Eisenhower Reports on Berlin; Strike Settlement Efforts Fail

No Plans Made for Seizure of Mines

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—The government counted as a failure today its 10-day efforts to settle the soft coal strike, but it had no plans for immediate action.

Hope was revived, meanwhile, for a new approach to the broader reconversion wage-price problem.

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach last night wound up "subject to call" his fruitless negotiations with bituminous operators and John L. Lewis over the mine foremen's unionization issue.

The labor secretary said his settlement attempt — with 200,000 miners idle and half the nation's normal soft coal production closed down—had collapsed. But he still had hopes, he told reporters, for some solution.

He added that for the time being the government has no intention of seizing the closed mines.

On the wage-price subject, President Truman was reported "very receptive" to a recommendation from war labor board members that he set up a new three-sided group to devise a reconversion pattern.

It was learned that the WLB members themselves demurred from accepting a presidential invitation to esablish such a yardstick.

WLB's position was that as a war agency, already well along in carrying out White House orders to liquidate, it lacked the prestige necessary to frame and carry out a new formula. WLB wrote and enforced the war era "Little Steel" formula, which limited basic wage increases to 15 percent above January, 1941, levels.

Under the agency's recommenda-

Civilians Win Cabinet Posts In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 16—(AP)—War Minister Gen. Eduardo Avalos, leader of the army movement which overthrew the military rule of Col. Juan Peron, disavowed the role of strong man today, asserting he merely was carrying out army orders in the revision of Argentina's government.

In an interview with the Associated Press, Avalos called the overthrow of Peron, vice president, war minister and labor minister under President Gen. Edelmiro Farrell, a "revolution."

Losers in the political upset continued to be routed out of government posts as civilian leaders weighed offers to enter a government still headed by a military president. The offers were made by a civilian, General Proscutor Juan Alvarez, named interior minister by Farrell and given a free hand to form a "cabinet of notables."

Bluff, bulky Avalos, who gives the impression of being a warm personality with a direct and unsubtle mind, said simply: "I am not the boss."

"I am carrying out the orders of officers of the army," he declared.

Several prominent civilians have been approached by the 67-year-old Alvarez, who himself still was undecided last night about accepting the interior ministry. His first effort, a tender of the foreign ministry portfolio to Tamos Lebreton, former ambassador to London, met with failure. Vice Admiral Vernengo Lima, navy minister, meanwhile has taken over the duties of acting foreign minister.

Reported still pondering offers were Alberto Hueyo, finance minister under President Augustin Justo, and Antonio Vaquer, chairman of the Agrentine center of engineers.

Communist Party Dominant in City

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—General Eisenhower said today "informal reports indicate a fair and impartially supervised election in Berlin would not support the present communist party dominance" of the city's government.

The general put into his second monthly report on military government in the American zone of occupation a critique on politics in Germany—including those in the Russian zone.

Eisenhower declared that one of the political devices fostered by the communists in Berlin—a bloc of parties—would have no welcome in the American zone.

Here is what he had to say about Berlin, where the Allied control authority has its headquarters and where the four Allied powers have four zones:

"Four organized parties exist there. They were granted permission by the soviet military authorities to organize and so were functioning when United States forces occupied the U. S. sector of Berlin. The four parties are the communist party, the social democratic party, the Christian-democratic party, and the liberal democratic party.

"The first two are well organized, active and have a basis of former members on which to build. The latter two groups are new parties, though drawing support from middle class, conservative burgeois elements formerly associated with the centrum, the German democratic party, and the German people's party. They are less well organized and less active than the Marxist parties. This is especially true of the liberal democratic party.

"The communist party of Germany holds a majority of the strategic posts in the Berlin magistrate and in the administrations of the Berlin municipalities. Informal reports indicate that a fair and impartially supervised election in Berlin would not support the present communist party dominance of posts but would reveal relatively strong support going to the social democrats and the Christian-democratic union, in that order.

"The four parties in Berlin joined, in the initiative of the communist party, in a united front 'political bloc' intended to unify their policies on all important matters. This joint political organization continued throughout the month under review (August) and succeeded in formulating surface uniformity on major questions, with some evidence of dissent dissatisfaction, especially on the part of the two conservative parties.

Peace Must Be A Military One To Last---Halsey

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16—(AP)—Admiral Halsey, warmly welcomed home from the wars, said today that the peace must be a military one if it is to last.

"This is what we have dreamed of, hoped for, fought for and prayed for — to return home again, knowing that our enemies have been vanquished," the admiral said in a broadcast after the ships of his Third fleet had dropped anchor in San Francisco Bay yesterday.

"But let us not forget that to be a lasting peace, it must be a military peace."

As the fleet approached the Golden Gate yesterday, Halsey spoke his thoughts to a press conference.

Warning against ever allowing Japan to become strong again, he said:

"Japan today is a fourth or fifth-rate nation, and if we use a modicum of judgment she will never be permitted to be anything else. Japan is a hollow shell, lacking transportation, communication and the necessities of life. Before she is taken back into the society of nations she must prove herself. It is up to Japan, not us.

He chuckled and admitted "I was ashamed of ourselves that it took us four years to finish a war with those people" after seeing a dirty old-fashioned destrover when the American fleet entered Sagami Bay Aug. 27.

Laughingly, he said his toughest experience of the war concerned a horse. He had promised to ride the white steed of Emperor Hirohito, but eventually ended up astride the deck of another horse, and the experience was "terrifying."

Other units of the fleet anchor-

Demobilization of Japan Completed, Says MacArthur

TOKYO, Oct. 16—(AP)—Demobilization of Japan, involving some 7,000,000 men at home and abroad, has been completed in the most frictionless operation of its kind in history, General MacArthur announced yesterday in a world broadcast.

On schedule, October 15, "Japanese armed forces x x x ceased to exist as such," the supreme Allied commander said, but warned that "it will take much time and patience x x x to restore the dignity and freedom of the common man" in the beaten demoralized empire.

But, he added, "herein lies the way to true and final peace."

The supreme commander lauded American soldiers for giving the Japanese people their first insight "into a free man's way of life in actual action and it stunned them into new thoughts and new ideas."

The American victory, MacArthur said, was "a triumph for the concept of the complete integration of three dimensions of war—ground, sea and air. x x x The great lesson for the future is that success in the art of war depends on the complete integration of services.

400 Will Attend Chamber Banquet

"Everything is in readiness for the banquet tonight," said Doc Pursley, president of the chamber of commerce, in reference to the fourth quarterly chamber of commerce banquet which will be held at the high school cafeteria. Approximately 400 persons will attend the affair, he said.

The Hon. Charles H. Dean of Plainview will give the address. W. B. Weatherred will be the master of ceremonies.

The program includes the singing of "Smiles" led by Leib Langston, and an invocation by the Rev. Edgar W. Henshaw, minister of the St. Matthew's Episcopal church.

Out-of-town guests will be introduced by Arthur Teed. Special entertainment will be given by Virgil Mott, educational director of the First Baptist church, who will sing "Old Man River," accompanied by Mrs. Mott, and Irma Francis with "Her Piano and Her Songs. Dinner music will be provided by Dick McCune and his orchestra.

Closing the program "God Bless America" will be sung, led by Songleader Langston.

The entire chamber of commerce board of directors and the Good Will committee will serve as the reception and ushering committees.

Delegations from neighboring towns expected to attend the banquet include those of Miami, Panhandle, Lefors, Wheeler, Perryton, Canadian, McLean, Shamrock, Amarillo, Borger, White Deer, Clarendon, Alanreed, Groom, Sayre, Okla., and Elks City, Okla.

Clothing Drive Set for January

This community again has been asked to participate in a drive next January to collect old, but usable, clothes to be distributed among the needy peoples of other lands.

The letter, by Henry J. Kaiser, chairman of the national drive, was directed to the chairman here last year, B. R. Nuckols, school principal.

Nuckols said he had been pledged the help of various civic clubs and service organizations here, including the Kiwanis, Lions, Rotary, American Legion, Boy Scouts, and the chamber of commerce. The support of the high school superintendent and principals has been pledged, he said.

Last year, old clothes donated were deposited at the various schools.

The national drive will be conducted from Jan. 7 through 31. A goal of 100,000,000 garments with additional shoes and bedding has been set.

Worthless Currency Distributed in China by Nipponese War Lords

TOKYO, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Printing presses back by Japanese bayonets deluged China with now-worthless currency adding up to about 54,000,000,000 (B) U. S. dollars in face value, the Tokyo newspaper Asahi said today.

The figure was the first to be published indicating the degree of financial plundering of Japanese-occupied territories by Nipponese militarists. It was disclosed by the newspaper in its demands on the imperial government to curb inflation.

Notes totaling $4,000,000,000,000 (T) yuan were issued by the Central Reserve bank of China, financial agency backed by the Japanese militarists, the newspaper said.

This sum, at the official rate of five yuan to one yen, equalled 800,000,000,000 (B) yen, or nearly 20 times the war-time homeland note output of the Bank of Japan, which contricuted much to inflation in Nippon. The current rate is 15 yen to one U. S. dollar.

American authorities have declined to announce figures until their survey is completed.

But the actual plundering implied by the size of the China bank's note issue must be doubled to evaluate the total of militaristic financial profits. When the notes were first issued they were arbitrarily discounted at one for two former Chi-

Cooper Demands Freedom of Press For Whole World

BOSTON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Calling attention to tendencies toward government control of radio, press and motion pictures, Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, today urged the public to demand of those in power a guarantee that freedom of the press will be extended throughout the world.

Speaking at the Boston conference on distribution, Cooper asserted that "press freedom everywhere is essential for the future welfare of mankind," and that a universal free press "can develop into the world's antidote for the employment of the atomic bomb."

