Debris found, boycott begins...

Soviet explanation 'unacceptable'

By The Associated Press

The Soviet Union reported today it found debris in international waters from the South Korean jetliner it shot down a week ago. Secretary of State George P. Shultz met the Soviet foreign minister and called the Soviet explanation for the attack "totally unacceptable."

"The foreign minister's response to me was even more unsatisfactory," than previous statements, Shultz told reporters after the two hour session. "I find it totally unacceptable...this is not the end of the matter."

An airline boycott of the Soviet Union, meanwhile, continued to escalate with British Airways cancelling all flights to Moscow for 60 days and French, Italian and Norwegian pilots saying they would stop flying to the Soviet Union next week.

The Soviet ambassador to Japan, Vladimir Pavlov, pinpointed four sites where the jetliner's debris was found in international waters north of Moneron Island, Japanese Foreign Ministry officials said. Moneron Island is about 30 miles west of the Soviet island of Sakhalin, site of major defense installations.

The Korean Air Lines Boeing 747 carried 269 people when it was shot down Sept. 1. Pavlov said no survivors or bodies had been recovered as of Tuesday, according to Japanese officials. He promised to turn the debris from the plane over to the Japanese government.

In Madrid, Shultz met with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko to demand a full explanation of the attack. The session had been planned to consider arms control, but Shultz said he would rule out any topic except the shooting down of the jetliner.

British Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe, in Madrid with other foreign ministers for the Conference on European Security and Cooperation, said air travel sanctions were being considered that would "express the common sense of revulsion around the world."

Pilots' groups in West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Denmark and Switzerland said they would join a 60-day boycott on flights to the Soviet Union but have not announced a date to begin their action. No U.S. airlines fly to Moscow.

The pilots' boycott was called for Tuesday by their world governing body, the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associa-

British Airways has four scheduled flights a week to Moscow, Italy's Alitalia has one, Air France has seven and Scandinavian Airlines System has two flights a week from Oslo. British Airways said its last flight to Moscow would be today's.

Protests against the attack continued. Hundreds of angry Korean Canadians chanted "Soviet murderers" outside the British Embassy in Ottawa.

Saving energy is study's goal

Finding ways to save energy costs for 13 campus buildings at Western Texas College will be the goal of a year-long study approved here Thursday.

To finance the project, trustees for WTC gave the go-ahead at a special breakfast meeting for local funds to match energy grant dollars already approved.

A total of some $66,000 will now be available although college officials point out this is a maximum figure and all funds may not be required.

Whatever the final cost, it will be shared equally between grant monies and college funds.

Concerning the local match, college officials say they feel it is money well spent, since the goal of the study is to cut energy costs.

Regarding this, the study will be designed to pay for itself over a five-year period through reduced energy bills.

The college received word recently that its grant application for a maximum of $33,260 in federal funds had been approved.

It is sponsored through the U.S. Dept. of Energy and the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council.

The board decision Thursday basically accepts this grant and pledges an equal amount of local funds.

Gay Hickman, WTC vice president in charge of business and finance, will now attend a workshop Sept. 21 to learn procedures required to implement the program.

The next step will be to advertise for bids from energy engineering firms to complete the campus study.

Funds already pledged will be used only for the study. Any equipment changeouts or additions identified through the study will be separate cost items, Hickman noted.

Farm, ranch tour due

The 1983 Scurry County Farm and Ranch Tour is planned Monday and will begin at 9 a.m. at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Buses will be furnished for the transportation and a noon barbecue meal will be served.

The tour is sponsored by the Scurry County Extension Office along with the Scurry County Field Crops Committee and the Scurry County Livestock and Range Committee.

The tour will include demonstrations and programs on mesquite and prickly pear control, cotton variety yield test, cotton fertilization, cattle brucellosis regulations and a cotton boll weevil report. The Von Roeder Seed Farm will also be included on the tour.

Two ag specialists from Agricultural Research and Extension Centers in the state are included on the program.

Dr. James Supak, extension cotton specialist, will present the programs on "Cotton Fertilization," and "Weed Control in Cotton." Dr. Supak is stationed at the research center in Lubbock.

Dr. J.F. Cadenhead, extension range and brush control specialist, will present the program on "Mesquite and Prickly Pear Control." Dr. Cadenhead is from the Vernon research and extension station.

Local resource people including Dr. Charles Church, local veterinarian; Deanna Myers, county extension entomologist; and Marvin Ensor, county agent, will assist with programs on the tour.

A free barbecue lunch will be served to tour participants at the Scurry County Coliseum in meeting room A. The tour and educational programs are expected to be completed by 2:15 p.m. All area farmers and ranchers are invited to attend.

Buses for the tour will be furnished by the Snyder Independent School District. In addition, donations from local sponsors have provided both transportation and meal costs. These include Snyder National Bank, First National Bank, West Texas State Bank, Snyder Savings and Loan and Production Credit Assn.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If you want to flatter somebody, just look serious and ask what he thinks of the general situation."

It came as no surprise, but at least we have a clinical explanation for the differences between the male and the female.

Husbands and wives have known about the difference for centuries, but there are as many explanations as there are women. Now a physical anthropologist working at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Dallas has discovered a physical difference between the male and female brain.

We suspect this is what cause men to fight and reach for the check in a restaurant while the gals methodically split the tab down to the penny. We've even seen the gals check the figures with a pocket calculator.

Then there are the other obvious differences. It must be the reason that tears come easily to the eyes of the girls, while men generally hold those emotions inside—sometimes for years—and die earlier from some stress-related malady.

