US Not Oil Poor Nation

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON AP—The United States may have four times as much oil as it already knows about, and the Interior Department wants to find out for sure through its offshore leasing program.

But even if those additional reserves are found, the nation could fill its own demand at present levels for no more than 20 years at best.

The United States is scarcely an oil-poor nation, with proven reserves estimated at some 45 billion barrels by the U.S. Geological Survey. This is about 7 per cent of the world total by government estimates. But the nation consumes about 6.5 billion barrels a year or more than 30 per cent of the world's annual oil production.

That is clearly a formula for trouble, which made its point last winter when the world's major oil exporting nations temporarily reduced their shipments and simultaneously raised their prices.

For the immediate future, the United States must continue to pay the high price for foreign oil, under the constant threat of yet another embargo.

In the short range, both the administration and the oil industry agree that domestic oil production can not be quickly increased very much.

Ford asked Congress to allow commercial oil production from the Naval Petroleum Reserve at Elk Hills, Calif., and estimated this could add about 160,000 barrels per day in 1975 and about 300,000 barrels daily by 1977.

Ford also said he would end federal price controls on domestic crude oil. The White House estimated this would increase production about 500,000 barrels a day over the next three or four years by allowing higher prices for oil which now is unprofitable to produce.

Ford also has asked Congress to allow exploration and production in Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 4, a vast, frozen area next to the big Prudhoe Bay oil field discovered seven years ago on the northern slope of Alaska.

And the Interior Department has proposed to open for exploration the previously untouched offshore areas along the Atlantic Coast, and areas off California and Alaska.

How much oil these areas really contain will not be known until they are explored with drilling rigs, but the U.S. Geological Survey has estimated that the nation may have 73 to 146 billion barrels hidden away in addition to 45 billion barrels of proven reserves, for a total supply as high as 191 billion barrels. This would be enough for about 22 years at current consumption rates.

If the United States does strike oil again within its own boundaries, that will not bring back cheap oil.

Government and industry officials agree that oil produced by drilling rigs standing in hundreds of feet of water offshore will be more costly than oil drilled on land or in shallow waters.

The Federal Energy Administration estimates that the government may have to support the price of oil at around $7.70 per barrel to protect the investments it will take to produce new offshore oil.

At $7.70 a barrel, offshore oil would be a bargain compared with current world prices, but it's nowhere near "the good old days" only two or three years ago when $3 oil was considered expensive.

AFTER AIRPORT ATTACK, GUN BATTLE

Terrorists Land In Iraq

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Three Arab terrorists flew to Iraq today in a French-supplied plane after an attempt to attack an Israeli jumbo jet, a gun battle with police and an overnight siege during which they held 10 persons hostage in a restroom at Orly Airport.

Air France said the plane was still on the ground in Baghdad two hours after touchdown.

The Israeli plane was not damaged in the attack at Orly Airport and the hostages were released unharmed. But 21 persons, including one of the terrorists, were reported injured in the gunfight that raged for 15 minutes Sunday afternoon in a crowded concourse of the airport terminal. Eight of the wounded were reported in serious condition.

Previous reports said there were two terrorists and from three to seven hostages. But witnesses at the airport said three terrorists and eight hostages came out of the restroom, the gunmen with stockings masking their faces and the hostages with bandages covering their eyes.

Two other hostages, a French woman and her 3½-year-old daughter, were freed earlier this morning when the terrorists began negotiating with the Egyptian ambassador to France, Naguib Kadry, as intermediary.

The identity of the gunmen was still unclear. Police at first said a note in which they demanded an escape plane was signed "Mohammed Boudia Squad," named for an Algerian militant murdered by Israeli agents in Paris in 1973. Later reports said the note was unsigned.

In Beirut, Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization condemned the attack, and the organization's representative in Paris, Ezzedine el Kadak, said the gunmen would be punished if they were handed over to the PLO. But Israel's ambassador to France, Asher Ben Natan, brushed aside the PLO denial, saying: "These organizations change their names, but they are all the same people. Sometime they call themselves Black September and sometime the revolutionary Arab Youth and sometime the Mohammed Boudia Squad. But they are all the same."

It was the second attempted attack on an Israeli plane at Orly within a week. Two men fired two bazooka shells at an El Al jetliner as it was departing last Monday but missed and hit a Yugoslav jet and an airport building. Three persons were wounded. The gunmen escaped and later the Mohammed Boudia Squad claimed it had made the attack.

El Al's flight 418 from Paris to Tel Aviv had just pulled away from the boarding area Sunday afternoon with 222 persons aboard. One of the terrorists emerged onto a terrace of the terminal building and prepared to fire — possibly with a bazooka — on the plane about 1,000 feet away.

Judge Rules Against Teacher

AUSTIN (AP) — District Court Judge Jim Meyers ruled against a pregnant, unwed teacher today and said she could not force the Austin public schools to return her to her classroom job.

Harriet Wardlaw was transferred to a library post in a junior high school after she disclosed she was pregnant, wanted to have the baby and did not intend to marry.

Ms. Wardlaw contended she was discriminated against because of her sex when the school administration moved her from her job as a special education teacher in Lyndon H. Johnson High School. An unmarried male teacher who fathered a child would not have been treated the same way, she said.

Ford Sets News Conference Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will hold his first news conference in more than six weeks Tuesday, White House officials said today.

The officials said the question and answer session would begin at 2 p.m. in the Executive Office Building auditorium which was the scene of Ford's last news conference on Dec. 2.

Questioning is expected to center on Ford's economic and energy proposals, as well as such foreign issues as detente with the Soviets and continued fighting in South gvietnam.

Officials said the Tuesday session would be made available for broadcast by the national television and radio networks.

The President also has a broadcast interview scheduled for Thursday. NBC has announced that it will televise an exclusive live interview with Ford at 10 p.m.

Senators Okay Jobless Benefit Bill, Pay Hikes

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas senators rushed a $5 million unemployment compensation bill to the governor today and adopted another measure boosting 130,000 state employes' salaries by approximately $93 million.

The pay bill was changed to reduce proposed salary increases for employes making over $20,500 a year.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said that would save $7 million.

The original bill, by Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, would have cost $100 million. Retained on a 31-0 vote, however, were provisions raising salaries for employes making under $10,500 by 14.2 per cent and for those making between $10,500 and $20,500 by 10.5 per cent.

The unemployment compensation bill will entitle 25,000 jobless Texans to an extra $5 million in federal benefits.

After today's legislative sessions, attention will shift to inaugural activities, sharply curtailed this year because of the economic conditions.

At 7 p.m. the Texas Democrats' "victory dinner," will be staged in Austin Municipal Auditorium, for those presenting a $35-a-plate ticket. Profits from the steak dinner will go to the Democratic party.

Dinner speakers will include Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and National Democratic Chairman Robert Strauss. Many Texas congressmen and legislators will attend also.

Inaugural day activities Tuesday include a 7 a.m. prayer breakfast, a noon swearing-in ceremony on the Capitol steps, and a public reception in the rotunda during the afternoon.

The usual downtown parade and inaugural balls were cancelled at the request of Briscoe and Hobby.

Wallace Begins Third Term

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George C. Wallace began a third term as governor of Alabama today with a warning to the nation's leaders that the people "deserve and will demand" a full accounting from those responsible for a faltering economy and mismanaged government.

Wallace, in his prepared inaugural address, made no mention of what part, if any, he might play in the 1976 election. But "with an abiding interest in national affairs," he said he will "speak out when and where necessary."

Wallace has generally been regarded as a likely candidate for president again.

Public officials must seek to restore confidence in government, with honesty, integrity, fair play, and a dedicated concern for the people's needs, he said.

Wallace said that to revive the shaken economy, "positive and affirmative action" must be taken to see that working men and women have jobs at decent pay without having to turn to "charitable handouts" and unnecessary new government spending."

And he added, "we must see an end to artificial or contrived shortages in goods and production" and resulting "exorbitant profits."

Paper Asks Removal Of Dr. LeMaistre

AUSTIN (AP) — The student newspaper at the University of Texas called today for removal of Charles LeMaistre as university chancellor.

The Daily Texan said the "final strike" against LeMaistre was the recent accusation by a teacher that LeMaistre pressured her into giving his son a make-up final examination.

"LeMaistre does not know, or care, what the phrase 'academically oriented' means," the Texan said in an editorial. "Maybe the best definition we can offer is a University of Texas system without Charles LeMaistre as chancellor."

