Wright Patman's Weekly Letter

First Congressional Dist. of Texas
"Heart of the Gulf Southwest"

THE U. S. BANKING SYSTEM properly controlled and motivated is not only the best in the world, it is indispensable to a healthy, free enterprise system operating in the invigorating atmosphere of a democratic society. This is the reason for my life-long insistence that our banks function in cooperation with industry, government, and the people. Pulling together we can achieve miracles, whereas the unlicensed greed of a few powerful men can destroy America.

THE RECENT EDITORIAL IN THE "AMERICAN BANKER" (probably the most widely recognized voice of the banking industry) is therefore a most welcome development calling upon the banks to be candid, viable and constructive in meeting the challenges that confront all of us today.

THE "OMBUDESMAN" CONCEPT is as old as Congress itself, since every U. S. Representative devotes a considerable amount of time helping constituents cut "red tape" in their dealings with the many agencies of government. The term originated in Sweden, where an official "Ombudsman" can be called upon for help by any Swedish citizen at odds with the Swedish bureaucracy.

IN TALKS THROUGHOUT THE FIRST CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT, I have frequently stated that I consider it my duty and privilege to act as an Ombudsman for my constituents, to insure that they receive proper consideration in any contacts they may have with government agencies — primarily with the Federal government but also with state and local governments, and in fact with any problem where my assistance or advice would be both helpful and appropriate.

OVER THE SPAN OF MY 42 YEARS IN CONGRESS, thousands of people have contacted me regarding programs under the jurisdiction of the Texas State Department of Public Welfare, and it has been my general experience that within the scope of its authority and available funds, this department has done a highly creditable job for those in need of assistance, always willing to listen, to work real hard, and to make an extra effort to be helpful.

"WHEN PEOPLE NEED HELP" AND "IN TIME OF TROUBLE" are two useful and informative booklets recently published by the Texas Department of Public Welfare — the first discusses the financial and medical assistance programs administered by the Department, and the second discusses social services provided by the Department's staff. Copies will be forwarded free to interested constituents upon request to my office.

SUMMER JOBS IN FEDERAL AGENCIES IN 1971. It is not too early for the young people in our First Congressional District to apply for the summer employment examination which will be given on three separate Saturdays early next year. The first examination is scheduled for January 9 for those whose applications are received by December 4. All the details and necessary blank forms are included in Civil Service Announcement No. 414. I will be glad to send you a copy upon request, or you can pick one up from your high school counselor, college placement office, any Civil Service office, or local post office.

Mrs. Ab Smith of Texarkana spent Wednesday and Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Smith.

Visiting during the week end with Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Smith were their daughter, Mrs. Billy Albright, Mr. Albright and sons of Garland.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McGonagill and Reed attended the funeral of Mrs. Kate McCullough in Clarksville Sunday. Mrs. McCullough was the granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith.

Kathy Brooks.

Austin. — Heads of the Texas Education Agency have set priority goals for public schools during the next two years. They estimate additional state and local costs at more than $362 million.

Highest priority must be assigned to implementing those major educational acts of the 1969 Legislature, says Dr. J. W. Edgar, Commissioner of Education.

He listed these acts as the 1969 salary compensation (long-range teacher pay raise) plan, a kindergarten program for five-year-olds, comprehensive special education programs, expansion of technical - vocational programs and refinement of the teacher retirement act. Programs are projected over a three-to-seven-year period.

As desirable as new or accelerated programs may be, says Edgar, the State Board of Education feels more experience is needed with the 1969 acts and more opportunity should be allowed to invest available resources in presently-authorized goals.

"Next priority," says the Commissioner, "goes to carrying out recommendations of a committee studying changes in school finance formulas, with a view to equalizing funds assigned as the local share of foundation costs."

More than $2 billion will be spent for public elementary and secondary education this year. Estimate for next year is $2.6 billion.

About 2,728,000 pupils now are enrolled, and 2,760,000 will be in classes next year.