He referred briefly to the recent government anti-trust suit against the AP with the observation that "the cause of truthful international news exchange and "the right to print it in every kind. . . . Greatly transcends anything that can happen to the Associated Press."

In the radio case, he explained, "we have freedom of speech into the homes of the land through the medium of radio definitely channeled for regulation by a government commission." Only last week, he said, "the trial of the government suit against eight motion picture distributors began in the federal court in New York."

He explained that "no attempt so

9 Texas Fields Recommended For Retention

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—Nine Texas air force establishments have been recommended for retention by the army air forces, the war department announced yesterday.

This does not mean those not recommended will be abandoned instantly, officials said.

The list also does not include flying fields and subsidiary establishments now under construction, fields for the organized reserve and national guard air units, or those included in the army airways systems.

The war department said publication of the list "does not imply final war department action."

The list of stations:

Combat units: Fort Worth army air field; Biggs field, El Paso; Brooks field, San Antonio.

Air transport and troop carrier units: Bergstrom field, Austin.

Convalescent hospitals: San Antonio district convalescent hospital.

Flying training: Goodfellow field, San Angelo; Randolph field, San Antonio; Perrin field, Sherman.

Maintenance and supply depots: Kelly field, San Antonio.

Recommendations for retention were made after more than two months of study by a board of senior commanders and staff officers.

The demobilization of those not recommended "will be a continuing and graduation one," the announcement said.

Police Investigate Two Auto Accidents

Local police investigated two accidents on West Foster street yesterday afternoon.

The first was a collision involving a 1940 Chevrolet coupe driven by Roy L. Jordan, Pampa, and a 1939 Ford sedan driven by a 26-year-old Pampa man who is scheduled to appear before County Judge Sherman White this afternoon.

The two cars collided at the intersection of Hobart and West Foster streets.

Damage to Jordan's car amounted to about $70, police reported, while the other automobile was damaged only slightly.

The other accident occured at the corner of West Foster and Somerville streets when a 1939 Buick coach, driven by Lee Coble, was in collision with a J. D. Wright and Sons truck driven by Wilfred White.

Coble told investigating officers that he was blinded by the sun and did not see the truck.

The right front fender of Coble's car was smashed in and damage may have been done to the frame of the car. Police estimated the damage to the car as about $100. Damage to the truck was estimated at $2.50.

Chief of Police Louie Allen urged all drivers to observe the speed limits in town as he reported a sharp increase in the number of speeding tickets issued.

The speed limit in the city is 30 miles per hour except in school zones where the limit is 15 m.p.h.

PROGRESS IS 'NORMAL':

CHEST AND FUND DRIVE NEARS HALF-WAY MARK

A city and county drive to raise $35,655 for the Community Chest and National War Fund had almost reached the half-way mark today, Chairman Liebmann Langston said this morning as he urges workers to get out and complete the canvass as soon as possible.

A total of $16,500 was in today. The bulk of the remainder is expected to come from the business and industrial divisions of the campaign. Thtey have a quota of $7,000 and $5,000 respectively. Progress is "normal," Lanston said. "It takes a good deal of time to distribute cards and then collect contributions in the business and industrial divisions," he said. Many concerns have to wait until payday before their employes can contribute.

There have been no reports yet from McLean, LeFors, and Alanreed, he said, but it is expected that each community is raising its quota. Some money has come in from farmers and ranchers around Pampa. They have a quota of $1,000, and donations are being made by letter to Huelyn Laycock.

The schools today were taking contributions from students. Each pupil or student who makes a con-

Leading Ace of Pacific Missing

TOKYO, Oct. 16—(AP)—Fifth air force headquarters announced tonight Col. Gerald R. Johnson, 25, of Eugene, Ore., a leading army ace of the Pacific theater, and his co-pilot Lt. James B. Noland of Houston, Texas, have been missing since the night of Oct. 7 on a flight from Ie Shima to Atsugi airfield near Tokyo.

Johnson was the pilot of a B-25 Mitchell bomber from which four other men parachuted safely near Numazu, 75 miles southwest of Tokyo, after their fuel supply dwendled to 25 minutes flying time.

The men who bailed out included: C. l. Ezess F. Fountain, 24, of Dallas, Texas, crew chief.

Maj. Gen. K. B. Wolfe, acting commander of the fifth air force, said search for the missing plane was hampered by bad weather but was continuing with the cooperation of Japanese police and civil authorities.

He said hope had not yet been given up for Noland and Johnson. The latter had 24 planes to his credit.

Textile Workers In Texas Vote

HILLSBORO, Oct. 16—(AP)—Paul Schuler of New Orleans, regional director of the Textile Workers Union of America, said that "union employes of the Hillsboro, Itasca and Mexia cotton mills have been given the support of 35,000 organized CIO workers in north Texas to go on strike."

The CIO support was given employes of the three mills, largest cotton textile mills in Texas, following a seven-hour meeting yesterday of the joint board of the North Texas Textile Workers Union of America (CIO), he said.

The joint board meeting voted unanimously to permit the locals of the three mills to walk out "at any such time as their membership may vote." Approximately 1,000 workers are involved.

Schuler said yesterday that "this is no ordinary struggle between the boss and his workers. This is a crusade to win for workers in the textile industry all over this state the right to be treated as human beings."

The union has charged that the companies have refused to execute written contracts, and will not comply with war labor board directives. They ask vacation pay and clarification of aggrevance procedure. An agreement has been reached on wages.

Great Britain's crude oil production during 1944 totaled approximately 750,000 barrels.

ed in more than a dozen West Coast ports after their arrival from Honolulu, and will be berthed in California, Oregon and Washington harbors until after Navy Day celebrations Oct. 27.

Halsey's South Dakota was in the vanguard of 14 warcraft which passed triumphantly through the Golden Gate in a dense fog.

Detachments of sailors and marines from each of the 14 ships will march up San Francisco's Market Street this noon (2 p. m. Central Standard Time) from the Embarcadero to the city hall where civic officials will serve a buffet lunch to Halsey and his men.

The display of naval might was the greatest seen in San Francisco Bay since the "Great White Fleet" entered the harbor in 1908.

At San Diego the ponderous battleships Texas and Nevada, and the destroyers Collett and Maddox were met with a bedlam of shrieking whistles and shouts of welcome. Admiral Halsey is expected to arrive by plane there tomorrow from San Francisco.

The noon arrival of the battlewagons Iowa and Arkensas at Seattle was delayed several hours when the two vessels were fogbound in Puget Sound, but the dreadnaughts were able to drop anchor late in the afternoon. The 45,000-ton Iowa is reputedly the mightiest battleship afloat, while the Arkansas is the oldest croft of its type in active service with the navy.

tribution from five cents up gets a feather for his hat. Langston said he expected from $1,000 to $1,500 to be raised. The drives in the schools are being handled by the principals.

Arthur Teed, chairman of the school drive, reported at 10:30 that Sam Houston school students and teachers had turned in a total of $203.15. The students were credited with contributing a total of $107.65, the teachers with the balance, $95.50.

Langston again emphasized that if there are those who have not been contacted and are wishing to make contributions, the check should be mailed to the Community Chest Fund, Pampa; sent to Miss Geneva Schmidt, treasurer, to Laycock himself; or to the chamber of commerce.

'Join Congress, See the World'

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Congressmen apparently are convinced that for broadening the congressional mind there's nothing like a good junket.

Some of these days some sturdy researcher is going to pinch his pince-nez firmly in place, bury his nose in the record for a couple of months and come up with the statistics on just how many miles congresmen have journeyed, singly or in committees, to far places to study this or that since Pearl Harbor Day.

Leaving the statistics to the future, what he's going to find out is that Mrs. Roosevelt was by comparison a stay-at-home and that if the Capitol Hill fraternity ever needs a rushing slogan a natural would be "Join Congress and See the World."

A report has just been filed with congress by one of the most recent junketeers.

The junketeers always file a report. This one is not exceptional. In fact, it is so unexceptional that it didn't cause a ripple "on the Hill" or elsewhere.

The barest of the facts, according to the report, are that 11 congressmen, selected by their respective committee chairmen, visited the British Isles, the Scandanavian countries, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Germany, France, Italy, and Russia. (Seven of the committee continued on through the Near East, to China and around the world, but that wasn't included in this report.)

The congressmen were charged with studying administration of lend lease, UNRRA operations, the European labor situation, food and housing in the occupied countries, and military hospitals, and "to obtain information relative to international legislative matters and become familiar with the problems involved in the gigantic task of reconstruction."

In their spare time from these duties, the committee managed to travel 21,000 miles in the 35 days the members were absent from their desks in Washington. That's traveling about 700 miles a day, which is a pretty good day's work in itself but it must be nothing for a junketeer because, according to the report, the committee got in plenty of studying in 20 countries.

In England, for example, they found "that labor was well organized, that rationing of food and clothing was stringent, that fuel was extremely critical, that food is very short"—and that there is a serious housing shortage in London.

They noted in passing through Ireland that that country wasn't "blitzed" and that "the Parliament building (in Belfast) far surpassed the design acoustics and the beauty of our own Capitol in Washington."

In France they discovered "that labor is divided into several groups and extremely disorganized" and that the black-market is worse in Paris than elsewhere in Europe.

Copenhagen was refreshing; problems in Norway are very similar to those in Denmark; there is plenty of food in Sweden and the Swedes would like to trade with us; in Moscow most of the stores are owned by the state; Russia obviously is rich with natural resources; efforts "to reconstitute the Italian government had not yet been completely successful."

All that, of course, is just a sample—but a fair one.

Junkets are wonderful and just think of all the time they save congressmen by not forcing them to go over to the newspaper reading room in the library of congress.

tion. Mr Truman would create a new group with the same industry-labor-public representation as WLB, but with added weight because of its specific assignment.

