BREVITIES

One of Merchant's Fast Motor Line trucks overturned just west of the underpass early Tuesday morning. Other than being badly shaken the driver was not injured. Estimate of damage had not been determined at this writing.

Rev. Shewbert took six girls to the Methodist Ceta Encampment for four days. The program was well rounded out. They got up at 6:30 and went to bed at 9:30.

Everyone enjoyed themselves and learned very much. There were 101 children and about 20 directors. The girls want to thank Rev. Shewbert for taking them.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Derryberry and daughter, Freda, left Wednesday noon for New York and the Worlds Fair. They are to stop enroute at Ft. Worth and Washington, D. C. and other places of interest.

O. I. Griffin, owner of the Loraine Telephone Company reports that his exchange had only 27 poles down Tuesday morning after the heavy rain and hail.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Worth Bruce in the Roscoe Hospital Friday night, June 16th.

It was a year ago this week we published the story of the Clyde tornado. In the same edition we told of the nice general rains we were having in this community.

The publication of county commissioner's proceedings and the publication of claims drawn upon county funds are mandatory under state law in Montana.

Grandmother Norman, who is now living in Abernathy, is in Loraine this week visiting friends and attending to local business interest.

The young married couples picnic has been postponed to next Monday night.

The blue print of plans for the building in which the cheese plant is to be installed was received this week by W. S. Wimberly, but due to an error it was necessary they be returned for a correction. Therefore actual construction on the building will be delayed a few days as a result of this.

Grass, recently set out, on the foot ball field is coming out beautifully. By fall games it is evident we should have a good turf.

Emancipation Day was hardly observed in Loraine. Those negroes taking the day off going to Snyder and Sweetwater to attend the afternoon ball games.

Frank Crowover, county commissioner of this precinct, gave the News a shock. He says in all the roads serving his precinct he only lost one bridge. He further stated the roads were not washed as much as he expected and some of them had recently been graded with loose dirt.

S. C. S. Completes Water Well

R. L. Thigpin, director of the Soil Conservation Service, for this county was in the office of the News Tuesday stating they have just completed the water well for Mr. W. H. Caswell, drilling to 127 feet. At this depth they have a supply of six gallons per minute with wind mill power.

The well for Robert Barkley was completed last week and has a supply of 36 gallons per minute and he is also using wind mill power. Monday they started drilling for J. H. Carlock and will next drill for Ira Beights.

This service of drilling and equipping water wells is done by the soil Conservation Service on a long time payment basis with small interest charged.

Will Japs Come?

Bristol bay, designated on above map, is the center of Alaskan salmon fishing during the one month season opening Sunday. For the past 10 years Japanese floating canneries have invaded these American waters and their return this year may precipitate trouble. Certain Soviet Russian waters nearby have been closed to the Jap fishermen.

Revival at Sweetwater

The Rev. Hyman Appleman, a converted Jew, will preach twice daily at the First Baptist Church, Sweetwater, June 25th to July 9th. He is employed as an evangelist by the Baptist General Convention of Texas but conducts meetings all over the United States. He has recently been in meetings in California, Tennessee and Arkansas. No doubt he is the greatest evangelist of this generation, seldom having less than 100 additions and has had 387 additions in one church. The people of Sweetwater and vicinity are urged to hear this outstanding preacher.

Invitation to Dictators

We leave it to Gene Howe to inject a note of humor and breezy good will into a tense situation.

While some writers are busy every day whetting their words on the grindstone of indignation, Gene printed a first page editorial in his Amarillo (Texas) News Globe May 11 inviting Hitler, Mussolini, Chamberlain, Daladier, Beck and Stalin to spend a restful vacation in the cow country and "solve" the problems of Europe.

"Everything's green and pretty out here," the editorial read. "The sun's bright and warm. The nights are cool. There's just enough breeze to bronze your brows and just enough dust to put the proper amount of grit in your innards."

So we're inviting you boys to come over and spend a vacation in the Texas Panhandle. A few days here and you'll understand something about humanity, mother love, romance and the home. For a time you may be jealous and try to figure out all the things you could do if you had our land, cattle, oil, wheat, cotton, and the like. But you'd forget that, because, boys, we're always in a swapping mood out here. You can always get a trade and you've likely got lots of stuff you'd like to swap for some of the things you need.

"P. S. There's no need for Neville's umbrella. We don't have a lot of rain out here—just a high, dry climate that's good for the soul—and when it does rain, we're so glad we don't give a darn whether there's an umbrella in a thousand miles."

And P. S. We think it's a swell editorial.

Roy G. Edwards, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Edwards, will leave Saturday for the Sam Houston State Teachers College where he is to represent Area 2 in the F. F. A. speaking contest held there June 26 and 27. His subject will be "The Economic Condition of the Farm and Farmers of the Southwest."

First Cotton Bloom of 1939 Exhibited

C. W. Palmer, residing just out of the city limits south of town is the first farmer of the community to exhibit a cotton bloom for this season. He turned in a fair specimen to the News Tuesday saying he pulled it Monday, June 19th.

Last year the first bloom for the season was brought in by D. B. Brooks, which was the earliest recalled, being June 16th.

Block Lease Held Up By Two

J. W. Muse, of Grand Saline, returned to his home town after being in this territory for several weeks leasing land on which a test well is to be drilled for oil.

It was necessary to have six thousand acres in the block but two land holders who are holding up has made it impossible to complete the deal. However, he has returned to Grand Saline and hopes the company who backs him will go ahead with what he was able to lease.

Mr. Muse comes well recommended and has the backing of capital for drilling.

METHODIST CHURCH

J. E. Shewbert, pastor We will look for every one out next Sunday. There were several out last Sunday and you were missed. The pastor will be in the pulpit for both services. Let us be on time for our S. S. and church services and get out earlier during the warm weather.

The past two weeks our young people have been well represented at the Senior Assembly and Intermediate Camp. These are great opportunities for our young people to get a larger vision of the work of our church and be drawn closer to Christ.

