NRA Policy Ended With Court Ruling

Decision Against Guffey Act Bars Means To Control Industry

WASHINGTON, May 19. (AP)—The end of any new deal attempt to control industry or regulate labor along lines of the invalidated NRA and the Wagner labor act was seen today, after the supreme court had struck down the Guffey coal control act.

The court threw out the three vital features of the Guffey act—the 15 per cent tax on coal production, labor provisions and price-fixing.

Under the terms of its decision it appeared unlikely any successful new deal effort could be made to re-write control laws upon the ruins of the NRA and other invalidated new deal statutes.

Additional weight to this interpretation was lent by a District of Columbia court of appeals decision which cited the high court's AAA and NRA decisions in holding unconstitutional use of work relief funds for the resettlement administration.

Three Opinions
The import of the Guffey decision was seen in the fact that three opinions were presented by the court—a majority ruling written by Justice George Sutherland and concurred in by five colleagues, a minority decision in which three justices joined and a separate concurring opinion submitted by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

The court's decision was so far-reaching that it appeared clear that without constitutional change of some type, virtually all proposed substitutes for industry and labor control were barred.

Seven questions were presented in the majority opinion as necessary for settlement.

Court Answers
The questions and the majority's answers:

1. The right of stockholders to bring suits testing the Guffey act. The court upheld this right.

2. Whether the suits were brought prematurely.

The court held that they were not prematurely brought.

3. Whether the 15 per cent tax on coal sales at the mine was a true tax or a penalty.

The court held it was clearly a penalty and not a true tax.

4. Whether congress had power to attempt such control as the Guffey law sought to impose.

The court held congress under the constitution did not have this power.

5. Whether the labor provisions of the act could be upheld as regulation of interstate commerce.

The court held this delegation of power to be a violation of the fifth amendment of the constitution.

6. Whether the price-fixing provisions of the act can stand alone if other parts of the act are held unconstitutional.

The court held they were an integral part of the act and while not ruling on them directly said they could not stand alone.

Final Budget OK Expected

City's Public Hearing Attracts Three; No Changes Made

With no major changes in prospect, the city's budget for the fiscal year 1936-37 is due to be approved finally by the commission at its regular session on Tuesday night of next week. That will be the next step in the budget procedure, following the public hearing held Sunday night.

The hearing, incidentally, was merely a formality, since it attracted three persons outside the regular city official personnel. Present were W. S. Davies, an "old regular" who attends all the budget hearings; E. D. Merrill, a representative of The Herald; and a newsmen constituted the budget audience a year ago.

None of those present made any suggestions following the reading of the budget recommendations by City Manager E. V. Spence. The commission previously had given its tentative approval.

The budget calls for total appropriations of $172,999.92 from an estimated revenue of $186,025, leaving an estimated unappropriated balance of $13,025.08.

Appropriations call for $118,613 from the general fund and $53,383.92 from the interest and sinking fund. The general fund appropriations are some $10,000 less than the $128,613 expended during the last fiscal year.

Testimony In Bell's Trial Is Concluded

Faces Charge Of Theft In Connection With Stock Transaction

Tuesday afternoon the case of W. R. Bell, charged with theft of $2,347.50 given him for investment on the stock exchange, neared the jury as only one defense and state arguments remained to be heard. Testimony in the trial was concluded Monday evening but the charge was not completed until Tuesday morning.

Bell, according to state's charges, was alleged to have given the money by Alvie E. Dolen and wife to be used in the purchase of securities on the New York or Chicago exchange. The defendant, at that time manager of H. O. Bedford exchange here, deposited the money to his own account, witnesses stated, and subsequently withdrew it but did not deliver the stock.

Tell of Transaction
Both Mr. and Mrs. Dolen testified to the transaction and produced receipts given by Bell. B. T. Cardwell, First National bank employee, testified to the deposit and withdrawals.

H. O. Bedford, owner of a string of exchanges, said on the stand that his employees were not authorized to make private transactions. A civil suit has been entered against the Bedford exchange here, deposited the money to his own account, witnesses stated, and subsequently withdrew it but did not deliver the stock.

Deputy Sheriff Andrew Merrick told of having arrested Bell in January in a hotel room at San Angelo. The defendant, he said, was registered under the name of Russell Bell and that when he found him, Bell, the room was darkened, the phone muffled and the defendant in bed.

Partnership Affair
Although Bell did not take the stand, the defense attorneys contended that the transaction was in the nature of a partnership affair, that Bell had been empowered to invest the money for the couple, and that they expected him to cash the money and attend to the transactions. They added that the time for completion of the contract had not expired when Bell was taken into custody.

G. G. Gaines, Lubbock, W. E. Simpson, Graham, C. G. Taylor, Rankin, Lee R. Lane, Balmorhea, Cady Bell, Garden City, J. W. Hodges, H. C. Burrus, W. W. Crenshaw and W. R. Broadus of Big Spring were placed on the stand by the defense as character witnesses.

MEXICO RAIL STRIKE FAILS

Government Steps In, Men Ordered Back To Work

MEXICO CITY, May 19. (AP)—A strike of 48,000 employees of the Mexican National Railways collapsed today under counter action from the Cardenas administration. Leaders of the strikers ordered the workers back to their posts at noon today after the government declared the strike unjustified and "nonexistent." Cardenas' personal appeal was believed largely responsible for the strike collapse.

The war department ordered the commanders of all military zones to enforce the anti-strike decision. The conciliation and arbitration board warned workers they would lose their rights under collective labor contracts if they failed to return to work within 24 hours.

The walkout was called yesterday and the government's decision came within a few hours. The intervention of President Cardenas prevented a strike on the railways last year and resulted in the drawing up of a labor contract which is still in effect.

Workers demanded higher pay. President Antonio Madrazo of the railway, who asserted granting of the workers' demands was "economically impossible," maintained a firm stand. He contended the wage increases asked would amount to more than $4,000,000 and cause an annual deficit of nearly $200,000.

AREA BENEFITTED BY MORE GENERAL RAINS

Soaking Showers Fall Over Howard, Glasscock Counties

The range and crop outlook was brighter in the Big Spring area Tuesday than it has been for months, following rains that fell over the section Monday night, adding beneficial moisture to that of the previous night.

Slow, soaking showers fell over most of Howard county, a survey by The Herald revealed, and extended into Glasscock county which had been passed up heretofore.

Although the fall generally gauged less than the downpours of Sunday night, it was considered as valuable to farm and ranch lands, since the rain fell slowly enough to soak the soil. Sunday night's downpour was so hard that much of the water was lost in run-off.

.46 Inch Here

A fall of .46 inch was registered at the airport here. The rain extended westward to Stanton, where an inch was reported, and was general east of here. Light showers were reported from Coahoma, Vincent, Green Valley and R-Bar. Chalk reported a good rain, and the fall in the East Howard oil field was estimated at an inch.

Stanton reported that the rain was general over the eastern and northern parts of Martin county, with showers lighter to the west.

The fall at Ackery was estimated at something less than half-inch, but slow, soaking showers were general in that section.

General in Glasscock
Particularly benefited was the Glasscock county ranch country. Garden City had precipitation measured at .41 inch and the fall there was lighter than elsewhere in the county. The Herald was told. Rain varying from a half-inch to 1.2 inches was general over the county, it was reported.

Ranges will be greatly helped, it was said; and moisture for plant and soil is assured for most farming areas.

Rains Monday and Monday night were fairly general over West Texas. A brisk downpour accounting for about two inches fell at Haskell, where high winds were reported. Precipitation reported from other points included:

Other Points
Baird, two inches; Sweetwater, one-fourth inch; Colorado, Roby, Lorraine, Westbrook, showers; Snyder, half-inch; Winters, 1.2 inches; Coleman, heavy rain; Abilene, .23 inch; Seymour, Knox City and Benjamin, showers.

Some of the driest sections of the Panhandle also were drenched Monday afternoon and night, the fall varying from one-half to five inches. Friona, in Parmer county, had the five-inch downpour. The two western tiers of counties on the North Plains received moisture, and the fall at Amarillo was one inch. Lubbock reported .21 inch.

Blankenship Talks At Club

Children's Work Stressed In Program At Rotary Luncheon

W. C. Blankenship, superintendent of schools, was principal speaker at the Rotary club at its Tuesday noon-day luncheon on a program in charge of T. W. Ashley, chairman of the boys' work committee. His subject "Our Responsibility to the Boys and Girls of This Community," was ably given.

