SECTION 7-A HELD UNCONSTITUTIONAL

FERGUSON IS DENOUNCED AT NEW HEARING

EX-GOVERNOR FAVORS 'LOCAL OPTION' RACE BILL

AUSTIN, Feb. 27. (AP)—A bill to outlaw gambling on horse racing in Texas for the second time in three weeks today bore a favorable report of a committee of the house of representatives.

At the conclusion of a stormy public hearing, the house committee on state affairs, shortly after midnight, recommended, 10 to 9, with one pair, that the bill by Rep. Harry Graves of Georgetown, banning horse race wagering, be passed.

It also favorably reported a bill by Rep. Traylor Russell of Mount Pleasant providing that counties might hold local elections to legalize or prohibit racing with wagering within those counties. The vote was 11 to 9.

The session of a previous hearing before the house committee on criminal jurisprudence again was present as proponents and opponents praised or denounced the measure. The committee was in an uproar as the final vote was taken and two clerks were used to verify the tabulation.

Former Gov. James E. Ferguson, who advocated the Russell bill as the best means of determining the attitude of the people toward race horse betting, was bitterly denounced by Rep. Graves as one trying to lead members of the committee and the people astray.

The Graves bill had been overwhelmingly reported favorably by the committee on criminal jurisprudence more than two weeks ago, but was re-referred, by a close vote in the house, to the committee on state affairs.

It was the first appearance of the Russell bill before a committee. A measure similar to that of Graves, having been given a hearing, is pending before a senate committee.

Critics of horse race wagering, as at previous hearings, denounced the state law permitting pari-mutuel wagering as inimical to the business interests of the state, a

Few Turn-Downs Are Reported in BCD Fund Drive

Good progress, with almost no turn-downs, was reported today by B. C. D. committees which are soliciting funds for the special activities which will be made possible by the money.

The drive amounts to a membership campaign in a chamber of commerce which will constitute the membership organization affiliated with the Board of City Development. Membership cards will be issued to all subscribers.

The goal is $2,500. The money will be used to hasten road paving, finance an industrial survey and work for factories, with necessary trips inland, support summer band in cooperation with the school board, and make possible a program for which tax funds are wholly inadequate.

A meeting of those joining the chamber of commerce will be held soon. Plans for various uses of the money will be discussed.

The first report received contained the following names:

Tom, The Hatter, Pampa Drug No. 2, Ben Bolton of Eagle Buffet, Standard Food Store, Davis Electric company, M. K. Brown, Kraft's Mint, W. C. Mitchell, J. M. Stein of Stein's Department store, C. F. JUDGE NIELDS OF DELAWARE MAKES RULING

LABOR BARGAINING IN NRA IS DECLARED 'VOID'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. (AP)—Francis Biddle, chairman of the labor relations board, said today he understood the government would appeal Federal Judge John P. Nields' decision in Wilmington that section 7-A of the recovery act was unconstitutional as applied to the Weirton Steel Co.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 27. (AP)—Granting 35 western Kentucky coal operators a writ preventing the government from enforcing the bituminous coal code, Federal Judge Charles I. Dawson declared today "the citizens of this country have the right to conduct their business without unconstitutional interference or regulation by governmental authority."

WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 27. (AP)—The federal government lost a major battle under the National Recovery Act today with a ruling by Judge John P. Nields that section 7-A is "unconstitutional and void" as applied to the Weirton Steel company and its business.

The decision denied the government's plea for an injunction to restrain the company from dealing collectively with its employees thru the so-called company union and held that the union is adequate under the act.

The enactment of section 7-A either is authorized by the commerce clause of the constitution or it is unauthorized and void," Judge Nields ruled. He further ruled that "the manufacturing operations conducted by the defendant in its various plants or mills do not constitute interstate commerce."

"The relations between defendant and its employees do not affect interstate commerce. Manufacturing is a cooperative enterprise. Production in quantities and quality with consequent wages, salaries and dividends depends upon a sympathetic cooperation of management and workmen."

"By a clear preponderance of evidence this court finds that the plan of employee representation in effect among the employees of the defendant affords a lawful and effective organization of the employees for collective bargaining through representatives of their own choosing; that in all respects it complies with the provisions of section 7-A of the National Industrial Recovery Act and section one, article four, of the steel code; that in all respects it is directly operated and controlled by the defendant's employees and is not dominated or controlled by defendant or its agents; that in all respects it is satisfactory to the great majority of the defendant's employees; that the 49 representatives elected in December, 1933, are free from any domination or control of defendant or its agents."

In point of law, the Weirton company won its case clearly on the contention that its relationship with its employees does not constitute interstate commerce.

'MYSTERY MAN OF EUROPE' IS BROUGHT INTO GOULD HEARING

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. (AP)—That eventful night she spent in the apartment of "Prince Michael Romanoff," when her husband and others burst into the place and found her lying on a bed, was described by Mrs. Wilma Gould in supreme court today.

"I was drugged," she testified. "I remembered nothing until I found myself lying on my left side covered with a sheet in a bed. I was awakened by a terrific noise."

The "terrific noise" was the loud knocking of her husband and his companions, she said, and it prompted the "Prince" to dash post haste into the bathroom.

Mrs. Gould charged that it was all a tableau arranged so her husband, Edward Gould, Seneca Falls, N. Y., manufacturer, could obtain evidence for divorcing her. She seeks $500,000 damages from her brother-in-law, former Representative Norman J. Gould, a New York

Ethiopian Emperor Pleads With Italy To Withdraw Troops

PROMISES NOT TO TOUCH ONE ITALIAN STONE

GUARANTEES TO STAY AWAY FROM ITALY'S COLONIES

ROME, Feb. 27. (AP)—Negotiations between the Ethiopian emperor and Italy, announced today that Emperor Haile Selassie would guarantee that if Italy withdrew the troops on their way to east Africa, Ethiopia would not so much as "touch a stone" belonging to Italy's Italian colonies.

Yes, made this statement in an interview with foreign newspapermen in which he reiterated previous statements that Ethiopia desired peace.

"I have just received a letter from the emperor," said the Ethiopian diplomat, "in which he swears on his dynasty that Ethiopia never made any aggressive move toward Italy and never had any such intention."

"Hence, the mobilization of Italian troops near the frontiers is inexplicable to the emperor whose sole desire is to live in peace and friendly relations with Italy and Europe. The emperor remains faithful to the league of nations."

Years said he knew nothing of a report in Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, that Italy was recruiting troops in Yemen. Meanwhile the S. S. Arabia sailed from Naples with additional troops and war materials bound for east Africa.

Anti-Sedition Bill Causes an Arkansas Stir

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 27. (AP)—An Arkansas senate judiciary committee considered today an anti-sedition bill, with warnings from opponents that its enactment "will make Arkansas a stamping ground for communists."

Action on the proposal was deferred by the committee after three hours of hearings on the move to make possession and distribution of seditious literature a felony.

Leading the opposition was youthful Lucien Koch, director of commonwealth labor college which is under legislative investigation for alleged communistic teachings.

Koch charged that the committee could "better investigate the barbarous and savage condition of the eastern Arkansas sharecropper" than ponder a sedition bill.

Koch spoke after the committee heard American Federation of Labor representatives vigorously assail the measure and urge that it be amended to include verbatim the labor recovery act to protect organized labor.

To the defense of the proposal came the Arkansas American Legion commander, Vincent M. Miles of Fort Smith.

Amarillo Case Is Affirmed

PAINTER NAMES THREE BUSIEST MEN IN WORLD

King George, II Duce And President Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. (AP)—Frank O. Salisbury, British portrait artist who has painted them all, nominated today as the three busiest men in the world: President Roosevelt, Premier Mussolini, King George V. . . but not necessarily in that order.

Sitting in his skyscraper studio on the 41st floor of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, Salisbury hesitated to decide who was the "busiest" of the busy, but suggested the title lay between Mr. Roosevelt and II Duce, chiefly because of their heavy responsibilities.

Demands on his time make King George the most harassed man in England, the artist said. Nevertheless, the ruler was the most cooperative of 40 notables whom Salisbury painted in a war series.

Three presidents — Roosevelt, Hoover and Coolidge—have posed for him.

Everything was wrong, Salisbury said, when he set up his easel in the presidential office to paint President Roosevelt—southern exposure, poor light, continuous

Lawyer Charged With the Death of Child To Be Sent to Penitentiary

AUSTIN, Feb. 27. (AP)—The court of criminal appeals today affirmed the case of Joe V. Moore, convicted of murder in the death of an Amarillo girl and sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

An automobile in which Moore, an attorney, and another woman were riding struck three children sitting on the curb of a street fatally injuring Shirley Pauline Palmer. The state charged Moore was intoxicated; the defense, that he was under the influence of a narcotic prescribed by a physician.

The court reversed and dismissed the case of Grady Warren of Smith county, sentenced to death on conviction of the holdup killing of E. C. Brown December 31, 1933. The appeals tribunal held that the grand jury which indicted Warren was improperly summoned. He must be reintroduced before he can be tried again.