Our daily Vacation Bible School opens next Monday. We would like to have your boy and girl attend if they are between the ages of 3 and 15. We hope to make this a very fine school for them and an interesting one as well. Registration will be at 8:30 next Monday morning at the church.

Remember your pastor needs your full cooperation and help in these days and your church is seeking to administer to each member. Come out and be with us next Sunday. Visitors are cordially welcomed and every one will find a spiritual warmth in our services.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

A one week Vacation Bible School will open at the Methodist Church next Monday morning at 8:30 P. M. A faculty with Rev. Shewbert as Dean has been secured from the local teachers with assistants for each. The sessions will last from 8:30 until 11 each morning from Monday through Saturday.

The courses are as follows: Beginners, "Our Happy World"; Primaries, "Our Daily Bread"; Juniors, "The Land Where Jesus Lived"; and the Intermediates, "Understanding the Bible."

Each morning session will include opening worship service, study, recreation, assembly, and activity. The registration fee will be 10c for each child.

On Friday a picnic will be held for those who attend the school and on Saturday night a regular program will be put on with the adults invited to come out. The children will receive their certificates at that time.

Rev. Shewbert states, "We want all our boys and girls from 3 to 15 come and be with us in this Bible school. This will be a real opportunity for these children to learn more of the Christian religion as well as drawing them closer to God. See that your boy and girl comes."

According to report turned in by R. L. Thigpin, director of this county for the Soil Conservation Service, we have had 3.25 inches of rain this week.

While in nearby Valleyview community the people are slowly recovering from one of the most devastating rains since 1922. Crops first being completely destroyed by hail and followed by a 6.25 inches of washing rain turning most of entire area into a sand barrow.

At Colorado City, citizens of the marooned town considered rehabilitation from damages wrought by the worst flood in history.

Red cross workers conferred with city and county officials on sheltering and feeding 300 persons, mostly negroes and mexicans, driven from their homes by the flood.

The flood, leaving a damage estimated at $400,000, swept away a large bridge spanning the river between South Colorado City and the main part of town, leaving this part of the city without power and water.

The Texas and Pacific Railroad trestle was destroyed and marooned passengers were taken by bus to Big Spring. Railroad officials said a temporary bridge would be erected within two days. All the company traffic is now being routed over the M-K-T from Dallas to San Antonio and Southern Pacific from San Antonio to El Paso.

Hundreds of bales of cotton in an open warehouse of the Continental Oil and Cotton Company in West Colorado City was swept down stream. All of that section of business near Lone Wolf bridge stood under several feet of water for hours.

Marooned tourists, estimated nearly 1,000, were stranded in Colorado City by the encircling waters after heavy rains at Snyder and a bridge washout at Dunn prevented a detour northward from the city.

Traffic was not opened until Wednesday over the large concrete highway bridge over the river in west Colorado City.

Hock Family Has Reunion

The J. T. Hock family held their family reunion at the parents home in Loraine Sunday with all children present. Those here for the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hock and son, Houston, Mr. and Mrs. S. Hart and children, Midland, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hager and son, Sweetwater, Mrs. P. S. Turner and son, Cisco, Faye Hock, Eastland, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Richie, Loraine, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hock, and children, Roscoe and J. T. and Roy Lee of Loraine. A niece, Mrs. Mildred Ogles of Temple was also present.

This was the first time in seven years for the entire family to be together and a grand occasion was made of it.

Final Week District Court

The final week of District Court is proving to be quiet, with very little business in both Civil and Criminal matters. One divorce has been granted this week by Judge Mauzey, that of Mrs. H. C. Griffith.

The Grand Jury had been called back on June 20th, but because of the rains, and high water, the meeting was postponed until Thursday, June 22nd.

Injunction proceedings by the State against Harold Letcher, Mrs. W. J. Roach (Mrs. Lucille Ledbetter) and Jack Wright, will be heard Friday, June 23rd.

No jury has been used this week.

FROM ANDREWS

W. H. and Dennis Nix of Andrews were in Loraine on business the first of the week. They say it is still dry in Andrews county.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Congressional Patronage Grab Shoves Political Wheelhorses Into Justice, Commerce Jobs

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CABINET:

Patronage

An able economist, Republican Willard L. Thorp was borrowed from Dun & Bradstreet to be advisor in the commerce department's bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. Next Harry Hopkins named Republican Thorp chief of the bureau, but a patronage-minded Democratic congress turned him down.

This was Secretary Hopkins' first conflict with patronage, but another was destined soon in which Attorney General Frank Murphy would also learn about patronage. Up for simultaneous congressional consideration came two appropriation bills, one to give Mr. Murphy's department $1,000,000 for Thurman Arnold's ter and son-in-law. Although their relatives seemed near agreement, Il Duce and El Caudillo were not comfortable.

Needing peace above all to reconstruct his nation, the generalissimo must nevertheless be imperialistic like other dictators. This means a strong hand in Tangiers, which all good Spaniards demand be regained from France. It also means re-establishing Spain's lost world prestige, necessitating an increased influence in Spanish-speaking Latin America. This program plays right into the Axis' hands, stimulating conflict between Spain and the democracies and thus assuring Spain's aid should Rome and Berlin declare war.

EDUCATION:

Consolation

Not since 1928 have graduating college students found jobs awaiting them. Though this year's crop of seniors will fare somewhat better than 1938's, a decade of hard luck has revolutionized the graduate's outlook, made him glad to take any job, and placed an entirely different interpretation on the significance of a college degree. Sample:

To the University of Chicago's 799 graduates, President Robert Maynard Hutchins addressed this gloomy message: "We know now that graduation . . . does not carry with it the promise that the graduate will ever be able to earn a living . . . We must recognize that you may never make a nickel that you would not have made if you had never come here, that your education will not hoist you by so much as a single rung up the social ladder."

