Extra hour

WASHINGTON — For most Americans it's nearly time to fall back into the sack and get that hour of sleep they lost when time changed last spring. That extra hour - a boon to everyone except night-shift workers - arrives at 2 a.m. Sunday as most of the nation returns to standard time.

Balloon Festival

The Third Annual Permian Basin Balloon Festival is scheduled for today and Sunday at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, 1500 Interstate 20 West. Balloons will lift off 8 a.m. today; a costume contest and trick-or-treat for children is set for 6 p.m. today; a "balloon glow" is set for about 7 p.m. today. The balloons will lift off again at 8 a.m. Sunday.

Sniper shooting

FORT BRAGG, N.C. — A sniper hiding in the woods opened fire on 1,300 Army paratroopers setting out in their sweats on a four-mile run in the dark early Friday, killing one and wounding 18. A fellow Fort Bragg soldier was arrested. Soldiers scattered for cover when the shooting started with several "pops" outside an exercise field about 6:30 a.m. Story page 8A

Economy rallies

WASHINGTON — In a stunning turnaround, the economy shrugged off its spring doldrums and surged to one its strongest quarters of the decade. The renewed growth cheered the Clinton administration, and on Wall Street, stock and bond prices rallied after a decline. But private economists predicted slower times ahead and said prospects are slim for a cut in interest rates. Story page 8B

5-foot-3 giant leads Lee to 14-7 victory

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

ODESSA — The Permian Basin throng of 19,000-plus fans gathered here Friday night for West Texas' social event of the year at Ratliff Stadium and it turned out to be high school football's rendition of Phantom of the Opera.

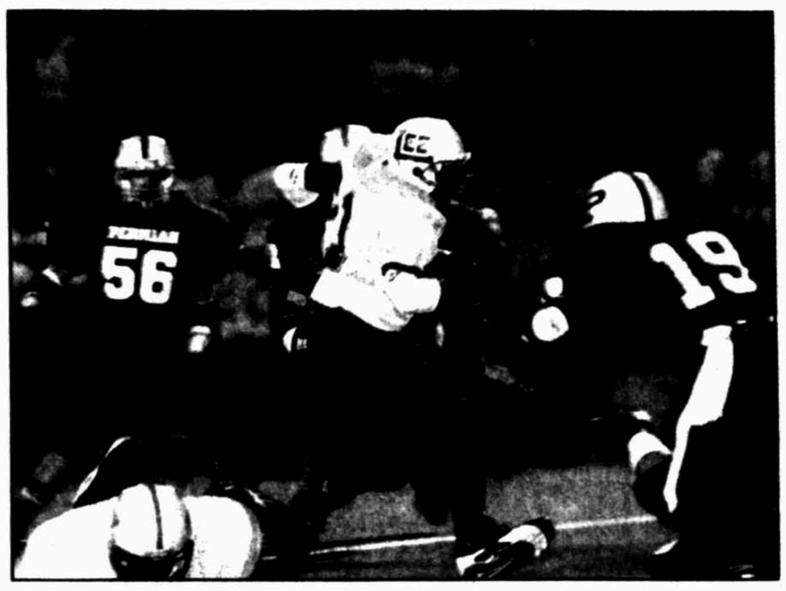

No. 9 state ranked Midland Lee pulled off a 14-7 coup over No. 2 state ranked Odessa Permian in what was probably the battle for the District 4-5A championship bell. And the hero could easily have played the role of Broadway's Phantom.

And if you are looking for a hero, look down, or you will miss him. Diminutive 5-foot-3, 119-pound, Lee junior Ricky Green caught two touchdown passes from quarterback John Thurman for the margin of victory.

And one of his catches will surely enter him into the all-time Lee-Permian Hall of Honor, which will ultimately go down as the "Phantom Catch."

On Lee's first possession, Green went into the air to nab a Thurman toss. It looked to go incomplete as the ball was tipped out of his hands by a Permian defender. However, it was ruled that he had possession, making it a touchdown. Even if Green had not been given the

Bush touts limited government

Governor: Texas can run its own environment, schools

■ Gov. Bush speaks to joint meeting of Petroleum Pioneers and Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

Gov. George W. Bush told a first-ever, joint meeting of the Petroleum Pioneers and Permian Basin Petroleum Association Friday that the outlook for Texas was very positive.

"Texas is great and getting greater," the former Midlander said.

He said life was getting better in Texas because Texans have learned the role of government. "It should be limited."

"One thing we have learned is that we don't need the federal government telling Texas how to run its environment, its schools, welfare or anything else," Bush said. "They need to let Texans worry about Texans."

Bush told the audience of almost 1,000 that the state manages to run its affairs with a part-time Legislature — something most other states can't comprehend — and that in the last 140-day session had managed to reform a large part of the state government.

"Limited government works in Texas, because Texans are decent, honest, hard-working people, who love Texas. Slowly but surely we must change the culture that says if it feels good do it, and let someone else clean up the mess," Bush said. "Every Texan must take responsibility for his body, his family and his community."

He praised Democrats in Austin for a new spirit of cooperation in passing new far-reaching legislation. "The spirit of cooperation in Austin should become a model for the rest of the country."

In the 10 months since he took office, Bush said he has never had a bad day as governor. "I have had some long days, and some hard days, but never a bad one. It is a fantastic honor to be the governor of the great state of Texas.

In addition to being "high" on Texas, the governor said he also was bullish on the state economy and particularly on natural gas. He said the economy was booming despite the fact that the state is in the ninth year of an oil and gas downturn, and the cattle business was depressed. "We have a strong diversified economy."

Petroleum Pioneers honor their oldest member

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

The 19th meeting of the Petroleum Pioneers was a trendsetter in that it marked the first meeting in which the Petroleum Museum and the Pioneers were formally associated, and the first time a Top Pioneer award was presented.

Former Midland banker Jno. P. Butler, was honored as the Top Pioneer, and at 93 years and 10 months, was the oldest pioneer present.

Butler served First National Bank of Midland for more than 50 years, and as president and chairman was responsible for much of the growth and progress of today.

"The oil business requires oceans of capital for development, and it was Jno. Butler who helped supply much of that capital," said Decker Dawson, president of the Petroleum Pioneers Association.

In accepting the award for her father, Jane McAbee said he belonged to a generation — those living in Midland in the 1930s — that understood challenge. "These people had a common quality."

"My father loved people and used things. He saw money as a tool — a thing," Ms. McAbee said. "He thought of Midland, the bank and the church in that order."

She said her father believed in the biblical concept of servanthood.

Toxicology expert testifies on Ortiz's blood-alcohol level on day of murder

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

AMARILLO — Testimony ended before lunch Friday after only one witness took the stand in the defense of Henry Lopez Ortiz, who is charged with capital murder in the death of Julianne Powell.

Five defense witnesses are scheduled to testify Monday. Despite the brief day in court Friday, 238th District Court Judge John Hyde said the case is progressing quicker than anticipated and is two witnesses ahead of schedule.

Ortiz, 42, is charged with capital murder for the Feb. 10 kidnapping, sexual assault and murder of the 10-year-old girl.

Ortiz has remained in jail without bond since his arrest. The trial was moved to Potter County because of extensive publicity. The state is seeking the death penalty in the case.

Elizabeth Todd, a toxicology expert from Southwestern Institute of Forensic Science in Dallas, testified that her staff performed a blood tests screening

Federal budget bill clause to benefit oil, gas industry, congressman says

By Melia McEwen
Staff Writer

The clause in the budget bill that allows drilling on the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, indicates that Congress trusts "oil companies to be productive in ANWR and to be good stewards of the land and that's a good sign for the industry," U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith said Friday.

Smith said that the federal budget bill, passed Thursday, will benefit the oil and gas industry.

He called passage of the bill — which he assisted in writing as a member of the Finance Committee — historic and overdue. He said it would be a "tragic mistake" if President Clinton were to veto it.

"This bill directly impacts all Americans in a positive way," Smith said at a press conference following the Permian Basin Petroleum Association luncheon at the Petroleum Club.

"We're strengthening the economy; lowering interest rates around 2 percent and creating jobs. For example, if someone has a 30-year mortgage on a $100,000 home, that 2 percent drop in interest will save $50,000 over the life of that mortgage. Anyone with a student loan, an auto loan, a mortgage, this will mean thousands in their pocket."

He denied that the budget would harm Medicare recipients by cutting their payments. He said the bill simply reduces the amount of the increase in payments.

He said he hopes the conference committee can build a comprise bill out of the House and Senate offerings that Clinton will sign.

"It is no longer a question of should we balance the budget but when to balance the budget," he said.

Another bill he is proud of is the Natural Gas Competitiveness Act of 1995, introduced by Smith and Rep. John Bryant. The bill will allow independent producers to form natural gas marketing cooperatives.

These independent cooperatives will boost competition by allowing the cooperatives to compete with the three or four dominant marketing companies, increase energy independence by promoting development of the nation's natural gas resources and reduce consumer prices, he said.

He said the bill already has 18 cosponsors and has received a great deal of support.

Smith also will be watching over his Immigration in the National Act bill, which was just voted out of the Judiciary Committee to the House floor.

This bill aims to reduce illegal immigration by 75 percent over the next five years by adding 5,000 new Border Patrol agents over five years, improve enforcement of immigration laws both on the border and internally and deny federal assistance to illegal immigrants.

He said the bill also provides for generous levels of legal immigration, promotes the unification of the nuclear family — parents and children — and increases the percentage of highly skilled legal immigrants admitted on the basis of advanced education and job skills from 18 to 28 percent.

Controlling illegal immigration, he said, will reduce the nation's crime rate. It will divert federal assistance from illegal immigrants to legal immigrants and native citizens.

All legislation, he said, supports his philosophy that "Your money is yours to keep, not the government's to take."

S. Korean spy saga ends in death

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — His cunning almost got him out through the morning fog past the cordon of troops sent to trap him.

Then a South Korean soldier spotted a figure under a tree, and the final shootout began, South Korean officials said. The North Korean spy went down Friday in a hail of bullets that ended a three-day manhunt.

The wounded North Korean had eluded more than 20,000 soldiers and police, sniffer dogs, two dozen helicopters and high-tech search equipment in what seemed like a scene from a Cold War spy novel.

The report of the spy's death came from South Korean officials and military spokesmen. Communist North Korea called the incident a fabrication.

South Korea, which engages in a steady stream of invective against its arch-enemy and widely publicizes attempts to infiltrate the country, promised to strengthen security.

It was the second deadly cross-border incident in a week. A North Korean infiltrator was shot dead near the border on Oct. 17. The North said that incident was also a fabrication.

According to the South Korean accounts, the manhunt began Tuesday, when South Korean police tried to detain two men in a taxi after a tip that they might be stealing food.

A shootout ensued that left one policeman dead, two wounded and one man, Kim Do Shik, under interrogation. The other fled up densely wooded Suksong mountain, 100 miles from the border.

Kim identified his colleague as Park Kwang Nam and claimed they had been sent two months ago to extricate a North Korean deep-cover agent after 10 years.

South Korean troops taking part nearby in military exercises with U.S. soldiers flooded to the heavily wooded area, setting up a double cordon.

At night, the troops pulled out of the 10-square-mile primary search area to use a device that detects body heat. No luck.

On Friday, with fog shrouding the mountain, the troops started to close in. Park apparently ventured out to try to escape. On a ridge 700 yards outside the first cordon, he was spotted under a tree.

Within seconds, Park was shot at least three times in the legs and head. He died several hours later after being flown to a Seoul hospital.

Police said he had on him a Belgian-made pistol with a silencer, $1,500 in U.S. bills, about $115 in South Korean currency, a fake identification card and two handfuls of raw grain.

France conducts third nuclear test

PARIS (AP) — Defiant in the face of international condemnation, France said it conducted a third underground nuclear test at its blast site in the South Pacific on Friday afternoon.

The blast took place beneath Mururoa Atoll in French Polynesia, the Defense Ministry said Friday night. It said the blast, which occurred at 1 p.m. local time, was about 60 kilotons, the equivalent of 60,000 tons of TNT.

Today to be sunny, upper 70s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high in the upper 70s and east-to-southeast winds at 5-15 mph. Tonight should be mostly clear with a low in the mid-40s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Sunday should be partly cloudy with a high near 80.

After an overnight low of 51, Friday's high reached 80, compared to the record high for that date of 90 set in 1988. The record low was 33 set in 1969.

STATE

Brisk northerly winds cleared away the clouds Friday as a cold front moved across Texas, toppling record high temperatures in several cities.

Winds of 15 to 25 miles an hour accompanied the system, which had pushed halfway across the state by afternoon.

South Texas had mostly cloudy skies and southwesterly winds of 5 to 15 mph. However, some areas did see sunshine.

Temperatures behind the front remained in the 60s and 70s but readings warmed into the 80s and 90s ahead of it. San Antonio's 91 tied a 1980 record.

Austin's 93 broke the record high of 90 set in 1931, Corpus Christi's 93 also set a daily high and Houston Intercontinental's 91 broke 1991's record of 90 degrees. The top temperature at 3 p.m. was 95 in Cotulla in South Texas.

The North Texas forecast is for sunny skies and mild temperatures today with a high of 68 to 77. Clear tonight and not as cool in the west. Lows from 39 in the southeast to 46 in the west. Sunday should be mostly sunny and warmer. Highs of 73 to 79 and lows around 50.

The forecast for South Texas is for decreasing cloudiness with highs today in the lower 80s. Lows in the 50s.

Forecasters said West Texas will have sunny days and fair nights through Sunday. Highs in the 70s and 80s with lows in the 30s and 40s.

NATION

Rain fell from from the upper Midwest to the Gulf Coast on Friday, while high winds blew from the Rockies to New England.

Gusts up to 40 mph were common, and some topped 50 mph in Nebraska, Wyoming and Colorado. They were nearly as strong in Michigan, Ohio and West Virginia.

Thunderstorms rolled through southern Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee, bringing locally heavy rain, strong wind and hail.

Little Rock, Ark., got nearly 2 inches of rain between midnight and 2 p.m. EDT, and 24-hour totals reached nearly 3 inches at Batesville and more than 2.5 inches at Hot Springs.

A traffic accident during Thursday night's storm killed a truck driver and 50 head of the cattle he was hauling near Forrest City, Ark.

Hail up to the size of golfballs fell in western and central Tennessee, with some reports of damage to homes, while 2.75-inch hail fell near Ebony, Ark.

In Birmingham, Ala., this has been the wettest October on record and more rain was likely. Thanks to Hurricane Opal, 10.96 inches of rain had fallen this month, breaking the 1934 record.

Skies were clear to partly cloudy across the western United States.

Tropical Storm Tanya formed far out in the Atlantic and spun about 575 miles southeast of Bermuda, the 19th named storm of the year. In 1933, before naming, there were 21 tropical storms or hurricanes. There were 18 named storms in 1969.

The low pressure over the central Great Lakes was expected to drive into New England, bringing more rain from the Great Lakes across the Northeast and south into the Appalachians, the southern Atlantic Coast and the Gulf Coast.

The strong winds were expected to keep blowing from the eastern slopes of the central Rockies across the Plains into the Midwest, the Great Lakes, the upper Ohio Valley and New England, possibly reaching 60 mph on occasion in lower Michigan, northern Ohio, western Pennsylvania and western New York.

The early afternoon high in the Lower 48 was 89, in Fort Myers, Fla. The low was 17, in Sun Valley, Idaho, and Burns, Ore.

TRIAL: Expert testifies on Ortiz's alcohol level

(From 1A)

for alcohol and drugs in Ortiz's blood.

She said the blood alcohol level in Ortiz's blood was 0.04 milligrams per liter of blood; the legal limit for intoxication in Texas is 0.10. She said he had no drugs in his system, but there was caffeine equal to about a cup of coffee.

