex said of the game being stopped at the half.

As for the band, it simply turned what would have been a halftime show into a postgame show. It got to play something other than the fight song.

SMITH: Limited time

(From 1B)

ing: "I told him what a great job he did under the circumstances. I think we can work real well together. Maybe he can take some of the load off me until I can get going again."

Lassic said, "I'm glad he's back. It takes a load off me."

Smith, who is always the king of the dressing room, was the center of attention as teammates and media swarmed around. He finally got his Super Bowl ring and immediately put it into a safe deposit box.

"I didn't get it until Thursday," Smith said. "Jerry had it sitting on a plane seat all by itself."

Smith was happy with his settlement but expressed how bitter he had become during the stalemate.

"I felt I wasn't wanted by the Cowboys organization," Smith said. "I felt I had done everything in my power and they still didn't want to pay me for what I had done. I was ready to move on. Based on what I had done the last two years, I was the No. 1 running back in the league."

Smith was relieved the ordeal was over.

"It was wearing on me and it was wearing on the team," Smith said. "But I wasn't going to give in to Jerry. My momma always told me: 'Don't let anyone run over you.'"

Frost leading charge at Hardee's

Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

COAL VALLEY, Ill. — Defending champion David Frost of South Africa shot a 7-under-par 63 on Friday to join two former champions, Canadian Dave Barr and American D.A. Weibring, atop the leaderboard after two rounds of the Hardee's Golf Classic.

Frost closed his bogey-free round with four straight birdies, finishing with a two-day total of 9-under 131.

A year ago, Frost led the Hardee's by 10 strokes after two rounds on his way to winning the tournament. Frost, who won last week's Canadian Open, said he has a "feeling" that good things are happening for him. Weibring agrees.

"David Frost is hitting the ball very well and playing very confident now, especially after coming off a win in Canada," Weibring said. "That would point toward him with an edge in the final two rounds."

Barr, who won the tournament in 1981, sank a dramatic 68-foot birdie putt to finish a 4-under 66.

Senior Classic

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Dale Douglass' 6-under 66 was the best of 25 sub-par rounds Friday and it gave him a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Senior Golf Classic.

Douglass, winless on the PGA Senior Tour since winning the Ameritech Senior Open in July 1992, had six birdies and made a 50-foot putt to save par during his round on the 6,798-yard Kearney Hill Links course.

The par-saving putt came on the 179-yard 8th. Douglass hit a 4-iron tee shot to just in front of the green. He used a sand wedge for the second shot and the ball flew to the other side of the green. He then made the long par-saver from just off the putting surface.

Douglass also rolled in a 20-footer on the par-3 2nd and a 35-footer on the par-4 4th for birdies. His other birdies came on Nos. 7, 14 and 18, all par-5s, and the par-4 11th in recording 33s on each nine to equal his best round on tour.

LPGA-Safeco

KENT, Wash. — Brandie Burton shot her second straight 4-under-par 68 Friday and took a one-shot lead halfway through the $450,000 LPGA Safeco Classic.

Burton, 21, who needed only 2½ years to win her first $1 million on the LPGA Tour and has already won a major tournament, was just in front of Amy Benz, who shared the day's best round at 65, and Helen Alfreddson and Rosie Jones, who both had a 67 on the 6,222-yard Meridian Valley Country Club course.

Another stroke back were Lauri Merten, 66, and Judy Dickinson, 67.

MHS: Andrews takes advantage early ny Paredes showed some adept ability to run and scramble, gaining 80 yards despite lossing yardage on sacks.

(From 1B)

"We're still not getting points up," Reeger said. "On occasion we moved it decently in the second half, but again no points on the board."

While Midland moved only in spurts in the first half, mainly on the ground with the running of Paredes, Roy Coats and Michael, Andrews ran and passed pretty much at will.

The Mustangs were lead by the running of quarterback Bryan Lepard and running backs Kevin Lawrence and Jonathan McDonald. McDonald scored two touchdowns. Lawrence rushed for 128 yards and Lepard ran for 86 and passed for a touchdown and 73 more yards.

"I've said all along we can (pass)," Stapler said. "We've broken out to leads early and that's (passing) something we haven't done (before)."

Mustang drives in the first half covered 75, 60, 80 and 43 yards.

Fast forward to the video store

By Jerry Coffey
N.Y. Times News Service

The secrets to getting hold of an eagerly awaited movie video as soon as it's available are a little forethought and quick feet.

Frustrated consumers complain that even though their favorite video store may have dozens of rental copies of a desired movie, it may take weeks, even months, to obtain one because of heavy demand. And being there on the release date is no assurance of success.

"They go pretty fast," said a Blockbuster Video clerk, noting that scheduled dates of availability are prominently posted in the stores.

The chain's communications office in Fort Lauderdale simply advised to get to the stores earlier in the day if the choice videos are gone.

■ September releases/2C

But how much earlier? Other video store sources say that the keys to first-day rental success are knowing when the new videos are distributed at the store of your choice and making sure you're first in line.

It may help to know that most new videos get to most stores on the same day each week, normally Wednesday. The mode of delivery is fairly standard, too: United Parcel Service. Delivery times vary from store to store, but tend to be reasonably consistent at a given location from week to week.

With that knowledge and a bit of detective work, the would-be renter should be able to improve her chances of success considerably. If you can't get an inside tip on an approximate time new videos go on the shelf at a chosen location, you can stake out the store and watch for the UPS truck, allowing a reasonable interval after its arrival for store staffers to process the movies before you rush in with membership card at the ready.

But how many people have the time Wednesday mornings or afternoons for such a stakeout.

Some of these outlets allow customers to reserve movies in advance. But that practice isn't practical for the high-volume chain operations.

However, random rental expeditions can be more rewarding nowadays than they used to be, store sources say, because a trend to one-night rentals, at least in the early weeks of a film's availability, is substantially increasing circulation.

'STRIKING DISTANCE' DIES HARD

■ New Bruce Willis action vehicle misses the boat.

By Yardena Arar
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — Even in a season without some of the most exciting action-adventure films in recent memory, "Striking Distance" wouldn't come close to hitting the mark.