Ford Meets With Top Advisers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford continues working on economic problems after attempting during the weekend to whip up support for his energy and antirecession programs.

Ford planned to meet today with Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, Chairman Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers and White House economic adviser William Seidman.

On Sunday, Ford traveled to an estate in Eastern Maryland for a party of the Chowder and Marching Society, a social group of former and current members of Congress.

Mrs. Ford did not accompany the President to the party at the home of former Sen. Charles Potter in Queenstown, Md. Her physician, Dr. William Lukash, said Mrs. Ford remained at the White House because, "she was just tired." Ford told his host his wife couldn't come because of a back ailment.

Mrs. Ford has had periodic bouts with osteoarthritis, an ailment affecting her back and neck. She underwent a checkup at Bethesda Naval Hospital a week ago and doctors said there had been no recurrence of the breast cancer which resulted in her undergoing surgery in September.

On Saturday night, Ford sought to enlist support from organized labor for his economic and energy proposals. He attended a testimonial for Robert A. Georgine, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department.

Arriving at the dinner, he embraced AFL-CIO President George Meany, who a few days ago had denounced Ford's economic and energy plans as inequitable.

Court Ruling Is Upheld On 'Bootleg' Recordings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today let stand a lower-court decision barring unauthorized taping of recorded musical performances even when the taping company offered to pay royalties to the composition's copyright owner.

The court let stand a decision by the U.S. Circuit Court in Denver that such tapes are a copyright infringement.

The case involves the copying, on magnetic tape, of recordings made before 1972, when musical recordings were brought under copyright protection.

Edward V. Marks Inc., a leading music publisher, sued Colorado Magnetics Inc., for copyright infringement because of tapes made by Magnetics.

Marks owned the copyright to the compositions although the performances themselves were not copyrighted.

Magnetics claimed it had the right to make and market these tapes by paying a royalty to the copyright owner. Magnetics submitted royalties to Marks but Marks, as most music publishers do in such cases, refused to accept the royalty.

The dispute revolves around a law enacted by Congress in 1909 designed to permit copyright owners to control the making of recordings from their compositions.

In order to prevent an absolute monopoly, Congress provided that once a copyright owner had permitted a work to be recorded, another recording firm could make "similar use" of the work by paying a royalty.

The circuit court said taping another company's record is not "similar use."

In other action today, the court: —Agreed to decide whether Detroit police violated a defendant's constitutional rights by questioning him about a murder case after he had refused to answer questions about a series of robberies.

—Agreed to review a decision striking down an ordinance against topless dancing in North Hempstead, N. Y.

—Refused to hear the appeals of five men convicted in three separate cases of violating laws banning the display of obscene material.

—Let stand a lower-court ruling upholding a Greyhound Lines, Inc., rule against hiring bus drivers over the age of 35. The government contended that the practice violated the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. Greyhound argued successfully that the restriction was based on safety needs.

—Refused to review a decision holding the City of Los Angeles liable for aircraft noises around Los Angeles International Airport. The action upheld a lower-court ruling awarding $650,000 in damages to 520 property owners who sued the city.

Congress Is Busy With Its Housekeeping Duties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The work of Congress, including action on new measures to fight inflation, recession and the energy crunch, will get under way after the lawmakers complete their housekeeping duties this week.

The congressional Joint Economic Committee will open hearings Thursday on President Ford's economic proposals. Opening witnesses will be economists Gardner Ackley, Paul McCracken and Charles Schultze.

The joint committee has no legislative authority, and bills to put Ford's policy in effect will have to originate in the House Ways and Means Committee.

Among the organizational tasks, the Senate still must decide whether the New Hampshire seat vacated by retiring Norris Cotton belongs to Republican Louis Wyman or Democrat John A. Durkin.

The Senate, which took today off, has delayed a decision on the contest until Jan. 27 at the earliest.

The House meets only perfunctorily today before adjourning until Thursday when the Democratic caucus hopes to finish the reorganization process.

On Wednesday, the caucus will settle contests for the chairmanships of four committees following action by change-minded newcomers that jeopardized four incumbent chairmen last week.

House Banking Committee Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., will be seeking to retain his job against a challenge from Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., who originally was selected by the Democratic Steering Committee but then was rejected by the caucus of all House Democrats.

The battle for the chairmanship of the Banking Committee was turned into a three-way race when Robert G. Stephens, D-Ga., announced his candidacy last week.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, chairman of the Administration Committee, was rejected by the Steering Committee but the move was overturned in effect by the caucus. Hays won renomination from the Steering Committee on Friday.

The steering panel also nominated replacements for the chairmen of the agriculture and armed services committees, whose incumbents were rejected by the caucus.

In the Senate, reorganization is being held up by decisions on which Republicans will be assigned to various committees. That job may be completed by Tuesday.

The Senate is expected to spend part of the week debating whether to make it easier to shut off filibusters.

Counterfeit Suspect Is Nabbed Here

A suspected counterfeiter and his companion were arrested by Sheriff's Authorities Saturday at Furr's Supermarket and later turned over to Secret Service agents from Lubbock who said they will file a federal charge of counterfeiting against one of them.

Sheriff Keith Collier said a 31-year-old man tried to pass a counterfeit $20 bill at Furr's Supermarket. The cashier, Lana McMillan, became suspicious and summoned the manager, Kenneth Galbreath, officers said.

Collier said Galbreath asked the man to step in the rear of the store and kept him there until officers arrived. He and a 30-year-old campanion who was waiting outside in their car both were arrested.

Collier said a search of the car produced 14 more counterfeit $20 bills.

Secret Service Agents Warner Brown and William L. Morrow from Lubbock took custody of the men. They said a charge of counterfeiting would be filed against the 31-year-old man ut that the other would not be charged.

Chou: US-Soviet Rivalry Source Of World War

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai, in a major address to the Chinese people, has predicted that U.S.-Soviet rivalry "is bound to lead to world war some day."

In the speech delivered to the fourth National People's Congress Jan. 13 and broadcast tonight by Peking radio, Chou also said that Chinese-American relations have "improved to some extent," but China's feud with the Soviet Union worsened.

Chou declared: "The two superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union, are the biggest international oppressors and exploiters today, and they are the source of a new world war."

Chou's speech, broadcast by the official Hsinhua news agency, called on people of all countries to prepare for war.

He added, "whether war gives rise to revolution or revolution prevents war, in either case the international situation will develop in a direction favorable to the people and the future of the world will be bright."

The ailing premier, reappointed to his post by the congress last week, said the Chinese "should ally ourselves with all the forces in the world that can be allied with to combat colonialism, imperialism and above all superpower hegemonism."

Turning to China's relations with the superpowers, Chou said Chinese-U.S. relations have "improved to some extent" in the past three years despite "fundamental differences."

"The relations between the two countries will continue to improve so long as the principles of the Chinese-American Shanghai communique are carried out in earnest," he said.

The Shanghai communique, the result of former President Richard M. Nixon's visit to China in 1972, set guidelines for normalization of U.S.-China relations and cleared the way for the two nations to open liaison offices in each other's capitals.

President Ford plans to visit China next year to continue what he called "the process of normalizing our relations."

Chou's report accused the Soviet leadership of taking "a series of steps to worsen the relations between the two countries."

Quake Jolts Himalayas, Kills 36

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A strong earthquake that shook the Himalayas Sunday killed at least 36 persons in India and caused extensive damage and loss of life in Chinese-ruled Tibet, reports reaching here said today.

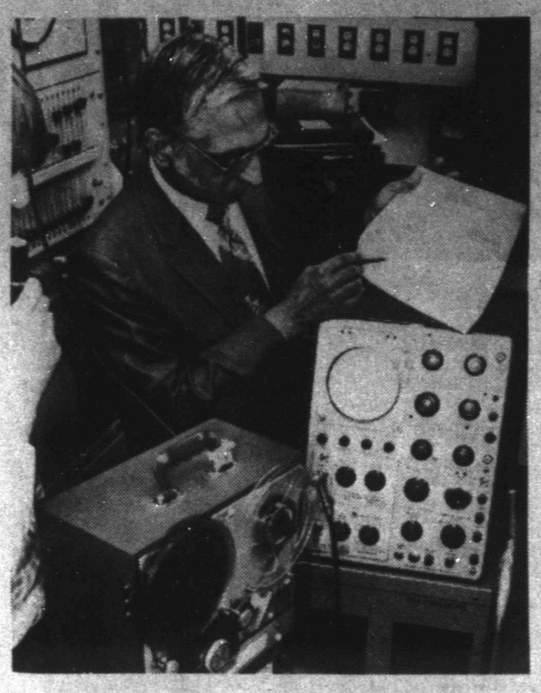

Witnesses on the Indo-Tibetan border said they saw Tibetan hillocks crumble into piles of debris.

