SOLDIERS MOVE ON BORGER; MAYOR ARRESTED

Tricky Hurricane Changes Course To Threaten Gulf Coast

Air Limited

Largest Heavier-Than-Air Ship to Span Atlantic

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Sept. 29. (US)—The gigantic Dornier 12-motored flying ship, known as the DO-X the largest heavier-than-air aircraft in the world, may become a "millionaire's air limited" between New York and Miami, this winter.

Dr. Claude Dornier, its designer and builder, is already planning the first commercial passenger and mail flight to Rio Janeiro, Buenos Aires, and thence north, via Havana and Palm Beach, to New York and Washington in January.

It is probable that several flights may then be made between New York and Palm Beach with passengers, to demonstrate the practicability, speed, and comfort of this remarkable flying ship for rapid transportation between the North and Florida for the deluxe millionaire colony.

Flight Planned

This three-deck seaplane could leave New York in the morning and be in Palm Beach the same afternoon. Dornier has asked Karl H. von Wiegand, who arranged the successful Hearst-Zeppelin world flight, to organize the first transatlantic commercial voyage of the DO-X to South and North America.

William B. Leeds, the plucky, young American millionaire, one of the passengers on the Hearst-Zeppelin world flight, is the first to make application for a seat on the transatlantic voyage of the colossal Dornier seaplane.

Lady Drummond Hay, the only woman who has flown the Atlantic in both directions, and the only woman passenger on the Zeppelin world flight, was the first woman to be registered for this flight.

The voyage will begin at Genoa or Seville. Dornier expects to make a flight this week with 120 to 150 passengers to demonstrate the capacity of the craft.

Race May Develop

After that the 12 Siemens Bristol-Jupiter motors will be dismounted and sent to the factory for a thorough examination, before the transatlantic passage is undertaken.

The situation may develop into a race between Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, and Dornier as to who shall be the first to get to South America with his craft. Eckener cannot make the flight until some mooring facilities for the Graf are available, while Dornier can land the DO-X on the water.

A second 12-motored ship, which was built for Italy, is completed and awaiting the decision of the Italians as to what motors they wish to have installed. A third craft of this type is also being built for Italy.

POTEAU, Okla., Sept. 29. (UP)—Workings of the Covington mine near here today were under investigation by officials who sought to ascertain the cause of an explosion late Friday which killed two men and buried six others in a shaft where they died from poisonous gas. STORM TAKES ROUTE LEADING TO PENSACOLA

Tropical Disturbance Turns Northward After Hitting Islands

SEVERAL LIVES LOST

Apalachicola, Fla., in Path Of Hurricane's Newest Line of Travel

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29. (AP)—The weather bureau tonight at 10 p. m. issued the following storm warning:

"Advisory: Tropical storm central 8 p. m. about 125 miles west of Tampa, apparently moving northwestward about 10 miles per hour. Its center will likely cross the coast line between Apalachicola, Fla., and the Mississippi coast Monday forenoon if near Apalachicola and later in day if near Mobile. It will be attended by winds hurricane force near center."

PENSACOLA, Fla., Sept. 29. (UP)—Pensacola will be struck by the approaching hurricane, the hardest blow experienced in the history of this section, weather bureau observers said late today. Hurricane warnings were posted at 4 p. m.

Shipping, fishing and railroad officials completed rapid preparations for the gale. Carpenters rushed from house to house boarding up windows and conditioning buildings for the storm. The 250 airplanes at the naval station were moved inside hangars and naval craft in the harbor were securely anchored where land would give some protection from the wind.

Barometers Fall

Barometers fell steadily and even the tide moved abnormally, according to veterans on the waterfront.

The hurricane has violated all weather bureau regulations. Ordinarily, hurricanes in this season of the year head westward until reaching approximately latitude 28, and then change to a northwestward course.

This storm started northward threatening the Florida east coast, then reversed itself, passing southwestward through the Florida straits.

At 5:30 p. m. the hurricane definitely turned northward and apparently was about 125 miles directly south of Apalachicola.

GULF COAST WARNING ISSUED

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 29. (UP)—The New Orleans weather bureau today issued storm warnings for the portion of the gulf coast from West Pensacola, Fla., to Port Eads, La., 100 miles south of New Orleans at the mouth of the Mississippi river.

The weather bureau said the hurricane probably would reach the gulf coast between Apalachicola, Fla., and Port Eads some time Monday, with winds of hurricane force near the center.

"Every precaution should be taken in New Orleans and vicinity against winds of destructive force," the warning read.

SEVERAL LIVES LOST ALONG KEYS

KEY WEST, Fla., Sept. 29. (AP)—Wrecking crews who returned here early today reported that several persons had drowned on the Florida keys above No Name key during the tropical hurricane which passed over that area yesterday.

Members of the crews went out against today to seek further information as to the damage. They

SHIP WRECKED

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 29. (AP)—The U. S. naval radio station here tonight received a message from the coast guard Saukee stating that the S. S. Scandia was a total wreck in the tropical hurricane area.

The message stated:

"S. S. Scandia total wreck. Have taken off five men. Due to very sloppy sea for small boats have discontinued for the night and laying to off Molasses reef."

CITY STARTS AIRPORT WORK

Engineers Survey Course For Two Runways

Beginning the city's program of improvement at the Municipal airport, preparations for breaking ground for two semi-hard runways will begin Monday, it was announced Sunday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager. Surveying and plotting of the runways began Saturday by engineers from the city engineering department.

The runways will be 200 feet wide and will run in a north and south and northeast and southwest direction. The north and south runway will be about 2,500 feet in length, the northeast and southwest about 3,000 feet, Mr. Fairtrace said. The ground will be plowed the entire length of the field in both of the directions and will be packed down and oiled to give the runways a semi-hard rolling surface for landing and taking off. The oiled surface is considered better than a concrete runway, according to the opinion of experienced pilots, who point out that the tail skids of airplanes have little or no spring effect and would find easier landing on a softer runway. The type of runway to be installed here may be kept in good condition by occasional rolling and re-oiling, Mr. Fairtrace stated.

An ordinance providing for an appropriation of $10,011 for operation and maintenance of the Municipal airport, with smaller amounts set aside for the construction of an office and waiting room and other improvements will come up for final reading at the meeting of the city council Monday night.

SOVIET PLANE MAKES SECOND ALASKAN HOP

'Land of the Soviets' Sends Out SOS Messages Early in Day

REPORTS PUZZLING

First Wireless Asks Position and Others Give Ship's Location

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 29. (AP)—Dispelling fears felt for its safety throughout the afternoon, the Russian plane, Land of the Soviets, en route from Seward, Alaska, to Sitka on its flight from Moscow to New York, landed at Sitka, Alaska, at 5:48 p. m. today. It covered the distance of nearly 600 miles in about seven hours and 37 minutes. The arrival at Sitka was reported by the naval radio station at Bremerton, Wash.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 29. (AP)—The naval station at Bremerton, Wash., received a message late today saying the Russian plane, Land of the Soviets, en route from Seward, Alaska, to Sitka, had passed Cape Spencer at 4:55 p. m. headed south towards Sitka. The message was relayed to Bremerton through the station at Soapstone Point, Alaska.

The message was received with keen satisfaction here, as Cape Spencer is about 200 miles from Sitka, the goal of the present flight. No details were given of the conditions of the plane when sighted.

The plane with four aviators is en route from Moscow to New York.

PLANE SENDS OUT SOS MESSAGE

JUNEAU, Alaska, Sept. 29. (AP)—The radio station here reported picking up an SOS call at 12:45 p. m. (1:45 p. m. Pacific time) today from the Russian plane, Land of the Soviets, en route from Seward to Sitka, Alaska.

The plane gave its position as approximately latitude 58 degrees, 37 minutes north; longitude 141 degrees, 39 minutes west. It was sending slowly and the plane was apparently having motor trouble. The SOS call was repeated several times and then came the words "dry bay." There were several more SOS calls and then nothing more.

The message received at Juneau was believed to have been at about the same time an SOS call was picked up at Cordova, Alaska, and relayed to the naval radio station at Bremerton, Wash.

LAND OF SOVIETS LOST AT SEA

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 29. (AP)—The Russian plane, Land of the Soviets, which took off from Seward, Alaska, at 10:11 a. m. Pacific time today en route to Sitka, became lost and sent out an SOS asking for its bearings. The message was picked up at Cordova, Alaska, and radioed to the naval radio station at Bremerton, Wash., where it was received at 1:45 p. m., Pacific time.

Five Balloons Down In Bennett Contests

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29. (US)—Five balloons, one a navy vessel, of nine entered in the Gordon Bennett International Air race here, were forced down by storm weather tonight.

The other balloons forced down were the Argentine and the Stadtessen, the latter the German entry, the French balloon and an army entry.

The pilot of the Argentine, Eduardo Bradley, declared in a telegram from near Terre Haute, Ind., that his leg had been broken in a crash 15 miles south of the Indiana city. His assistant, Francisco Cadaval was unhurt.

Anxiety for Safety Of French Fliers Felt

MOSCOW, Sept. 29. (US)—Anxiety over the possible fate of Capt. Dieudonne Coste and his flying partner, Maurice Bellonte, in an attempt to break the world's long distance flight record, is felt in Moscow tonight.

The Frenchmen have not been heard from since they were sighted over Cologne, Germany, Friday morning. At that time they were heading their plane, Question Mark, toward the vast sweep of the Russian steppes, over which they sought to fly to Tokyo, their goal.

Expected Vienna Riots Fail to Take Place

VIENNA, Sept. 29. (US)—The advance of the Heimwehr on Vienna today, which authorities feared might be provocative of clashes between the Fascisti organization and bands of the Viennese Schutsbund, their socialist opponents, came off more peacefully than was expected.

While one-fifth of the Austrian army, the entire city police force, and the country gendarmerie patrolled the streets, the Heimwehren paraded without any demonstration. A few communists were arrested, but there was no semblance of the expected riots.

OFFICERS WAIT SHOOK RELEASE

Bralley Uncertain of Plea For Extradition

The question still remained unanswered Sunday night, so far as authorities here were concerned, as to whether Tom Shook, former Electra police chief, will be surrendered by Tennessee authorities to Sheriff W. G. Bralley of Wichita Falls for return to Wichita county to face five indictments ranging, in their charges, from driving while intoxicated to murder.

Word still was awaited late Sunday night from Sheriff Bralley, who in company with Deputy Charles Gant left Friday afternoon for Lexington, Tenn., expecting that Shook would be surrendered to them. The officers left in an automobile.

Return Uncertain

Authorities here, although of the opinion that Tennessee authorities will be willing to surrender Shook, admitted frankly that if the officers of that state desire to hold him, they probably will succeed in doing so. Shook was arrested, according to meager advices here, following the fatal shooting early Friday morning of a man near Decaturville, Tenn., and afterward was transferred at Mr. Bralley's urgent request to the more modern jail at Lexington. Rewards aggregating $250 are outstanding for the return of Shook to Texas, including $150 posted by Gov. Dan Moody and $100 by Mr. Bralley.

Even if the Wichita officers encounter no difficulties in gaining custody of Shook, it is improbable that they can return here before Wednesday. The return would necessarily be delayed further if there should be an extradition fight, for which preparations have been made. Gov. Dan Moody has been asked by George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney here to appear to the governor of Tennessee for custody of the former officer, and the requisition presumably is now on its way from Austin to Mr. Bralley.

Other Charges

The murder indictment here against Shook grew out of the fatal stabbing of W. O. Daugherty, a truck farmer, at Electra on Aug. 9, 1928. Shook was under two indictments charging burglary, and one each charging robbery and driving while intoxicated at the time.

He and five other prisoners overpowered the county jailer on Aug. 24, 1928, and escaped. Shook had been sought since.

DEMOS ASK AID OF NATION IN TARIFF FIGHT

Members of Senate Finance Committee Issue Appeal

FLEXIBLE RULE HIT

Present Conditions Fail to Justify Taxing Proposal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29. (US)—Democratic members of the senate finance committee tonight appealed to the nation at large for support in their fight against the flexible provision of the tariff bill.

