CHEMISTRY A-1 STILL FLOORS FROSH AT A-M

Take Dr. Bizzell's Word For It, He Told About It Yesterday

MEETS EX-STUDENTS

"Same Old School," He Declares, But Adds It's Changed, Nevertheless

Inclined to be a little portly, but not much; same old smile from out the same kindly eyes; hand shake—not changed a single bit—; same sort of a sure enough, all-the-time man.

Doctor W. B. Bizzell, president of the Agricultural and Mechanical college, made life just that much more worth living to a whole lot of men and young men for a few hours in Wichita Falls yesterday by meeting them, greeting them and mingling with them preliminary to the occasion of his visit here, an address to the high school and Junior college graduates at their commencement exercises.

College Has Changed

"The college is a changed place since most of you fellows left it," he told A. and M. ex-students at a dinner in his honor at the Kemp hotel last night. "The same old school, but changed nevertheless.

"The main drive from the depot to the flag pole has been paved and a boulevard made out of it. A wite way is being installed and a large gate, designed by a former A. & M. man, is being constructed at the entrance to the grounds.

"The old wooden annex to the mess hall, Sbisa you call it, is being torn down and a new $75,000 addition added. Dirt has been broken for a dormitory for graduate students just west of the old Beta Hall. Ross Hall and Pheuffer Hall are still standing but I am going to get those out of the way some day soon.

"There are about 60 girls going to school at the college, most of them daughters of faculty members and Bryan residents, while four are graduate students from other parts of the United States taking special work. We have a large number of foreign students, a late compilation of figures showing more of these at A. & M. than at any other Texas school.

Still Fail in Chemistry

"Pee-wee is still there; so is Doctor Francis, and 65 per cent of the freshman class still fail to pass Chemistry A-1, just as always.

"We are planning a new disposition of the housing problem. A num-

Three Mothers Adjudged By City Unfit To Care For 8 Helpless Children

A TASK not usually coming under the head of "department business" has fallen on officials of the police department lately in the taking away from irresponsible parents eight children found helpless and uncared for because of the vagaries of their mothers.

Within the last ten days, two women, each the mother of three children, and one woman, the mother of two, have been arrested on charges either of intoxication, vagrancy, or both. Apparently unconcerned as to the welfare of their youngsters, they were assessed the usual penalties for such misconduct.

The question then came up, though, as to what should be done with the babies who would be innocent sufferers during the absence of their mothers. Mrs. E. B. Gorsline Jr., police matron and secretary of the welfare board was called each time and took temporary charge of the cases. An investigation of them gave convincing proof that it would be fallacy to return the youngsters to their mothers and, for the time being at least, they are being cared for by the Texas Children's Home and Aid society which maintains a branch here.

A suit in which damages of $10,500 are sought went on trial Friday afternoon before a jury and Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court with R. D. Kelly, a local painting contractor as plaintiff and the Frick-Reid Supply company as defendant.

The plaintiff's petition alleges that on Nov. 27, 1924, he was severely injured in an automobile accident at Tenth and Tyler streets, brought on, it is contended, through negligence of an agent of the defendant company.

Opening evidence introduced yesterday included testimony from several physicians as to the nature of injuries sustained by Mr. Kelly. The case will be continued Saturday.

COLD WORLD IS PRESENTED 148 WF. GRADUATES

Annual Presentation of Diplomas Made Amid Beauful Setting

"Pullman cars, ballon tires and balloon trousers are indicative of the solid comfort and the luxuries we enjoy. Speed is in the air, youth lives in speed. We make the trip from England to Texas in seven days and complain of the service if we are a few hours late when a few years ago the trip took six long weary months. Speed gives us more leisure than man has ever before had in history."

From Dr. Bizzell's address before Wichita Falls graduates last night.

Framed in the stately curtains of blue velvet of the huge Junior college stage stood a line of 29 college seniors robed in black caps and gowns Friday evening as Dr. J. W. Cantwell, city superintendent of schools delivered their diplomas for two years of accredited college work, urging them to let nothing deter them from obtaining a degree. Seated behind them, and nearly filling the large stage were 119 high school graduates gowned in gray who had received their diplomas a few moments before at the hand of Judge W. B. Chauncy, president of the school board, who declared in his remarks that the past year had been the most successful in the history of the public schools of the city, and extended his hearty congratulations to the large graduating classes so full of marked individual achievement.

Address by Bizzell.

Dr. W. B. Bizzell, presiden t of Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college, delivered an enjoyable commencement address that left many good and lasting thoughts in the minds of his young listeners whom he won immediately with his pleasant manner of speaking. He delivered a pointed and terse address on modern youth and the characteristics of the age, forecasting future conditions with clarity and convincing reality.

"If we are going to save the youth of this generation—our future civilization—I believe we must do it through the institutions society has provided—the school and the church. The home has not altogether adjusted itself to the changing needs of the age, and as the school sees the most of youth today, on the school rests this responsibility. There never was a time when so many boys and girls attended the higher institutions of learning with the ambition, the vision, that they are in modern times. This great Junior

$300 VERDICT FOR M'CLURE IN SEWER SUIT

Jury Holds Iowa Park Sewage Disposal System Brought Damage

After a deliberation of about four hours, a jury in the 89th district court returned a verdict Friday afternoon awarding damages of $300 to W. D. McClure who was suing the City of Iowa Park for $10,000 on grounds that the city's sewage disposal system had caused him damages in that amount.

The case has been on trial before Judge P. A. Martin for the last three days. All of Friday morning was devoted to argument of counsel, evidence having been completed Thursday afternoon.

The plaintiff's petition alleged that the sewer system operated by Iowa Park was unsanitary and constituted a menace to the health of the plaintiff. The judgment given was based on the contention that the plaintiff had been inconvenienced by the sewer system as a temporary nuisance and was entitled to damages in the sum of $300 on that account.

EXHIBIT "A" IN PARDON POLICY HERE IN CUFFS

First Freed by Ma Ferguson in Custody of Vernon Sheriff

Joe Roberts, claiming the distinction of being the first man pardoned from the Huntsville penitentiary by Governor Miriam Ferguson, was in Wichita Falls Friday night, handcuffed to a buddy and on his way to Vernon in custody of Sheriff Frank Edmondson to face charges of robbery. His companion was J. P. Jones, also wanted in Vernon as a member of the quartet who Sheriff Edmondson credits with a series of burglaries that have extended from Dalls through Wichita Falls, Vernon and on to Amarillo. Fred Hostler, who gave the Wilbarger sheriff an all-day chase through local railroad yards last Tuesday after a lurid escape from a moving train is a third member of the gang and James Marek, who is also in jail at Vernon, was the fourth.

Sheriff Edmondson stopped off in the city Friday night en route from Fort Worth to Vernon. He caught Jones in the Tarrant county city and got Roberts at Palestine. They were located and arrested through confessions Hostler made to Sheriff Edmondson after the theatrical escapade the pair went through here. His statements cleared up not only a clothing store robbery in Vernon, but a tailor shop robbery in Wichita Falls, another burglary in Amarillo and another in Dallas. A considerable amount of the loot taken at the various places was recovered by the sheriff.

Roberts was released from Huntsville by the grace of a gubernatorial pardon on Jan. 27, about two weeks after Mrs. Ferguson became governor. He had served 11 months of a sentence aggregating 83 years, imposed in Dallas and Fort Worth for highway robbery.

"There were six of us that got pardons at the same time," he said at the city hall, "but I beat 'em all out the gate."

He is about 25 years of age.

KAYO FOR PUG BRINGS ARREST AND FRACTURES

Welterweight From Amarillo Jaw Cracked And His Skull—Maybe

AWAITING X-RAY

Denton Regaining Consciousness at 1 a. m.; Hull On Bond

Joe Denton, Amarillo welterweight, is in the General hospital, possibly in a serious condition as a result of sixth-round knockout by Clyde Hull in the feature of the American Legion fight card, Friday night. Reports from attending physicians indicated he was suffering from a compound fracture of the jaw and perhaps a fractured skull. Until the results of X-ray photos can be determined the exact extent of his injuries cannot be determined.

Hull was placed under arrest immediately after the fight and was in custody of Constable C. L. Bradford for a time. He is now at liberty under $500 bond pending the outcome of Denton's condition.

If Denton's skull is fractured it is due to a fall from the ring when, in rushing his opponent in the second round, he and Hull both tumbled over the ropes. Denton fell heavily on the back of his head and was apparently "out." He revived, however, and the fight progressed.

Down in the Fifth

In the fifth round Denton went down under a stiff punch to the head, but again came back. The sixth round was but a few minutes old when Hull sent another blow to the jaw and Denton went down for good. He fell forward on his chest and chin and was lifted unconscious from the ring. He was rushed to the general hospital and did not regain consciousness until after midnight.

Ringside spectators left the arena with the impression that it was the two falls he sustained and not the direct blows from Hull's glove that floored the Panhandle battler. It was a fall rather than a knockout which sent him on his head in the second round. And, it was no doubt the result of that fall that cracked his skull, if it is cracked. Furthermore, those who saw it believe that the sixth round pitch on his face is what broke the jaw bones. Hull's blow, they said, was delivered with steam

BAPTISTS TURN THUMBS DOWN ON Y. CONTROL

Convention Refuses Report Asking Help With Organization

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 15.—(AP) The Southern Baptist convention in session here late today declined to accept a recommendation of its executive committee that the convention participate in the inter-denominational control of the Y. M. C. A.

The recommendation was struck from the report after discussion as lengthy and varied as that which preceded adoption of the declaration of faith and message.

Called for Committee

Adoption of the report would have caused the convention to appoint a committee of three to confer with leaders of 13 denominations now associated with the Y. M. C. A. One of the committee would have met annually with the organization's committee and all reports of its activities would thereafter be presentable to the Baptist convention.

Proponents of the measure, led by Dr. Henry A. Porter, St. Louis, and Congressman W. D. Upshaw, Atlanta, contended that affiliation with the movement would tend to strengthen the Y. M. C. A. fight for evangelical religion and would aid in changing its policies along the right lines.

After a heated discussion during which it was suggested that the matter be referred to the committee for another year's deliberations, the convention voted to strike the clause from the committee's report.

Lose Second Time

The committee also was defeated in its recommendation to supply the convention's four educational institutions with funds direct from states where collected, when the convention voted to let its education board continue to disburse these funds.

An atmosphere suggesting further discussion of theory of evolution declaring that not one paragraph, sentence or word of the declaration of faith and message was to be construed as an endorsement of the evolution theory.

The Rev. M. A. Phillips, Texas, was author of the resolution.

They urged the convention to so express itself because it was suggested the convention's action was being interpreted as an endorsement of theory.

Walters Gets Four Inch Precipitation From Friday Storm

WALTERS Okla., May 15.—A rainstorm that amounted to almost a cloudburst struck Walters about 8:30 o'clock Friday evening and left behind it much property damage to trees and houses.

An estimate of four inches was given for the precipitation. Some hail fell but much of the damage was caused by the high wind and hard rain. Fruit trees were practically stripped and many were reported blown down. Shade trees were also reported considerably damaged. Several houses had roofs torn partly off by the winds but no was injured.

After a two hour rain the streets were entirely covered by water. Highways into Walters were reported impassable and one bridge south of here was reported washed out.

Heavy Downpour In Wichita Falls Has Hail-Wind Comrades

Storm clouds in the north early yesterday evening failed to materialize until after 10 o'clock last night. At that time a hard rain began to fall and continued for several hours. It is probable that not more than an inch of rain fell during that time however. Some wind, some hail, and vivid lightning added to the general discomfort of those caught unawares by the clouds.

Early in the night reports began to come in from the north. Walters and Cotton county reported an estimated rainfall of 4 inches with much damage to fruit and shade trees by hail and high winds. The M. K. and T. dispatcher reported no rain at Altus but it was raining at Frederick early last night.

The Denver dispatcher reported rains to Electra but nothing beyond there. The entire county was thoroughly soaked by the rain.

Country to the east and south reported good rains. Henrietta was receiving a good rain at midnight and storms were threatening as far east as Nocona on the Katy.

Few reports were available on the damaged to fruit trees by the hard rain, but what little has come in offers little prospect for big fruit crops in the fall. The hard rains were said to have practically stripped the boughs.

Firemen were called to 1609 Magnolia street at 11:45 Friday night when a small fire started in a house struck by lightning. Names of the occupants could not be learned. The blaze was extinguished without difficulty and before any damage had been done.

