Thousands Of Children To Greet Santa Claus Here This Afternoon

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

We may have had worse drouths in some parts of Texas than we have had in the year coming to a close but for the central and eastern portions of the United States the drouth that has now ended in most sections was the most severe in the climatological history of the United States, says C. F. Marvin, chief of the U. S. weather bureau in his annual report.

But if the drouth has been the most severe over a wide section of the country the weather bureau can give no conclusive and comprehensive answer to the question what causes such abnormal conditions. The best answer the bureau can give is that these conditions are best explained as a prolonged stagnation of air over nearly the whole continental extent of the United States, but the experts are unable to assign a specific cause for the prolonged stagnation.

The report of Chief Marvin which gives history of the drouth up to Aug. 30 says in part:

"The central and eastern portions of the country have now passed through the most severe drouth in the climatological history of the United States. By the first of September the drouth had continued for nine months in the middle Atlantic area, six months over the Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys, and for shorter periods in nearly all other sections east of the Rocky mountains. The middle Atlantic area was dry during the winter season. In March the drouth extended westward over the Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys, and thence in other directions as the season progressed.

"For the spring months, March to May, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri had the least precipitation of record, with the average for the group only 57 per cent of normal, while the middle Atlantic area had only slightly more than 60 per cent. In June, the Ohio and lower Mississippi valleys suffered most, while by July deficiencies in precipitation extended to all states east of the Rocky mountains, except New England and Georgia. In July, 18 states had only 20 to 50 per cent of normal rainfall, with an average of 39 per cent. In August the drouth continued in nearly all sections and was greatly intensified in some northern and southeastern states not theretofore seriously affected.

"For the summer, June to August, a belt of states extending from Maryland and Virginia southwestward to the lower Mississippi valley established new rainfall records for the season, while in a group of 16 states, including Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, the average precipitation was only 54 per cent of normal. Not a single state east of the Rocky mountains had as much as normal precipitation for this period of the three principal growing months, and some half dozen states had less than half the normal.

"The summer season was generally warm, with the period from about the middle of July to middle of August having abnormally high temperatures, with the previous maximum records equaled or exceeded in many places. These unusually high temperatures greatly intensified the effect of the deficient moisture.

"July and August combined brought the driest weather of record to Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, and Arkansas, with an average for these seven states of only 41 per cent of normal. The growing season, as a whole, March to August, was the driest of record over a large area, comprising the middle Atlantic states and the Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys.

"To show the spread of the drouth as the season progressed, for example, in January, only three states that continued dry thereafter had deficient precipitation, while for March the number had increased to nine; May to 10; June to 19; and July to 30. South Dakota and Nebraska had more than normal rainfall in August, hence there were only two consecutive months with deficiencies.

"Considering the New England states as a unit, and also Maryland and Delaware, there are 32 units and states east of the Rocky mountains. Of these, 27 had deficient rainfall in March, with an average deficiency of 40 per cent; 27 in April, with an average deficiency of 38 per cent; 20 in May, with an average deficiency of 29 per cent; 24 in June, with an average deficiency of 34 per cent; 30 in July, with an average deficiency of 52 per cent; and 30 in August, with an average deficiency of 45 per cent."

There is more to the statement of Chief Marvin's report but this is enough of it to reprint here. The drouth is happily ended and we can forget about it while thinking about the wonderful turnip crop that is being pulled around Wichita Falls. And we are looking forward to the exhibition this week of the biggest and best turnips ever grown anywhere.

AURORA, Ill., Dec. 9. (AP)—James M. Cowan, 72, an authority on modern American art and wealthy collector, died today of an apoplectic stroke.

STREET PARADE TO START AT 2:30 O'CLOCK

Patron Saint of Youth To Drive Reindeer On Tour of City

STREETS CLEARED

Motorists Asked to Give Up Parking Space In Parade Area

Thousands of children, and perhaps as many grown-ups, will crowd the streets of Wichita Falls Wednesday afternoon to welcome Santa Claus, his reindeer and his corps of assistants in their pre-Christmas journey to Wichita Falls.

Many Visitors

From all over Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma, the youngsters are expected to flock here to catch a glimpse of the fabled saint who fills their stockings on Christmas eve night. Classes at the public schools will be dismissed in time for the children to view the parade. As an example of the attendance expected, a teacher of the Friberg school telephoned The Record News Tuesday night that 50 children from that school alone would be here for the celebration.

Wichita Falls wore its Christmas attire in full fashion Tuesday night, after more than week of preparation by business men to accord proper honor to St. Nick. Lines of colored lights crossed the downtown streets, fir trees were everywhere, and stores were decorated in holiday style. Members of Santa's pageant will be guests of the Optimist club at luncheon at 12:10 o'clock today, but Santa himself is not expected to put in an appearance until shortly before time for the parade.

IN INTEREST OF SAFETY

Horrace Robbins, grand marshal of the Santa Claus parade, and Frank Burns, chief of police, are arranging that there will be no permanent parking on Ohio, Indiana and Scott streets between Sixth and Eleventh after 8 o'clock Wednesday morning.

All motorists are requested to leave their cars outside of the zone in the interest of safety of the children who will start coming into the city in the morning and will be on the streets by thousands. There will be entirely too many to stand on the sidewalks and the streets will be needed to take care of the immense throng of children.

The hour of the march through Wichita Falls is 2:30 o'clock. The parade will start at the corner of Tenth street and Ohio avenue, and will continue north on Ohio to Sixth, west on Sixth to Indiana, south on Indiana to Eleventh, west on Eleventh to Tenth, east on Tenth to Scott, and north on Scott to Sixth and east on Sixth to the railroad loading rack.

Santa Anxious to Arrive

All Wichita Falls stores will remain open until 7 o'clock in order to enable parade visitors to have plenty of time for shopping, it was announced Tuesday by the Retail Merchants association.

Raid On Apartment Here Uncovers Huge Store Of 'Bottled In Bond' Stuff

Bottled liquor totaling approximately 900 pints, constituting one of the largest single hauls ever made by the sheriff's department in this county, and apparently calculated to have provided high-priced Christmas cheer for multiple prospective patrons, was seized by Sheriff W. G. Bralley, Deputies Warren Belcher and Charles Gant, and District Attorney Sam B. Spence in a garage apartment on Eleventh street Tuesday afternoon.

According to prices commonly supposed to prevail on the type of merchandise seized in Tuesday's elaborate raid, the contraband liquor obtained was destined to have yielded its patient manufacturers more than $3,000, Sheriff Bralley stated.

For Particular People

Preparation of the spirits had obviously been designed to appeal to the epicures of this section of the state, the officers declared, since elaborate pains had been taken to give the whisky at least every appearance and odor of pre-war, bottled-in-bond goods. Bottling had proceeded to the extent of having prepared 720 full pint bottles, which were packed in locally-obtained paper cartons, each containing two dozen bottles. Labeling evidently had only begun, the small portion of the captured liquor which had been so processed styling its contents boldly as "Real Bourbon Old Kentucky Rose." Lending further show of complete authenticity in the way of being all that liquor may be, these bottles had been skillfully fitted with the customary foil caps, tightly sealed under the warning admonition: "See that this seal is unbroken."

The completely appointed production unit discovered by the officers in the building from which two costly loads were taken reflected in all details the operators' care to impart quality to his product, they declared, and to justify an aristocratic price for prepossessing goods.

"Aged in Wood"

Four large Gladstone bags contained much of the equipment captured by Sheriff Bralley and Mr. Spence. A profusion of labels included such designations as "Straight American Whisky, 100 Pure, Aged in Wood," purporting to originate in distilleries located

LAKE RECORD

Kemp Level Highest In History; Water Is Released

With a 2.6-foot rise as a result of the recent rains, Lake Kemp recorded its maximum height of 1,143.1 feet above sea level this week, according to G. A. Remington, general manager of the Wichita County Water Improvement districts one and two.

Water is now being let out of the lake through two gates three feet wide and the water had gone down to a level of 1,142.5 late Tuesday evening, Mr. Remington said. The average height of the lake is 1,140.5 feet above sea level and the spillway elevation is 1,150 feet above sea level.

Water is now running over the spillway at the Diversion dam 1.5 feet deep.

COUNTY SEAT WAR THICKENS

2,813 Sign Petition For Courthouse Removal

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, Dec. 9.—The county seat battle in Young county, growing out of a controversy over the financing of the new court house, approached a climax Tuesday night when petitions bearing the names of 2,813 voters and asking for an election to move the seat from Graham to Newcastle, were compiled at a meeting of protesting forces in Olney. The goal of the petitioning forces is 3,000 signers before they present their demands before the county judge for action later this week.

The controversy, which has kept the county in turmoil for weeks, developed when the county commissioners voted to finance the new court house by script instead on by a bond issue, in order to expedite the work. Opponents of the script method centered their attack on Graham as the county seat, urging the selection of Newcastle as the nearest approach to a geographical center of the county.

Charles S. Richardson, general chairman of the protesting group, said Tuesday night that he expected a vote on the change within 60 days. The question of the courthouse bond issue will be left to the new county commissioners court which takes office Jan. 1. Before the proposed election can be called it will be necessary for the county judge to check the list of petitioners against the accredited poll tax list of the county. A majority of the qualified voters is required to validate the petitions.

This election, if granted will be the third since 1884, when the county seat was moved from Belknap to Graham. In 1913 the tax payers of the county voted to keep the courthouse in Graham by a scant margin of 160 votes after a heated election fight. Since that time there has been a more or less bitter feeling between the communities of the county. It is the opinion of the petitioners that the issues should be settled once and for always by a vote of the people since the question continues to keep the county in a political turmoil.

'Bugs' Moran Bored As Vagrancy Trial Starts

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Dec. 9. (UP)—George "Bugs" Moran, looking greatly bored, went on trial today before County Judge Perry L. Persons on a charge of vagrancy.

While the erstwhile north side Chicago gang leader sat with hands folded in his lap, his attorneys argued strenuously that the court had no jurisdiction in a vagrancy case. This the judge overruled and selection of a jury to try the notorious gunman was started.

Claire C. Edwards, a former judge, represented Moran. More than 15 Chicago witnesses, including police have been called to appear and testify regarding Moran's character.

South Texas Bank Robbed of $3,000

VELASCO, Texas, Dec. 9. (AP)—Three unmasked bandits held up the Velasco State bank here today and escaped with approximately $3,000 after beating and binding L. H. Skinner, assistant cashier, who was alone.

One of the men, Skinner said, appeared to be about 50 years old, and the other two about 30.

Residents said the men had driven about the town for several hours in an automobile before they stopped in front of the bank.

Authorities and members of a citizens posse blocked the highway to Angleton, the most likely road of escape, but several hours after the robbery had not apprehended the bandits.

'HUMAN MISERY' BILLS PASSED

Each House Votes Measure For Quick Relief

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9. (UP)—Each house of congress passed bills today embodying major phases of depression and drouth relief, and providing for appropriations of $170,000,000, as President Hoover vigorously spoke out against what he called plans for "raids on the treasury" for a possible aggregate of $4,500,000,000. Some he charged, were "playing politics at the expense of human misery."

Senator Robert M. La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, countered in the senate by introducing a resolution, which may come up tomorrow, to express the sense of the senate that "human suffering in this emergency should take precedence over the consideration of wealthy income tax payers."

Spirit of Acrimony

Thus in a spirit of acrimony, with Republicans and Democrats both sharply critical of Mr. Hoover's restricted relief plans, began the big fight of the winter session. If Mr. Hoover loses, a further income tax increase and probably a special session of congress will follow. If he

Two physicians testified that excessive smoking of the narcotic weed, which thrives in the Southwest, could make a person temporarily insane.

Swearingen, who testified in his own behalf Monday, denied any recollection of the killing.

Witnesses Describe Gifts Bought By Major Shepard for Texas Girl

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 9. (UP)—The story of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, army surgeon on trial here under a charge of poisoning his wife, today moved from technical mazes of medical testimony into the simple language of witnesses who described his private life.

The government completed that portion of its testimony which was designed to prove that the major gave Mrs. Zenana McCloskey Shepard bichloride of mercury to cause her death. It began the second phase of its case, that of attempting to prove he committed murder so that he might be left free to pursue a love for Miss Grace Brandon, a young stenographer whom he had met at San Antonio, Texas.

Three key witnesses were called by United States Attorney F. M. Brewster. They were Mrs. Catherine McCoskey of Los Angeles, sister of Mrs. Shephard; Sgt. J. C.

Tillman County Attorney Spends Day Denying Part in Liquor Ring

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 9. (AP)—Emphatic refutation of testimony purporting to show he had virtually admitted his guilt shortly after he was indicted in connection with the Tillman county liquor conspiracy was given today by P. V. Ruch, county attorney.

Ruch, one of seven defendants in the case, was on the stand all day and when court adjourned, his counsel, J. B. Dudley, announced only one other witness would be called. Government counsel had not yet cross-examined the county attorney. Seventeen other men charged in the conspiracy pleaded guilty when the case was opened a week ago Monday in the court of United States District Judge Edgar S. Vaught.

When Dudley reached the record in previous testimony introduced by the government in which statements made by Ruch were introduced as evidence, indicating he agreed to plead guilty provided the charges were reduced to a misdemeanor basis so that he would not be disbarred, lose his commission as lieutenant colonel in the army reserve corps and "be ruined socially," the defendant vigorously denied the implication.

Kell, Perkins, Clifford And Mytinger Buy Block Of Stock

CHANGE AT REFINERY

E. H. Eddleman Named Manager of American Properties

At the regular December meeting of the board of directors of the Security National bank, held Tuesday afternoon, J. C. Mytinger was elected active president of the bank for the year 1931, succeeding J. R. Staley who has been chairman of the board and president of the bank since it was organized on July 1, 1920. Mr. Staley will continue to serve as chairman of the board. Mr. Mytinger has been a director and vice president of the bank for a number of years.

