City council faces lengthy agenda tonight

Second reading on tax rate, water and sewer rate hikes are expected

The second reading of ordinances to establish new water, sanitation and landfill rates — and setting of the 1995 tax rate — are among the numerous agenda items facing Snyder City Council in a meeting set for 6:30 this evening.

New items of new business include changes in the Development Corporation of Snyder bylaws, approval of the infrastructure of the industrial park and a uniform landfill disposal contract.

The council will also consider, on first reading, an ordinance between the city and Midwest Electric Cooperative concerning the use of the city's streets, alleys and public grounds for the co-op to erect power lines and poles and the amount the city is to be paid by the co-op.

Two resolutions will also be considered — one designating a city investment officer, the other an investment policy for the City of Snyder.

Under old business, the council will consider the awarding of bids for employee health insurance, public officials liability insurance and the city's bank depository.

Council members are expected to approve a tax rate of 39.69 cents per $100 valuation — the same tax rate as last year. An ordinance for appropriating money to the 1995-96 budget will also be considered on second reading.

Water and sewer rates will see an eight percent hike under another ordinance, to be passed on second reading tonight. For in-city residents, water will increase from a base rate of $7.80 for the first 2,000 gallons plus $2.15 for each additional 1,000 gallons to $8.45 for the first 2,000 and $2.35 for each 1,000 thereafter. Out-of-city water rates will increase to a base rate of $10.50, plus $2.55 for each additional 1,000 gallons.

Sewer rates will increase from $7 plus $1.86 per 1,000 gallons to $7.60 plus $2.05 per 1,000, based on 90 percent of the average consumption from December through February.

Other ordinances to be passed on second reading include the "zoning ordinance," which regulates the location and use of buildings, structures and land within the city limits. This ordinance would also repeal several other conflicting ordinances that have been enacted in the past.

Another ordinance to be considered includes a zoning change from C-2 commercial to R-3 residential for 817 and 819 E. Highway 80.

Approval of ordinances which provide for a cable television advisory commission and the regulation of cable television within the city is also expected.

NATO launches more air strikes

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Huge clouds of smoke rose from Serb-held suburbs of Sarajevo today as NATO warplanes struck quickly at rebel Serb targets around the Bosnian capital.

NATO unleashed the new airstrikes after Bosnian Serbs refused to bow to demands and move their big guns out of range of Sarajevo.

The Bosnian Serb military reported numerous explosions. The Serbs did not say what was attacked, but claimed that there was extensive damage and civilian casualties. There was no confirmation of the claims.

Western military sources said targets were similar to those attacked last week, when NATO went after ammunition dumps, anti-aircraft and radar sites, and command-and-control installations.

Sarajevans rushed out of their homes, looking skyward for the planes attacking their Serb foes. People ran along the streets for a better view. After an initial wave of airstrikes that began last Wednesday, many had begun to get discouraged about the possibility of continued NATO action.

Last week's attacks ended on Friday, when NATO and the United Nations declared a pause for Serbs to meet a series of demands. They included moving about 300 artillery pieces, tanks and other heavy weapons more than 12½ miles outside of Sarajevo.

The rebel Serbs moved some weaponry, but fell far short of pulling all their heavy weapons out of range of the Bosnian capital. The deadline for the Serbs to comply expired at 11 p.m. Monday, and a tense standoff ensued until NATO struck after noon.

"We hope that this operation will make clear to the Bosnian Serbs the futility of further military activity," said a statement from NATO Secretary General Willy Claes.

Warplanes zoomed over the western part of Sarajevo, and loud explosions followed in the city's Serb-held southwest suburbs. After the initial strike, more air activity and several more explosions were heard. Detonations also were heard from the Bosnian Serb stronghold of Pale, about nine miles southeast of Sarajevo.

The skies cleared of warplanes no more than an hour after the attack began.

Air terminal open house is Thursday

The public is invited to an open house Thursday at the newly-renovated terminal building at Winton Field.

More than $36,000 has been spent on the project, with most of the labor provided by county and state prison inmates. Funding was provided by the Board of County Development.

Open house will be from 10 a.m. until noon. Refreshments will be served.

A historic plane from the Confederate Air Force will be on display, as will local and area planes.

The building, which was first built in 1951, has undergone extensive renovation. Restrooms were brought up to ADA specifications and energy efficient heating and cooling was added. The building has a new roof, ceiling fans, a kitchen area and meeting rooms. The inside and outside has been repainted and the floors have been carpeted or covered throughout.

Some furnishings were provided by local businesses and the pilot's association. Donations will be accepted for other furnishings.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Freedoms allow us to do a bunch of things in this country, even the right to be wrong."

Bill Schiebel wasn't trying to be a fashion trendsetter when he wore hot pants to a recent funeral.

Schiebel, who lives about a block behind Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home, decided to walk to the funeral of an old-time friend.

Bill, a retired postal employee, is well known for his fondness of pipe smoking even though his wife, Martha, is one who would like, for health reasons, to see public smoking banned in Snyder. At home, Bill gets to enjoy his pipe in an isolated corner of the back yard.

On the way to the funeral, Bill took a few puffs on his beloved pipe. Like he has done for more than 40 years, Bill poked the pipe into his trousers as he entered the funeral.

Schiebel was setting next to insurance man Ernie Sears and the pair began to smell something. Schiebel first thought one of the ceiling fans might be shorting out.

About that time, Sears pointed to Schiebel's pocket which was smoldering. Schiebel made a hasty exit and found that he had stuck his lighted pipe into a pocket that also contained some tissue paper.

Bill walked back home, was relieved that Martha was out of town, and tossed the "hot pants" into the dumpster. Martha would never know...until now.

Clinton urges GOP not to cut education

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — With school bells ringing in a new year, President Clinton is urging Republican budget-cutters to go back to the chalkboard. "Don't cut education," he says. "Spend more on it."

The remarks came in Labor Day events designed to impress middle-class Californians with promises to reclaim jobs lost to defense cuts, fight for a minimum wage increase and protect school spending.

His two-day stop in vote-rich California, the 19th visit of his presidency, signals a higher level of intensity in the re-election campaign. Many political experts say Clinton must win California to earn a second term.

With that in mind, the president tailored his message Monday to frustrated voters in campaign-style stops at Monterey and in Alameda County.

"I want a high-wage, high-growth, high-opportunity future; not a hard-work, low-wage, insecure future for the working families of the United States of America," he said.

And he called Washington a cynical town "where talking is more important than doing."

Clinton was narrowing his attack today, teaching eighth-grade history before challenging Republican education programs in an address at Abraham Lincoln Middle School in the central California city of Selma.

He argues that GOP cuts would cost schools and job training programs $36 billion. Head Start, drug-free school programs, college grants and loans, and the national service initiative called AmeriCorps would be drastically reduced or eliminated under GOP plans, the White House says.

Hurricane zeros in on Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Howling "like a million ghosts," a monstrous hurricane roared into the Caribbean today, killing a French tourist and bending palm trees double even before it hit land.

Frightened tourists and islanders crowded airports and overwhelmed air charter companies. But several airports closed Monday evening.

As Hurricane Luis zeroed in on Puerto Rico today, the governor of the U.S. territory went on television to tell island residents not to panic and that they could seek refuge in schools, which were closed for the day.

"Be calm, but be prepared," Gov. Pedro Rossello said.

The National Weather Service said the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico "will feel the full force of the hurricane" today and Wednesday. The National Guard was on alert in both U.S. territories.

In Guadeloupe, waves as high as nine feet swept a 29-year-old French tourist from a jetty where he was trying to photograph the sea. He drowned while the edge of the hurricane was more than 100 miles away.

