Mainly About People

Everybody Read This—
It's About Abner Davis—
And One By Ford—

By H. N. F.

ABNER DAVIS HAS PASSED on. He isn't dead. He has filed a bankruptcy petition in the federal court for the First National refineries at Fort Worth. Eleven companies are involved. Abner states in his petition that he was the sole trustee and managing official of 11 enterprises, that the affairs and assets of the 11 companies have not been kept separate and distinct and that it is now impossible to distangle them.

Abner figured in the Burkburnett field. He built a refinery here. He gained prominence as an operator promoter in the days when Fort Worth called itself "the oil city of America." Then he tackled the so-called gasoline trust. He said he would put the trust out of business. He sold gasoline at his Fort Worth stations three cents cheaper than the big companies.

WHAT HAPPENED TO ABNER? Why they "whipped him to a frazzle," to steal a word from the vocabulary of the late Theodore Roosevelt.

According to the petition the liabilities of the 11 enterprises amount to $263,474.00 and assets to $365,354.48. Abner filed a personal bankruptcy petition in which he says his liabilities are $218,406.00 and assets $7,230.00. He claims an exemption of $1,000.00.

Fort Worth had a big flood in the spring time and Abner says practically all his books were lost in the April deluge. In the personal liability list is included a judgment awarded his daughter-in-law in the courts of Illinois for $50,000.00 for the alienation of her husband's affections. Her name? Isabelle Davis.

IF SHE COLLECTS $50,000.00 judgment, no doubt she will have a youth of a time. According to the Fort Worth newspapers the personal assets include some expensive automobiles.

Abner had his day. He held the center of the stage for several years. He had an exciting time of it for several years.

His newspaper advertisements were gems of their kind. He poured his money into the coffers of Fort Worth newspapers.

Now Abner has hit the rocks, but those who know him, say that he will come again as it is next to impossible "to keep a squirrel on the ground."

HENRY FORD MAY BE A CANdidate for president for publicity purposes only. Henry gets a billion dollars worth of free publicity every year. He said all history was bunk. And some men said he was a fool. No man who isn't a genius can hold the center of the stage all the time and be given a place on the front page every day in the year.

It just can't be done. Even the king of movie stars can't do it. If he starts on the first page he is relegated to the page given over to classified advertising after a run of ten or fifteen days. Henry manufactures automobiles. There isn't emotional about a tin Henry, but the Detroit wizard has a winning way about him that would make sawdust talk and solid ivory perspire.

VICTORIA BOOTH CLIBBORN Demarest is a grand daughter of the immortal Booth who founded the Salvation Army. She is conducting a series of revivals in Texas cities and towns. This is her latest. "A nagging woman sends her husband to the devil and she goes to church. It husbands and wives are one they can look the whole world in the face. Deliver us from a woman with a nagging tongue." There is a granddaughter that runs true to form, training and blood. This newspaper has thousands of women readers and the writer is satisfied that there isn't a nagging woman among them, at least he hopes there isn't. If there is she should memorize these words: "A nagging woman sends her husband to the devil and she goes to church."

SENATOR HENRY L. MEYERS of Montana is a democrat. His eyes must be close together and his mind operated on a narrow guage track. Having little else to do he rose up in his seat in the senate and criticized the national woman's party for dedicating its headquarters building in the city of Washington on Sunday. A man who is that narrow has no place in the senate of the United States. If it were not for the women of the country, church treasuries would be starved and the spiritual life of the country would be moth eaten in many places. Now how does it happen that men of the vintage of the sixteenth century appear in high places in a so-called civilized and Christianized republic in the dawning morning of the twentieth century?

GIFFORD PINCHOT SMASHED the old guard in Pennsylvania when he won the republican nomination for governor, but the old guardsmen did not overlook the organized machinery. They elected 83 per cent of the membership of the state republican committee of Pennsylvania. Then according to custom everywhere Pinchot demanded the honor of naming his state chairman. The old guarders threw his candidate in the ditch and elected as state chairman the Hon. Harry Baker, the

BOWIE MAYOR'S STRONG BEHIND EARL MAYFIELD

Freight Rate Issue Taking Well In That Section

BY H. N. F.

BOWIE, Texas, June 11.—Mayor J. W. Chancellor is as well known the state over as Montague county is known for its modern highways, cotton farms, famous orchards, lucious watermelons and successful farmers.

He is a lawyer and is supposed to know every citizen worth knowing in Montague county. Mayor Chancellor is backing Earl B. Mayfield for the senate and insists that he will run first in the Bowie precinct. They are old line democrats in this county and they rolled up a big majority for Guinn Williams for congress. Mr. Mayfield made a speech here that was well received. There are many shippers here and to a man they are sore on the railways. They say that freight rates are akin to highway robbery and that the producer gets nothing.

Mr. Mayfield poured it on them.

He promised if elected senator to repeal the Esch-Cummins law, to restore the old power of the state commission and to do all in his power to give the producers low freight rates.

There are other well known democrats here who say that Cullen F. Thomas will carry the county and still others who say that Culberson will run first or second. It is a political mix up. There are farm labor union organizers active in the county and they are sending their questionnaires to all candidates for county offices. They even ask candidates for sheriff, their standing as to the non-partisan platform. No-cona is said to be the headquarters of the farm labor party in Montague county.

Plan Big Picnic

Mayor Chancellor and other leading citizens are preparing for a big American legion picnic here on July 2, 3 and 4. They say that it will be one of the largest gatherings for years and many speakers of prominence have been programmed for talks. It is said that Judge Barry Miller will represent Senator Culberson and speak for his candidacy. Farmers for miles around and their families are expected to attend the three days picnic and jollification.

Citizens of Montague county are proud of their splendid modern highways. Their Colorado to the gulf highway is a perpetual joy for motorists. It begins at the western boundry line of Montague county. A large sign board tells the motorists that he is just leaving the vile mud roads of Clay county. This road terminates at the eastern boundry

SHRINE PLANE CRASHES DOWN

Rickenbacker Says He's Through

By Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., June 11.—Eddie Rickenbacker's around the country flight ended abruptly early today when his large all-metal plane crashed while attempting to take off from the Air Mail field here for Denver. None of the Rickenbacker party was injured.

The plane took off the local field and when only a few feet in the air the engine stalled and dropped the machine to the ground, nose first. The propelled and landing gear were demolished and the plane so otherwise damaged that Rickenbacher was forced to abandon the contemplated 15,000 mile flight around the country for the purpose of making an industrial and aeronautical survey of the United States.

Rickenbacker, who carried a message from President Harding for the Shriners convention at San Francisco, left this morning for that city by rail to deliver the message.

In an official statement Rickenbacker attributed the cause of the accident to the lightning which struck the plane at Detroit Thursday.

"I am through with commercial aviation for the time being," Rickenbacker said. "There is not a plane in the United States fitted to make such a long tour. The plane we were flying was the nearest approach and it fell short."

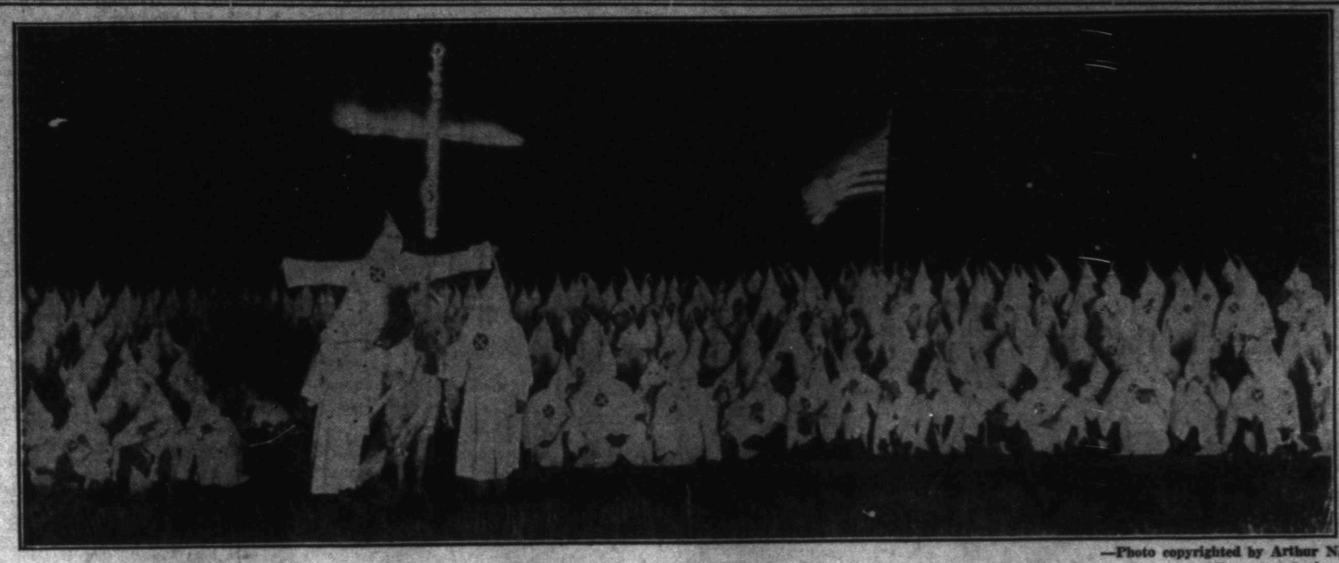

Wichita Woman Rides Freight To Reach Hubby

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, Texas, June 11.—After a 200-mile journey from Wichita Falls, made on foot, on freight trains and by automobile, Mrs. Lilye Wellborn, 20, greeted her husband, H. A. Wellborn, today at the Dallas county jail, where he is being held on a charge of highway robbery.

"I had no money and when I heard Henry was in trouble, I just had to come." Mrs. Wellborn said.

Ku Klux Klan Initiation Exercises Outside Electra

BY ERIC G. SCHROEDER

There was a glimmer of light, a sudden blaze of fire, and then there stood out against the dark background of sky and field the outlines of a flaming cross. From the crowd that lined the highway two and a half miles west of Electra, there came a murmur of admiration. Suddenly, full in the glare from the blazing cross, its folds rustling in the wind of the June night, there appeared above the hooded white robed figures surrounding it, the American flag.

There was scattering applause from a group of spectators occupying a point of vantage on the railroad track, the cheer was taken up by the hundreds lining the road, and then the air resounded with shouts and tootings of automobile horns. From the mysterious assemblage within there came an answering echo.

Fully two thousand members of the ku klux klan, clad in full regalia, held court on the Sumner lease west of Electra Thursday night. The shifting throng, emphasized in height by the robes and long, peaked hoods, made an impressive sight.

Ere darkness descended, hundreds of cars were pouring into the field, immediately west of the oil tanks belonging to the Magnolia company.

PANTHER TREES TEXAS FLIER IN FLORIDA SWAMP

Is Chased Into Top Of Tree By Animal

By Associated Press.

ARCADIA, Florida, June 11.—Treed by a panther, devoured by mosquitos; his clothes torn to tatters by the saw grass of the Florida swamps, without food for nearly 40 hours—these were among the experiences of Cadet Raymond White, Carlstrom Field aviator, whose plane crashed into the wilds of southeastern Lee county Thursday. He was brought back to the flying field today in one of the planes that had been searching the Everglades since his disappearance was reported.

Cadet White, whose home is at Pritchett, Texas, was ordered to make a practice flight from Carlstrom Field to Okeechobee City and return last Thursday. The first part of the flight was completed without accident and Cadet White, flying alone, started on the return trip when he lost his direction and instead of flying northwestwardly, headed his plane almost due south.

When about 40 miles southeast of Immokalaee, Lee county, his fuel tank ran dry and his plane fell. The plane was completely wrecked, but the cadet escaped injury.

White started to walk, looking for signs of human habitation. With his clothing torn to tatters and bitten almost beyond endurance by swarms of mosquitos, night overtook him.

During the night a panther chased the aviator into the branches of a cypress where he remained until daylight.

Farmer Slain In Dallas Pistol Fight

By Associated Press.

DALLAS, June 11.—Russell Trigg, 28, farmer, was killed in a pistol fight in East Dallas tonight. Following the shooting Will Nash, 36, another farmer, was taken into custody.

Nash made a statement to newspapermen in which he said family trouble was responsible for the shooting. Before the shooting he had seen Trigg and Mrs. Nash together, he declared. Trigg was his nephew, he said.

Although witnesses say Trigg fired several times, Nash was not injured.

ISSUES BEFORE DEMO LEADERS

Warner's Position To Be Decided

By S. RAYMOND BROOKS
Austin Correspondent.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 11.—Chairman Frank C. Davis and Secretary Joseph W. Hall of the ddemocratic state executive committee, more than half of the 31 district members and 50 leading politicians are here tonight, ready for the state committee meeting tomorrow, when the July primary ballot will be prepared.

