Session Seeks To Renew Parley On Disarmament

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. and Soviet representatives met here today seeking a way to resume general disarmament talks.

The talks were broken off a year ago when the Communist side refused to accept the U.S. proposal for a moratorium on nuclear weapons testing.

The U.S. representative, John J. McCloy, is reported to expect that his Soviet counterpart, Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin, will not be satisfied with limiting the Washington talks to questions of procedure.

In fact, Zorin was hinting at last week that he will bring up Soviet Premier Khrushchev's proposal to merge the stalemate Geneva talks on seeking a ban on nuclear weapons testing into the broader conference of disarmament.

The United States, in a diplomatic note handed to the Kremlin late Saturday, said the Khrushchev proposal was unacceptable. The United States accused Moscow of trying "to choke off" the Geneva negotiations by proposing that they be merged into general disarmament talks.

Last March, U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko agreed that a new effort should be made to resume the disarmament talks and that a multilateral conference should meet around July 31.

McCloy, President Kennedy's special representative on disarmament, and Zorin were given the go-ahead to resume the talks.

(task of deciding when and where such a conference should be held and who should attend it.)

There is no question about the 10 nations—five on each side—to represent East and West. They would be the same as last year—the United States, Britain, France, Canada and Italy, on one side and the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Romania on the other.

The Soviet Union wants to bring in five neutrals—Ghana, India, Indonesia, Mexico and the United Arab Republic. The United States wants to admit only two—India and Mexico.

The Soviet Union gave Kennedy at their Vienna meeting June 3-4 called disarmament the "main, cardinal issue" to be solved.

The United States takes the position that while, with a little good will, it would be easy to agree speedily on the nuclear test ban issue, the much more intricate question of disarmament has no chance for a quick solution.

The U.S. note of Saturday, while prepared by the State Department, was, in effect, Kennedy's reply to the Soviet Vienna note.

The United States blamed the Soviet Union for the Geneva deadlock and said it could not continue indefinitely self-imposed ban on nuclear weapons tests.

Galveston Mopping Up After Big Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Galveston began a mop up Monday from a tornado and a 10-inch cloudburst that caused an estimated $100,000 in damage.

Skies were still gray and a light rain fell, but the Weather Bureau said it believed the worst of the rain was over.

However, 50 miles to the north, Cleveland reported 7.3 inches of rain had fallen since midnight Saturday and it continued to rain early Monday.

The most widespread damage in Galveston was to streets. The heavy rain and run-off washed highways flooding away, leaving many of the streets looking like pebble covered roads. Some signs were blown down.

Galveston's first tornado in 51 years struck at 7:40 p.m. at Island City Homes, southwest of the business section of the port and resort center of 67,175.

Five persons were injured, none seriously. Three of the masonry apartment buildings built for military personnel during World War II were destroyed and others were damaged. The section consisted of 11 buildings occupied by 350 families or about 1,200 persons.

About 100 persons were driven from their homes by Sunday night's storm and were housed temporarily in the housing unit of administration building.

Hundreds of other persons straggled back to houses from which they were chased by flash floods in Austin, San Antonio, Eagle Pass and other places over the weekend.

The weather contributed to 20 deaths on wet roads or flooded streams since Friday evening. Brazoria County adjoining Galveston, was flooded with nine inches of rain. All available wreckers were kept busy rescuing victims.

Another tornado dipped also at Freeport, 50 miles down the coast from Galveston Sunday night, but caused only slight damage.

Other funnel clouds were sighted aloft at Corpus Christi, Victoria and Robstown. Rains up to 8 inches fell in the northern half of the Rio Grande Valley last night.

Run-off lapped into some stores in McAllen but damage was light. Some cities used pumps to ease flooding on downtown streets.

Farmers accepted the rains with mixed emotions. Some flooded citrus groves. Citrus farmers said the rain was a boon to next season's crop. Cotton farmers, however, hoped for sunshine to speed the cotton harvest now under way.

Several sections of Houston were under water Monday as a steady downpour continued. Worst hit were Freeway Manor in southeast Houston and the South Park Blvd. area. More than six inches of rain have fallen in some areas of Houston.

FBI Agents Holding Two In Tower Blast

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—

Investigators say an ex-builder and a young mining engineer have admitted the $650,000-bombing of three Utah-Nevada communications facilities three weeks ago to publicize an anti-big business "American Republican Army."

Police at Ensenada, Mexico, a port city 75 miles south of here, arrested Bernard Jerome Brous, 51, and handsome Dale Chris Jensen, 23, U. S. citizens, Saturday night aboard Brous' yacht laden with arms-machine guns, rifles and ammunition.

Sunday night Mexican authorities brought the two men to the border at Tijuana and turned them over to the FBI. Agents took them before a San Diego U. S. commissioner, who ordered them held under $100,000 bail each and set arraignment for Tuesday.

Taken into custody for questioning with them and brought here were Brous' wife, Minnie, 40, a former dancer and model, and a Reno, Nev., gambler John Bortol, 28, a Bortol said they knew nothing of the bombings. Mrs. Brous told newsmen she thought the explosives on the yacht were to be used in bombing a suspected treasure off Peru. Bortol said he was a guest for skin-diving.

Mexican authorities said Brous and Jensen admitted blowing up the two microwave towers and a relay station early on Sunday May 28. The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. estimated the damage at about $650,000.

Brous told the newsmen he had masterminded the sabotage. Jensen told Mexican police he blew up the three installations and was paid by Brous to do it. He said Brous was in Ensenada at the time.

A copyright story in the San Diego Union quoted the two as saying the sabotage was in behalf of the "American Republican Army."