That's the short story on this Bruce Willis vehicle, which is pretty much as messed up as rumor had it. From a transparent plot and graceless dialogue to so-so action sequences and the completely off-the-mark coupling of Willis and Sarah Jessica Parker, the film misfires on just about every count imaginable.

Willis plays Tom Hardy, latest in a long line of cops on a Pittsburgh force that seems heavily populated with his relatives, including his dad (John Mahoney), his uncle (Dennis Farina) and two bad-seed cousins (Robert Pastorelli and Tom Sizemore).

When his father is murdered following a high-speed chase with a serial killer, Hardy — who believes the killer is also a cop — challenges the official version of what happened and is busted down to river rescue patrol for his pains.

Two years later, now wearing shorts and busting criminals on the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers, Hardy

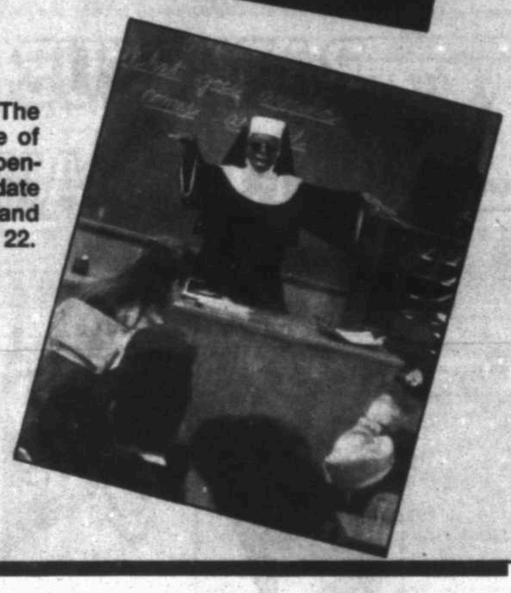
Films set for fall releases include, clockwise from top, "The Beverly Hillbillies," opening nationwide Oct. 15; "The Age of Innocence," with Daniel Day-Lewis and Michelle Pfieffer, opening this weekend nationally; "Sister Act II," no release date available; the sequel to "Wayne's World," opening Dec. 10, and Tim Burton's "Nightmare Before Christmas," coming Oct. 22.



Conan's world: One big frat party

Bill Murray. John Belushi. Dan Aykroyd. Jane Curtin. Gilda Radner.

The common thread? All are former comedic projects of television producer Lorne Michaels who went on to make huge names for themselves in the entertainment field.

Add one more name to that list — Conan O'Brien, Michaels' latest protege, and the latest entry in the late night talk show wars.

Conan O'Brien may never reach the star status of a Belushi or Murray, but he does have plenty of promise. Neither is O'Brien to be confused with David Letterman — but he's been trying to tell us that himself on NBC's repeated promos for his new show.

Five minutes after "Late Night With Conan O'Brien" made its debut Monday night, the show had already proved to be vastly more entertaining, and had exhibited far more potential than a week's worth of Chevy Chase's new talk show, the name of which has already escaped me.

Granted, watching O'Brien and his sidekick, Andy Richter, is a lot like watching a talk show if it were held in a college fraternity house. At any minute during the show, you expect to see someone dart on stage and yell "Food Fight!!"

These guys are young. Way young. But I can't for the life of me think of what might be wrong with some young, new (and very much needed) talent on television, as long as the new guys are funny. Heck, O'Brien, stilted as he is at times, is making late night a lot of fun.

At least one opening night joke worked particularly well: O'Brien said his friends doubted his talent as an on-air host. "They told me the day I got a talk show was the day there'd be peace in the Middle East," he said.

The Harvard grad struck again with his self-deprecating brand of humor when he was caught reading from a cue-card: Everything is written down for me ... the network is so nervous."

On Tuesday's second show, after admitting how glad he was to have made it through the premiere, O'Brien told the audience that the network wanted him to back off knock-

September a down month for releases

Disney's 'Aladdin,' due Oct. 1, highlight of the fall

N.Y. Times News Service

■ Home Video

For whatever reasons (a new television season is one), video rentals customarily dive in September. Anticipating the slump, studios often delay hot titles until customer interest revives later in the fall.

This year, though, with the exception of "Aladdin," available Oct. 1, and a few of other titles, release schedules are slight even for September and October.

"There's a six-month delay for video, so that leaves us with what was in theaters last spring," said Rich Thorward, a New Jersey dealer and publisher of The Movie Monitor, a national tip sheet for video dealers.

Last spring, that wasn't much. The one unqualified smash, "Indecent Proposal," is to be released on tape on Oct. 13 by Paramount.

A couple of solid spring performers in theaters, "Sommersby" and "Groundhog Day," are already in stores. Aside from those films, the standouts are few among the 50 September and October titles listed in the Monitor.

"A cute romance that will do much better on video," the Monitor says about "Married to It," to be released Sept. 22. "Twisty thriller is OK for a slow week," says the Monitor about "Scam," also available next week.

Among the Monitor's more promising picks are "Jack the Bear" (Oct. 6): "strong adult drama is a true video sleeper"; "The Sandlot" (Oct. 20): "a real charmer, not just for kids," and "Posse" (Oct. 27): "fun western will ride hard on video."

Titles like these will keep the shelves warm for the theatrical hits of summer. "In November we'll start to get the good stuff," Thorward said. In that category he includes "Cliffhanger," "Sleepless in Seattle" and "The Fugitive."

Whatever the dearth of big movies, September titles don't lack variety. On Wednesday, for example, Triboro released Bill Plympton's "Tune," a critically praised animated story about a frustrated songwriter, told in the tart Plympton style.

This is not "Aladdin." Plympton, who drew the film's 30,000 cels himself, did the mixing and mastering, and even designed the box. "It's a cottage industry," he said.

Also on Wednesday, Kino released four Russian films: "Ashik Kerib" (1988), the last film of Sergei Paradjanov ("Shadows of Forgotten Ancestors"); "Tchaikovsky" (1971), a big-budget spectacle with music by Dimitri Tiomkin; Vladimir Menshov's "Moscow Does Not Believe in Tears" (1981), which won an Oscar as best foreign film (much to the consternation of critics upset that Francois Truffaut's "Last Metro" was bypassed), and "The Theme" (1979), about a playwright in mid-life crisis, which was banned by Soviet censors as "too emotional."