Earlier testimony indicated Ortiz's blood was drawn about 9:30 p.m.

Ms. Todd said alcohol in blood is eliminated about 0.01 to 0.02 milligrams per liter of blood per hour. So, assuming no alcohol was consumed after 5:30 p.m., he would have eliminated between 0.04 and 0.08 before the blood test, indicating his blood-alcohol level was about 0.08 to 0.12 at 5:30 p.m.

She said an average person with a blood-alcohol level of 0.08 would show impairment in judgment and motor skills.

After repeated questioning from Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre, Ms. Todd said an average person with a blood-alcohol level of 0.12 would show some outward signs of intoxication, but some people will not.

Testimony of people who had contact with Ortiz following the disappearance of Julianne all indicated that he showed no signs of being intoxicated or of having drunk alcohol.

Testimony will continue Monday.

Ortiz is accused of kidnapping, sexually assaulting and killing Julianne on Feb. 10. She was last heard from by a friend at 4:15 p.m. and her mother arrived home at 4:25 p.m. to find her daughter missing. After a preliminary search by the girl's mother and friends, police were called and lead to Ortiz.

Police arrived at Ortiz's apartment about 5 p.m. and later found the girl's body around 7 p.m. in a laundry hamper in a spare room of the apartment.

Julianne and her mother, Lynn Fisher, lived upstairs from Ortiz and his wife at The Park at Caldera, formerly known as Quintens Walk, 3100 W. Caldera Blvd.

Julie Ortiz, the defendant's wife, testified earlier in the week and has been at the courthouse every day waiting in the hall. She and Ortiz have been married for 25 years. Because she is a witness in the case, she is not allowed to speak with her husband.

SPEAK: Gov. Bush praises Texas government

(From 1A)

He said it was not the job of the state to create wealth, but to create a climate in which business could create jobs and wealth. Tort reform and trucking deregulation were cited as two reforms that had helped to make Texas attractive to new business.

"I am getting more and more inquiries from companies who want to come to Texas," he said.

The governor said the natural gas business would improve again if Washington would not overtax it or over regulate it. "The worst thing to happen to the natural gas industry was Jimmy Carter's attempt to price natural gas in the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978.

"The natural gas business will get good and it will be sooner than later."

He is in favor of CNG (compressed natural gas) vehicles, but said the lack of an infrastructure is still a factor in limiting widespread use. He favors natural gas for fleets and natural gas co-ops if they are voluntary. But Bush opposes any type of forced pooling.

The governor said he is strongly behind Phil Gramm in his race for the presidency. "I think Colin Powell is a fine man. I think he would be good for the Republican Party and broaden it. I hope he runs for president, but I am still for Gramm."

Bush was the featured speaker at the event, which honored Midland oilman John L. Cox as the Permian Basin Petroleum Association's Top Hand and Jno. P. Butler as the Petroleum Pioneers' Top Pioneer.

"If there were more men like Jno. P. Butler, it would be a kinder, gentler world," Bush said.

Cox was praised by his friends for his contributions to the community, his school, Texas and the oil industry. Longtime friend Bill Kleine said that when they coined the word "independent" oilman, they had Johnny Lee Cox in mind.

Cox said that when he went to work for Stanolind in Wink, he didn't think it would take him 49 years to become Top Hand. "I thought I was the top hand then."

Cox was raised in Junction. He went to Texas A&M for one year before transferring to Rice University, where he was an All-Southwest Conference guard and engineering student.

Guests speakers discuss 3 Es: Environment, energy, education

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

The theme of the annual meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association Friday was "Back to Basics '96: The Three Es: Environment, Energy and Education."

Three guest speakers discussed those topics before an audience of oil- and gas-industry personnel at the Petroleum Club.

Ed Capen, a consultant for exploration and risk management, discussed the myth of the nation's trade deficit, much of which has been blamed on America's dependence on imported oil.

He described international trade as having four components: goods such as oil, automobiles, computers and grain; services such as travel, shipping and military contracts; income from assets abroad; capital accounts, direct investment through stocks, government securities and real estate; and grants for foreign aid.

Combining all the components on a bar graph, Capen pointed out that both the export and import sides are balanced. "This teaches us that there is no trade deficit, never has been a trade deficit and never will be a trade deficit."

Limiting one component to improve another would only cost the consumer both financially and in terms of freedom of choice.

Speaking on energy and the environment, Donald P. Hodel, former secretary of Energy and Interior, told the audience that he is upbeat about prospects for both.

He said the environment has shown marked improvement and extremist environmental regulations are being met with increasing skepticism.

"America doesn't have to choose between an adequate energy supply and an improving environment," he said.

And as the United States becomes an increasingly technological society, energy becomes even more essential, he said. He called for a grassroots effort to make government representatives aware of the need and support for a new energy policy that is sustainable and provides for a long-term domestic energy supply and economic growth without despoiling the environment.

Oil and natural gas prices, he said, are under tremendous upward pressure from growing demand and production that is not expected to match demand. And even with growing use of alternative sources such as wind and solar energy, oil and gas will continue to supply the great majority of energy, he said.

Educating future generations is the task of Jerry Katz's National Energy Educational Development project. Katz, national director, told the audience that the project he has helped develop educates schoolchildren about energy — from its forms to its sources, electrical generation to conservation.

Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram
Jno. Butler has received the Pioneer of the Year award from the Permian Basin Petroleum Association. His wife, Alva, accompanied him Friday.

At present, 33 states have NEED committees; 5,000 school districts are part of the project. Midland will be the site of a teachers' conference next July.

Petroleum official thinks regulator should be advocate

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Two regulators involved in overseeing the Permian Basin's oil and gas industry discussed the changing role of their agencies, kicking off the Permian Basin Petroleum Association's annual meeting Friday.

At the breakfast at the Petroleum Club, Bill LeMay, director of the New Mexico Oil Conservation Division, discussed the question of whether a regulator should be an advocate or an adversary of the industry he regulates.

LeMay told the audience that he believes a regulator should be an advocate of the industry, explaining that being an advocate brings more effective results than an adversarial relationship.

"Being an advocate adds to the overall results in the sense that it's one more element, one more resource in the overall effort to survive," he said. Being an effective advocate, he said, also enhances credibility when it is one government agency talking to another government agency.

"We can also be a resource to the industry and to the public by being an educator, telling industry about new technologies and compiling data for industry and the public," he said. "I don't think regulators should be a big deal — be intrusive on your operations. We're seeing regulators intruding on just about every operation there is today, but a good regulator is fair, reasonable and not a big deal."

Charles Matthews, elected to the Texas Railroad Commission last November, reminded the gathering that "I ran last year as a critic of a longtime member of the commission and of the commission itself and I couldn't agree more with Bill LeMay that the regulator needs to be an advocate."

To that point, he and the other two commissioners — Barry Williamson and Carole Keeton Rylander — began in July to restructure the commission and make it more responsive to the industries it oversees, to the public and to its employees.

In order to make better use of the agency's limited resources, a complete study of the entire organization was recently completed and its largest division — the oil and gas division — reconfigured into five areas: permitting, production, environment, regulatory and well plugging. The agency's legal staff was consolidated into one division; the agency is in the process of updating, modernizing and making its database more accessible.

The commissioners are looking to hire a chief administrative officer, and is creating a natural gas services division to better develop the state's natural gas reserves, Matthews said.

"We're going to try to do a better job of providing you with information so you can make better decisions," he said.

Speaker: Stay in game by thinking, breaking rules

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

With oil companies downsizing and outsourcing and technology changing at an ever-increasing pace, many people are wondering how to stay in the game.

The message of Robert Kriegel, luncheon speaker at Friday's annual meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association was "break the rules."

"I don't know what changes the next five years will bring, but I know they'll come faster and harder and most people will work faster and harder to try to keep up," he said. "The speed mode is a speed trap. When you work faster and harder, you don't think clearly, you don't think creatively, you burn out faster and the quality of work suffers.

"The key to winning any game is not by outworking the other guy, it's by outthinking him. Having the guts to break out of the box, challenge the old ways. Be willing to break out of your old modes, your old mindsets, redefine your role or even reinvent the game."

What he has seen happening in this country, he said, was businesses trying to play by the old rules in a new game.

The mavericks went out and broke the rules, he said, citing as examples Sam Walton and his Wal-Mart empire, Dominos Pizza and Texans Herb Kelleher and his Southwest Airlines and Jerry Jones and his Dallas Cowboys football team.

Such thinkers, he said, create change, they're proactive instead of reactive and rather than keeping up with the waves of change, they keep ahead of the wave and use it to propel themselves forward.

He advised thinking like a beginner instead of an expert. "Experts bring yesterday's rules to today's game. Beginners bring tomorrow's rules to today's game.

To thrive in the changing business environment, consider the challenges you face, talk to others, but also look outside your "box"; think outside your old mindset, he said.

"Think into the future. Imagine your business, your industry in the next three to five years in terms of the customer, current industry trends and technology. Then start taking small steps toward that future."

AWARD: Pioneers honor oldest member

(From 1A)

— the same thing, said Dingus — was the featured speaker and provided the audience with a somewhat different view of the oilpatch.

"Cross a geologist with an engineer. You get a bored geologist," Dingus said. He also provided a list of politically correct names for oilpatch occupations. For instance: tool pusher, an implement suggester; jug hand, a geophone placement technician.

It was one of the largest turnouts in the history of the Petroleum Pioneers, which is open to those employed in the Permian Basin oil industry 35 years before the current meeting.

Dawson said the Pioneers lost 12 members since its last meeting two years ago and gained 32 new members.

Thousands of Canadians flock to Montreal in crusade for unity

MONTREAL (AP) — Thousands streamed into Montreal from all over Canada on Friday to join Quebeckers rallying for national unity three days before a referendum that could propel Quebec toward secession.

Montreal's main square, the tree-lined Place du Canada, was a sea of wind-whipped flags — the red-and-white maple leaf of Canada and the blue-and-white lilies of Quebec, the country's French-speaking province.

Chants of "Non, Non, Non" — "No" to separation — echoed through the city center, and signs in French and English said "We belong together" and "My Canada includes Quebec."

Organizers put the crowd total at more than 100,000. While police had no immediate estimate, Montrealers said it was the biggest political rally they could remember.

"I don't want to look back 10 years from now and think there was something I could have done that I didn't do," said Mindi Cofman, 44, from Vancouver. "Having Quebec in Canada is part of my identity."

But Charles Olivier, a separatist hot-dog seller who was doing brisk business at the rally, said the show of affection was too little too late.

"It shows they really care for us," he said. "But it's too late. I don't know if things will be better with a "Yes" but I don't think they could be worse."

Monday's referendum will gauge the depth of longstanding cultural tensions between English- and French-speaking Canada. Though Quebec has wrung extensive autonomy and language rights from the federal government, separatists say its French culture can only flourish in an independent state.

Opponents of separation — both inside and outside Quebec — say the province's cultural aspirations can be met without the potentially costly and bitter recourse of splitting Canada.

A separatist victory would not trigger immediate independence, but the separatists say that would be the result. The separatists have offered to negotiate for up to a year on a new partnership between an independent Quebec and Canada — while reserving the right to declare independence at any time.

The latest polls show the separatists in a slight lead heading into the referendum, but the sizable number of undecided voters makes the vote impossible to call.

Organizers said 15,000 people from outside Quebec, including contingents from the far west and Maritime provinces, traveled through the night to join an estimated 100,000 Quebeckers at Friday's rally.

Federalists hoped it would swing the momentum away from the separatists and convince wavering Quebeckers that the rest of Canada cares about them.

"I'm proud of being a Quebecker, and I'm proud of being a Canadian," Prime Minister Jean Chretien told the crowd, speaking of his roots in rural Quebec and concluding his remarks in French.

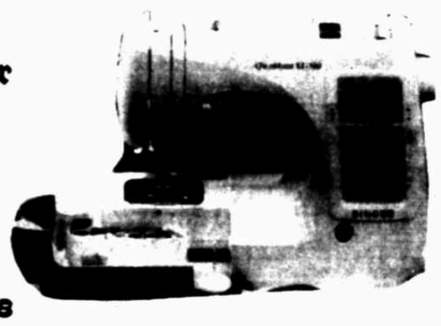

But the separatists felt Quebeckers would not be swayed by the rally, which they depicted as a cynical operation aided by discount fares offered by the national airline and railroad.

WIN: Rebels hand Permian first defeat

(From 1A)

touchdown, the Rebels still would have had two downs to work with from the Permian 10-yard line.

Green insists that he made the catch.

"I thought I had it and I had a foot inbounds," Green said. "But whether I did or not, I guess it counts. We got the touchdown."

Lee quarterback John Thurman wouldn't speculate if the pass was good for a touchdown or not.

"I never saw it," Thurman said. "I was on my back at the time."

The catch ultimately turned into the margin of victory for Lee. Permian coach Randy Mayes vehemently argued the call, but took the high road after the game.

"I'll have to review the game film to see if he (Green) made the catch or not," Mayes said. "However, whether it was a catch or not, we've got to get more production offensively than we did against Lee. Our defense was on the field a lot and they got tired, but that wasn't the defense's fault. We've got to get more than four plays in one quarter (third period)."

Green is almost Lee's invisible wingback. He can be hard to find on the football field in the land of Class 5A giants, but he caught four passes for 41 yards on the night, including the TD catches of 10 and nine yards from Thurman.

Thurman says it can be a chore locating the Phantom receiver.

"I'm really happy for Ricky," Thurman said. "It's hard to find him sometimes out there. He gets on me all the time for missing him in a game and throwing to someone else when he's open. But he got them tonight."

Green's second touchdown catch wasn't as controversial, but was just as dramatic. With Lee at the Permian nine-yard line, Green cut to the center of the field and made a huge leaping catch in the second period that took every inch of his body to haul it in.

"I didn't know if I would be open on that play," Green said, "but I saw the ball in the air and just knew I had to get it. The ball was high and I had to jump for it, but I knew I could get it. I've got some jumping ability."

Of course, Lee's victory doesn't rest just on the shoulders of Green and Thurman. Lee's defense completely stymied Permian in the second half and safety John Norman sealed the Permian fate late in the game with his seventh interception of the year.

Also, Permian marched to the Lee two-yard line, but the Lee defense played its biggest series of the year when Norman and Michael Hall kept two Permian runners out of the end zone with great tackles on second and third downs, forcing a 21-yard field goal attempt that was missed by Jeremy White.

"This was a big win for our program," said Lee coach John Parchman, who becomes a victor over old Mojo in his very first season at the Rebel helm. "Thurman, Green and the whole defense just came up with some clutch plays. I think these kids really wanted this one. It was a great game, with a great atmosphere."

Eddie Wolski, a former Lee football assistant and head track coach at Lee who is now with the Texas High School Coaches Association in Austin, returned for the game.

"Nothing changes out here, does it?" Wolski said. "It's still Lee vs. Permian, and you can always expect something special. This is a spectacle, no matter how you look at it."

And now the "Phantom Catch" will go down as part of the lore that this wacky series seems to create with each passing year.

Gunfire kills one soldier, wounds 18 at Fort Bragg

■ More national news/8B

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — A sniper in the woods overlooking a stadium fired on 1,300 Army paratroopers setting out on a four-mile run in the dark early Friday, killing a major and wounding 18 other soldiers. A fellow Fort Bragg soldier was arrested.

Soldiers in sweatpants and shirts scattered for cover when the shooting started in the 6:30 a.m. darkness. All but one of the 19 victims were from the elite 82nd Airborne Division, as was the soldier who was arrested. Another soldier was injured when he fell while running for cover.