Declaring that the question "transcends considerations of party," the eight committeemen signed a statement in which they declared:

"In the hope of arousing the people, regardless of party, to take a broad and public view of this important question, we make this appeal."

Coalition Formed

It is the flexible provision, under which the president is empowered to raise or lower rates up to 50 per cent upon recommendation of the tariff commission, that President Hoover has demanded be retained in the Smoot-Hawley bill.

Democrats of the senate have been joined by a formidable force of Progressive Republicans in their opposition, and a canvass indicates a possibility of their victory. In fact, administration leaders are claiming only a three-vote victory.

"In an age where there has been a steady tendency to rob the individual citizen of power and influence in his government through encroachments in this direction, and especially with respect to taxation," said the Democratic appeal, signed by Senators Simmons, of North Carolina, Harrison of Mississippi; King, of Utah; George, of Georgia; Walsh, of Massachusetts; Barkeley, of Kentucky; Thomas, of Oklahoma and Connally, of Texas. The statement added:

"The question involved is one that, in our opinion, strikes at the very roots of constitutional government. It concerns the preservation unimpaired or the abandonment of the power of levying taxes by that branch of the government which the forefathers agreed should alone be charged with that duty and responsibility.

Law Unjustified

"Whatever argument could be advanced during the war and immediately following, for delegating to a degree the taxing power to the executive, unquestionably no longer exists.

"To incorporate now in the law any recognition of a right of the executive to impose taxes without the concurrence of the legislative branch is without justification.

"It is an entering wedge toward the destruction of a basic principle for which the independence of the country was attained, and which was secured permanently in the constitution."

Charges that the administration forces in the senate, fearful of a crushing defeat on the "flexible" tariff issue, have delayed a vote in order that pressure might be brought upon wavering senators, were made by Democratic leaders today.

The Democrats declared that they had demanded a vote on the issue last Friday, but the Republican leaders flatly refused to "play ball" at that time.

Meanwhile, Senator Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee, indicated that he might make a move in the senate tomorrow to have the flexible issue voted on Tuesday.

Hawaiian Earthquake Grows in Intensity

HONOLULU, Sept. 29. (UP)—Frequent earthquake shocks in the vicinity of Hilo, were growing in intensity tonight as experts reiterated the belief that lava is nearing the top of the volcanic crater.

The expert, Doctor Jaggar, recorded 70 shocks last night, 12 of which were moderately sharp. He said that the increase in intensity of the shocks indicates the rise of lava to the surface of Mount Hualalai. The activity of the volcanic movement, he said, appeared to center at Puumauua, on the flank of Hualalai.

Troops Pass Through City Commanded By Gen. Jacob Wolters

Rangers Charge Mayor Pace With Causing Murder Witness To Leave Borger; Proclamation Waits Troops' Arrival at Oil Boom Town Today

Commanded by Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Walters, more than 100 Texas national guardsmen passed through Wichita Falls early Sunday night on their way to Borger. The troops will enforce martial law in the oil boom town, whose mayor was arrested by Texas rangers Sunday, the first man to be jailed by state officers investigating the assassination of District Attorney John A. Holmes a week ago.

Although Gov. Dan Moody had not issued a proclamation declaring Borger under martial law Sunday night, dispatches from Austin quoted the executive as saying, "I guess martial law is already in effect."

More than a dozen rangers are on duty in Borger and with the arrival of the guardsmen early Monday, the local officers are expected to be relieved of their authority. Then the state officials will begin their cleanup. A "conspiracy", involving Borger and Hutchinson county officers is expected to receive immediate attention.

BORGER'S MAYOR UNDER ARREST

BORGER, Texas, Sept. 29. (AP)—National guardsmen were en route here tonight undoubtedly bearing with them notice that Governor Moody had placed the town and county under martial law. Meanwhile, Texas ranger here investigating the assassination of District Attorney John A. Holmes, 15 days ago, arrested Mayor Glenn A. Pace on a charge of "causing" a state witness in the Charles Hale murder case to leave town.

The militiamen about 100 officers and men, left Fort Worth on a special train and were due here about 5 a. m. tomorrow. Their departure was unheralded, bearing out Governor Moody's recent statement that in the event troops were sent here, their arrival would signalize the proclamation of military rule.

Day Quiet in Borger

Borger, a great sprawling oil town with a two-mile long main street grown up in three years from a bald and dreary prairie, was relatively quiet tonight, except for the suppressed tension felt since the Holmes slaying, the subsequent arrival of rangers, their charges of a criminal conspiracy between city and county officers and the resultant shadow of martial law which had been seen for days.

Mayor Pace made $3,000 bond before H. M. Wood, county judge, soon after his arrest and was freed pending preliminary hearing tomorrow. Ranger J. W. Aldrich made the arrest on a complaint lodged by his superior, Capt. Frank Hamer.

Prison Term Possible

The witness, S. E. Broome, was held in the jail at Canadian, some miles away. Hale was charged with killing Ray Martin Dec. 23, 1926, in an alleged "beer joint."

Hale's trial has been called to begin tomorrow at Canadian.

If Pace were found guilty, a sentence of from two to five years could be assessed.

One somewhat unusual incident occurred this afternoon. Two "drunks" lurched into a hotel and were accosted by Captain Hamer.

"Where'd you get it?" he asked.

"None of your —— business."

Rangers took them to jail and Mayor Pace locked them up.

WITNESS NAMED

CANADIAN, Texas, Sept. 29. (AP)—S. E. Broome, state witness in the Charles Hale murder case, is the man who Mayor Glenn A. Pace of Borger was charged today with having "caused" to leave town. Broome was held in jail here today. Hale, accused of slaying Ray Martin, Dec. 23, 1926, in an alleged "beer joint," is scheduled to go to trial here tomorrow.

TROOP COACHES PASS QUIETLY THROUGH CITY

Brig. Gen. Wolters Heads Detachment on Way to Boom Town

About 150 men and officers of the Texas National guard, under the command of Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters, arrived in Wichita Falls about 6:45 o'clock Sunday night from Fort Worth en route to Borger aboard an eight-car special train. The train consisted of two flat cars, a baggage car, three passenger cars, two box cars and a caboose.

The troops were from Fort Worth and Dallas, according to General Wolters, and were members of the 56th cavalry brigade. No horses were taken on the train which will arrive in Borger about 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Two Companies

The soldiers were thought to be organized into two skeleton companies, although no confirmation of this report could be obtained. Secrecy about the troop movement was maintained on the train and in all railroad offices, no notification of the arrival of the soldiers having been posted on the freight bulletin boards. The Fort Worth and Denver offices here had been informed only a short time before the arrival that an eight-car special troop train would reach Wichita Falls about 6:45. No indication of the type of cars was given.

The train crew was changed in the south yards and a new engine attached without pulling up to the station. At 7 o'clock the train left the yards and did not slow down either at the station or in the north yards.

Conferences Held

General Wolters just had returned from a conference with Gov. Dan Moody in Austin Thursday and Friday, where he went following an investigation at Borger. Governor Moody, General Wolters and Acting District Attorney Clem Calhoun held an all-night conference Thursday night and again on Friday the governor was closeted with his investigators from Borger, who reported a "conspiracy between peace officers and the criminal element." It was reported in press dispatches to The Record News that Col. Taylor Nichols, acting adjutant general, who was also in the conference, would give the order for troop movements when the governor issued his proclamation of martial law.

General Wolters made no comment as to a declaration of martial law in Hutchinson county and Borger by Governor Moody. To all questions he answered, "We are not giving out any information." When asked where the troops were being taken, he said, "You know that."

Soldiers Reticent

The soldiers were equally reticent when questioned. "We might be going to Alaska for all we know," one of them said when it was attempted to determine the fact that they were going to Borger.

"They've been having a hot time up there, haven't they?" the reporter asked.

"Where's that?" They refused to be caught.

Four army motor lorries were loaded on the two flat cars. The freight cars were sealed and it could not be learned what, besides camp bedding, tents and small arms, they contained. In the rear passenger car, several officers could be seen typing and working over papers as the train passed through. None of the soldiers were allowed to leave the train when it stopped in the yards here and no one but the train crew disembarked.

Two Ministers Face Contempt Trial Today

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 29. (US)—Charged with having been in contempt of court by making radio and pulpit addresses concerning the trial of Mrs. Alexander Pantages while it was in progress, the Revs. R. P. (Bob) Shuler and Gustav Briegleb tomorrow afternoon will go on trial before Judges Carlos S Hardy, C. S. Tappan and T. G. Gould.

Through their oratory, it is alleged, the two preachers tended to obstruct the "due and orderly course of the trial" of the wealthy woman.

Record News Cotton Table

For Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma

Ideal weather conditions last week over Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma added many hundreds of bales of cotton to the season's ginning total for this section and thousands of dollars of wealth to the various communities. Reports from Record News correspondents showed a fairly steady price for cotton and a strong seed market. Altus, Okla., led the section in a quoted price of $36 a ton for seed. Harmon county, Okla., had ginned more than 5,000 bales at the end of the week, the highest ginning total at this time of the year in the history of the county, it was said. Frederick, Okla., led various cities in total ginnings with 4,370, but Memphis, Texas, whooping it up at the rate of 300 to 400 bales a day, was close behind with 3,368. The following prices prevailed over the territory Saturday:

Wichita Boy "Walks Out" of Hospital After Dive Through Car's Windshield

Homer McCluskey, 16, son of J. H. McCluskey, 204 Lamar avenue, was able to "walk out" of the hospital Sunday afternoon after receiving treatment for painful injuries sustained a short while before when he was hurled through the windshield of his car as it crashed into a telephone pole at Sixth street and Lamar avenue in avoiding a collision with another machine.

McCluskey's injuries, according to information given by hospital authorities, included a long scalp wound and four teeth which were knocked out.

The youth, according to J. H. Pogue, city motorcycle officer, reported that he was forced to swerve suddenly when another machine cut in front of him. McCluskey said he was driving west on Sixth street at the time and the other machine turned west from Lamar avenue into Sixth.

The telephone pole, snapped off short against the ground, fell into the street and obstructed traffic until it was removed.

McCluskey was taken to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital in an ambulance of the Merkle Undertaking company. He later was taken to his home by his father.

The driver of the other machine was being sought by police Sunday for questioning. He did not stop after the accident, according to Mr. Pogue's report.

LUBBOCK FAIR OPENS TODAY

All in Readiness for South Plains Show

Special to The Record News.

LUBBOCK, Texas, Sept. 29.—Late Sunday afternoon everything was all set at the Panhandle-South Plains fair that opens Monday morning for a six-day show.

The 16th annual exposition, Sept. 30 to Oct. 5, inclusive, promises to be the most outstanding of any fair yet held on the plains of Texas.

The livestock barns are filled to capacity with prize-winning stock of hundreds of breeds. Poultry from some of the best breeders in the southwest are found in the poultry building.

County Exhibits

County agricultural exhibits are here representing Garza, Hockley, Martin, Gaines, Dawson, Yoakum, Terry, Lynn, Cochran, Crosby, Dickens, Bailey, Lamb, and Swisher counties.

Community exhibits from 10 communities in Lubbock county furnish a splendid display of the crops of Lubbock county.

Exhibits in the merchants' building, the women's building, the machinery building and outdoor exhibits are more attractive than ever before.

The Cotton Belt shows is setting up on midway this afternoon. The football park has been put in shape for a free football game each afternoon. Fireworks will be shot each night and officials of the fair are spending more money on this feature this year than ever before and expect a much more brilliant show.

Six circus troups will act twice daily as a free act feature.

Over $15,000 will be given away in premiums and free prizes and the premiums in every department rank well with the premiums of the leading fairs in the southwest.

Byron C. Dickinson, president, A. B. Davis, manager and other fair officials are expecting a banner attendance that will far outrank the 120,967 figure hung up last year.

"Everything is ready."

These three words were used by Dickinson today to describe the conditions of the fair. The three words represent the labor of hundreds of fair officials, employes, exhibitors and others who have been busy for months getting things in readiness for the annual show.

Complete Show

Due to the completeness of the exhibits for the past several years, the Panhandle-South Plains fair has come to be known as the "Show Window of the Plains." This year, it appears that the "Show Window" will be entirely complete, without a missing item.