The fire department might have got a lesson in quick extinguishing methods if they had been at the scene of what was probably a small blaze in the 300 block Waco street. An alarm came in at 11:15, but while the central station trucks were getting under way the phone rang and information came "never mind, we've got it out."

RAIN AT CHICKASHA

Streets Are Flooded By Friday Evening Downpour.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 15. A heavy rain fell at Chickasha early this evening flooding the streets and threatening an overflow of streams in the vicinity. Hail accompanied the rain, but was not heavy enough to do much damage.

A light rain fell in Oklahoma City.

Clifton Clay Winner Of Fifth Talbert Extempore Speaking Medal Friday

Clifton Clay won first prize in the fifth annual J. W. Talbert extempore speaking contest held at the high school Friday afternoon, and was awarded the gold medal offered each year for the "best speaker in the school." The award was made by Mr. Talbert at the commencement exercises last night.

Second place went to William Atkinson, and third place to Commodore Cumley. Nine boys took part in the contest which is not open to girls. The speeches were excellent, according to Miss Juanita Kinsey, under whose direction the contest was held, and unusual improvement has been noted in the speakers' ability over their work last year.

The victory of Clifton Clay comes as the result of three years competition in the contests. In 1923 he was tied for third place, last year he won second place, losing to Sam Basbara, who was prohibited under the rules from taking part this year.

The nine students trying for the medal were: Price McCullough, Robert Lone, Jack Story, George Polhemus, J. Loyd Giles, Clifton Clay, James Williams, William Atkinson and Commodore Cumley.

100 Confederate Vets At State Home Pack Up For Trip To Reunion

AUSTIN, May 15.—By a happy combination of circumstances approximately 100 of the 350 confederate veterans in the state confederate home here will attend the annual Confederate reunion in Dallas next week and there commune again with their buddies in "the lost cause."

The board of control contributed its bit by furnishing each veteran with a new suit of clothes, new underwear and a new hat.

The state pension department has given each veteran a certificate showing them to be in good standing and that they will receive the quarterly pension payment of $18.50 on June 1.

Then a bank in Austin is lending each veteran the fare value of the certificate without interest, and the pension department will deliver the checks to the bank.

By a law already on the statute books, the veterans are entitled to receiv free transportation and with passes in their pockets, money in their pocket books and resplendent in new clothing, the veterans will hie themselves to the "battleground of Dallas" and live over again the stirring days of '61 to '65.

About 50 of the veterans have already started for Dallas, and the remainder will leave in time to attend each session of the annual reunion.

Murchison-Fain, Wilson

Murchison and Fain have made a location for a test and have a derrick up in the northeast corner of the J. H. Wilson form, which will make it approximately in the northeast of the northwest of the southeast of the J. Poitevant survey, abstract 226, about a mile north of Olney, north Young county.

The hole will be located southwest of the Ragle area and due south of the Carey district.

Pyramid Well

The old Pyramid hole in the northwest uarter of section 52, block 2, H&TCRRCO survey, west and north of the Sigler group, south Wilbarger county, was reported yesterday standing with a hole partially full of oil and no water showing after swabbing 50 barrels of oil from sand at 2,092-96 feet. The hole is rework job, it having stood full of fluid some of which was oil for several months or years, until taken over by Garrison and Eslick and swabbed dry. An attempt to pull the casing resulted in a fishing job, and the hole was drilled deeper with a small bit.

Root et al, McCarty

Root et al are drilling past a last reported depth of 1,936 feet in their No. 1, Waggoner, located in the southwest of the southeast of block 14, H&TCRRCO survey, due north of the Levy pool, eastern Wilbarger county

Clark-Harbin and Baldridge Sell To Prairie O. & G. Co.

The sale is the second completed by the Prairie in this district within the past three weeks, they having previously obtained the Shamrock's holdings for $2,300,000.

MAN TERRORIZES HOMES

Believed Insane, White Man Tries To Attack San Antonio Children.

SAN ANTONIO, May 15.—Uttering low, unintelligible guttural sounds as he sprang suddenly from the darkness, a white man, believed to be insane, was thwarted in an attempted attack upon the two youthful daughters of J. D. McCullough shortly after 10 o'clock Tuesday night as they sat upon the front porch of their home.

Though terrified when, the girls screamed and struck at their would-be assailant as they fled into the house.

NEW TECH DEAN NAMED.

Pardons Got One Governor Trouble

KAYO

but it was not one calculated to cause the damage it wrought.

His Jaw "Tender"

In connection with his injuries it was recalled that Denton's jaw was probably "tender" from the effects of a lacing he received in Waco last fall when Johnny Cellmars broke it with a terrific right swing. Denton went out of his class to meet Cellmars and took a bad beating before his jaw was broken. Since that time he has engaged in only two or three fights.

Hull, a welterweight who hails from St. Paul, Minn., expressed keen regret when he learned Denton was badly hurt. He declared, and the spectators agreed with him, that the damaging blow was a clean one which 99 times out of 100 would do no more than shake-up the man who took it.

Dr. M. M. Walker, who attended Denton, said late Friday night it might be morning before the exact status of the case was known.

How They Fought

Although Hull had dropped Denton in the fifth with a sharp right hand clout to the chin during a fast melee, the sixth round kayo came more or less suddenly and dramatically. Dandy Joe held his own with the middle westerner during the early rounds, and through the third and fourth caused several undue elevations of the eyebrows among Hull supporters by his speedy carriage and clever shifts and counter blows. Many were beginning to believe that Hull, at last, had met his master after licking all the rest of the southwest's welters. The boxers opened up lightly but Joe seemed to be getting better and better as the rounds were tolled off.

Hull deserved possibly a shade in the fourth due greatly to a stiff body attack staged in the clinches.

Fought Game Fight.

They were rocking along at a fast clip in the fifth. Both were dodging and countering in breezy fashion when so fast and suddenly that but few saw the clout land, Hull caught Denton flush on the chin with a short right hook and it was the resin couch for the Amarilloan. The fallen battler took the nine-count, and came up on the defensive, then rallied and tried to carry the fight to his opponent. The gong cut short the going.

They were mixing it with gusto in the sixth and it seemed that Denton was none the worse for the fifth round slumber sock and the earlier fall when Hull shot a rapier like right to the point of the chin, and Joe straightened out flat on his face. It was a clean knockout, and the Texan hit the floor with a thud that could be heard all over the American legion arena.

Snyder and Jennings Slug.

Kid Snyder of Burkburnett, won the decision over Battling Jennings, Henrietta welter, in an eight-round slugging match. Snyder put Jennings to the canvas in the second round with a short right jolt to the button. But Jennings came back and earned a shade in the third, and had all the better of the milling in the fourth and fifth. The Henrietta athlete did the greater portion of the leading, and in the fourth walloped Snyder upside the head and stepped back to let him fall. The Burk lad wobbled a second and then flopped in a heap. He was up at the nine-count.

Snyder shaded Jennings in the sixth. The latter seemed wearing down quickly. Jennings went to the floor again in the seventh.

The final canto was fairly even. Both gladiators bored in hard, but neither could gain an advantage.

Wildcat Monte of Wichita Falls, bested Kid Alexander of San Antonio, all the way in a special four-rounder. Alex stayed on the defensive most of the time. After the bout, he challenged Monte to a return fight, declaring he was not in condition because of an overland trip made from San Antonio to Wichita Falls, arriving in the city early Friday morning.

CONFERENCE STARS.

Representatives of U. S. and Mexico Begin Series of Discussions.

EL PASO, May 15.—The opening session of the conference here which will last several weeks between the representativs of the United States and Mexican governments was held this afternoon, when a tentative program was outlined.

The chief purpose of the conference is to discuss methods of lessening smuggling of liquor, narcotics and other contrabands, and for this reason the delegates agreed to take this subject first.

ber of small fireproof houses to take care of 100 men each, are to be constructed on the lot facing my house and the hospital on around the large circle, facing Dean Kyle's house and on to the big gate. No more large dormitories are to be constructed, although the ones already there will continue in use. Some 20 of these small buildings, each to house a separate military organization are planned.

"The drill ground is to be moved just north of the present college grounds as soon as the purchase of 380 acres there can be completed. This will take in the little house where most of you used to go to see the Bohemian dances occasionally."

"There are about 2,400 enrolled this year, more than we have ever had before in normal times. We've got the troop in Milner Hall, and it is still five miles to Bryan.

"Building on the campus during the past year has reached a figure of about $250,000. This next year should see about $400,000 worth of work done," the president told the Aggie exes.

There are a number of ex-students of the college in Wichita Falls and vicinity, last night's dinner list showing H. S. Harris, John P. McCullough, C. J. Davidson, Ben J. Garrity, A. B. Knickerbocker, Maurice Works, H. B. Dunn, Bob Stiles, J. B. J—oyce, B. W. Todd, D. W. Bright, J. W. Britton, Bruce Frazier of Electra, C. L. Murph, Herbert Voelcker, Wm. R. Alexander, Charles E. Birk of Iowa Park and A. Hallman.

Other guests at the dinner included J. D. Bright, Miss Frances Birk of Iowa Park, Mrs. Ben J. Garrity, Mrs A. B. Knickerbocker, Miss Lucille Smith, Miss Thelma Earnst, Mrs. J. B. Joyce, Mrs. C. L. Murph and Mrs. C. E. Birk.

"Mrs. Ferguson's cut in the teaching staff appropriation of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college and of the State university of approximately $300,000 for each of those institutions will prevent much work being accomplished that we might otherwise be able to do," he said.

Ma Hurt Schools.

"The legislature was liberal enough in most of its donations, but Mrs. Ferguson did both of the state schools a great hurt in her cut in the teaching staff appropriation."

While here Dr. Bizzell spent a full day making a tour of Wichita Falls and surrounding communities, the guest of J. B. Joyce, superintendent of the Texhoma Oil and Refining company's plant north of the city. Yesterday noon he presided at a flag raising ceremony on the grounds of the Texhoma plant. He is due to leavue Wichita Falls today for Bryan and College Station prior to a trip to the Rio Grande valley.

In commenting on the Wichita Falls school system and the Junior college at last night's dinner, Doctor Bizzell made the statement that with the exception of a few of the buildings of the University of Paris and of one or two at Oxford, England, there wasn't a college in western Europe that had a building to compare with that of the Wichita Falls Junior college. Doctor Bizzell spent last spring ni Europe and made a personal inspection of more than fifty of the universities of that continent.

His references to Wichita alls, the city, were complimentary in the extreme. "I find this one of the most dynamic cities in Texas, set in the center of one of the biggest countries I have ever seen with an unlimited territory of resources from which to draw power to build a great city.

"It is in recognition of this and the growing agricultural importance of this section of the state and in recognition of the work that has been done in providing proper irrigation for farming that a new experiment station has been located at Iowa Park. The college hopes for much from the installation of this station."

Groom Is Ill At Ease As Rockefeller Bride Omits 'Obey' From Her Contract

NEW YORK, May 15.—Abby Rockefeller, who had the word "obey" omitted from her wedding ceremony, today enjoyed the first day of the "real freedom" which she told her friends she expected when she married.

David Merriwether Milton, 25-year-old lawyer, and his heiress bride of 21 are in seclusion until tomorrow when they will sail on the liner Paris for a four month's honeymoon in Europe.

"Cherish and honor" were enough for Abby to promise and the bridegroom consented to the deletion of "obey" from the service. Yesterday's ceremony was a single ring service by the Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. She ring was an old fashioned gold band, not the platinum affair that "debs" among Abby's friends insist upon.

The groom appeared so ill at ease that one guest remarked: "Dave looks like a scared cat with no place to go, doesn't he?"

Restricted because of the family's great wealth the heiress had eagerly waited the day when she would be a young matron and the mistress of her own establishment. She had discussed her expectations of "real freedom" frankly with her friends.

After the ceremony the bride's mother, Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and her 85-year-old grandfather, John D. Rockefeller, were the first to kiss her.

When Mr. and Mrs. Milton return from their honeymoon they will keep house in the exclusive Park Avenue section. To start with they will have an income of $23,000 a year, of which $15,000 is the husband's.

GRADUATES

college is keeping boys and girls in their homes until they have achieved the age and the ability to go miles away to college, away from home ties and home restraint to finish. Sending students away from home too young is a grave mistake.

