White adds talk with teachers to agenda

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Gov. Mark White shakes hands with protesting teachers here Wednesday moments before he addressed the Permian Basin Petroleum Association at its annual meeting. The governor later met with about 60 of the protestors to answer questions and defend his support of public school reform.

Picketers get rare chance to air their grievances

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Gov. Mark White angrily defended his support of public school reform during a rare and unscheduled meeting with area educators here Wednesday night, saying school districts are guilty of releasing a lot of misinformation to the public at the teachers' expense.

The governor met with the teachers for about an hour and a half only minutes after he addressed the Permian Basin Petroleum Association at its annual meeting. Earlier, White arrived at the Holiday Inn Convention Center where about 60 angry teachers greeted him carrying picket signs and chanting "No more White lies."

Educators from across West Texas including Midland, Odessa, Fort Stockton, Alpine, Pecos, Abilene and Monahans said they planned the protest in opposition to White and the public school reform passed during a 1984 special legislative session.

The governor has come under fire in the past two years for his support of House Bill 72, career ladder, no-pass, no-play, and the Texas Examination of Current Teachers and Administrators — the statewide literacy test administered last month to certified public educators.

Pat Fowler, an Ector County Independent School District vocational education teacher, accused the governor of creating a "massive media campaign to smear the teachers," comparing it to a similar scheme used to discredit the Jews in Germany during World War II.

Midland Independent School District computer literacy teacher Mark Spears said: "Maybe we ought to thank Mark White. Look what he's done here. He's given us some backbone."

Arlinda Valencia, a Monahans Independent School District teacher, demanded the governor explain "why you are so determined to take our livelihood away with that TECAT test?"

White shouted back angrily, "I have put my life on the line for teachers in Texas. If you think it was easy to get a pay increase for teachers, you misunderstood."

The governor went on to explain how the literacy test was offered to the Legislature as a compromise in exchange for the tax increase needed to raise teacher salaries. "There's no way the public would have gone along with a tax increase without the test," he said. "If you don't believe me, ask them."

But Ms. Valencia interrupted saying, "You can take my raise. You can have my money."

One unidentified educator said she's concerned with what the Democratic Party has done to teachers and children. "The kids know who is in control of the classroom and it's not the teacher," she said. "When an evaluator walks in to the classroom, the kids know who is in control of that classroom. We're in their hands."

Sam Manning, president of the Midland Federation of Teachers, asked White to predict the future of public education in Texas regarding the impact of the reform during his tenure as governor.

"I plan to be working in the next session of the Legislature for better funding for these programs," White answered. "I'm still for high standards and I'm dedicated to seeing that we get the job done. All I'm asking you to do is give me a break."

Variable oil import fee essential, White tells PBPA

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

For the sake of national security, the president should enact a variable oil import fee immediately, said Gov. Mark White, speaking before the annual meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, Wednesday at the Holiday Inn Country Villa Convention Center in Midland.

"We beat general Rommel in North Africa in World War II, not because our tanks were better than his, but because ours had gasoline and his didn't. Our efforts to kill the German war machine that fueled the war were very successful," said White in pointing out the importance of a secure fuel source for national security. He also brought the issue closer to home when he pointed out that the only ally to help America in its attack on Libya was Great Britain, who has an independent energy source and is not dependent on Middle East oil.

White told the gathering of oilmen that a variable import tax would bring stability to the market and could be implemented without forming a new bureaucracy, going through a congressional battle or violating the free market principal.

The crowd of 500 remained frozen to their chairs when White called for anyone who believed there was a free market in relation to oil prices to standup.

"We don't have a free market," White said. "If it was a free market, I would be for it, but 75 percent of the world's oil is produced by governments, who use oil as a part of their foreign policy. But in this country the people own the oil." He said that even if the market was free, he didn't believe that the free market should control national security — that national security comes first.

He said that OPEC was now using oil as a part of its foreign policy, that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries could no longer drive the price of oil up, but it could drive it down. "They choked us with oil in 1973, now they are trying to drown us with it," he added.

White said it would not be necessary to battle Tip O'Neill and Congress to get an import tax passed, that the president could do it administratively. He said such a tax of 50 cents per barrel was already in place, and it would be just a matter of moving the decimal point. White explained: "No new bureaucracy would be needed, because we already have the staff in place to collect an import tax."

Test created anger, anxiety among teachers

Classroom Crisis?

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth of a five-part series on changes taking place in Texas public schools and how they are affecting teachers, administrators, students and the educational process.

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — JoAnn Eanes didn't take well to teacher testing.

A ten-year veteran biology teacher at San Antonio's Churchill High School, Ms. Eanes took nine days sick leave at TECAT time: one before and eight after the March 10 test. "It was anxiety, a lot of testing anxiety," said Ms. Eanes, who felt she did well on the reading-and-writing test she had to pass to keep her teaching certificate.

"I don't even know why I was upset." Maybe it was some of her students, who called the test "no-pass, no-pay."

"They tell me, 'I'm not sure if I flunked my test because I didn't study or because you're an incompetent teacher,' " Ms. Eanes said. "You take that stuff from a ninth grader, ...you want to collect your overtime check and leave."

While Ms. Eanes' post-test anxiety may be unusual, pre-test worries certainly weren't. "I have nightmares, and I mean literally," said Mary Jo Penick, a language arts teacher at Anahuac Elementary School. "I have walked the floor at 3 a.m. worrying about studying for the TECAT."

Many teachers, coaches and administrators whose daily jobs don't involve reading and writing waited for the test in dread. "So many of them had been out of school for so long," said Bill Gilchriest, an English teacher at Silsbee High School who ran some pre-TECAT workshops.

"They were scared. They were scared of losing their jobs, and there's not many places to go."

Gilchriest's boss, Superintendent Herbert Muckleroy, called the test "the $50,000 question." "I know nothing else. I'm 55 years old."

Those who weren't anxious, were angry — real angry at the state for threatening to take away their lifetime certificates.

"It really bothers me that my degrees, certification and the institutions which gave me my degrees are suddenly of no value," said David Whytlaw, a seventh-grade teacher at San Jacinto Junior High School in Midland. "My master's thesis was highly regarded and is 191 pages long. I think this is ample proof that I can read and write. As a math teacher, I resent the fact that my livelihood depends on an English test."

Principal's coaching helped some teachers cope

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

SAN ANTONIO — Too many principals, critics of public education in Texas contend, are ex-coaches more familiar with shoulder pads and whistles than with textbooks and chalkboards.

Meet Charlie Walker — a principal and an ex-coach of sorts — who has used the skills he learned on his playing field to prepare the 40 teachers in his school for some of the most radical changes ever to hit Texas public schools. Walker coached drama — not football or track or swimming — and his actor's experience is convincing those teachers that they can cope with the changes.

Duchess of Windsor dies at 89

LONDON (AP) — The Duchess of Windsor, the American divorcee for whom King Edward VIII gave up the British throne, died today at her home near Paris, Buckingham Palace announced.

The Duchess of Windsor

She was 89 years old. She had been in frail health and confined to her home for eight years.

Buckingham Palace said she will be buried at Windsor Castle's Frogmore Garden Cemetery alongside her husband. Queen Victoria and Prince Albert also are buried in that cemetery.

The announcement did not say when the funeral would be.

For a few short months in 1936, Edward had hoped to make the twice-divorced Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson the Queen of England. But their romance proved to be an embarrassment to traditionalists and the Church of England hierarchy, and he was forced to give up his throne.

Wednesday's tornado warning characterized as 'false alarm'

From Staff Reports

Five days after a destructive tornado cleared a path through Sweetwater, Midlanders nervously kept an eye on their television screens and the late afternoon sky Wednesday when the area was placed under a tornado warning.

According to the National Weather Service, however, the warning probably was a false alarm.

"Oh, some of the people thought there may have been a tornado touch down, but I have my doubts," said a spokesman at the NWS. "We had a couple of possible tornadoes picked up on the radar."

Deaths of Lebanon hostages urged

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A terror group that claims it hanged a kidnapped British journalist urged other extremist groups that hold Britons and Americans hostage to kill them in revenge for the U.S. air raids on Libya.

Meanwhile, seven French teachers left Moslem west Beirut today because of the fear of violence by Moslem extremists.

A four-minute videotape showing a blindfolded man dangling from a scaffold was left at the independent Beirut newspaper An-Nahar on Wednesday by a group calling itself the Revolutionary Organization of Socialist Moslems.

A voice heard on the videotape said in Arabic that Collett was hanged at a mass rally, but it did not say where. A typewritten statement left with the videotape identified the body as that of 64-year-old British journalist Alec Collett.

Collett was known to have only nine fingers, but it could not be seen from the videotape whether the corpse was missing any fingers.

"They can't see clearly enough in the videotape of the hands to determine whether it is him," Collett's son, David, said Wednesday in a radio interview in San Fernando, Calif. "However, from the report, it sounds very much like him."

Collett's body has not been found.

It also urged other factions holding American or British hostages to "execute them because the blood of Americans and Britons is now permissible as a result of the criminal acts exercised by murderer (President) Reagan and criminal (British Prime Minister Margaret) Thatcher."

Five Americans, one Briton and a man with dual British-Irish citizenship are among those still missing.

Lucas sent to state prison for medical testing

EL PASO (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas will be sent back to the state prison in Huntsville to undergo a medical checkup for what the convicted killer believes is stomach cancer, a judge has ruled.

Lucas, who is on death row at the Huntsville prison for the 1979 slaying of an unidentified female hitchiker, has been at the El Paso County Jail since January awaiting trial in the killing of a 72-year-old woman.

DEATH

"I have found it impossible," Edward had said in a moving radio broadcast to his subjects throughout the world on Dec. 11, 1936, "to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and to discharge my duties as king as I would wish to do without the help and support of the woman I love."

After Edward abdicated, the couple went to live in exile in France. Edward, who became the Duke of Windsor when he abdicated, died of throat cancer at age 77 in 1972. His body was returned to Britain for burial.

The Windsors had been ostracized for decades by Buckingham Palace, but 10 days before Edward died, Queen Elizabeth II visited their home in the Bois de Boulogne.

The duchess stayed at the palace for the funeral but returned to Paris immediately and was not invited to the wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer in 1981.

Today's Buckingham Palace announcement said: "It is announced with deep regret that the Duchess of Windsor died at 10 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) today at her residence near Paris."

Unknown to the British public, the Pennsylvania-born Mrs. Simpson had been Edward's constant companion for the last two years before he took the throne on the death of his father, King George V, in January, 1936. He was 41 and unmarried. She was 39.

Less than a year later both were in exile. Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin of Britain had given the king an ultimatum: give up Mrs. Simpson or abdicate. The handsome bachelor king chose abdication, relinquishing sovereignty over a quarter of the world's population.

Mrs. Simpson had slipped out of England a week before Edward announced his abdication. She listened to his broadcast in a friend's house in Cannes, on the French Riviera, weeping bitterly.

"I found myself whispering as to another self that nothing so incredible, so monstrous, could possibly have happened," she wrote 20 years later in her autobiography.

That night Edward left England for Austria. Mrs. Simpson remained in Cannes and the couple stayed apart for several months while she awaited her divorce from American-born shipping magnate Ernest Simpson.

The divorce became final on May 3, 1937, despite last-minute pressure from Prime Minister Baldwin to halt the proceedings. Nine days later, Edward's brother was crowned King George VI.

Edward and Mrs. Simpson were reunited in the Chateau of Cande, near Tours, in central France. They were married on June 3 in the chateau, first in a civil ceremony and then by a British clergyman, the Rev. Robert Anderson Jardine, who defied the Church of England's ban on marrying divorced people.

King George named his brother Duke of Windsor, an act that automatically made his wife a duchess but without the title "Her Royal Highness," lest she be considered one of the royal family. Any children of the couple were barred from inheriting the duchy. But couple never had children.

They kept residence in France for the rest of their lives.

SPEECH

White warned that the U.S. is now in a position of "throwing away oil it has already found," because at $15 per barrel the U.S. and Texas would begin to lose stripper production which comes from wells that produce less than barrels per day.

"As we lose oil here (in the U.S.), it will have to be replaced with foreign oil — first from Mexico and Canada and eventually from the Middle East. Do we want the Middle East pulling our strings?" White asked. "The President should not have to look over his shoulder to see where the oil is coming from, when it comes to foreign policy."

White said he backed President Ronald Reagan completely when it comes to foreign policy, even though he disagreed with him on his energy policy.

He said Reagan's support to repeal the Windfall Profits Tax was too late, "like putting a band aid on a wound that has already healed." White reminded the gathering that as Texas Attorney General he had initiated and won a suit to repeal Windfall Profits Taxes, which was later reversed. He said if the current administration had not appealed the decison, we could have had repeal of the tax in 1981.

The governor made little mention of the fact that Reagan had not invited him to a meeting of energy producing states this week to discuss energy issues, but he did address the growing regionalism in the economy and its role in energy prices.

"The people in the energy consuming states are excited about what is happening to Texas. They remember when we had the bumper stickers about 'freezing in the dark,'" said White. "Congress does not care about Texas tonight and the Secretary of Energy goes around bragging about how low oil prices are. It is an issue that deeply divides the nation."

White said he was for Texas first. "Politics is a game I play after Texas is taken care of."

He said America was now in a world market and could compete with anybody on earth as long as the people worked together. He said that we should put national interests above political and regional. Addressing the education controversy of teacher testing and no-pass, no-play, he said he took the stand, not because it was good politics, but for the good of the state.

Jerry Mennenga/Reporter-Telegram

Gov. Mark White, left, makes a point with angry teachers during a meeting here Wednesday.

WHITE

Immediately following the session, Manning commented that he believed most of the teachers were still angry, but believed White was sincere in his remarks.

"I don't think he (White) enjoys people being mad at him. I think he feels he's trying to help teachers," Manning said.

White said he discovered that teachers are victims of a lot of misinformation being circulated by the state, individual school districts and the Texas Education Agency.

He promised to look at the situation and try to improve upon the lack of communication. "There has to be some uniform way to get the right information to the teachers," he said.

CHANGE

Take, for example, the TECAT, the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers, the test that evoked anger and lawsuits from so many Texas teachers. Walker taught the review courses himself and took the opportunity to demonstrate some teaching methods to his teachers.

"I taught them as students," he says simply.

Walker's teachers weren't happy about the test, but they accepted it much more easily than others around the state. So did Walker.

"If they really weren't capable of passing it, they shouldn't be good teachers," he says. "This test, everybody should pass."

A diminutive 54-year-old with swept-back hair, Charlie Walker's eyes sparkle as he explains what has happened since he moved into the principal's office at Palo Alto Elementary School 12 years ago. "We have come from the very low to the top (in academics)," he says.

To motivate 731 students in one of the state's poorest school districts, Charlie Walker has used extracurricular activities. They started out by winning district-wide track meets, art exhibits and — yes — drama contests.

"Using this as a school-pride builder, we carried it over to the academic area," Walker says. "And it worked for me."

Steve Levine heads up the Reporter-Telegram's Austin Bureau staff.

New regulations have done away with elementary school track meets, but the Palo Alto kids are still coming on strong in other competitions.

The school lobby is filled with blue-ribbon winning art projects — like a three-foot-high papier-mache eagle for social studies class — based on academic subjects. Because new rules prohibit spending too much class time on such activities, the students and teachers came in on Saturdays to complete the projects.

Not surprisingly, Walker isn't too happy about the no-pass, no-play rule that forces students who flunk any course to sit out the next six weeks.

"It penalizes who is active and involved in school," he says. "The people who are involved make school pride, school spirit — the things that make school a pleasant place to be."

While House Bill 72 and a new statewide curriculum shocked many schools to their foundations in September 1984, Charlie Walker says he "say it coming" two years before that. He started preparing the teachers.

"I told them, 'Why don't we start now trying to get the kids on level and pushing academic excellence?'" he says. "I try in every way I can to do little things to keep them so well informed that when things come down, they won't be so surprised."

"The unknown frustrates people."

A University of Texas researcher who recently completed a study of 47 schools distinguished by their academic excellence, says methods like Walker's should work. "The single key factor in an exceptional school is the behavior, the belief, the expectations of the principal in that school," says George Baker, associate professor of educational administration.

"And when those behaviors are right, teachers are motivated, parents are involved, people care about the school, and you're able to create the kind of climate or culture in which this excellence can really grow."

The Palo Alto teachers' lounge, where the cheers considerably outweigh the boos, provides the proof.

"I'm having a blast," says fifth-grade teacher Edna Boggess. "The kids are eager to do things."

"I believe in the move toward academic excellence," adds remedial-reading teacher Sheree Herrera. "I really like the new things coming in."

The gripes, compared to other schools, are less strident, less condemning. "We need enough time to smooth out the wrinkles," says first-grade teacher Elizabeth McGinnis. "If it had come in a little more smoothly, it would have been easier for everyone to take."

The spirit spills over into politics as well. Unlike many other teachers — and even Walker — a large number of Palo Alto educators support Gov. Mark White.

Fifth-grade teacher Annette Taute says White deserves another term. "I'm not disappointed in him."

Fifth-grade teacher Sylvia Campos agrees. "The change (to another governor) might be too drastic," she says. "What's (Republican candidate Bill) Clements going to do, throw all our work out?"

With Charlie Walker at the helm, not likely.

TEST

"The teacher competency bit makes it seem as though we were all just handed our degrees without studying and being tested," said Doris Billingsley, a fourth-grade teacher at Thunderbird Elementary School in Plainview.

Vidal Trevino, Laredo ISD superintendent, said the state should have used the TECAT to identify teachers' weaknesses and then arrange to help them catch up, not to fire them. Trevino has made arrangements for Laredo State University to provide remedial help to any of his teachers that ask for it.

"It doesn't make any difference if you passed or failed."

Some teachers found the test itself arbitary, but a reasonable standard for most competent teachers to meet. "If you can't write a letter to a parent telling them their student's screwing up," said a government teacher at South Park High School in Beaumont, "I hate to think those people are in the profession I'm in."

Almost every teacher interviewed across the state for this project said the real test of an educator comes not with a pencil-and-paper exam but in the classroom.

"If there's a department head, two assistant principals, a principal, assistant superintendent and superintendent above me, why can't they evaluate me?" asked Richard Atmar, a colleage of Gilchriest's at Silsbee High School. "Isn't that the job the public pays them to do?"

Part two of House Bill 72's teacher evaluation plan is bringing that — in the form of a uniform statewide appraisal system — to every school district in Texas this fall.

Twice each year, a teacher's supervisor and another trained evaluator will visit the classroom for a minimum of 45 minutes. They will grade the teacher on 71 skills or techniques ranging from "solicits students' participation" to "pronounces words correctly and clearly" to "follows district and campus policies and procedures."

The evaluations will serve several purposes. They will help identify teachers' weak points so they can correct them; they will provide supervisors with strong evidence of teachers' ability at contract renewal time; they will partially determine whether teachers get on and how quickly they climb a four-step bonus-pay system known as the career ladder.

Teachers who reach the top rung of the ladder may earn a bonus of up to $6,000 per year.

The career ladder has been in place — without enough money to pay all deserving teachers the second-rung $2,000 bonus — for almost two years. Teachers who have undergone evaluations by locally developed appraisal systems warn of trouble ahead.

"I have just come home from my evaluation conference given by a man who has never seen me," said Janet Witcher, an elementary school teacher in McCamey. "In 42 minutes, he has sealed my fate.... I'll probably never get on the career ladder."

James Collins, a business education teacher at South San Antonio High School, said career ladder concerns are dominating his colleagues' motivations. "We're turning out a teacher product rather than a student," Collins said.

"The emphasis is no longer the student, but 'make the career ladder.'"

Robbie Reed Hogan, a Plainview junior high science teacher who resigned last year, said she refused to apply for the career ladder. "The extra money wasn't worth the hurt feelings and heartache it would cause those who applied and didn't make it," she said.

"I did not then, and I still don't, want to be put in a position where one of my colleagues can point a finger at me with some snide remark regarding playing school politics."

Texas State Teachers Association President Charles Beard complained that the new appraisal system allows supervisors to enter into the evaluation record information obtained from outside the formal, 45-minute observation periods. He also predicted problems over teachers' inability to appeal the contents of an evaluation.

"It's going to determine teacher pay from now on once it gets in place," Beard said. "Lawyers are going to get rich forever on that."

The scoring system for totalling the observations of the 71 items also worries some teacher leaders. The appraisal is divided into five broad categories, or domains. The scoring system requires that teachers who receive an "unsatisfactory" rating in any one domain — regardless of their scores in the other four domains — receive an unsatisfactory rating for the entire appraisal. Those who receive a "below expectations" rating in any two domains receive the same for the full evaluation.

To move onto or climb the career ladder, teachers must earn evaluations of "clearly outstanding" or "satisfactory" for as many as five years. Jeri Stone, executive director of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association, said she fears good teachers with one or two weak points may spend the rest of their lives grasping for and missing the career ladder.

"We just don't operate on the philosophy that any one individual is as strong as his strongest point or as weak as his weakest point," Ms. Stone said. "People are a mix of strengths and weaknesses."

J.M. "Mack" Prescott of College Station, chairman of the State Board of Education's Committee on Personnel, predicts the next great crisis for Texas schools will come quietly this summer, with the training of the teacher appraisers.

"A great deal depends on their sensitivity, their judgment and their ability to interpret what they are looking for in the classroom," Prescott said.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Ex-concentration camp inmates say other inmates tortured, murdered

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — Former concentration camp inmates testifying at the war crimes trial of Andrija Artukovic said Wednesday that many inmates were tortured and murdered when he was interior minister of the state of Croatia during World War II.

A witness who worked in the ministry while it was headed by Artukovic said all employees knew of the existence of Croatian concentration camps. The witnesses were quoted on state-run radio, which excerpted segments of Wednesday's proceedings.

The 86-year-old Artukovic was extradited from the United States Feb. 12 and was indicted on charges of ordering the murder of an unspecified number of Jews, Gypsies, Serbs and political prisoners.

Since the start of his trial April 14, Artukovic has denied wrongdoing and claims to have had no knowledge that concentration camps in Croatia existed while he was interior minister.

A man the radio identified as Ivo Semjanovic, a former inmate of Jasenovac concentration camp, said guards tortured a group of communists by depriving them of food and water.

