Q—Will the high school be offering season basketball tickets this year?

A—No. Tickets will be sold on a game-to-game basis only for home varsity basketball contests.

In Brief

Truck accident

MORENO VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — A big-rig truck careened into stopped traffic, crumpling cars and flinging them aside in a fiery nine-car chain collision that killed five people and injured 17.

The truck driver jumped from the cab moments before it burst into flames Friday morning, witnesses said. He was arrested to face manslaughter charges, California Highway Patrol dispatcher Cathy Cox said.

"He was traveling an unknown speed approaching stopped traffic at a signal," she said. "Due to his speed, he was unable to stop."

26 arrested

PHOENIX (AP) — Twenty-six people have been arrested in a multistate investigation into the illegal sale of a prescription drug favored by heroin addicts, the Drug Enforcement Administration says.

Most of the suspects live in Phoenix and were arrested during the past week, John Albano, a spokesman for the Phoenix office of the DEA, said Friday.

He said DEA officials believe the suspects were part of an organization that "specialized in obtaining prescriptions for Dilaudid and other pharmaceutical-controlled drugs from physicians in Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, Texas, New Mexico, Nebraska and Wyoming."

Dilaudid is a drug prescribed for severe pain and is considered "a drug of choice of heroin addicts," Albano said.

Jobless rate falls to 3.3%

Unemployment in Scurry County — already at a longtime low — dipped even further to 3.3 percent for October, the Texas Employment Commission has stated.

When the jobless rate in the county hit 4.2 for September, it marked the lowest since April of 1985. The previous low was 2.7 in November of 1984.

The rate is based on an estimated labor force of 10,374 people in the county, of which 10,029 are employed. The remaining 345 residents who are seeking employment represents 3.3 percent.

Scurry County's dip in unemployment mirrors the statewide figure, which fell to 5.3 percent in October from 6.2 in September.

The statewide unemployment rate also eased slightly below the nationwide rate, which was 5.4 percent.

Unemployment rates among the top metropolitan statistical areas in the state range from a low of 3.0 percent in the Bryan-College Station area to a high of 14.5 percent in the McAllen-Edinburg-Mission area.

Unemployment rates among area counties are as follows:

—Andrews: 2.6 percent, based on a labor force of 6,812, of which 6,634 are employed.

—Borden: 1.5 percent, based on a labor force of 406, of which 400 are employed.

—Dawson: 5.7 percent, based on a labor force of 6,585, of which (see JOBLESS, page 10A)

Jury called for Monday

A 100-member jury panel has been called for 9 a.m. Monday in 132nd District Court to hear a civil case filed by State Farm Fire and Casualty Company against Marion B. Floyd.

The insurance company is seeking to overturn an award given Floyd by the Industrial Accident Board. District Judge Gene Dulaney will preside.

Robert B. Batjer of Abilene is attorney for the plaintiff and Lance Hall of Sweetwater will represent the defendant.

United Way effort finds $50,000 mark

Scurry County United Way has hit the $50,000 mark and Donny Brown, president, is optimistic about the organization reaching its goal of $78,000.

"We've got pledges out in every division and we expect to reach our goal, hopefully by a week from Sunday (Dec. 2)," he said.

Brown said this week volunteers will be working especially hard on the Commercial Division, which makes up $11,000 of the total goal.

"We've really been helped by the response from SACROC, the highest contributor, with about $9,600 between employees and the corporate gift," he said. "Price Daniel Unit has provided about $4,000 and that's been a bonus. It was money we didn't have last year because it was their first year for them and we got a late start. They'll be one of the top five individual givers."

This year's goal of $78,000 is the same as last year. However, the organization has cut its operating budget by $2,500 in an effort to distribute more funds to local agencies.

Under the present allocation, Scurry County Boy's Club, Snyder Child Care and Noah Project will each receive an increase of $800. Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts will also see an increase of $500.

The Boy's Club is the organization's largest beneficiary, with an allocation of $28,000. Snyder Child Care is targeted for $15,000, followed by Noah Project at $13,800.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are to receive $6,000 each provided the goal is reached while Oil Patch Foster Parents are to receive $3,600. The Red Cross and Salvation Army have been allocated $500 each.

SNS forms accepted now through January

Snyder Neighbors Sharing is making preparations for its fourth annual workday by taking applications for home repair.

SNS will be asking for volunteers and anyone who can be available on April 27, 1991, is urged to participate. SNS is also accepting donations to help purchase materials.

SNS has repaired 43 homes over the past three years, including 27 last year.

The SNS work day is always the fourth Saturday in April, which will be April 27, 1991.

The homes repaired are those owned or occupied by elderly or handicapped residents who lack the funds and physical ability to make the repairs themselves. Anyone who knows of a member of the community who may qualify can pick up an application form at Robertson Insurance Agency, 1926 26th St. The forms will be available now through January.

Snyder Neighbors Sharing began in 1988 with seven homes repaired. The project grew to nine homes in 1989, and to 27 in 1990. Almost 500 volunteers gave up their time last April 28, to help with the project.

All necessary materials are purchased locally and the labor comes entirely from volunteers.

Sam Robertson is the president of SNS. Julie Sentell serves as treasurer.

Area physician will deliver babies at Cogdell Memorial

Cogdell Memorial Hospital is expected to announce during its November board meeting Monday that Victor Hoang, D.O., will begin performing obstetrics here for his patients from Sweetwater on Dec. 1.

Dr. Hoang is a family practitioner schooled in OB/GYN. He has been practicing in Sweetwater for approximately four months.

Currently, Rolling Plains Hospital in Sweetwater is not delivering babies. Therefore, Dr. Hoang will be bringing his patients to Snyder for deliveries.

"This is one more step toward the realization of our potential as a regional medical center," said Tom Hochwalt, Cogdell administrator.

Dr. Hoang was a family practitioner in Saigon City, Vietnam,

County faces brief agenda

Scurry County Commissioners Court will meet at 10 a.m. Monday to consider a two-item agenda.

Under old business, the court will continue to discuss the Snyder Day Care Center, its possible merger with the Lincoln Center and the possible addition of a head-start program.

The items were discussed at last week's meeting, but no action was taken.

The court will also consider a policy to deal with insurance coverage of a retiree's spouse.

transcripts, he had to undergo his full training again in the United States.

He received his BS degree from the University of Utah in June, 1985, and graduated as a D.O. from the College of Osteopathic Medicine of the Pacific in Pomona, Ca. in June of 1989. He was selected to do residency training in OB/GYN at Interfaith Medical Center in New York. Upon completing his residency, he left New York because of its size and crime and settled in Sweetwater.

He and his wife, Lisa, have four children. His wife assists him as office manager.

"I know Cogdell Hospital because I worked in the ER over there. They have a good staff. The hospital is very nice," said Dr. Hoang. "Some of my patients have visited there and are very impressed. I had a very good OB training and I do not want to give it up. I thank Cogdell and its staff for allowing me this opportunity."

Chase results in 3 charges

Three misdemeanor charges were filed against an 18-year-old Snyder man Friday night following a chase by city police that ended on foot.

At 10:50 p.m., police were attempting to arrest the driver whose 1979 Pontiac struck a city dumpster, a city street sign, a city fence and a mailbox owned by Loraine Garrett of 1112 33rd St.

The man abandoned his vehicle and fled on foot, and officers apprehended the suspect at 10:57 p.m. in the 3300 Block of Ave. M. He was taken to the Scurry County Jail and charged with evading arrest, driving while intoxicated and driving while license suspended.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says "A sense of humor doesn't mean making a joke out of life, but merely recognizing the ones that are there."

The good book teaches that patience is a virtue, but it wore a little thin at a church in San Antonio. A disruptive singer was arrested during Sunday services because she sang poorly. A judge ordered her to sing on-key with the rest of the congregation.

The woman, who not only sang off-key, also often sang her own hymns instead of the one being sung by the rest of the flock. She was carted off to jail and bond was set at $400.

We hope the practice of incarcerating off-key warblers doesn't spread to Snyder. We'd miss a couple of folks at worship service.

Sitting between Milton Ham and ole what's-her-name during church service is really a blessing

It actually makes our own singing sound pretty good.

If that hard-to-buy-for person happens to be left-handed, your Christmas shopping woes are solved. We've heard about a catalog featuring items designed exclusively for the southpaw.

The publication was motivated by a lefty who has spent a lifetime doing everything the "right" way with the "wrong" equipment. He observed the dinner table is set for the right-handed and most toys and musical instruments are designed for the right-handed.

The catalog is printed from back to front to make browsing more convenient for the lefty. It contains left-handed tools, gadgets, toys, musical instruments, sports equipment and humorous novelties.

Poll indicates Tories will win next election

LONDON — Even as Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's supporters claim she was undermined by her own party, a poll indicates any of the three main candidates for her job will bring an election victory for the troubled Conservatives.

The Harris poll of 1,107 voters around the country is the latest survey to predict a sharp upturn in Conservative Party fortunes under a new prime minister.

Under Mrs. Thatcher the Conservatives trailed Labor, the main opposition party in the House of Commons, for the past 16 months in opinion polls.

The Harris poll, conducted for Independent Television News, gave former defense secretary Michael Heseltine the edge to succeed Thatcher and indicated 49 percent of respondents would vote for Conservatives with Heseltine as prime minister.

That's compared with 39 percent for the Labor Party and 9 percent for the Liberal Democrats, according to the poll, broadcast Friday.

Under Cabinet treasury chief John Major, the poll indicated Conservatives were favored by 47 percent of respondents, Labor at 40 percent, and Liberal Democrats at 10 percent support. A government led by Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd — who the poll placed as least likely among the three to succeed Mrs. Thatcher — would have support of 45 percent, with Labor getting 41 percent, and 10 percent for Liberal Democrats, according to the poll.

The poll was conducted on Thursday after Mrs. Thatcher announced she would resign. ITN did not say how the survey was conducted nor give a margin of error.

The 372 Conservative members of the House of Commons will vote on the party leadership on Tuesday.

Last Tuesday she failed to turn back a leadership challenge by Heseltine.

After Mrs. Thatcher announced her decision to resign, Hurd and Major, no longer shackled by loyalty, immediately jumped into the contest.

If none of the three receives an outright majority, a third and final round will be held Thursday. Mrs. Thatcher remains prime minister until a successor is chosen.

Supporters of the 65-year-old Mrs. Thatcher have angrily accused Conservatives of what one called "political matricide" in forcing her to quit after 15 years as party leader and 11½ years as prime minister.

High inflation, rising interest rates, an unpopular new tax and

Roald Dahl dies

OXFORD, England (AP) — Roald Dahl, the British author of macabre short stories and light-hearted children's tales such as "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory," died Friday, his agent said. He was 74.

Dahl died at John Radcliffe Hospital, where he was admitted Nov. 12 with an undisclosed infection, his agent Murray Pollinger said.

Dahl wrote nine books of short stories, including "Kiss, Kiss," three novels, 19 children's books, and numerous screenplays and scripts for television. Last year, his paperback sales in Britain topped 2.3 million copies.

His 1964 "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" was adapted for film as "Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory." Dahl also wrote the screenplays for Ian Fleming's "Chitty-Chitty-Bang-Bang" and Fleming's James Bond thriller, "You Only Live Twice."

Dahl married American actress Patricia Neal in 1953 and helped her recover from a series of strokes in the mid-1960s that threatened her ability to speak. They were divorced in 1983 and he married Felicity Ann Crosland.

Dahl said his secret in his children's tales was that he entered a conspiracy with children against adults.

AP correction...

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The Associated Press reportedly erroneously that Yuri Grigorovich is the former artistic director of the Bolshoi Ballet in Moscow.

Grigorovich, who is artistic director of the Bolshoi-Grigorovich private ballet company currently touring the United States, also is still artistic director of the Bolshoi Ballet.

her lone opposition among European Community leaders to financial and political integration were among factors that undermined her support.

Cabinet colleagues and campaign managers told her she could not muster enough support to win in further balloting next week.

Her opponents in the party feared that under her continuing leadership the Conservatives would lose to Labor at the next general election, which must be called by mid-1992. Labor has been in opposition since 1979.

Conservative legislators returning home for the weekend were met Friday by anger from grassroots backers of Mrs. Thatcher.

Peter Stainforth, local Conservative Party treasurer at Stevenage, about 25 miles north of central London, reported particular rancor over Sir Geoffrey Howe. The deputy prime minister quit on Nov. 1 and bitterly attacked Mrs. Thatcher in a Commons speech on Nov. 13.

"I cannot express how the constituency feels about that latter-day Brutus who was the first to plunge his dagger into his leader's back," Stainforth said.

Harlingen attorney dies in mishap

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Prominent Harlingen attorney and businessman Eddie Verneal "Neal" Bonner died Friday after a hunting accident. He was 63.

Bonner was rushed by ambulance to Valley Baptist Medical Center in Harlingen after a shotgun accidentally discharged inside the vehicle he was driving, Willacy County Sheriff Larry Spence said.

The accident occurred about 10:10 a.m. as Bonner was hunting quail with his son, Andrew, and son-in-law, William Youngblood.

Spence said the shotgun discharged in the back seat as Youngblood was getting out, sending the shell through the seat and striking Bonner in the back.