Unconfirmed reports said that some members of a unit of Indo-Tibetan border police were buried under bunkers that caved in.

Officials said the earthquake was centered in a region about 225 miles northeast of New Delhi.

The tremors were felt along a 500-mile arc stretching from Islamabad, the capital of Pakistan, up to the Tibetan border and down to New Delhi, where buildings trembled during the initial 30-second shock.

Indian seismological officials said more than 50 tremors had shaken the area since Sunday afternoon.

TELL-TALE pattern may blow the whistle on tipsy drivers if a test developed by Dr. H. Hayre is adopted by law enforcement agencies. The University of Houston engineering professor has developed an intoxication test utilizing a tape recording of a subject's voice. Hayre, here analyzing a recording on an occilloscope for voice characteristics, says experiments indicate it is a more precise measurement of states of intoxication than the current widely used balloon tests.

McGovern Backs 1972 Platform

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than two years after his overwhelming defeat for the Presidency, Sen. George McGovern is more convinced than ever that he was "right from the start" about the nation's major problems.

And with the United States in its worst economic slump in four decades, the South Dakota Democrat says, "I really believe that the ideas I stood for in 1972 have now arrived as far as the American people are concerned."

In simplest terms, those ideas are a sharp cut in military spending, fundamental tax reform and major public employment programs to guarantee every American a job.

McGovern hopes for action in all three areas by the new, heavily Democratic 94th Congress despite what he feels is an "inadequate program" proposed by President Ford.

Beyond that, he says the Democrats must as a party take an uncompromising stand on major economic and social issues in order to recapture the presidency in 1976.

That was the theme of his recent speech to the party's Kansas City miniconvention, where McGovern received a rousing reception, and of his comments in a relaxed, hour-long interview in his Senate office here last week.

The senator said his relaxed mood these days stems from his decision against another attempt for the presidency.

"Just making a decision not to run for anything gets a great burden off your shoulders," said McGovern, who won a third term by about 15,000 votes last November to climax a six-year stretch marked by two Senate races sandwiched around his four-year effort to win the presidency.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN—In past columns, we've talked about the problem of consumer debt. Today, let's discuss the means available to solve the problem.

As we pointed out previously, the first step in getting out of debt is for the consumer to face the fact that he or she is in it.

And the earlier that fact is acknowledged the better, say our Consumer Protection attorneys.

Some consumers refuse to realize that their monthly outgo consistently exceeds their income. It doesn't take many months of such imbalance for the problem to have reached such proportions that creditors may be insisting on payment in full.

Much publicity is currently being given to the use of bankruptcy by average consumers as a way to resolve debts. Is bankruptcy the solution? It can be, for some persons. But filing a bankruptcy petition in federal court is a serious step and one which should be taken only with full understanding of the consequences.

Much less drastic measures can often solve the problems consumers may have with debt. But, again, the effectiveness of such methods frequently depends on facing the problems before they get out of hand.

The Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division has published "A Practical Primer for the Texas Consumer." In it, our attorneys recommend that consumers who find that illness, job problems, or other reasons have made them unable to meet their bills notify their creditors and explain the situation.

Most creditors will try to help you through a difficult time by rearranging your payment schedule or amount. After all, for them it is better to receive payment late than not at all.

Some consumers find that they need financial counselling to help them get out of debt and avoid getting back into it. There are several places to turn for such assistance.

-Banks--Many banks offer financial counselling to their customers.

-Attorneys--Private attorneys may help financial problems, especially when there is the possibility of legal action.

-Child and family service agencies--These local affiliates of United Way provide help with family problems and those involving children. If money worries or credit difficulties are contributing to a family's problems, the family is usually referred to volunteer experts who can supply financial counselling.

-Credit unions--Credit unions frequently provide financial counselling to members.

-Legal aide societies--Local legal aid societies can assist low-income consumers with credit problems, although of necessity such assistance is usually aimed at helping consumers who are already involved in legal procedures resulting from their debt.

-National Foundation for Consumer Credit--This is a non-profit organization with local affiliates which serve their community by providing consumer credit counselling at no cost to the debtor.

At present, only Dallas and Corpus Christi have such affiliated organizations. The Office of the Consumer Credit Commissioner of Texas is working with interested groups and individuals who hope to establish a state network of such non-profit agencies.

Operating funds for such organizations frequently come from contributions by individuals, businesses, and those creditors participating in a repayment program.

Spokesmen for one consumer credit counselling service say many people using the service need only to receive advice in setting up a family financial plan and budget.

Others need remedial help, which involves contacting creditors and working out a suitable payment schedule.

For assistance with consumer debt, try contacting one of the groups mentioned above. For assistance with consumer compiaints, contact the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

Damaging Winds Subside

By The Associated Press

Gusty and sometimes damaging winds abated today after propelling a chilling norther across Texas and into the Gulf of Mexico.

Early morning temperatures dipped to freezing or below as far south as usually warm San Antonio as skies cleared across the state except for a few lingering clouds in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Winds gusting above 50 miles per hour raked one area after another, hitting last at the Galveston Bay area for several hours near midnight.

Damage was placed at $8,000 to the roof of the Texas Stadium 8 Days Inn between Dallas and Fort Worth, where the National Weather Service clocked the wind up to 56 m.p.h. A number of power lines were knocked down in the same area.

Small craft advisories remained up along the Texas Coast this morning although the worst blowing appeared to be over.

Red Adair Called In Well Fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Like a giant cigarette lighter, flames from a leaking gas well shot 125 feet in the air and lit up the northwest end of the San Fernando Valley.

The 10-foot-diameter blaze was expected to burn "until someone figures out what to do with it," said a spokesman for the Los Angeles City Fire Department Monday.

Southern California Gas Co. officials said they called in legendary oil well firefighter Paul "Red" Adair of Houston. He was expected to arrive today.

No injuries were reported and no structures were threatened.

"There's no danger of it catching anything else on fire," said Bruce Marshall of the gas company.

Marshall described the blaze as "a huge candle up in the hills. It's located on a ridge, so it really stands out."

The gas leak began early Sunday morning and efforts to plug it were unsuccessful, Marshall said. It caught fire about 8:30 p.m., but the cause was unknown, he added.

CIA Hearing Resumes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former intelligence chief John A. McCone appeared before the Rockefeller Commission today as the blue-ribbon panel resumed its hearings into CIA domestic spying.

Former CIA Director Richard M. Helms was expected to appear later in the day before the eight-member panel headed by Vice-President Nelson A. Rockefeller, for a second round of questioning on the agency's domestic activities.

The lead-off witness for the second day of hearings was Patrick Coyne, former executive secretary of the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, a panel on which Rockefeller once served. The board is a group of 11 private citizens appointed by the President to evaluate the nation's intelligence needs.

Coyne would give the commission a background briefing on intelligence operations, a spokesman said before his appearance.

Coyne appeared briefly in news reports last year when he denied an allegation that he had told Rockefeller in the fall of 1969 about wiretaps on the phones of government officials and newsmen suspected of involvement in leaks of classified information.

During his confirmation hearings, Rockefeller denied ever having known of the taps, and the House Judiciary Committee dismissed the allegation as unsubstantiated.