The WLB feeling was reported to be that this body might have its wage-price policy ready for consideration by the labor-management conference scheduled to meet here November 5.

Schwellenbach reported that the mine operators rejected five separate proposals to agree to negotiate the foremen's issue with Lewis' united mine workers union.

FROZEN FOR FOOTBALL

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Charlie Trippi, discharged from the army Friday with 41 points, told the Atlanta Journal he requested overseas duty last winter but was "frozen" at his Florida base for a "1941 football project."

It is estimated that an average one gallon of gasoline per day was needed for every soldier engaged in offensive operations.

Milk and oil come from the same field in England, the British dairy farm being the locale of a well and cows, too.

In one area of Shensi Province in north China, primitive oil wells produce four or five barrels a day by pumps entirely hand operated.

Shamrock Resident, Leonard Jones, Dies

SHAMROCK, Oct. 16—Leonard C. (Casey) Jones, resident of Shamrock for the past four years, died in St. Mary's hospital at 4 o'clock Wednesday, Oct. 10, after a critical illness of three days.

His death was caused by a ruptured artery which he sustained two years ago and from which he never fully recovered.

Funeral services were conducted from the First Methodist church in Wellington, with Rev. Marvin B. Norwood, local Methodist pastor, in charge.

Masonic rites were conducted at the Weillington cemetery and the Womack and Kelso funeral home were in charge of burial.

Mr. Jones, father of Mrs. M. M. Nix of this city, came to Shamrock four years ago to make his home and was well known through this vicinity. He resided in Hollis, Okla., in boyhood and moved to Wellington in 1916, where he lived until moving here.

He was born December 18, 1888. On October 31, 1909, he was married to Miss Nola Campbell. Mrs. Nix is the only child and Miss June Ann Nix is the only grandchild.

Mr. Jones was an active member of the Masonic Lodge both in Hollis, Okla., and Wellington. He was in the automobile business for many years, and while in Wellington served as a member of the school board and on the city council.

Survivors include the widow of Shamrock, one daughter, Mrs. M. M. Nix and granddaughter, Miss June Ann Nix of Shamrock, three brothers and three sisters: Charlie Jones, Mount Vernon, Ohio; Bob Jones, Yuma, Ariz.; W. T. Jones, Hartselle, Ala.; Mrs. Mollie Blackwood and Mrs. Grace Crawford, both of Lynwood, Calif.; and Mrs. Beckie Gray of Ethridge, Tenn.

Freedom of Press

far has been made by the government through the courts or by the courts to assert editorial powers over the news the Associated Press delivers in spite of its successful legal intervention in it affairs.

"In explanation of its efforts to make the Associated Press service available to any one who wants it the government distinctly disavowed its intention to gain control of the news report. Nevertheless, it is obvious, as in the case of radio, that the powers now in the hands of the administration are of fundamental and far-reaching importance and that they are definitely not based on an expressed grant by congress.

"It is for you to find out whether the government is moving to control the avenues to our minds as is the case in other countries. It is for you to reflect upon whether the government is to define what our actions are to be instead of us controlling what the actions of the government are to be.

"All the rights enumerated by the constitution must be fervently defended. But man, being what he is, and his methods of communicating his thoughts one to another being what they are, the very keystone of our liberty is freedom to print . . . it is the printed record which implements and secures the other freedoms, namely: Freedom of religion, of speech and assembly."

Cooper said "the right to know," universally accorded, would promote international understanding, tolerance and friendship such as exist between the states of this country.

Declaration calling for world-wide freedom of the press, he noted, are on record in the political party platforms and congress; the result was "the placing of the matter squarely on the doorstep of the President of the United States."

"I wish my voice could carry convictions," he added, "that everyone should watch developments or the lack of them from the White House in this matter of applying the guarantee that truth shall be available to all men, since the truth makes men free.

"It seems to me that the atomic bomb that destroyed Hiroshima on August 6 makes it mandatory for every man, woman and child in this world to demand of those who have been vested with power to save civilization. Let those in power be convinced that civilization has gained its greatest advances through the printed word and that the printed word, truthfully presented, offers peace."

12-Point Program Designed To Ease Small Firms' Ills

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP)—A 12-point tax program designed to ease reconversion problems of small firms was laid before the house ways and means committee yesterday by a special small business committee.

In making public the program, Chairman Patman (D-Texas) of the small business committee asked the ways and means group to hold early public hearings on it.

"The small firm," Patman said in a statement, "is handicapped under the present tax laws in accumulating adequate financial reserves with which to compete with older established firms which built up their reserves in a more favorable taxation climate. In the present period of transition from war to peace, the examples of firms in this plight are numerous."

The major points of the committee's program:

1. The flow of investment funds to small firms should be stimulated by incentive legislation.

2. Consideration should be given to "some form of accelerated depreciation" on the purchases of plants and equipment in considering the tax liabilities of small operators.

3. Small firms should be allowed to retain a large part of their earnings during the next two years than they are permitted by existing law.

Patman said the committee's recommendations were based on public hearings held throughout the country.

Etiquette Rules for Gloves

BERNICE PARKS: Wears bracelet over glove.

JOAN LESLIE: Prefers shorties for daytime.

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer:

It took a war to bring arm-climbing gloves to luncheon tables and tea parties. It took a war to elevate the long "silk" glove to the Cinderella role of the evening. Because the war turned old glove traditions topsy-turvy, a review of the new rules is in order for those sticklers who want to walk hand in glove with style.

Long gloves? Plain ones are needed for wear wth dressy afternoon duds which have cap-length sleeves. These same long gloves, however, may be crushed down and worn any time of day. Long arm-climbers are correct. But long novelty gloves lit up by jewels or other geegaws are suitable companions for the evening only with gowns that are startlingly plain.

Informal daytime wear? Shorties, or four or five-button gloves of washable doeskin, suede, or fabric masquerading as such, are the best companions of tailored suits or dresses. Six-button pull-ons are the best choice for day-time dresses, "soft" suits, and coats.

Sport outfits? Wear sports gloves of chamois-like wool or cotton, pigskin, or wool string. Hand-sewn gloves strike a smart fashion note with a tweed ensemble.

Gloves of unusual color make a nice costume touch and can be used effectively to repeat color of hat, or; dress trimmings, or jewelry. But this is a dressy costume device that should be carried off with considerable dash, and is not for the timid soul.

You may go without your hat, but never without gloves, if you want to pass the well-dressed test. Bracelets may be worn over gloves, but not rings. Gloves should never fit too tightly. Gloves must always be removed when taking food or drink, and you must peel off the long ones, of course, before going in to a formal dinner.

TRIPLICATE IT IS

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 16 —(AP)— Hunting war souvenirs in Germany is fun for some GI's but getting three of a kind is something else again.

That was the problem of Lt. Edward J. Reardon of Kansas City who has 12-year-old triplet half-brothers.

"I knew if I didn't get everything in triplicate the next war I'd see would be right here in Kansas City," said the young lieutenant home after two and a half years with the infantry in Germany.

So triplicate it is—three identical German Luger pistols, three nazi helmets, three flags bearing Hitler's emblem and three German mess kits.

UNDIPLOMATIC ANGER

Some members of the senate foreign relations committee are distressed by the methods which the state department used in persuading the Brazilian government to call off the Pan-American conference scheduled for Oct. 20 in Rio de Janeiro.

They have scolded the state department for its abrupt criticism of Argentina, and showed it the error of its ways. They have pointed out that the other American nations should have been consulted. They have chided the department for taking foreign policy into its own hands without asking the senators' advice.

One senator accused the department of making this country look once more like the unloved "Colossus of the North." Another said the proper thing would have been to go ahead with the meeting, but refuse to deal with Argentine representatives. A third suggested that the Argentine delegation wouldn't have shown up, anyway.

There was more advice than Tom Sawyer got in his fence painting job. Maybe it was all good. But at the same time there was something refreshing and warmly human about the state department's impulsive gesture of disgust with a thoroughly disreputable government.

The United States, as this hemisphere's strongest and most active foe of fascism, has been remarkably patient with the fascist government in Buenos Aires. In fact, it actually helped to prolong that government by another impulsive gesture at San Francisco a few months ago.

To counter the Russian government's insistence that the Lublin Poles be represented at the United Nations Conference, this country's delegation led the way in securing a conference seat for Argentina. It was a move to show Russia that we could champion as unrepresentative a government as we believed the Russian-sponsored Lublin group to be.

Perhaps that step was taken in desperation. But this government has since had some embarrassing opportunities to regret it. Now, more in hot anger than cold-blooded diplomacy, the state department has taken another step to correct the earlier mistake.

It might seem that this government's present clear intent is of more consequence than the method of making it known.

Common Ground

OIL AND MOLD

Apostles of government ownership of business agree sometimes that private management can do better with little things. When it comes to filling prescriptions, mending shoes or making clothespins, they admit, private operators may be more efficient. Not so with the big stuff, they argue; coal, iron, oil, railroads are different. These just beg for bureaucratic bossing.

Of course big industries are more interesting to politicians because they employ large numbers of people and affect the daily lives of millions more. The fact remains however that government can and does make mistakes in the operation of big industries. Moreover, appropriate encouragement from government in relatively small enterprises has been known to result in much good.

SIGNIFICANT DECISIONS

Since government enterprises tend ultimately to become monopolistic, mistakes in them can be far more fateful than private blunders. Our government made two important decisions in 1942 which illustrate the case perfectly. One, to take a speculative flyer in Arctic oil, has cost American taxpayers 300 million "goodbye" dollars already. The other decision had to do with penicilin.