Trend of the Age.

"Youth of today is different," the speaker opened. "Modern youth reflects truly the trend of the age. The three outstanding characteristics of modern young life are a love of comfort; a love of speed; and a desire for leisure.

We have a better standard of living in America today than was ever before witnessed in history.

"Youth craves excitement to stimulate the emotions. Youth is submerged in external and superficial things. Youth no longer is concerned with meditation, or reverence for art, literature, the finer things of life. I stood amid the ruins of Rome and wondered why that great civilization failed. I wondered if someone would some day stand amid the ruins of the capitol at Washington and wonder why our great civilization fell, and realize that we as a nation had neglected the finer things—the spiritual things of life. The power to avert such a disaster lies in the hands of you young people and the future nation you build. I congratulate you on the life that awaits you in the decade ahead—the greatest decade in history, and on the preparation you are now making to meet it." The speaker was introduced by Dr. J. W. Cantrell.

Honors Are Bestowed

Sam Bashara and Elizabeth Massier, boy and girl honor students, respectively, in the high school were awarded scholarships from a number of leading colleges in the state, by S. H. Rider, who awarded scholarships also to Preston Beck and Elizabeth Peters, boy and girls honor students in the college graduating class. Honorable mention was given Elizabeth Couper and Lucile Pitts for completing the high school course in three and one-half years, and to Edward Smith for completing the high school in three years and two summer sessions. The names of the following students were mentioned and a number of years named in which they had neither been tardy nor absent: Charles Porter Bristol, 2; Roscoe Burks, 2; Reba Calhoun, 2; Viola Chewing, 10; Edith Crump, 3; Gladys Macketchney, 1; Elizabeth Massier, 1; Allen Norvell, 1; Joyce Samuels, 2; Ruth Turner, 2 and Dorothy Vandeventer, 1.

J. Wilkie Talbert presented the fifth annual Talbert medal for extemporaneous speaking to Clifton Clay, winner in Friday afternoon's contest, who accepted the trophy with a short speech of appreciation.

Judge Carrigan Heard

Judge A. H. Carrigan, with a stirring address on the courage of Texas heroes and the importance of keeping alive Texas history, presented to S. H. Rider, dean of the Junior college, on behalf of the Pleria study club of the city a huge flag of Texas to be placed in the Junior college building. Mr. Rider accepted the handsome gift with a few appropriate words.

The high school Girl's Glee club sang "Wanderer's Evensong" (Mendelssohn), and the Junior college Choral club sang Barnby's "God Is Love" under the direction of Miss Winifred Alvis, music supervisor, with Lee Erwin accompanying at the piano.

Rev. Nat F. Grafton gave the invocation, and Rev. J. J. Bell the benediction.

Following the commencement exercises, the high school seniors held their farewell banquet at the Kell hotel, while the college farewell banquet was given at the Wichita club.

New Books Kemp Library Offer An Interesting List

New books placed on the shelves of the Kemp Library this week offer an interesting variety to the book lover. Detective tales, biography, drama, some good novels, Bible material, psychology, travel tales, animals of wild life, and business stories are found in the list which follows:

"A Critical Examination of Psychoanalysis"—by A. Wohlgemuth. A critical examination and refutation of the whole Freudian system of psychology.

"A Voice From the Dark"—by Eden Phillpots. Thrilling incidents experienced by a retired dectective who sets out to prove that boy who had died a year ago was killed by foul means. The disguises he adopts, the ruses he carries out, the confidence he wins and the evidences he slowly gathers makes a tense and exciting story.

"Conversations on Contemporary Drama"—by Clayton Hamilton. In these conversations Mr. Hamilton gives his reasons for his doubts whether there is an American drama in the sense in which the phrase is used when we speak of the French or English drama. His discussions of many of our contemporary playwrights, Shaw, Barrie, Galsworthy, Maeterlinck, O'Neill and many others and his estimates of some plays of recent seasons are ful of stimulus thought.

"Jane: Our Stranger"—by Mary Borden. The story of an international misalliance. From a little Western town where she has been brought up by her Puritan aunt, Jane is transplanted to Paris by an ambitious mother to unite big millions with a decadent and impoverished Marquis.

"Napoleon"—by Elie Faure. The book will fascinate all who are interested 'n the greatest of all characters in French history. Havelock Ellis pronounces it a book which some may consider the most remarkable on the subject they have ever come across.

"One Thousand Bible Readings"—by D. J. Wetzel. All those in charge of opening exercises for classes, missionary societies or young people's organizations will welcome this aid. The passages themselves are not printed only references arranged under topics and collected according to their suitability for specific days, like Christmas, Washington's birthday, etc.

"Practical Saychology"—by B. B. Farnsworth. The authors' experience as a teacher is of no small service to him in his attempt to clarify and simplify scientific statement for the apprehension of the untrained mind. The book deals with the application of the principles of psychology to personal development and the daily task.

"The Deer Family"—by Theodore Roosevelt and others. This volume is ment for the lover of the wild. All four of the authors base their statements and their advice on their own observations and actual events of their hunting trips.

"The Wolves and the Lamb"—by J. S. Fitecher. The lamb among wolves is a young Englishman whose inheritance of a large fortune brings him to London where he falls prey to an unscrupulous financial agent and his clever woman secretary. But in their greed they overstep and young Richard buys his experience fairly cheap compared to the price he might have paid for it.

"Wanderer in London"—by E. V. Lucas. Mr. Lucas writes of romantic, artistic, commerical London. Of the galleries, churches, palaces, streets, squares and the zoo he writes with an intimacy of manner that makes him a delightful guide.

TWO PARDONS GRANTED

Medical Need Given as Reason for Additional Acts of Clemency

AUSTIN, May 15.—Medical needs, and the urgent appeal of dependants relatives influenced Governor Miriam A. Ferguson in granting two full pardons, a furlough and an extension of furlough to Texas convicts.

Marshall Jackson of Eastland county given two years for theft, was granted a full pardon because he is suffering with pulmonary tuberculosis. Roger Walker of Bosque county, sentenced to three years for violating the liquor law was pardoned on recommendation of the trial judge, and because he has a wife and baby solely dependent upon him for support.

Billy Ray of Wichita county, given two years for passing a forged instrument, was granted a 90-day furlough to obtain special medical attention, and A. E. Ragsdale of Grayson county, serving a six-year sentence, for conversion as administrator, was granted an extension of furlough to arrange for care of his orphan children.

Epworth Tanlacs To Close Clinic Debate Against the Perunas

Contests are usually successul according to the number of members added to the organization engaged thusly, but the Epworth League of the First Methodist church will successfully complete a three-week clinic for their members Sunday night with the program of the evening in charge of Dr. H. B. White and his Tanlac patients. Dr. W. R. McClure with a host of Peruna patients have for the past three weeks upheld the supremacy of their medicine.

Resulting from the efforts of the two doctors and their 'assistants to bring something new, was the discovery of an old Bible written in the fifth century containing the first four gospels of the New Testament and the Acts of the Apostles. The volume has both the Greek and the Latin version of the books and is owned by S. T. Brogden, a local architect. Mr. Brogden reads and translates the volume and will give a lecture on it at the regular Epworth league hour next Sunday.

JOE BURKETT HERE TODAY.

Eastland Man, Member of Highway Commission, to Appear Here.

Joe Burkett of Eastland, one-time candidate for governor and now a member of the state highway commission, will be in Wichita Falls Saturday to meet friends here. So far as could be learned last night, no special significance is attached to his trip to this city.

Mr. Burkett was in Wichita Falls twice last fall on political missions and has a number of friends in this territory.

J. C. Students Wait For Wai-kun Party

An event that has been looked forward to by the students of the Junior college will be the Wai-Kun reception to be held tonight in the vestibule of the college from 6:30 to 7:30. The staff of the Wai-Kun, the first Junior college annual, are inviting all teachers and students of the college to be present to receive the copies of the book for which they have subscribed.

An additional feature of the reception will be the annual ceremony of passing on the traditions and ideals of the college from the senior president to the junior president. Helen Knotts, president of the senior class of 1925, will pass on the traditional emblem to Edward Kadane, president of the class of '26, who will be the senior next year.

"Live Right" J. H. Seniors Are Told

Principal S. H. Rider Of Senior High Offers Good Advice

AT COMMENCEMENT

180 Seniors Hear Final Address in School Auditorium

"Learning to live properly with your fellow man, or the quality of ethnical character is the most important purpose of education," declared S. H. Rider, principal of the senior high school and dean of the Junior college to the 180 graduates of the Junior high school Friday morning as he delivered the commencement address, before a huge audience of students, parents and friends.

Other important purposes Mr. Rider declared, were health, a command of the fundamental processes, worthy home membership, vocational training, civic responsibility, a worthy use of leisure time, and a thorough understanding of international relationships.

"Living Lives Now."

"You are living your lives now," Mr. Rider told the young graduates, "not merely going to school. You are learning now, things that will influence your actions and abilities all the rest of your lives. The attitudes and habits you form now will influence materially your later citizenship."

The knowledge, the training and the desire to partake in the lives of one's fellowmen for a citizenship of service was declared by the speaker to be the cream of educational purpose today. The qualifications of a good citizen were listed as honesty, integrity, knowledge of political and economic problems of the community, state and nation, loyalty, patriotism, integrity, good health and religious qualities.

Dr. J. W. Cantwell, city superintendent of schools delivered the certificates of graduation to the large class and made on interesting talk on the place the junior high school holds in the public school system.

'A Good Foundation.

"Junior high school graduates have received a fine foundation for further training and education that cannot be gained through elementary schools," Dr. Cantwell declared, "you students have had club work, school organization, and a splendid social life here, with the advantage of school training under specialized teachers. I urge you to go on into the high school and Junior college. I would end every speech I make with the words, "Education must be completed.'"

Dr. Cantwell declared that proper education was the only thing that could save the future nation from the cloud of over-population and tide it through the great problems that would result from the advanced age.

Miss Jonnie Morgan, chairman of the history department, presented Miss Wilma Thomas with a medal for having done the best work in the history classes of the school during the entire year. Miss Morgan introduced Miss Sylvia Smith, author of the Grecian sketch presented at the commencement exercises, and Miss Aldis King, author of a sketch declared to be equally as noteworthy. The work was done by the girls through the English department.

A Unique Feature.

Miss Smith's sketch was directed by Miss Mildred Pecaut, and was one of the unique features of the commencement program. Misses Juanita McCracken, Wilma Thomas, and Merle Trigg, costumed as three Grecian maidens, Daphne, Archne, and Flora, respectively, entered and sat at their hand work, complaining that they were not given the opportunity for creative and self expression as their brothers were. A slave, played by James Prothro entered, bowing low, and announced a lovely unknown lady. Miss Florence Mims, as the goddess of learning, Minerva, entered and talked to the maidens, leaving with them a parchment on which they would find art, literature, and music for their study so that they might have the priceless privilege of education.

Musical numbers were by the student musical organizations under the direction of Mrs. Hermoine Stewart Vaughn. The orchestra played "The Dance of the Fairies," by Zamecnik; the girls' glee club sang, "June Rhapsody," by Mabel Daniels, and the boys' glee club sang "Honey Moon," by Moore.

The invocation was given by the Rev. S. A. Barnes and the benediction was by Judge W. B. Chauncey, president of the school board. The names of the 17 honor pupils of the graduating class, those who made an average of above 90 per cent in their subjects, appeared on the program as follows:

Honor Pupils.

Piano Playing Job Offered Prisoner If He Gets Pardon

AUSTIN, May 15—Application of Mrs. Maude Vaughn, mother of Billy Ray of Wichita Falls, for a pardon for her son has not been acted upon by Governor Ferguson, but a 90-day furlough was granted so that Ray might undergo an operation. The governor's office consulted James Allred, district attorney, about the case and was told that Ray is under a two-year sentence for passing a forged instrument, a check for $500 in payment of an automobile. The Gabe Garrett comedians playing in North Texas have told the governor that they will release Ray he can have the old job back as pianist. The boy's mother secured names of numerous Walker county citizens on a petition for the pardon.

YOUTHFUL BURGLAR JAILED

Falls Into Bralley's Hands After Profitable Foray Through Stores

A youth whose penchant for petty robberies led him into a large number of mercantile establishments, is in custody of Juvenile Officer W. G. Bralley. He was arrested late Thursday night.