With confirmed wind gusts up to 160 mph, and a 60-mile-wide eye that is bigger than any of the islands it is lashing, Hurricane Luis threatens even more devastation than Hurricane Hugo in 1989.

As the storm bore down today on Barbuda, a tiny island of 1,400 people, wind gusts of at least 146 mph knocked out U.S. wind measuring instruments on neighboring Antigua, 25 miles to the south. There was an unofficial report of gusts up to 175 mph on Antigua.

In Washington, the Federal Emergency Management Agency assembled a disaster strike force Monday and sent communications teams and equipment to Puerto Rico and Virgin Islands.

TAAS test scheduled

The Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) and Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills (TEAMS) tests will be administered Oct. 24, 25 and 26.

Enrolled 11th and 12th graders as well as individuals who are out of school, are eligible to take any section of the exit-level test on which they have not met minimum expectations.

Fall registration packets are available in the Snyder High School counselor's office. TAAS out-of-school examinees and TEAMS examinees must register by Sept. 15.

For further information call Charlene Light at 573-6301 or Wendell Sollis at 573-5401.

ASK US

Q—What is the maximum amount that a county can add to the vehicle registration fee?

A—The maximum amount to be used for a county's road and bridge fund is $10. However, state law allows that other fees may be collected for such expenses as school crossing guards.

Suburban Texans packing gun license classes

PLANO (AP) — Plano was named an "All-American City" last year and it's one of the safest in Texas — the most common crime is thefts of golf clubs and lawn mowers from wide-open garages.

But, like many Americans, people here are afraid.

They see the carjackings and muggings on the evening news. They remember the massacre at Luby's Cafeteria, the kidnap and murder of a little girl from a Plano park two years ago.

They want to carry guns in their pockets, purses and fanny packs. As of Jan. 1, a new state law will allow them to do so.

And so they gave up their golf games and left their children with housekeepers to spend Labor Day weekend in classrooms, qualifying for licenses to carry concealed handguns.

"I'm a mother. I have a 4-year-old and a 4-month old and if anything were to happen, I want to be in a position to defend us," said a 39-year-old woman with a gentle face and blue plaid sun dress. Her name is Paula, she drives a Mercedes, her husband is a lawyer and she doesn't want to give her last name.

"I'm not going to just scream, I'm going to fight back. I'll have a gun."

This is not the Texas of good ol' boys and cattle drives, cowboy hats and sprawling ranches. This is the "technoburb" of Plano, where residents have moved from other states to work as engineers and executives at high-tech companies, where identical pink brick subdivisions have names like Stonebriar and Steeplechase and nearly every new home has vaulted ceilings, sunken tubs and security systems.

Paula lives in a subdivision of $175,000 homes and Range Rovers and homeowners associations that don't allow overnight parking on the street. Crime watch signs are hammered into front lawns and posters of McGruff, the crime dog, are posted in front windows.

"People drive through the neighborhood in beat-up cars," she said. "They don't belong here."

She is one of thousands of Texans across the state enrolled in gun classes — for about $150 a course — at shooting ranges, hotel conference rooms and even a church.

In Plano last weekend, 150 people, mostly professionals in Bermuda shorts, boat shoes and designer golf shirts, brought cell phones, brief cases and pagers to the packed hotel conference rooms. They won't need their guns until later this week when they take their marksmanship test. For now, their weapons are legally stowed at home in night stands, closets and safes.

Sitting through 12 hours of lectures and demonstrations, they asked where they could carry their guns and when they could shoot them and not be jailed.

The state-certified instructors didn't have all the answers. But one thing was certain, said an instructor from the Bullet Trap shooting range.

"If you've got a weapon, you have to be prepared to use it," Ron King told the class. "Have you really thought about being able to shoot somebody? Are you ready to take a life? That's what this is all about. ... If you have doubts, you have to ask yourself, 'Do you really want to be here?'"

Come Jan. 1, they will be able to carry guns while driving through bad neighborhoods and lonely highways, walking across dark parking lots, eating hamburgers at Luby's.

Despite Texas' Wild West image, carrying handguns has been illegal, for the most part, since the 1870s. With the passage of the law, Texas joins 25 other states that grant concealed gun permits to most non-felons.

"The instructor says this isn't the Wild West, but I disagree," Tony Martin, owner of an oil and gas company in North Dallas, said during a break in the course. "We have the same problems they had in the Wild West, but we can't defend ourselves. It's time we took back that right."

Robbie Puig, a 66-year-old grandmother who attended the workshop with her husband, said she will carry a handgun in her fanny pack whenever she takes a walk. And if she encounters someone needing help, "I feel like I would go up and display the weapon and try to scare the attacker. You hear about someone being attacked in a crowd and no one doing anything."

Randy Walker, a maintenance supervisor at a Plano apartment complex, says he wished the gun law had been in effect 12 years ago when he says he was nearly beaten to death by his girlfriend's father.

"If I had a gun, after the first hit, I would have shot him. The first hit broke my jaw," he said. "I've been beaten up real bad. It will never happen again."

State officials anticipate upwards of 200,000 Texans will apply for concealed gun licenses. No felons, deadbeat parents or drug addicts are allowed. Each candidate must send in two photos, fingerprints and a $140 check. They also have to pass a background check, a marksmanship test and a multiple choice exam on gun safety, laws and usage.

Opponents fear the new law will cause more violence, escalating even minor traffic altercations into shoot-outs.

Plano Police Chief Bruce Glasscock said gun toters, with their limited training, will have a false sense of safety.

"We train our officers across the country in hours and hours of training in conflict resolution and 'shoot, don't shoot' situations. We still have police officers who make mistakes," he said.

Besides, he said, "unless someone is going to walk around with their hand on the gun, the offender is always going to have the advantage."

Pat Adair, president of a Plano telecommunications company, said he would use the gun to protect himself and his family and anyone else who needs it.

"I'll carry it 90 percent of the time. Why not? I've gone to the trouble," said Adair, 45, whose wife plans to take the class in a few weeks.

Although he acknowledges Plano is a safe place to live, "the crime just takes time to get here," he said. "But it will make it."

Ex-Austin woman still wanted by law

AUSTIN (AP) — A 54-year-old Austin grandmother continues to elude federal authorities after 10 years on the lam as one of the FBI's most wanted fugitives.

At one time, many Austinites knew Betty Ann Duke. But before there was Betty Ann Duke — federal fugitive "considered armed and extremely dangerous" — there was Austin's Betty Ann: mother of two, substitute teacher and legislative researcher, leftist activist, committed warrior in the struggle for worldwide human rights.

Byron Sage, FBI senior resident agent in Austin, said he has been looking for Ms. Duke for 10 years.

She disappeared in 1985 while awaiting trial in Philadelphia on charges of harboring a fugitive from a $1.6 million Brinks truck heist and with possession of firearms and 200 pounds of explosives.

Along with being wanted in a series of bombings in New York and Washington, D.C., Sage said Ms. Duke was one of three Austinites involved in the November 1983 bombing of the U.S. Capitol, a blast that blew a hole in the Senate chamber's outside wall and caused $265,000 in damage.

For many who took part in anti-Vietnam War protests and later activities aimed at social change, it came as no shock.

"I don't think an article should be written," said Lori Jo Hansel, one of Ms. Duke's best friends. Hansel, now an Austin lawyer and mother, reluctantly spoke of her friend to the Austin American-Statesman. "This needs to be put in context. Her life, and ours, needs to be put in context."

Ms. Duke, born in 1940 in Beeville, was reared in a comfortable middle-class family in San Antonio.