Monday, the opening day, is Lorenzo day and a big delegation of people from Lorenzo and the Lorenzo trade territory will come here to witness the Lorenzo High school vs. Lubbock Pioneers football game that will be played in the afternoon.

Tuesday, the Brownfield and Ralls high school football teams will match their skill and power and people from these towns, from Terry and Crosby counties will be here in big numbers. Tuesday is also Lubbock day at the fair and the attendance that day is expected to set a record. All Lubbock stores will close at noon to allow all the clerks and employes as well as the merchants and professional men to attend the fair.

Wednesday will find the Crosbyton and Levelland High school football teams ready for a contest in the afternoon. People from Hockley and Crosby counties will be here in big numbers on this day. Wednesday has also been designated as Lamesa and Dawson county day at the fair and a banner delegation from that county is being organized by William A. Wilson, secretary of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce. Wednesday is school day and thousands of school kiddies will be admitted free.

Tahoka and Littlefield will be opponents here Thursday and the day is officially designated as Lynn county and Lamb county day at the fair. The high school football game in the afternoon will find two rivals opposed to each other and with a good crowd of rooters for both teams at the athletic park.

High School Game

Friday, the Post Antelopes, winners of the bi-district Class B title last year will play the O'Donnell high school team. A big delegation will come from each town. The O'Donnell high school pep squad will accompany the O'Donnell eleven.

Saturday, the final day of the fair will find Slaton and Plainview contending for football honors. Both teams are leaders in their respective classes. Slaton one of the outstanding class B teams of this section and Plainview a leader among the class A schools have played here a number of times and have always put up a splendid fight.

Officers Jail 40 For Being Drunk

Nearly 40 persons accused on various charges growing out of alleged drinking were arrested by city and county authorities up to Sunday night, but you may take the word of W. W. Allen, county jailer and a veteran officer here, that conditions are nothing like those of the "good old days."

The number of arrests was among the largest for any weekend during the last two or three years, according to the officers. For the most part, they were picked up in groups of two or three, although one party of seven was taken into custody, officers said.

Death Claims Thrift Community Resident

E. L. Bankhead, 30, a resident of the Thrift community for 13 years, died in a local hospital shortly before midnight Saturday night after an illness of about a week. Funeral services are to be held from the First Baptist church at Burkburnett Monday at 2 p. m. with the Rev. Miles B. Hayes, pastor, officiating.

Deceased is survived by his widow and two children; two brothers, T. A. Bankhead, Burkburnett, and Robert Bankhead, Roscoe, Texas; and three sisters, Mrs. G. T. Rankin and Mrs. A. V. Bingham, both of Roscoe, and Mrs. J. Hunt, Colorado, Texas.

10TH DISTRICT LOANS HEAVY

Industry and Trade Shown As Satisfactory

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 29. (AP)—Despite a sharp decline in crop prospects because of their near drouth, industry and trade in the 10th federal bank district continued at a high rate of activity during August and September.

The monthly review of the bank says that trade showed less than the customary summertime slackening. September business was declared to have opened on a higher plane than was the case last year.

Aggregate credit outstanding at reporting member banks was reported Aug. 7 as $715,538,000, the largest amount recorded for any weekly reporting date for nine years. The credit volume declined during the subsequent weeks, however, to $704,040,000 on Sept. 4.

Payments Smaller

Payments by check at banks in 30 cities for the five weeks ending Sept. 4 were smaller by 11.8 per cent than in the preceding weeks, which period showed heavy July movement of grain and livestock, but showed an increase of 11.8 per cent over the corresponding five weeks in 1928.

Department of commerce reports indicated crop prospects declined sharply between Aug. 1 and Sept. 1, as a result of a nearly nationwide drouth. On the whole, farm production in the district was expected to be 10.3 per cent below the average for the preceding years.

Percentage of all crops in the district was forecast Sept. 1 as 89.7 per cent, compared to August prediction of 97 per cent.

The decline in prospects in the tenth district was particularly severe in corn. The Sept. 1 forecast of 376,157,000 bushels was 94,956,000 bushels less than the Aug. 1 estimate, and 144,078,000 bushels less than the total production in 1928.

There also were declines in August in the prospect for grain sorghum, white potatoes, sweet potatoes, tame hay, broom corn, apples, peaches and grapes.

Industry Satisfactory

Production in other industries were reported as continuing at a high level for the season. Output of flour, crude oil, coal, cement, and zinc and land ores showed increases over July, and save for small decreases in production of soft coal and cement, each of these branches of industry reported a larger output than a year ago.

"Unusually light receipts of cattle and unusually heavy receipts of hogs for August, and lower and irregular prices of meat animals, featured the livestock situation.

Cattle receipts of 364,212 at six reporting markets during the month were 1,041 less than in July, 52,244 less than in August last year, and the lightest receipts for any August on records dating back to the beginning of 1919.

dleston, arrested Pace. Clem Calhoun, special prosecutor appointed by Gov. Dan Moody, questioned Pace for almost an hour in their hotel. Calhoun refused to state what he had learned from Borger's mayor.

Borger, the "whoopee" oil boom town of Texas, had changed today. The threat of martial law and the arrest of Borger's mayor had lead Borgerites to do some serious thinking.

Borger Goes to Church

Many strange things have happened in Borger's three-year history but the strangest of all occurred today. Borger, from white-collared oil company clerks to grimy-necked roustabouts and from wives of merchants to lady barbers took up religion.

Col. Guy W. Green, big evangelist, who long has been waging a war here against demon rum and the wages of sin, today received 86 converts into his congregation.

The Sabbath was observed with respect today. There was no crowd jamming the streets—no wailing jazz mingling with the church hymns. A handful of people were on the streets, going about their business in an orderly fashion.

BORGER ALREADY IS UNDER MARTIAL LAW

AUSTIN, Sept. 29. (AP)—Borger is already under martial law.

Governor Moody stated tonight that he had no comment to make on the movement of state troops to Borger, where John A. Holmes, district attorney, was assassinated.

"Come around tomorrow and I'll show you a copy of the proclamation," he said.

"It's already under martial law I guess," the governor replied when asked the direct question when the state troops would occupy the Panhandle oil community.

It is presumed that martial law will extend to Hutchinson county.

Martin Advocates Workhouse For Juveniles in Church Address

The establishment of a county workhouse, particularly for juvenile offenders, was advocated by Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court here in an address Sunday afternoon before a layman's meeting at the First Christian church. As judge of a district court, he frequently is called upon to try juveniles accused of offenses.

Judge Martin declared in his address that legal machinery is now in existence under which the county commissioners court could establish such an institution.

"Idleness is the greatest cause of crime today," Judge Martin declared. "It follows naturally that the solution of the problem is work. Those who work seldom have either the time or the inclination to get into conflict with the law.

"I believe that the county commissioners court would be wise, particularly for the sake of juvenile offenders, in establishing a workhouse."

The Reader's Opinion

The columns of The Record News are open to its readers for the discussion of questions of current interest or import. Letters should be not more than 100 words in length, preferably shorter, and should be signed with the name and address of the writer. Initials, or pen-name, will be substituted upon request. Letters must be free of personal abuse or libel and the editor reserves the right to reject parts or all of letters.

Lawton, Okla., Sept. 28, 1929.
Editor, The Record News:

I desire most emphatically to protest against the arrest, imprisonment and prosecution for sedition and for waging war against the king of W. Ramananda Chatterji, editor of "The Modern Review," Calcutta, British, India, a very highly respected Indian journalist for having published in his magazine chapters from "India in Bondage" by Dr. J. H. Sutherland, a citizen of the United States.

I protest against this attack upon the free interchange of public opinion upon which so largely depends international comradship as well as individual natural growth.

I protest against this attempt to penalize a respected journalist for impartially reflecting responsible opinion directed towards the spread of freedom and justice.

I call upon every American journalist to use his pen to organize public opinion against the encroachment upon the rightful freedom of the press and upon the launching of a criminal prosecution against a journalist of international repute merely for exercising that freedom as it has long been exercised throughout the journalistic world.

Very sincerely yours,
—MISS BLANCHE KRAUSS.

Brooklyn Bullfighter Makes Two Killings

BILBAO, Spain, Sept. 29. (US)—Sydney Franklin, Brooklynite who is gaining fame in Spain as a bullfighter, killed two bulls in the Plaza de Toros here this afternoon.

Both killings were "well done" after the Spanish fashion, but the Brooklyn man was not awarded the bull's ears, a customary reward if the espada is excellently handled. Observers said Franklin's work was "fairly successful."

Airport Notes

Spiraling straight downward from an altitude of 3,000 feet with the motor shut off and the propeller not moving, Fred Ridenour, pilot of the Lone Star Aviation company, brought his plane to a perfect "dead stick" landing Sunday afternoon at the Municipal airport before a crowd of about 1,000 spectators in a demonstration of the ease with which a plane can be handled even after the motor has stopped. Cars crowded the space about the landing field Sunday afternoon while Pilot Ridenour, in his Travelair OX5, L. P. Hammond in his Curtis Robin Challenger, John Voss in his Canuck OX5, and Pilot Burton Walker in his Travelair J6 circled, looped and stunted above the field.

The San Angelo line of the Braniff airlines was officially discontinued at 3:40 o'clock Sunday afternoon with the arrival of the last airliner from San Angelo at the Municipal airport, according to Manager Logan.

L. P. Hammond, president of the Lone Star Aviation company, took off for Fort Worth about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon in his Curtis Robin-Challenger from the Municipal airport. He will probably return Monday.

H. S. Harding of Frederick, Okla., landed at the Municipal airport late Sunday afternoon in his Travelair OX5 en route to Seymour.

H. S. Jones of Fort Worth took off from the Municipal airport about 4:20 o'clock Sunday afternoon for Fort Worth in his Gypsy Moth following a business trip to Wichita Falls. He landed at the port Friday afternoon and remained in the city until Sunday.

Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fairhaven, Mass.—"I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during the Change of Life. When I feel nervous and run-down my husband gets me a bottle right away. It is a great help to me and I think that if other people would only take it when they feel all run-down and take it as the directions say, they would find it a great benefit. My worst symptoms were nervousness and tired feelings. I could not sleep nights and I was so nervous I would cry if anyone looked at me."—Mrs. Ada Busse, 196 Washington Street, Fairhaven, Mass.

BIBLE CLASSES HEAR RABBI

Schwab Speaks at Services At First Methodist

Adult classes of the First Methodist church heard an address by Rabbi S. J. Schwab of Temple Israel as the feature event of the services Sunday morning. More than 700 persons attended the meeting, at which Rabbi Schwab spoke on "Amos, the Shepherd of the Race." The Temple Israel leader told of how Amos proclaimed the God of the chosen race as the God of the Gentile races also.

He was introduced by Roy J. Daniel, teacher of the Kay Bible class, who said in part:

"The ancient Greek race had a mission. That mission was to give the world the arts and sciences. Rome had a mission. Her mission to the world was that of lawgiver. Likewise, the great Hebrew race was chosen for a great mission, and that mission was to give the world Monotheism—the worship of the one and only God.

"For the past quarter it has been our good fortune and inspiration to study the lives and deeds of many of the early prophets of ancient Israel—among them were Isiah, Jeremiah, Ezekial, Daniel, Ezra, Amos and Malachi.

"But it is not necessary for us to go back to the early days of Israel to find great Hebrew characters. We have some great leaders from this great chosen race of God—leaders in the 19th and 20th centuries. There was Judah P. Benjamin. Benjamin was born in 1811 in the West Indies. At an early age he was taken to North Carolina. At 21 years of age he was admitted to the bar at New Orleans, La., after three years' study of law at Yale. Before the civil war he served in the United States senate from Louisiana, but he left the senate when Louisiana joined the southern confederacy. He was appointed attorney general in the cabinet of President Davis, and later served as secretary of war and then secretary of state under President Davis. While serving as secretary of state he earned the title of 'brains of the confederacy.' After Lee's surrender Benjamin fled to London, England, and became a leader at the English bar until his death in 1884.