"It was a freak accident, a very unfortunate thing," Spence said.

The funeral will be Monday at St. Anthony's Catholic Church. The time was not immediately set.

Bonner had practiced law since 1957 and was instrumental in the development of numerous Harlingen businesses.

He is survived by his wife, Donna Pace Bonner, a member of the Harlingen City Commission and mayor pro-tem; three sons: Eddie V. "Chip" Bonner Jr. of Corpus Christi, Lloyd Pace Bonner of Cupertino, Calif., and Andrew G. Bonner of San Antonio; and a daughter, Teri Youngblood of Harlingen.

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

I have a habit of saving morsels of information that I run across in my reading or that I receive from readers. Sometimes these tidbits provide a basis for a column, more often, they sit unused on my desk because I cannot readily find a way to include them in an article. Such is the case with the following six brief observations, which I herewith submit as a potpourri of medical insights.

According to investigators who presented papers at a recent gastroenterology conference in Texas, patients who lose weight rapidly (either by stomach bypass surgery or because of very-low-calorie diets) run a higher risk of forming gallstones. The reason for this is not known. The risk was highest (54 percent of cases) in the most obese patients. Several studies have demonstrated that gallstones form in more than 50 percent of patients who have had surgical correction of obesity. Authorities emphasize that although the benefits of rapid weight loss are still substantial, the long-term risks — many of which are not yet identified — certainly dampen any enthusiasm for the many crash diets used for shedding pounds.

Bananas, long touted as one of Nature's best sources of potassium, have been relegated to 11th place, according to the medical publication American Family Physician. High-potassium foods, ranked in descending order, are: potatoes (one large baked potato contains 844 milligrams of potassium), cantaloupes (one-half cantaloupe contains 825 milligrams), prune juice (eight ounces: 706 milligrams), avocados (one-half contains 602 milligrams), watermelon (one medium slice: 559 milligrams), raisins (one-half cup: 545 milligrams), dates (10 medium dates contain 541 milligrams), tomato juice (eight ounces: 536 milligrams), apricots (five medium: 482 milligrams), and orange juice (eight ounces: 473 milligrams). A medium-sized banana is in last place with 451 milligrams of potassium.

According to American Family Physician, a novel idea called "Pop Therapy" is bursting into popularity. The fad originated with a group of "type A" competitive employees at a novelty firm who found they could reduce tension and stress by popping the plastic bubbles used in shipping wrap for fragile products. Now, four pieces of the wrap, along with instructions, are being marketed for about $2.95 in gift shops and pharmacies.

On a different note, Dr. Harold Levinson, president of the Dyslexia Research Foundation in Great Neck, Long Island, published a letter in The New York Times. In it, he stated that Attention Deficit Disorder, a learning disability formerly called Hyperactivity, is due to a malfunction of the inner ear, which controls balance and affects coordination and learning. Levinson has successfully treated patients with anti-motion-sickness drugs, long the mainstay therapy for controlling the major symptoms (nausea, vertigo and loss of balance) of motion sickness. This finding has yet to be substantiated by other investigators.

Across the Atlantic, Dr. David Weeks of Edinburgh, Scotland, speaking on the BBC program "Focal Point," claimed that we can preserve youth by defeating boredom: reading, remaining intellectually active and exercising regularly. Furthermore, Weeks stated, those over 40 who look young continue to play the field in their love lives and have romantic adventures in middle age.

Finally, a British study that was abstracted in the Scientific American showed that adults who wear tinted eyeglasses have a much higher incidence of depression, neurosis and severe mental disorders than do people who wear plain lenses. Shortly after the study was originally published in England, many British physicians were noted to have stopped wearing their tinted lenses.

I don't make any claims for or against the verisimilitude of these brief observations. I offer them simply for interest and enjoyment. Readers can form their own judgments about obese, banana-eating, overly stressed, learning-disabled, middle-aged swingers who wear tinted glasses.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with cupulolithiasis. Is there any help available for this condition?

DEAR READER: Cupulolithiasis is a fancy term describing the buildup of calcium deposits (for unknown reasons) in the posterior semi-circular duct, a portion of the inner ear that controls balance. These deposits, or stones, are a common cause of benign positional vertigo (BPV), a harmless but disabling affliction marked by periodic, violent vertigo and nausea.

BPV may occur when the head is in certain positions and can be quickly terminated if those positions are altered. For example, people may experience symptoms when lying down; the vertigo will disappear when they sit up or roll over.

Treatment consists of altering position to avoid symptoms or using anti-motion-sickness drugs, such as Antivert, to control BPV.

You should be examined by an ear-nose-and-throat specialist who can advise you how to avoid symptoms or prescribe the necessary medicine to make you more comfortable.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Ear Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 32-year-old female who has experienced several episodes of vaginal discharge. I have minor allergies, and I am 10 pounds over my ideal weight, but I am basically healthy. Does the discharge have anything to do with regular jogging?

DEAR READER: Probably not. Vaginal discharge comes in many forms, most of which do not indicate disease.

For example, women will often experience an increase in vaginal secretions just before menstruating. This harmless condition is related to hormonal changes. Also, during sexual arousal, the vagina will produce a slight discharge. In general, a discharge is considered normal when it is clear, colorless, has no odor and is not irritating to tissues.

On the other hand, creamy or opaque, discolored, malodorous, burning or itching discharges are usually abnormal and indicate the presence of infection. Infections are caused by vaginitis, cervicitis (an inflamed cervix), sexually transmitted diseases, foreign material (such as retained tampons and intrauterine devices for contraception) and growths of any kind.

Exercise, such as running, does not ordinarily cause vaginal discharge.

If you have any doubt about the nature and cause of your discharge, I suggest you see a gynecologist.

SCRAP donates funds to prevent waste facility in Mitchel County

Scurry County Residents Against Pollution presented Peggy Maddox with a check for $400, raised from SCRAP membership dues to help in the fight to prevent a hazardous waste facility in Mitchell County, during a seminar held last week in Sweetwater.

Ms. Maddox is a representative of Texas Against Pollution (TAP).

The anti-pollution group also delivered resolutions from Scurry County Commissioner's Court, Western Texas Faculty Association, Snyder City Council and Snyder Chamber of Commerce opposing National Waste and Energy Development proposed incinerator. The resolutions and petitions with over 2,000 signatures were given to Rep. David Counts, who read them into the record of testimony.

Local SCRAP representative Ed McAnally said he felt hopeful the Mitchell County host agreement to NWED would be rescinded after the findings of the forum, held in the Nolan County District Courtroom.

An overflow crowd of concerned area citizens attended the Joint Task force on Waste Management forum, which lasted five hours.

Toxicologists Dr. Daniel Teitelbaum of Denver and Dr. Jonathan Ward of the University of Texas described hazardous waste technology as an "adventure" because so little is known about the health effects of most chemicals. The major known problems can be immediate respiratory problems and suspected cancer from long term exposure.

Geologist Michael Robinson of Big Spring presented maps to show the Permian Basin has a generally unsatisfactory location for a hazardous waste landfill, stating that the region's clay crumbles readily and is so permeated with sand stratas that a landfill liner would be susceptible to rupture. The sand stratas are believed to outcrop in area creeks, which would allow hazardous waste that was landfilled to come to the surface.

Sen. Temple Dickson heatedly questioned National Waste and Energy Development representative Jim Cronin during the meeting. First, Cronin refused to give the estimated cost or return of the facility. Sen. Dickson then asked for an estimate within a hundred million either way. Cronin responded, "Oh, three hundred million."

He repeatedly refused to estimate the facility's income. Sen. Dickson mused that he wished he could ask his banker for an investment loan with no estimate of recovery.

Other questions centered around alleged racketeering in the industry.

Darlene Hines of the TAP organization had heard of a Pennsylvania Crime Commission's file which contained information on the host agreement in Delaware County, Pa. and NWED and asked Sen. Dickson's office to request the information.

Sen. Dickson then asked if Cronin knew of racketeering in the waste industry and Cronin answered that he knew of none. Referring to an earlier statement by Cronin that his company had developed a landfill in Delaware County, Pa., Dickson asked if the city of Chester were in Delaware County. Cronin answered "yes."

The senator then asked if Cronin knew John Nocrelli. Cronin said he did. The senator then noted that according to the Pennsylvania Crime Commission, Nacrelli, as mayor of Chester, had been convicted of felony racketeering.

Cronin commented, "I found Mr. Nacrelli to be very helpful; he made a mistake and went to jail. But I didn't find a reason to shun him."

Rep. David Counts asked Cronin if NWED had any expertise in hazardous waste to which Cronin answered, "None." Sen. Steve Carriker asked, "You are primarily investment people rather than scientists or waste experts?" Cronin responded, "Absolutely. All the expertise is hired."

Included among the group from Snyder were Ed and Cindy McAnally, commissioner-elect Roy Idom and Gay Idom, commissioners Tommy Pate and C.D. Gray Jr., County Judge Bobby Goodwin and SCRAP representatives Art and Helen Feinsod, Charlie Henderson, Enid Turner, Doug and Denise Goonrod and Bob O'Connor.

Florida man killed

TATUM, Texas (AP) — A Florida man died Friday when the small helicopter he was piloting crashed to the ground while relatives watched.

Audie Gene McDowell, 61, of Bell, was pronounced dead at the scene shortly after the noon crash.

Constable J.D. McGuire said mechanical failure was the likely cause of the accident.

McDowell was flying the Gyrocopter about 150 feet above a pasture at the home of his brother, Lawrence McDowell, just prior to the crash, relatives said.

Family members watched as he guided the helicopter over the pasture several times. The nose of the craft dipped just before the Gyrocopter plummeted to the ground, Lawrence McDowell said.

Christmas Happening set Dec. 2

Lights on the Christmas tree in the Western Texas College central courtyard will be turned on Tuesday night to signal the start of the holiday season.

The public is invited to attend the lighting ceremony which is planned from 7:30-7:50 p.m. Carols will be sung and hot chocolate will be served.

The annual Christmas Happening hosted by the college and Scurry County Museum is scheduled for Dec. 2. Santa Claus will be in the museum to visit with children that afternoon. The museum Christmas tree will be decorated in a toy theme and toys will be featured in a special display. The museum's Country Store was to open Saturday.

The WTC Choir will perform in the Fine Arts Theatre at 2 p.m. and speech students under the direction of Jan McCathern will present a Christmas reading at 3 p.m. The faculty art show will open in the Fine Arts Building on that day and a reception will be held there.

Missing man identified as civilian

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — Five soldiers who survived the crash of a UH-1 helicopter have been released from an Army hospital, but a search continues for a civilian pilot authorities believe was aboard the aircraft as it sank in Lake Ellsworth.

A CH-47 Chinook helicopter from Fort Sill partially lifted the fuselage of the downed aircraft from the lake Friday evening, but the wreckage broke free and fell back into the water.

The recovery effort was stopped late Friday because of darkness, but searchers were expected to continue their efforts early Saturday to locate Phillip E. Walker, a civilian flight instructor from Sheridan, Ark., said Fort Sill spokeswoman Sheila Samples.

Walker, a maintenance facility manager for the Army at Little Rock, Ark., was at Fort Sill to help train the 374th Air Ambulance Company, a Little Rock reserve unit activated as part of Operation Desert Shield, Ms. Samples said.

"I don't know if he was the pilot, but he is an instructor pilot," Ms. Samples said.

'Seeding' increases rainfall

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — Counties in a cloud seeding area operated by the Colorado River Municipal Water District are reporting rainfall up to 19 percent higher than counties outside the seeding area.

The water district recently concluded its 19th year of cloud seeding in the Big Spring-Lamesa-Snyder-Roscoe region.

The project is one of the longest running operations in the nation, said Ray P. Jones, a meteorologist for the district.

Jones said cotton production in the region where the seeding occurred also showed higher results than in surrounding counties.

Cotton yields for the 19-year seeding period showed a more than 36 percent increase above normal for other areas, Jones said.

The cotton-yield increases are a plus to the district's cloud seeding program, Jones said. The main objective is to increase run-off into the district's Lake J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence Reservoir.

Cloud seeding consists of burning silver iodide flares, releasing microscopic particles that serve as nuclei for forming moisture droplets.

Starzl plans to quit transplant operations

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dr. Thomas Starzl, the liver and kidney transplant pioneer who led the surgery that gave Stormie Jones six more years of life, says he plans to retire from the operating room and concentrate on research.

"I saw her grow up, and I saw her at death's door," Starzl said of Stormie, the White Settlement, Texas, girl who died Nov. 11 after she suddenly rejected her transplanted heart.

The 13-year-old was the world's first and longest-surviving recipient of a heart-liver transplant.

In 1967 at the University of Colorado in Denver, Starzl performed the world's first successful liver transplant, some four years after he led the first failed attempt.

The 64-year-old doctor since has trained most of the doctors who can perform the operation. He also developed a medical team that performed 200 kidney transplants at Colorado General and Denver Veteran's Administration hospitals.

Starzl told the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette in Saturday's editions that he wants to study FK-506, an anti-rejection drug, and improve the network that gets organs from donors to needy patients.

"I've been doing fewer transplants, and eventually I'd like to get the number down to zero," Starzl said. Liver transplants are "so standardized, there really isn't any point in my handling cases."