Mrs. Pearl Brown of Liberty county was assured a new trial when the court overruled a state's motion for rehearing of the appeal. Mr. Brown was assessed a 35-year term as an alleged accomplice in the slaying of her husband, D. W. Brown. She was accused of promising to pay Bee Barrow half of a $1,500 insurance policy in return for his killing Brown.

ALLRED POSTS $500 REWARD FOR CAPTURE OF HAMILTON

AUSTIN, Feb. 27. (AP)—Governor James V. Allred today posted $500 reward for information leading to the capture of Raymond Hamilton, fugitive condemned desperado, and called on all officers to co-operate in capturing the killer.

Allred severely criticized lack of coordination of police when Hamilton slipped through a trap at McKinney.

He emphasized the reward was for information "and I am not offering a reward for the capturing or killing of Hamilton. I don't want any more of this lack of coordination. An officer ought to feel he had done a great service if he was in on any part of the whole program."

In the future he hoped officers-city, county and state—would co-operate with one another "and not try to do it themselves as at McKinney."

"That was most lamentable," Allred said. "State rangers were available, only a block and a half away, but they were not called on."

"Frankly, they hadn't flushed Hamilton and the other man that night, both would have been killed Monday morning by rangers."

Prior to Allred's posting of reward, the only reward for Hamilton was the usual small reward of the penitentiary system for return of an escaped prisoner. Former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson paid a $500 reward to five men, including a legislator, who helped capture the youthful desperado last summer in Denton county after his raid on a Lewisville bank.

After that capture, Hamilton was convicted of murdering Major Crowson, a prison farm guard, and sentenced to death.

FOUL PLAY IS SUSPECTED IN DISAPPEARANCE

Bowie Grocer Tells Strange Tale of Wanderings

WICHITA FALLS, Feb. 27. (AP)—The 10-day absence of Robert T. Brock, Bowie grocer, during which he was given up for drowned, was under investigation by police today while officials awaited his return from San Antonio where he turned up yesterday.

Brock's relatives expressed the belief he had been the victim of foul play. Police Chief George Hodgins said he would investigate fully to determine whether the grocer had been drugged or otherwise criminally mistreated.

The grocer was due back here today in care of his brother, Norris Brock, who came here from San Antonio several days ago to aid parties dragging Lake Wichita for Brock's body.

The last seen of Brock until he appeared at San Antonio police headquarters yesterday was when he left Bowie for Wichita Falls on business Feb. 17. His automobile was found near Lake Wichita, and a pair of trousers believed to belong to him was fished out of the lake.

The grocer told officers in San Antonio he remembered taking a few drinks with an acquaintance in Wichita Falls, and then he knew no more until he found himself sitting on a curb on Canal street in New Orleans last Thursday.

He said he "died" to Houston, where he bor $5 and came by bus to San Antonio, seeking his brother.

He reported he had hidden $240, wrapped in newspaper, in the back seat of the automobile found near the lake. Officers said only $5.41 was found in the machine. He drove to the lake, before going to Wichita Falls, he said, to get his outboard motor.

Brock said his clothing apparently been changed during the four days he reported he was unconscious, accounting in part for the trousers found in the lake.

Mrs. Brock, here for the search for her husband's body, collapsed when she received news of his safety.

We like his advice on foreign entanglements because we are similarly prejudiced. Some of his other ideas would be positively anti-new deals and pro-business. . . . But he was the man America needed, then.

Brevitorials

REPRESENTATIVE JAP LUCAS of Henderson county has an idea on submission of prohibition repeal to Texas voters. He has a double-barreled proposition for placing liquor on probation. He would legalize it under local option for 14 months. Then, under the terms of the amendment, re-submit it to the people. A number of prohibitionists, fearing outright repeal, are said to favor the proposal. Two thirds of the members of the house and senate must approve submission of an amendment, but a majority vote of the people rules in a referendum election.

The DEATH MASK of SERBIA

IN a Serbian stamp of 1904 lies a tale of murder, intrigue, and gruesome revenge.

Karageorge, or Black George, Serbia's liberator in 1804, was killed by order of Milosh Obrenovich, whose dynasty ended in 1903 with the murder of Alexander I and his consort. By this act, Karageorge's grandson, Peter I, ascended the throne, leaving desire for revenge in the heart of Alexander's mother, Dowager Queen Natalie.

The 1904 stamp shows the heads of Karageorge and Peter I. But turn it around and look closely at the area bounded by the dotted line. There the death mask of the slain King Alexander appears in all its grim detail.

CARRYING WEAPONS IS DANGEROUS

There should be no reason for citizens being armed in a well-regulated civilization. While the law is far from perfect, it is seldom that a citizen can take the law into his own hands and achieve a satisfactory result.

There was a time when frontiersmen habitually carried small arms. That day passed as population increased and each county and town set up law-enforcement agencies. It was made a serious offense to carry concealed weapons. Those who "live by the sword" often "die by the sword."

The average citizen lives a rather uneventful life in which all needed protection is furnished by various units of government. True, if he owns a business it is likely to be hijacked. He may even be robbed on a highway or while walking to his home at night. But the odds are that he will not.

If he is molested, it is not unlikely that his adversary will be well armed. The aggressor usually has the opportunity to shoot first. As to burglars, there is always the possibility of shooting, by mistake, a member of the family or a neighbor. Even when one has a real of fancied enemy, the cost of resorting to drastic step is likely to be too great, as was illustrated here recently.

In short, there are few occasions when the average citizen can logically arm himself with the idea of protection. In arming, he naturally inspires drastic action in his foe. This may easily result in a homicide, in which he is the loser whether dead or living.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Who will keep the politicians and grafters from sinking their hooks into the $4,000,000,000 to be appropriated for work-relief?

This question is being whispered all over Washington. If anyone knows the answer, he isn't telling.

Emphatic point is given to the query when you check up on what's been happening under the federal relief administration of Harry Hopkins. Remember that Harry Hopkins is a non-political idealist and one of the very few big shots here who could be depended on to fight off the pervading influence of partisan politics in the handling of federal funds.

Hopkins has won his battles in some states. He has failed dismally in others.

Typical of what has happened in the latter is what happened in Tennessee—one of various stories which gives some of us non-politicos the jitters, now that all those billions are to be sent just before and during a national election year.

Col. Walter L. Simpson was made director of relief in Tennessee at a time when relief affairs there needed reorganizing. No one says he didn't do an excellent job.

Last fall politicians besieged him to put his relief crews and the unemployed to work in the campaign. He was asked to follow the good old Tennessee custom by pouring relief funds into certain key counties to help the machine.

Simpson refused to aid either the Democratic ticket of Senator Kenneth McKellar, Senator Nathan Bachman, and Gov. Hill McAlester or the fusion ticket of their opponents.

Instead, he repeatedly threatened to fire any of his people who engaged in politics.

That refusal sealed his doom.

While fusionists were shouting that they had been defeated by Simpson's efforts, McKellar and Bachman—victorious—came here to complain that Simpson had worked against them.

Hopkins told them Simpson was a gubernatorial appointee and could be fired only by McAlester.

McAlester passed the buck back to Washington and demanded formal confirmation of his authority to fire Simpson and appoint Judge Barton Brown, a political-minded follower. He got it and Brown was appointed.

Simpson refused to quit, insisting he had been appointed by FERA officials in Washington and would have to be relieved by them.

Hopkins wired Simpson that he thought his resignation would be "to the interest of relief work in Tennessee."

The politicians wiped the blood from their ax, happy to have made Hopkins share the onus of the execution.

Meanwhile, McKellar—famous here as a spoilsman—had been junketing in the Philippines and arrived back in New York to tell reporters that the four billion dollar work-relief bill shouldn't be passed without some new taxation.

The Senate committee considering the bill was almost evenly divided on various amendments strongly opposed by the administration. McKellar swung in behind the administration at just about the time Simpson was being eased out by Hopkins and McAlester.

Both the FERA and McKellar became furiously indignant at reports that McKellar agreed to support the bill in exchange for Simpson's dismissal.

Dusting The Covers Of Texas History

For THE TEXAS CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF 1936

The months preceding the San Jacinto battle had been ones of terror for those who were not in the army, left to defend their homes as they might, and as the same time all they could to help the ones in the army by sending food and clothing. When news had spread through the country that Santa Anna and his entire army was sweeping over the country, families packed their belongings and fled immediately.

Mrs. Dilue Harris, who kept a diary of those eventful days, tells how her family hastily packed their coats, hats, and set out one night, hoping to reach safe quarters. Herds of buffalo, Indians, and rumors of Mexicans were the cause of endless worry. When word came of the Alamo disaster, Mrs. Harris wrote, "Sister and I had been weeping all day about Col. Travis. When we started from home we got the little books he had given us, and would have taken them with us, but mother said it was best to leave them. We had another big cry when our brother left us."

Other families joined the Harris' in their exodus. Negro slaves were brought along by some families. From Harrisburg they traveled to Vince's Bridge and on to San Jacinto. Anxious, tired people were waiting to be ferried across. Plantation owners from Brazoria and Columbus were attempting to cross with their slaves. Three days passed before the Harris family and their neighbors could get across.