'Chief' of marijuana farm charged

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Drug trafficking charges have been brought against a man described as one of the chiefs of a marijuana growing operation in the state of Chihuahua, according to police in this northern Mexico border city.

Rogelio Fernandez Aguilera, alias "El Galan," is accused of convincing farmers in the Sierra Madre mountains of Chihuahua to plant marijuana, said Juarez federal prosecutor Jose Quinones.

"He would recruit them and bring them supplies," Quinones said.

Fernandez was formally charged Monday and remains jailed in this city across the Rio Grande from El Paso. If convicted, he faces seven to 15 years in prison.

Scientist discovers 'auto-antobodies'

TORONTO (AP) — A Canadian scientist may have discovered an "immunological fountain of youth" that could lead to healthier lives for the elderly and a possible means of prolonging life.

Researchers around the world have been trying to determine what impairs the body's ability to overcome illness as a person ages, says Myron Szewczuk, an immunologist with the faculty of medicine at Queen's University in Kingston, Ontario.

In experiments with laboratory mice, Szewczuk has found older animals produce a type of cell that actually undermines antibodies made by the immune system to fight off disease. Called auto-antibodies, these potent cells turn off the immune system's antibodies at a time they are needed most.

"It's a very interesting phenomenon and it's telling us that somehow the immune system is turning on itself as (the animal) gets older," he said. "In the case of infectious agents attacking the body, they may be able to propagate and cause disease. We may be on the trail of an immunological fountain of youth," he said.

Official: U.S., Israel planning attacks to justify further raids against Libya

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — An official claims the United States and Israel are planning terror attacks in Europe similar to the bombing of a Berlin nightclub in order to justify new strikes at Libya. U.S. officials denied the charge as Libyan propaganda.

Libyan Information Minister Mohammed Sharafeddin told reporters Wednesday that Libya was told of the alleged plans for U.S.- and Israeli-backed terrorist attacks from "friendly states," presumably from the Soviet bloc.

"This information stresses that Mosad, together with American intelligence, wants to conduct operations in Europe...to put the responsibility upon the Jamahiriya," Sharafeddin said.

Mosad is Israel's external intelligence service. Jamahiriya, or "state of the masses," is what Libya calls itself.

Sharafeddin claimed the attacks were planned to influence European public opinion against Libya and "to create and find a justification for aggression, especially after the failure of the first aggression and the failure of America."

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said, "The CIA is not causing terrorist incidents in Europe."

President Reagan said he ordered U.S. jets to raid Tripoli and Benghazi on April 15 after intelligence reports found firm evidence that Libya through its East Berlin embassy engineered the April 5 bombing of a Berlin disco in which an American soldier and a Turkish woman were killed.

Libya has denied responsibility for the bombing, and officials in Tripoli have accused American and Israeli intelligence of the West Berlin attack. Sharafeddin accused the United States and Israel of planning similar attacks elsewhere in Europe.

His statement came after Reagan warned that if Libya continues what he called a terror campaign against Americans, the United States would strike harder.

"We bear the people of Libya no ill will but if their government continues its campaign...we will act again," he told a meeting of business people in Washington. "As we proved last week, no one can kill Americans and brag about it. No one," Reagan declared.

Trial begins of Bishop's alleged killers

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — The prosecution painted a grim portrait of political intrigue, betrayal and summary execution Wednesday in the opening address to the jury in the Maurice Bishop murder trial.

The trial of 18 former military and government officials for the Oct. 19, 1983, slaying of the prime minister, three of his Cabinet ministers and seven supporters opened Monday in the Grenada Supreme Court. A 19th defendant was granted a conditional pardon Tuesday when he agreed to turn state's evidence.

Chief prosecutor Karl Hudson-Phillips told the jury Wednesday the state would present evidence in five stages, from the political machinations within the leftist New Jewel Movement Central Committee to strip Bishop of power, to the machine-gunning of the prime minister and the others and the burning of their bodies.

The prosecutor indicated he would present evidence to fill in many of the gaps surrounding Bishop's slaying six days before the U.S.-led invasion, including the disposition of his body. Bishop himself had seized power in a coup that overthrew the elected prime minister, Eric Gairy. But when Bishop, a Marxist, was ousted and killed by more radical elements in his government, the United States intervened. Gairy returned to the island and lost a subsequent election.

Hudson-Phillips said he would begin his tale with a meeting of the ruling party's central committee in September 1983, at which a proposal to share Bishop's power with his deputy prime minister, Bernard Coard, was discussed.

New shuttle blast photos released

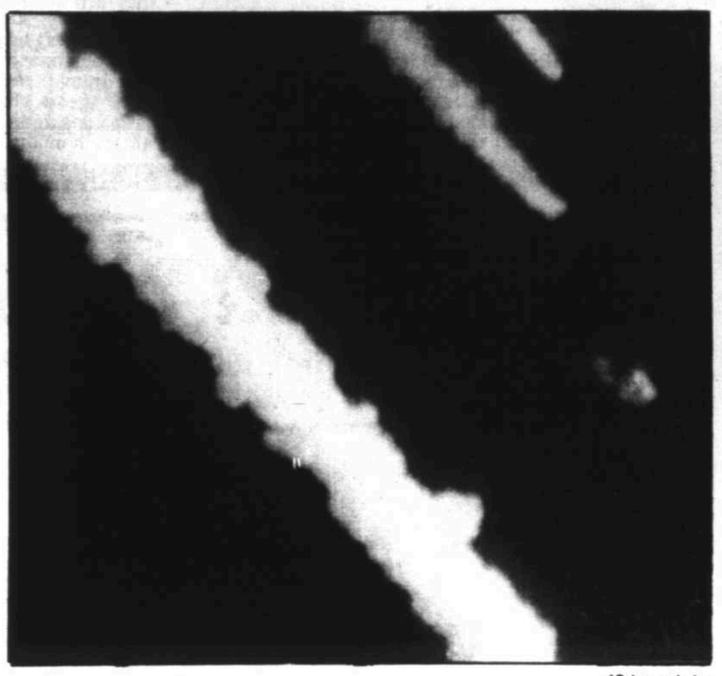

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's nose section containing the crew compartment broke cleanly from the shuttle's exploding fuel tank, according to newly released photos, but NASA says it hasn't determined whether the crew cabin shattered before or after it hit the ocean.

The 10 pictures released Wednesday by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration were snapped by a 70 mm ground tracking camera over 26 seconds.

The photos tend to support reports by investigators that the nose and crew compartment were together through the nine-mile plunge Jan. 28 and shattered on impact with the Atlantic Ocean.

NASA officials are uncertain at what point the seven astronauts died. The prevailing belief is that they died almost at the moment of the explosion, either from shock or a rapid decompression of the cabin.

"There is not enough detail available to ascertain the integrity of the cabin," said a NASA statement accompanying the pictures. "All available data sources, including these photographs, are being utilized in an attempt to understand the condition of the crew module following vehicle breakup. NASA will have no further comment until the analysis is complete."

AP Laserphoto

A portion of the Challenger, right, plunges to the sea.

The first in the series of pictures released Wednesday shows the cone-shaped nose section and other unidentified debris being blown away from the fireball created when the tank exploded after apparently being struck by the upper part of the right solid rocket booster.

The photos show the nose section as one of the few pieces of falling debris not being trailed by smoke.

Divers described the crew cabin, located 87 feet down on the ocean floor, as a stack of rubble. They completed recovery of cabin debris and the last of the astronaut remains last week. The remains are expected to be flown out of here next week to the mortuary at Dover (Del.) Air Force Base, where they will be prepared for burial.

Vote indicates Senate sees domestic program priorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-led Senate, in its first two votes on the fiscal 1987 budget, reasserted its view that domestic programs must be maintained even if that means challenging President Reagan's opposition to a tax increase.

By an 83-14 vote Wednesday, the lawmakers rejected an amendment to include in the Senate budget Reagan's proposal to terminate 44 domestic spending programs. The overwhelming majority refused to end the politically popular programs even though they will cost $4 billion in taxes next year.

The Senate then voted 60-38 to add $300 million in new taxes — above the $18.7 billion already proposed by the Senate Budget Committee — to cover increased education spending.

"The Senate seems to be going in the wrong direction — more spending and more taxes," said Ed Dale, spokesman for the president's Office of Management and Budget. He called the vote on the 44 terminations "a little innocent game-playing" that "can't be taken seriously."

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the budget committee chairman, offered the amendment and then voted against it himself, to bolster the committee's arguments that some taxes were needed to meet the required $144 billion deficit ceiling next year.

"Building a budget based on terminations that will not occur does not offer a realistic contribution to deficit reduction," Domenici and Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., the ranking Democrat on the committee, said in a letter to colleagues Wednesday refuting the White House position.

The 44 programs earmarked for extinction by the administration included the Rural Electrification Administration, Export-Import Bank direct loans, soil conservation programs, the Small Business Administration disaster loans, the Agricultural Extension Service, food and shelter for the homeless and the Legal Services Corp.

Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Colo., called the budget committee's tactic a sham. He said it was designed to embarrass senators who opposed the committee budget that increased taxes by $12 billion over Reagan's request and reduced the president's $320 billion military spending plan by $25 billion.

"It's a disgrace for this body to treat the economic future of this country so lightly," said Armstrong.

He said it was not suprising that people were looking at the lawmakers as "gutless wonders."

Two dozen GOP senators had signed a letter opposing the committee budget. Of those, 11 sided with maintaining the domestic programs in Wednesday's vote.

Some justices doubt constitutionality

WASHINGTON (AP) — The future of a law requiring a balanced federal budget by 1991 is in the hands of the Supreme Court, with at least some justices expressing doubts about its constitutionality.

During two hours of arguments Wednesday pitting the White House against Congress, some members of the court voiced skepticism about a key provision of the law, the Gramm-Rudman Act.

The confrontation focuses on the role of the comptroller general, until now an obscure official who heads the General Accounting Office, a congressional watchdog and auditing agency.

Under Gramm-Rudman, Comptroller General Charles Bowsher is assigned the task of determining deficit-reduction figures that must be implemented automatically.

Steven R. Ross, representing the bipartisan leadership of the Huse, said the comptroller general was picked for the job because of his independence, "to insure these calculations were walled off from political considerations."

NATION IN BRIEF

Pay debate delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, wary of the election-year political consequences of a move to boost members' outside earnings capacity, has reversed itself and overwhelmingly reimposed the old limits.

Members said that while the issue of congressional salaries and earnings may arise again later this year as the subject of hearings, it is unlikely any meaningful effort will be made to change Congress' pay before the November elections.

On Wednesday, the lawmakers voted 333-68 to undo the quickie maneuver pulled just a day earlier that would have lifted a ceiling on members' outside incomes, boosting their annual earnings potential by at least $7,510. Wednesday's vote was far more than the two-thirds majority needed to pass.

Many House members voiced fears that lifting the outside income cap — even though it would cost taxpayers nothing — would still invite political catastrophe from voters who make far less than the $75,100 paid lawmakers.

Others said it would unravel 1977 reforms aimed at minimizing the chance of undue influence on lawmakers by special interests.

Acid rain bill would cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — An analysis by the electric utility industry says a bipartisan bill to curb acid rain would send electricity rates up by more than 20 percent for 13 utilities, most of them in the Midwest.

But one congressional staff member says those cost estimates, prepared by the Edison Electric Institute, a trade group, are three times too high and result from a misinterpretation of the bill's provisions.

The measure, submitted April 10 by a coalition of House Republicans and Democrats, calls for reductions in sulfur dioxide from coal-burning power plants of 8.3 million tons, roughly a third of current levels, by 1997.

Running mate sought

CHICAGO (AP) — Supporters of extremist Lyndon LaRouche have urged Democratic Party leaders to appoint a candidate for governor to run with their nominee for lieutenant governor in place of Adlai E. Stevenson, who quit the ticket in protest.

"Someone named Stevenson resigning from the Democratic Party (ticket) is not an easy thing to do," Larry Hansen, Stevenson's campaign manager, said at a news conference Wednesday.

But he said the victory by LaRouche follower Mark J. Fairchild in the lieutenant governor's primary race March 18 left the former U.S. senator and son of a two-time presidential nominee little choice.

Fairchild defeated Stevenson's handpicked running mate, state Sen. George Sangmeister.

Sale to Saudis disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House and Senate are moving toward a confrontation with President Reagan, who is sure to veto their expected rejection of his proposal to sell Saudi Arabia $354 million in missiles.

The stage was set for that fight Wednesday as the foreign affairs committees of both houses recommended Congress scrap the sale.

Supporters of a resolution to disapprove the arms sale and halt 30 years of U.S. weapons transfers to the Arab kingdom say they are within reach of the two-thirds majorities needed to override a presidential veto.

Philippine aid increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is stepping up aid to the Philippines on the eve of a 12-day journey to the Far East during which he will talk with top officials of the islands' new government and the exiled leader they defeated.

"In our judgment, it's a very good bet," M. Peter McPherson, administrator of the Agency for International Development, said as he announced plans to increase funds for the Manila government this year.

McPherson said the president is asking Congress for $100 million in economic aid, in addition to $181 million already appropriated; and $50 million in military aid on top of $53 million provided earlier.

Kilburn's body returned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The body of Peter Kilburn, the American University of Beirut librarian slain while a hostage in Lebanon, has been returned home and a funeral is planned Tuesday, family members said.

Kilburn's nephew and niece were at San Francisco International Airport when the body arrived Wednesday night, less than a week after the State Department acknowledged he was one of three Westerners found dead in Beirut.

Kilburn had lived in Spain for a time before moving to Beirut, where he lived for 21 years while working at the university.

Funeral services are planned Tuesday at the Presidio in San Francisco.

Waste sites discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regional tensions simmered below the surface at a hearing on a potential disposal site for high-level nuclear waste, but the five governors who testified did agree on one thing: don't put a nuclear dump in my state.

The governors of Maine, Minnesota, North Carolina, Virginia and Wisconsin, testifying Wednesday before a House subcommittee on energy conservation and power, said their states had been traumatized by the Department of Energy selection process.

"It's absolutely inhuman to select 12 areas and study them for five years before deciding what to do next," said Maine Gov. Joseph Brennan, a Democrat. "It's like telling 12 patients that one has cancer, and you'll tell them which one in five years."

Right to die affirmed

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — A state judge ruled today that the husband of a woman who has lain in a nursing home for six years, hopelessly brain-damaged by an anesthesia accident, could remove the feeding tube that has been keeping her alive.

Superior Court Judge Arnold M. Stein, in New Jersey's latest right-to-die case, said the husband of 31-year-old Nancy Ellen Jobes had proved she was in a "persistent vegetable state with no prospect of improvement."

Contras have some supplies, sources say

By ROBERT PARRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicaraguan rebels have enough new weapons and supplies to sustain fighting for at least several months, but could face shortages if President Reagan's $100 million aid plan stays bottled up in Congress, administration officials say.

The officials, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said that over the past month the Contra rebels have received shipments of guns and ammunition and a flood of non-lethal supplies that were purchased by the United States but delayed by the Honduran government.

One administration official said the Honduran government's release of the equipment — blocked for delivery since last fall — has been a boost to the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, FDN, the largest rebel army, and allied rebel forces.

He said the guns and ammunition had been "sitting in Honduran warehouses" and were bought with privately raised money, the sources of which the rebels have refused to disclose. Two rebel leaders said new weapons are also reaching FDN-allied forces in Costa Rica.

Meanwhile, Mark Helmke, a spokesman for Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, said Wednesday that Lugar has agreed to a hearing on allegations of Contra involvement in cocaine trafficking. The hearing was proposed by Sens. John Kerry, D-Mass., and Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., two Contra aid opponents.

Helmke said Lugar, a supporter of Contra aid, shared the opponents' concern about the allegations but felt that the $100 million should be approved so the United States can "use our influence to eliminate the bad apples from the Contra camp."

Last year, Congress approved $27 million in non-lethal aid to the Contras, but Honduras blocked U.S. shipments. The congressional General Accounting Office reported last month that it could not track $7.1 million of the money that was deposited for the rebels in Miami bank accounts.

One administration official said that while the $27 million in non-lethal aid technically ran out March 31, several million dollars that have yet to be spent can keep the Contras fed and supplied with vital medicines into the summer.

But the officials said delays in approving Reagan's $100 million package damage the long-term prospects for the Contra war against Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

"It's going to hurt," one administration official said about House refusal to approve the aid. "It could have a demoralizing effect" within the rebel movement.

Although concerned about the Contras' future, the administration appears less desperate than it did in February when Secretary of State George P. Shultz warned that without immediate new Contra aid, "the situation will fall apart in a hurry."

FDN spokesman Bosco Matamoros said the lack of new aid "doesn't mean we are going to abandon our struggle. But we need adequate defensive weapons."

In another development, House Republicans began their long-shot drive Wednesday to collect the signatures of 218 House members — a majority — on a discharge petition that would force another vote on Reagan's Contra aid plan, narrowly defeated by the House last month.

"Given the urgent need to assist the Contras, this was the only way we could find to bring this matter back to the House now," said House Minority Whip Trent Lott, R-Miss.

A successful discharge petition could force a new House vote on Contra aid next month, but if the Republicans cannot secure the necessary signatures, the issue likely will not return to the Democratic-controlled House until a defense spending bill is considered in June.

Reagan's $100 million Contra aid package was sidetracked last week in the House when Republicans blocked a vote on a Democratic alternative to the president's proposal, and announced plans for the discharge petition to force an up-or-down vote on the Reagan approach.

Polygraph 'unreliable'

WASHINGTON (AP) — David C. Raskin hooked himself to a polygraph machine in the Senate hearing room and took a deep breath, causing one of the needles to jump sharply.

"An inexperienced commercial operator would take that as a deception," the psychology professor and licensed operator said, referring to the sharp curve on the chart.

Such unreliability, he told the Labor and Human Resources Committee on Wednesday, is the reason why Congress should ban the use of lie detectors by private business.

Committee Chairman Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, and ranking Democrat Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, called the hearing on their bill to ban polygraphs in the private sector. Their measure would not affect testing programs by governments.

The legislation brought a protest from business representatives, who said lie detectors ae needed to stop thievery and rid firms of employees using dangerous drugs; and from attorney F. Lee Bailey, who said the tests are useful in preparing court defenses.

"The gaming industry believes that the polygraph examination has been successful in identifying numerous individuals who, through later admission and other factual analysis of accounting records, have been proven to have engaged in various types of theft and embezzlement," said Robert A. Ostrovsky, representing the Gaming Industry Association of Nevada.

Donald Zale, chairman of the Zale Corp. jewelry store chain, testified: "Our polygraph examinations are given by qualified examiners and generally last less than one hour. The nature of the questions are reviewed in advance by our lawyers and other professionals....".

Raskin, professor of psychology at the University of Utah, said polygraphs are 85 percent reliable when handled by trained operators.

But he supported the proposed private sector ban on grounds that "many field examiners such as those in commercial applications are undoubtedly performing at a level much lower than average."

Judicial races

Few political races get less media attention although they hold the potential to affect more people than do judicial races. In the upcoming primary elections to be held May 3, voters will nominate a number of individuals to appear on the ballots of the November general election.

After meeting with many of the candidates for the various positions in person, checking their qualifications, and soliciting the input of various local attorneys and judges, the Reporter-Telegram makes the following recommendations to voters:

Supreme Court

PLACE 1 — Democrat: Shirley Butts. Now serving as an associate justice on the Fourth Court of Appeals in San Antonio, the justice has proven her judicial ability over a period of years. Before serving on the bench, she had extensive trial and appellate experience in private practice. Justice Butts also was a law professor at St. Mary's University for six years.

Republican: Nathan Lincoln Hecht. Judge Hecht, who now serves Dallas's 95th District Court, gets good reviews from the Midland legal community and, apparently, elsewhere as well. Appointed by Gov. Bill Clements in 1981, he was elected to the bench in 1982 and re-elected in 1984. He was one of only two candidates for the Supreme Court this year both rated as qualified and endorsed by the Texas Supreme Court Justice Committee.

PLACE 2 — Democrat: Robert M. Campbell. The incumbent, Campbell has served on the high court since 1978. In addition to his duties on the Supreme Court, Campbell also serves as chairman of the Texas Judicial Budget Board, which prepares a unified budget for the entire judiciary of Texas. He also has been instrumental in bringing the Supreme Court technologically into modern times and his continuing work in that regard for the judiciary overall is bound to prove beneficial as caseloads increase.

PLACE 4 — Democrat: Raul Gonzalez. Appointed to the Supreme Court in 1984, Gonzalez is the first hispanic to serve on the court and if elected this year will be the first hispanic elected to the court. Gonzalez prides himself on being an independent voice on the court and from his background and actions on the court, that seems an accurate self-description. Independent thinkers definitely are needed on the Supreme Court.

Republican: No recommendation.

Court of Criminal Appeals

PLACE 1 — Democrat: Preston Dial. An elected appeals court justice on San Antonio's Fourth Court of Appeals since 1982, Justice Dial formerly served as a criminal district attorney for 12 years. He also received numerous good reviews from various members of Midland's legal community.

8th Court of Appeals

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE — Democrat: Without a doubt, Judge Larry Fuller of Monahans got the nod of local attorneys and judges in this race. To a degree that's probably due to the fact that from 1961 until 1970 he was a member of the Midland law firm of Turpin, Kerr, Smith & Dyer. But since that time he has been making legal decisions as district judge of the 143rd Judicial District in Monahans. Judge Fuller has extensive and wide-ranging legal experience and would serve all of West Texas well as an associate justice on the 8th Court of Appeals.

Get tickets early

Tickets have been on sale in Midland for the visit of the Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon Train on May 2, yet few Midlanders have taken the opportunity to get in on this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

The only portion of the event for which tickets are required is the fajita dinner to be served at the wagon train site along Highway 191 and Loop 250. It could be that a lot of Midlanders are waiting to buy their tickets at the door. They'll be disappointed, though, because Sesquicentennial officials locally confirm that no tickets will be sold at the door. Only those having purchased tickets in advance will be able to attend the meal. The final day to buy advance tickets is Monday.

Tickets can be purchased at Midland Chamber of Commerce, ClayDesta National Bank, ClayDesta Plaza downtown, Albertson's on Andrews Highway or Midland Drive, and Saturday at Midland Park Mall.