Then, to soothe parents who wondered why their youngsters should be asked to waste four years, President Hutchins offered the following left-handed consolation: " . . . Higher education should help the graduate make intelligent use of the leisure which thoughtless engineers and a blind economic system have given him."

TREASURY:

Hoard

India was the "sink hole" of precious metals before the World War. By mid-June of 1939 a cellar under Fort Knox, Ky., appeared to be the new sink hole, for there was kept much of the $16,008,915,000 which represents 60 per cent of all the world's monetary gold stock. Most alarming to financiers, who see gold becoming cheaper and cheaper, is the fact that since January 31 the U. S. has absorbed more than one and one-third times the world's estimated gold production for 1939. Reason: Europe's war scares.

On December 31, 1934, U. S. gold holdings were comparatively mild, totaling only $8,238,600,000. Harmonizing with mobilization, they began zooming when Czechoslovakia mobilized against Germany last May ($12,915,100,000) kept rising until Munich's conference ($14,511,200,000), slackened off during quiet January ($14,682,000,000), then zoomed during this spring's war jitters to the current $16,008,915,000 mark.

Biggest loser is England, which since 1933 was shipped $3,760,600,000 to the U. S., and which in the first four months of 1939 sent $652,400,000. But some of England's shipments have exceeded her national bank's gold reserve, indicating that foreign gold has first fled to London, then to the U. S.

FOREIGN GOLD
England's loss is heaviest.

France, which lost $334,000,000 in 1935, offers the only encouraging picture in today's gold problem. While other countries bordering Germany have frantically shipped their metal elsewhere, the strong-arm government of Premier Edouard Daladier is now enjoying an influx of gold and capital. Biggest reaction in the U. S. is a steady increase of adjusted demand deposits in federal reserve banks. In early June, as gold hoardings reached their new peak, reserve bank deposits also hit a high water mark.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY Lesson

PAUL REVIEWS HIS LIFE

LESSON TEXT—Philippians 1:12-14, 21-24; 3:12-14; II Timothy 4:7, 8.
GOLDEN TEXT—I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.—II Timothy 4:7.

Self-examination may be a most profitable experience if carried out in the right spirit and for a good purpose. It may be very humbling to look at one's experiences and accomplishments in honest appraisal, but the very humility which is thus brought about may be the first step toward better things and may prove to be a real means of blessing.

Paul, whose life we have been studying together for the last three months, made a review of his own life and experience in various places in his epistles. We cannot study them all, but in the brief portions before us we find that the apostle had laid hold of those certainties without which life is largely meaningless and useless. He had found victory over both himself and his circumstances. He was perfectly clear about his eternal destiny. He had a goal toward which his life was directed in earnest endeavor, and he had in view the reward which was to be his when he met his God. What an excellent opportunity we have to bring out the truth as related to ourselves on this coming Lord's Day.

I. Living Above Circumstances

(Phil. 1:12-14).
Paul had been imprisoned for the gospel's sake. Did that stop him? No, for he made the very guards who were assigned to watch him at his house the objects of his ministry and they, in turn, became missionaries of the cross. He sought to win each one as he took his designated period of guard service and then sent him out as a testimony to "the whole Praetorian guard and to all the rest" (v. 13, R. V.). What a consistent and glowing Christian life Paul must have lived day by day.

Not only were some of his Christian brethren encouraged by his example to preach the gospel, but we note in verse 15 that others, taking advantage of the fact that Paul was in prison, went out to preach just to show that they were as good as he, making their very preaching an expression of their envy of his popularity. Paul showed victory over circumstances by thanking God that the gospel was preached, even though it was done in a wrong spirit.

II. Facing Eternity With Joy

(Phil. 1:21, 24).
To Paul, departure from this life would mean his entering into perfect fellowship with Christ and unlimited service for Him. He therefore had a strong desire to depart and to be with the Lord. He would not, however, turn away from his present privilege and duty. If it was God's will that he should abide in the flesh, he purposed that it should be literally true of him that to live is Christ. If that be true in a man's life, then it must necessarily follow that to die is gain. The reason men fear death is that in place of saying "to live is Christ," they say "to live is money," "position," "pleasure," or even "sin."

III. Pressing Toward the Goal

(Phil. 3:12-14).
These are the words of the man who possibly was the greatest Christian and Christian worker of all time. He was satisfied with himself. No, the Spirit of Christ in him and the vision of the goal which he had not yet attained made him press on.

The spiritually minded Christian has no word of commendation for past success, he gives Christ the glory. He does not permit past failures to hold him back, for they have been put under the blood. He is not content merely to hold his own, for he knows that to stand still is to go back. Christian friends, let us by God's blessing and grace take a forward step today, and tomorrow, and the day after, that we may, like Paul, press on toward the goal to the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Scripture speaks frequently of the reward which shall come to the faithful Christian at the close of a life of holiness and service for Christ. It is no-doubt commendable that Christians do not often speak of their reward, for it should be true of every servant of Christ that the love of Christ should constrain him. On the other hand, it is important that we keep before us the fact that at the end of the road there is recognition by "the Lord, the righteous Judge," and that we may properly look forward to the receiving of the crown of righteousness from His hand. The life of the Christian has glorious meaning from beginning to end, yes, and on through all eternity!

Christ's Power

One of the undeniable miracles of Christian history is the mystic power of the disciples of Christ to remain faithful to Him in spite of all possible temptations to desert the faith.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

The Plumber's Hack Saw Did This Trick.

BETSY was all agog to have a bed with no foot piece and a padded head to match her spread. Ingenuity would have to substitute for money, and she was seriously considering this and that when the plumber was called to fix a leaky pipe.

As a tiny tot Betsy always said, "Let me watch," when workmen were coming and at 16 she hadn't grown up much. The plumber took a fine saw out of his tool bag and sawed a pipe in two just as if it were wood. Right then something clicked for Betsy. That old iron bed in the attic! It could be cut down. It was cut down, as shown in the sketch.