"A great Hebrew of the present century is Justice Louis Brandeis of the U. S. supreme court. Brandeis studied law at Harvard and began to practice in Boston. There 'special interests' sought to ruin him in the law business because of his liberal ideas and tendencies. He has always been a liberal on political questions and questions of social reform. In 1916 he was appointed a justice of the supreme court by President Wilson—a place of honor he still holds. A group of the senate feared his appointment and blocked his confirmation for five months. He will go down in American history as one of the most fearless men who ever served on any court.

"And here in Wichita Falls we are fortunate to have Rabbi Schwab of Temple Israel. Rabbi Schwab is my comrade of the world war in which he rendered valiant and distinguished service as chaplain with the A. E. F. in France. He is my comrade and co-worker in the American Legion and in the 40 and 8 of the legion. He is a man of God and a splendid citizen whom we are delighted and privileged to have with us today. I am sure that I express the sentiment of every member of the Kay Bible class when I say that we extend to him and to all Bible classes of the adult department of the First Methodist church an invitation from the bottom of our hearts to worship with us at this hour and conduct the further exercises of this worship hour."

City View Church Wins Funeral Home Contest

The City View Baptist church won the attendance prize offered by the Albert's funeral home in connection with the official opening of that establishment Saturday, the management announced Sunday. The City View Baptists, it was announced, were represented at the affair by 69 per cent of the congregation. The Scotland Methodist church, it was announced, was second with 51 per cent, and the Scotland Baptist church third with 38 per cent. About 1,500 people attended the opening.

THREE KILLED BY HURRICANE

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 29. (UP)—Three lives were lost during the visit of the Bahamas hurricane to the lower Florida peninsula, according to reports today.

Two persons were killed at Lakeland when they touched live wires. One victim was reported at Sarasota.

Property damage was greatest at Fort Lauderdale, where a freak tornado did $100,000 damage in the business section.

Early today all this section of Florida was prepared for a destructive storm. It failed to hit. Barometers that had been falling steadily began to rise in mid-morning, and winds began to subside.

It was known by noon that the hurricane had changed its path, and was blowing westward and northwestward towards the Apalichicola-Mississippi region.

Negress Stabbed In Quarrel With Man

Sarah Wright, negress, was cut on the ear and stabbed in the right shoulder in an altercation in the 100 block on Humphreys street Sunday night. A negro man was arrested and lodged in the county jail by officers of the constable's department. He denied he had stabbed the woman. An Albert's funeral home ambulance took the woman to the Wichita General hospital. Her injuries were pronounced slight.

Spanish Tea Room Is Society Mecca Monday

A social affair looked forward to since the announcement of its inception is the opening of the Spanish Tea room in the upstairs private dining room at the Woman's Forum clubhouse at 12 o'clock Monday.

The room, shaded into a soft glow by the orange curtains at the eastern windows, carries out the same colors in the black and orange tables, the chairs with gay orange and chintz covers, the tea wagon in black and orange and even the tall black wicker stand with the orange birdcage hanging from it, and a canary singing for the delectation of the diners.

On the table are the most alluring little trays with coffee and tea pots that will be the delight of the feminine customers (men also expected). The shining black of the table tops will be set with orange fringed doilies and for opening day sprays of lantana in orange and gold will be the center decoration.

Waitresses will be dressed in black with coquettish little ruffled aprons and caps of orange organdy. The menu cards will carry out the same colors and beside the a la carte luncheon, there will be three menus prepared ready to serve at 35, 50 and 70 cents.

Senoras and senoritas who will serve as hostesses during the opening week gowned in Spanish costumes will be Mesdames C. P. Burton, J. L. Jackson Jr., J. Truman Stevens, Bernard Martin, A. G. Holmes, T. M. Conrey, G. B. Smedley, Ola G. Hamlin, Arch Dawson, C. E. Basham, E. B. Lehrack, Miss Maude Nored and on Saturday, two senoritas of the Junior Forum, Misses Mary Clare Burton and Mary Tancred.

The Parisian will style the latest in feminine wearing apparel during the luncheon hours, 12 to 2 o'clock, throughout opening week.

The Spanish tea shop will be a lovely place to take guests and is open to members and non-members of the club with a small cover charge for non-members, unless they are from out of town.

For breakfast, bridge and small parties it is said to be different from anything in the city. Typically Spanish meals will be served one day each week. Reservations may be made with the hostess if guests desire a table for a certain hour, telephone 7230.

A Daily Illustrated Poem For Children

By Wymond Garthwaite

THE PIANO AT NIGHT

I love to lie in bed
And hear my mother play;
It makes me think of things
I never see by day.

I see big animals
When mother plays down low—
Big bears and lions and things—
Those growly notes, you know.

Then off run all her fingers
And scamper up the keys,
And then I see hobgoblins
And witches in the trees.

I see the fairies dance,
And scaly dragons fight,
And—oh, all kinds of things,
When mother plays at night.

I wish I'd stay awake
And lie there in my bed
And listen all night long—
But I fall asleep instead.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

"I neveh did see so much meat in all my bawn days" said a big negro at the Old Settlers reunion out at the Marlow home Saturday afternoon. And he was right.

Not only meat, but cold slaw, pickles, celery, salad, rolls, coffee and ice cream and cake. And people to eat the good things.

Everyone had fun and old, old friends were greeting one another. But looking at the crowd that stood where they could see the sky line of the city whose birthday they were in a way celebrating, one could not help thinking of the muscle and brawn, the heartache and self sacrifice it must have taken to build a dusty, unimproved little village into the city of Wichita Falls.

We saw old settlers, bronzed and bearded sitting on camp chairs in the broiling sun. What did they care for the sun they had braved through many drouths?

We saw one happy old man with a white goatee enjoying his chew of tobacco and spitting carelessly into the wind.

We saw Mrs. Carrigan working like the golden hearted woman she is, to see that everyone was taken care of properly.

Under the shelter, where the long tables hundreds ate their fill, women who had not seen one another for years were greeting one another by their first names.

Bruce Greenwood was eternally losing his wife and making inquiry about her. The only time he wasn't looking for her was when he was eating.

Over at the other side of the house, five little white boys and two black ones who had eaten their fill, were finishing up their feast by drinking little half pint bottles of real cream. Later, we saw one of the negroes wandering disconsolately off, remarking "Reckon I'd jus' as well go off and die."

J. A. Kemp made a short little speech about the vicissitudes the city had gone through to reach the present stage and vouching his belief in its splendid future.

Mr. Kemp, though, seemed a little worried about a photograph of himself with beard that was on exhibit. He explained to the crowd, that he was a very young man running for county office and he thought the beard would make him look older. He was elected and really thought the beard helped.

There was call of "Huff! Huff!" and Judge R. E. Huff also spoke for the past and the future of the city, giving his praise to the women who had stood nobly by; telling of his hopes for a future led by the thousands of young people who make up the Monday morning Sunday schools lists and school attendance.

And as we left, we saw Roscoe Staton with a tray of food. He explained that he had a sick friend in the hospital and the doctor had said he could eat a bite. There must have been a whole rib of beef on the platter.

Our first glimpse of such real, long heard of "old settler's" hospitality. Mrs. Carrigan has always been in our eyes, an ideal woman. Mr. Marlow is the big hearted, big bodied, big minded man we had pictured as the typical Texan.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. (US)—I walked for miles and miles through the shopping district in New York yesterday, the streets that harbor the smart shops, and I saw hundreds of women leading small dogs and not one single baby!

Babies like to go along with mama, the same as dogs do. In fact they like it ever so much more. The dogs rather play at home than sit in a corner in a shop waiting for mama to be fitted to hats and dresses. Babies would get something out of the association with people, while the dogs get very little and are distinctly bored. Most of those I saw fell asleep in the shop, or looked terribly bored, or pulled hard to try to get away.

I found the babies, oodles of them on my way home. They were in the parks with uniformed maids. They seemed to like the maids better than the dogs liked the ladies who led them about on strings.

It's right fashionable to lead dogs on strings, but it's not at all chic to wheel a baby carriage. And to have a maid tag along, wheeling the baby buggy while you strut proudly down the avenue doesn't exactly look up to date. No one has chosen to make it fashionable.

And I'm accused by letter—by plenty of letters—of being agin dogs. Which is all wrong. But I am entitled to the opinion that the dog rather be in the park with the baby and its nurse than in the stores and walking down the avenue with mama. Ask any dog if you can't take my word for it.

The park hasn't as many lamp posts but it has more trees, and it has grass and plenty of fresh air and no traffic whistles, and lots of other dogs and flocks of children—everything that delights the heart of a regular dog. But mama wants to be seen with a dog on a leash, a good dog, walking down the aven-nuh.

You can bet when she gets home the servants feed the dog, or the children feed him or the nurse feeds him, but he's got to be on deck to make mama look up-to-the-minute when she's on parade.

Dogs love children and children love dogs, but mama loves fashion.

Holdup Rumor Takes Police on Futile Chase

The tendency of a rumor to grow as it spreads served early Sunday to intercept the journey of a Hedley man who was en route to the bedside of his seriously sick wife in Glen Rose, Texas, while police investigated a report, which proved to be false, that an attempt had been made to holdup a small stand in North Wichita.

The rumor, according to information given by Frank Burns, chief of police, grew out of the fact that a pistol which the man carried on the seat of his car during the forced drive fell to the ground when he alighted momentarily beside the stand. A passerby saw the weapon and soon after, police were investigating a report that a holdup had been attempted. Homer Bentley and Howard Peters, city officers, were given a description of the car and overtook it on the Henrietta highway.

Chief Burns investigated and satisfied himself as to the man's identity and the purpose of his journey. His release followed.

Bad Mother May Spoil Lives Of Children, Says Dix

Danger of Allowing a Bad Mother To Bring Up the Children—How Can a Widower of 70 Escape the Affectionate Nagging of His Daughters?

Dear Miss Dix—What is a man to do with a wife who goes crooked? I am a successful physician with a good practice and I give my wife a good home and everything in reason that a woman could ask. And I have loved her and been kind to her, but for the last year and a half she has been having an affair with a married man who belongs to our set. I didn't know anything about it for a while, but after they were found out my wife told me all about it and also how wonderful the exploit was. We have been married six years and have three of the loveliest children. For the sake of the children I have gone on living with her, but if ever there was a hell I am in it. My whole home is tainted for me. In spite of her immorality, my wife is a good mother to the kids, and she does not want to leave. I would like to know your thoughts in the matter.—A. J. M.

Answer—My thoughts about a woman who betrays a good husband and her innocent little children are quite unpleasant. They are something with boiling oil in it as a punishment to fit the crime, as they say in the "Mikado."

Sometimes an unfaithful wife can plead an overwhelming passion for some man not her husband as a vestige of vindication for her conduct, but your wife does not seem able to offer even this poor excuse. It was not the madness of love that drove her to another man's arms. Just mere animalism and a love of adventure.

If she had sinned through love and repented, there would be hope of her reforming, and you might trust her, but she hasn't a regret for what she has done. She is just a female philanderer who will always be going in search of thrills and having amorous affairs as long as her youth and good looks last. And when that is over she will be that most abominable and disgusting of all creatures—an old, worn-out feminine rake.

The woman whose heart leads her astray often returns to the straight and narrow way and follows it to the end. But the woman whose fickle fancy prompts her to explore the primrose path never comes back. She is always following some will-o'-the-wisp of a new sensation that flits just before her. There is a deal of difference between even the immoral woman and the woman who just hasn't any morals at all, and the conscious sinner is the better woman of the two, and the one who is the morely likely to come back.

It is often a wise thing for the woman who has a husband who is not faithful to her to endure the slights he puts upon her rather than to divorce him. This is because there are compensations for her in ignoring her own wrongs.

She keeps her home together. She is enabled to give her children opportunities that she could not afford them otherwise, and she has her own comfortable living, her house and her position in society. All of which mean much to a woman and especially to a woman who has never been trained to any gainful occupation and who would have to exist in dire coverty if she undertook to su t herself.

Moreover, many a bad husband is a good father. They keep their indiscretions a secret and hidden from youthful eyes and hold up to their children an ideal of conduct that they may not follow themselves, so that the mother has seldom to fear the father having a bad influence over his boys and girls.