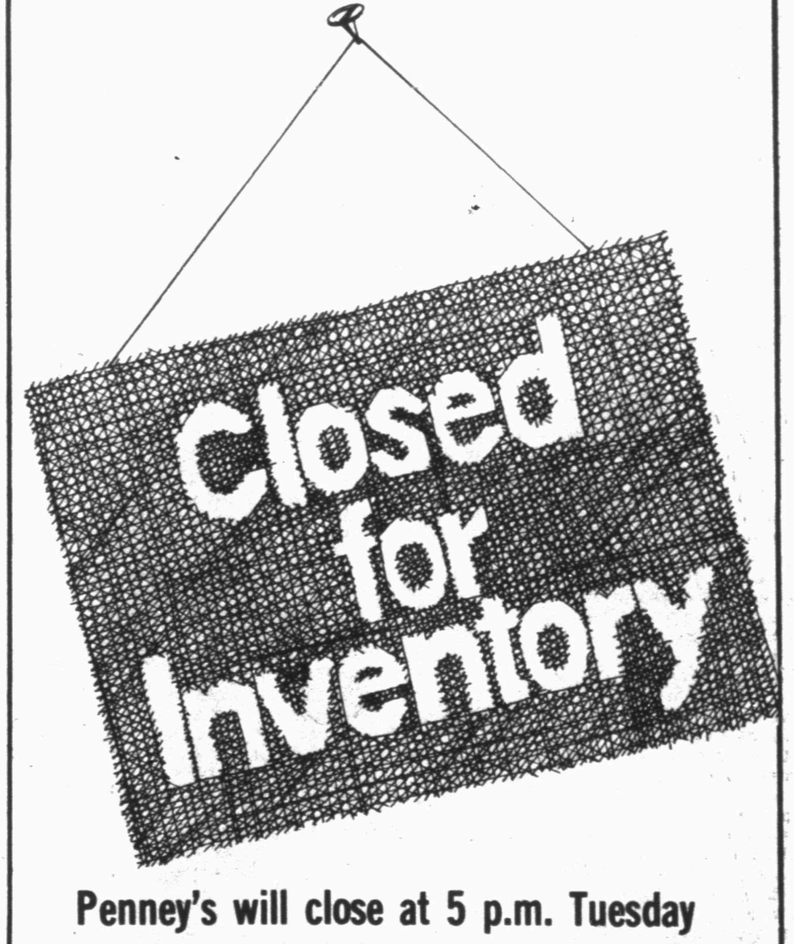

Senate Democrats were expected to decide whether to create a special committee similar to the Watergate panel to investigate allegations of CIA wrongdoing. The Democratic caucus is scheduled to vote on a resolution by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., that would set up an eight-member panel.

Pineapple Grapefruit

PINEAPPLE GRAPEFRUIT
Pretty and refreshing.
2 seedless grapefruit
8-ounce can sliced pineapple in pure pineapple juice, undrained
4 maraschino cherries, preferably with stems

Halve grapefruit and cut away sections from dividing membranes. Remove sections to a bowl and add pineapple juice; chill along with pineapple slices. Gently squeeze juice from grapefruit shells and use some other way. Loosen and remove membrane from grapefruit shells and discard; refrigerate shells, covered. At serving time, with a slotted spoon, put grapefruit sections into shells; top each with a pineapple slice and add as much of the pineapple juice as the shells will hold. Put a cherry in the center of each pineapple slice. Makes 4 servings.

Jaycee-Ettes Plan New Projects

The Snyder Jaycee-Ettes met in the home of Mrs. Kenneth Galbreath for their regular monthly meeting. Mrs. Tommy LaRoux served as co-hostess.

The program was presented by Brigitte Claundt, Snyder High's AFS Exchange student from France. Miss Glaundt showed the group slides of her country and spoke about her life there. She was accompanied by her American sister Dalinda Roberts.

The group heard reports on various projects and it was announced that all but three projects had been completed. The club voted to take on as new projects making new dress vests for the Jaycees, making garters for the National Jaycee Convention and financial assistance for the West Texas Rehabilitation Center. Mrs. Tim Burton was surprised with a birthday "share" package from the club.

Welcomed as guests at the meeting were Miss Glaundt, Miss Dalinda Roberts and Mmes. Bill Barlow, Clyde Ferguson and Mike Sanders.

George Catlin, 1796-1872, was the artist famous for his portraits from the life of American Indians.

Boys 4-H Meet

The Snyder 4-H Club met in the County Extension Office Wednesday afternoon. 4-H club members are selling magazine subscriptions to raise money to help pay for the State 4-H Center.

The club program was on making lasagne, and the importance of protein in the diet.

Members present were Joe Medrano, Oscar Sauceda and Benny Sauceda.

What To Say To A Baby

COLLEGE STATION—It is frequently thought that a mother is the only one who really understands what her baby is saying or feeling.

But understanding infants and talking to them has to be learned--it doesn't come naturally, one family life education specialist contended this week.

Dorthy Taylor, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said that parents are often frustrated when they can't identify their infant's wants or what he is trying to say.

"Infants are vague about what they say--their language is short and very incomplete, almost a code. No adult or child really speaks the language of babies," she reminded.

The infant is in just as precarious a position in communicating with adults. At no time in his life is he less able to talk and express his needs in words.

The specialist, who is associated with the Texas A&M University System, pointed out that infants are totally dependent on others to receive his message, interpret it and fulfill his needs. Because he is so desperate to talk and to be understood, a baby is usually a ready communicator, she said.

"Infants who are just learning to talk need good models. So it is important for adults to use correct pronunciation and not baby talk with their child."

The infant's understanding is evident in his "play back" of words. When he does an instant replay, this reinforces good language development.

Understanding infant communication is an art. Parents who talk to their babies many times during the day are helping the child develop good thinking and communication skills," she said.

Dr. Lamb

Bones soften with age

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I would appreciate anything you can tell me about osteoporosis of the spine. I was told I have it and that I can never work again. Also not to bend forward.

Then I read in a paper that exercise of some form should be done. I am taking calcium pills, but the healing process is very slow.

Could you also tell me how long it takes to get over it and if the hot sun has anything to do with it? I am in pain most of the time. Am in my late 60s.

DEAR READER—Osteoporosis is softening of the bones. The vertebra may collapse or break as bone is lost. The mild form is the woman with the dowager hump. It starts after the menopause in many women and about 20 years later in men. It is five times as common in women who are on a calcium-deficient diet. That is the big reason I always suggest that women get the equivalent of one quart of milk a day in their diet.

The pain is caused from the pressure on nerves associated with degeneration of the vertebra or actual collapse of one or more vertebra. Incidentally, the hot sun has nothing to do with it.

There are many different opinions about how to treat this problem. That usually means none of the measures recommended is too successful.

One reader wrote to me about his mother who had severe pain and did not respond to diet and increased calcium. He stated that she improved dramatically when calcium was given by vein (if your doctor is interested in the reference, it is American Journal of Medicine, July, 1969, page 7, by Dr. Frederic C. Bartter).

Drs. Jenifer Jousey and Lawrence Riggs at the Mayo Clinic claim on the basis of their research that a combination of fluoride (the same substance as the dentists recommend for teeth), calcium and vitamin D is the only treatment method that offers a chance of completely stopping or curing the condition. (Postgraduate Medicine, October 1962).

Meanwhile, two British physicians, Drs. Gallagher and Nordin, claim that giving the female hormone estrogen at the time of menopause or when the ovaries are removed surgically prevents the problem. Jousey and Riggs say that female hormones at best only arrest and usually only slow the bone loss.

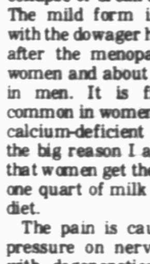

Still another report is from Dr. Roy Beauchene and co-workers at the University of Tennessee. Their studies showed that fluoride alone improved the bone and helped to restore bone calcium better than treatment with calcium, phosphorous, vitamin D and supplemental vitamins alone or in combination with fluoride.

Exercises sometimes do help if they are the proper ones designed to strengthen the muscles between the shoulder blades and along the back. The idea is to keep the spine that supports your chest cage from collapsing.

I think you can see from these problems that it is important to have a doctor evaluate your individual case and help you in a program to prevent any further progression of your disease. This usually involves diet, medicine and a proper type of exercise program for appropriate cases.

Send you questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on balanced diet, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Balanced Diet" booklet.

Ex-Supreme May Return To Stage

DETROIT (AP) — A former member of the Supremes singing group who is now living on welfare says she's considering a return to the stage.

Florence Ballard, who got national attention earlier this week when stories revealed her plight, said Friday she had been offered a job by a New York music contractor. She last appeared on stage in 1967.

Of the offer, she said, "I was very surprised, very much so. I still think that I would like to perform again. There's something inside that seems like it has to come out, as if I just didn't finish what I started out doing, and I was singing."

Miss Ballard, now 31, said she is considering the offer.