A 12-mile prairie stretch intervened between San Jacinto and the next water and timber place. Farther on was the Trinity. With all the energy the men could put into their oxen, they drove them toward the Trinity. Messengers had brought the disheartening news that the Trinity was on a rise, and it would be well to cross it as soon as possible. Half way across the prairie, one ox cart became bogged, and four other carts stuck trying to pass it. As night shadows fell, it became evident that the carts would have to remain in the mud until the men, who had gone ahead on horseback to the timber, could be called the next day. Mrs. Harris took the lonely, frightened children in her own wagon, and through there was no water, and little food, and no wood to make a warm fire, the children slept well.

MYSTERY DEATH OF SOLDIER IS SENSATION AT BANK OF ENGLAND

BY BURDETTE T. JOHNS, Associated Press Foreign Staff.

LONDON, Feb. 27 (AP)—A 20-year-old Welsh soldier standing guard in one of the key sentry posts in the bullion yard of the Bank of England was mysteriously shot and mortally wounded in the early morning darkness today.

Tight-lipped police and military authorities declined to comment on whether the guard's death was an accident or suicide, but it was understood one cartridge was missing from the victim's ammunition belt.

Authorities said the dead man was James Baker.

The silence which settles over the city, London's financial district, after the thousands who throng the section during the day depart at nightfall, was broken shortly before dawn by the crack of a rifle shot. "Turn out the guard," shouted a sergeant of the guard as he rushed to Baker's post at the main gate of the bullion yard near Threadneedle street.

Baker was found lying on the ground, blood pouring from a bullet

'SECRET 100' TO TEST THEIR POWER QUICKLY

'DISSATISFIED' DEMOS PLANNING TO VOTE TOGETHER

BY CLARENCE M. WRIGHT, Associated Press Staff Writer.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 (AP)—A test of the strength of the still incomplete "secret 100" in the house of representatives appeared in store today. It was disclosed that a bill would be pushed soon to let each member hire one more clerk at a total cost of $440,000 a year.

The bill was introduced by Rep. White (D., Idaho), who vigorously disavows any connection with the attempt to unify "dissatisfied" democrats into a group of 100 which would vote together and keep its plans secret from the regular leaders.

But newspaper men were informed that the idea of giving another clerk to each member had been approved by chiefs of the "secret 100." It obviously lacked the endorsement of the regular leaders.

At the same time, an organizer of the "secret 100," who asked that his name not be used, told newsmen the fact that such an organization was being formed and had forced leaders to promise:

1. A "more equitable" distribution of patronage.
2. A "free" vote on the bonus, without gag rules.
3. Full consideration of bills to stop the issuance of tax exempt securities.
4. Opportunities for consideration of other legislative proposals favored by a "substantial" number of house members but not on the administration's original program.

Furthermore, he added, the democratic congressional campaign committee would call soon on James A. Farley, democratic national committee chairman, and ask him to allocate for the 1936 campaigns of house members, a fixed percentage of whatever funds are raised.

McCracken Back To Serve Eight Days in Prison

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 (AP)—Sitting in jail today, William P. McCracken, could take some comfort in the fact that he will serve only eight days and 16 hours of his 10-day sentence for contempt of the United States senate.

Supt. T. M. Rives of the District of Columbia jail, where McCracken was admitted at 4 p. m. yesterday, said that under the prison rules, the day of arrival and the day of departure are considered part of the sentence.

A Washington lawyer who once was assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, will be released at 10 a. m. Thursday, March 7, Rives said.

McCracken's sentence was imposed during the airmail investigation when certain documents sought by the senate were found to have been destroyed. He denied any connection with their destruction. He appealed, but the supreme court upheld the senate.

Waiving his right to ask a rehearing, McCracken, who is secretary of the American Bar association, surrendered to Chesley W. Jurney, senate sergeant-at-arms.

He said he had decided to serve the sentence "conscious of the fact that I have done no wrongful act, and expressed the belief that some situation will arise in the future which will cause the court to modify this holding."

Right-of-Way To Be Bought

CLARENDON, Feb. 27, (AP)—Purchase of right-of-way for a proposed Clarendon-Turkey highway has been ordered by the county commissioners courts of Hall and Donley counties. The action was taken after the state highway department had announced designation of the route contingent upon obtaining an approved right-of-way.

The 36-mile strip, which will be an extension of highway No. 89, will form a link in a direct route from the Panhandle to Del Rio, and a link in what is proposed as an international highway from Canada to the isthmus of Panama.

Highway engineers have estimated that the grading and drainage structures on the strip will cost more than $600,000. Bridges over Red river and Mulberry creek in Hall county will be necessary. No date has been set for awarding the contracts.

Selling Coins

Sales of Texas Centennial fifty cent pieces are progressing in all sections of the state. The American Legion is handling these coin sales through the various banks. Each of the newly minted half dollars cost one dollar and the extra money goes towards the erection of a magnificent Centennial Memorial Museum at Austin. Many Texas business men paid premiums for their original purchase of Centennial half dollars. Z. E. Marvin of Dallas, president of the Gulf States Security Life Insurance company, paid the highest premium in the state to aid the museum fund. He gave a check for $100 for his Centennial coin. Former Governor Miriam Ferguson was second, paying $95. The picture shows Chairman Tom Owens of the legion central committee delivering the coin and certificate of patriotism to Z. E. Marvin.

JANUARY BROUGHT greatly increased mortality from influenza, and pneumonia, according to insurance company statistics. Pampa has reflected this fact. At the same time, it was noted with satisfaction that there was a decrease in deaths from degenerative diseases, such as heart disease and cerebral hemorrhages. Tuberculosis failed to show an expected decline in fatalities. Flu attacked many persons who had t. b., with fatal results. There was a decline of 28 per cent in suicides, possibly reflecting the better business and employment outlook. Automobile accident fatalities dropped 6.9 per cent for the month.

THE GENERAL increase in diabetes throughout the United States during the past few years is eloquently reflected in the Texas figures," writes Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer. "In 1929 only 367 persons were recorded as having died of this malady, while last year about 700 succumbed. Even making allowances for undiagnosed cases in earlier days, the increasing deadly power of this malady thus becomes apparent. And while perhaps it is the least publicized of the major killers, it nevertheless deserves an appreciation of some of the predisposing causes as well as of the methods to combat them."

"It can be said that, whatever the exciting cause of its development may be, diabetes is definitely associated with the soft living now so general among the so-called white-collar workers. And it is here that diabetes potentially and increasingly flourishes."

"Thus it is noted that professional men and women, educators, bankers, business executives, servers of food and drink, laboratory and desk and bench people in general—in short, the sedentary workers, are more likely to become victims of this disease than are those who labor manually. And to this list must be added the housewife to whose living habits involve a minimum of physical exertion and a maximum of food, including sweets, could profitably determine to 'about face' and gear themselves to a more

Current topics were introduced by Mrs. J. P. Weising, who reviewed magazine articles.

Mrs. Culberson Hostess. Twentieth Century club's annual Bible program was presented yesterday, when Mrs. F. M. Culberson was hostess at her home and Mrs. Roger McConnell program leader.

David, Sweet Singer of Israel, was the topic. Mrs. McConnell gave a character sketch of the Psalmist, Mrs. Tom Rose a review of the book, "Throne of David," and Mrs. Ivy Duncan a reading, "Absalom."

Mrs. Edwin S. Vickers, vice president, was in charge of a short business session.

Texas Poetry Studied. Mrs. R. F. Dirksen spoke of Texas poets, mentioning the work of those who have gained national recognition. Outstanding women poets of all time, from classical ages to contemporary writers, were discussed by Mrs. Max Mahaffey.

Travel Is Reviewed. The prize-winning novel, "Lamb in His Bosom," was reviewed for El Progresso club yesterday afternoon by Mrs. George Walsied, hostess, and Mrs. T. D. Hobart. Mrs. John Andrews was leader at the city club room. Prefacing the review, Mrs. C. T. Hunkapiller read a paper prepared by Mrs. C. P. Buckler, sketching the life of the author and presenting criticisms of the book.

Tea was served to the members after the program and a short business session.

In Sorry Plight With Saurian

Who will mind Jessica Smith's alligator while she takes a swim? The Florida belle found that her saurian pet created a difficult problem when she brought it to the Miami-Biltmore Country club pool—either she had to forego her swim or part with the critter.

Mothers-in-Law To Hear Allred At Annual Fete

Thousands of mothers-in-law will be feted in Amarillo next Tuesday when the governor of Texas appears to pay his homage to the second Mother-in-law day.

March 5 will be re-dedicated to mothers-in-law and all West Texas will be on hand to pay tribute to them. Governor Jimmy Allred will make his first trip from Austin since the inauguration to speak before the group.

A day of free entertainment has been planned for the visiting mothers-in-law. Cafes and drug stores in Amarillo will serve free coffee, ice cream and sodas to all who wear the sweet-pea badge.