Penicillin is a drug, a mold extract that most people know less about than they do about gasoline. Some perfectly astounding cures are being worked with it, including cure of meningitis. It was discovered by an English scientist, Sir Alexander Fleming, in 1929 but production was tedious, slow and costly and consequently few sufferers were helped by it for 13 years.

IN MASS PRODUCTION

By 1942, our first war year, some American capitalists had taken a hand with marked success. The product was costing $20 a bottle then, and the average patient required three bottles. Government authorities realized that war would create a need for it so they guaranteed a large market and provided capital for mass production. History will record the splendid results.

With the government's big purchase of this successful item, volume production started. Now there are 20 factories. The largest cost more than 3½ million dollars but penicillin is costing less than $1 a bottle, $3 per treatment. Many lives have been saved and more will be. Mankind will be healthier and happier. Government encouragement of this business proved wise and beneficial.

SMELL OF THE YUKON

How different was the Canol oil venture. The Army drilled wells on the Mackenzie river, built a 27 million-dollar refinery at White Horse and tied into Fairbanks, Alaska, with 1000 miles of pipeline. Nothing was gained. Gasoline from the white elephant plant at White Horse costs 26c a gallon. Oil companies can ship a better product there from the states for 18c. The venture has been abandoned.

The Canol experiment failed. Very apparent obstacles made the operation too costly. Known sources of supply are better and 300 million dollars of taxpayers' money is gone. Government's support of one beneficial drug can't justify its management of big business. What official, spending public money, is cautious and thorough like a private investor with his own money? Never has government management achieved the efficiency of American private management.

The Nation's Press

TAKE-HOME PAY
(New York Times)

Most of the large unions have already announced their demands for higher wage rates. In general, the increases demanded are designed to offset the reduction in wartime earnings attending the decline in the number of hours worked, the elimination of premium overtime pay and related factors. Thus the rubber workers demand a wage increase of 30 cents an hour, the steel workers 25 cents an hour and auto and clothing workers an increase of 30 per cent. Increases of these magnitudes would in most instances enable workers to retain their war-time take-home pay and are apparently designed to accomplish that objective.

In effect, the labor unions are insisting that the abnormal wartime wages represent a legitimate immediate aspiration for their members. They are saying that the increase in workers' incomes resulting from the extra work required by our war effort must be retained in the pay envelope, even though that extra effort is no longer expended. They are saying that productivity has increased so significantly during the war that these wage increases can be made without requiring price increases. They are in effect saying that a wartime level of earnings, which included huge and abnormal savings, must be continued to prevent workers' living standards from being impaired. They are in effect saying that because large profits were earned as a result of the abnormally large volume of war business, those past profits indicate the ability to pay future wage increases.

Undoubtedly wage adjustments are desirable in many cases and are justified on the basis of the expected postwar earnings position, the rise in living costs and changes in productivity. But it is a big step from such justifiable wage increases to the 30 per cent increases now being demanded. Such an increase on top of the 36 per cent rise in average straight-time hourly earnings during the war will present industry with a sharp increase in costs which inevitably will require a sharp increases in price. These price increases in turn will decrease the buying power of the wages received and in turn will become the basis for new demands for wage increases.

In time a sharp increase in the standard of living of the wage-earners as well as other groups is inevitable. But to attempt to force in a relatively short period changes which may be justifiable at some future date is to erect a barrier against the attainment of the high level of employment which will be urgently required during the transition period and after.

WHEN DOES ELLIOTT PAY?
(Chicago Tribune)

John Hartford, the A. & P. grocery man, lent $200,000 to Elliott Roosevelt. Elliott welshed and Jesse Jones settled the debt by paying Hartford $4000 from his own pocket. The bureau of internal revenue now says Hartford can take an income tax deduction on the $196,000 he lost.

What about Elliott? A loan which is compromised has been considered by the revenue bureau, in other cases, to be income, taxable as such. When is the bureau going to back tax him on the $200,000—$196,000 from Hartford and $4,000 from Jones?

If it fails to do so, after granting Hartford his deduction, it puts the other income tax payers of the United States in the position of paying the private debts of the Roosevelt family.

News Behind the News

The National Whirligig

By ALBERT LEMAN

INDEPENDENCE— A disturbing political situation is brewing in the Philippines, according to the latest word brought back to Washington by observers.

No country in the world—not even Greece—was more wantonly ravaged by the enemy. This destruction and the great distance of the islands from the United States have made prompt rehabilitation extremely difficult. As a consequence the people are in great need of food, clothing, medical supplies and industrial and agricultural tools.

The leaders are even more worried about the long-range prospects. The commonwealth is in a peculiar position regarding relief. As a ward of Uncle Sam, it is getting help to prevent immediate distress. Yet it has been promised independence in the not too distant future.

Standing on its own feet raises questions of long-term credits and other methods of financing permanent improvements—both public and private. But the Manila government is bankrupt and its normal sources of income have been wiped out in the war's desolation. Local businessmen are broke.

Fear of their Asiatic neighbors and uncertainties about their means of self-support is cooling the ardor of the Filipinos for full independence. They want the freedom that we have promised but, regardless of the propaganda of island politicians, many of the most thoughtful citizens are in no hurry to cast off from the U. S. A.

The Philippine government hopes to receive UNRRA aid aggregating one hundred fifty million dollars, which will cover approximately forty percent of actual relief needs. But the United States congress and other nations have delayed in granting these funds. Filipinos are patient and deeply loyal to America but prolonged want could alienate them.

WRECKED—The writer has been talking with several officials and businessmen who have just flown in from the islands.

They report that in Manila all the public buildings except the Malacaan Palace were smashed and that seventy-five percent of the city was wrecked by mines and fire—very little by bombs. Cebu, the second largest city, is ninetyfive percent demolished.

Japanese barbarians drove whole families into homes, barred the doors and set the buildings on fire. More than one hundred thousand corpses have been identified and the grisly tack of searching for victims is still going on.

Practically all public records have been consumed by flames—tax lists, vital statistics, blueprints, and other documents necessary to municipal and state governments. Since private deeds to property have been lost, litigations will clog the courts for a score of years.

Previous to the coming of the Tokyo locusts, the commonwealth's sources of revenue were taxes on property, sales and income. But there is now little property to tax, nothing to sell and no jobs to produce incomes.

As the U. S. army is withdrawing its liberation troops, Filipinos employed by the armed forces are being discharged. Industrial and farm machinery is so badly damaged that its use cannot absorb men dropped from military pay rolls.

The islands have been experiencing a unique form of inflation. For a time more than one million seven hundred thousand United States soldiers and sailors were stationed there. The G. I.'s spent liberally and paid high prices for all kinds of souvenirs. In the black market a loaf of bread sells for two dollars.

But even though a great many Filipinos have more cash in their hands than ever berore in their lives, there is scarcely anything for them to buy. They out, its jobs will go with it and people's saving will soon vanish.

QUANDARY—Large items in the commonwealth's prewar economy were coconut oil, rope and sugar.

Years ago American businessmen introduced the process of crushing oil from the nut to save cargo space. Today the machines for this purpose are tangled masess of iron. Abaca, the hemp fiber used in rope threads, is still grown but the twine-twisting machines are junk.

It takes eighteen months to raise a crop of sugar cane. The plantations have been neglected, but they can be operated. However, owners and banks which finance the growers are in a quandary. If the Philippines are granted independence soon, American sugar beet interests may force a tariff on Philippine sugar. Even if captaists were willing to gamble on a crop, it is doubtful whether refineries could be rebuilt in time.

BUFFALO—In the Philippines, China and other parts of the Far East the water buffalo is the beast most important to the farmer; it does all his heavy work. The Japs slaughtered for food almost every animal they could find in the Philippines and left the rural population helpless.

Fortunately, a number of these carabaos in recent years swam from New Guinea to northern Australia and multiplied rapidly in the lush grass there. The great herds are comparable to those of the American wild west when droves of bison roamed the plains.

A few years ago a distinguished New Zealand college professor, fed up with books and civilization, set off for northern Australia to lead a pioneer's life. He soon became an "Anzac Buffalo Bill." He and other scouts shot the beasts, stripped them of their hides and left the carcasses.

American UNRRA officials heard of his activities and engaged him to organize a large company to round-up live water buffalos for Philippine and Chinese farmers. The cowboys expect to deliver one hundred thousand this year.

Small farm implements, such as V-shaped hoes and bolo knives for hacking brush, are being manufactured in Australia. The voluntary relief agencies of this nation and New Zealand have collected more than five million pounds of clothing for the Filipinos, although their own people have been on tight rations for four years.

DAY-BY-DAY COUNT ON WASHINGTON'S ACTIVITIES GIVEN

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON.—There is as yet no realism here on the labor situation. The tendency is to drift and hope that, somehow or other, things will right themselves.

Yet Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach admits he is growing exhausted over the ideal. He said to reporters apropos of the coal strike negotiations: "I am getting awfully tired—I was up late last night and the night before."

Lawrence

Here is one man in the cabinet saddled with the task of mediating major labor disputes. He cannot mediate them all. It is a sad commentary on the lack of federal machinery to handle labor controversies that affect the public interest.

It would appear also that efforts are being made to drag President Truman into the labor disputes as a mediator or negotiator of a settlement. If he agrees, he will find it necessary to sidetrack other important national business, just as Mr. Schwellenbach must give his time to particular disputes to the exclusion of other matters so vital to the administration of his department these days.

The President isn't apparently as much disturbed, on the other hand, as is the country over the labor problem. He said in a public speech the other day that the labor disputes were "just a blow-up after a let-down from war" and added: "We still have a few selfish men who think more of their personal interests than they do of the public welfare but they are not going to prevail because you are not going to let them prevail."

The foregoing is not sufficiently explicit to know just what persons or groups the President had in mind. It isn't too important either to identify them because basically the President is much mistaken if he thinks the present wave of labor troubles can be blamed on a few individuals.