Cost of existing programs for next year alone will increase $156 million, while new programs will require an estimated $25 million more.

LAWMAKER AID. CURBS URGED — Subcommittees of a blue-ribbon committee studying legislators' duties, responsibilities, compensation and ethics are beginning to formulate recommendations.

One proposed an expanded publicity staff for lawmakers and a health or first aid station for the capitol. Another urged an end to the practice of legislators' lending their names to clients or defendants in legal cases just to delay trial.

On December 9, all sub-panel findings will go to the full committee of 150 named by House Speaker Gus Mutscher.

OIL ALLOWABLE CUT — State Railroad Commission ordered a cur in December statewide oil allowable to 83.9 per cent of potential, from the high 87.3 per cent factor.

Action followed four consecutive monthly increases. December limit would allow a maximum production of 3,815,992 barrels of crude daily. That is a reduction from this month's 3,954,193-barrel maximum.

Three of the 14 big crude buyers requested additional allowable for December. Ten wanted the same figure and one less, U. S. Bureau of Mines forecast a 3,525,000-barrel daily demand for December. Whitten nominations by major purchasers totaled 3,425,531 barrels.

CRUDE PRICE HIKE ENDOURED — Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes told the federal Office of Emergency Preparedness that an announcement by two major oil companies of intention to raise crude oil price 25 cents a barrel is "completely justified."

Lieutenant Governor said reserves of petroleum are lower than during war-time, and a price increase is mandatory if they are to be increased.

ALTERATION TAX POSSIBLE — You can be taxed for alteration charges on clothing where the charge is made at time of purchase, Comptroller Robert S. Calvert has held.

However, Calvert said, charges are not subject to sales tax when they are not part of the sale.

"If the alteration is made on a garment prior to acceptance by the customer, the alteration charge is considered a service which is part of the sale and the charge for such alteration is taxable to the customer," said Calvert in an interpretation of sales tax provisions. "Alteration charges on clothing are not taxable when not a part of a sale."

SHORT SNORTS
New auto insurance rates effective in January have been posted by the State Board of Insurance after Monday (Nov. 23) hearing.

Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin said Mafia tentacles are reaching into Texas, and restated his view that a wire-tapping law is needed to fight organized crime.

Second annual governor's public support conference on traffic safety drew statewide participation here.

German measles cases doubled this year over 1969, and there have been 20 cases of paralytic polio in 1970 compared with six in 1969, reports state Health Department.

Attorney General held that the Agriculture Department could pay a monthly consulting fee to a person doing marketing study in Europe.

State cotton harvest is 45 per cent complete, 19 per cent ahead of last years schedule.

4-H Home Management Program Helps Teens Make Decisions

Is anyone more active than today's teen miss?

It is virtually impossible to keep up with her busy schedule! There's school, a part-time job, sports events, homework, housework, dating and a million-and-one activities that fill her day from the minute she gets up in the morning until that final lights-out each night.

How does she manage to do all the things she does?

Some 137,000 young people, boys too, are finding the 4-H home management program a good way to learn how to budget their time, energy and money.

Supported by Tupperware, a division of Dart Industries, Inc., the company provides incentives and recognition, and other supportive materials in the program.

This year Tupperware is making available four medals of honor on the county level and an expense-paid trip to Chicago for the National 4-H Congress for each state winner. Eight national winners are selected from state trip winners to receive $600 educational scholarships.

In reflecting on her interest and reaction to 4-H home management, a 1969 national winner explained: "Management is based on decision-making and a good manager has to decide what his or her most important resources are and what she can do with the resources." The winner was Becky Everett, New Sharon, Iowa, who added, "I had to decide which was more important, cleaning the house or homework."

4-H home management helped her get both jobs accomplished.

This year eight other good managers will receive their scholarships during the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Nov. 29 through Dec. 3.

The Cooperative Extension Service conducts the program and selects winners. The awards program is arranged and announced by the National 4-H Service Committee.