But this is not the case when the mother is immoral. She is truly an ill bird that fouls its own nest, for she brings evil in her own home. She familiarizes her children with vice from their infancy up, and in particular a loose-living mother invariably brings up loose-living daughters.

It is the mother who forms the character of the children and who teaches them the principles by which they stand or fall, and she cannot teach them truth and honor and honesty and high principles if she is deceiving their father and lying to him and cheating him and carrying on shameful liaisons with other men.

For their own soul's sake, children should be taken away from an immoral mother, but often their father cannot do this because he has no one to take care of them, and so the question resolves itself into one of those pitiful, complicated human problems that only Almighty wisdom can solve.

But something with boiling oil in it should be the portion of the woman who brings so much undeserved misery on so many innocent people.—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am more than 70 years old and have four daughters, three married and one keeping house for me. I am thinking about getting married because my children want to boss me just as if I were a kid. If I buy a horse, I'm an old crazy. If I buy clothes, they are not the right color. My hat is not suitable for my age. I believe my head is quite level yet, and that I am capable of deciding my own affairs. Do you think if I married that my wife would nag me, too? I am independent of all my relatives if the bank doesn't fail. Your advice, please.

BARNEY.

Answer—You know what Mr. Shakespeare said, Mr. Barney, about it being better to bear the ills we have than to fly to those we know not of, so if I were you I would rather risk being chicken-pecked than henpecked. But why stand for the nagging of your daughters? Money talks, you know, and you can make it a perfect silencer if you will threaten to cut them out of your will if they don't let you alone, and let you do as you please.

Young people talk a lot about their right to independence, but they seldom seem to realize that the old have an even greater right to follow their own inclinations, so long as they do not do anything that is wrong or foolish. A very large part of our happiness consists in our being able to gratify our little whims and tastes without having to fight for the privilege, and this is especially true of the old. Their little ways, their little habits, become very dear to them and they should be allowed to enjoy them unmolested by the criticism of their children.

I have often had my pity excited for old men and women whose children never permitted them to eat a meal in peace and without warning them that everything they liked was bad for their stomachs; whose children never let them buy a single garment to suit their own taste; whose children never allowed them to spend a penny of the money they had made without their direction, or to go to any place without their company, and it did not mitigate the situation for the old people because the children were actuated in their tyranny by love and not by malice.

But at 70 don't get married to escape your children. It will truly be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire, for you will simply add another boss to your other bosses, and any man who has four daughters has enough feminine influence in his life. To add another is simply going out to hunt for trouble. Besides, at 70 you are too old to change and adapt yourself to a new variety of nagging. Better let bad enough alone.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Are there more good wives than there are good husbands, or vice versa?—W. W. W.

I should say they would break about even. Probably there are more faithful wives than there are faithful husbands and that is why more women than men apply for divorces. But chastity is not everything in the line of domestic virtues, and when it comes to being good and kind and patient and unselfish and self-sacrificing, there are just as many men who show these qualities toward their wives as there are women who show them to their husbands.

"Sunk!"

The girl who lets menstrual pains interfere with her activities has not heard of Midol. These wonderful little tablets act quite harmlessly, directly on the organs affected. They do not interfere with nature, but they do remove every particle of that unnatural, unnecessary pain.

Midol will end the most severe menstrual pain in five to seven minutes.

Midol is a marvelous discovery made by specialists. It is not a narcotic, yet it ends all that needless pain. And if you anticipate the time, the expected pain will not appear at all. Tiny tablets in convenient little aluminum case obtainable at every drugstore. Isn't it folly to suffer month after month?—Adv.

Alfalfa Seed Brings Farmer $2,854 Check

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 29.—Probably the largest single check for alfalfa seed received by any farmer in Southwest Oklahoma was paid to D. C. Smith from two miles west of Burt's Switch a few days ago by the Northwestern Elevator company. This check for $2,854.71 was in payment for 21,309 pounds, or about 382 bushels, of alfalfa seed.

Carl Cassidy, manager of the elevator, says he has shipped two cars of alfalfa seed to Kansas City recently and one to St. Louis, in addition to truck loads to Wichita Falls, Lindsay and other points.

Tillman County May Plant More Wheat

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 29.—If the price of cotton does not advance there will be a larger acreage sown to wheat in Tillman county this fall than a year ago, according to Carl Cassidy, of the Northwestern Elevator company, who has in a section of small grain. Cassidy's men finished sowing in a week, this being the quickest time he ever accomplished this task, he said. But 380 acres were put in as 180 acres of volunteer wheat was as perfect a stand as he had ever seen, he said. He believes this will yield two-thirds as much as the original crop.

Little Theater To Present 'Mansions' Here Monday Night

Mrs. W. L. Underwood, well known in the musical world of Wichita Falls, will play "Aunt Hannah," in the one-act play to be given at the Episcopal parish house Monday night at 8 o'clock, before Little theater members and their friends.

Miss Ruby Brown and Fred Schmann Jr., will be cast respectively as "Lydia," and "Joe," her neice and nephew.

"Mansions" is the title of this preevent of the Little theater season, which is being given as a welcome to Emil Hermann, president of the Little theater.

The story is that of an aristocratic old lady whose family for many years has had a line of clergymen to lend it dignity, and she is determined to make a clergyman of her nephew Joe, who with his sister Lydia have been her wards since they were children. Lydia is utterly in sympathy with her brother whose whole ambition is to become an architect, and the struggle between the old lady's hopes and the boy's visions furnishes the motive for the play.

"Mansions" according to F. C. McClung, director of the Little theater, proved one of the most successful short plays used in the summer session of the dramatic training school conducted this year at T. C. U.

PROHIBITION GOES FISHING

Daily Editorial

PROHIBITION, like every other notoriety seeker, must have its scream lines. The anti-saloon league is never happy away from the front page and editorial column.

So, after lying doggo a reasonable period, for the country to forget how Virkula died, the bombardment of private yachts and Secretary Lowman's defense of border slayings, the overlords of congress again jerk strings and Senator Howell promptly blats that Washington is a nest of bootleggers and speakeasies.

He reminds the White House there is no conflict between state and federal authority within the sacrosanct District of Columbia, whose commissioners are presidential appointees and therefore entirely under executive control.

Which is simply another way of saying that it's up to the president to enforce the eighteenth amendment at the national capital.

Mr. Hoover accepts the gage with alacrity and enthusiasm. He welcomes the opportunity to establish a model desert on the banks of the Potomac, and contracts to move the Sahara there, as soon as the enabling evidence is presented.

He asks Mr. Howell to designate the street numbers of these "blind pigs" and gilded drinking dens, and to name the illicit vendors whom Doctor Doran's squads have strangely failed to note.

Engineers have a habit of working that way. They just won't proceed without blue-prints. They specialize in facts and foundations There are no such words as "guess" and "surmise" in their lexicons.

The senator, however, can't supply the requested whens and wheres.

HE has no verified knowledge of recent smuggling or contraband entry.

But he can state that several truck loads of liquor have been received by the Siamese legation—which, under legal technicality, isn't American ground and, through diplomatic courtesy, is entitled to import wines, whiskies or white elephants, ad lib.

"Furthermore, deponent proveth nothing." His fanfaronade pretty much resolves itself into generalizations, vague statements and current gossip.

He cites extracts from a 1928 news article, and mentions the report of a certain Major White covering night club investigations in January, 1927.

Nonetheless, he would have the District commissioners do their duty or lose their heads. Mr. Hoover entered office March 4, 1929.

Mr. Howell suspects that there are fish in the pond, and casts at random in hopes of snagging something with his empty hook.

The president is a fisherman too, and refuses to waste time lugging federal nets in the wake of a sensation-angler.

He won't set up a chopping block until its necessity is manifest, and he intends to support Doctor Doran's administration, pending the production of information that local treasury units are sleeping at the post.

He is willing and anxious to be convinced that the lid can be completely tightened on the District of Columbia—as well as the rest of the United States—and will do that very thing, whenever Senator Howell, the anti-saloon league or anybody else, gets down to brass-tack analysis, and book and chapter data.

Meanwhile, he's too busy with important matters to tilt lances at windmills—or windbags.

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who runs away from trouble often finds it multiplied when it catches him."

There are times when it is wise to run away from trouble, but, usually it is best to make sure that you understand the situation and with firmness and kindness promptly seek the right adjustment.

A dispatch from Paris says that time has mellowed Gene Tunney's bearing toward the press. Tunney? Oh, yes, he was the fellow who spoke at Yale about something or other, wasn't he?

Unprincipled people often take an interest only in those who have a substantial principal.

A convention of barbers announced that American men like perfumed face lotions. Just try to get out of a barber shop without some.

"The evolutionist seems to know everything about the missing link except the fact that he is missing."—G. K. Chesterton.

Unity and Leadership

WICHITA FALLS has gone as far as it has largely because its citizenship has gotten behind capable leadership and acted in unison. Anybody who has lived here any length of time could point to a number of instances where some opportunity has offered itself or some crisis come upon us and the citizenship has come together, chosen its leaders and acted with solidarity in grasping the opportunity or in meeting the crisis. And there has never been any quarrel about the personnel of the leadership, the choice has fallen upon those most capable of leadership. To see this unity of purpose and effort always has been an inspiration to those of us who live here and to those on the outside who have looked on.

We were beginning to fear that our old spirit of unity was lacking and that our leadership was dormant, but the spirit exhibited at the gathering here last week to discuss some arrangement to promote tests for deep oil has dissipated our fears and has given us a reassurance and feeling of hopefulness and confidence. We now know that here is leadership and unity in Wichita Falls that augurs well in a rather trying time. As said, the purpose of the meeting was to devise plans for prospecting for deep oil. The initial steps were taken at that meeting to devise such a plan and there can be no doubt that such a plan will be worked through.

But the meeting had the larger significance of letting us know the facts of unity and leadership. Such a manifestation, it seems to us, was needed. And now that we know we have it why not put it to work to solve our water, airport and any number of other problems that confront us.

The Wichita County Fair

PUBLIC spirited citizens of Iowa Park who for several years have worked faithfully in putting over a local fair this year have seen their fair blossom forth into a county wide exhibition. This just didn't happen but was the result of a lot of hard work and planning by citizens of Iowa Park with the cooperation of all the other communities in the county. We are glad to see the chamber of commerce and the business interests of Wichita Falls contribute so materially to the success of the fair. The same can be said of the chambers of commerce of Electra and Burkburnett and every other organization in the county that participated. It has been an exhibition of cooperation that ought to help every meritorious enterprise launched in the county, whether at Iowa Park, Electra, Burkburnett or in any other community.

Wichita county with its sytem of improved highways, its means of prompt and easy communication and transportation, its communities of identical interests, its homogenous population of like aspirations ought to be knit together in the ties of closest friendship. We believe it is and think the cooperation given the Wichita county fair at Iowa Park has shown this.

The success of the fair just closed ought to assure that the exhibition will continue from year to year. It ought to give encouragement for a bigger and a better fair next year.

To Honor Our Pioneers

THE SUGGESTION made at the old settlers reunon here Saturday that a permanent organization be formed and the reunion be made an annual event is one that ought not to allowed to die.

Wichita Falls owes a great debt to its pioneers who came to a country devoid of the comforts and convenienees of civilization and who stuck things through good years and lean, wet years and drouths and all the vicissitudes of pioneering until they built the foundations of a prosperous community.

For those of them who are left and who gathered in reunion Saturday with one of their number as gracious host it is safe to say that the occasion was one of the happiest of the whole year. Their fundamental contribution to Wichita Falls makes the rest of us owe them the opportunity of such a reunion annually.

The Record News would move that early steps be taken to form a permanent organization to this end.

Losing Their Alarm

A VERY FEW YEARS AGO you could produce violent manifestations of hatred and alarm in any representative group of American industrialists by tiptoeing up to them and pronouncing the words, "Soviet Russia."

Today that attitude has changed. The industrialists adopt a receptive air when they hear those words nowadays, and cluster around to see if a new business deal can't be arranged.

The reason is not hard to find. Russia is rapidly becoming a very excellent customer for American business men. Already her purchases from America are four times their maximum under the czar, and there is every indication that the surface has barely been scratched. The $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 contracts the Soviets are dangling under the noses of American industrialists are beginning to have a very marked effect.