Four contested matters stand out tonight for solution by the committee Monday, affecting candidates to be nominated and their right to hold office.

They are: whether Harry Warner's application for place on the ballot as candidate for governor was legally filed within the time limit; whether ex-Governor James E. Ferguson's name may be placed on the ballot as a democratic candidate for the senate, whether E. W. Cole can legally become a candidate for a place as congressman at large, and whether or not a referendum on light wines and beer will be ordered in response to 56,000 signatures to petitions secured by Ferguson.

Auto Production Up And Retail Trade Is Holding Its Own; Outlook Is Better

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Continued indications of industrial improvement, signs of a renewed easing in money rates and diverse testimony as to crop conditions are the features in business and finance of the past week. Commodity prices still show a firmer tone. Retail trade is about what might be expected at this time of the year and the labor situation shows no decided change. Altogether the picture continues to be one of gradual but fairly steady recovery from depression—a recovery in fact which on the whole exceeds expectations entertained earlier in the year.

From the industrial field recent reports show that the steel plants are still operating at rates which compare favorably with full capacity operations before the war, even if these rates correspond to only 75 per cent of present capacity making modest profits. The value of building contracts let in 27 northeastern states during May set a new high record for all time and was six times greater than the monthly average during 1914.

Auto Production.

Automobile production during May also exceeded all previous records, while the steel companies report increased demand from manufacturers of agricultural implements. Railroad car loadings rose in the week ending May 27 to a level comparable to that prevailing before the coal strike and the movement of merchandise was 16 per cent greater than in the same week a year ago. Orders for railroad equipment continue to be placed in satisfactory volumes.

The government crop reports also of June 1, which indicates a yield of 855,000,000 bushels of spring and winter wheat, as compared with an estimate of 830,000,000 bushels a year ago and an actual production last year of 795,000,000 bushels.

Expect Good Grain Supply.

Prices of wheat for future delivery have, to be sure, declined sharply in the last few weeks, but this is attributed in most quarters to the collapse of the attempted speculation for the rise in the May option rather than to anything disturbing in the general situation.

In any event a liberal supply of grain at fair prices is considered to hold out better prospects for general business than a short crop at high prices.

On this basis cotton prospects are not so encouraging. Floods have washed out important growing areas in the southwest, while the mild winter and wet spring have aided the boll weevil and delayed planting.

A relaxation of money rates at New York during the week suggested that the tightening occasioned by the transactions centering around June 1, has passed and that there is no change as yet in the general money situation.

Reductions in wages for additional classes of workers by the railroad labor board have called forth protest from labor leaders.

Almost no change is apparent in the coal strike situation. A long suspension was anticipated by the operators whose policy seems to be a waiting one.

JAPS BEAT AMERICANS.

TOKIO, June 11.—Keio university baseball team today defeated the team from the University of California, 5 to 2. This is the Californians' fifth defeat since coming to Japan. They have won one game, against the Meiji university.

NEW TOKIO PREMIER TO REDUCE ARMY

By Associated Press.

TOKIO, June 11.—Admiral Baron Kato today accepted the premiership. The non-party cabinet comes into power with the avowed intention of carrying out the agreements of the Washington conference in spirit and in the letter.

ADMIRAL KATO

The one condition on which Kato accepted the premiership was agreement of army leaders to reduce the estimated army budget by 40,000,000 yen and to adopt a general policy of retrenchment.

Katio will have the support of the Seyukai majority party in the diet and the Kenkuykai, the largest group of peers in the house of lords. It is understood that Shidehara has refused the foreign office portfolio in Katio's cabinet.

335,000 TO GET CUT IN WAGES

40 Millions Will Be Chopped Off

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Wage reductions estimated at not exceeding $40,000,000 for 355,000 additional railway employes whose wages the carriers seek to lower through the railroad labor board, are expected to issue from the board within a few days to be effective July 1.

The new decision will make a total of approximately $150,000,000 to be cut from the annual pay rolls of the roads.

The bulk of these whom the new cut will hit are railway clerks which number approximately 200,000. Their pay, it was said today would not be cut more than 5 cents, however, and certain chief clerks and other supervisory clerical forces may not feel the order at all.

About 5,000 train dispatchers, generally considered as subordinate officials, while coming under the pending decision, will not suffer any reduction, according to authoritative information. Supervisory officials in the shop crafts, whose pay was recently slashed $60,000,000, likewise received no cuts.

Coal passers, oilers, and water tenders, included in the general classification of stationary engineers and firemen and freight handlers and other common labor included in the station employes' group, are expected to receive a reduction of approximately 5 cents an hour, the same cut applied to common labor in the maintenance of way department. There are about 125,000 unskilled laborers in these two classes.

The signal men and marine employes numbering 15,000 and 800, respectively are expected to come under the reduction, but no figures were available to indicate the amount of their cut.

Expects Strike Vote.

Anticipating a reduction, however, D. W. Helt, president of the signal men, declared the board would "probably be mistaking us," adding that he could find no justification for the cut to present to his men and that he expected them to vote to strike as soon as a decision was issued.

LABOR TO TAKE UP WAGES AT MEETING TODAY

Gompers Likely To Be Re-elected As President

By Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, June 11.—Confronted by many issues—social, economic and political—the American federation of labor was ready tonight for the opening of its forty-second annual convention here tomorrow. For a week the labor chiefs and convention delegates have been gathering here. Delegates awaiting the opening of the convention, which is expected to continue for two weeks, were estimated to number 500.

In a statement describing the convention as "the parliament of labor," Samuel Gompers, president of the federation, declared that the issues that were to be met had been heaped on organized labor by its enemies.

"Our consideration of industry and of industrial problems," he declared, "will be from the point of view of service to the masses of our people.

Our consideration of political problems will be from the point of view of freedom and progress of humanity."

As a final forerunner to the convention, the executive council of the federation met today and decided to draft a supplement to its report which will be presented at tomorrow's session. The supplement, containing organized labor's interpretation of the supreme court's recent decision in the celebrated Coronado coal case, may not be presented until Tuesday or later, but members of the council said that the decision was viewed as a destructive blow to labor unions.

Gompers for Reelection.

The opposition to organized labor, unemployment, wage reduction, recognition of soviet Russia, child labor, the one big union and the coming fall elections are among the issues pressing for consideration on the eve of the convention.

No avowed opposition to the reelection of Mr. Gompers as president or other members of the executive council has yet developed and their supporters are predicting their reelection at the closing session of the convention without opposition.

By Associated Press.

MAMORNECK, N. Y., June 11.—An oak tree blown through the roof of the Red Lion Inn, on Boston post road, at the height of today's storm, carried a stone chimney into the crowded dining room, killing Mrs. Abram Wrana of Brooklyn and her seven year old daughter. Several other diners were injured.

Man and Wife Are Found Murdered

By Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—The bodies of George Blomster, a plumber, and his wife, were found in a patch of weeds near their home here late today. Both had been shot through the head. Police said they were working on a theory that robbery was the motive, as they believed that Blomster had about $130 on his person at the time of the shooting.

FERRIS WHEEL SWEPT DOWN KILLING FIVE

Many Drown When Wind Sweeps Lake

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 11.—Thirty-eight persons are reported to have been drowned off City Island in Long Island sound when the mad storm that hit the city late today capsized scores of small pleasure craft. Eight bodies have been recovered and thirty more persons are reported missing.

Twenty thousand holiday makers went to City Island today and half went out on the waters of Pelham Bay.

It was jammed with boats of every description when the storm hit. Few had opportunity to get ashore. The known casualties occurred off Execution Light, which is about six miles east of City Island.

5 KILLED, 40 HURT ON FERRIS WHEEL.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The fury of the electrical storm that swept New York late today, destroying property and life, broke suddenly over little amusement park at Mason point, the Bronx, lashed it to a farris wheel, crowded with young people, crushed it to the ground, and passed on, leaving five dead and more than forty injured.

Shrieks of mirth broke from the steel cars of the wheel as it carried its cargo of youth high up into the breezes. Then, came the storm and maddened cries of fear and agony as the upper half broke away and was catapulted by the winds into the shallow waters of Long Island sound.

The lower half buckled and fell, a twisted mass of steel, wooden girders and human bodies.

The hundreds of persons in the resort were thrown into a panic.

Amid the lightning flashes, the thunder's roar and the rain torrents, women fainted and men fought and children were brushed aside in frantic efforts to reach shelter and to lose sight of the ghastly pile that an shortly before had been a wheel of merriment.

Ambulances Work in Relays.

But many rushed to the wreck and worked madly to extricate the bodies of the living and the dying and the dead. Efforts were made to telephone for ambulances and physicians, but the storm had taken the wires. Men in commandeered automobiles were sent to nearest hospitals two miles away and soon a corps of physicians, surgeons and nurses were at the park. Four ambulances responded and they worked in relays removing the injured.

Many of the frail buildings of the concessionaires in the park were blown away or badly damaged. As the bodies were taken from the wreckage of the wheel, they were placed on the bathing pier. After an

PROPERTY LOSS RUNNING HIGH

Flood Conditions In Many Towns

By Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 11.—Property damage as yet unestimated, but known to run into millions of dollars, resulted from a series of electrical storms that broke over northern and central New York last night and today. Flood conditions prevail along portions of the Mohawk valley and westward through Oneida and Syracuse.

While most of the damage resulted from the heavy rains which caused the streams and rivers to overflow, wind and hail combined in the work of destruction. One person was killed by a falling tree at Cortland, a miniature tornado struck the village of Athens, on the west bank of the Hudson about 25 miles south of this city, and hail played havoc with many orchards and gardens. At Smyrna an aged woman was drowned when her home was swept away in the flood. Her body was found in the wreckage of the house hich lodged against a bridge.

The property loss at Syracuse was placed at $1,000,000 and it was believed that the city of Oneida was damaged to the extent of $500,000. The residential and business sections of Syracuse were from six inches to a foot under water and the tunnel under the Erie canal through which the New York Central trains pass was flooded. One train was marooned in the lowlands near the tunnel, but the pasbengers were removed to safety.

RICHMOND, Va., June 11.—P. L. Barleson, a conductor in the employ of the local street railway company, was stabbed to death late today in South Richmond by several unidentified negroes following his attempt to eject a disorderly negro from the street car which he was operating. FOURTH OF OIL IS PRODUCED IN TEXAS YEARLY

Hundred Million Is Total Output In State

BY S. RAYMOND BROOKS
(Austin Correspondent.)

AUSTIN, Texas, June 11.—Texas ranks first in the variety of production of more farm, livestock and mineral resources than any other state, according to the Texas chamber of commerce. The state is first, it has found, in beef cattle, grain sorghums, mules, cotton, goats, mohair, cotton seed and manufactured cotton seed products, onions, pecans, honey, and total value of agricultural products.

Texas is first as well in the possession of undeveloped and latent resources, it was found. Texas 30,000,000 acres of cultivated land, leading all the other states by a wide margin, represents less than one-third of the land capable of cultivation.

Texas Farm Products

Texas produced in 1921, the statistics show, 2,129,000 bales of cotton, 175,000,000 bushels of corn, 60,000,000 bushels of grain sorghums, 59,000,000 bushels of oats, 5,966,000 bushels of rice, 123 million pounds of peanuts, 20,810,000 bushels of wheat, 8,000,000 bushels of sweet potatoes, 6,200,000 gallons of sugar cane and sorghum syrups, 2,000,000 bushels of barley, 2,200,000 bushels of white potatoes, and approximately 60,000 carloads of spinach, cabbage, onions, pecans, watermelons and other small crops.

Fruits and Vegetables

The Rio Grande valley, gulf coast country and east Texas regions are rivalling California and Florida in production of vegetables and fruits. The plains regions are rapidly developing into great wheat and grain sorghum producing areas. Texas produces about 4,000,000 bushels of fruits. About 1,000,000 pounds of figs are harvested annually.

Cattle and Livestock

Texas leads all states in beef production. It has about 4,000,000 beef cattle upon ranches, in addition to 1,500,000 dairy cattle. The state also has a strong lead in goats, with approximately 1,700,000, and in mules, with a total of 850,000. There were, in 1921, 1,000,000 horses on Texas farms, 2,573,000 sheep, 2,225,000 hogs and 20,000,000 chickens and turkeys. About 174,000,000 gallons of milk are produced annually and 64,000,000 pounds of butter; 64,000,000 dozens of eggs; 5,000,000 pounds of horses, from 12,000,000 to 20,000,000 pounds of wool, and approximately 2,000,000 pounds of mohair.