Stock Purchase

According to announcement made by officials of the bank, a local group of citizens composed of Frank Kell, J. J. Perkins, N. M. Clifford, J. C. Mytinger and others have recently purchased from J. R. Staley a substantial block of stock in the Security National bank. Mr. Staley was one of the organizers of the bank and has all along been its largest individual stockholder. After making the sale above referred to, Mr. Staley remains a large stockholder in the bank, and will continue his official connection, both as a director and chairman of the board.

On account of his extensive and varied business interests, Mr. Staley has never been active as president of the bank and it was his desire that the bank have a president who would be active in the management of its affairs.

Leaves Refinery Post

Mr. Mytinger announced that he is severing his connection with the American Refining properties, having tendered his resignation as general manager and member of the creditors' committee at the regular semi-monthly meeting held last Monday morning, which resignation is to become effective Jan. 1. He stated that he had given up the management of the American Refining properties in order that he might have the necessary time to be active in the management of the bank in performing his duties as president.

EDDLEMAN BECOMES REFINERY MANAGER

At the meeting of the creditors' committee of the American Refining properties Monday, J. C. Eddleman as his successor as general manager, effective Jan. 1, a statement Tuesday said. E. H. Eddleman is now manager of the oil and refining division of the American Refining properties.

The committee expressed its appreciation to Mr. Mytinger for the services he had rendered in organizing the American Refining properties and acting as its general manager since July 1, 1928, and stated that it was with sincere regret and that the members accepted his resignation in order that he might devote his time to other of his many interests in this city.

Rioting in Valencia Results in One Death

VALENCIA, Spain, Dec. 9. (AP)—Rioting that raged unabated throughout Valencia today resulted in death of one striker, the serious wounding of a policeman, numerous minor wounded cases and 50 arrests.

The disorders started after a 48-hour general strike had been called in protest against failure of attempts to arbitrate a dispute between employers and workers in several crafts, that had crippled shipping and transportation facilities.

The only casualty reported suffered by the police was the serious wounding of Bravo Nunez, a member of the city force, who had been reported as having died.

RUCH STICKS TO DENIALS

Tillman Attorney Spends Day on Stands

for the alleged liquor ring "back in 1929 when I trusted him, but if that is a crime, go ahead and prosecute me, and I will leave my case to a fair jury."

Ruch testified the statements referred to were phrased by the district attorney and not in accordance with what he actually told investigators. Testimony of federal undercover men as to Ruch's purported admission of guilt were denied.

The county attorney said the United States district attorney told him before the statements were drawn up he wouldn't try to convict any man on the testimony of Walls.

Intimidation Hinted

The witness testified that when a grand jury was called at Frederick shortly after the liquor indictments were brought, a government agent accused him of calling the jury "to intimidate government witnesses in the liquor case." He said he had nothing to do with the jury calling.

Ruch said that while he was in the federal building at the time he gave the statement to the district attorney, an agent who urged him to plead guilty told him he had better do so because "when the government gets after a man, his friends leave him like rats leaving a sinking ship." The agent made this statement, Ruch said, after the county attorney had mentioned having many friends and that an election was approaching.

His testimony detailed his activities against bootleggers and still operators. Refutation of testimony of all the government witnesses implicating him in the alleged liquor ring was made.

Denies "Payoff" Charge

Bud Walls, the county attorneys chief accuser, was the fulcrum of the defense's testimony. All allegations made by Sheriff C. A. Wages, Constable Bud Rogers, Walls and others that Ruch had received protection money not only were denied, but the witness said he never talked with any of his accusers about taking money at any time.

He had first suspicioned "Walls' being a crook" this year when the deputy rang him on the telephone and "attempted to broach the matter of taking money from a bootlegger." He declared he "hung up the receiver on Walls."

Bruening Wins Two Reichstag Battles

BERLIN, Dec. 9. (AP)—Chancellor Bruening won two important victories in The Reichstag today, shutting off debate on difficult international questions and silencing threats against Foreign Minister Julius Curtius. The ministry now looks safe until after Christmas at least.

By a rising vote, The Reichstag approved Bruening's appeals and agreed the nation's best interest would not be served by discussing the Polish situation, the Versailles treaty, the Young plan or other questions running through the minds of some of the Reichstagers.

It was by an aggressive and open threat that the chancellor backed down attempts to unseat Foreign Minister Curtius. Bruening flatly told The Reichstag if such attempts were successful, he would take over Curtius' portfolio himself.

The warning was effective, and a no confidence motion on Curtius was withheld.

'Bonded' Liquor Seized in Raid

in Juarez, Chihuahua, Gordon & company (London) "Dry Gin" and other artistically prepared inducements. There was an abundance of corks, seals, caps, blending compounds, flavoring solutions, funnels and droppers, small and large, siphon lines.

Heavier, and more special accoutrements, of the luckless operator included a half dozen expensive electrical devices prescribed for use in "aging' the prospective whiskies. Directions supplied with the prized machines call for their submersion in the liquor before the plug is inserted to supply the electric current. A matter of a few hours, it was promised, would produce all of "the sunshine of 1,000 years" supposedly produced only by long aging in ancient wooden casks. There were also numerous tubes of flavoring, listed to retail at $1 each, the contents of each tube guaranteed also to impart authentic Old Kentucky flavors to one gallon of less authentic liquid.

Incense Seized

Possibly for restoring to the apartment thoroughly pleasing aromas after processes of "bottling in bond" had been completed, the layout included an elaborate supply of incense blocks. Drawing conclusions from the amounts used from various compartments in the box, the alleged distiller's favorite tastes in incense were wisteria, Water-Lily, violet and sandalwood.

Aside from the 30 cases brought to the jail in two automobiles, representing 720 pints, there were five 5-gallon jars full of liquid which presumably lacked only the final touches of flavor and aging—all a matter of six hours—to be ready for bottling in bond. Other bottles, ranging in capacity from one pint to a quart, contained numerous other liquids presumably for use in the various processes of blending to suit the different labels available.

The apartment contained no still, Sheriff Bralley stated, but did have a large copper kettle in which the "aging" process apparently had been applied.

Members of the sheriff's force were searching for a man Tuesday night, it was stated, who was suspected of having assembled and organized the production and distribution unit reflected by results of the raid.

HOOVER WARNS OF TAX RAISE

President Speaks Against Treasury Raids

wins, public works will be increased and local communities and the Red Cross will be left to care for any who suffer.

The much discussed "harmony" appeared to be blasted, between and within the parties. Whether co-operation will extend to smothering the measures disapproved by Mr. Hoover, which are understood to include the much agitated $3,000,000,000 cash soldier bonus payment plan and the project for a bond issue or a tax increase to take care of direct federal relief, remains to be seen.

Works Bill Passes

In two hours the house passed and sent to the senate the administration's $110,000,000 special public works appropriation, cue from the president's tentative $150,000,000 figure.

In even less time, the senate passed and sent to the house a $60,000,000 farm loan authorization, $35,000,000 larger than purposed by the administration and violating the president's principles by authorizing loans through the farm board to relieve human suffering as well as shortage of stock-feed, seed and gasoline for tractors.

Both bills are expected to be passed by the other house and sent to the president for signature before Christmas. The public works bill carries $80,000,000 for federal highways, $22,500,000 for rivers and harbors, $3,000,000 for Mississippi flood control, and the rest for roads in national forests and national parks, all of it to be spent in the next six months under direction of a cabinet committee on projects already authorized by congress.

Hoover Vigorous

Mr. Hoover spoke with vigor today, at his bi-weekly press conference, as he read a prepared statement charging that those who are seeking large appropriations "are playing politics at the expense of human misery."

"Prosperity," he said, "cannot be restored by raids upon the public treasury."

He did not enumerate the measures introduced in congress for large extra-budgetal expenditures, but he said sternly:

"No matter how devised, an increase in taxes in the end falls upon the workers and farmers, or alternatively deprives industry of that much ability to give employment and defeat the very purpose of these schemes. For the government to finance by bond issues deprives industry and agriculture of just that much capital for its own use and for employment."

Mr. Hoover noted that leaders of both parties were co-operating with him to keep down expenditures, but Democratic Leader Joseph Robinson, Arkansas, led an attack in the senate against Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde's statement that governmental loans to farmers for human food almost amounted to a dole. Such a statement from anyone else would be termed "silly" Robinson said.

Christmas Balloon Stunt Ends in Fall

Special to The Record News.

BRECKENRIDGE, Texas, Dec. 9.—Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Henderson almost ended their careers as professional parachute jumpers here Tuesday afternoon when a large balloon in which they were scheduled to make a public ascent dressed as Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus ripped to pieces, letting the man and woman drop suddenly about 25 feet into a crowd of spectators. One little boy was hit by the falling couple but was not injured.

Mrs. Henderson was seriously hurt. It is feared her spine was fractured. Mr. Henderson is also likewise seriously hurt, being badly cut about the face by a knife which he carried in his hands.

The accident occurred when the base of the balloon tore away. The couple are from Ohio and were here to do a special Santa Claus stunt for the Breckenridge American, local daily newspaper.

MAZATLAN, Sinaloa State, Mex., Dec. 9. (UP)—The first earthquake since 1907 shook Mazatlan at 12:20 p. m., today.

The people rushed into the streets panic-stricken. No casualties, however, were reported. The damage was light.

The tremors seemed to move across the city from a westerly direction. The shocks lasted for a full minute.

The quake occurred during a heavy rain, which has been falling for the past 24 hours.

Many adobe structures on the outskirts of the town fell.

Hotel Employe Freed After Murder Trial

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 9. (UP)—Charges of manslaughter, brought against Arthur D. Hanford, Sioux City, following the death of a hotel employe here, were dismissed in district court today.

Judge James E. Fitzgerald directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. He said evidence against Hanford was purely circumstantial.

The prosecution had charged Hanford, intoxicated, had struck Fred Slayden, Hotel Fontenelle baggageman, causing his death.

Wife of Missing Man Sure He Will Return

PECOS, Texas, Dec. 9. (UP)—Despite the failure of West Texas peace officers to locate Phil Payne, brother of the Amarillo attorney attorney who killed his wife and himself with nitroglycerine, his wife was confident today that he is alive and will reappear.

"Why we don't hear from him, I cannot say, but I have faith that somehow he will come back to us," she declared.

Sheriff Louis Roberson indicated today Payne might have suffered a lapse of memory and wandered away.

Motorcycles, with and without sidecars, and trucks fitted with radio receivers, are all used by Paris police in pursuit of criminals. There are 300 motorcyclists, in addition to a large number of bicycle police.

PLANE ADDS 'SPEED RING'

Staley Field Cruiser Gets New Cowling

The 300-horsepower four-place Stinson Detroiter, used by the Wichita Falls Air Transport company at Staley field for cross country hops, added around eight miles an hour to its maximum speed Tuesday afternoon when field attendants fitted it with the new "speed ring," a motor cowling designed to cut down resistance.

The big dark blue monoplane, a special paint job striped with white is powered with a Wright Whirlwind motor and is a recent addition to the equipment at the field.

The clear, mild weather since the rains last week and the special December reduction in prizes for student fliers have increased enrollment in the company's training school, conducted by H. A. Overstreet, instructor.

Landings at the field Tuesday included H. E. Stewart, Curtiss-Wright field agent out of Dallas, flying a three place Curtiss-Robin Challenger.

Last Possessions Taken From Pearl O'Loughlin

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 9. (UP)—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin's last possessions, her clothes and trunk, were taken from her today after she had been convicted of murdering her 10-year-old stepdaughter.

The clothes and trunk were taken from her at the county jail and delivered to the home of her father, Arthur R. Weisz.

Mrs. O'Loughlin was found guilty by a jury last night of killing little Leona, with ground glass, blows on the head with a tire iron, and drowning in Berkeley park lake.

Death Ends Marriage After Seventy-Five Years

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 9. (UP)—A marriage, which united H. L. Hensley, 92, and his wife almost 75 years ago, had ended tonight as the couple planned to celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary.

Hensley died yesterday.

The couple were married at Shannondale, Ind., Feb. 22, 1856. They had been married longer than any other couple in the United States, it was believed.

Wichitans Slow to Buy 1931 Auto Licenses

Licensing of Wichita county automobiles for 1931 had obtained only a small start Tuesday, according to Guy C. Raley, tax collector, 71 sets of plates having been issued through that date. Mr. Raley again stressed the advantage of procuring numbers now, in order to eliminate the usual January rush.

Colds and Coughs Yield to Calotabs

Medical writers agree that the important point in the treatment of a cold, or cough due to a cold, is to relieve the congestion in the nose and throat, thereby preventing serious complications which may follow a neglected cold. To stop this congestion calomel was the accepted and standard remedy until Calotabs, the improved calomel compound tablet was introduced.

Now that science has robbed calomel of its nausea and danger, making it pleasant to take and perfectly safe for general use, over forty million Calotabs are consumed in the U. S. yearly with only the most pleasant and satisfactory results.

In millions of homes Calotabs have proven their superiority in the prompt relief of colds and coughs due to colds.

One or two Calotabs at bed-time with a glass of sweet milk or water. No salts necessary. No nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning the congestion has subsided, your cold or cough is relieved, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish—no danger.

Get a family package of Calotabs, containing dull directions, only thirty-five cents. Trial size, ten cents. At any drug store.—Adv.

MAJOR'S GIFTS TO GIRL BARED

Mrs. Shepard's Fatal Illness Described

Gresser, pharmacist at Fort Riley, Kan., where Mrs. Shepard died, and Miss Clara Brown, a nurse who attended the major's wife during the month of illness before her death in the spring of 1929.

Just before adjournment the government called a series of salespeople from various shops and adduced testimony that they had sold the major various gifts which they said were intended for Miss Brandon.

Mrs. McCoskey told how she went to Fort Riley in response to a summons from the major and found her sister critically ill. She told of efforts the major made to provide Mrs. Shepard with medical care and indicated he was deeply affected.

Mrs. McCoskey was questioned about the major's objections to an autopsy. She said he at first declared he would not have one because his wife had objected to it in conversations with him. Later the defense brought out through a witness that the major eventually did authorize an autopsy.