A Special Forces trooper exercising nearby heard the shots and tackled the gunman while another soldier jumped on his back and grabbed the weapon.

"It was a fight for his life and it was a fight for our lives," said Staff Sgt. Anthony Miner, 26, of Omaha, Neb. "We did what we were trained to do."

Army investigators were questioning the suspect, Sgt. William J. Kreutzer, 26, of Company A, 4th Battalion, 325th Airborne Infantry Regiment. His hometown was listed as Washington, D.C.

Kreutzer had not been charged by Friday evening, said 18th Airborne Corps spokeswoman Sgt. 1st Class Kiki Bryant.

The dead soldier was identified as Maj. Stephen Mark Badger, 38, an intelligence officer with 82nd Airborne who was born Salt Lake City, Utah.

He wife and children live in Fayetteville, but officials did not give any further details.

Miner broke his hand getting the weapon and a bullet fired during the scuffle grazed the ankle of Staff Sgt. Robert Howes of San Antonio.

"There were four guys sitting on him trying to get his weapon," Howes said.

The shooting took place on the field at Towle Stadium, where members of the elite fighting division do their morning calisthenics. The soldiers were standing in ranks in the lighted stadium, about to leave for a run in the dark and fog.

The woods are on a rise overlooking the stadium, a bowl-shaped, fenced-in field with a few concrete bleachers.

"We were in formation down there. We were getting ready to leave. I heard shots and thought it was fireworks. Everybody took off," said Pvt. Ezra Johnson, 19, of Frazer, Mont. "I heard a lot of shots. It sounded like a semi-automatic."

Army investigators found three weapons: a 9mm pistol, a .22-caliber rifle and an AR-15 semi-automatic rifle, which is a civilian version of the M-16.

The gunman had parked a black Honda CRX on a wide path in the woods that abut the field on one side, then took up a position near the car and fired through the trees, said Capt. Marc Wiggins, spokesman for the 82nd.

Badger was dead on arrival at Womack Army Hospital. Of the 18 wounded, one was treated and released. Some of the others were in critical condition; others suffered minor wounds.

The Army withheld the wounded victims' names while their relatives were notified.

New revelation

You may get heart disease from eating too much fat — but also from eating too few antioxidant-rich foods, such as fruits and vegetables, according to a new analysis of a famous study, the "Seven Countries Study," that linked high-fat diets to heart disease in the '60s. The study found that the most heart disease deaths occurred in Finland, where animal fat intake was high, and the least in countries where saturated fat intake was low, such as Crete and Japan.

Now, Dutch researchers have gone back and found that the low intake of flavonoids, antioxidants in a variety of plant foods, was also a contributing factor in high heart disease rates. Generally, the fewer flavonoids consumed, the higher the risk of heart disease. For example, the flavonoid intake in Finland was a mere 3 to 9 milligrams a day compared with 68 milligrams in Japan.

Flavonoids are available in all fruits and vegetables, particularly onions, apples, kale, broccoli and cranberries as well as red wine and tea. The Japanese got most of the flavonoids from drinking 5 to 10 cups of tea daily.

Cancer block

Eating too much fat may make men more prone to prostate cancer, but could eating a low-fat diet help slow cancer growth in men who already have the cancer? Maybe, according to researchers at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. At least they have found that to be true in mice, according to new experiments.

Researchers injected human prostate cancer cells into mice eating a high-fat diet — 40 percent of calories from corn oil. After tumors appeared, researchers cut the fat intake among some mice. Sure enough, the low-fat diet slowed down the growth of their tumors. For example, tumors grew only half as large in the mice getting 21 percent of calories from fat as in mice on the 40-percent fat diet.

Whether cutting fat can slow tumor growth in men is unproven, but it's a good bet, say researchers.

Vitamin-health

How safe are antioxidant vitamins, such as vitamin C, vitamin E and beta carotene? "Probably safer than aspirin," which is now routinely recommended to prevent heart disease, says Harinder Garewal, assistant director of Cancer Prevention & Control at the Arizona Cancer Center. In a new review of the evidence, he finds little cause for concern about taking extra-high doses of such antioxidants, as many people do to try to ward off heart disease, cancer and premature aging.

Indeed, he calls vitamin E, vitamin C and beta carotene "virtually free from toxicity, even when used in doses several-fold higher than the RDA (recommended dietary allowance)." For example, vitamin E doses of 400 to 800 IU daily, commonly recommended for healthy people to help prevent chronic diseases and to revitalize aging immune functioning, "can be considered entirely free from adverse effects," he said. Exceptions are patients on anticoagulants, which could interact with vitamin E to increase bleeding.

As for beta carotene, there is only one report in the entire medical literature — a study in Finland — suggesting it could be detrimental — in this case to heavy smokers, says Dr. Garewal.

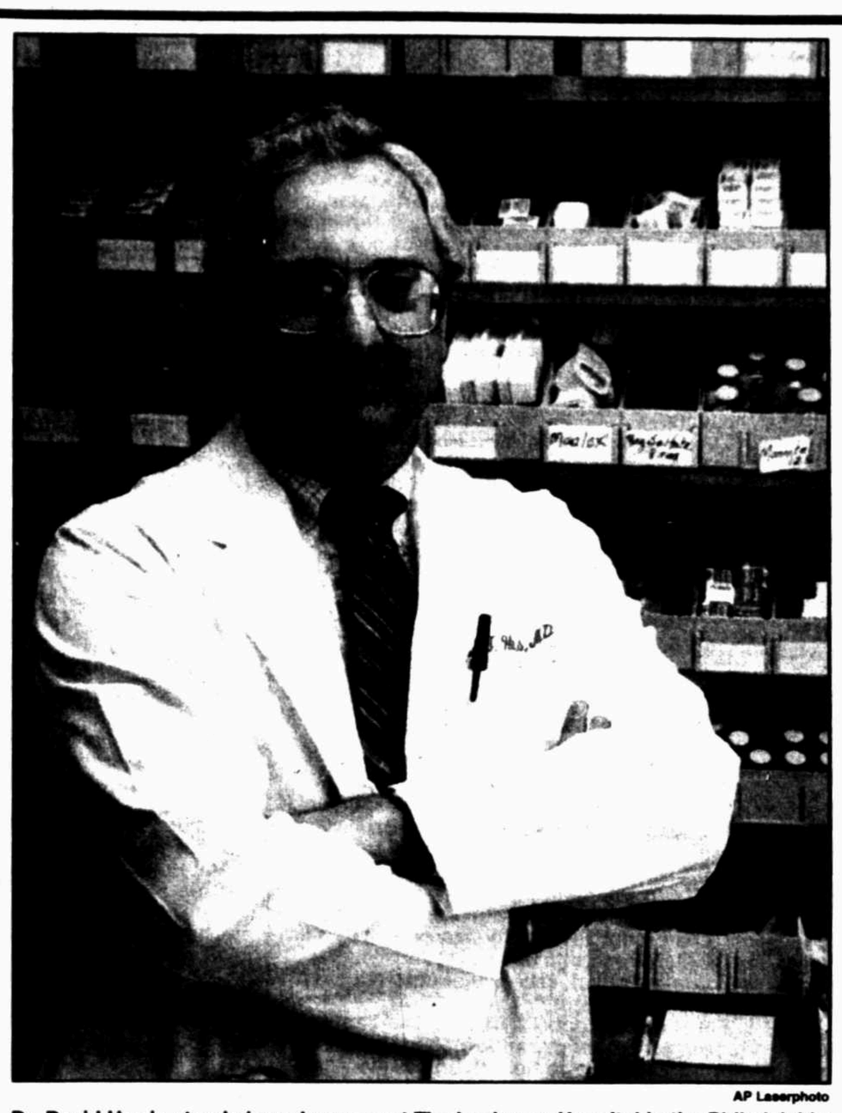

Smokers' back pain

ATLANTA (AP) — People who smoke are more likely than nonsmokers to suffer low back pain as a result of on-the-job injuries, reports a publication of the Arthritis Foundation. The publication — Arthritis Today — cited a recent study at Carolinas Medical Center in Charlotte, N.C., in which 550 people were surveyed concerning back and leg pain as well as lifestyle habits, including type of work and leisure activities.

The researchers found that 50 percent of the smokers experienced low back pain as a result of work-related injuries, whereas only 20 percent of the nonsmokers experienced such pain.

It is not known whether the difference in smokers and nonsmokers was related to attitude or physiologic factors, such as decreased blood flow caused by nicotine, according to the report.

Clinical trial launched for prostate cancer vaccine

By Wayne Woolley

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Minnesota businessman has become the first test subject for a vaccine developed to fight prostate cancer in very ill patients by using a man-made form of the substance produced by its tumors.

The vaccine contains a genetically engineered form of prostate-specific antigen, or PSA, which is naturally found at high levels in the blood of patients suffering from prostate cancer, said Dr. David Harris, an oncologist at Lankenau Hospital in suburban Philadelphia and the study's principal researcher. "This study is the first step toward discovering if a prostate cancer vaccine will boost the body's immune system to produce its own defenses against prostate tumors," he said.

Another prostate cancer vaccine has been developed by a research team at Johns Hopkins Medical School in Baltimore, but that vaccine is composed largely of extracts of tumors removed from patients.

Researchers are also currently testing vaccines on patients already suffering from a variety of other cancers, including melanoma, the deadly form of skin cancer, and kidney cancer.

All of these relatively new vaccines differ from most others because they are intended for use after a sickness has occurred, rather than to prevent the sickness from occurring.

Prostate cancer kills more than 40,000 American men annually and is second only to lung cancer as a cancer killer of men in the United States. There is no effective therapy once the tumor has spread beyond the prostate gland.

The study at Lankenau is expected to take three to six months and will include five men who are in the advanced stages of the disease and whose bodies are no longer responding to more traditional prostate cancer treatments, Harris said.

The first subject, Arnold Weiss, the founder of a suburban Minneapolis company that manufactures machines designed to test truck tires, said he was diagnosed with the cancer in 1989 and is participating because he has run out of other treatment options. "There's a lot of reasons to keep living," said Weiss, 63, who has two grown children and two teenage daughters. "Plus there's really a sense of being part of something that's bigger than myself."

Researchers hope the vaccine will spur the body's natural immune systems to develop antibodies that will seek out and destroy cancer cells.

The strength of the vaccine, Harris said, is the fact that it is based on PSA, which is recognized by the body as being manufactured by the prostate cancer tumors. The mere presence of high levels of PSA in the bloodstream should, in theory, alert the immune system to the presence of the tumor and give it a blueprint to build antibodies to fight it, Harris said. But prostate cancer patient's immune systems often fail to recognize high levels of PSA as being a threat. That's why the PSA in the vaccine is accompanied by two fatty substances, liposomes, and monphosphoral lipid A, or MLA, which have been shown in other systems to enhance immune reactions, Harris said.

The vaccine should work because the fats should tell the immune system that something is wrong and the PSA should instruct the immune system exactly what kinds of antigens are needed to fight the disease. Because no other tumors produce PSA, there is no chance that the body's immune system will produce an immunological reaction that will attack healthy cells, said Dr. Lynn Spitler, a San Francisco physician and the founder of the company that developed the vaccine.

Spitler founded Jenner Technologies in 1992 and said the company has spent $600,000 so far to develop the vaccine for the first clinical trial. Spitler said that if the bodies of the first five subjects show signs that the vaccine is helping them fight the disease, the company will fund an expanded test of the vaccine.

If the vaccine works, Spitler said that the company would be required by the federal Food and Drug Administration to conduct tests on a sample of at least 200 people before approving it for sale.

Dr. Craig Hall, a urology professor at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas who is involved in a separate study that aims to prevent prostate cancer, said the use of vaccines to treat cancers presents researchers with many challenges. He was unfamiliar with the Lankenau study.

"There are a lot of issues," Hall said. "There's just a lot of things to work out and a lot of mountains to climb and we're all still kind of at the bottom of the mountain."

Use common sense as part of diet plan

By Kristin Eddy
N.Y. Times News Service

There it goes again: The gong of doom issued from medical researchers over the latest findings on weight control.

Several weeks ago, it was a Harvard University study that said federal height and weight guidelines are 20 to 30 pounds over ideal weight limits, leading to increased risk of disease and death for overweight women. The news was soon followed by a report from Cornell University — based on 19 separate studies of weight and health — that said those risks were exaggerated. In fact, slightly underweight women face as great a risk as obese women of dying, the latter study concluded.

And recently, researchers reported at the annual meeting of the North American Association for the Study of Obesity in Baton Rouge, La., that being overweight posed little risk for men and women ages 70 and older. But being underweight raised the risk of earlier death, and the thinner the person, the higher the risk.

For many people, the information becomes less like medical updates and more like watching the rise and fall of hemlines. It's no wonder that a recent American Dietetic Association survey on nutrition trends found that 69 percent of the 807 consumers polled said conflicting studies and advice made nutrition information too confusing to follow.

"What is so confusing to people is the fact that new findings come out on a fairly regular basis," says Nancy Schwartz, director of the National Center for Nutrition and Dietetics at the ADA in Chicago. "But those findings are not something to be put into effect the day after reading them; it's not a directive to the public."

"This is what I regard as an unfolding drama which may have a conclusion somewhere down the road," says Jeanne Goldberg, director of the nutrition department at Tufts University near Boston. "Everyone wants a magic number or answer, but you as an individual are different than a pool of 100,000 women, who have different bodies and disease experience. If you are looking for an answer in one study, you're looking in the wrong place."

What the individual studies do, explains Schwartz, is contribute to ongoing research in health issues.

To Schwartz, the irony lies in the fact that health and nutrition studies surface all the time, but the conventional wisdom rarely changes.

"Most people need to exercise and eat more fruits and vegetables and grains," she says. "These are not changes. It's the same message that most people grew up with — their mothers saying 'eat your vegetables.' Common sense still prevails."

That means a comfortable weight for your figure can be determined by factoring in age, body frame, body shape, muscle tone, exercise, diet and other lifestyle factors. And family medical history — which would indicate, for instance, a common thread of hypertension, adult-onset diabetes, cancer or cardiovascular disease — should be the guideline for evaluating health, not weight charts.

Among the bottom-line recommendations:

- Diet: The United States Department of Agriculture suggests eating five servings of fruit and vegetables a day. The servings can come from unsweetened fruit juices, fresh or frozen vegetables, or prepared without added fat by baking, boiling, broiling, steaming, grilling or serving raw.
- Exercise: The experts agree that some degree of exercise is essential to health. A target goal is 30 minutes of activity three times a week, whether it comes from strenuous activities such as tennis and running, or less-demanding ones such as walking and gardening.
- Consultation: It's always a good idea to let the doctor weigh in on how many pounds you need to lose and the best way to do it.

Goldberg feels that many people are more worried about conforming to a uniform standard, rather than avoiding health risks down the road.

The information "relates to people when they are sick; they don't relate to it when they are well," she says. "If there is a strong family history (of weight-related disease), it becomes more salient. But epidemiological studies show a relationship, not cause and effect. We are talking about increased risk, not absolute predictability."

A greater problem, in Schwartz's estimation, is consumer panic over every health report.

Emotions linked to compulsive eating addiction

By Kristin Eddy
N.Y. Times News Service

It doesn't work with smokers, alcoholics or drug addicts. So why should well-meaning advice like: "Stop doing this to yourself, it's not healthy," work with compulsive eaters? It won't, for many of the same reasons other addicts hang on to self-destructive behavior, experts say. Like any bad habit, the problem doesn't have a whole lot to do with a sense of right and wrong.

To someone who finds emotional relief in binge eating, assuring him he'll look better if he loses weight has about the same effect as telling a smoker he smells like an ashtray.