The present labor problem is due primarily to the failure of timid politicians in government who may or may not be selfish in thinking about their own reelection and hence of their fear of political reprisals from either management or labor groups.

The failure of the administration to evolve a constructive program for the settlement of labor disputes and to postpone until some time in November consideration of such a program at the labor-management conference indicates a lack of awareness of what is going on in America today.

The labor controversies arise primarily because, despite a seeming wave of high profits, "take-home" pay of the worker is being cut. The 48-hour week permitted workers to get higher incomes than ever before but prices are higher too. Likewise, it is not easy to take away a 30 per cent increase on pre-war scales in basic wages by removing suddenly all the income from overtime. Management is aware of this difficulty in many instances, and there have been proposals to split the difference or otherwise to adjust the wage scales. But this is a major operation. It affects the whole army of workers in America. Only governmental guidance can help solve it.

Clearly when wage and salary stabilization was completely in the hands of governmental agencies the problem could be dealt with in an orderly fashion. Lifting the controls without a substitute program is what has caused the present labor unrest and, while there are undoubtedly selfish men in the picture both on the side of labor unions and managemet, the problem is obviously a product of war conditions. Hence in the absence of a clear-cut transition policy by government the labor crisis can hardly be dismissed as the mischief of a few individuals on either side.

Congress has played a rather curious role too. It pays little attention to the labor disputes and prefers to let nature take its course—which is one way to accelerate economic anarchy. The administration can still save its prestige with both management and labor by bringing out at once a simple proposal to establish a national mediation agency before which all disputes must be submitted and all strikes can be ordered postponed at least until decisions or recommendation of such an agency are made.

Peter Edson's Column:

ARTIFICIAL LIMBS ARE NOT SATISFACTORY

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — One of the most complicated — and touchy — subjects congress has had to investigate, is whether army officers who have suffered amputations are being better fitted with artificial limbs than enlisted men amputees.

Evidence that this situation might exist came to the attention recently of the house sub-committee on aid to the physically handicapped. The war department was presenting its witnesses — mostly officers who had gotten artificial limbs and reported they were well satisfied with them—to testify before the committee. A couple of ex-GIs who had been given artificial legs and were trying to work in a steel mill in Baltimore heard about the hearings and decided to present their side of the case.

One charged that the men who fitted the artificial devices "catered more to officers."

He said the leg the army gave him never fit properly and had been giving him so much trouble he wasn't able to make a living.

The other veteran also charged that officers got better legs and better fits. He said he had to have four operations after he left the army. He said his left still fit poorly although he had improved it by whittling part of it himself. He said he knew of scores of men in the hospital with him recovering from amputations, who are extremely dissatisfied with their artificial arms and legs.

REPRESENTATIVE KELLY DETERMINED TO GO ON

Spurred by the testimony of these two men and other information he gathered, Rep. Augustine B. Kelley (D., Penn.,) said chairman of the committee, plans to get to the bottom of the charge of preferential treatment for officers.

Kelley also said hearings before his group demonstrated the artificial limb business is in the "horse and buggy area."

Among the most informative testimony presented was that by William H. Jacobs, an attorney in the justice department. He lost his leg a few inches below the hip, falling off a wagon when he was a child. Since then he has followed progress of the artificial leg business very closely.

He says there have been only two major improvements in artificial legs in the last 50 years. One is the use of light metal and the other is "hip control." Hip control is the use of a friction knee joint combined with a belt that goes around the body just below the waist.

For persons who have amputations above the knee, weight of the leg is one of the most important factors. Jacobs told the committee that he had six artificial legs before he found one that was satisfactory. And the one he has, he improved after it came from the factory by drilling holes in it and reducing the weight.

RESEARCH COUNCIL IS WORKING ON PROBLEM

Other persons appearing before the committee said they had made many improvements in their artificial legs with devices they invented themselves. One man described a device which locked his knee joint when he stood up. He patented it and soon expects to put it on the market.

Representative Kelley believes the government must sibsidize the artificial limb business and pay for research in improvements, or veterans will continue to be dissatisfied. The national research council is working on improvements in artificial limbs for the government.

Navy is making its own prosthetic devices. It reports most success with artificial hands. Army and veterans administration is buying the best artificial limbs they can get from private manufacturers but are lagging in making improvements.

MacArthur's epitaph for broken Japan is so starkly realistic that it brings one up with a jolt:

"This ends its military might and its military influence in international affairs. It no longer reckons as a world power, either large or small."

Thus perishes an evil power which for almost a hundred years increasingly dominated the Orient until finally greed impelled it to overreach itself. We have realized that Japan has suffered complete defeat, but we are so close to this epochal event that it is difficult to sense its immensity.

Nippon has been utterly smashed. She has been flung into the oblivion from which she emerged, almost within the memory of living man.

Now that's a fact of tremendous import. It means that a vacuum has been created in the Orient. Something must rush in to fill that vacuum. That is, some other people will in due course take its place. Who will it be?

The probabilities are that for a considerable period the influence of the Big Three—America, Russia and Britain — will control the situation. China is a logical successor, but it will be long before she could assume the crown, for she is terribly weak in all categories excepting one—magnificent spirit.

But before we accept this as a finality we should stop and ask ourselves whether there is any other Asiatic power which might intervene.

There's Russia. The Soviet Union is extending its influence methodically in the Asiatic sphere. Japan's defeat is rendering this far easier.

There is no time for prohesy as to what will come out of the Oriental melting-pot, but we shall indeed be short-sighted if we don't recognize that Russia may be the power which will rush into the vacuum created by Japan's elimination.

Well, while a lot of people have been talking about readjusting the boys in service to civilian like it seems that Brownsville, Pa., has actually done something about it.

Gracie

I see that males who whistle or make wolf-like noises at Brownsville females to whom they have not been introduced are liable to thirty days in jail. This should certainly make a nice refresher course for returning soldiers to civilian life.

However, I imagine a lot of fighting men are going to be upset to find they have been fighting for freedom of expression in the world and then come home to find they can't whistle in Brownsville. The good old-fashioned American right to whistle and be whistled at should have been included in the Atlantic charter.

HOLLYWOOD. — Ladies on the warpath seem to have become our specialty. The other day it was Carmen Miranda. Today it's Ella Raines.

Gorgeous Ella said she's tired of being a Hollywood sad sack and that she's going to "sit until I get a good picture."

"I've played a lot of characters," Ella said, "—a simpering weakling, a bashful lady, a cowgirl and a very sedate lady. But I've never played myself on the screen and that's what I want to do. 'Uncle Harry' came closer than any of the other roles, but it still wasn't me."

By "sad sack," Ella said she meant the clothes she wears on the screen.

"It's always dungarees, overalls or a tailored suit," she wailed. "People are beginning to talk. Just once I'd like to wear an evening dress or a negligee. I may not have a Betty Grable figure but it's not mannish either."

INTEGRITY, NOT LEGS

Ella said she had never posed for leg art, but it wasn't because her legs were bad. "Hollywood wants you to sell your integrity—and that's the reason why I don't do leg art."

Now about those reports that she and her husband, Major Kenneth Trout, are about to tell their troubles to a divorce judge. They were high school sweethearts in Seattle, married after Ella came to Hollywood.

"Yes, we had a fight," she said, "and separated for a couple of days. Every couple is entitled to a fight once in a while, aren't they? Well, Hollywood made a big thing of it, and it wasn't fair. Now I can't make any promises about what's going to happen to the marriage. I don't know myself."

An ace flyer, Trout now is in Kansas City taking a course to become a TWA pilot on the Los Angeles-Kansas City run.

Ella said she had other troubles, too.

"I have a bad habit of saying what I think," she said. "I'm always sticking my chin out. I can get along with men all right because I like to talk about fishing and hunting—because I was raised by my father, I guess. But women think I'm a (censored). I just can't sit and talk about clothes and hats and where I'm going shopping."

Geraldine Fitzgerald and Ella didn't get along during filming of "Uncle Harry." It was one of those things," Ella said. "I said what I thought and we had to chip ice off the camera for the rest of the picture."

No Atomic Bomb Defense in Sight

WASHINGTON., Oct. 16—(AP)—Dr. Vanneyar Bush testified yesterday "I see no defense to the atomic bomb in sight."

The director of the office of scientific research and development thus differed in testimony before a senate committee from a report by the house naval committee of "indications that an effective counter measure to atomic bombs had been developed to such an extent that they can be exploded far short of their objectives."

On this point, the top scientist of the group which developed America's war inventions declared:

"There is in my opinion no trick way of getting rid of the atomic bomb because it is an atomic bomb."

Bush said the difference between it and ordinary types of bombs is wrapped up in the magnitude of its explosive power.

I JOIN THE DIAGHILEV TROUPE

X

DIAGHILEV had said: "Ballet is a fusion of three perfect things, Decor, Music and Dance—and none of the three can triumph without the others."

I was not old enough to be able to formulate definite plans for what I wanted to do, except for the one thought—to study music, color, and decor as a base for creative work. I began to think that such ballets as "Walpurgis Night," which were given with dancers strapped in harnesses and flown from arm booms over the stage, could be done in a marvelous way with aerialists trained as dancers, with the requisite ballet movements, and working in harmony with dancers on the ground in a spectacular ballet. So I started studying decorative art and the usual piano classes again, but now with a more definite purpose.

In the early spring of 1919, mother had a lot of trouble over a lawsuit involving records made in America some time before. It seems that mother had sung the same music (which had been specially arranged for her to make the recordings) for more than one company. She had never meant to do anything wrong but must have needed the money and I suppose she didn't realize the seriousness of what she was doing. Now she was fretting herself to death over it, and her throat was not in any too good a condition. So when a telegram came from Pavlova in London, saying that she was arriving for a short tournee to be held during the months of March and April in Belgium, I rejoined her company.