Sergeant Gresser put into the records prescriptions he had filled for Major Shepard, among them one in which he put eight grains of mercury. He then read a telegram which he said Major Shepard asked that he send to "a niece of mine at San Antonio, Miss Grace Brandon."

Miss Brown told of the agony which Mrs. Shepard suffered before her death and of treatment she received from the major and other army physicians.

"Major Shepard prepared capsules in the kitchen and I administered them for him," she testified.

Miss Brown described Mrs. Shepard as cheerful after she recovered from several severe attacks of pain.

"She was a beautiful woman," the witness went on, "and there was no evidence whatever that she indulged in any excesses. She did not like the taste of liquor which was given her at times."

C. L. Kagey, chief of the defense, had indicated he might seek to show acute alcoholism contributed to Mrs. Shephard's death.

Kagey fought every part of the testimony by which the government attempted to build up a circumstantial proof of murder. He attacked the efficiency of the autopsy, of experts' examinations of the viscera. He suggested by testimony the major's wife suffered from tooth infection, heart trouble and alcoholism. He mentioned appendicitis attacks she had suffered. He even suggested a possibility of tubercular infection in the woman.

Thirteen men are required to ring out a full chime of the bells in St. Paul's cathedral, London. The bells weigh from 900 to 6,200 pounds.

From Santa's Work Shop to Noble-Little Hardware Co.:

Glad tidings to all little children of Wichita Falls, Texas. I, Jack Claus, have been appointed by dear old Santa, my brother, to help him out these coming holidays with a new toy called Joy Pony, with which all little folks in Wichita Falls from ages one to seven years will be delighted.

Santa Claus has been very particular in the manufacturing of this toy, as it is so constructed that it cannot be upset while in operation. Jack Claus will bring with him Teddie, his big Joy Pony, and I am inviting all the small children and their parents to visit Noble-Little Hardware Company on December 10 and 11 at 3:00 p. m. Be sure and have mother bring you for a free ride on Joy Pony as Santa does not want any little kiddies overlooked.

I also give a special invitation to mothers of cripple children to bring them to see Jack Claus and Joy Pony as I will demonstrate to them that they can ride and enjoy themselves the same as children that are normal.

The opening of Toy Town at Noble-Little Hardware Company will be December 10, with one of the most complete assortments of toys in Texas. Jack Claus will receive all letters for Santa Claus at this store.

Goodbye for now, as I must start packing my Joy Ponies and Teddie and be on my way, for I have a long journey before me. I will be at Noble-Little Hardware Company just after Santa's parade.

Don't forget the date, time and place—

TILLMAN ROAD SURVEY MADE

Engineers Map Out Two Proposed Routes

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Dec. 9.—Felix Carroll of the state highway department and a crew of six chain and rod men who have been here the past two months doing the engineering work on two proposed highways from Frederick to the bridge across Red river, south of Davidson, completed their work the first of the week. Neither of the roads cross the Frisco, but remain on the east side of that railroad. Both roads cross the Katy railroad, the first on South Fifteenth street at the present crossing, and the second about 500 feet south of the section line between South Eighth and South Ninth street.

The first road goes six miles south of the intersection of Grand avenue on Fifteenth street, then angles southwest to the north end of the Davidson bridge, the entire distance of this section being 13.7 miles.

The other road passes down Main, widest street in Frederick, to the south part of town, then angles southwest to the Frisco railroad, which is paralleled to Davidson, when it goes a little west of south to the north end of the Red river bridge. Distance of this section is 13.5 miles. Carroll says this road is about a quarter of a mile shorter from Snyder than the road passing through Frederick on Fifteenth street.

All this data will be sent to the state highway department at Oklahoma City. Carroll says he has no idea which of the above, if either, will be selected, nor does he know when the work will start, should either route be selected.

Last year when Santa Claus visited the city and alighted from the train he was practically lost in a sea of youngsters who had come to see him. Many homes of the city will also take on the Christmas spirit at the same time and will put their Christmas decorations to conform with the plan of the city as a whole.

Motive for Death Of Woman Sought

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9. (INS)—With Lui Fook, 60-year-old Chinese houseboy under arrest, police today were attempting to establish a motive for the strangling of his employer, Mrs. Rosetta Baker, former wife of the late Dr. Clarence Clarke Baker, society physician.

The body of the 70-year-old woman was found a few hours after she returned to her apartment accompanied by Walter Middleton Outler, 26-year-old actor.

Oklahoma Sportsmen Win Support For Game Preserve Appropriation

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Dec. 9.—The Oklahoma division of the Isaak Walton league is pressing it's request upon congress for a substantial appropriation for enlargement and extensive improvement of the Wichita National Forest and Game preserve, north of Cache, and is receiving much encouraging support by influential representatives in congress from other states. Should a material appropriation be received from the present congress, a great advance will have been scored.

The program has for its object the enlargement of the forest by an additional 35,000 acres, a fence around the entire area, the building of 17 major likes and a number of smaller lakes, and the establishment of feeding and nesting grounds for wild game turkeys, pheasants, chickens and quail. The larger lakes would serve as resting places for migratory ducks and geese.

Bills are now before congress which have had the endorsement of the national organization.

Plans include the carving of a giant memorial on the face of Mount Scott, highest point in the Wichitas, to Will Dilg, first president of the Isaak Walton League of America.

The land sought by the justice department was part of a tract of eight or nine thousand acres being used as an army remount station.

The attorney general said he supposed the war department would designate which part of this it desired to transfer.

With the assurance of Hurley, Mitchell said, plans are being forwarded for the reformatory which will house 1,000 young offenders.

With the acceptance of the report submitted by the nominating committee at the meeting Tuesday morning of the executive board of the Federated Missionary societies, several new officers were slated to take their places in January. The committee reported names and officers as follows; Mrs. S. E. Trevathan, president; first vice president, Mrs. H. P. Ledford; second vice president, Mrs. Paul Steed; third vice president, Mrs. J. Duties of the first vice president are to act as house chairman, those of the second are to take charge of the juvenile jail work and of the third to act as membership chairman.

Mrs. G. R. Ellis presided Tuesday morning at the meeting held at the day nursery and called for reports of the chairmen; Mrs. W. H. Downing gave an enthusiastic report of the jail work and Mrs. J. Lem Keevil told of the services at the county farm. Highland Heights Christian church will hold services there Dec. 21 and the First Christian church on Jan. 11, 1931, it was announced.

Mrs. J. W. Ginsburg reported a paid up membership in the Federated Missionary society of 1,084 members and according to the report of Mrs. F. T. Datson, 1,232 children were cared for at the nursery in the past month, an average of 51 each day. Ms. Datson also reported the splendid work of the First Baptist church in furnishing Thanksgiving baskets for each of the 32 families represented in the nursery.

Anonymous Gift

Announcement was made of a gift received in a letter signed "anonymous" Tuesday, enclosing a cashier's check for $20 to be used by the nursery in memory of the late J. A. Kemp.

Plans for the annual Christmas tree were discussed and it was announced that in place of the nursery families being cared for this Christmas in the usual manner, the churches of the city will furnish the Christmas tree and gifts ready and will prepare a Christmas basket for each mother.

It was announced that the next quarterly meeting, Jan. 8, would take place at the Knights of Columbus hall, with the Catholic Daughters acting as hostesses. The annual luncheon will be given Jan. 31, the time, place and program will be announced later.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Although Tuesday was Dec. 9, the skies were like April, sometimes dark and sometimes sunshiny, and there seemed to be in the air the breath of spring. Cosmos must have thought the season turned around for we saw them peeping out with alert rose and purple and golden faces.

Leaves are all off the sycamores, but shrubs still wearing brilliant hues and some trees still holding to last leaves show their bravery on the streets. But even bare limbs of trees are lovely when one looks at the blue or moonlight sky through their lacy branches.

And with the coming of sleet and snow, hedges and trees with ice-covered branches come nearer spelling fairyland than any thing else to grown up mortals. They are diamond bedded when the sun shines on them.

We looked at the social calendar Tuesday morning and re-reading the program of the Music Study club, it dawned on us how startlingly rich Wichita Falls is in musician. This city with about one-fourth the population of Memphis, Tenn., seems to us far ahead of that city in cultivation of musical talent.

Violin, harp, piano, voice and organ—they are all developed in Wichita Falls to the highest degree. The Wichita Falls Symphony orchestra, that wonderful ensemble trained by Ethel Allen Nelson, is worthy one of the music loving cities of the world.

The executive board of the federated missionary societies also met Tuesday. In it is another exemplification of the high spiritual standard of the city. All creeds join in caring for the children—Jew and Gentile, Protestant and Catholic, working hand in hand.

"The quest of an ideal is the only thing worthy in mankind." In one form or another, all people pursue an ideal. Every day one sees proof of the statement and who are we, to criticize the ideals of any other person?

We get all there is out of life by fighting. If we declare a truce with the fates, life becomes rather a stale thing.

And we would grasp all that makes us feel young. If one fights his way to comfort through a snow storm, he is filled with glow and youth and exaltation in the end.

A woman's first child makes her full of new life; that child seems unlike any other born into the world. Men who build cities forget Rome and Athens and the buried cities of yesterday and are young in their work of creation. Everything that makes a person young at heart has its measure of greatness.

Parent Education Group Meets at Austin School

Members of the Austin school Parent Education circle met Tuesday morning in the school auditorium, the lesson beginning with a timely caution from Mrs. Felicia Downs about teaching children the true significance of Christmas. Mrs. Downs emphasized the thought that the giving spirit should be inculcated rather than the receiving spirit prevalent among children.

An interesting paper on "The Falsehood Habit," prepared by Mrs. E. F. Bagwell was read to the class by Mrs. O. D. Scott. Companionship with the child was suggested as the best means of finding the basic cause of telling untruths. An example of scrupulous honesty in small matters about the home was urged upon each parent.

The "Losing and Forgetting Habit" was discussed by the class after an article written by Dr. Garry Cleveland Myers was read, in which this well known authority said that many children are misfits in school because of careless habits acquired at home. Dr. Myers also discouraged physical punishment for careless youngsters saying that a child's memory is not as good as it is often said to be.

Mrs. W. P. Griffis read a paper on "Teaching Respect for the Property of Others," which was also based on Dr. Myers course. Teaching this principle makes children careful with textbooks furnished by the state and with borrowed articles.

"Teaching Care and Economy" was discussed at length by the class, and "When We Make Slaves of Ourselves," was a topic enthusiastically taken up.

Those who took part in the lesson were Mesdames C. R. Neal, W. P. Griffis, O. D. Scott, J. B. King, O. E. Joiner, Reese Carter, Felicia Downs and H. R. Cloughley.

Reformed Drinker Turns to D. Dix For Aid in Suit

Dear Miss Dix—Two years ago I was granted a divorce from a woman I had married the year after I left college. I was in no wise responsible for the failure of our marriage and with the issuance of the decree I lost faith in women and began overindulging in drink. Then along came the girl I had dreamed of, one who was like my dead mother, a girl who does not smoke, abhors the use of intoxicants, one who is considerate, kind, thoughtful and the personification of all the virtues. We fell desperately in love with each other, but her father objects to our marriage, although I have not touched liquor for eight months, presented a bank book with a saving account regarded by all as adequate, and have the testimony of many close associates that I am a different man from the one of 18 months ago.

The girl's parents contend that, although I was without blemish in so far as my first marriage was concerned, differences will occur in any marriage, and I might turn to drink as a means of forgetting. What do you say?—DOUBTFUL.

Answer—I think the girl's parents are utterly unfair in judging you by one passing episode instead of by your whole life history. They have no right to condemn you for what you did in the reaction from a great shock that had upset your whole plan of existence, and that had brought crashing down to earth all of your ideals and faiths and hopes and plans. In the first throes of a great grief or a great disappointment, few of us are able to keep our sanity. We lose our sense of proportion and our reasonableness, and are as little responsible for our acts as any madman.

If a man is a habitual drunkard, certainly parents should move heaven and earth to keep their daughter from marrying him, but such is not your case. You have no constitutional craving for liquor. You merely drank to drown sorrow, and foolish as that was, it left none of the desire for intoxicants that makes a man a drunkard. You could stop drinking. You have stopped. And I should think that the chance of your ever going back to drink was extremely remote. Indeed, just because you have glimpsed the pit into which you were about to descend you are the more likely never to risk that danger again.

Nor is the parents' contention that if this wife fails you, as your first wife failed you, you will again find consolation in your cups. In the first place, this girl isn't likely to follow in her predecessor's footsteps. Even bad luck seldom strikes twice in the same place and few men get two faithless wives.

Of course, no marriage is all fair-weather sailing. No two people can think alike on every subject and agree on every point. Even the most admirable and virtuous of wives will have their faults and their little peculiarities, but all of these are far enough away from the big sins and the great tragedies on which marriages are wrecked and which lead to divorce and the breaking up of homes.

Certainly, if you marry this girl, you will have your ups and downs, your little spats, your little misunderstandings, because both of you will be human beings and not pinfeathered angels. But you will kiss and make up and there will be none of the despair and heartache that leads men to try to drug themselves into forgetfulness. At any rate, the risk is worth taking.

I have observed that people who have had an unhappy first marriage nearly always are peculiarly happy in their second marriages. Whether this is because fate makes amends to them in sending them good husbands and wives in payment for what they endured from their first, or whether they have gained wisdom from experience and are better pickers the second time than they were the first, or whether they realize that the failure of their first marriages was partly their own fault and so are tenderer and kinder and more tactful in dealing with their new husbands and wives than they were with the old, I do not know.

But I do know that there are no better husbands or wives than those who have gone through the purgatory of a miserable first marriage, and who seem, somehow, purified by the flame and ready to enter into the bliss of a second marriage that is a heaven on earth.

—DOROTHY DIX.