A parade in which a dozen bands will participate will be formed of the mothers-in-law and they will pass in review before the governor. Newsreel cameras will record the demonstration. Registrations for mothers-in-law will start at 9 o'clock in the Amarillo Hotel and the Amarillo Building.

At 1 o'clock the governor will speak to the assembly on Polk Street. The most distinguished mother-in-law in Texas—Mrs. Oran Miller, of Wichita Falls, mother-in-law of Governor Allred—will be crowned.

At 1:30 o'clock the parade will start and end its way to the municipal auditorium where the governor will speak to a tribute to his mother-in-law. The idea spread rapidly and mother-in-law clubs were formed over the entire nation. Many will send delegates to the celebration in Amarillo.

Pit Storage Is Used for Cabbage

Thirty-two heads of cabbage weighing 128 pounds were buried in a pit by Mrs. J. C. Browning of the Merten Home Demonstration club last October. The pit used was four feet square and five feet deep.

Cabbage was pulled up by the roots and placed in the pit with the head down and the root up, and upon it was placed a thick layer of old tomato vines to prevent the dirt from packing around the cabbage. A hole was left at one end to make it easy to reach in and remove a head of cabbage and easy to repack around the remaining heads of cabbage.

The last of the cabbage has just been used and Mrs. Browning stated that it was just as crisp and good as though it were taken from the garden.

Placing valuation only on the cabbage buried in the pit Mrs. Browning has a profit of $4.

TALK ABOUT CHURCH Members of First Methodist church are talking about their church for a whole week. The plan was suggested by H. D. Tucker, director of religious education who has requested that every member say something about the church this week in every conversation.

Next Sunday night an estimate will be made of the number of times each one has mentioned the church this week and a beautiful Bible will be presented as a souvenir of the special week, to the person who mentions the church the greatest number of times.

LEISURE TIME OF THE CHILD IS CLUB TOPIC

DIALOGUE DISCUSSION PROVES INTERESTING TO MEMBERS

Continuing a study of child personality, the Child Study club yesterday afternoon centered its program on use of leisure time. The meeting was with Mrs. J. M. Smoot, and Mrs. Bob McCoy was leader.

Ways in which Washington spent his spare time were cited in answer to roll call. A dialogue by Mrs. W. J. Foster and Mrs. Luther Pierson presented in interesting fashion a discussion of wise use of leisure.

Vacation time was Mrs. Herman Jones' subject. She discussed ways of making it profitable instead of a loss of time to the child.

Complying with a request from district federation officers that the club include a program on cause and

SHOWDOWN ON INVESTIGATION OF NRA NEARS

McCARRAN, NYE LEAD MOVE FOR ONE BIG PROBE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. (AP)—A showdown on the demands of one senator for one big investigation of NRA approached today. Senators McCarran (D-Nev.) and Nye (R-Iowa), leaders of the move, planned to introduce a resolution to that effect without delay.

It was McCarran who blocked yesterday attempts to obtain senate approval of funds for two separate investigations—one by the finance committee into operations of the Blue Eagle unit and another by a judiciary sub-committee into charges that NRA has fostered monopoly and codes have been abused.

The idea of McCarran and Nye is that a special investigating committee of senators should be set up, with $15,000 at its disposal, to scrutinize the whole NRA set-up from top to bottom with a view to laying the basis for the new recovery act.

The McCarran school of thought has expressed the fear the finance committee inquiry would not be satisfactory. McCarran expressed the belief the Black-bill calling for a compulsory 30-hour week throughout industry might put the whole NRA out of the picture unless a thorough inquiry is made to prepare the way for modifications in the Blue Eagle unit.

With the day drawing nearer on which congress must decide what to do about NRA's future, official Blue Eagle statistics showed today how the new deal agency has grown in its short career.

From 150 employees in June, 1933, the total advanced to 4,562 in January, 1935, with 3,323 working in the Washington office and 1,239 in the field.

In June and July of 1933, NRA administration expenses were $84,554, which increased to the record high of $1,054,462 in January, 1935. Five hundred and forty-six codes and 185 supplemental codes had been approved as of Feb. 1. They covered an estimated 19,746,000 workers.

He Duce Boasts He Can Muster 8 Million Soldiers

ROME, Feb. 27. (AP)—Italy gloried today in the assurance the seven or eight million other countrymen can be rallied to the colors in event of the nation's need.

Premier Mussolini's announcement that there need be no concern of depletion of troops to Africa would weaken the country's military strength attracted enthusiastic attention in the press.

Meanwhile, the loading of men and materials for the colonial expeditionary force went energetically forward. Hundreds of tons of war materials poured through the hatches of the S. S. Arabia at Naples in preparation for its sailing for Eritrea before midnight.

Six other vessels constituting Italy's bridge to East Africa already are en route, conveying contingents totaling about 15,000 men.

The government statement emphasizing the strength of Italy's military establishment disclosed that two new army divisions are being organized to replace the two mobilized for African service as a result of the controversy with Ethiopia.

Orders also have been given to mobilize the army for arms and ammunition to replenish the nation's military stores.

Just a Trifle Shy of Dionne Mark

A little short of the Dionne mark, but well satisfied with her achievement, Mrs. Irvin Schmidt here is saying good morning to her triplets—two boys and a girl—as they lie contentedly in a Los Angeles maternity hospital. Beside them is the nurse, Mrs. Ella Latimer, who offers that consoling report, "Mother and babies doing well."

SYNOPSIS: The Montana Kid and Mateo Rubiz have been admitted to the fort of Duraya through information furnished Montana by Rosita. They want to steal the emerald crown of Our Lady, which General Estrada has taken from the church, and return it. As they hang outside the general's window, however, they hear Rosita betray them to the general, who bustles out of his apartment to see that Rosita gets safely home.

Chapter 23
EXPLOSION
Rubiz and Montana stood again in the bedroom of the general and the bandit wasted one moment to say to his friend: "There is your lesson! If you must have women, give them your hand—but only with gold in it. Give trust to them and you give it to the wind!"

"We have work to do," said the Kid through his teeth.

And he went straight for the closet in which they had found the safe. The door was still ajar and something that was not quite a smile kept lifting his lip a trifle.

When they were inside the closet, Rubiz could hear his friend humming that old, old song: "Love is not happiness."

Rubiz himself joined in the humming, very softly. The two of them felt to work with the skill of old practitioners.

Suppose a sound as of two immense wheels clapped together, in such a fashion that the air is not struck out flatlings, in a thunder-clap. Suppose a pair of huge doors hurled down on a thick carpet. Imagine a quivering shock that runs through a building and seems to come from any direction at all—the sides, the bottom, the top.

That was what the explosion was like in Port Duraya. Nearly every soul in the zig building heard it or felt it, for it was almost more to be felt than to be heard. A good many thought that it was a severe earthquake.

Most men looked at one another, startled, and muttered, "There's something wrong!" There were very few who could guess that it was actually an explosion.

The general, Ignacio Estrada, was one of these. He had brought sound which the fuse had made. They lay flat on the floor in a corner of the bedroom and waited. All sound ended.

"The cursed fuse was set—it was ruined!" growled Rubiz. "That dog of an Onate shall learn what it is to give me false material!"

Then the explosion came. It blew the door of the closet shuddering open. An invisible puff, as it were, of thick, strange-smelling air rolled out to them, and the flames jumped wildly in the lamp and almost went out.

When they got into the closet they found the door of the safe open and hanging by only one hinge!

Well, let them take this much good fortune almost for granted—since they were not yet clear of the fort! Even if the emerald crown were in their hands, they had not gained it until they were out of Fort Duraya.

That was why they said nothing when from the second or third drawer they opened they took a soft wrapping of cambric. It fell open in their hands, and they saw the green glinting of the emeralds, like the eyes of cats when a torch reflects from them by night.

Then they heard the shrill neighing of the alarm bugle that was blowing from the gate of the fort and causing the echoing of tramping feet to sound in immediate answer from the barracks and all through the big building.

"Now for the last step!" said Rubiz.

He took one half of the broken crown and gave the other to his friend.

"Ay," said Montana. "One of us may stick in the trap. Take some of this stuff."

He had picked two soft, heavy little bags of gold out of another drawer of the safe. Rubiz dropped one into a pocket of his trousers. Montana put the little ten-pound weight inside his coat.

"The best way is right back to the postern by which we came in. Follow me there, Rubiz."

"Back the same way? They will have it crowded with armed men."

"I tell you that's the safest chance."

"Montana, it is no chance at all!"

They were in the bedroom of the governor again. They were in the closet opposite to that which had held the safe, and while Rubiz completed his costume by huddling swiftly into a white shirt which he snatched from a shelf, Montana picked a great cloak from a hanger and flung it around his shoulders.

They sprang out again into the open room.

"Rubiz, I tell you I have a lucky feeling. Come with me tonight!"

"In the name of God, Montana—quick!—to me!"

A voice called out distantly. Then a door opened and there was a sudden rushing of footfalls, close at hand, at the very entrance to the bedroom.

Montana, springing for the door that led into the little side corridor, could not believe himself when he saw Rubiz rush straight forward to encounter this overwhelming danger.