Minerals and Timber

Including Texas petroleum, mineral products of Texas are worth approximately $300,000,000 each year.

The state produces approximately 100,000,000 barrels of oil a year, or one-fourth of the world's supply, and at the same time produces virtually one-half of the world supply of sulphur. It ranks high in the production of pottery, brick and clay products, gypsum, quicksilver, Fuller's earth, cement, limestone and lime, granite, marble and lignite, as well as 500,000 tons of coal a year. Fifty valuable minerals produced include iron, lignite, ochre, radioactive earth, potash, quicksilver, salt, silica. A deposit of iron ore, testing 60 per cent metallic brown ore, underlies 5,000 square miles.

Texas produces about 1,500,000,000 board feet of lumber annually, from 600 sawmills, most of this lumber being the famous long leaf pine, used all over the world.

Texas produces approximately 125,000 barrels of oysters and 4,000,000 pounds of fish for commercial purposes each year.

points of vantage near the fence carried on frequent conversations with the sentinels, some asking pertinent questions for which they received merely negative shakes of the head.

The cross of a sudden burned down, flickered, and went out. Automobiles began to move into the center of the throng. A perfect June night, radiant with the glow of a full moon, lent added light to the scene. Again the cross flamed up, and the great circle of white robed figures pressed toward the center. There was a glare of fire which blinded even spectators on the road 300 yards distant, a puff of black smoke, and a flashlight had been taken of the striking scene.

Again the flames of the cross, high above the heads of the klansmen, spent their force. A great bonfire shone in its place. At 10:30 the candidates, hosts of them, were brought into the giant circle rimmed in white. Their citizen garb showed plainly against the blaze of the fire and the background of robes. At 11:30 the field was again dark—no flaming cross, no bonfire with its lurid gleam, nor host of white clad figures. With a roar of motors, knights from Wichita Falls, Electra and Vernon had vanished into the night with greater swiftness than they had come.

TANK TOWN ROADS HAVE THEIR INNING

(By International News Service.)

ATLANTA, Ga., June 11.—Short line railroads, long the butt of wits and comic supplement artists, are going to have their inning at last.

A meeting in their defense, to which all interested in them are invited to come, has been called at a local hotel by A. J. Henderson, receiver of the Ocilla Southern railroad company. As a result efforts will be made to give them legal protection. The Georgia legislature will be asked to pass laws giving them time to pay their debts.

"There has been much said against the short-line railroad and many efforts made to junk them in recent years," Henderson says. "The people served by short-lines would suffer in the end if this were done." He declared that there is not a railroad in Georgia that has not been in the hands of a receiver at some time.

line of Montague and another large sign board tells the motorist that he is journeying into the sand beds of Wise county, for a distance of fifteen miles. Alvord is a thriving town in the center of the sand district.

It's All Sand

There is a gap from the western border of Wise to within four miles of Decatur that is rough traveling. It is sand, sand, sand, and then more sand. But there are good times coming and a good road. R. Lee Morris of Chico, Wise county, one of the most progressive citizens of the section, says that the road builders have the money, that the sum of $160,000.00 has been set aside and that a hard surfaced road will be constructed over the sand which will make it a joy for drivers of all vehicles beginning at the western boundry of Montague and continuing all the way to the city of Dallas.

In addition to this there will be a hard surfaced road from the main highway to Chico. All this should make Wise county citizens proud of their work and their roads. This will add to the mortification of the hundreds of progressive citizens of Clay county who have been fighting for road bond issues for a number of years and lost. They never say "die," however, and ther are getting ready for another election. All the business men of Henrietta are for modern highways. They are ready to pay the cost of modern highways.

Clay Out of Debt

Clay is a very large county. It does not owe a dollar of indebtedness. When it comes to modern highways it is at the tail end of the Texas procession. But do not blame the progressive people of Clay county. Sixteen men own one-third of the land of Clay county. Fourteen of the sixteen are opposed to voting bonds for good roads. They are influential because they are wealthy. They throw their influence against bond issue. They prefer the dirt roads which were the cattle trials of long ago.

They are reminded that the sand district of Wise county is to be abolished that their neighbors in western Wise have joined the grand army of road builders: that their neighbors in Montague joined the grand army years ago: that their neighbors in Wichita county have modern highways, the pride of the people and the joy of those who use the roads. These Clay county obstructionists are going to be mighty lonesome some days.

FERRIS—

hour more than forty persons had been extricated. Five were dead and a number of others were said to be dying.

Members of the crew operating the wheel declared the storm broke so suddenly that it was impossible to remove the passengers.

They said about 60 persons were in the cars when the storm struck.

Night fell as a half hundred men were set to work tearing apart the wreckage and the removal of the victims progressed slowly. Under one huge piece of steel, in a depression in the ground, lay a boy of 14, and his 10 year old sister. As the steel was removed they stood up unhurt and ran to the arms of their sobbing parents. The boy said they were in a car that had just left the ground when something happened, he didn't know what, that he was stunned for a moment and then the next thing he knew was when his sister clutched him by the arm and asked: "Are we in a tunnel, Bobbie?"

The dead were taken from the cars that were thrown into the sound.

The wheel, 100 feet in diameter, was constructed only recently, park officials said, and was considered one of the best in the country.

Paul Simon, owner and operator of the wheel, was arrested on the order of Assistant District Attorney Quigley and held on a charge of homicide.

The dead: Louis Dorotio, Old Forge, Pa.

Emily Lawyer, New York.

Mrs. Pasquale Kreda, New York, an unidentified young woman and an unidentified boy.

Five persons were killed and more than a score hurt when the wind caught a huge ferris wheel at a Clason Point amusement park and crushed it to the ground.

A woman and her seven year old daughter were crushed to death and several other persons injured when an oak tree blown by the wind crashed through the roof to the crowded dining room of the Red Lion Inn on Boston Post road, carrying with it an old fashioned stone chimney.

The bodies of seven canoeists caught in Long Island sound of City Island at the height of the storm were washed ashore later nightfall.

Miss Edda Smith, 17, walking with a companion along the Reservoir road at Ossining, was blown into the water and drowned.

Charles Emerson, New Rochelle clothing manufacturer, was rowing in Echo Bay with his wife and three children when the storm broke. He managed to row to shore then died of heart attack.

A tree fell across a party of motorists seeking shelter on the Brookville road near Locust Valley, Long Island, killing Harry Halleran of Oyster Bay and seriously injuring his three male companions.

Unable to reach shore in the stiff wind, Jack Lowenthal, 20, was drowned while swimming in East river.

Concetti Basiatiso and his 10 year old son, Anthony, of Mount Vernon, were killed when a tree under which they had found shelter in the Bronx was struck by lightning.

Two men were killed in Newark, N. J., when they came in contact with electric wires torn down by the winds.

A massive decayed tree on the New York-Westchester county line at Mount Vernon fell, crushing to death Mrs. Cassie Cavavillo and her infant son. Moe Ruskin, one of a party of canoeists in Echo Bay, was drowned. Three other members of the party swam ashore.

Ten excursionists on the ferry boat Mildegrad returning from Interstate Park, N. J., to West 138th street, were injured when the wind tore a life boat from its fastenings. In falling the boat struck the railing of the lower deck at a spot where about a dozen passengers had gathered for shelter, then it slid into the river and disappeared. Sidney Jacob, 14, was badly hurt and was taken to a hospital. Others uninjured were able to go to their homes.

Body of Jimmy Dunn, Square Shooter Of Baseball, Laid To Rest On Cool Slope As Notables Pay Last Tribute

GIVES MILLION

George F. Baker.

George F. Baker, chairman of the board of directors of the First National bank and a trustee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, has just given $1,000,000 to the museum. The gift was announced on the eve of his departure for Europe. Many large gifts have been made to the museum, but a cash gift of $1,000,000—the bequest is in Liberty bonds practically the equivalent of cash—is without precedent.

By Associated Press.

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, June 11.—On a cool slope of Riverside cemetery, under a bright June sky, the body of James C. Dunn, "square shooter of baseball" and beloved owner of the Cleveland American league baseball club, was laid to rest at 5 p. m. today while notables whose names are known throughout the entire country stood at the grave and paid a last tribute to their friend and leader.

Among the baseball celebrities who came to Marshalltown, Mr. Dunn's "home town," to assist in the last rituals were B. B. Johnson, president of the American league, Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington American league club; Jack Graney and Leslie Nunamaker, Cleveland Indian players, and M. H. Sexton, president of the National Association of Minor leagues.

Floral offerings from all parts of the country, which covered the grave and made it a deep mound of delicate bloom, attested to the esteem in which the Marshalltown man was held. In addition to the dozens of floral wreaths from personal friends of the family there were flowers from every club in the American and National leagues, the Three-Eye league, the Mississinpi Valley league, from Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, Mayor Kohler of Cleveland, and from the Cleveland police and fire departments.

A huge blanket of roses, numbering hundreds of blooms, sent by Cleveland players and ball park employes, covered the coffin. A huge floral baseball stood at the head of the grave, a gift of the Cleveland chapter of the Baseball Writers' association.

The funeral services for "Sunny Jim" Dunn were in charge of Marshall lodge No. 312, B. P. O. E. A brief private prayer service was held at the home in the presence of Mrs. Dunn and a few relatives at 2:30 p. m. At 3 o'clock the cortege left the residence, escorted by a long procession of automobiles and proceeded to the cemetery, where burial took place.

PARIS, June 11.—Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis wonder woman, has developed a heart weakness and her family insists that she withdraw from the championship tournament at Wimbledon. She says she will play in the singles if she has to be carried to the courts.

Suzanne is 24 years old and over ruled a similar parental edict when she entered the recent tournament in Brussels.

HUBBY'S SINGING TOO MUCH FOR WIFE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—A husband who can sing and dance may be a prize package, but Mrs. Camilla Hyskell, twenty-five, cried "enough" on the matter of that accomplishment.

In her case for divorce against Freo Hyskell she testified that he "preferred to sing and dance above everything else."

"Was that all the work he could do?" asked the court.

"Yes, sir; that was about all."

"Divorce granted," said the court.

SCRIBE GETS GLASS O' CORN

Or the Thrills Of A Terrible Thirst

BY R. WILLIAM ARCHER

Down Ohio street sauntered a youthful figure; a cigarette was carelessly clutched between his lips; his attitude was nonchalant, and his very bearing seemed to indicate that he was "out for the evening."

There wasn't anything unusual about youth; nothing striking in his blue summer suit, his checkered cap and his wall-polished "kicks." No one knew that he was a news hound, and if they did, no one seemed to care, for everyone on Ohio street seemed to be as much distinterested in life as he.

Had those on Ohio that strolled as he did have had the though that an owl of a bustling morning newspaper was rambling around in quest of excitement, probably he might have attracted attention—but none but he knew his mission.

"Hello, ole top."

The speaker was one who recognised the youthful figure. His challenge, friendly as it was, drew the news hound to a dead half. Well, there wasn't anything exciting in just the casual greetings of the evening, but when two youths meet far away from their palacial domiciles and neither has a "thing on his mind,' something is sure to follow when both are bent on seeking the same end.

Gee, Arch's Romantic.

There are those who imagine that the life of the news hound is similar to that of a king; and there are those who imagine that it is a life of banquests, or days of interviews midst the brainy men of the land. But there are others who know that it is similar —very similar indeed to the life of a plain, ordinary sleuth.

There was no particular mission that this particular news hound was seeking; he was just "rubber-necking around" ready to "cop" the spiciest story that might break. He might have been hoping that it wouldn't break on the evening in question, but since the "joke" is on him, he happened on the "story" anyway.

Well Now, It Gets Interesting.

"I say, Jack," he began after the conversation had changed from politics to women and from women to drinks. "You remember what the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina?"

"Something about it's a long time between drinks, I believe," replied the "Jack" referred to.

"Yes—now, just suppose that you and I were governors—I wonder whether you'd consider it an insult should I say to you that it's a h——l of a long time between drinks?"

"Not in the least," Jack replied, and then turning to a third party who had been in the conversation all along, but who had been more of an audience than a spokesman, Jack said:

"Now, our friend here usually keeps a good drink; we might prevail upon him to direct us——"

"Yes," the friend chirped. "What kind would you fellows prefer? Real red or just common ole corn?"

Thus the conversation became intense, or rather the situation became intense. And the news hound's lips smacked, and his tongue began to imagine that it could taste the famous "mountain-dew" as it lapped a sufficient quantity to a safe store-room; and, in truth, his mouth watered.

The conversation continued, and the two youths were invited into "the bar" by the third and more reserved member of the "party."

"Aha!" the news hound reflected; at last he had happened up on one of those places he had read about; a place where they sold real liquor over the bar. This was great, he continued to think. The evening was to be delicious at last; the time itself was auspicious.