Women never forget birthdays and anniversaries. They remember every selection that Mary or Johnny played at the recital. Likely, the husband had to be reminded of the recital and was 10 minutes late.

Blame it on the brain. Women will spend hours shopping, trying on every shoe in the store. It may be the last time the husband personally bought shoes was the time he went out of town for a funeral and forgot to pack his "Sunday shoes." Now the husband has two pair of shoes while the wife fills both closets with her footwear.

The difference, for whatever it means, is the corpus callosum. That is a bundle of fibers connecting the right brain with the left brain, and it is said to be larger in human females than in males—even in the fetus. The corpus callosum is involved in communications between the hemispheres of the brain, although the specific function is unknown.

The doctor who made the discovery drew no conclusions, but she did note that men's brains are larger than women

No need to comment on that one...

Navy in action in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.S. Navy went into action in Lebanon for the first time today, teaming up with Marine artillery to pound Druse gunners who shelled Beirut airport again in violation of a cease-fire pledge.

"We hit the target that we aimed at," Warrant Officer Charles Rowe said after the Marines joined the frigate Bowen in blasting militia positions southeast of the airport that fired on the Marine compound.

Rowe said the Navy and Marines retaliated at 12:45 p.m. — 6:45 a.m. EDT — as the airport was under renewed shelling.

He said the Bowen fired four rounds of high explosives from its five-inch guns and the Marines fired six rounds from a 155mm battery.

On Wednesday, U.S. and French jet fighters streaked over Lebanon for the first time in a warning to Druse gunners who killed two French peacekeeping troops and wounded a Marine.

Partition thought effective

N'DJAMENA, Chad (AP) — The French military intervention in Chad has produced, for the moment, the outcome most feared by President Hissene Habre — the effective partition of his country.

Three weeks after Paris sent a task force to its former colony, the dividing line between the Libyan-backed rebels and French-propped government forces is frozen and the fighting virtually at a standstill.

Foul play is not suspected

HOUSTON (AP) — The results of an autopsy have not been released, but no foul play was suspected in the death of the widow of a U.S. astronaut, authorities said.

Patricia F. Davis, the wife of the late Apollo astronaut Edward H. White II, was found dead Tuesday at her home when her current husband returned from a trip, police said.

White died along with astronauts Virgil "Gus" Grissom and Roger B. Chaffee when a fire broke out in their Apollo IV capsule on the launch pad on Jan. 27, 1967. The fire set back the U.S. space program for months.

White also was the first American to walk in space, having flown in the two-man Gemini IV capsule in 1965.

Former sheriff said he 'tried to help' inmates

HOUSTON (AP) — A former deputy sheriff said he once hit a prisoner with a blackjack in self defense, but denied he ever tortured anyone brought in for questioning about a crime.

"The only way I violated their rights was to try to help them," said former San Jacinto County sheriff's deputy Carl Lee. "I was trying to keep them straight."

Lee, former sheriff James C. "Humpy" Parker and former deputies Floyd Baker and John Glover are accused in federal court of violating the civil rights of prisoners who said they were shackled, beaten and water-tortured.

Lee testified Wednesday he hit James Hicks, 33, with a blackjack on the side of the face after he heard Hicks "severely cursing" Baker and after Hicks spit in Lee's face and kicked him in the groin.

"I hit him because he attacked me," Lee said of Hicks.

Hicks testified Tuesday he was shackled, beat and water tortured by Lee and Baker.

Lee, the first defendant to take the witness stand in the case, also testified he had never heard Parker or Glover threaten or abuse prisoners.

Lee, Parker, Glover and Baker are accused in a six-count indictment of depriving people of liberty without due process of law and with conspiring to violate civil rights.

The case is set to continue Friday after a recess today because of the Jewish holiday.

Also Wednesday, the attorney for a former jail inmate who testified that San Jacinto officers nearly drowned him in a torture session said the defendant never told him about the alleged abuse.

Conroe lawyer J. Ritchie Field, who represented Vernell Harkless in two burglary cases in 1977, said his client never mentioned water torture.

But a defense lawyer for Baker conceded such treatment "was used not only in San Jacinto County but in others in East Texas."

In a statement to jurors

as defense attorneys began presenting witnesses, defense lawyer Ed Mallett said such treatment was reserved for serious criminals and used only to recover stolen property.

Field said he might not have allowed Harkless to enter guilty pleas to the two offenses if he had thought "some sort of coercion was involved."

Harkless testified Sept. 1 that lawmen handcuffed him to a chair, covered his face with a towel and doused his head with water until he "thought he was going to suffocate to death."

Four other men told of similar incidents during the prosecution phase of the trial.

Harkless testified there were three such treatments during two days while he was a prisoner in the Walker County jail in September 1976. He said Parker, Glover, Walker County Sheriff Darrell White and two other deputies were present.

White testified Wednesday he authorized San Jacinto County lawmen to visit Harkless, but said he did not accompany them.

Harkless eventually pleaded guilty to charges in San Jacinto County, receiving two years' probation on one count and a year in jail for a misdemeanor charge reduced from a felony, Field said.

Field said that at the time, Harkless faced "30 to 40 home burglary charges" in East Texas.

'They'll never get me to trial,' Lucas vows

MONTAGUE, Texas (AP) — A drifter who claimed to have killed 100 women in 16 states and later tried to commit suicide vows that he'll never be brought to trial.

"They won't get me to trial. I can promise that," former mental patient Henry Lee Lucas told the Wichita Falls Record-News during a recess in a pre-trial hearing Wednesday.