The top of this bed is padded with cotton basted to muslin. Betsy used an old comforter for padding. Her mind seems to jump with the greatest of ease from water pipes to iron beds and from padding to old comforters.

SYNOPSIS

Young, pretty Jane Barnes, who lived with her brother, Baldwin, in Sherwood Park, near Washington, was not particularly impressed when she read that rich, attractive Edith Towne had been left at the altar by Delafeld Simms, wealthy New Yorker.

CHAPTER I—Continued

Down the path Jane went, the two pussy-cats like small shadows in her wake, until suddenly a voice came out of the dark.

"I believe it is little Jane Barnes."

She stopped. "Oh, is that you, Evans? Isn't it a heavenly night?"

"I'm not sure."

"Don't talk that way."

"Why not?"

"Because an evening like this is like wine—it goes to my head."

"You are like wine," he told her.

"Jane, how do you do it?"

"Do what?"

"Hold the pose of youth and joy and happiness?"

"You know it isn't a pose. I just feel that way, Evans."

"My dear, I believe you do."

He limped a little as he walked beside her. He was tall and gaunt. Almost grotesquely tall. Yet when he had gone to war he had not seemed in the least grotesque. He had been tall but not thin, and he had gone in all the glory of his splendid youth.

There was no glory left. He was twenty-seven. He had fought and he would fight again for the same cause. But his youth was dead, except when he was with Jane. She revived him, as he said, like wine.

"I was coming over," he began, and broke off as a sibilant sound interrupted him.

"Oh, are the cats with you? Well, Rusty must take the road," he laughed as the little old dog trotted to neutral ground at the edge of the grove. Rusty was friends with Merrymaid, except when there were kittens about. He knew enough to avoid her in days of anxious motherhood.

Jane picked up the kitten. "They would come."

"All animals follow you. You're sort of a domestic Circe—with your dogs and chickens and pussy-cats in the place of tigers and lions and leopards."

"I'd love to have lived in Eden," said Jane, unexpectedly, "before Eve and Adam sinned. What it must have meant to have all those great beasts mild-mannered and purring under your hand like this kitten. What a dreadful thing happened, Evans, when fear came into the world."

"What makes you say that now, Jane?" His voice was sharp.

"Shouldn't I have said it? Oh, Evans, you can't think I had you in mind."

"No," with a touch of weariness, "but you are the only one, really, who knows what a coward I am."

"Evans, you're not."

"You're good to say it, but that's what I came over for. I am up against it again, Jane. Some cousins are on from New York—they're at the New Willard—and Mother and I went in to see them last night. They have invited us to go back with them. They've a big house east of Fifth Avenue, and they want us as their guests indefinitely. They think it will do me a lot of good—get me out of myself, they call it. But I can't see it. Since I came home—every time I think of facing mobs of people—again his voice grew sharp—"I'm clutched by something I can't describe. It is perfectly unreasonable, but I can't help it."

For a moment they walked in silence, then he went on—"Mother's very keen about it. She thinks it will set me up. But I want to stay here—and I thought if you'd talk to her, she'll listen to you, Jane—she always does."

"Does she know how you feel about it?"

"No, I think not. I've never told her. I've only spilled over to you now and then. It would hurt Mother, no end, to know how changed I am."

Jane laid her hand on his arm. "You're not. Brace up, old dear. You aren't dead yet." As she lifted her head to look up at him, the hood of her cape slipped back, and the wind blew her soft, thick hair against his cheek. "But I'll talk to your mother if you want me to. She is a great darling."

They had reached the kitchen door. "Won't you come in?" Jane said.

"No, I've got to get back. I only ran over for a moment. I have to have a daily sip of you, Jane."

"Baldy's bringing a steak for dinner. Help us eat it."

"Sorry, but Mother would be alone."

"When shall I talk to her?"

"There's no hurry. The cousins are staying on for the opening of Congress. Jane dear, don't despise me—" His voice broke.

"Evans, as if I could."

Again her hand was on his arm. He laid his own over it. "You're the best ever, Jane," he said, huskily—and presently he went away.

Jane, going in, found that Baldy had telephoned. "He hasn't got here until seven," Sophy told her.

"You had better run along home," Jane told her. "I'll cook the steak when it comes."

Sophy was old and she was tired. Life hadn't been easy. The son who was to have been the prop of her old age had been killed in France.

There was a daughter's daughter who had gone north and who now and then sent money. Old Sophy did not know where her granddaughter got the money, but it was good to have it when it came. But it was not enough, so old Sophy worked.

"I hate to leave you here alone, Miss Janey."

"Oh, run along, Sophy. Baldy will come before I know it."

Jane went through the kitchen to the back door, throwing an appraising glance at the things in the warm-

Jane loved her little home with almost passionate intensity. She loved to have Baldy in a mood like this—things right once more with his world.

She knew it was so by the ring of his voice, the cock of his head—hence she was not in the least surprised when he leaned forward under the old-fashioned spreading dome which drenched him with light, and said, "I've such a lot to tell you, Jane; the most amazing thing has happened."

CHAPTER II

When young Baldwin Barnes had ridden out of Sherwood that morning on his way to Washington, his car had swept by fields which were crisp and frozen; by clumps of trees whose pointed tops cut into the clear blue of the sky; over ice-bound streams, all shining silver in the early sunlight.

He had the eye of an artist, and he liked the ride. Even in winter the countryside was attractive—and as the road slipped away, there came a few big houses surrounded by wide grounds, with glimpses through their high hedges of white statues, of spired cedars, of sundials set in the midst of dead gardens.

Beyond these there was an arid stretch until the Lake was reached, then the links of one country club, the old buildings of another, and at last on the crest of a hill, a view of the city—sweeping on the right towards Arlington and on the left towards Soldiers' Home.