After a gala performance in Brussels for the Russian refugees in the Theatre de la Monnaie before the King and Queen of Belgium, the short tour was over and she mentioned her opening in Drury Lane, London. Rehearsals were starting almost immediately, and she naturally expected me to go on with the company, although grandmama had previously explained to her that I would not be able to accept the world tour which was planned to follow the Drury Lane engagement.

I RETURNED from Belgium to find mother still in a whirl with legal complications. She had got nothing settled (I could never get her to explain exactly what she was up against), but I knew that she was obliged to work despite the delicate condition of her throat. I presumed poor father had not been able to send money to get her out of the lawsuit mess, and it was up to me to help and get working as soon as possible.

There was a series of long and heated discussions with grandmama, who wanted me to go with Diaghilev, opening in the Alhambra at the end of April. He had promised her in Madrid that I was to work in "Tricornio," and his word was the same as a contract. Besides, he wanted her to give him Spanish details for the dances. They got on famously and were always in a huddle with cards and incantations. Diaghilev was extremely superstitious and loved all the things grandmama did and said to bring good luck.

Pavlova expected me to work for her in London in June, since we had accepted her terms verbally, but mother would not sign any contract with her, and the situation became very involved. In the end, grandmama got her way about my joining Diaghilev, and we went to the Alhambra at the last minute.

It was not a nice thing to have done to Pavlova, for she had been very correct with us. I have always hoped that she understood I was not to blame.

THE ballet season of that year was marvelous. The triumphs of the "Boutique Fantasque" and "El Tricornio" are too well known for me to give a dissertation on them, but undoubtedly they were two of the most brilliant representations Diaghilev ever produced. I had special lessons with Maestro Diaghilev's ballet master and technical aide, Cecchetti, who was perhaps the world's greatest teacher of dancing and worked his pupils relentlessly. As soon as he got hold of me, he started after my left arm, which was stiff and often difficult to work with.

Up to the time I started with Cecchetti's intensive training, I had been able to hide any deficiencies very successfully: even Pavlova had seldom criticized them. Cecchetti had no patience with people who had anything wrong with them, and when I began to have pain in my leg, I was terrified he would find out about that, too. As I have said before, I am able to hide the shortness in my left leg so well that it is impossible for anybody to detect the difference in length while I dance or do aerial work—but in my fear of Cecchetti's noticing there was something wrong with the leg, I strained my muscles and made the pain worse in an effort to hide the limp.

Cecchetti never said anything about it, and I never told anybody that I was suffering, but the pain in my arm was another story, for it ached continually and kept me from sleeping at night, till I began to lose weight. Finally I went by myself to see Dr. Abercrombie, who had taken care of me after Olympia. He told me I needed an operation to have the shoulder opened so the bone could be scraped, and that if I didn't have it, the arm would give me serious trouble in later years. Of course I said I would think it over, but I never went back to him or told my grandmother or mother about it. Fortunately, after a while it got less painful.

BLAKESLEE ON A-BOMB

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

OAK RIDGE, Tenn., Oct. 13.—The atomic bomb promises to repay its $2,000,000,000 cost in three ways, each independent, and each many fold on the profit side.

The three are power, new processes and apparatus for industry, and still in the secret category, some fundamental scientific discoveries.

When Nobel prizes are given for achievement connected with the bomb, some at least are likely to go to men who have scarcely been mentioned because their work cannot be talked of without great restrictions. This restricted field covers physics and chemistry, but particularly chemistry.

More than a thousand scientists participated in the atomic bomb project. Their individual stories have not been told.

Dr. E. O. Lawrence, the still youthful genius of the University of California who invented the cyclotron before he was 30, played a dual role. He contributed vitally to the scientific discoveries that led to the electromagnetic separator, the system of great magnets that separated uranium 235 from its non-explosive companion, 238. He also acted as an administrator. His advice contributed to construction of the great plant for the electrical method. This plant was the first to get the explosive uranium in quantity.

Enrico Fermi, Columbia university, who emigrated to the United States after he had become world famous and was naturalized here, was one of the pure science wizards of the bomb. He stuck to research only. Colleagues say he has few peers in his line. He is also young, and is slight and shy.

A. H. Compton, University of Chicago, one of the great physicists, did an administrative job here and at Chicago that carries a story probably unique in the history of universities. Chicago university actually went into the manufacturing business on a big scale by sponsoring the staff for the work on plutonium pilot plant here.

This is probably the first time that a university went into industry. Big business was shy about trying what the university undertook. And with good reason. The project was to make a metal which never before existed, by a method never before used, and the method was pure alchemy. Dr. Compton advised the university that the project was a gamble, but worth the try.

With what the university learned here, the Dupont company took over, on a line new even to them, and set up the huge, successful plutonium plants in the state of Washigton. Little known to the public was the work of two scientists who carried the torch in the early days, when there was doubt whether to undertake the bomb job.

One is George B. Pegram, acting president now of Columbia university, who didn't want a bomb but who knew what was going on in Germany. He made some of the early moves to interest the government.

The other is L. J. Briggs, age 71, head of the U. S. bureau of standards. After the scientists had made their first report that prospects of anything useful in either power or bombs for World War II looked doubtful, Dr. Briggs carried on. He was influential in obtaining further study and finally the decision that not only could a bomb be made, but that there were four likely methods.

In all Oak Ridge you are unlikely to see a single beard. The workers don't wear them - and American scientists have not had beards for many years. Nor long hair, either.

Ten State Teams Have Games This Week; WT Is Idle

Ten of the eleven Texas colleges playing football this year have games this week with only one intersectional tilt on the schedule.

Five members of the Southwest Conference will be engaged in family squabbles with Texas, the only undefeated team remaining, traveling to Little Rock to play Arkansas. Rice meets Southern Methodist at Dallas and Texas A. and M. clashes with Texas Christian at Ft. Worth.

Baylor meets Texas Tech of the border conference at Lubbock.

The north Texas Aggies and John Tarleton plowboys, each winless and scoreless in two games, play each other, meeting at Arlington Friday night.

Southwestern journeys to Ruston, La., to play Lousiana Tech.

West Texas state, which has dropped four straight games, rests this week.

Gillory Never Passed Before Entering T.U.

AUSTIN, Oct. 16—(AP)—Byron Gillory didn't do any passing in high school football; he was too busy making long touchdown runs.

But when he came to the University of Texas this year, Coach D. X. Bible, on the look-out for somebody who could throw the ball, tried the little guy. Het ook to it like a duck to water. So today they are describing him as a combination of Jack Crain and Pete Layden. If you know Southwest Conference football, you'll recognize those names readily enough. Crain was the greatest running back the conference ever saw; Layden was one of its greatest passers.

Forty-five thousand fans Saturday saw what assistant coach Blair Cherry, who coaches the backs, meant when he called Gillory a Crain-Layden combination. The 140-pound speedster not only turned in a great brand of running but his passing beat Oklahoma and kept Texas in the ranks of the undefeated and untied. Gillory turned in the amazing feat of throwing ten passes and completing nine for 100 yards.

Gillory has played in only two games this season. A lame ankle kept him out of the other two. But he has thrown 14 passes and connected with 11 for 129 yards in those two outings and in one game he played only a few minutes. He also has carried the ball 20 times for 68 yards

Louis, Conn To Fight Title Bout in June

The Brown Bomber signed to defend his title yesterday.

Conn is scheduled to come in tomorrow to scribble his name on the legal document that will enrich him for life.

DALLAS, Oct. 16—(AP)—Results of the past week made a few changes in the rankings of the Texas schoolboy football teams.

Highland Park (Dallas) finally reached full strength and showed it was as good as everyone thought back before the season opened by crushing a pretty good Sherman team 45-6.

Lufkin, Waco, Goose Creek, Marshall, Amarillo and Odessa all gained in prestige but Wichita Falls, last week's leader, faded somewhat when it was able to beat often-defeated Graham only 19-12. Pampa, 6-0 winner over Norman, dropped to tenth.

Here are the rankings from this corner for the week:

1. Highland Park.
2. Waco.
3. Lufkin.
4. Marshall.
5. Amarillo.
6. Goose Creek.
7. Odessa.
8. Wichita Falls.
9. Austin.
10. Pampa.

The second ten: Plainview, Paris, Breckenridge, Brownwood, Brownsville, Milby (Houston), Cleburne, Port Arthur, Sunset (Dallas), Corpus Christi.

Next in line: North Side (Fort Worth), Crozier Tech (Dallas), Jeff Davis (Houston), San Jacinto, (Houston), Galveston, Electra, Temple .

There also have been a few changes made in the district championship favorites.

Brownsville walloped Kingsville to become top team of district 16 and Sunset moved up in the Dallas district when it clipped the leader —Woodrow Wilson—13-0. Other favorites kept their places. They are:

District 1—Amarillo; District 2—Wichita Falls; District 3—Odessa; District 4—Austin (El Paso); District 5—Paris; District 6—Highland Park; District 7—North Side (Fort Worth); District 9—Breckenridge; District 10—Waco; District 11 — Marshall; District 12—Lufkin; District 13—Milby; District 14—Goose Creek; District 15—Austin.

All that work Ralph Wolf did producing rodeos in behalf of the Baylor athletic fund is paying off. Now it appears the Bears will have a good season upon their return to football — much better than anybody expected — and next year they'll be the powers of the league.

It wouldn't be surprising to see the other athletic directors in the conference hauling out boots and saddles next summer.

Texas Gets 10th; Tulsa Hurricane Moves To Top 20

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—The same five teams that dominated last week's Associated poll to determine the best college elevens in the country hold sway in the tabulations compiled today with Army retaining first place in the Big Ten.