Up to the Bar, Boys.

Then the two "guests" stepped up to the bar.

Placing a glass on a well-polished counter, the dignified one remarked:

"I'm sorry to tell you that I haven't a thing but some old corn, could you drink that?"

"Well, I never hardly refuse," came the quick reply from the news hound, while the second youth declared "I don't believe I care for any —but you go ahead," he warned the man of the newspaper.

"How much would you care for?"

the one behind the counter inquired.

"Oh, let your sentiments for the weary guide you; fill the glass—I can drink a gallon of corn," the one spoken to boasted.

And without further ado, the lad behind the counter turned to a drawer, looked cautiously about him, and pulled something suspiciously round, wrapped in a paper, to the hungry gaze of the one who licked his lips in excitement.

Cautiously the one behind the counter unwrapped the package, and then as if the other two thought it was April 1, or some other such day, to the bewildered and surprised gaze of the news hound, a long ear of corn was presented, and the one who had said "I have nothing but some old corn," began to shell a quantity of the grain into the glass.

BLUEBEARD'S YOUTHS WANT NEW NAMES

(By International News Service)

PARIS, June 12.—Despite the fact that sentence of death has been carried out all is not finished with the famous Landru affair. After the publication of Bluebeard's letter to the public prosecutor comes a demand from his children to the French authorities requesting the "privilege" of changing their name to that of Remy.

Remy is Madame Landru's maiden name, which she resumed after a divorce had been pronounced in her favor while Landru awaited trial. There are four children. The eldest, a girl, is married. There remain two boys and one girl. The family is at present living just outside Paris, where Madame Remy runs a bakery and is doing well.

LIQUOR RAIDS KEEP BOOZE PRICES UP

(By International News Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, June 12.—Scoffers who still doubt that the ancient law of supply and demand has a direct bearing on prices may take cognizance of object lesson No. 1, to wit:

Those "in the know"—and government agents bent on eradicating the booze pest are among them—are authority for the statement that it has been possible "right along" to get moonshine liquor for $5 a gallon on the open (more or less) market in Indianapolis. That is, until recently.

The other day federal prohibition enforcement officers took a hand and put a serious crimp in the supply angle of the law. Demand was reported unchanged.

This all came about when they swooped down on Clinton, Ind., which town is reputed to be the chief source of the above-mentioned supply, and completely ruined a choice assortment of stills, not to mention barrels and barrels of finished product.

As a result, report those who keep in touch with the market, white mule soared to old-time quotations and is selling to the tune of $12.50 a gallon. And it's forecast that it won't stop its dizzy flight until the price is $5 a quart, f. o. b. bootlegger.

RIO BRAVO ON ITS FIRST WELL

Lease Contracts Are Being Let

The Rio Bravo Oil company, which has the mineral rights on a good part of the original grants of the Houston and Texas Central railroad land in Wichita and Wilbarger counties, has started on its first well, located in section 31, in the new South Electra field.

This first well is offsetting the Harvey-Cullum No. 6 Rio Bravo, which is not far from sand depth.

The Rio Bravo has been making lease contracts with independent operators to get tests on their property. Harvey-Cullum et al, and John O'Neil having several pieces of their South Electra land under lease in this manner before the present developments in the 1900 foot sand made this section the most interesting in the district. Harvey-Cullum No. 2 Rio Bravo was the discovery well in the 1900 foot sand in this new west pool, more than two miles west and north of the Texas, McDannald and Griswold 1900 foot wells, which opened up the new deep sand in the older pool. There are two other producers in the southeast quarter of section 31, one in the 1600 foot sand, and the other a second deep well.

The Rio Bravo company still has more than 2,000 acres which is not under drilling contracts, it is understood, much of it lying within the present range of operations, and consequently considered choice acreage.

The new well will be the first of a considerable amount of drilling, it is understood. The company had headquarters in Houston, but will have field headquarters at Electra, it was announced last week.

Sticky-Toes the Tree Toad Plans a Joke.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
(Copyright by J. G. Lloyd)

Some people call Sticky-toes the Tree Toad a croaker. They say he croaks for rain. But some folks don't know Sticky-toes as well as they might. He is anything but a croaker. You know a croaker is one who is always seeing the dark side of things and always saying that something bad is going to happen. A croaker is never known to laugh, and as for playing a joke, why who ever heard of a real croaker doing anything like that?

If you could have seen Sticky-toes as he sat in the tree where Cresty the Flycatcher had made his home you would never have suspected him of being a croaker. No, indeed! He was laughing until there was danger of splitting his sides.

Ha, ha, ha, ha, ha! Ho, ho, ho, ho, ho!" laughed Sticky-toes, and put both hands to his sides because they ached from laughing so long and so hard.

You see, it just happened that he was sitting in that particular tree when Cristy and Mrs. Cresty brought home the old suit of Mr. Blacksnake which he had thrown away when he got his new one. Sticky-toes had watched Cresty and Mrs. Cresty tear the old suit to pieces and take it into the hole where they were building their nest. He had noticed that Mrs. Cresty had left the tail of that old coat hanging outside the door, and it gave Sticky-toes an uncomfortable feeling every time he looked at it, for when it moved in the wind it seemed as fi there was some one alive inside of it. In fact, it reminded Sticky-toes so strongly of Mr. Blacksnake himself, of whom he is very, very much afraid, that he was tempted to run away. But he didn't, and day after day he watched that tail of Mr. Blacksnake's old coat fluttering in the wind and just couldn't keep his eyes off it.

He was watching it when Chatterer the Red Squirrel came climbing up the tree intent on a dinner of the eggs he felt sure he would find in Cresty's home. He knew nothing about that old suit of Mr. Blacksnake, and so when he suddenly found the til of it wriggling almost in his face he thought Mr. Blacksnake himself was there and was so frightened that he just let go his hold on the tree and dropped to the ground. Then without once looking behind him he scampered away as fast as ever he could go. It was this that tickled Sticky-toes the Tree Toad so. To think that shrewd, sharp-eyed Chatterer, the mischief maker, should have been so fooled and frightened by an old suit! Was there ever such a joke before?

All the rest of that day he chuckled to himself as he thought about it. He awoke in the night to laugh about it. Early the next morning as he was getting ready to occupy his old seat where he could watch that fascinating old conttail he heard the voice of Sammy Jay. Right away an idea came to him. He would play a joke on Sammy Jay. Yes, sir, that is what he would do. Sammy is just as fond of eggs as is Chatterer. Sticky-toes knew this. So at the first opportunity he called Sammy Jay over to him.

"Do you want some nice fresh eggs?" whispered Sticky-toes in Sammy's ear.

Sammy looked at him suspiciously. "Of course, I do; you know that without asking," said he.

Then Sticky-toes, still whispering, told him about the home of Cresty the Flycatcher and that he was quite sure that there must be eggs there. But he didn't say a word about the old suit of Mr. Blacksnake. Oh, my, no! No, indeed! You see, it was all a joke on the part of Sticky-toes. He never, never, never would have breathed a word about that nest if he had thought that any harm would come to them. He remembered the fright of Chatterer when he say the tail of Mr. Blacksnake's old coat and he knew that Sammy Jay is no braver than Chatterer. So all the rest of that day he sat where he could watch the entrance of Cresty's home, and all the time he chuckled to himself as he thought of what he was sure was going to happen. It was a great joke he had planned. The only trouble was he had no one to enjoy it with him.

Drury Brings In 1,000-Barrel Well

Special to the Record News.

CISCO, Texas, June 11.—The Drury Petroleum corporation, headed by Cyrus H. Drury of this city, went into the Pioneer field a short time ago and secured several blocks of ground in the townsite. Thursday evening the No. 1 well, on block 32, was brought in, and at 8 o'clock last night it was making 1000 barrels on the gauge. This is by several hundred barrels the best well which has been brought in on the Pioneer townsite, and Mr. Drury and all those who are interested in the company are being congratulated today on their success in the wonder field of Eastland county. The well is flowing at the rate of 1000 barrels from the top of the sand, and the drill will be pushed down 18 feet further, at which depth it is expected to hit the gusher pay.

FASHIONS

Blouse and handkerchief to match approved by dame fashion.

The sketch offers a suggestion for a smart skirt and blouse outfit, the little trimming touches of contrasting garments serving to make them out of the ordinary. The blouse is of sheer white cotton voile with hemstitched collar and cuffs. Appliqued bands of fine linen or organdy in contrasting color appear on the front of the blouse, collar and cuffs. An interesting feature is the handkerchief to match, which peeps from the skirt pocket. Such a blouse would be very smart with a white linen, cotton or silk skirt. Linen skirts will be extremely popular this season, sometimes made entirely plain and again trimmed with little inset bands of pin tucking or rows of hemstitching.

The wrap-around skirt is one of the favorites. Skirts of this type are easy to launder, as they may be laid flat on the board and handled much more readily than the skirt that has to be slipped over.

The skirt illustrated, to be made of cotton, linen or wool fabric, or of silk if preferred, is trimmed simply with line embroidery in a criss-cross design.

Among the new tailored or sports blouses that are enjoying a strong vogue the slip-over models may be especially mentioned. These blouses are really cut middy style, but instead of being worn over the skirt they are tucked in. Those of a soft silk or silk crepe are smartest. A little robbon or Windsor tie usually finishes such a blouse at the neck, and they are both practical and smart. Blouses of this type are designed for slender figures only, as there is no fulness to take care of the curves of a large figures.

Whether for suit wear or to be worn with separate skirts, white blouses hold the center of the stage. A touch of color may appear in the trimming, as on the one sketched, but the main portion of the blouse will be white.

SLAYERS WIFE

Mrs. Margaret Miller

That her husband, John Miller, drove the auto in which the slayers of two policemen rode while they killed the officers, is the statement Chicago police say Mrs. Miller has made to them. She further stated that the plotters met at her home and that she dressed the wounds of the injured after the death ride. The policemen were slain at the start of Chicago's labor war.

MRS. HUCK OF ILLINOIS

AND now it is said that the first mother to sit in United States congress will be Mrs. Winifred Mason Huck of Illinois. She has received the republican nomination for representative at large for the short term. There is no democratic nominee. She says there is no issue between the republican and the democratic parties now; that there is only one great political issue before the people. That issue is "peace." Mrs. Huck is nominated to fill the unexpired term of her father, William E. Mason, and the term will end March 4th, 1923. Her father was thirty years in congress and Mrs. Huck was with him many years. She has three boys and a girl and feels that she is fitted to represent the hopes and ideals of mothers who are looking forward to a world of peace that will be the future home of their children.

She has only one aim as a congressman and that is to set a movement to work that will lead to world peace. She is going to congress with that purpose.

Jeannette Rankin of Montana, the first woman to be elected to congress, was a spunster lady. She made a most excellent record.

Miss Alice Robertson of Oklahoma landed there as a second. Her record was said to be without a flaw by the men but the cheer leaders of the national woman's party do not like Miss Robertson because she insists that a woman should be a republican, or a democrat or a socialist and vote her convictions without regard to sex.

Illinois will be given third place as only death can prevent Mrs. Huck from making the trip to Washington as she is the nominee without opposition.

EXIE FIFE'S ROMANCE

DAME Fortune is a funny old jade. Exie Fife is a fullblood Creek girl living in McIntosh county, Okla. A week ago Exie had $5.30 on deposit at the Indian agency in Oklahoma. Poverty was her other name. She borrowed $2.00 from an Indian field service agent with which to purchase groceries. This happened on one day and the very next day a three thousand barrel gusher was brought in on her allotment in the Slick field. Now her royalty from oil is $750 daily.

There are five wells being drilled on her allotment in addition to the gusher and the agency officials have already figured that in event these wells come in as big as the first one, the present rate of $275,000 a year royalty will be increased to one million six hundred fifty thousand dollars a year and then Exie, who is only 19, will be walking on velvet in that fashionable street known as Easy.

This is a world of change as well as a world of opportunity. Now all the fortune hunters in Oklahoma will be on the trail of the Creek Indian girl who was practically penniless when her gusher came in. There is money in petroleum if you own an Indian allotment in the proven field in Oklahoma.

ANOTHER BARK.

SENATOR Thomas E. Watson of Georgia has discovered another shining target for his stink pots. This time Herbert C. Hoover is the object of his wrath. Watson has made the discovery that Hoover aided in efforts to overthrow the soviet and restore Romanoff government in Russia. Also that Mr. Hoover has not published detailed statements of war relief expenditures. There isn't a sane and sensible or honest man in the United States who believes Herbert C. Hoover to be a crook.