Little Miss William Elsie Kinross of the West Ward school thanked the club for the free milk being distributed at that school. She was introduced by Supt. Blankenship.

Glenn Bays, member of Boy Scout Troop No. 1, sponsored by the local Rotary club, gave a short talk on "The American Flag." Walton Morrison, scoutmaster of Troop 1, told of the activities of Boy Scouts in this area, and of the coming camp at Barksdale, on the Nueces river.

Visiting Rotarians were Lloyd Mackey, Midland; Howard Crouse, Marshall. Visitors included Joe Baldridge, Lubbock; Mrs. Cecil Wason, Mrs. Bob Parks, Miss William Elsie Kinross, Glenn Bays of Big Spring; F. H. Coughlin, Fort Worth.

Program Chairman W. T. Strange announced next week's program, in charge of William (Bill) Tate, would be built around the Memorial Day theme.

Better Crop Prospects Aid To Business

Summer Weather Also Factor In Business Gains Of The Week

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The prevalence of mid-summer weather and a better feeling over improved crop prospects gave retail trade a livelier tone than the previous week, resulting in a moderate rise in wholesale activity, particularly in implement and construction lines, according to nationwide reports to the department of commerce. Gains over last year were heavier than over the previous week.

There was no evidence of recession in industry, and in many instances plants were being expanded. Marked improvement in employment was reported by many cities, while the rising tide in construction continued.

Rainy Speed Planting
Drouth anxiety was removed in most sections as general rains stimulated pastures and speeded up planting with the result that crop conditions were excellent, although some previous injury had occurred.

In Delaware, the spring drouth and drying winds resulted in $250,000 crop damage, principally to strawberries, according to the Wilmington report. The St. Louis report said rains had been beneficial, but there was still a deficiency of moisture.

In the Louisville, New Orleans, Minneapolis, Houston, Dallas, Omaha and Pacific Coast regions, ground was in fine shape. The Jacksonville report estimated the value of Florida fruits and vegetables for the season at $55,477,194.

Construction gains were general and in some cases noteworthy.

Transfer Of Title To Land Is Next Step

Proposal To Issue $42,000 In Warrants Approved, 299 To 137

The way was open today for municipal operation of Big Spring's airport.

By a margin of a little more than two to one, voters in a special referendum Monday approved purchase of the port properties by the city and sanctioned an accompanying $42,000 revenue warrant issue to finance the deal.

The vote was 299 for the purchase, to 137 against. Those figures accounted for a total of 436, an extremely light poll.

Returns were canvassed by the city commission at a session Monday night and an ordinance was approved declaring the election results.

Price of $36,000
With this expression from the electorate, the city is authorized to acquire the properties of the Big Spring Airport corporation at a price of $36,000, when the corporation is prepared to transfer title. The sum represents a sale price of something like 50 cents on the dollar of the original investment, since stock and bond holders in the corporation subscribed more than $72,000 when the port was first opened. Signatures for release of the securities are now being obtained from all holders. It was learned, and procedure to clear up the corporation's business for transfer of title was to be speeded.

The city will acquire a tract of land of 272.5 acres, on highway 1 about three miles west of town, and the buildings, including administration building, two hangars and a workshop, and other improvements on the property.

Improvement Plans
The city, of course, can take no action until transfer of title is completed. It will be ready at any time, officials told The Herald Tuesday, to go forward with port improvements.

Six thousand dollars of the approved warrant issue will go toward financing improvements. It was considered probable that application will be made for government aid for a port improvement project, and if this is approved, the $6,000 would be used as the city's share of the total outlay.

Work of developing the landing field was expected to be expedited, since agitation for municipal ownership developed from the argument that improvements are badly needed. Abandonment of the American Airlines plane stops here has been threatened, and betterment of the runways and port facilities has been urged as a step to avert this abandonment.

Vote Hikes Renditions

188 Persons List Property Rolls Increased By Over $472,000

The city tax office experienced a rush day for renditions Monday due to the airport election.

A total of 188 persons rendered property ranging from store buildings, residences, to cars, watches, and dogs. Renditions made by these amounted to $472,211, a check showed Tuesday morning.

Tax office employees estimated that other renditions directly due to the election would bring the total to approximately 500 and the total renditions to around one million dollars.

Only those who had rendered property this year were permitted under law to cast ballots in the election Monday.

Several created mild scenes when refused permission to vote until they had rendered their property for taxation, in accordance with a ruling from the state's attorney general. Still many more waived their right to vote in the election rather than render their belongings.

There were many who were insistent that they had rendered their property for city purposes because they had given it to the county assessor.

THAT'S A kind way to view it. Probably it is correct. The majority of boys seem to want softball, not baseball. As the twig is bent, the tree inclines. And the sprouts among the youngsters seem to be all leaning toward softball.

TURN OUT OLYMPIC MATERIAL

(This is the last of a series of stories on the all-time all-star track teams of the nation's leading colleges.)

By TED PECK

ANN ARBOR, May 19. (UP)—The ranking list of the University of Michigan's sprinters, picked by Coach Charles B. Hoyt as part of the all-time all-star track lineup for the Wolverines, reads like the Olympic honor roll.

Michigan turned out the only triple winner in Olympic sprint history, Archie Hahn, who added 60-meter honors to triumphs in the standard 100- and 200-meter dashes in the 1904 games at St. Louis. Ralph Craig in 1912 and dusky Eddie Tolan in 1932, double winners in the Olympics, also were products of Ann Arbor.

Tolan Has Edge And that's not all, by any means. Such sprint aces as Jimmy Bond, DeHart Hubbard, Buck Heister and Sam Stoller, latest of the line, have done their part to uphold Wolverine supremacy and challenge comparison with the sprint records of any other university in the country, including Southern California.

The stopwatch story gives the best of the little negro, Tolan, prize over Craig, Hahn and the rest, in Hoyt's belief. Tolan reeled off 100 yards in 9.5 and the full 100 in 20.9. He lowered the world 100-meter record to 10.3 in the Olympics and trimmed the 200-meter mark for the games to 21.2 at Los Angeles.

Champion Broadjumper Two athletes who were sensations in their day get no better than honorable mention on Hoyt's list. One of them, Charles Dvorak, won the Olympic championship at pole vaulting in 1904 with a mark of 11 feet, 6 inches. The other, Johnny Garrele, held varsity records and discus throwing records for a score of years. He was a member of Fielding Yost's famous "point-a-minute" football team.

DeHart Hubbard, during his undergraduate career, set a world record of 25 feet, 10 7/8 inches in the broad jump and was Olympic champion in 1924, besides holding the national A. A. U. title from '22 to '27.

Current undergraduates take nine pieces on Hoyt's all-star selections, which follow:
100 yards—Eddie Tolan, Ralph Craig and Archie Hahn.
220 yards—Eddie Tolan, Ralph Craig and Jimmy Bond.
440 yards—Ed Russell, varsity record-holder at 48 flat; C. B. Haff, national champion in 1913, and Birleson, now a junior.

RAYMOND WOLF, JESTER OF THE GRIDIRON, TO SHOW TARHEEL ATHLETICS NEW TRICKS

By WILLIAM BORING

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., May 19. (UP)—University of North Carolina footballers are looking forward to hearing Raymond (Bear) Wolf's "antics" of jokes and studying his bags of football tricks.

Carl Snaveley's successor is famed for both. The 205-pound Wolf gained a reputation as one of the nation's outstanding line coaches at Texas Christian university. At the same time he came to be known as perhaps the country's most prolific joke-telling gridironer.

His ready wit is so recognized that Wolf finds it almost impossible to fill after-dinner speaking engagements.

His coming will lift the veil of gloom that Snaveley liked to keep intact. Like "Gloomy Oil" Dobbs, whom he succeeded at Cornell, Snaveley is a confirmed pessimist. Wolf probably is most famous as a handler of football material. He likes to get right down with the boys, mixing it in the most rough-and-tumble manner, kidding them and doing scores of things that he knows will spur them on to their best efforts.

Faster Than His Boys Still exceptionally fast, the 33-year-old mentor likes nothing better than to challenge the fleet-footed gridironers to a foot race. And he usually beats the best of them.

Since he was 16, football has taken up more than half his time each year, either as player or coach.

He started his athletic career in

RAYMOND WOLF

1919 at North Side high school, Fort Worth, Texas—a compactly built, strapping fellow with a kick of field goals. He was so fleet of foot that he could outrun any boy on the squad.