"Growing up in Texas, in the 1950s, we couldn't help but be affected by what was going on around us," Ms. Hansel said. "We grew up when black people couldn't vote. The march to Selma. Later, there were the assassinations of Martin Luther King and Malcolm X, the child running down the road on fire in Vietnam. ... These things had a direct impact on us."

In the early '60s, Ms. Duke lived in an Episcopal seminary in Chicago and worked in the ghettos, "figuring out what she could do as one person," Ms. Hansel said.

Ms. Duke came to Austin in the early 1970s, a divorcee with two children. The 1968 graduate of North Texas State University in Denton had been an English instructor at the university until she was fired in 1971 for cursing at regents at an anti-war demonstration.

In Austin, Ms. Duke worked as a substitute teacher, then as a legislative researcher. In 1981, she walked away from the job to raise money to defend friends arrested in a bungled Brinks' robbery in New York state in which two police officers were killed.

Gift on Mother's Day Is Cherished by Two Moms

DEAR ABBY: This past Mother's Day, my 21-year-old son, Kurt, came home at 10:30 in the evening and apologized for not having spent the day with me. Yet he gave me an infinitely precious gift.

Several months earlier, one of his closest buddies committed suicide. It was a tragic and confusing loss to all who knew him.

Since this would have been the young man's mother's first Mother's Day alone, some of those who had been closest to her son arranged to spend the day at her home doing yard work, helping her sort through his things, and just "being there" for her.

It made me realize that I have my thoughtful son every day, and in no way could I be hurt or upset because he had chosen to reach out in love and compassion to someone who desperately needed it. Two mothers were blessed with one priceless gift.

Perhaps others who know a parent who has lost a child will offer the same "gift" on future Mother's (or Father's) Days.

SHARON K. VIGLIATURO, CLOQUET, MINN.

DEAR SHARON: Thank you for sharing that beautiful story with my readers. Your son and his friends are to be credited for their sensitivity and creativity. I know there are many who will read this and adopt your son's generous idea next Mother's or Father's Day. Too often, people avoid the bereaved because they don't know what to say to someone who is grieving.

Read on for a letter that illustrates the problem:

DEAR ABBY: This is a rather small town, and yesterday I ran into an acquaintance on the main street. This man's son had committed suicide a couple of weeks ago.

The son was a young adult who had moved away from here about a year ago. He gave his parents a lot of grief, but that's beside the point.

How should a person handle a situation like this?

TONGUE-TIED IN NEBRASKA

DEAR TONGUE-TIED: Say, "I'm sorry about your loss." It is not necessary to have a dialogue. The acquaintance will probably appreciate not having to answer any questions.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Help! What is a mother to do when her 17-year-old daughter thinks it's OK to come home at 4 a.m. from a date? Her father is no help at all. He wants to be her "buddy" and has never insisted that she adhere to her 12:30 a.m. curfew.

I have spoken to my pastor and other mothers, and they all agree with me. But Dad doesn't! Are there other mothers out there with my problem?

SLEEPLESS AND HOPELESS IN CONN.

DEAR SLEEPLESS AND HOPELESS: You have a bigger problem with your husband than you do with your daughter. As long as he chooses to side with your daughter, curfew enforcement will be impossible. His failure to back you up in enforcing the rules of the house may be symptomatic of other problems in your marriage.

If he continues to undermine you instead of presenting a united front, there's little you can do to regain control of your daughter. Some marriage counseling sessions may be in order.

Jury selection begins in trial for custody of Baby Madison

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Jury selection gets underway in Texas in the custody battle over 11-month-old Madison Walsh, adopted last year by a Charlotte, N.C., couple.

Madison's adoptive parents, Matt Walsh and Mindy Sides-Walsh, flew to San Antonio this weekend to prepare for the trial, which they expect to last a week. Jury selection begins today.

"I'm the last witness," Ms. Sides-Walsh said last week. "Our lawyer has told me, 'Don't hold back on how you feel. You've just got to get through it.' I don't think there's any question that I'll cry."

Last summer, the Walshes entered into an open adoption, one in which all parties are identified, after a 21-year-old woman selected them from an adoption agency's list. Sally, the birth mother, and the man she identified as the baby's father signed away their parental rights, The Charlotte Observer reported.

The Walshes were with Sally, whose last name has not been released, in the delivery room when Madison was born Sept. 16.

Six weeks later, Sally named a different man as the biological father and DNA tests confirmed it. He then contested the adoption. The Walshes haven't released his name, saying the decision to talk should be his.

In May, a Texas judge ordered the Walshes to give the biological father some time to get to know his daughter. After supervised visits in Charlotte, Madison spent two weeks at the man's home in Texas in June.

The child's biological father is a 29-year-old grocery store employee who lives with his parents.

San Antonio hotel market doing well

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The drilling and hammering of construction crews tell the story. So do the shocked gasps of some tourists when they learn the price of lodging in San Antonio.

If you've traveled to this city lately you may already know hotel rooms are a coveted commodity. And hotel companies are working feverishly to cash in on the phenomenon.

"San Antonio for the last number of years has been just an incredibly hot market," said Steve Lundgren, president of the Greater San Antonio Hotel-Motel Association.

Since this time last year, approximately 1,600 new hotel rooms have opened throughout the city, most in the northern parts of town.

Large Yard of the Month

Small Yard of the Month

Most Improved Business Yard of the Month

WINNERS ANNOUNCED — Snyder Beautification Committee and Snyder Garden Club have joined hands in encouraging citizens to "beautify Snyder." August winners in the southwest area were announced. Opal Key's yard, 2807 Westridge, won large yard of the month honors. Mrs. Key, left, is congratulated by garden club judges, Sandra Browning, center, and Geleska Baze. In the center photo, Browning and Baze stand with the winner of the small yard of the month belonging to Claude Jr. and Barbara McCormick, 3106 Ave. U. Mrs. McCormick is shown at left. Owners of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home, Jack Cypert, left, and Bill Seale, accept the sign to be displayed signifying their honor for the most improved business yard of the month from Baze. Garden club meets Thursday

Snyder Garden Club will resume its meetings Sept. 7 in the home of Billie Jean Sterling with a salad luncheon that will be followed by a planning session for the annual flower show held in conjunction with the Scurry County Fair set for Sept. 21-23 at the coliseum.

Highlighting the meeting will be a tribute to Patsy Huckabee of Snyder who has held numerous offices and headed several committees in the local, district and state levels. She is also a master judge.

Anyone interested in learning flower design or horticulture is invited to attend.

Garden club meets the first Thursday of each month, usually at Martha Ann Woman's Club at 9:30 a.m. More information may be obtained by calling SGC president, Glenda Glasscock at 573-1817, or vice president Gertrude League at 573-9823.

Cockroaches, high in vitamin B, are bred by the San Diego Zoo to feed the bird collection.

From bidding to leading

Yesterday, I featured a deal in which a pair lost 5,200 points, non-vulnerable, in five clubs redoubled. Today, it was an opening lead that cost a large number of points.

Three hearts is the sort of kamikaze opening bid that its practitioners think is macho. They claim that only wimps would open two hearts. And a noun hasn't been invented for anyone who would pass. Each to his own, I suppose.

West overcalled three no-trump in the hope that his diamond suit would run. East bid what he thought he could make, six clubs. North, with two aces, doubled. West, incorrectly thinking North had made a Lightner double with a diamond void, retreated to his suit. Now North bizarrely bid six hearts instead of doubling again.