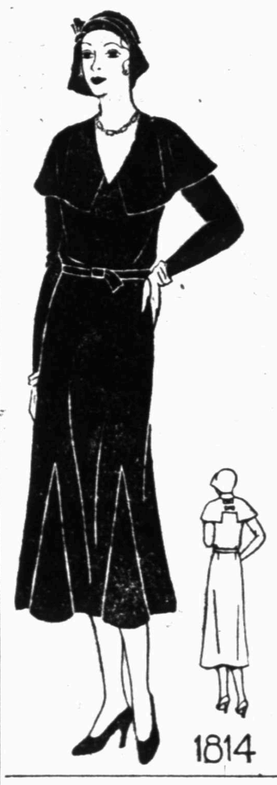

Dear Miss Dix—I have an only child, a girl of 11, who is very difficult to manage. Her mother died when she was born and for 10 years she lived with different people. I tried to make up for her loss by every kindness and indulgence and I now realize that this spoiled her and made her very selfish. A little more than a year ago I was married again and my wife tries in every way to make this child happy, but she is very unappreciative and determined to have her own way in everything, and when she is opposed by either of us she flies into a passion and is very impudent to us. How can such a child best be taught unselfishness and consideration for others?

—WORRIED FATHER.

Answer—The best thing to do with her would be to put her in some school in which children are disciplined. She will not stand for it from her stepmother because she will consider that she is being persecuted if she is made to behave herself. Also, it is unfair to the stepmother for her to have to put up with the hatefulness of a self-willed youngster, for such children have a diabolical ability to torment those they have a grudge against.

Of course, the poor child is hardly to blame. She is the result of her environment, but it is almost impossible to overcome 10 years of bad teaching.—DOROTHY DIX.

Supreme Artistry Shown In Music Study Club Program

A group of Wichita Falls' most outstanding musicians took part in a delightful program when members of the Music Study club and their friends were entertained Tuesday morning with a musicale at the home of Mrs. Phillip M. Oviatt on Hayes with Mesdames Stanley Raub, Fred Sharpe, Edwin Bebb and W. C. Hamilton, assisting hostesses.

The program was a real artist program with Mrs. J. E. Hall, accompanied by Mrs. Lucile Brooks Huff, giving the opening number, Mrs. Hall played exquisitely the "Romance" of Rubenstein, displaying striking ability and a depth of tone rarely heard in local audiences.

Mrs. Wayne J. Holmes sang two numbers in her lovely lyric soprano voice, "A Memory" by Garz, and "Hymn to the Sun," by Rismky-Karsakoff. Mrs. Florence Sammons delighted her audience with her beautiful interpretation of Chopin, giving the "Prelude in G," and the "Fantasie Impromptu C Sharp Minor." Miss Sammons showed her capacity to select not only a master to interpret but her ability to interpret the most difficult technique of his art.

Outstanding on the program was the wonderful "Sonata" for piano and violin by Lekeu played by Mrs. W. L. Olmsted and Mrs. Flora Greenwood. The ease with which Mrs. Olmsted swept over the difficult piano score held her audience breathless. Mrs. Greenwood as usual was the artist, losing her own personality in the spirit of her interpretation. Her versatility was shown in her ability to give to her listeners the particularly poignant beauty of the violin parts of the sonata as well as the brilliant technique it required.

The last number on the program was a group of three songs of the modern French school sung brilliantly by Mrs. Pearl Calhoun Davis with Mrs. Olmsted at the piano. Her songs were, "Aux Temps de Fees," (Koechlin); "Psyche," (Paladhin); "Arriette," (Vidal), and showed to great advantage her lovely dramatic soprano voice as well as her linguistic attainments.

At the conclusion of the program a beautiful salad plate decorated with lighted candles and carrying favors of bittersweet corsages tied with tulle bows was served to about 50 guests and members.

National Officer Addresses Local W.C.T.U. Members

Mrs. Leora Brewer, organizer, lecturer and evangelist of the National W. C. T. U. was the speaker at a meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held Tuesday afternoon in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church when Mrs. Emma Goff presided and conducted the devotional opening the meeting.

Mrs. J. W. Akin was at the piano when the group sang "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," and Mrs. Jessie B. Potts of Iowa, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. N. H. Martin, led in prayer.

Mrs. Goff introduced Mrs. Brewer who using as her text, "He That Keepeth the Law, Happy Is He," talked on "The Dangers We Are Facing." An interesting open discussion followed her lecture.

In the business meeting following, Mrs. Brewer gave a recipe for an ideal local union: "Take a level measure of officers, a heaping measure of members, a generous sprinkling of visitors; place in a pleasant room; mix well with cordiality; add many hearts full of devotion and full interesting program. Season with prayer; let rise in the warm air of inspiration. This will serve as many women as you have faith to reach."

Officers in the local union were elected as follows: Mrs. Joseph Graves, president; Mrs. J. W. Crews, treasurer; Mrs. J. W. Akin, corresponding secretary and superintendent of publicity; Mrs. Emma Goff, vice president at large; Mrs. R. M. Morrow, recording secretary. Mrs. Ozella Scoggins was appointed agent for the Union Signal, the national W. C. T. U. paper, as the first act of the new president.

General officers were selected to make preparations for the rally to be held Jan. 16 and the 13th district W. C. T. U. convention program to be given in Vernon Thursday, Dec. 11, was read.

Those present were Mesdames Joseph Graves, L. E. Cowling, Ozella Scoggins, Julia Buckworth, J. W. Crews, O. Slopansky, Emma Goff, J. W. Akin, Mrs. Jessie B. Potts, a member of the Clarinda, Iowa, union, and Mrs. Brewer.

Swindler's Victim Waxes Poetic In Righteous Wrath

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Dec. 9.—
He never came back
He never came back,
I waited an hour, or more;
But his blood will be poured
If he don't have that Ford
When we meet on that beautiful shore.

He was a nicely dressed young man of about 23 yars of age. He said he was an employe of the state highway department, and he wanted to buy a sports model Ford coupe.

Floyd Wallace, genial salesman for the motor company, demonstrated the bright new sports coupe to the affable stranger, and he appeared to be much pleased with the manner in which the new machine performed.

Following the demonstration the stranger asked permisison to drive the coupe around the block "all by himself," and the salesman consented. So far as known he is still driving and officers have thus far failed to find a single clew as to his whereabouts of the whereabouts of the new sports model.

Prison Inmates Charged With Raising Notes

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 9. (AP)—Leo S. Williams, federal secret service operative, said today he would seek a federal grand jury investigation of "raised note activity" at the state penitentiary.

Williams arrested Henry Ford and another youth, Everett Hill, both of Franklin, on charges of passing a bill raised from $2 to represent a $20 note.

The agent said the note raising was the work of Howard Barr in whose cell he has seized equipment for raising notes three times within the last five years.

FIRE AT HOME FATAL TO FOUR

Mother, Two Children And Boy Visitor Burned

SEMINOLE, Okla., Dec. 9. (UP) —Four persons were burned to death here today when fire destroyed the home of Alpah Kirby.

Mrs. Kirby was among the victims. Two of the other dead were her children. The other was a nephew who was visiting the Kirby family.

The dead:
MRS. ALPAH KIRBY, 28.
VIRGINIA GRACE KIRBY, 2.
GWINN KIRBY, 4.
GEORGE GLENN HICKS, 5.

A mother's love brought death to Mrs. Kirby. She had dashed from the flaming house with another son, whom she saved, and had returned to the flaming house in an effort to rescue Virginia Grace, witnesses said.

Her body was found in the bedroom in which the baby was sleeping at the time of the fire. The infant was clutched in her arms. Both bodies were burned beyond recognition.

The fire was believed to have started from a gas stove which had been allowed to burn through the night because of the cold.

The dead woman's husband was working in a machine shop only a few feet from the flaming house. He arrival too late to be of assistance.

The victims will be buried in one grave tomorrow, he said. All of the bodies were charred.

George Hicks was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Hicks of Elgin, Okla. He had been visiting here only a day.

All available fire apparatus of the city was called to the fire when it was apparent the flames were out of control. It was feared for a time the blaze would spread to other homes.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 9. (UP) —State highway commissioners today assured a Jackson county delegation that a contract will be included in one of the earliest possible lettings for completion of the grading and drainage on highway 62 west from Altus to the Harmon county line.

Nine miles of this highway now are under construction and the other seven will be let soon, Chairman Lew H. Wentz said.

Oklahoma Cotton Crop To Average Fifth Bale

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 9. (UP) —Oklahoma's cotton crop will make an average yield of 106 pounds to the acre, it was estimated today by K. D. Blood and S. L. Bryan, federal state statisticians, in a crop forecast. They estimate a crop of 4,061,000 acres and say the acreage yield, as based on conditions of Dec. 1, will be the lowest since 1923.

The five-year average yield is 146 pounds.

The entire cotton crop for the state based on their forecast is 900,000 bales, out of the country's total forecast crop of 14,243,000 bales.

Free the Framed Victims
Our Racketeering Cops
Why Not Jail Them?
Dominion Freedom

—By EMILE GAUVREAU

That graft, vice and crime in New York comprise an interlinked chain, one ring bearing on another, has long been suspected, and in some instances revealed. Bootlegging and the sale of judgeships, the sale of women into vice, the fixing of magistrates, bribing of ward heelers, officeholders — all have been exposed. Now another racket comes to light through the driving energy of Special Prosecutor Kresel.

Ticket scalpers, who used to hold up patrons of the theater with demands of as high as $25 for a $5.50 seat, paid policemen nightly for the privilege of conducting their traffic unmolested. Those who refused to pay tribute were arrested and their tickets confiscated, all of which supplied some court officials with many good seats to the theater and sports entertainments.

It appears that, whenever a racket is exposed, the police figure in it as accessories, if not principals. What is the matter with the idea of taking the framed victims out of the cells and putting in their place the crooked policemen and magistrates who are the real enemies of society?

Little by little the dominions under England are winning complete autonomy. One by one privileges are extended, now to Canada, now to Australia, now to India, now to her possessions in the Pacific, South Atlantic and Indian oceans.

Ever since Great Britain took possession of Australia, the governor generals there were native Englishmen, appointed by the home government and without recommendation by the dominion. The appointment of Sir Isaac Alfred Isaacs as governor of Australia breaks a tradition that goes back to 1788, when Britain sent her first governor to Sydney. Sir Isaac is a native Australian, and his appointment was recommended by the Australian premier, J. H. Scullin.

Australia and Canada are virtually independent. What is virtual today will be a fact tomorrow. Mandates, suzerainties, protectorates are doomed to a brief existence. The trend is towards freedom, more and more. Bread and freedom are the concomitants of existence. Lacking bread, people revolt; denied freedom, people overthrow authority.

From London comes the news that Mr. Harry Craddock, American cocktail king of the Savoy hotel bar, is coming to New York and has cabled 50 celebrities to form a committee to help him investigate the liquor situation in his homeland. Mr. Craddock will need no committee to learn that more cocktails have been invented in America than in all the years before this country went dry, as it is laughingly described. Prohibition "drove" Mr. Craddock to London. He should not have taken it so seriously.

McGregor Believes Pay Increase Effective Now

AUSTIN, Dec. 9. (AP)—Senator T. H. McGregor of Austin has added his voice to the controversy over whether legislators will be entitled to their increased pay under the constitutional amendment apparently adopted at the last election.

McGregor said today that without question the amendment made it mandatory upon the legislature to enact a law fixing the salaries at $10 per day, as provided in the amendment.

In this he differed with a number of others, including former Gov. James E. Ferguson, who believes the increase would not become effective for the incoming legislators.

Hambone's Meditations

Copyright, 1930 by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.

Little Old New York was certainly given a lot of credit when Wall street made it a loan of a mere $60,000,000 the other day.

The Notre Dame boys may not know a thing about the fashions, but they're certainly famous for their old-fashioned Irish lacing.

In the steep climb to success, says the office sage, a little "pull" often counts as much as considerable push.

French wine, a news item says, is to be sent to Canada in exchange for Canadian wheat. And to think we had a surplus of the grain this year!

Autos and Bread Lines

A VERY fancy and high-toned automobile show was held in New York the other day. Machines built for the very wealthy were put on display in a big hotel, the affair was dignified with the title, "salon," and the average price of the cars exhibited was slightly better than $10,000.

You might be interested in a paragraph from the story in the New York World which described the show:

"A 22-piece orchestra playing classical music, soft rugs, beautiful women wandering to and fro, prosperous looking men, suave salesmen and over it all a constant talk of cars, 90 custom-built cars, the last word in detail, beauty and power, aggregating in value $1,000,000, are on exhibition."

Some of these cars must have been very nice indeed. One, for instance, was cream-colored with gold-plated fittings, with a built-in boudoir table equipped with perfume bottles, powder boxes and the like. Another had a built-in liquor buffet in the back seat, with a space for eight quarts of booze, a cocktail shaker, glasses and other implements. Still another sported an electric split-second clock and a radio in the rear compartment.

All of this must have been very uplifting, and one's dominant emotion on reading about it is an unholy desire to own one of these machines. But the exhibition, coming at the time it did, is a little bit disquieting. It offers too great a contrast to the bread lines, the soup kitchens, the employment offices and the all-night flop houses that are to be found in such profusion in New York and in other cities.

Of course, it is perfectly proper for manufacturers to build and display such cars, and it is perfectly proper for the man who can afford it to buy one of them. No one can quarrel with this exhibit in itself.

But it does emphasize the fact that we are living in economic system that brings about startling contrasts between extreme poverty and extreme wealth. Gold-plated automobiles with built-in boudoir tables lose a little of their beauty when displayed a few blocks away from a shuffling bread line.

No system that produces such contrasts is entirely healthy. It is bound, sooner or later, to undergo a change. And million-dollar salons of this kind are not exactly the thing to put people who are interested in making such a change in a frame of mind to bring it about gradually and tactfully.

Intra-Cranial Massage

IF THE reaction of the nearly 1,000 persons present at the Memorial auditorium Sunday afternoon for the Open Forum's presentation of Dr. Charles G. Obermeyer could be read accurately through their attention and expressions, they will serve as a most effective publicity committee for the remaining eight programs to be given by the organization during the winter and spring.

Dr. Obermeyer's challenging address might properly be classified as an energetic shampoo applied inside the cranium, rather than above it. Which is to recognize the unusual as replacing the commonplace. His thought was electrifying in its stimulation of thought.