At North Side high, Wolf earned letters in baseball, basketball and football.

Graduating in 1922, he entered Texas Christian university and in the fall he captained the Frog freshman team. Up in the varsity in 1923, he began a grid career that elevated him to a post as an outstanding conference line man.

Wolf And Schmidt, Inc. Wolf was considered an outstanding baseball prospect in college and was signed by the Cincinnati Reds after graduation. He spent two seasons in "AAA" competition, but a bad knee, a football holdover, prevented him going farther in the game.

In the fall of 1927 he drew the assignment of assistant freshman coach at T.C.U. He held the post two years. In the fall of 1929, Wolf was moved up to line coach and then began the Wolf-Schmidt coaching combination. The initial year Francis Schmidt and Wolf coached the Frogs, the team won its first Southwest conference title.

They repeated in 1932, when Wolf produced what alumni consider the greatest line in the school's history, no fewer than five members of the forward wall making the all-conference selection.

Schmidt went to Ohio State in 1933 and Leo Meyer moved up as head coach. Meyer and Wolf last year piloted the Frogs through one of their most successful seasons, the team winning 13 out of 13 games, one of which was the "Sugar Bowl" victory over Louisiana State.

Among players Wolf has coached are such famous gridmen as Johnny Vaught and Darrell Lester, who was all-America center in 1934 and '35. Fourteen of his line men have made the Southwest conference all-star teams.

TILDEN NAMES BEST AMATEURS

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 18.—Here for an exhibition match, William T. Tilden, 2nd, expressed his opinion of the American Davis Cup team's chances in future play.

"It is just this: There are four amateur tennis players in the world. I mean THE four. They are Bunny Austin and Fred Perry of England, Gottfried von Cramm of Germany, and Jack Crawford of Australia. You notice, I include no Americans."

Stanton Team Smashes Big Spring Rebels, 16-6

STANTON, May 19.—The Stanton Buffaloes, who will meet the Big Spring Oilers in Big Spring Wednesday afternoon, swamped the Big Spring Rebels, 16-6 here Monday in a game that was called at the end of the eighth on account of darkness.

The Buffs jumped on three Big Spring slingers, LeLonde, McMahon and Pickle, in a twenty-hit assault and never let up in their scoring.

The Rebels jumped away to a three-run lead in the initial stanza, but the Stantonites came back in their part of the same frame to score twice, pulled up on even terms in the third, and went out ahead in the fourth.

FREEZERS GET ONLY TWO HITS

By HANK HART

Club Reed limited the Frost Freezers to two scratch bingles Monday evening as the Cosden Oilers plastered a 13-2 licking on the Druggists to tighten their hold on first place in the Many Softball loop. The game was limited to five innings due to threatening weather.

The Soda Skeets tallied both their runs in the first stanza when Tony Garcia and George Choate got aboard on errors and went around on boppers by Ward Hall and Lillian Harris.

E. P. Ketter rapped out a one base blow with two down in the second and Roland Swatzy, in his only appearance with the timber, singled as leadoff man in the third to account for the Druggists' hit.

The Oilers had things their way in the first frame when they counted four runs and settled the question during the next two innings by scoring the remainder of their runs.

Only "Skeets" West, Jack Smith and Pepper Martin failed to connect with the offerings of Swatzy, while "Milesway" Baker and Vernon Whittington each recorded a trio of licks.

The Shell Pipelines received a forfeit in their scheduled game with the Taylor Electricians, when the Taylormen failed to make their appearance.

Changes were made in the Thursday's and Friday's schedule when an agreement was reached Monday night. The Cosden-Lee's Store game, which had been lined up for Friday night, has been moved up to Thursday, and the Lab-Sheil encounter, scheduled to take place Tuesday, will be played Friday.

Star Improves English By Visits To Movies

BOURNEMOUTH, England, May 19.—Senorita Anita Lasana of Chile, who has been playing in the British hardcourt tennis meets here in improving her English by frequent visits to the movies. Her knowledge of the language is still somewhat sketchy as a sports writer discovered when, in declining a drink, she said: "Thank you, but I am not drunk. You are so kind."

It takes more than adroit handling of event to combat "dull moments" at a track meet, however, and Jennings attributed much of his success to his ability to attract many of the nation's finest athletes.

"Sports fans want to see the best talent in the land," he said. "We've always sought and obtained as many nationally known stars as were available for a particular meet. Give the public the best and they'll flock to see them perform."

Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette's powerful negro sprint champion, is the greatest athlete Jennings has coached in 14 years' experience. Jennings is convinced the pounding speedster, who finished his college career in 1934, will be the outstanding dash man in the Berlin games this year.

Metcalfe Led Parade The three years of Metcalfe's competition marked the peak of track at Marquette. Thousands went into the stadium each time he appeared just for a glimpse of his flying form. They came back now to see his successor.

Jennings began to lift Milwaukee track out of its swaddling clothes with a national interscholastic meet. Prep school chiefs, however, outlawed such carnivals, and Jennings went into a huddle with the late Knute Rockne of Notre Dame and Ralph Young of Michigan State.

From this meeting, the Central Intercollegiate championships emerged. This meet has grown in to one of the Middle West's largest sectional shows, annually drawing the entries of most Big Ten schools in addition to dozens of well-known unattached colleges.

GIANTS NOT LIKELY TO HEAD OFF WESTERN TEAMS IN RACE

NEW YORK, May 19. (UP)—The first swing around the western loop was enough to convince Manager Bill Terry that his Giants, in their present shape, are not likely to head off the western entrants in the race for the pennant. After feasting on the soft pickings in the East the Giants slumped badly and won only a pair of games, one from Cincinnati and one from Pittsburgh, on the road.

The Giants' pitching staff bogged down and Carl Hubbell was the only member of the staff to go the route on the jaunt. Carl lost a couple of heartbreakers because his teammates failed to give him anything to work on, or, worse still, booted games away.

Terry's efforts to land new talent proved fruitless. He made a bid for Curt Davis after the Phillies' ace had defeated the Giants, but the Philadelphia club would not listen to his proposition. President Jerry Nugent of the Phils declared that Davis was not for sale at any price. The Philadelphia team has been drawing fairly well at home and the club's owners hesitate to make any move that might tend to alienate the fans.

It is doubtful if the purchase of Davis would insure the Giants the flag. There are plenty of spots in addition to the hurling staff which need bolstering.

Injury Jinx Bad breaks in the form of illness of key players and injuries have cut down the Giants' efficiency. The latest victim of the injury scourge is Harry Danning. That leaves the Giants without a capable receiver should anything happen to Gus Mancuso. Terry may have to go to the minors for replacements since there are few able-bodied catchers of big league caliber floating around looking for jobs. If worse comes to worse Terry might press old Pancho Snyder, the coach who formerly caught for the Giants, into service.

A little thing like an arm injury does not keep Joe Moore, the Giants' skinny but efficient outfielder, from moving right along. Joe is one of those old fashioned ball players who can't be bothered to take time out for a minor hurt. Moore has his arm treated in the morning and then goes on playing ball in the afternoon.

Day in and day out Joe gives an exhibition of how a real big leaguer should act. There is none of the prima donna stuff about Joe. He plays ball for all the game is worth. His middle name is hustle. Moore ran his batting streak to 13 games before he was stopped. In the first 23 games of the season, Joe failed to get his safety on only two occasions.

At Bat 681 Times Last year Moore took part in 185 games and equalled Lloyd Waner's record by going to the plate 681 times. He is durable, in spite of his frail appearance. He weighs 155 pounds but his loose-fitting uniform makes him look much lighter. It doesn't take size and weight to be a real ball player. Joe proves that. He gets plenty of power into his punches, is fast on the bases and in the outfield, and when it comes to throwing out runners at the plate, few outfielders can match his arm for distance and accuracy.

Moore goes about his work in a business like manner—no fanfare or acting. If he did cut up a bit perhaps the fans would notice him, but that's not Joe's way—he's satisfied to be just a darn good ball player.

"Sailor" Watkins, Trout In Main Go

Black Dragon Meets Sharman In Semi-Final

Tex "Sailor" Watkins, who sailed the seven seas with Uncle Sam before turning to professional bonewrestling, boasts of being about the toughest and meanest matman living, and very few care to argue the point with him.