Finally, this week brings what its distributor says is the first daytime soap opera ever to reach video stores. On three tapes, "ABC Daytime's Greatest Weddings" compiles highlights from 54 nuptials on "All My Children," "General Hospital" and "One Life to Live." They marry fast and often on the soaps (eight times since 1978 for Erica of "All My Children").

TV execs hope industry will shine

By Lynn Elber
AP Television Writer

PASADENA, Calif. — Despite all the flap, executive producer Don Mischer is determined the television industry will shine tomorrow night during the presentation of the Emmy Awards.

The show comes at a time of renewed criticism of sex and violence on television.

Also, huffy CBS, NBC and Fox Broadcasting executives announced an Emmy boycott to protest ABC's exclusive four-year deal to broadcast the ceremony.

But Mischer says he, and the ceremony, are undaunted. Network chiefs may not appear, he says, but the stars are coming out for the 45th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards, which will be televised live at 8 p.m. EDT from the Pasadena Civic Auditorium.

"We have a really great lineup of people who are going to be on the show, representing all networks," Mischer saus. "Unequivocally, as far as viewers are concerned, there will be no difference."

CBS, NBC and Fox claim the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences failed to negotiate in good faith when it decided against rotating the Emmys among the four networks and instead signed a more-lucrative ABC pact.

But the boycott has been limited to the networks' refusal to buy tickets for the ceremony or to take out advertisements in the academy's Emmy magazine, Mischer said.

As proof, he names host Angela Lansbury, then reels off a few presenters: Jay Leno, Garry Shandling, Mary Tyler Moore, Janine Turner, Jerry Seinfeld, Carol Burnett, Farrah Fawcett, Tim Allen and Craig T. Nelson.

The top nominee is CBS' "Northern Exposure," with 16 nominations, including best drama, best actor (Rob Morrow) and best actress (Miss Turner). The series won six trophies and 16 nominations in 1992.

NBC's sitcom "Seinfeld" strides in next with 11 nominations, including best comedy and best actor in a comedy (Jerry Seinfeld). It is tied with Home Box Office's movie "Citizen Cohn," part of cable TV's strong showing this year.

"Cheers," nominated for eight awards, including best comedy series, has a final shot at becoming the most-honored program in Emmy history. The NBC program, which ended its 11-year run this past season, has 26 Emmys; "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" ing himself so often.

PATTERSON: O'Brien nervous, yet likeable

(From 1C)

O'Brien seemed a bit more in control the second night, but some of his comedy bits failed to work as well as he probably would've liked. One that did, however, was a mock interview with an image of President Clinton on a television set that was lowered behind the host.

With O'Brien, a seasoned comedy writer with credits that include "The Simpson," widely regarded as the funniest situation comedy today, and "Saturday Night Live," it's obvious Michaels knows talent when he sees it.

First night guests were also a strong point, with John Goodman leg wrestling former "Cheers" star George Wendt, who was planted in the audience; Drew Barrymore was nothing worth remembering, but Tony Randall delivered his usual stand-offish brand of humor, throwing O'Brien completely off balance.

"You're not amused by me at all?" he asked Randall at one point. After Randall assured that he was not amused, O'Brien said, "I feel like I'm being taken to the talk-show woodshed."

All in all, funny stuff from a guy who has never been in front of a camera before. O'Brien does have quite a big pair of shoes to fill, and an enormous task at hand in winning over the American television viewing public. But O'Brien is a likeable guy who you want to see succeed, and if he can get over his jitters — which he will in time — then the new "Late Night" may be just different enough to succeed.

After all, how many other hosts would be goofy enough to come out and sing "Edelweiss," a cappella, on his first night in front of millions of people? And, with the bit's cutaways to actors as sobbing nuns and soldiers in the audience, it was a good, funny bit on which to close his debut.

This guess is that O'Brien's TV life will be much longer than that of Chevy Chase.

Jimmy Patterson writes about radio and television for the Reporter-Telegram.

DISTANCE: Paker's bad hair film

feels vindicated when a new and similar string of serial killings begins.

But his many enemies on the force, most inexplicably Farina in a particularly heavy-handed performance, refuse to believe the two sets of murders are linked — and when it becomes apparent the young female victims all dated or knew Hardy, they begin to suspect him. Only his new partner, Jo (Parker), believes in him.

You have to be a die-hard Bruce Willis fan to enjoy this overdone nonsense; he's back to his signature smirk here, and it isn't getting any more attractive as his hairline recedes.

Writer-director Rowdy Herrington must shoulder a large share of the blame as well. With the exception of the opening car chase, in which Willis and Mahoney discuss Willis' love life in between playing bumper cars on hilly streets, the action is routine at best, the language gratuitously foul.

Some of the riverfront scenery is handsome, but the big water chase with a much ballyhooed 50-foot dam jump just doesn't look terribly spectacular — you can't help thinking of Harrison Ford's dramatic leap off the falls in "The Fugitive."

The usually appealing Parker, meanwhile, looks as bad as she ever has on screen. She needs to have a long talk with her hair, makeup and lighting people if she intends to work with them again.

ON SCREEN

(Condensed movie reviews by Los Angeles Daily News film critics. The rating system for the film list is: ★★★★ — Don't miss it; ★★★ — worth your while; ★★ — Has it moments; ★ — If you must)

N.Y. Times News Service

CALENDAR GIRL: Jason Priestley ("Beverly Hills, 90210") headlines the story of three class of '62 high school grads who drive from Nevada to Los Angeles to date the woman of their dreams — Marilyn Monroe. The fact that she doesn't know them just means it will take longer. In between camping out on her doorstep, the young men hang with Jason's actor-wannabe uncle (Joe Pantoliano), run away from a deaf loan shark and generally trade quips about the meaning of life. Of course it's unbelieveable, but more to the point, it's not particularly funny or appealing. PG-13. Rating: ★

DENNIS THE MENACE: Cartoonist Hank Ketcham's durable 6-year-old is a lot funnier in newspapers than in this latest John Hughes production. Walter Matthau provides a few laughs as the irascible Mr. Wilson, the unwilling object of Dennis' attention, but newcomer Mason Gamble is just so-so and the movie is too sticky sweet to be the social satire it could have been. PG. Rating: ★½