The youngster, Mr. Bralley reported, has admitted breaking into several shops and filling stations in this city, but at none of these places did he obtain more than $2 or $3 in cash.

Burglary charges will probably be placed against him.

$500 Loss Is Sustained in Early Morning Blaze Friday.

MR. MELLON GIVES HIS VIEWS.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon give a restatement of his peculiar views on the federal income tax to the convention of the Mississippi Bankers' association in Jackson. He asserted that the tax was so excellent that we should have as little of it as possible so far as the wealthy are concerned, to levy upon whom it was specifically designed.

The position of the secretary is a little paradoxical, and it is hardly probable that he can rescue himself from its inconsistency. As a wealthy man, and as an administrator, he may reconcile his viewpoints through a certain partiality for reforming the super-taxes. But upon the purpose and aim of the income tax he will always fall into a sad confusion. He cannot question a law which he must administer and yet will not admit that rich men should bear its burden; therefore he assumes that the law was enacted simply to raise revenue, and that the sole consideration is to make it effective to this end.

The people, however, will not consent to regard taxation as merely a technical matter. It is too vital to them, and its power to destroy their property and take their earnings is so evident that they must insist that the justice of a tax be definitely settled before any questions are asked as to its efficiency in raising revenue. They cannot, as a matter of fact, pass upon administrative details. To them the routine business of government is a closed book. Nor is it necessary that they should inquire into it. They expect an able and honest administration on all subjects and at all times. If anything goes wrong in the application of principles which they have established, they have no alternative but to believe that these principles are wrong or that their servants have betrayed their trust.

It must, indeed, seem strange to the people that a right principle faithfully applied by their agents should somehow go wrong. Yet this is the position of Mr. Mellon. With all the argument, however, which he can bring to bear upon it, his contention remains inexplicable. It would seem self-evident that we must either accept the principle of the income tax, in spite of its attendant evils, or question the principle and seek to reduce its operation so far as possible. Having enacted "taxation of the rich," we should either leave it undisturbed or abolish it altogether.

Mr. Mellon would have us believe that "taxation of the rich" is perfectly all right so long as it does not actually burden the rich. But all taxes are burdensome in some degree. If the wealthy are to be entirely relieved of pressure under the income tax, the load must be shifted to the shoulders of the poor, a procedure never contemplated by the people in adopting the principle of income taxation.

ONE GOOD SUGGESTION.

A special committee of the American Law institute has presented a general indictment of our criminal jurisprudence. It accuses both the bench and the bar, the executive, and incidentally the legislative branch of government. Its report is at least comprehensive. Yet it contains but a single recommendation of unquestionable merit. This is a suggestion that "due process of law" be observed in the granting of pardons.

The committee contends that there should be a public hearing for all parties concerned before a pardon is granted. Apparently, the machinery for this procedure is lacking in a majority of the states. But here in Texas it could easily be developed out of the present board of pardons, and all sincere supporters of even handed justice should bend their efforts toward this end.

In the main the special committee's report is a plea for more speed in the administration of the law. "Our criminal procedure is slow and cumbersome," says the committee, "and its defects directly contribute to the increase of crime and its infrequent punishment. While reasonably satisfactory results have been secured in the prosecution of offenses committed by those without money or influence, it is often possible for a defendant with money and influence to delay the trial of a criminal charge, and justice delayed in criminal as in civil cases is often justice defeated. Under the conditions thus existing, the trial of important cases has often lost the character of an investigation to ascertain the truth and has become far more of a contest between able lawyers confusing or seeking to confuse the real issue."

Now it should be obvious to the most ordinary mind that those "without money or influence," whose cases are said to move with reasonable celerity even under our present cumbersome legal system, might be summarily and shockingly dealt with under a general speeding up of the judicial process. Genuine justice might be denied the poor, without making righteously stern justice any more certain for the wealthy. The remedy for evils of which the committee complains does not lie in merely speeding up procedure, but rather in a nicer discrimination as to the truth in each trial detail. In short, as conceded in the committee's report, responsibility rests with members of the bar. Co-operating without judges, they could readily right what has been principally wrong. So long as they neglect to do this, it is idle to call upon the lawmaking power for measures designed to speed up judicial procedure.

ABRAHAM A WINNER.

This is a world of change. Abraham Winter paid $3,000,000 for the famous Astor home on Fifth avenue. He will tear down the aristocratic structure and build a $10,000,000 aartment house where the House of Astor was a show place for many years.

Abraham landed on these shores thirty-six years ago. He could not speak English when he landed. His pocketbook was lean. His pluck was 100 per cent and his industry and frugality must have ranked higher.

Now the House of Abraham will be substituted for the House of Astor, as this Abraham of New York City is a member of the tribe of Abraham and Isaac and is a liberal contributor to all the charities on Manhatten Island.

MARS.

Some time ago Mars was nearer to us than it has been for many a hundred years.

The planet has been called the Sphinx of astronomy.

This is because there has been considerable contention as to whether it is inhabited or not by beings like ourselves. Some authorities say that it is much more liable to be inhabited than uninhabited.

Two hundred and five years ago Maraldi, says Camille Flamarion, discovered snow on Mars. There are strange lines seen on the planet which some have called canals.

It is said that the cilmate of Mars is much better than ours. No scientist of authority has ever admitted that here has been communication between this planet and Mars and the weight of opinion is that it cannot be inhabited, at least by beings like ourselves.

Mysterious signals from Mars are said to have been received by certain wireless stations in America and Europe on a wave length outside the radius of known broadcasting stations. But this is not the first time in which these mysterious signals have been noticed for Marconi has made investigations of similar mysteries.

Mars remains the lode star of imaginative novelists and a riddle which scientists have not yet solved.

Recently the method of communication by radio has been discovered and it was hoped that, by means of this, communication would be established with Mars. But it has not yet been done.

We are still playing with the wireless and still ignorant of the tremendous forces that we have partly tamed. Perhaps when we thoroughly understand them some inventive genius may hit upon a scheme of communicating with the nearby planet.

In the meanwhile we have trouble enough on this planet.

BACK TO BARBARISM.

For a hundred years the whipping post has been an institution of Delaware and for a hundred years incorrigible criminals have been giving Delaware a wide berth. One application of the bullwhip is sufficient to forever after keep a criminal beyond the boundary lines of little Delaware.

For a hundred years the finger of scorn has been pointed at little Delaware by the maudlin sentimentalist who like the poor of the Lord are ever with us. Magazine writers have pointed to the Delaware whipping post as a relic of barbarism, the only institution of its kind that has survived in a civilized world.

Well, Michigan is going to give the whipping post a try out. Its new law provides the annual whipping of convicts, convicted of murder and robbery while armed and criminal assaults of the most serious classes. It authorizes ten lashes a year for five years on all male convicts convicted of these crimes.

Many brutal assaults and murders have taken place in the city or county of Dallas in the not remote past. Women have been assaulted and their escorts murdered. Would it be barbarous to tie the brutal perpetrators to whipping posts before they are sent to the electric chair? Mad dogs are shot; why not mad men?

GASOLINE PRODUCTION CLIMBING.

American gasoline production continue to mount and is now reaching toward the billon gallon a month mark. March production totaled 854,000,000 gallons. Two other high records were made in March, 1,204,000,000 gallons of gas and fuel oil and 118,000,000 gallons of lubricants. Texas is making fast strides as a producer and may hit the top of state before 1926. Six years ago a Standard Oil scout and geologist declared that 149 Texas counties showed petroleum indications. His guess may come true.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE.

Neglect.

Recently I made a journey through a farming country, passing by many farmsteads, a few of which were well kept, well tended and prosperous, the rest fallen into neglect.

The general character of the soil in this particular valley was the same. It was capable, if carefully farmed, to support those who lived on it in comfort.

But many of the fields, after being forced year after year to produce the same kind of crops without any new food for the soil had become worn out and worthless, and were now overgrown with weeds, which manage to subsist somehow or other on very little.

It was perfectly clear in looking at these farms, in their varying state of productiveness, that the same conditions existed in the minds of the men who had cultivated them.

In the beginning land and brains were much the same, with the same relative possibilities.

But the minds of a few of the farmers had been continually fed by reading, by the study of new agricultural methods, by talks with other farmers and meetings and institutes.

Men of the owners of the more prosperous farms, finding that it was too late for them to get for themselves all the knowledge they needed to procure the best results from their farms had sent their boys and girls as well, to agricultural schools, where they could find out all that science has brought to the aid of agriculture.

These were the men and the farms that had prospered. Rotation of crops, modern fertilizing methods, modern machinery and scientific systems of breeding cattle, had improved their farms, but only after thought and study had improved their minds.

There is of course a great difference in the quality of the minds that men inherit from those who bring them into being.

But a good mind neglected will soon be as useless as a good farm that is neglected.

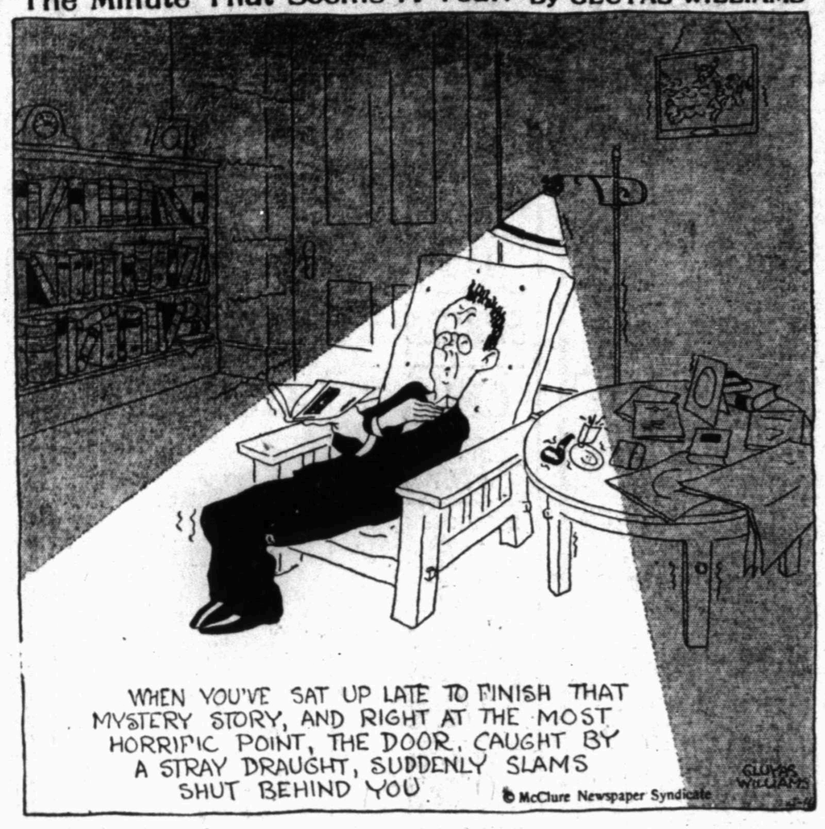

Faculties which are allowed to fall into disuse will soon disappear. Had the greatest masters of music refused to cultivate their talent, they would have died leaving the world no richer for their gifts.

The average brain is capable of almost infinite development but only if its owner is willing to toil and to make sacrifices.

The conditions of farms throughout the country tells the story of the condition of the minds of the men that own them. Work is not sufficient to bring acres into fruition. There must also be thought and study and patience and care.

And the same is true of the best minds. These are all capable of great things, but neglected they will soon sink to the common level, and produce nothing but the weeds of idleness and vice, which like the weeds of the ground are ready to follow neglect wherever it is to be found

What Today Means To You

By MARY BLAKE

Taurus.

The planetary aspects of today are not very favorable for business or professional enterprises, but are distinctly stimulating for the emotions, and are destined to bring out and even accentuate your best impulses. You will sense a strong feeling, no matter what you have thought or done in the past, to only do that which is right. If you have made mistakes, or have erred, you will feel an almost uncontrollable urge to make amends; you are, perhaps, suffering from seperation from one for whom you care; today is a propitious occasion for letting bygones be bygones, and for "making-up."

A child born today will have its usual share of sickness during the period of infancy, but will not be of a grave or threatening character. Its disposition will be merry and cheerful, although it may prove to be too emotional for its own good. Its character will be very responsive and sympathetic, and friends' suffering will always cause it more concern than its own. Its heart will be very big, and judgment will always be swayed by impulse and affection; it will not, possibly attain any great material success, but it will attract a host of friends, to whom it will always be accessible as helper or counsellor.