There isn't a fair-minded man who would rob him of the glory which is attached to his relief work before the coming of the world war, while it was on or since peace came to a distracted world. Herbert C. Hoover is an all American. He is neither a shriveled localism, a witch burner or a jungle savage running amuck and assailing the motives of all men who incur the hostility of a narrow mind.

Women of the Osage nation in Oklahoma are on the war path for equal suffrage. They demand the ballot in the annual tribal election. This is the richest tribe of Indians in the world and as money is said to talk loudly the redskinned sisters should be able to wrest the ballot from the braves who are just as obstinate and just as tenacious as some of their whiteskinned brothers away down here in Texas.

NEWSPAPERS AND THE TRADE TRIP.

WHAT is the press?

What does it mean to your city, your town or your community?

Progressive Wichita Falls recently staged a highly successful trade trip. This expedition of commerce was arranged with a dual consideration. First, Wichita Falls benefits and secondly, an expression of confidence and assistance to the outlying trade territory.

Truly there were impressive incidents scheduled in each and every town visited by the pioneers of better business.

At Altus, a special edition, an EXTRA. The Altus Times-Democrat, greeted the men who glad-handed for Wichita Falls.

It was strictly an edition devoted to the trippers. Bannerd across six columns spak the sheet, "We Welcome You Mr. Wichitan." Thus and truly it was. Charley McDonald, trade trip orator, said as much in a public utterance at Altus and now we go on record with about the same assertion.

An editorial comment, modestly clothed in secrecy for the editor failed to grace the creditous greeting with his moniker, declares "Nowhere will you be able to find a town that is so enterprising as Altus. And the Altus Times-Democrat is very proud to represent the people of Altus with a newspaper. We live to do things for the city of Altus. We are all awake, and are going to show you a good time while you are in the city that 'God never forgot'."

There is no more emphatic expression of the enterprise of a town than its official publication. And Altus offered proof positive through the EXTRA that greeted the trade trippers.

The Chillicothe Valley News had announced the coming of the expedition. The announcement served the purpose. Chillicothe is guided by that which is declared good. The Valley News prepared them for the 'storm' which precipitated per schedule.

The greeting and welcome extended, declared the weight of their publication.

And Chillicothe is thus remembered by the excursionists.

There is one weekly news sheet in the state with a street sale. The Burkburnett Star has thus established itself as the livest paper of its kind under the broad roof of Texas.

W. F. Billingslea is the editor of the distinctive publication.

Only a paper that can stand the strictest tests can stand up under the demands of a circumstance of that kind.

And Burkburnett has something else of which to be proud.

Then there was the "Good Medal Newspaper," the Vernon Record.

Eric G. Schroeder is the associate editor of the semi-weekly, recognized throughout the state as printing more local news than any other paper in the state.

It is the local news that makes a paper. It is the paper that makes a town.

The issue of Friday, June 9, contains not a story under a foreign date line. It is a local newspaper. More than 40 stories are included in the number, not to mention a page of "city briefs," and another page devoted to Wilbarger county.

A town that can fill a semi-weekly with local stories is some town. And a newspaper that can fill its pages with local stories is some newspaper. And an editor that can find the local stories to fill his pages is some editor.

Good luck, peace and prosperity to you, Vernon, to Schroeder and the Vernon Record.

There's another good newspaper over at Frederick, Okla. The main reason for this is that the managing editor, N. H. Lingenfelter, spent about ten years on the Daily Oklahoman, at Oklahoma City. The Leader is a corking, good daily. It carried the Associated Press reports, prints live, local editorials and is just a notch ahead of Frederick—although the town is pretty much up in the front, itself. We do believe, however, that the Leader would be a credit to a town much larger than Frederick.

The Electra paper also gave considerable space to the trade trippers. This paper is one of the most prosperous in the state. It is in the big league class, in that it prints scores of pictures regularly about the oil field developments. It would not surrise us to see the Electra Star in the daily field before long.

And then at Quanah, another town made by the trade trippers, is the Tribune-Chief. The editor of this paper, Harry Koch, is one of the town's leading citizens. And incidentally, he is one of the most widely quoted editorial writers in the state. Koch was there to greet the trade trippers and met many of them.

In connection with this editor in tribute, it should be said here that thousands of dollars worth of publicity was given the trade trippers by the papers throughout the district. For all of which Wichita Falls and the Record News is grateful.

THE GREAT AMERICAN TAIL-LESS KANGAROO.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS.

DUMM AND DUMMER DISCUSS WAR SCANDALS, PAST AND PRESENT.

"So they're going to investigate war grafting again," mused Senator Drummer, looking over his favorite paper. "Well, I suppose it's gotta be done as a matter of precedent.'

"Whaddya mean 'precedent'?" asked Representative Drummer.

"No war can be really finished, wrapped up, filed away, and forgotten until there's been an investigation into a flock of rumors that the contractors who produced the weapons and supplies were alota second-story men,' replied Senator Dumm. "There's never been a war in world history that wasn't followed by a graft inquiry.'

"You mean in recent world history," corrected Drummer.

"I make no exceptions," insisted Senator Dumm. "Back in biblical days, when the jawbones of asses were the heavy artillery of the combatants, it was charged after every tribal war that the jawbone contractors had supplied the armies with inferior imitations. It was the common thing to accuse the contractors of buying up aged jackasses with brittle jawbones instead of rejecting all but the young and tough-jawed animals.'

"I didn't know that," said Rummer.

"All through history the same thing happened," insisted Senator Dumm. "The Greeks were a ways charging that the catapult, battering ram, and helmet contractors were supplying defective goods. If you study history you'll find that Alexander the Great once accused the profiteers of supplying his armies with bum sandals."

"I daresay the contractor who built the famous Wooden Horse of Troy was criticized," ventured Dummer.

"Sure he was'" said Senator Dumm. "They'd no sooner wheeled the Wooden Horse away from the gates of Troy after the victory than citizens began writing letters to the newspapers insisting that the horse had been built on a percentage-plus basis, and that it amounted to plain robbery of the government.

Dummer seemed rather amazed at Rumm's fund of information.

"Look at Julius Caesar," exclaimed Senator Dumm.

"Where?" asked Dummer, turning quickly.

"In history," replied Dumm. "Do you know the truth about his assassination?"

"No," admitted Dummer.

"He was stabbed because he was demanding a senatorial investigation and exposure of the Gallic war graters who sent his army rubber-tipped spears, papier-mache shields, and chariots with weak axles," concluded Senator Dumm.

"The ancient Greeks had investigation after investigation into charges that the gold bracelets they used to wear into battle were brass, and that the designs on their shields swords, and helmets were not up to specifications," resumed Senator Dumm. "You know how it was the custom in Sparta to bring a dead Spartan home on his shield?"

"I remember reading about it," said Drummer.

"Well, there was lots of cases where the shields were made out of such poor material that when the soldiers placed the body of a dead Spartan on it and then picked it up at each end, it would break in the middle."

"Did they hold investigations in those days?" asked Rummer.

"There were too many wars," replied Dumm. "Before they could get an investigation started another war would break outa. But there was some terrible grafting, according to reports. You heard about the Hannibal army scandal, didn't you?"

"No," admitted Dummer.

"Hannibal crossed the Alps all right, but the equipment the contractors gave him was sumpin terrible. The rubber boots were porous, all the army snow shoes went to pieces the first two weeks, the overcoats were shoddy and the grafting contractors gave the soldiers wooden mustard spoons for snow shovels! But worse of all, after Hannibal had reached the top of the Alps the sleds he had been promised so he could slide down the other side didn't arrive."

Dummer was clearly stunned by Senator Dumm's ready knowledge of history.

BEAUTIES OF NATURE.

I went with Blitzen in his van, along a country road; he's a romantic sort of man, to whom this life's an ode. He's always seeing lovely things, wherever he may look; he boosts the bird that sings, g es batty o'er a brook. With one hand on the steering wheel, he glanced to left and right; "this lovely landscape makes me feel like weeping with delight. How wonderful that field of wheat, that stretch of fragrant hay! Oh, life is glorious and sweet, on such a golden day!" "Yes, life's a scream," I slowly said, "but when you drive a bus you ought to keep your eyes ahead, and cut out all the fuss. When you're afoot it's well to mark the sunshine on the grain, and trill about it like a lark—not when you fool a wain." "Oh, life is full and sweet and rich," he cried, his eyes aswim; and then he dumped us in the ditch and broke my larboard limb. I'd rather ride with one who takes long chances here and there, than with the delegate who rakes the landscape with his stare. A driver shouldn't watch the goats that play upon the grass, or rubber at the fields of oats as he steps on the gas. He shouldn't think of things afar, but play the driver's game; to navigate his creaking car should be his highest aim.

The Mucker

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

The sun was well up the following morning before the girl awakened, and it was several minutes before she could readjust herself to her strange surroundings. At first she thought that she was alone, but finally she discerned a giant figure standing at the opening which led from their mountain retreat.

It was the mucker, and at sight of him there swept over the girl the terrible peril of her position—alone in the savage mountains of a savage island with the murderer of Billy Mallory—the beast that had kicked the unconscious Theriere in the face—the mucker who had insulted and threatened to strike her! She shuddered at the thought. And then she recalled the man's other side, and for the life of her she could not tell whether to be afraid of him or not—it all depended upon what mood governed him. It would be best to precipitate him. She called a pleasant good morning.

Byrne turned. She was shocked at the pallor of his haggard face.

"Good morning," he said. "How did yeh sleep?"

"Oh, just splendidly, and you?" she replied.

"So-so," he answered.

She looked at him searchingly as he approached her.

"Why I don't believe that you have slept at all," she cried.

"I didn't feel very sleepy," he replied evasively.

"You sat up all night on guard!" she exclaimed. "You know you did."

"De Chinks might o' been shadowin' us—it wasn't safe to sleep," he admitted; "but I'll tear off a few dis mornin' after we find a feed of some kind."

"What can we find to eat here?" she asked.

"Dis crick is full o' fish," he explained, "an' of youse got a pin I guess we kin rig up a scheme to hook a couple."

The girl found a pin that he said would answer very nicely, and with a shoe lace for a line and a big locust as bait the mucker set forth to angle in the little mountain torrent. The fish, unwary, and hungry thus early in the morning, proved easy prey, and two casts brought forth two splendid specimens.

"I could eat a dozen of dem minnows," announced the mucker, and he cast again and again, until in twenty minutes he had a goodly mess of plump, shiny trout on the grass beside him.

With his pocketknife he cleaned and scaled them, and then between two rocks he built a fire and passing sticks through the bodies of his catch roasted them all. They had neither salt, nor pepper, nor butter, nor any other viand than the fish, but it seemed to the girl that never in her life had she tasted so paltable a meal, nor had it occurred to her until the odor of the cooking fish filled her nostrils that no food had passed her lips since the second day before—no wonder that the two ate ravenously, enjoying every mouthful of their repast.

"An' now," said Billy Byrne, "I tink I'll poun' my ear fer a few. You kin keep yer lamps peeled fer de Chinks, an' de first fony noise youse hears, why be sure to wake me up," and with that he rolled over upon the grass, asleep almost on the instant.

The girl, to while away the time, explored their rock-bound haven. She found that it had but a single means of ingress, the narrow pass through which the brook found outlet. Beyond the entrance she did not venture, but through it she saw, beneath a wooded slope, and twice deer passed quite close to her, stopping at the brook to drink.

It was an ideal spot, one whose beauties appealed to her even under the harrowing conditions which had forced her to seek its precarious safety. In another land and with companions of her own kind she could well imagine the joy of a fortnight spent in such a sylvan paradise.

The thought aroused another—how long would the mucker remain a safe companion? She seemed to be continually falling from the frying pan into the fire. So far she had not been burned, but with returning strength, and the knowledge of their utter isolation could she expect this brutal thug to place any check upon his natural desires?

Why there were few men of her own station in life with whom she would have felt safe to spend a fortnight alone upon a savage, uncivilized island! She glanced at the man where he lay stretched in deep slumber. What a huge fellow he was! How helpless would she be were he to turn against her! Yet his very size; yes, and the brutality she feared, were her only salvation against every other danger than he himself. The man was physically a natural protector, for he was able to cope with odds and dangers to which an ordinary man would long since have succumbed. So she found that she was both safer and less safe because the mucker was her companion.

As she pondered the question her eyes roved toward the slope beyond the opening to the amphitheater. With a start she came to her feet, shading her eyes with her hand and peering intently at something that she could have sworn moved among the trees far below. No, she could not be mistaken—it was the figure of a man.

Swiftly she ran to Byrne, shaking him roughly by the shoulder.

"Someone is coming," she cried, in response to his sleepy query.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Mucker Sees a New Light.

Together the girl and the mucker approached the entrance to the amphitheater. From behind a shoulder of rock they peered down into the forest below them. For several minutes neither saw any cause for alarm.