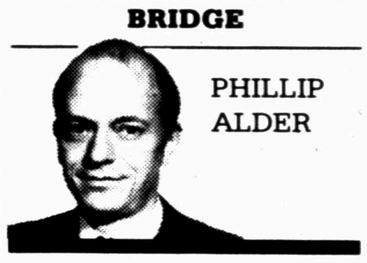

When you have the balance of points and the opponents sacrifice, often a trump lead is best. So West placed the heart three on the table.

There was a good case for playing the heart nine from the dummy, in case East had the singleton 10 and West king-doubleton in spades. However, as West had a singleton spade king, it didn't matter. After playing low from the dummy and winning with the heart seven, South took another heart finesse, led the spade 10 and, when the king appeared, drew West's last trump, saying "just the 12" tricks. That was plus 1,210 to North-South.

How would other leads work? Rather better. The best, the spade king, generates 800 points (four down) via a spade ruff and trump promotion, a difference of 2,010 points.

Cowboys destroy Giants in opener

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — If the first week of the season is any indicator, make the Dallas Cowboys the favorites to win a third Super Bowl in four years.

Unlike the San Francisco 49ers, who struggled to beat New Orleans on Sunday, the Cowboys came out in midseason form on Monday night and humiliated the New York Giants 35-0 in a game even more lopsided than the score.

Emmitt Smith scored on a 60-yard run on his first carry of the season and added three 1-yard runs while gaining 163 yards on 21 carries.

Troy Aikman threw for 228 yards, hitting Michael Irvin and Jay Novacek a combined 12 times for 200 yards and a touchdown, while Dallas' defense didn't allow New York closer than its 15.

"It was total domination in all areas, special teams, offense, defense," Cowboys coach Barry Switzer said. "When the Dallas Cowboys can run the football like we ran it tonight, it is very difficult to beat us. It's going to be really fun to look at the film and the offensive line and see how they gashed up."

The segment of film Switzer won't like seeing is late in the second quarter when cornerback Kevin Smith went down with what appeared to be a season-ending Achilles injury.

"I want to tell Jerry, 'Hey, it's serious now,'" Switzer said in a serious tone. "Get Deion (Sanders). We need Deion now."

While the Cowboys look to fill a cornerback slot, the Giants are definitely heading back to the drawing board after their worst regular-season loss since a 44-7 setback to San Diego in 1980. It was their first shutout at home since 1976 and their first shutout in an opener since 1934.

"If you use this as a measuring stick, we have a long way to go," said Giants coach Dan Reeves, who had hoped his team would challenge the three-time defending NFC East champion Cowboys this season.

It took the Cowboys only one series to show their superiority, going 75 yards in three plays. The last 60 came on a burst by Smith off the right side of the line that caught the Giants in a blitz. One step beyond the line and he was gone.

And so were the Giants, for that matter.

"I think the first touchdown kind of hurt us, but you just say, 'OK, it's 7-0. Let's throw it out the window and let's go play football,'" Giants veteran safety Vencie Glenn said. "But we never got back on track. I can't never say we were on track, but we just never bounced back and they dictated the whole game, no ifs, ands or buts. They dictated every phase of the game."

Dallas pushed its lead to 21-0 with scoring drives of 65 and 59 yards in the second quarter. Aikman, who was 15-of-20, hit Irvin (7 catches for 109 yards) on a 7-yard scoring pass and Smith scored the first of the three short TDs.

Smith has 75 for his career, breaking the team mark of 72 set by Tony Dorsett.

New York's best scoring chance came late in the quarter, but a 42-yard field goal attempt by Brad Daluiso was partially blocked by Tony Tolbert.

After Phil Simms No. 11 jersey was retired at halftime by the Giants, Dallas came back on the field and finished off New York with a seven play, 80-yard drive.

"The shutout was great," Cowboys middle linebacker Robert Jones said. "I think that sends out a message to the rest of the teams that the Cowboys are not joking around this year. We had it taken away from us last year and we're going to fight for it this year."

Dallas held a 459-211 edge in yardage, averaging 8.2 yards per play to 3.8 for New York. The Cowboys also limited New York's usually good running game to 65 yards, but it should be noted the Giants' offensive line was banged up most of the preseason.

"They just came out and executed and didn't make any mistakes," Giants linebacker Michael Brooks said. "We made a lot of mistakes and everybody is to blame."

Deion decides Wednesday

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Deion Sanders, who played with the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers last season, hopes to decide by Wednesday on where he'll play football this season.

There's only one problem: No team has made an offer.

Despite well-publicized posturing for the cornerback by the 49ers and the Dallas Cowboys, Sanders said he can't do anything until he has an offer on the table.

"I want you to understand, it's not me prolonging the decision," said Sanders, who also is an outfielder for the San Francisco Giants. "Let's see an offer. I'm praying this week I'll know everything."

He said his recent migraine headaches are partly due to stress over his decision. He spends his time off the baseball field "hoping that someone will come through with an offer so I can know what I'm doing with the next five years of my life," he said.

Sanders noted that he watched a little football Sunday before the Giants played the New York Mets. What he saw was obviously encouraging.

"With the junk I saw today, the price is definitely going up," he said. "The longer you wait, the more you pay. That's a quote."

If Sanders does make his decision by Wednesday, that would be two days ahead of the deadline set by his agent, Eugene Parker.

Sanders was 3-for-5 with a home run on Sunday but the Giants lost 11-6 to the Mets. He had missed the previous two games with a migraine.

On Monday, Sanders went 1-for-4. His single to start the ninth inning sparked a rally that gave the Giants a 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Ventura hits two grand slams

ARLINGTON (AP) — Robin Ventura admits nobody would plan on hitting two grand slam homers in a game. The odds are so steep that the feat has been accomplished only seven other times in major league history.

Ventura joined that group as the Chicago White Sox third baseman collected two homers with the bases loaded Monday night, connecting in the fourth and fifth innings and finishing with eight RBIs as the White Sox won their sixth straight, routing the Texas Rangers, 14-3.

"You definitely have to have luck to do that," Ventura said. "It was definitely a freak thing. I just tried to hit it hard and I was lucky it went out."

Ventura broke the game open with a fourth-inning grand slam off reliever Dennis Cook, the sixth of his career to establish a franchise record and give the White Sox an 8-2 lead. Ventura added his second of the night and career-high 25th homer of the season in the fifth off reliever Danny Darwin, pushing Chicago's advantage to 13-3.

"I need another day to reflect on it, to try and figure out what kind of accomplishment this is," Ventura said. "I know it's not something I'll think about every day but I won't forget about it either."

Frank Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles was the last major leaguer to hit two grand slams in a game on June 26, 1970. Ventura also tied a club record with eight RBIs, last accomplished by Jim Spencer in 1977. The RBI total also tied Paul O'Neill of the New York Yankees and Mike Blowers of the Seattle Mariners for the most in a game this season.

Ventura started the night tied with Ron Karkovice and Harold Baines for the franchise record with five grand slams each.

Ventura highlighted a six-run fourth with his 24th homer. Ray Durham added an RBI triple, Ozzie Guillen contributed a triple and Lyle Mouton doubled as the White Sox sent up 10 batters against starter Kevin Gross (7-14) and Cook.

The White Sox kept up the pressure in the fifth, filling the bases on two-out singles by Tim Raines and Dave Martinez and a walk to Frank Thomas. Ventura lined Darwin's 2-1 pitch into the seats in right.

Tigers' endurance good for second

The Snyder Tiger volleyball team walked away with the second place trophy, following a marathon Saturday in the Denver City tournament.