The sailor has appeared quite regularly in the Big Spring arena, and tonight he appears in the main attraction to go two out of three falls with Dick Trout. Fans get a kick out of watching the swaggering, blustering bonafide Tex.

Trout depends a great deal on the more spectacular scientific holds and tricky flips that keep the ringdiers shrieking. But he may be easy prey for the rougher and more entertaining Watkins.

that main go tonight. Both participants have what it takes to make a good match.

But don't miss the semi-final. Hy Sherman, Salt Lake City Mormon, goes against the Black Dragon, another one of those hooded scrappers. The Dragon, a fine physical specimen, arrived yesterday afternoon. Both he and Sherman are new to this section of the country. The winner will probably get the main event next week.

Brownie Hanshaw, appointed as the Big Spring Athletic Club's referee for the season, will handle both matches. Promoters expect Hanshaw to make a good referee.

PICNIC THINGS—

It didn't take these fine rains to make most of us think of picnics, but they naturally make us think of such things more. Then comes the question of where and when to go, but when it comes to the eats and accessories you all know where headquarters are for these.

CHEESE—

We have and will continue to have more than a dozen varieties of cheese for your picnic selections. If you want any one of the many varieties of Kraft's, we have them, and in addition we have the genuine Imported Roquefort and Edam. If you never tried these you have a pleasant surprise coming to you.

COLD MEATS—

Everyone knows that the old reliable Ballou helps any picnic lunch, but you also have twelve or fifteen others to select from here, such as goose liver, tomato and many other kinds of loaf, spiced ham, baked ham and boiled ham. Mock Chicken Spread, Buffet Spread, Deviled Ham. Our stock of these delicacies is always top. If you are going to barbecue your meats, then we can furnish you the best barbecue sauces already prepared.

PICKLES—

Do you like them sour, or sweet, or dill, or sweet Bur's, or mustard, or bread and butter? If you can think of any other kind, we have them also.

HOME-MADE—

Perhaps your appetite runs to some of those that we make up ourselves daily. Have you tried Chicken Salad, or cheese and a Pimento spread? If not, you are missing something.

NECESSITIES—

After you have your lunch, don't forget that you will need for the final touch, plates, cups, napkins, and such, and we have plenty of them for you.

CARDS DRUB THE PHILLIES, 11-6

(By the Associated Press)
In the American and National leagues:
The St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Phillies yesterday, 11 to 6, with a seventh inning batting spree featuring by Midwick's triple with two on base and Mize's homer. Whitney had two circuit clouts.

The New York Giants won their eighth successive game by defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 2. Mel Ott and Sam Leslie hitting homers to provide the winning margin. Arky Vaughan also got a homer for the Pirates in the ninth. The Cincinnati Reds made the most of their 11 hits to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 9 to 6. Bill Campbell drove in two of the three runs made by the Reds in the first inning with a homer.

DALLAS STEERS BEAT BEAUMONT

The Texas league:
Lee Mallon's timely single with the bases loaded broke up a starting pitching duel between George Gill and Jim Parker and gave the Dallas Steers a 2 to 1 10-inning victory in the series opener with the Beaumont Exporters before a large crowd last night.

Mike Cvangros bested Max Thomas in a brilliant southpaw pitchers battle as the Houston Buffs beat the Tulsa Oilers, 2-0, in the first game of a short series. Cvangros scattered four hits through the same number of innings and did not issue a single base on balls to turn in the best pitching performance of the year in the Tulsa park.

Battering Pitchers Bennett and Davis for five extra base hits and seven singles, the Oklahoma City Texas league Indians vanquished Galveston 10 to 8. Galveston's hurling trio of Bennett, Davis and Paul met rough going. Galveston collected only six hits off Brillheart who went the route.

Freshmen Prove They Have Stuff In Major Leagues

NEW YORK, May 19.—While most of the sophomores who were the real shining lights of last season have found it extra hard to get going this year, especially the pitching sensations of a year ago, this season's crop of youngsters, or freshmen, as they are generally known, are bursting forth with as much lustre as ever.

Probably the most sensational of the 1935 crop was young Wally Moses, up from Galveston of the Texas league. He was voted the most valuable rookie of the American league at the end of the year, and at the present time is hitting at a .380 clip.

However, he may be put into the background by Joe DiMaggio, who is poison to every pitcher and is slapping the ball for an average of .420. The Yankees certainly did right by the young Italian. He is only 20 years old.

The other teams are not without their young shining lights, however. Detroit has a mild sensation in Don Ross; Cleveland has Charles George, a 24-year-old catcher, who is dividing time behind the home station with the veteran Frank Pytlak.

The Red Sox, noting the success of Bill Dickey as a catcher, decided not to let any of the other Dickey boys slip by unnoticed, and hung on to George Dickey, a younger brother of the great Bill. He may make the grade.

Most prominent among the White Sox is Mike Kreevich, a hefty hitting outfielder, and Italo Chelini, a 21-year-old pitcher.

Washington and the Browns are without any first year men who have made the headlines, but the Chicago Cubs gained a 7-2 victory in the delayed series opener.

"General" Alvin Crowder, veteran right-hander making his second start of the season, gave up only five hits as the Detroit Tigers beat Washington for the second time, 7 to 1.

Lefty Grove outpointed Vernon Kennedy in a pitching duel to gain his seventh victory and his fourth shut-out of the season as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Chicago White Sox, 2-0. Grove allowed four hits and Kennedy five.

'Gypsy Weather,' New Herald Serial, Written By Houston's Grandchild

Margaret Bell Houston, whose "Gypsy Weather" is the Herald's new serial which starts tomorrow, has Texas in her blood. Her grandfather was fighting Sam Houston the "Buckskin Colossus," chief of the Cherokees and founder of Texas, where she was born, at Cedar Bayou.

One of her first memories is of her father, Dr. Samuel Houston, being introduced on the speaker's platform as the MARGARET HOUSTON son of Sam Houston. "I am too small a man to wear the mantle of Sam Houston," he had said. "One me it would drag in the dust."

A little later the diminutive Miss Houston was invited to speak. "I am too little," she declaimed, remembering her father's words, "to wear Sam Houston's blanket. If I was to put it on it would get all dirty."

"Gypsy Weather," which begins Wednesday in The Herald, takes its name from the remark of the butler, opening the doors of the old Joris house on the Hudson. The opening of the door that night was a turning point in the lives of the two Joris brothers. As if blown in by the storm, there entered a strange and mysterious girl hunting shelter, not from the elements but from a pursuing fear. In her appearance Rupert Joris, seeking in drink the consolation he needed after his fiancée had called off the marriage, saw a solution. So he and this girl he had never seen before were married, with the disturbing complication that Dirk Joris found himself in love with his brother's wife.

Here are the elements for a story, and Miss Houston puts them together entertainingly.

Cynthia Ann Parker Celebration Is Centennial Affair

MEXIA, May 19.—The most famous kidnapping in the history of Texas will be re-enacted in three performances of a pageant this week at Fort Parker state park, midway between this city and Groesbeck, depicting "The Fall of Fort Parker."

The pageant, featuring a cast of 300, will be the central attraction of the Cynthia Ann Parker celebration, with which this section on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday makes its contribution to the Texas Centennial. In addition there will be picnics for old settlers and others, a Parker family reunion, a memorial service and varied entertainment.

The memorial service was held Tuesday morning, in honor of the pioneers who perished at the Fort Parker massacre on May 19, 1836. Cynthia Ann Parker, then 9 years old, was taken by the Indians, reared to womanhood and married to a Comanche chief, Peta Nocona.

Their son, Quanah Parker, became the greatest of all the Comanches and lived to become fully civilized. An old settlers' picnic was held at noon and in the afternoon Guy B. Harrison of Baylor university was to deliver a historical address on the picnic grounds.

A political rally will be held at noon Wednesday and there will be a rodeo Thursday afternoon. Pageant performances will be held nightly at 8 o'clock.

In the east will be many relatives of the pioneers who settled near here when Texas was still a Mexican territory and built a stockaded fort, and some descendants of Cynthia Ann Parker.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Dougherty and daughter, Ina E., of Anson, spent the week-end here with the guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Dougherty.

There are many indications that the summer of 1936 will be one of the greatest touring seasons in the nation has ever known, says Otto Petsick of the Petsick-Wentz Motor company, local Studebaker dealer, 400 East Third street.