Turning into Sixteenth Street, he crossed a bridge with its buttresses guarded by stone panthers—and it was on this bridge that his car stopped.

Climbing out, he blamed Fate furiously. Years afterward, however, he dared not think of the difference it might have made if his little flivver had not failed him.

Once when he stopped, a woman passed him. She was tall and slender and wrapped up to her ears in moleskin. Her small hat was blue, from her hand swung a gray suede bag, her feet were in gray shoes with cut-steel buckles.

Baldy's quick eyes took in the details of her costume. He reflected as he went back to work that women were fools to court death in that fashion, with thin slippers and silk stockings, in this bitter weather.

He found the trouble, fixed it, jumped into his car and started his motor. And it was just as he was moving that his eye was caught by a spot of blue bobbing down the hill below the bridge.

The woman who had passed him was making her way slowly along the slippery path. On each side of her the trees were brown and bare. At the foot of the hill was a thread of frozen water.

It was not usual at this time to see pedestrians in that place. Now and then a workman took a short cut—or on warm days there were picnic parties—but to follow the rough paths in winter was a bleak and arduous adventure.

He stayed for a moment to watch her, then suddenly left his car and ran. The girl in the blue hat had caught her high heels in a root, had stumbled and fallen.

When he reached her, she was struggling to her feet. He helped her, and picked up the bag which she had dropped.

"Thank you so much." Her voice was low and pleasing. He saw that she was young, that her skin was very fair, and that the hair which swept over her ears was pale gold, but most of all, he saw that her eyes were burning blue. He had never seen eyes quite like them. The old poets would have called her sapphire, but sapphires do not flame.

"It was so silly of me to try to do it," she was protesting, "but thought it might be a short cut—"

He wondered what her destination might be that this remote path should lead to it. But all he said was, "High heels aren't made for mountain climbing—"

"They aren't made for anything," she said, looking down at the steel buckled slippers, "useful."

"Let me help you up the hill."

"I don't want to go up."

He surveyed the steep incline. "I am perfectly sure you don't want to go down."

"I do," she hesitated, "but I suppose I can't."

He had a sudden inspiration. "Can I take you anywhere? My little flivver is up there on the bridge. Would you mind that?"

"Would I mind if a life-line were thrown to me in mid-ocean?" She said it lightly, but he fancied there was a note of high hope.

They went up the hill together.

"I want to get an Alexandria car," she told him.

"But you are miles away from it."

"Am I?" She showed momentary confusion. "I—hoped I might reach it through the Park—"

"You might. But you might also freeze to death in the attempt like babe in the wood, without any rolls to perform the last melancholy rites. What made you think of such a thing?"

He saw at once his mistake. He voice had a touch of frigidity. "Can't tell you."

"Sorry," he said abruptly. "You must forgive me."

She melted. "No, it is I who should be forgiven. It must look strange to you—but I'd rather not explain—"

On the last steep rise of the hill he lifted her over a slippery pool and as his hand sank into the soft fur of her wrap, he was conscious of its luxury. It seemed to him that his mustard-colored coat fairly shouted incongruity. His imagination swept on to Raleigh, and the velvet cloak which might do the situation justice. He smiled at him self and smiling, too, at her, felt tingling sense of coming circus stance.

It was because of that smile, at the candid, boyish quality of it, that she trusted him. "Do you know she said, 'I haven't had a thing eat this morning, and I'm frightfully hungry. Is there any place where I could have a cup of coffee—where you could bring it out to me in the car?'"

"Could I?" the morning stars sang.

"There's a coking place in Georgetown."

"Without the world looking on?"

"Without your world looking on," boldly.

She hesitated, then told the truth.

"I'm running away—"

He was eager. "May I help?"

"Perhaps you wouldn't if you knew."

"Try me."

He helped her into his car, tucked the rug about her, and put up the curtains. "No one can see you on the back seat," he said, and drove to Georgetown on the wings of the wind.

He brought coffee out to her from a neat shop where milk was sold, and buns, and hot drinks, to motor men and conductors. It was a clean little place, fresh as paint, and the buttered rolls were brown and crisp.

"I never tasted anything so good," the runaway told Baldy. "And now I am going to ask you to drive me over the Virginia side—I'll get the trolley there."

"Would I mind if a life-line were thrown to me in mid-ocean?"

ing oven, and stood waiting on the threshold, hugging herself in the keenness of the wind.

Presently her brother's tall form was silhouetted against the silvery gray of the night.

"I thought you were never coming," she said to him.

"I thought so, too." He bent and kissed her; his cheek was cold as it touched hers.

"Aren't you nearly frozen?"

"No. Sorry to be late, honey. Get dinner on the table and I'll be ready."

"I'm afraid things won't be very appetizing," she told him; "they've waited so long. But I'll cook the steak."

He had gone on, and was beyond the sound of her voice. She opened the fat parcel which he had deposited on the kitchen table. She wondered a bit at its size. But Baldy had a way of bringing home unexpected bargains—a dozen boxes of crackers—unwieldy pounds of coffee.

But this was neither crackers nor coffee. The box which was revealed bore the name of a fashionable florist. Within were violets—single ones—set off by one perfect rose and tied with a silver ribbon.

Jane gasped—then she went to the door and called:

"Baldy, where's the steak?"

He came to the top of the stairs. "Great guns," he said, "I forgot it!"

Then he saw the violets in her hands, laughed and came down a step or two. "I sold a loaf of bread and bought—white hyacinths—"

"They're heavenly!" Her glance swept up to him. "Peace offering?"

There were gay sparks in his eyes. "We'll call it that."

She blew a kiss to him from the tips of her fingers. "They are perfectly sweet. And we can have an omelette. Only if we eat any more eggs, we'll be flapping our wings."

"I don't care what we have. I am so hungry I could eat a house."

He went back up the stairs, laughing.

Jane, breaking eggs into a bowl, meditated on the nonchalance of men. She meditated, too, on the mystery of Baldy's mood. The flowers were evidence of high exaltation. He did not often lend himself to such extravagance.