So, if you're planning to go to the wagon train and eat out while there, get your tickets no later than Monday. Otherwise, you'll have to enjoy this once-in-a-lifetime event on an empty stomach.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, April 24, the 114th day of 1986. There are 251 days left in the year. The Jewish festival of Passover begins today.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 24, 1800, Congress approved a bill establishing the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., appropriating $5,000 "for the purchase of such books as may be necessary."

On this date:

In 1704, the first American newspaper printed on a regular basis, the Boston News Letter, published for the first time.

In 1792, the French national anthem "La Marseillaise" was composed by Claude-Joseph Rouget de Lisle.

In 1877, federal troops were ordered out of New Orleans, ending the North's post-Civil War rule in the South.

In 1898, Spain declared war on the United States after rejecting America's ultimatum to withdraw from Cuba.

In 1915, Turkey began the brutal mass deportation of Armenians during World War I. Hundreds of thousands of Armenians are believed to have died en route.

In 1916, Irish nationalists in Dublin launched the Easter Rising, which was put down by British forces several days later.

Ten years ago: After stalling for two weeks, Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh signed a constitutional amendment that permitted Parliament to select a new head of state.

Five years ago: On his first day back in the Oval Office since he was shot, President Reagan lifted a 16-month-old grain embargo against the Soviet Union.

One year ago: President Reagan asked Americans to urge Congress to support a Republican budget plan. The House voted to end all U.S. aid to Nicaraguan rebels. Pope John Paul II appointed 28 cardinals, including two Americans. Jack C. Burcham died, 10 days after he received an artificial heart.

Today's birthdays: Critic Stanley Kauffmann is 70. Actress Shirley MacLaine is 52. Actress Jill Ireland is 50. Actress-singer Barbra Streisand is 44.

Thought for today: "If you think education is expensive — try ignorance." — Derek Bok, president of Harvard University.

Soviets 'prefer' Libya's No. 2 man

WASHINGTON — Last November we suggested that Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, who stands at the center of a worldwide terrorist network, was living in terror himself and would likely be ousted by a coup within a year.

Jack Anderson

We cited intelligence reports that portrayed Khadafy as a haunted man, with nerves rubbed raw, who gulped down sleeping pills and complained that his enemies were trying to poison him.

We also quoted a top-secret CIA evaluation, which suggested he was "very vulnerable" to a coup. No less than two dozen anti-Khadafy groups have been plotting his downfall. But the Soviets, who have befriended him and stocked his arsenal, are expected to beat them all to the kill.

CIA reports, including intercepted communications (compiled before the U.S. bombing of Tripoli) indicate that the Soviets would like to replace the volatile Khadafy with the man who has been protecting their interests inside Libya's revolutionary regime. He is Khadafy's No. 2 man, Abdul Salam Jalloud.

According to one intercepted message, the Soviets are "looking forward to Khadafy's downfall." Another top-secret CIA report quotes a high Soviet military official as saying, in a private conversation, that Khadafy is a "madman on top of a pile of gold." The reference presumably is to the black gold under Libya's desert sands.

For Khadafy's part, he is described by the CIA as "xenophobic and anti-communist." He "once offered Egypt generous inducements to expel the Soviets." He moved closer to Moscow because he wanted Soviet arms more than he hated communism. Still, the CIA reports that he "had to be persuaded by Prime Minister Jalloud to negotiate the first arms accord with Moscow in May 1974."

It has been Jalloud more than Khadafy who has turned Libya into a Moscow-armed confrontationist state. Khadafy let the Soviets inside his tent reluctantly — because of the military aid and the power this gave him. He repeatedly and sharply "warned the Soviets that he will not be used 'like other Arab leaders.'"

Concludes a top-secret CIA analysis: "Khadafy has almost certainly neither softened his ideological opposition nor his basic distrust of the Soviets. On the contrary, his basic hostility to them may ultimately disrupt the liaison." It seems more likely that the Soviets will do the disrupting. They have far too much at stake in Libya to leave their fortunes in the hands of the unpredictable Khadafy. Not since they were booted out of Egypt in 1972 have they had a better opportunity to control North Africa. They are establishing a powerful new beachhead in North Africa through Libya, Sudan and Ethiopia.

What has happened, clearly, is that the Soviets have transformed Libya into a forward logistical base to solidify their hold on North Africa. They have shipped more than $20 billion worth of military hardware to Libya. Ostensibly this formidable arsenal was "sold" to Khadafy who may think he owns it. But the Soviets aren't likely to leave their forward base in the hands of the unreliable Khadafy.

They would prefer the reliable Jalloud.

CENSORS BEWARE: We recently disclosed the government's well-guarded plans to censor mail and other communications during an emergency. But the would-be letter openers will have to batter their way through the U.S. Postal Service first. "The Postal Service places high importance on protecting the right to free, full and uncensored communication through the U.S. mails," the agency's public affairs director, D. Jamison Cain, assured us. He said postal regulations forbid any censorship of the mail without explicit authorization from Congress. Cain pointed out that it took exactly that to permit censorship during World War II.

WHERE'S THE ACTION?: Bedeviled for years by its critics and beset by attempts to politicize it, ACTION, the federal volunteer agency, has somehow managed not only to survive but to thrive in adversity. Under its new director, Donna Alvarado, ACTION is stronger than ever. On any given day last year, for example, some 19,000 foster grandparents shared their time and affection with 68,000 children nationwide. This week, ACTION is co-hosting a reception with the Disabled American Veterans to mark National Volunteer Week.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Do you get the impression that the news has turned to cream of wheat, that what you read is as bland as what you see on television? We were astonished to learn that several major newspapers have refused to run a recent segment of Garry Trudeau's "Doonesbury" comic strip, which featured a talk-show host reading off the long list of government officials who have left high office in recent years after charges of misconduct. Other timorous editors have selectively scissored out some of the names to avoid controversy. Comic strips, no less! Where are Thomas Nast and H.L. Mencken when we need them? Whirling in their graves, no doubt.

GEORGE F. WILL

'Skunked' by an old-fashioned shark

OFF FLORIDA'S COAST — Time was, fishermen getting skunked said stuff like, "Yeah, they're coming in a little slow today but you shoulda been here last week." However, fishing, like almost everything else, isn't what it used to be, as I noticed when the skipper of our boat shouted for his mate to put the bait in the microwave oven.

George F. Will

On the other hand, the creatures fishermen are chasing are conservatives, mindful of traditional values and capable (had they thumbs and noses) of thumbing their noses at the hubris of human beings, as manifested in modern technology and trickery. So listen to today's lesson, which like most fish stories is about a fish — actually, a shark — that was not caught.

One fine day recently, with the sun beating down and the wind picking up, the Will men — aged 44, 13, 12 — went down to the sea to make life hazardous for sailfish and sharks. This the men failed to do. But they did the next best thing: They learned something. Their tutor was an eight-foot hammerhead shark.

The hammerhead has his detractors, who include swimmers who resent his attentions. But, in fairness, this must be said on his behalf: He is not just another pretty face. That, however, is as far as I will go. I leave to liberals the philosophy of social sentimentality, one form of which explains "shark chic."

In the movie "Jaws" (which was followed by "Jaws II" and "Son of Jaws" and "Jaws on the Road to Bali" and "Jaws and Gidget Go to the Beach" and...), the shark was the heavy. This aroused liberals against a new and virulent bigotry: sharkism, that ethnocentric (or is it species-centric?) prejudice that portrays sharks as mindless, voracious and sort of mean.

Of course this bigotry flourishes only among white males, the sources of all social shortcomings. Women, blacks, Hispanics, native Americans and all other members of the Rainbow Coalition recognize sharks as brothers and sisters in victimhood, more sinned against than sinning, and, truth be told, creatures from whom squalid humanity can learn a thing or two about the healthy transcendence of inhibitions, natural self expression of appetites and a Thoreau-like indifference to repressive social standards. The shark, said liberals, is a delightfully spontaneous and (you will recognize this as the all-purpose alibi for unpleasant creatures) an IPOTDBES — an Integral Part of The Delicately Balanced Eco-System.

Now, let me tell you about my shark.

Our boat was loaded with so much high-tech electronic gadgetry for piercing the ocean's depths, it could have quickly ended the hunt for Red October, or any other submarine. It is amazing the Navy does not sink fishing boats with such submarine locating capabilities.

But could the gadgets find fish? Nope. We found action because the skipper said: Let's go over there where the blue water meets the green water. That, he explained, is where the Gulf Stream bumps less warm water, and where hammerheads hang out.

He nuzzled the boat up to a buoy and, using light tackle, we caught a few small fish for shark bait. Then (nothing is simple anymore) we flew kites.

The skipper sent aloft two kites, with fishing lines clipped to the kite lines. The kites kept the live bait swimming at the surface, to which came our hammerhead, who then taught us a great truth: You can lead a shark to bait but you can't make him bite. In fact, you can, and we did, hit him on the forehead (a large target: a hammerhead has lots of forehead) with the bait without exciting him.

When the motion of the boat and kites tore all the live bait fish from our hooks, the captain remembered that he had a bonita in the freezer, and issued his deathless order to defrost the bait in the microwave. It was another high-tech futility. The shark kept circling the boat and the bait, but would not bite.

Open the stomach of a shark and you are apt to find, in addition to bits and pieces of fish, odds and ends like beer cans and license plates — Nebraska license plates. You figure it out.

Oh, well! One of the pleasures of being a conservative is that you are always more or less pleased. Conservatives are pessimists, so when things go badly they have the pleasure of having their beliefs confirmed, and when things go well they enjoy the pleasant surprise. Conservatives like fishing because they either catch fish or confirm their conviction that all of Nature is in on the cosmic conspiracy against human happiness.

The skipper, who is neither ideologically nor technologically obsessed, simply says we shoulda been here last week.

ART BUCHWALD

Wait for Reagan's Plan 'B' — if there is one!

According to the polls, 75 percent of us agreed with the President's decision to bomb Libya; 14 percent didn't and the rest were undecided.

Art Buchwald

The Administration asked me to go out and persuade the "undecideds" to cross over to the "heartily approve" column.

I found my first "undecided" at a coffee machine trying to decide whether he wanted his coffee black, with cream only, with cream and sugar light or cream and sugar regular.

"Why are you undecided as to whether the President did the right thing in Libya?"

He replied, "I wish he hadn't done it."

"What does that mean?"

"If he hadn't done it, I wouldn't have had to decide if it was a good idea or not. I do have some questions about it."

"Shoot," I said.

"How many terrorists did we kill?"

"Not many, but we sent them a message they won't forget."

"What was the message?"

"If they continue to export terrorism around the world they'll get more of the same."

"Do you think they got the message?"

"You bet they did. The terrorists have run for cover."

"So did we."

"What do you mean we ran for cover?"

"Every tourist is cancelling his or her trip to Europe. Why?"

"The tourists don't feel safe," I said.

"They felt safe before we bombed Libya. Why did so many Americans decide to cancel after the raid?"

"They figured because of the raid the Libyans would really increase their terrorism."

"Suppose the terrorism continues? What do we do to Libya next?"

"That's a hypothetical question and no one in Washington is permitted to answer one."

"What are you going to do in case we have to get involved in more military action?"

"Support my President with my last breath."

"How?"

"By sending him a telegram."

"What does Reagan do if the terror doesn't stop?"

"He sends Libya a message via the Sixth Fleet."

"Why doesn't he just terminate Khadafy with extreme prejudice?"

"That would be an assassination and a superpower doesn't get involved in outlaw behavior."

"You dumped quite a few tons of bombs on Khadafy's quarters. What was that?"

"That was a surgical strike. Although we wouldn't be upset if a bomb fell on Khadafy's head, we certainly would never put his name on it. I think I've answered all your questions. What have you got to lose by switching from 'undecided' to 'heartily approve'?"

"Why does it make any difference what I think about Libya?"

"We're trying to drive the approval rate up five points because 80 percent will give the President a mandate to send another message to Libya."

"I'm not afraid of changing my vote. I just wish we had gotten the terrorists the last time around."

"We will get them when the White House authorizes 'Plan B.'"

"You mean the President has a Plan B?"

"That's a hypothetical question."

Dallas-area gardeners hard at work cultivating their roses

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP)— John Long greets spring's balmy breezes and unfurling blossoms with the war cry: "Spray! Spray! Spray!"

While many of us are rummaging through the closet looking for the ice chest and picnic basket, Long and hundreds of Dallas-area rose enthusiasts are locked in mortal combat with sucking aphids, ravenous beetles and deadly fungi.

If it sounds serious, it is. Victory could mean triumph at one of the state's major rose shows; defeat definitely means a home-grown garden full of bug-eaten flowers.

At work, Long is a supervisor in Arlington's street maintenance department. At home, he is president of the Mid-Cities Rose Society, which claims 200 members.

Even the uninitiated cannot pass Long's modest suburban house without getting the clear impression that he is not your garden-variety rose-grower. In raised beds along the house are more than 300 varieties of rose bushes, each neatly labeled with official names such as: "Ingrid Bergman," "Sir Harry Pilkington," "Uncle Joe." The center of the front lawn has been churned over to provide a quarantine bed for exotic specimens from Germany and Africa.

Long, 61, has been working every day since February, pruning and fertilizing his thicket of rose bushes. At dusk, he retreats to a shed in his backyard where he mixes his own pesticide with the concentration of a chemist.

"I spray religiously. It's like having your car greased," he says. Last year he did not follow his spraying schedule and paid the price when spider mites invaded. "They got to the foliage before I could stop them," he says. "It cost me a queen."

The queen: the best bloom of the show, the award every rose-grower covets. In six years of shows, Long has won three queens. Many serious gardners of longer tenure are still waiting to produce that perfect specimen.

J.D. Downing, whose Haltom City home is obscured by more than 500 rose bushes, has earned ribbons and second-place honors but has yet to win the highest award, although he enters about a dozen shows a year. "My wife says, 'Always a princess, never a queen,' " says Downing, who also belongs to the society. A retired newspaper pressman, Downing has plenty of time to search for promising varieties, and to nurture the plants to physical perfection.

One year, for instance, the Downings heard rumors that a magnificent new strain had been perfected by Canadian botanists. The couple promptly hopped a plane, rented a car and spent weeks touring nurseries throughout Canada.

Downing doesn't consider his enthusiasm out of the ordinary, not in the ferociously competitive world of the rose shows. While the rose plants typically are inexpensive — rarely more than $15 for a bush or cutting — new varieties are tough to come by. When gardening catalogues offer the new strains, they frequently sell out within days.

"You just have to develop your own sources and find out where to get them," Downing says.

If Long and Downing are the veterans of the Mid-Cities Rose Society, Mike King is the rookie. At 14, he's the youngest member of the club and one of the few growers in the state competing in a category reserved for teen-agers.

He doesn't talk like a rookie. During the spring, King suffers from allergies while he works outdoors with his bushes.

"There's a lot of work," says King, who looks forward to the day when he can compete with adults.

The workload before the rose shows this month and next in Dallas, Fort Worth and the mid-cities is particularly heavy. The mild winter set the stage for a bug boom. Long says the beetle challenge is the worst.

So the rose-growers spray arduously, day in and day out, fiercely protecting the still-unopened blooms they have pinpointed as potential prize stock.

"It takes a lot of work, and it can take years of experimenting," Long concedes. "I can't take a vacation at this time of year. But it grows on you."

Thunderstorms in forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

A chance of thunderstorms exists for tonight and in the afternoon Thursday, according to forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. There is a 30 percent chance of storms tonight, decreasing to 20 percent for Thursday afternoon.

Tonight, under partly cloudy skies winds will be out of the south at 10-15 mph with an expected low of near 60. Partly cloudy skies will continue on Thursday with a high near 90 and southerly winds increasing to 10-20 mph.

Wednesday's high was only 6 degrees below the record high of 95 set for April 23 in 1965. This morning's low of 55 was 18 degrees above the record low set for this date in 1968.

A low-pressure trough stretching through West Texas brought a chance of thunderstorms in the Panhandle and South Plains through Friday, and wind advisories were posted behind the front.

WARNING

The sightings were thought to have been near Goldsmith and Penwell.

The NWS, however, indicated it's difficult to tell from the radar if certain patterns are, indeed, tornadoes.

"The radar has the capability, when looking at the thunderstorm, to measure the intensity of the cloud and the height because it's looking inside the storm."

What was picked up Wednesday afternoon was a "hook or backwards 6" which revealed a peculiar circulation pattern in the cloud, said the spokesman.

While no tornadoes came through Midland, a warning was put into effect for Midland County, Ector County and Crane County. A warning is issued when there is a suspicion of a possible sighting or an actual sighting.

Heavy winds, however, did cause some inconvenience for rush hour motorists who battled tumbleweeds and blowing dust on their way home. The NWS recorded a peak southwest wind of 53 mph at 4:38 p.m. Wednesday.

More thunderstorm activity is forecast for this afternoon and for tonight, said the NWS. The storms are attributed to a "dry-line surface trough," which the NWS described as "a difference in two fronts, when one side is humid and the other has very little humidity."

Midland High's Ethel Edwards on her way to a District 4-5A record 24.68 seconds in the 200-meter run.

MHS' Edwards flying on time

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Ethel Edwards' state track schedule appears to be clicking like an efficient train.

The Midland High junior already has one trip to the Austin circus and hopes to eventually have three experiences of running against the best the state has to offer.

As a sophomore, Edwards qualified for the state run in the 200 meters and the final result wasn't exactly what she was looking for. She finished eighth in a field of eight.

As bad as that may sound, she was still the eighth best in the state as a sophomore. She has, however, higher goals.

AFTER LAST year's state 200 run, Edwards said, "I'm not really disappointed. Just getting here was a lot of fun. But I'll be back. You can count on that."

Edwards has a chance earn another state trip May 3 in Lubbock when she runs the 200 in the Region I meet at Texas Tech. She has the fastest qualifying time of 24.68, a District 4-5A record. She ran a career best of 23.92 earlier this year at Snyder. She's on schedule for bettering that eighth place finish a year ago.

"I think going to the state meet a year ago was a big incentive for Ethel this year," noted MHS co-coach Sonja Pittman. "She has worked hard on her grades and track because I think she saw what a neat experience it is to attend the state track meet."

MHS coach Jane Young said, "Ethel works hard and is a leader for our team and she certianly has set the example. She is a tremendously talented young lady."

EDWARDS ALSO ran a 58 second lap in the 400 meters this year and would probably be a state contender in that event if she could swing both. However, the 400 and 200 are close together and there is no recovery time. Instead, she runs on two Region I bound relay teams.

"I would really like to see what she could do in the 400. I know she would excel in that event, too," said Pittman.

"Ethel is a special person. Everyone loves her," said Young. "She can do impersanations of anyone, including coaches and teammates. She can crack up any group."

And she can crack up just about any 200 meter field. One wonders what she could run if she had weekly competition in West Texas. She usually is running for a record — against herself. She is usually 10 yards or more ahead of the field at any track meet in this part of the country.

She also plays basketball and is in the MHS choir. And, oh yes, don't forget her penchant for impersanations. What she would really like to do is impersanate herself winning the state 200.

Bulldogs hammer Cooper

MHS ends Cougs' home field win streak

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

ABILENE — When was the last time Abilene Cooper lost a game at Cooper Field?

"The year before they invented dirt, I think," said Midland High coach Tim Whalen after his Bulldogs did what no team has done in four years — beat the Cougars on their home turf.

The last team to accomplish the feat was Lubbock Monterey in the quarterfinal playoffs of 1982. The last, that is, until the Bulldogs hit town Wednesday for their District 4-5A rainout makeup game with the Cougars and a 14-10 victory.

This time, there was no stopping the Bulldogs. The ground was dry and the sky was clear, albeit a bit windy with a 25-30 mile an hour breeze blowing through home plate and into center field.

It was a wind that proved to be the Bulldogs' friend.

Midland High took control of the game on the first pitch to No. 2 hitter Jim Werner. The Bulldog second baseman drilled a shot into right field and the onslaught was on.

When the Bulldogs weren't dropping hits to all parts of the field, the Cougars were fumbling. In all, Midland High was the beneficiary of six errors and three walks.

Add 18 hits from eight players and it was no contest. Almost. Any other team would have gone belly up after giving up five first inning runs. But not Cooper. After all, the Cougars had a home winning streak to protect. The dog fight had just begun.

AFTER THE Bulldogs' five-run erruption, Cooper immediately countered with three runs, two of which came on David Tollison's 11th home run of the year for a 5-3 score.

The Bulldogs, giving up only two runs in the next four innings, found a long-ball attack of their own.

After picking up two more runs in the second, Kenny De La Garza made it a 10-3 game with his third home run of the season, a three-RBI shot over the center field fence.

Anthony Deande added a solo blast in the fourth, his first of the year for an 11-3 lead.

Cooper picked up two runs in the bottom of the fourth to trail by six. The 'Dogs pushed it to nine when De La Garza got his second round-tripper, a three-run blast over the left-center fence.

Leading 14-5 looked like it wasn't enough after the Cougars scored two more in the sixth and had a rally in the seventh for three more before De La Garza was called on to close the door in relief of Ricky Castaneda.

With the bases loaded on three straight free passes, De La Garza struck out Layne Ingle and walked Tollison to force in a run. A wild pitch to Chris Moore sent in the second run.

A base running mistake by Tollison deflated Cooper's hopes. After advancing to second on the wild pitch, Tollison tried to claim another base when Moore's bloop RBI single dropped in front of center fielder Eric Boyt.

Tollison, who waited until the pitch dropped, took off only to be gunned down at third by Boyt's arm.

De La Garza ended the game by striking out Scott Pugh.

FOR MIDLAND HIGH players, the 14-10 victory Wednesday was the sweetest of the two because of the Cougar history on their home field.

"This is the best feeling ever because Cooper hasn't been beaten here since 1982 and when we got on top 5-0 I thought we could take them," said Castaneda, who gave up all 10 runs (five earned) but never trailed in the game.

"We just came out with our sticks knowing we could do it because we beat them the first time (2-1 at Angel Stadium) and didn't hit. After we did it the first time, we knew we could do it again because their pitching wasn't that good.

"I just hope Abilene can beat them too and I hope we play our best against Lee."

"This one was the best," agreed Werner. "Cooper being unbeaten here since '82 makes it more of an accomplishment."

Should Midland High and Abilene Cooper win in Saturday's 4-5A finales, the two teams will finish the season tied for first at 11-3 and a one-game playoff game will be in order.

No matter what happens, the Bulldogs are still going into bi-district playoffs, a first for every memeber of the team, including Whalen.