FREE WILLY: A sort of "E.T." for the environmentally conscious, the story of two adolescents in search of family — one a killer whale, the other an abandoned boy — unfolds deftly and without excess sentiment. Credit director Simon Wincer ("Phar Lap," "Lonesome Dove," "The Man From Snowy River"), newcomer Jason James Richter, Keiko the whale and wildlife cinematographer Bob Talbot for the class act of the summer family shows. PG. Rating: ★★★

THE FUGITIVE: The big-screen version of the classic TV show is a nonstop chase machine. But, similar to the Energizer bunny it goes and goes like, all it leaves you with are memories of motion and a drumbeat. Dully stalwart Harrison Ford is the innocent Dr. Richard Kimble, wrongly condemned for killing his wife. Charismatic, witty Tommy Lee Jones is implacable Marshal Gerard, determined to catch the escaped con, who's equally determined to find the real killer. Director Andrew Davis ("Under Siege") never lets up on the suspense, not even to toss a little character development into the mix. PG-13. Rating: ★★★

HARD TARGET: The best movie Jean-Claude Van Damme's had the luck to be in is one of the most compromised Hong Kong superdirector John Woo has made. The filmmaker's typical, balletically choreographed and highly imaginative violence, while evident everywhere, has clearly been undercut to achieve an R rating. What's left is a good-looking, less-than-gut-grabbing fight between Van Damme and a bunch of rich jerks who hunt homeless veterans in New Orleans. R. Rating: ★★2½

JURASSIC PARK: Steven Spielberg's dino-spectacular is not the religious experience many expected, but it's a pretty good, sci-fi chase movie. Something goes wrong at an island amusement park whose main attraction is genetically engineered, live dinosaurs. The big lizards, realized by a superb combination of full-sized robots and computer-generated graphics, have infinitely more charisma than their underwritten human prey, played by Sam Neill, Laura Dern, Jeff Goldblum and Richard Attenborough. PG-13. Rating: ★★★

LAST ACTION HERO: Of all things, an intellectually ambitious satire of Arnold Schwarzenegger action movies — starring Arnold Schwarzenengger. For the most part, it's too loud and, well, action packed to work, though a few scenes are marvels of self-reflexive humor. Austin O'Brien is the 11-year-old fan who enters a movie supercop's fictional world, then brings him back into something like our real dimension. John McTiernan ("The Hunt for Red October") directs with little evident sensitivity to the scenario's comic potential. PG-13. Rating: ★★

THE MAN WITHOUT A FACE: Mel Gibson's directing debut is pretty conventional stuff, well-made but hardly passionate. It does contain one of the superstar actor's best performances, as a fire-scarred recluse who comes out of his shell when a troubled boy (talented newcomer Nick Stahl) becomes his student. Set on the Maine coast in the summer of '68, it's like "Phantom of the Opera" does "Dead Poets Society." PG-13. Rating: ★★½

NEEDFUL THINGS: Max Von Sydow stars in the screen adaptation of the Stephen King best seller about a satanic shopkeeper who trades curios for nominal sums of cash plus pranks that heat long-simmering feuds to the boiling point and then some. King's parable about the evil under the idyllic facade of a peaceful New England village is played mostly for easy laughs by director Fraser Heston, but a good-looking production and a strong cast that also includes Ed Harris, Bonnie Bedelia and Amanda Plummer make for passable popcorn horror fare. R. Rating: ★★

THE REAL MCCOY: Kim Basinger looks smashing as a newly paroled cat burglar forced into one last heist to save her son from the clutches of a greedy multimillionaire villain (Terence Stamp). It's a competent but totally predictable and calculating star vehicle, right down to the role-reversal romance with Val Kilmer as an inept but amiable sidekick. The caper, by the way, is highly reminiscent of the one in a much more interesting 1988 British film, "Bellman and True." PG-13. Rating: ★½

ROBIN HOOD: MEN IN TIGHTS: Mel Brooks is back with a parody of Kevin Costner's "Robin Hood" featuring Cary Elwes as Robin of Loxley, crackup performances by Roger Rees and Richard Lewis as the Sheriff of Rottingham and Prince John, Tracy Ullman as the hag Latrine and Brooks himself as Rabbi Tuckman. It has Brooks' signature musical numbers and Yiddish jokes, plus Dom DeLuise as a medieval Marlon Brando, but the lunacy isn't consistant enough to match Brooks' earlier sendups or more recent spoofs by the Zucker brothers and Jim Abrahams. Go with modest expectations. PG-13. Rating: ★★

ROOKIE OF THE YEAR: A sweet and funny fable about a clumsy 12-year-old who is drafted by the Chicago Cubs when his broken arm heals into a 100-mph pitching machine. Rookie director Daniel Stern in a not-so-shabby performance himself milks the situation for all its comic potential without ever losing sight of the warmth that gives the film its "Big"-ish charm. PG. Rating: ★★★

THE SECRET GARDEN: Frances Hodgson Burnett's durable novel about a lonely turn-of-the-century orphan who finds emotional rebirth in tending for a mysterious abandoned garden gets its classiest, most sensitive screen interpretation to date from director Agnieszka Holland ("Europa, Europa"). Visually spectacular and superbly acted by a cast headed by newcomer Kate Maberly and Maggie Smith, the film explores universal themes of loss and renewal with a simplicity and beauty that will enchant filmgoers of all ages. An instant classic. G. Rating: ★★★½

SLEEPLESS IN SEATTLE: Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan star in Nora Ephron's contrived, self-mocking and deliriously wonderful romantic comedy. He's a widowed single father; she's a passion rattled journalist on the other side of the continent. They don't meet until the last scene. In the meantime, Ephron (who wrote Ryan's hit "When Harry Met Sally...") hilariously implores us to bury our fake, movie fed romantic notions — then makes us fall for them all over again. PG-13. Rating: ★★★½

SO I MARRIED AN AXE MURDERER: Mike Myers of "Wayne's World" fame stars as a gunshy San Francisco yuppie who suspects the woman of his dreams (Nancy Travis) of being a serial killer — of her husbands. The running jokes wear thin towards the end, but Myers is as lovable as ever and his fans won't be disappointed. Look for cameos by Phil Hartman, Steven Wright and Charles Grodin. PG-13. Rating: ★★

Raymond Burr was America's counsel

Late actor acquitted himself, America's ideal of lawyers

By Drew Jubera
N.Y. Times News Service

When Raymond Burr became Perry Mason, he became America's counselor.