He came down presently and helped carry in the belated dinner. The potatoes lay like withered leaves in a silver dish, the cornbread was a wrinkled wreck, the pudding a travesty. Only Jane's omelette and a lettuce salad had escaped the blight of delay.

Then, too, there was Philomel, singing. Jane drew a cup of coffee, hot and strong, and set it at her brother's place. The violets were in the center of the table, the cats purring on the hearth.

'Pronghorn' Distinct From All Other Antelopes

A recent census of the American antelope, or "pronghorn," shows these animals are decidedly on the increase. A survey made during the years from 1922 to 1924 showed there were only about 26,600 antelopes left of the millions which once roamed the range. The last census shows there are now 131,555 in the country.

In other words there are more than five times as many on the range as there were 15 years ago. There is no animal on this continent more typically American than the "pronghorn." He is so distinct from all other antelopes that he is classified as a species, genus and family all by himself, says the American Wildlife Institute.

Antelopes are very vain about their speed and cannot resist an opportunity to match their prowess with anything that runs. They have long been the swiftest animals on the range. Any fast moving object is a challenge and the antelope dash along in a parallel course until they are well in the lead, and then as if to make a convincing display of their prowess, they dash across the front of their competitor's line of travel and soon disappear over the horizon.

Lightning's Course Shows

Most lightning flashes pass from top to bottom of the thunder cloud but occasionally the bottom of the cloud sparks to the ground and a tree or barn or a transmission line is "struck by lightning."

unro nomination and thus climax his record as a builder of precedents.

There are many political leaders and students of politics who are convinced beyond a shadow of a doubt that Mr. Roosevelt is campaigning even now for his third nomination. They base their conclusion on count less small indications, and the drive for this result that is being carried on by a small group of White House intimates.

And to make the confusion worse there has come the announcement by Secretary Ickes of the interior department that Mr. Roosevelt must be renominated and re-elected. This was like a bombshell in the ranks of the anti-Roosevelt Democrats who read into those lines, printed in the magazine, "Look," the first publication of united efforts on the part of the President's advisers with the consent of Mr. Roosevelt.

But if the Ickes statement was a bombshell, a subsequent statement by Stephen Early, one of the secretaries to Mr. Roosevelt, must be regarded as an explosion of an entire powder storehouse. To the onlooker, Mr. Early's statement can not be ignored; it must be accepted as having presidential approval because of the intimate relationship between the two men, and if it has presidential approval, it is tantamount, as far as I can see, to an announcement of Mr. Roosevelt's intentions.

Early Declares Voters Will Not Be Confused

Writing in the Saturday Evening Post, Mr. Early concluded his discussion of unfair criticisms of Mr. Roosevelt with a fervent declaration that the voters will not be confused. With the gracious consent of Mr. Wesley Winans Stout, editor-in-chief of the Post, I herewith reprint the salient paragraph from Mr. Early's article that has served to spread it new and broader form the feeling that Mr. Roosevelt will seek re-election to a third term:

"Certain it is that with the approach of 1940, as has been the case every four years since this democratic form of government was adopted by the people of the United States, new rumors, new whisperings, variations of truth and untruth will come to mix with the old. Fortunately, it is equally true that the vast majority of those who vote in the next presidential election will take salutary pleasure in expressing their contempt of all that the double

Farm News

By J. W. King, Jr.

Luther Anders is living about five miles southeast of Loraine and including his homestead he is working about two hundred and ninety acres of land. One hundred and ten acres of his land is planted in cotton and he has a good clean stand on practically all of his acreage. Luther is working his land with one tractor and one team of horses. In addition to his cotton he has about sixty acres each of maize and cane planted.

Mr. Anders has practically all of his land terraced and in good shape. A real asset to his farm is a large levee he has constructed across a draw running through his field. This levee holds back an enormous amount of water after a rain as well as stopping the erosion of his field by the draw. Mr. Anders expects the levee to be a wonderful help in conserving the moisture of big rains for following dry seasons.

Mrs. Anders has raised a garden this spring which is certainly a credit to their farm. From one large grape vine in her garden she has canned fifteen quarts of grapes, and from this vine and other vines she expects to can a much greater quantity later this summer. She has canned fifty quarts of blackberries from three rows of plants in her garden. She has some fine tomato and cucumber vines which will likely produce a large quantity of these vegetables in the near future. Luther has an orchard of small apricot trees, and he has improved the orchard by running a levee around the lower end of the orchard to prevent all of the moisture being lost from around the trees.

Mr. and Mrs. Anders have two hundred and twenty five white and brown leghorn hens and one hundred little chickens. Egg production of their hens decreased quite a bit recently. At the present time Mr. and Mrs. Anders are milking two cows. Luther has twelve yearling heifers, however, which will greatly increase his flock of milk cows. Three of these heifers he bought from a Fort Worth dairy, and two of them came from near Sulphur Springs. Luther is running his cattle on a patch of sudan grass which is enclosed by an electrically charged fence. In its operation the electric fence is very interesting, it keeping the cattle from going over or through the fence by delivering to them a mild electric shock. The fence consists of one strand of barbed wire insulated from cedar posts at intervals of approximately fifty feet. The wire is placed about two and a half feet from the ground and the electric charge is put on the fence by means of a fence charge run from a six volt storage battery. The fence is very economical to build and is extremely economical in operation. It is absolutely harmless to stock, delivering only a sufficient shock to keep the animals from the wire.

Luther has a new tower for his water storage tank at his windmill. He built the tower from some old pipe he secured in an oil field. The pipes were welded together and as a result he has a very durable tower, which was exceedingly economical to build. Luther irrigates his garden from the tank and keeps enough water stored for his own use and for the use of his stock.