"I guess youse must o' been seein' things," said Byrne, drily.

"Yes," said the girl, "and I see them again. Look! Quick! Down there—to the right."

Byrne looked in the direction she indicated.

"Chinks," he commented. "Gee! Look at 'em comin'. Dere must be a hundred of 'em."

He turned a rueful glance back into the amphitheater.

"I dunno as dis place looks as good to me as it did," he remarked. "Dose yaps wid de toad stabbers could hike up on top o' dese cliffs an' make it a case o' 'thence by carriages to Cavalry' for ours in about two shakes."

"Yes," said the girl, "I'm afraid it's a regular cul-de-sac."

"I dunno nothin' about dat," replied the mucker; "but I do know dat if we wants to get out o' here we gotta get a hump on ourselves good an' lively. Come ahead," and with his words he ran quickly through the entrance, and turning squarely toward the right skirted the perpendicular cliffs that extended as far as they could see to be lost to view in the forest than ran up to meet them from below.

The trees and underbrush had them from the head - hunters. There had been danger of detection but for the brief instant that they passed through the entrance of the hollow, but at the time they had chasen the enemy had been hidden in a clump of thick brush far down the slope.

For hours the two fugitives continued their flight, passing over the crest of a ridge and downward toward another valley, until by a small brook they passed to rest, hopeful that they had entirely eluded their pursuers.

Again Byrne fished, and again they sat together at a noe-course meal. As they ate the man found himself looking at the girl more and more often. For several days the wonder of her beauty had been growing upon him, until now he found it difficult to take his eyes from her. Thrice she surprised him in the act of staring intently at her, and each time he had dropped his eyes guiltily. At ength the girl became nervous, and then terribly frightened—was it coming so soon.

The man had talked but little during this meal, and for the life of her Barbara Harding could not think of any topic with which to distract his attention from his thoughts.

"Hadn't we better be moving on?" she asked at last.

Byrne gave a little start as though surprised in some questionable act.

"I suppose so," he said; "this ain't no place to spend the night—it's too open. We gotta find a sort o' hiding place if we can, dat a fellow kin barricade wit something."

Again they took up their seemingly hopeless march—an aimless wandering in search of they knew not what. Away from one danger to possible dangers many fold more terrible. Barbara's heart was very heavy, for again she feared and mistrusted the mucker.

They followed down the little brook now to where it emptied into a river and then down the valley beside the river which grew wider and more turbulent with every mile. Well past mid-afternoon they came opposite a small, rocky island, and as Byrne's eyes fell upon it an exclamation of gratification burst from his lips.

"Jest de place!" he cried. "We orter be able to hide dere forever."

"But how are we to get there?" asked the girl, looking fearfully at the turbulent river.

"It ain't deep," Byrne assured her. "Come ahead; I'll carry yeh across," and without waiting for a reply he gathered her in his arms and started down the bank.

What with the thoughts that had occupied his mind off and on during the afternoon the sudden and close contact of the girl's warm young body close to his took Billy Byrne's breath away, and sent the hot blood coursing through his veins. It was with the utmost difficulty that he restrained a mad desire to crush her to him and cover her face with kisses.

And then the fatal thought came to him—why should he restrain himself? What was this girl to him? Had he not always hated her and her kind? Did she not look with loathing and contempt upon him? And to whom did her life belong anyway but to him—had he not saved it twice? What difference would it make? They'd never come out of this savage world alive, and if he didn't take her some monkey-faced Chink would get her.

They were in the middle of the stream now. Byrne's arms already had commenced to tighten upon the girl. With a sudden tug he strove to pull her face down to his; but she put both hands upon his shoulders and held his lips at arms length. And her wide eyes looked full into the glowing gray ones of the mucker. And each saw in the other's something that held their looks for a full minute.

Barbara saw what she had feared, but she saw too something else that gave her a quick, pulsing hope—a look of honest love, or could she be mistaken? And the mucker saw the true eyes of the woman he loved without knowing that he loved her, and he saw the plea for pity and protection in them.

"Don't," whispered the girl. "Please don't, you frighten me."

A week ago Billy Byrne would have laughed at such a plea. Doubtless, too, he would have struck the girl in the face for her resistance. He did neither now, which spoke volumes for the change that was taking place within him, but neither did he relax his hold upon her, or take his burning eyes from her frightened ones.

Thus he strode through the turbulent, shallow river to clamber up the bank onto the island. In his soul the battle still raged, but he had by no means relinquished his intention to have his way with the girl. Fear, numb, freezing fear, was in the girl's eyes now. The mucker read it there as plain as print, and had she not said that she was frightened? That was what he had wanted to accomplish back there upon the Halfmoon—to frighten her. He would have enjoyed the sight, but he had not been able to accomplish the thing. Now she not only showed that she was frightened—she had admitted it, and it gave the mucker no pleasure—or the contrary it made him unaccountably uncomfortable.

And then came the last straw—tears welled to those lovely eyes. A choking sob wracked the girl's frame—"And just when I was learning to trust you so!" she cried.

They had reached the top of the bank, nod, and the man, still holding her in his arms, stood upon a mat of jungle grass beneath a great tree. Slowly he lowered her to her feet. The madness of desire still gripped him; but now there was another force at work combating the evil that had predominated before.

Theriere's words came back to him: "Good-bye, Byrne; take good care of Miss Harding," and his admission to the Frenchman during that last conversation with the dying man: "—a week ago I guess I was a coward. Dere seems to be more'n one kind o' nerve—I'm just a-learnin' of the right kind, I guess."

He had been standing with eyes upon the ground, his heavy hand still gripping the girl's arm. He looked into her face again. She was waiting there, her great eyes upon his filled with fear and questioning, like a prisoner before the bar awaiting the sentence of her judge.

As the man looked at Barbara Harding standing there before him he saw her in a strange new light, and a sudden realization of the truth flashed upon him. He saw that he could not harm her now, or ever, for he loved her!

Spudders Avenge Stinging Defeat of Saturday's Game

MOKAN STOPS BEARS WHILE GAME IS ICED

Miller and White Stage Dual For High Honors

By "SPIKE" COOPER.

Sweet revenge, yea revenge in abundance, did the parading Spudders accomplish yesterday afternoon at Athletic park when Jack Bromley, former star of the Pacific coast league was humbled, 10-4, as he attempted to lead the Santone Bears against the home club.

The south-handed shoots were to the fancy of Spud hitters and 18 smashes accounted for the big "X" checked in by the Spuds. Jake Miller, Al White and Fred Beck led the attack, literally lambasting everything that rolled up their way. Jakie hit safely each of his first four trips up and finished with four out of five. Two of the blows were well hit doubles. Three of the Spudders' tallies were driven by Miller's club, and four times did he check himself in at the paystation.

White and Miller Star.

Al White was a sensation throughout. Fielding like a demon, he halted the Bear advance repeatedly and spurred the entire club on toward an impregnable defense. He clubbed out four singles, all line drives into left field, and finished with a perfect average.

Miller rambled all over the outfield and shared equal honors with White. However, the flashing play was not confined to these two men. The entire club fought with a determination that could but result in decisive victory.

Adams' Great Try.

Adams furnished a thrill for the fans when he jumped what appeared twice his height after a drive by Fuller. The ball struck the top of his glove and fell dead at his feet. Shorty fell as he came down and did not recover in time to make the throw. It was a beautiful try and the little "fire-plug" got a big hand for his effort.

White was the robber, however. He leaped high in the air in the third, grabbed Gross' drive and doubled Bromley off second. Again in the seventh he went deep into right field and took Hiller's fly with his back to the stands. It was White's day 'round and he was readily forgiven for the three or four boots recently. 'Twas just a streak of hard luck he was playing in and he was equally glad to get over it.

Steve Mokan was master of ceremonies from the start. After he was safely behind a big lead, Saim eased him up a bit and permitted the Bears to count four times. Two of those were the result of a terrific wallop over the right field wall by Kirkham, the slugging right garder of Hub Northen's Bruins.

And the crowd was all there, each and every all of 'em, rootin', sweatin' and fightin'. 'Twas the same old Spudder crowd. The hot sun meant little in their lives for they were there after a ball game, and didn't they get it? The stands overflowed into the field and ground rules were the order of the day, wherein only two bases were allowed on a drive into the crowd. Several sharply hit balls bounded off individuals who were seated along the left field line, but they refused to move back and stayed down where they could help the boys.

Many out-of-town fans who are pulling for the Spudders were on and early. Electra, Burkburnett, Vernon, Henrietta and Seymour were well represented. That's the kind of support that wins pennants and it looks more like the Spudders' year, every day.

There was an abundance of hitting, and nine doubles and a homer were included in the 28 hits registered by the two clubs. Seven of the nine doubles went to the Spudders.

Booe led the attack for the Bears. He lammed out two singles and a double in five trips up. He was the only member of the visiting club who seemed to successfully solve the shoots of 'Stephen." However, on the two other occasions found him at the plate, he sent long drives to Jake Miller, one of which was one of the greatest catches of the season. Miller went almost to the boards in center after the drive.

The Bears opened with a threat in the first inning. Booe beat out a hit toward third and Mokan passed Gross. Kirkham was out on an infield fly, Myers flied out to Miller and Fuller lined out to Bescher.

Spuds Start in First

The Spudders came in and started right out to win with runs. Adams drew a walk and Tanner singled to left. Bescher almost tore Fuller's glove off with a line drive, but both runners scampered back to safety. Homer Summa, in his accustomed way, singled to center and both runners trod the rubber. Miller doubled into the crowd in left and Summa was held at third. Beck popped up to McKee, but Al White opened his rampage with a single into left and both Summa and Miller reported to the bench. Bischoff fanned for the final out.

In the second Beatty was out Adams to Beck and Bishoff took Hiller's pop foul. McKee popped to Adams.

Mokan popped to Fuller in the Spudders half. Adams drew his second promenade and Tanner skied to left. Bescher walked but was forced at second when Summa grounded to Fuller.

Bromley drew a pass to start the third and Booe's second hit moved him to second. Gross lined toward right, but White leaped high in the air, speared the drive and doubled Bromley off second. Kirkham grounded out White to Beck.

Steve Comes Through.

The Spudders got another in their portion of the third. Miller singled to left and Back walked after Miller had successfully pilfered a pillow. Al sacrificed them up a notch and Bishoff was passed after fouling one fa. over left field fence. Bromley got a merry ha-ha for the act when Steve thumped a single into center scoring Miller, but a nice throw by Myers caught Beck at the plate. Adams popped to Fuller.

In the fourth Myers was out Adams to Beck. Fuller shot one high over Adams' head and shorty tried hard for the ball, but only knocked it down after a hard attempt. Beatty fanned and Hiller forced Fuller at second when he grounded to Adams.

Tanner popped to Fuller in the fourth. Bescher doubled to left center, but went out trying to advance on Summa's fly to left. It was a fast double play.

In the fifth McKee popped out to White and Bromley sent Miller to the fence for his drive. Booe doubled into the crowd in right but failed to advance as Gross fanned.

Miller opened the Spudder half with a double into left and scored on Beck's line single between first and second. White singled to left and Beck advanced a bag. Bishoff lined a drive to Booe. Mokan fouled out to first. Adams walked for the third time and was forced at second when Tanner grounded to Hiller.

The Bears went out in order in the sixth. Kirkham popped to White, Myers was out, White to Beck, and Fuller was retired on a short fly to right. Bescher made a nice catch, coming in close behind short for the play.

Three In Sixth.

Three more counters were hung up by the Spuds in the sixth. Bescher grounded out, Gross to Beatty. Summa doubled into the right field crowd and Miller scored him with a long single to left. Beck again singled to right and White scored Miller with a drive to left. Bischoff doubled into the crowd in left, scoring Beck. Mokan fouled out to McKee and Adams was out, Gross to Beatty.

Beatty opened the seventh with a single to center. Hiller sent White far into right after his short fly and White made a nice catch. McKee flied out to Miller. Bromley singled to short center, but Miller took Booe's fly for the final out.

Bromley Goes Out.

Bill Bolden relieved Bromley in this round and was greeted with a double into left center by Tanner. Bescher sacrificed him to third, but S[illegible] popped to Beatty and Miller broke his perfect day when he drove sharply to Turkey Gross.

The Bears got their first two markers in the eighth. Beck let Tanner's long hop get away from him when Gross grounded to third.

Kirkham walloped a drive over right field fence and two runs marked the extent for that frame.

Myers singled to center but was forced a moment later when Fuller grounded to Beck. Adams' throw was a little high for a double play and Fuller was safe. When he attempted to steal, Bischoff threw low to second and Fuller took third as the ball rolled to center. Beatty fanned for the second time and Hiller popped to Tanner.