ABILENE COOPER wasn't the only team having trouble fielding the ball. While the Cougars committed six errors, Midland High answered with five, making it one of the least clean games for the two teams this year.

Also, even though Castaneda nearly went the distance, it wasn't one of his best outings of the year, giving up the 10 runs on eight hits, 10 walks and striking our four.

But, what Cooper hitters did to Castaneda was returned in spades. In all, six Cougars went to the mound for brief stints and all but one was hit for at least one run. John Thompson only pitched to one batter to get out of a second inning jam.

Angels come from behind again

Kent Porter/Reporter-Telegram

Midland Angels' third baseman makes a routine play as the Texas League team rolled off its fifth straight victory at Angels Stadium Wednesday night with a 6-5 win over Beaumont.

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland's Angels made it five in a row, coming from behind to beat the Beaumont Golden Gators, 6-5, in the opener of a five-game Texas League series at Angels Stadium Wednesday night.

And in case you are wondering, while the 1985 Angels didn't put together many winning streaks, they did have one nine game run, so the present club still has its work cut out for it.

It was after August "spring" training, conducted by Manager Joe Maddon in exasperation of some frustrating giveaway nights, that Midland won its nine straight. "Four here against Arkansas and then five at San Antonio," Maddon refreshes the memory.

Whether or not this team runs off nine in a row, it's a club that won't have to look back on a lone winning streak as the salvation of its season.

Just look at the way they are winning.

Behind 4-0 after three innings, the Angels flexed their muscles and in three swings it was 3-4 and Midland was back in the game. Brian Brady hit his second homer in two nights, a shot to right.

Williams fears Chaps' net attitude

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

If gut feelings count for anything these days, then Midland College's highly ranked men's and women's tennis teams may be in for a rougher time than you might expect this weekend at the Region V tournament in Odessa.

Coach Joe Williams, normally an optimistic sort, isn't exactly running up the white flag, but he isn't bubbling over with praise for his No. 1 ranked women and No. 3 ranked men on the eve of the national qualifiers.

"We ought to be excited, we ought to be fired up, but we've got some players who just seem to have a bad attitude right now," Williams said. "This is what we've worked so hard all year for. I just don't have a good feeling going in, I really don't."

Joining Midland College at Region V play, which begins at 9 a.m. on the Odessa College courts Friday, will be the No. 1 ranked men's team from McLennan Junior College as well as strong teams from South Plains College, Odessa College, New Mexico Military Institute, Grayson County and Weatherford.

The women will be the top ranked among a field of five nationally ranked women's teams. McLennan is ranked fourth, Cooke County is No. 7, OC is ninth and South Plains is No. 12. Grayson County and Weatherford, though not ranked, will also attend.

"I think some these kids are scared to death, I really do. The ones that are reacting with such a nonchalant attitude are scared. They're putting on that 'I-don't-care-face' and they're not going to be able to handle it because they're not ready."

Such talk is not par for the course for Williams, in his fourth season at the helm of the MC tennis program. Especially not after sweeping through the Western Junior Conference Athletic Conference tournament in Roswell, N.M., last weekend.

The Chaparrals seemed to be right on top of their game as the women swept all nine WJCAC titles and the men captured seven. For the men, this weekend is a do-or-die situation as far as national qualifying is concerned. MC must finish first or second or pack up the gear until next year.

For the women, it is a different story. As host for the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament, May 18-24, the Chaps are guaranteed entry to the national tournament.

Williams feels that may be part of the problem in motivating his troops for the Friday and Saturday's Region V tourney.

"I hate to see that type of attitude. I believe that you've got to practice hard to prepare for these big tournaments," Williams said. "Some of these girls think they're going to skate on in without having to work at it. They're going to get shocked. There's going to be some losses we shouldn't have because there are strong players up and down in the tournament."

One Chaparral that has pleased Williams with her play this week has been sophomore Helene Lebeller of France. Lebeller played most of last season at No. 1 singles but has played at No. 2 this season. But Lebeller's play of late has been so consistent — she has not lost a dual match all season — that Williams hinted he may move her into the No. 1 spot replacing Moniek Margaroli.

On the men's side, it is not so much the attitude of his players, but their health that concerns Williams. Three of his top players are nursing injuries, with the latest, a pulled upper leg muscle to No. 1 singles player Jean Remy Roussell.

Also hurting are Herve Rousseau at No. 5 singles with a season-long case of tennis elbow, and Jos Warmoes, No. 4 singles, with a knee problem. But even with the injuries, Williams feels the men can come through strong enough to qualify for the national tournament May 25-31 in Tyler.

"Normally we should do it, but with these injuries...," Williams said shaking his head. "But if the draw goes right we can still do it. South Plains has some players that could knock us off, but they don't haye the depth we do."

Williams has been especially pleased recently with the doubles play of Eric Lingg and Jos Warmoes at No. 1 doubles. At the WJCAC tournament last weekend, Lingg and Warmoes knocked off the top rated doubles team in the nation in Gerald Kaiser and Frank Sutherland of SPC — a team that had beaten them twice earlier in the year.

Eagle proves winner in Daiwa Junior tournament play

From Staff Reports

The team of Chub Gibbs, Jimmy Wilson, George Logan, Frank Tryon and Shaun McDonald paralyed an eagle on No. 14 into the margin of victory in the Daiwa Junior Pro-Am Golf Benefit at Hogan Park Golf course Wednesday.

The team shot a 56, 14-under-par, to beat out two teams tied for second at 58.

And the team of Gary Hammer, Jay Hendricks, Charles Roberts, Larry Bagley and Wray Hart used a "gift" eagle from Evan (Big Cat) Williams into its 58.

Williams, a two-time PGA long driving champion who has driven a ball 496 yards, played two holes with each team. On No. 3, he drove the green of the par four hole to set up an easy eagle for the Hammer team.

Williams was in Midland to stage a clinic for juniors.

Tying at 58 was the geam of Larry Bishop, Herman Hines, Bobba Stobaugh, Gil Rodriquez and David Pine.

Glen Walker then looped a single to right and John Hotchkiss, who got a chance to start at third after spending most of the early weeks on the bench, arched one of those majestic flies that seem to climb forever before dropping just beyond the fence in left.

"I didn't think it was going to go over or even stay fair," said Hotchkiss.

"This was just his fourth or fifth game," said Maddon, "He doesn't say much, but when you call on him, he's ready and does his job."

Midland tied it in the fifth when Mark McLemore doubled to right and scored on singles by Raul Tovar and James Randall. After Billie Merrifield rapped into a double play, Brady, again, doubled for a fifth run.

BEAUMONT tied it in the sixth, starter Mike Cook's last innng, as Sandy Alomar singled, was forced at second on Joey Cora's infield grounder and Bill Wrona doubled home the run.

Midland's winner came in the seventh. Merrifield doubled to left-center, moved to third on Brady's third hit of the night and scored on Walker's sac fly to right.

Vinicio Cedeno, from the Dominican Republic, but no relation to Cesar, arrived just in time to pick up the win with an awesome three-inning relief stint.

He fanned the side in the seventh, after relieving Cook, and his only mistake was a walk to Mike DeBulch with one out in the eighth. Cora forced DeBulch at second, but then was gunned down trying to steal by Doug Davis.

"Cedeno had exceptional command of his fast ball and fork ball tonight. He was throwing them for strikes," said Maddon. "He was very impressive. His problem in the past has been throwing the ball over the plate."

FOR MADDON, the play of Hotchkiss coming off the bench and "McLemore getting on base were pluses for us." Mark was three-for-three and reached base all five times, twice on walks.

Brady also had a three-hit night and his second homer in as many nights.

"I hit Tuesday's ball harder. Tonight's was more of a liner. I caught a tight curve and I was not sure it would go," said the outfielder who is just 23 hours short of earning his degree in Criminal Justice from New York Tech.

"No, we aren't in the same conference as the University of New Jersey, but a lot of people never heard of us. We just moved up to Division I last year. People consider us some kind of renegades. We came to Texas and beat Rice and Lamar last year. I don't think either of them were sure we were for real."

Meanwhile, Cook, a No. 1 draft choice out of the University of South Carolina, is looking for his first professional victory after going 16-2 with a 1.91 ERA for the Gamecocks last season.

The Charleston native was 0-0 in a brief stint at Quad Cities. The reason it was brief, he explains, was "I broke my right leg....the golf cart got too close to a tree and it just snapped the leg."

Cook went six innings and figures he was lucky to get that far. "All I had was a curve. My fast ball was flat. I couldn't throw it for strikes and when I did they teed off on it. But my curve was consistent and when I got behind I had to go to it."

TCU may draw penalties from NCAA

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas Christian University could face possible penalties including a two-year loss of scholarships and a one-year sanction against television or bowl game appearances, according to a published report.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram quoted a source close to the National Collegiate Athletic Association investigation into the TCU football program on Tuesday.

TCU officials received a letter that outlined the TV-bowl game sanction and scholarship loss, along with a three-year probation, as possibilities for maximum penalties under discussion, the newspaper quoted the unnamed source as saying.

NCAA officials have been considering action since September, when it was revealed that some TCU football players had received money from alumni.

Officials said the possible penalties could change after a second appearance by Texas Christian University representatives before the Committee on Infractions on Sunday in Scottsdale, Ariz.

The newspaper says Chancellor William E. Tucker will head TCU's three-man contingent in Arizona. The session would close an eight-week exchange of information and discussion of possible penalties.

The first meeting March 1 in Kansas City, Mo., followed a four-month investigation headed by Bob Minnix of the NCAA's enforcement staff.

The source told the newspaper that eventual penalties had not been determined.

Dr. J. Frank Remington, chairman of the infractions committee, said Tuesday that "no decision (as to penalties) has been reached."

Remington said that the dialogue with TCU has not been on the order of an appeal or renegotiation.

"Those are not words I would use," he said.

"In recent years, it has not been uncommon to have discussions with an institution concerning the impact of certain penalties," he said. "This gives the institution an opportunity to furnish additional information in advance of a final dispensation. But nothing final has been decided."

BULLDOGS —

BULLDOG NOTES: All but one Bulldog collected a hit Wednesday and several gave a near-awesome display of hitting led by De La Garza and Werner. Both Bulldogs went 4-for-5 with De La Garza scoring three runs and driving in six with his two home runs while Werner scored four times. Also, Deande was 3-for-5, including a homer, with two scored and two knocked in; Castaneda was 2-for-4 with a double, a run scored and three RBI and Robert Malacara went 2-for-3 with a double...Cooper's Moore, 3-for-3 and Bill Dehlinger, 2-for-3 were the only Cougars with more than one hit...Malacara and Boyt had the two best defensive plays of the game, with Malacara diving to his left for a hard-hit shot at third base and coming up throwing to get the out and Boyt's throw from center to get Tollison at third in the seventh.

Carlton back on Hall track

Associated Press

Steve Carlton is back on track to the Hall of Fame.

Carlton, who was just 1-8 last year and spent most of the season on the disabled list with a strained rotator cuff, earned his first victory since last May 20 as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated Montreal 5-4 on Wednesday at Olympic Stadium.

It was the 315th victory of his career, 11th on the all-time victories list. The veteran left-hander struck out six batters and walked six over 5 1-3 innings. Carlton, 1-2, now has 3,940 career strikeouts, second to all-time leader Nolan Ryan.

Baseball

"His stuff has been getting better each time out, and this win will mean a lot for him," Philadelphia pitching coach Claude Osteen said. "It will make him believe in himself again."

Steve Bedrosian worked the ninth inning for his first save, while Steve Jeltz had two hits, including a three-run triple, to pace the Phillies' offense.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Astros 3, Braves 2

At Atlanta, Craig Reynolds two-run pinch-hit single capped a three-run Houston rally with two outs in the ninth inning. Atlanta starter Zane Smith was within one out of recording his second consecutive shutout when the Astros rallied to claim their seventh victory in eight games.

With two out, Glenn Davis singled to right, Kevin Bass drew a walk and Jose Cruz ended the shutout bid with an RBI single to right field, scoring Davis and sending Bass to third. Bruce Sutter then replaced Smith, and after pinch-runner Tony Walker stole second, Alan Ashby walked to load the bases. Reynolds then bounced his two-run single to center field.

Cubs 6, Cardinals 0

At Chicago, Scott Sanderson pitched a five-hitter and Ryne Sandberg paced a 12-hit Chicago attack with a pair of doubles and a run-scoring single as the Cubs blanked St. Louis.

Sanderson, 1-1, struck out seven and walked one. He was perfect through four innings before yielding a leadoff single to Jack Clark in the fifth.

Padres 7, Reds 4

At Cincinnati, Andy Hawkins pitched 6 1-3 strong innings and singled twice as San Diego Padres overcame a grand-slam homer by Cincinnati's Dave Parker.

Hawkins, 1-2, allowed just four hits, one of them Parker's third-inning grand slam, as San Diego snapped a four-game losing streak and handed the Reds their fourth straight loss.

Dodgers 6, Giants 4

At San Francisco, Mike Marshall and Bill Madlock each homered and pitcher Fernando Valenzuela contributed with both his arm and his bat as Los Angeles beat the San Francisco, snapping the Giants' six-game winning streak.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Rangers 9, Blue Jays 8

At Toronto, Larry Parrish and George Wright each homered and had four hits apiece with a combined seven runs batted in, leading Texas over struggling Toronto.

Parrish drove in five runs and scored twice, while Wright had two RBIs and scored three times. The Rangers broke open a 5-5 tie with four runs in the seventh against reliever Dennis Lamp, 0-2.

"It's not just one or two guys, it's everybody in the lineup who's swinging the bat real well," Parrish said. "The other pitchers can't pitch around one guy because the next guy is just as capable."

George Bell his a three-run homer in the ninth for the Jays.

Mariners 4, Twins 3

At Seattle, Dave Henderson's two-run homer in the bottom of the 10th inning lifted Seattle over Minnesota, snapping a six-game Mariners' losing streak.

The Twins had taken a 3-2 lead on Kent Hrbek's RBI single in the top of the 10th. Reliever Mark Portugal, 0-1, walked Danny Tartabull to lead off the Mariners' 10th. After Jim Presley bunted to move Tartabull to second, Henderson fell behind 0-2, but then lined his second homer of the year over the right field wall. Karl Best got the final two outs in the Twins' 10th to pick up his first victory.

White Sox 2, Brewers 1

At Milwaukee, pinch-hitter Reid Nichols hit a double down the right-field line in the ninth inning to score Bobby Bonilla with the winning run as Chicago defeated Milwaukee.

With one out, Milwaukee reliever Dan Plesac, 1-1, walked Bonilla then yielded a single to Tim Hulett to set up Nichols' double. Tom Seaver, 2-2, pitched six-hit ball over 8 2-3 innings while striking out seven and walking three. Bob James got the final out for his second save.

It was Seaver's 306th career victory.

Indians 5, Orioles 1

At Cleveland, Brook Jacoby, Julio Franco and Carmen Castillo homered and Ken Schrom combined with Scott Bailes on a six-hitter as the Indians beat Baltimore. Schrom, 3-1, allowed three hits, struck out one and walked two in six innings.

Tigers 3, Red Sox 1

At Boston, Dave Collins and Darnell Coles keyed a decisive two-run fifth with RBI singles and Frank Tanana overcame wildness with a three-hitter over eight innings as Detroit defeated Boston. Tanana, 2-1, walked six and struck out one in the numbing 40-degree weather, but was tough in the clutch as the Tigers took the rubber of a three-game series. Willie Hernandez pitched the ninth for his fifth save.

Yankees 2, Royals 1

At Kansas City, Ken Griffey collected three hits in support of Dennis Rasmussen's three-hit pitching over seven innings sparking New York to a 2-1 victory over Kansas City and the Yankees' first three-game sweep in Royals Stadium since 1974.

The loser was Dennis Leonard, 2-1, who had won his first two starts since coming back from a 1983 knee injury.

The Yankees won their fourth consecutive game in improving their record to 10-4.

Angels 5, A's 0

At Anaheim, California right-hander Mike Witt pitched a five-hitter and a fielding error by Oakland left fielder Jose Canseco led to three unearned runs in the first inning as the Angels defeated the A's.

Rangers, Whalers tie series

Associated Press

Both the New York Rangers and Hartford Whalers did some overtime work, and it paid off in their respective National Hockey League playoff series.

"We never quit tonight," left wing Don Maloney said Wednesday night after New York's dramatic 6-5 overtime victory over Washington tied their Patrick Division final at two games apiece. "We're working hard, we have a lot of discipline and the guy in the net (John Vanbiesbrouck) is coming up big."

The Whalers find themselves in precisely the same position as the Rangers: underdogs who have risen up to tie their series. Their latest effort resulted in a 2-1 overtime victory over Montreal on Wednesday night that tied their Adams Division final at 2-2.

Ironically, both the Rangers and the Whalers won the opening games of their series and lost the next two before winning. They both resume with Game 5 Friday night with New York at Washington and Hartford at Montreal.

In Stanley Cup action tonight, Calgary hosts the Edmonton Oilers holding a surprising 2-1 lead in their

NHL Roundup

Smythe series over the two-time defending Stanley Cup champions and Toronto, also a surprising 2-1 leader in the Norris, entertains St. Louis.

Bob Brooke, who tied the game with a goal late in the third period, scored the game winner 2:40 into overtime to lift the Rangers over the Capitals.

The Rangers, who seemed a defeated team in the third period, rallied to tie the game 5-5 when Brooke connected from the slot at 17:25 of the third period to force the overtime period.

Lakers eliminate Spurs

Jazz push Mavericks to Game 4

Associated Press

It's no surprise to Los Angeles Lakers Coach Pat Riley that his defending NBA champion team made a clean sweep of the San Antonio Spurs in the first round of the playoffs.

But he was surprised at the ease with which the Lakers dispensed with the Spurs, eliminating them from the playoffs 114-94 Wednesday night.

Earlier, the Lakers had won 135-88 and 122-94 over the Spurs in the Western Conference first round.

Los Angeles now faces the winner of the Utah-Dallas series. The Mavericks lead two games to one.

"We did have the attitude that we could sweep San Antonio," Riley said. "I was a little surprised by the margin of victory in all three games."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led his team with 25 points Wednesday, summed it all up for the Lakers.

"We are a better team than the Spurs. I think the series spoke for itself," he said.

Spurs Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said he told his team, "You just have to give the Lakers credit. They are the champions. They handled us for three games. We just weren't good enough to beat them."

Laker guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson finished the game with 14 points and 17 assists. His 48 assists for the three-game series is an NBA record.

The outcome of Wednesday's contest was never in doubt.

The Lakers led from the start and pulled to a 21-point, 84-63 lead at the end of the third period. Jabbar helped power a third-quarter surge, pouring in 10 of the Lakers' 28 points. The Spurs could manage only 15 in that same period.

The injury-plagued Spurs, who lost 21 of their last 26 regular-season games, managed to pull to within 6 points at 48-42 in the second period. But they never moved that close again.

Spurs point guard Wes Matthews led all scorers with 30.

"This definitely was my best playoff performance ever," he said. "I thought we could pull the upset but LA is such a great team."

Matthew was trailed by Mike Mitchell and Artis Gilmore, with 17 apiece.

Maurice Lucas put in 17 for the Lakers.

The visitors out-rebounded the home team 53-33 and led in field goal percentages 55 percent to 41 percent in the slow-moving contest.

NBA Roundup

Jazz 100, Mavericks 98

Dallas Coach Dick Motta, whose team lost a 100-98 NBA playoff game Wednesday night, says his anxious moments didn't necessarily come in the final seconds.

"I was nervous in the first three minutes of the game," said Motta, whose team missed taking a clean sweep in the best-of-five series when Karl Malone scored with 50 seconds left and the Jazz held on as time ran out on the clock.

"I could see we were not starting as loose and free as I thought we would be," Motta said. "We didn't match their fire for fire in the first five minutes."

The Mavericks, who won the first two games of the series in Dallas, knew they were in for a long night when Utah scored 12 straight points before the first quarter was half over and took a 16-4 lead by the 6:40 mark.

Green, who scored 17 of his game-high 32 points in the first half, scored six of Utah's first 16 points and the near-capacity crowd of 11,635 was worked into a frenzy.

But it didn't last long.

Dallas stormed back and tied the score at 35 with 7:29 left in the half when Mark Aguirre hit a turnaround jumper in the key, then the Mavericks went ahead on two straight baskets by Sam Perkins.

"We fell behind, then we caught up and I felt like we had control of the game," Motta said. "Basically we did."

The momentum swungback and forth and the score was tied 10 times before Malone knotted it at 96 when he stole the ball and hit a jumper with 2:30 left. Green scored on a 20-footer a minute later to put the Jazz, playing without the injured Adrian Dantley, ahead 98-96. But Rolando Blackman converted two free throws for the Mavericks with 1:10 left to tie the score a 12th time.

Malone hit the game-winner 20 seconds later, then ripped the rebound from James Donaldson at the other end of the court after Blackman's shot rolled off the rim. Utah failed to score on its possession when Green's shot missed the mark, and Dallas had one last shot at sending the game into overtime.

Dallas called time with six seconds left to talk about the final shot, but the Jazz felt they were in control at that point.

"I said if they score, if there's time left, we'll call time out and see if we can win it," said Utah Coach Frank Layden. "If not, we'll go into overtime at home."

ESPN to telecast complete NFL draft

Associated Press

Since last September, 28 NFL teams have been preparing for the collegiate draft. So has ESPN.

On Tuesday, beginning at 9 a.m. CST, ESPN will telecast eight hours of the draft live from New York. For football junkies, even that might not be enough.

But for the average sports fan, having ESPN's cameras at the draft makes for a pleasant means of following a favorite team's choices.

The telecast itself occupies a major portion of one day's schedule for ESPN. The preparation for the draft takes months.

Why does ESPN devote so much time to a show on which, admittedly, there is little profit?

One reason could be wishful thinking. If the NFL decides to sell some of its games to cable television in the near future — the contract with the networks expires after the 1986 season — ESPN already has a working relationship with the league. TBS does not. Nor does USA or any other cable outlet.

Donna Bondi, ESPN's NFL draft coordinator, handles most of that work — "she's our walking encyclopedia on the draft," LaPlaca says — and makes sure the on-air talent is fully versed on every player selected.