Typical of the incisive analysis with which he treated subjects vital because of their intimacy with our daily life was his answer to the first question propounded Sunday afternoon in the forum period. His opinion was asked as to whether or not complete business success could bring complete happiness to any man.

"Absolutely no," was his quick response. "Society today produces no more sincere and tragic examples of true penitence than the thousands of business men who find out too late that in pursuing business success they have bankrupted their own lives. They have learned that business is not an end in itself, but must be a means to an end if it is to serve the cause of happiness. There is no such thing as a business man's life. His business must be a means to finding a life within his community, and his universe. Unless he links himself with some form of cultural pursuit, he has missed the boat altogether."

Which comprises a commendable sermon, remembering that he defined culture as "understanding, grasping the meaning of life, vibrating to the needs of other men—the secret of which lies fundamentally in the human heart."

Wages Go Down in Italy

CONDITIONS in Italy must be a great deal less roseate than the friends of Fascism have been claiming. Mussolini's drastic program of wage reduction, under which millions of workers and farmers are getting their incomes reduced from 8 to 25 per cent, is hardly a sign of good economic health.

This program probably will involve a severe test of the power of the whole Fascist regime. It is hard to imagine anything that would make a government much more unpopular with the rank and file of the citizens. If Mussolini gets away with it it will have to be admitted that he is firmly enthroned.

It is interesting to note that his program is out of line with modern economic thought. Henry Ford, for instances, would say that this wage-reduction plan is the surest way on earth to keep prosperity from returning to Italy. And Ford is not exactly an amateur on the subject.

Settlement

So take my hand and meet my steady eyes,
A soft sweet kiss and let us go our way;
Too long I've stumbled on—I'm sick of lies
And recollections of a happier day;
I know there is no glamor left in me,
My vows are threadbare and my phrases old;
And nights that were alive with ecstasy
Have vanished and the stars and moon are cold.

The play is over—ring the curtain down.
Why waste a tear for rapture strangely fled?
Our kingdom now is just a noisy town,
Our dreams are dust—our roses old and dead;
But I for one am certain that this fee
Is not too high to pay for ecstasy!

The Retort Swell

Any theatrical impresario will tell you that William Anthony McGuire, the playwright, just can't be bothered when he doesn't feel like keeping an appointment, or finishing a musical comedy book by the contracted time.

When Charles Dillingham recently announced in the rags that Mr. McGuire had contracted to write three plays for him, Ring Lardner telephoned to Dillingham: "I see McGuire is going to write three shows for you," said Lardner, "so reserve two seats down front for the first one, please."

"You know better than that," said Dillingham. "You know McGuire won't have the first show ready for a long time yet."

"I know, I know," said Ring. "I don't want them for myself. I want them in case I ever have any grandchildren."

Swiftly

At the testimonial dinner to Daniel Frohman, Sunday night, Texas Guinan was among those to pay tribute to Mr. Frohman, who was celebrating his 50th year in theatricals:

"There are two great days in my life," Texas said emotionally, "the day I met Daniel Frohman—"

"And the day," interrupted a heckler, "that you saddled Paul Revere's horse!"

A Form of Criticism

At the same affair Channing Pollock, the playwright, who stopped liking critics several years ago, twitted the drama defenders in this manner: "In all my life I only knew one person who liked a dramatic critic. That person was the critic's mother—and that was animal instinct."

In Fewer Words

It was also said that since times became so hard many a show-off has been forced to use his high hat as a waste basket.

Epitaph

Bert Hanlon was toasted and roasted at the Friars by the Saturday Night Boys. Hanlon who is described as the only Broadway clown who never repeats a crack once he has made it, concluded his modest talk with: "I never had anything, never expect to have anything, and when I die, I hope they will put these few words on my tombstone: 'Bert Hanlon—Cleaned and Dyed.'

Bravo, Bravo!

At Miss Guinan's place, particularly when a fourflusher comes in with a tophat and all the other evening dress outfit, and then has himself a time, and cannot pay the check (it happens nightly) the management refuses to give the phoney his hat and coat which he checked when he came in.

Then they wait 24 hours. If the bill hasn't been paid by then—Miss Guinan instructs the coatroom attendants to send the overcoats down to the breadliners, to either wear or peddle for what they can get.

Other night clubs please copy.

By Way of Report

Our recent expose that "big business" took advantage of the unemployment situation and made the apple peddling thing a "racket" has been corroborated, it appears, by the editorial staff of the New York American, which recently said: "If you buy apples for 5 cents apiece from the unemployed, it may interest you to know that this, also, is one of New York's rackets."

"The poor devil out of work is allowed to sell the apples, and to keep a very small part of what he makes. The racketeer collects the rest. Mayor Curley of Boston, who does not like rackets, would not permit the apple racket in his city."

As if You Didn't Know

About the only thing dry at the average banquet is the speechmaking.

Add Sour Breaks

Solly Violinsky, one of Broadway's better known kidders, who deserted the Mean Stem for Melancholywood, hasn't had better luck out there, it appears. After a long layoff, Solly, who is very proud, was induced to accept a small part in a gang film.

His agent sold him the idea in this manner: "You can play the part of Louie, the Louse, at $20 a day. It ought to last three weeks, at least. Take it, you dope!" Solly agreed, but two days later he was pensive again.

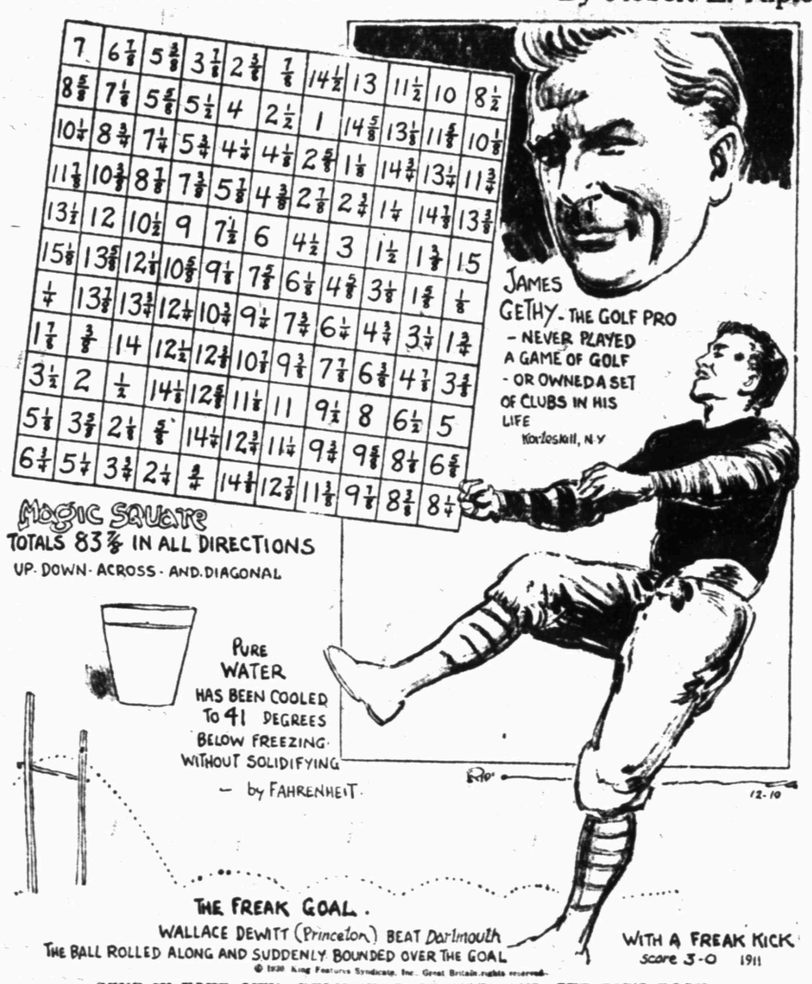

"I thought you had a three-week job?" asked a heckler.

"I thought so, too," said Violinsky, "but they put me on the gang that got knocked off."

LITTLE MISS NOBODY

By VIDA HURST

Dolores Graham, 26 years old, and unusually attractive to men, and Dr. Fenton, are found shot to death in each other's arms in the latter's office. Celeste, 19, and equally beautiful, is the daughter of Dolores. Because of the scandal attached to her mother's death Celeste is forced to quit her job and break her engagement to Norman Jackson.

Celeste had never been kissed until her engagement and she had held the respect of all the young people in her "crowd." After the tragedy, Harry Martin, one of Celeste's former friends, takes her for a ride. He insults her with his advances and she jumps from the car, intent upon walking home.

Dale Hamilton offers to give her a lift home in his roadster. Dale is the son of a millionaire department store owner. Thinking that knowledge of her family scandal would make Dale never see her again, Celeste decides to tell him nothing of herself. Later they go to a fashionable beach and grow rather fond of each other. To Dale, Celeste is known as "Miss Nobody."

Celeste gets another job through her former teacher at the Elite Department store. There she meets Blondie McManus, a girl the same age as Celeste in years, but much her senior in experience and sophistication. They grow rather fond of each other.

Blondie leaves the two at the table with the excuse that she has to return to the store early. Scott tries to make a date with Celeste and she refuses. Days go by and she hears nothing from Dale Hamilton. Dale happens into the office just as Scott is renewing his attempt to make a date with Celeste.

Wallace Scott, assistant credit manager at the Elite, tries to make a date with Celeste. She refuses, gets in bad with him and gets a notice that she is fired.

Russell Graham, Celeste's father, also quits his job because of the scandal. Dolores had saved some money for a rainy day. Celeste returns home to find that her father had found the money and had spent it to see a ball game.

Celeste has another date with Dale and he tells her that he has a job for her in the offices of Richard Randolph Clayton at $5 more a week than she earned at the Elite.

Dale tells Celeste he loves her. Afraid that love would spoil everything, Celeste decides to remain a mystery to Dale. Even though he now knows her name and all about her, she makes him promise that they will never be anything but friends.

"Come in you bum," said Celeste.

CHAPTER XIII

Celeste was puzzled. No one but Annette rattled the doorknob like that. But she hadn't seen her former chum for over a month.

"Hey, Celeste! Anyone home?"

It was Annette giggling through the keyhole as unconcernedly as if they had parted only yesterday.

Celeste ran to the door and flung it wide.

"Come in, you bum!"

The two girls embraced, drew away from each other and laughed.

"Papa brought me over. He's gone down town and will stop for me in about an hour," Annette explained, happily.

"Well, where have you been? I haven't heard anything from you since you moved to Hollywood."

Annette was looking better than Celeste had ever seen her. Her face was not so sallow and discontented. Her brown eyes sparkled with a pleasure Celeste could not believe was entirely that of seeing her again.

"Sit down, Annette. Isn't that a new suit?"

"Sure. How do you like it?"

"It's keen. Now tell me all about everything."

In the old days it had been Celeste who always had something to tell, but she would never be able to tell Annette anything again.

"I'm engaged," Annette confided.

"Honestly? How perfectly grand!" Celeste rejoined without a hint of envy.

"It happened after the quarrel Harry and I had about you," Annette explained, frankly. "Mama was furious. You see, she had already made up her mind it would be better for us not to see so much of each other."

"I thought she had," Celeste admitted.

"When she saw you getting in Harry's car she said it just proved what she had suspected all along—that you were trying to vamp Harry."

"But, Annette, I wasn't. You know I never cared anything about Harry Martin."

"I hadn't thought so, but when he didn't come back until almost two hours later I decided there must be something to it. I told him I never wanted to see him again and the next time he asked me for a date I turned him down. It was then Norman telephoned to know if he couldn't take me to a dance our old crowd was giving."

"Norman?"

Celeste felt a queer little stab like a pin pricking at her heart. Then she reminded herself that she had never really been in love with Norman Jackson.

"That was the beginning of it," Annette admitted. "After that he started coming over regularly and last Friday we become engaged. He wants to be married right away."

Celeste smiled.

"That's lovely. Norman is a fine boy. I hope you'll both be happy."

"He has bought the last bungalow in the court where we are living, so we'll be almost next door to mama and papa. You must be sure to come and see us when we're settled."

Wouldn't that be jolly? To have dinner with Annette and the boy she herself had planned to marry? Celeste could picture Norman's effort to be "nice" to her. Also Annette's condescension and proprietary airs.

"You take Celeste home, Norman."

"You'd better come with us, honey."

"Oh, no! I guess I can trust you now."

She could even imagine Annette's giggle. As if it mattered to Celeste whether she were alone with Norman Jackson! But have dinner with them? Not if she could prevent it.

"I can't ask you to the wedding," Annette continued, "as we're only having our families and a few very old friends. But I told Norman I wanted to tell you about it myself so you'd know there weren't any hard feelings about Harry or anything you had done."

"But I didn't do anything," Celeste insisted. "I've never even seen Harry since that night."

"It doesn't matter," Annette assured her, magnanimously. "I've always liked Norman better, even when you were going with him. But I've been sorry, Celeste, about the way things turned out. I liked you better than any friend I ever had."

Past tense. Well, that suited Celeste.

"I liked you, too, Annette. I hope you'll be happy, and I believe you will. You're better suited to Norman than I was."

"That's what Norman says," her one-time girl friend admitted, giggling. "Of course, he says now he never really cared about you. But I tell him if he didn't he certainly was giving a dandy imitation."

Celeste's wrath rose.

"Neither of us really cared. Although at the time I thought I was in love with him, I realize now it was mostly because I wanted to stop work and have a home of my own."

"I suppose you've a lot of new boy friends?" Annettee queried, politely.

"Dozens! Camped on my doorstep every night! A lot you care, Annette, about how I've gotten along or what I've been doing."

"I can see your disposition has changed. You never used to be sensitive or snippy. I always told mama the thing I liked about you most was your sweet disposition."