Beck led off with a double into the crowd in right in the eighth. White sent him to third with another single but Beck was caught at the plate on an attempted squeeze by Bischoff. White and Smiley moved up on a double steal and a pass to Mokan filled 'em up. Adams sent a long fly to right and White counted. Tanner popped up to Beatty.

The final duo of markers came in the ninth. McKee singled to center and went to second when Mokan hit Bolden. McKee moved up to third when Booe flied out to Miller. Gross doubled into the crowd in right and McKee tallied. Bolden going to third. Kirkham flied to deep center and Bolden scored. Myers fanned for the final out.

NAME HIM

EARL ADAMS.

At the beginning of the season, "Shorty" was dubbed "Rabbit" because of his lightning-like footwork, but those who saw his leap into the air after Gross' line drive yesterday afternoon are now prone to call him "Frog." Anyway, he's a pivot for the Spudder infield.

PHELAN STEALS HOME AND BEATS OILERS

FORT WORTH, Texas, June 11.—Art Phelan stole home with the winning run in the twelfth, Fort Worth beating Beaumont, 4 to 3, in a thrilling game. Goodbred relieved Pate in the ninth with the bases full and none out. A sacrifice fly gave the Exporters one run that looked like the ball game. But First Baseman Kraft knocked a home run that tied it up again. Lou Kraft gave way to a pinch batter in the twelfth when Beaumont made one. Two were down for Fort Worth when Hoffman singled. Phelan grounded to Stanbury, who threw low to first, Hoffman scoring and Phelan taking third, from where he stole home. Score:

THE PACE MAKER. —By Ripley.

BY ROBERT L. RIPLEY.

Will Hornsby be the home run king this year? It seems certain that the St. Louis slugger will be the one that Ruth must beat for the home run honors this season.

Ken. Williams started off fast with nine homers in seven games, and Bing Miller of the Athletics has over a dozen circuit clouts to his credit, but Hornsby, who is now leading, will no doubt finish the season ahead of them all.

Hessler Wins Oklahoma Title

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 11.—Phil Hessler, professional of the Tulsa Country club, today won the Oklahoma open golf championship in the annual state tournament being played here on the links of the Lakeside Golf and Country club. His total score was 145, 72 for the morning round and 73 for the afternoon. Last year Hessler established a new record on the local links by turning in a score of 71 for the 18 holes.

YANKEES BACK IN OLD FORM

Giants Also Hold To Top

After balancing precariously at the top in their respective leagues for several weeks as a result of erratic playing, the New York Giants and Yankees have braced and recently regained championship form for the mid-season drive. Playing better ball than any of their rivals the last week, the Yankees, by winning again yesterday from St. Louis, increased their lead to four and a half games, while the Giants again trimming Cincinnati, held a two game advantage over the Pirates, who were idle.

Resembling more closely last year's wrecking crew than at any time this season, the Yanks have gotten away to a flying start in their first western invasion.

Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel have caught their batting strides and are adding the punch to the team's attack that has been lacking so far.

Already supplied with stellar pitching, Huggins' crew apparently is ready to set a dizzy pace for the Browns, the only team regarded as capable of giving the New Yorkers a real brush for the pennant. The Yankees yesterday batted Shocker, the erstwhile jinx, from the box the second day in succession.

Sisler Still Hitting.

The St. Louis outfit, with the exception of George Sisler and possibly one or two others, has experienced a temporary batting slump, and with some erratic hurling, has fallen back in the race.

Washington has taken the lead in the four club scramble for third place, displacing Cleveland after taking three in a row from Speaker's men whose hitting has fallen off. Detroit, aided by some steady pitching, jumped back to the first division and by beating the Senators yesterday was within a half game of third position.

In the National, the Giants are unlikely to outdistance other contenders unless their pitching improves. Batting punch, plus a couple of whirlwind finishes, carried them to victories in the past week. Against Brooklyn a week ago, the champions pulled a five-four triumph of the fire with a three run rally in the ninth, and duplicated the feat yesterday, tallying three times in the final inning for a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati.

Pittsburgh, in close pursuit of the leaders, found Philadelphia easy, while St. Louis dropped three in a row to the Boston Braves before breaking the Hub jinx.

Faltering pitching and ragged fielding cost Brooklyn two out of three games to Cincinnati, but Dutch Reuther won his eleventh game yesterday, 6-1, and the Dodgers made it two in a row from Chicago.

DOWN IN FRONT

BECAUSE the stands at the baseball park were not properly police Sunday, a fight between two persons who had been arguing over the right of one to stand in the aisle-way in front of other persons who could not see the field ensued.

ALL along the aisles in front of the grandstands and bleachers which were crowded, persons flocked to the wires, standing up and blocking the view of those who had paid for seats and had come early. Persons sitting on the third, second and first tiers of seats could not see the field for those who stood up in front of them.

* * *

ONE man, growing angry because a boy standing in front of him refused to move, shoved the boy aside and precipitated the fight. The principals were arrested by officers who rushed onto the grounds to stop the battle.

With insufficient policemen on duty around the stands, other similar occurrences are likely to happen. The baseball management should provide for the proper policing of the stands during the games.

LUQUE HOLDS GIANTS TO TWO HITS

NEW YORK, June 11.—Luque held New York to three hits today, two of them scratches, but Stengel's homer in the seventh proved enough for the Giants to win, 2 to 1. Bohne's fumble let in the other New York run. Meusel was put out of the game in the second inning after an argument with Umpire Sentell. Score:

Salm Adds Valuable Hurler When Bailey Purchased From Cards

EXPORTER ACE OF LAST YEAR DUE ANY TIME

Deal Completed By Wire Sunday Afternoon

By "Spike" Cooper

Fans around the players bench noticed Manager Salm receive a telegram during the fourth inning yesterday afternoon.

Many had a "hunch" that it meant something good. And this it did.

Following the game, Salm announced that Bill Bailey, left hander de-luxe, had been purchased from the Cards.

This is the consumation of a rumored deal which has been on the streets for a number of days. The announcement brought much joy to the fans, since Bailey is recognized as one of the greatest hurlers ever shown in Athletic park.

The Cards are now playing in the east and it will be three or four days before the new flinger arrives, but he is expected in time to work at least one game before the club departs for another jaunt around the south horn next Monday.

Bailey's record with a tail-end club last year shows that he allowed 2.70 earned runs per game and worked in 20 all told. He pitched 15 complete games and was taken out only twice. He fanned 106 batters and yielded up 46 passes in the 146 innings pitched.

The Cardinals took him over at the close of the season, and many prognosis that he would make the grade, but old arms came through and he was thereby made available.

Some member of the present staff will feel the axe, but since Salm has five days after the arrival of the new hurler, there is not time for many changes on the part of those now drawing a semi monthly stipend from the Spudder management.

RUTH AND KEN GO HITLESS IN YANKEE GAIN

Baker Back After Short Stay In Hospital

By Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—Urban Shocker lost his second straight game to the New York Yankees here today 8 to 4, the Browns failing to aid him in the "Iron Man" stunt. Ruth and Williams, home run sluggers, went hitless. Sisler was easily the batting and fielding star of the game, although his mate, Tobin, scored a home run. Hoyt was stingy when the bags were occupied. On other occasions he was as wild as Shocker. Baker, who was hit by a pitched ball yesterday and who later went to a hospital for treatment, played part of today's game. His injury did not prove serious.

The local attendance record of 29,000 was broken today. Club officials estimated the paid attendance at 31,000 or over. Score:

COTTON SHOWS MORE STRENGTH

July Trades As Low As 20.05

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 11.—Pronounced strength was shown by cotton last week, lowest prices being made on the opening session, when the trading months were sent 34 to 52 points under the close of the preceding week, while the highest prices were made on the closing session when the list stood 179 to 202 points higher than the finals of the preceding week. The net results on the close were gains of 171 to 198 points.

July traded as low as 20.05, as high as 22.52, and closed at 22.48. As the market advanced in the later sessions of the week it constantly broke into new high ground for the season. In the spot department prices gained 175 points on middling in the net results, middling closing at 22.25, which compared with 11.38 as the closing price a year ago. Continued unfavorable weather over a good part of the week and a steady flow of boll weevil complaints were the outstanding bullish features of the week.

Cloudy, wet and cool weather was reported over large areas and complaints that it was retarding cultivation of the crop resulted, while such conditions increased the fear of extensive weevil depreciations a little later on. As it was, many of the earlier districts in the belt claimed, in messages to brokerage houses here, that the weevils already were attacking the young plant and were puncturing squares about as fast as they formed.

In the latter part of the week the increasing strength of the statistical situation and highly favorable reports from mill and cotton goods centers had their effect and helped to send prices to new high levels. A better demand for cotton goods was reported, with more new business in sight.

FOREIGN LOANS FLOATED HERE

Civic Bonds Also Are Sold

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 11.—New underwritings last week approximated $85,000,000, about $15,000,000 under the weekly average recorded in the early months of the year.

Foreign or international flotations were again the foremost features. These were chiefly represented by the republic of Brazil, $25,000,000 30 year, 7 per cent electrification bonds, a city of Greater Prague, $7,500,000 thirty year 7 1-2 per cent issue and a City of Montevideo (Uruguay) $6,000,000 thirty year 7 per cent bond, all of these being easily absorbed.

Other offerings of the week embraced $2,000,000 City of Philadelphia 4's, sold on a 3.90 per cent basis; $3,000,000 state of Colorado highway 5s on a 4.20 per cent basis and $1,000,000 state of Alabama highway and bridge, 4 1-2s yielding about 4.30 per cent.

There was marked let-down in offerings of industrials and utilities. The total for the former amounting to $10,500,000 and $10,000,000 for the latter.

Prospective foreign projects include a sizeable loan to Jugo-Slovakia, the details of which are now being worked out in London whose bankers are expected to participate. Fully a half score of other international loans are being actively discussed.

Sharp reaction in Mexican government bonds were precipitated by reports that the conference here with representatives of that government had met with unexpected obstacles. The tone of the general bond market other than Liberties, which held their ground in the face of another large issue of this year's certificates of indebtedness, was irregular later showing marked heaviness in several of the speculative groups.

Quotations for rails, industrials and utilities displayed much confusion, the trend for the most part following the sharp setbacks sustained by leaders in the stock market. Among the few exceptions were some of the junior rails which continued to be mentioned as prospective participants in mergers or traffic agreements designed to effect economy of operation.

14 VOLUNTEERS FOR SERVICE

Epworth League Meet Classes

With 15 leaguers volunteering for life service in either home or foreign missions, in the consecration service Sunday night, the 1922 session of the North Texas conference of the Epworth League of the South Methodist church came to a close. There have been between 200 and 250 leaguers from out of the city, and a large number of Wichita Falls leaguers in attendance daily. The conference was declared by officers and leaders from various parts of the district, to be one of the best in the history of the organization, and much satisfaction and pleasure was expressed at the hospitality extended by Wichita Falls leaguers and the city in general.

Sunday was full of interesting meetings for the conference. The closing service was that in which the 14 young men and young women pledged themselves to some definite mission service for life. Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker preached the consecration sermon, his subject being "Life's Great Choices."

Rev. E. W. Anderson, returned missionary from Korea also spoke, giving a number of personal experiences in connection with his work in Korea.

Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock memorial services were held for two great Methodists who had meant much to the Epworth League, and who had died since the 1921 conference—Bishop Walter R. Lambuth and Rev. C. C. Young.

By a rather unusual coincidence, which lent additional solemnity to the memorial service, Dr. Thurman Stewart of Sherman, gave a memorial address for Bishop Lambuth, who five years ago, in the same First Methodist church of Wichita Falls had received the pledge of the young man to give his life to foreign mission work.

Dr. Stewart is to go to Africa as a medical missionary in a few months. Bishop Lambuth was one of the principal speakers at the first conference held in Wichita Falls five years ago, and conducted the consecration service at which Dr. Stewart made the life service pledge.

A memorial address was also given for Rev. Young who died in October, 1921. Dr. Young had been actively interested in the young people's work, and was the donor of the C. C. Young cup, given for efficiency.

Miss Ceta Mendow of Sherman, was in charge of the memorial service.

At 5:30 the conference was entertained with a social meeting, the Gainesville leaguers acting as hosts. The program consisted of readings by Mary Jane Black of this city, and Sim Acton of Whitesboro. The Gainesville male octet sang a number of songs with Miss New on as accompanist.

The feature of the program was a stunt "The Music Studio" with W. H. Rice as Professor Rewski the music teacher assisted by about 15 Gainesville leaguers. After a number of take-offs on music students and teachers peculiarities, the class sang a league song.

Refreshments of punch were served. There were about two hundred and fifty present.