Arriving in the courtroom just as TV was arriving in the country's living rooms, he screwed up forever our notion of what we wanted in a good lawyer and how a trial should be run. He rendered a clear-cut, black-and-white, case-closed depiction of proceedings too complicated for our short attention spans to contemplate. Perry Mason was to the law what Beaver Cleaver was to family life, a distinctly '50s time capsule whose images still survive not because they're real, but because they're what we really want them to be.

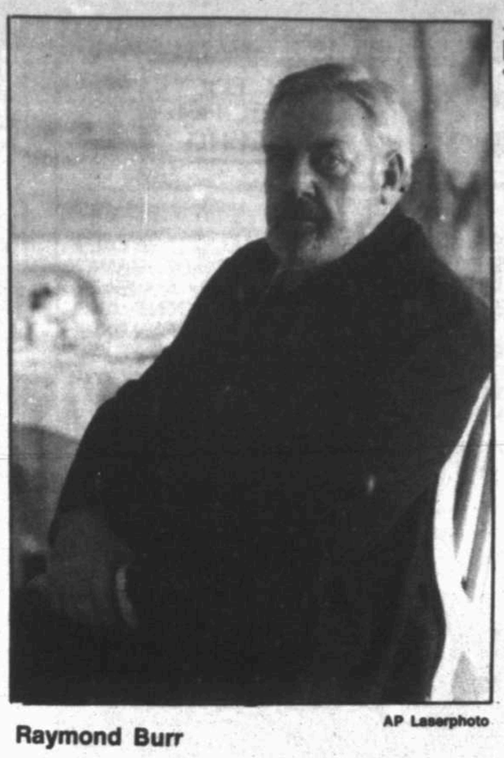
"Perry Mason went on the air when people were first buying television sets," Burr once said of the series that ran from 1957 to 1966. "A lot of people in this country didn't know what their legal system was all about. I'm sure just from the people who have watched the show over the years, particularly the minorities, they found out the system of justice was for them."

Burr died Sunday at his ranch in Sonoma County, Calif., from liver cancer. He was 76.

A native of Canada, Burr grew up in Vallego, Calif., dropping out of junior high school to work a series of jobs: traveling salesman, store clerk, hotel manager, forest ranger and ranch hand. He first acted in a church play, then spent a summer at a Toronto theater, where he was hired to tour England with a repertory company.

He eventually had an extensive film career. His movie credits included the first "Godzilla." He was the villain spied upon by James Stewart in Alfred Hitchcock's "Rear Window"; the prosecutor of Montgomery Clift in "A Place in the Sun"; and Natalie Wood's stalker in "A Cry in the Night."

When "Perry Mason" folded, Burr lifted much from his old role to star as wheelchair-bound investigator Robert Ironside in "Ironside," which had a successful run from 1967 to 1975.



Raymond Burr — AP Laserphoto

But it was as Perry Mason that Burr became a pop icon. Picked for the role over a parade of other actors, including Fred MacMurray and Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Burr seemed supremely built for the part: tall, sturdy and lovably bug-eyed, his gravelly voice had an easy, mannered locution that could turn bulldog-persistent at the 11th hour ("Isn't it true you then entered the house? Isn't it true you fired the gun? Isn't it all true?") to pull the truth out of some stunned, lying witness.

■ Appreciation

He won Emmy awards as best series actor in 1959 and 1961.

"Perry Mason" was classic early TV, finding art in its artlessness. You could set your watch by its storylines: Client comes to Mason for legal advice, client is accused of murder, Mason and staff gumshoe clues, case goes to court, Mason gets the guilty party (not his client) to confess.

The ensemble cast that surrounded Burr acted with an equally memorable predictability. Della Street (Barbara Hale) was his unflagging secretary, while Paul Drake (William Hopper) was the dogged investigator whose habit was to find key evidence and rush with it into a courtroom before injustice could prevail.

Burr's constant foil was district attorney Hamilton Burger (William Talman), against whom he had a perfect record (he did lose a case in 1963 after his client refused to reveal evidence that would save her, but Mason found the real culpri. and later got his client off the hook).

When asked once by a fan how he won every case, Burr replied with a barrister's curtliness, "But madam, you only see the cases I try on Saturday."

The series never really died, on the air or in our collective consciousness. It has aired regularly in reruns for more than 20 years, and defined the legal community for many TV viewers until "L.A. Law" updated the picture in the '80s.

Burr revived Perry Mason over the years in a series of two-hour TV movies, which remained popular to the end. In mid-August, he completed location work in Denver for his last Perry Mason TV film, "The Case of the Killer Kiss" (to air Oct. 22), reporting to the set at 4 a.m. despite his illness.

Downey gets an 'A' for effort in 'Chaplin'

N.Y. Times News Service

If Sir Richard Attenborough cannot make the definitive biography on Charles Chaplin, no one can.

The actor (who's had his greatest success as "Jurassic Park's" misguided master planner) turned director in 1969 with "Oh! What A Lovely War." But his best directorial efforts have been bio-pics. First "Young Winston" and then the Oscar-winning "Gandhi."

Much-harried and much-married Charles Spencer Chaplin gets the best of Attenborough. He seems unable to settle on the comedian's 70-year show business career, his four marriages (all to teenagers) or his many personal tragedies.

Attenborough tries to get a grip on Chaplin's life by starting at the end.

This narrative device has been used thousands of times on stage and film. But it's not needed here. In fact, each time Attenborough returns to the senior Chaplin at his Switzerland manse, it's more of an interruption than an anchoring point.

Attenborough makes up for his lack in storytelling judgment by casting Robert Downey Jr. in the title role. Few thought Downey would be equal to the task.

Downey proved his doubters (myself included) wrong. He finds the right mix of impishness and arrogance, physicality and sexuality, brilliance and moodiness to give us a Chaplin who is human. Probably too much so for some Chaplin admirers.

EMMYS: CBS leads with 92 nominations earned a record 29.