Dollar steady

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar steadied against the yen today after a record-breaking three-day plunge, but continued to weaken against the British pound. Gold was mostly down.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar was unchanged at 167.85 yen, after hitting new post-World War II lows on three consecutive days. Later, in London, it was higher at 168.40 yen.

Dealers said they believed the fall was arrested by Japanese Central Bank intervention. Japan has been anxious to halt the rise of the yen, which is making its products more expensive abroad.

A slump in U.S. bond market prices, meaning higher yields for investors, also supported the dollar, dealers in Frankfurt said.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $345.90 a troy ounce, compared with late Wednesday's $345.50. At mid-morning the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $346.

In Zurich, the bid price was $345.80, down from $346.50 late Wednesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell 77 cents to close at a bid $346.

In New York today gold fell 80 cents to close at $346.

Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $5.15 a troy ounce, up from Wednesday's $5.13.

Yields fall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yields on two-year Treasury notes fell to 6.68 percent in Wednesday's auction, the lowest level in nine years.

The Treasury Department sold $9.8 billion of the notes, with the average yield down from 7.19 percent at the last auction on March 19. The rate was the lowest since 6.34 percent on July 19, 1977.

The sale attracted bids totaling $18.3 billion. The notes will carry a coupon rate of 6⅝ percent, with a $10,000 note selling for $9,989.90.

Indicators reflect continued decline

By DEANNA J. NEAL
Business/Oil Writer

Economic Indicators released at the Midland Chamber of Commerce monthly board of directors meeting Wednesday reveal a continued downturn in the area economy.

According to the latest figures, the construction sector was especially hard-hit. Total new valuations in Midland were down 30 percent, with a 51 percent decline seen in the number of new commercial valuations. A big drop was also experienced in the area of permits issued, falling 30 percent over February's total.

In the financial sector, bank deposits fell by about 4 percent, while savings and loans deposits grew by almost 16 percent. City sales and use tax were down by $25,000, a drop of about 4 percent.

The unemployment rate jumped 45 percent over last year's rate, and stands at 8.3 percent.

In other business, the Chamber has adopted a resolution to express their opposition to House Bill No. 3838 at Wednesday's board of directors meeting. "We feel that this tax reform bill is not really reform in simplification, but would be generally detrimental to businesses in West Texas. Therefore we are urging that the Bill not be passed," stated Chamber President Joan Baskin. The bill proposes to deny tax-free status for municipal bonds, which would greatly inhibit the city, school and county from selling their bonds.

In other business, the Chamber heard a report from Dick Dunbar on Midland's Sister City in China Project. About 30 representatives from Midland will visit Dong Ying, which is projected to be the future oil center of China. The purpose of the visit is to develop a reciprocal trade agreement with that city to share knowledge, products and goods.

"We are trying to take someone from each sector of the community — from those involved in the energy business to banking, the arts, medicine, the media, real estate, education, etc.," said Dunbar. As guests of the Chinese government the group plans to initiate the negotiations for a cultural exchange.

The Small Business Council of the Chamber will holds its annual TradeShow Midland 86 on May 22 at the Holiday Inn Convention Center. The show, to be held in conjunction with National Small Business Week, will run from 5:00 to 9:00 pm. with from 500 to 1000 people expected to attend and view the TradeShow displays. The theme of this year's show is "Growing Together".

State, national leaders bring support, warnings to oilmen

House speaker says state is at crossroads

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

After 15 years of unparalleled boom, the state of Texas is in the process of making some fundamental changes, Texas Speaker of the House Gib Lewis told PBPA members at its annual membership luncheon Wednesday at Midland Hilton.

"Industry is no longer moving to Texas in droves as it once was and we no longer have the great surpluses of $3-$5 million in the Texas Treasury," the Fort Worth legislator lamented. "It used to be easy to get people to serve on the Appropriations Committee, because there was surplus funds and it was fun to spend on projects, but today it's very difficult to find those who want to serve on that committee. IPAA counsel sees better days

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business Oil Editor

An oil import tax is definitely out, but other remedial measures to stave off disaster for the domestic oil industry may be in the making, said H.B. (Bud) Scoggins, general counsel and president-elect of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

In a briefing session of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association annual meeting at the Midland Hilton, the author of a "how-to" manual on the complexities of natural gas regulation, said little progress was expected to come from the recent OPEC meeting in Geneva. However, he offered hope for a better day saying IPAA experts on Saudi Arabia think oil prices will start up by the end of the summer and could be back to $22 a barrel by the end of the year.

"But what about until then?" asked Scoggins. "How do we survive an 869 rig count, until prices do return?" Adding that even when prices do go back up, a response in the rig count will not be immediate, because it will take time to rebuild confidence in the industry.

"Some in the industry think an import tax on crude oil is the solution, but don't count on it. The people in Washington, particularly President Reagan, are totally committed to the market system." Adding to the reasons an import fee was an unrealistic expectation at this time, he said treaties with Mexico and Canada would exempt them from being included in such a tax, and oil consuming states which outnumber oil producing states would not stand still for such a tax.

How much relief does he feel can realistically be passed for the oil industry at this time?

"A special IPAA task force, formed to study alternatives to an import tax have determined that tax credits for marginal wells; repeal of depletion allowance; continuation of depletion with the transfer of producing properties and redefinition

Exxon plans to reduce work force

From Staff and Wire Reports

Ailing oil prices have prompted Exxon Corp. to try to cut its work force through early retirement and voluntary departures, but company officials say they will turn to involuntary layoffs if needed reductions are not made by the end of May.

Exxon spokesman Les Rogers says the company will not disclose how many jobs it wants to eliminate through voluntary and involuntary reductions. Nor would Rogers comment on an industry analysts' predictions that 1,500 employees in Houston would be affected or that cuts may approach 25 percent of the total workforce.

"We consider it private business," Rogers said of the work force cuts.

Exxon Co. USA, through its exploration and production divisions based in Midland and other afilliates, has more than 750 employees in the Midland/Odessa area, with another 400 field personnel in the surrounding area, according to local company spokeswoman Sharon Curran-Wescott. No estimate of local effects of the employee separation program has been prepared, she said.

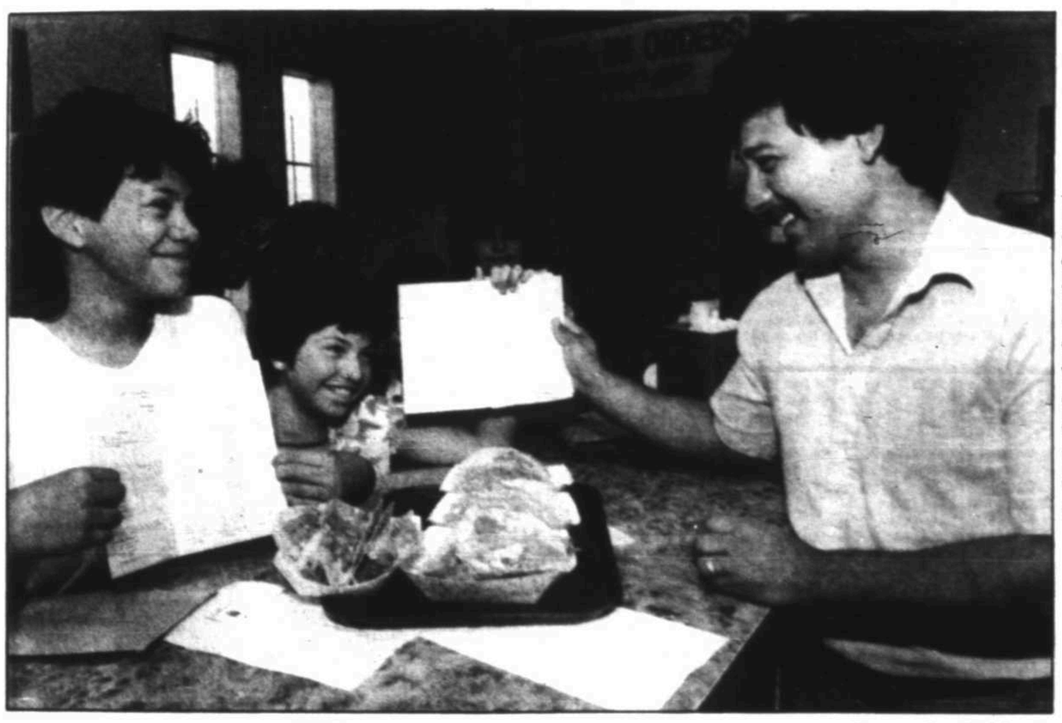

Nationally, Exxon Co. USA employed 26,400 people at the of 1985, the most current figure available. Two previous voluntary programs since the end of 1982 and normal attrition rates have cut the company's national workforce from 29,200 to 26,400.

Employees were told Tuesday about the early retirement and voluntary departure programs, Rogers said.

The severance program was offered "with very few exceptions" to every Exxon employee in the nation. "The cutbacks are being made without regard to management level, area of operations, or job skills," Rogers says.

"The number (of layoffs) going around the industry centers around 10 percent," said Rosario Ilacqua, oil analyst in New York.

Under the 10 percent estimate, Exxon could elimate more than 14,600 of its 146,000 employees world wide. But John Ryan, an analyst in Dallas, said the 10 percent estimate probably is a "little high" for Exxon Co. USA.

Casseb misapplied law: Texaco lawyer

HOUSTON (AP) — State District Judge Solomon Casseb Jr., who presided in the Texaco-Pennzoil trial in which Pennzoil was awarded $10.5 billion, misapplied New York contract law, a Texaco attorney claimed.

In the continuing Texaco-Pennzoil saga, Texaco on Wednesday filed briefs in a Houston state appeals court asking that the award granted to Pennzoil be overturned.

Texaco's appeal, consisting of more than 100 pages, says Casseb failed to explain the complexities of merger agreements in New York to the jury. Casseb, a San Antonio lawyer, came out of retirement to step in for ailing State District Judge Anthony Farris two-thirds into the trial.

In November, a jury ruled that Texaco wrongfully interfered in a merger agreement between Pennzoil and Getty Oil Co. when it acquired Getty. It awarded Pennzoil $7.53 billion in actual damages and an additional $3 billion in punitive damages.

Casseb later added $600 million in interest to the judgment and said more interest would accumulate at the rate of 10 percent annually.

Texaco's appeal includes complaints that Casseb "permitted Pennzoil witnesses to testify that there was a contract (between Pennzoil and Getty), but at the same time refused Texaco witnesses the opportunity to say there was not a contract," said Frank Barron, partner with New York-based Cravath, Swain and Moore, the lead law firm among several retained by Texaco.

He also said the judge "treated (Pennzoil's) agreement in principle as though it were a binding contract." Under New York law, an agreement in principal is not a binding contract.

"Under Texas law, that is simply forbidden," said Barron. "A judge is meant to simply be a neutral umpire who calls the balls and strikes.

"The basic thrust of the brief is that Judge Casseb misapplied New York contract law and, in charging the jury, misapplied Texas law of procedural law," he said.

Pennzoil attorney Joe Jamail was asleep when The Associated Press tried to contact him Wednesday evening.

Meanwhile, Pennzoil stockholders are holding their annual meeting in Houston today.

White oil issue resurfaces

AUSTIN (AP) — The "white oil" controversy surfaced in the 3rd Court of Appeals today with arguments before Chief Justice Bob Shannon and Justice Bob Gammage.

Bill Boyd, a McKinney lawyer representing white oil operators in the Panhandle Field, said nowhere in Texas law does it say what color oil should be.

White oil is a water-white liquid produced by chilling vapors to as low as 20 degrees below zero with LTX, or low temperature extraction, units.

Other producers, including Phillips Petroleum, which first complained before the Railroad Commission, contend that white oil is really natural gas but is being counted as crude oil to get certain wells classified as oil wells.

Shell earnings down $20 million

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co. earned $276 million in the first quarter of 1986, a $20 million drop from earnings posted in the same period in 1985, company officials said Wednesday.

Earnings were 7 percent lower than last year's first quarter, when net income was $296 million. Revenues were about $4.7 billion, nearly the same as in 1985, the company announced.

"Despite lower crude oil prices, funds from operations improved because of increased crude oil and natural gas production, greater refined product sales volumes, and higher margins for oil and chemical products," said John F. Bookout, Shell president.

Funds from operations totaled $974 million, an increase of $111 million from the first quarter of 1985.

Penwell field producer pumps 413 barrels oil

TEXACO PRODUCING, INC., Midland, has completed three workover projects in the Penwell field of Ector County, re-entering and deepening in the same zone three producers in the Penwell Unit.

Texaco potentialed the No. 1383 Penwell Unit to pump 413 barrels of crude, 102 Mcfd and 19 barrels of water from perforations 3,501 to 3,793 ft. The interval was acidized with 1,600 gallons of NeFe acid and fractured with 37,200 gallons of gel, 96,000 lbs. 20/40 sand and 51,400 lbs. 12/20 sand. Gas-oil ratio is 247:1.

The No. 2345 Penwell Unit tested to pump 160 barrels of 35.5 gravity crude, 70 Mcfd and 568 barrels of water from perforations 3,467 to 3,854 ft. The interval was acidized with 22,000 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid and fractured with 36,000 gallons of gel, 175,000 lbs. 20/40 sand and 68,000 lbs. 12/20 sand.

The third completion, the No. 2347 Penwell Unit, was tested to pump 87 barrels of crude, six Mcfd and 531 barrels of water.

All three producers are located in Block B-16 of the PSL survey, eight miles southwest of Penwell.

Chevron commits additional reserves

HOUSTON — (SWN) Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., a subsidiary of Texas Eastern Corp., and Chevron U.S.A. Inc. announced they have jointly filed an application for Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) approval for a new gas purchase agreement and an amendment to the existing warranty contract.

Under the new agreement, Chevron will commit to Texas Eastern additional natural gas reserves estimated by Texas Eastern to be between 300 billion cubic feet (BCF) and 500 BCF for deliveries at market responsive prices beginning in late 1989, when the 1964 warranty contract between the two companies is set to expire.

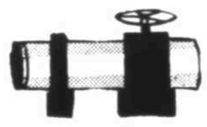

The companies are also proposing to amend the existing warranty contract to adjust the daily contract quantity. The amendment would not change the price or total contract available under the contract.

Howard C. Homeyer, Senior Vice President, Transportation, Texas Eastern Corp., said, "Approval of these agreements will provide continuity of deliveries after the warranty volumes are satisfied in 1989. Further, it will establish a beneficial, long-term supply arrangement with Chevron, the nation's third largest gas producer. We hope for, and expect, expenditious FERC approval of these arrangements."

Hughes Tool Co. declares dividend

HOUSTON — (SWN) — The Board of Directors of Hughes Tool Co. declared a regular quarterly dividend of $0.12 per share, payable May 27, 1986 to stockholders of record on May 6, 1986.

TEXAS GAS PRODUCTION

.93%

Gas production falls

AUSTIN — The Texas Railroad Commission reports that Texas oil and gas wells produced 519,655,677 Mcf of gas in January, 1986, down 0.93 percent from January, 1985. In December 1985, gas production totaled 531,589,170 Mcf.

In 1985, Texas wells produced 5,805,098,031 Mcf of gas.

Marketed gas production in January totaled 431,146,829 Mcf and reflected a 1.97 percent decrease from the January 1985 volume. In December 1985, the state produced 440,047,907 Mcf of gas in this category.

Marketed production is the gas left after liquid hydrocarbons have been separated on the lease from the "wet" gas that is usually produced at the wellhead. It also does not include gas that is reinjected into the producing reservoir to maintain pressure, gas that is used to fuel production-related equipment on the lease site, or gas that is otherwise not marketed.

Exports of Texas-produced gas in January totaled 211,535,817 Mcf and reflected a 7.3 percent increase from January 1985.

Grace Drilling to merge with Houston firm

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Grace Drilling Co. has agreed in principle to merge with Brinkerhoff-Signal Inc., a Houston-based contract drilling firm, company officials say.

Grace Drilling, based in Oklahoma City, is a wholly owned subsidiary of W.R. Grace & Co., an industrial conglomerate with headquarters in New York.

The companies say the form and terms of the negotiations are under negotiation. The terms must be approved by the boards of directors, Texas Eastern Corp., and Grace.

Texas Eastern is the parent company of Brinkerhoff-Signal.

Grace Drilling has 828 employees, down from about 2,300 four years ago. Brinkerhoff-Signal has about 450 employees.

Grace Drilling has 124 rigs and Brinkerhoff-Signal has 43. Grace said 42 of its rigs are active. Brinkerhoff-Signal said it considered information about the number of active wells proprietary.

Grace has active wells in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas, Lousiana and the northern Rocky Mountains region. Brinkerhoff-Signal's rigs are mainly in the southern Rockies, California and Alaska.

Transco participates in Louisiana gas discovery

HOUSTON (SWN)–Texoil Co., Inc. has discovered natural gas on Main Pass Block 4, about four miles off St. Bernard Parish, Lousiana. Transco Exploration Partners, Ltd. (TXP) holds a 39.25 percent working interest in the discovery. The discovery well was drilled in 10 feet of water to a depth of 11,350 feet. During production tests, the well flowed 3.8 million cubic feet per day (MMcf/d) from perforations between 10,269 and 10,294 feet on a 13/64-inch choke at a flowing tubing pressure of 3,310 pounds per square inch (psi). In a separate test, the well flowed 3.0 MMcf/d of gas and 22 barrels per day of 41.4 API gravity oil from perforations between 10,156 and 10,164 feet on a 12/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 3,270 psi. The operator and its partners are presently considering various development and production plans for the 1,090-acre lease block.

Texoil is the operator of the well and, together with its related parties, owns a 16.63 percent working interest. Other partners and working interests include: Tangent Oil & Gas Properties, Inc., 16 percent, Grace Petroleum Corp., 15 percent, Montour Production Co., 9.38 percent and States Petroleum, Inc., 3.74 percent.

Price stability predicted by Georgetown expert

NEW ORLEANS (SWN) Oil prices will stabilize between $15 and $18 a barrel for the next five years before returning to $27 to $28 a barrel in the early 1990s.

This was the prediction of a world energy expert at the 14th Annual Energy Conference held by Howard, Weil, Labouisse, Friedrichs Inc., New Orleans-based securities and investment firm.

Charles Ebinger of Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International studies told institutional investors and money managers of the power struggle between Saudi Arabia and Iran over the price of OPEC oil.

"The Saudis would like to keep the cost of oil low, probably settling for the $15 to $16 level, believing this price would recapture their markets and slow new, high-cost production," he said.

"Iran is sending messages that the Saudis will not get away with forcing down prices," he added. "An outside possibility is that to achieve this Iran could strike at the Saudis militarily or at areas like Kuwait." Declining U.S. influence in the Middle East weakens the Saudis position, he said.

Likely outcome is that the OPEC nations will reach an agreement in the $15-$18 range, he predicted, although in coming months prices could dip below $10.

The grim prospect for the U.S. industry is that domestic oil and gas production will fall "quite dramatically and have to be offset by a doubling of imports from 5 to 10 million barrels a day in the next 7 to 10 years," Ebinger said.

He sees "no possibility of an import tax in an election year. Low energy prices have been a boon to the rest of the U.S., although the petroleum industry has been devastated."

Ebinger said that an increase in demand for OPEC oil to the neighborhood of 20 million barrels a day would bring on a rising price curve.

Approximately 45 leaders of production and service companies joined several world experts in presenting their views to investors at the Howard Weil Conference.

Big Three releases first quarter earnings

HOUSTON (SWN) Big Three Industries released unaudited consolidated net sales and earnings for the first quarter of 1986. Sales for the quarter of $203.6 million increased 3.8 percent over 1985 while net income of $13.9 million was up 21.3 percent. Earnings per share for the quarter was 38 cents, up 26.7 percent over the 1985 figure.

First quarter operating profits for the company's Industrial Gas Group increased over the 1985 first and fourth quarters. The company's Energy Related Group also reported an increase in operating profits from the first quarter of 1985. However, 1986 first quarter profits for the Energy Related Group were below the fourth quarter of 1985 due to the recent worldwide downturn in the price of oil, which began in January.

"Management is particularly pleased with the continued strength shown by the Industrial Gas Group," said Harry K. Smith, Big Three's chairman. "It also is noteworthy to recognize the overall profitability of the Energy Related Group in light of the dramatic decrease in domestic oilfield activity during the quarter," he said.

"Management expects to feel the full impact of this development in the second quarter which is traditionally the firm's weakest quarter, due to the road ban restrictions enforced in Canada and certain areas of the United States," Smith said. "Accordingly, operating costs of the Energy Related Group continue to be cut to match the reduced drilling activity."

Under the company's repurchase program begun in 1984, six million shares of capital stock have been purchased of the 10 million shares authorized for repurchase. Of that amount, 631,500 shares were purchased in the first quarter.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Certificates not issued for book entry form stocks

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Last fall, I purchased a "book entry" municipal bond from a brokerage house. As I understand this arrangement, the brokerage firm has the bond in its name and collects the semi-annual interest. The brokerage then sends me its check for the interest.

I am unhappy with this mechanism for several reasons.

Is there any way I can have the bond registered in my name and a certificate delivered to me?

A. You can't obtain a certificate, if that particular bond issue comes only in book entry form. Book entry means that records of ownership are kept on a computer and individual certificates are not issued.

Doyle

Assuming that's the case, the entire bond issue is being held for safekeeping — most likely in a vault at Depository Trust Company in New York City. Your brokerage firm's account there records your bond and bonds that firm has in "street name" for other customers.

This arrangement eliminates the transfer of bond certificates and a great deal of other paperwork. It saves bond issuers, brokerage firms and banks time, trouble and money. As a result, more and more new bond issues are coming only in book entry form.

You can eliminate the brokerage firm as middleman and have the book entry account directly in your name. Just order the brokerage to make that change. Then, the interest checks will come directly to you from the bond's interest paying agent.

I suspect delays in receiving interest are your main gripe. This column is on the receiving end of a constant flow of letters from investors who are hopping mad at brokers for just that reason.

If your bond is available in both book entry form and registered form, you can obtain a certificate registered in your name. Ask the broker if a registered bond for that particular issue is available.

• • •

Q. How does one redeem a municipal bond before its maturity? Or, is that impossible?

A. It's possible in certain circumstances.

If the issuer of the bond calls it for early redemption, the bond is paid off at the "call price" at or above face value.