INSTEAD OF HIGHER SS TAX

Diversion Of General Tax Revenue Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) - An official government advisory panel has called for a "substantial infusion" of general revenues instead of higher Social Security taxes to pay for increasingly expensive retirement benefits.

The recommendation, announced Sunday by the Social Security Advisory Council after months of study, represents a turnaround from its earlier tentative recommendation that Social Security taxes be increased. That recommendation was that the tax be levied on the first $24,000 of every worker's wages compared with the first $14,100, which is the present level.

The council did recommend higher Social Security taxes for the self-employed, however, and reaffirmed its suggestions that benefits be liberalized for those already retired but be restrained for future retirees.

The recommendations of the 13-member council of prominent citizens are not binding on the government but are considered highly influential.

The panel, headed by W. Allen Wallis, chancellor of the University of Rochester, was appointed last year by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The new recommendation calls for phasing general tax money into the Medicare hospitalization program to free more payroll tax funds to pay retirement benefits for more than 30 million persons.

Social Security actuaries have warned that the trust funds may be paying out $224 million more than they take in in 1977, although a $44.8 billion cushion would remain in reserve.

However, continued inflation and declining birth rates could plunge the program into a $20 billion a year deficit by the 1990s unless basic changes are made, the actuaries told Congress last fall.

The council could provide no specific dollar figures on how much general tax revenues would be needed to fill its recommendation, until the final report is written. A spokesman said it would be "substantial."

General revenues already support the bulk of the optional Medicare coverage of medical care outside of hospitals. Patients pay modest monthly premiums.

Medicare coverage of hospital care, which is automatic for more than 23 million aged and handicapped persons, is financed through the Social Security tax levied on employers and employes alike.

Pro Bowl Is Set Tonight

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MIAMI (AP) — The answers to pro football's problems lie with "reasonable men sitting down and working out sensible settlements reasonably," one of the game's retiring stars suggests.

"We cannot continue to live in discord," added linebacker Willie Lanier of the Kansas City Chiefs who will be pulling on a jersey for the last time in tonight's Pro Bowl game at the Orange Bowl.

The game, matching all-star teams of the American and National Conferences, will have a 9 p.m. kickoff.

It will be televised nationally by ABC-TV.

Lanier, 29, a graduate of Morgan State and a defensive titan in the National Football League for eight years, will play with the favored AFC squad, which will feature the quarterbacking of Ken Stabler and Bob Griese, the running of such stars as O.J. Simpson and Larry Csonka and a defense girded by Mean Joe Greene and L.C. Greenwood of Pittsburgh's Super Bowl champions.

With Fran Tarkenton of the Minnesota Vikings begging off because of a sore arm, the NFC squad will have two quarterbacks making their first appearances in the game — Jim Hart of St. Louis and Jim Harris of the Los Angeles Rams.

Lanier is quitting football to take an executive position with a tobacco company and will be stationed in the Washington, D. C. area.

"I don't leave with any regrets or recriminations," the 245-pound middle linebacker said. "It has been a great life. Pro football offers players tremendous opportunities in other fields."

Lanier said he hoped the game would never have to go through a bitter player strike such as the one which hit the game last summer.

"The key word is respect," he said. "If owners learn to respect the players as individuals and as business men and the players have the same respect for the owners, then there is no reason that all problems can't be worked out satisfactorily."

Bears Lead SWC Race

Now that the Southwest Conference race is officially underway let's turn to gray-thatched veteran Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf for his viewpoint on the stronger teams in the 1974-1975 basketball campaign.

"Texas Tech is playing very well, and Arkansas is hot right now," Metcalf said. "Texas is coming on. TCU has shown it can be tough. Rice, Baylor and SMU are all young, but getting better each week. The race is going to be a good one."

Baylor jumped to the head of the pack with a 74-73 victory over Rice Saturday in a regionally televised game. Games Tuesday night show Texas Tech at Arkansas, Baylor at TCU, Texas A&M at Rice and Texas at SMU.

Texas Tech, picked by most to win the SWC, has beaten the Razorbacks 11 consecutive times—a fact that new Coach Eddie Sutton has perhaps pointed out to his Razorback team.

Defending champion Texas has begun to show signs of life after a miserable 0-5 start and Coach Leon Black says "I just hope we can learn from the non-conference games as well as we did last year."

Metcalf said the Aggies, who had the best SWC non-conference mark at 8-4, "have as good a mental attitude as any team we've had here. They work hard and enjoy practice. We have three junior college players who have fit right in. They are very unselfish."

He added "We think we have everyone in their right slot. What we need now is to get off to a good start. We have to go to Houston and play a good game against Rice."

Baylor's one-point victory over Rice in a ragged contest showcased the talents of Rice Guard Charles Daniels and a great relief job by Senior James Weaver of Baylor.

Weaver came off the bench to score 16 points to rally Baylor from a five-point deficit.

Daniels scored 25 points in the debut for Rice Coach Bob Polk.

A relieved Baylor Coach Carroll Dawson said "This has always been a close game. I can remember when they all used to be like this."

Freshman Tony Rufus, a 6-foot-9 player from Tennessee who almost went to Louisiana State, scored 16 points and collected as many rebounds.

Dawson said of Rufus "There's no limit to what he can do. I don't know how much he'll improve, but he can be as good as anybody we've had."

The SWC completed the majority of its non-conference play Saturday night with a 44-60 ledger. SMU provided a big shocker by knocking off Oklahoma City 85-75.

Miller Turns In Another Runaway

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — He's almost too good to be true.

He's tall, slender, blond and good-looking enough to serve as a male model.

He's polite, courteous and soft-spoken.

He's a non-drinker, a non-smoker, an elder of his church and possessed of a vocabulary in which "heck" and "darn" are the strongest expletives.

And, right now, Johnny Miller may be playing the ancient game of golf better than anyone has every played it before.

His recent accomplishments are the stuff of legends.

"I like setting records," Miller said Sunday after an astonishing, 11-under-par 61 gained him still another runaway victory, this time in the $200,000 Dean Martin-Tucson Open golf tournament.

"That's what records are for — to be broken.

"But it's getting to be a problem. When you set records you have to live up to them. I want to keep on improving, keep on progressing. How am I gonna top this? How can I keep on like this?"

Of course, he asked the same questions a week ago, when he won the Phoenix Open with a 260 total, the lowest 72-hole score in 20 years of tournament competition. He was 24 under par for that tournament.

But he found a way to top it. He went 25 under par in winning Tucson, composing an artistic, 11-under-par effort in the final round over the Tucson National Golf Club course, at 7,200 yards one of the longest layouts the touring pros play all year and a course that had been toughened and strengthened this season by the addition of water on three holes.

His total was 263. He won by nine strokes, compared with victory margins of 8, 7 and 14 strokes in his last three previous individual starts.

In completing an unprecedented second consecutive sweep of the two Arizona tournaments, this year the kickoff events on the pro tour, Miller has led or shared the lead in every round and has had scores of 67, 61, 68, 64, 66, 69, 67 and 61 for a season stroke average of 65.4.

"He's phenomenal," said John Mahaffey, a distant second with a closing 67 and 272.

Miller's effort before a national television audience and a massive gallery announced at 38,000 in Sunday's final round was just that — phenomenal.

"Without doubt, it was the greatest round of golf of my life," said Miller, who now has shot 61 — within a single stroke of the lowest competitive round in tour history — on three occasions, including twice within the last two weeks.

"It could have been the greatest round I'll ever shoot," he murmured, a touch of awe in his voice and speaking just above a whisper.

Tom Watson lost the battle for second to Mahaffey by a single stroke. Watson had 67—274. Don Iverson holed a 50-60 foot birdie putt on the final hole to tie Mike Hill for fourth at 276. Each had a last round 69.

Crimson Tide Vs. Kentucky Tonight

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Hatfields and McCoys start shooting at each other tonight. In other words, it's Alabama vs. Kentucky in college basketball.

"Well, it's a big game because it's the next one," says Alabama Coach C.W. Newton, dismissing the significance of the Southeastern Conference meeting.

Actually, it's bigger than Newton will concede. His players have to beat the Wildcats to hold onto their lead in the SEC and their prestige as the nation's seventh-ranked team. Kentucky, ranked No. 10, will try to disprove the Crimson Tide's alleged supremacy and knock them down a peg in the standings while improving their own position.