Those who celebrate their natal anniversaries today are very independent in thought, and unconventional in action, and never hesitate, when the occasion presents itself, to express the one and display the other. As the immense majority of people are not original, and, at heart, disciples of fixed rules established by so-called social usage, their real friends are few, and their critics are many, although they never attempt to outrage the worlds sense of decency and propriety. They are considered rather as freaks, and, although not openly, are secretly ostracised for having the courage of their convictions. This enforced isolation causes them very little worry, as they are self-contained, and, in many instances, sufficient unto themselves.

They possess a ready, but not caustic, wit, and their exceptional sense of humor saves them from the usual penalties of many an inconvenient situation.

HOW IT STARTED

"Cut-Throat."

To be a cut-throat one need not necessarily cut throats. Nowadays the term is used to describe treachery of any kind, whether or not this is accompanied by physical violence. It is the sense of treachery rather than the particular medium by which it is carried ou tthat we mean to express when we refer to some one as a "cut-throat." However, it is in its literal sense that the term had its origin.

Coined by that great master of words, Will Shapespeare ,the word is over 300 years old. Its earliest recorded use is found in Macbeth, said to have been written in 1606, in the following context. The murderer enters who has been commissioned by Macbeth to put Ranquo out of the way. Macbeth asks, "Is he dispach'd?" to which the murderer replies, "My lord, his throat it cut; that I did for him." Then Macbeth says, "Thou art tht the best o' the cut-throats!"

POEMS THAT LIVE

SCORNED.

The callow young were huddling in the nests,
The marigold was burning in the marsh,
Like a thing dipped in sunset, when he came.

My blood went up to meet him on my face,
Glad as a child that hears its father's step
And runs to meet him at the open porch.

I gave him all my being, like a flower
That flings its perfume on a vagrant breeze.
A breeze that wanders on and heeds it not.

His scorn is lying on my heart like snow,
My eyes are weary, and I fain would sleep;
The quietest sleep is underneath the ground.

Are ye around me, friends? I cannot see,
I cannot hear the voices that I love,
I lift my hands to you from out the night!

Me thought I felt a tear upon my cheek.
Weep not, my mother! It is time to rest,
And I am very weary; so, good-night!

SUB-SOILS.

It seems to be a characteristic of the Wichita valley to have hard clayey sub-soils. These sub-soils are often so hard that they called hard pans. But this is not correct. We have no true hard pans in this section.

A true hard pan is simply a strata of lime impregnated soil which cannot be penetrated by plant roots and with difficulty by water.

In a true hard pan country blasting must be resorted to if roots are to penetrate to any depth. This is a common practice especially in planting orchards. About half a stick of dynamite is exploded at each point where a tree is to be planted.

Our sub-soils are not of this kind, although in planting orchards in certain types of soil here it might be advantageous to use an explosive to loosen then.

Roots seem to penetrate the toughest of our soils. In excavating the canals it could be noticed in the borrow pits that the mesquite roots had grown down through the toughest of the sub-soils.

Our sub-soils are also penetrated by water. Some of them are very impervious, but where roots will go water will go also.

Just why our sub-soils should be so tough and dense is somewhat of a mystery. The soil scientists say they are unable to account for it. These tough soils do not seem to extend further east or west than this valley, but they do run into Oklahoma to the north of us.

More Truth Than Poetry

POETRY FOR THE PEOPLE

Divest yourself of craven fear
As life you boldly scan,
Pursue the great and proud career
That noble mortals can.
If you believe the pay's too low
Which you receive from Jones & Co.,
Tell your employers where to go.
And prove yourself a man!

Don't slack or weaken in the fight,
Or be an also ran,
Remember right has conquered might
Since this old world began.
If a big policeman to you speaks
And say "Move on, you little geek!"
Just smash them smartly on the beak—
And prove yourself a man!

If with a tiger you should meet,
Somewhere in Hindustan,
Although it might be more discreet,
Your get-away to plan,
Transfix him with a chilly glare
And then pick up a club somewhere
To drive him cowering to his lair—
And prove yourself a man!

Your years of course will not fill out
Their full alloted span,
If through the world you go about
Pursuing this bold plan;
But if before your time you go
From scenes familiar here below,
It will be comforting to know
You proved yourself a man!

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

THE YOUNG MAN WHO IS AFRAID OF MATRIMONY. SHALL SHE "BE HERSELF" OR IMITATE THE BABY VAMPS?—HAVE MOTHERS THE RIGHT TO INTERFERE IN THEIR DAUGHTER'S CHOICE OF A HUSBAND?

Dear Miss Dix—I have met a young woman in business who has brains is beautiful, and has a wonderful personality. She is on my mind night and day, and although I have tried hard to forget her, I have not been able to do so.

I think that I am falling in love, and I am afraid of married life with its worries and troubles. What shall I do? YOUNG MAN.

Answer: There is only one thing for a coward to do, and that is to run away from danger. So if you want to save yourself, you had better flee as far as possible from the young woman who has beauty and brains and personality. That is a combination dangerous to any man's peace of mind.

But why take to the tall timber at the mere mention of matrimony? Of course, there are risks in it, but so there are in everything else worth having. Those who play safe, win little. If you go into any business venture, you have to take your chance of its turning out a failure instead of a success.

Marriage is no more a gamble than any other undertaking, and if a man uses the same judgment and discretion in picking out a wife that he does in selecting a business, and if he brings as much common sense and forbearance and fact and determination to making his marriage a success as he does his business, he very rarely loses out.

Nobody will deny that there are worries and troubles in marriage. The man who marries must sacrifice his own individual tastes and comforts to his wife and children. He must spend the money he makes on his family instead of on himself. It is tiresome to walk the colic at night. Children are worrisome. Wives are often unreasonable.

But the rewards for offset the difficulties. The man who has not felt the cling of little arms about his neck has missed the greatest thrill in life. The man who has fine children growing about him in whom he can merge all of his hopes and ambitions is the only man on whom life does not pall and grow stale and flat. And no man knows real companionship who has not a wife to whom he can turn, secure in the knowledge that if all the world were against him, she would still be for him.

"Nothing venture, nothing have," says the old proverb. That is true of matrimony, as of business and everything else. If you never marry, you may escape some troubles and worries, but you will also miss the finest joy in life. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am naturally full of life and very gay and lively, but I am very anxious to be popular with the boys, and I think they fall for girls who are quiet and demure and who give them the baby stare. Sometimes I try to do this, too, but it doesn't seem to work. What shall I do? Just be myself, or try to imitate somebody else?

JUST PATTY.

Answer: Be yourself, Patty, be yourself. All imitations are poor stuff, and there is nothing so foolish as to understudy another girl's role. You can't pull it off. It always rings hollow, and shows it isn't the real thing.

Personality is a queer thing, Patty. Nobody knows why the thing that seems cute and funny when one girl does it is coarse and vulgar when another girl does it. Nobody knows why one man can clown and be funny, and another one who does the identical thing be a blithering ass. It is just so.

When a quiet girl attempts to be lively and vivacious, she bores us to tears because she overdoes it. She is so afraid she won't talk enough she babbles incessantly. She has no sense of humor, so she giggles in the wrong places, and she wearsies us to death by her jumping around. When the guy and lively girl tries to be demure, she is dull and stupid, and she can't get away with the baby stare because her eyes have a sophisticated trinkle in them.

A little girl can be kittenish and cunning, but when a big girl attempts it she looks like a performing elephant, and so it goes all down the line.

Therefore, instead of trying to imitate somebody else, play up your own personality. Make the most of yourself. Be natural. There is no other charm greater than that.

As for popularity, that's as happens. Just as many men like vivacious girls as like demure ones. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am 22 years of age, and am in love with a young man of 26. He is ambitious, of good character, and well liked, but my mother disapproves of him and has forbidden me to see him. My mother has also picked out a man for me to marry, who is far inferior in every way to the man of my choice. I dislike this man very much.

I don't like to deceive my mother by meeting the man I love secretly, but it seems to me that she has left me no other alternative. What do you think? HENRIETTA.

Answer: I think that a girl of 22 is old enough to decide such a matter for herself, and that unless her mother has absolute proof that the young man with whom she is in love is of bad character, or a ne'er-do-well, that the mother has no right to interfere. Still less has she a right to force the man of her own choice on her daughter.

A girl of 22 has arrived at the years of discretion. She is mature enough to know what she wants in a man. She is wise enough to weigh values and to form a very good idea of what sort of a husband a man is likely to make. And if she has settled on a good honest chap that she loves, and who loves her, mother should give them her blessing.

It doesn't matter a whit that the young man doesn't fire mother's fancy, or come up to her ideal, or that he can't give the girl the sort of life that mother prefers. It is the girl who is marrying the man and who will have to live with him, and not mother, and the important thing is for the girl to be pleased and get what she wants, instead of pleasing mother. Which is a simple fact that mother often fails to take into consideration.

In this particular case, Henrietta, I can only give you David Crockett's motto by way of advice: "Be sure you're right, then go ahead." If your mother is justified in her objection to the young man, give him up. Listen to her.

But if you are sure you are right, and the young man is all right then don't let her brack off your engagement because of her prejudice. DOROTHY DIX.

The style is individual and the good writing is perfectly sustained—'The Little French Girl' comes near to being a masterpiece among modern novels. "To read this lovely and truth telling book is like making the acquaintance of an entirely charming and seductive woman who is also honest and true-blue (if one can imagine such a creature). Let no one feel the combination inherently impossible before he has read this last novel of Mrs. deSelincourt's, for although invariably graceful and harmonious, the author strikes with purity and precision the not exact veracity throughout the boog. I am lost in admiration of the deftness of touch which makes her once the typical representative of her country and at the same time, delicately, to her slightest gesture quite entirely an individual human being, cool and ardent, hard and loving, compounded harmoniously of contradictory qualities like all admirable human beings —Mrs. deSelincourt has given us beautiful characterizations before, in many of her rif m, acileditsoetsr many of her firm, delicate stories. But I cannot now remember that anyone has ever before given us such an honorable and veracious study of national traits."

Lies, Sends 3 Men To Chair, Then Repents

NEW YORK, May 00—A lie he told sent three men to their death, one Luciano, known in the underworld as "Cheeks", avers.

The testimony of Luciano was one of the biggest factors in the conviction of the Diamond brothers and their pal, Farina, who died in the electric chair within a few minutes of each other recently. Now "Cheeks", overcome by newspaper stories of the execution, avows that he lied in swearing that the brothers and Farina were the guilty parties in the murder of a messenger in a robbery. The statement was made voluntarily.

He is being held by police on the charge of perjury and an investigation is being made.

German Crosses Over Alps In Metal Plane

BERLIN, May 15.—Aero experts are marveling over the remarkable achievement of a German aviator which passed almost unnoticed during the excitement over the electoin of Von Hindenburg.

Franz, in a Dornier metal plane crossed the Central Alps for the first time in a record journey from Berlin to Mailand. At one spot in his flight, he was more than 100 miles from a possible landing field.

He made the trip in seven and one-half hours.

Old Soldier Claims He Is Only Survivor of Custer's Forces

JOLIET, Ill., May 16.—For years its has been stated that no white man survived the battle of the Little Big Horn, in which Custer and his command were massacred by Indians. But a Joliet man, once a soldier and now a retired farmer, says this isn't true.

By hiding in a hollow log during the battle, he explained, he lived to tell the story.

All of the soldiers under Custer were supposed to have been killed in the famous attack by the Sioux and Cheyennes on June 25, 1876.

Spencer enlisted Dec. 20, 1875, at Fort Suelling, Minn, and was assigned to Custer's command. He narrates a thrilling story of the massacre. As the circle of Indians grew narrower he says, he saw that there was no escape, and crawled into a hollow log in a thicket and was overlooked by the redskins.

The battle over, and the Indians gone, he wandered and was later given They carried him to a hospital in attention by friendly Crow Indians. Miles City, Mont., where he was prove his statements. He served in nursed back to health.

Spencer says he has documents to the army until 1880 and then began farming.

Miles, Veteran Thru Six Military Periods, Dies While at Circus

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, Nestor of American army leaders, premier Indian fighter, diplomat and author, has taken the long trail.