The christening of the Wichita Falls district automobile, a new Chevrolet just put into service, was another feature of the closing day's program. The prize for the name went to W. M. Vernon of Hoxland, who suggested "The Chevyleague."

The machine was formally christened with its new name by Ralph E. Nollner of Greenville. Milk was the fluid used, poured from one of the conference loving cups.

Veteran Denies Star-Telegram Item

Special to the Record News.

VERNON, Texas, June 11.—J. A. Crenor, commander of the local post of confederate veterans, denies emphatically the sponsoring of a front page news story appearing in the last Friday issue of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram to the effect that Vernon old soldiers would boycott the Denver railroad unless a one cent fare was granted for the reunion in Richmond.

SUNDAY WEDDING

J. A. Childs and Miss Hortense Wells were married yesterday afternoon by Rev. Datson at the residence of C. S. Burnett, 1723 Collins street. The ceremony was performed at 3:00 o'clock.

The couple plan to leave Wichita Falls June 15 for an extensive trip in California and other sections of the west.

YESTERDAY

TODAY

Mary Miles Minter In New Scandal; This Time She Causes Arrest Right Here On Streets Of Wichita Falls

Possibly it was the fact that the sight of Mary Miles Minter on a large bill poster, minus even the lingerie that she should have had on, caused the big man to stop and pause.

And possibly it was the fact that along that route he must take his stand most of the time that Officer Graham of the police force took up his position directly across the street from where Mary Miles Minter's delicate shoulders were boldly displayed to the public view.

Anyway, the big officer stopped just across the street from the bill board at the corner of Tenth and Scott. But he wasn't apparently interested in Mary.

Perhaps he had forgotten that Mary's picture—her own likeness was displayed there, minus the negligee and lingerie—the famous apparel that wore the mark "M. M. M." that was said to have been found in Taylor's apartment with certain letters to which had been affixed: "I love you. I love you. I love you."

To be sure he had forgotten that important factor in Mary's young and unsophisticated career, the officer didn't seem to realize that Mary couldn't afford to be displaying the aforementioned lingerie in her poster of "The Heart Specialist" when that same wearing apparel was mixed up in so important a case as the Taylor murder mystery.

But a twinkle of mirth played about his eyes as he took up his stand there, anyway, and it seemed to be connected with the poster.

And then a big automobile shot around the corner and Mrs. C. F. Cavanaught tugged at her husband's coat sleeve and said:

"Oh, there's the picture I want to see!"

One glance at the picture of Mary, pasted there against the bill board was sufficient to have turned the mind of any careful, discreet driver.

It did turn the careful Mr. Cavanaught's mind—it did more than that—it turned his head.

The car suddenly forgot its course, too, and, unlike faithful old Dobin and the one-hoss shay, took a trail headed direct for the bill board.

"Hey, there, watch where you're driving!"

It was the officer who had spoken. He had shouted his warning to Mr. Cavanaught and a few minutes later the latter had been arrested for—no, not for gazing at mary, but for cutting the corner.

The next day was Monday, and Cavanaught slipped quietly into the room where corporate court is held and said to the court:

"I plead guilty, your honor."

"Fined $5," was the terse remark, and another great epoch had been marked down in history, as well as another credit to Mary's career and her latest picture.

Mother Wants To Know What Has Become Of Klan

The Record News received a letter yesterday signed "A Mother" asking "What has become of the Ku Klux Klan in Wichita Falls?"

The letter states a belief of the klan as a protector of the innocent and punisher of the guilty.

But she adds, the innocent girls of Wichita Falls are ruthlessly mistreated by married men of the city whom she describes as "dirty and cowardly."

The author does not feel that light jail and penitentiary sentences are a remedy for the situation which now seems to prevail, and asks consideration from "the protectors of the innocent."

TWO FIRE ALARMS

Two alrams of fire called the department out Saturday.

The first call was to a small residence on Seventh street which was destroyed at a property loss of approximately $750. The building was reported fully protected from loss by insurance. Firemen attribute the blaze to the effects of an overheated stove.

The second alarm, early in the evening, was turned in when near-by residents feared disastrous results from a trash fire at Avenue C and Monroe street. Firemen found the blaze had already been extinguished when they arrived.

Paper Asked Aid In Removing Dog

To the Editor:

Some one shot and killed a dog Saturday evening and left it lying in the alley near Seventh street, just in the rear of the White House Meat market. I, as well as others, have asked two policemen to have the dog removed. So far, nothing has been done. It is not only unpleasant, but unsanitary.

Will you please assist us in having the dog removed to his proper resting place?

Mrs. A. D. Anderson, Mrs. Mark Walker and children, and Miss Flora Bruce Greenwood left Saturday night for California points where they will spend the summer. Some of the Wichita Falls newspapers have said that they are going to create a road district from Jolly west to the county line, and then issue roads bonds. They may create the district, but we will wait till the returns are all in before we publish about the issuance of bonds.—Henrietta Independent.

A test of the senatorial reristricting law is being made by J. D. Parnell, who wants to be a candidate for the state senate from this district. The law as enacted does not go into effect until 1924, and it is this provision that is being attacked in the courts, with the idea of making it effective at once so that an entirely new senate may be elected next November.—Henrietta Independent.

We are for barring cushions from baseball grand stands. If a fellow is not interested enough in a ball game to sit out on a plain plank, then let him stay away. Down at Wichita Falls last Saturday a fan put his cigarette down on a seat cushion and set it afire, resulting in the burning of the grand stand and sixty automobiles parked longside it. The cigarette fiend must have his coke, and smokes and inflammable cushions are dangerous when combined. Banish the cushion. Pad your pants if you can't endure the bare plank seat.—Henrietta Independent.

M. B. Holt has rented the residence of S. M. Brightwell on North Main street. Mr. and Mrs. Brightwell have removed to Wichita Falls.—Henrietta Peoples Independent.

Miss Annette Walsh will present Doris and Dorothy McDonald in a joint piano recital, with Mrs. Thompson, soprano, of Wichita Falls assisting, this Friday evening at the Methodist church at 8 p. m. The public is cordially invited to her this musical program.—Henrietta Peoples Independent.

Cullen F. Thomas of Dallas, candidate for the United States senate has written to friends here stating that he will speak at Bellevue in the near future, the date being announced later. Mr. Thomas is quite well known by some of our people, having at one time lived a neighbor in Tennessee to Mr. W. M. Flowers and W. T. Wilson of this place.—Bellevue News.

Miss Myrtle Jetton visited in Wichita Falls and Burburnett, last week.—Bellevue News.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, editor of the Record News at Wichita Falls, came through the city Saturday and had a few words with the Review. They were returning from a visit to Fort Worth and Dallas. Lady drives the car; gentleman admires the landscape, takes in the growing crops, waves and smiles at cars met. Dr. A. D. Patillo has returned from a three weeks' visit in St. Louis and Chicago.

Miss Lucy Caldwell, representative of the C. A. Bryant School Supply company of Dallas, arrived in Wichita Falls Saturday to conduct business with county schools. She will remain in this city until tonight.

SUMMER SUIT

By ELOISE.

With travel expenses down a bit and lake trips and tours through beautiful mountain regions beckoning on every hand a rather different clothes problem is presented to the modern girl from the one of a generation ago. Time was when summer vacation meant a summer resort hotel in the country or at the seashore. Party frocks, thin, airy, lacey affairs, for dances and afternoon teas and formal luncheons were what went into the vacation trunk along with a lovely bathing suit and a few simple morning costumes all of the frilly type.

Today, however, the summer girl does not even pack a trunk. A suitcase is all she will bother with and it is either strapped to the side of the machine or carried onto boat or train and she is off for parts unknown or unseen. A suit is the main garment in her wardrobe with perhaps a dark silk frock or for dinner wear after the trip or actual traveling is over. This suit of gray homespun is ideal for such a vacation. With a goodly supply of fresh blouses a woman may defy the stains of travel and always appear immaculate. A silk frock with a silk cape to match may be packed in a very small space and with these clothes a woman is ready for any affair which her trip may bring forth.

8 CONFIRMED HERE SUNDAY

Good Shepherd Is Consecrated

Consecration of the Church of the Good Shepherd, with celebration of the communion, and confirmation of a class of eight at the night service, was celebrated Sunday by Bishop Harry T. Moore, bishop-coadjutor of the Episcopal diocese of Dallas.

The rendition of special music by local artists served to enhance the beauty of the services for the church on both occasions. At the morning service Bishop Moore's sermon dealt particularly with the significance of the consecration of the church, and at night his sermon was directed primarily to the confirmation class.

Those presented for confirmation by Rev. F. T. Datson, the rector, at the evening service, were: Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Waelder, W. E. Hunter, Francis P. Bowman, Mrs. Earl Senning, Miss Dorothy Reid, Miss Mildred Reid, Miss Gloria Davis.

HAY CROP IS 92 PCT. NORMAL

Alfalfa Increase Is Shown

With the ranges of West Texas in ideal shape—in fact they have seldom been better than they are this year—the hay crop, one of the largest crops of the country, is 92 per cent of normal. This information, which applies to both the tame and wild varieties, is contained in an official report on crop statistics for Texas just received in Wichita Falls, and giving the condition as of June 1.

A slight increase in alfalfa acreage is reported, due to growth in the irrigated sections of west Texas. The condition of this crop is 93.

It has been a number of years since the Texas cattle ranges were in as good condition as they are today. Although the dry fall and winter gave the grass a slow start, the growth has been rapid since February and it is today in very fine condition.

The wheat crop for the state as a whole is only 65 per cent of normal, a drop since the report of a month ago. The Panhandle, however, seems to have fared better than the state as a whole, being largely free from the crop damage reported as a result of incessant rains. An average of 11 bushels per acre is predicted from the state as a whole, or a yield of 11,253,000 bushels from the 1,023,000 standing for harvest.

Oats, with planting retarded by dry weather in the fall and by wet weather in the spring, is reported 78 per cent of normal. Most of the crop is reported rusted little or badly, the stand is thin in many sections and has not headed evenly and has sustained rain and flood damage in many places. A prospective yield of 29.41, with a total production expected at 48,262,000 bushels.

WHEAT GRADING COUNCIL HERE

Frederick Experts Coming

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., June 11.—For the purpose of receiving expert advice on the standardization and best kinds of seed wheat to plant in this county, a conference between J. A. Mathis of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce, County Agent S. D. Johnson, a committee from the Tillman county farm council and Frank Kell of Wichita Falls has been arranged for Monday, at Wichita Falls.

Wheat from this county grades low on account of the fact that so many different varieties are mixed by buyers, it is said. The farm council has launched a move to standardize the wheat of the county.

It is also thought that seed wheat raised here lacks certain qualities that are essential for high grade milling wheat.

BURK YOUTHS GIVE PROGRAM

Next Meeting Place Not Fixed

At 6 o'clock an intermediate league program was given by the Burkburnett leaguers at the Epworth league meeting. The principal part of the program was a pantomime, "Will the Circle Be Broken?" arranged by Miss Nettie Lee Allison of Burkburnett. The pantomime was divided into six parts.

"The Family Circle Unbroken," "Little Sister's Death," "Big Brother's Farewell," "Big Sister as a Bride," "The Barroom Experience" and "Will the Circle Be Unbroken?"

The concluding business, resolutions and other details were attended to in the afternoon. Resolutions of thanks to the local churches, the leagues, and all others who had shown hospitality, to the newspaper for their reports, and to all others concerned in any way, were read and passed.

The place of the next meeting will be left to the cabinet, by decision earlier in the conference. Invitations will be received for 30 days, and decision on the 1923 meeting place announced in August, it was announced Sunday.

There were a total of 258 out of town leaguers registered during the five-day session. The programs included many prominent figures in Methodism, both in young people's work and in the general activities of the church.

Where Can You Get Such Value?

Did you ever stop to consider that in point of convenience your gas service is one of the greatest money values you can buy today?

Take a family of five persons living in an eight-room house and using gas service exclusively for a typical winter's month. What is the probable record of service performed?

Ninety meals cooked in about 75 hours, a saving in time of at least two full days over the old coal stove.

Four thousand gallons of water heated automatically.

Heat for the entire house, either room heaters or central automatic heating boiler.

No coal, no smoke, no ashes, no soot, no fumes, no stove or furnace feeding.

Saving effected in linens, draperies, rugs, upholstery, wall paper, furniture and clothes.

Strength and health conserved, the atmosphere made wholesome, drudgery eliminated, leisure assured.

Yet for all these manifold benefits, the average bill for gas service is one of the least expensive items, one of the smallest necessary outlays, in the household budget.

Think it over! Is there any other service at your disposal that gives so much for so little money as this one?