A Mexican official said Brous told him the army was intended to fight what Brous termed official corruption in the American system, including the FBI and big business.

The Union's interview was written by Robert L. Curry, editor and publisher of the Redondo Beach, Calif., South Bay Daily Breeze, who was vacationing in Ensenada. "We planned blowing up the communication equipment as a spectacular effort to bring notice to the organization," Brous said.

Brous told Curry that "hate for the privately owned utility companies" was one reason for the bombings. Another was to produce a "scare" to bring nationwide recognition of his group.

Brous described it as "like the John Birch Society but more active."

Brous said he's non-Communist but supports nationalization of public utilities. He claimed his group is using the telephone company for $4.7 million.

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson today faced one of the most difficult parts of his South American mission as he began talks with President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, an outspoken critic of the United States, and other Ecuadorian officials.

Along with the expected request for U. S. financial aid, Velasco Ibarra was certain to raise the burning local issue of Ecuador's border dispute with Peru.

A 1942 treaty awarded the major portion of the disputed Amazon headwaters area to Peru and designated the United States, Argentina, Brazil and Chile as guarantors. Velasco Ibarra was taking office said the treaty was invalid, claiming Ecuador had signed under duress, but four guarantors have refused to back him.

Velasco Ibarra also had expressed strong sympathy for Fidel Castro's regime in Cuba and has taken a determined stand against intervention of any kind in the affairs of other countries. A few hours before Stevenson arrived, Vice President Carlos Julio Arosemena and six legislators left to visit the Soviet Union.

Despite the political differences, Stevenson on his arrival from Peru Sunday got the most enthusiastic reception of his tour. When his plane stopped at Guayaquil, more than 1,000 cheered and applauded him and chanted "down with communism." Another large crowd greeted him at Quito.

Stevenson was a member of the Trinity Methodist Church, Massillon, Ohio, and will be at 10 a. m. Tuesday at the Trinity Methodist Church with Rev. David Hamilton, pastor-officiating. Graveside rites and burial will be at a m. Wednesday at the Elbol Roman Cemetery in Barnard, Okla., under the direction of Bolger Funeral Home.

Mr. Clark was born Feb. 10, 1920, in Barnard, Okla. He and his wife, Mrs. Clark, were married Nov. 11, 1946, in Kiefer, Okla. They moved to Snyder in February, 1958, from Seminole.

From 1958 until June, 1960, Mr. Clark was associated with a local drug firm. In June, 1960, he opened the Medical Arts Pharmacy, which he operated at the time of his death.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jean Clark, two daughters, Maurine K., age 8, and Cherokee, age 5, all of the home; his mother, Mrs. Lucinda Clark of Kiefer, Okla.; his brother, Carl Clark of Kiefer, Okla.

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda left for Washington today for a "frank exchange of opinions" with President Kennedy on grave problems in the Far East.

Ikeda's departure came a year to the day after cancellation of President Eisenhower's visit to Japan. The prime minister's leaving was in sharp contrast to the violence that erupted last year in protest against the revision of the Japan-U.S. security treaty.

Several thousand supporters cheered Ikeda at the airport. Leftwingers who demonstrated Saturday against the trip did not turn out, but 2,000 police guarded the prime minister's route from his residence.

Ikeda is scheduled to confer with Kennedy Tuesday through Thursday. He will return home via Canada for talks with Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

Foreign Minister Zenaro Kono, who accompanied Ikeda, said the trip would be a great success. "If we can convince the United States that it is not making a mistake if it trusts Japan, which has such a good outlook on the Asian situation,"

"I do not intend to point out that the United States has spent huge sums of money but has not had good results," Kono said. "I intend to suggest that certain other ways might be better."

Such prickly issues as relations with Communist China, Japanese rights in Okinawa, aid for underdeveloped Southeast Asian nations, the security treaty and Communist threats to Laos and South Viet Nam are almost certain to be discussed in Washington.

Japan recognizes Nationalist China, but Ikeda advocates more trade ties with Red China without going against recognition.

Ikeda faces growing pressure at home for stepped up economic and cultural dealings with Communist China. Japan's economic and military dependence on the United States compels it to keep generally in line with Washington on policy towards Peking.

Some think the prime minister also will ask Kennedy to hand over to Japan administrative control of Okinawa, the chief U.S. military base in the Far East. The U.S. government takes a dim view of the move.

The 1960 U.S. Japan security treaty provided for U.S. bases in Japan for another decade. The Japan Times, which reflects official thinking, said Ikeda should clarify the use of the bases in Japan in the event of war in the Far East.

The mass circulation newspaper Mainichi likened the trip to "the legend of a subsidiary company who is anxious to impress the president of the parent concern."

Justice William Brennan wrote a dissenting opinion joined by Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justices Hugo Black and William Douglas.

The verdict applied specifically to Rachel M. Braxner, 30, a caterer's short-order cook. She worked in a cafeteria operated by M &

Sen. Tower Sees Socialistic Trend

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John Tower, the Republican from Texas, declared Sunday that he thought President Kennedy and his advisers have "socialistic tendencies."

He was reacting to a question on the NBC show "Meet the Press."

Tower said he favors a gradual removal of federal farm controls. "I believe," he said, "that the control should be reduced over a period of years until we have returned to a market-controlled economy."

The questioning ranged from his definition of a "conservative" to who he thinks will be the Republican candidate in 1964.

Tower said a conservative wants to preserve the constitutional system and a capitalistic society, believes the best government is one which governs the least, and is against high taxes and big spending.