Snyder was defeated in a battle of endurance by Lubbock Coronado in the championship match, which was scheduled for 7 p.m. The match finally started at 10:15 p.m. The Tigers were out scored 6-15, 11-15.

Sterling Cave lead all Tiger servers with seven points in the championship game. Also scoring were Lindsey Griffin, Tiffany Garza, and Amenda Huff with two while Shawn Purcell, Kelly Clay and Joanie Wemken added one each.

The morning started with Snyder playing host Denver City, a team which defeated them in the pool play Friday. The match started at 9 a.m., but was not over until 11 a.m., putting the tournament behind schedule. The Tigers won the match, 10-15, 15-13, 15-7. Griffin was high point with 10 points. She was followed by Garza, and Raechele Wemken with nine, Sterling Cave, Purcell, and Garza with four.

In the semi-finals, Snyder defeated district 5-4A foe Lamesa, 10-15, 15-12, 15-3. R. Wemken and Clay took command of the the match with Wemken scoring points two through eight and Clay points nine through 15 in the third game. R. Wemken scored 16 points in the match to lead the Tigers. Clay added 12 with two aces, Griffin had six with one ace, Sharon Gulseth with five and Cave with one ace.

The Tigers play at 5 p.m. today in San Angelo in a three-way match with Lakeview and Water Valley.

Astros winless with Reds

HOUSTON (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds moved within two games of their first season sweep since the turn of the century, beating the Houston Astros 6-1 on Monday behind fourth-inning homers by Ron Gant and Benito Santiago.

The Reds are 11-0 against Houston, which has never been shut out in a season series, although the 1962 team lost 17 in a row to Philadelphia before winning the final meeting of the season.

Barry Larkin singled to start the fourth off Shane Reynolds (9-10) and Gant, who had not played since Aug. 24 because of strained rib muscles, followed with his 29th homer of the season.

After a one, Santiago hit his 10th homer and Bret Boone and Jeff Branson followed with singles. But Mark Portugal's grounder forced Boone, and Thomas Howard grounded out to end the inning.

Gant doubled in the second inning, went to third on Reynolds' wild pitch and scored on a grounder by Hal Morris. Gant is hitting .410 in 11 games against the Astros with 17 RBIs.

The Reds added a run in the eighth on Brett Boone's double and another run in the ninth on Jerome Walton's seventh homer.

Portugal (9-9) evened his record at 4-4 since he was traded to the Reds from San Francisco.

Portugal kept the Astros scoreless until the seventh when John Cangelosi singled, stole second base and scored on pinch-hitter Milt Thompson's single to right, ending Portugal's performance.

Freshman win consolation

The freshman volleyballers won the consolation bracket of the Snyder volleyball tournamenet held Saturday. The girls were defeated by Sweetwater in their first match, 15-5, 13-15, 11-15. They came back and defeated Big Spring, 15-12, 14-16, 15-10 and Midland Greenwood, 15-13, 17-15.

In the first match, Keila Helms was high point with 12, followed by Fatima Burks with 11. Also contributing were Bradi Johnson with eight, Amy Ricks with five and Shannon Hall, Darcee Purcell, and Mary Hollis each with one.

In the second match, Johnson and Brittany Drummond scored in double figures with 12 and 10 points respectively. Helms added nine while Hall had eight, Purcell with two and Nicole Canales and Ricks with one.

The consolation finals saw Helms leading all Tiger scorers with 11. Drummond added eight while Starla Davis had seven, Burks with two and three girls with one, Johnson, Hall and Felsha Biggers.

15 under par wins scramble

A 15 under par 57 was good enough to win the Snyder Country Club, Labor Day scramble.

The team of Bill Moss, Mark Glass, Darryl Blackwell, and Juanita Hester shot the 57 to win the four-person scramble.

Second place went to Elliot Cox, Trent Owen, Cynthia Jackson, and Riley Sterling who shot a 61.

Finishing third with a 62 was the team of Rick Hall, Vivian Norwood, Mackey Greene and Steve Olson.

Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics set an NBA record with 32 rebounds in a single half in a 1957 game.

Babe Ruth was a lefthanded catcher and pitcher before he became a home run slugger.

William Kunstler, underdogs' lawyer, has died at age 76

NEW YORK (AP) — With his wild hair, raspy voice and reading glasses perpetually perched on his balding forehead, William Kunstler looked every bit the part of radical lawyer.

For three decades, he was a rumpled presence in court who committed himself to the outcasts and underdogs, "the poor, the persecuted, the radicals and the militant, the black people, the pacifists and the political pariahs."

Kunstler died of a heart attack Monday after a brief hospitalization. He was 76.

At times, he became as unpopular as the causes he defended, once dubbed the "the most hated lawyer in America" by Vanity Fair magazine and decried by his critics as a showboat and publicity seeker.

"To some extent that has the ring of truth," he once said. "I enjoy the spotlight, as most humans do, but it's not my whole raison d'etre. My purpose is to keep the state from becoming all-domineering, all powerful."

His client list read like a Who's Who of modern American history and jurisprudence: the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., the Chicago Seven, Jack Ruby, John Gotti, Indian activist Leonard Peltier, flag burner Gregory Johnson, Washington, D.C., Mayor Marion Barry, Black Panthers and defendants in the Attica prison riot.

Considered Kunstler's greatest accomplishment was his successful argument that under an 1866 law protecting ex-slaves, civil rights cases should be removed from state courts and placed in federal courts.

But he was best known for defending the Chicago Seven against charges of conspiring to incite riots during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Sept. 6, 1995

In the year ahead conditions, in general look promising for you, especially in situations where you have already laid solid foundations. One or more of your projects may land in the winner's circle.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Keep a weather eye peeled today for both economic and career opportunities. Insignificant developments could suddenly become very important. Virgo, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10150. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Ventures or enterprises you originate or have a free hand in directing should live up to your expectations today if you don't delegate too much authority.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) On most occasions, the financial tips given to us by insiders are of little value. Today, however, information passed on to you might bear investigation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you might derive more enjoyment from activities that are more verbal than physical. Conversations with interesting friends could fill the bill.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are in a good cycle for your financial affairs. Something that starts out small might suddenly evolve into something quite grand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) News you've been hoping for pertaining to an arrangement outside of your immediate control could be forthcoming. Today might be the day.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may be especially lucky today. You might begin participating in a development where someone you know is already doing quite well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are entering a cycle where you could be more fortunate than usual through partnership arrangements. Look for opportunities through alliances.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Act in accordance with your ideas today. If you conceive of a way to advance your ambitions and aspirations, move on it promptly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Think win today if participating in any type of competitive involvement with pronounced elements of chance, whether it be sports, social activities, romance or business.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Important changes you implement today could have far-reaching, favorable effects. Move things around and make adjustments if it could better your lot in life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your judgment will be quite good today, provided you don't try to second guess yourself. Abide by your on-the-spot decisions.

Senators to take up welfare issue when Congress meets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Working behind the scenes last month, Republicans settled some of the disputes that kept the Senate from overhauling anti-poverty programs and requiring single mothers to work in return for a monthly welfare check.

But an emotional sticking point — and a politically risky issue for Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole — remains as lawmakers return this week and try to close a deal on welfare reform, the cornerstone of the GOP's social agenda.

Some conservatives, led by GOP presidential contender Phil Gramm of Texas, continue to insist that the legislation bar unmarried teen-age mothers from receiving cash support as a way of discouraging out-of-wedlock births.

Other conservatives, including anti-abortion forces, say cutting off these welfare checks will force young women to have abortions and increase the likelihood that they will not finish high school.

Presidential politics, Democratic opposition, and the GOP rift over illegitimate births forced Dole, R-Kan., to postpone debate on his welfare bill last month.