That may make sense intellectually, but a critical facet of compulsive eating is emotional, says Dina Zeckhausen, a Marietta, Ga., clinical psychologist specializing in women's issues and eating disorders.

"A lot of overweight women are very good at sensing other people's feelings — they go into nursing or social work, for instance — but they are very poor at being able to sense and label their own feelings," she says. Emotional highs and lows become an "internal storm," in which the person doesn't focus on whether they are feeling happy, sad, angry or bored, but instead uses that feeling as a cue to eat, says Zeckhausen.

A part of therapy is to try to make the patients conscious while they're eating. "People who don't struggle with their weight eat something fattening and say, 'That was good, but I don't need to keep eating anymore.' An overweight woman says, 'Well, I've blown it,' and keeps eating until she can't eat anymore."

Zeckhausen has found that many overweight people avoid the issue to the point of not looking in the mirror; when the realization hits that clothes are too small, the challenge of losing enough weight to return to normal seems too overwhelming to accomplish. The cycle continues by the withdrawing from other pleasurable activities. "They stop dancing, traveling and going out with friends, and then their self-esteem drops," says Zeckhausen.

Experiences with sexual abuse or harassment cause some women to put on weight in a subliminal attempt to be unattractive, says Zeckhausen. One aspect of treating compulsive eating is learning to "say 'no' verbally. They don't have to say 'no' with a big body."

Zeckhausen points out that many people have a biological predisposition to be overweight. Others have normal-weight family members, but perhaps a parent is an alcoholic or suffers from another addictive problem that, in the child, translates into obsessive-compulsive eating. Antidepressants or other medical treatments are one aspect of treatment.

From the rest of the population, Zeckhausen asks for compassion for compulsive eaters. "The humiliation, discrimination and rejection that obese people feel is very real. My hope is that people without weight problems will become more aware of the complexities of the issue."

Scientific research efforts focus on power of prayer

By Carolyn Poirot
N.Y. Times News Service

At first thought, it seems sacrilegious to submit prayer to scientific scrutiny — to test the power of prayer in a medical laboratory.

There's something almost irreverent about setting up double-blind studies to determine whether prayer is safe and effective in treating illnesses.

It's probably impossible anyway — how do you control for all the free-floating, nonspecific prayer out there?

All of us pray in some form or another — perhaps by dancing and singing and shouting "amen" and "hallelujah;" perhaps by thinking in total silence — or by breathing.

When our backs are up against the wall, and especially when we are seriously ill, we pray — or our families or friends or nurses or somebody prays for us. My mother belongs to intercessory prayer groups and prayer circles that ask God's help for total strangers — anyone suffering from any physical, mental or emotional turmoil you can name. There must be thousands of such prayer groups out there, appealing to God or Buddha or some other higher power for help.

When it comes to scientifically proving or disproving the power of prayer therapy, the control group — those receiving a placebo or no prayer — can be a real problem, admitted Dr. Larry Dossey, author of a book on The New York Times bestseller list, "Healing Words: The Power of Prayer and the Practice of Medicine" (HarperCollins, $12 paperback).

He calls it "the problem of extraneous prayer" and admits it is probably impossible to establish a true control group.

"Perhaps it's morally reprehensible even to try," he noted at the recent Western Symposium on Alternative Medicine, sponsored by the National Institutes of Health in conjunction with a meeting of the International Spa and Fitness Association in Dallas.

It may be metaphysical malpractice to prevent prayer — because prayer works, Dossey said. To objectively prove it, some laboratory studies have involved praying for yeast cultures or bacteria or other lower forms of life. Even they are stronger and healthier with prayer, he noted in his Dallas talk.

For his book, Dossey reviewed 131 scientific studies of prayer, and more than two-thirds of them found that prayer — all kinds of prayer — works, and that how well it works does not depend on any particular religion or belief system.

The only problem arises when those who pray correlate spiritual and physical health too closely, and so experience a sense of psychological failure and inner guilt when they get sick.

We all know some very healthy reprobates as well as some unhealthy saints and mystics, Dossey pointed out. He related the case of a woman who "almost died of a ruptured appendix and near-terminal case of New Age guilt" before she finally got to an emergency room. She mistakenly believed that she just wasn't praying hard enough.

"It's not a sign of ethical and moral compromise to take a pill," assured Dossey.

Experts say dance worries away

By Jane E. Brody
N.Y. Times News Service

You can dance your troubles away, and you do not have to learn the cha-cha, waltz or watusi to do it.

Any old steps — or no steps at all — will do, say the practitioners of dance/movement therapy, who use a combination of structured and unstructured movements to help people express their innermost feelings and conflicts without having to use words.

In dance/movement therapy the structure is mainly provided by the patient's feelings, not by the therapist or from a preset pattern of movements.

Through the years a number of psychotherapeutic techniques, including music therapy, art therapy and psychodrama, have arisen as alternatives or adjuncts to traditional talk therapy.

Dance/movement therapy, which emerged from modern dance in the 1940s, is perhaps the most versatile and diverse in its application. It can be used with small children who are unable to express their feelings verbally, with adults who have lost touch with their feelings or buried their most painful memories, and with the elderly who may be too lonely, depressed or confused to talk.

It is being used increasingly in nursing homes, psychiatric hospitals and schools for children with special needs, as well as in private psychotherapy practices.

This year, the more than 1,100 members of the American Dance Therapy Association are celebrating the organization's 30th anniversary. And at an annual conference recently in Rye Brook, N.Y., they met to discuss the ever-widening uses of their approach to communication and expression.

JUST AS TALK psychotherapists vary widely in their techniques, dance/movement therapy is a diverse field, with each practitioner providing an individualized approach. Often the techniques of dance/movement therapy are combined with other psychotherapeutic methods, including art and music therapy as well as talk therapy.

The dance therapist's role typically varies with the needs of patients. As Dr. Fran J. Levy, a Brooklyn psychotherapist who uses movement, explains in her forthcoming professional book, "Dance and Other Expressive Art Therapies: When Words Are Not Enough" (edited by Judith Pines Fired and Fern Leventhal and published by Routledge, $18.95):

"Many move with their patients in supportive and mirroring roles while others act essentially as empathetic observers. Occasionally, some therapists do their own dances to reflect what they perceive, or to help the group feel more comfortable with movement."

Dance/movement therapy has helped those afflicted with a wide range of problems: physical and mental limitations, speech and learning disabilities, a history of sexual abuse, autism, family discord and personal psychological problems associated with feelings or acts that may be difficult to describe in words.

For example, children and even many adults who have been sexually abused are often unable to articulate exactly what they feel or to describe in words the painful things that happened to them.

"But," Dr. Levy explained, "if you give them room to move, their story can unfold through movement. The trauma is in their bodies, and movement helps them release or express it."

THROUGH MOVEMENT, patients are better able to bring feelings to the fore and move on from there. Once feelings are identified and expressed, patients can often discuss them more freely, strip away the barriers they had created and move forward in their lives in a healthier fashion.

Bonnie Bernstein, a dance therapist from Palo Alto, Calif., tells of a patient named Dana who was tormented by the idea that she could somehow have prevented being raped. The therapist encouraged her to dance an enactment of the rape and to include various actions she imagined she could have taken.

As she danced, the patient discovered that if she had tried to fight back, the rapist's knife might have injured her more seriously. She then realized that her intuitive actions had actually helped her to survive. The new insight enabled her to make peace with herself.

For other survivors of sexual trauma, who may suffer scars of self-loathing and sexual inhibition, dance/movement therapy can help them first recognize and then change the way they use, abuse or inhibit their bodies and enable them to lead a more fulfilling life.

In her previous book, "Dance Movement Therapy: A Healing Art" (American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, $29.95), Levy describes how effective the technique was for a 56-year-old man named Richard who had become seriously withdrawn after suddenly becoming blind.

In his first group dance therapy session, he walked hesitantly, bent over with arms outstretched and feet spread apart. But by the sixth session three weeks later, he began to be more comfortable navigating indoors and out.

As his mobility increased, so did his ability to express his feelings through movement until, after 25 therapeutic sessions, he could "stomp out" his old closeted and resentment-filled life and move forward, entering a school for the blind, making new friends, learning how to maneuver around the city and finally marrying and working.

DANCE/MOVEMENT therapy is often conducted in groups, where the support and encouragement of other group members can make it easier to release troubling emotions.

Or, in individual sessions, a trained dance/movement therapist may participate or simply observe as a patient portrays through movement how she felt, say, about how her mother treated her or when her father stole into her bedroom at night.

To a trained therapist, patients' movements are often highly revealing. A fist thrust out in anger, an arm reaching for aid, the stomping of a foot, even the tilt of a head can provide vital clues to a patient's innermost feelings and thoughts.

The underlying premise of dance/movement therapy is, as Dr. Levy describes it, "that body movement reflects inner emotional states and that changes in movement behavior can lead to changes in the psyche, thus promoting health and growth."

Dance/movement therapy has proved especially helpful for the elderly, whose outlets for relieving tension and loneliness are often limited.

It is usually practiced in a group setting, where participants can benefit from touching and being touched. The physical contact alone can help to relieve feelings of loneliness and isolation and can provide much needed sensory stimulation.

SOME THERAPISTS also stress movements that can induce relaxation and improve muscle tone, flexibility and range of motion.

Dr. Susan L. Sandel and Amy Hollander, dance/movement therapists who have worked with the elderly in Connecticut nursing homes and centers for the elderly, have found that it helps them cope with feelings of loss, counters social withdrawal, encourages creativity and fosters self-esteem.

For adolescents, Diane Duggan, a dance/movement therapist in New York, uses structured dance to help them resolve their conflicting drives, like sexuality and aggression or the need to distinguish oneself as an individual and yet not leave the group.

Dry eye syndrome may be more than discomfort

By Dr. Bruce Solitar
Associated Press

For a few people, dry eyes may be more than uncomfortable. They may be symptoms of Sjogren's syndrome, an autoimmune disease which often also causes arthritis.

Sjogren's syndrome most commonly occurs in women over 40. The condition can cause dryness in the eyes, mouth, and vagina. It can also cause joint inflammation.

Sjogren's syndrome arises when lymphocytes, blood cells that fight infection, invade the lacrimal glands near the eyes. This infiltration reduces tear production, thus causing dry eyes.

Dry mouth, which generally occurs when lymphocytes invade the salivary glands, often accompanies the dry eyes of Sjogren's syndrome.

In a patient with dry eyes, diagnosis of decreased tear production is made by a slit lamp examination by an ophthalmologist and by a Schirmer test. This procedure measures the amount of tears absorbed by a piece of filter paper placed into the eye below the lower lid.

The diagnosis of Sjogren's syndrome is definitively made by the biopsy of a small salivary gland under the lip which is then examined for lymphocyte infiltration into the gland. Doctors may also test the patient for specific autoantibodies that are seen in the syndrome.

Sjogren's syndrome can be divided into two categories. When it occurs alone it is called primary. Sjogren's syndrome may also be a feature of other rheumatic diseases in which case it is designated as secondary. For example, about 5 percent of rheumatoid arthritis patients also have significant signs of Sjogren's syndrome.

The first step in treatment of the disease is a medical evaluation of the extent to which it affects the patient. Dry eyes, dry mouth and vaginal dryness can be treated using such preparations as artificial tears or saliva, mouth coat sprays and vaginal lubricants.

For those whose disease presents arthritis, the drug hydroxychloroquine may be of help. This medication is usually given to control mild to moderate symptoms of arthritis. Methotrexate, another drug used to treat arthritis may be necessary to treat more severe arthritis.

Corticosteroids may be required for treatment of severe cases such as when the lung or brain is involved.

Patients with Sjogren's syndrome tend to be more prone to lymphoma, a form of cancer affecting the lymph nodes, because their lymphocytes are continually being activated. As such, careful monitoring by a physician is generally required particularly with regard to development of swollen glands or changes in blood counts.

Dr. Bruce Solitar is an Instructor in the Department of Medicine at New York University School of Medicine.

Walking found to be good way to lower blood pressure

Hearst News Service

One of the best ways to lower high blood pressure may be to walk it off.

If you have high blood pressure, Michael Segell wrote in an article in a recent issue of Sports Afield, you are at greater risk of having a stroke, kidney failure or heart attack.

About 20 percent of all adults have high blood pressure, which occurs when blood presses on artery walls with too much force. The harder it is for blood to flow through vessels, the higher the pressure reading will be.

Of the approximately 50 million Americans who have the disease, only about half are diagnosed and treated.

The other half are walking around with a time bomb ticking inside them that could blow an arterial or cerebral gasket.

While obesity is a major contributor, in about 90 percent of cases there is no known cause.

Many hypertensives control the disease with medications, which often have a dulling effect on energy levels and other drives.

For about a third of hypertensives, a reduced intake of salt keeps blood pressure down.

For others, losing weight, reducing alcohol consumption, quitting smoking and taking calcium, potassium and magnesium supplements also alleviate the condition.

A big question in hypertension research concerns the effects of exercise.

Since exercise is necessary to losing weight, and losing weight is necessary to lowering blood pressure, then exercise must have a positive effect on the disorder.

More than 40 studies on humans and animals have clearly demonstrated that exercise affects blood pressure in some way. Some studies indicate it is beneficial — others show it is not.

Doing leg presses with a lot of weight, for instance, will actually raise blood pressure in people with normal levels.

Epidemiological studies show that very fit people, like long-distance runners, with high blood pressure have a higher mortality rate than hypertensives who are moderately fit.

Training at 80 percent to 90 percent of the maximum heart rate also has been shown to fail to lower blood pressure.

Researchers at the University of California at Davis, recently tried to determine just how much exercise is beneficial.

A group of volunteers was carefully monitored as they exercised on stationary bicycles.

As the subjects began, their pressures dropped, usually when they worked at 50 percent to 65 percent of their maximum heart rates.

When they passed into a zone of more intense activity, their blood pressures rose and stayed at that level after they stopped.

The investigators closely monitored a group of volunteers who followed a month's-long regimen of moderate-intensity walking.

They found the depression in blood pressure could be sustained if the volunteers stayed within the exercise zone of 50 percent to 65 percent of maximum heart rate.

Also most of the subjects in the study lowered their at-rest blood pressure by 5mm of mercury in diastolic pressure, and several had reductions of more than 10mm.

The researchers found that participants who worked out on a steeply inclined treadmill or Stairmaster received none of the blood-pressure-lowering benefits of moderate exercise, primarily because the static, or nonaerobic, aspect of the activity canceled out the benefits.

The researchers are now hoping to learn what effects moderate-intensity exercise will have on hypertensives who are taking medicine for the condition.

As study results are replicated elsewhere, researchers expect exercise to be prescribed in precisely dosed amounts for the disease.

For people with mild hypertension, the benefits of exercise could eliminate the need for medication.

Researchers find that exercise, spirituality are interconnected

By Ira Dreyfuss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exercise and spirituality go hand in hand, and running can be a path toward a religious experience, according to researchers who have studied the connection.

"A biological mechanism is at work," said William C. Bushell, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology research scientist specializing in medicine and anthropology.

"Whatever creator made the body had this in mind. It comes out in physiological science like a clear blueprint."

Exercise-induced mental and physiological changes, including the flood of body-made opiates that induces what's called the "runner's high," can create a change in consciousness, the researchers say.

"In that state, one feels a kind of expansiveness," said Thomas P. Kasulis, a professor at Ohio State University.

"This guy who is running, he feels more integrated with his surroundings."

The body is undergoing changes that the mind can interpret spiritually, said Lawrence E. Sullivan, director of Harvard University's Center for the Study of World Religions.

For instance, in some tribal cultures, physical ordeals produce visions, which spiritual leaders then place in the tribe's religious context, he said.