Starzl hasn't performed surgery since he underwent an operation at Presbyterian University Hospital on Aug. 25 to clear fatty blockage from an artery near his heart.

"Physically, I think I'm back to normal," he said.

Starzl said enough doctors now can transplant livers to allow him to study the effects of FK-506, which the federal government has approved for use only at Presbyterian University and Children's hospitals in Pittsburgh.

About 1,000 transplant patients are taking the drug. Studies have shown it's more effective than its predecessor, cyclosporine.

Starzl said Stormie's sudden death left him emotionally drained. On Valentine's Day 1984, Starzl led the team that lifted a diseased heart and liver from the girl, then 6, and replaced them.

Starzl was traveling in Europe when he learned Stormie had died.

Neeley will begin training

Stephen Neeley, son of Billy Neeley and Syleta Shaffer of Snyder, has qualified for the Navy's Hospital Corpsman "A" School and will travel to the Recruit Training Center in San Diego in March to begin his Navy training.

Neeley is a 1982 graduate of Snyder High School. He also received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Angelo State University in San Angelo.

After completing his recruit training, Neeley will receive approximately 14 weeks of advanced training at his school.

Hospital Corpsman assist professionals in providing health care to service members and their families. They act as pharmacists, medical technicians, food service personnel, nurses' aides, battlefield medics, x-ray technicians, physicians' or dentists' assistants, and more.

Their work falls into several categories: first aid and minor surgery, patient transportation, patient care, prescriptions and laboratory work, food service inspections and clerical duties.

Thompson attends medical meeting

NASHVILLE — Paul A. Thompson, M.D. of Snyder, recently attended the 84th Annual Scientific Assembly of the Southern Medical Association (SMA) last month.

He joined nearly 3,000 other physicians at the country's largest multi-specialty medical meeting. During the assembly, Thompson attended the Aviation Medical Examiners Seminar to fulfill FAA certification requirements.

Financial Focus

Despite the fact that capital gains have lost their preferential treatment—both long- and short-term gains are taxed the same as ordinary income—you can still use the law to your advantage. Here are several suggestions that could save you tax dollars.

Tip Number 1: If you had reportable capital gains during 1990 you might consider taking possible losses prior to year's end. Because losses can be matched to gains, they might lessen or possibly eliminate an otherwise taxable gain.

Tip Number 2: You may deduct up to $3,000 in capital losses from ordinary income in any one year. If losses exceed that amount, carry the unused portion forward to future years.

Tip Number 3: Often a taxpayer sells a security to establish a tax loss with the intention of replacing that same security. This can be an excellent tax maneuver if you are careful not to be caught by the IRS "wash sale" rule. A "wash sale" occurs when you replace a security with the same, or nearly identical, security within 30 days before or after the loss sale.

Tip Number 4: Don't forget broker costs when calculating the total cost of your securities. Commissions and other fees paid on purchases or sales can reduce your capital gain or increase your loss.

Tip Number 5: When selling securities, be sure to identify which shares you want sold. Because shares are often purchased at different times and prices, you can cut your capital gains tax liability by selling the most expensive shares first.

Tip Number 6: Keep a record of your mutual fund direct purchases and any reinvestment of dividends and gains. This is always included on your mutual fund statement. Remember, these reinvestments are taxed in the year they are paid and reinvested gains and dividends when you sell.

Tip Number 7: Find a trusted professional who will take time to explain these and other tax pitfalls. Before investing consider future tax implications. Then, take full advantage of current tax laws.

These few suggestions will not make you a tax expert. They should, however, bring up enough questions to consider taxes in your financial plan.

Management opportunities await students, businesses

Jack Price, instructor/coordinator of the Western Texas College Management program, would like to contact local businesses interested in providing part-time employment for management students during the 1991 spring semester.

There are now three options available for prospective employers, Price said. The first option involves the establishment or maintenance of a conventional employment relationship with a WTC management student including the payment of salary and related costs by the employer.

The second option involves employment of an eligible WTC student with salary costs shared equally by the employer and the college under federally funded work-study conditions except that the workman's compensation and Social Security costs are borne by the employer.

The third option, a practicum experience, involves the appointment of a management student intern on an unpaid basis, still designed to provide the student on-the-job-management-related experience.

Students in WTC's Management program are enrolled for classroom studies along with internship courses requiring 15-20 hours of work weekly. Persons who commute to WTC can work in their hometown.

Students who complete the required curriculum earn the Associate in Applied Science degree and have a work record to enhance their employment opportunities after graduation. Students interested in transferring to four-year institutions are finding more opportunities there as well, Price said.

"I encourage anyone interested in one or more of the options of employment to contact me," Price said. "I will visit them personally or send them additional information. I also have a video presentation available."

"The management program offers an ideal educational program for current full or part-time employees to receive management training as a matter of general interest or to advance in their current career or occupational area. I would also be happy to discuss the program with employers and persons now employed to explain its benefits."

Price's office is in Building 7A on the WTC campus and he can be reached by telephone at 573-8511, ext. 312.

VA changes begin Monday

BIG SPRING — The VA Medical Center in Big Spring is changing the way it schedules patient visits to its ambulatory outpatient clinic beginning Monday, E.H. (Dan) Devers, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

Starting Monday, scheduled patient visits will begin at 10:30 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. Walk-in patients are encouraged to go between 7:30 a.m. and 10 a.m.

With the cooperation of the veteran patient, the bulk of the walk-in patients will be seen during the morning, thereby reducing the need to squeeze them in during the day, according to a Medical Center spokesman. Scheduled patients are encouraged to arrive at the ambulatory outpatient area 20 minutes prior to the scheduled appointment to insure their records are completed before seeing the doctor. For more information call Dever at 573-8511.

Cross performs in production

ABILENE — Matt Cross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cross of Snyder, was recently a part of Alpha Phi Omega's production of "A Good Old Vaudeville Show" during Hardin-Simmons University's All-School Sing, Nov. 2-3.

All-School Sing is an annual variety show event where campus organizations compete to put together the best musical act.

Alpha Phi Omega won the men's division award.

TEXAS TRAILS

LONE STAR STATE HISTORY by DAN BROWN

CATTLE KING...

James Taylor White came to Texas in 1819. He soon set about building one of the first Longhorn cattle herds in Southeastern Texas. His JTW brand was recorded about 1830. He had built his herd to about 10,000 head by 1840. Looking to expand his market, White made the first cattle drive from Texas to New Orleans in the early 1840's. He became known as the "Cattle King of Southeast Texas."

Turkey Day Classic...

Dusters nab 55-48 win

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Coach Kelly Chadwick's Western Texas College Lady Dusters fashioned a 55-48 win over San Jacinto College in Friday's opening round of the WTC Turkey Day Classic at Scurry County Coliseum with a 31 of 39 effort from the free-throw line.

"We didn't play very well tonight, but we still won," said Chadwick. "And I think that's a good sign."

Becky Hinojos was the high-point Duster without even sinking a field goal. She scored 12 points from the line on 14 attempts.

"It was good to get to play at home for a change," said Chadwick.

The WTC coach pointed out Hinojos, Melissa Sutton and Merry Brown as having an outstanding game for the Dusters in the win.

"Becky really came through for us at the end of the game with all those free-throws. She hit the free-throws when she had to to win it."

"Melissa Sutton had her best game of the year tonight," the coach continued.

"She played some at the point tonight and she seemed to enjoy it and she played well."

"Merry Brown also played a tough basketball game."

Jill Forrest, one of Chadwick's three returning sophomores, made a clutch defensive play near the end of the game to keep the Dusters in front.

Following a pair of successful freebies by Hinojos, Forrest deflected the inbounds pass from the Lady Gators' Ruth Mosvold.

Forrest gained control of the bouncing basketball and dished to a driving Sutton who whipped the ball back to Forrest. She banked the ball off the glass and through the net for a 52-47 WTC advantage with just over a minute remaining.

"Jill did some good things for us, tonight," coach Chadwick said. "She made some good rebounds late in the game and she made a great defensive play off the inbounds pass to get a basket. Her maturity and our maturity as a team is beginning to show."

The game started slow with San Jacinto taking a 10-5 lead after 10 minutes had elapsed in the first half.

La Shunta Jackson banged in a short jumper for WTC to close the gap to 10-7 and to start the Dusters on a 14-5 run over a 5-minute span.

The streak put Western Texas in front, 19-15 with about four minutes left in the half.

The lead grew to seven points at the :15 mark on a pair of free tosses by Monica Ramirez and the score at the half stood at 24-17 in favor of the Dusters.

The Lady Gators started a run of their own to open the second half. By the time five minutes had rolled off the scoreboard clock, San Jacinto had poured in 11 points and WTC had managed just 6 to draw the visitors to within a bucket at 30-28.

The Lady Gators took a 2-point lead with 8:01 remaining when point guard Gigi Gaudet popped a 3-pointer to put SJC in front, 40-38.

Tracy Edmunds' two free-throws knotted the tally at 40-all before San Jac took off on a 6-point streak that left WTC trailing by a half-dozen.

Hinojos nailed four consecutive free shots and Forrest hit a 12-foot jumper to draw WTC to within two at 46-44.

Hinojos put the Dusters ahead to stay, 48-47, with two freebies at the 1:40 mark which led to Forrest's last minute heroics and the 55-48 win.

Koester hammered nine points on the game, including a trey, and Monica Ramirez was good for eight.

In Friday's other first round game, nationally ranked South Plains College scooped past Angelina College, 86-68, on the strength of a 29-point game by Sheryl Swoopes.

Carol Bailey also scored 29 for the Lady Texans.

Second round games, to have been played Saturday, included South Plains versus San Jacinto in the early matchup and Western Texas against Angelina in the event's nightcap.

Friday's win lifts the Dusters to 4-5.

Mavericks fall to San Antonio

DALLAS (AP) — Paul Pressey's driving layup with 13 seconds to play gave San Antonio its first lead of the fourth quarter, and the Spurs went on to a 107-104 victory over the Dallas Mavericks Friday night.

After Pressey's shot, Terry Cummings' two free throws with 4.2 seconds left iced the victory. Cummings had grabbed Derek Harper's 3-point shot that fell far short with five seconds left and was fouled.

Herb Williams missed a 3-pointer from the left corner as time expired.

David Robinson scored 32 points and Rod Strickland added 25 to lead the Spurs.

Rolando Blackman scored 11 consecutive Mavericks points down the stretch. His three-point play with 47 seconds left gave Dallas a 104-101 lead.

Cummings missed a 3-pointer with 40 seconds remaining and James Donaldson got the rebound.

bound. But Donaldson, working for positioning for an outlet pass, elbowed Robinson to the ground. Donaldson was called for a flagrant foul, and was ejected. Robinson converted both free throws to slash Dallas' lead to 104-103.

Blackman had 30 points to lead Dallas, which had six players in double figures.

San Antonio wiped out a 68-63 third-period deficit with a 10-0 run capped by Cummings' layup. But the Mavs outscored the Spurs, 10-5 over the rest of the quarter to take a 79-78 advantage entering the final period despite a 12-point period from Robinson.

The Mavericks grabbed an 89-84 lead with 7:14 to play on Harper's 3-pointer, but the Spurs rallied for a 91-91 tie on Strickland's layup.

Dallas led at halftime 54-52 behind Blackman's nine points. The Mavericks trailed by 35 many as eight in the first quarter, then took a 38-37 lead on Randy White's two free throws with 6:49 left in the second period.

Reggie Williams' three-pointer pulled the Spurs into a 52-52 tie, but Alex English's shot from the baseline gave the Mavs their halftime lead.

Robinson and Strickland had 12 points each in the first half.

Wildcats beat Hogs in NIT championship game, 89-77

NEW YORK (AP) — No. 3 Arizona's big front line overpowered No. 2 Arkansas in the second half Friday night and grabbed the favorite's role in NCAA basketball.

Led by center Sean Rooks and forward Chris Mills, the Wildcats used a 42-11 second-half run to defeat the Razorbacks 89-77 in the championship game of the Big Apple NIT.

In the second half, the 6-foot-11 Rooks had 19 of his career-high 31 points and seven of his 10 rebounds and the 6-6 Mills 17 of his 29 points and five of his 13 rebounds. Brian Williams, a 6-10 forward, finished with eight rebounds.

"Our physical strength on the boards told down the stretch," Arizona coach Lute Olson said. "This was a team win. Mills played well in all aspects of his game. Sean got it done in both halves and Williams got the job done on the boards."

Arizona (4-0) outrebounded Arkansas (3-1) 54-32 for the game and 31-14 in the second half.

"I felt down the stretch we were the stronger team," Olson said. "Our physical strength was the key."

Arizona trailed 55-46 with 13 minutes remaining and 57-49 with 12:28 to go, but Arkansas (3-1) went the next 4:38 without scoring as the Wildcats took control with the inside play of Rooks and Mills, a transfer from Kentucky who was named MVP of the tournament.

A tip-in by Mills started a run of 13 consecutive points by Arizona. The next 9 were scored by Rooks, who scored 19 points in the second half to surpass his previous career-high of 24 last season against UCLA.

WTC cagers notch victory

DALLAS — Western Texas College's men's basketball team, once again, easily cruised past the century mark in their 144-132 win over Navarro Junior College played at Reunion Arena Friday.