Asked whether he thought Texas was opposed to federal benefits obtained for them over the years by Democrats, and why he thought Texas voted for him anyway, Tower said:

"I believe Texans are glad for any help, but currently they are against big spending. I believe it is my function to save Texas money. As I explained in my campaign, the federal government doesn't merely give, it has to take away, first."

He said he believed he was over Democratic William Blakely "because the people believed they could rely on me to be a bit more independent." Both are conservatives.

The senator said that to have a two-party system in Texas many Democrats would have to switch allegiance. He said a strong grass roots organization was being built by his party which he hoped would do the trick.

Tower would not accept a suggestion that he would have to follow the party leadership of former Vice President Richard Nixon, ultra-conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona or Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

He said he was close to Goldwater, a friend of Nixon and that he had found Rockefeller "charming."

Tower said he believes with Goldwater that someone not now in the picture probably would be the party's presidential candidate in 1964.

"I think," he said, "it will be someone who reflects a relatively conservative view."

Reminded that the word "republican" was mentioned little at all during his campaign, Tower said this was because he thought "political persuasion is better than party labels. In Texas people are thinking more in terms of what a candidate thinks, rather than his party."

Tower disagreed with a panelist that conservatives think only of preserving things as they are and not of progress.

"It is a misconception," he said, "that we conservatives are not looking to the future. We believe in progress, sustained progress, but we believe that can be accomplished within free institutions, not under federal control."

A panelist pointed out that as successor to Vice President Lyndon Johnson, as senator he was following a powerful man and asked if Johnson might not block his committee assignments.

Tower said his committee assignments had not been announced, but that he knew of no blocks being thrown by Johnson. He said that he believed that Johnson, as a good Texan, would want his state well represented.

Tower would not be drawn out on what committees he would like to get, saying he thought it would be "presumptuous" at this time.

Gulf Of Mexico Albatross Survivor Comforts Parents

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

It was all over in 45 seconds, the recent sinking of the school ship Albatross in the Gulf of Mexico.

Even the 23 hours in water waiting for rescue still seems sometimes like a bad dream to Charles Geig, one of the students.

But it all becomes very real when he visits the parents of his four fellow crewmen who were lost. This kind of mission isn't easy for a youngster of 17. And he knows it isn't easy for the parents.

"But it has been good for us to talk it out," he says. He has been to Arlington, Va., with another survivor, Davis Johnston, to visit the Max Goodlets, who lost their son John. He's been to Newport Beach, Calif., with the 22-foot brigantine's skipper, Capt. Christopher Sheldon who lost his wife, Alice, the ship's doctor. There they talked with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Marsellus, who lost their son, Rick.

Soon he plans to visit the Robert Wetherills in Media, Pa., whose son Robin was a victim, and the Robert Corstines of Montreal, Que., who lost their son Chris. Young Chuck is using his own funds for the trips.

They had not seen their sons for seven months, during the tour of the Albatross, where school courses were combined with seamanship and the chance to visit far places.

"You identify snapshots sent home by their sons, and tell them about life aboard, about bunks so crowded with gifts tagged for home that we were ready to move up on deck," he says.

"Learning on the ship?" "It was easy," says Chuck. "We spoke Spanish in the ports. We studied biology first-hand on the islands, specimens of wonderful animals, and our navigation course gave us practical use of our math."

The boys became philosophical too.

"When we lay out there on the ship I was like being in space looking at America for the first time. We got a new perspective. We talked to people in other countries, and found they didn't know us. We didn't know them, either. You can't learn about people from history books."

The squall that capsized the Albatross was a freak, Chuck tells the parents, and he and the other boys would take that one-in-a-million chance again.

"I had been on watch only half an hour," he explains. "It was raining, but I kept postponing a trip below for my rain hat. I got up to do it, and water poured in and we went overboard."

The 13 survivors worked furiously in the water to right and bail out two 12-foot long boats. They used a partially deflated yellow rubber raft as a hood to protect themselves against exposure.

All the boys had taken senior life saving courses and survival kits were in the small boats, and though there was enough food for

English and math. The cook, Dr. Sheldon and the four student victims were trapped below deck.

"Five of the boys were on partial scholarship," Chuck says, "working six extra hours a day. My tuition was paid partially from my savings, funds from my grandmother and my parents." The $2,200 tuition was not exorbitant, he says, "when you consider the cost of prep schools and travel."

Chuck plans to attend public school this year. He'll write a book this summer about his experiences. He has a ship's log—sent to his father and other relatives in daily form.

Ironing Easier

When you clothes dryer calls a halt to the drying cycle you'll save ironing time by removing the clothes promptly. If you fold or hang garments while they are still warm you'll lessen wrinkles. A few smoothing pals will straighten seams and hold ironing to a minimum.

Deutch Cheeseburger makes a dandy summer meal in a minute. Butter 1 thick slice pumpkin: fork on a generous portion of canned sauerkraut, top with a slice of salami, Swiss cheese, salted and Cheddar cheese. Heat under broiler 10 slightly melt the cheese. Garnish with a slice of apple and green pepper skewered on a pick to make a relish kabob. Serve with well chilled milk.

Modern ranges allow you to tailor or the size of the flame for all cooking needs. The "keep warm" flame is for delicate operations, such as melting chocolate or butter. The "simmer" flame is for gentle cooking of vegetables and stews. The "medium" flame is for frying, and the "full" flame is used for fast cooking and bringing liquids to a rolling boil.

Militant Groups Are A Sign Of Our Times

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Staff Writer

"We are living in an era of great danger, of vast peril," intoned an intense preacher-physician in a speech to the Texas Legislature.