"If I had my way, I wouldn't be here now," the 47-year-old drifter said, holding up his bandaged left wrist, the result of a suicide attempt in jail Sunday in which he slashed himself with a broken light bulb.

"I'll never make it to trial. I done told them that," Lucas said.

Lucas, who is charged with the murders of six Texas women and four women in other states, sat passively in the Montague County courtroom Wednesday as his court-appointed attorney, Don Maxfield of Wichita Falls, sought to suppress the numerous statements Lucas has given law enforcement officers about women he says he has killed.

State District Judge Frank Douthitt ordered the hearing continued today.

Douthitt said Wednesday he would probably order a change of venue in Lucas' case because of pre-trial news coverage. But he postponed a hearing on that move, scheduled for Wednesday, until Sept. 14.

Lucas pleaded innocent after he was charged here with the slaying of 80-year-old Kate Rich of Ringgold. His car was found abandoned near Needles, Calif., a few days after he and Mrs. Rich disappeared in September 1982 from Montague County.

Maxfield said authorities violated Lucas' rights by questioning him repeatedly from Oct. 18 to Oct. 24, 1982 without his having appeared before a magistrate. Maxfield said that violated the Texas Criminal Code, which requires that a suspect be brought "without undue delay" before a magistrate.

Lucas' attorney also seeks to have a search warrant used to look at Lucas' car last year invalidated.

Lucas was indicted Tuesday by a Fort Bend County grand jury in Richmond in the stabbing death of Deion Marie Wilkinson. The body of Ms. Wilkinson, who was 22, was found March 4, 1981 under the Brazos River bridge near Richmond.

Lucas led authorities about two weeks ago to the scene where the nude body was found.

Wants to lift weights

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a very healthy 16-year-old male, 5 feet 10 inches tall and weigh 145 pounds. I am considering gradual weight lifting along with my regular exercise program.

I understand that one must be careful and not overdo it and am hesitant to do any major weight lifting until my growth is completed and my bones and joints have matured into adult form.

Currently I perform push-ups, chin ups and moderate exercises to help strengthen my back, stomach, leg and arm muscles. At what age should one perform moderate weight lifting and under what circumstances? I still seem to be shooting up in height. I have read countless times that people my age have stunted their growth when they started to work out with weights.

DEAR READER — There is legitimate concern that strenuous lifting programs before the bones are mature may damage the cartilaginous areas or growth plates in the long bones. And it can cause injuries to the spine as well.

That does not mean weight lifting is completely out of the question. It means, according to a recent recommendation by the American Academy of Pediatrics, that you should avoid maximum efforts. About 70 percent of the maximum effort is the top. The academy is opposed to young people like yourself doing Olympic lifting (clean-and-jerk and the snatch) or power lifting (dead lift, bench press or squat).

You should certainly avoid these maximum efforts until your growth spurt is over, which should be after you are 18 at least. The only sure way to know that growth is over is to have X-rays of the long bones to see if the cartilaginous growth plates have calcified. That is a way of telling your bone age which may not be the same as your chronological age.

But you can do light lifting and strength training. I'm sending you The Health Letter 5-4, Weight Training For Energy and Weight Control, which will give you some basic guidelines. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been puzzled by what seems to be a discrepancy. You hear the skin is a "natural barrier" and that therefore all the creams and lotions that we apply and which contain beneficial ingredients like vitamin A, estrogens, collagens, etc. are not absorbed and do absolutely no good.

At the same time we are told that many harmful chemicals such as insecticides should be washed off the skin immediately as they can be absorbed. In one of your columns you said that pHisoHex can penetrate the skin and kill bacteria.

Why is it that only harmful things can be absorbed and not those which may have a beneficial effect?

DEAR READER — The world is not really plotting against you. It isn't as simple as you might think. A lot of good things are absorbed through your skin, including medicines such as nitroglycerin to relieve heart pain or the new medicated pads that are slowly absorbed to control motion sickness.

The skin is analogous to a screen. Some things are chemically small enough to get through. Others, such as collagen, which is a protein, are too large to get through. Then those things which are solvents are more able to get through. Fortunately, not all bad things get through and not all good things are prevented from absorption. It depends upon the chemical characteristics of the substance in question. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

H&R Block Course Begins

H&R BLOCK is offering a Basic Income Tax Course starting September 8.

There will be a choice of morning or evening classes held at the H&R BLOCK office at 3709 College Ave.

The twelve week course is taught by experienced H&R BLOCK personnel and certificates are their husband's closets and are considered pace-setters. I read where a woman in Chicago wears her husband's boxer shorts to cocktail parties and picnics. I tried wearing my husband's shorts one day behind a locked bathroom door and looked like the runner bringing up the rear in "Chariots of Fire."

I've always admired the woman who is the only one in the room wearing a hat with a veil. Have you any idea the uncommon amount of guts it takes to sieve chip dip through a veil strainer?

Face it, I'm a fashion wimp. In 50 years of dressing myself, I have never taken a firm stand on hemlines. The ones in my closet go from Marlo Thomas in "That Girl" to Diane Keaton in "Annie Hall." Every year I say I am not going to be dictated to by a group of couturiers. But then, every year I promise myself to learn how to pronounce "couturiers" and I've never done that either.

If being conservative has any redeeming advantages, it's that we never throw away anything; ergo, we are always on the fringe of style. Remember that big T-shirt I bought the year we went camping that faded when I washed it with the sleeping bags? All I have to do is rip the shoulder and I'd look like the lead in "Flashdance." But I can't do it.