"America has been somewhat confined for four or five years due to what we now refer to as that awful depression," said Petsick. "But, with the country definitely out of the bog and on the climb to better times, we find almost everybody anxious to take to the road again, to go places and see things."

"Reports from automobile and touring clubs tell of an unusual demand for maps and touring information. This is especially true regarding the new Mexican highway, which while not yet in perfect condition offers an excellent trip into a foreign land." Also, great interest has been shown in westward tours. The dude ranches are going to be exceedingly active this summer and so will the northern resorts.

"Another indication of interest in touring is found in the 'rolling homes,' or trailer-temples that are increasing in popularity every year. A great many companies are building these wheeled houses this year and many of them report an excellent acceptance. It is unofficially stated that there are more than 200,000 of these rolling homes in the country today."

"We have noticed an unusual interest in spring in cars that will carry unusually large amounts of luggage. This is especially true of the Studebaker Dictator coupe, which has 25 1-2 cubic feet of storage space, more than any other coupe of equal size. It is also true of Studebaker Dictator cruller sedans, which carry the spare wheel on the fender and give 8 1-2 cubic feet of storage space in a built-in trunk. The regular Studebaker Dictator sedan also have abundant storage space in their concealed luggage compartments."

R. L. Cook, accompanied by J. M. Spears of Baylor, were business visitors in San Antonio Monday. They reported going through two rains in that vicinity.

U. S. Silver Stocks Less Than Normal

Influx of 'Fear Gold' From Other Nations Upsets Money Ratio

WASHINGTON, May 19. (UP)—The recent influx of "panic gold" from Europe has resulted in a loss of ground in this government's silver purchase program. It was learned from authoritative circles today.

According to the latest available figures, the government's silver stocks have fallen to approximately 20 per cent of the gold stocks on hand, whereas it was between 22 and 23 per cent in mid-January. It is purely a bookkeeping transaction, inasmuch as this government has not sold any silver. In fact, it has purchased silver regularly, but these purchases have not kept pace with the accumulation of gold resulting from the influx of "fear money" from European countries as a result of the unsettled franc and European political conditions.

The silver purchase act requires the treasury to purchase silver until stocks on hand reach one-third of the amount of gold stocks held by the government, or until the price of silver reaches a price of $1.29 an ounce.

The present stock of silver, according to the latest available figures, is $2,189,826,010, calculated on the basis that the $314,922,000 worth of bullion on hand carried on the treasury books at the cost price of 60 cents an ounce was advanced to the theoretical value of $1.29 an ounce.

The government's gold stocks, according to the treasury statement of May 14, totaled $10,323,458,779. On this basis silver stocks should total $3,441,000,000 if the purpose of the silver purchase act were to be fulfilled. Another $1,302,000,000 worth of silver would be required to fulfill the requirements of the act.

The latest official announcement of total purchases under the silver purchase act, released on Jan. 17, last, said $35,112,000 ounces of the white metal had been purchased. At that time the government's gold stocks totaled $10,154,804,511. Since then the gold stocks have increased $169,000,000.

A lovely assortment of flowers were scattered about the room. The setting for the pageant was a garden scene with a trellis of roses and attractive potted plants and grasses arranged artistically.

As each character appeared she carried a candle of rainbow hue that was lighted at the proper time. The leading characters were: Mrs. Gould, Barriek, and Cushing. Color talks were made by: Mmes. Stanley, Pierce, Smith, Watkins, Moser, Donnelly and Wilson.

A duet was sung by concealed singers, Mrs. R. T. Piner and Mrs. Parks, with Mrs. McConnell at the piano.

It was interesting to note that four women at the meeting had visited Montreat, N. C. They were: Mmes. J. I. McDowell, Long of Cohoma, McConnell, and Currie.

The pageant was such a success that it will be repeated by request Sunday evening, May 31, at the 8 o'clock church service. The public is cordially invited.

Injured Golfers Home From Mineral Wells

Mrs. J. L. Rush returned home from Mineral Wells Friday night and Mrs. Obie Bristow Friday afternoon, both having recovered sufficiently from their car accident to travel.

Mrs. Anna Belle Wheat who was with them went on to Fort Worth to visit. The car in which they were traveling was struck by another and rolled over a 30-foot embankment, said Mrs. Rush, and was stopped by the radiator ploughing into the side of the hill.

Mrs. Rush, the driver, was more severely injured than any one else. Her nose was slit open and three stitches were taken in her eyelid. Mrs. Bristow also had stitches taken in her eyelid. Neither are in danger of losing their eyesight. Mrs. Wheat was not injured.

Mrs. Rush said that her condition was improving and that the doctor who attended her thought the scars would not be very plain when thoroughly healed.

Mrs. L. E. Eddy Moves To Mrs. J. B. Hodges'

Mrs. L. E. Eddy has rented her home to Mrs. Proctor and is now living with Mrs. J. B. Hodges, Sr. She is making plans for an enjoyable summer trip for herself and daughter, Betty, while Mr. Eddy is stationed in Monahans.

The month of June will be spent visiting friends in Fort Worth and Dallas and taking in the Centennial exposition. If Mrs. Eddy's plans carry out, they will go to Minnesota for the month of July.

There they will visit relatives in Chokio, St. Paul, and Sauk Center. The last named city is the inspiration of Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street." He once worked for Mr. Eddy's uncle Frank, owner of the Sauk Center Herald, as a reporter. This same uncle was a politician. The colleague of the father of the famous flier, Lindbergh, whose home was in that same section of Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Nail and son, Johnny, accompanied by a friend, Cecil Edmondson, returned Sunday evening from San Diego where they went to visit their son, L. F. They also visited relatives in Whittier and Montebello.

P.T.A. Heads Installed

To Assume Office Next
September; Good
Attendance

"Life is the sum total of things that triumph over death," said Mrs. Thomas A. Head of San Angelo in her address to members and officers of the Parent-Teachers Association Monday evening at the high school auditorium. As an example of this triumph she pointed to the lives of children and from that drew a picture of the possible accomplishments in P.T.A. work. In order to make the best of this she said that there must be cooperation between the school and home, the school and the board of education and the board of education. The stage was set for great achievements and the P.T.A. was one of the greatest educational forces of today.

The opportunity of P.T.A. lay in correcting outstanding national sins, she continued. For example she named the sins of holding human life lightly, the principle of trying to get something for nothing, trading upon the future, the great need of peace. Correction lay in the education of today's youth, she said.

Mrs. Charles Koberg was mistress of ceremonies and introduced Mrs. Head. The platform was beautifully decorated with floor baskets filled with flowers and ferns.

Mrs. Sidney Woods, district officer, had charge of the installation ceremonies.

Also speaking were J. B. Collins, chairman of the school board, S. P. Jones, trustee, was present, in addition to Collins.

Supt. Blankenship made a short talk.

All the new officers, except three, were present for the installation ceremony. There was a fair crowd of P.T.A. members and fathers.

Enjoyable musical selections were rendered by the high school band, Miss Jackson's string ensemble and the VFWA trio. Miss Eloise Haley gave a reading that brought much applause.

The newly installed officers will assume their duties with the September meetings next fall.

THE SALES TAX

Senator Clint Small told the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Amarillo that either a selective sales tax or a graduated income tax must be levied if Texas is to meet the requirements of old age pensions and other expenditures which seem to be unavoidable. It was a mere statement of fact, as any citizen understands who has examined the financial status of the state government. Nobody knows how much money will be required for the old age pensions—nobody seemed to care very much about the probate cost last year when the pension amendment was being adopted—but it will be between seven and thirty-five million dollars per year, in the opinion of Mr. Small, and even the lower figure is seven millions more than the state has available for liquidating the obligation.

The sales tax offers a seductive appeal to the average citizen. Like the "easy payments" of the installment plan, it seems trivial from the standpoint of the individual and his contribution to the state government through it, but in the aggregate it will add from forty to sixty million dollars per year to the tax load of the citizens of Texas. The matter is not altogether in the hands of the Legislature, to determine whether such a heavy levy shall be made for the people through constitutional amendment or otherwise may place upon the Legislature burdens which can not be evaded and which make absolutely necessary the discovery of new sources of income for the government.

The alternative, if there be an alternative, is to reduce the normal expenditures of the state government so that extraordinary demands like that presented by the old age pension act may be met without additional taxation. This means that appropriations for every purpose, including education, eleemosynary institutions, public safety and similar matters must be drastically reduced. In any event, there seems little likelihood that the dream of tax reduction is ever to come true; for if routine operating expenses of the state government were lowered the appropriations for special purposes would more than absorb the saving and the total of taxation would remain where it is if it did not show a substantial increase.