The disease of communism is making fast epidemic progress. We are confronted with the probability that within a generation it will have consumed the entire earth.

In South Carolina, a churchman thundered to an attentive gathering: "God made the white man. God made the black man. Who made the mulatto? He is the work of Satan. You can't trust the Negro, but you can't allow him to be pushed on by godless communism to destroy our country."

At a rally in New York a trail-seeking Negro in a pulpit, hat shouted above his cheering, stamping audience of 5,000:

"I am here to teach you how to be free, yes free from the white man's yoke. We want unity of all darker people on the earth, then we will be masters of the United States and we are going to treat the white man the way he should be treated."

Alarms like this emanate from the far fringes of the body politic, mostly from the right, some from the left.

When the intensified activity in recent years, especially by militants who ride to the battle cry of individualism and find comfort and purpose in such organizations as the John Birch Society?

Historically, whenever periods of sharp tension have gripped the country, extreme reactions of one type or another have resulted on the further shores of political life. If they have seldom shifted the center of gravity represented by the major parties, they've certainly produced much sound and fury.

At present, according to one study, there are about 1200 voluntary organizations on the right alone, busily plugging their causes through literature, lectures and the like.

Only about 5 per cent could be regarded as extremist. Their programs overlap on some principles differ on others. But the hard core has similarities which offer sociologists clues to the factors behind today's resurgence of militancy.

They find two main ones:

1. The cold war and the advance of communism in the world.
2. Domestic stresses such as integration, high taxes, big capital and big labor.

The first affects all but the most apathetic Americans, though some see less immediate danger in communism's advances than others. The second affects a relatively few strongly, but the more beleaguered a person feels under such pressures the more readily is he recruited to right-wing militancy.

Prof. L. M. Lipset, a Yale sociologist who has studied the phenomenon, explains:

"For the first time in our history, our country is taking some real and symbolic linkings."

To a people educated from childhood that America is first and best and strongest and smartest, even a Russian victory in the Olympics is hard to swallow.

"We see these people who adhere to a political system we are convinced means their enslavement attracting followers throughout the world, making us take second place in space, embarrassing us at every turn."

"The position is to square your shoulders and say, 'What can I personally do about it?'"

Lipset says this accounts for easy recruitment by "extremist groups" and also explains part of the immediate initial enthusiasm for President Kennedy's Peace Corps. Strong emotional reaction to Communist gains doesn't necessarily put a person in the camp of the conservative militants.

It takes other pressure to complete the job.

In analyzing the leadership of right-wing activist groups, Lipset says, he found a significant number of executives from middle-sized companies which represented the biggest firms in medium-sized communities.

Typical, he says, would be the head of such a company in a town of 100,000. He is a self-made man, who built the business from scratch. And now that he's got it, he finds he cannot do it what he wants," Lipset says.

He meets pressure in every direction. The labor union restricts him, the government takes an increasing amount in taxes, even the giant corporations apply pressure from the top.

"He feels his individual liberty is being abused, his free enterprise choked. He complains this is not the American way."

"Communism represents the ultimate in restriction of personal freedom. So it requires only a short step for this man to conclude a Communist conspiracy is working against him. Result: he joins the local action group to fight it."

Pronouncements of various rightist groups, often embody such attitudes:

Clarence Manion of South Bend, Ind., head of the Manion Forum, refers to labor union leaders as "scabs" and inveighs against "the Marxist federal income tax."

The Rev. Joseph P. Fitzpatrick, S. J., head of the Sociology department at Fordham University, offers this picture of a representative conservative militant:

"You'll find he's a member of the upper middle class struggling to arrive at the top. But the forces holding him back are too big and well-organized."

"He's the one remaining unorganized American, convinced if everything would go it could make it to the top."

Such men, says Father Fitzpatrick, recognize communism as the ultimate in organized evil, lining up on the extreme opposite side.

The Jesuit sociologist considers that this domestic pressure distinguishes today's militant anti-Communism from those of the McCarthy era. The late Wisconsin senator, Joseph R. McCarthy, and his followers, Father Fitzpatrick says, "were motivated by international setbacks. He set out to expose Communists, but opposition to big government or big labor was secondary."

Today's militants, on the other hand, emphasize advocacy of laissez faire government.

Robert Welch, founder and leader of the controversial John Birch Society, defines its chief aim: "To bring about a world in which there is more individual responsibility and less government."

To accomplish those purposes, he has said, "obviously we've got to stop the Communists because they're increasingly trying to impose 'more government and less responsibility on everybody.' But 'our fighting the Communists'—as important as it is and as much as it's occupying our time—is incidental to our basic purpose."

The best way to accomplish this, according to Welch and other militants, is to abandon our present form of government and return to a "constitutional republic" he claims our forefathers intended.

"A democracy is the worst of all forms of government and a constitutional republic is the best of all forms. Welch insists the "constitutional" republic things couldn't be changed, "just as a sudden minority whom: There are protections for minorities, for traditions and customs."

The foundation, objection to interference with individual liberty, as they define it, attracts

Englishmen First Beer Customers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Two quiet Englishmen walked into the bar at the Sheraton Hotel in downtown Philadelphia Sunday and ordered two glasses of beer.

Barkeeper John Brown told them they were making history for it was the first time that liquor was sold on Sunday in hotels in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, the state's two largest cities.

The Englishmen — an anonymous pair — looked startled, but said it seemed to be a good idea.

"Then they wanted free beer since it was a historic occasion," said Brown.

Residents in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh last month approved in a referendum legalizing Sunday sales of liquor in hotels and motels between the hours of 1 p.m. and 10 p.m. Heretofore only private clubs could sell liquor on Sunday.