The Westerners blasted to a 78-65 lead by halftime and moved to 9-2 on the campaign, winning their seventh consecutive basketball game.

Dominick Byrd, the sophomore scoring machine from Ft. Worth, scorched the nets for 39 points against Navarro. He nailed 16 baskets from the floor and went 7 of 8 from the free-throw line.

Byrd led a group of five Westerners in double figures including Michael Richardson's 27, 24 from Jeff Shelley, Paul Johnson's 21 and 16 by Allen Smith.

Navarro was led, offensively, by John Leak, who gathered 37 points on the night.

Besides his 39 points in the game, Byrd contributed 18 of the Westerners' 62 rebounds.

Friday's juco game preceded the Dallas Mavericks 107-104 loss to San Antonio in Friday NBA action.

WTC will be at home Monday night for an 8 p.m. battle with Cisco Junior College before beginning Western Junior College Athletic Conference play Thursday at Howard.

QB made most of last game

IRVING, Texas (AP) — South Grand Prairie quarterback Bill Shafer made his last high school football game count.

The senior Warrior signal caller, who was a victim of "no-pass, no-play" regulations, had to get all of his football playing in by 3:10 p.m. Friday in South Grand Prairie's area round playoff game with Arlington High School.

Under Texas University Interscholastic League rules, Shafer and five other Warriors starters were technically eligible only until the hour of the final school bell Friday afternoon, after failing at least one course during the last six-week grading period.

Thus the noon kickoff at Texas Stadium Friday, the first of a scheduled prep triple-header, allowed Shafer to start the contest.

And from Arlington's point of view the game should have had a much later kickoff.

Shafer led the Warriors to a 20-15 area round victory over the Colts, connecting on 12 of 27 passes for 215 yards and one touchdown, as the game ended at approximately 2:55 p.m., giving him a full 15 minutes to shower and change.

"All of us (ineligible players), we put everything on the line out there today," Shafer said. "We went out to win it."

NFL roundup...

Rams, Eagles can be spoilers

by The Associated Press

Coaches like to play them "one game at a time" — and one game is all the 10-0 San Francisco 49ers and 10-0 New York Giants have left before their mammoth collision Dec. 3.

The would-be spoilers are the Los Angeles Rams (3-7), who visit the 49ers on Sunday, and the Philadelphia Eagles (6-4), who entertain the Giants.

And coaches being coaches, both George Seifert of the 49ers — who have tied an NFL record by winning 19 games in a row in including playoffs — and Bill Parcells of the Giants claim they are not looking any farther ahead than this week's games.

"I don't think you can take anything for granted," Seifert said. "I don't think the players do."

"I just don't understand people who talk about that," Parcells said. "We have just so far to go against good competition."

Nevertheless, the pressure is building. "There's a natural kick-in as the importance of the games come," Seifert said. "It's almost unconscious."

In other Sunday games, Atlanta is at New Orleans, Chicago at Minnesota, Indianapolis at Cincinnati, Miami at Cleveland, Tampa Bay at Green Bay, Kansas City at the Los Angeles Raiders, New England at Phoenix, Pittsburgh at the New York Jets and Seattle at San Diego. Buffalo visits Houston on Monday night.

In Thanksgiving Day games, Dallas beat Washington 27-17 and Detroit defeated Denver 40-27.

Atlanta (3-7-0)

at New Orleans (4-6-0)

The Saints had won six straight from Atlanta until the Falcons' 28-27 victory earlier this season as Chris Miller capped a 366-yard, three-touchdown performance by hitting Andre Rison with a 3-yard TD pass with less than two minutes remaining.

Chicago (9-1-0)

at Minnesota (4-6-0)

Chicago has won six straight and owns the NFL's No. 1 rushing offense, led by Neal Anderson, second in the NFC with 758 yards. Minnesota's Herschel Walker had his best day since his first game as a Viking with 99 yards on 16 carries last week, including a 58-yard TD, against Seattle.

Indianapolis (4-6-0)

at Cincinnati (6-4-0)

The Bengals took over sole possession of first place in the AFC Central with a 27-3 victory over Pittsburgh last week. The Colts' offense is 28th — dead last — but improving behind rookie quarterback Jeff George and running backs Eric Dickerson and Albert Bentley.

Miami (8-2-0)

at Cleveland (2-8-0)

Miami ended a six-game winning streak and dropped out of a first-place tie in the AFC East by losing to the Raiders 13-10 Monday night. Cleveland lost its first game under new coach Jim Shofner and fifth straight overall 35-23 as Houston's Warren Moon threw for 322 yards and five TDs.

Tampa Bay (4-7-0)

vs. Green Bay (5-5-0)

Tampa Bay has lost five straight since beating Green Bay 26-14 in Week 6 as Steve Christie kicked four field goals and the defense intercepted Don Majkowski five times. The Bucs managed only 180 yards against San Francisco last week.

Kansas City (6-4-0)

at Los Angeles Raiders (7-3-0)

Three weeks ago, Kansas City won 9-7 as Nick Lowery kicked three field goals. The Chiefs are one game behind the AFC West-leading Raiders, who held Miami to a club-record low 14 yards rushing on Monday night. KC's rushing attack, on the other hand, is No. 7 in the NFL.

New England (1-9-0)

at Phoenix (2-8-0)

These teams haven't met since 1984 when the Cardinals, then based in St. Louis, easily won 33-10 as Otis Anderson rushed for 136 yards. New England has lost eight in a row.

Pittsburgh (5-5-0)

at New York Jets (4-7-0)

This game marks the return of Joe Walton, Pittsburgh's offensive coordinator after being head coach of the Jets for six years. The Steelers have dominated the series, winning 10 of 11, and they didn't do much for Walton last year, recording their first shutout in four years in beating the Jets 13-0.

Seattle (4-6-0)

at San Diego (5-6-0)

Three weeks ago, Billy Joe Tolleriver threw two TD passes and the San Diego defense recorded two TDs in a 31-14 victory. The Chargers have the NFL's No. 4 rushing offense as well as the No. 4 overall defense.

Buffalo (9-1-0)

at Houston (5-5-0)

Last season, Jim Kelly's fourth TD pass, a 28-yarder to Andre Reed in overtime gave Buffalo a 47-41 victory.

Bush confident U.N. will OK use of force

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, relaxing at Camp David after returning from the Middle East and Europe, says he

Colorado City man charged with DWI

A 32-year-old Colorado City man was arrested and charged with felony driving while intoxicated by a Snyder unit of the Department of Public Safety.

Darwin Lee Garwin was arrested about a half mile south of Snyder on the Brick Plant Road. Garwin was also charged with driving while license suspended.

is confident the United Nations will approve using force to drive Iraq from Kuwait and perhaps a deadline for taking action.

"The world is getting tired of this," Bush said Friday of Iraq's nearly four-month-old occupation of Kuwait.

Bush arrived home early Saturday from the Middle East after stopping in Geneva for three hours of talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The White House said the two leaders agreed that Iraq "should receive no reward for its aggression"

Snyder woman not injured when car backs into neighbor's house

Three wrecks — one in which a car struck a house — topped police activity Friday.

At 1:04 p.m. Friday, a 1987 Mercury driven by Ida Browning of 3798 Sunset struck a residence at 3789 Sunset, owned by Lafon Berryhill.

Officers said Mrs. Browning, 78, was attempting to back out of her driveway when the mishap occurred. She told investigators that either her brakes failed or her foot slipped and hit the accelerator.

Damage to the house and to Browning's vehicle was minor. Mrs. Browning was taken to Cogdell Hospital by private vehicle where she was treated and released.

At 3:25 p.m., a minor mishap occurred in the 4500 Block of El Paso. Involved was a 1986 Chevrolet driven by Marilyn Crittenover and a 1986 Chrysler driven by Melissa Williams of Route 2, Hermleigh.

At 1:07 a.m. Saturday, a hit and run was reported at Houston and 30th St. A vehicle which left the scene struck a fence owned by Laverne Lee.

At 10:42 p.m. Friday, Mary Ann Molinar reported that her mailbox at 4200 College Ave. had been knocked down.

Investigators found other criminal mischief to mail boxes belonging to Paul Sawyer of 4110 Ave. R., Wayne York at 4102 Ave.

and that there should be no "partial solutions" to the Persian Gulf crisis.

Assad sidestepped a question of whether Syrian forces would fight alongside Americans in an offensive operation.

Bush also met in Cairo with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, who proclaimed his willingness to use force. "By all means," he said.

There was an unexpected and jarring note to the windup of Bush's eight-day trip when Swiss security forces roughed up members of the presidential party. White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater called it "brutal and vicious treatment."

He said a security man jabbed a machine gun into the stomach of Ambassador Joseph Reed, the U.S. chief of protocol. Another security agent verbally abused John Sununu, the president's chief of staff, Fitzwater said.

He remarked, "It's so strange — supposedly a peace-loving nation gave us the most vicious treatment I've ever seen."

Some members of the press corps accompanying Bush were roughly shoved and punched. Fitzwater said the president witnessed some of the unpleasantness. Fitzwater said he didn't know what provoked it.

The stop in Geneva was the last leg of a trip to Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Paris, Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Jesse M. Hill

1905-1990

LUBBOCK — Services were held at 10 a.m. Saturday at the Sanders Funeral Home Chapel for Jesse Melvin Hill, 85, of Lubbock who died Thursday afternoon at Methodist Hospital after a brief illness. Burial was to follow in the City of Lubbock Cemetery.

Mr. Hill was a barber for over 40 years, retiring in 1970. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

He is survived by his wife, Mary, of the home; two sons, Wayne and Charles, both of Lubbock; one daughter, Twila Polk of Lubbock, formerly of Snyder; a brother, Harold Hill of Fort Worth; and a sister, Opal Musick of Brownfield; 13 grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by two sons and one daughter.

The family suggested memorials to the Jeff Polk Memorial Fund at Western Texas College, the Children's Home of Lubbock or a favorite charity.

Fed prison expansion slated

BASTROP, Texas (AP) — Federal prison officials in Bastrop County have an expansion plan that could increase the inmate population there by 70 percent in the next five years. The plan calls for expanding medium-security facilities within the complex, plus constructing a minimum-security facility outside the fenced perimeter. A hurdle to housing additional inmates in the existing facility was cleared recently, with the prison joining the Lower Colorado River Authority, the Texas Army National Guard and Bastrop County in a regional sewage treatment project. The prison has put a cap on the number of inmates it holds until it can increase sewage capacity. Though final approval of the prison expansion is pending, Warden Carlos Ortiz said, "It's going to happen based on the needs we have for prison beds. More people are coming to prison. They are coming for longer periods of time."

The Federal Correctional Institution, eight miles north of Bastrop, was built to house about 450 inmates. But since 1979, cells have been modified to include two beds, and about 780 inmates now reside at the prison.

Though able to house 944 inmates — if all prisoners are placed two to a cell — the prison population has been kept down because of the lack of sewage treatment capacity.

Once the regional waste water project comes on line in the spring of 1992, the prison will double-bunk most cells and have reserve capacity to meet expansion goals, said prison spokesman John Dawson.

Expansion projects include: — A proposed $7.33 million minimum-security facility outside the fenced grounds of the medium-security units to be started by September. The 150-man facility also will have its own support facilities such as medical and kitchen services.

— An $11.9 million housing unit for medium-security prisoners to be built within five years. The unit, the fifth on prison grounds, would have 118 cells which could be double-bunked for 236 prisoners.

Christmas trees rustled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Christmas tree rustling in national forests in southern California is one annual holiday season ritual that should be stopped, forest rangers say.

"A lot of people think that if I just take one, it's not a problem," said Carla Van Dyne at the Tujunga district office of Angeles National Forest. "Once they start cutting or even damage (the tree), it is going to die."

U.S. Forest Service officials report problems with poachers taking trees without permits and outside designated areas at Los Padres, Angeles and San Bernardino national forests.

Firm likes scratchbooks idea

DALLAS (AP) — The anti-smoking sentiment sweeping the nation has spurred a Euless matchbook company to fan the embers of a new trend — scratchbooks.

Atlas Match Corp. executives are all fired up about their new product, born during a brainstorming session several years ago when the movement against cigarettes was sparked.

Realizing their livelihood was threatened, the executives at the Euless company developed a matchbook-type cover filled with tiny sheets of paper.

Atlas Match president Glenn Walker said the scratchbooks are ideal for people who often find themselves looking for something to write on at unexpected times.

"Men can carry a scratchbook in their pockets and women in their handbags," Walker said. "Then they always have some paper."

And, in keeping with the company's motto — "Flame is our game. Advertising you is our aim" — whenever the scratchbook is whipped out of a purse or pocket, an advertising message is shown.

The first scratchbook customer was Anthony's Restaurant in Houston, which started handing them out to patrons in August 1988.

Reservists set for Operation Desert Shield

By The Associated Press
Tables laden with food, rousing entertainment and the presence of more than 1,000 people did not ensure the success of a party at the headquarters of the U.S. Army Reserve's 279th Maintenance Group.

The festive atmosphere at Friday's party in Dallas was overshadowed by the fact that 248 members of the 279th were to be deployed over the weekend to Fort Hood in support of Operation Desert Shield.