Alabama crushed Louisiana State 93-67 Saturday while Kentucky defeated Mississippi 85-82, adding some luster to Monday night's game at Kentucky. The victory gave the Crimson Tide a 5-0 record in SEC play and Kentucky improved to 4-1.

Alabama looked like a conference champion Saturday while taking apart LSU on the shooting of Charles Russell and Charles Cleveland. Kentucky, meanwhile, almost broke under the strain of a Mississippi rally before winning.

"We definitely had a letdown," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall, whose team was perhaps looking ahead to Alabama.

Elsewhere in college basketball Saturday, top-ranked Indiana buried Northwestern 82-56; No. 2 UCLA walloped California 102-72; third-rated Louisville nipped Drake 55-53 in overtime; No. 4 North Carolina State defeated No. 14 North Carolina 88-85 in overtime; No. 5 Maryland turned back Navy 87-73; Stanford upset No. 6 Southern Cal 67-66; No. 8 Oregon nipped Washington 68-66; ninth-ranked Arizona State trimmed New Mexico 93-76; 11th-rated La Salle tripped Penn 67-65; No. 12 Marquette beat Notre Dame 71-68; No. 13 Arizona defeated Texas-El Paso 69-57; 15th-ranked Providence defeated Massachusetts 86-74; No. 16 Minnesota downed Michigan State 82-71; Lafayette upset No. 17 Rutgers 72-66; No. 18 Tennessee whipped Florida 59-56; No. 19 Michigan beat Iowa 75-70, and South Carolina, ranked No. 20, trimmed Davidson 85-68.

Alabama started slow but picked up steam behind Russell and Cleveland, who combined for 48 points. The Crimson Tide Broke open the game by outscoring LSU 16-2 late in the first half. They led 43-24 at halftime and Newton substituted freely in the second half.

Kevin Grevey and Mike Flynn combined for 49 points and Jimmy Connor added some clutch baskets late in the game as Kentucky held off Mississippi. The Wildcats lost most of a 16-point lead before pulling it out.

Kent Benson's 20 points led Indiana past Northwestern in a Big Ten game that extended the Hoosiers' winning streak to 19 over two seasons, longest in the country among major colleges. The Hoosiers led by 10 points at the half and poured it on after intermission, racing to a 29-point advantage at one time.

UCLA built a 54-33 halftime lead and breezed by California behind Richard Washington and Dave Meyers, who divided 34 points.

Andre McCarter scored 16 and three other UCLA players were in double figures. Carl Bird scored 18 points to lead Cal, but didn't get hot until the Bruins led by 25 points.

Louisville kept its record perfect at 12-0, with a little luck against Drake. The Cardinals were given a reprieve when Drake's Ken Harris missed a shot at the end of regulation, then went on to win in overtime as Wesley Cox hit two free throws with nine seconds left.

A free throw by Kenny Carr with 17 seconds left in overtime gave North Carolina State its victory over North Carolina. The triumph continued the Wolfpack's comination over the Tar Heels the last few years. North Carolina State has beaten North Carolina nine straight times dating back to the 1971-72 season.

John Lucas scored 20 points in just 26 minutes, leading Maryland to its easy victory over Navy.

Stanford completed a sparkling weekend by beating Southern Cal as Rich Kelley scored 30 points. The victory was the second stunning upset in as many nights for Stanford. The Cardinals defeated second-ranked UCLA 64-60 Friday night.

Colts Get First Choice

MIAMI (AP) — Steve Bartkowski, a big, strong-throwing quarterback out of the University of California, looms as the hottest commodity in the approaching National Football League draft, and the Baltimore Colts have first grabs.

"We don't feel we need a quarterback, but believe we could use Bartkowski for good trading purposes," said Joe Thomas, Baltimore's general manager, after winning the coin flip for the No. 1 pick over Tex Schramm of the Dallas Cowboys.

The New York Giants, with a 2-12 season record to match that of the Colts for worst in the NFL, would have been in the coin flip, but traded their No. 1 pick to Dallas for quarterback Craig Morton.

"I am in contact with four clubs which are interested in landing a quarterback like Bartkowski," Thomas said.

Westerners Host Jayhawks Tonight

The Western Texas College Westerners host the Howard Jayhawks at 7:30 tonight in the Scurry County Coliseum in an important Western Junior College Athletic Conference basketball game.

The Westerners are leading the conference with a 5-0 mark and are 6-1 for the season. The Jayhawks are 4-1 in conference and 14-5 for the season. With a victory tonight, the visitors could grab a share of the conference lead.

Coach Mike Mitchell of the Westerners said Howard has a real good shooting team. They are averaging over 100 points a game on offense.

"We've got to try to slow down their fast break," Mitchell observed. "We've got to rebound and control the ball after we get it," he added.

Mitchell said probable starters for the Westerners are Norman Barnes, 6-8 sophomore from Austin, at center; and Bob Miller, 6-5 sophomore from Seaford, NY., and Ken Fowler, 6-2 soph from Austin, at guard; and, Brian Minor, 6-5 sophomore from Hattiesburg, Miss., and Eugene Harris, 6-7 sophomore from Hattiesburg, Miss., at forward.

Other Westerners ready for action are Stanley Covington, 6-0 freshman guard from Washington, D.C.; Kevin Jones, 6-5 sophomore forward from Snyder; Harrison Johnson, 6-2 freshman guard from El Paso; Tyrone Clopton, 6-6 freshman post from Washington, D.C.; Greg Hill, 6-3 sophomore forward from Midland, Pa.; James Smith, 6-8 freshman post from Richmond, Va.; and, Dick Torpey, 6-6 sophomore forward from Roswell, New Mexico.

Probable starters for the Jayhawks are Jay Harris, 6-0 sophomore guard from Wichita Falls; Alfred Gladden, 6-2 sophomore guard from Baltimore, Md.; David Giles, 6-9 freshman post from Vicksburg, Miss.; Larry Erves, 6-4 freshman forward from Vicksburg, Miss.; and, Larry Johnson, 6-4 freshman forward from Shreveport, La.

The Jayhawks' only loss in conference was at Amarillo College.

Postal Pilot Program Muddied By Cross Charges

KOKOMO, Ind. (AP) — A pilot program set up here to develop standards for mail carriers is being muddied by cross charges of sabotage, mass layoffs and talk of a nationwide postmen's strike.

The U.S. Postal Service says the study was ordered "to establish fair and adequate work standards" for mailmen and to develop foot and motor routes "with equal annual workloads."

But President James H. Rademacher of the National Association of Letter Carriers says 15,000 jobs will be eliminated by the program, which has become known as the Kokomo Plan.

Ronald Takacs, president of Letter Carriers Local 533 here, declares, "They want to put 20,000 to 30,000 carriers out" of work.

But Postmaster Richard P. Gerhard says no one even knows whether there would be a net reduction in jobs nationwide if the plan were implemented.

Gerhard adds, "There is a no-layoff clause in the agreement with the letter carriers. So if there were a reduction, it would be done by attrition."

Postal executives here say the program is not being given a fair chance and talk privately of pressure being exerted by "big (letter carrier) unions in the East" to make sure the plan does not work.

Asked if the union is conducting a slow-down, Takacs gave an emphatic "no", adding that the carriers are "giving their full cooperation."

"The plan is not working," Takacs said in an interview. "We're using more overtime. I don't think anybody is getting done in eight hours. They're all working nine and 10 hours."

The plan, called Letter Carrier Route Evaluation System, was drawn up under contract with Lester B. Knight & Associates, a Chicago engineering firm. Postal officials have not discussed costs.

Gerhard said in an interview Friday that a postman's "average salary is $14,000 and we have a right to demand a fair day's work out of him."

Gerhard, a postal employe 38 years and son of a lifetime letter carrier, said, "My father was 5 feet 2 and 120 pounds, but this program wouldn't have bothered him a bit."

But the letter carriers aren't convinced.

Takacs said, "They gave us a brainwashing that this was to benefit the carriers. Now they have eliminated routes at the South Branch and three carriers lost their jobs."

"I don't want a strike," Takacs said, " but if it stays like it is now, we have no choice."

A strike was authorized at the letter carriers convention at Seattle last August if work standards from the Kokomo Plan go into effect.

Bargaining is to begin in April for current contracts which expire in June.