Dole, who is also seeking the Republican nomination for president, has since worked out several compromises to appease critics, who range from GOP moderates to Christian conservatives.

Dole's concessions include a ban on aid to immigrants, demanded by Gramm, and for moderates, an exemption from mandatory work requirements for mothers of children under age 1.

But some critics remain skeptical, and the Senate's 46 Democrats are largely united in denouncing the legislation as the "Home Alone" bill because it has no guarantee of child care for single mothers who would be required to work.

"Dole has got himself a real dilemma," says Gary L. Bauer, president of the Family Research Council, a conservative research and advocacy group devoted to domestic policy and family issues.

On the one hand, he said, Dole is under pressure from conservatives like himself and Gramm to use the welfare bill to send a tough message to teen-age mothers who get pregnant and ask taxpayers to support their children.

"Subsidizing illegitimacy is a recipe for perpetuating welfare dependency," Bauer and other conservatives, including the Christian Coalition's Ralph E. Reed Jr., told Dole in a recent letter.

Dole must also satisfy more moderate Senate Republicans, who oppose prohibitions on aid to teen-agers and children born to women already on welfare.

If he leans to the right, it's not clear that Dole will have the majority he needs, Bauer said. But if Dole slights conservatives, it's also not clear that he'll have the votes to push the bill through.

Bauer believes it would be a disaster for both Dole and President Clinton, who promised three years ago to "end welfare as we know it," if the Senate is unable to write a bill that can be signed into law. The House approved its welfare overhaul in March.

"There is a lot of institutional pressure for something to happen at the end of the day," says Bauer.

Phlebitis marked by pain, swelling

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please describe the treatment for phlebitis.

DEAR READER: Phlebitis, which means inflammation of the lining of a vein, is usually seen in conjunction with venous blood clots (thrombophlebitis).

The treatment for this condition varies, depending on which veins are affected. This can be determined by examination and by special tests, such as Doppler ultrasound.

Superficial thrombophlebitis (of the veins just under the skin) can best be treated by rest, elevation, heat, and elastic wraps. The main symptoms are pain and swelling.

Deep thrombophlebitis, a more severe condition involving the veins deep in the body or an extremity, usually requires anticoagulant drugs, such as heparin or Coumadin. This affliction typically causes pain and may lead to blood clots that travel to the lungs, producing painful and difficult breathing, sometimes even death, unless the blood clots can be surgically removed.

Thrombophlebitis can be diagnosed and treated by family physicians, but the complications — such as pulmonary clots or recurring inflammation — may need the services of a specialist (pulmonologist or surgeon).

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been suffering with a nerve-type hearing loss for years and am hoping for a cure some day. I've been told estrogen will be a key link to the cure. Do you see any possibility there?

DEAR READER: I'm afraid not.

Nerve deafness is usually due to irreversible injury to the nerves of hearing. This is most often the consequence of noise damage, not a hormone deficiency.

Our society is fraught with loud sounds, including jet aircraft, unmuffled engines, subway trains, and electronically amplified music. If such noise is sufficient to cause ringing in the ears or temporary hearing loss, it is doing damage. With repeated, unprotected exposure, permanent deafness will result. I do not believe that the female hormone estrogen would modify this damage or provide useful therapy for a hearing loss caused by nerve malfunction.

If you have new scientific evidence, of which I'm not aware, that contradicts this position, please send me the reference. In the meantime, consider using a hearing aid.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Ear Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

Almost no takers for Fuhrman tapes script

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maybe Hollywood found a conscience and is concerned about cheap exploitation of the O.J. Simpson trial.

Maybe Laura Hart McKinny's script, "Men Against Women," is simply not that good.

Whatever the reason, it seems that almost no one wants to touch the screenplay, based on hours of taped interviews with retired Los Angeles police Detective Mark Fuhrman.

"If the industry turns on to this, (it) would be sinking to a lower level than I'm afraid we already have sunk to," said producer Zev Braun, who brought America the CBS-TV movie "Menendez: A Killing in Beverly Hills."

The Fuhrman audiotapes have taken center stage at the trial as the defense tries to portray Simpson as a victim of police department racism and mishandling of evidence in the murders of his ex-wife and her friend.

A North Carolina college professor, McKinny hoped the screenplay, which she began developing in 1984, would jump-start her film career with its titillating tales of racism, sexism and brutality at the Los Angeles Police Department.

Those who have seen the script say something else is afoot in the reluctance to purchase it.

"It didn't even pass the smell test as being anything close to literature," said Dove Books publisher Michael Viner.

At private military college, female experience not hellish

NORTHFIELD, Vt. (AP) — It was only her third day as a "rook," at one of the nation's oldest private military colleges, but Dawn Mills' experience was hardly hellish.

Norwich University accepts women and puts them into leadership positions. And though every facet of the training is driven by cherished traditions, an all-male corps was dropped as one of them nearly two decades ago.

"Tradition has its place, but you also have to remember tradition won't always help you for the future," said Mills, an engineering major from San Antonio, Texas.

Mills and her 323 male and female classmates were drilled on how to march, wear a uniform, salute superiors, wax a floor, and blend into the traditions of being a first-year cadet.

It is not unlike the tasks Shannon Faulkner faced, and walked away from, as the first female cadet in the 152-year history of South Carolina's public military college, The Citadel. The difference is in the approach.

"This is Rook Week," said Norwich upperclassman Marty Ensinger. "It's not supposed to be hellish."

Norwich, founded in 1819, went coeducational in 1974 with a class of 906 males and eight females. Since then, it has steadily recruited women.

This year, its 150 female cadets make up 16 percent of the Norwich cadet population, the school's most female cadets ever. There are 65 women in this year's incoming class of cadets.

Women at Norwich supervise men regularly in almost all aspects of training. They live in dorms with them and attend classes with them.

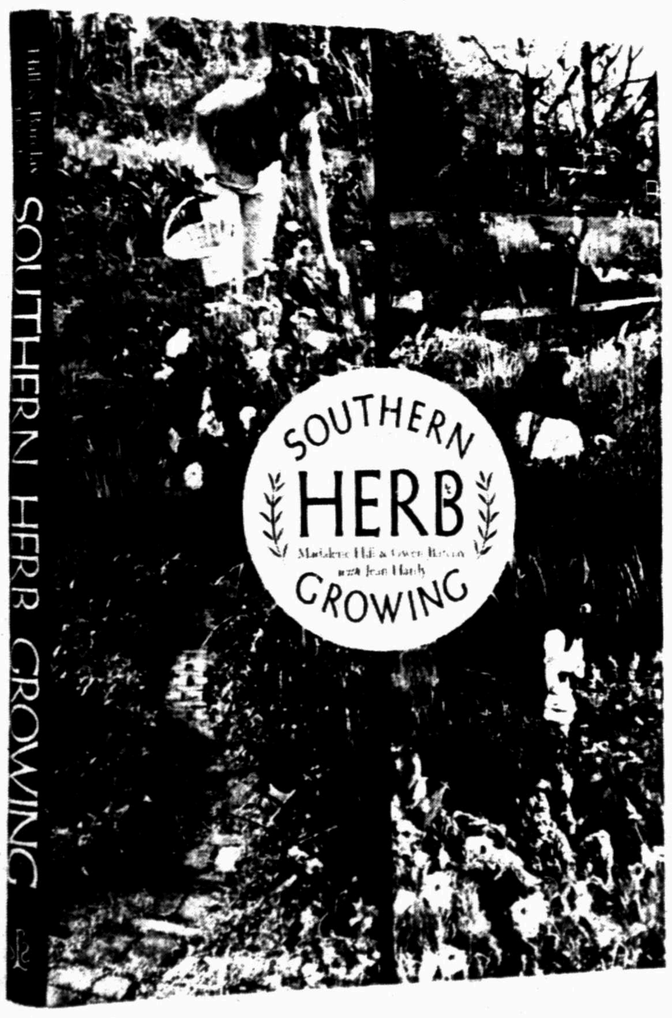

It was that picture that attracted Mills. She chose Norwich after seeing a brochure that featured tall male cadets being commanded by a small woman. "It shows that males aren't favored. It's equal," she said.