Deborah Edinbyrd, the mother of a 19-year-old reservist, said she was upset by the fact that her daughter was being deployed.

"I feel she's too young and her life's just beginning," Ms. Edinbyrd said.

Parting was sweet sorrow for Rickey and Judy Camp, who were married a week ago.

"If I have to go somewhere my buddies are going to take care of me and I'm going to take care of them. But I don't know who is going to take care of my wife," said Camp, a member of the 279th.

The members of the 279th were not the only Texans preparing to face duty.

The 299 members of the 41st Combat Support Hospital from Fort Sam Houston on Friday boarded a plane at Kelly Air Force Base bound for Saudi Arabia.

The 41st has been working day and night seven days a week since Aug. 20, preparing for Operation Desert Shield. Their mission includes equipping and staffing a 200-bed tactical hospital.

For some, the departure brought a sense of relief.

Lt. Christopher Smith, 24, a registered nurse with the 41st, said it was a strange feeling knowing they were finally leaving. The unit was originally told to deploy in September.

"At least we won't have to be saying goodbye anymore," he said.

Major Toni Trafford, 35, head nurse in intensive care, said she has been saying goodbye to her husband, Mel, and son Paul, 10, and daughter Leanne, 8, for more than two weeks.

Trafford said her daughter managed to sneak her small teddy bear into her military pack before she left the house. She did not know about the going-away gift until after reporting for duty.

The family had their

Thanksgiving Day meal last Saturday, Trafford said. Before she left she made sure her kids' Christmas tree was up and their presents were under the tree. It will be her first Christmas away from her children, said the 16-year Army reservist.

Meanwhile, 238 soldiers from the 238th Maintenance Company were preparing to leave San Antonio for Fort Hood Monday, officials of the 90th Army Reserve Command said.

Once at Fort Hood, the 238th will undergo physical exams, final equipment checks and training before deployment to Saudi Arabia on Dec. 22.

Christmas crafts sessions slated

Senior citizens interested in Christmas crafts are invited to attend work sessions Wednesday and Thursday in the Senior Center.

The sessions are planned from 9-11:30 a.m. each morning. Supplies will be available. Pamela Poe, activities director, said, she will be helping those working.

A domino tournament is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. Monday in the center. At 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, senior citizens participating in the weight control program will weigh in.

Benny Benitez and his band will play for a country/western dance at 7 p.m. Tuesday. The Sunshine Choir will perform at Snyder Oaks Care Center at 2 p.m. Thursday. Everyone is invited to join in the Sing Along at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

Senior citizens who need transportation to the center can make arrangements by calling the office at 573-4035. Transportation is also available for those who need to visit their doctor's office or run other essential errands.

Have A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Paula Fox isn't a magician, a goddess, or a mad doctor like Frankenstein, but she creates little people just the same.

She first decided to create a Snyder Tiger in honor of her son Chad, who made the varsity squad last school year. Then came other sports figures, cheerleaders and band members. Before she could say "pot of gold" she was neck deep in little people, and couldn't be happier.

Now, we aren't talking real, flesh and blood little people mind you, but small, wooden replicas painstakingly cut from a piece of balsa wood or woodlet as it is called. These "spirit pins" as she likes to call them, seem to "strike a cord in people," she said.

Mrs. Fox and her husband, Don, were so proud when Chad made the varsity team that she made the first spirit pin to display her pride openly. Using a 1/4 inch thick woodlet, she designed and cut out a small football player and painted its hair the same color as her son's, and then added his team number and the letters SHS.

Since then, football has almost become a way of life for Paula Fox and her husband, who are big Tiger boosters. In addition, her spirit pins are also gaining in popularity. Word of mouth advertisement continued to spread and before she knew it she was getting all kinds of requests, even from Dallas Cowboys Booster Club members.

Mrs. Fox said (referring to the 1989 football season) that they were not only thrilled that Chad was on the varsity team, but also very encouraged because Coach David Baugh was then sure that Snyder would "build a good team" within three years.

Those words have proven to be prophetic as the Tigers have now advanced into post season play for the first time in some-12 years.

But, back to the beginning. Mrs. Fox mounted a pin on her little wooden Tiger and wore it to all the football games.

A friend liked the little football player so well that she suggested that the wooden figure could be adapted for all sports including basketball, tennis, baseball and track. And that's just what happened.

Interest began building slowly at first, but before long the spirit sticks began not only to catch people's eye but to "catch on as well."

Mrs. Fox soon started adapting her football player to look like other sports figures such as a volleyball player and basketball figures which sported a tank top and shorts.

All of the sports pins bear the player's name and number plus SHS and have the same hair color as the player they do homage to. Each little person, though similar, has distinct differences and many people sort through the unfinished pieces looking for one that resembles the person they are honoring.

For each one sold, she donated $1 to the Snyder All Sports Booster Club. She does the same for the spirit pins which she sells to supporters of other groups or teams.

As word-of-mouth advertisement spread throughout the community, Mrs. Fox said she began to get requests for other pins. The first came from Band Boosters who wanted a band figure with a

CREATES SPIRIT PINS — Paula Fox made her first spirit pin because she was a proud mother who wanted to show her support for her son, Chad, a member of the Tiger varsity squad. But her creations have become so popular that she has had requests for everything from football players, to cheerleaders, band members and AJRA cowboys and cowgirls, just to name a few. Actually, she can create a spirit pin for any occasion. All she needs is a picture and she can create any kind of pin anyone wants. (SDN Staff Photo) black uniform and later another figure with a white uniform since new band uniforms had been purchased.

She was also asked to make cheerleaders. That was just the beginning. It wasn't long before Mrs. Fox began to make Little Dribblers spirit pins for both boys and girls. Each figure includes hair color, skin tone, team name and color.

Mrs. Fox made up some generic pins and took them to the Girls Little Dribblers tournament when it was held in Snyder last year.

They sold so successfully, that she made up a "bunch more" and took them to the Boys Little Dribblers Tournament when it was held at Seminole. They proved to be even more popular.

With the figures complete except for hair color, name and number, she could complete a spirit pin on the spot in a short period of time.

Other pieces include Tiger pins, earrings and mascot. Mrs. Fox never lacks for either ideas or requests. She can make up any kind of figure, as long as she has something to use as a model.

Other figures made for special events include the National Gymnastics Tournament held here last summer, the AJRA National Finals, also held in Snyder last summer, and White Buffalo Days in October. She made rodeo spirit pins for all celebrities concerned with the AJRA finals held in Snyder.

The pins for White Buffalo Days (a special request) were armed forces pins in honor of county men and women who are serving as part of Operation Desert Shield.

A brother who lives in Arizona first suggested to Mrs. Fox that she should design a logo and apply for a patent for her pattern.

That's what she did. She had to submit pictures of each one of her patterns. Patterns, not pieces of wood, can be copyrighted, she told the Snyder Daily News last week.

She also got lots of advice from her brother and his wife who had started making and selling watches. They were the ones who sent Mrs. Fox that first box of woodlets that was purchased from an Asian company which later went out of business.

As Mrs. Fox's spirit pins began to grow in popularity, she called her brother and sister-in-law and left a message on their answering machine saying she owed them "the finest dinner in town."

As Mrs. Fox made more and more (see FOLKS page 2B) more spirit pins she changed and refined the process. She started using 1/8 inch balsa wood because it produced a smoother, thinner piece. The wood comes in a four foot by four foot sheet which her husband strips for her. Then she uses a 14-inch band saw to cut and shape the figures. To speed up the process, her husband devised a way to stack the strips so that she can cut five or six figures at once. He's also the one who taught her how to use the band saw.

All pieces are sanded before they are painted, and after drying, are sprayed with an acrylic spray. She uses paint like tole painting and can attach matching ribbons to any piece.

In the beginning, it was not unusual for her to spend weeks perfecting a new design or pattern. Now that she is "more confident" she is able to work much faster.

Mrs. Fox has managed to keep pace with the demand for her little people. Her spirit pins often act as a sort of emissary when it comes to meeting people like Bill Lamza Jr., "Cowboy Bill," president of the Dallas Cowboys Fan Club.

A chance meeting occurred last summer when, following the AJRA finals in Snyder, Mrs. Fox and her family were in San Marcos on family business. They took time out to stop in Austin and watch a scrimmage game between the Cowboys and the Houston Oilers. When she first saw "Cowboy Bill" talking with a couple of Cowboys, she did not know who he was.

Later, she saw him again and when they had a chance to speak she said he was curious about her sports pin. She ended up making a few sample players and cheerleaders which she later sent to him. A few days later, "Cowboy Bill" left a message on her answering machine which "excited the family a lot."

"Cowboy Bill" had received good feedback from her sample pieces and he included some information on her little people in the fan club's newsletter.

Since then, she has heard from other members of the fan club as well as from people living in states as far away as Florida.

Another fruitful contact was Dr. Charles Tandy of Dallas who is a member of the Historical Society Board and the Dallas City Council. He has asked her to devise a soccer spirit pin to coincide with the world cup championship which will be played in Dallas.

She also has heard from people in Oak Cliff who are fighting to secede from Dallas who want to wear pins stating their views.

As Mrs. Fox's fledgling enterprise began to "take off" she adopted the name Crafty Fox and is contemplating on putting together a catalog at a future date.

For years, Mrs. Fox "dabbled" in crafts until about three years ago. Once her husband taught her how to use the band saw, she was able to do special requests like gun cabinets and other items.

As the economy slowed down, she said she decided to have a crafts show because it was "time to diversify." As local business slacked off (the family owns and operates a carpet store), she said they started traveling to area towns each week to boost business.

But as her success with crafts and spirit pins has grown, she said they have not had to travel so much this year.

She said it was a time "of readjustment for them" but in retrospect "they have grown and appreciate things more now."

Mrs. Fox has fun with her crafts. The first pattern she designed was a lifelike, three dimensional cow some 39 inches tall and seven feet long.

She also started making wooden Indian dolls. She even searched riverbeds in order to find the vines she needed to make her baskets as authentic as possible. Some of her baskets have been auctioned.

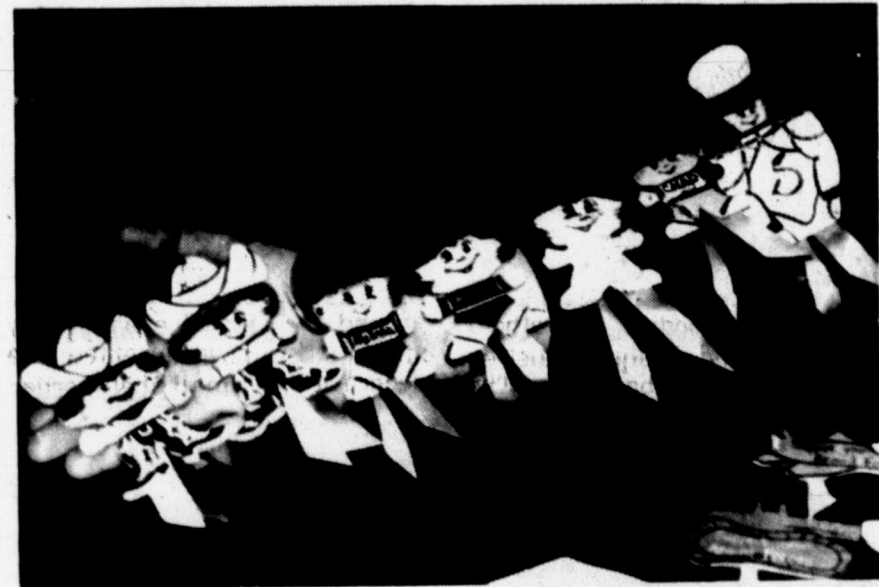

She readily admits that she can "see the potential in junk."

Mrs. Fox likes to sell her items at both crafts shows and flea markets.

Mrs. Fox was reared in Snyder, but left in 1950 after she got married. Fifteen years later she and her family moved back "home."

Besides Chad, the Foxes also have a daughter, Jeana Fox, who lives in Midland.

Her father, Otto Parrish, was a plumber in Snyder until he retired in 1972.

Casas, Adams exchange wedding vows at First Presbyterian Church

Andrea Jenea Casas and Mikeal Bertram Adams exchanged wedding vows at the First Presbyterian Church Aug. 18 at 6 p.m. Dr. Stephen W. Smith, minister of the church, officiated. Oscar and Mary Garcia are parents of the bride and Don and Vonseth Adams are parents of the groom.

Vows were exchanged before the altar decorated with a two and 12-candle brass candelabras, with white wicker baskets of white and pink stargazer leaf, accented with emerald white silk bows on each side of the altar. The center of the altar featured the unity candle situated on a brass stand. The unity candle was lit after the bride and groom exchanged their wedding vows.

Lynn Wormeringer performed organ music and accompanied Royce Hataway as he sang "Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her mother and father. She was attired in a white taffeta bridal gown of sheer illusion and Venice lace with a fitted bodice and pointed sleeves. Pearls and iridescent sequins adorned the bodice and sleeves. The dress featured a bouffant skirt which flared from a tapered basque waistline. A back butterfly bow with rosette accented the chapel length tulle train, which was delicately trimmed with pearls and iridescent sequins.