The Philadelphia Hotel Association says the sales, which further liberalized the blue laws, will mean $5 million more a year in convention trade.

Dee Angelo, manager of the Penn Sherwood, said business was brisk. He reported that numerous family groups, observing Father's Day, were among those on hand. Spokesmen at other hotels made similar reports.

In Pittsburgh it was reported that business was rather slow. Hotel operators, however, expect it to pick up.

Most center city hotels in Philadelphia marked the occasion with ceremonies of one type or another.

At the Sheraton, a host of officials watched Daniel Goswami, a Philadelphia priest, order the first drink. A band dressed in colonial garb played a minuet.

At the state old Bellevue-Stratford, Edna Weiler, 90, a permanent guest, sipped a champagne cocktail, departing from her daily routine of a spot of sherry "for medical purposes."

Bride Dies In Accident

GRANTVILLE, Utah (AP) — The bride of Anthony P. Downey, 25, son of singer Morton Downey, was killed Sunday in a head-on collision during the young couple's honeymoon trip.

The former Sandra J. Arpaia, 21, Hamilton, Conn., was one of two persons killed in a head-on collision near this western Utah town. Downey was injured, but was listed in fair condition.

They were married June 10 at Wallingford, Conn., and were driving west to Seattle, Wash., where Downey, a salesman, had been transferred by the Monett Co. of Smithfield, Va.

A sailor, Daniel A. Sexton, 19, driving the other car, also was killed in the wreck. Sexton's father, S. D. Sexton, lives at Wall, Miss.

Find Pilate's Name Carved

JERUSALEM, Israeli Section (AP) — An Italian archaeologist said Sunday the carved name of Pontius Pilate has been found on a stone on the Mediterranean coast of Israel.

Archaeological and biblical scholars said it was the first time archaeological evidence has been found of the Roman procurator of Judea who ordered the crucifixion of Christ. Heretofore his name has only been known through the Gospels and the writings of the Jewish historian, Josephus Flavius.

Announcement of the find was made by Prof. Antonio Frova, director of the antiquities department of northern Italy, who said a University of Milan archaeological expedition found it near Caesarea, about 10 miles south of Haifa. Caesarea was the capital of the Romans in Palestine for about 500 years.

Boy Uses Head To Finance Gift

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Jerry Newton, 12, used his head to get his pop a Father's Day gift.

His mother almost cried Saturday when she saw the haircut she thought he had paid $1.50 for.

"Oh, I went to the barber school and got it for 75 cents," Jerry said.

"Looks like he did it himself," said Jerry's older sister.

Then Jerry confessed he had cut his own hair and used the money to buy his father a gift — a shining can opener for Newton's fishing cabin.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time, science has found a new healing substance with the amazing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching and relieve pain without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) has been observed.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

Wild Enthusiasm For Buying Stocks Subsides Suddenly

By JACK LETTLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The wild enthusiasm for buying stocks that lifted trading volume to the highest level since 1929 has suddenly waned—at least temporarily.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange has dropped from more than 5 million shares a day to a little more than 3 million. On the American Exchange volume has slipped from 4 million to approximately 1.5 million.

What happened?

Wall Street brokers said today a combination of reasons caused the investors to cool off and keep their money in their pockets.

And although their commissions aren't bringing in as much money now that the buying pace has slowed, the brokers said they are glad to have a more conservative market.

In the 10 weeks ended May 10 the combined average daily volume on the New York and American stock exchanges was 41,835,000 shares. At the peak, the week ended May 12, it was 49,999,000 shares.

Then came the slump. In the three weeks ended June 9 the combined weekly volume of the two exchanges averaged 25,105,000 shares.

L. O. Hooper, analyst for W. E. Hutton & Co., in discussing the recent stock-buying fever, said, "There's seldom any open-and-shut answer to any problem in mass psychology," but he listed these factors in putting on the brakes:

1. The public finally began to heed the warnings against unintelligent speculation.
2. The public suddenly began to find out it wasn't making so much money (on paper) as it did some weeks earlier.
3. The buying suggestions (sometimes vulgarly called tips) ceased to be so unanimously correct.
4. The business recovery is some industries, for the time being, did not gain the expected momentum.

Kenneth Ward of Hayden, Stone & Co. said their customers have quit calling to ask "what's hot?"

"I couldn't keep up with the phone calls a few weeks ago," he said.

Ward feels that the buying surge was dampened when the glamor stocks — electronics, missiles, etc.—ran out of steam. He also believes that antitrust suits against big corporations caused apprehension.

"We're having a pause that refreshes, a sober reappraisal," he said. "And we have a darn good healthy market."

William R. White of Hornblower & Weeks considers that the two warnings by Keith Furstun, president of the New York Stock Exchange, against unwise speculation had an effect on the public.

"People were buying a lot of things they shouldn't, and the warnings cooled them off," he added.

Henry Gellerman of Bache & Co. agreed that the Furstun statements were timely and effective. He also said that most leading brokerage firms "bent over backwards in advertisements and in personal contacts in trying to get their customers to be careful."

23 Bodies Taken From Wreckage

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN
VITRY-LE-FRANCOIS, France (AP) — French Railways officials said today that 23 bodies had been taken from the wreckage of the crack Strasbourg-Paris express but that an undetermined number still remained in a car submerged in swamp water.

Rescue workers were hampered in reaching the car because a second one rested atop it. Ten cars left the rails late Sunday as the electric train sped along at 80 miles an hour.

It was one of France's worst railway wrecks in years.