In a short time, one imagines, this nation will stop hearing about the iniquities and treacheries of the followers of Lenin.

"All Quiet on the Western Front"

By ERICH MARIA REMARQUE

CHAPTER XIV

It is nearly noon. The sun blazes hotly, the sweat stings in our eyes, we wipe it off on our sleeves, and often blood with it. At last we reach a trench that is in a somewhat better condition. It is manned and ready for the counter-attack, it receives us. Our guns open up in full blast and out off the enemy attack.

The lines behind us stop. They can advance no farther. The attack is crushed by our artillery. We watch. The fire lifts a hundred yards and we break forward. Besides me a lance corporal has his head torn off. He runs a few steps more while the blood spouts from his neck like a fountain.

It does not come quite to hand-to-hand fighting; they are driven back. We arrive once again at our shattered trench and pass on beyond it.

Oh, this turning back again. We reach the shelter of the reserves and yearn to creep in and disappear;—but instead we must turn round and plunge again into the horror. If we were not automata at that moment we would continue lying there, exhausted, and without will. But we are swept forward again, powerless, madly advance and raging; we will kill, for they are still our mortal enemies: their rifles and bombs are aimed against us, and if we don't destroy them, they will destroy us.

The brown earth, the torn, blasted earth, with a greasy shine under the sun's rays; the earth is the background of this restless, clumsy world of automatons, our reaping is the scratching of a quill, our lips are dry, our heads are debauched with stupor—thus we stagger forward, and into our pierced and shattered souls bores the torturing image of the brown earth with the greasy sun and the convolved and dead soldiers, who lie there—it can't be helped—why cry and clutch at our legs as we spring away over them.

We have not all feeling for one another. We can hardly control ourselves when our hunted glance lights on the form of some other man. We are insensible, dead men, who through some dreadful magic, are still able to run and to kill.

A young Frenchman lags behind, he is overtaken, he puts up his hands, in one he still holds his revolver—does he mean to shoot or to give himself up?—a blow from a spade cleaves through his face. A second sees it and tries to run farther; a bayonet jabs into his back. He leaps in the air, his arms thrown wide, his mouth wide open, yelling; he staggers, in his back the bayonet quivers. A third throws away his rifle, cowers down with his hands before his eyes. He is left behind with a few other prisoners to carry off the wounded.

Suddenly in the pursuit we reach the enemy line.

We are so close on the heels of our retreating enemies that we reach it almost at the same time as they. In this way we suffer few casualties. A machine gun barks, but is silenced with a bomb. Nevertheless, the couple of seconds has sufficed to give us five stomach wounds. With the butt of his rifle Kat smashes to pulp the face of one of the unwounded machine-gunners. We bayonet the others before they have time to get out their bombs. Then thirstily we drink the water they have for cooling the gun.

Everywhere wire-cutters are snapping, planks are thrown across the entanglements, we jump through the narrow entrances into the trenches. Hale strikes his spade into the neck of a gigantic Frenchman and throws the first hand-grenade; we duck behind breastwork for a few seconds, then the whole section of trench before us is empty. The next throw whizzes obliquely over the corner and clears a passage; as we run into the dug-outs, the earth shudders, it crashes; dully and stifled, we stumble over slippery bodies; I fall into an open belly on which lies a clean, new officer's cap.

The fight ceases. We lose touch with the enemy. We cannot stay here long but must retire under cover of our artillery to our own position. No sooner do we know this than we dive into the nearest dugout, and with the utmost haste seize on whatever provisions we can see, especially the tins of corned beef and butter, before we clear out.

We get back pretty well. There has been no further attack by the enemy. We lie for an hour panting and resting before anyone speaks. We are so completely played out that in spite of our great hunger we do not think of the provisions. Then gradually we become something like men again.

The corned beef over there is famous along the whole front. Occasionally it has been the chief reason for a fixing raid on our part, for our nourishment is generally bad; we have constant hunger.

We bagged five tins altogether. The fellows over there are well looked after; it seems a luxury to us with our hunger-pangs, our turnip jam, and meat so scarce that we simply grab at it. Hale has scored a tin loaf of white French bread and stuck it in behind his belt like a spade. It is a bit bloody at one corner, but that can be cut off.

It is a good thing we have something decent to eat at least, we still have a use for all our strength. Enough to eat is just as valuable as a good dug-out. It can save our lives, that is the reason we are so greedy for it.

Kropp has captured two water-bottles full of cognac. We pass them around.

The evening benediction broods. Night comes out of the craters like the mists. It looks as though the holes were full of shadowy recruits. The white flares sputter, softly round before they burst, as if they were far away over the fields. Their long streaks stretch from crater to crater.

It was chilly, I sat on pantry and stare into the darkness. My strength is exhausted as always after an attack, and so it is hard for me to be alone with my thoughts. They are not properly thoughts; they are memories which in my weakness turn homeward and strangely deep me.

The parachute lights shoot upwards—and I see a picture, a summer evening, I am in the cathedral cloister and look at the tall rose trees that bloom in the middle of the cloister garden where the monks lie buried. Around the walls are the stone carvings of the stations of the cross. No one is there. A great quietness rules in this blooming quadrangle, the sun lies warm on the heavy gray stones. I place my hand upon them and feel the warmth.

At the right-hand corner the green cathedral spire ascends into the pale blue sky of the evening. Between the glowing columns of the cloister is the cool darkness that only churches have, and I stand there and wonder whether, when I am 50, I shall have experienced the bewildering emotions of love.

The image is alarmingly near; it touches me before it dissolves in the light of the next star-shell.

I lay hold of my rifle to see that it is in trim. The barrel is wet. I take it in my hand and rub off the moisture with my fingers.

Between the meadows behind our town there stands a line of old poplars by a stream. They were visible from a great distance, and although they grew on one bank only, we call them the poplar avenue. Even as children we had a great love for them, they drew us vaguely thither, we played truant the whole day by them and listened to their rustling. We sat beneath them on the bank of the stream and let our feet hang over in the bright, swift waters. The pure fragrance of the water and the melody of the wind in the poplars held our fancies. We loved them dearly, and the image of those days still makes my heart pause in its beating.

It is strange that all the memories that come have these two qualities. They are always completely calm, that is predominant in them; and even if they are not really calm, they became so. They are soundless apparitions that speak to me, without any word—and it is the silence of their silence that forces me to lay hold of my sleeve and my rifle lest I should abandon myself to the libertion and allurement in which my body would dilate and gently pass away into the still forces that lie behind these things.

They are quiet in this way, because quietness is so unattainable for us now. At the front there is no quietness and the curse of the front reaches so far that we never pass beyond it. Even in the remote depots and rest-areas the droning and the muffled noise of shelling is always in our ears. We are never so far off that it is no more to be heard. But those last few days it has been unbearable.

Their stillness is the reason why these memories of former times do not awaken desires so much as sorrow—a strange, inapprehensible melancholy. Once we had such desires—but they return not. They are past, they belong to another world that is gone from us. In the barracks they called forth a rebellious, wild craving for their return; for when they were still bound to us, we belonged to them and they to us, even though we were always absent from them. They appeared in the soldiers' songs which we sang as we marched between the glow of the dawn and the black silhouettes of the forests to drill on the moor, they were a powerful remembrance that was in us and came from us.

But here in the trenches they are completely lost to us. They arise no more; we are dead and they stand remote on the horizon, they are an apparition, a mysterious reflection drawing in home, that we wear and love without hope. They are strong and our desire is strong—but they are unattainable, and we know it.

And even if these scenes of our youth were given back to us we would hardly know what to do. The tender, sweet influence that passed from them into us could not arise again. We long to be in them and to move in them; we long to remember and to love them and to be stirred by the sight of them. But it would be like gazing at the photograph of a dead comrade; those are his features, it is his face, and the days we spent together take on a mournful life in the memory; but the man himself it is not.

We could never again, as the same beings, take part in those scenes. It was not any recognition of their beauty and their significance that attracted us, but the communion, the feeling of a comradeship with the things and events of our existence, which cut us off and made the word of our parents a thing incomprehensible to us—for then we surrendered ourselves to events and were lost in them, and the least little thing was enough to carry us down the stream of eternity. Perhaps it was only the privilege of our youth but as yet we recognized no limits and saw nowhere an end. We had that thrill of expectation in the blood which united us with the course of our days.

Today we would pass through the scenes of our youth like travelers. We are burnt up by hard facts; like tradesmen we understand directions, and like butchers, necessities. We are no longer troubled—we are indifferent. We have to be there; but could we live there?

We are forlorn like children, and experienced like old men; we are crude and sorrowful and superficial—I believe we are lost.

Clabber Milk

Those of our grandmothers who lived on the farm were accustomed to set aside a dish of milk to "clabber," and when it had become thick little Miss Muffet's dish of curds and whey, it was eaten with perhaps a dash of cinnamon or maple sugar. When taken alone as a complete meal, clabbered milk is very suitable and it tends to give the digestive organs a slight rest.

Sour milk and sour milk diets are widely used, not only in America and Europe, but in Persia, Turkestan, Siberia, Cape Colony and South Africa. Some eat soured milk because they enjoy it, some because they believe it of value in overcoming intestinal troubles, and others, in the hot countries, because it is impossible to keep sweet milk. There is, however, no definite proof that sour milk is superior to sweet milk for the average person.

Much milk souring comes as a result of the lactic acid created by fermentation. In buttermilk, this process is allowed to work naturally, that is, when it takes its time, and when the cream is ready, the churn separates the butter from the milk by churning. It is certainly true that a glass of fresh buttermilk just out of a cool churn has a delicious flavor if the milk has been kept clean and is not too old.

Much buttermilk is used in Ireland and Scotland, and it has been estimated that a pint of the average buttermilk has about the same nutritional value as two and one-half ounces of dried beef. It is easily digested and certainly a cheap form of protein. Because of its acid content, however, it should always be used with bread or other starchy foods, and is best used by itself or in combination with the sweet fruits, such as dates, figs, prunes and raisins.

In making buttermilk generally speaking as such, the cream is sepa- rated and buttermilk cultures are added to sour it, when it is then acidified to cut the curd. Real buttermilk, however, has a much better flavor.

Kumiss is a form of sour milk used by the Tartars on the south- ern steppes of Russia. It is made from a lactic acid fermentation of mare's milk. The process, which takes several days, produces some alcohol and the milk will foam and taste about the same alcoholic con- tent as light beer.

Yoghoort, a fermented milk used in Turkey and Persia, is made from sheep or cow's milk which is first boiled down to concentrate it and then innoculated by adding sour milk containing the bacillus bulgaricus.

Lemon milk is a kind of sour milk which I can highly recom- mend. This can be made at home by shaking a pint of raw milk and the juice of one lemon in a quart jar. This combination is easily di- gested and many persons who do not relish plain milk often enjoy it. It should be made fresh every time it is used. This form of milk diet may be found valuable and even superior to other types of sour milk.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Falling Hair

Question—Mrs. K. L. writes: "I am 25 years of age and am losing my hair very fast, in fact, parts of my head are almost bald. I also have a lot of dandruff. I have heard the sweet oil is good. Do you recommend this?"

Answer—Change your diet so you get more of the salad vegetables, and get the calcium and silicon you need for hair growth. Next, have your scalp treated by radiations from the ultra-violet light. After your scalp has been thoroughly sunburned by this treatment, start using the application of ice to your scalp twice daily, rubbing in some kind of vegetable oil afterwards. You must first supply the blood with hair-building material, and then increase the circulation to the scalp so the hair roots will be sufficiently irrigated.

Pumpernickel

Question—H. H. asks: "What is 'pumpernickel' bread?"

Answer—Pumpernickel is the black bread of the German and Russian peasant, being made of coarse, unbolted rye flour. The genuine pumpernickel is imported into this country sliced in cans, but, personally I do not know of a baker in the United States who makes this bread of the straight rye flour, that is, without the addi- tion of wheat flour. The real arti- cle is an excellent starch food.

False Teeth

Question—"Six years ago I had my upper teeth removed on ac- count of abscesses, and am still unable to wear a plate because of mucus collecting between it and the roof of my mouth, although I have had several made by the best dentists. Do you think I will ever be able to wear a plate?"