The bridal head piece held a circlet of flowers and pearls trimmed with taffeta rosette and floral sprays to match the bridal gown. Following bridal tradition her dress was new, she wore a blue garter, carried an antique lace handkerchief, borrowed her mother's pearl and diamond earrings and carried pennies minted in the bride and groom's birthdays in her shoe.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white silk roses, pink and white camillias, white pearl azure imported from Mexico and accented with white peacock ribbon, silk greenery and sprinkled with diamond dust.

The bride's father was attired in a black Dior tuxedo.

As she was escorted to the altar, the bride presented the groom's mother with a long stemmed red rose and upon leaving the altar, the groom presented the bride's mother with a long stemmed red rose.

Karen Macon of Cedar Hill registered guests as they entered the church. The table featured a white lace table cloth with silk overlay and an arrangement of white and pink gladiolas, tiger lilies, miniature carnations and baby's breath. Pink candles held in crystal votive cups accented the table.

The groom was attired in his U.S. Navy dress blue uniform.

Terry Gutierrez, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Katrina Carasco of San Angelo and Crystal Rascon of Fort Stockton, also cousins of the bride. They wore wine taffeta dresses with back V-neck criss-crossed plunge and accented with a bow. The fitted bodice featured a basque waist and puffed and shirred elbow length sleeves. Junior bridesmaids were Audra Garcia, sister of the bride, and Courtney Ragland, niece of the groom. They wore pink taffeta gowns with fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline and basque waistline, accented with a back bow. They carried single pink carnations, accented with baby's breath and ribbon.

Chris Casas, brother of the bride, was best man. He was attired in a Class "A" Army dress green uniform. Santino Hermsillo attended as ring bearer wearing black pants and black suspenders with a white tuxedo shirt and wine bow tie.

A reception was held at the church following the ceremony.

The bridal table was covered in a pink linen tablecloth with wine overlay, held by light pink bows. Almond punch was served from a silver three-tiered lighted fountain. Pink butter mints and sand tarts were served from a silver three-tiered tray. Champagne was served to the wedding party.

The traditional bridal cake was three-tiered and baked with a white chiffon recipe and filled with strawberry cream filling. Each cake tier rested on a clear crystal plate. The entire cake was floured with an almond butter glaze and then hand-molded with a rolled fondant frosting and individually laced, horizontally around the side of each tier. A small satin bow accented the decorating. A small shell border on top and around the base completed the decorating. The top of the cake held a special porcelain bride and groom accented by a crystal background. Pearls and pink flowers completed the top piece. This confection was baked and created especially for the couple by Reta Graham.

Serving at the bride's table was Rachel Chaidez, Amy Munon, the bride's aunt, Becky Casas, sister-in-law of the bride, and Jessica Urias of El Paso, cousin of the bride.

The groom's table featured a chocolate cake frosted in butter cream frosting. The cake was baked and then cut in the shape of an anchor. Coffee, mints and nuts were also served. Serving at the groom's table were Cynthia Womack of Wichita Falls and Donna Ragland, sisters of the groom.

Guests were seated at tables featuring pink tablecloths, draped with wine bows and featuring crystal votive candleholders holding pink and wine candles, trimmed with greenery.

Pink and wine voile rice bags were distributed to the guests by Courtney Ragland and Audra Garcia.

After a scenic wedding trip to their home in San Diego, Calif., the groom is serving in the U.S. Navy where he is a third class petty officer and attending Mesa College. He is a 1985 graduate of Snyder High School.

The bride is a 1989 graduate of Snyder High School and attended Northwood Institute in Cedar Hill. She is currently employed at J.C. Penney's in El Cagon, Calif., and is attending Mesa College.

Bridge By James Jacoby

By James Jacoby

Today we see another deal in which the great champion Chagas got into the bidding. This time he was hampered by playing in a first-time partnership, albeit with one of the top women players from the United States. When South bid three diamonds, Chagas, sitting North, simply jumped to six. What were his other chances?

Perhaps he could have jumped to four no-trump, asking for aces. Or he might have bid four diamonds. In most expert partnerships, four diamonds would be absolutely forcing, setting the trump suit and inviting further exploratory cue-bids on the way to slam. But the other side of this coin is that, lacking a discussion of this treatment, it might look as if North was showing only a doubleton diamond for support, in which case South might pass four diamonds. Chagas took no chances, but he did miss a cold seven-diamond contract.

Sitting North, I bid four diamonds. South bid only five diamonds, and I went on to six. So that was still another way to miss the laydown grand slam. In retrospect, since my partner and I were playing old-fashioned Blackwood, I could have asked for aces and then asked for kings. Knowing that South held two kings, I could have gambled on the grand slam, at the worst needing the queen of diamonds to fall if South held six diamonds missing the queen.

Year Birthday

Nov. 25, 1990

In the year ahead you may get involved in a joint venture with a person whose talents and abilities complement yours. Your collective prospects look extremely encouraging.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Disagreements in your household with which you're usually able to cope satisfactorily might be more difficult to deal with today. Don't lose your temper. Sagittarius, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you are delegated as the conveyor of critical information today which you have to pass on to another, be doubly certain the other party thoroughly understands the message.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't be stingy in your involvements with friends today, but, by the same token, don't be foolishly extravagant. Your purse will appreciate you more if you play things down the middle.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your ability to assess situations accurately today might not be up to par and there is a chance you could involve yourself in developments where the odds are against you going in.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An opportunity of an unusual nature may unexpectedly present itself today. You'll be aware it has value, but you might not know how to deal with it effectively.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful at this time you do not impulsively invest too much in a new endeavor or product. What interest you now could turn out to be merely a passing fancy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In challenging developments today you're likely to break out fast in front of the pack, but should the opposition get stiffer, there's a possibility you'll slack off.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Ideas about which you feel hopeful should not be first tested on negative friends today. It isn't likely they'll see or understand the strengths of your concepts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Commercial involvements must be handled in a businesslike fashion today, even if the transaction is with an old friend. Leave no margin for a misunderstanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Carefully weigh and evaluate your alternatives today, but don't overanalyze things to the point of total indecisiveness to where you suffer from paralysis from overanalysis.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Clever ideas you get early in the day might not be completed, because of inclinations that cause you to cater to too many diverse interests. Finish what you start.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you're a pretty good shopper, but unfortunately today you'll evaluate everything by its price tag. You may erroneously conclude the cheaper, the more the better the bargain.

Nov. 25, 1990

The key to your success in the year ahead is to first lay sturdy foundations. If you do, your projections look encouraging; if not, the results are a lopsided at best.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you've taken time to formulate a constructive plan to achieve an objective today, stick to it. Last minute departures from your scheme could create an environment for failure. Major changes are ahead for Sagittarius in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In a situation in which you're involved, but lack control, don't attempt to impose your ideas on those in authority. You're better advised today to listen and say little.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today if you participate in an activity with a friend who is a bit of a freeloader, try to establish the financial ground rules ahead of time. This will avoid misunderstandings later.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order for a joint endeavor to be successful today, both you and the other party must be on the same wavelength. If your thoughts aren't in sync, the results will reflect it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Individuals in minor roles could play havoc with your plans today if you're not careful. If possible try to deal directly with the decision makers instead of people who lack authority.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do reasonably well in commercial involvements today if you are conservative. It's best to avoid anything that looks like a gamble, even if you feel it is a safe-calculated risk.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Partnership arrangements have both pros and cons today. It's likely you'll accomplish your intentions, but there could also be some tense times in the proceedings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be the object of a friend's generosity today, but when it is your turn to help someone else, you might not be as liberal as your benefactor. Don't suffer from a loss of memory.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're likely to be amicable and easygoing today in developments where there is an absence of financial overtones. However, in situations where money is an issue, it could be another story.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually you resent it when companions try to make decisions for you, yet unfortunately, today you might delegate this authority to someone who is the least qualified to counsel you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Details have their importance today, but they should not be permitted to dominate the big picture. There is an indication, your progress will be impeded if you get hung up on incidentals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You tend to deal effectively and logically with most matters today. The exception, however, could be the management of your resources. In this area you might make costly, small mistakes.

KGB spies still operate in Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Hundreds of Soviet KGB spies are operating in Berlin, but German authorities are reluctant to arrest them because of improved ties with the Soviet Union, a newspaper reported Friday.

The Berliner Morgenpost said at least 400 KGB agents were still operating in what used to be East Berlin. The paper said the information came from former East German secret police agents cooperating with German authorities since the Oct. 3 unification.

The paper said the continued activity of KGB spies is causing headaches for German authorities. By law they should be prosecuted, but because of changes in Soviet policy, authorities do not want to break any "political porcelain unnecessarily," the Morgenpost said.

German officials are hoping that the Soviets will withdraw their spies on their own initiative, the paper said.

The Nov. 5 arrest of a KGB major in Potsdam, near Berlin, was a "warning signal" to the Soviets, the paper said.

Tammy Wynette sets concert

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — Country star Tammy Wynette will perform a free Christmas concert Dec. 19 for soldiers, reservists and family members at Fort Campbell.

"This is her special tribute to the soldiers and family members of Operation Desert Shield," post spokesman Bill Harralson said Thursday.

The entire 101st Airborne Division, about 19,000 soldiers, began deploying to Saudi Arabia in August. About 3,500 soldiers remain at the post and some reservists also are stationed there.

Famed Bolshoi Ballet troupe spinoff premieres at A&M

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Shawn Strahan stood with his country dance troupe and confidently demonstrated the Texas two-step in his shiny brown cowboy boots.

Alexander Mischenko, wearing his new red bandanna, glanced over briefly, then jumped in the circle and imitated the steps precisely, adding a pirouette.

Mischenko and Strahan danced like dueling banjos for several minutes as American and Soviet youths cheered and a few international couples arranged dance dates for later in the week.

The scene has been played in countless movie musicals: the common language of dance uniting former enemies. It seems too corny to happen in real life.

But the spontaneous dancing was just part of the Texas-friendly welcome given to the Soviet Union's first private ballet company, the Bolshoi-Grigorovich, which will have its American premiere at Texas A&M University on Friday.

The country-western vs. Russian classical ballet dance-off was the high point of the 'Howdy!' reception thrown by the College Station Chamber of Commerce on Monday.

The dance-off, and the budding friendships between American college students and Soviet ballet academy graduates, was one of the main reasons artistic director Yuri Grigorovich decided to premiere his new troupe in this small college town instead of under the glaring lights of New York or Los Angeles.

"Our company is very young and their youth is suitable to this surrounding," Grigorovich, holding a wooden key to the city and wearing a denim suit with bandanna, said through an interpreter. "The students here opened their hearts. They have no prejudices."

Grigorovich, the former artistic director of the Bolshoi Ballet in Moscow, announced the formation of his new 60-member company in September. The first of its kind in the Soviet Union, it is funded by private sponsors and ticket sales instead of government subsidies. Grigorovich chose the dancers, aged 18-24, himself from all over the Soviet Union through auditions in Moscow.

The company, which has performed in Moscow, will premiere in College Station with Grigorovich's new version of the classic Christmas "Nutcracker" ballet. During its weeklong run, it will also perform the second act of "Swan Lake" and an evening of short classical dances.

The "Nutcracker" performance Friday in the campus's 2,500-seat Rudder Auditorium will mark the first time in 25 years that a Soviet ballet company has performed the Russian classic on an American stage.

Grigorovich, whose version played on U.S. stages in 1966, refused to divulge the changes he made to his "Nutcracker."

"It is better to see it once than to explain it 1,000 times," he said. The dancers arrived this week, moving into a hotel-dormitory near campus. They rehearsed twice a day and spent their off-time learning how Texas college students spend their free time.

"My only problem is to get the dancers to go and rehearse. We came here to work and many of them want to play," said troupe director Vladimir Gorionov, 40, a 20-year veteran of the main Bolshoi company who retired from the world's most famous ballet troupe to help Grigorovich.

The A&M students and the College Station community were a little stunned they would be hosting such a group.

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

The official day to give thanks is past but there's a story you might be interested in hearing as you carve up the last of the turkey for sandwiches this weekend.

It's the story of Khang Victor Hoang, and it reminds all of us that we have a lot to be thankful for.

If you noticed the front page of today's issue, you saw the article announcing that Victor Hoang, D.O., will be performing deliveries at Cogdell Memorial Hospital beginning in December. Dr. Hoang has his practice in Sweetwater but due to the fact that the hospital there does not have adequate support help, Cogdell has granted him permission to perform deliveries here.

It's a long way from Vietnam.

Khang Hoang was an Ensign in the South Vietnamese Navy in 1970 when he was shot in the knee while conducting river patrol. Instead of allowing the wound to dampen his optimism, Hoang saw in it a goal.

"I was deeply touched by the devotion of the medical staff to treat my wound," he explains. "I felt it would be wonderful to help healing the pain of other people and not to fight in the war."

From then on, it was his goal to become a medical doctor.

The knee would lead to his discharge in 1971 and he enthusiastically began his training — a year in pre-med followed by enrollment for a six-year medical curriculum at the University of Saigon School of Medicine in 1972. In 1975, however, the Communists took over South Vietnam.

Despite being a formal naval officer of the deposed government, Dr. Hoang was allowed to finish his training because the country badly needed physicians. He finished school and practiced for nearly a year before he made a crucial decision — to escape.