The use of exercise to feel a blurring of the border between the self and that which is beyond the self is common in Eastern practices such as yoga, said Kasulis, who studies the relationship between physical activity and meditation.

Yogis would understand this feeling of unity as the true state of existence, and think of the separation of the self from the rest of the world as an illusion, he said.

Exercise as a spiritual discipline is less common in the West, which has lost much of the context for it, Sullivan and Kasulis believe. Mainstream Christianity considers the soul, the spiritual self, to be essentially distinct from the body, Kasulis said.

As a result, Americans are likely to understand their exercise-altered mental states as simply a good feeling, a pleasant escape from the troubles of ordinary life and the strain of exertion, Kasulis said.

However, physical activity as a form of devotion continues in some Eastern Orthodox practices, such as repeated prostration, Bushell said.

And it can be inculcated in such common Western exercises as aerobics, by concentrating on breathing, Kasulis said.

He likened this to the breathing techniques of Eastern religion: "You are conscious of air filling you. Where does my breath begin and end? There is a continuity between the air inside you and outside you."

A focus on spirituality can then become a driving force that makes a person more healthy, said Dr. Kenneth H. Cooper, whose 1968 book, "Aerobics," helped to start the fitness movement. Cooper's latest book, "It's Better to Believe," says that an active life should be a natural outgrowth of faith.

Studies have found that very religious people have fewer health problems, said Cooper, a researcher who founded the Cooper Institute of Aerobics Research in Dallas.

And although this is likely due to fewer bad health habits such as smoking and drinking, part of it is likely to be due to stress control, and exercise is an excellent tool against stress, he said.

Religious beliefs can encourage a person to exercise, said Cooper, a Southern Baptist who believes people should exercise regularly partly because "our body is a temple."

Cooper hopes that people would in effect convert to physical activity, "if we could combine strong religious beliefs and use those to enhance fitness."

Although Cooper starts his day with 15 minutes of prayer and meditation, he said he sometimes also finds himself praying while exercising, "Lord, thank you for this day."

And if people would let exercise lead them to religion, they'd be better off, Cooper said: "Physical fitness is all right, but spiritual fitness is what you need, because that prepares uou for the next life."

OCEANSIDE, Ore. (AP) — The candlefish, a member of the smelt family, has a very oily body. If dried and supplied with a wick it can be used as a candle. This discovery was made originally by a local Indian tribe, who used the pith of a rush as a wick.

Overeating still problem, even on low-fat diets

By Paul Raeburn

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Americans who eat a low-fat diet often don't lose weight because they eat too many carbohydrates out of ignorance about the relative importance of fat and calories, researchers say.

"When offered high-fat diets, people tend to consume more calories than when offered low-fat diets," said James Hill of the University of Colorado in Denver. But that does not mean that people on a low-fat diet can eat as much as they want and still lose weight.

"I would argue we're not going to treat obesity by reducing dietary fat alone," Hill said. A lot of people remain overweight because "they took our advice and ate a low-fat diet, but they're eating too much of it."

"People are putting forth simplistic messages," said Barbara Rolls, a nutrition professor at Pennsylvania State University. "Is it calories? Is it fat? It's both."

Researchers also say nutrition labels on food might actually be worsening Americans' diets as people who make low-fat choices some of the time overcompensate by eating too much food at other times. "There's no question people are doing that," said Richard Mattes, a nutrition professor at Purdue University.

Low-fat foods are presumed to be potentially beneficial for people trying to lose weight and cut the risk of disease. However, researchers have not adequately studied the implications of providing nutrition information, Mattes said.

He studied 17 men and women who were given a fixed meal at lunch, then asked to keep a record of what they ate the rest of the day. When they were told the lunch was a low-fat meal, they increased their consumption during the rest of the day. When told it was a normal lunch, they ate less during the rest of the day, though the content of the lunch didn't change.

The point of the studies is that the amount people eat is determined partly by their knowledge of their food, not simply by the body's regulation of hunger and satiety.

Researchers do not know, however, whether people would continue to overcompensate for low-fat meals over the long term, Rolls said.

Big Spring State Park to host day of Halloween fun

By Patricia Wade
Reporter-Telegram Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Forget the spooks, ghosts and goblins characteristic of most Halloween events. This year's Spooky Saturday at Big Spring State Park will provide fun for the whole family without the frightening side effects.

An a-MAZE-ing pumpkin hunt, beginning at 2:15 p.m., will kick off the day's activities. More than 100 pumpkins will be hidden throughout the hay-bale maze for children 12 and under to find. Prizes will be the pumpkin of the winners' choice.

Thirty-minute storytelling sessions are set for 2:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. at the park's pavilion. Angie Way, curator of the Heritage Museum and designated storyteller for the day, said the "spooky" stories will be "funny, mildly scary, and some will be haunting folk tales of the West Texas area." The stories are not intended to be scary, especially for the younger children.

"She has really toned the stories down, because they should be fun, not scary," Ron Alton, park manager, said.

Alton will lead cowboy-style hayrides, showing off the park's historical and geological features, at 3 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

The family-oriented festivities will end at sunset.

There will be no concession booths or food provided, so visitors are welcome to bring a picnic lunch.

Cost for the entire day is the standard park admission fee of $3 a car.

Sponsors for "Spooky Saturday" are Big Spring State Park, Heritage Museum, HEB, Ezell-Key Feeds and the Texas RV Park in Big Spring.

"The name of the event is 'Spooky' Saturday, but we are not concentrating on the spooks. We want people to fellowship and have a good time," Alton said.

Jeff Lightfoot/Reporter-Telegram

Angie Way and Ron Alton prepare for today's "Spooky Saturday" activities in Big Spring.

Saldivar faces isolation, heavy security, fear

HOUSTON (AP) — A fearful Yolanda Saldivar, who has received death threats and a life sentence for murdering Tejano queen Selena, can look forward to an isolated and grim future in prison.

"She'll be placed in administrative segregation because of her notoriety," Texas Department of Criminal Justice spokesman Larry Fitzgerald said.

That means the 35-year-old former Selena fan club president, who won't be eligible for parole until 2025, will have little if any contact with other inmates and will be kept alone in a small cell.

"There'll be guards everywhere," Fitzgerald said.

Although it may be as long as two weeks before she is assigned permanently to a prison, it's virtually certain she will be imprisoned in Gatesville, 35 miles west of Waco, at one of two Texas prisons with administrative segregation sections for women.

She'll have no radio, no television and meals will be served to her in her cell on a tray. She will recreate outside alone under close supervision.

The isolation is necessary for Ms. Saldivar's own safety.

"She's scared to death she will be harmed where she goes," Ms. Saldivar's attorney, Douglas Tinker, said in the aftermath of Thursday's verdict on punishment.

"She should be," Fitzgerald noted.

Since her arrest for the March 31 shooting of the popular 23-year-old Grammy winner, and particularly during her three-week trial in Houston, Ms. Saldivar became the object of death threats. One of the most vocal Saldivar-haters apparently is the Mexican Mafia, a prison gang, which had promised revenge for the death of Selena regardless of the trial's outcome.

"It's my view that every effort will be made to protect her," Tinker said. "What worries me is as time goes by, my expectation will be a relaxing of the security and things can happen.

"I hope that's not true, but as I understand it, there are dangerous people in the penitentiary."

Melissa Santos, a fan among the celebrants outside the courthouse as Ms. Saldivar was sentenced, said: "She'll suffer within those years.

"It won't bring Selena back, but it's some satisfaction," she said.

Harris County authorities said Ms. Saldivar, who had no previous criminal record, would be handed over to state corrections authorities and wind up at a reception center for inmates in Gatesville.

There she will undergo a strip search, don a white hospital gown and go to a cellblock for a preliminary examination.

She'll have a photo made and identification card processed, take a shower and be assigned to a single, temporary cell.

Fitzgerald said the former nurse, who rose from Selena groupie to manager of her boutiques, should be in her cell at Mountain View or Gatesville within 10 days.

Police link burglaries

From Staff Reports

Midland police officers on Friday linked an earlier burglary at Margo's to one of the juveniles arrested in the Beall's Department Store burglary Wednesday that resulted in the death of Marco Antonio Sanchez.

Detectives found more than $1,500 in stolen clothing at the apartment of a 16-year-old suspect.

Sanchez was shot to death Wednesday by Midland police Cpl. Jim White after Sanchez attacked the officer with a crowbar.

Why Replace Your Air Conditioner Now When Summer Is Over?
Dear homeowner, who needs a quality air conditioner...and wants as little as possible for it?
Is you air conditioner more than twelve years old? Is your air conditioner in need of repairs or on it's last leg? Are the recent increases in your utility bills eating you alive? If you answered YES to any of these questions, this may be the most important money saving news you'll get in 1995.
It's true, I'm creating a program in the Permian Basin Area you can't afford to pass up.
YOU SAVE 3 WAYS...
What if you could own a new air conditioner which would (1) provide you with trouble-free comfort for years to come, (2) lower your utility bills at least 36% guaranteed and (3) you wouldn't have to make a payment until next Spring! You'd want to know about it, wouldn't you?
READ ON - HERE'S MORE GOOD NEWS
My program will even do more for you. How? Well, next year when you might have to replace you old inefficient air conditioner or want it repaired, it will cost you 1996 prices (which will probably be higher). With my plan, you will be getting a brand new air conditioner now at a discount, and you can have it installed at your convenience, plus, I won't start your warranties until next March 1, 1996.
LIMITED SUPPLY - ACT NOW
I'll probably sell out by the first of November, so call Carol, my assistant now at 561-9440 for a no obligation appointment to hear the details of my plan. The only risk you have is waiting too long.
Sincerely

New inductees

Midland High School alumni Ross Montgomery, Class of 1965, left; Carol Levitt Schwartz, Class of 1961; and Wally Kleine, Class of 1982 were inducted into the Ex-Student Association's Hall of Fame Friday during half time at MHS' homecoming game against Odessa High School.

Kerrville family died in double homicide, suicide, officials say

KERRVILLE (AP) — Hill Country retiree John William Naumann apparently shot his wife and daughter to death then set their home afire and killed himself, authorities said Friday.

A tape recording left behind contained this message:

"My wife, Alice Carol, and my daughter, Tiffany Marie Naumann, have just been set free of all their horrible, horrible, mental tortures. I really wish things hadn't been this way — I want everybody to know I really loved my wife and daughter."

The rest of the recorded message found at the scene contained personal information and family contacts, said Kerr County Sheriff Frances Kaiser.

Mrs. Naumann, 47, died of gunshots to the head and chest, and Tiffany Naumann, 19, died of gunshots to the head and abdomen, the Travis County Medical Examiner's Office ruled.

John William Naumann, 45, died of a gunshot to the mouth, officials said.

The State Fire Marshal's Office and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms have determined arson caused the Tuesday fire that destroyed the Naumanns' house, workshop and three vehicles.

"Four separate and distinct fires with the presence of an accelerant (were) detected throughout the structure, vehicles and shop," Kaiser said in a prepared statement Friday.

Neighbors reported hearing an explosion and seeing black smoke rising from the residence about midday Tuesday. Tiffany Naumann had attended class at Schreiner College in Kerrville. Her class ended about 30 minutes before the blaze erupted.

Investigators have found rifles, handguns and ammunition in the house, though Kaiser has not specified how many or exactly what type guns were recovered. Naumann was known to shoot guns at a local firing range.

The Naumanns bought the house in a suburb just north of Kerrville in 1993, having moved from Arizona after Naumann retired from his machinist job.

The deaths were jarring for the usually peaceful neighborhood.

"Fire alone is scary," said neighbor Marti London. "As far as foul play or anything like that, well, it's even scarier."

Girl Scouts to benefit from obscure provision in House budget bill

WASHINGTON (NYT) — While scaling back Medicare, welfare, farm subsidies and a host of other government programs, House Republicans have shown a soft spot for at least one group: Texas Girl Scouts.

Tucked away in the far-reaching budget plan that passed the House on Thursday is a provision that would turn over 331 acres of government land near Amarillo to the Girl Scouts for $1.

The transfer was inserted in the bill on behalf of the Texas Plains Girl Scout Council by Rep. Mac Thornberry, R-Clarendon, who represents a large portion of the Texas Pandhandle.

"You found our one little sentence in there? We thought nobody would notice," joked Linda Wright, the Scout council's executive director. "We want to just remain incognito."

The cut-rate sale would let the Scouts keep a campground, Pitcher Pump Ranch, that they have leased from the government for 33 years. The property is part of a government-owned helium reserve that congressional Republicans want to sell to private industry.

Fearing that the new landowners would boot them off the property, the Scouts turned to Thornberry for help.

"They have put in an investment of about $140,000," said Tommy Thompson, Thornberry's administrative assistant. "They had an investment they'd made and yet the land it was on did not belong to them. It put them in a position to lose everything."

Thompson said the sale price, while obviously a bargain, is not as far below market value as it might seem.

"It's out in the boonies," he said. "If this had been next to the part of town that's developing, it may not have been as easy to do."

Motorcycle accident kills Odessa man

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — An Odessa man is dead following a motorcycle accident in the 3600 block of West 12th St., police said.

Dana Conely, 44, was killed after his motorcycle struck a vehicle stopped at the side of the road.

Conely was only a block from his home at the time of the accident, police said.

Work was best therapy for actor Tony Randall after wife's death

Tony Randall talks about his wife's death.

NEW YORK — Tony Randall says work has helped him cope with the death three years ago of his wife.

"Work is the only therapy, and the best therapy," the actor told Lauren Hutton on her syndicated talk show. The interview airs Monday.

Florence Randall died of cancer in 1992. The Randalls had been married 54 years.

Randall, 75, starred in dozens of movies and Broadway plays but is best known for the TV role of persnickety Felix Unger in the "Odd Couple."

He and his wife were college sweethearts.

"I saw her in a bank — I never saw another girl in my life," Randall said. "She was gorgeous, the most beautiful girl I ever saw."

After her death, he said, "I really didn't have time to grieve." But "if I'm by myself and just sit down, it'll come over me in waves."

Randall is starring in "The School for Scandal," due on Broadway next month.

MILWAUKEE — CBS newsman Ed Bradley says his former colleagues in the classroom should be making more money.

"We need to attract the best people to the profession and we need to make sure that teachers are well-respected and well-paid," said Bradley, who taught sixth grade in Philadelphia before becoming a TV correspondent and "60 Minutes" regular.

He spoke Thursday at Wisconsin's largest annual teacher convention.

NEW YORK — Country singer Susie Luchsinger, co-host of the upcoming Christian Country Music awards and sister of Reba McEntire, admits she is a battered wife but says she will never leave her husband.

The abuse began shortly after she and rodeo star Paul Luchsinger were married 14 years ago, she says in the Oct. 27-29 issue of USA Weekend.

"He would shove me against walls, throw me on the floor, hit me, slap me. He also did a lot of kicking: Twice, he kicked me so hard I thought I was going to die," the 37-year-old singer said.

Divorce was not an option, Luchsinger said. "I am a Christian; I believe in marriage. I had vowed to stick with Paul for better or worse," she said. The couple has three children.

They began attending Christian counseling programs in 1987 and "last year Paul stopped hitting me altogether," Luchsinger said. Now he smashes objects instead.

"I have lots of remorse about what I have done to my wife," said Paul Luchsinger, 40. "I could have killed her. I haven't hit Susie in over a year. ... I pray every day that I will never strike my wife again, and that my fury will stay under control."

MANILA, Philippines — AIDS patients criticized Magic Johnson for refusing to meet with them while in the Philippines for a basketball exhibition promoting information about the disease.

"We are very, very disappointed. We thought he came to Manila to help in the AIDS awareness campaign," said Archie Rivera, spokesman of the group People Living with AIDS in the Philippines.