Well, mere physical resistance could not be in the head of the Mexican. He must have thought out some cunning device.

So Montana went rapidly through the corridor. He came out cautiously into the officers' mess-hall. Two or three chairs were overturned. He found himself, against his own belief, pausing to finish off a brimming glass of wine.

But, after all, the matter of a few seconds here and there would be of no importance. He might as well pause for a cigaret. It would even help him.

Considering this, he actually lighted a smoke and then went on again.

The bugles were still going, the sound penetrating the thick walls dimly, entering the mind like persistent needles of thought. But not even the thickness of the walls could keep out the damned rattling and clamoring and crazy rhythms of the alarm bells.

The building seemed to tremble as the sounds found physical root in the foundations of the old fort. And a crazy panic ran out through

MANY FIGURES ARE CITED IN MELLON TRIAL

GOVERNMENT WANTS TO KNOW WHERE TRAIL LEADS

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27. (AP)—The government, pointing again at piles of figure-filled records, asked once more today—where does the trail of the Mellon family's bank stock lead?

Robert H. Jackson, counsel for the federal internal revenue bureau, who contends Andrew W. Mellon still maintained control over bank holdings while secretary of the treasury, called Howard M. Johnson back for the sixth day to answer further questions about securities.

Johnson, confidential secretary to the Pittsburgh multi-millionaire, was asked to pore over more books and papers dealing with about $17,000,000 in bank stock, which it has been testified a Mellon family corporation owns.

Before the tax board of appeals, which is hearing opposing claims—of Mellon that he should receive a $139,000 refund for overpayment of 1931 income tax and of the internal revenue bureau that he owes $3,089,000 for that year—Johnson explained the set up of the Smithfield Securities corporation, which deals only in bank stock.

The Smithfield Corporation, he said, is owned entirely by the Consolidated company, Mellon holding concern in which the common stock is all held by Mellon's children, Paul Mellon and Mrs. Alisa Bruce, and in which the financier himself owns the $20,000,000 preferred stock.

Johnson testified that on January 1, 1933, Smithfield had assets of $15,596,689 and listed the value at the end of that year at $17,348,951.

Previously the secretary has testified that when Mellon became secretary of the treasury his bank holdings were taken over by his brother, the late R. B. Mellon.

Some ten years later, Johnson has said, the stock was repurchased and the financier made a gift of about $8,000,000 in bank securities to Paul Mellon and the latter gave notes to pay for Union Trust company stock he bought for $2,000,000. The $8,000,000 bank stock gift, it was testified, was placed in the Smithfield corporation.

Jackson in questioning Johnson brought out that Smithfield often borrowed money from the Union Trust company. This was true, the testimony continued, in the raising of $2,250,000 cash needed at the time Smithfield bought a one-half interest in the Melbank corporation, director of 38 western Pennsylvania banks. The Consolidated has since assumed this note, it was testified.

Chicago Mayor Nominated by a Huge Majority

CHICAGO, Feb. 27 (AP)—Edward J. Kelly, Chicago's brusque but jovial 59-year-old mayor, rode the crest of a record breaking democratic vote Tuesday to win his party's nomination by the largest plurality ever given a mayoralty candidate in a Chicago primary. The democrats also swept to victory in the aldermanic races.

The red-haired, six-foot democrat, who resigned as the city chief executive during the world's fair as the successor to the late Anton J. Cermak, and who once swung a pickaxe for his living, was nominated to succeed himself by a vote of 479,825. The plurality was 440,672. Both figures were record-breaking.

Emil C. Wetten, an attorney, was nominated by the republicans to oppose Kelly in the April election. His vote was 59,500 and his plurality was 32,439. The republican total vote was only 114,429, or about 21 per cent of the democratic majority. Kelly rolled up despite a near blitz that had been through-out election day. Mortimer Pym, a coal dealer and friend of former Mayor William Hale Thompson, was second in the republican primary and Mrs. Grace Gray, the city's first woman candidate for mayor, a poor Chicago Kelly, whose supporters claim he has been rapidly pulling Chicago out of the financial morass into which it sank a few years ago, easily outdistanced his opponents, James P. Robertson, John P. O'Meara, and Martin Powroznik.

Truckers Lose In House Bill

AUSTIN, Feb. 27 (AP)—By a majority of 14 to 5, the house highways and motor traffic committee voted an unfavorable report last night on a bill to prevent railroads from operating trucks or buses.

Representatives of the roads said they were running trucks and buses to supplement their rail service and would retain as much business as possible on the rails. They said the bill would not increase employment on railroads because business taken away from railroad operated trucks would go to other trucks.

O. L. Kinley of San Antonio, and Joe Steadham of Fort Worth, representatives of railroad labor brotherhoods, argued for the bill as a necessary step to prevent the discharge of more railway laborers.

The house representatives committee recommended a bill to raise the salaries of prison guards from $75 to $100 a month. Compensation of certain other prison system employees also would be increased. Standards would receive $100 monthly. Dog sergeants $100, gas managers $110 and assistant farm managers $125.

Another bill approved would provide for employment of a full-time auditor for the prison at a salary of $300 a month.

Repeal Lead in Alabama Slashed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 27 (AP)—The fate of prohibition in Alabama, for 20 years a bone dry state, was in doubt today as the lead for repeal was whittled slowly by late reporting ballot boxes from yesterday's three-fold referendum.

Repeal, after lagging on early returns last night jumped to the fore. Then the lead, after mounting to 12,000, was slowly whittled down by the heavy dry vote from northern Alabama.

The vote early today with 1,259 boxes reported out of 2,150 in the state gave modification 77,616 votes to 11,178 against. A majority of 5,638 in favor of a change.

On the second question submitted, legalization of wines and beer, the majority was greater for a change, 77,776 votes yes to 69,132 against, a majority of 8,245.

A claim against real estate shall present them to her within the time prescribed by law at her residence in Hemphill County, Texas, her post office address being Canadian, Texas where she receives her mail. The claim shall be filed on or before the 1st day of March, 1935.

28 Persons Are Lost When Motor Launch Capsizes

CASTRIES, St. Lucia, Windward Islands, Feb. 27 (AP)—Hope was abandoned today for 28 persons lost in the capsizing Sunday of a motor launch three miles off the coast of St. Lucia.

Those lost were excursionists, part of a group of 102 persons who packed the little craft and turned it over in the shark-infested waters of the Caribbean.

Seventy-four survivors and the bodies of six of the 28 lost were landed at the village of Laborie. It was said there was a bare chance some of the missing might be found alive in the over-turned hull of the launch—4 ft. 6 in. still floating.

The 13-ton craft, the St. George, sailed out of Choiseul Sunday morning. It was heading back to port late in the afternoon when disaster struck. Some incident, perhaps the sight of sharks or her crabs, caused a rush of passengers to the port side of the vessel.

It lurched, turned turtle, and flung the screaming men, women, and children into the sea.

A launch and several canoes from Laborie picked up many survivors within two hours after the accident. Among the missing was Henry Eudoxie, former New Yorker, who was manager of two estates here.

Calf Auction To Be Held at Night

AMARILLO, Feb. 27 (AP)—In an effort to attract a larger attendance officials of the Amarillo Fat Stock show have decided to hold the annual auction of 4-H club calves at night.

The show will open March 4 and continue through March 7. One hundred and fifteen bulls have been assigned to the Hereford Breeder association in connection with the show.

An annual convention of the Panhandle Livestock Association will be held during the show.

Grover B. Hill is president, W. M. Gouldy general superintendent and P. C. Bennett secretary of the show association.

Each day in the year brings an average of about 20 visitors to the grave of O. Henry, the author, in Riverside cemetery at Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. Walker Has 'Deep Affection' For Former Mayor

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 27 (AP) Mrs. Janet Allen Walker and former Mayor James J. Walker of New York have been divorced nearly two years—but Mrs. Walker says she still has a "deep affection" for him and, if he asks, will do what she can to help Walker out of present difficulties in London.

"If he wants anything of me, he need only ask," she said yesterday in her first interview since she came to Miami Beach to live two years ago.

Mrs. Walker, who now is employed in a fashionable Biscayne Bay club, said she had decided to break her silence to answer a statement by Walker's English attorney that she had "run up" bills in Walker's name after they had separated in New York.

"I want to say," she said, "that never in my life have I done anything to jeopardize Mr. Walker's position in any way. And when I say that, I include his credit."

"Still have the greatest admiration and deep affection for him. And I believe that the attorney spoke without authority from Mr. Walker."

Mrs. Walker lives in a small secluded house and performs the duties of a social secretary for the Palm Island club, operated by William Vincent Dwyer, with Earl Carroll, the New York show producer, as impresario.

Oscar Williams To Head Dalhart Erosion School

DALHART, Feb. 27 (AP)—Oscar T. Williams, vocational agriculture teacher in Floydada High school for the last seven years, has been named head of the instruction staff for the Dalhart wind erosion control school.

Twenty-four graduates of Southwestern Agricultural colleges will receive training in the four-month school under a $15,000 appropriation. They will work in the 25,000-acre wind erosion control project, 14 miles east of here, during the day to pay their expenses, and attend classes in "wind erosion control science" three nights a week.