Answer—I have had many pa- tients who complained of the same thing, and I always advised them to go to one good dentist after an- other until they find one who is able to properly fit them with false teeth. The fitting of the plate is not only a science, but an art, and even those dentists with the best reputations often fail to fit false teeth properly. Don't give up, but try again.

O. U. Students Inspect Fossils at Frederick

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 29.—Inspection of the Andrew Hollo- man sand pits north of town and his collection of fossils was made Saturday by a group from the state university at Norman, con- sisting of L. E. Brooking, physics instructor; R. W. Harris, paleon- tology instructor, and James Dun- ham, student. Harris identified a hitherto unidentified tooth, weigh- ing about 16 pounds, as belonging to a prehistoric elephant.

The various bones were carefully inspected, much interest being especially manifested in the tail bone of a glyptodon and sharks teeth.

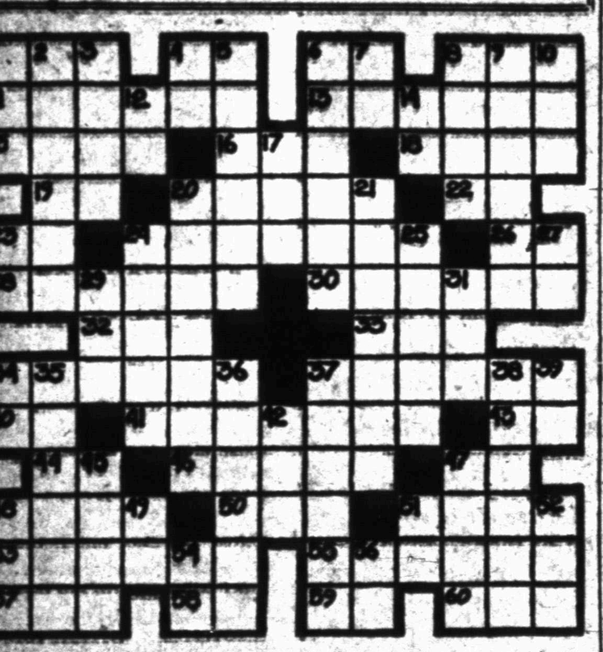

Some spear-shaped bones resem- bled a spear which the instructors said they found in the skull of an Indian discovered in a river bank near Purcell some time ago. An- other bone, V-shaped, they said might have been used for an arrow.

STEERS EVEN SERIES DESPITE BARONS' GREAT RALLY IN NINTH

DALLAS TAKES THRILLER, 6–5

Garrison Finish All But Wrecks Mavs

By GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Sept. 29. (AP)—The Birmingham Barons lost the fourth game of the Dixie series to Dallas, 6 to 5, today, but not until after they had jumped aboard young Victor Frasier for four runs in the ninth inning and sent some 14,000 assorted fans into a mild state of hysteria.

A perfect peg from Ray Flaskamper, Steer shortstop, to Bischoff, cut Sturdy off at the plate for the final out of the game and averted what would have been the tying run. Four hits, a walk and an error by Flaskamper with a certain double play in front of him figured in the Baron celebration that all but unhorsed Frasier.

Series Square

Hard won victory in today's tussle enabled Dallas to square the series at two wins each. The fifth contest is scheduled here tomorrow, a sixth at Birmingham Wednesday. If a seventh tilt is necessary to decide the Dixie title it will be played here Friday, Dallas officials having won a toss prior to today's game. Today's contest was the last in which the players share in the receipts.

In taking the Southern association kings today the Mavericks unloosed a savage batting attack in the early innings that drove Dick Ludolph to the showers in the fourth. He set the locals down with two hits in the opening fray at Birmingham. Hearn, a southpaw, succeec 1 Ludolph to the hill and gave what proved to be the winning runs in the eighth.

Two Homers Hit

Although outhit, 12 to 9, the Steers ~ot more distance with their smacks off Ludolph, two home runs and three doubles being included in their collection. Si Rosenthal and Country Davis each socked one over the right field screen in the third. Each was ceremoniously presented with a "hot dog" by Mayor J. Waddy Tate as the cameras clicked. Davis also smacked a double that started the Steers' victorious rally in the eighth.

The Herd got to Ludolph early. Flaskamper led off with a rousing double to left and scampered to third when the Baron hurler threw wild past second trying to catch him off. Randy Moore's sacrifice fly to center brought him in.

Aforesaid circuit raps by Rosenthal and Davis accounted for two more in the third. Both were well hit balls, and Manager Johnny Dobbs rushed Hearn to the bull pen. Johnson opened the fourth with a double against the screen and went to third when Hap Morse slammed another against the wire for two bases. Hearn came in from the practice box double time and Ludolph stalked out. Frasier then brought Johnson in with his infield out to second.

Frasier Air-Tight

The Barons were helpless before Frasier's curves until the fifth. The youngster, who was treated roughly in his start at Birmingham, was bearing down in the tight spots, retiring the first nine batters in order.

Bennett gave the Alabamans their first run in the fifth, when he cracked a clean double to right and scored on Hearn's infield out after Pickering had drawn a walk and Gibson hit a short single to left to fill the bases. Frasier forced the next two Barons to fly out.

After relieving Ludolph, Hearn twirled unbeatable ball for three frames, holding the Steers hitless until the eighth, when Davis poled a long double to left to start the fireworks. Stock went in to run for the big first baseman and scored from second on the next play when Hearn took Bischoff's bunt and threw wild past third. Bischoff took second on the play and scored when Jeffries singled to left.

With Dallas apparently safely in front, 6 to 1, many of the customers had sought the air when Weis came up in the Baron ninth. They missed the show. The Southern association's leading hitter started it by beating out a hot one to third, Jeffries throw pulling Davis off the bag. Frasier then issued four bad ones to Smith, after which Bennett came through with a single to fill the sacks. None out.

Pickerings' roller to Morse was a made-to-order double play, but Flaskamper dropped the toss at second and all hands were safe, Weis scoring. The portly Yam Yaryan then batted for Gibson and was an infield out, Smith scoring. Klugman, batting for Hearn, likewise was an infield victim, but Bennett crossed the plate and Pickering reached second. He scored a moment later as Sturdy sliced a clean single to right.

Sturdy made a clean theft of second with Black at bat, putting the tying run on the middle sack, where a single would do the trick. Black's best effort was a freak hit toward short, which Flaskamper fumbled momentarily and allowed to roll toward the outfield. Sturdy, just rounding third, tore for home. Flaskamper recovered the pellet and pegged true to Bischoff, who dived into Sturdy several feet from the plate and came up holding the ball.

Moose Clabaugh, Baron siege gun, whose next bat it was, turned back toward the dugout.

Boston Ball Clubs Never Lost Series

BOSTON, Sept. 29. (AP)—Talk about interesting world's series sidelights! How about the ones contributed by the Boston teams which have never lost a world's series in which they participated?

Baseball fans will never forget what the Braves did in 1914 when they crashed through to the National league pennant. That was the only one the Braves ever won and they lost no time making good.

The Red Sox have won four pennants and four world's championships.

CUBS DEFEAT REDS, 1 TO 0

Root Cinches Mound in World's Series

CHICAGO, Sept. 29. (AP)—Charley Root turned in his 18th victory and became the logical choice to open the world's series with the Athletics when he let Cincinnati down with six hits, as Chicago beat the Reds, 1 to 0, here today.

For of the six hits were infield scratches.

Cold and dreary weather held the attendance down to 12,000, one of the smallest gatherings of fans this season.

Hornsby's 39th home run of the season in the fourth inning was the only score of the game. Rogers also got two singles and a double to help out his batting average. Neither the Cubs nor Reds really threatened to do anything in the other innings.

Hack Wilson knocked out pitcher Ben Frey with a line drive to the Reds' pitcher's stomach in the fourth but Frey recovered and pitched great ball the rest of the way.

The champion Cubs are idle tomorrow and Tuesday, they open a five game series in Cincinnati. A game with Pittsburgh here next Sunday brings the season to a close. Score:

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29. Hallahan won his third victory of the season in the nightcap as Chick Hafey starred at bat, getting his 28th home run and three doubles. Score:

Tail End Red Sox Win Over Champs, 10-0

BOSTON, Sept. 30. (AP)—The tail end Red Sox turned on the pennant winning Athletics and their pitching ace Bob "Lefty" Grove, for a 10 to 0 victory at Braves field here today.

Joe Cicero, a rookie not yet old enough to vote, drove in three runs with a double and two singles and scored twice himself. He played a fine game in left field for the Red Sox.

YANKS WIN, 3-0

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29. (AP)—George Pipgras had one of his good days today and Washington obtained only two hits as New York won, 3 to 0.

Judge and Brown got the only bingles off the Yankee's delivery and he walked but four men.

Brown also pitched brilliantly, scattering seven hits. Gehrig hit for the circuit into the left field bleachers and also contributed a double. Score:

GIANTS TRIM PHILS

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. (AP)—The Giants defeated the Phillies by 4 to 2 here today, breaking the streak of Shotton's men at seven straight. Bill Walker, the young New York southpaw, outpitched Claude Willoughby to register his eighth successive triumph.

Ed Roush personally carried the Giant attack with a pass, a double, a triple and a home run, driving in three of the four runs. Davis hit a homer for Philadelphia, and O'Doul got two hits out of four times at bat, bringing his hit total to 248, two short of Rogers Hornsby's National league record and nine short of the major league mark held by George Sisler.

TIGERS BEAT WHITE SOX

DETROIT, Sept. 29. (AP)—While cold breezes blew and 1,500 fans shivered, the Tigers nosed out the White Sox, 9 to 8, in 11 innings in the last home game of the season here today.

Red Faber started on the mound for Chicago but only pitched to one batsman, retiring in favor of Dutch Henry. Faber hurt his leg warming up, it was announced. Tommy Adkins and young Ed Walsh also pitched for the Sox.

Jonathan Stone, recruit Tiger outfielder, prolonged the game by hitting a home run into the center field bleachers to tie it up at 7-all in the ninth, and singled to drive in the winning run in the 11th. Score:

FERRELL WINS 20TH

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29. (AP)—Wes Ferrell, Cleveland's sensational young right hander, pitched his twentieth victory of the season today when he shut out the Browns, 4 to 0. He allowed only two hits and did not permit a St. Louis runner to reach second base.

The victory virtually clinched third place for the Indians as it gave them a lead of four games with only four more games left on the schedule.

62-Year-Old Ring Star Seeks Comeback

FRENCH LICK SPRINGS, Ind., Sept. 29. (US)—Tommy Williams, 62-year-old physical director, and one-time star of the ring, seeks a "comeback" and is aided by Charles B. Dillingham, New York theatrical producer.

Dillingham has wired Humbert Fugazy and Paddy Harmon asking that Williams be matched with any 60-year-old as a preliminary. He says Williams is in wonderful shape for his age having boxed daily for years.

Rajah Poor Showman; Still Learning at 33

CHICAGO, Sept. 29. (AP)—The great Hornsby is one of the poorest showmen on the Chicago team.

He makes no unnecessary gestures on the playing field and never bids for attention.

That doesn't mean that he goes unnoticed, for it would be pretty hard to have a slugger like Hornsby around without having him dominate the spotlight.

Although the Rajah is one of the game's greatest players he still is learning. Few believed that Joe McCarthy, the Cub manager, who never played major league baseball, could teach Hornsby anything about the game.

But the Cubs' manager, who himself was somewhat of a second baseman down in the American association, taught Rogers how to cover more ground to his left and overcome one of his few weaknesses.

There is no fancy name for SPIT

Don't let this "lip-operation" have a part in making your cigar.

Face the facts . . . smoke Cremo . . . certified free from the menace of spit.

Certified For Your Protection
by Alfred W. McCann,
D. Litt., A.B., LL.D.,
Noted pure food expert, long active in crusades for pure foods and sanitary factories.

"Most diseases enter the body through the mouth . . . but I emphatically say that no smoker of Cremo ever runs this risk. Because the method of manufacture aims to give Cremo the same standard of purity that pasteurization gives to milk."

Price alone doesn't make a cigar safe for your mouth. At any price there can be no tastier cigar than Certified Cremo . . . and, in addition, it's clean.