(From 2C)

Jay Leno and David Letterman, now competing in the late-night arena, are going head-to-head for an Emmy in the best variety, music or comedy series category.

"The Tonight Show With Jay Leno" got a bid in Leno's first year as host, while Letterman, now at CBS, is nominated for NBC's "Late Night With David Letterman."

Emmys in 27 categories will be awarded tonight. Other awards, primarily technical, were given at a nontelevised banquet Saturday.

In planning the ceremony, Mischer kept in mind recent criticism of sex and violence on TV. Tonight's show will try to counter such views, he said.

"We're hoping to set a tone of elegance and respect for the Emmy Award," he said. "And we're hoping to set a tone that's very positive about the television business.

"Certainly, this is not a perfect business ... but on the night that you are awarding the best work of the season, you want to focus only on the best."

That's why Miss Lansbury was chosen, Mischer explained. The two had worked together in years past when Mischer produced and Miss Lansbury hosted the Tony Awards, the theater's premiere awards show.

"We wanted someone who could really set a tone for the show that was right," Mischer says. "Angela, we felt, represented that more than anyone. She's elegant and beautiful and very graceful."

Miss Lansbury is a best dramatic actress nominee for her CBS series "Murder, She Wrote." She has 12 previous nominations, but a win would be her first.

The veteran actress has received four Tony Awards and is clearly at home handling a stage event — even one that will be seen by more than 500 million viewers in 80 countries.

The roughly three-hour ceremony is reaching a larger international audience this year through a new satellite TV deal. Greece, Portugal, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka will join other nations peeking in on the awards.

What viewers will see is a reflection of a changing industry in which the Big Three broadcast networks (CBS, ABC and NBC) no longer dominate the landscape.

Although CBS is clearly the leader with a total 92 nominations, followed by NBC with 80, cable's HBO scored 55 bids to tie ABC. Altogether, cable TV programs reaped a record 77 Emmy nominations.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE DIFFICULTIES OF TRAVEL

TRAVEL IN BIBLICAL TIMES WAS AT LEAST A CHALLENGE. THE ROADS, IF THEY COULD BE CALLED THAT, WERE NIGH IMPASSABLE IN PLACES. ADDED TO THE DANGER OF ROVING BANDS OF BRIGANDS, THE SCARCITY OF PALATABLE DRINKING WATER OR WELLS TO DRAW FROM, MADE MANY A WEARY INDIVIDUAL WISH HE HAD FORGONE THE DUBIOUS PLEASURE OF THE TRAVEL THAT BROADENS AND EDUCATES. CARAVANS, THAT SLOWLY TRUDGED AWAY THE TIRESOME MILES, WERE THE MAIN EXPEDIENT BY WHICH THE PEOPLE WERE ENABLED TO REACH THEIR DESTINATIONS. AS A POINT IN FACT, YOU CAN SEE THE TEDIOUS DIFFICULTIES WHEN YOU REALIZE THAT BEFORE NEHEMIAH, WHO WAS TRAVELING BY SPEEDY CHARIOT, COULD SEE THE RUINS OF JERUSALEM, WHICH HE WAS GOING TO REBUILD, FOUR MONTHS WENT BY FROM THE TIME OF HIS SETTING OUT UNTIL HIS ARRIVAL AT THE RUINED CITY!

Ben & Jerry's not able to produce dessert for Israeli wedding guests

JERUSALEM — The recent wedding celebration of the heir to the Hasidic dynasty of Belz was probably the biggest ever held in Jerusalem. But this being Israel, it was also fraught with religious, political and even culinary significance.

Thirty thousand people stood not so silently by as Aharon Mordechai Rokeah, the only son of the Grand Rabbi of Belz, Yisrael Dov Rokeah, wed Sara Lea Lemberger, widely described here as an outstanding student at a Belz high school with not nearly the impressive rabbinical lineage of her new husband.

Both are 18. It was an arranged marriage; the couple met only three times before the big day.

A joyous atmosphere prevailed on the closed streets of Kiryat Belz, the Jerusalem neighborhood where the wedding was held the night of Aug. 3. There was singing and dancing and flag waving through most of the night, and a guest list that ranged from the meekest of the grand rabbi's followers to Foreign Minister Shimon Peres.

For the Belz, the wedding was a public celebration of great importance because it represented the continuation of a European dynasty handed down from one generation to the next for nearly 300 years.

Several months ago, the organizers of the wedding approached the American Co. for Ice Cream Manufacture, the Israeli franchise for Ben & Jerry's, with an order for dessert for 30,000 people. "They wanted us to produce a pareve version of our ice cream," Avi Zinger, head of a local franchise, told The Jerusalem Report, a magazine. Pareve ice cream is made without dairy products so that it can be eaten with meat or chicken, in accordance with kosher standards.

"But we couldn't do that, because we can't manufacture Ben & Jerry's without the essential dairy ingredients," Zinger added, apparently referring to milk and cream.

Instead, his franchise began to produce on its own pareve ice cream in three flavors — vanilla, chocolate and strawberry — and labeled it especially for the Belz wedding. But it wasn't to be. "When the logistical nightmare of serving ice cream to 30,000 guests became clear, the whole idea was dropped," he said.

Not everyone was happy with the Belz wedding.

The Satmar Hasidim, a rival that often criticizes the Belz's willingness to cooperate with the secular Israeli government, expressed its outrage in posters hung in the religious neighborhoods.

are you a UNITARIAN without knowing it?

Do you believe that religious truth cannot be contrary to truth from other sources?
Do you believe we are capable of self-improvement and are not condemned by "orginal sin?"
Do you believe that striving to live a wholesome life is more important than accepting religious creeds?
Do you believe in the practical application of Universal brotherhood?

These are Unitarian beliefs

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Teens to minister

The First United Church of Stanton, in conjunction with First Baptist Church of Stanton, will host "Youth With a Mission" Wednesday and Thursday.

A group of 15 teen-agers, among with their sponsors, will present their ministry to the community at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the high school auditorium.

"Youth With a Mission', founded in 1960, each year has more than 200,000 participate in short-term projects and more than 7,000 work as permanent staff at 350 ministry centers in 96 nations. No one in YWAM receives a salary, including the international president. The group that will be in Stanton is based in Tyler.

The public is welcome to attend.