Trainers will be from Texas Technological college, New Mexico State college, Colorado Agricultural college, West Texas State Teachers college, and the University of Missouri.

E. R. Steen, a graduate of Texas Tech, and Fred S. Reynolds, former Bailey county agent, have been assigned to the project and probably will assist in directing the work.

Williams has been appointed permanent extension agent for the erosion control project, according to H. H. Fennell, director.

Mrs. Frances Finley and Warren Finley left yesterday for Oklahoma university, Norman, after spending the week-end with their mother, Mrs. B. E. Finley.

Hall County Forms Farm Associations

MEMPHIS, Feb. 27 (AP)—Eleven community agricultural associations have been formed in Hall county to help carry out the federal farm control program this year.

The associations were formed at community meetings conducted by James A. Jackson, county agent. One man was elected at each meeting to serve as a member of the County Cotton Control association.

The community groups will cooperate with the county committee and the county agent, Jackson said.

PAMPA BEATS ALLISON 21-18 FOR DISTRICT TITLE IN THRILLING BATTLE

TEAMWORK OF PAMPANS WINS
CAGE CLASSIC

OUTSTANDING FEATURE
SPORTSMANSHIP OF TWO TEAMS

By ARCHER FULLINGIM
City Editor, Pampa Daily News

If the Harvesters and Pampa fans had not wanted so much to win last night, they would have been sorry to beat Allison in the third and decisive battle for the district basketball championship. The 21 to 18 victory which was not assured until the final whistle, will pit the Harvesters against Crowell Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the regional tournament at Canyon.

The able foes from Wheeler county in the eight times they have faced the Harvesters this season earned the enviable reputation of displaying the highest type of sportsmanship which local athletic teams have ever encountered either on the hardwood or on the gridiron. Therefore, a regrettable and pathetic feature of the game last night occurred in the second quarter when the Richardson, Allison center who played a consistently great defensive game, twisted a tendon in his leg. It was a poignant experience to watch the tall 16-year old youth elude his teeth, limp through the rest of the game, pain etched in deep lines upon his face. Despite his injury, he Spartan-like forced himself to ignore his pain, and played a beautifully defensive game.

It is seldom that two teams play half as many games as Allison and Pampa have played this season and close their relationship with as much admiration for each other as the boys have. Allison proved to be such worthy, fine opponents that Coach Odus Mitchell and his Harvesters were intensely proud of their victory.

Stokes Leads Scoring

Last night before the encounter, Stokes Green, tall black-headed Pampa forward, asked Coach Mitchell, "how would you like me to make 12 points? Well, I'm going to do it."

Stokes didn't make 12, but he did make 11, and he led the scoring for both teams—three field goals and four free shots. Besides that, he held Jones, long-distance specialist on the Allison team to two field goals. More than that, Stokes committed only one foul. In Stokes' own words, he was "hot," hotter than an acetylene torch.

It was a good thing that Stokes was on because Allison duplicated their practice of the night before and placed two men on Stokes' brother, J. R. Green, Pampa center, who usually was high-point man for the Harvesters until Allison learned the Pampa plays by heart and learned that to stop J. R. was to stop the Harvesters to a great and sometimes disastrous degree. However, J. R. last night found the basket from the field twice in the last half when points were sorely needed.

Some of these days "Boogee" Nash is going to get "hot" and Coach Mitchell hopes it's in the Crowell game Friday. Nash always plays a valuable defensive game—put him within a foot of a rebound and he'll get it, but last night the goal-shoot-in-jinx was on him. He stopped the foes many a time by tying the ball and grabbing a rebound.

The burden of the offense as on the previous night was on Dunaway and Scott's shoulders. They had the jittery responsibility of passing the ball accurately to scoring territory. This procedure was repeated a dozen times if it were done once: Dunaway would throw the ball from out of bounds to Scott, who would pass it back to Dunaway. The latter would dribble it over the line, just quickly enough to avoid the penalty of losing it on the 10-second rule. The two Pampa guards would pass it back and forth to one another, dribbling fast and furiously, seeking an opening. Sometimes, they passed it to Stokes, but not often to J. R. who was covered by the tall Allison boys. More than often the ball ended in a foul or went out of bounds and was nabbed by an Allison player.

Scott Loops Long One

Pampa had less difficulty in working the ball under the basket last night than on the previous night. Stokes and J. R. got set-ups and made them.

Allison opened the scoring with a field goal by Jones. Then they made a free goal. Scott flashed a surprise attack to open the Pampa scoring. He dribbled the ball to the side instead of passing to the forwards, and shot a long one which swished the basket. The score was tied 3-3 at the end of the first quarter. Dunaway rang up a field goal from a difficult spot.

Pampa's expected slump in the third quarter at the beginning of which the Harvesters were leading 9-3 did not take place. Instead, the Harvesters scored 6 points and established a definite lead which was never menaced until the last minute of the game when Bill Dunaway who had held Hays to one basket went out of the game on personal. Hays immediately sank a basket from the side. The game ended a few seconds later. Allison's long shots failed to hit their mark largely because of the Harvesters' spectacular guarding. At one time, about the middle of the fourth quarter, the Pampans led by 7 points, and a half minute before the final whistle were leading by five points.

The attitude of the spectators, 109 of whom were from Allison, compared favorably with the sportsmanship exhibited by the two teams. High school officials requested the crowd refrain from booing officials

Girls' Sectional Title To Be Decided At Gym Tonight

Pampans Have 'Dope' Chance To Beat 'Cats

A comment heard frequently last night that "Pampa ought to beat anything after Allison" is of course nothing more than exuberant optimism expressed in a moment of enthusiasm. However, there is not the slightest reason why the Harvesters should march out to meet Crowell Friday afternoon at Canyon in the regional tournament, with an inferiority complex.

Statistics, otherwise known as the "old dope sheet," show that the Harvesters have as good a chance of beating the Pampa county sharpshooters as the latter have of whipping up locals. Of course, "dope" is always unreliable, but that's all coaches and newsmen have to go by in making predictions—when they are foolish enough to make predictions. Anyway, here's the dope on Crowell, and that dope makes the Harvesters just as good as the Wildcats, the name Crowell calls its basketball team.

Crowell won the district tournament at Childress by defeating Wellington 43-14. The Childress Index said of the game: "The smoothly clicking Crowell Wildcats caught a Wellington Skyrocket team badly off form and won. . . . It was the fifth consecutive year that the Wildcats have captured the title of district 4. Meason and Russell of Crowell were high scorers in the game, chalking up 14 points each."

Now that score indicated that the Skyrocket who previously had defeated Childress 35 to 33, Margaret 33 to 14 and Turkey 35 to 31, completely folded up in the game.

In the semi-finals, Crowell defeated Tell 43 to 30, the same margin of defeat which the Harvesters inflicted upon the tall boys from Tell—13 points. Pampa won from Tell 27 to 14, and the score Tell made here was the lowest made during the season which indicates that the Harvesters spread a tighter defense than any of the 1935 Tell cage foes. According to those figures, Crowell could be better than Pampa but probably isn't. The point is, the Harvesters shouldn't have an inferiority complex. If they play as well against the Wildcats as they did in the eight games against Allison they should be able to win.

Crowell's lineup will be as follows: Middlebrook and Meason forward, Russell, center, and Taylor and Dunn guards.

In the Childress tourney last week, Crowell lambasted Quanah 38 to 29, which was the same score that Tell won from Quitaque in a semi-final game. Wellington beat Turkey 35 to 31.

If Pampa gets by Crowell in the game which starts Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Harvesters will meet the winner of the Amarillo-Lamesa game at 9:15 Friday night, and the winner of that last battle will undoubtedly be Lamesa, barring a huge upset. If the Harvesters lose to Crowell they will probably play Amarillo in the 8 o'clock game Friday night. The semi-finals will be played Saturday morning with the final game slated for Saturday night.

It is believed here that Crowell can beat either Amarillo or Lamesa. The Tornado won from Lubbock in the district tournament by only two points, and Pampa had no trouble in frowning the Westerners by more than two points twice. Amarillo is rated below Lamesa and Pampa. If Pampa trounces the Wildcats they should turn up in the finals.

Gerald of Panhandle and Davis Hill of Amarillo were officials. Principal Jack Adkins of Panhandle was time-keeper.

Richardson's playing seemed outstanding for Allison, although Hays, Green, Taylor and Pamer worked out desperately. When the Harvesters established their lead they did not attempt to hold the ball, and neither did Allison in previous games when they took the lead.

The crowd was the largest to witness a basketball game this year. All the seats, the stage and standing space were full. Chairs were placed around the sidelines. Some were turned away.

It was the eighth game the teams have played. Pampa won six and Allison two. All were closely contested. Monday night J. R. Green won the game for Pampa 19 to 18 with a free shot after the final whistle had blown. Allison won Saturday night 19 to 18.