And I've got all the apparel I saw recently on a girl at the shopping center. She had her jeans and a pair of leg warmers that went all the way up to her hips stuffed into her boots. I could do that. It's just that I don't know where I'd put my legs.

On the few occasions I've dressed a little extreme, I worry about it. Like a couple of Sundays ago, I put a large fake flower in my lapel and wore a wide polka-dotted belt around my skirt. I said to my husband, "This isn't too much, is it?"

He shook his head. "I wouldn't worry. That woman over there is wearing the same outfit."

I was worried. The woman was Sister Monica. COPYRIGHT 1983 FIELD ENTERPRISES, INC.

No excuse this time

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Most prognosticators make a lot of excuses, ya' know? Not me. I won't even point out that three of the five games I missed last week were by a total of 10 points. Just 10 points. Won't even dwell on it. Just stay off of it. Leave it alone. Untouched. Forgotten, bang, just like that. Three games, 10 points.

One of those I missed was Texas A&M. If there's one thing I've learned picking games, it's that A&M is probably the most unpredictable team in the universe. No team consistently loses to underdogs and yet pulls off upsets like the Aggies. I swear it's TRUE.

But that aside, this week is going to be a lot tougher, folks. A whole lot tougher. How tough is it? So tough that I figure five misses will be great and seven won't be anything to cry about.

Five was the number last week. It's 15 right, five wrong for .750. Anyhow, take a look at this week:

Dunbar at Snyder: We KNOW Snyder can play better than they did against Big Spring. The question is, can they play better than Lubbock Dunbar. My guess is, not at this time. Call it a column-eater if I'm wrong, Tigers...DUNBAR 21, SNYDER 14.

Sweetwater at Abilene: Abilene High ain't no Wylie...EAGLES 21, MUSTANGS 17.

Brownfield at Lamesa: Is this for real? I honestly don't know. A coin flip came up...LAMESA 7, BROWNFIELD 6.

Monahans at Midland Lee: The Lobos surprised almost everybody last week. Don't count on it again...LEE 28, MONAHANS 14.

Pecos at Carlsbad: Most people are picking Carlsbad, but I've got no faith in that 10-9 win over El Paso Austin. I wouldn't mind missing this one all that much...PECOS 17, CARLSBAD 14.

Midland at Andrews: As Abilene is to Wylie, so is Midland to Seminole. Call it closer, though...REBELS 21, MUSTANGS 20.

Loop at Ira: The Bulldogs, blessed with a schedule they can grow into, keep winning...IRA 35, LOOP 23.

Hermleigh at Blackwell: Clarence Spieker says Blackwell should be tough this year. Spieker tends to overstate his opponents, but maybe not this time...BLACKWELL 35, HERMLEIGH 29.

Borden Co at Wellman: The Coyotes will show improvement, but they can't howl yet...WELLMAN 34, BORDEN 27.

Texas Tech at Air Force: Air Force won by a point last year. Sounds good enough for a double-dip...AIR FORCE 28, TECH 27.

Kansas at TCU: Texas Christian could probably beat Kansas without Wacker, huh? Say...TCU 27, KANSAS 14.

SMU vs Grambling: The Mustangs are awake now after sleeping through the first half last week...SMU 28, GRAMBLING 7.

Minnesota at Rice: Oh my gosh...MINNESOTA 31, RICE 14.

Miami (Fla) at Houston: Everything points to Miami. Call this an upset pick if you will...HOUSTON 24, MIAMI 14.

Brigham Young at Baylor: If you plan to be in Waco this weekend you better duck...BYU 34, BAYLOR 21.

Florida St. at LSU: FSU has played a tougher-than-expected game. LSU opens its season Saturday but has the home field. Hmm...FSU 24, LSU 21.

Clemson at Boston College: Going against BC at home could be a mistake, but Clemson looks tough...CLEMSON 24, BOSTON COLLEGE 21.

THE PROS: Dallas will defeat St. Louis, 21-17; the Raiders will level Houston, 21-13; and Green Bay will edge Pittsburgh, 17-14.

Girls open district season here tonight

Coach Leslie O'Pry's varsity Tigers open the 1983 district volleyball season here tonight, taking on Fort Stockton at 7:30 in the high school gym.

The night's action will include a freshman game with Levelland at 5:30 and a junior varsity match with Fort Stockton at 6:30. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Snyder brings a 4-4 season record into the match, including back to back losses to Monahans and Midland Lee. The team does not plan to let the past get in the way tonight, however.

"The way we feel, is what we've played is gone now," said team captain Tricia Gregory earlier this week. "What matters now is the next game, Fort Stockton. We're trying to get mentally prepared for them, and we've got some ways to do that."

"The kids are optimistic," said Coach O'Pry. "These kids have never been beaten by Fort Stockton. At the same time they respect them. They saw Fort Stockton prove themselves against Monahans in the San Angelo Tournament," she added, noting that the Panthers pushed Monahans to three games before losing. "We still have confidence we can start off well. Snyder was picked fourth by the (2-4A) coaches poll. It irritated the kids a little but really didn't bother us. It's how it ends up, not how it starts off."

A poll of the District 2-4A coaches came up with the following preseason picks: 1. Monahans, 2. Pecos, 3. Lamesa, 4. Snyder, 5. Fort Stockton (no other teams listed).

Members of the squad are seniors Gregory, Susan Brim, Tracy Fortune, Mona Green, Robin Huntsman and Cari Walker, and juniors Sabrina Sullivan and Gina Vaughn and sophomores Donna Anderson and Vikings vs 49ers...