These facts need to be carefully considered by the public, for the Legislature, with all its faults, can do only what the people direct it to do.—Brownwood Bulletin.

NEW YORK—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff: A vast army of New Yorkers have cause to give thanks to Durries Crane. He's compiling a dictionary of culinary terms which will eliminate a lot of confusion among patrons who are misled by menu names in the foreign languages. There is a story that Leopold Stokowski isn't really a Pole, but English. They say his real name is Stokes and that his professional name and accent are acquired. It is well known that as a youth he served as a choir boy in London at St. Martin-in-the-Fields and that he is a graduate of Queen's College, Oxford.

Broadway Stuff: Six months ago Benny Fields didn't have a quarter. Came a midtown cabaret engagement and now he's on the airways, booked solidly in presentation houses, and has a quarter of a million in sight. One of Tin Pan Alley's best remembered songwriters is blind. New York's newest idol is Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee baseball player—and how New York can go for a new idol, or drop an old one. Sally Washington, who dances in the prelude to "Bury the Dead," is a Stevenson, Alabama, girl.

Street Scene: A familiar figure in natty double-breasted pausing at Fifth Avenue traffic intersection. He reaches for a cigarette, lights it, tosses it away after a few swift puffs as if smoking isn't worth the trouble. Doug Fairbanks, Sr.

Overheard at Madison and 42nd street: The hour hand is striking midnight and three robust young women are jawing. "I told him," bellowed one in a raucous voice, "I said, 'You rat, you tramp, you bum, get OUT!' In foghorn tones one of the sisters observes: "That wasn't telling him—you should have TOLD him!"

Claudia Morgan and Edith Van Cleve both appear in two different plays nightly. One of the main attractions in a midtown bar is a duplicate of a liquor license once owned by Abraham Lincoln. Current revivals of plays which opened in New York last fall are "Parnell" and "Ghosts." "Parnell" was an original, but "Ghosts" has had countless revivals. Despite acknowledgement that the season is over, there are still 24 plays on Broadway.

Where is Faith Bacon, famed beauty of Ziegfeld's Follies? She's at the Paradise, dancing in a new cabaret revue. John Mason Brown, the critic, takes time off each year to make a lecture tour.

The proprietor of a lunch wagon in the Village wasn't kidding when he encircled his eatery with tables and chairs. He thinks his clients, who are largely truck drivers, should have the privilege of dining at a sidewalk cafe too.

Seven is the lucky number of Ross Marie Brancato, the singer. She's the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter.

The Daily Washington

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Miguel Mariano Gomez, who will be inaugurated president of Cuba tomorrow, had some highly important and confidential conversations with President Roosevelt when he was in Washington. They may mean drastic changes in Cuba, and if so, will include:

1. The transfer of the American ambassador, Jefferson Caffery.

2. The political subjection of Col. Fulgencio Batista, ex-servant, now the iron-handed dictator of Cuba.

Behind the secret parleys of Gomez and Roosevelt is the fact that the island republic is now more blood-soaked than in the days of tyrant Machado whom Roosevelt took steps to oust.

Furthermore, the American ambassador is held by many Cubans to be indirectly responsible for Batista's reign of terror.

Supreme Court Protest

There are now approximately 1,500 political prisoners rotting in Cuban jails—a figure worse than the days of Machado.

In fact so flagrant have become political assassinations that the supreme court, which Cuba is an extremely weak-kneed institution, recently issued a protest at the way prisoners were made away with while en route to trial.

One case which both the supreme court and the Cuban senate protested was the murder of Augustin Martinez and Octavio Segile, the latter well known in Washington, where he was in exile during the Machado days.

Their charred bodies were found in an automobile in a Havana suburb on April 28. They had been mutilated, their fingers torn from each hand, their legs torn from their bodies. Their bodies were thrown into a car and the car ignited. However, the car did not burn, and the bodies were found with mute evidence of medieval torture.

Batista's Friend

Reason for Roosevelt's concern is that Ambassador Caffery and the United States get the blame for keeping Batista in power.

Caffery has become one of the most hated men in Cuba, now seldom ventures outside the embassy unless preceded by an armed escort. He has been several attempts on his life.

He also has a personal bodyguard named Chamisso, a big Cuban negro weighing 200 pounds who once broke up a United Fruit company strike by threatening to beat up the first man who wouldn't return to work.

One of the ablest men in the Cuban service, Caffery went to Cuba at a time of internal chaos, and decided to support the one man who seemed capable of imposing law and order. At that time, Batista had shown no terrorist tendencies and seemed to be the man.

Since then Caffery has become so identified with Batista in the Cuban mind that it is tantamount to official American support. In the opinion of Roosevelt's advisers, this implied support has prevented many other army leaders from throwing out Batista, installing a new chief of staff.

For a long time the state department has wanted to transfer Caffery, had no place else to send him. Terrorism in Cuba took second place after Caffery's career. But now, he will be given a long vacation.

During that time, it will be made clear to the Cuban people that President Gomez has official American support in becoming their real ruler and in blotting out terrorism.

Soviet Flag

On the day the red flag of Soviet Russia was flaunted from the flagpole of the supreme court, Russian Ambassador Troianovsky was dining at the home of Maurice Speiser in Philadelphia.

Peppered with questions as to who perpetrated the joke, Troianovsky would only answer: "It's very amusing."

Finally, however, he broke down. "Well, confidentially," he said, "I think it must have been the Daughters of the American Revolution."

Russian newsmen in Washington cabled no reports of the flag incident to the Moscow press, feared it might be misunderstood, cause serious repercussions.

Friendly Advice

Mrs. Roosevelt recently received a letter from a young lady asking for advice on how to "get into politics." The writer explained that she had not decided as yet just what office she wanted to run for, but thought that being a U. S. senator would be "nice."

Mrs. Roosevelt answered the letter, said she strongly favored women entering politics, thought her young correspondent would stand a better chance of success if she started at the bottom of the ladder instead of the top. Mrs. Roosevelt then concluded with this bit of advice:

"I would also suggest that before you seek public office you acquire another business or profession on which you can 'fall back' in the event you do not realize your political ambitions. There is still an other advantage in this. Those in public life who have other resources beside their government salary can afford to be more independent."

Later, Mrs. Roosevelt explained to friends that while residing in Albany, N. Y., when her husband was governor of the state, legislators entirely dependent upon their elective jobs for a livelihood were more easily intimidated or tempted by pressure groups than those who had other means of income.

H. L. Ellis, district manager of the Republic Supply company, left Tuesday morning for Tulsa, Okla., via American Airlines plane, to attend the oil exposition.

LIQUOR CANNOT STAND THE LIGHT OF TRUTH

THE BIBLE AND STRONG DRINK

Sir: The meaning of the Word of God upon the subject of drink and the sale of liquor, and of repeal is quite clear. When God speaks, let everyone hear:

1. It is a Sin to Drink Intoxicating Liquor. "Look not thou upon the wine when it is red. . . . At the last, it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."—Prov. 23.

2. "Wine is a mocker, strong drink a brawler, whosoever erreth thereby is not wise."—Prov. 20:1, R. V. "And be not drunken with wine wherein is riot, but be filled with the Spirit."—Eph. 5:18 R. V.

3. It is a Sin to Sell or Give Liquor to Make Drunkards. "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink, that putteth thy bottle to him, that addeth thy venom thereto, and maketh him drunken also."—Hab. 2:15, R. V. "How can a man send others to hell and be saved himself." "He that hideth his evil deeds is a partaker of his evil deeds."—Job 11.

4. No Drunkard Can Inherit the Kingdom of God. "Be not deceived. . . . Neither thieves nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners shall inherit the kingdom of God."—1 Cor. 6:10.

5. Tax or License? "Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood and establisheth a city by iniquity."—Hab. 2:12.

6. The Tax is a Continuous Bribe. "Their right hand is full of bribes."—Ps. 26:10. "Woe unto them that are mighty to drink wine, and men of strength to mingle strong drink, who justify the wicked for a reward."—Isa. 5:22.

7. Those Who Failed to Vote Dr. "Curse ye Meroz. . . because they came not to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the mighty."—Judges 5:23.