Some municipal bonds have "put features" giving their owners the right to present the bonds to the issuers before maturity and be paid off at face value.

Calls are determined by bond issuers; puts by bond owners. Call provisions and put features are set at the time bonds are issued. If you have a bond certificate, the details are printed on the back. If you don't have the certificate, check with your broker or banker.

• • •

Q. I have several "bearer" municipal bonds paying high interest. I'm concerned that the issuers might call these and I won't find out until I attempt to cash the interest coupons. I recently lost six months interest in a similar situation, because I did not know a bond had been called.

Are there any publications that provide lists of bonds scheduled to be called for early redemption?

A. Yes. The best known is the "Called Bond Record," published by Standard & Poor's Corp. That thick manual is updated twice a week. You'll find it in the reference sections of big public libraries, at virtually all brokerage offices and at some banks.

• • •

Q. If stock prices fall way down, will bond prices drop by a similar amount and should I then think about selling my municipal bonds? Or, can I more or less hang on to my "munis" and forget the ups and downs of the market?

A. Bond prices move in the opposite direction of interest rates. In the unlikely event interest rates shoot up, the market prices of your bonds will tumble. I don't believe that will happen in the near future. But, if you're an in-and-out trader, you should be ready to unload your municipals.

However, if you're a long-term investor and are happy with the tax-free interest your municipals pay, relax and forget the market's gyrations.

Top marketing executives say 'imagery sells'

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Manufacturers who view image-building as a luxury their advertising budgets cannot afford ought to take another look, several top marketing executives say. They argue that imagery sells.

"The facts are never enough," adman Jim Morrissey told about 200 advertising executives assembled here for a recent conference sponsored by the American Marketing Association's New York chapter.

Morrissey, a vice president and group creative director at Grey Advertising Inc., said imagery makes advertising more appealing and effective.

He illustrated his point by showing two commercials for a new watch.

In the first commercial, a man holds up his arm to show he is wearing one of the new watches, looks directly at the camera and describes it.

In the second ad, deep-sea divers sweep away silt and debris to reveal a huge replica of the new watch, silently marking time at the bottom of an unidentified sea.

Morrissey said the first ad failed to "elevate" the new watch to its proper place in the market, while the second used imagery to involve the audience as good filmmakers do in adventure-packed movies.

Timex Corp. of Waterbury, Conn., spent $2.2 million to produce and air the second commercial on the Super Bowl football telecast in January, Morrissey said. Grey Advertising is its agency.

Since the ad appeared, Morrissey said sales of the new Atlantis 100 watch have exceeded the company's introductory forecast by 25 percent.

He said the commercial shows that an image-driven marketing approach will leave a lasting impression with viewers. "Imagery lives on," he said.

of intangible drilling costs could probably be passed to provide immediate relief," he explained.

Scoggins said the President was now more aware of the gravity of the situation in the oil industry and would probably support additional remedial energy legislation, in addition to the repeal of the Windfall Profits Tax, but it would have to take place outside tax reform legislation.

"Tax reform is not dead," he emphasized. "Don't believe what you read in the media. Bob Dole and Bob Packwood are determined not to go down in history as the guys who couldn't get the president's prized legislation passed — especially after Dan Rostenkowski and Tip O'Neill were able to get a tax bill out of the House." He said that during the process of getting a tax reform bill out of the Senate, all tax reform proposals would be back on the bargaining table, and would require careful attention on the part of the oil industry.

Scoggins said the proposal for a minimum tax has the strongest support in Congress, and warned that it might make passive investors (non-operators) of a well, subject to a minimum tax.

The oil industry spokesman said other measures being considered to help the industry weather the time until oil prices return to more normal levels are: a nationwide uniform plugging rule to extend the plugging of shut-in wells to one year; a consensus among producers and lease owners to overcome contractual problems when wells are shut-in; decontrol of natural gas, and a 15 percent tax credit on marginal wells.

"Even if the states and the federal government adopt plugging rules similar to those of the Texas Railroad Commission, which gives operators one year to plug a well, after it has been shut-in, it does no good if the leaseowner insists that the lease revert to him after production has ceased for 60 days," said Scoggins. As for decontrol of natural gas, he sees little possibility of that happening this year, because too many in Congress still bear wounds from the last go-around over decontrol. On the transportation of natural gas, an issue which has split the industry, Scoggins says the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission would have to handle that question on its own, because Congress wanted no part of it.

The Muskogee, Oklahoma native equated Congress to a large ship at sea. "It is hard to slow down and turn around. It is still not turning around on energy, but I think it is beginning to slow down and get ready to turn."

committee that has to say no and nobody wants to say no."

Lewis said that during the times of unprecedented boom the state built one of the finest systems of higher education in the U.S. "The University of Texas system was among the top ten in the nation, but we were in an educational crisis."

He said that Texas lost its favored status as the most attractive state in the nation for industry because its public school system, which was ranked 47th in the nation, was perceived as inadequate, and because the state was perceived as a flat, dry place with no water.

"Even though we had all the tax advantages over many northern and eastern states, such as no personal income tax, it was not enough to overcome the negative image of our educational system, and we began to lose industry," said Lewis, who insisted that some of the criticism of the educational reform in the state was unjust and that the media had dwelled on the negatives of the plan.

He added that Governor Mark White's educational reform in the state had helped to overcome the educational crisis in the state, and that Tom Craddick's state water plan had helped the state overcome its negative image as a flat waterless place.

Lewis concluded that while times are hard for the Texas oil industry now, the can-do spirit of Texans will see them through the hard times.

Durables down 2.5 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders to U.S. factories for "big ticket" durable goods fell 2.5 percent in March, the biggest decline in a year, the government reported Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said orders for durable goods, products expected to last three or more years, fell $2.7 billion in March to $105.1 billion following a 0.6 percent February decline.

Without a big surge in demand for military equipment, durable-goods orders would have fallen last month at the steepest rate since the last recession.

"This report suggests that American businesses are still slugging it out with foreign manufacturers," said Robert Wescott, an economist at Wharton Econometrics. "The goal for a lot of the companies is just to stay in business."

Michael Evans, head of a Washington-based economic forecasting firm bearing his name, blamed much of the March decline on the slump in exploration activity in the petroleum industry because of falling oil prices.

"Those declines are overwhelming modest strength elsewhere in the economy," he said.

Robert Ortner, chief economist at the Commerce Department, said it was encouraging that orders for furniture and lumber were up last month, reflecting strength in housing construction. But he said overall, the orders figures were disappointing.

"The trend before March had seemed to show strengthening. I hope this will prove to be a one-month blip," he said.

Ortner said the Reagan administration's forecast of 4 percent growth was still attainable because economic activity, including factory production, should pick up in the second half of the year.

The 2.5 percent decline in orders in March was the largest since a 2.9 percent drop in March 1985. Without the big rise in defense, total orders would have fallen 5.7 percent, the biggest setback since a 6.2 percent drop in August 1982 when the country was mired in recession.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Lonestar Steel seeks restructuring approval

DALLAS (AP) — Lone Star Steel Co. will ask its stockholders to approve a corporate restructuring plan in the wake of another quarterly operations loss and declining revenues, officials said.

The firm that has already laid off half its staff reported an operating loss Monday of $21.7 million, compared to a loss of $20.1 million in the first quarter of 1985, said William Howard Beasley III, chairman and chief executive officer.

At Lone Star's May 14 annual meeting, stockholders will be asked to vote on a restructuring of the company — including the formation of a new holding company, Lone Star Technologies Inc., Beasley said.

Longshoremen vote to cut pay $3 per hour

HOUSTON (AP) — Longshoremen in Houston, Galveston and Beaumont have voted to cut their salaries by $3 per hour over the next three years and to reduce some benefits.

International Longshoremen's Association members in the three cities gave up $3 of their $17-per-hour base pay, four holidays and — for those who qualify — a guaranteed annual income subsidy during work shortages.

While base pay for general cargo will now be $14 an hour, the contract drops base pay to $12 an hour for bulk cargoes such as grain.

Nuclear plant ends fight against feds fine

DALLAS (AP) — The principal owners of the Comanche Peak nuclear plant ended a two-year fight by agreeing to pay a $40,000 fine in connection with alleged intimidation of quality control inspectors.

In a letter to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff, the Texas Utilities Electric Co. said it still believed that "reasonable arguments" could be made that no violation occurred, but the letter said the utility realized the supervisor had acted inappropriately.

The fine, which was paid Thursday, was assessed in 1983 as a result of an incident in which a plant supervisor threatened to revoke the licenses of a number of inspectors if inspection errors continued to be made.

The commission found that the statements were intimidating to an inspector.

GOP gubernatorial candidates agree on key issues

Ron Jaap/Reporter-Telegram

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

It took the better part of an hour, but the three Republican candidates for governor finally found something to disagree about Wednesday at a forum sponsored by the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

"The polls clearly show that I am the person who can beat Mark White," said former Gov. Bill Clements, who constrasted his experience as a governor and a businessman with that of his younger opponents.

But former U.S. Rep. Kent Hance said he resented Clements' "condescending attitude that we young pups have the audacity to run."

"That's why you lost in 1982," Hance told Clements. "You can't just treat everybody like that."

Clements attributed Hance's remarks to "his frustration at being where he is in the polls."

"The key issue (for the May 3 primary) is winnability," said U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler. "I have never lost an election."

"Bill ran and lost" to White in 1982), and Hance lost the Democratic senatorial primary to Lloyd Doggett in 1984 before switching to the GOP, Loeffler noted.

"If he lost as a Democrat, can he win as a Republican?" asked Loeffler, who represents Midland as part of his 21st Congressional District.

Hance agreed with Loeffler's evaluation of Clements' chances, but questioned the congressman's ability to win a statewide race.

"He's a nice guy, but nobody knows him outside of Midland, San Antonio and San Angelo," Hance said afterward.

But for most of the 90-minute forum at the Midland Center, the candidates could find nothing more significant to differ on than what exact percentage of U.S. oil consumption comes from imports.

The questions read by moderator Mike Barker of KMID-TV from cards filled out by the audience of several hundred were all softball pitches, and the three candidates took turns hitting them out of the park.

One question asked what the candidates thought of a recent statement by a Reagan adminstration official that low oil prices were good for the country. Not surprisingly, they didn't think much of it.

"We need to have an adequate and responsible price," Loeffler said, while Clements called for a national energy policy and Hance emphasized the importance for national security of a strong domestic energy industry.

All three called for an oil-import fee; all favored retaining current tax provisions regarding intangible drilling costs and the oil-depletion allowance; all want to repeal the windfall-profits tax and deregulate natural-gas prices.

All three said a lack of leadership by Gov. Mark White was exacerbating current problems with the state's energy-based economy.

All three favored the idea of education reform, but all three thought the six-week "no pass, no play" penalty should be reduced to three weeks.

All three would build more prisons, and Hance said his government would "stand up to Judge William Wayne Justice" and try to appeal the federal judge's rulings regarding prison reform.

Clements and Loeffler called for a special session of the Legislature to deal with the prison situation and other problems.

Secretaries rate job's stress factors

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

While many employers may be taking their secretaries out for lunch in honor of National Secretary's Week, they may be better off just giving him or her the day off.

According to a recent survey conducted by Professional Secretaries International in conjunction with Panasonic (Electronic Typewriter Division), deciding which bosses' requests are top priority (for those with more than one boss) is just one a number of stress-causing factors among the nation's secretaries.

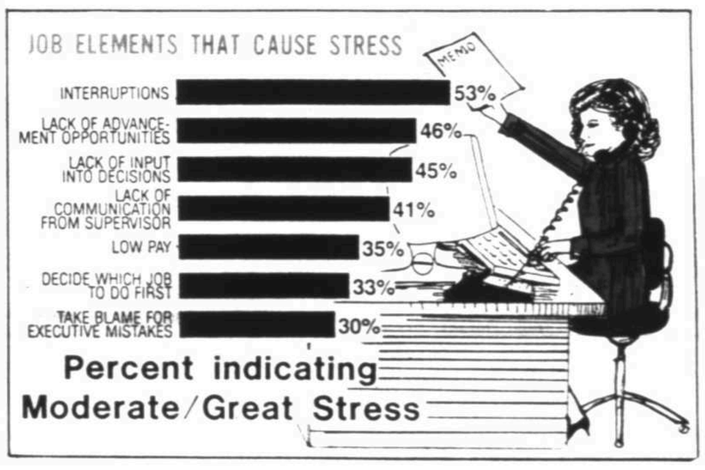

The firms polled 4,000 PSI members nationwide last year on 18 questions divided into five areas of emphasis: demographic indentification, stress-producing activities, stress-producing job characteristics (or environmental conditions that can't be defined as specific functions, such as professional relationships), equipment-related stress and stress awareness.

The results were released locally by Graphic Business Systems.

A local secretaries' organization leader believes there is a great deal of stress in the field.

"More is expected of the secretary than 20 years ago," said Lucille Boase, president of Certified Professional Secretaries. "They need to know more about the economy and merchandising and just be generally more aware of what's going on in the business world."

According to the survey, interruptions accounted for the largest percentage (53 percent) of stress related to job characteristics, with lack of advancement opportunities (46 percent), lack of input into decisions (45 percent), lack of communication from supervisor (41 percent), low pay (35 percent), deciding which job to do first (33 percent) and taking blame for executive mistakes (30 percent) following.

Suzan Conder Reporter-Telegram

Answering the telephone was the leading job activity that caused stress, according to the survey results (29 percent). Others included: redoing work (25 percent), coordinating activities (22 percent), doing research (21 percent), supervising workers, projects (21 percent), screening/referring calls (19 percent) and composing correspondence (19 percent).

Other areas addressed in the survey included the stress levels of working for two or more executives. Twenty-seven percent of respondents indicated there was moderate to great stress associated with such a working environment while only 13 percent thought there was the same amount of stress when there was just one employer.

The survey showed also that while secretaries were "enthused or welcomed new and better office equipment," for the most part, they didn't believe it would improve the working environment.

The poll also indicated that the peak stress days for secretaries is Monday and Friday (56 percent and 55 percent, respectively). Thursday was the third most stressful day (30 percent). Tuesday next at 25 percent with Wednesday labeled the calmest day (25 percent).

Peak hours for stress is between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. and between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. (42 percent). The morning hours, from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. were the next most stressful (35 percent), followed by the mid-morning hours from 10 a.m. to noon (26 percent). The time span from noon to 2 p.m. were thought to be the least stressful part of the day.

The survey also polled the stress-producing capabilities of modern office equipment. Only 5 percent attributed moderate to great stress from using the typewriter. Other included the typewriter with memory (10 percent), word processor (22 percent) and the personal computer (29 pecent).

Overall, 67 percent of respondents believed that job-related stress has affected their health with 33 percent saying it did not.

According to the report, the results of stress among secretaries are most likely to include minor ailments such as headaches, eye-strain, muscle ache, loss of concentration, irritability, insomnia and constipation.

According to one local long-time secretary, who asked not to be named, the survey results are not far from the truth.

Suggestions varied on how to cut costs of local government

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

With less taxes collected in a depressed area, local government, like the private sector, must cut costs during economic downturns.

The city of Midland began to cut costs in January by implementing a partial hiring freeze.

On Tuesday a random sample of people were asked, "How would you cut city government costs in light of the Permian Basin's economic downturn?"

The suggestions varied from reducing staff and salaries to cutting services.

"They need to cut hiring. They have entirely too many people. You already see so many trucks driving around and I don't know where they are going," said Nancy Evans, who didn't want her address published. Ms. Evans works as a landman's secretary.

Independent oil man Joe Gieb Jr., 3208 Sinclair, said, "I think you're going to have to cut down on services if you don't have the funds to pay for them. It will be tough for awhile."

Don Phiffer, 322 Tanglewood, said "We're going to have less people in Midland, so less services will be provided probably. It would be nice to cut all the fat out of the budget, but we don't have much fat to cut." Phiffer is a postage meter salesman.

"I think they could be less diligent in parking tickets. They waste a lot of time on that. They could put those people to better use," said Marianne O'Rourke, of Odessa. Mrs. O'Rourke works for Southwestern Bell.

Terry Houston suggested reducing city pay scales. "In the past pay scales were cut. And when times got better they could increase pay. You can't cut back enough to kill people, but you can cut enough so people will survive while times are bad," said Houston, who works in oil field supply.

Greg McCabe, 1511 Pueblo, also suggested city pay cuts. "I'd like to see an across-the-board employee salary cut. But I don't want to see any jobs cut. Not yet, until it gets too far out of hand."

Evans

Gieb

O'Rourke

Houston

McCabe also said services should not be reduced.

"This early in the economic downturn, I don't think we ought to cut services," said McCabe, who is an independent geologist.

Barbara Jones, 1215 S. Dallas, said she'd rather see services cut before salaries and jobs.

"I wouldn't lay people off or cut salaries. So it'd have to be in some other area," said Jones, who is a computer operator.

R.L. Donohoe, of Andrews, said there are many areas in city government that can be reduced.

"There's a lot of things we're spending money for that really don't need to be done. Too much money is spent for political purposes to forward some individual or group," said Donohoe, who is retired from Exxon.

Some people said city government does not need to make any further cuts.

'Hands' gets 'good' response from West Texas

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

The sparse population of West Texas has caused some concern among Hands Across America organizers, but the response from the Panhandle has been tremendous, says a spokeswoman for Texas Hands Across America.

"A lot of the people in the big towns seem to be concerned about West Texas, but we're getting a good response from West Texas," said Carol Edgar in the Dallas Hands Across America office.

The town of Vega, about 34 miles west of Amarillo, has talked about bringing 300 people or one-third of its 900 residents to the line, Ms. Edgar said.

Nationally the line will need about 6 million people to hold hands from New York City to Los Angeles. The numbers required for the Texas portion of the line has not been determined, but "hundreds of thousands" are needed, Ms. Edgar said.

However, some people who have pledged the $10 to $35 needed to reserve a place in the 4,000-mile line will be asked to travel to West Texas or further away from their homes, she said. Some residents of Oklahoma and Kansas have said they would stand in the Texas portion of the line, Ms. Edgar said.

A lot Oklahoma residents will be closer to the line than some Texans, she said.

A computer places people along the line after they send in registration forms indicating whether they are willing to travel or want to stay within a certain zip code. For registration forms call 1-800-USA-9000.

Texas, with 600 miles to fill has the largest portion of the nationwide line. Organizers are hoping to raise $50 million to combat hunger and to provide shelter for the homeless in America. Nationwide the organization has received about $18 million dollars as of Monday, Ms. Edgar said.

Other Texas cities far away from the route, such as San Antonio, are sending signed banners to be held along the line.

"We're hoping it's something people will say 'Hey, I was a part of this. It's an historic event that will probably never happen again so that makes it special," Ms. Edgar said.

The Texas route runs roughly through Texarkana on Interstate 30 to Dallas on Interstate 80 to Amarillo on State Highway 287 and on to New Mexico on Interstate 40.

To reserve a place in line and receive a certificate the cost is $10. Another $10 buys a Hands Across America T-shirt and $35 buys a T-shirt and visor.

People will hold hands for about 15 minutes during the linkup at 2 p.m. May 25.

Why do candidates parade themselves before voters?

Once again, elections are nearing. And, again, I'm expecting no miracles.

Rarely has the election of a promising soul changed the course of events — often a precarious course. Exceptions are stellar. We all can recall our favorite presidents, known for the blessing of their silence and caution; the blessing of their plain-spokenness; or for the blessing of their visions, eloquence and dynamics. From time to time, they served the people and the nation well.

Now, the perennial question is this: Who serves best?

It's hard to tell.

And it's mostly speculation just why anyone runs for political office. There are options. Does a candidate parade before the voters for:

— Bolstering his ego?
— Serving humanity?
— Collecting the pay and benefits?
— Setting up a power base?
— Entertaining his penchant for political chess?
— Checkers?
— Impressing his old classmates?
— Imparting his common-sense for the people's sake?
— Climbing up the old political ladder, which is riddled with unpredictable rungs?
— Acquiescing to the beseeching of his friends and neighbors?
— Satisfying an old childhood dream?
— Adding depth to his resume?
— Putting notches in his swagger stick of successes?
— Furthering his conclusion that none is better than he?
— Ridding boredom from his life?
— Entertaining self?
— Compelling urge to at last (or, at least) "do the job right?"
— Fulfilling a mission?
— Flattering his ego in his conviction that the privilege to vote is paramount and that the people will rush to the polls to elect their messiah?

Who knows?

Who cares?

The percentage of voter turnout in the past has indicated that the vast majority of voters may not give "a hoot" about who is elected to what or what issues pass and which fail. Occasionally, though, such as in a presidential election, the voters pretty well swarm to the polls and vent their emotionalism, sometimes their intuitiveness, and possibly, their well-considered vote.

Ideally, I suppose, each voter would consider that his vote is the most important and would help affect the election of the best candidate. Such a burden and responsibility virtually would ensure that the voter would do his dead-level best to select the best person for the job and the best person for serving the welfare of the people whose trust the candidate seeks.

And if the candidate accepts the burden and privilege of trust, then surely the candidate, too, would do his dead-level best to serve well and to make the optimum decisions.

I don't know.

I do know, however, that I have been sadly disappointed when the candidate I was convinced was the ideal public servant/statesman lost a nomination or an election. I recall being almost at tears when an eloquent presidential candidate whom I much admired failed to win the voters' confidence. My heart cried when he lost and when he died, for I was convinced he would have wrought so much good to the nation and to the world and would have returned statesmanship to politics.

Odessan jailed in police assault

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 30-year-old man remained in the Ector County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond today on two charges alleging he tried to run over two police officers Monday night.

Jesse J. Fimbres, 222 N. Dixie, Apt. 125, was arrested about 2 p.m. Wednesday on two charges of aggravated assault on a police officer.

The incident occurred Monday night when patrol officers C.L. Rowntree and Mike Bostic responded to a domestic disturbance call at the Courtyard Apartments, 222 N. Dixie Blvd., about 8 p.m. Police reports indicate witnesses directed officers to the west side of the apartment complex, where the officers found a man believed involved in the domestic disturbance attempting to leave the premises.

According to police spokesman John McAhon, the man spotted the officers, put his vehicle in reverse and accelerated toward them before leaving the complex parking lot and heading west on East 3rd Street.