Football go airborne tonight

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - The San Francisco 49ers and Minnesota Vikings are two teams that still believe in throwing the football - a lot.

"I still believe you win with the forward pass," said 49ers Head Coach Bill Walsh, whose has overseen the most efficient passers in the National Football League over the past three seasons and who will lead the 49ers against the Minnesota Vikings tonight in the Metrodome.

"We still thrive on that. But we're still going for yardage in chunks. When you run the ball so often, you run the risk of trying to win the game by a field goal. Then you have the possibility that an official can throw a flag and lose it for you."

The Vikings also are a passing team and wide receiver Terry LeCount is becoming an integral part of that offense this season. He began his NFL career with the 49ers. In 1979, the 49ers put him on waivers and the Vikings grabbed him.

The Vikings made use of LeCount's many talents and he warmed up in the role of a backup and special teams player.

He has a talent for making the spectacular catch. He occasionally runs out of the backfield on a reverse and, since he was a high school quarterback, he knows how to pass. All those talents might be called upon against the 49ers.

"No more than 10 points has separated the Vikings and 49ers since I became coach here, and I'd guess we'll have the same kind of game Thursday night," Vikings Coach Bud Grant said. "They're as formidable as they ever were."

The Vikings have won the last two meetings, and quarterback Tommy Kramer has been largely responsible. As a rookie in 1977, he threw three fourth-quarter touchdown passes to give Minnesota a 28-27 victory. He threw four in 1979 for a 28-22 victory.

Walsh knows "that you can't let him loose."

The 49ers opened the season last Saturday with a 22-17 loss to Philadelphia. Minnesota beat Cleveland Sunday 27-21.

For San Francisco, quarterback Joe Montana is ready to start after suffering a concussion against Philadelphia.

The game will be nationally televised by ABC-TV at 7:30 p.m. CDT.

Tigers regrouping for battle with Dunbar

It's been back to basics as Snyder High this week, where Coach George Byerly is giving his Tigers a crash course in fundamentals.

"We've had two pretty hard workouts where we haven't talked about Dunbar at all. We've mainly worked on assignments and fundamentals. We thought we beat ourselves more than Big Spring did," Byerly said Wednesday of Snyder's mistake-riddled 26-8 loss to the Steers.

The Tigers were to begin working out specifically for the Panthers Wednesday. The timetable should work, indicated Byerly, because preparing for Dunbar isn't difficult.

"Dunbar is not that complicated. They don't do that many things you have to prepare for, you've just got to be physically ready to stop what they do," he said.

Working against the Tigers this week has been the mental hangover suffered from Friday's loss.

"I think the kids got a little down over it. But they dang sure don't have time to be down," said the coach. "I hope the kids know in their minds that we can still be a good football team. But we will not be with the overall effort and execution we had in the Big Spring game."

Snyder goes into the game with several minor injuries. Mike McCravery is expected to start for Jeff Sisneros on the line, though Sisneros is expected to play some also. Kyle Freeman, junior end, is considered doubtful after suffering a re-injury of an upper leg problem.

"I do expect our team to come back and play well," Byerly added. "I think the kids can play and execute a whole lot better than they did last week. I'm real glad we're home. I hope our fans will get out and get behind this team vocally."

Kickoff is set for 8 p.m. at Tiger Stadium.

Dunbar comes in with a 1-0 record. Snyder is 0-1.

TV characters drinking more

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers who sampled three decades of television shows ranging from "Leave it to Beaver" to "Dallas" conclude that drinking is up during prime time but smoking is down.

Their review of "The Twilight Zone," "Perry Mason," "Alice," "M-A-S-H" — 280½ hours of situation comedies and dramas in all — found a 10-fold drop in TV smoking since 1950. But during the same period, on-the-air drinking has risen dramatically.

The research, published in part in today's New England Journal of Medicine, was conducted by Drs. Warren Breed and James R. De Foe of the Institute for Scientific Analysis in Berkeley, Calif.

"We believe that television producers accepted the idea that smoking is dangerous to your health," Breed said in an interview. "We think they have shown good responsibility to the public in terms of health."

The depiction of drinking, however, was excessive, Breed said. TV often fails to show the consequences of overindulgence and rarely portrays people turning down a drink, he said.

"I would say that television does not handle drinking as responsibly as it could," he said.

The use of booze on TV was unchanged until recent years. Throughout the 1950s, '60s and '70s, actors on the hour-long shows committed an average of four "drinking acts" per hour. But in the early 1980s, this doubled to eight per hour.

In a drinking act, the actor actually takes a gulp on camera or has a glass in his hand.

Breed attributed the increased drinking to the advent of shows like "Love Boat," in which drinking plays a part in the plot.

"A pleasure cruise ship where people weren't drinking would be ridiculous," he said.

The researchers counted all the liquid consumed, not just alcohol, and "people on television drink more alcohol than soft drinks, coffee or water," Breed said. "Drinking on television does not reflect reality."

Cigarette smoking was highest on the hour-long drama shows during the 1950s and early 1960s, when actors puffed an average of 4.4 cigarettes every hour. By 1982, this had dropped to just under a third of a cigarette per hour.

"Characters from all occupational strata smoked, but one profession is noteworthy," the researchers wrote.

Children 8-13...

Sex-for-hire ring shakes city

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (AP) — A children's sex-for-hire ring in this New England town was made up of kids who feel they "aren't wanted," one 12-year-old said, as adults reacted with shock to reports that youngsters aged 8 to 13 sold sexual favors.

"We've been hearing a lot of talk about kids giving their bodies away," said 12-year-old Jeffrey Cleveland.