"I've been through a lot since then," Celeste reminded her, grimly. "And I've found out just how

WEST TEXAS MARKET NEEDS CITED IN T. & P. N. BRANCH FIGHT

ROAD OFFERS DIRECT OUTLET

Witnesses Claim Farmers Need Service

LUBBOCK, Texas, Dec. 9. (AP)—Witnesses for the Texas and Pacific sought to show today that Texas markets were losing shipments of products from parts of the plains territory of West Texas because those sections had no direct outlet to Texas consuming points.

The T. & P., which is seeking Interstate Commerce commission approval for its subsidiary, the T. & P. Northern to build 333 miles of road from Big Spring into the plains and Panhandle, was able to put only a few witnesses on the stand because of lengthy cross-examination.

C. M. Evans of Marshall, agricultural agent for the Texas and Pacific, said this territory had no direct outlet to Texas markets, particularly Fort Worth and El Paso, which would be reached over the Texas and Pacific Northern through Big Spring. This section does have outlets to such points as Oklahoma City and Kansas City over the Rock Island and Santa Fe, witnesses said.

Evans asserted both the Texas markets and the farmers in the section traversed would be benefited by the construction of the new line since farmers always were aided by the addition of competing markets.

Evans painted a roseate picture of the growth and agricultural development of the caprock country in the last decade and predicted much additional development with the coming of another railroad.

Twenty-two counties, already containing 242,000 people, would be served to some degree by the new line, Evans said. In these counties 12 and one-half millions of acres are tillable but only four and one-half millions are in cultivation, he testified. One reason is the remoteness of rail facilities from some of the sections, he said.

Those persons sufficiently near to a railroad are in need of added markets for their products, Evans said.

Evans' exhibits showed the tremendous growth in population in this section and the steady growth in the production of livestock and crops, especially feed crops.

H. C. Pipkin of Amarillo, attorney for the Santa Fe, pursuing the theory that financial returns would not justify a new line, sought to show that much of the territory in the 22 counties would not be tributary to the T. & P. N. because it would be closer to other lines. Evans admitted he had studied production and possible development primarily, not what per cent of traffic the new road would get.

J. H. Barwise of Fort Worth, attorney for the Fort Worth and Denver, wanted to know if his road was not giving direct service from the north part of the area to Fort Worth.

Triple Opposition

W. F. Peter of Chicago, counsel for the Rock Island, took the position that his road was adequately serving the territory from Dimmitt to Vega. He pointed out that the El Paso market could be reached through the Tucumcari, N. M., gateway, and that an all-Rock Island road was available to Fort Worth.

The Rock Island, the Denver, and the Santa Fe are opposing the application.

J. C. Peyton, El Paso packer, interrupted the procession of T. & P. witnesses.

Peyton said the construction of the new line would enable El Paso to buy more feed, cattle and hogs from the plains territory. He stated his plant would endeavor to market products in this territory and that would men business for the T. & P. N.

The witness stated he at present had trouble getting livestock from this territory because of delays in transit.

TEXAS COLLEGE GIRL IS SLAIN

Girl Takes Own Life In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9. (US)—Suffering a mental collapse due to the overstudy of higher psychology and philosophy, Miss Elizabeth Arthur, 23-year-old Texas college girl, shot and killed herself today.

The suicide occurred at the home of Miss Arthur's sister, Mrs. Earl Buchanan, Altadena. The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Arthur, live at Texarkana, Texas, and the Buchanans are visiting them there now. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gibbons of Long Beach, cousins of the Arthur girl were in the house when the suicide occurred. Although in an adjoining room they did not hear the fatal shot from the .32 automatic. They discovered Miss Arthur's body when they went to summon her to go horseback riding in the foothills.

Relatives of the girl declared her to be an advanced student of psychology. They stated that she had been moody of late and had threatened to take her life on several occasions. The day previous she hinted at suicide while driving over the Colorado bridge in Pasadena.

The girl left no notes or diary. The body will be sent back to the Texas home of her parents for burial.

'Alfalfa Bill' Espouses Cause Of Small Towns in Road Fights

TISHOMINGO, Okla., Dec. 9. (UP)—Gov.-elect William H. Murray advised citizens of small towns today to bring injunction suits where an effort is made to route a highway so it will miss the smaller communities.

He condemned the alleged practice of the highway commission in missing the smaller towns when routing highways.

"My advice to the people of every county in this state is to bring an injunction against any thwarting of their obligation and where they have issued bonds until I can get into office," Murray said in a statement. "Then it will be determined under the law and the constitution who is the chief executive of this states, whether it is the governor or whether it is some chairman of a road board who imagines he is just because he is the richest man in the state."

Although he did not name him, Murray undoubtedly referred to Lew H. Wentz, Republican, highway commission chairman. It has been frequently rumored that Murray will seek Wentz's removal from the commission.

"Government must and shall be a reflex of the people's will under law and constitution of this state the next four years, if I have to dismiss every commissioner and board in the state and appoint new ones," Murray declared.

STRANG SPEAKS AT C-C DINNER

500 Attend Annual Banquet Tuesday

livered a brief address in which he thanked the membership of the Junior chamber of commerce here for the support and cooperation given the administration during the past year. The retiring president gave credit for the success of the Junior chamber of commerce in a great measure to the senior chamber of commerce here and to its president, J. S. Bridwell and John Boswell, manager. In introducing Wilburn Page, secretary, Vinson described Page as "the best Junior chamber of commerce secretary in the country," crediting him with the conduct of the organization's business affairs.

James V. Allred, attorney general-elect of Texas, introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. Max Strang of Dallas. Mr. Allred described Dr. Strang as a self-made man and as a speaker of national repute, and announced that Dr. Strang would deliver an address here during the present season of the open forum.

Personnel Praised

Dr. Strang opened his address by stating that the type of manhood represented at the gathering Tuesday night was the material from which Wichita Falls would build to one of the greatest cities in the Southwest.

Telling of his ecclesiastical peregrinations, Dr. Strang described of his attending two years of college on money earned by obtaining milk from cows and selling it. "The one crop and credit system," Dr. Strang said, "entails poverty and hardship." He stated that the farmer who was able to give his children the advantages of higher education and whose home was neat and well kept could be depended on to have several dairy cattle. "Farmers," he said, "can find economic liberty through cows."

Lauds Buttermilk

"The cow has more than justified the many claims that have been made for her," he declared, stating that a by-product of the cow, buttermilk, is a beverage to be recommended over stronger drink to inspire great accomplishments. "It clarifies the brain instead of clouding it," he said, "and for buttermilk alone, the cow is entitled to a niche among the memorials in Westminister Abbey."

Describing a country home of a prayerful farmer, Dr. Strang declared that that type of American civilization was America's greatest claim to greatness.

In speaking of the farm to city movement by younger people, Dr. Strang explained this move to be caused by social desires which have not been theirs in rural communities.

"Young people will not be kept apart," he said, and it would be a sorry world indeed if it were not for comraderie."

Country Romance

Vividly telling of a country romance in his memory, Dr. Strang described the socials gathering of rural life a number of years ago, and the lack of which during the present days he ascribes to the leaving of farms by the young men and women of the modern age.

"The bulwark of American civilization is in the country home," he said, stating that one of America's needs is for a break down of class distinction between people and that the milk cow deserves the consideration of man for the reason that she has to an extent done this.

Quoting "The Bridge Builder" in tribute to Wichita Falls citizens, Doctor Strang ascribed to J. A. Kemp the title of "bridge builder."

The entertainment presented by Ruthe Laird and her Texas Rockets included chorus dancing and several individual presentations by members of the group in specialty dances and songs.

"Chips From the Pasture," with Maurice Cheek directing, received an ovation from the huge gathering and consisted of burlesques on the Junior chamber of commerce and its members.

'Loving Cup' Presented

The first item of the skit was the presentation of a "loving cup" to Jerry Vinson, retiring president, from the "common people." Then came a burlesque on the Junior chamber of commerce weekly radio program, a cross-section view of a junior chamber of commerce trade trip, behind the scenes of a directors' board meeting, a picture of the Junior chamber of commerce industrial mart on visitors day, and a scene depicting Jerry Vinson, retiring president, and Walter Nelson Jr., past president, during a moment of relaxation in a "telephone booth."

The dinner consisted of wild game furnished by members of the organization. Dinner music was furnished by Claude Stewart's orchestra.

Some 20 young women of the city acted as hostesses during the affair.

Episcopal Minister Backs Lindsey's Marriage Plan Despite Controversy

New York Pastor Tells of Uniting Own Daughter Under 'Companionate' Contract

NEW YORK, Dec. 9. (UP)—The companionate marriage controversy between Ben B. Lindsey and Bishop William T. Manning, which resulted in the former Denver judge being ejected from the Cathedral of St. John the Divine Sunday, gained momentum today with the announcement of an Episcopal clergyman that he not only favored the companionate union but recently performed a ceremony uniting his daughter with a young man under the Lindsey theory.

The minister is the Rev. Eliot White, of the staff of Grace church, one of the fashionable parishes of the city. He told of the marriage on Oct. 18 of his daughter, Shirley, 22, to Chester G. A. Zucker, 28, of Roselle, N. J. The couple agreed, the Rev. Mr. White said, that they would not bring any children into the world until they were economically able to care for them. This agreement, in the Rev. White's opinion, is the most important feature of Lindsey's theory.

"Companionate marriage is, to my mind, a legal and regular marriage, performed in a church or elsewhere according to the wishes of the parties involved," the Rev. Mr. White said. "It includes the purpose of the postponing of the arrival of children until the home and economic condition of the couple make possible the proper care of children. The children of such a union are to be planned for and loved into being.

"It is opposed to free love and is intended to be a lifelong monogamous union. Sometimes, through disagreements on vital points of any marriage, it becomes necessary to dissolve such a union. In that case, instead of the divorce court, the union would be dissolved by a commission resembling a public welfare bureau advocated by Judge Lindsey."

The Rev. Mr. White was asked today if he anticipated any disciplinary measures from Bishop Manning, his superior officer in the church.

"I am not concerned about that," he replied. "I helped build the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. I understood it was to be a house of worship, open to all persons. Last Sunday it apparently was open to everyone except Judge Lindsey of Colorado."

Bishop Manning declined today to comment on the Rev. Mr. White's statement or to discuss further his controversy with Lindsey. The bishop is under subpoena to appear in west side court Friday when Lindsey answers a charge of disorderly conduct, brought against him after he was ejected from the cathedral Sunday.

COACH DEATH WITNESS HELD

Companion to Bus 'Pirate' Arrested at Canyon

AMARILLO, Texas, Dec. 9. (AP)—A man who was a passenger on the Pickwick coach at the time of the shooting of Brunson McCarver, of New York, by Randall county officers Monday afternoon when he opened fire as they attempted to put him under arrest, is being held by Sheriff John Fry at Canyon as a material witness.

The man, who had accompanied McCarver from St. Louis, came to the United States recently from Germany and can speak little or no English and Sheriff Fry is unable to obtain his name.

McCarver was slain by Bob Barnett, Randall county deputy sheriff, and Frank Hicks, Canyon chief of police, about 3:40 o'clock Monday afternoon after the coach had come to a halt and a gun fight ensued. The officers, with Sheriff Fry, who was unarmed, had received a telephone call from Amarillo to meet the bus and remove the passenger.

McCarver had threatened the bus operator and another passenger, cursing and abusing the driver and calling him a "stool pigeon." According to Roy Burnett, the operator, and other witnesses, Burnett had difficulty with McCarver when he attempted to get him to quit drinking while on the coach, he said.

Definite information received here Tuesday is to the effect that McCarver had been a U. S. department of justice agent in the narcotics division until three years ago.

Heels of McCarver's shoes had been hollowed and plugged with rubber, according to District Attorney Ed. W. Thomerson. Such methods are commonly used for concealment of narcotics, officers said.

Names and addresses of narcotic agents throughout the country were found in a small notebook taken from McCarver's body, the district attorney said, and a bottle of "rest tablets" was found in his pockets.

The body was sent Tuesday night to Nashville, Tenn., by direction of relatives.

Box Car Theft Ring Suspect Under Bond

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 9. (AP)—Robert Hand, charged with being a member of an alleged box car theft ring operating from Arkansas City, Kan., to Wichita Falls, Texas, was bound over to federal court under $5,000 bond at his preliminary hearing today.

Federal officials and railroad agents have joined in investigation of the alleged ring. Several men are under arrest.

41-YEAR-OLD CASE NEAR END

Missing Scar Figures In Assault Trial

NACON, Mo., Dec. 9. (AP)—The defense completed its evidence tonight in the case of Albert Layman, on trial here on a 41-year-old charge of assaulting Thomas J. Billings.

Layman, after testifying at considerable length regarding his arrest near Blackwell, Okla., last September, denied emphatically he had ever been north of the Missouri river until returned here to stand trial by Sheriff Claude Linson.

Taken to the police station at Blackwell, Layman said, he was questioned and finally Thomas J. Billings, who was there, said "He is the right man; there ought to be a scar on the back of his neck." Layman said he had no such scar, and his attorneys asked him to show the jury.

The Al Layman who hit Billings on the head with an axe handle in the Turner Drug store at Sue City, March 7, 1889, is supposed to have had a scar on the back of his neck, an inch long and a half inch wide, the result of a bite taken by one Jim Huffman during a fight.

Layman said he was not the man who had the fight with Huffman.

much I meant to my so-called friends. A lot you've cared—any of you!"

Annette rose with color deepening in her cheeks.

"I think it's very unkind of you to treat me like this when I've made a special trip down here to see you."

"Why?" repeated Celeste, remorselessly. "So that you could gloat over the fact that you and Norman are engaged. But how did you treat me the day I came out to your house almost sick for a little affection?"

"I was as nice as I dared to be with mama listening to every word."

Real tears were in Annette's eyes. No doubt she thought she had done right to obey her mother. Anyway, what use was there to argue about it now?

Celeste said, sadly, "It doesn't matter any more, but at the time I thought I'd never get over it. I'm not angry with you, Annette."

Annette dried her eyes, and when Celeste's father came in greeted him gayly.

"I thought it was about time I dropped in to see Celeste."

"That's right. You must come often," he replied, evidently not noticing that she and Celeste had not been as good friends as ever.