Winner of Tilt Will Meet Perryton for District

Another basketball championship may be brought to Pampa tonight when the Harvestettes meet the fast Goodnight Lassies in the third and deciding game for the sectional championship and the right to meet Perryton. Game time will be 7:30 o'clock with admission 10 and 25 cents.

Each team has won a game in the play-off series, with Pampa winning the toss for the location of the third game. The Harvestettes played their best basketball of the season last Thursday night in defeating Goodnight, after losing earlier in the week.

Miss Kathleen Milam, Harvestette coach, returned to Pampa last night and will have charge of the team. It was reported this morning, unofficially, that Coach Odus Mitchell of the Harvesters would also be with the team. It was Coach Mitchell who had charge of the team Thursday night and it was Coach Mitchell who won the toss to have the third game played here.

W. N. Anderson has coached the girls during Miss Milam's absence in long practice sessions.

The two teams are evenly matched, and a fast and exciting game is in prospect for tonight. A packed gym witnessed the Harvestette-Alison game last night and another large crowd is expected to see the Harvestettes and Goodnight battle for the title tonight.

Miss Milam will probably start the team that defeated Goodnight last week. That would be Heiskell and Shields, forwards, Feltner, center, Grey, Jeffries and Williams, guards.

The Goodnight starting lineup will be: Williams and Brown, forwards, Tidwell, center, Reid, Timms and Shores, guards.

Bermuda Tennis Meet Takes on American Tinge

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 27. (AP)—The battle for the tennis championships of Bermuda had taken on the complexion of an United States affair today.

Without losing a set, Berkeley Bell of New York, Bryan (Betsy) Grant of Atlanta, Robert (Lefty) Bryan of Chattanooga, J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J.; Jack McDiarmid of Texas and Eugene McCaulliff of Yonkers breezed thru the second round yesterday.

In the women's singles, Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, France's No. 2 player; Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia; Dorothy Andrus, New York; Jane Sharp, Pasadena, and Florence Lebloultier, New York, remained in the running.

NATIONAL LEAGUE MANAGERS FEAR SWATTING OF BAMBINO

ORLANDO, Fla., Feb. 27. (AP)—With mingled emotions—about equal portions of grief and trepidation—National league managers scattered about Florida welcomed into their circle today the one and only Babe Ruth, the portly gentleman who has had them tearing out their hair and groaning aloud at various world series times in his 20 years as an American leaguer.

The glee came with the acquisition by the Boston Braves of the greatest drawing card in baseball's history, and no one questions that regardless of his 40 years, his bow-tie and tendons and spavins, his balloon beltline and wheezing bellows, the Bambino is still the greatest turnstile lure of them all.

The trepidation came with the realization that now they've got to face him for a large part of 154 games a year instead of a few now and then in annual post-season duels. The Babe may not be good enough to hit with the Yankees in the American league anymore, but to National leaguers he's still a better hitter than any will be.

"Too old to hit," muttered Casey Stengel, manager of the Dodgers, as he chewed the situation over and thoughtfully on a divan in his hotel lobby here. "Say, we haven't ever gotten him completely out yet, have we? He hits National league pitching like he owned it. Doesn't he? I've got just one hope. He shouldn't go around our league calling his shots like he did against the Cubs in Chicago in 1932. Hit? He'll always be able to hit. He can slip plenty far and still be better than most of the right fielders in our league."

Bill McKechnie, whom Ruth will assist in the management of the club, and Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, were "ticked to death" about the whole thing.

BIG COMEBACK IS TALKED BY TICKLED BABE

RUTH IS FILLED WITH ENTHUSIASM FOR HIS FUTURE

Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. (AP)—Babe Ruth, filled with enthusiasm by the deal which shifts him from the New York Yankees and the American league to the Boston Braves and the rival National league as a player, assistant club manager, and vice president, talked confidently today of another big comeback.

"I ought to be able to play at least 100 games for the Braves this year," he declared. "I never felt better. I'm down to weight now—around 230—and if my legs hold out, I hope to do my part toward helping my old friend, Bill McKechnie, land the Boston club up somewhere in the National league race."

"I know it's a tough league right now. Some of that pitching, like the Deans and Hubbell, will be plenty hard to crack, but I will welcome a chance to see what I can do."

"I used to like hitting in the Polo Grounds and from what I've seen or heard, some of the other fences around the National league will look like home to me again. Maybe we will have some fun."

"I'm tickled to death with this chance, not only because it sends me back to an old home town, Boston, but because it gives me the best chance for a real future in the major leagues."

"I hope to play as long and as often as I can—maybe two or three years more—but I also feel I can now look forward to a happy connection with the game when my playing days are over."

All this from the man who was supposed to be "all washed up" after hobbling through the finishing stages of his last season with the Yankees; who flatly declared, afterward, that his playing days were over, and who threatened to quit baseball unless he got a job as a big league manager.

Within less than a week after his return from a world tour, during which he startled the natives of Japan and the Philippines with his long-distance hitting, Ruth was persuaded to accept the one opportunity that holds forth prospect of fulfilling his managerial ambitions.

He will serve this year as first assistant to William B. McKechnie, veteran leader of the Braves since 1930, but he has the assurance of Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston club, that he will be considered as field manager for 1936—if the circumstances warrant and such a chance is "mutually" satisfactory.

McKechnie is slated to become general manager of the Braves, if and when he is ready to yield the field reins to the famous slugger. Ruth's agreement with the Braves—for a three-year period—calls for him to sign a straight player contract at a flat salary, reported to be $5,000. Under a separate contract he will receive a percentage of the club profits.

The race could easily terminate with Southern Methodist, Rice, and Arkansas in a tie for the crown. The Razorbacks play A. & M. Friday and Saturday nights at Fayetteville. Rice battles the University of Texas Friday night at Austin and Baylor Saturday night at Waco.

Texas Christian won their second game of the season last night with a surprising 27 to 24 triumph over Texas. The Longhorns are out of the race but last night's game allowed Jack Gray, Texas forward, to retain the conference scoring lead with 41 field goals and 33 free shots for 115 points.

The Mustangs were paced to their important victory over Baylor by Clifton Whitte, who crashed the basket for 8 field goals and a pair of gratis shots, totaling 18 points. The scoring spree lifted Whitte into

Mustangs Take Lead In Race; Baylor Beaten

DALLAS, Feb. 27. (AP)—The three-way deadlock for the Southwest conference basketball pinnacle was riddled last night when Coach Jimmy St. Clair's Southern Methodist Mustangs defeated Baylor 40 to 23.

The victory lifted the Mustangs into first place, one game in front of the University of Arkansas and Rice Institute. With one more game to play, Southern Methodist can clinch a championship tie by beating Texas Christian Saturday at Fort Worth.

'Cowboy' Weston Run Down by Car And Is Injured

Charles "Cowboy" Weston, former world's champion billiard player, is confined to his room at the Johnson hotel, where he was received when run down by a car during the dust storm Sunday night.

Mr. Weston was to have given instructions in billiards at the Pampa Athletic club on West High street, but because of his injuries, he has been unable to appear. The former champion was sent here by the National Billiard Association.

The veteran player, nearly 50 years old, was crossing from the city hall to the Johnson hotel when he was struck by a car driven by two local youths. They were questioned by county officers but released without charges being filed.

A badly sprained ankle and hip injuries, which have partially paralyzed the left side, were suffered by Mr. Weston. Visibility was poor in the swirling dust and neither Mr. Weston nor the driver of the car were aware of the other until the accident.

Bindweed Spread Alarms Farmers

Spread of the bindweed, a harmless looking but crop-choking plant, has become a county-wide problem according to the county's agent's department.

Control of the menace is one of the topics for discussion at community farm meetings.

The weed looks like morning glory and blooms in mornings. It has a very long root, which often reaches a depth of 6 feet even in hard soil. It spreads slowly but surely unless killed, and usually confines itself to plowed soil.

Killing the bindweed sometimes is done by hogs or by application of sodium or calcium chloride. The county commissioners may be asked to consider measures of control.

The Amarillo Fat Stock show contains a picture of Jim Farris and a baby beef, and the words: "In loving memory of our little partner." Young Jim, whose untimely death was widely lamented, was a consistent winner at the Amarillo show.

Arkansas Passes Liquor Sales Act

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 27. (AP)—The house today adopted the emergency clause to the Thorne package sales liquor bill which would put the bill in effect immediately if it is passed by the senate and signed by Gov. J. Marion Futrell. The vote was 67 ayes, a number required, with 30 voting no.

This action of the house brought the two legislative chambers into accord on the question of an emergency clause for Arkansas liquor legislation.

Negro Burns Her Children's Hands

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Feb. 27. (AP)—"Chilum, I'll give to teach you all what fire 'ud do to you!" a negro woman living in Hopkins county, told her two children, 6 and 9 years old as she proceeded to burn their hands to teach them that fire when applied to flesh of animal or human beings inflicts injuries.

The children had been playing with fire and applied a flame to the feet of their dog. County officers arrested the woman. She was tried before the county judge and assessed a heavy penalty.

RICH MEN'S VERDICT

NEW YORK (AP)—What do clubmen, brokers, bankers and manufacturers think should be done about a breach of promise case?