Health Secretary Hilarion Ramiro said Johnson told him he could not make it to the meeting because he was too tired from an 18-hour flight from Los Angeles.

Rivera refused to accept Johnson's "very shallow" excuse. "He could have just dropped by. What is 10 or 15 minutes?" Rivera said.

Johnson retired from the National Basketball Association in 1991 after learning he had contracted HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

LOS ANGELES — Patrick Swayze has played characters ranging from a lovelorn ghost to a dancing gigolo, a hockey player and cross-dresser. And he doesn't regret passing up super macho roles.

"Don't get me wrong," he said in a recent interview. "I love action roles, but I just don't want to get stuck doing only one thing. When I look at Arnold Schwarzenegger or Sly Stallone or Bruce Willis, I feel no jealousy or envy. Yes, I could have made a fortune as an action star."

Swayze, 41, played a ghost opposite Demi Moore in "Ghost," a dance instructor in "Dirty Dancing," an athlete in "Youngblood," and a transvestite in "To Wong Foo, Thanks For Everything! Julie Newmar."

His latest film is "Three Wishes," portraying a free spirit who drifts into the lives of a fatherless family.

Economy swells to one of strongest quarters in decade, stocks rally

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a stunning turnaround, the economy shrugged off its spring doldrums and surged to one its strongest quarters of the decade.

The renewed growth cheered the Clinton administration, and on Wall Street, stock and bond prices rallied after a decline. But private economists predicted slower times ahead and said prospects are slim for a cut in interest rates.

The Commerce Department said Friday that gross domestic product, the government's broadest measure of the economy, grew 4.2 percent at an annual rate in the summer after a sluggish a 1.3 percent advance the previous quarter.

The third quarter gain compares favorably to the 5.1 percent jump in the fourth quarter last year, the strongest advance in a decade.

The inflation news was positively exhilarating, analysts said. One measure of inflation tied to GDP rose a tame 1.8 percent in the July-September quarter, compared with 3.2 percent the previous three months. A separate gauge edged up just 0.6 percent — the smallest gain since President Kennedy was in office.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 37.93 points, making up most of its 50-point loss the previous day. Bonds, at first lower, rallied to push the yield on the key 30-year Treasury bond down to 6.34 percent.

"We're on the right track," said President Clinton. "We do not need to reverse our economic course."

Commerce Secretary Ron Brown was less restrained. "This is the morning for smiles," he said. "(House Speaker Newt) Gingrich called our program a recipe for economic disaster. So much for the speaker's predictions."

But private economists said the surprisingly strong growth may not last.

"The rebound in real GDP growth will likely prove as unsustainable as the pleasant weather of an Indian summer," said David Orr, chief economist at First Union Corp. in Charlotte, N.C.

The Federal Reserve is not expected to lower interest rates at its Nov. 15 meeting. Analysts said Chairman Alan Greenspan and his colleagues probably will wait at least until the budget battle between Clinton and the Republican Congress is resolved.

Economists said the Federal Reserve still might lower interest rates this year if Congress and President Clinton agree on a plan that puts the nation on course for elimination of the federal deficit.

The central bank cut a key interest rate in July but has remained on the sidelines since.

"The GDP report clinches that the Federal Reserve will remain on hold," said Michael Niemira of Mitsubishi Bank in New York City. With solid growth and low inflation, he said, "It's the best of all worlds, really."

Senate passes balanced-budget bill, 52-47, in early morning hours

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a giant step for the Republican revolution, the Senate approved a balanced-budget plan early today to clamp down on social spending, cut taxes and remake government in a more conservative image.

The 52-47 vote was along party lines, with all Republicans except Maine's William Cohen in favor and all Democrats opposed. President Clinton has repeatedly threatened to veto the bill.

"This will be radical change in the way this government is operated," Majority Leader Bob Dole said approvingly before the vote.

Cheers and applause rang out on the Republican side of the chamber as the outcome of the roll call was announced a few moments after midnight. When it died down, Dole said, "I don't care where you are, who you are, what your politics are, people want to balance the budget."

Democrats didn't dispute that, but attacked the measure because it would curtail spending on Medicare, Medicaid, education, welfare and other federal programs, and said the tax cuts were too generous to the wealthy.

"We don't want our fingerprints on it," said Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D. "If they want to pass it, it's theirs to pass and theirs to have to defend," he said of the Republicans.

The seven-year balanced-budget effort is at the heart of the revolution the new Republican majority promised last winter. The House passed its version of the bill Thursday, 227-203, and Republicans will open House-Senate compromise talks on Monday. Dole invited Clinton to call GOP leaders and open compromise talks.

To hold the support of moderates and other balky Republicans, the Senate GOP leadership shepherded a last-minute package of changes into the bill that restored $10 billion for Medicaid and $2 billion for Medicare, and partially restored federal nursing home standards that had been slated for repeal.

The change also rewrote the rules for distribution of Medicaid funds in a way that Democrats charged unduly benefited states represented by Republicans.

And moments before final passage, on parliamentary grounds, Democrats succeeded in knocking out numerous provisions of a previously passed welfare reform bill. Dole said that could be remedied later.

Earlier, lawmakers rejected one controversial element of the House measure when they voted to drop a provision letting corporations withdraw some money from employee pension funds and use it for other benefits.

Senate passage came after a long day and night of voting on amendments as Democrats tried, generally without success, to cushion the impact of the bill on the poor, the elderly, farmers and the environment.

Clinton underscored his veto threat in a phone call with Daschle and House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt of Missouri. The Democratic leaders said the veto would be upheld, and already all sides were maneuvering for advantage in compromise talks likely to occur this fall. "My goal would be to have a budget that would ... get a huge bipartisan vote," Clinton earlier told reporters at the White House.

The GOP plan would mark a sharp break with the past, dramatically slowing the growth of federal social programs that have flourished since the New Deal and the Great Society, and beginning to return to the states power that Washington has steadily accumulated since the 1930s.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Fall Festival set

Midland Baptist Temple School, 3001 N. S St., is planning a Fall Festival from 6 to 10 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 31.

The event will include a dunking booth, go carts, pony and horse rides and more. All are invited to attend.

Women inducted

BOSTON — On Oct. 14, Mary Baker Eddy, founder and leader of Christian Science, was among 18 distinguished American women inducted into the National Women's Hall of Fame.

Mrs. Eddy was selected as "the only American woman to found a lasting American-based denomination." The ceremony took place in Seneca Falls, N.Y., considered by some to be the birthplace of women's rights.

Among this year's inductees were Sandra Day O'Conner, Ella Fitzgerald and Elizabeth Dole.

The 1995 National Honors Ceremonies were hosted by Judy Woodruff, prime anchor of CNN.

Virginia S. Harris, chairman of The Christian Science Board of Directors and publisher of the writings of Mrs. Eddy, accepted the Hall of Fame medallion on Mrs. Eddy's behalf. In concluding her remarks, Mrs. Harris said, "It is my privilege to accept this honor of Mary baker Eddy's life and achievements. And, I do so on behalf of all those blessed, as I have been, by the good she has done — and for those who, in years to come, will be blessed by her profound love for all mankind."

Mrs. Eddy's election to the Hall of Fame took place about 120 after the publication of her major work, "Science and Health with Key to Scriptures," and the founding of the Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Since the book was first published in 1875, "Science and Health" has been a consistent bestseller, with sales to date topping the nine million mark.

Mrs. Eddy's rise from obscurity in rural New Hampshire to prominence as the founder of a worldwide religion was a remarkable achievement for a woman — all the more remarkable because it took place in the male-dominated society of the 19th Century.

In 1908, in her 88th year, she established the highly regarded daily newspaper, The Christian Science Monitor.

Mary Baker Eddy joins the ranks of 125 distinguished Americans who are now members of the National Women's Hall of Fame.

Pledges announced

Advance gifts and pledges totaling $1,914,160 toward a $5 million building project goal were announced Monday night by campaign co-directors Frank Cowden Jr. and Clark Butts at First Baptist Church's "Together We Share & Grow" banquet.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Gary Dyer, observed that the figure represents nearly 40 percent of the total from 144 church families, around 11 percent of the active membership.

About 1200 members assembled for the all church banquet at the Holiday Inn Convention Center.

The three-year $5 million capital fund drive will find a major expansion of First BC's education facilities, fellowship hall and kitchen, as well as renovations and improvements to its worship center and ancillary facilities. The multi-purpose facility will serve children, youth and adults.

Each family is being asked to make a gift or pledge by Sunday, which is designated "High Attendance Sunday."

Missionary returns

Skylee Leonee Perrigo, daughter of Donna and Byron Perrigo of Midland, returned home this week from an 18-month mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Taipei, Taiwan.

Perrigo

"People are people wherever you go with the same needs and the need for Jesus Christ in their lives," said Miss Perrigo, who felt the best part of her mission was seeing the happiness of the Taiwanese people when they came to understand "the meaning of life and what it means to be a child of God."

Miss Perrigo, who learned to speak Mandarin Chinese while on her mission, said she also "learned a lot about charity" from the people of Taiwan who are "a very giving and charitable people."

Miss Perrigo will report on her mission at a special service at 1 p.m. Sunday in the chapel at 4805 gateway. Visitors are welcome.

Her plans for the future include continuing with her college education.

REBELS RATTLE RATLIFF

■ No. 9 Lee takes early lead and holds on to defeat No. 2 Odessa Permian, 14-7.

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

ODESSA — How do you beat Odessa Permian at Ratliff Stadium?

Just have the defense do everything right and have the offense do absolutely nothing wrong.

That was the case Friday as the Midland Lee Rebels defeated Permian 14-7 to take control of the District 4-5A lead, and in the process, they might have made a few believers.

"This is the biggest win I've been involved in as a head coach," said Midland Lee head coach John Parchman. "There was pressure and the kids rose to the occasion. It is a big win for the program."

"All we we're asking for was a little respect," said Midland Lee junior saftey John Norman, whose late fourth quarter interception sealed the win for Lee. "We got that."

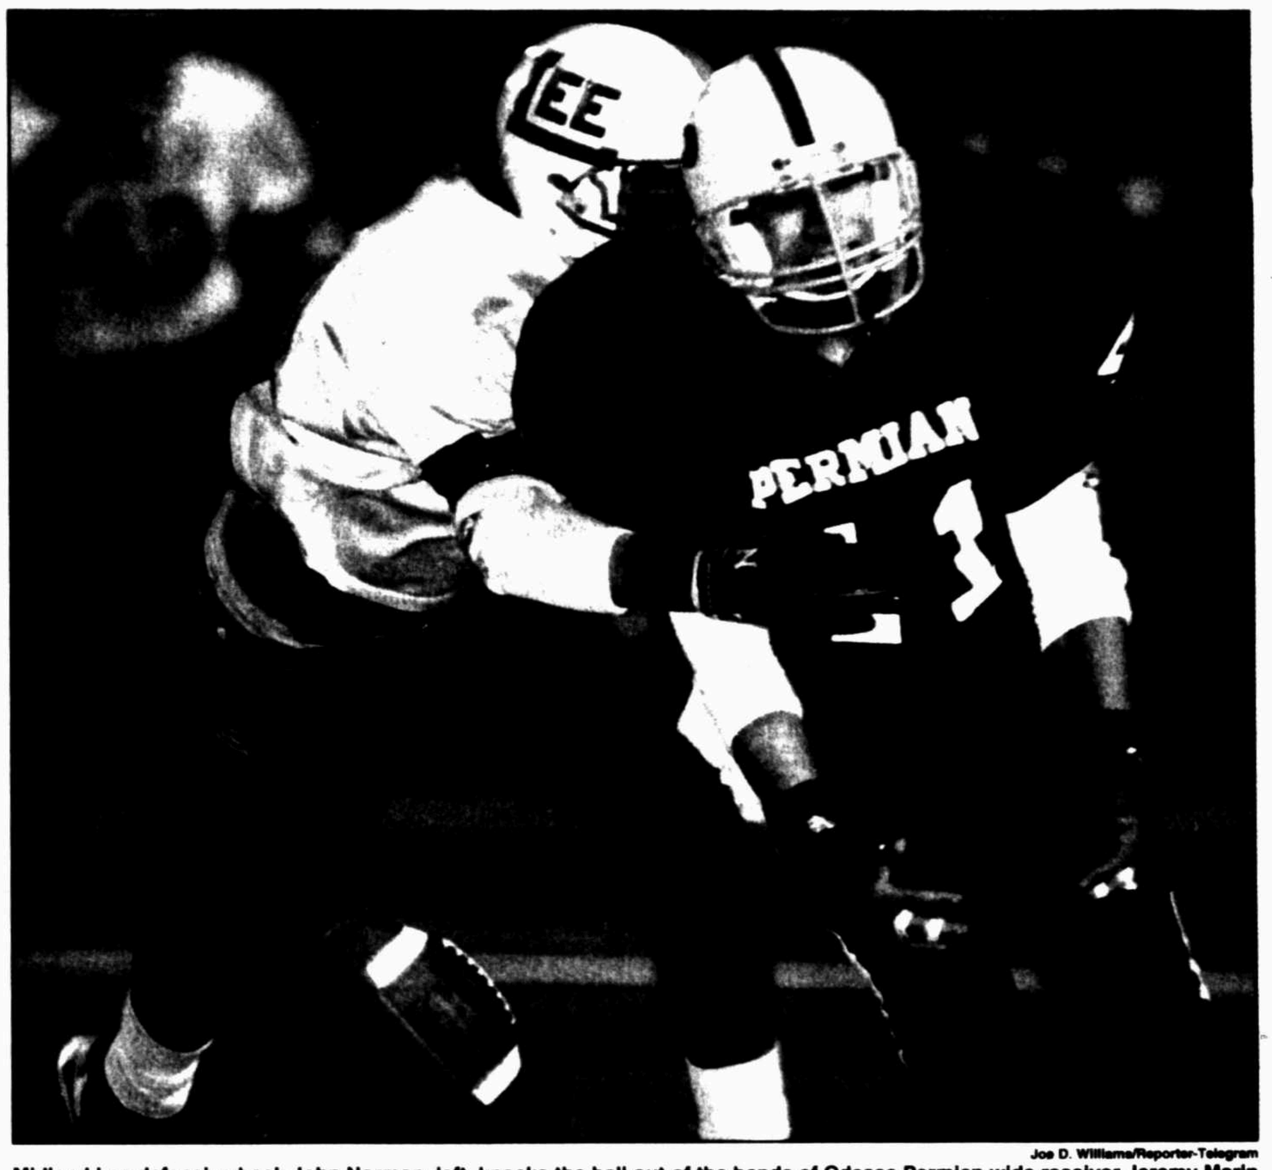

All week, Midland Lee, 8-0 for the season and 5-0 in district, heard about Permian's toss sweep, but they showed they were up for the challenge, holding the Panthers to 80 yards rushing on the night. That included holding the Panther rushing attack to seven yards rushing in the second half.

"We worked on stopping the sweep all week long," said Norman. "They ran it and we stopped it. It was the best we could do."

With the defense shutting down the run, it left the offense with a great chance to make some noise of its own, and the Rebels, who last beat Permian 17-7 in 1990, would not waste any time in doing so.

Starting its first drive of the game on the Odessa Permian 46, Lee marched on a 10-play drive that ended in a controversial touchdown pass from senior quarterback John Thurman to Ricky Green. The drive included a fourth-

Bulldogs earn respect but lose game, 31-20

By Sean Wallace
Sports Writer

Midland High's shot at a winning record this season is over. But the Bulldogs earned a little bit of respect Friday.

The Bulldogs led Odessa High by two touchdowns in the third quarter. But two touchdowns and 194 yards from LaQueencey Williams helped Odessa High to a tough 31-20 District 4-5A win at Memorial Stadium.