Many people will recall the large elm tree which formerly stood in front of the Masonic building, but very few people are familiar with what happened to the tree. Everyone will be very glad to hear, no doubt that the tree is still alive and growing. When the tree was grubbed up, Mr. Anders cut away the heavy foliage from the top of the tree and hauled it out to his farm. He transplanted the tree near his windmill and by caring for it and keeping it well-watered, he managed to keep the tree alive, and today it may be seen growing on his farm as it used to be seen on the main street of Loraine. It is minus a large part of its heavy foliage but it is easily recognized by anyone who was familiar with the tree when it grew in front of the Masonic building.

Put the Milk Pitcher Back on the Table

By Ruth J. Cooper, Home Economics Consultant

Put the milk pitcher back on the table! It is now an authentic antique and worthy of a place of honor; it is the aristocrat of the table. Whether placed there by style or taste decree, it is mighty good nutritional advice. Drinking milk with meals is good sound, nutritional practice.

Milk is a food and should be treated as one. Drink it slowly and enjoy every mouthful. With the milk pitcher on the table, easily reached by all, the whole family can drink their fill.

Milk is as nearly perfect food as there is. It is one of the best allround body builders. It is palatable, nutritious and economical. It combines the essentials of nutrition in the most readily available form. One quart of milk furnishes more than half of the nutritional needs of the day. It furnishes about one-third of the protein requirement, nearly all of the phosphorus and calcium, one-eighth of the iron, adequate amounts of most of the vitamins, and about one-fifth of the entire energy requirements for the day.

Milk supplements other foods. The proteins of cereals are poor growth factors but supplemented with milk, they produce maximum results. A bowl of cereal with fresh fruit, whole milk and a little sugar constitutes a "hurry up" meal that is nutritious and quite palatable. It is readily and easily digested and will therefore not "stick-to-the-ribs" very long. To stave off hunger until the next meal, we need some more fat such as a slice or two of bread and butter.

Milk has no affinities. It goes with any food or any kind of a meal. Often we hear the remark that fish and milk or ice cream must not be eaten at the same meal. This is a fallacy. Any of the natural foods may be used together. It is the man-made mixtures that offend.

Some of our most delicate fish dishes are made with milk. While there are a few people who are allergic to fish and have to avoid all of the sea foods, the majority can safely eat them. The question is not one of combinations, but of the condition of the food. If the fish is not fresh it will cause sickness if eaten any way.

An often heard excuse for not drinking milk is that it is constipating. This is another fallacy. Milk in itself is not constipating. It is readily and easily digested and because of this, leaves no residue. The balance diet furnishes bulk in the form of fresh fruits, vegetables and cereals for well-being. Milk is a vital part of this balanced meal.

Not long ago a food quack went around this part of the country preaching that milk and citrus juices must not be taken at the same meal because the fruit juices curdle the milk. This is another ridiculous fallacy. The curdling of milk in the stomach is the first step in the digestion. Fruit juices aid in the digestion by helping to form a softer curd. The same reasoning applies to buttermilk.

F. S. A. TO PURCHASE FARMS FOR TENANTS

In accordance with provisions of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, the Farm Security Administration will receive applications from farm tenants, farm laborers and sharecroppers for a limited number of loans in Mitchell County for the purchase of farms, it was announced by Mr. M. A. Stinson County Rural Supervisor. However, it was pointed out by Mr. Stinson that unless satisfactory farms can be obtained at reasonable agricultural prices, no loans will be made in this county during this fiscal year but the funds will be made available to other counties where land can be purchased at a reasonable price that meets the requirements of the Tenant Purchase price.

Applications will be received at the county Rural Supervisor's office which is located Courthouse Building, Colorado City, Texas beginning June 20, 1939 and ending July 20, 1939. It is suggested that all farm tenants, farm laborers, and sharecroppers who are interested in submitting an application for consideration under the above farm tenant act, secure an application blank and fill it out and submit it to the county rural supervisor no later than July 20. No assurance can be given at this time of any loans being made under the provision of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act for the reason that the appropriation for this program has not been made.

A Paradox

Keller, the Irish barrister, was barred from the larger success he desired by "an irresponsible wit." One day, a meeting of a solemn judge who had attained to a high position by the assumption of a serious manner, he cried: "I salute you, sir! In opposition to all the laws of natural philosophy. You have risen by your gravity; while I, alas, have sunk by my levity."

Constipation Relief
That Also
Pepsin-izes Stomach

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-releaser, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how Pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even sickly children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your drugist today!

New Easy-to-Sew and Keep-Cool-In Patterns

AS YOU see from the diagram, the pretty daytime dress (1754) consists of just two pieces to sew together. Then make the easy darts at the neckline and waistline, so that your dress will be slim and softly full over the bosom, edge the sleeves and neckline with lace or ruching—and there you are! Anybody can do it, and it's so attractive and comfortable. Linen, gingham, batiste and lawn are nice materials for this.

Cool, Comely Jacket Frock.

If you're looking for an extremely smart and pleasantly youthful jacket ensemble in women's sizes, 1761 is the pattern for you. Gatherers make the bodice just full enough, and the paneled skirt, cut to a high waistline, is beautifully slenderizing. The smart jacket is the most flattering length—certain to make your hips look slim. Chiffon, georgette, linen or pure dye silk print are pliant fabrics in which this design looks particularly well.

The Patterns.

No. 1754 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. Size 34 requires 3 yards of 35-inch fabric and 2 3/4 yards of lace or ruching. No. 1761 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 6 1/2 yards of 39-inch fabric with nap for the ensemble and short-sleeved dress. With long-sleeved dress 7 1/2 yards.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1324, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

HOT WEATHER BILIOUSNESS

Have you noticed that in hot weather your digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious, and your bowel action sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the symptoms of biliousness or so-called "torpid liver," so prevalent in hot climates. They call for calomel, or better still, Calotabs, the nausealess calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure.

Calotabs give you the effects of calomel and salts combined, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calotabs." Refuse imitations. Trial package only ten cents; family package (twenty-five cents, at your dealer's) (Adv.)