The French Railways in Paris said 23 bodies had been found and 100 to 115 passengers injured. Authorities at a nearby U.S. military base who were helping with rescue work earlier had reported 32 dead. This morning the U.S. officials said the figure was 23 and gave no immediate explanation for the discrepancy.

The U.S. base said the number of injured was 153, considerably more than the figure given by the French Railways.

All of the dead were believed to be French nationals except for one German.

The express, one of France's fastest trains, thundered off the tracks moments after sweeping through his city about 100 miles east of Paris.

The electric engine and the forward section of the train clung to the rails but 10 coaches veered into an adjoining ravine.

Officials found no immediate explanation for the wreck but ruled out sabotage after examining the rails.

"We're having a pause that refreshes, a sober reappraisal," he said. "And we have a darn good healthy market."

William R. White of Hornblower & Weeks considers that the two warnings by Keith Furstun, president of the New York Stock Ex-

New Yorkers Apparently Are Reconciled To Corruption

BY INEZ ROBB

At any moment now, Robert Wagner is expected to announce his candidacy for a third term as mayor of the nation's largest city. The timing of the announcement could scarcely be more propitious. It is brilliantly slated to take full advantage of the burgeoning scandal in the city's schools.

In most municipalities a mayor, seeking re-election, would wait until the headlines and the smell abated. But not in New York. From the moment the shocking extent of the irregularities in the city's school building program became apparent, it also became apparent that this is just the extra added scandal needed to boost Wagner back into City Hall for the third time.

Cynicism is not my usual crop of tea. But New York City politics would tarnish the silver lining of Polyanna and disturb even the pure and fragile thought processes of Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm.

Although I have spent most of my adult life in New York, I have never been able to understand the vote-getting appeal of municipal corruption for the average New Yorker. What's more, he would be as widely indignant as the average citizen of any other town if he were accused of favoring, defending and sponsoring corruption, either civic or personal.

Yet after year after year as his municipal government gets worse and worse and as one after another department of city government is revealed hip-deep in criminal bug-mugger, the New Yorker enthusiastically votes to retain the irresponsible administration responsible for the situation.

The Wagner administration has been plagued by so many scandals during its eight years in office that the electorate has really lost track of the exact number and all the areas involved.

But, I believe, this very fact gives New Yorkers a certain pride—that corruption and hanky-panky are on a scale in keeping with the dignity and position of New York as the largest city in the Western Hemisphere.

The growing school scandal, with its revelations of the unconscionable deterioration of the system's physical plant, is merely the cherry on the sundae. The voters will doubtless regard it as a mandate to re-elect Wagner by a whopping plurality. The bongo scandal, currently in the news, is small potatoes compared with the school fiasco, but every bit helps at election time.

For a while I had hope that the Elsie Dismore in me has not been totally killed. I believe that this is the year when a Fusion ticket with a strong candidate, could lick Wagner, despite the lucky timing of the school scandals.

But there is neither enough indignation among the citizens nor sufficient cohesion among rival reform elements to create a Fusion movement headed by someone with the dynamism and the determination of Fiorello LaGuardia.

For a while I had hope that minor, daily inconveniences suffered by New Yorkers would unite them in opposition to the bresen administration, which was born of Tammany Hall.

I hoped they might be moved by the unsafety of the city's parks which, really, is no minor matter. Or that the conditions of the streets, disintegrating into a series of potholes, would rouse the citizens' indignation. Or that air pollution or the traffic mess, which is daily grow worse and for which no real or bold solutions are offered, might light a fire.

But I have lost hope and feel we are about to get what we deserve: four more years of the same.

Auto Crash Kills Eight

APPOMATTOX, Va. (AP)—An automobile bearing a family of five on a Sunday outing and another with six teen-agers penco-bound slammed together head-on near this historic village Sunday. Eight persons died.

Only three of the teen-agers survived the shattering collision which, police said, occurred as the youths' car tried to pass an auto on the rising slope of a two-lane highway and piled into another car at the crest of the hill.

Wiped out in the crash was the family of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hensley of Pamplin, Va. The Hensleys and their daughter, Jane Southall, 16, and her sister, Cornelia, 19, both of Farmville, Va., died instantly. A third youth, Edward Williams, 18, of Pamplin, died later in a Lynchburg hospital.

Injured and in fair condition were Penny Southall, 18, of Farmville, Gerald Prince, 19, and Roger Davis, 17, both of Pamplin.

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail.

Since the invention of the typewriter in 1873, the number of women stenographers in America has risen from 7 to more than 24 million.

The peace-loving Irish are getting more peaceful every year. The crime rate, which climbed steadily in this country in 1960, fell by 14 per cent in Ireland.

Many European farmers plant a "Birth Tree" when a new child is born, symbolically tying the growth of the two together. In Switzerland a pear tree is planted for a girl, an apple tree for a boy. In praising a Swiss miss, one presumably says, "she was the pear of her father's eye."

The high cost of living "X" survey showed that sooner or later one out of five middle-class families suffers a serious illness or accident costing $2,000 or more.

Pampering the breed: At La Rinconada Racetrack in Venezuela, reported the fanciest in South America, even the horses have a swimming pool.

Did you know less than half as many people drown in swimming pools as drown in bathtubs?

Our quotable notables: "Apathy can only be overcome by enthusiasm," said historian Arnold Toynbee, "and enthusiasm can only be aroused by two things: First, an ideal which takes the imagination by storm, and second, a definite intelligible plan for carrying that ideal into practice."

Ever worry about horses getting hurt in all those TV and movie westerns? Humane societies report these animal actors live longer and suffer 50 per cent fewer injuries than horses on farms or ranches.