■ Annual program set

The Macedonia Baptist Church is holding its annual Women's Day Program at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The speaker will be Casandra Carlisle, a native Midlander and church member for more than 20 years. In the past, she was a member of the Youth Ushers, the Youth and Young Adult choirs. She serves as general secretary of the Sunday School, choir director and sponsor for the Youth Choir and a member of the Junior Mission.

Davis

The afternoon service will begin at 2:30 p.m. with Shirley Davis of Lubbock speaking. She is a member of the Lyons Chapel Baptist Church, where her husband serves as pastor.

Mrs. Davis serves as Junior Mission Bible teacher at her church, president of Ministers and Deacons' Wives in the Lovely Sunset District Association and as vice president of the Interdenominational Ministers Wives Alliance in Lubbock. She is known throughout West Texas for her singing ministry.

The public is invited to attend.

■ 'Echo' to perform

Musical ministers Echo will perform at 6 p.m. Sunday at Christian Church of Midland, 2608 Neely.

Echo

The group's music blends a contemporary sound with tight vocal harmonies. The group sings a cappella.

Following the concert, guest speaker Kenneth Boles from Ozark Christian College will speak on "Heaven, What Will It Be."

The event will continue at 6:45 p.m. Monday and Tuesday. The Amarillo-based group will lead a praise service and Boles will speak.

A nursery will be provided. For more information call the church 684-7681.

■ Church hosts speaker

Zane C. Hodges will be the guest speaker at Midland Bible Church, 2800 N. A St., at the 9:30 and 10:45 a.m. services Sunday.

Hodges is an author, speaker and former professor at Dallas Theological Seminary, where he taught New Testament Greek for 27 years.

He is engaged in teaching, preaching and pastoral ministry at Victor Street Bible Chapel, Dallas and is the author of several books, including "The Gospel Under Siege," "Absolutely Free" and "Grace in Eclipse."

■ Women's program set

The Mount Calvary Missionary Baptist Church will observe its 19th annual Women's Day Sunday.

Guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service will be Nancy Drean Mays, a member of Greater Ideal Baptist Church. She will be introduced by Betty Lathan.

Ruth Henderson will speak at the 2:30 p.m. service and Sonya Medearis and Diane Erving will present a skit.

Singing will be provided by the Mount Calvary Women's Choir and other guest choirs.

Theme for this year is "Counting the Cost to be with Christ."

The church's pastor, the Rev. Robert E. Lathan, invites the public to attend.

■ Church offers forum

On the last Tuesday of the month First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., offers a Luncheon Forum for men and women.

This month's luncheon is set for noon in Lynn Hall Sept. 28.

The speaker will be Jerome McNail Fullinwider, founder and president of VF-RUSSIA, Inc. Oil adn gas Development firm with offices in Dallas, Midland and Moscow, Russia.

For lunch reservations call 684-7821, extension 38. The cost of the lunch is $4. A nursery is available with reservations made through the church office.

The church also is offering Wednesday evening classes for all ages.

Wednesday's activities begin with a 5:30 p.m. meal. Classes are at 6:30 p.m.

The adult classes are "Traits of a Healthy Family" by Dr. Jerry Hilton, "Know Why You beleive" by Steve Schorr, "Our Christian Response to AIDS" by Judy Warren, "Christian Financial Planning" by Ed Runkel and 'Gospel of Mark" by Carolyn Beall.

Children are invited to join the Children's Choir. The first rehearsal will be from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The CHildren's Choir will be singing in worship services periodically and preparing for a program in December.

The youth will participate in S.W.A.T. for grades 7 and 8 or Wednesday Night Wrestling for grades 9-12.

All are welcome to attend.

■ Aglow to host series

Midland Outreach Aglow Fellowship, an international fellowship of women, will host a series of meetings Friday and Sept. 25 at St. Paul United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive, with the Rev. Linda Morgan of Morning Star Fellowship at Stinnett.

Ms. Morgan has recently returned from ministry in Africa and is bringing her praise and worship team. She will be interviewed on KMLM Television's Prime Time program, Cable Channel 12, at 11 a.m. Thursday.

The meetings are scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday and 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Sept. 25.

Babysitting will be provided on a donation basis. Men are invited. For more information call DiAnn, 694-2544 or 694-4791.

■ Workshop scheduled

The deadline for registering for the "Basics of Grantwriting for Churches" workshop set for Oct. 1 at the Permian Church of Religious Science, 2311 Elizabeth St., is Sept. 27.

The workshop, being presented by the Namaskar Foundation, is facilitated by Pamela Davis, its president. Cost is $100. Attendance is by pre-registration only. For more information call Merilyn Chileen, 694-4230.

■ Church sets service

Holy Cross Lutheran Church will be worshipping at 5400 N. Big Spring St., Suite A Sunday.

Begining Sunday, the worship service will be at 9 a.m. and Sunday School and adult Bible classes will begin at 10 a.m. The church also has a 7 p.m. Tuesday adult Bible study.

For more information call the church's pastor, the Rev. Guy Bergenthal.

■ Time, style changes

Trinity Presbyterian Church, Louisiana Avenue at Andrews Highway, is changing the time and style of its early worship service beginning Sunday.

The service will begin at 8:30 a.m. and conclude by 9:15 a.m. the service will include drama, liturgical dance, music and a spoken sermon.

A nursery will be provided.

■ Program scheduled

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland will present a program entitled "Exploring Adult Religious Education" at 9:45 a.m. Sunday.

The program will be presented by program committee members Bruce McPherson, Tom Whiles, Niki Widmayer, Ed McCabe and Robert Volkmann.

Those members will present synopses of several available programs, including "Living the Interdependent Web," "Building Your Own Theology," "Parents As Social Justice Educators," "World Religions Course" and "A Holy Curiosity — Exploring Religious Questions."

The public is invited to attend. Child care will be provided.

■ Crafts fair slated

Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 W. Michigan Ave., is holding its Arts and Crafts Fair Nov. 6.

Those interested in participating need to register by Oct. 15. Registration cost is $10. A fee of 10 percent of sales will be charged. All participants will staff their tabke and collect their money.

In addition to arts and crafts, the fair will feature baked goods, a lunch table and a White Elephant table.