His career, spanning four of the six important military periods of his country's history, ended suddenly late today in the big tent of a circus just as a fanfare of trumpets announced the opening pageant.

General Miles was surrounded by happy children, including those of his own family's third generation, excited over the prospect of witnessing a reproduction of scenes which in their actuality had occupied so important a phase of his own life.

Complains of Illness.

Turning to Mrs. W. S. Noble, mother of his daughter-in-law, the general complained that he felt ill. Before help could be summoned he collapsed into the arms of Dr. A. E. Craig, sitting directly behind him.

The body was removed, underneath the tier of seats, to the outside where a hasty examination resulted in the diagnosis that death had resulted from myocarditis and acute dilation of the heart. This was confirmed later at the hospital to which the body was rushed.

Despite his advanced years—86—the death of General Miles came as an extreme shock to his intimate associates. During the 22 years which have elapsed since he was retired "for age," he has maintained an active interest in current affairs, particularly those which touched either the army or navy. Any incident affecting either service was a matter of immediate personal interest to the veteran soldier.

Mrs. Coolidge Present.

Mrs. Coolidge was present when General Miles collapsed but was seated some distance from him and, as was the case with most of the audience, failed to recognize the crumpled figure which was carried hastily but tenderly away. The excitement in that vicinity lulled quickly and the circus program was resumed after a brief pause. As the acrobats tumbled and the clowns grimaced, however, the wires were carrying the news of the warrior's passing far and wide and even to the western reservations where wait a few aged members of Indian tribes he fought, grimly but fairly, through so many campaigns.

SEES A SPECIAL SESSION.

Callan Declares Tick Work Must Be Taken Care Of.

AUSTIN, May 15.—Failure of the 39th legislature to appropriate sufficient funds for cattle fever tick eradication as required under the bill providing for the work at state expense looms as another reason for an early special session of the legislature, Leo Callan, chairman of the livestock sanitary commission, said here today.

The legislature appropriated $150,000 for the work until September 1, which amount was found insufficient for the needs, made no appropriation for the work after the beginning of the new biennium, September 1, Mr. Callan said. The legislature did not make the regular appropriation for the commission, and after administrative expenses are deducted, and other sanitary work is provided for, only about 80,000 yearly can be used for tick eradication, he asserted.

The commission needs between $500,000 and $600,000 annually to properly enforce the new tick law, which means the commission will need approximately $500,000 yearly in addition to the funds already provided, Mr. Callan said.

One Court Refuses Consideration Of Pardon Arguments

AUSTIN, May 15.—The appeal of A. Green of Stephens county, for a writ of habeas corpus on the plea he is illegally restrained of his liberty after a pardon had been issued by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, was dismissed by the court of criminal appeals today for want of jurisdiction, Assistant Attorney Grover Morris, announced.

The appeal asserted that Green, who is a druggist in Breckenridge, had been sentenced to jail for contempt of court for alleged violation of an injunction restraining him from selling intoxicating liquor of any kind, and that the judgment had been appealed to the supreme court. The high court recently held for the trial judge and issued a mandate calling for the imprisonment of Green, who then produced a pardon from Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, which the sheriff of Stephens county ignored, the appeal said.

The court of criminal appeals held that Green must sue out an original writ of habeas corpus to the supreme court, which had issued the mandate calling for his imprisonment.

Sub Rosa—Mimi

By MIMI.
WEEKLY LETTER.

Dear Girls:

Once, a long time ago, I wrote an article on girls who are ashamed of their homes—and how sometimes they are not to be blamed for wishing they had more charming attractive places to which to invite their men friends.

Of course in the case of a girl whose family is not wealthy, it seems extremely difficult for her to improve the situation, since she cannot affort to re-furnish her home.

And yet her case is not so hopeless, either, as a recent experience of mine proves.

A friend of mine—an aristocratic Englishman—arrived from the other side the other day, and I fixed up a few parties so that he might meet some American girls.

Last Sunday we motored out to a palatial home in Connecticut to attend a house party. It was an imposing place we entered, elaborately furnished with everything the best furnitures had to offer—and it was evident our host had put a great deal of cold cash into the furnishings of his vine-covered cottage.

Well, I asked the bally foreigner as we drove away from the "palace" after an ejoyable week-end, "what do you think of that for a show place? Did it knock your eye out?"

"It did," he said quietly. "I think its one of the most unattractive places I've ever seen in my life. I should think those people would be rather ashamed of a home like that."

Ashamed of a home like that! Great Heavens, I thought to myself, what will he say when he beholds the humble apartment I've arranged for him to visit next Tuesday?

However, when Tuesday came around I dragged him along with me to a funny old brown-stone house, up four flights of rickety old stairs, and into a long low room, with a blazing fire and many soft lights.

And the contrary creature promptly proceeded to rave. "Stunning old place," he told me later. "Furnished in such good taste, too. One of the nicest places I've seen, really."

And I happened to know the two girls who own the apartment are anything but wealthy.

Yet they had with nimble fingers and careful selection achieved an effect of charm in their rooms, which the millionaire owner of a show place could not buy. So don't give up in despair because you can't afford to re-furnish your home.

Maybe, with a few well placed mirrors and lamps you can t ransform an ugly room into a bower of beauty.

Yours, with love,
MIMI.

Baptists Deny That Resolution of Faith Endorses Evolution

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 15.—Resolutions interpreting the Baptist statement of faith and message adopted yesterday by the Southern Baptist convention were introduced at the convention today by the Rev. M. A. Phillips of Texas. The resolutions recite in the preamble that some persons have interpreted the paragraph regarding the creation of man as an endorsement of evolution and assert that this is a misinterpretation, adding that there is nothing in the statement that can be regarded as endorsement of evolution.

Through A Woman's Eyes

REMEMBER TO FORGET

"I'll remember that!"

It was said in bitterness. And a wise friend, overhearing, said:

"Remember to forget!"

Remember to forget!

How much better off we would all be if at the right time we could remember to forget.

That disappointment you suffered—will brooding over it do any good? Will harping on it, accomplish anything but becloud the sunshine of a better day? Why remember—except to remember to forget?

That fancied slight by your friend—will smouldering resentment wipe away the smart? Will remembering it and harboring it do anything but embitter the cup of future friendship? No. Be wise and remember to forget.

We all make mistakes, whether it be just losing a trick at a game of cards or losing more in the game of life. The first thing a good card player will tell you is to forget your an error enter upon your next play, for it would ruin your game. Forget it and make good the rest of the hand.'"

Nothing was ever more true of the game of life. No matter how great, how seemingly devastating the mistake, no good can be done by remembering it, by continuing to live it, by permitting the shadow of the past to cloud the future. Only by going forward constructively, with back turned to the past, can we take from life a new lien.

There are many things that it is good and beautiful and constructive and profitable to remember—and others that it is just as important to remember to forget.

Quatrain Rules Favorite In Betting On Eve of Kentucky Derby

CAPTAIN HAL AND KENTUCKY CARDIANL LOOKED UPON AS TWO FOREMOST CONTENDERS

Field Will Be Narrowed Down to About Twenty Starters When Horses Go to the Post

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 15.—(AP)—With Quatrain ruling as the ranking favorite, the $50,000 Kentucky derby, the outstanding turf classic of the nation, will be decided over the Churchill Downs course Saturday afternoon with the prospects of an attendance of 80,000 to 100,000, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a horse race in America.

Twenty-five of the country's best three-year-olds were named tonight to go the post, with the probabilities that the field will be narrowed down to perhaps 20 starters or less, depending upon track conditions. If tomorrow afternoon brings a golden May day and a fast track it is considered probable that as many as 20 colts will face the flag. If showers develop, as the weather forecast indicates, resulting in a muddy track, it is likely that not more than 15 will engage in the struggle.

If not more than 21 start, it wkill be the largest field that ever went to the post for the classic. Last year when the little colt, Black Gold came thundering down the stretch to racing glory, he was followed by 18 others; in 1923, the great Zev had 19 other contestants.

Carry 126 Pouids.

Tomorrow's race, the fifty-first running of the derby, will be over the mile and a quarter route with each colt carrying an impost of 126 pounds. The race will have a value to the winner of $53,475 provided 20 go to the post. The starting fee is $500 and the purse will be larger or smaller proportionately to the number of horses other than 20 that start. The hoss finishing second will win $6,000, third $3,000 and fourth $1,000. In addition to first money, the winner will receive a gold thropy.

Quatrain, a son of Omar Khayam winner of the 1917 derby rules the favorite because of his impressive victories in the Louisiana derby and the New Orleans handicap last winter. Although tremendously popular he is not the outstanding favorite that Black Gold, after winning the 1924 Louisiana derby, came to Kentucky and wo nthe derby trail, whereas Quatrain has not engaged in a race since the close of the southern racing season. The horse is owned by Frederick Johnson, a New York sportsman but is a product of the Blue Grass country of Kentucky.

Two From Kentucky.

Two other Kentucky-bred colts, Captain Hal and Kentucky Cardinal are regarded as Quatrain's most dangerous challengers. Captain Hal is the son of Black Toney, who sired Black Gold. He is owned by A. A. Kaisen of Louisville. The colt worked the fastest mile and a quarter of any of the derby candidates in training here, reeling off the distance in 2:05-1-5 o na track three second slow to the mile. Captain Hal has a marvelous burst of early speed and figures to set the pace. Kentucky Cardinal recently purchased by G. Frank Croissant of Chicago from Desha Breckenridge of Lexington, Ky., for $70,000, has trained well. He won the derby trial, at a mile last Tuesday coming from behind and winning, going away from a field of five other derby eligibles.

Despite the popularity of the Johnson colt, the experts figure that the race is an open one in which anything may happen, especially with such a large field of high class runners. Chanty, Mrs. Payne Whitney's horse, is rated highly, despite his poor showing in the Preakness. Backbone, Almadel and Reminder may be fortunate enough to upset all calculations and wear the rose wreath of victory.

Quatrain Favorite.

In betting odds quoted tonight, Quatrain ruled a favorite at 3 to 1, while Captain Hal was second choice at 7 to 1. The Whitney-Greentree stable entry of four horses headed by Chantey, was third choice at 10 to 1, while Kentucky Cardinal was rated fourth at 12 to 1.

The stream of visitors pouring into Louisville for tomorrow's race began rising above the high water mark tonight. Every hotel was filled to the straining point and thousands were sheltered in private homes, thrown open to accommodate the overflow. The first of fifteen special trains from Chicago arrived during the day and by tomorrow morning some 400 private and special cars will be parked in the railroad yards.

Colonel Matt J. Winn, general manager of the Kentucky Jockey club, expects all derby attendance records to be broken. Although the Churchill Downs course has more boxes than all the race tracks in the United States and Canada combined, the demand for choice seats was exhausted two months ago and thousands will be obliged to view the race from the infield.

The derby, always a fashionable event, will be a riot of colors tomorrow, judging from the appearance of gowns dotting the course today.

Meet the New Home Run Star

"Gabby" Hartnett, young catcher of the Chicago Cubs, is the home run hitting sensation of the 1925 season. He drove out five home runs in one stretch of four games. He can't be expected to keep up that pace, but the streak indicates he has his eye on the ball.

Earl Smith Charged With Assult and Battery by Fan

BOSTON, May 15.—(AP)—A com... plaint charging E. Smith, catcher of the Pittsburgh club of the N... ue, with assault and battery was sworn out in Brighton court today by Walter Lewy of Brookline. A summons for Smith, returnable tomorrow, was issued.

Smith was in the center of a storm at Braves Field yesterday when he resented "riding" by one of the spectators. He is charged that the player struck him. Smith was ordered from the field and as he entered the Pittsburgh dugout he was thrown by an irate fan and struck him on the head.

RED SOX GET $8,000 ANYHOW.

The Red Sox have traded Bobby Veach and Alex Ferguson to the Yankees for Ray Francis and $8,000. About all you can say for the trade is that the Sox are sure tof realizing $8,000 on it.

DODGERS TAKE IN BROWNS

BROOKLYN, May 15.—Brooklyn made it two out of three with St. Louis today after a long drawn out game due to arguments and protests. The score was 8 to 7. A long delay was caused in the fifth when the Dodgers objected to four St. Louis players standing behind the backstop swinging their bats. Umpire Sweeney, after consulting with O'Day, ordered two of them to the bench. Hornsby, besides fielding brilliantly made his second home run of the series. The score:

Interpreter Needed When Screen Stars Marry in Juarez

EL PASO, May 14.—With the aid of an interpreter, Bert Lytell and Claire Windsor, movie actors, today were joined in marriage by a Mexican judge in the Presidencia room of the city hall at Jaurez, just across the Rio Grande from here.