Hot weather warning: A 5 per cent loss of body salt causes weariness, a 30 per cent loss leads to dizziness, and a 50 per cent loss—prostration.

Still good advice: The motto on the first coin issued by the U.S. government—the 1787 "penny"—was: "Mind your business."

It takes a strong man to be either a banker or a bank robber on the Island of Yap. Stone money used as currency there weighs about 175 pounds. One chunk will buy a wife—or 10,000 coconuts.

These were first introduced into the United States during the Civil War, and were worn by Johnny Reb as well as Yankee. Both sides copied them from the French military "kepi."

Truth repeating: "Woman begins by resisting a man's advances and ends by blocking his retreat,"—Oscar Wilde.

If you want to get your teeth fixed at as low a cost as possible, you'll probably do better to go either to a young or old dentist. Most dentists charge their highest fees when they are between 35 and 45 years old.

The vainest sex: Men curled their hair long before women. Stone-age dandies crimped their locks by wrapping them around small bones and rubbing them with bear grease.

Odd custom in the African Sudan: After bearing five children, a wife can return to her parents—leaving daddy to raise the kids. It was Ed Howe who observed, "A good scare is worth more to a man than good advice."

12 Catholics Sentenced In Hungary

By TONY PEARCE

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Twelve Roman Catholics were sentenced to prison today on charges of plotting the overthrow of Hungary's Communist regime.

The heaviest term—12 years—was handed the Rev. Istvan Tabody, charged with high treason as well as anti-state activities.

Although tried in secret before a separate court, Father Tabody was confronted with his companions for hate sentence passed. Details of his case were not disclosed.

Sentenced to eight years was Odon Baray, accused as one of the leaders of a so-called Christian Front Organization.

The prosecution contended that all the accused either belonged to or had knowledge of the organization with the intention of working to replace the Communist regime with a Christian republic.

The indictment said they illegally trained an elite Catholic youth corps to assume leading posts in the event of a change in government.

Baray was held for 20 months in 1956 for alleged anti-state activity. This together with the five months he has presently been under detention, will be deducted from his sentence.

The Rev. Odon Lenard, given a 7½-year sentence, was the only one of the 11 publicly tried to plead innocent. He was released from prison, in 1963 after serving part of a six-year term for alleged anti-state activities.

Pair Killed By Soldiers

BOLZANO, Italy (AP)—Soldiers guarding power plants and state properties in the disputed South Tyrol shot and killed two German-speaking residents of the Italian territory early today.

Both the men refused to stop when challenged for violating a semi curfew imposed after pro-Austrian elements in the South Tyrol began systematically dynamiting electric power installations last week.

The dynamite came after two high-level Italian-Austrian conferences failed to solve the dispute between the two countries over this former Austrian province, which Italy acquired after World War I.

Austria is demanding greater autonomy for the Bolzano area, which has a two-thirds-German-speaking population. Italy contends Austria is trying to get the territory back.

The first American Red Cross chapter was founded in Danville, N. Y., Aug. 22, 1861, by Clara Barton.

Rickover Blasts Service Academies

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover says Congress ought to consider abolishing the service academies "if drastic steps are not taken immediately to improve them."

The sharp-tongued Rickover, an Annapolis graduate, leveled his and other blasts at service practices in secret testimony last May to the House Appropriations Committee. His remarks were made public Sunday.

Rickover lashed all the service academies in his general criticism but for the most part confined his detailed comments to Annapolis and its products.

The other services also withheld comment.

The admiral did fire one direct broadside at the Army's West Point in sarcastic discussion of an Army psychiatrist's study of why so many cadets have to be dropped from the corps.

On the basis of the psychiatrist's findings, Rickover said, he doubts whether such military leaders as Alexander the Great, Hannibal, Julius Caesar, Napoleon, George Washington, John Paul Jones, Ulysses Grant or David Farragut could have made the grade at West Point.

Rickover said midshipmen at the Naval Academy "are a regimented group being trained for a Navy which no longer exists by officers, many of whom do not know the real needs of today's Navy and who are not aware that they don't know."

The 61-year-old officer, no novice at treading on the toes of service brass, also had some harsh words for the way the Navy is run. If a business were operated the same way, he said, it would be ruined unless it had unlimited capital or employed "a damn good lawyer."

As a start toward improving things, he advocated getting rid of nearly one-third of the Navy's officers.

He also shocked the committee with the unusual statement that he did not need any more money for nuclear reactors, wasn't asking for more and might well be

PAT H. KELLEY, 60, manager of Snyder Telephone Company in 1914 and later manager of Colorado City Telephone Company died in Redbank, N. J., from a short illness Thursday night.

He retired from General Telephone Company at San Angelo in 1958 after 35 years service and moved to New Jersey where he was employed by Philips. Kelley had recently returned from a government communications inspection trip to Okinawa.

Man Wounded While Repairing His Car

FLINT, Mich. (AP)—Lewis Smith, 32, suffered serious bullet wounds while fixing his car brakes in nearby Davison, Town ship Sunday night.

Smith told police he lifted the front seat to pick up a jack it slipped from his hand and landed on two 22-caliber cartridges which exploded and hit his abdomen.

Ike Decries Spending Of JFK Regime

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower has criticized the Kennedy administration's spending policies and decried what he terms "the centralization of political power in the federal government."

Eisenhower appeared Sunday on an hour-long NBC telecast, "The Loyal Opposition." With him on the program, a series of separate interviews previously filmed in several parts of the country, were former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Said Eisenhower: "... put it this way. We are for a maximum liberty of the individual, and the minimizing of all this power that has taken over our lives by the federal government."