A car was heard signaling from the street.

"Probably papa," Annette explained. "I'll have to get back. Norman is coming this evening."

She kissed Celeste, calling back, "Don't forget! You're to be our very first guest."

Celeste closed the door with relief. What a distance she had traveled from Harry and Norman and Annette—when even the thought of the bungalow Norman and Annette would share together couldn't hurt.

Her father had again retreated to his own room. Celeste drew a glass of water from the kitchen faucet and stared out the window over the sink. But she was not thinking of Annette or her approaching marriage. She was wondering how Richard Randolph Clayton would look as he interviewed his new stenographer.

All her guesses were wrong. She found herself facing a man who looked older than the 32 years Dale had claimed for him. Neither dark nor a decided blond, his hair was a chestnut brown, which matched his eyes. His thin face was tanned by the sun and days obviously spent in the open. It was an interesting face, but a trifle cynical.

"Wouldn't get far trying to flirt with him," Celeste decided, replying to his questions with the primest of answers.

"Mr. Hamilton tells me you have had experience as both a stenographer and telephone operator."

"Yes, I have," Mr. Clayton."

"The work isn't difficult," he said, and she thought his voice sounded tired and as if the whole matter was a little distasteful.

"You will have charge of the switchboard some of the time and be expected to write mostly form letters. Miss Wilson is my secretary and takes most of the dictation."

Celeste was glad of that. She wasn't at all proud of her own shorthand.

She took her place at the desk she was to share with an attractive looking girl who said her name was Mildred Harrison.

"You'll like it here, Miss Graham. Mr. Clayton's a wonderful boss."

Later this same girl confided, "It's one of the nicest places to work in Los Angeles. Mr. Smith is office manager and hires all the girls, but he's out of town. It's quite unusual for R. R. C. to do it himself."

"Smith is a sweet old thing," Mildred continued. "He'll do anything for you if he likes you, and he likes everybody except Wilson."

Celeste, confused by so many unfamiliar names, as well as the pile of letters she was endeavoring to copy, murmured, "Who's Wilson?"

"Mr. Clayton's private secretary. And does she hate herself? Wait until she gives you the once over. She's out on an errand just now."

Celeste had cause to remember the warning when a few moments later she felt the full force of Jennie Wilson's black eyes. Deeply waved black hair which gave the effect of having been varnished swept back from a broad, low forehead and coal-black eyes with long, heavily mascaroed eyelashes. Her mouth was thick-lipped and sensuous. She wore a bright green dress, had a well-developed, seductive figure, short arms and legs and plump, well-manicured hands.

"Who let you in?" she commented.

Remembering Blodnie's admonition, Celeste smiled.

"Mr. Clayton has hired me as a sort of combination stenographer and switchboard operator."

"Oh, yeah?" Jennie Wilson said, rudely, and swished her imperious self through the door marked "Richard Randolph Clayton."

Mildred dimpled understandingly. "Don't let that worry you. She won't bother you so long as you keep out of her territory."

But what was her territory, Celeste wondered, looking up to meet the delighted gaze of Dale Hamilton.

Scientists Learn Antiseptics Cook Germs to Explode Theory Long Held

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 9.—Discovery of how antiseptics destroy bacteria was made public at Cornell university today.

They took the germs cold—that is, coagulate as in boiling, but without the use of extra heat.

Thus is bared a vulnerable side of microbes hitherto little known. It promises chemists and physicians a better target to guide them in making more fatal toxins.

The parboiling weakness of the "bugs" was found by Dr. Wilder D. Bancroft, noted colloid chemist, and Dr. G. Holmes Richter, national research fellow, working under a Heckscher foundation grant.

With ultra-microscopes and the new tests of colloid chemistry they were able actually to see the physical carnage among microbes caused by antiseptics and disinfectants. They report these medical remedies, instead of producing chemical changes as many authorities have believed, nearly always make direct, physical attack upon the bodies of bacteria.

The medicines stick to the germs, or cause other foreign substances to stick—and in either event if enough of the substance adheres, it is all up with Mr. Microbe. Adsorption is the scientific name for this process.

As a result of adsorption the living protoplasm in the bacteria thickens and irreversibly coagulates. This soon stops the microbes activity and eventually kills him.

This is the effect, and the only important effect, says the report, of nearly all kinds of antiseptics and disinfectants. Formaldehyde is an exception, killing in part by causing chemical changes.

Former Wichita Oil Operator Killed in Chinese Air Crash

Paul Baer, veteran American air pilot and member of the famed Lafayette escadrille killed in an air crash in China Tuesday, was an oil operator in Wichita Falls during the boom days. Friends here recalled Tuesday that the young flier came to Wichita Falls shortly after his release from a German prison camp where he was held at the close of the war. He operated in the Northwest field at Burkburnett and was closely associated with a number of Wichita Falls developers.

Baer, whose home was in Fort Wayne, Indiana, was killed when an amphibian west-bound air-mail plane struck a junk mast and crashed into Whanpoo river near Shanghai. With him died his Chinese co-pilot and a Russian woman passenger. Four prominent military men, passengers of the plane, were badly hurt.

Baer was credited with bringing down eight German planes during the war. He was formerly a pilot for the Ford air lines and connected with the United States department of commerce.

Here's a Way Out

OSLO—Through a system of beer checks, Sweden reduced the number of convictions for drunkenness from 58,909 in 1913 to 29,990 in 1926. The system consists of giving each worthy person a "control" book which entitles him to a certain number of drinks at a liquor ship where he is registered. If the person abuses his privilege, it is taken from him.

LEWIS LEARNS TO SAY THANKS

Stockholm Welcomes U. S. Nobel Prize Wniner

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 9. (US)—Sinclair Lewis, American winner of the 1930 Nobel prize for literature, is primed to say "thank you" in Swedish when King Gustaf presents the $48,000 prize at ceremonies before the Swedish royal academy tomorrow.

Arriving here tonight, the famed novelist revealed that sessions with a Swedish dictionary aboard ship on the voyage over had given him that much familiarity with the tongue, and possibly enough to "even propose a dinner toast in Swedish."

Frank B. Kellogg, former U. S. secretary of state and present league court justice, has come from The Hague to receive the 1930 Nobel prize for peace.

Scandinavia Agog

Lewis, accompanied by his wife, the former Dorothy Thompson, a newspaper writer, landed at Gottenburg this morning. In the capital he found evidence of the popularity that "Main Street," "Babbitt" and others of his novels have won him throughout Scandinavia. Stockholm newspapers devoted columns of space to descriptions of his life and work, as well as photographs of himself and wife.

At his suite in the Grand hotel, Lewis was quick to disclaim that he is worthy of the distinction visited upon him as the first American author to receive the prize. Jokingly he said:

"I am not a great author. I am only a little journalist without intelligence. Perhaps I am only a newspaper reporter who is fond of his whisky and soda."

Disclaims Honor

The Swedes Lewis characterized as "clever boys," but he was certain they made a mistake in selecting him for the honor. He cited Theodore Dreiser and Eugene O'Neill as two American men of letters more worthy of the distinction.

Lewis said that his acceptance speech will deal with modern American literature. Half seriously he added:

"I am going to tell the king that giving me the prize was a great mistake, since it was meant for another person. Of course, I shall thank the committee very much for its kindness."

Asked who his favorite authors are, Lewis named Thomas Mann, the German novelist, and Rudyard Kipling, the English poet and short story writer.

Arctic Ship Will Transport Teacher

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 9. (AP)—Donald B. MacMillan, arctic explorer in a talk at Worcester academy today, stated that when his good ship Bowdoin threads its way through bergs and floes on its way to the Arctic wastes next June, it will have on board a woman school teacher, yet to be selected. She will be taken north to fill a vacancy in his second Labrador school house where she will teach Eskimo children to read and write English.

There are 18 applicants to date, MacMillan says the one chosen must have a real desire to fare forth into a region where an educated white woman is a rarity. A daughter of a German missionary now is teaching a class of 40 furclad Eskimo children in Labrador.

SANTA CLAUS HERE TODAY

Children of Wichita Area Plan Welcome

ta Claus, received Tuesday morning, tells of his anxiety to reach Wichita Falls:

ABOARD SANTA'S SLEIGH. Train.—To All the Folks in Wichita Falls:

Tomorrow's the day! Tomorrow's the day! Tomorrow's the great day when all the surrounding country will join with Wichita Falls in welcoming "Old Santa" and his party, and will open the Christmas season of 1930! This will be an occasion long to be remembered and it is safe to say that never before in the history of Wichita Falls has there ever been such a holiday event as this promises to be.

Santa Explains Parade Features

Won't my heart beat with glee when I see Little Queen, my dear little playmate whom I thought was lost for a while, Little Queen who represents all the children of the whole world in my heart. And I know you will all be surprised at some of the features in the parade.

Bands will be playing, children will be screaming with joy, grown folks will be thrilled and peace on earth will reign supreme!

I mentioned in one of my messages that I was bringing a funny clown to make people laugh. Well, this funny chap is with me and I want you to dare him to look serious. His whole life is devoted to making people laugh and should he ever find that his nonsensical antics do not make for laughter any more he will then grow sad and fade away into the land of forgotten men. There will be some other funny things in the parade which I won't tell you about because I want to save some surprises for you and I want you to be sure to see things for yourself instead of reading about it all and then staying away because you think you know all about it.

You know I have a Japanese family with me. I want you to see a real Japanese man and wife and see how they travel in a jinricksha. Japanese are a curious people and while they have a great love like other people they do not believe in the same kind of religion that Americans do. They worship idols.

Then there will be a Holland Dutch family in the parade. You know the good people of the Netherlands have a deep, undemonstrative, quiet and sincere love. That is why I want you to see them. And I want you to see how they travel in their country so I am having them ride in a two-wheeled wooden cart which will be drawn by two real live oxen. I know everybody will be nearly as interested in the oxen as they will be in my life reindeer.

The Spanish people are known for their fiery, intense and emotional love. Therefore I must have Spain represented in my love pageant, and as it was Queen Isabella who helped Christopher Columbus when he was trying to prove that the world is round and made the historical sea voyage which led him to America I am bringing a beautiful characterization of Queen Isabella herself.

And did you ever see a hurdy gurdy? If not, you will be interested to know that it is a tin-panny piano on wheels which the children of New York dance to on the sidewalks. Everybody has heard about the sidewalks of New York and how the children dance to the music of the hurdy gurdy right out on the streets. Well, sir, I am bringing a hurdy gurdy for the parade and you will hear it play and see how the Italian and his wife operate it. You will also see how the Italians dress in their own country.

Other Unusual Novelties

In view of the fact that we are having some foreign countries represented in this great love celebration, it is only right and proper that America be represented as the royal host so I am bringing Miss America beautifully gowned in her red, white and blue party dress to act as the hostess of honor. You will all applaud her as she passes, I am sure.

The Rainbow will also be there in all its glory. I want everyone to remember that happiness and success comes through love, honest work and perseverance and is not found at the end of the rainbow or through luck as some folks try to make us believe. But as the rainbow is a very beautiful thing and has its place in the world I think it should be represented in our spectacle.

The proud peacock in her feathery splendor will attract the attention of everyone. As the peacock is an exemplification of pride I am bringing this one along to impress upon people that "pride goeth before a fall," and we must not be too self-conscious but should think of other people's happiness if we want to be happy ourselves. Be sure to throw kisses to Miss Peacock and clap your hands real hard when she passes.

Oh, this will be a parade of love, indeed! Here, I must not be telling you so much about all the wonderful and beautiful things or you will not enjoy them so much when you see them.

What would this world be without love? What a dreary existence we would have without friends. There is no wealth in life, no worldly prize which can compare with the knowledge that we have a good true, loyal friends who find real comfort in living through the love they give us.

Santa Glad to Be Here

Let me say that I am glad to be coming to Wichita Falls. And also let me thank The Times and Record News in the behalf of everybody for the interest they have taken in this occasion and the many sacrifices they have made to make this event a complete success.

Onward there "Dancer"—forward there "Dasher"—come along "Prancer"—skip ahead "Vixen"—we are near Wichita Falls, the city of love—they are waiting for us—we must not be late—be patient "Carry Love"—you will soon be with your dear friends once again—so on!—on! on! with the festivities—let joy be unrestrained!

Loving,

Santa Claus

REWARD SPURS BOMB INQUIRY

Explosion Damages Huge Furniture Mart

CHICAGO, Dec. 9. (INS)—Investigaters seeking the gang that bombed the Furniture Mart, world's second largest office and display building, causing $15,000 damage, today were spurred by the posting of a $5,000 reward for arrest and conviction of the bombers.

With the posting of the reward by the Furniture Mart company came the announcement that three gas service bills found in front of the building might possibly lead to identification of the gang. Persons whose names appeared on the bills will be questioned. The bills apparently were dropped shortly before the bombing.

A lead to discovery of a motive was found in the statement of the building superintendent that the management had encountered difficulty with the Window Washer's union.

Attorney Assails 'Political Pirates'

NEW YORK, Dec. 9. (AP)—On trial for the second time on a charge of bartering public office, Martin J. Healy and Thomas T. Tommaney heard themselves described today by Special Prosecutor Hiram Todd as "political Buccaneers."

Todd told the jury how Healy, a Tammany district leader, received $10,000 from Mrs. George F. Ewald in April, 1927, three days before her husband was appointed a city magistrate. Tommaney is alleged to have acted as go-between in the transaction.

He declared Healy's and Tommaney's explanation that the $10,000 was a loan without interest was "so thin a smile comes naturally to the lips as one tells it."

The first jury in the Healy Tommaney case disagreed.

WOMAN ADMITS SLAYING SON

'He Tantalized Me,' She Says in Confession

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 9. (AP)—Tearfully admitting she killed her 13-year-old son, Thomas, at their home in Medusa today, Mrs. William Donohue, 34, told county officers she did it "because he tantalized me."

"I only did it to scare him," the mother told the officers, summoned by neighbors. Then she related how the boy had refused to do a household chore this morning, finally running out of the house.