"Because of many harrassments and a sense of a loss of freedom... I planned to escape," he says. "Planning to escape took a lot of time and energy, but finally I made it."

Dr. Hoang got out of Vietnam by boat. Imagine, a 25-foot long vessel loaded with almost 500 desperate people.

Understandably, the small, over-loaded craft sank during high seas. Luckily, however, Dr. Hoang was picked up by a British ship.

"The only thing left on me were the clothes I was wearing. My M.D. diploma was lost," recalls the doctor.

But he was alive.

Alive, but without a profession.

He was unable to obtain his transcripts from Saigon because the Communist government would not do any service for those who took political asylum in the United States. There was nothing for Dr. Hoang to do but start over again.

"I remember the first few years in Utah, my wife and I had to work very hard to survive," said Dr. Hoang.

His wife, Lisa, who been employed as a bank supervisor in Saigon, had to work in a factory at minimum wage in Utah because she had no degree. To help make ends meet, she took on two jobs — the other as a cashier for a convenience store. If that weren't enough, she managed to take care of the couples' three-month old daughter.

Dr. Hoang studied pre-med at the University of Utah and worked nearly fulltime as a cashier.

"Life went like that during the first two years. We worked seven days a week, no holiday, no vacation, until the third year. Then my wife got a promotion to be an assistant manager and then manager of a market," said Dr. Hoang. "She earned good income and our life was getting easier. We saved a lot of money because we were used to being thrifty. We very seldom ate out or went to a movie."

ook Dr. Hoang only three years to complete college, cum laude, as he applied to medical school. He attended four years at the College of Osteopathic Medicine of the Pacific, in Pomona, Ca. He was then selected to do residency training in OB/GYN at Interfaith Medical Center in Brooklyn, a 500-bed hospital which serves a high-risk area.

Though the Hoangs thought they might go to New York and make their lives there, they quickly had second thoughts.

The cost of living, the weather — "It was too hot, too cold or raining" — and the crime rate changed their minds.

"The worst of all is too much crime and violence. I was mugged at gunpoint on the second day in New York and my U-Haul truck was broken into," he says.

So, the family began thinking about moving to a small town with a lower crime rate and warmer weather, "where I can have a house with a big back yard for the children to play and I can raise them in a good environment free of drugs," says Dr. Hoang.

They settled in Sweetwater after a visit in April of this year.

"We came to America more than 10 years ago and I spent more than 14 years for medicine," says the doctor. "This is the time I have to practice what I learned after those years of studying and this is the place I would like to spend my energy to serve people, to do my best... and to express our thanks to America, the land of opportunity and freedom."

Something to be thankful for.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Ever have one of those holidays that was memorable for all the wrong reasons? Yeah, me too.

Originally, I had all these classy plans for Thanksgiving. It occurred to me that my dad has never been to my home for a major holiday, and I was intending on inviting him and my stepmom, Betty, to come to our house Thanksgiving. This year all their other kids are spread out literally all over the country, and I thought it'd be lonesome for them, plus I thought it'd be great to have them out here. (They live in Amarillo.)

Last year my mom and stepdad, Leon, came out from Texarkana and had a wonderful, sweet Christmas with us, and I thought we could do something similar with my dad for Thanksgiving this year.

But I kept hanging back from making the call, and I couldn't figure out why. Part of it, I knew, was the helter-skelter aspect my life has assumed in recent months. It seems my publisher has "moved up" publication of all my books into nine-month increments, rather than yearly increments. This means one of my books will be published every nine months. Well, this is great news for me — it helps build up reader identification, and when the grand and glorious day ever comes that I actually get to make any money off of them, it will help out in that way.

However, it has plunged my work into a whirlwind of deadlines. No sooner do I finish revisions on one manuscript then I get the galley on another, and before I'm done with that my editor is asking for a proposal for my next project, or sending me cover flats on some past project, or a writer's magazine wants me to impart Great Wisdom on how I got into this situation in the first place. It's glorious, but it's frantic, as well.

Things around the household get short shrift. Times seems to vanish. And so it was that I'd reached the weekend before the holiday and STILL hadn't called my dad. But gosh, I was feeling awfully tired and draggy and headachy and queasy...

Next thing I knew, I was flat on my back for four days, watching light fade to dark and thinking, I really SHOULD get up and turn on some lights so the kids can find their way through the house when they get home from school. (We're at the end of the line on the bus route — they get on the bus at seven and get home at five and six-twenty, respectively.)

Food? Couldn't stand the thought of it.

By Thanksgiving morning I was able to abide the thought of food only enough to prepare it, not actually eat much of it. The house looked like a bomb site and about the only thing I was thankful for was that I hadn't dragged kinfolk down here only to send them back home with the pukin' bag.

But something happened to make the holiday memorable, after all. Everybody pitched in, cleaning house, setting the table (my daughter collected bits of broomweed and squash for a centerpiece) The kids baked a cake which fell to pieces when we tried to get it onto a platter; we all laughed and they frosted it anyway. Everybody hovered over me and petted me, and afterward, the men of the household washing every ding dang China dish, platter, delicate crystal glass, pot and pan — bless their manly hearts.

We wallered around watching football and Stephen King's "It," which we had video taped earlier. Once, my son scrubbed out the bathtub so I could soak in a hot tub. The rest of the time I lay like a beached whale on the couch, and once my son reached over, touched my hand and said, "Thanks, Mama, for Thanksgiving."

Thing is, he had it all wrong. It was me who had the most to be thankful for.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I enjoyed meeting with you recently during our visit to your city and appreciate you taking the time to talk to our Hondo group. We came away with all the information and more than we traveled to Snyder to get.

Because of the cordial welcome we received and everyone's honesty in answering our questions, we feel that Hondo can take advantage of the experience gained in all phases of their bid for a prison.

During our visit we spoke to many people, some of whom we were unable to get names. We would like your assistance in telling all the Snyder people who spoke with us thank you.

Our group was very impressed with your city, especially with the leadership and cooperation that we saw everywhere. Your chamber of commerce went above and beyond the call of duty in helping us organize this visit and then welcomed us heartily to your city.

We all enjoyed our trip to Snyder and hope to get the opportunity to be in your great city again. Thank you for your help and hospitality.

Sincerely,
Diane Shiffers

SDN Week In Review

SUNDAY

November 18
Gilbert V. Costillo Jr., a 31-year-old former Snyder resident, was sentenced to 40 years for aggravated sexual assault of a child by a 132nd District Court Jury.

After 27 years, Bob Clifton is ready for a new challenge. Clifton, longtime KSNY Radio personality, has accepted the position of operations and sales manager at KBYG Radio in Big Spring.

MONDAY

November 19
Snyder's Tigers notched a 28-14 come-from-behind victory in their Saturday bi-district playoff game on the strength of a 21-point third quarter offensive burst and the fact that the Black and Gold defenders held Pampa in check during the final 30 minutes, it was reported Monday.

Snyder City Council approved a low pressure water line replacement project for an estimated $167,124 during a special meeting Monday evening.

Snyder Chamber of Commerce board announced Bobby Beard, Betty House, Jerry Baird and Nelda Huddleston as new board members, to take office at the first of the year.

OUR LANGUAGE

By Jeffrey McQuain

For a connecting bond or tie, try LIGAMENT. Play around with this noun's spelling, and you'll find that the middle of LIGAMENT is GAME.

PLOY refers to a tactic or device for outwitting opponents. Don't be coy about this noun's pronunciation: PLOY rhymes with COY.

Q. Who or what are the PICTS? I saw that name in a story.

A. The PICTS were an ancient people of Great Britain. These people fought the invading Romans and were driven from northern Britain into Scotland, where they were united with the Scots more than a thousand years ago. The name of the PICTS, who were of uncertain origin, may have come from the Latin PICTI, "painted ones."

ENHANCE adds to or improves. If you don't use this verb, you should start; it will ENHANCE your vocabulary.

INANITION refers to loss of strength or vitality. If you hunger for rare nouns, try INANITION (pronounced "in-uh-NISH-un").

Q. A speech teacher I know mentioned an ASPIRATE H. What is that?

A. An ASPIRATE H is any H that is sounded (as in "hot"), as opposed to an H that is silent (as in "honor"); ASPIRATE refers to the puff of breath that is released in sounding the letter. Whether you pronounce an H can make quite a difference. HERB, with a silent H, is a plant; with an aspirate H, HERB is a man's name.

Something KEYED to an audience is aimed or pitched in a specific way. When you NEED to use this key word, don't lose KEYED.

A small scrap or piece is a SNIP-PET. Snip off the last syllable of this noun, and you'll find that SNIPPET is related to SNIP.

Shadow SEC second-guesses fed stocks, bonds regulators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of the Securities and Exchange Commission?

The Shadow SEC thinks it does.

The Shadow SEC, a self-appointed panel of five — mostly free-market economists — intends to second-guess the real SEC, a presidentially appointed panel charged with keeping the stock markets fair and honest.

The SEC oversees not only the trading of stocks and bonds but also mutual funds and investment advisers. Its actions affect the jobs, investments and futures of millions of Americans.

The Shadow SEC counts among its members 1990 Nobel Prize-winning economist Merton H. Miller and former SEC Commissioner Charles C. Cox.

At its first meeting, it called for elimination of an SEC rule approved earlier this year that limits index arbitrage, a form of program trading, on the New York Stock Exchange when the market rises or drops 50 points. The panel also called on the SEC to revise rules governing shareholders' absentee ballots or proxies.

Critics have called the body irrelevant and presumptuous. Even those who think there is a place for a Shadow SEC believe its role will be minor.

Samuel Hayes, investment banking professor at Harvard University's business school, said the concept of economic criticism "is an excellent idea. I just don't take too seriously the establishment of a regulator in exile."

"Frankly, I don't understand why some people are so upset about a Shadow SEC," said SEC Commissioner Philip R. Lochner.

"There are 1,000 conferences a year around the country on securities matters and this is one of them."

That's precisely the attitude the Shadow SEC wants to change.

Gregg Jarrell, a finance and economics professor at the University of Rochester and one of the founders of the watchdog group, said the organization was formed to spur research and to create "one more outlet besides the normal run of academic conferences. One that's a little different, perhaps a little more exciting."

"I don't know whether we'll reach the SEC itself," said Miller, who teaches at the University of Chicago. "I think we will, but by a very indirect route."

'Modern Mythology' museum may leave San Francisco

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota may become the home of Mr. Clean, Charlie Tuna, the Michelin Man and other icons and critters of Madison Avenue.

An executive at the Museum of Modern Mythology, which features advertising characters and mass market trademarks, talked to city officials Tuesday about moving the museum from San Francisco to St. Paul.

"We think it would be a good place for the museum — the Twin Cities is a creative arts mecca," said Ellen Havre Weis, the executive director and co-founder of the popular culture museum.

The museum is based on the premise that advertising characters and slogans have so infiltrated the subconscious minds of modern-day Americans that they are the closest things we have to myth.

Advertising also offers interesting examples of the development of art and social attitudes over the past century, according to museum officials.

The mythology museum was forced to close when the earthquake in the San Francisco Bay area in October 1989 ruined its building. Since then, museum officials have been looking for a new home.

Although other cities have expressed interest, St. Paul and Berkeley, Calif., are the two sites under active consideration, Weis said.

The Twin Cities would be a good home for the museum, Weis said, because it is a nationally known advertising community and has a reputation for corporate philanthropy.

Weis said it is hoped that the decision on a new location can be made within six months. The museum was started in 1982 by Weis, graphic artist Jeffrey Erick and media consultant Matthew Cohen.

Dear Abby

Just a working musician: John Lennon's last sessions

NEW YORK (AP) — Drummer Andy Newmark was touring with Roxy Music in the summer of 1980 when he got the call that changed his life: He was to play on John Lennon's new album.

Lennon had been in virtual seclusion for five years, busy taking care of his son, Sean, and admittedly out of songwriting ideas. But in 1980, he suddenly felt inspired again and planned to return to the studio to make an album with his wife, Yoko Ono.

It was more than a superstar session. After all, Lennon gave no press conferences, and didn't attend clubs or concerts. Rare photos occasionally emerged and he looked different in each one (Lennon jokingly referred to himself as "Greta Hughes" and "Howard Garbo").

Producer Jack Douglas, who had worked with Lennon as an engineer, recruited Newmark, bassist Tony Levin, guitarist Hugh McCracken and other New York-based session players. Recording was to take place at the Hit Factory in Manhattan.

To Newmark, Lennon was a hero and only a hero. He didn't know him and was nervous about working with him. The drummer guessed he was something like the intense, irreverent young man of the movies "Help!" and "A Hard Day's Night." Lennon was those things — and more.

"His personality seemed so consistent with all we had ever heard about John Lennon," said Newmark, who still lives in New York and works with former Roxy Music singer Bryan Ferry.

"His straightforwardness was as visible and apparent as the stories and images we had created. I didn't see anything that seemed startlingly new to the myth. It just appeared to be what we had imagined: down to earth, direct, so direct it could not offend people."

Newmark spent just one month in the studio, playing on the songs that eventually ended up on "Double Fantasy" and "Milk and Honey," Lennon's final albums. It was the "best experience of my life," he insisted. "The highlight of my career."