NERVOUS?

Do you feel so nervous you want to scream? Are you cross and irritable? Do you find these things dear to you?

If your nerves are on edge and you feel you need a good general system tonic, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women.

For over 30 years one woman has told another how to go "unhinged" with reliable Pinkham's Compound. It helps nature build up your physical resistance and thus helps calm quivering nerves and lessen discomforts from absorbing symptoms which often accompany female (hormonal) disorders.

Why not give it a chance to help YOU? Over one million women have written in glowing testimonials about Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

STRAWBERRY-WHIPPED-CREAM ICE

See Recipe Below.

Cold, Frosty and Delicious

Do you remember how, as a child, a party just wasn't a party unless you had ice cream? Do such childhood memories even now create little appetite longings for that frosty, flavorsome dish—longings that send you hurrying to the kitchen to make up a batch of your own favorite frozen dessert?

Homemade ice creams and sherbets are more popular than ever now that efficient modern ice cream freezers make quick work of their preparation. (You can freeze smooth, velvety sherbets and ice cream in 5 to 10 minutes) flat! And when the advent of torrid weather calls for something special to encourage appetites made indifferent by the onslaught of heat waves, these delicious treats come into their own!

Here are some simple hints on making freezer ice creams with a collection of brand new recipes for cool, refreshing, frozen desserts—recipes which I've tested in my own kitchen and found to be as practical as they are appealing:

Hints on Making Ice Cream Freezer Ice Cream.

1. Follow directions in the recipe.
2. Scald freezing container, dasher and cover before using.
3. Crush or crack the ice finely.
4. Fill freezing container only 3/4 full of ice cream mixture, to allow for expansion.
5. Cover tightly.
6. Adjust the dasher so that the handle turns easily and smoothly.
7. Use three parts crushed ice to one part rock salt, arranging in alternate layers.
8. Turn the crank slowly and steadily until turning becomes difficult.
9. When the mixture is frozen (5 to 10 minutes, with a modern ice cream freezer), wipe around the top of the container with a cloth, and remove cover carefully, so that no ice or salt falls into the mixture.
10. Remove the dasher, and pack down the cream with a spoon.
11. Replace the cover, and drain off the water from the freezer.
12. Repack with ice and salt. Cover with burlap bag or heavy paper, and allow to "ripen" for about an hour before serving.

Peppermint Candy Ice Cream.
1/2 pound peppermint stick candy
1 quart thin cream
Break the stick candy into pieces. Pour the cream over the candy and place in the refrigerator over night. Then pour the mixture into the freezing well of an ice cream freezer, pack with three parts crushed ice to one part rock salt, and freeze.

Strawberry or Raspberry Preserves Ice Cream.
(Serves 5-6)
1 pint coffee cream
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup strawberry or raspberry preserves
Combine all the ingredients and pour the mixture into the freezing container of a modern ice cream freezer. Assemble the freezer and cover. Pack with ice and salt, using three parts crushed ice to one part rock salt. Freeze.

Buttermilk Ice Cream.
(Makes about 1 1/2 quarts)
3 cups buttermilk
1 cup crushed pineapple
1/2 cup sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 egg white (stiffly beaten)
Combine the buttermilk, pineapple, sugar and lemon juice. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg white, and pour into freezing container of ice cream freezer. Assemble the freezer and cover. Pack with a mixture of three parts crushed ice and one part rock salt. Freeze.

Cream-Less Ice Cream.

(Makes 2 quarts)

- 3/4 cup sugar
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 1 quart milk (scalded)
- 2 eggs (beaten separately)
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Combine sugar and flour and blend with scalded milk; then cook over low flame, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Remove from flame and pour three tablespoons of the mixture over beaten egg yolks. Blend thoroughly, then add to custard mixture, together with salt and vanilla extract. Chill. Pour mixture into freezing container of modern ice cream freezer. Pour the stiffly beaten egg whites over and then assemble the freezer and cover. Pack with mixture of three parts crushed ice and one part rock salt. Freeze.

Strawberry Whipped Cream Ice.

(Serves 6)

- 1 quart strawberries
- 2 cups sugar
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 pint cold water
- 1 cup whipped cream sweetened with 1 tablespoon confectioners' sugar

Mash the berries, add the sugar and lemon juice, and let stand for about an hour. Add the water, and pour the mixture into the freezing container of an ice cream freezer. Assemble the freezer and cover. Pack with a mixture of three parts crushed ice and one part rock salt. Turn the crank slowly and steadily until the mixture thickens (about five minutes). Carefully remove the cover and the dasher, fill the hollow with sweetened whipped cream, cover with wax paper, replace the cover and repack with ice and salt. Let stand for about three hours before serving.

Lemon Cream Sherbet.
(Makes about 2 quarts)
3/4 cup lemon rind (grated)
1 cup cold water
1 cup lemon juice
4 cups sugar
2 eggs (beaten)
5 cups milk
2 cups heavy cream
Put the freshly grated lemon rind in a saucepan with the cold water. Bring to a boil and strain. To the liquid add the lemon juice and the sugar. Stir well. Beat eggs and to them add the milk and cream. Assemble the freezer and pack with ice and salt. When the freezer is ready, combine the two mixtures for the ice cream, pouring the fruit mixture slowly into the milk and cream. Stir quickly, pour into the freezing container, cover and freeze.

Tommy Also Discovered Appeasement Is Difficult

Tommy Jones came home from school with tousled hair, rumpled clothes and a black eye.

"What have you been up to?" his mother demanded.

"I've been fighting Johnny Briggs," Tommy confessed.

"Well, take him this cake and make friends."

Tommy did so, but in the afternoon he came home with another black eye.

"Good gracious!" his mother exclaimed. "What on earth has happened now?"

"He did it again," Tommy said, sadly. "And he wants more cake tomorrow—or else!"