"I think a lot of them are kids whose mothers say 'go away' — like that — and they feel like they aren't wanted," he said Wednesday.

He said he wasn't surprised to learn that police had broken a ring including 10 youngsters, ages 8 to 13, who had allegedly organized a sex-selling ring for adults last winter.

"I've seen some kids do it. They just go up to people," Jeffrey said matter-of-factly.

Adults in this town of 12,000 didn't take the matter so calmly.

"I was horrified," said resident Douglas Grube. "I wish I knew what was going on because I have two kids in that age group. You immediately begin wondering what your kids have been up to and who they're hanging around with."

Lt. Richard Guthrie, head juvenile officer for the Brattleboro Police Department, said there were no adults in charge of the ring, which involved mostly girls. The activity began last winter and ended last month, he said.

"There's no male pimp... I think it is structured within the peer group," he said.

John Burchard, commissioner of the state Social and Rehabilitative Services department, said the ring began when "an adult approached a child and lured the child into the situation for monetary benefits." Children then began "luring" other children, he said.

Police refused to disclose any information on the children, the details of the sexual activities, how much was charged or where the encounters took place. Guthrie would only say the youngsters were not "running a house."

At a popular downtown video arcade, Instant Replay, a group of young teen-agers smoking cigarettes giggled and nudged each other. "You're a prostitute," teased one. "No, you are," the other answered. "We're all wondering who they are," one girl explained.

"Older kids know sex is for love, but the little kids don't necessarily know that," said Marcy Knapp, 16. "Some kids might do it for attention because a lot of kids don't feel wanted. It's gonna affect them later on, though."

Regional school superintendent James Cusick said all of the youngsters involved attended the district's three elementary schools, which serve four neighboring rural towns as well as Brattleboro.

"I'm discouraged and disappointed," said Cusick. "You don't think of these things happening in Vermont."

School administrators and law enforcement authorities will hold several informational meetings this month to answer parents' questions, Cusick said.

Cyclist escapes in air balloon

MISTLEBACH, Austria (AP) — A famous Czechoslovak cyclist, his wife and their two children flew into Austria early today in a makeshift hot air balloon they secretly built out of raincoats and launched at night, police said.

Police at this northeastern town were unable to provide full identification of the rest of the family but said the husband was Robert Hutyra. He, his wife and their children have asked for asylum, police said.

Hutyra, well known in Czechoslovakia as a former member of its national cycling team, brought his bicycle with him, said a Mistlebach police official.

"They built their balloon at home and started in the dead of night just on the other side of the border," the official said in a telephone interview.

The official, who declined to give his name, said the balloon landed near Drasenhofen, a border village in northeast Austria. "They got out and walked into town, where police were notified," he said.

The official, quoting descriptions from Drasenhofen police, said "the balloon was made of raincoats sown together and was propelled with lit propane," from a canister fastened underneath.

In a similar escape from Communist Eastern Europe, two East German families were carried over the border to northern Bavaria on Sept. 16, 1979, by a makeshift hot air balloon. Of those eight refugees, four were children.

Bias is denied by grand jury

DALLAS (AP) — Members of a grand jury that indicted Dallas County Sheriff Don Byrd earlier this year on a charge of driving while intoxicated are denying Byrd's claim that their action was politically motivated.

Byrd, a Republican who was tried and acquitted of the charge, informed local Republican groups last month in a letter that he is considering running for reelection next year and wanted them to know he should never have been charged.

The sheriff's letter, sent Aug. 18 to 37 men's and women's GOP organizations, claimed the grand jury "was composed almost entirely of Democratic Party workers."

James Heutel, assistant foreman for the grand jury, told the Dallas Times Herald he "was really (expletive) off Saturday morning when I woke up and read that. You know, it's just not true."

Six of the 12 grand jurors denied that party politics entered into their decision. The other six could not be reached by the newspaper.

Heutel insisted there was no politics involved, adding "How could we do anything but indict the man when there are people in jail that were convicted on less evidence than we saw? We had witness after witness."

Nancy Wagner, another grand juror, said that she had been a Democratic Party worker. But she said she supported Byrd in his 1980 election campaign and hosted a gathering at her home so that about 60 people could meet Byrd.

"I had him out here and we put up signs everywhere," she said.

She said that politics had nothing to do with the vote to indict.

Contacted by the newspaper Tuesday, Byrd said he stands by his statement, but declined to reveal the source of information he said he had received to that effect.

Three of the five grand jury commissioners were Democrats, he pointed out. The commissioners recommend individuals for appointment by Democratic District Judge Ron Chapman to the grand jury.

Ellery Queen's stories are good to bad

ELLERY QUEEN'S LOST LADIES. Edited by Ellery Queen & Eleanor Sullivan. Dial. 287 Pages. $12.95.

Here's another volume in the seemingly never-ending flow of Ellery Queen collections.

And like the stories in the previous books, the 25 tales in this one are good, bad and indifferent. The unifying gimmick the editors use this time to tie the stories together is that they deal with "women who are lost, literally or figuratively, in worlds they have chosen or been trapped into."

Although this description by the editors has to be stretched to fit now and again, it does the job most of the time.

Easily the best of the good stories is Shirley Jackson's "This Is the Life." It's a very nicely told tale about a young boy who, while en route by train to his grandparents' home, meets up with an amiable lady thief, and about how the two join together to confuse the police.

Another good job of work is Ellery Queen's "Driver's Seat." It's one of those stories in which the crime is solved by deductive reasoning, but the logic employed is solid and the story satisfying.