Eisenhower said the Kennedy administration apparently intends to transfer more responsibility to the federal government "through unneeded appropriations through unnecessarily large programs that they call as humanitarian."

Such policies, he said, tended to "undermine the national character."

Eisenhower exhorted the Republicans to stand on the GOP's 1960 platform and oppose Kennedy's proposals if they run counter to that platform.

Also appearing on the telecast was Republican National Chairman William E. Miller.

Miller predicted the GOP would win control of the House of Representatives in 1962.

Nixon, Rockefeller and Goldwater all were sharply critical of what they termed Kennedy's failure to develop a strong foreign policy to curb Communist advances.

Said Rockefeller: "In the international field we have never been in a more dangerous period than we are today."

Said Nixon: "I think that foreign policy will be a major issue as we move into 1962 and 1964."

Commenting Goldwater: "The (Kennedy) has an opportunity to bring about a strong foreign policy but so far all we have heard is talk."

Kennedy Back In Capital

WASHINGTON (AP)—Using his crutches with more apparent ease than he did last week, President Kennedy returned to the White House today after a weekend relaxing with his family at their Virginia estate.

Accompanied by his wife, Kennedy left the Glen Ora estate near Middletown at 9:30 a. m. Their helicopter landed at the executive mansion at 9:50 a. m.

The President continued to receive treatment for his strained back over the weekend. So far as could be determined, he did not leave his rented country home.

When Kennedy strode from the helicopter in his office it was obvious to reporters that he was using the crutches with less effort than last week.

Mrs. Kennedy followed the President off the plane and went directly to the White House. Kennedy went to his office and spent a few moments before conferring with the commission on money and credit which delivered its report to him in the Cabinet room.

Photographers were not permitted to take pictures of the President on his walk from the helicopter to his office.

The two Kennedy children—Caroline and John Jr.—did not return with their parents.

Freight Train Out Of Control

MACON, Ga. (AP)—Engineer Fred Bryant of Macon said he was going down grade making 50 miles an hour when the five engines and 15 to 20 cars of his 130-car Central of Georgia freight train left the tracks.

Bryant was uninjured but rescuers had to pry his hands loose from the controls. The fireman, Will Evans of Macon, suffered injuries to his shoulder and side.

Bryant said his brakes failed to respond as he approached Macon Sunday night. He radioed ahead for clear tracks. The wreck caused extensive damage to railroad property and tied up traffic on a number of Macon streets.

BMEWS Station Focused On Reds

CLEAR, Alaska (AP)—Uncle Sam will focus his second big ballistic missile early warning system eyes at the Soviet Union from this remote point in interior Alaska July 1.

The Clear BMEWS station is the United States as a defense against a surprise missile attack from the Soviet Union, the Air Force said Sunday.

The first BMEWS site went into operation at Thule, Greenland last fall. A third station is under construction at Fylingdales Moor, Yorkshire, England. It is scheduled to be operational by the end of 1962.

Excursion Turns Into Huge Riot

NEW YORK (AP)—What started as a Hudson River excursion by 3,000 Harlemites turned into a riot Sunday when 1,000 holders of counterfeit tickets showed up at the pier.

More than 60 persons fainted or were trampled in a rush to board the excursion boat, the Hudson Belle.

The trip upriver to Bear Mountain was planned as an annual Father's Day event for the Negro residents of Harlem. At the scheduled hour of departure, 9 a. m., the 1940 St. pier was swarming with people in a holiday mood.

Two many people, in all. Among the 4,000 were the 1,000 unwitting holders of counterfeit tickets.

The Hudson Belle was still at the Wilson Lane pier in Jersey City, N.J., delayed by a 200-man picket line of the National Maritime Union.

When the Hudson Belle shoved off an hour late to pick up the excursionists in Manhattan, a picket boat tailed along with 11 jeering seamen in the bow.

On the pier, the excursionists became increasingly excited as word spread among them that some were holders of bogus $5 tickets.

Forty policemen were on hand when the Hudson Belle dropped her gangplank. The throng surged forward and the rioting began. Nine persons were carried off to a hospital. At least 50 more were treated at the pier.

Small fires, apparently from cigarettes, began to smolder on pier timbers. An additional 100 policemen were called in to aid in controlling the mob.

About 2,500 managed to fight their way aboard the rocking vessel. But Capt. George Barry cancelled the trip and ordered them off. As they left, they hurled beer cans, bottles and insults at the pickets who backed their boat out of range.

Ten members of the National Maritime Union were arrested two blocks from the pier after a fight with two members of the Hudson Belle crew.

Picket announced later they had arrested three youths they said admitted counterfeiting the 1,000 extra tickets.

Jamaican Greeted With Disturbance

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—Jamaican Prime Minister Norman Washington Manley, was greeted Sunday by a shower of sticks, stones and bottles when he returned from a London conference at which Britain agreed to independence for its 13 Caribbean territories by next May 31.

A crowd of 6,000 to 8,000 opponents of an independent West Indies federation interrupted Manley when he started to speak on Kingston's main thoroughfare, King Street.

Police armed with tear gas bombs and batons broke up the demonstration.

A referendum is to be held later this year to decide whether Jamaica will join the federation.

Mishap Duplicated By Highway Officer

LEBANON, Tenn. (AP)—Highway patrolman Charles Douglas rounded a corner, fell out of his squad car and landed on the seat of his pants, suffering cuts and bruises.

He was en route Sunday to investigate an accident in which Neal Baker, 28, of Mount Juliet rounded a corner, fell out of his car and landed on the seat of his pants, suffering cuts and bruises.