Burns: Nobody Knows How Great Benny Was

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—It was the day after they buried Jack Benny. George Burns, his friend of more than a half-century, had broken down when he tried to deliver a eulogy at the funeral services.

But now he felt like talking. It wasn't easy, still. Tears came softly to his eyes and his naturally creaky voice broke from time to time. But still there seemed to be almost a compulsion to speak of his – and our -- great friend.

Burns had gone to his office that morning as usual. He seemed to feel a need to resume his ordinary routine. The office was cold. Burns sat in his overcoat, clutching it around him and shivering. He lit up an enormous cigar.

At first, we talked of other things. He has a new record album out, a two-record set selling for $25 that he hopes will become a collector's item. It was recorded when he made a one-man concert appearance at the Shubert Theater here.

But the subject both of us wanted to discuss – Jack Benny -- was always there. When the talked veered around to the current state of comedy, Burns plunged in.

"Good, honest jokes live forever," he said, exhaling a fogbank of blue smoke. "Look at Jack Benny. Nobody knew how great he was until he passed away. I knew him for 55 years but even I didn't know how great he was until he was gone."

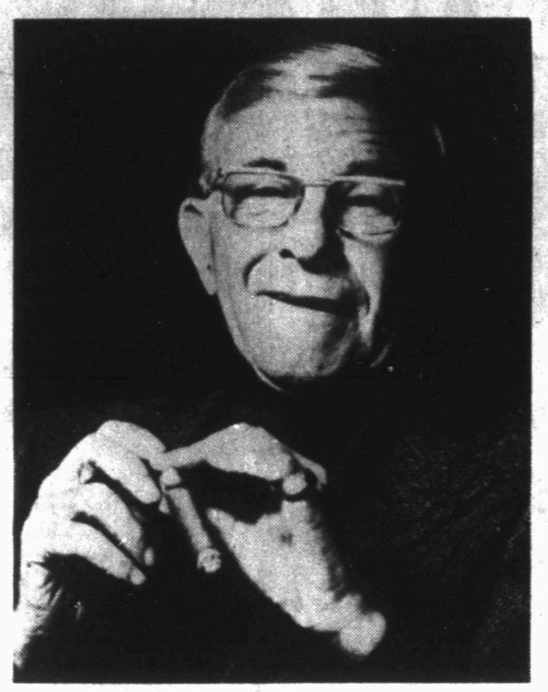

He wiped a tear away from his eye.

"There was something magic about Jack. Everything he created – the old Maxwell car, the 'stingy' jokes, 'Jell-o Again,' – all that lived for all of us as though it were real.

"The pauses. The look. The nerve he had when he used to go next door to the Colmans to borrow a cup of sugar.

"Even if he told a bad joke, he made it work for him. I remember one show when he told a bad joke and he said it couldn't be a bad joke because a great writer, Norman Krasna, had written it. So he told it again. And the next week he repeated the whole thing and, within a few weeks, he had a whole thing going about that bad joke.

"As Bob Hope said at the funeral, when Jack Benny got on the stage, he owned it – and he did."

GEORGE BURNS: The show goes on, but there's a big hole

Another pause. Another tear. Another big drag on the cigar, perhaps for reasons of security

"When I met him, he was already a great monologist. His opening joke was this. He'd come out holding his violin and he'd just stand there. A long pause. Already he was a master of the long pause. Then he's say to the orchestra leader, 'How is the show up to now?' And the orchestra leader would say, 'Fine.' 'Well,' Jack would say, 'I'll stop that.' "

Another puff.

"He was a gentle man. And his humor was as gentle as he was.

"He used to use his violin the way I use this cigar – as a prop, as a kind of comedian's security blanket. But he tried to get rid of it. He wanted to be able to stand up on the stage without it. I remember the first time he tried to go on without it. It was in Schenectady, New York. He told two jokes. Nobody laughed. So he quick borrowed a violin from the orchestra and he was all right after that.

"He never said a mean thing. Jack's idea of being mean was this. Once we saw a certain comic work. I asked him what he thought of the comic. Jack said, "Well, he's great but I just can't laugh at him.'

"Without Jack Benny, the show will go on, but there will be a big hole in it. It just won't be as good. There's one good thing, though -- Jack Benny will stay alive as long as any of us live."

That was the eulogy George Burns was too choked up to deliver at the funeral. It all spilled out of him, as though he had to stay it.

Burns himself -- he'll be 79 this month – is in good health. He takes pretty good care of himself.

He doesn't work very hard any more. He says he will never retire but he's taking it easier. He still does some TV guest shots and speaks at a lot of dinners and he's in his office every day.

But his working day, ordinarily, is brief – from 10:30 a.m. until noon. Then he goes over to the Hillcrest Country Club, has lunch and plays bridge for a couple of hours every afternoon.

"Then I go home and have a nap," he says.

Even at such a tragic time, Burns humor cannot help but sneak out. We were talking about young comedians.

"What do you mean by 'young?' To me at my age, Don Rickles is a kid, Milton Berle is a juvenile and Shecky Greene is just getting started."

He says he does some talk shows, now and then, and he likes doing them "because they're easy to do – I can do them sitting down."

But the flashes of humor were fewer than usual, understandably. The death of Jack Benny was too close, too real.

"Everybody I know," says George Burns, "is dead."

Oil Talks In 'Mop-Up' State

DENVER (AP) — The president of the oil workers union says contract negotiations with the nation's oil companies are on a "mop-up basis" despite current strikes by more than 12,300 union members.

A.F. Grospiron, president of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union, announced Sunday settlement of contracts with Mobil and Cities Services oil companies.

He said at a news conference those agreements were similar to earlier contracts which gave union workers 26.8 per cent wage increases over two-year periods. He said nine national contracts have been signed, covering 30,000 of the union's 60,000 members.

Oil workers made about $5.95 an hour under their old contracts.

Despite the new contracts, Mobil, Gulf and Texaco were negotiating to end strikes at refineries in Texas. More than 9,300 workers were on strike over local issues at refineries in Beaumont and Port Arthur, Tex.

A strike of 2,000 union members against Union Oil Co. refineries in Texas, California and Illinois appeared "no closer to resolution," a union spokesman said.

And Grospiron said a strike by 1,100 members against Continental Oil Co. in five states won't be settled until Continental "quits trying to be so cheap and chiseling" on its pension plan.

The union president announced strike deadlines against Marathon Oil at Texas City, Tex., Skelly Oil at Dorado, Kan., and Husky Oil in Utah and Wyoming. He said he will call strikes against those companies if contracts are not signed by noon Tuesday.

Strike notices for the same time were ordered earlier against Phillips Petroleum refineries in California, Montana, Utah, Texas, Kansas and Nevada, with 1,475 union members affected.

Negotiations were to resume Monday with Standard of Ohio after strike deadlines against the company expired Saturday without walkouts. About 675 union members are employed at Standard of Ohio's four refineries.

Grospiron said negotiatons with Shell, the nation's second largest refiner, and Standard of California, the fifth largest, "remain on the back burner."

Shell employs almost 5,000 union members. Negotiations with that company "are a bit edgy because we've struck them two times in recent years," Grospiron said.

The negotiations with Standard of California have been delayed, and Grospiron said that is because "we don't have much strength — many members — with them."

The loggers are beating down her door

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive female divorcee who recently retired after a long, distinguished career as a university English professor.

Now that I have a great deal of free time, I would like to find suitable male companionship.

Although I receive numerous offers (the loggers in this town are practically beating my door down), I don't know how to meet men who could appreciate my best qualities, such as the art of conversation.

There must be some other retired women in small towns with similar problems. Have you any suggestions?

IDLE BUT ANXIOUS IN IDAHO

DEAR ANXIOUS: Enroll in an adult education class and do a lot of listening. Conversation could be considered "dessert," and since man cannot live on dessert alone, are you prepared to provide some meat and potatoes?

DEAR ABBY: I just had to write to defend that woman who writes notes to her husband to remind him of things. I've been doing it for years.

First of all, that letter couldn't have been written by my husband because he doesn't believe in communication, and note-writing is a form of communication.

This wooden Indian I'm married to might send up smoke signals if he could find his lighter, but on the other hand, fires within the city limits of Dallas are frowned upon.

Anyway, I say three cheers for that note-writing wife. I sure wish my husband would write me a note once in a while. It would confirm the fact that he's still breathing.