"Any win is a big win when you've had a few weeks of being down," Odessa High coach Bill Barron said. "I tell you what, Midland High should be proud because we had to fight for our lives. Their coaches did an unbelievable job in preparing their kids because they played hard."

The win was Odessa High's first in 4-5A this season and brought the Bronchos (4-4, 1-3) back to .500. The loss drops Midland High to 3-5 overall. The Bulldogs remain winless in district at 0-4.

"We did some things in the first half that we thought we could do against Odessa High, but they were bigger and physical and they've got great speed," Midland High coach Ronnie Reeger said. "The kids played hard the whole game, they gave us a great effort, but we just fumbled the ball away."

Midland Christian zaps Chargers in TAPPS play

By Tom Ruiz
MRT-Correspondent

The young Midland Trinity Chargers were taught a lesson or two by the four-time defending state TAPPS champion Midland Christian Mustangs, 60-12, in a District 1 game at Mustang Field Friday night.

The Mustangs zipped to a 28-0 first quarter lead that zapped the (4-3, 1-1) Chargers.

"Trinity played a real good game, they're young but they did a good job," Mustangs coach James Blake said.

The Chargers were stunned early by the Mustang offense. Cary Patteson opened the scoring with a nine-yard touchdown run that was set up by a 42-yard pass to John Koss from Alex Awtry. Both players would team up later for two long touchdown plays.

The Mustangs (7-1, 2-0) then pumped up the volume to score 22 unanswered points.

First it was Awtry who tossed an 18-yard TD pass to Koss. Cody Howard then raced from ten yards out into the end zone, and Cary Patteson romped 42 yards almost untouched to pay dirt.

Trinity, however, did give their fans something to cheer about in the second quarter when they went on a 10-play, 55-yard scoring drive.

Stanton ends long 6-2A wait, shuts out Wall Hawks, 21-0

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

STANTON — Quarterback Taylor Looney said Stanton hadn't beaten Wall since the 1970s. Mark Cotton said he hadn't enjoyed the feat since '83.

Yes, the Buffaloes and their coach had to wait a long time to beat the Hawks. But Friday night they only had to wait until fourth down.

Stanton converted 4-of-4 fourth downs, scoring twice in the first quarter on fourth and goal, in a 21-0 dominating District 6-2A win over Wall in Stanton. The Hawks had beaten the Buffs the last four seasons, keeping them out of the playoffs. Now Stanton, 3-0 in district and 7-1 overall, will probably make the playoffs for the first time since '89 with a split in its last two games against Winters and Coahoma.

Beating Wall is the biggest win for the Buffs in at least six years.

"It's huge," said Looney, who threw touchdown passes to Nick Hull and Taylor Looney as Stanton pounced on the Hawks for a 21-0 lead early in the second quarter. "That's the biggest win of our lives right there. We're playing for the district championship next week."

LADY CHAPARRALS: THE SECOND SEASON

Jones & Co. take it a step further

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Sports Writer

Strike that. Reverse it. Midland College would like a replay.

After seeing the Lady Chaparral basketball team chalk up a 23-8 record, a second-place conference finish and a playoff berth in its inaugural season, the casual fan might come to the mistaken conclusion that Ron Jones and his team couldn't have hoped for a better first year.

But Jones and the six members of the original Lady Chaps who returned for their sophomore season wouldn't mind the opportunity to record over the videotape copy of their 70-68 loss to McLennan in the Region V tournament.

"If someone would have told me before the (last) season that we were going to be 23-8, I would have taken that," Jones said as the Lady Chaps prepare for their second year in existence. "But because we didn't play well in the regional tournament against a team we could have beaten, that made it a tough way to lose.

"If we could have won that first game and then lost to Grayson College or Howard College in the finals, we might have been happy with that. But I hope it's a springboard for a more successful season," Jones said.

The Lady Chaps shot an uncharacteristic 23 of 70 from the field in their 70-68 loss to McLennan in the National Junior College Athletic Association Region V Tournament Feb. 28 in Denison. They also bricked it at the free throw line sinking only 17 of 30. To make matters worse, MC had a chance to win it when they got the ball with 19.3 seconds left to set up a shot by lone

TAPPS: Mustangs dump Chargers in league action

(From 1C)

Brad Glasscock capped the drive off with a one-yard touchdown plunge.

But the Mustangs were just too much for the overmatched Chargers. Awtry was polishing up his throwing arm as well as he finished with 147 yards passing.

In the second quarter he teamed up again with Koss when he lofted one nice and easy against the grain for a 47-yard score,

"He (Awtry) is an all-stater and he's supposed to play that way," Blake said about his starting quarterback.

The skin tight Mustang defense also performed at a high caliber. They allowed the Chargers only 43 yards on the ground and the longest run from scrimmage by Trinity was 20 yards.

Blake, however, did have some concerns about his team's performance. "We played in spurts tonight. I think we were looking ahead to next week's game with Abilene Christian."

The Mustangs will travel to Abilene on Friday in a game that will go a long way in deciding the District 1 crown. Trinity will host El Paso Faith Christian.

LEE: Ninth-ranked Rebels upend No. 2 Panthers on Ratliff turf

down conversion.

If the drive to start the game off against the Permian defense wasn't expected, the quick-strike Permian offense was equally as mind-boggling. The Panthers scored two plays into the very next drive as Jason Prann hit Marteis Rogers for a 67-yard strike On the play, Norman gambled by going for the interception and in doing so gave Rogers a clear path to the end zone.

But Permian could not depend on the big play on this night while Lee, who had 17 first downs, was able to hold sustained attacks against a stingy Permian defense. That was most apparent in the second quarter of the game.

Permian, 7-1 and 3-1, had the ball, deep in Lee territory. Facing first-and-goal on its seven, the Lee defense got huge stops. First, Norman caught Ja'Quay Wilburn before the Permian running back could round the corner. Then on third down, Michael Hall cut off Jason Prann, who was rolling left. The stop and following missed field goal by Jeremy White gave Lee an opening, which it would capitalize on.

Lee had the ball on its 20-yard line. Fourteen plays and five first downs later, the Rebels found the end zone as Thurman and Green once again connected to make the score 14-7. During the set, Thurman passed for three first downs and rushed for two others, providing all but 23 yards on the drive. It was a drive of epic proportions.

Thurman was the main man offensively," said Parchman. "Time in and time again he made the things happen."

Thurman, however, saw it as a case where the Rebels had to make things happen to get a win.

"They were so agressive and we had to improvise," said Thurman, who lead the Rebels in rushing with 70 yards and threw for 70 more. "As a team, we had a chance to show our abilities. We we had to come together and do it on third downs. This is my senior year and what a way to go out."

Lee, who is 10-5-1 in Ratliff Stadium, took that lead into the second half where time-consuming drives and the "Boys of Smash" took over. Lee, who had 251 yards in total offense, connected with drives 13, 4, 9, and 9. The drives kept Lee's offense on the field, Permian's offense off the field and time running off the clock. Combine that with a defense that allowed one first down in the second half and Permian had met its match.

"We made mistakes in the first half and we couldn't get things going in the second half," said Permian head coach Randy Mayes. "It was another district game. We have to get ready for San Angelo."

Lee can make the season an undefeated one with a home win next week against Abilene Cooper, 4-3 and 3-1. Permian will hit the road against the San Angelo Central Bobcats, 3-5 and 3-2.

MHS: Bronchos win first district game

third quarter and was standing toe-to-toe with the Bronchos until fumbles on two consecutive possessions led to 14 Odessa High points.

David Leaverton's second field goal of the game gave Midland High a three-point lead with 9:03 left in the third when Odessa High regained the lead 17-13 on a 6-yard run by Josh Linney. Midland High got the ball back and promptly turned it over on a fumbled exchange between quarterback Russell Dunlavy and running back Sam Powell on the Midland 23-yard line, leading to an Odessa High touchdown.

"They turned those right against us," Reeger said. "I think the kids were so anxious to play well and get that first district win, that we made some mistakes there in the backfield."

Odessa High quarterback Clint Blakley scored in a 3-yard keeper to put the Bronchos ahead 24-13. But the Bulldogs came back and scored again to close the gap back to four points. Dunlavy threw a screen pass to Jerome Eldridge. which fooled the entire Odessa defense. Eldridge scored on the 14-yard toss, cutting the lead to 24-20.

"He was wide open on the play. He could have walked it in," Dunlavy said. "Hopefully we can win our last two district games and get some respect in the district."

The Bronchos made it 31-20 on a 9-yard touchdown run by Williams — his second of the game — with 3:38 left after recovering a Midland High fumble at their own 46-yard line.

"He's a great back. He's been keyed on and its not easy to do what he's done when you're keyed on like that," Barron said.

The Bulldogs were outgained in the first half but not outplayed, tying the game 10-10 at halftime.

Odessa High had a 10-7 lead late in the second quarter when the Bronchos were driving to put another score on the board before halftime.

Blakley tried to find an Odessa receiver over them middle but Midland's Marcus Carlisle stepped in front of the pass and returned it back to the Odessa 46-yard line with 53 seconds left in the second.

"He was running a curl route. I just ran to the spot where I'm supposed to be and the ball was there," Carlisle said. "We played our hearts out, but sometimes things don't go the way you intended."

BUFFS: Stanton knocks down Wall, 21-0

(From 1C)

Cotton, in his first year as head coach but his fifth year on the Buff coaching staff, last beat Wall when he coached at Hamlin.

Stanton scored on its first four possessions and held Wall to 79 yards rushing.

"Every time we got going something happened, a penalty or something" said Wall coach Paul Talbert, whose team fell to 2-1 and 5-3. "We never got in our rhythm. They're a good football team, but I don't think they're that much better than us."

On this night, they were.

The Buffs threw a long pass on the first play of the game and didn't back off from the attack until they took their three touchdown lead. On four and one foot from their own 39 yard line on the game's fourth play, Stanton went for it and Todd Davis got two yards for the first down.

"I felt like I had to show the kids that I had the confidence in them to do it," Cotton said. "I looked up there and saw it was fourth and a foot and nobody was moving (to come out for the punt team)."

"I bet you it surprised a lot of people, but we were coming out here against Wall and we only had a half foot and we thought we would just try to stun them on that first drive," Looney said.

On the next play Looney threw 37 yards to McAlister and found Hull in the flat on fourth and goal from the five for a 7-0 Stanton lead. Hull had to spin around to make the catch and dive the final yards for the score.

"We knew we could move the ball. We really didn't expect to do it that quickly," Looney said. "We just looked at their coverage and found out where the holes were and what secondary people to pick on."

On the Buffs second possession McAlister, who finished with four catches for 102 yards, caught a 22-yard pass and Davis (137 yards on 26 carries) ran in from the one on, what else, fourth down.

Looney passed for 116 yards, mostly in the first half.

"We spent all spring working on the passing game with the intention of a 50-50 balance in our passing and throwing," Cotton said. "And when Todd (Davis) became available and with Chris (Carroll) in our backfield it has made the passing game work."

After Hull intercepted a Cory Braden pass, the Buffs drove 39 yards for their last score. Another Looney to Leo pass highlighted the march, this time for a 27-yard touchdown.

"Leo and Taylor are just a natural fit," Cotton said.

Wall threatened to score several times after Stanton took its lead. But the success the Buffaloes had on fourth down eluded the Hawks. Wall failed to make first downs on its first four fourth down tries and ended up with 1-of-6 on fourth down. Their one conversion came on a pass interference penalty.

Stanton's next opponent, Winters, looks like the class of the district. But at least now the Buffs feel like they have some respect.

"We're going to have to play better than we ever have in our lives to have a chance (against Winters)," Hull said.

sophomore JoAnna Kailahi. But it, like so many of the shots in the game, rattled out of the basket.

With the mental image of the game that slipped away ingrained in their brains, Jones and returning sophomore guards Pam Hicks, Roslynn Dunn, Shannon Jordan and Amber Follis, post Brandy Wright and forward Stacie Johnson plan to put themselves in a much better situation for a possible national championship — a feat that might have seemed unimaginable in the team's second year until last year.

The hunt starts with a non-conference record that Jones thinks may put a bigger dent in the Lady Chaps' overall record but will better prepare his team for the grueling conference schedule.

It starts Thursday when the Lady Chaps test their preseason legs at the Midland-Odessa Classic at Chaparral Center, a four-team tournament including Angelina, Blinn and San Jacinto. It lasts through Saturday (Nov. 4). Then the Lady Chaps will get one day of rest before they host Tyler Nov. 6. to make for a total of four games in their first five days of the season.

"Our non-conference schedule is much tougher," Jones said. "We eliminated some of the people we beat last year by 50 points so we might not have as good a record as last year but we'll be better-prepared in time for conference."

"There are a lot of new players and in the first part of the season, we will be getting used to playing with each other," Hicks said.

It will have to be a tough schedule if the Lady Chaps are to be ready for what the Western Junior College Athletic Conference coaches call an experiment in scheduling. Less than a month into their season, the Lady Chaps will open their WJCAC season hosting Western Texas on Nov. 21.

"Overall, I can see several teams being better than they were last year, including us," Jones said. "But we voted to play an 18-game conference schedule and that ought to be interesting. We will play each team three times. We'll play Howard, South Plains and New Mexico Junior College twice on the road and once at home. And then we'll play Western Texas, Frank Phillips and Odessa College twice at home and once on the road.

"And we'll do this again next year," Jones added. "We (WJCAC coaches) just thought of this as an experiment and we wanted to try it for two years and see how we like it."

The prize everyone is eyeing is the NJCAA regional tournament, which will be hosted this year by Odessa College March 2-4. And then from there is the national tournament in Tyler March 19-23.

Despite the six returners, the majority of the Lady Chap squad is new. Leading scorer and rebounder Kailahi (19.1 points per game, 7.9 rebounds per game) was the only player on last year's team to use up her eligibility and obviously will not return. But several of the freshman from last year — MC's first basketball class — did not return.

Jones and new assistant coach Yolanda Burris, however, recruited a stable full of replacements including three transfers, two freshmen who joined the team halfway through last season but did not play and two freshman out of high school.

Midland basketball fans may remember one of the transfers from her days at Midland High. Sophomore guard Julie Chancellor, who was originally recruited by Jones, signed out of high school with Angelo State University but returned to Midland for her second year.

Two transfers come from Division I programs. Forward Erica Knight from Ardmore, Okla. played one season as a freshman at Baylor before a knee injury forced her to take a medical redshirt last year. Joining her will be Malyssa Thorngren, a post from Guthrie, Okla. who played one year at Arizona State.

"Malyssa and Erica add a lot of experience because Erica played against all the teams in the Southwest Conference and Malyssa got time against teams like Stanford, UCLA and Southern Cal so the big games are not going to bother them," Jones said.

Jones also signed two players in the middle of last season. Freshmen foward Fatou Cisse' and post Ndiasse Ndiaye come from Dakar, Senegal. The other freshmen are guard Kellina Bradshaw from Miami, Fla. and Texas-grown forward Mandi White from traditional basketball powerhouse Canyon.

"We're going to be bigger and faster and I mean overall team speed and height," Jones said. "Our depth is better. We'll definitely get down the floor a lot faster this year. We're much more balanced than we were last year."

Dunn, who played high school ball at powerful Plainview, likes the components of the newly assembled team.

"We're going to be better, without a doubt," Dunn said. "Nine of us have college experience and the other four are real good players. And when a substitute comes into the game, there is no letdown. Whatever five starters Coach Jones puts out there, the second group is just as good. We could substitute at any time and still be strong on the floor."

Hicks, from Winnsboro, echoed Dunn's evaluation of the team. "We're already better than last year's team just with the experience we have back," she said. "Everyone is pretty much equal on talent. No one player is that much better than another."