The cadets garnered 90 nominations for the top spot on the 105 ballots, allowing only 14 for Navy and one for Ohio State.

Army, with 1035 points, was followed by Navy, Notre Dame, Ohio State and Minnesota in that order, duplicating their rankings of last week. Ten points are given for each first place vote, nine for second, etc. All critics who did not place the West Pointers first on their ticket ranked the cadets second.

Alabama moved up from seventh to sixth place and Pennsylvania 49 to 0 victor over North Carolina, hopped from 13th place a week ago to seventh while Indiana and Texas, eighth and 10th respectively, in the first compilation, kept those places in the present counting.

Purdue, whose boilermakers crushed Iowa, 40 to 0, shot from the 15th slot of seven days ago, to ninth this week.

Michigan, ninth in the previous listing, skidded to 13th, following its defeat by Army, while Southern California, lone West Coast power a week ago, spun from sixth to 14th in the 33 to 6 defeat by the San Diego naval outfit.

Ohio State and Purdue appear to have the toughest battle to retain their rankings this weekend as the two meet in Columbus with the loser almost certain to become a discard in the Big Ten title race. Army shouldn't have too much trouble in keeping its prestige, playing the Melville, R. I., topredo boat aggregation at West Point.

Navy meets Georgia Tech in an arc-light contest at Baltimore.

The leading teams, ranked on a basis of 10 points for each first place vote, nine for second, etc. (First place votes in parenthesis):

Army (90)	1,035
Navy (14)	803
Notre Dame	768
Ohio State (1)	655
Minnesota	581
Alabama	511
Pennsylvania	310
Indiana	292
Purdue	184
Texas	117

Second ten: 11—St. Mary's; 114; 12—Georgia 113; 13—Michigan 94; 14—Southern California 45; Oklahoma A. & M. 42; Duke 40; 17—Columbia 27; 18—Tulsa 24; 19—Holy Cross 22; 20—Mississippi State 18.

Honorable mention: Tennessee 12; Washington 8; USLA 6; Wake Forest 5; Virginia, Mississippi and Illinois 4; Louisiana and Baylor 2; Missouri and North Carolina 1.

Off To A Good Start

Phil Collella, Notre Dame's freshman left halfback, scored a singlehanded victory for his alma mater, dear old Notre Dame in the very first play of his college football career, running 76 yards for the only touchdown against Illini.

Boswell Leading College Scorers

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—(AP)—Jim Boswell, a back for little Oberlin college of Ohio, is leading the nation's collegiate football scores with 68 points, but his place at the top of the point-making procession may be temporary.

Boswell, who racked up his total on 11 touchdowns, probably will be dethroned soon as he already has played in seven games while all the other high-point men have played in only three or four.

The leaders include:

Southwest
Preston Smith,

ECUADOR CAUGHT WITH ITS STAMPS DOWN

QUITO, Ecuador—(AP)—Ecuador had a large store of 50-centavo (4-cent) stamps commemorating a "Good Will Trip" of President Arroyo del Rio in 1942. The stamps are still being sold and recognized, but Arroyo del Rio was overthrown in May, 1944, and has been in exile in Colombia ever since.

28 U. S. Navy Men Killed in Typhoon

By The Associated Press

The death toll from the typhoon which whipped across the west Pacific last week stood today at 28 U. S. navy personnel and seven Japanese prisoners of war of Okinawa, and 1340 persons in western Japan.

Meanwhile, fleet headquarters at Pearl Harbor said six enlisted men were killed and 23 injured in an unexplained explosion at a navy receiving station on Okinawa Friday. A court of inquiry began an investigation.

The navy also reported 70 missing and 423 injured during the storm. The U. S. army listed no deaths but a "considerable number of minor injuries." The army previously announced that 100 soldiers were injured.

Navy authorities in Washington said the typhoon sank three naval vessels—the Yacht Southern Seas, LSM (landing ship medium) 15 and YMS (motor minesweeper) 383 Beached 30 and damaged three.

Ex-Vernon Grid Star Is Leading SWC Ball-Toters

By The Associated Press

Sammie Pierce, the big Baylor halfback, has moved back into first place among ball-carriers in the Southwest Conference.

Pierce held the spot through the first week of play but was supplanted by Preston Smith, Texas A. and M. fullback, the next two. But the Baylor freshman's work against Arkansas shoved him back up and he now leads with 368 yards net in 39 carries, according to conference statistics announced today by James H. Stewart, executive secretary.

Smith is in second place with 350 yards on 64 runs and Bob Goode of A. and M. has moved from fifth to third with 218 on 50 carries.

Leon Joslin, Texas Christian freshman, still is the leading passer although he didn't play last week. Joslin has 364 yards on 25 completions out of 43 attempts. Jack Price of Baylor moved into second with 270 yards on 20 connections out of 34 and Dave Moon of Southern Methodist pulled into third place with 239 on 14 completions in 32 throws.

Jim Plyler of Texas continues to pace the punters. His average now is 39 yards even. Howard Maley of Southern Methodist, who averaged 44.5 yards on eight boots against Oklahoma A. and M. last week, moved from eighth to second place with an average of 38.7.

In team statistics Texas still is out in front with 1279 yards rushing and passing while Baylor has come from fourth to third with 1171 yards. Baylor has the top defensive record—giving the opposition an average of 105 yards running and passing but A. and M.'s pass defense still leads. The Aggies have allowed only six completions in 32 attempts against them.

Babe Zaharias Leads In Fort Worth Meet

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 16—(AP)—The Texas Women's Gold Open tournament at Colonial Country club moved into its second day of play today with Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Los Angeles at the front.

Mrs. Zaharias shot a 71, four under par, for medalist honors. Polly Riley of Fort Worth carded a one over par 76 and Miss Dot Kielty of Los Angeles turned in a 78.

Bob Cochran Takes Hardscrabble Meet

FORT SMITH, Ark., Oct. 16—(AP)—Bob Cochran of St. Louis is the new champion of the Hardscrabble Invitational Golf tournament after his defeat yesterday of H. M. Selby of Houston, Texas, 5 and 4.

Both Cochran and Selby turned in a 4 over par 75 on the first 18 holes, but Cochran took and held the lead after the 19th.

Noted Church Man Slated to Lecture In Shamrock

SHAMROCK, Oct. 16—Dr. Stephen J. Corey, president emeritus of the College of the Bible Seminary, Lexington, Kentucky, will make two appearances in Shamrock tomorrow, October 17.

At 3 or 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, he will give an address at a high school assembly program, and at 7:30 o'clock that evening, he will speak at the First Christian church.

Dr. Corey has been connected with the organized work of Disciples of Christ for 40 years. He served the Foreign Christian Missionary Society as secretary of foreign missions from 1905 until its work and that of five other national boards was united in the United Christian Missionary Society in 1920.

He continued to serve in that organization as foreign secretary, and then as its president for eight years. In 1939 he resigned to become president of the College of the Bible, from which position he has just retired.

Dr. Corey has travelled in Africa, Asia and South America and has written a book dealing with each of these trips. He wrote "Among Central African Tribes," in 1912, and "Among Asia's Needy Millions" following his journey to the Far East in 1914.

"Among South American Friends" tells of his visit to South American mission fields when he attended the South American Congress of Christian workers at Montevideo, Uruguay, in 1925. Two years later he visited the mission fields of Japan, China, Philippine Islands and India to study their problems. On the return trip he attended the International Missionary Council at Jerusalem, one of the most important gatherings of missionary leaders of all nationalities in modern times.

NEWS OF OUR MEN and WOMEN IN UNIFORM

FOUR STAR MOTHER

Four star mother Mrs. Margaret Barnett, 221 N. Frost, will soon have but two stars; one for Bill Barnett, SP2/c, who is stationed on Okinawa, the other for Junior Barrett, F1/c, now on Guam.

Bill, 33, entered the service with the Seabees Oct., 1943. The following March he went to England, and was with the invasion troops on D-day. He returned to the States last December, in April he was redeployed to the Pacific theater where he has since been stationed on Okinawa. Word from him has not been received since the recent typhoon there.

Junior, 22, entered the service July, 1944, received his boot training at San Diego and other in the electrical school at Gulf Port, Miss. He went overseas last March, was first stationed in the New Hebrides, is now on Guam.

The other two stars are for First Sgt. Harry Barnett and T/Sgt. Allie F. Barnett.

Harry, 28, is now in the Fort Sam Houston separation center, San Antonio. He is expected home the last of this week. Harry entered the service October, 1941, left for England March, 1944 and saw service in France and Germany with the 3rd field artillery. He returned to the States Oct. 8. He was formerly with the Oil Well Supply.

Allie, 35, was honorably discharged Oct. 10 at Fort Sam Houston, returned home the same day. He entered the service in Jan., 1942, served with the 34th air corps in Africa, Sicily and Italy from the time he was shipped overseas, Feb. 7, 1943, to Sept. 30, 1945. He is eligible to wear four campaign stars, and has received two unit citations. He was formerly employed as a teller at the First National bank.

SAILOR DISCHARGED

Charles Willard Haymes, 39, WT2/c, USNR, of 727 Zimmer, received his honorable discharge from the naval service Oct. 4, at the Norman, Okla., separation center.

He was sworn into the service Feb. 1942 at Denver, Colo., and was overseas for 38 months on the USS Mustin.

Prior to entering the service he worked on a farm and ranch. He intends to return to farming.

IS "CLEARED"

Capt. Earl E. Atkinson, LeFors, has cleared the Grenier field, N. H., separation center and is now on terminal leave at the expiration of which he will return to civilian life in an inactive military status.

A gas tester in civilian life, Capt. Atkinson served four years and had 16 months overseas. He is a veteran of the Pacific, Asiatic, American and European theaters of operation. He participated in the Russian, Balkan and Italian campaigns.