Cries of street venders selling their sugar cane and aquacates floated into the room as the informal ceremony began at 11:15 o'clock.

Manuel Reachi, husband of Agnes Ayres, translated the words of the native judge.

"I take your word for what he said," Lytell told Reachi as the ceremony was concluded, "but I think he meant 'love, honor and be gay'." And turned to bestow a kiss on Mrs. Lytell.

Mary Akin, fiance of Edwin Carewe, and Mrs. Carrie J. Akin, her mother, were included among the few persons who witnessed the ceremony.

The party leaves late today for Mexico City where the Lytells will spend their honeymoon.

VERNON TO SEND CHAMPION RELAY TEAM TO NATIONAL TRACK TOURNEY IN CHICAGO

Langley, Robinson, Ryan and Crouch With Walker As Substitute Training Hard Daily

VERNON, May 15.—At a meeting of the business men of Vernon Tuesday night it was voted to send the members of the local high school relay team, state champions and holders of the new state record for the mile, to Chicago to participate in the annual national high school track meet to be held in Chicago on June 5 and 6. Plans were made to subscribe the necessary funds for the trip.

Since the action of the business men, Coach Bagget has announced that he will remain in Vernon after school ends and personally train the team. Five men are already entering a long period of training for the contest.

Langley, Robinson, Ryan and Crouch, the four who broke the state record at the state meet at Austin last Saturday, will probably run at Chicago, but the coach is keeping Ransom Walker in training so that he can substitute if necessary. If Walker is not needed in the relay, it is planned to enter him in the 220 yard low hurdles. In the state meet Walker broke the old state record in the hurdles, although he won only fourth honors.

Coach Bagget has announced that Vernon's prize winning relay team may be seen in action any afternoon at Fair Park until they leave for Chicago shortly before the meet, and he requests that the citizens of Vernon come out and encourage them in their work.

In referring to the work of the team at Austin, Coach Bagget said, "It was not a miracle, they can do it again. They are just now finding themselves."

"Have you any money?" he said.

When she replied that she had non, the man clutched her by the throat. Gasping for breath, Miss Robbins began struggling and kicking at his shins.

WHERE BUTTER MAKES ALL THE DIFFERENCE IN THE WORLD

The right way to make Drawn Butter Sauce

Properly made, Drawn Butter Sauce is one of the simplest sauces to make and most delightful to serve. The following recipe is given by a foremost culinary authority.

In an absolutely clean saucepan, melt 2 tablespoons of Mistletoe Butter and cook in this until frothy 2 tablespoons of flour and one-fourth tablespoon of salt with a dash of pepper.

Add a cup of cold water gradually while it stands over the fire with now and then a drop of lemon juice. Do not stop stirring until all the liquid is added and be sure the mixture is made smooth between each addition.

When all the liquid is in, let simmer for ten minutes, stirring occasionally. At serving, beat into it two additional tablespoons of Mistletoe Butter, a little at a time.

Butter for making sauces and other cookery must be good butter. That's the same as saying "must be Mistletoe."

Mistletoe is made with extreme care from the very finest cream, nothing added except salt. It has a fine flavor of its own that adds greatly to the flavor of other good things to eat.

YOU KNOW ME AL — The Adventures of Jack Keefe — By Ring Lardner

as we drove away from the "palace" after an ejoyable week-end, "what do you think of that for a show place? Did it knock your eye out?"

"It did," he said quietly. "I think its one of the most unattractive places I've ever seen in my life. I should think those people would be rather ashamed of a home like that."

Ashamed of a home like that! Great Heavens, I thought to myself, what will he say when he beholds the humble apartment I've arranged for him to visit next Tuesday?

However, when Tuesday came around I dragged him along with me to a funny old brown-stone house, up four flights of rickety old stairs, and into a long low room, with a blazing fire and many soft lights.

And the contrary creature promptly proceeded to rave. "Stunning old place," he told me later. "Furnished in such good taste, too. One of the nicest places I've seen, really."

And I happened to know the two girls who own the apartment are anything but wealthy.

Yet they had with nimble fingers and careful selection achieved an effect of charm in their rooms, which the millionaire owner of a show place could not buy. So don't give up in despair because you can't afford to re-furnish your home.

Maybe, with a few well place mirrors and lamps you can t rans form an ugly room into a bower o some magic, and that White deliberately failed to go after it, but if Al could make it a habit to go up and snare throws like that Wichita Falls is no place for him. He could make gobs of coin in vaudeville staging a fancy high jumping act.

'Twas just another of those jinx breaks which have been pursuing the Spudders for more than a week now. One miscue in ten stanzas of play, and it costs the game. One error the day before throughout nine innings, and they lost another. And errors are going to be made just as long as there is baseball to be played, no matter what the status of the teams that play it.

The Bears lived up to their reputation as sluggers. Home runs by Washburn and Gonzales accounted for a trio of counters. A cluster of bingles and a walk brought home two in the fifth. Four singles, one of which had the mange, tabulated a pair in the seventh. They didn't string their 11 safeties out much, those Bruins didn't. They bunched 'em, and poled 'em in the pinches.

However, more Spudder fight was manifested than had been seen at the Tanner plant all week. The gang came out of its hitting slump sufficiently to pole a homer, a two-bagger, and eight singles.

They Tie It Up.

Snake Allen, a frail right handed slow ball propeller, hurled the first six couplets for the arrogant Bruins. The Epudders, coming up in the fourth three runs behind, found him a bit woozy. A pair of walks, an infield out, and singles by Fitzgerald and Morgan served to knot the tabulation.

The Bears broke out two runs to the good in the fifth, but the Spudders again came back battling and narrowed the margin to one in the sixth. Golvin drew a pass. White singled to left center. He was forced at second by Query, Golvin drawing up at third. Morgan hoisted a hefty fly to center, and Walt scored after the catch, walking in.

The seventh round saw the Bruins advance two runs further out front and the Spudders rally desperately again to even the count once more. Three runs in arrears, the Tanners got to Bob Couchman, the veteran San Antonio right hander, with gusto and deathly precision. Distel led off with a punch through short. Fitz followed with a duplicate swat, and Ping Bodie, the terrible Ping, stepped into the gap with a lusty wallop over the port rampart. The multilated sphere carried high over the fence and went almost out of sight before it started falling. The ball was never returned.

Cal and Distel singled sharply in the eighth with one away. Fitz aviated to center, and Couchman passed Bodie purposely. His judgment was perfect, for Dorman forced the rotund one at second, Gonzales to Brovold. The golden opportunity was lost.

Cal Flashes Sweet Throw.

Distel walked in the tenth after there were two down ,and Fitz doubled over first base. Again they refused to get the ball near enough to the plate for Pipgus to swing at. He walked on four straight heaves and Dorman bounded out to second.

A bit of lustre was added to the contest in the fourth by Silent Cal, the Irish Spud outer gardner. Washburn had doubled against the top margin of the port wall. Clark followed with a long fly to right. Mule held his base until after the catch, and then galloped for third. He never arrived, for the southpaw righ fielder whipped a perfect strike to Distel at third, as Judge Finley Weldon exclaimed simultaneously with the play, for the completion of a double erasure by a hair. Had the throw gone a faction to either side, Distel could not have made the play quick enough for Washburn was right on him.

Mr. Atz's Cats will swarm out to the citadel this afternoon. It's the last home game for the Spudders until June 2.

Either Osborn or Lefty Arnold Stone for the home crew, probably Osborn.

ZBYSZKO SEEKS TO ENJOIN TRIANGULAR WRESTLING TITLE

CHICAGO, May 15.—An injunction to restrain El "Strangler" Lewis, Wayne ((Big) Munn, and their managers and the promoters of their wrestling match Decoration day, from advertising it as for the heavyweight championship was sought in a petition filed in circuit court here late today. Attorneys for Stanislaus Zbyszko filed the action.

Hearing was set for May 25 before Judge Friend. The attorney said they had no desire to interfere with the match, but asserte dthat Zbyszko had the best claim to the title.

Lewis had posted the $10,000 diamond belt given him when he first won the title, and the jewelry and the larger share of the $30,000 purse will go to the winner. All the other contestants and contenders will be taken on after the match, Lewis declares, to clear up the title situation.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

Who's Who in the Story.

Rosilyn Ridgeway learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an overworked little drudge in her father's inn.

Landis Ridgeway, her husband, is a brillian, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother,

Florence Ridgeway, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chcose the easiest way out. Rosilyn loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with

Lydia Harbrook, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying Stevie Van Vorst, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Landis in her selfish way. She is in Paris when she hears of Landis' marriage, and immediately returns to the United States. With her goes

Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to join them for dinner. She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together all evening, while she will be with her beloved Landis. Thus happens that Landis is amazed to find her waiting for him in the lobby of Claridge's.

Landis phones to find out why his wife has not joined them, and learns that she left the hotel with Briscoe —leaving word that they will join Lydia and Landis in a few minutes. Left alone with Lydia, Landis finds himself swept off his feet by her beauty.

Meanwhile Rosilyn is being escorted to the Clarendon by Briscoe, who tells her that he is doing his best to get in touch with Landis and Lydia.

Had he caught at tonight's opportunity to slip away from her?

Landis and Lylia do not appear, Rosilyn felt a sudden nausea.

so Briscoe and Rosilyn go into a cabaret, where the poor little bride sees her husband dancing with the lovely Miss Harbrook. She believes he has seen her but is too rude—or ashamed—to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a night club, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Fashionable Night Life

He poured out some refreshment for her. Almost absentmindedly, she sipped it, her eyes watching the couples and quartettes about her.

A warmth stole to her senses. The wine was very potent. Briscoe poured out more for her, and she began to talk, to sparkle, in a way that she had never done before.

"After all, why shouldn't one enjoy one's life?" she queried. "Why not seize every little chance of happiness one can?"

"Admirably spoken, little lady!" Briscoe tilted up his glass in honor of the sentiment.

"Everyone in the world ought to be happy—"

"Quite a little Hedonist you are!"

"Whats' that?"

He smiled at her again.

"A wise person who believes in the greatest happiness of the greatest number!"

"Is that philosophy?"

"Pohn Stuart Mil," he answered. with a laugh, "if I remember my college days."

For a moment she looked pensive.

"I tried once to read Plato, on 'Ethics.' And a man called Aristotle. It was all about the 'art of living.' But these people in this room seem to have solved it better."

"Bravo! You'll soon be quite a little sybarite!"

"A—what?"

"A person who takes what the gods offer, and doesn't worry about the rights and wrongs of things too much. You know—'one crowded hour of glorious life'—as the poet has it—that's 'worth an age without a name.' D'you get my meaning?"

The girl wrinkled her forehead.

"That doctrine — sounds—dangerous, doesn't it?"

The man beside her leaned a little nearer, flashing a beam from his cool grey eyes. They were not cool at the moment, but held a burning spark.

"Nothing's worth while unless it has a spice of danger in it! Don't you know that, child?"

'I've heard so—but—it frightens me, rather!"

His hand closed over hers with a grip that tingled.

"You wouldn't be frightened of me, for instance?"

She raised her lovely eyes to his, and saw the unfamiliar spark that burned in them.

The wine had gone to her a little, and her pulses throbbed with an unwonted fire.

"Oh no. And if I were, it might prove to be—amusing!" This, greatly daring.

"Bravo! You're learning!" He was satisfied that her tutorship was proceeding on the lines he wished.

A chocolate-eyed young man approached their table, and asked Rosilyn to dance, bowing formally before her.

"He's a professional! It will be quite all right for you to dance with him."

Briscoe had pust sighted a former flame seated at a table at the other end of the room, and he wanted a word with the lady. The coming of the professional would give him his chance.

"I can't dance."

The chocolate-eyed young man, with another formal bow, indicated that he was both ready and willing to instruct her.

Briscoe urged her to comply.

So—presently—Rosilyn found herself upon the dance floor, with the 'pro,' miraculously steering her in a sort of leisured "walk."

"You will soon pick it up. You have a sense of rhythm," he encouraged her.

This heady feeling!

What would Landis say, if he could see her?

Well, she didn't care....

CHAPTER XXXII.