Fimbres was arraigned on the aggravated assault charges before Municipal Judge J.E. Weatherly, who set bond at $5,000 on each charge. Fimbres was transferred to the county jail about 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Mattox: Teachers can leave school during lunch

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Attorney General Jim Mattox Wednesday offered good news to teachers and the Texas treasury and a mixed message to state employees.

In three separate official opinions, Mattox ruled that teachers may take their 30-minute lunch periods wherever they wish, that the treasury may levy corporate franchise taxes on oil trades and that state employees who work more than 40 hours in any week may take time off at the rate of 1½ hours for every extra hour they work.

"We're delighted," said June Karp, assistant to the president of the Texas Federation of Teachers, when she learned that Mattox clarified the teachers-lunch situation.

Ms. Karp said teachers across the state had complained that their principals were forcing them to spend their half-hour, duty-free lunch periods in the cafeterias with their students. Teachers in Houston, she said, questioned a school district policy that prohibited them from leaving the school campuses at lunch time.

Mattox ruled that both practices undermine the 1985 law that granted teachers the duty-free lunch. "An obligation to stay on school property would itself be a 'duty,' and any reason a school could give for making such a requirement would necessarily be 'connected with' the instruction and supervision of students," Mattox wrote.

Ms. Karp said her office would distribute copies of the ruling. "Teachers are now going to know their rights."

Tony Proffitt, spokesman for Comptroller Bob Bullock, said Mattox' decision on oil trades will mean "millions of dollars" in extra income for the state each year.

Petroleum companies use two different methods to trade oil. In the past, Bullock had taxed the assets associated with one type of trade but not the other. In a Feb. 6 letter to Mattox, the comptroller said some oil companies have argued that since one method did not fall under the franchise tax, neither should the other.

Mattox Wednesday ruled that the two methods of trading oil "contemplate essentially the same transaction" and deserve equal treatment. Because Bullock had properly collected taxes on the first type, Mattox wrote, the tax also applies to the second.

The attorney general resolved two disputes over how a new federal law affects state employees who work overtime. First, Mattox ruled that a complicated state law governing overtime means that those employees may take off time-and-a-half — not straight time — for the extra hours.

But that same complicated law, he said, means the state may grant the "comp time" at any time "during the 12-month period following the end of the work week" and not during the same pay period when the employee worked the extra hours.

Wakie Martin, legislative coordinator for the Texas State Employees Union, welcomed the time-and-a-half and 12-month rulings. But Martin said state law may place limits on comp time that conflict with U.S. Department of Labor standards. Those standards — expected soon — may permit employees to accumulate hours "until they retire," he said.

Midland Marine officer honored by Army

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Wilson

The U.S. Army honored a Marine recently when Major John F. Wilson of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves was presented the Army Commendation Medal by U.S. Army Reserve Col. Jack Swan of Midland.

Swan, who is deputy commander of the 4266th Logistics Command in Midland, presented the medal on behalf of Secretary of the Army John O. Marsh Jr. and U.S. Army Gen. Robert W. Sennewald, commander of the U.S. Army Forces Command.

Wilson was cited for "meritorious service" from Sept. 30, 1982, to Oct. 30, 1985, when he served as Logistics Command supply officer and instructor for the 4266th Logistics Command in Midland. All the while, he was assigned to the Marine Corps Reserve Support Center at Overland Park, Kan. "They loaned me out to the Army here," Wilson said. "I enjoyed the relationship. They're a fine group, and I'm a fine instructor." In addition, he is assigned as a student with the Army's Command and General Staff College. A resident branch of the college is at the U.S. Armed Forces Reserve Center at Midland Regional Airport.

"Major Wilson demonstrated initiative, enthusiasm, professional ability, keen foresight, and significantly increased the unit's readiness and efficiency," the commendation award stated. Wilson's loyalty and devotion to duty "are in keeping with the proudest traditions of the United States Marine Corps."

Swan presented the medal to Wilson in the absence of U.S. Army Reserve Col. Tom Dollahite, commander of the 4266th Logistics Command, which is based at Midland Regional Airport. Dollahite nominated Wilson for the commendation medal. "The fact that it is the Army giving it (the commendation medal) to a Marine makes it unique and very unusual," said Swan.

Lt. Col. Martin Meissner, former commander of the 4266th, said Wilson's military role here served in "contributing to the national defense" and to his continuing education and promotion.

"It means a great deal," Wilson said of the medal. "The Army was thoughtful enough to recognize a lot of hard work and self-sacrifice. It's much appreciated and gratefully received," he said. "I'm very grateful to the Army."

Wilson, 41, is a Vietnam War combat veteran who served with the Second Battalion, Third Marines in 1966 and 1967. "We were the worst-bled unit in the war," he said. "We were known as the 'widow-makers.'"

He was an active Marine from 1966 through 1970.

Wilson was a "mud Marine" — a rifleman — when he received a battlefield appointment to Officer Candidate School (OCS). After his commission, he served as an artillery officer. He is a member of the Marine Corps League, the Marine Corps Reserve Officers Association and the Reserve Officers Association.

In his civilian role, Wilson is a financial consultant with the Merrill Lynch stock brokerage house.

STRESS

"Learning high-tech equipment like these word processors is hard for some," she said. "Often they only get one day of training."

Other areas the 23-veteran said were stress-producing included filing, low wages and getting blamed for executive mistakes.

"I worked at a bank when I first came to town," said the secretary, recalling one stressful incident. "Money had been wired into the bank and one of the secretaries had taken care of all of the paperwork properly. The money wound up being lost, however, and the secretary got the blame. Some bosses just like to put the monkey on the other back."

Officials say computer will be ready for election

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Ector County officials believe the county's computer system, which sustained heavy smoke damage Sunday when a fire broke out in the building housing the data processing center, the Extension Service and Veteran's Services offices, will be ready to handle local runoff election returns Saturday night.

According to county fiscal services director Tom Pace, workers have managed to remove most of the heavy, gummy smoke residue from the computer equipment. During a special meeting of Commissioners Court Tuesday, Pace said the computer system was functioning and he anticipated no problems in tabulating election results.

However, Ector County District Court Clerk Jackie Barnes said operations in the child support division of her office are at a virtual standstill because clerks have been unable to process checks for child support payments since they can't get access to records stored in the county's computer system.

Commissioners Court members Tuesday voted to move the data processing center, county extension and veteran's service offices out of the building, located at 100 W. 3rd St., until the building can be repaired or other arrangements made for permanent quarters.

The data processing center and veteran's service office will be moved to the basement of the courthouse and the extension service office will move to the third floor of the Ector County Library temporarily.

The fire, believed to have started by an electrical short in a storage room at the rear of the extension service offices, destroyed audio-visual equipment, some files and publications and office supplies. The office of County Home Economist Dee Money was also heavily damaged by the fire that broke out about 1:20 a.m. Sunday.

Data Processing Manager Joe Franell said he doesn't believe county records stored in the building were damaged by the fire, but it will be some time before he knows for sure if any data was lost.

County records stored in the computer include: voter registration information, payroll, accounts receivable-payable, county tax rolls, vehicle inventory and maintenance records. Aside from being stored in the Data Processing Center, duplicate copies of the computer tapes are also kept in the County Purchasing Office at 106 E. 3rd St.

According to Gerald Dunlap, county building maintenance director, relocating the Data Processing Center in the courthouse basement will take about two months. He estimated cost of electrical and structural changes that will have to be made in the area previously occupied by the Ector County Law Library at a minimum of $25,000.

Pace said the building and contents, as well as the computer system, are covered by insurance but he won't know for some time what the actual dollar loss was and how much the insurance will cover.

Loeffler and Hance opposed a state lottery.

"You're not going to raise that much money," Hance said, while Loeffler claimed a lottery would take money from those who need it most.

"It's primarily a regressive tax," agreed Clements, but the former governor would leave the decision on a lottery to a statewide referendum.

Hance emphasized the problem of illegal immigration from Mexico and Central America. He urged changing the law to allow local law-enforcement officers to arrest illegal aliens, and proposed "a combination of employer sanctions and a guest-worker program" to alleviate the problem.

All three candidates opposed amnesty for illegal aliens already in the country.

Loeffler disagreed with the idea of employer sanctions, and said the problem could not be solved unilaterily by U.S. policy-makers.

"I believe that the solution lies in American business ultimately to be able to invest in Mexico" with confidence about the security of their holdings, Loeffler said.

"The solution lies in economic growth in Mexico," he said.

Loeffler mentioned water as a critical area for the state, and said Texas should be "a model for other states" in dealing with water shortages.

Hance and Loeffler said the next governor should try to help diversify the state's economy by actively competing for new businesses with other states and foreign countries.

"Texas has good business advantages. We need a governor who's going to promote that," Loeffler said.

"We have not been aggressive in bringing new businesses into this state," Hance said. Unless the state's economy is diversified, "We're going to be in real trouble in the next 30 or 40 years."

"I don't think they need to cut back on anything. There's enough people out of work already," said Bill Vallie, 600 W. Storey. Vallie is a licensed mortician.

Nancy Winkler, 2310 Holloway, said "I feel like our city and our city management is doing a very good job.

"The city is doing the best that they can do considering the circumstances. Not much can be done except to bring in an industry, and an industry is not going to come where's there's no water," said Mrs. Winkler, a private sitter.

Man who owned wolf found guilty

From Staff Reports

After 4½ hours of deliberation a six-person jury found a Midland man guilty Wednesday of having an animal at large.

The jury in Judge James Brazell's municipal court recommended that Mike Nickell, 4618 Cherokee Drive, be fined $10 for court costs and a $10 fine, said David Clyde, assistant city attorney. The city was seeking a maximum fine of $200 from Nickell for an October incident in which his cross-breed wolf bit 18-month-old April Lamb.

Clyde said he was satisfied with the conviction because, "It will put people on notice that if their animal runs at large and bites somebody, the city will not sit still. We'll prosecute."

The conviction gives the city a "tool" to discourage people from allowing their animals to run loose and possibly prevent some dog bites and attacks that have occurred in the past, Clyde said.

Nickell's Odessa attorney Cliff Hardwick said today he did not know if he would appeal the conviction. Hardwick has 10 days to file an appeal.

On April 14 Hardwick asked Brazell to find that Nickell's right to a speedy trial had been violated. Brazell ruled last Friday that Nickell had not been denied a speedy trial.

Wednesday's conviction may violate Nickell's five-year probation for a 1983 felony conviction, Clyde said. In 1983 Nickell was found guilty of shooting endangered wildlife — a Barbado sheep — from a helicopter.

Thatcher's son asked to move in reaction to threats after raid

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The son of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has been asked to leave his Dallas apartment in a reaction to threats following the U.S. bombing of Libya, the Corpus Christi Caller reported today.

Mark Thatcher, 32, had been ordered to leave his stylish downtown apartment complex by Friday but has been permitted to remain until his lease expires May 31, the newspaper said, citing an unidentified "government authority."

According to the Caller, State Department Deputy Spokesman Charles Redman confirmed that Thatcher was being protected by Dallas law enforcement officials and U.S. diplomatic security.

Thatcher, whose mother was the only western European leader to openly support the U.S. raid, was asked to move out after State Department security officials requested the apartment management's permission to add closed-circuit television mini-cameras to the television surveillance system at the complex, the newspaper said.

The operators of the apartment, Inter-City Investments, responded by asking Thatcher to move, it reported. The company would make no public comment, however. "I have nothing to say to you, goodbye," company spokesman Edwin B. Jordan said when contacted by telephone Wednesday night.

Asked whether Thatcher had been asked to leave, apartment manager C.J. Vannoy said he would not "confirm or deny that," the Caller reported.

Thatcher, a former race driver who has worked in Dallas as a British motorcar representative, could not be reached for comment despite telephone calls to his office and residence, the newspaper said.

U.S. warplanes attacked what the State Department said were military installations on the Libyan mainland April 14.

Following threats of reprisals and speculation that President Reagan's family may be in danger, security was stepped up in Washington and at U.S. facilities throughout the world. Mrs. Thatcher insisted that U.S. government bodyguards be assigned to her son, U.S. Rep. Mac Sweeney, R-Wharton, told the Caller Wednesday night.

No specific information could be immediately learned about the life threats against Thatcher, which sources said were no more than two, the newspaper said.

Thatcher's neighbors in the downtown area apartment complex said they were unaware he had been asked to leave.

"I think that's too bad. I think that's real sad. I can see why the tenants would be distraught over it," said Mrs. John A. Erhard, a retiree.

"I don't know how that could be a threat to us," said another neighbor woman, who asked not to be named. "I don't know anything about it, but I don't think we have any Libyans in the apartments."

STATE IN BRIEF

Nolan County to get aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan approved federal disaster assistance for Nolan County, hard-hit by a tornado that killed an elderly man, injured 92 people and left as many as 1,500 residents homeless.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency was directed on Wednesday to provide eligible storm victims with temporary housing and grants from the president's disaster relief fund.

FEMA officials also will coordinate other federal assistance, such as loans from the Small Business Administration and the Farmers Home Administration.

Balanced Rock dynamited

FREDERICKSBURG (AP) — Vandals who dynamited Balanced Rock on Bear Mountain near this Central Texas city have turned the tourist attraction into just a rolling stone.

Balanced Rock, estimated to be 10 feet high and 12 feet in diameter, was blasted off its pedestal of smaller rock formations, said authorities. The rock was about four miles north of Fredericksburg off Farm-to-Market Road 965.

Sonny Grobe, a Gillespie County sheriff's deputy, said Wednesday that he had no suspects. He said the investigation is continuing.

Grobe said the explosion sent the boulder tumbling 10 to 15 feet down a slope, where it came to rest against another large rock.

Citizens were considering offering a reward for information leading to an arrest, said Joe Kammlah of the Fredericksburg Chamber of Commerce.

Texan crashes into cars

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A Texas man played his own version of bumper cars in the French Quarter, crashing into 10 to 15 vehicles as police chased him through the old, narrow streets, authorities say.

At one point, the car hit a pickup truck, which hit a tree, causing the tree to fall onto a porch. Stone was finally stopped when the car hit a fire hydrant on Bourbon Street, police said.

When the demolition derby ended Wednesday, police arrested Dave Arthur Stone, 26, of San Antonio.

Police officer Micheal Conn said Stone was visiting Ron Zealy, 34, at his apartment in the French Quarter. Stone reportedly told Zealy he was tired of living and broke several kerosene lamps on the floor of the apartment shortly after midnight. Stone then lit paper napkins, but Zealy extinguished them before the oil from the broken lamps could ignite. He then told Stone to leave.

Stone went to a car that belonged to his boss in San Antonio but when he saw officers Conn and Sean Rebennack, he fled in the car.

Departments not closing

ABILENE (AP) — For three years the number of students seeking admission to Abilene Christian University's geology department has dropped. Now the board of trustees is being asked to close the department.

"As of last week, we had not yet admitted a single geology major for the upcoming school year," said Cheryl Mann, assistant to university president Dr. William J. Teague.

However, Miss Mann denied reports that officials were recommending closure of the school's honors program for advanced students and a learning assistance center for students who need special tutoring.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Today is a good day for signing contracts or legal documents. Do not reveal details of a proposal until you have all the facts. Romance proves rewarding provided you are honest.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be certain you have all the available information before making an important decision. Your mate or partner is inclined to go along with your ideas. Romance intensifies.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Long-range career plans begin to look more promising. Friends come up with a solution to financial problems. Mix and mingle, and you will make some wonderful new acquaintances.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Short business trips begin to pay off. An extra effort spells the difference between success and failure. Special friendships could determine what you decide to do late this afternoon or evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Legal papers merit your personal attention today. Display your special abilities; influential people are impressed. They may recognize talents you never knew you had. Lighten your mood. Attend a concert or movie.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Speculative ventures are recommended only if they involve little financial risk. Share ideas with trusted friends. Artistic people receive special encouragement, perhaps an award or a check. Spend an evening with loved ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your home life appears more settled than in the recent past. If you are feeling tired or blue spend a quiet weekend. Your family is supportive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Extra demands may be made upon your time. Avoid making important moves until you consult your mate or partner. A letter or telephone call brings good news. Be attentive; loved ones are inspired.

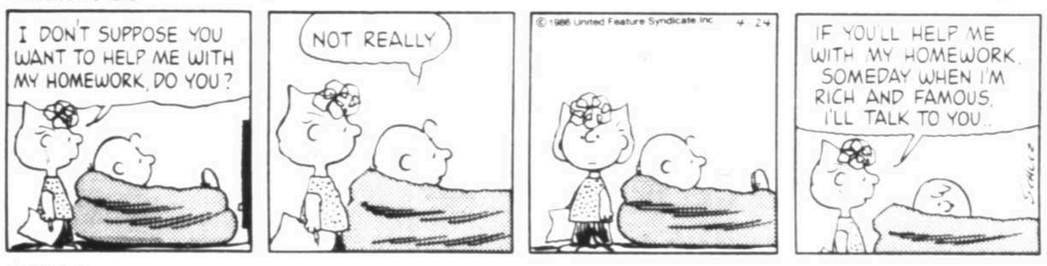

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Complete a current assignment before taking on new projects. Perseverance is the key to success. A promise you have been counting on may not come through. Diplomacy helps you avoid confrontations.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Imaginative ideas can be psychologically rewarding. Devote more time to personal matters. Reach out to those who truly give you the most -- your loved ones. A romantic dinner starts the weekend off just right.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not sign any papers unless you completely understand their meaning. Stay close to home today as unexpected developments may require careful handling. Be diplomatic when dealing with a trying personal problem.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A willingness to try new methods impresses superiors and influential people. You have a profound effect on a loved one's life. Your influence is far greater than you think. Show a loved one your loyalty.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1	Pass	2	Pass
4	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♥

Just because you have no legitimate line to make your contract does not mean that you have to give up. You might be able to throw some dust in the eyes of the defenders and blind them to the true situation.

Four hearts is a perfectly reasonable contract for North-South to reach. Unfortunately, all North's strength was in South's short suit, and, therefore, of little help. Obviously, the defenders could take four tricks if they realized they had to attack spades early. The normal way to go for the hand would be for declarer to win the trump lead in hand and immediately lead a low diamond. To defeat the contract, the defender who held the ace of diamonds would have to win it right away and find the spade shift—there was always a chance he would shift to a club.

South decided he would rather try a bit of deception. He won the opening lead in hand, crossed to the queen of hearts and returned a heart to his king. On the last two tricks East played the deuces of diamonds and clubs. Then came the seven of diamonds.

It was hard for West to believe that South would have taken the only entry off the table if he held a singleton diamond. He decided to try to shut out dummy's diamonds by ducking the first diamond trick. South conceded three tricks gratefully as he claimed his contract.

East might have made life a bit easier for his partner. Instead of discarding the minor-suit twos, he would have done better to echo in diamonds, discarding first the nine and then the two. Since he obviously couldn't want a diamond lead, he could only have been showing count (a high-low echo shows an even number of cards in the suit). Therefore, West would have been able to win the first diamond and, no matter what he returned, the defenders would eventually get their three spade tricks.

Security to be tight for Shriver wedding

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — Security will be so tight that airplanes won't be allowed to fly within two miles of the church where Maria Shriver and Arnold Schwarzenegger will be married Saturday before a congregation of Kennedy family members, television personalities and movie stars, officials say.

"As recently as this morning, I was involved in a two-hour, high-level security meeting," the Rev. Edward Duffy, who will help celebrate the wedding Mass, said Wednesday.

Duffy declined to elaborate on what measures will be taken at St. Francis Xavier Church, where the 30-year-old "CBS Morning News" co-anchor and the 38-year-old body-builder and actor will walk down the aisle.

But he said he has been working with police to make sure the ceremony is not disturbed either by autograph seekers or "somebody who's hostile."

Schwarzenegger

Planes will be banned from flying within a two-mile radius of the Kennedy compound or below 2,000 feet from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday at the Shrivers' request, said Barnstable Municipal Airport traffic manager Frederick Banks.

The Federal Aviation Administration permits a flight ban, Banks said. "If you get too many people flying in a small area, you can end up with safety problems."

Equally strict security was planned at the Dunfey Hyannis Hotel about a mile away in this Cape Cod village. One hundred rooms at the resort have been set aside for those attending the wedding, including the bridegroom.

Dunfey general manager William A. Torresala said he also was just as concerned about keeping fans from disturbing famous guests as he was about more serious security threats.

Torresala would not name names of those expected for the wedding, but said they included politicians, Hollywood stars and television newscasters.

Among those reported to be attending the ceremony are CBS News anchor Dan Rather, CBS News president Van Gordon Sauter, longtime Kennedy family friend Andy Williams, and actresses Susan St. James Ebersol, Cathy Lee Crosby and Oprah Winfrey, an Oscar nominee for her role in "The Color Purple."

These guests will be joined by many members of the Kennedy family, including Ms. Shriver's uncle, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and her cousin, Caroline Kennedy, daughter of the late President John F. Kennedy. Caroline Kennedy is reported to be the maid of honor.

Duffy said the guest list was limited to less than 500.

NEW YORK (AP) — Songwriter Harold Arlen, whose show-stopping hits "Over The Rainbow" and "Stormy Weather" highlighted an Oscar-winning career during which he composed more than 500 tunes, has died at 81.

Arlen died Wednesday of natural causes at his Manhattan apartment. His funeral is scheduled for Friday.

Arlen and lyricist E.Y. "Yip" Harburg won the 1939 Academy Award for Best Song for "Over The Rainbow," which became the signature song of Judy Garland after she sang it in the film classic "The Wizard of Oz."

Harold Arlen

Five other songs by Arlen were nominated for Oscars: "Blues In The Night," "That Old Black Magic," "My Shining Hour," "Ac-cent-tchu-ate The Positive," and "The Man That Got Away."

Thirty-five of his songs came to be regarded as part of the standard repertoire, including "I Love A Parade," "It's Only a Paper Moon," "One For My Baby (And One More For the Road)," and "Come Rain or Come Shine."

"He had endless melodies, his musicality was in a class by itself," singer Bobby Short said today after performing here. "I suppose his songs that we will most remember will be the songs involved with blues and jazz.

"Harold related to singers because he himself was a singer and I don't think anyone sang his songs any better than he sang his songs. He began his career as a singer as a young man and he sang but beautifully. He had a beautiful tenor voice that was recorded back in the 1930s."

LONDON (AP) — Prince Andrew has chosen his younger brother, Prince Edward, to be best man at his wedding, Buckingham Palace announced.