Good, but of lesser quality, are "Homecoming" by

Veronica Parker Johns, and Stanley Ellin's "The Betrayers."

At the lower depths are a couple of duds. These are Mabel Seeley's "The House That Nella Lived In," and Avram Davidson's "Thou Still Unravished Bride." It's hard to understand why the editors chose to include them here.

North's jump to four spades is a normal, old-fashioned bid to show 19 or 20 points in support of spades. It is not a preempt. There is no need to shut out opponents when both of them have passed at a low level. It also can't be a stop bid because North has no idea as to what South holds.

In modern bidding it also tells South something else. It tells South that North does not hold a singleton.

South has only 10 high-card points, but they include two aces. South is also looking at a doubleton of North's first-bid suit. South likes his hand and uses Blackwood to check for aces. North shows two, but South wisely decides not to try for seven and to bid merely six. It is a good decision. Not that we haven't seen many worse grand slams, but all in all six is a nice conservative contract.

South wins the club lead and sees that the slam is not guaranteed. There are lots of ways to play the contract, but South follows up his simple bidding with simple play. He draws trumps with three leads and goes after diamonds. They break 4-2 so

South ruffs a diamond, leads a heart to dummy's king, ruffs another diamond with his last trump, cashes the ace of hearts, ruffs a heart with dummy's last trump and scores the slam trick with dummy's fifth diamond.

MOREHEAD, Ky. (AP) — Some boys at Pike County's Outpost School have mixed elements of legend and everyday life in the region to create a fictional character named Thomas Buckskin.

Buckskin, their tale went, once had the strength to lift trucks and move mountains.

But he lost his hair, the source of his strength, when it was caught in the fan of a car he was working on, and the story ended with Buckskin sitting on a mountain and drawing unemployment checks.

The boys had been grade school dropouts, but a teacher was able to capture their attention and fire their imaginations by letting them write about what they knew, said Appalachian educator and historian Jim Wayne Miller.

As schools grow, that kind of individual attention diminishes, Miller told a Conference on Appalachian Children and Families at the recent Appalachian Celebration at Morehead State University.

And without localized teaching, children tend to become part of a national "pseudoculture ... fueled by the media," said Miller, a member of Western Kentucky University's department of languages and intercultural studies.

Miller told the scholars and educators that in small community schools, "teachers knew the parents of the students."

que indica la manera en que quiere votar.

SECCION 7. Las materias electorales enumeradas por Capitulo 213, Leyes de la 64 a Legislatura de Texas, Sesion Regular de 1975, estaran impresas y surtidas en ingles y espanol para usar en el sitio de votacion y por la votacion en ausencia.

SECCION 8. Se les permitira a todos los votantes calificados que residen en dicho Distrito que voten en dicha eleccion.

SECCION 9. Copias substanciales de este Orden en ingles y en espanol sirvan como aviso propio de dicha eleccion, y dara al publicidad dicho aviso por una ves a no menos de diez (10) dias antes de la fecha determinada de dicha eleccion por un diario de circulacion general del dicho Distrito.

When they had problems the teachers would talk about them and figure out what to do."

He said studies had found few neurotic problems among children in such community schools and indicated that "mountain children as a result of experiencing the family as a reality had a firm idea of who they were, where they belonged and what they wanted to be" while urban children were "more uncertain about what they wanted to be."

in their story. All this is free as long as you do not exceed 500 words per household.

Q. — What other options regarding my folks story do I have?

A. — You may purchase extra words at 15 cents per word. Another option is to purchase memorial or tribute space. This space will be made available after we get through with the free sections of our book.

Q. — What will inclusion in the memorial and tribute section cost?

A. — A ¼ page is $80, ½ page is $150 and a full page is $240.

Q. — Why is there a word limit?

A. — Because the Scurry County Book Committee is non-profit and the only way we can provide the free family story section is to control the number of pages we give away.

Q. — Is the county paying for the book?

A. — No, if we succeed in putting together a beautiful book and selling enough before publication, the revenue generated with pre-sold books pays for it.

Q. — Why would I want to buy books before it is printed?

A. — Because that is the only guarantee you have of getting books. Our group is pre-selling books while we are collecting material.

Q. — When is the absolute deadline for stories?

A. — September 16, 1983.

Q. — May I submit more than one story, for instance my grandparents who have a much more colorful history than I do.

A. — Yes, if you pay for the words in the story or buy two books per story turned in.

Q. — How long do I have to buy books?

A. — Not long. The books are only available while we are collecting material.

Q. — Why should I buy more than one book?

A. — There are many reasons. For example, if you have children, how will they share the book in their individual homes after you are gone?

judge is to meet with the full Borden County commissioners court Monday. The fire contract fee is expected to be discussed at that time.

Council members noted Tuesday that the highest figure they were considering would be a "break-even" expense. Due to fees paid each volunteer fireman plus mileage plus equipment wear and tear, each run would likely cost several hundred dollars, it was noted.

The neighboring county is expected to receive fire protection services for its western half from Dawson County and fire personnel based in Lamesa.

In addition, the county has a fire protection contract with O'Donnell fire fighters to the north and has assisted in purchasing the Fluvanna fire truck in exchange for assistance from that neighboring city.

As pointed out during the council discussion, the council is basically receptive to the fire contract "as neighbor helping neighbor."

Fire doused

Local firefighters were called to the Jimmy Hoyle residence at 1311 Ave. R at 7:15 a.m. Thursday to a reported washing machine fire.

Firemen report no damage to any property other than the washing machine itself.