Replacing the scoring provided by Kailahi may not be such an insurmountable task either, Jones said.

"I don't think we'll have a person who is as visible as JoAnna was in the middle and who we feel like has to have the ball the majority of the time for us to win," Jones said. "But it's really better because we're more well-rounded and we'll be a much harder team to stop."

But Ndiaye will take Kailahi's place in the middle and she said the year she and Cisse' had in classes at Midland College before having to suit up helped them adjust to a different type of basketball and lifestyle from their native Senagal in western Africa.

"It helped us because we didn't really know how they do their sport here," Ndiaye said. "Plus, we got to see the team play and that helped us know the style. It was hard, though, because we wanted to be able to help the team by playing."

Midland is picked to finish second in conference play behind defending champion Howard College. The Lady Hawks got four first-place votes by the league's coaches while the Lady Chaps received three. South Plains is picked third followed by Frank Phillips, New Mexico JC, Odessa College and Western Texas. The top four teams advance to the regional tournament.

Bryant battles winds to lead Tour Championship

The Associated Press

TULSA, Okla. Southern Hills yielded only four subpar rounds at the $3 million Tour Championship. Just think what would have happened had they cut the greens.

With winds gusting so hard at times that a blimp-like, satellite balloon almost crashed into the trees, the top 30 money-winners on the PGA Tour had all they could handle Friday.

Only Brad Bryant, who has complained the loudest about the wind, has beaten the course twice. He shot a 2-under-par 68 Friday for a 3-under 137 total midway through the season-ending tournament.

That gave him a one-stroke lead over Billy Mayfair, the first-round leader, who shot 70. Another stroke back was Woody Austin after a 68.

Bryant and Mayfair were on the 11th hole, a 164-yard par-3 that was playing downwind, when the yellow balloon anchored to the ground east of the course began dipping and swaying, twice landing on treetops.

Mayfair's shot was headed for the pin when the wind knocked it straight down.

"It looked like Shaq jumped up and slapped it away from the basket," Bryant said. "If a 747 had gone over the golf course at that time, it would be sitting on the 11th green."

Equally frustrating was the direction; the northerly winds were completely opposite from Thursday. The 537-yard 13th hole played downwind on Thursday and gave up an eagle, eight birdies and three bogeys. It played into the wind in the second round and gave up an eagle, two birdies and eight bogeys.

"It would be nice to have the wind die down so we could survive the wind and play Southern Hills," Bryant said.

Anticipating such winds, tournament officials decided not to cut the greens. That made them a little slower, but not enough to cause players to putt with any less caution.

"The scores still aren't very low, are they?" said Loren Roberts, whose 68 got him back in the chase at 141. "The greens were considerably slower, but I don't think that hurt the quality of the golf course. The speed of the greens doesn't make it any easier to putt."

As many as eight players were under par at one point Friday, but it wasn't long before Southern Hills made them pay for even the slightest mistake.

Vijay Singh got to three under with birdies on Nos. 9 and 10, then gave it back with bogeys on the next two holes. Payne Stewart shared the lead at one under until a double-bogey on the par-3 6th sent him skidding to a 5-over 75.

Justin Leonard and Singh were at even par, followed by Roberts, Lehman and Scott Simpson at 141. Another stroke back were Pavin and Greg Norman.

Nick Price, who won the 1994 PGA Championship on a soft, slow and calm Southern Hills, struggled again and shot 73. He's at 10-over 150, 13 strokes off the lead. Only Phil Mickleson, at 152, was farther off the lead.

Kaanapali Classic

KAANAPALI, Hawaii — Dave Stockton, the Senior PGA Tour's leading money winner, and rookie Bruce Summerhays shot 6-under-par 65s to share the lead after the first round of Kaanapali Classic. With barely a trace of wind blowing over the 6,590-yard Kaanapali North Course, Stockton and Summerhays took advantage of the ideal playing conditions and early tee times.

At 5-under were Mike McCullough and Bob Lunn. Chi Chi Rodriguez, George Archer, Harold Henning and DeWitt Weaver were at 4-under and defending champion Bob Murphy was among those at 68. Harry Toscano made an early run, making the turn at 5-under 30, but a double-bogey at No. 14 and a bogey on the final hole put him in the group at 68.

Back to Atlanta; Series far from over

■ Fall Classic is Braves to lose; Murray hopes to teach Indians lesson he learned with Baltimore.

ATLANTA (AP) — Two hours before the start of Game 5, Tom Glavine was tuning up in the Atlanta bullpen, a space neatly carved into the right-field seats at Jacobs Field.

"Hey, you pitchin' Saturday night?" shouted a Cleveland fan, hanging over a railing.

"Hope not," Glavine answered, in-between changeups on the corners.

Well, it's a good thing Glavine worked out. Because this World Series is far from over.

Atlanta missed a chance to clinch it Thursday night when the Indians seemed to solve ace Greg Maddux in a 5-4 victory. That cut Cleveland's deficit to 3-2 and sent the Series back South for Game 6 Saturday night, when Glavine will oppose Dennis Martinez.

Both teams were supposed to practice Friday at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium, but those sessions were rained out. The forecast for today called for mostly clear skies.

Though the Braves still have two opportunities to win the title at home, the loss to Orel Hershiser and the Indians rekindled memories of their past postseason failures.

"Oh No!" blared the front-page headline in The Atlanta Constitution on Friday. Inside the newspaper, another banner read: "Maddux flunks Orel exam."

"I think the pressure is on them because they have something to lose," Hershiser said. "They've lost the last two World Series they've been in. Atlanta fans are probably wondering what's going on."

Maybe because they've seen this happen before.

The Braves held a 3-2 edge in the 1991 Series, but lost the last two games to Minnesota at the Metrodome. The Braves lost the 1992 Series to Toronto, dropping the decisive Game 6 at home.

Of the 39 previous teams that took 3-1 leads, 33 of them won the title. Martinez and Eddie Murray played together for Baltimore in 1979, a club that blew a 3-1 edge to Pittsburgh.

Before Thursday's game, Martinez and Murray called a team meeting.

"We told them how this was just like it was for us in '79, when we were on the other end of it," Martinez said. "We lost Game 5 to the Pirates in Pittsburgh, and then we headed back to Baltimore, thinking we could easily win one of the two games back home."

Instead, the Orioles dropped a pair of close games, and wound up losing the Series.

The Indians, who led the majors in batting, scoring and home runs, began Game 5 with a .190 batting average. But two pitches after Albert Belle hit a two-run homer in the first inning, Maddux zinged a fastball right past Murray's head.

Murray took a couple of steps toward Maddux, shouting and pointing at him, and causing a rare bench- and bullpen-clearing incident in the World Series. The Indians and their fans seemed to feed off the fray, in which tempers rose but no punches were thrown and no one was ejected.

"Eddie's one of those guys, you know, he's quiet," Indians utility outfielder Wayne Kirby said. "But don't wake a dead dog up. Maybe we needed it. Maybe we needed it to regroup and get our cockiness back."

Maddux clearly was not as sharp as he was in pitching a two-hitter in the opener. The brushback only gave Cleveland more reason to focus on getting even with Maddux, known for being one of baseball's best control pitchers.

"Everybody wanted a piece of him after that," Indians shortstop Omar Vizquel said.

Maddux said the whole thing was an accident, claiming, "I was trying to come in." But Hershiser, who spoke to Maddux on the field while order was being restored, did not sound 100-percent convinced.

"I don't think he was trying to hit him, but I asked him if he was," Hershiser said. "He told me, 'I was trying to jam him.' I told him, 'You can do better than that.'"

TCU faces Baylor defense without RB Davis

The Associated Press

■ SWC Preview

It was not good news for Texas Christian.

The NCAA told TCU Friday that it must face Baylor, the nation's No. 1 scoring defense, on today without Andre Davis, its most potent offensive weapon.

Davis, who allegedly accepted monetary benefits from an agent, was told to sit out a second straight game while his status is still being determined. The NCAA expects a final decision early next week.

TCU says Davis did not know the source of the gifts.

If the Horned Frogs (5-1, 2-0 Southwest Conference) can beat Baylor (4-2, 2-1), it would be the first time this season they've defeated a team with a winning record. Their only loss came at undefeated and sixth-ranked Kansas.

TCU is one of only two conference teams with an unblemished league record. The Frogs must beat the Bears to keep pace with Texas, which takes the weekend off at 2-0 in the SWC.

"We'll have to be our best to have any kind of chance," TCU coach Pat Sullivan said.

Although Davis practiced this week, Sullivan said his sudden absence wouldn't send his offense into a panic.

"It's no different than someone getting hurt on the first play of the game," he said. "Our offense isn't built around people, it's built around schemes, and we won't change our schemes. We've got to put 11 people out there and go play Baylor."

Davis leads all SWC backs with 657 yards on 128 carries despite missing last week's 16-11 victory over Tulane when the agent question first arose.

He's also the SWC's fourth-leading receiver with 22 catches and 235 yards. All told, he's scored six touchdowns and, combined with quarterback Max Knake, provides defenses with a formidable challenge.

That's why Baylor coach Chuck Reedy, who watched Texas A&M's Leeland McElroy score two touchdowns against his Bears a week ago in a 24-9 victory, calls Davis "the most productive back" in the conference.

Baylor's defense yields just 12.2 points to lead Division I-A and 240.2 yards per game to rank third in the nation.

TCU will again rely on sophomore Matt Moore. He rushed 28 times for 98 yards and a touchdown against Tulane in his first start. Baylor gives up just 95.8 yards per game on the ground, No. 6 in the country.

In other conference games, Rice visits SMU, Houston travels to No. 19 Texas A&M and No. 22 Texas Tech visits New Mexico in their interstate rivalry.

An offensive line that averages well over 300 pounds per man and a versatile running back in Winslow Oliver are assets that Red Raiders coach Spike Dykes says "scare" him about New Mexico (4-3).

He can take solace in history. Tech leads the series 28-5-2, including 10-3-1 in Albuquerque, where the Lobos could have a rare sellout crowd.

"It's a big game for them," said Dykes, who once coached at New Mexico. "It's a natural rivalry, and we recruit a lot of the same areas."

The girth in New Mexico's trenches is top first concern for Tech (4-2) as far as Dykes is concerned.

"They are really big people and they scare you to death," he said.

He also fears Oliver, the Lobos' offensive focus. He has rushed for 582 yards and three touchdowns, caught 14 passes for 174 yards and a touchdowns and averages 27.8 yards per kickoff return.

Houston's reward for beating Southern Methodist — its first victory in 12 tries — is getting to face its fourth ranked opponent of the season. Texas A&M (4-2, 2-1), the 19th-ranked team in the nation, must beat the Cougars (1-6, 1-2) to keep its SWC title hopes alive.

"We feel like we're playing the toughest schedule in the country and we haven't had must success this season," Houston coach Kim Helton said. "(After Saturday's victory) we feel a lot better about ourselves."

Among Houston's tormentors this season have been No. 3 Florida, No. 6 Kansas and No. 13 Southern Cal. Things don't ease up much for Houston, which faces No. 15 Texas and Tech in its next two games.

Iron Cigar? 5-year-old's a knockout

NEW YORK (AP) — If horse racing had a heavyweight division, Cigar might well be world champion. "He's kind of like the Mike Tyson of horse racing," trainer Jim Day said. "He's a very tough guy, and it'll take a pretty tough guy to deal with him."

Day is among those hoping he has a "guy" tough enough to deal with Cigar, and not just another Peter McNeeley, when the $3 million Breeders' Cup Classic is run today at Belmont Park.

Day's Peaks and Valleys will be one of 10 horses taking a shot at Cigar in the 1 1/4-mile Classic, one of seven Breeders' Cup races on a card worth $10 million. It could be an historic race. Cigar, a 5-year-old grandson of Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew, is going for his 12th straight victory and 10th this year without a loss, which would make him one of the most dominant racehorses of the past 20 years.

Not since the filly Personal Ensign ended a perfect 12-for-12 career by winning the Breeders' Cup Distaff in 1988 has a thoroughbred gone unbeaten through an entire year in major competition. And a male racehorse hasn't done it since Spectacular Bid went 8-for-8 in 1980.

District court passes on Sanders contract with Cowboys

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — U.S. District Judge David Doty issued an order Friday returning the Deion Sanders salary case to a New York-based special master for settlement.

The NFL is challenging the cornerback's $35 million contract with the Dallas Cowboys, saying it contains a record signing bonus, minimum base salaries and voidable years — mechanisms the league contends circumvent the salary cap.

In his ruling, Doty said the matter would be turned over to Special Master John Fearick, with the Cowboys to submit briefs next Thursday and the NFL by Nov. 6.

Fearick "shall hold a hearing on the merits of the dispute as promptly thereafter as possible, and shall render his decision on an expedited basis," Doty said.

Then, he added, he would entertain briefs challenging Fearick's decision and conduct a hearing.

In the meantime, he added, Sanders can play and practice with the Cowboys while a temporary stay remains in effect barring NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue from throwing out the contract.

"They're just making a big deal out of it because it's myself and (Cowboys owner) Jerry Jones," Sanders told The Dallas Morning News in his first lengthy interview on the debate. "They should have made a big deal out of last year's contract. That is the one they should have looked into — not this year."

Sanders played an instrumental role last season in helping San Francisco win the Super Bowl.

The NFL wants Doty to confirm its declaration that the Cowboys circumvented the salary cap and should be charged $1.392 million more per season for the four remaining capped years.

"This is really about me coming here because this is the last place they wanted to have me perform because this team is so dominant already," Sanders said. "The Cowboys really are America's Team, and for them to have one more player who can put them over the hump again, it's like that people feel that's not fair to the league.

"And then Jerry has taken business to another level. To have those factors merge? It's like it's not fair to the league."

The 35-page brief the NFL filed with the court specifically mentions the contracts Sanders signed last season with the 49ers and that he reached with the Cowboys as an unrestricted free agent.

The documents call the Cowboys' contract in "stark contrast" to the terms Sanders played for in San Francisco.

Sanders' contract with the 49ers provided no signing bonus and paid him a $1 million base salary and a $750,000 Super Bowl bonus. There also was a $5 million option for a second season.

Jones announced the contract with Sanders as a seven-year, $35 million deal that almost certainly will void a five-year, $25 million agreement. Jones said Sanders probably will charge millions to his team for two years after his departure but considers that an acceptable tradeoff to diffuse his immediate cap impact.

The Cowboys structured their contract to initially control Sanders' impact on the $37.1 million salary cap. Jones paid Sanders a league-record $12.99 million signing bonus, which is prorated so that Sanders counts $2.035 million to the Dallas salary cap his first three seasons.

Kansas poised to wrest Big Eight title from heavies

The Associated Press

For the first time since 1987, a team other than Nebraska or Colorado can win the Big Eight Conference title, and the No. 1 candidate is Kansas.

The sixth-ranked Jayhawks are 7-0 for the first time since 1968 and 3-0 in the conference. If they beat No. 14 Kansas State on Saturday at Manhattan, Kan., then beat Missouri next week, they would get a shot at second-ranked Nebraska, the defending national champion.

That game likely would be for the league title and the invitation to the Fiesta Bowl to play No. 1 Florida State for the national championship.

First, though, the Jayhawks have to beat Kansas State, which has the nation's third-best defense, allowing only an average of 13.4 points and 219.6, the best in the nation.

While the Wildcats' defense is very formidable, their offense also is dangerous.

"They run a very sophisticated passing attack," Jayhawks coach Glen Mason said. "But that doesn't mean they don't try to establish the run, because they do. I think that (quarterback Matt) Miller has a lot more mobility than they've had in that position."

Credit applications are also required for business accounts. Yearly contract agreements are available.