IGNORED IN DALLAS

DEAR IGNORED: Your problem is far more serious than you realize. The ultimate in humilation, women confide, is not in being belittled, berated, or even beaten. It's being ignored!

DEAR ABBY: I recently visited a friend in his New York apartment. We hadn't seen each other for 15 years. While he was in the kitchen mixing us drinks, I noticed that he had a splendid library. Then I noticed that he had a few books that I also owned.

I don't know what made me do it, but I took those books down from the shelf and turned to the fly leaves, and sure enough, my name was there!

He had borrowed those books from me years ago, and neglected to return them.

I put them back before he returned, and said nothing. Since then my irritation has grown.

Should I now tell him that I want my books back?

IRKED IN INDIANA

DEAR IRKED: Certainly. No wonder your friend has such a "splendid library." He's a "collector."

DEAR ABBY: This is to encourage the 52-year-old woman whose husband wants a divorce. Let him have it, then sharpen up some of your old skills and get out on your own.

I was 47 when my husband entered his second childhood. He wanted a divorce to marry a younger woman. I fought and wept and begged! I thought my life was over. I finally came to my senses and let him go. At age 48, I went to work as a secretary, married my boss two years later, and couldn't be happier.

A 52-year-old woman can do anything a younger woman can do except maybe have a baby. And what 52-year-old woman in her right mind would want that?

SITTING PRETTY

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Damage Heavy In Gin Fire

CHILDRESS, Tex. (AP) —It is believed a bale of cotton already smouldering when it was brought to the Farmers Co-op gin started a fire that caused an estimated $100,000 to $200,000 in damage here, fire officials say.

The fire burned about 150 cotton-filled trailers Sunday as firemen battled winds gusting to more than 50 miles per hour.

It took 10 hours to control the blaze.

Fire Chief Merrell quoted a spokesman for the gin as saying 700-750 bales of cotton—each weighing 500 pounds—were lost in the fire which began about 2:30 a.m. Several trailers were saved, Merrell said.

A frame house was destroyed when winds carried flaming cotton to it. The occupants escaped without injury, Merrell said.

Merrell said his own four-man department was helped by about 30 members of the volunteer fire department of this Northwest Texas town plus about 25 to 30 firemen from Memphis, Paducah, Wellington and Quanah.

One fireman was overcome by smoke but not hospitalized.

The fire chief said each trailer contained about five bales of cotton. Farmers use the trailers to bring their cotton to the gin.

Merrell said most of the area's cotton had already been ginned.

Keeler Recovers From Surgery

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — Actress-dancer Ruby Keeler has recovered from brain surgery and has returned to her home in Laguna Beach, Calif., a spokesman for Columbus Hospital here says.

Miss Keeler, 64, was admitted Nov. 20 for surgery to correct what surgeon said was a bulge inside a blood vessel in her brain. She had been on the critical list and under intensive care until Dec. 4.

She was released from the hospital Jan. 13, a spokesman said.

Miss Keeler was in Montana visiting her daughter, Mrs. Peter Pratt of Lewistown, when stricken.

San Jose State University, San Jose, Calif., is the oldest public college on the West Coast.

Carter Begins Campaign Today

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter embarked today on the first full week of his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, leaving on a five-day trip that will take him to seven cities in four states.

Carter, a peanut farmer and nuclear physicist who announced his candidacy in mid-December, completed his term as governor last week.

He said Sunday his campaign schedule for the rest of the year would be as hectic as this week's, but he added he was anxious to get started.

"I am ready for full-time campaigning to begin," said Carter. "I have been extremely pleased with the progress of my campaign up to this point."

He said fund-raising has "far exceeded expectations" and that he has received contributions from nearly every state. He said he was pleased with the enthusiasm generated for his candidacy and that his Atlanta headquarters had been "swamped" with volunteers.

Carter's first stop was in Louisiana, where he was to address the Baton Rouge Press Club.

A recent newspaper poll in Louisiana surveyed the popularity of several possible Democratic presidential candidates—but Carter's name was not among them. The Democrats were pitted against President Ford in the poll.

"If they take a poll this time next year and I'm not included, then it will be time to worry," Carter said.

The former governor also was scheduled to meet with Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana, address the state legislature and attend receptions in Baton Rouge and New Orleans before leaving Tuesday for Houston.

Press secretary Jody Powell said Carter would hold a news conference in Houston and then speak to the Texas Manufacturers Association convention Tuesday night.

On Wednesday, Powell said Carter would fly to Albuquerque, N.M., hold a news conference and meet with leaders of New Mexico's Democratic party. He said Carter would attend a legislative prayer breakfast in Sante Fe, N.M., Thursday before meeting with newly elected Gov. Jerry Apodaca.

Carter, in his former position as campaign chairman for the national Democratic party, campaigned for Apodaca last fall.

After another news conference in Sante Fe, Carter will fly to San Francisco, Calif., to meet with party leaders and tape a series of television interviews, Powell said.

He will attend the California State Democratic Convention in Sacramento on Friday, then address a breakfast of the state's Democratic Central Committee Saturday morning before returning to Atlanta, Powell said.

Thomas Benton Dies At 85

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Thomas Hart Benton, 85, world-renowned artist whose themes of American history often reflected his lifelong love affair with his home state of Missouri, died Sunday. Benton was found on the floor of his studio. He finished earlier in the day what he said would be his final mural.

Revival Of Sugar Act Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Look for a revival of the sugar act concept sometime in March or April.

And look for an intense fight over it, both in committee and on the floors of the House and Senate if it reaches that point.

That's the word from some House Agriculture Committee members and from urban members in the House.

Ousted Chairman W. R. Poage, D-Tex., had said before he lost his post that the committee would provide a forum if sugar producers, users and refiners could unite on what they wanted.

Poage had indicated he didn't want "to force a bill on these groups." He also saw that the majority of the House, thinking the sugar act an inflationary consumer enemy, was not ready to listen favorably to those groups.

But Rep. Bob Bergland, D-Minn., an ally of incoming Chairman Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said a new kind of sugar act probably will be advanced.

He said he has had no conversations with the Ford administration about it but does expect reopening of trade with sugar-rich Cuba. Such a step would accelerate reopening of the question of foreign sugar's effect on the domestic market.

Bergland would like to "take the lid off domestic production," a hallmark of Secretary Earl L. Butz's general policy.

He thinks this might be accomplished in a new sugar act — replacing the one that expired Dec. 31 — by keeping out the old excise tax on refiners and payments to producers, but erecting a "floor" or support price of one-third to one-half the current market price and a revival of import quotas to make up the difference between domestic production and domestic needs.

CONVENTION MEETING IN DALLAS

NAHB President Sees End Of Housing Slump

DALLAS (AP) — The president of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) says he believes enough mortgage money is being pumped into the housing industry to bring it out of a major slump before the middle of this year.

Lewis Cenker of Atlanta, head of the 77,000-member organization holding its annual convention-exposition for some 50,000 members here this week, said in an interview Sunday, "I'm encouraged that money is flowing back to savings and loan institutions. When enough mortgage money gets back to lenders, the housing industry will come back quickly, maybe by mid-spring."

Cenker said he believes the housing slump has hit its low point and the bad times might persist for only another 75 days.

"If I were in the market for a house and had wanted one for a long time, I think I would go ahead and make the best deal I could for one. An intelligent home buyer can make a deal right now," he said when asked if he would buy a house if he were looking for a place to live now.

Cenker said the mood of the convention is that something must be done quickly to turn around the housing industry. He said its No. 1 problem is "a crisis in consumer confidence."

"People don't feel secure enough to go out and buy a house," he said. "A daily dose of disaster headlines is enough to strike fear into anyone. What we need is some good news."

He said the home-building industry has always been an indicator of how the general economy is doing, much like the auto industry. "We do down first and usually come back first," he said, "but when houses and autos are both down we're in a hell of a shape."

As for recovery, Cenker said, "We cannot do it alone. We need a change in the general economic climate. Government by reason of power and experience in management have a major responsibility, but I envy the policymakers."

The NAHB president said inflation and recession are both enemies of the housing industry, "but everything's relative as to which is worse. In a two per cent inflation economy, seven per cent unemployment is a horror, but in a a 12 per cent inflation economy, seven per cent unemployment is acceptable."

U.S. Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and John Tower, both of Texas, and Deputy Treasury Secretary Stephen Gardner spoke on the first day of the convention Sunday.