Dear Abby

Niece Feels Defeated By Aunt's Write-In Campaign

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe that I, a 51-year-old successful businesswoman, am actually writing a "Dear Abby" letter, but here I am.

I have an 87-year-old widowed aunt living in an exclusive senior citizens residence. She is educated, well-traveled and "has all her marbles."

The problem: She loves to write letters, so every week I get a letter that runs anywhere from 10 to 15 pages! If I don't answer immediately, she writes and asks if I'm "all right," or if I am angry with her. Lately I've been writing postcards because I don't have time to write long letters.

Today I received a letter from my aunt telling me how "hurt" she is that I'm down to postcards. She also scolded me for not answering all her questions. (Abby, she asks dozens in every letter!)

I know she's my aunt, I know she's old, and I know she's alone. So why do I feel frustration, guilt and anger at this moment? And what should I do about it?

READY TO SCREAM

DEAR READY: You feel frustration, guilt and anger because you would like to say, "Auntie, dear, I'm sorry I don't have time to write long letters, but I think I'm doing well to write a postcard every week. What's more, when you complain, you make me feel guilty."

It would be healthier if you could tell her this. But if you can't, put it on a postcard — with my stamp of approval.

DEAR ABBY: My 3-year-old grandson loves to play with the bare feet of women and girls. He even tries to play with mine. The moment he sees a female's bare feet, he persists in fondling, stroking and hugging them. He puts his face between the feet if possible and carries on as though he is in ecstasy. He gets very excited and his face becomes flushed, which makes me wonder if he could be getting sexually excited by feet.

Do you suppose the boy has some kind of foot fetish? Should this be ignored, discouraged or what?

CONCERNED GRANDMOTHER

DEAR CONCERNED: It's possible that the boy has a foot fetish. If he has, there is no reason to be concerned unless he has other behavioral problems. For the moment, ignore his fondness for feet, but if he shows other signs of unusual behavior, your pediatrician can recommend the appropriate therapist.

DEAR ABBY: My husband hates for me to look at him. He says it makes him very uncomfortable, and he resents it. If I look at him at the dinner table, he will pick up his plate and go into the bedroom to finish eating in private. If I look at him in bed, he pulls the covers over his head. And if I look at him while he's driving the car (God forbid), he gets so upset he nearly drives off the road.

I keep telling him that his behavior is unusual, but he claims that I'm the weird one. Frankly, if he looked at me, I would feel honored.

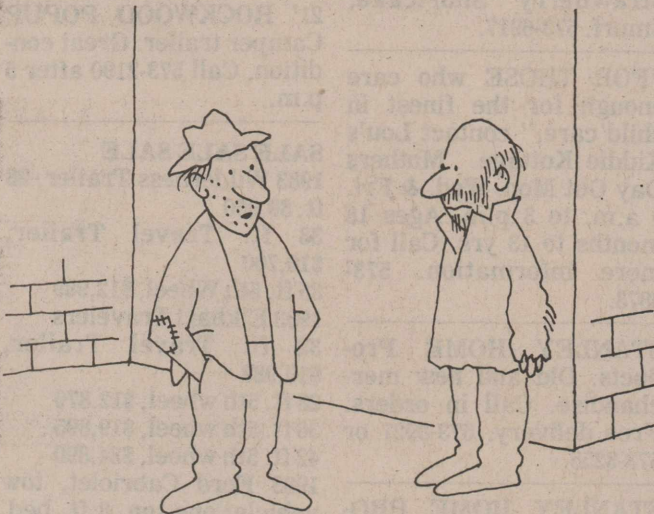

What do you think?

P. IN THE BRONX

DEAR P: I think your husband is overreacting to an alarming degree. Be on the alert for other signs of strange behavior. And do not hesitate to inform his doctor. This could be a symptom of a physical disorder.

CONFIDENTIAL TO UPSET IN FORT DODGE, IOWA: People who make a practice of eavesdropping rarely hear anything good about themselves.

Marines dig deeper as fighting heats up

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Marines manning the front lines around Beirut Airport are digging deeper, sleeping in bunkers and forgoing such comforts as showers and hot food. The war in Lebanon has spilled into their compound.

"To be honest with you, it's really been shaky," said Cpl. Gerald Shanley, 22, of Kent, Ohio, a mortar forward observer attached to "Charlie Company."

"They're coming in from out of nowhere and like I said, you don't know when it's going to happen," he said.

Since Saturday, when Moslem Shiite militiamen attacked a joint U.S.-Lebanese outpost, the Marines have come under fire every day from the Alei and Chouf mountains which rise a few miles from their forward positions.

Four Marines of the 1,200-man contingent have been killed by shellfire during the fighting.

Marines say some of the rounds were clearly aimed at them, while others were probably strays, fired either by Phalangist or Druse militiamen or the Christian-dominated Lebanese army, all battling for control of the hills.

"They were fired from the east, from the north, from near and far," said Warrant Officer Charles Rowe of San Francisco.

Since the fighting erupted last weekend, Marines from the three rifle companies manning the perimeter have been sleeping in their underground bunkers in case of attacks at night.

A few nights ago, one rocket slammed into the tent which was home to Lt.

Richard Hasey of Arlington, Va.

"I saw this little blur," said Hasey as he fingered the gray metallic remains of the rocket. "I came running over. Somebody was stamping out this little fire. It was my laundry."

With the new fighting, the Marine compound looks like a set of World War I trenches and earthen bunkers.

Marine engineers have been building a new network of trenches and ditches linking bunkers so the troops can move without exposing themselves to fire.

Arkansas was admitted to the United States in 1836 as the 25th state.