It was a blue ribbon jury of them, grey-haired and carrying canes, which required just 12 minutes yesterday to award Vera Grove, blonde and willowy dancer, $25,000 in damages for her suit against Henry Taylor, singer and radio comedian.

SECTION 7-A

terstate commerce and therefore any interpretation of the section which would make the section void because congress is empowered only to regulate business of an interstate nature.

In this respect the court also observed:

"Power to enact 7-A was not conferred upon congress by the 'general welfare' recital in the preamble to the constitution, nor by the 'welfare clause' article one, section eight of the constitution.

"The preamble confers no power and the welfare clause is commonly considered as a specification of the purpose for which money may be appropriated and not as a substantive grant of power.

"The enactment of section 7-A either is authorized by the commerce clause of the constitution or it is unauthorized and therefore void."

The ruling then quoted article one, section eight: "The congress shall have power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states and with Indian tribes."

Judge Nields asserted that "in a number of cases the supreme court has declared that the commerce clause of the constitution cannot be construed to bring with the regulatory power of congress the entire industrial life of the nation."

The opinion further says: "The national industrial recovery act requires that every industrial code shall contain the provisions of section seven A. . . . The national industrial recovery act provides machinery for the formulation and enforcement of voluntary or prescribed codes and agreements relating to every branch of industry. On October 19, 1934, there were 2,400 lines of industry covered by codes then approved. These codes include not only great manufacturing industries such as the steel code, automobile code and textile code, but also the bankers' code, hotel code, newspaper code, undertakers code and baby carriage code. They bring within their scope the entire economic life of the country."

The opinion also says: "The reduction to absurdum process of reasoning of the supreme court—that regulating manufacture involved the regulation of all industry—was held demonstrate the conclusion that the constitution did not give to congress the power to regulate manufacture. The authority of these four cases of the supreme court stand and must continue to stand until the constitution is amended. Their application to the business of defendant is quite certain."

The Weirton case was generally regarded as one of the most important tests of the labor guarantee provisions of the national industrial recovery act.

The government instituted the proceeding nearly a year ago and lost the first skirmish when Judge Nields refused to issue a preliminary injunction, holding that under the Norris-LaGuardia act a hearing with witnesses in open court was necessary.

The trial began last October and lasted about seven weeks.

The government contended the employees representation plan, or so-called company union, did not adequately serve the purposes of section 7-A of the recovery act because it did not permit collective bargaining by the employees thru representatives of their own choosing.

It was argued that the company insisted the employees' organization, financed it and conducted a campaign of intimidation against employees desirous of affiliation with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

The company employs normally about 14,000 men in Weirton and Clarksburg, W. V., and in Steubenville, O.

Weirton counsel countered with claims that the Amalgamated officers used coercion, including a threat that workers had to join at the time of organization or it would cost them $50 later.

It also was contended the Amalgamated demanded a "closed shop"—whereby the company could employ only Amalgamated members—and the Weirton lawyers held that the act did not provide for it.

On the constitutional issue, the company took the position that congress can not regulate commerce not of an interstate or foreign nature, that its relationship with the workers was not a part of interstate commerce, and that, therefore, any interpretation which would bring that relationship under provisions of NIRA's section 7-A made the act unconstitutional.

Constitutional opposition also was based on the due process of law provisions of the nation's fundamental law.

Weirton attorneys also challenged the legal statute of the national labor board and questioned its right to interfere with the employees' bargaining. It denied breaking an agreement with the labor board and held that the board itself violated an understanding by altering the rules for an employees' election.

Testimony Contradictory

The board was to have supervised an election of collective bargaining representatives in December, 1933, but because the rules for it laid down by the board violated the election plan of the employees, the board's plan was ignored. Representatives favorable to the company plan were elected.

The decision refutes the federal attorney's contention that the company was prevented from raising constitutional questions because it signed the steel industry code and accepted its benefits. Weirton counsel replied that the code and the act would be forced upon the company, anyhow, and that the voluntary signing was no argument against its position.

Testimony given at the hearing was contradictory in fact in many respects.

Employees friendly to the Amalgamated swore that company officials used coercive tactics to sway them toward the company plan.

There were more than 100 witnesses. The Weirton officials and scores of employees favoring the company plan denied the coercion and accused the Amalgamated leaders of employing those tactics.

The company's defense, stressed the strike action taken by the Amalgamated during the fall of 1933. Amalgamated officers denied violence or any form of intimidation in connection with the strike.

SPRING IS COMING

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—Just about the time large areas of the country were still worrying about winter, L. F. Whitlock, treasury revenue agent, who had been investigating bootleggers in southern Illinois, came in with a report that spring is just around the corner. Blackbirds and robins, he said, were following farmers plowing furrows for spring oats. The birds were looking for worms.

RACE BILL

menace to homes and public morality and as leagueing the state in an unholy alliance with crime and vice. Proponents of the existing law claimed it had benefitted business, helped the stock-raising industry and permitted no evil which would eradicate.

Closing for opponents of the Graves bill, Mr. Ferguson said that, insofar as members of the legislature were concerned, the question seemed to be "to find out where you're at."

"What's wrong with the Russell Bill?" he asked. "That seems to be the solution of the whole matter. We might go on forever without getting anywhere with one man saying the people want racing and another saying they don't."

"Pass this law, and then any county that wants racing can have it, and any that doesn't want it won't have it. If they want to run horses in San Antonio, it won't hurt Dallas. It's a God-given right to bet on a horse race if anyone wants to."

"Here's something to give the farmers a chance to make money by raising horses. Give us a local option bill, and then if the people don't approve of racing we can bow to their will. If you fix it so the people can vote on it, then you have fulfilled your obligation as a legislator."

As Ferguson concluded, Rep. Graves, closing for proponents, leaped to his feet and shook a finger at Ferguson, sitting ten feet away.

"I honor Mr. Ferguson as a man who has been elected governor of the people of Texas," he shouted, his voice quivering. "He is an artful man, a most artful man. But I hope this is his own song, and we will be relieved hereafter from his baleful influence. He is attempting to lead you astray as he has in the past."

"That bill (the Russell Bill) is a camouflage. Let your conscience be your guide. There still is virtue in Texas, and will you sell it for a silver dollar."

Speakers for the Graves bill included former Rep. Henry Kyle of San Marcos, D. A. Frank of Dallas, Mrs. J. M. Glass of San Antonio, and B. F. Evans of Houston.

Opponents included former Rep. T. H. McGregor of Austin, C. A. McBride, secretary of the Houston Trades Council, W. C. Stroube, race horse owner and oil man of Corsicana, Roy Ruppard of Dallas, and Maurice Birch of Houston.

An important development in the controversy over repeal of the betting law was adoption by the house earlier in the day of an amendment to a relief bill increasing the state's share of the tax on wagers by two and one-half per cent.

The "take" at present is ten per cent. Under the amendment the state would receive five per cent and track operators seven and one-half per cent of wagers. The added share of the state would be used to create a sinking fund to retire relief bonds.

Friends of race wagering were jubilant over adoption of the amendment, saying it would perpetuate racing "as long as there is a relief bond outstanding."

The senate would have to accept the amendment to the bill, which appropriates $3,500,000 in relief bonds, before it could become law.

HOUSTON, Feb. 27. (AP)—Charles Le Hart, 32, assistant caretaker at the Golfcrest Country club, was found shot to death in a caddy house about fifty yards from the club house today. A shotgun lay on the floor, the barrel partly under Le Hart's body. The top of the man's head had been blown away.

Grandview Farm Group Convened

The first meeting of the Grandview community farm organization was held February 14 for the purpose of discussing the vaccination of cattle for tuberculosis and Bang's disease.

The meeting was called to order by Edwin G. Nelson, chairman. Assistant Agent Clyde L. Carruth, gave a talk on tuberculosis and Bang's disease, explaining their causes.

It was decided that a farmers' bulletin board should be placed in the court house, and plans were also made to form an egg circle.

Chairman Nelson appointed a program committee for a meeting to be held with the commissioners to the purpose of destroying vine weed and blue weed.

A form used in making concrete tile was displayed by Mr. Carruth, who gave a talk on how to make hollow tile, the advantages derived from its use, and how it should be placed in the ground.

MYSTERY MAN

Edlaw, former Rep. Norman J. Gould; a New York lawyer, and the head of a detective agency, on conspiracy charges, alleging that they hired "Prince Mike" to drug her so that they could get evidence in a divorce suit by her husband, Edward B. Gould.

She testified Gould returned from Europe to New York in 1926, leaving her in Paris. She then went to Monte Carlo.

"Did you know Sir Basil Zaharoff, the mystery man of Monte Carlo?" asked Leon M. Prince, of the defense staff.

The description of the munitions maker and political figure required correction, Mrs. Gould felt.

"You mean the mystery man of the world?" she asked.

The witness said she had known him intimately, had dined with him as well as other notables, "including David Lloyd George."

Over her attorney's objection that Sir Basil is "88 years old," Mrs. Gould hastened to answer questions as to whether she was ever with him alone.