You get the greatest enjoyment from Certified Cremo—free of the menace of the old filthy cigar shops where the man in the window rolled the leaves with dirty fingers . . . and spit on the ends!

Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by United States Government approved methods. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the danger of spit. Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

• • • •

A suggestion, deliberately made with confidence to smokers of imported cigars: Try a Certified Cremo—made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, all ripe and mellow. Each leaf goes through a slow, expensive maturing process that develops the fullest flavor and mildness. You never realized how good Certified Cremo is—don't let its 5 cent price stand in your way. Your physician will recommend a mild cigar in place of heavy, expensive brands. There isn't a bit of scrap in Certified Cremo . . . not a trace of floor sweepings. All long filler . . . all fresh, tender leaves . . . and topped off with the finest imported Sumatra wrapper. Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly had in mind when he said: "What this country needs most is a good 5-cent cigar."

"I certify Cremo sanitary and clean" Alfred W. McCann

Monoplane Goes Up Without Man And Comes Back

HAVRE, Mont., Sept. 29. (AP)—Around the Havre airport today they were telling a story about the flying skill of a little monoplane which took off without a pilot, flew about for four or five miles and broke only a propeller in landing "by its own self."

Several persons were at the field and they, asserting their veracity to an Associated Press correspondent, told the same story, thus:

Clarence Hendrickson, student pilot, after finding some difficulty in getting the motor started, opened the gasoline throttle slightly and turned the propeller. The motor began to roar and the plane moved down the field.

Hendrickson dashed for the cabin and reaching for the throttle from the outside, opened it more instead of closing it. The plane darted away with the young pilot hanging onto the cabin. He was dragged a short distance and then forced to release his hold.

The small craft left the ground, gained altitude, made several graceful banks and landed a few minutes later in an open space adjacent to the airport.

The ship is in service again today. Hendrickson has recovered from his severe shaking up.

The requirements called for 8.

As of Jan. 1, 1929, total current assets were $12,008. Current liabilities were $11,967 and net working capital was $38. Book value applicable to the preferred stock amounted to $115.77 a share.

Beatrice Burton's New Serial Defends "Easy" Modern Girl

IN THE MAUVE DECADE

As a prelude to the publication in The Record News of the first instalment of Beatrice Burton's serial, "Easy," Mrs. Burton was asked to write her views about her greatest and most recent serial. The title, "Easy," she declares, designates the girl of today, the person consistently referred to as the hard-boiled flapper. And that's precisely what she isn't, Mrs. Burton insists. The girl of yesterday was not "easy"—neither easy to woo nor easy to support.

Tuesday, Oct. 1 The Record News begins one of the most striking serials of recent years.

It's called "EASY" and the author is Beatrice Burton, who won nation-wide fame with such serials as "His Jazz Bride," "Sally's Shoulders" and "The Hollywood Girl."

The Record News, realizing that thousands of readers will hail this new love story with its universal appeal, asked Mrs. Burton to write her views about her latest and greatest serial dealing with the girl of today.

From her California home she telegraphs the following:

BEATRICE BURTON

THIS ENLIGHTENED AGE

The girl of today "is as easy as they make 'em." She is willing to share the expense of entertainment during courtship days and equally willing to pay her half of the family bills after marriage.

By BEATRICE BURTON

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Sept. 29.—If the girls of yesterday were not twice as hard-boiled and twice as hard-shelled as the flappers of today, I don't know a thing about women!

The modern kiss-and-run love was unknown to the girls of yesterday, for women were not "easy" then.

That is why I have just finished my story about the person we call the hard-boiled flapper. I called this story "Easy."

Before I started to write it, I forgot all the things I had heard about the girl of today and took a long look at her through what artists call "the fresh eye." I was amazed at the things I found out. Here are some of them:

There is nothing hard-boiled about flappers except their complexions. In all other respects today's girlhood is anything but hard-boiled. She is as "easy" as they make 'em. As a matter of fact, take the modern girl's attitude toward money, for example.

Must Pay the Bills

Today's young man likes today's young woman to spend her own money instead of his, in nine cases out of 10—and so she does! In fact, I myself know a great many young flappers who split the bills for dinner and dancing every time they go out. I know girls who invite men to parties. They call for the men in their own cars and say: "Hope you had a good time, Bill," at the end of the evening.

Thus the modern fifty-fifty marriage. I know working girls who know that they never can get married unless they promise to hold up their end of the modern half-and-half marriage, who know they will have to work to live after they get married and bring home their pay envelopes for the grocer, the gas bill collector and the landlord.

Tolls for Dream-Home

Next November a little stenographer I know is going to be married. She is a frail thing who sometimes does typing for me evenings after her regular office work is over. And she works harder than anyone I've ever known. She is saving every penny she can to buy the furniture and the linens and the plated silver for the home she has dreamed of getting when she becomes a bride.

Now how about the man in this case? He drives a good car and wears a great many well-cut suits and expensive-looking neckties. However, things were not always like this.

There was a time, and it wasn't so long ago, when a man expected to pay court to a girl when he loved her; when he came to see her he brought a box of chocolates or a bouquet of flowers. It was he who did the inviting and sent the flowers and provided the "hired hack" to take her to an evening's entertainment.

And, almost always he asked the girl of his heart to marry him before he did any violent or any other kind of love-making. Ah, women were not "easy" then! They had to be wooed to be won. And when they were won they had to be supported. They stayed at home. Probably they knew little about making money.

Spending was their problem, and they expected to have lots of money to spend. Kiss-and-run love then? No!

So these are some of the things that have moved me to write this story of it all—"Easy."

POLICE RETURN STOLEN CARS

Joy Riders Have Busy Night At Public Expense

The last of four automobiles stolen and recovered within a six-hour period Saturday night was found by police during the early hours of Sunday morning, according to information given Sunday by Frank Burns, chief of police.

Chief Burns was of the opinion that at least three of the cars were taken by joy riders, as all were found abandoned. One of the machines, belonging to S. G. Helms, prominent rancher of Dundee, contained clothing belonging to his daughter valued at several hundred dollars. Nothing, so far as could be discovered, had been taken from the car, a Chevrolet coupe.

Other cars presumably taken by joyriders included a Chevrolet sedan belonging to R. L. Rodocker, 1509 Travis avenue, and a Chrysler roadster belonging to Robert Reed, a negro. The three machines were located by Ellis Summers and A. L. Stubblefield, city detectives.

The other car stolen and recovered was a Chevrolet roadster belonging to J. A. Maag, 2155 Avenue G. Howard Peters, city officer, noticed the car when it was driven past a stop sign. The car was turned at the next corner and Peters, on the lookout for such a machine, went in pursuit. He found the car, with engine still running, beside the curb just around the corner. Its occupants had fled.

Additional to Judge Martin, Judge W. W. Cook will proceed with the docket in the 78th district court, while Judge Allan D. Montgomery will serve during the week as a special judge of the 89th.

MAJESTIC: "Charming Sinners." Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook lend the talking screen some very smooth acting. Talking comedy. Vitaphone vaudeville. Paramount sound news.

STRAND: "A Dangerous Woman." Baclanova, Clive Brook and Neil Hamilton. Talking comedy. Vitaphone vaudeville. Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: "The One Woman Idea," with all-star cast. Comedy. Pathe news. Lillian Murry and company, musical comedy.

GEM: Tom Tyler in "The Pride of Pawnee." Chapter nine of "The Tiger's Shadow." Comedy.

That type of production in which critics see the sure downfall of the talkies as motion pictures is admirably illustrated in the attraction now showing at the Majestic, "Charming Sinners," based upon and closely following W. S. Maugham's "The Constant Wife," will be one of the most acceptable shows of the year because it is an excellently photographed stage play, enacted by a cast of unquestioned capacity; but it is not a motion picture.

We recall off-hand only one bit of motion with which the narrative was carried forward. When Ann-Marie petulantly tossed Dr. Miles' cigaret case over her shoulder toward him, it chanced to strike the bed and slip silently under a pillow—making no noise, and therefore not coming to its owner's attention. Everyone who sees the picture instantly recognizes in the presence of the cigaret case under the pillow the element through which a clandestine love affair will be discovered. Two line of action brought to a climax through one second of motion—without any spoken words. Aside from that, "Charming Sinners" is strictly a photographed stage play, with the camera being used only to conduct the players on and off the stage.

As this production illustrates the present vogue in Hollywood for borrowing anything which has proven successful in other media of entertainment, so the superb acting of Ruth Chatterton, Clive Brook and William Powell point the amazing superiority of restrained speech and gesture over noisy antics, of which the talkies have used much. Not that the three leading roles alone were assigned to acknowledged stars. The remaining seven minor roles are interpreted by qualified graduates of the legitimate school.

Since "Charming Sinners" depends so entirely upon dialog for its narration of events in the Miles family, a righteous quarrel with muffled voices which made many lines during the first half of the play unintelligible could be maintained. One scene which had the appearance of being given admirably—when Kathryn's mother hears much scandal about Kathryn's husband from Kathryn's friends over their tea—was unfortunately garbled past recall. Which is merely one of the problems which the talkie industry must solve if talking-plays are to replace motion-plays on the screen.

Chatterton, Powell and Brook also illustrate strikingly how very important the voice is in things histrionic. Miss Chatterton injects intense feeling into varied situations by delicate inflections—nothing more. The tight lips and nervous hands of Dr. Miles; the easy grace of William Powell's Karl Kraley, and the annoying loveliness of Anne-Marie, combined with Miss Chatterton's dominating performance to reproduce much of "The Constant Wife's" unusual appeal.

Announcement has been made that Interstate vaudeville will be included on the winter programs at the Majestic. Beginning Oct. 13, a bill of five acts will be shown here two days each week in addition to talking picture features. Sunday and Monday have been chosen as the days for vaudeville here, however, instead of Thursday and Friday as formerly. There will be four performances daily, at 2:30, 4:30, 7:30 and 9:30 p. m.

John Gilbert, rival of John Barrymore for first honors among screen celebrities for the male "it," is reported back in Los Angeles energetically disclaiming the distinction of having severed marital ties with Ina Claire—to whom he was married only a few months ago. Well, they should have known better than to visit Paris. The real occasion of John's return to work is said to be the decision to put Charles Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities" into the talkies. In which case John will play the dual role of Sidney Carton and Charles Darnay. And should this play materialize, may Mr. Gilbert apply to his performance the eloquent declaration of Carton: "It is a far better thing I do now than I have ever done before."

Appeals Court Hears Wichita Suit In Drowning of Cat, Rabbit, Donkey

A donkey, cat and rabbit, all now deceased as the result of Wichita Falls' allegedly inadequate storm sewage system, occupied the attention Saturday of the staid justices of the court of civil appeals at Fort Worth as they heard argument on the appeal of the city of Wichita Falls from an award of approximately $500 damages made by a jury in district court here several months ago to W. M. Mauldin 2107 Broad street.

Attorneys who went to Fort Worth to argue the case returned Sunday. Judge Harvey Harris, acting for Thelbert Martin, city attorney, represented the city of Wichita Falls, while W. E. George and C. J. Brannan represented Mr. Mauldin.

In his original suit, Mr. Mauldin alleged that during even moderate rains, water flowed down inclines toward his residence in such quantities that on occasions, his home was flooded. The specific incident which led to his suit, he alleged, was an occasion when the floor of his home was covered by six inches of water. The rabbit and cat were drowned, as was the donkey, according to evidence given during the trial.

Mauldin alleged that the city was negligent in failing to provide adequate storm sewer facilities after a grading of streets had produced such inclines as would precipitate large quantities of water toward his particular neighborhood.

Martin's Second Trial Delayed by County

The trial of E. A. Martin, Wichita Falls attorney charged with barratry, will not be called in the county court at law Monday as had been planned earlier in the week, according to settings announced by L. V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney.

Instead, Mr. Abernathy said, the court will center its attention on traffic cases, of which 15 have been set for call Monday at 9 a. m. Most of the cases have been appealed from city court, although defendants charged with operating cars with wrong license plates, negligent collision and damaging highways are included among others. Mr. Martin was acquitted early last week on one of four indictments pending against him.