8. What to Do. "Repent ye therefore, and be converted that your sins may be blotted out."—Acts 3:19.—Rev. W. A. Williams. (Submitted by the local W.C.T.U.)

Chapter 41
MYSTERY'S END

"Good Lord," said Allan, jumping out of his wicker chair. He stared at Morgan's tall, slender figure, broad shouldered, loose-jointed, lounging behind the older man.

"Good afternoon, Allan," said Morgan placidly. "How is Granny?"

"So that's the answer," Allan said with his little amused laugh. It sounded harmless enough except for the amazing fact that Morgan and Allan knew each other. But Morgan's face was at its blindest. "How dare you go on misjudging Iris?" Then he got hold of his temper with an effort and spoke gravely. "After all, suspicion's a family trait. We'd neither of us got hardened to honesty."

Allan still looked blankly shocked and a little pale; but he snatched with fair success at his usual manner.

"Behold," said he, "the long-lost heir. My Lord, Jim, I may have fallen below the romantic ideal, but at least I never let an old woman break her heart because I pretended to be drowned."

"Granny knows I'm alive," Morgan said. "She has ever since the night you went back on Iris."

Iris stood struck, gaping and silent. She held to the wicker table to steady herself. Jim... Morgan, her Morgan, the dead grandson Jim she had heard of from Camilla and Allan and everyone. What a fool she'd been, not to put two and two together, not to see.

"I wrote Granny I was going round the world, going to stay away a couple of years; it's no more than you've done a half dozen times."

"And then you were found in the Hudson, all nice and dead, complete with identification."

And Morgan, explaining crossly, "I gave a poor devil some clothes and cash—left things in the pockets, never was a neat little boy like you."

And Allan: "Don't apologise. You wanted to be loved for yourself alone. I hope you keep your illusions this time!"

And then Uncle Will, forgotten in the background, quieting the two men on the edge of a new quarrel. There was a moment of polite conversation, and then Allan, poised and amiable, made his polite departure. He got hold of himself—he made a gallant exit. "I'm glad you're alive, old boy—you know that," he said as he went. "I do know it, Al," Morgan said and the two shook hands.

"Granny's waiting inside there," Allan added over his shoulder as he passed out of the garden. "Tell her her surprise party was a wonderful success, and that I'm going back to New York. You'll find her in the living room, probably with a fatted calf in her handbag."

But Granny was outside. She had stepped out of the French window, Aunt Ella behind her.

"I was getting a little impatient, Jim," she said. "I'm sorry not to have said more to you the night of the concert, Iris, but—for a consideration—I gave Jim my word." She beckoned Iris closer, and Iris ran into her arms and kissed her.

"I'm getting what I wanted, you're marrying my grandson," she said. "We needed sound stock in the strain. You're a good child, Iris. Iris clung to her a moment. Then she said, a little shyly. "And—Aunt Phine?"

"You're a loyal little soul. Well, she's ridden into glory (or what's glory for her) on your skirts. Nobody's going to stop her, and she'll have enough trouble," said Granny dryly, "getting into the ultimate social Holy of Holies to keep her amused for some years yet. People like her aren't happy unless they're storming redoubts."

"She is a wonderful woman, Phine," said Uncle Will gently. "You are wonderful people, you Lannings," said Granny, smiling, yet as if she meant it too. "Well, Mr. James Morgan Jameson, I know you have a good deal to discuss with Iris, and as I'm staying the night I'll see you children again."

The sunset was like a doorway opening into Paradise. But Iris, slim and ivory-colored and flashing-eyed in her rosy ruffled dress, turned on Morgan Jameson, angry with him as she had never been in her life. "I suppose you've been having a wonderful time with your pretty romance, haven't you? As your cousin would say, toying with the village maid!"

"I think I've had enough to do with your family. Why didn't you tell me then that you loved me, that you were you, instead of driving over to Long Island and back, the Mysterious Stranger? You've behaved horribly. You talk so much about honesty—you haven't any. I never want to see you again."

It was Morgan, the quick-tempered, who remained quiet this time. He stood quite still. He even smiled a little.

"I'm not completely intelligent," he said simply, "any more than anybody else. But as for willfully deceiving you, I hadn't any idea of it. I couldn't foresee that you were going to be dropped into a nest of my friends and relatives."

"When you knew, you could have told me."

"When I knew, you seemed just one more girl like the rest, like Georgia. A girl who wanted Phine Weatherley's sort of thing. I do owe you apologies there, Iris. But there's one thing there's no apology coming on. I've never stopped loving you, the very best way I know how. And I thought you loved Allan. There wasn't anything to do but take it and like it. I never meant to leave this place."

MUSIC SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

"And if I marry you, what will everybody think now? That I tried to marry Allan for what he could give me. And then when I found out you could give me as much—"

"It happens to be more," said Morgan quietly.

"I turn—just like Georgia—and snatch for you. How do I know you wouldn't think I was Georgia, any time at all, all over again? And even if you didn't, to have everyone in the world think it of me?"

"Does that matter to you," asked Morgan, "more than my love?"

She was silent. She realized, suddenly, that she was still tangled in her fears and terrors. What people thought, what they said, had no right to matter. "No, Morgan. Besides the fact that you and I love and believe in each other, it doesn't matter at all," she said. She felt something suddenly dropping from her like a heavy cloak. What the world said would never be the principal thing to her again.

He took her in his arms. After a little while:

"I had your promise, anyway," he said. "No matter what happened, you wouldn't break your engagement. I'm glad your promise is as unbreakable as I know it to be; because there's a little more to come."

She sat down with him, his arm still around her. "Go on," she said lazily.

"When I came over, night before last, before I could get Granny's promise to let me go back and say nothing, I had to give mine to come back and live where she is part of the time. After all, it was a pretty cowardly thing to walk out on an old lady, when I was about all she had left. Uncle Will made me see that this afternoon driving back from work. I should have stood up to the whole thing, Georgia and all, instead of running away and being the Young Misanthrope. Well, I'm going to. Only I've got to ask you to take your share too."

All the things she had turned her back on—and Morgan's love. "Most people would say it was the gold at the end of the rainbow, but you were offering me, instead of the burden your voice makes it out to be," she said thoughtfully.

"Don't you know where the pot of gold is, Iris?" he asked. He drew her to his feet. The two young figures stood close in each other's arms, in the sunset-light. "My mother told me," he said in her ear. "She said that after the adventures were all tired with seeking it all over the world, they found it, buried under the hearthstone of their home."

"It is that—for me," she said.

"And for me—always—so long as we are together."

Uncle Will came pottering out looking for his children. "Supper's ready," he said, smiling at them. He was happy, more or less, anyway, but at what he saw in their faces he was especially happy, just now. They followed him hand-in-hand.

REPRESENTATIVE'S CONVICTION UPHELD

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP)—The conviction of Rep. John J. Hoepfel, of California, for conspiracy to sell an appointment to West Point was confirmed in the federal court of appeals for the District of Columbia today.

Hoepfel and his son, Charles, were sentenced to four months to a year in jail by the District of Columbia supreme court. The government contended the Hoepfels accepted a thousand-dollar note from James Ives of Baltimore, for an appointment.

Joe Fisher has returned from Dallas, where he has been on a business mission.

Gains Noted In National Sales Of Prosperity Goods

MINNEAPOLIS, May 18—Continued gains, some of them at a slower pace than in 1935, were shown in the public's buying of "prosperity goods" during the first quarter of 1936, with the excellent winter resort season and large patronage of ocean cruises boosting sales of luggage and sporting goods.

Rising sales of pianos and furniture also testify that the American public is again buying liberally, beyond the bare necessities of life, according to a surplus income analysis here.

The study, covering sales of 238 department stores from coast to coast in seven barometric lines of merchandise, shows that dollar volume gains for the first three months of 1936 over the corresponding period of last year were as follows: Pianos, 17.5 per cent; pianos and other musical instruments, 16.4 per cent; furniture, 15.9 per cent; sporting goods, 15.5 per cent; luggage, 12 per cent; electric household appliances, five per cent, and jewelry, (department store), five per cent.

March sales of luggage were 19.5 per cent greater than in March of 1935, the report shows, with furniture and sporting goods recording dollar volume gains of 15.7 per cent and 13 per cent respectively over March of last year.

Piano dealers are particularly optimistic as to prospects for continued gains in their business, in contrast to the lean years experienced during the depths of the depression. Expectation of continued increases in "prosperity goods" sales is reflected in the larger stocks carried at the end of March by the 238 department stores report.