He is the son of L. A. Atkinson, Guymon, Okla., and the husband of Mrs. Mary E. Atkinson, LeFors.

HOW THOSE IRISH DO GET AROUND

SALT LAKE CITY—(AP) — Capt. W. L. Monson would like it a little better if his dog could understand English. But the animal, picked up Monson in Italy, will answer only to commands spoken in Italian. Monson learned enough Italian so he and his Irish setter get along fine but the airmen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Monson, admit they can't make "Rusty" understand a word.

Officer Makes Big Decision In First Battle

WITH AMERICAN FORCES ON JAPAN—(AP)—War forces face many hard choices, but none harder than that which faced a young American battalion commander in the French Moroccan landing during his first few hours of combat.

No soldier knew what waited for him as he tumbled down the rope ladder into the bobbing, pitching assault boat just before dawn and headed in for Africa's dark and inhospitable coast under a black sky lit only by roving French searchlights ashore, crannying into clouds after airplanes that weren't yet there.

The battalion commander was a tall, slim lieutenant colonel with dark eyes and hair cropped close like his men. It was for him the first of many battles with the Third infantry division which carried its blue and white striped shoulder patch through Sicily, Italy, France and Germany before war's end.

The battalion had few casualties as it pulled inland away from the shining sand and moved forward under cover. The troops before them were largely Senegalese. They were happy to hand over their guns, for the most part, with wide gold-toothed grins.

But out of Cape Fedala, the French batteries had opened an ambitious duel with American heavily-gunned cruisers.

"Spread out!" shouted a lieutenant to the huddling men. "Spread out and dig in!"

Another officer kneeled and shouted into his walkie-talkie phone.

"For God's sake tell the navy to lift fire! we can't get in to get those French guns. The navy shells are landing in the area. We've already lost two men."

He waited long moments and his face whitened as the answer came back through the phone from higher headquarters.

"The navy can't disengage," he said turning to other officers. "They say if they lift fire the French batteries will open up on our transports and sink them."

It was true. He could look across the waters and see the lightly-gunned transports. If the cruisers ceased fire the French batteries most certainly would pour shell after shell thorugh transports still heavily loaded with troops, gasoline, ammunition. Each transport was a potential death torch for hundreds of men.

The young commander was caught in the cruelest dilemma of all warfare he had to sit there helplessly and fail in his mission to destroy the enemy batteries or move his men forward through their own fleet's shells. He didn't hesitate long.

"Let's get going!" he said. And the men fell in with him and the doughboys move on in wide spaced lines through the pattern of terrible sound and steel.

They stomed and knocked out

They stormed and knocked out silenced. They sent up signal flares for "mission accomplished" and naval fire lifted and the transports were safe.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 145—(AP)—Grain futures ran in to a sizable stumbling block on their long upward path today. Wheat fell more than two cents a bushel at times and corn and rye more than a cent. Oats were off fractionally most of the session.

Wheat dipped on profit-taking and slackened demand due to disappointing export reports from Washington. Oats and rye advanced slightly to new seasonal peaks in early dealings. Oats then weakened under long diliquidation and rye dropped in sympathy with wheat.

Wheat closed 1; to 2⅜ cents lower than the previous finish, December $1.76 ½-⅝, corn was down ⅛ to 1½, December $1.18⅛, onts were off ⅝ to 1¼, December 67, rye was 1 to 2⅜ cents lower, December $1 59⅛-¼, and barley was unchanged to 1¾ off, December $1.18½.

Panhandle Briefs

According to the Donley County Leader Mrs. Mike Thornberry, president of the P.T.A., announced last week that the South Ward school cafeteria sponsored by the P.T.A. would be opened Monday, Oct. 15.

The money to start the cafeteria was raised recently through several activities by the P.T.A.

A new crop was announced successful in the Donley Leader. It was that of J. H. Duckett, who decided this year to raise bees. He reports a very successful crop of honey of very delicious flavor. The only complaint against his new venture is that of his neighbors who claim that his bees stay busy in their alfalfa fields and flower beds.

The American Legion Aubyn E. Clark Post No. 126 states that approximately 1060 men and women of Donley county have been in the armed services since the declaration of war.

The Ochiltree County Herald reports that the county is lagging in support of the war chest, in fact it is termed "disgracefully poor."

A Gay Nineties Barn party, a home talent program, will be held at the Perryton high school auditorium Monday, Oct. 22. Proceeds from the play will go to Teen Town or the "Wagon Wheel," a name selected by the high school students for their recreation center.

The Perryton American Legion auxiliary will present the musical comedy, "Pep Parade," Oct. 17-18 at the school auditorium.

The comedy is based on the merry-go-round life of the Peck family, states the Ochiltree County Herald. Gussie Peck "rules the roost" in the Peck household, including her husband, Henry, and daughter, Judy.

O. L. Doane, El Dorado, Ark., has been employed by the Perryton chamber of commerce as full time secretary-manager.

Wheeler county's deep test well, the Sinclair-Prairie No. 1 Henderson, was drilling at 6,750 feet last Tuesday noon, according to E. K. Caperton, who assembled the huge block of land surrounding the location.

Location of the well is two miles north and one-half mile west of the Twitty townsite. At noon Tuesday drillers reported they were in a granite wash. At 6,750 feet the well is nearing the deepest hole ever sunk in Wheeler county. Contract depth of the well is 8,500 feet. The Oil Well Drilling company has the contract.

E. K. Caperton, chairman of the Wheeler county war chest drive, declared last Thursday that results of the campaign during the first 10 days were discouraging.

Plans for creating one of the outstanding school districts in the county were outlined Oct. 8 when a group of 250 persons attended an open meeting called by trustees of the Hereford Independent school district.

The group, composed chiefly of patrons from rural areas in the Hereford district, suggested consolidation as a cure for troubles faced by the district and recommended an even greater expansion program than the $280,000 expenditures suggested and outlined by the school board. A demand for transportation to students within the district was made.

"Around Town" with the Hereford Brand says that it's a good thing the world series is over, or at least, a lot of the female employees on Main street are getting ready to see their bosses back on the job again. On the day of the final game Charley Cogdell's showroom was filled to capacity, and work was called off in a lot of other places while everybody ganged around the radio.

A downtown cleanup of Dalhart was held Oct. 12. Mayor Harold Hogue asked for a thorough cleanup, and requested spraying with DDT after the dirt and trash was removed.

Hansford county has attained its million member quota in the American Farm Bureau federation. There are 245 members in the county.

The Rev. C. F. Bastion was responsible for one of the most outstanding programs ever presented at a meeting of the Spearman Lions club last Tuesday noon according to the Spearman Reporter.

Bastion had as his guest the Rev. A. L. Eisenhuth, pastor of the First Christian church of Guymon, Okla., formerly of Jewish faith, who is one of the best educated and trained individuals in this section of the country. He studied music in several foreign countries and was associated with Cecil B. Demille in preparing musical scores for many nationally famous pictures.

His outstanding contribution was the musical score for "King of Kings," silent picture filmed in 1917. Eisenhuth traveled with the picture and played the musical scores all over the country. The picture was of Biblical background and included the crucifiction of Christ. At the Tuesday noon meeting Eisenhuth played the music for this scene in the picture. He also played the march introducing the picture.

Professors of Louisiana State University Quit

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 16—(AP)—Resignations of faculty members of Louisiana state university's school of medicine here poured into the dean's office today, climaxing a period of discord which the alumni ascribed to "insecurity" of appointments.

Eleven faculty members quit today in letter to the dean Dr. Wilbur C. Smith. Three others previously had resigned.

One of the latest to leave was Dr. B. I. Burns, former dean, who was replaced by Dr. Smith last Sept. 4. Dr. Burns had been retained as professor of anatomy.

Dr. Smith went to L. S. U. from Tulane university, where he was head of the department of gross anatomy and athletic director for the college. He is also president of the National Collegiate athletic association.

Neither Dr. Smith, nor Dr. W. B. Hatcher, president of Louisiana state university, would make public today the reason given for the resignations.

Dr. Samuel W. Nelken, chairman of the alumni executive committee which was complained of "insecurity," declared in an interview that his group was asking the board of supervisors to adopt safeguards on the tenure of professorships.

"We want to see changes in the act creating the board, Dr. Nelken said in an interview, "which would safeguard the tenure in some way so that it would not be possible to change deans and heads of departments at the pleasure of the board of supervisors and the president. In other words, cause should be shown for their removal."

He's the Sole Owner of the Business Now

Yes, Mr. Johnson is the sole owner of the business now. But he wouldn't be, if he hadn't invested in Southwestern Life Insurance. His business, you see, began as a partnership; a business that started from scratch, and blossomed into a thriving enterprise. And just at its peak, Mr. Johnson's partner lost his life in an accident.

Death terminates a partnership business—and unless proper arrangements have been made to continue it in some other form, the business must liquidate. The firm name, property, trade, good will—every asset passes away with a partner's death, unless the partners have taken sound steps to perpetuate that business.

Fortunate for Mr. Johnson, he and his partner had wisely arranged through Southwestern Life Insurance that either survivor should have the right to purchase the deceased's interest—and, equally as important, the money to do it with. That's how Mr. Johnson became sole owner of the business . . . and how he has arranged for his heirs to carry on when he gets ready to quit.

Death is the greatest single hazard any business faces. Business insurance offers the most effective method of offsetting the losses, ironing out complications and solving the problems of readjustment that death causes. Through Southwestern Life Insurance, you can do for your business just what Mr. Johnson did. You can have the ready cash, when you need it, to replace a key man, buy out your partner's widow, strengthen the financial structure of your business. Assure the future of that business today with Southwestern Life Insurance.