Prince Andrew

A palace statement also said 3-year-old Prince William, the eldest son of Prince Charles, the heir to the throne, and Princess Diana, will be one of four pages to the bride, Sarah Ferguson. No maid of honor was mentioned.

The wedding will be July 23 at Westminster Abbey.

Andrew, third of Queen Elizabeth II's four children, was best man at his elder brother Charles' wedding in 1981. Andrew and his fiancee are both 26.

The other pages will be Princess Anne's son Peter, 8, Miss Ferguson's half-brother Andrew Ferguson, 7, and her nephew Seamus Makim, 5, the palace said Wednesday. Princess Anne is Andrew's sister.

Prince Edward

The four bridesmaids will be Anne's daughter Zara, 4, Miss Ferguson's half-sister Alice, 5, Lady Rosanagh Innes-Ker, 7, eldest child of the Duke and Duchess of Roxbruge; and Laura Fellowes, 6, eldest child of Robert Fellowes, the queen's deputy private secretary, and Lady Jane Fellowes, Princess Diana's sister.

The palace also confirmed that the London-based, Polish-descended designer Lindka Cierach, 32, has been chosen by Miss Ferguson to make the wedding dress.

NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion designer Calvin Klein will join actress Elizabeth Taylor as hosts of a $150-a-ticket cocktail party to raise money for AIDS research.

Dozens of celebrities are expected to attend Tuesday's three-hour party at the new Jacob Javits Convention Center.

The highlight of the evening will be what sponsors are calling "the world's largest photo session" involving the celebrity participants.

Elizabeth Taylor

The photographs will be used as a print campaign in national magazines and trade publications to help raise money for research toward finding a cure for acquired immune deficiency syndrome, said Susan Martin, a spokeswoman for the American Foundation for AIDS Research.

Leakage devices tested

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. I thought it was almost impossible for a microwave oven to leak. But I received an ad which says that these ovens should be checked for radiation leakage every month, that a bump in shipment could easily deform the seals and allow the oven to emit radiation. It also says the seals can wear out. For $25 you can buy a radiation tester called The Seeker.

A. Don Witters of the Food and Drug Administration's National Center for Devices and Radiologic Health states, "We have evaluated several of the inexpensive leakage devices, including the Seeker unit, and found them to be generally inaccurate and unreliable."

In a pamphlet published by the FDA titled "Microwave Oven Radiation," the following information is given: "There is little cause for concern about excess microwaves leaking from ovens unless the door hinges, latch or seals are damaged, or if the oven was made before 1971.

"In FDA's experience, most ovens tested show little or no detectable microwave leakage. If there is some problem and you believe your oven might be leaking excessive microwaves, contact the oven manufacturer, a microwave oven service organization, your state health department or the nearest FDA office."

There is a standard regulated by FDA that limits the amount of microwaves that can leak from an oven throughout its lifetime, which is 5 milliwatts of microwave radiation per square centimeter at approximately two inches from the oven surface.

FDA claims this is far below the level known to harm people. And as you move away from an oven, the level of any leaking microwave radiation that might be reaching you decreases dramatically. For example, someone standing 20 inches from an oven would receive approximately one one-hundredth of the amount of microwaves at two inches.

If your oven door doesn't close properly, if the latch is broken or loose or if the seal around the door is damaged in any way, don't use the oven. Contact an expert for help.

Q. How can I take off the white alcohol mark or ring on a lovely old mahogany table? Mrs. A. Sausa, Portland, Ore.

A. Although I have never tried it, there's a product you should be able to find in your hardware store called Jasco's White Ring Remover. It's a treated cloth that comes in a box. Supposedly heat and water marks are eliminated by rubbing the spots with the cloth.

However, if the white ring is a bona fide alcohol stain caused by a spilled drink, medicine, skin lotion or perfume, Alma Moore, in her book "How to Clean Everything," says you have a real problem.

"For old stains," advises Moore, "use rottenstone (a form of limestone) or powdered pumice, mixed to a thin paste with raw or boiled linseed oil. Rub lightly in the direction of the grain. Wipe with a cloth dampened with plain linseed oil. Repeat as many times as necessary, then polish."

In some cases, refinishing may be necessary. If readers have other suggestions for this common problem, please send them on.

Q. I would like to know how much sugar is in Serutan. My husband is a diabetic and cannot eat sugar. A.M. Phillips, Somers Point, N.J.

A. Mardie Barr, product information specialist with Beecham Products, manufacturers of Serutan, claims that since the sugar content of this product varies with the formulation, the company would prefer to contact consumers individually and requested your name and address.

I informed the Serutan representative that there are probably many people who would like to know the answer to this question, but Beecham insisted that the question be answered on a personal basis. Toll-free numbers were supplied for consumers to call.

I called the number, (800) 245-1040 in all states except Pennsylvania, where the number is (800) 242-1718, and was given the following information:

There are two types of Serutan — the granules and the powder. The granules contain .4 grams of sucrose and 4 mg of saccharin. As to the powder, there are two types: one, called the Regular Concentrate, which is flavorless, contains 2.7 grams of dextrose. The other one, which is fruit-flavored, contains 2.6 grams of dextrose, .3 grams of sucrose, and 24 mg of saccharin.

Q. Years ago there was an apple available here that I think were called York. Each one was lopsided. They had a wonderful flavor, were very hard and were used for cooking. Who can I buy these apples through? Otto Szanto, Daytona Beach, Fla.

A. Kenneth Mizelle of the Fruit and Vegetable Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture informs us that although it's not one of the major varieties grown, the York apple is still available from apple-producing states in the East.

The following organizations, which do promotional work for fruits and vegetables, will supply information for you: International Apple Institute, P.O. Box 137, 6707 Old Dominion Dr., Suite 210, McLean, Va. 22101 (703) 442-8850; United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, 727 North Washington St., Alexandria, Va. 22314 (703) 836-3410.

CONSUMING INTERESTS

Candy by other name still candy

By LINDA ANDERSON

There's only two kinds of kids — finicky eaters and those who will eat anything. At my house, we have both kinds.

The oldest and the youngest are not too picky when it comes to food, but the middle two have been known to whine "I don't like this!" when it is something they have never even seen, much less tasted.

There are a few foods they all enjoy, however, including ice cream, oranges and my personal supply of diet Dr Pepper.

When I brought home a box of Peanut Butter Boppers, a new sweet snack from Nature Valley, they were skeptical because none of us are overly fond of anything marketed by Nature Valley (which always struck me as a strange name for a firm which takes perfectly fine fruit and proceeds to turn it into fruit-flavored leather).

However, because peanut butter is another one of those foods they all enjoy, they decided to go along with the taste-test.

We checked out the Boppers in fudge chip flavor for taste, price and advertising accuracy.

A 6-ounce box containing six individually-wrapped peanut butter bars cost $1.89. That averages out to about 31½ cents per bar, or about the same price as a regular candy bar. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

Label advertising trumpets: "Introducing Peanut Butter Boppers. A new melt-in-your mouth peanut butter snack. A soft, creamy center made from creamy real peanut butter wrapped in delicious crunchy coatings ... enjoy a wholesome snack with the great taste and goodness of real peanut butter."

The bars are also available in honey crisp and peanut crunch flavors.

What the bars turned out to be is a sweet peanut butter candy-type center, rolled in tiny chocolate chips and something that looked like Rice Crispies.

Label nutrition information lists each bar as having 160 calories, 14 grams carbohydrate, 10 grams fat and 120 milligrams sodium. As far as food value, the label claims each bar contains 6 percent of the protein, 8 percent of the niacin and only 2 percent of the thiamin, riboflavin, calcium and iron suggested by the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance.

Even though the bars are located near so-called "healthy" foods such as granola bars and fruit bars (both of which I have my doubts about), they can't be called anything but candy — different name, but candy all the same.

Quite tasty candy, too. The picky eaters enjoyed them as much as the non-picky eaters (except the youngest one. She couldn't finish her entire bar, but she did enjoy it while she had it).

The older teen shared hers with a friend, who liked it as much as the rest of the kids.

In fact, all six bars disappeared in a matter of hours.

I will probably buy them again because the kids liked them so much — and the taste I got before the last bar disappeared made me realize I liked them too. But they are dessert, not a nutritious snack.

BETTER BUSINESS

Consumers' Week tradition

By JOHN K. SCHMIDT

National Consumers' Week has become an established annual tradition for many state and local consumer offices, businesses, government agencies, voluntary organizations and individual consumers.

Each year, the last full week in April is dedicated to the ongoing need to educate and inform consumers about their rights and responsibilities in the marketplace.

Edward W. Frantel, president and chief executive officer of the Seven-Up Company, said, "We are convinced that when consumers are given the answers and information they desire, they react favorably in the marketplace. And that reaction benefits not only the consumer, but the manufacturer and the retailer as well. This vital interplay is the essence and strength of the American free enterprise system."

The theme this year is "Consumers Rate Quality."

As President Reagan's proclamation reads: "The slogan for 1986, 'Consumers Rate Quality,' acknowledges that consumers, by seeking quality and value, set the standards of acceptability for products and service by 'voting' with their marketplace dollars, rewarding efficient producers of better quality products and performance."

National Consumers' Week offers an excellent opportunity for community partnership among all levels of business, government, private consumer groups and educators.

Organizations use this nationally coordinated event to spotlight their consumer programs: to announce new or special programs, to showcase their consumer services and to thank their loyal customers.

The goal is to encourage the year-round commitment to consumer programs, education and information.

"As consumers become more discerning in their choices of products and services, businesses respond by paying more attention to consumer demands," says Virginia H. Knauer, special advisor to the President and director of the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs.

For any consumer problems, call the Better Business Bureau at 563-1880 or 1-800-592-4433.

Condiments' sodium counts vary

By MARIAN FARR

You can carefully avoid the salt shaker and still be getting significant amounts of sodium from the condiments and sauces you use to flavor food. A sodium intake of 1,100 to 3,300 milligrams daily is considered safe and adequate for a healthy adult. One teaspoon of salt contains 1,938 milligrams of sodium or almost two-thirds of this daily amount.

While the specific amount will vary somewhat according to brand, recent figures from the U.S. Department of Agriculture illustrate the sodium content of many popular seasonings, condiments and relishes.

Among the sauces, soy sauce contains the most sodium with about 1,029 milligrams per tablespoon. One tablespoon of Teriyaki sauce contains 690 milligrams, chili sauce 227, Worcestershire sauce 206 and barbecue sauce 130 milligrams.

Some favorite condiments add smaller amounts of sodium to the diet. A tablespoon of ketchup has 156 milligrams while the same amount of sweet pickle relish contains 124 milligrams. Brined relishes like pickles and olives are another significant source of sodium. For example, one two-ounce dill pickle adds 928 milligrams of sodium to the diet and four green olives increase the sodium count by 323 milligrams.

Condiments used in cooking will also add sodium. For example, one teaspoon of garlic salt contains 1,850 milligrams of sodium; onion salt 1,620 milligrams; meat tenderizer 1,750 milligrams; and MSG, or monosodium glutamate, 492 milligrams.

If your doctor has prescribed a low-sodium diet of 1,000 to 2,000 milligrams per day, it will take careful selection of seasonings and condiments to avoid exceeding your sodium allotment. For flavor without extra sodium, stick to garlic or onion powders, which contain approximately 1 milligram of sodium per teaspoon.

To avoid hidden sources of sodium in your diet, it's especially important to read the nutrition labels on any commercially prepared condiments and seasonings. Using a home-made mixture of various herbs and spices or flavoring with lemon juice can keep even a low-sodium diet from being bland.

DEAR ABBY

Marriages made in heaven don't begin in clouds

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What next? People are actually writing to you, hoping to promote the idea of empowering airline captains to perform marriage ceremonies in midair. Personally, when I fly I want the pilot in the cockpit, flying the plane — not in the back of the plane performing a marriage service.

Maybe we've been seeing too many episodes of "Love Boat" with the ship's captain constantly away from the wheel. (Who's steering the ship?)

Abby, when airline captains start performing marriages, please let us know, so I can book a reservation on Amtrak. — CAROL IN DALLAS

DEAR CAROL: Relax, I doubt that it will ever happen. Read on for an update on marriages performed on the high seas:

DEAR ABBY: You were quite right in stating that sea captains were permitted to perform marriage ceremonies years ago when voyages were very long. However, times have changed, and ships' captains can no longer tie the nuptial knot at sea.

Shortly after World War II, when I was captain of an American freighter docked in Istanbul, Turkey, I was asked by a young couple from New York to marry them at sea. I went ashore and asked the American vice consul if I was empowered to marry the couple. He consulted a large volume of federal regulations, then declared that I could not marry them. He read the section that was applicable, and I still recall the significant part:

It seems that Bud Fisher, the creator of the famous comic strip Mutt and Jeff, had been married by a captain on a trans-Atlantic liner. Some time later, the Fishers split up, and one of the parties claimed that the marriage was not valid as the ship's captain was not authorized to marry couples. The courts decreed that sea captains no longer had the authority to perform marriages, so since the Fisher marriage was not legal, it was annulled. Fisher vs. Fisher was apparently a test case. — FREDERICK N. MacLEAN, APTOS, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: A man who works where I work keeps asking me to go out with him. He said for either a Sunday brunch or maybe dinner. I always make up some excuse because in the first place he's not my type, and in the second place he's too old for me. (He's somewhere in the neighborhood of 45, and I am 22.)

Well, he sent me an Easter card and wrote on it, "When can we go out?" And there was a $20 bill in the envelope.

Now I don't know what to do. A girl can always use an extra $20, but something tells me I should give it back to him. What should I do? — OUT OF EXCUSES

DEAR OUT: The "something" that tells you to return the $20 is common sense. You don't need an "excuse" to decline his invitations. Give him a reason — the real one; but don't tell him he's too old for you — tell him you're too young for him.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Couple knew daughter was ill even if doctors didn't

GROVES, Texas (AP) — Grown men do cry. Dell Williams can tell you. He's cried plenty. But so has his wife, Phyllis. For six years the Williams family struggled for an answer to this question: What is wrong with our daughter?

Eight years ago their daughter, Della, was born after a difficult pregnancy ended in what Mrs. Williams believed was an easy delivery. "I was so sick during my pregnancy, I thought I was going to die," she said. "I couldn't keep anything in my stomach. After my second month I was in the hospital because I was so dehydrated. I took iron shots all during the pregnancy."

Doctors told Mrs. Williams they were keeping her new baby an additional week for observation because Della was born under "severe stress."

"No one ever said anything was wrong with Della. All they said was she was born under severe stress. But when she got home, she couldn't keep her formula down," she says. Then began a six-year nightmare that robbed both parents of peaceful nights, fostered frustrations and slowly chipped away at their confidence in the medical profession.

For the first year, Mrs. Williams says she spent her days rushing from one pharmacy to the next, hunting for some new, exotic formula her pediatrician advised would stop Della's continous vomiting.

Williams adds: "We had her on 17 different formulas. From soybean, fresh milk, boiled milk to raw goat's milk. I mean this went on a year. And she cried all the time, too. We'd take her in to see a doctor, have him meet us at the emergency room and as soon as he picked her up, rubbed her stomach or just held her she'd stop crying and everybody would look at us like we were crazy."

Mrs. Williams says, "I knew something was wrong with Della from the beginning. I laid her in her crib at night and she would lay in one spot all night. She didn't turn over until she was eight months. It was 18 months before she was walking."

Williams says they took their daughter to Houston, Galveston and Jefferson County pediatricians, neurologists, psychiatrists, psychologists, speech and hearing specialists, bone specialists and optometrists each time failing to find an answer to their child's "real" problem. "We always feared we were going to lose her," Williams says, his eyes filling with tears. "No one could tell us what was wrong."

The family continued their odyssey, and after nearly $30,000 for hospitals, physicians and specialists, and a pair of $500 plastic leg casts that an orthopedist said would correct a walking problem, they began to eliminate the possible physical causes, one by one.

They discovered Della had excessive fluid built up in her ears that prevented her from hearing. "When we found out she couldn't hear and that's why she wasn't trying to talk, I decided to have her eyes checked and we found out she needed glasses," Mrs. Williams says.

"I kept telling them (doctors) something else was wrong with Della. But they acted like nothing was wrong. Some said she was retarded. But they never did any tests to prove it. She was so delayed in things. She wasn't learning like other kids," she says.

Della now was approaching 4, and her problems began to take on other forms. "She'd throw temper tantrums. Bang her head against the walls, slam cabinets, doors, throw furniture, bite her arms, pull her hair out. We couldn't go anywhere with her," Mrs. Williams says.

She said one doctor prescribed tranquilizers for Della's hyperactivity .

"My daughter walked around with these glassy eyes but the pills didn't slow her down. He told me to increase the dosage. I decided to quit giving her the pills," she says. The years dragged on.

Della Williams was diagnosed at the age of 8 as having celebral palsy, a disorder that the medical profession could not find during their examinations.

The Williamses recall feeling guilty that Della's problems were somehow their creation. Yet in the back of their minds was the nagging thought: There's something else wrong with our daughter.

Those days are past. The Williamses' love and devotion tempered with unusual courage and faith in God and Della's manadatory enrollment in the Port Neches school district gave them the answer they had been searching for. Preston Graham, school district director of student services and special education, says his staff diagnosed Della's problem immediately.

He finds it hard to understand how "anyone with eyes couldn't look at that child" and understand she had serious behavioral problems. Graham says after complete testing by his staff of diagnosticians, he referred the family to the Texas Elks Foundation for Handicapped Children in Gonzales.

Lisa Cowan, director of the children's diagnostic center, says the program for children began in 1976. The Texas Elks had operated a polio hospital there since 1945, but switched programs in 1976 after surveying state agencies for the most needed types of medical assistance for children. After Della was accepted in residency for three weeks of intensive evaluation, which includes observing the child during social interaction, the staff determined that she had cerebral palsy.

The Williamses were relieved to have an answer. "When Miss Cowan told us Della had cerebral palsy, Phyllis broke down and cried," Williams says. "And you know what, Miss Cowan broke down and cried, too. Because those people there are really concerned. But I think Phyllis cried because she finally had her answer."

Today, Della is a beautiful, blue-eyed blonde 8-year-old that is as normal a child as you will find. She loves gospel music, knows each name of her nearly 50 dolls, attends special education classes at Groves Elementary School and enjoys her playmates. The Williamses praise the efforts, care and compassion they found at the children's diagnostic center.

"I just can't believe what they can do. I just have to say what the Elks do by donating their money for the center is the most worthwhile thing I can think of," Williams says. The center restored the couple's faith in the medical profession and taught them that no matter what, the first thing they look for in a physician is his compassion and concern for the child and the parents.

Pre-dawn bomb rocks London thoroughfare

LONDON (AP) — A bomb exploded before dawn today outside the ground floor office of British Airways on Oxford Street, London's main shopping thoroughfare. The blast touched off a fire, but few people were in the area and only one passer-by was treated for shock.

There was no claim of responsibility for the bombing, the latest in a series of terrorists acts aimed at British targets since Britain supported the U.S. bombing raid on Libya.

The 4:50 a.m. blast and fire blew out one large window in the six-story building, and shattered and blackened others. Charred walls could be seen inside. The sidewalk was covered with glass shards, and there was some apparent structural damage.

The explosion also blew out windows in other buildings in the area, and police said it was heard several miles away.

Police cordoned off Oxford Street to search for other devices, snarling morning rush-hour traffic. The street reopened seven hours after the explosion, but the area around state-owned British Airways was sealed off as forensic experts went over the debris.

Police said they closed Victoria Station, the busiest in London, and evacuated the area for several minutes this morning because of a bomb scare which turned out to be a hoax.

No one was reported injured by the explosion on Oxford Street, but a woman was treated for shock, said Chief Superintendent Hugh Blenkin of Scotland Yard. Firefighters extinguished the fire that broke out after the explosion in about an hour, confining it mostly to the airline office, one of 10 in London.

"We have no suspects at the moment who might be responsible," Blenkin said.

News reports said the bomb, left on a sidewalk outside the airline office, was hidden among bags of garbage.

American Airlines and American Express have counters in the British Airways office, but Scotland Yard spokesman Philip Powell said the British airline appeared to be the target of the bomb. The U.S. Embassy is a few hundred yards from the building where the bomb went off.

Cmdr. George Churchill-Coleman, head of Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad, refused to comment on news reports that the bombers may have intended the device to explode when Oxford Street was crowded with shoppers but got the timing wrong.

He also refused to give details on the bomb or speculate who might have been responsible.

There are apartments in the upper floors of the building and initially there were fears that people may have been trapped in them.

But Scotland Yard said in a statement: "Everyone is accounted for. The fire and explosion caused damage to the ground floor."

"People living in nearby flats (apartments) were evacuated as soon as we could get them out," Blenkin said. "We cannot say at the moment exactly what kind of device it was, but it caused considerable damage to the British Airways office."

He said bomb disposal experts from the army and Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad were checking the damaged office and stores and other offices in the area in case other bombs had been planted.

Blenkin said the effects of the blast could have been horrible if the bomb had gone off later when the area was thronged with shoppers.

Patrick Crown, 28, who runs a coffee shop in Oxford Street, said: "One minute I was getting things ready, and the next there was a massive bang like thunder."

Another witness, Gwyn Thomas, who runs an all-night money-changing business in the area, said: "The building shook."

Midland Chamber of Commerce celebrates 1986 membership drive

By GIGI MCKINNEY
Advertising Feature Writer

During the next several days, many of the citizens of Midland will be "pounding the pavement," so to speak, to increase the membership in the Midland Chamber of Commerce. With a "crew" of about 300, this membership drive is expected to reach out to each business of every size in our city.

But why would these merchants want to join the Midland Chamber of Commerce during this economic slump?

Joan Baskin, Chamber President, was quick to comment. "The Midland Chamber of Commerce holds economic development for this area as our first priority. Through energy diversification, our growing area can once again prosper."

Mark Kimball, Membership Commodore, continued with another thought. " The Chamber is somewhat of a personal 'advertising agency' to Midland by enticing outside organizations to hold conventions here in Midland. Increasing the revenue brought in by these conventions is vital to replace the lack of oil revenue."

Baskin, Kimball and the many volunteers of the Midland Chamber of Commerce invite you to "climb aboard their ship" and make Midland an even better city in which to live. Below is a list of the "crew members" involoved in the 1986 Membership Drive.