To Face A Second Trial In Handley Triple Slayings

FORT WORTH, May 18 (UP)—O. D. Stevens will be returned to Fort Worth at government expense in August for a second trial Sept. 7 in the Handley triple slaying.

The end of the long controversy between county and federal authorities over which should bear the cost of return of Stevens from Alcatraz prison in California, was announced today by Dist. Attorney Will Parker.

Parker returned last night from a conference in Washington with Sanford Bates, superintendent of U. S. prisons.

Bates, Parker said, agreed that the federal government should bear the cost and, that if Stevens again is convicted, he will be placed in Leavenworth prison pending appeal action.

The court of criminal appeals reversed Stevens' earlier conviction and death sentence for the Handley slayings.

Stevens is serving a 27-year sentence on Alcatraz Island for theft of $71,000 in a mail holdup. A quarrel over division of the money allegedly caused the murder of three members of the band.

F. H. Caughlin, general manager of the Empire Southern Service company, Fort Worth, is in Big Spring on business.

DIVIDEND DECLARED BY THE HUMBLE CO.

HOUSTON, May 18. (UP)—Directors of Humble Oil and Refining company today declared the firm's regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock. The dividend will be paid July 1 on stock of record June 1.

Philadelphia reported permits issued for the four months period, at $7,255,550, compared with $1,021,430 in the same period last year. April permits in 25 Florida cities were valued at $3,130,246, more than double the same period last year. In San Francisco permits for the four months were $9 per cent ahead of last year. Similar gains took place in Dallas, Fort Worth, Detroit and other sections. In the Chicago suburban area, residential building continued active and considerable store remodeling was in progress.

Decline in Relief

Decline in relief rolls was indicated by the reports from several cities. In San Francisco, 9,000 were absorbed by private business during the week. An increased demand for skilled workers occurred in Cleveland where 5,000 families were taken from relief in the January to April period. Expansion of employment and payrolls both were reported by St. Louis where the farm help demand increased, but activity in the coal fields declined. The same city also experienced an acute shortage of house painters and paper hangers. The Dallas report said 200 had quit.

Married Women Know Constipation's Danger

After childbirth, women often suffer from constipation. That is why even a mild, delicate laxative is so ideal. As soon as you start chewing it, the stomach-settling mint brings a clean, fresh taste to the mouth. As you chew out the laxative ingredient, which is absolutely tasteless, the flow of digestive juices is increased. The laxative is mixed with the food and carried into the system evenly and gently. Without causing upset, it passes through the stomach and into the bowels so scientifically that your action is worry-free. It is non-habit-forming. Sold on money-back guarantee. SAME MOANS HEARD AS IN '32, FARLEY SAYS IN ADDRESS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 19 (UP)—James A. Farley, chairman of the democratic national committee, today compared this year's campaign with that of 1932 and declared "we hear the same moans of prospective disaster."

Addressing the state convention here, Farley said: "Instead of chaos which was threatened should Roosevelt be elected, your mills are going, your farmers are getting along and your merchants' shops are full of customers."

Salvation Army In Appeal For Funds

Annual appeal for funds to help carry on the extensive program of the Salvation Army in this section and in the Texas division will be made here the latter part of the week, W. D. Pedigo, campaigner from headquarters, said Monday.

Pedigo did not set a date but said he expected it would be Thursday before the appeal would be made locally.

"During the past year in this division," said Pedigo, "thousands of families have been given relief and encouraged to better living, jobs have been found for many men and women, one hundred girls have been cared for in the maternity homes and hospitals, summer camps have been provided for girls and thousands have been won to righteousness."

Only one appeal for funds will be made here during the year, said Pedigo.

Adjust Reports On New Soil Program

While more than 90 per cent of the farmers in Howard county oil their field equipment and started work planting, County Agent O. P. Griffin and community committee members buckled down to the task of adjusting community reports under the federal soil conservation program to come with acreage and yield limitations.

Total acreage and permitted yield must reconcile with those of last year, said Griffin, but there will be considerable adjusting of individual farm figures.

Type of tenants and manner in which the farm has been treated within the past few years will have a great bearing on the acreage and production figures set by the board in its adjustment work, declared the agent. Type of the farm will also enter into the picture.

Griffin expected to have a total of the number of work sheets filed by the end of the week. Only two committees have not submitted their sheets.

Legalized Liquor Hasn't Yet Stopped Still Operations

AUSTIN, May 19, (UP)—Bootlegging continues despite prohibition repeal and prevalence of legal liquor, the state liquor control board revealed here today with a report showing seizure of 28 stills in less than three months. Fifteen were captured in April. One was a 600 gallon outfit, estimated to have cost $2,000 and able to produce enough liquor to require $42,000 annual revenue stamps. Stills were located in Orange, Jefferson, Bowie, Travis, McLennan, Burleson, Titus and Hood counties.

"Devil Squadron"Long's Widow Abandons His Senate Feuds*Has Had Little To Say, Generally Follows Administration

WASHINGTON, May 19, (UP)—The voting record of Mrs. Huey P. Long indicates she has no disposition to carry on the relentless battle her late husband fought with the administration.

She has voted, for the most part, as administration leaders have voted. Quietly disposed, Mrs. Long has had nothing to say about any pending legislation.

She is handsome enough to arouse audible comment among gallery spectators as she comes in the senate chamber. Her often rampant husband occupied a front seat in the rear, immediately below the public galleries.

Views Unlike Husband's

There are instances where it is very apparent her vote went contrary to the way Mr. Long would have voted. In retrospect, it appears certain he would have opposed the motions by which Majority Leader Robinson killed the two republican amendments to the Vandenberg resolution asking reports on AAA benefit payments.

One would have required a statement of all WPA employees appointed outside the civil service, and the other would have directed a mild investigation into the Resettlement administration.

The tabling motions by which they were killed automatically shut off debate, a procedure which was anathema to Mr. Long. Mrs. Long voted with Mr. Robinson.

It has been said at different times that she follows the administration, or that she follows the lead of Mrs. Hattie Caraway, the elder woman senator, or that she heeds the voice of Senator Overton of Louisiana, a Long organization man.

Votes for Herself

A check of roll calls on questions that might be considered important shows that she has disagreed twice with Majority Leader Robinson, once with Mr. Overton, and twice with Mrs. Caraway.

Mrs. Long obviously is enjoying her term in the senate amid the genteel flattery of her fellow senators. Washington's public knew little of her while her husband was alive.

Her term will end this year as Allen Ellender has won the democratic nomination for the next term, which in Louisiana is tantamount to election.

TOWNSEND DENIES MOVEMENT'S GOAL WAS TO GET MONEY

WASHINGTON, May 19, (UP)—Assertions that the Townsend pension movement was started solely to obtain "cold cash," and to make a "bathtub of money," was denied by Dr. F. E. Townsend today before a house investigating committee.

Applause greeted Townsend's statement that his followers "feel like I feel about old parties" and that a third party would be formed "as soon as the opportunity presents itself."

Rep. Hoffman, republican of Michigan, contended that Townsend was "selling under false colors in condemning old parties and planning a third." Townsend denied this, saying that the old parties "are the only avenue of expression open to us at this time."

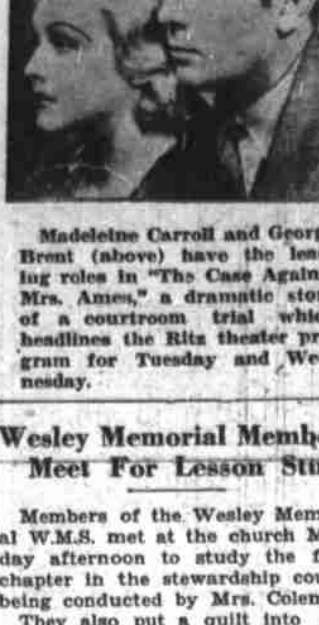

Miss Ruth Plunkett of Midland underwent a major operation in Big Spring hospital Tuesday morning.

ANOTHER PAYMENT IS MADE TO SCHOOLS

Howard county schools Tuesday received a $2 per-scholarship apportionment payment from the state, netting $3,004.

The payment brought the total on the current apportionment to $15 and left a $250 balance not counting in the $1 supplemental allocation made by the state board Saturday.

Thus the schools, exclusive of the Big Spring independent district, stand to receive $5,257 from the state in current apportionment money.