In their second day of rookdom, the male and female cadets in Mill's company split up to get their uniforms fitted. Upperclassmen offered help and moral support in the changing room.

Gingrich says Powell should weigh privacy before running

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — House Speaker Newt Gingrich says retired Gen. Colin Powell is wise to be taking his time about deciding whether to get into the rough-and-tumble world of presidential politics.

"What he does need to know ... he will never again be as unblemished and as desirable as on the morning before he announces," Gingrich said Monday.

Gingrich has already said he will make a decision by the end of the year whether to enter the race himself.

Powell's guarded privacy — he has not revealed whether he is affiliated with either Democrats or Republicans — will be over if he does run, Gingrich said.

"I think he'd have to make a decision on whether he wants to explain where he stands on abortion, on gun control, taxes. ... It's a very different job, being a famous military leader and being president. The only person in the 20th century to be successful at both is Dwight Eisenhower," he noted.

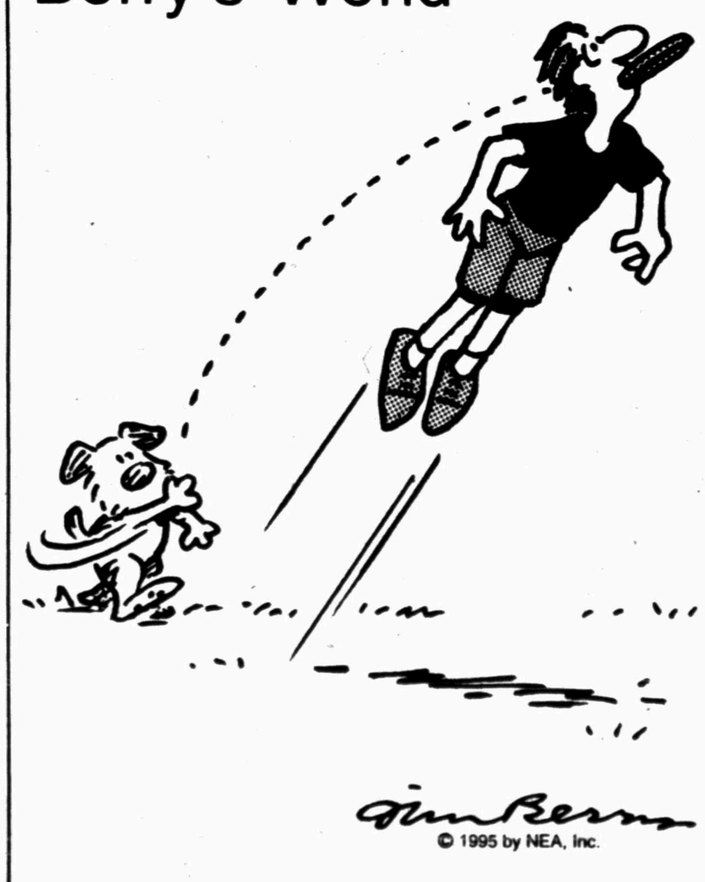

Races — presidential and otherwise — were on Gingrich's mind Monday. He started his Labor Day by handing out trophies at the U.S. 10K Classic run in his home district. Later in the morning he donated a pint of blood in an American Red Cross holiday blood drive outside his office.

Gingrich said Powell's forthcoming book, "My American Journey," and publicity tour this fall will spark further interest in Powell's political ambitions, just as Gingrich's book "To Renew America" and book tour did for him.

"People will get a better chance to get to know him. I think at that point, there will be a substantial amount of interest in him running, and sometime in November, I would guess, after he gets off the book tour, he's going to have to make a very serious decision," Gingrich said.

Powell's political views are not well known and his book, which comes out next week, doesn't reveal any details other than that he is uncomfortable with both major parties. Political pundits have speculated that he would run as an independent candidate.

Israel feels snubbed by U.S. no-show

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's government was in a huff today over the diplomatic boycott of Jerusalem's 3,000th birthday bash, especially the no-show of the U.S. ambassador.

Ambassadors from 70 nations were invited to Monday night's ceremony, but the Foreign Ministry said only 17 ambassadors showed up — mostly from small countries.

U.S. Ambassador Martin Indyk was among those who stayed away from the opening of Jerusalem 3000, a 17-month celebration marking the 3,000th anniversary of King David's conquest of Jerusalem.

He denied his absence was part of a boycott, saying he had other commitments and there would be "ample opportunities" for the United States to participate in festivities in the coming months.

The festival puts the United States and other nations in an awkward position because it showcases Jerusalem as Israel's capital while the city's international status is still in limbo.

Palestinians say the celebrations are a heavy-handed attempt to deny their claims to east Jerusalem, which Israel captured in 1967. Negotiations on the final status of the city, home to 405,000 Jews and 155,000 Arabs, are supposed to start by next year.

Although Israel claims all of Jerusalem as its undivided capital, only Costa Rica and El Salvador recognize it as such and have their embassies here. The United States and other countries keep their embassies in Tel Aviv.

Spokeswoman Aliza Goren said Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was unhappy that the ceremony had been "abandoned" by diplomats, including Indyk. Israeli newspapers described Rabin as angry over the snub.

"It's not new," Goren said. "We know the policy of most countries toward Jerusalem. Of course our aim is to change it."

The United States gives Israel $3 billion a year in economic and military aid.

Jerusalem Mayor Ehud Olmert said the U.S. decision to stay away from the opening ceremony showed that "Jerusalem is like an open wound in the relations between us and the United States."

Economics Minister Yossi Beilin said the American absence was regrettable, but added that it was a "moment of truth" for Israel that underlined that the status quo was unacceptable.

"What happened was a shocking truth for many people who think that what we need to do ... is to leave the situation in Jerusalem as it is," he said. "We need to come to a situation where in the final arrangement the world will recognize Jerusalem as our capital."

Sen. Bob Dole vows no 'autumn compromise'

CHICAGO (AP) — With an eye on bolstering his own White House hopes, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole today served notice that Republicans were in no mood for an "autumn of compromise" with President Clinton in the bitter budget, welfare and Medicare debates.

With Congress due back this week from its summer recess to face a string of major legislative decisions, Dole used a speech to the Economic Club of Chicago to make it clear Republicans do not fear the prospect of a government shutdown if they cannot come to terms with Clinton on a budget plan.

Beyond the upcoming congressional battles, Dole's speech was part of an effort to reassert his status as the Republican presidential front-runner.

On Monday in Indianapolis, in his latest overture to the GOP's social conservatives, Dole endorsed making English the nation's official language, and criticized the "embarrassed by America crowd" he said was undermining the country's traditional values.

Later in Iowa he brought up his opposition to abortion — something Dole rarely does in campaign speeches — but also scoffed at suggestions he suddenly was remaking his message.

"I get tired of reading these stories that Bob Dole is moving to the right," he said. "Nobody has checked the voting record. They are all things I've talked about in the past."