The nerves quickly settled. Once recording began, Lennon was just a "working musician" with the same goal as everyone else: finishing the album. The music was mostly mainstream pop; no 18-minute jams or political anthems. "I hate all that fancy stuff," Lennon told his drummer. "Keep it simple, like Ringo."

He was a happy man at this point and his singing was higher, sweeter than on earlier albums. Lennon was hoping to get back in touch with his audience, and the songs were melodic, the production lush.

"Dear Yoko" and "Grow Old With Me" were tributes to his wife. "Beautiful Boy (Darling Boy)" was for Sean. Lennon defended his self-imposed retirement on "Watching the Wheels" and summed up his feelings about turning 40 on "Borrowed Time," capping the line "Good to be older" with a self-assured "you bet."

Between takes, Lennon jammed on Buddy Holly songs and played host. Sushi was the food of choice. The strongest drug was Brazilian coffee, freshly ground.

And there were plenty of stories about the Beatles — the "B's," as John called them. Reunions were out of the question, a return to adolescence in his opinion, but talking about the old days seemed the nicest kind of high.

"By this time he was old enough to look upon the work they did and be proud of it," Newmark said. "When he talked about the 'B's,' it was as if it was his band. He was the spiritual leader. I felt that a lot through the sessions."

By the fall, Newmark had finished working on the album, and his contact with Lennon was limited to an occasional visit to the studio. But he had planned on working with him again. "Milk and Honey" was to come out the following year and Lennon wanted to tour, using many of the same musicians.

"Life is what happens when you're busy making other plans," Lennon once sang.

It took the drummer a long time to recover from Lennon's murder the night of Dec. 8, 1980; he didn't even feel like working for the next few years — everything else suddenly seemed "second rate."

Newmark never listens to the record, but still hears "Woman" on the radio. When he thinks about it now, it's not so much a particular song that hurts him, it's the day-to-day stuff: the jokes and wisecracks, the coffee and the stories. No one had a reason to remember all that at the time; those weren't supposed to be farewell sessions.

"When I looked in his eyes, I felt a tremendous depth of character and a tremendous understanding of the human condition, a tremendous amount of compassion," Newmark said. "He was totally friendly and open to everybody, including the janitor. He had time for everybody. That working class hero thing, he was trying to be real about that."

Begins fast

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Peace activist Dick Gregory began a fast to protest military action in the Persian Gulf and said he'd maintain it until all U.S. troops are returned home.

Gregory began the fast Thanksgiving morning with a prayer vigil at Plymouth Rock.

"Thanksgiving is the day that we in America set aside to be thankful for the abundance of our land," Gregory said. "It is hard to be completely thankful with war in the Persian Gulf casting a shadow across our country."

Gregory was a civil rights activist in the 1960s and marched with Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X. The one-time stand-up comic is now considered a diet guru, for a liquid diet plan he created.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "The Lonesome Caretaker," who cared for her husband who had Alzheimer's disease for 14 years. She is to be commended for her loyalty and devotion.

It is all too common for one person to bear the burden of caring for an ailing spouse, parent or loved one with little help from other family members.

We have a fairly new help group in Gadsden, Ala. We caregivers meet with other caregivers, exchanging information and finding comfort in the company of others who share the same kind of loneliness and problems. We have a gentleman in our group who has taken care of his wife for 16 years. (She suffers from Alzheimer's.)

We call our group "W.I.M.," which stands for "Women in the Middle." Anyone wanting information on how to start a W.I.M. group in his or her area should send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Women in the Middle Inc., P.O. Box 2811, Gadsden, Ala. 35903.

This group is not exclusively for women — it's a support group for the entire family. We call ourselves "women" in the middle because caregiving — the never-ending laundry, cooking, cleaning and nurturing that go along with caring for those who are unable to care for themselves — has traditionally been the role of women. Please print this, Abby, and spread the word.

CAROL J. HAMILTON,
COLLINSVILLE, ALA.

DEAR CAROL: Your letter could not have been more timely. Congress has officially designated Nov. 24-30 as National Caregivers Week.

Thank you for alerting other caregivers that there is strength as well as comfort and camaraderie in organizing.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a church pastor for many years, during which time I have officiated at hundreds of weddings and attended almost as many wedding receptions. Some of these weddings are for non-church members who suddenly need a minister to marry them. I counsel them, rehearse them, conduct the ceremony and remain for the pictures. So often, as they leave the church, they say, "By the way, Reverend, we'd love to have you and your wife come to our reception."

Abby, my wife and I agreed long ago to attend only receptions to which we had received formal invitations. I always decline such last-minute invitations graciously. I wonder why so many couples extend these verbal invitations — to a wedding reception that had been planned months in advance? If we were sincerely wanted, why were we not sent an invitation in the mail like all the other folks who were properly invited in that fashion?

ANONYMOUS PASTOR

DEAR PASTOR: I have heard from brides over the years who have said, "We'd really like to have our pastor and his wife attend our wedding reception, but we hesitate to mail them a formal invitation because it might look like we're fishing for a wedding gift."

However, having seen both sides of this sticky wicket, I am still of the opinion that the clergy person officiating at weddings should be sent formal invitations.

DEAR ABBY: I am speaking on behalf of police dispatchers who respond to 911 calls.

So many people are not clear about when to call 911. In a nutshell, they should call only when there is an immediate threat to human life or property.

Do not call because a dog is barking and you can't sleep.

Do not call if your cat is in a tree and you can't get it down.

Do not call if it is getting dark and your 11-year-old son is not home from school and there is no football practice that night.

Do not call if you notice sparks come out of your television. If you smell something burning in either the apartment above you, below you, on either side of you (but you are sure it's not in your apartment), do not call 911. Call the Fire Department.

If you are witnessing a crime — call immediately. If you wait 20 minutes to call because you were on your way home when you saw it happen, we probably won't be able to do anything except take a report. If you had called immediately, we might have been able to catch the bad guy.

Also, when you call 911, expect to answer some questions. They are important or we wouldn't ask them. Callers think all they have to do is say, "Send police," and we will rush over. Unfortunately, that is not the case. Only on TV do they get a call and send the police out in five seconds. Also, we could get a patrol car out faster if the caller would stop cussing, yelling and insulting us.

We try to be professional, courteous and fast, but the abuse we get is unbelievable.

We dispatchers work various shifts. We are open 24 hours around the clock, and somebody has to work weekends and holidays, so we all take our turns.

Nobody is a dispatcher because it pays well. It doesn't when you consider the hours and stress involved. It takes a very caring person to do the kind of work we do. Please give us a break!

Thanks, Abby, for printing this. I've seen everything from soup to nuts in your column, so this should make it. Just sign this ...

"911"

DEAR ABBY: Last year, my son and his wife — I'll call them Tim and Barbara — divorced after 12 years of a rocky marriage. They have two beautiful daughters, 12 and 8. I love these children with all my heart. It was a messy divorce and created a lot of hard feelings.

Three weeks after their last separation, Tim learned that Barbara was pregnant. He says it must be another man's child. (Barbara slept around a lot.)

Now for the shocker. I just received an invitation to a baby shower for Barbara. Can you believe it? I don't intend to acknowledge her child as my grandchild with all these doubts about whether it's my son's or not. Also, I plan to distance myself from Barbara. I'm sure she's expecting Christmas presents, too.

How would you handle this? Barbara lives 190 miles from me. GRANDMOTHER IN QUESTION

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: Regardless of how you feel about Barbara, her children will always be your grandchildren. So unless you want to write them off along with their mother, don't be so quick to distance yourself from Barbara.

If I were you, I would send a gift to the baby shower.

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy. It's all in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Supermarket pulls turkeys after cyanide threat issued

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Thousands of people returned turkeys to Tucson-area Smith's supermarkets in the wake of the scare created when a man called a television station saying he had injected some birds with deadly cyanide.

The supermarket chain had removed all turkeys from its Tucson stores and offered refunds or exchanges to customers who recently had purchased turkeys after Wednesday night's call.

Ninety to 95 percent of the customers asked for a refund on Thursday, store officials said. Some of the returned turkeys were already cooked.

Barry Holinski, meat supervisor for the chain in Tucson, said he didn't know how many birds were pulled from the shelves, how many were returned, or how much the incident will cost Smith's. But at one store alone, more than 2,000 turkeys were returned.

The withdrawal was limited to the four Tucson-area stores, a Smith's official said Thursday.

"It's sad that it happened on the Thanksgiving holiday," spokesman Ken Findley said in Phoenix.

Tucson police said Thursday that no evidence had been found that any turkeys sold by Smith's Food and Drug stores actually had been injected with the poison. Reporter-anchor Barbara Grijalva of KOLD-TV took a call Wednesday from a man who said he "had a problem with Smith's." KOLD producer Rob Daniels said.

The man said he had injected some of the turkeys on sale at Smith's with cyanide but did not say which Smith's stores were involved or when he allegedly poisoned the turkeys.

He said he injected the turkeys "to prove a point," and declined to elaborate.

All turkeys returned to Smith's will be taken to a landfill for disposal, said James Robertson of the Pima County Health Department.

King marks 15th anniversary

GUADALUPE, Spain (AP) — King Juan Carlos marked the 15th anniversary of his coronation with a visit to the Guadalupe monastery where his ancestors agreed to finance Columbus' voyage into the unknown.

It was a fitting place to commemorate the start 15 years ago Thursday of his reign, which at first appeared such an unsure proposition that the head of the Communist Party nicknamed him Juan Carlos "The Brief."

Campaign against Iraq needs Moscow's help

WASHINGTON (AP) — The off-again, on-again attitude of the Soviet Union on using force to liberate Kuwait is a problem for the Bush administration. Moscow's support is vital, and November is drawing to a close. The significance of the calendar is that the United States is president of the United Nations Security Council this month. Then it's Yemen's turn, and the very tough nut," said a State Department official who demanded anonymity. The need for Soviet support has been the case from the outset. Bush administration policy makers consider themselves fortunate that the Cold War thawed before Iraqi President Saddam Hussein decided to annex his smaller, oil-rich neighbor. The Soviets are more inclined than the United States to stress seeking a peaceful resolution of the Persian Gulf crisis. And yet, they have gone along with the Bush administration on all resolutions so far. Even at the Paris summit, when President Bush failed to get Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's concurrence on using force, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater was able to report the two leaders had "reaffirmed their unity and commitment" to have Iraq withdraw from Kuwait. Now the question is whether the Bush administration's determination to threaten Saddam with the prospect of an attack can be meshed with the Soviets' desire to give diplomacy more time to work. And the Soviets are not alone in that view. Several nations in the makeshift alliance against Iraq agree with Moscow, and so do many members of Congress. Whether Bush would actually pull the trigger and go to war over Kuwait is anyone's guess at this point. But there is no question that disagreement within the alliance on the issue would strengthen Saddam's hand. The Soviets, of course, have the power to block a resolution with a veto. While no one expects such a situation to arise, the Bush administration wants to be sure of more than cautious support from Moscow on using force. And Soviet leaders have been cautious and ambiguous. Asked in Paris on Monday if he thought "force or patience" would resolve the crisis, Gorbachev ducked. "Well, I think we all need patience," he said. ## AP analysis

Arab nation has opposed most of the resolutions aimed at Iraq since the August invasion.

Running the Security Council gives the Bush administration a tactical advantage. Once Yemen is in the chair it would be that much tougher to win adoption of a resolution to use force as a last resort to liberate Kuwait.

"There's a lot of ways to get thoroughly wrapped around the axle of the United Nations," a senior State Department official said recently about the intricacies of the world organization. "There are a whole host of other things that can come up. So it's important to try and do it during the period of our presidency of the council."

Which explains why Secretary of State James A. Baker III decided to go to Yemen this week.

But Yemen's president, Gen. Ali Abdullah Saleh, rebuffed Baker's efforts Thursday to win his country's support for a resolution authorizing the use of force. Saleh criticized the military buildup in the region and called for an Arab solution to the crisis.

"We knew it was going to be a

Choir prepares for performance

KENNEDALE, Texas (AP) — At first, some members of the Kennedale High School choir didn't think they were good enough to be invited to sing at New York's Carnegie Hall.

But now they're singing a different tune in this Fort Worth suburb.

"I didn't want to go," said Stephanie Sandhin, a ninth-grader who sings alto. "I thought our choir couldn't do it. I thought we weren't good enough. And besides, I wanted to go to the Bahamas."

Last spring, choir director Dana Seelye had arranged for the troupe to go on a tour to Florida, to audition at Disney World, then enjoy a one-day cruise to the Bahamas.

The choir thought it was a great idea. But then last summer, Seelye got an invitation for her 4-year-old choir to perform this spring at Carnegie Hall with the Manhattan Philharmonic Orchestra as part of Carnegie Hall's 100th anniversary season.

Most members are excited about the opportunity, though some are upset they won't be going someplace where they can get a tan.

The choir, mostly ninth-through 11th-graders, was invited without an audition. It was selected on the references of a choral music official at Sam Houston State University.

The Kennedale choir is one of 500 high school choirs nationwide currently in the philharmonic's "pool," from which it offers invitations to perform at Carnegie Hall, officials said.