■ Quartet to perform

Shekinah Glory Gospel Quartet will perform at 7 p.m. Sunday at Ranchland Heights Baptist Church.

The Midland-based quartet sings contemporary gospel. Members are Hector Jr., Victor and Richard Gonzalez and Jake Sanchez. All are sons of ministers. They ahve sung with Trinity Broadcasting Network, Prime Time Christiand Broadcasting and in churches of numerous denominations.

Hector Gonzales has a degree in sociology from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin and completed a course of study at Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University.

Victor and Rochard Gonzales have traveled throughout the United States doing evangelistic singing. Each holds associate of arts degrees and are working on their bachelor degrees.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Lucian Rudd, invites the public to attend. For more information call 683-1947 or 697-4471.

■ Divorce seminar set

The Singles Ministry of Golf Course Road Church of Christ will present its semi-annual divorce recovery seminar Oct. 16.

Entitled "Some Answers to the Divorce Dilemma," the seminar will be presented by Tom Vermillion, singles minister for the church for 11 years. Child care will be provided at no charge provided registration is made by Oct. 14.

Registration will be at 8:30 a.m. Oct. 15. The seminar will end at 3:30 p.m.

Traditionally, following each seminar, the participants are invited to become involved in small support group meeting from 6 to 7 p.m. Sundays for six weeks. These groups are led by those who have experienced divorce. Dress is casual and meetings are informal.

For more information, call the church.

■ Revival scheduled

The Antioch Baptist Church, 1400 E. Golf Course Road, presents its fall "Soul-Saving" Revival Monday through Friday.

The Rev. G.T. Curry of greater Union Missionary Baptist Church, Houston, will be the evangelist.

Services begin at 7:30 p.m. All are welcome.

■ Video series continues

Christian Church of Midland, 2608 Neely, is in the second week of showing an eight-week video series, "Finding Peace in a Troubled World," at 7 p.m. Wednesdays.

This series is based on Max Lucado's new book, "And the Angels Were Silent."

The public is invited to attend.

South Africa finds beauty pageant's 'breakthrough' issue

By Bill Keller
N.Y. Times News Service

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — In mid-July, two African National Congress organizers sent a secret memo to Cyril Ramaphosa, the congress' secretary-general, telling him of "a major breakthrough for the oppressed masses of our people."

The subject of the document was the Miss South Africa contest. The congress organizers reported that they had confronted sponsors of the competition with complaints that 9 of the 12 finalists were white. After "intensive negotiations," the memo said, they had extracted promises of a "training fund" to groom future nonwhite beauty pageant contestants.

Triumphant, the organizers directed Ramaphosa's attention to the next challenge facing the liberation movement: the Miss World contest.

To the dumbfounded insider who leaked the document, it was a silly and sexist diversion for an organization that counts on being the next governing party. To almost anyone else here, it proved that the African National Congress has an uncanny sense of what matters to South Africans.

Few countries take beauty pageants quite as seriously as South Africa, where the mundane marital troubles of the 1974 Miss World are still copiously reported on the front pages, where a Cabinet member was once rumored to have tried to fix the Miss Universe contest, and where the African National Congress briefly contemplated holding its own rival pageant.

The obsession has been attributed by critics to the sexual hypocrisy of a puritanical society or to South Africa's circa-1950 ideal of a woman's place, but participants in the pageantry say South Africans dote on beauty queens simply because they have no royal family and no Hollywood.

"In South Africa, we haven't got celebrities as such," said Palesa Jacqui Mofokeng, who last month became the first black Miss South Africa.

With the crowning of Miss Mofokeng, South Africa's usual agitation over Miss South Africa reached new levels of frenzy, most of it well-wishing but much of it bitter. Conservative whites asserted that the selection was a surrender to African National Congress pressure, and even admirers of the new queen said there was little doubt that, this year of all years, the judges were looking for a worthy black contender.

Judges said that the selection had less to do with race than substance, Miss Mofokeng's thoughtful comments on death in black townships outweighing the statements of the white first runner-up, who gushed about her collection of stuffed animals.

Newcomers ruffle feathers of Oudtshoorn ostrich cartel

OUDTSHOORN, South Africa (NYT) — Smirk, if you like, at the ostrich-egg lamps and ostrich jerky on sale in the curio shops, the ostrich jockeys at the Safari tourist farm, the South African flag composed of ostrich feathers, the ubiquitous low-cholesterol ostrich steak platter, the ostrich-crossing sign posted on Langenhoven Street.

Go ahead, roll your eyes at the Feather Inn, the Early Bird television repair shop, and Chez L'Austriche. But be advised that in Oudtshoorn, which bills itself without exaggeration as the world's ostrich capital, they take their ostriches seriously.

Almost somberly, in fact, these days. For after nearly 50 years of controlling the world's supply of this comical but lucrative commodity, the Oudtshoorn ostrich cartel faces an alarming threat: competition.

With two new rival ostrich associations beginning to challenge from inside South Africa, and smugglers spiriting breeding stock away to ranchers overseas, farmers here fear that the days of the $500 ostrich-hide handbag may be numbered.

"They want to do their own thing," spat Chris M. Coetzee, contemptuous and disbelieving at the folly of upstart farmers who, he says, would flood the ostrich market and let prices fall.

Coetzee is chairman of the Little Karoo Agricultural Cooperative, which is to ostriches what OPEC is to oil, what the De Beers consortium is to diamonds. And like everyone else here, he is mindful that Oudtshoorn has been through one ostrich crash.

In Queen Victoria's day, a million domesticated ostriches roamed the rugged prairie known as the Little Karoo, sacrificing their feathers every eight months to satisfy the demand for Hollywood costumes, chorus-line outfits, flapper boas, and feather hats.

Tour guides tell visitors that the industry was done in by the automobile, which made an ostrich hat impractical. Coetzee and others say the real culprit was World War I, which dampened the market for fashion and frivolity.

When ostriches came back after World War II, the demand was for their skin, a supple leather pocked with distinctive quill marks.

In 1945, the government gave the cooperative the exclusive right to market all ostrich products from South Africa, which meant virtually all ostrich products in the world.

The cooperative operates the only legal ostrich slaughterhouse, where each year 150,000 birds are stunned by electric shock, beheaded, bled dry, and slit from chin.