Dole had two major goals for today's speech: to court economic conservatives with details of what a Dole administration economic program would look like, and to serve notice to GOP rivals that he had no intention of legislative missteps — or questionable compromises — that might damage his campaign.

On the latter front, Dole was quite forceful, warning Clinton that time was running short if the president hoped to strike acceptable deals on reforming welfare, slowing the growth in Medicare spending and putting the budget on a path to be balanced by 2002.

Laying a marker for any such talks, Dole said: "We will never compromise away the mandate the American people gave us last November. We will fight to the end for fundamental conservative change, or we will take our case to the American people in 1996. This will not be an autumn of compromise."

As for economic policy, Dole delivered a sharp critique of Clinton, saying the president's 1993 tax increases and support for heavy government regulation were responsible for today's sluggish economy.

As for his own views, Dole provided flourishing new rhetoric but only a few new policy clues, one by endorsing a constitutional amendment that would require a super majority of three-fifths in Congress to approve any future tax increases.

Otherwise, Dole repeated his call for scrapping the current tax code in favor of one with "lower and flatter rates."

But he did not endorse any of several competing flat tax plans, or say whether he favors preserving any deductions, like those for mortgage interest or gifts to charity. Instead, Dole said he would wait to hear recommendations from a commission he appointed with House Speaker Newt Gingrich.

He did say he believed a family of four making about $30,000 a year should pay no income taxes at all.

Luis threatening Thursday launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — With Hurricane Luis looming in the Atlantic, NASA today prepared space shuttle Endeavour for a possible retreat from the launch pad as weather threatened to further delay this week's liftoff.

Even if the powerful hurricane avoids Florida's east coast, shuttle weather officer Ed Priselac said he expects only a 40 percent chance of favorable conditions for the scheduled 11:09 a.m. Thursday launch.

"It looks pretty dicey," Priselac said this morning.

Shuttle test director Bill Dowdell said managers will decide Wednesday whether to return Endeavour to the hangar for protection against the hurricane's damaging wind. Endeavour had to be moved from the pad to the hangar in early August for protection against the much weaker Hurricane Erin.

This time, NASA would have to transport two shuttles into the hangar: Endeavour and Columbia, waiting on the other pad for a late September launch.

NASA packed away loose equipment at both pads today and sent one of its shuttle transporters to Columbia's pad.

If Endeavour has to be moved, liftoff likely would be delayed as much as a week, Dowdell said.

Endeavour's science mission already has been on hold for more than a month because of repairs to the solid-fuel rocket boosters and a failed electrical generator. Liftoff initially was set for Aug. 5.

NASA was within hours of trying to launch Endeavour last Thursday when one of three shuttle fuel cells overheated. Engineers initially suspected a stuck valve, but inspections of the removed unit have uncovered no problems, Dowdell said.

Dowdell said NASA will turn on the new fuel cell tonight to make sure the cooling system and other hookups to the unit are good.

Further complicating matters are rough seas due to the tropical weather.

2 arrested on Monday

Two people were arrested Monday, including a 23-year-old man who was booked into jail at 8:02 a.m. on outstanding warrants from the Temple Police Department for Class A assault/bodily injury.

A male juvenile was taken into custody at 10:22 p.m. as a runaway. The boy was transported to the police department and later released to his father.

In other activity, a person requested to speak to an officer at 6:36 a.m. in reference to receiving harassing telephone calls.

Earl Hardy requested to speak to a deputy at 9:53 a.m. in reference to windows being broken out of his pickup. An offense report for criminal mischief was submitted.

The sheriff's department received a call at 6:13 p.m. in reference to people hunting from the roadway on County Road 3163.

A report was also made at 7:41 p.m. concerning people possibly hunting from the road in the area of the Willingham Ranch near the Roby Highway.

A person notified the sheriff's office at 9:17 p.m. that they had heard gun shots in the 1200 block of 23rd Street.

An offense report for family violence was made at 10:43 p.m.

Officers: man kills self after shooting wife

RODESSA, La. (AP) — A man fatally shot his wife, put her in a car and then drove to Texas, where he killed himself, authorities said.

Caddo Parish sheriff's dispatchers received a call about 7 p.m. Monday from a Rodessa man, who said his son, Bobby Wayne Jones, 33, had come to his house, saying he had shot his wife, Sheila.

When the father said he would call deputies, the son left and drove north into Cass County, Texas, authorities said.

Just over an hour later, the car was found parked just off Texas Highway 77 on a county road. The bodies of the couple were found inside, along with a handgun, investigators said.

Deputies said they learned later that the couple apparently had an argument while in the drive-through lane of a restaurant. Gunshots were heard at the time, deputies said.

France criticizes all foreign intrusion into planned tests

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — France may cut short a planned series of seven or eight underground nuclear tests in the South Pacific that has prompted widespread protests, President Jacques Chirac said today.

Chirac refused to respond to a report that the first test could come this week. He said simply that the first test would take place "as soon as the technicians consider the time has come."

France says the tests are needed to update its nuclear arsenal and develop technology for test simulations.

"If we have the information we need to change over to simulation, before the eight tests, obviously, regardless of the opinions of whomever, I will stop the blasts. My objective is not to carry out eight tests," Chirac said in Paris in a television interview.

"In any case, we will stop the tests before the date I have indicated, which was May 31st," he said.

The French Polynesian leader, Gaston Flosse, said Monday that he expected a blast this week under either the Mururoa or Fangataufa atolls, 750 miles southeast of Papeete.

French warships warned the 14 protest vessels around Mururoa atoll to stay out of territorial waters and told them the passage between Mururoa and Fangataufa atolls was off-limits.

Chirac provoked an outcry by many governments and nuclear activists when he announced in June that the tests would be conducted between September and the end of May.

"A country that wants to live in security should not lower its guard ... in a very uncertain world," Chirac said in today's interview. He cited the existence of "thousands and thousands" of nuclear weapons in the former Soviet Union.

Chirac reaffirmed that at the end of the tests, "France will sign the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty" and will support the zero option that would prohibit even small test blasts Washington has sought to continue.

Earlier, underwater explorer Jacques Cousteau added his voice to the anti-nuclear outcry, pleading with Chirac to scratch the testing, which he said "shows the power of the nuclear lobby."

Cousteau later announced his resignation from a government advisory body called the Council for the Rights of Future Generations, saying the "future of our descendants is ... incompatible with the nuclear threat."

The French Foreign Ministry, meanwhile, criticized some 100 foreign politicians for taking part in an anti-nuclear demonstration in Papeete on Sunday.

And New Zealand's Foreign Ministry called in the French ambassador today to protest what it described as excessive force against Greenpeace protesters during the seizure of a protest ship last week.

Australia and the Netherlands lodged similar protests Monday.

Company applies to market new class of AIDS drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hoffmann-La Roche Inc. announced today that it is applying to the Food and Drug Administration to market a new class of AIDS drugs, and federal officials said that approval could come swiftly.

Hoffmann-La Roche, of Nutley, N.J., is asking for FDA approval of saquinavir, a compound that attacks the reproduction cycle of the AIDS virus in a way different from that of drugs now in use.

Saquinavir acts on HIV, the virus that causes AIDS, by blocking an enzyme called proteinase, which has a key role in the final phases of the replication cycle of HIV. Four HIV drugs currently marketed work by blocking reverse transcriptase, a protein active earlier in the replication cycle.

Saquinavir has been tested extensively in Europe, and researchers report that it is effective for a time against HIV. The drug was shown in clinical trials to reduce the amount of virus in patients' blood and to increase the number of CD4 cells, the immune cells that are the principal targets of HIV.