Romance in Someone Else

Round about 2 a. m. Mr. Briscoe —who was really very charming so she thought—insisted that he take her to a "breakfast club" not far away —a place beloved of artists, writers and musicians, and indeed the very cream of the Bohemian set.

The pair walked through the sweet spring night, towards Greenwich Village, up slumberous back streets, till —in a yard that was full of motor cars and looked like a garage— they found a small door set in a wooden wall.

They went up a flight of steps to what appeared to be a hayloft. It smelt strongly of the stables below.

Rosilyn left her cloak and climbed still higher, up narrow, twisty, wooden stairs.

A babel of sound greeted her. There was the syncopated music of the very latest thinig in "rags," hammered out on a piano. There was a great hum of talk, the clink of cups and plates and dishes.

And, above all, there was the enticing smell of kippers, eggs and bacon frying!

A crowd was congregated in this famuos breackfast club—an interesting, comsopolitan, rather worth-while set of people.

"Look! Thats' a famous surgeon, and the young man with him is a rising actor." Briscoe pointed out a pair he knew by sight. "Let's go up this next flight of stairs, and see if we can snaffle a little table on the balcony, so's we can see everything that's going on."

They got their table, and Rosilyn looked about her, much intrigued.

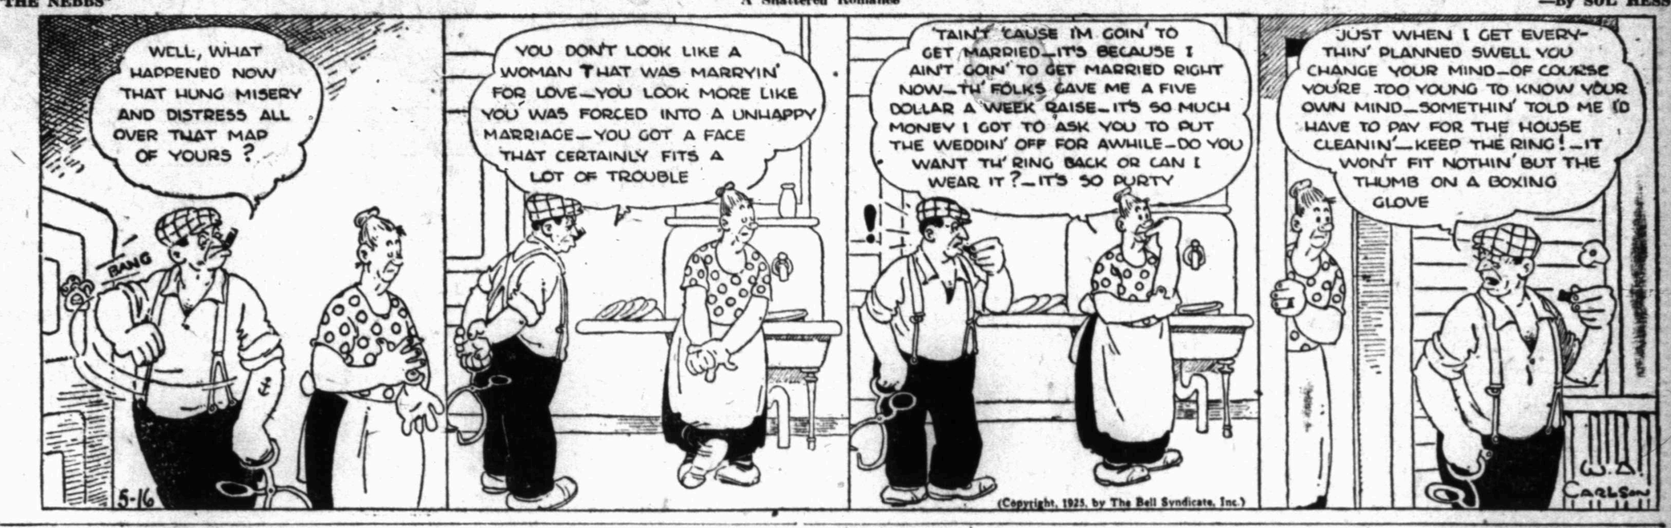

The room was toughly panneled in dark oak, with great oak beams that looked of ancient days. Over the tiny balcon's edge she could see that some of the company were dancing in the room below. Sounds of gay chatter and camaraderie rose above the music, almost drowning it.

"Those slim, pale girls with the red lips and white faces are famous mannequins." Briscoe informed her. "And that pasty-looking fellow with them is Garstein, the sculptor. The girls are from Drusille's, on Fifth avenue. You must have seen their pictures in the illustrated papers, scores of times."

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, May 15—(AP)—Strength and activity of the high price specialties several of which soared 5 to 8 points to new high levels for the year overshadowed all other developments in today's rising stock market. Trading started off at a slow pace but quickened after mid-day under the impetus of extensive short covering, the day's sales running above one and one-quarter million shares.

Mack trucks was the sensational feature, reaching a new high for all time at 166 3-8, or nearly 50 point above the year's low and then easing to 165½, where it was up 7½ points on the day. Wall street was generally inclined to attribute the buying of this issue to expectations of an early announcement of re-capitalization plans involving an increased dividend. American Can touched the highest price in its history at 190¾, closing just below the top for a net gain of 4½ points. General Electric, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Bush Terminal (old stock.); Continental Insurance and Ward Baking "A", showed net gains of 2 to 6 points.

Standard industrials received better support than they have on most any day this week. U. S. Steel common advanced 1 3-8 to 116 1-8; Baldwin closed 3¼ points higher at 114, and American Locomotive, American Smelting, Allied Chemical, American Woolen and several others showed gains of 1 to 2 points.

Interest in the rails centered largely in the Frisco and Wheeling and Lake Erie issues all of which attained new peak prices for the year. Buying of Wheeling and Lake Erie was based on rumors that the road will be incorporated in the proposed "fifth trunk line system in the east." Erie common touched a new 1925 low at 26⅝ and then rallied a point.

The Pierce Arrow issues all attained new maximum prices on net gains ranging from 3 to 7½ points.

Call money opened slightly higher at four per cent in reflection of the relatively heavy overnight demand for funds for mid-month payment and pay roll purposes but eased to 3¾ later. The time money market was quiet with brokers bidding 3¾ and bankers asking four per cent and some business done at 4 3-8 for three and four month securities. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The foreign exchange market was irregularly low. Demand sterling held firm just above $4.85, but French francs eased about two points to 5.19¼c and rather sharp recessions took place in the Norwegian and Danish currencies.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 15.—Cotton futures closed steady at net 3 points down to 3 points up.

| Dec. | 21.90 | 21.69 | 21.72-74 | 21.76 |

Opening: January, 21.78 bid; May, 22.37 bid; July, 22.35; October, 21.66; December, 21.77.

NEW ORLEANS, May 15.—The cotton market today while not quite as active as yesterday nevertheless developed fairly good trading. Price fluctuations were frequent but as a rule were comparatively narrow. The general trend was upward during the greater part of the session and October 2 which had opened only 2 points up at 21.68 traded as high as 21.81 after mid-session or 24 points up from the low established soon after the opening and 15 points net higher than the previous close. The market eased off during the last half hour under persistent selling, which was well absorbed and all of the previous advance was lost, October closing at 21.69, or 4 points net down for the day. July showed a net gain of 3 points and December and January closed 3 net down.

In the early part of the session prices were influenced to higher levels by better cables than due and although values were kept down for a time by private reports for favorable weather in the belt which the map later confirmed, they finally advanced on an official forecast for showers and colder in the western belt and on bullish weekly statistics until July reached 22.50 or 20 points above the close of yesterday.

Secretary Hester made mill takings for the week 285,000 bales against 197,000 last year, which was a larger total than traders had expected. The decrease in the visible supply in America of 205,193 bales compared with a decrease last year of 120,007, also regarded as bullish. The level of prices reached the highest after the issue of the weekly statistics. The selling of the last hour was due to efforts to break the market but the offerings were reported to have been well absorbed and the feeling at the close was steady. A northern authority estimated the increase in acreage at 5.7 per cent. Fall River reported sales for the week of only 20,000 pieces of print cloths. Total exports today, 8,885 bales.

Produce

AUSTIN, May 15.—Onion markets apparently slowed down from their steady climb to new high price records, and while market tone is still good and trading active, no-gain advances are recorded today. Outside of Texas potatoes were somewhat dull, but state markets cleared offerings briskly at firm prices. Tomatoes were generally steady to unchanged, with but little Texas stock quotable as yet.

AUSTIN, May 15.—Egg receipts New York 19,987 cases, Chicago 23,924, Boston 11,367 and Philadelphia 4,591. Storage movement a net gain to coolers of 25,474 cases, making stocks on hand this morning New York 914,16 cases, Chicago 871,657 cases, Boston 969,422 cases and Philadelphia 2,986,603 cases.

Dressed poultry receipts New York 315,826, Chicago 82,845, Boston 105,777, Philadelphia 15,892 pounds. Storage movement a net loss to cooler stocks of 282,954 pounds, leaving stocks on hand this morning New York 19,480,461 pounds, Chicago 22,482,121, Boston 6,959,422 pounds, Philadelphia 2,986,603 pounds.

DUN'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, May 15.—(AP)—Dun's tomorrow will say:

"Despite the conflicting movements in business there is rather better feeling on the whole and more disposition to stress the favorable aspects. The good points do not obscure the unsatisfactory phases but the improved sentiment is supported by various constructive factors and by strong statistical exhibits. The largest April merchandising exports in five years give new proof of the growth of the country's foreign commerce and of the economic recovery in Europe, bank clearings and building permits have set new high records, and railroad freight traffic is still of exceptional magnitude. It is made clear by these and other comparisons that current transactions are of immense volume in the aggregate, and progress this year, if falling short of the most optimistic expectations, has been substantial and of a wholesome character. There is a solid basis for further gains and operations in certain lines, notably in the automobile trade, have recently risen sharply, but readjustments have been under way in some industries where there was an over-production during the first quarter.

Weekly bank clearings, $8,391,025,000.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, May 15.—(AP) — The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

Improvement in the wool market which became noticeable last week continued this week and the market is more optimistic than for some time, although there are those who regard the improvement as temporary. Conditions in the piece good markets appear better and this doubtless accounts for better buying in wool.

London closed very firm on the basis of prices, perhaps 5 to 10 per cent dearer than the opening low levels. England and the continent were principal operators, America taking nothing. Australia is considering fixing minimum price levels for the unsold portion of the clip.

In the west buying drags. In the bright wool states offers generally are made at 30 cents for medium and up to 40 cents for best fine clips. About the same range applies in the territory sections also.

Quotations: Scoured basis, Texas fine 12 months selected, $1.25; fine 8 months, $1.12@1.15.

Cochran was credited with having saved the lives of many by turning off the oil supply to the motors of the oil burning vessel shortly before it capsized. This action is said to have prevented an explosion.

Charity Requests Should Accompany Letter From Society

Wichita Falls merchants and business men have been called on again to subscribe to "worthy charity cases." the local welfare council has been advised the last few days by complaints from those who have been beseiged by strangers asking donations.

Although repeated warnings have been given, the welfare officials here are asking once more that no contributions of any kind be given unless the ones making the plea can present a letter from the welfare council, certifying that the case is a worthy one. Professional panhandlers who visit the city are, of course, promptly told to "move on" when they appeal for aid, but occassionally a worthy charitable case drifts in which merits a little assistance.

The request is once more made that no charity donations be given out until the matter is referred to welfare officials for investigation.

Canvass of Election Shows Bonds Passed

QUANAH, May 15.—The commissioners court this week canvassed the returns of the election recently held voting on $600,000 road bonds to pave the Colorado-Gulf highway through Hardeman county. Those returns showed 1070 to 504, 62 more votes than the required two-thirds.

A committee will leave for Austin within a few days to make application for state and federal aid, and it is hoped if favorable action is taken on the application, preliminary work will start on this highway soon.

Beg Your Pardon

The valedictory of the graduating class of the Junior college which was erroneously reported in Thursday's Record News to belong to Preston Beck, was won by virtue of the highest average in the class by Miss Elizabeth Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Peters. The salutatorian of the class will be Miss Margaret Waltz, a student from Seattle, Wash., who claimed the next highest average.

Mr. Beck, however, made the highest grades of any boy in Junior college, and thus captures the honors among the boys of the class.