She said she seized a .22 calibre rifle, pointed it at him as he ran across a lot beside the Donohue home, and shouted "Tommy, come here this minute or I'll use this."

"Go ahead, I dare you to," the boy answered, according to the mother's story.

The mother than raised the rifle to her shoulder and fired. Tommy fell.

Treating Influenza

If an influenza epidemic is in your neighborhood, you should avoid crowded meetings and stuffy rooms. You should also be careful not to tire yourself out by worry or overwork. Go out in the open for an hour every day. Begin to develop strength and soundness by exercising and taking long walks. If you will follow this advice and the cleansing regimen in yesterday's article you will be better able to avoid an attack of influenza, but if you disregard such advice until you feel the first symptoms coming on, you should not delay in going home and going to bed. If you are working, do not try to keep on and finish the day's work, because most of the deaths from influenza are due to neglect in the beginning.

The first thing to do is to use an emena of two quarts of warm water and thoroughly cleanse the bowls. Next, take a hot tub bath, lying in water as hot as can be borne, for about 20 minutes. The temperature should be about from 104 to 106 degrees F. After the bath, dry quickly and wrap yourself in some heavy woolen blankets, then lie down in bed and have somebody else place plenty of covers on top and a hot water bottle at your feet. You will need some assistance because you must not uncover yourself once you begin to sweat. The bedclothes should be well tucked around you so that no air will be drawn under the covers if you move about. Drink a glass of hot water every 30 minutes as long as you are awake. You will soon begin to sweat and will continue to do so until your fever has disappeared. If the head becomes congested apply a cold compress to the forehead.

This sweating treatment should be continued for several hours, then the patient should take a tepid bath and return to bed between clean bed clothing. If the fever continues, an occasional short cool shower may be used, followed by a brisk rub-down.

Repeat this sweating treatment every day for the first two or three days. One enema should be used morning and evening, using a bed pan if necessary as the patient should not be exposed too long to the cold air. The patient should not be given food of any kind except water which may be flavored with lemon or orange juice.

The patient should not under any circumstances attempt to go out, or return to work, until he has entirely recovered. Once your temperature has become normal and your appetite has returned you may start eating any kind of food in proper combinations. However, you very likely will not feel hungry for several days, and it is advisable to only use plenty of water and acid fruit juices during this period.

The theory that the body requires nourishing food during an acute attack of influenza is very wrong and has probably resulted in many deaths which could have been prevented by the methods I have just outlined.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tuberculosis

Question—M. E. H. writes: "I have a brother who has been sick with tuberculosis for over a year. He has been in a sanitarium for six months and is no better. In fact, he is getting weaker. What would you suggest for him to do?"

Answer—It would be unwise for me to attempt to advise you about your brother's case as, of course, I cannot examie him or diagnose his case through the columns of this paper. My theories about the treatment of tuberculosis are very different from those practiced in the average sanitarium. For example, he has probably been kept in bed and stuffed on too much food. My plan would be for him to take light exercises, such as walking, and decrease the quantity of food, using only those foods of the finest quality, with no effort being made to increase his weight. I have written a great deal on this subject, and will be glad to send you any literature you wish if you will forward a large self-addressed stamped envelope.

Vaccinatiol

Question—E. R. S. writes: "I know several children who were vaccinated about a year ago. Their arms were not sore and appeared to be entirely well. The scar left an indention, as usual. Recently, the places have puffed up and formed hard, knotty pones. The children also complain of their arms being sore. Please tell the public what causes this, and also the remedy."

Answer—The remedy for such a condition as you describe is for the children to be put on a fairly long fast of 10 days or two weeks. This is the only method I know of for getting rid of such a deep-seated infection. The experience of these children is very common, and comes from the infection from the streptocsus or staphylococcus bacteria, which are always present in the smallpox vaccine.

Australian Cadets Urged To Look to Own Defense

CANBERRA, Australia, Dec. 9. (AP)—Australia canpot always rely upon England to protect her from attack, Lord Somers, governor of the state of Victoria, told cadets at the Duntroon Military college today.

Lord Somers said that several nations were seeking new territoty as an outlet for their surplus population and added that if a coalition against Great Britain were formed in the Pacific the British navy would probably not be able to function efficiently in this part of the world.

CORSICANA'S HEAVY TIGERS FAVORED TO DEFEAT AMARILLO

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

The Rambler has taken many trips recently—to Chillicothe, to Graham, to Nocona twice—and next Friday he will go to Olney. Friends have been all too good in offering transportation on these trips to great football games. Now vacation time nears, and I wonder who'll be traveling down Austin way on Saturday, Dec. 20. Yes, quite frankly, I'm trying to beg a ride, and taking up your good time with this request, which, if boresome, is at least in earnest. Us sports writers, while you are fishing and swimming on your pleasant summer vacations, are covering baseball games and trying to figure out whether the play was Euller to Storti to Burns or Levey to Burns to Storti. The boss figures we have chilly hearts anyway, and thinks nothing of casting us out on the ice to enjoy a merry vacation. Well, my home is in Austin, and frankly sports writers are not in the habit of having train fare for a trip across the continent, and that's how far Austin looks to me. How about me paying for some or all of the gas, and amusing you with wit, humor, and philosophic conversation as we ride together to the capital city? Address all answers to this request to yours truly, the Rambler.

Strong Teams Compared

Chillicothe, if we compare records, has a better football team than Nocona. The Chillicothe Eagles offered the only real competition Olney encountered in district three, and Olney disposed of them easily, 33 to 6. But in holding the Cubs to 33 points the Eagles did very well, when that score is compared to 51 points the Cubs scored against Nocona. It is true Nocona scored twice against Olney whereas Chillicothe scored only once, but this must be overlooked when it is remembered that Olney scored in every quarter against the Indians, whereas the Chillicothe Eagles didn't allow Olney to score at all in the first half, and permitted the Young county lads to score in the last half only because they had fought until they could fight no longer.

As a matter of fact, the only real scare Olney has had thrown into them this whole season was concocted by none other than Coach Volney Hill's Chillicothe Eagles. At the end of the first half of that game at Chillicothe, with the score 0 and 0, the Cubs, I tell you, were some worried. Even the officials at that game declared they had never before seen such fighters as the Chillicothe outfit, and they came running over to the press table to warn the Rambler to be sure and keep the number of first downs and 20-yard penetrations each side made, because they feared the game might end in a scoreless tie, and the winner might have to be selected on technicalities.

The Eagles began to feel the crunching of the powerful Olney line after that, however, and eventually they bowed to their superiors.

But did the Nocona Indians throw a scare into the Olney camp? Most decidedly they did not. The Cubs scored three touchdowns in the first quarter, and after that Quarterback Goode of Acker's men just ran his team through a merry, if somewhat grueling, practice scrimmage in preparation for whatever team his outfit might meet in the finals of the regional championship.

Thus the records bespeak Chillicothe's superiority over Nocona. But the records, in these cases, sometimes indicate an untruth. They indicate, in fact, that Chillicothe, which demonstrably was not of championship caliber, can whip a team that won a hard schedule to finally capture the title in one of the largest districts in class B, a district that produces some tough teams down in the vicinity of Fort Worth and Weatherford.

In other words, could Chillicothe have lashed Graham and Weatherford, as Nocona did? Well, they might have licked Graham, but I doubt if they could have stood up under the mauling Weatherford crew. Nocona, remember, won from Weatherford only after staging a terrific drive in the last half after Weatherford had taken an early lead. Chillicothe, more than likely, would not have been able to muster such strength in the last stages.

I believe the reason the Chillicothe Eagles showed such strength against Olney in the first half was that they were inspired by a fiery determination, a rebellious spirit, a spirit that simply would not be crushed. There is, to me, not the slightest doubt that had the Nocona Indians showed such fire and determination against Olney the score would have been much closer, for Nocona has a better football team than the score of the Nocona-Olney game indicates. Nocona showed plenty of fight against Olney, but there was that something missing—that something that Chillicothe had early in their game with the Cubs—that something Nocona had when the Indians marched from behind to conquer Weatherford.

They'll Be Better

Nocona should not be dis-spirited over their loss of the bi-district championship. They covered themselves with glory this year in bowling over Jacksboro, last year's district winners, and in bringing the district championship further upstate by whipping a favored Weatherford team. They should now point for honors to come next year.

For next year they will have ample room to expand. Olney more than likely will miss the great play of Rankin, Goode, the Gilmore brothers, than whom better ends don't flourish in these parts—and Goldsmith, Hill, West and Sullivan. Nocona will lose some stellar players, too, but they won't be as hard hit as Olney.

Nocona did her part this year in bringing football honors further up into Northwest Texas and they should be complimented. Next year they may be our regional champions.

SANDIES OFFER MAIN THREAT

Victor in Saturday's Game Almost Sure Champ

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Dec. 9.—The Corsicana Tigers, heavy, smart and superbly coached by Johnny Pierce, appear to have an inside track in the 1930 Texas Interscholastic league football race. They are favored by an overwhelming majority of football men interviewed by this observer the last several days.

The Amarillo Sandies, whom the Tigers encounter Saturday at Corsicana, generally are regarded as the main obstacle facing Coach Pierce's powerful unit. The team from the Panhandle is fully as weighty as the Tigers and is similarly well drilled, the scouts report. It has a couple of great school boy backs in Bufkin and Fowler and a line that does its duty. If the battle to decide the championship of all Central and West Texas was to be played at Amarillo, the Sandstorm probably would rule a slight favorite. But it is scheduled for Corsicana, and that puts the thing in a different light.

Accustomed to Cold

Amarillo's husky eleven, one of the few in this section that clings to its heavy sox, is accustomed by this time to playing in reasonably cold weather. A cold "norther" that whips the ball about and makes it as elusive as a bar of soap in a bathtub for the average gridster has no terrors for the Sandies. They are used to it, just as the teams in the central and southern parts of the state are used to warm weather and have built up their stamina to stand a couple of hours of gruelling play under a hot sun.

Thus, unless the weather man sends a consignment of icicles and such further south than he has so far, the eleven from the Panhandle will be at considerable disadvantage in Saturday's big bout. On top of a 600-mile trip, which is none too refreshing, itself, the Sandies face the prospect of playing in weather to which they are unsuited.

Hopes It's Warm

Coach Pierce, an interested spectator at the Tyler-Greenville bi-district fray yesterday at Tyler, uttered a fervent hope that it remains warm at Corsicana this week and then gets hotter toward Saturday. There is nothing unsportsmanlike in his attitude. He realizes that if he had lost the toss and been forced to take his boys to Amarillo, Coach Blair Cherry of that city would have offered supplications for a hard freeze and likely been rewarded.

Although he did not say so in as many words, it was apparent that Pierce is about 90 per cent concerned in licking Amarillo this week and is saving only the other 10 for the final tilt against the winner of the Austin-Tyler contest. He is justifiably proud of his team. He realizes it is one such as a high school coach can figure on producing about once a decade, and he has confidence in its ability.

Having seen the Tigers mow down a very capable Oak Cliff eleven Saturday, 26 to 0, and then watched Tyler scatter the Greenville forces, 27 to 6, yesterday, the writer is inclined to the belief that the balance of power lies in the central and western part of the state, just as it has for the last eight or nine years. The best an eleven from the East or South has done was last season, when Port Arthur tied Breckenridge for the crown.

Tyler Is Good

Tyler has a good football team. It is splendidly drilled in the fundamentals by Coach Foutz and his assistant, "Rammin'" Rufus King. It does everything very well and has a nifty individual star in Harry Johnson, quarterback. The only thing is that the squad, as a whole, does not stack up with Corsicana in size and experience. Greenville outweighed Tyler quite a few pounds, it's true, but that was different. Greenville had the power and didn't know how to use it. Corsicana has power-plus and can use it to a queen's taste. If Tyler gets by the Austin Maroons this week and Corsicana whips Amarillo, the Tigers can be put down as the 1930 state champions. Tyler's running attack, its chief reliance, has not gone against anything like Corsicana's giant line. Neither has the Tyler line been called upon to stop an offense as potent as Corsicana's.

As for Austin's chances of capturing the state crown, this observer is unprepared to say. It may be said, however, that fans and sports writers of the capital city have been slow to enthuse over the Maroons. They have been making no pennant predictions down that way, even though their team did cut an impressive swath through district 8. They doubtless were surprised at the ease with which the Maroons beat John Reagan of Houston, 34 to 15, in their bi-district fray. If the Maroons should stop Tyler as decisively this week, they must be accepted as a real threat for the flag. The Austin eleven is said to have a big, smashing line and a fine running back in "Pewee" Beard.

Tigers Boast of Record

Of the four teams remaining in the championship race, Corsicana has by far the most impressive record for the year. Facing some of the state's hardest competition, the Tigers have won 11 straight games, piling up 430 points to opponents' 38. Amarillo was tied by Lubbock in its own district, and Austin's record was marred by a scoreless tie against Main Avenue of San Antonio. Tyler barely nosed out Palestine, 2 to 0, to win its district title.

MAROON STAR MAY BE OUT OF TYLER GAME

AUSTIN, Dec. 9. (AP)—The Austin High school Maroons probably will enter the game Saturday with Tyler minus the services of Capt. Buster Nelson, star halfback and scoring ace. Nelson was injured in the game last Saturday with John Reagan. The game will decide which team will enter the finals for the state championship with the winner of the Amarillo-Corsicana game.

Unipress Scribes Pick Talent From All Over Nation for All-American

By L. S. CAMERON
United Press Staff Correspondent

Players of every section of the country are represented in the college football All-American selection by the United Press.

This diversity of choice was not by intent but was merely an evolution in the process of selection made by the sports staff of the United Press in collaboration with leading coaches in all parts of the country.

Here's the United Press All-American:

L. E. Wes Fesler, Ohio State.
L. T. Fred Sington, Alabama.
L. G. Bert Metzger, Notre Dame.
C. Ben Ticknor, Harvard.
R. G. Pete Wisniewski, Fordham.
R. T. Milo Lubratovich, Wisconsin.
R. E. Frank Baker, Northwestern.
Q. B. Frank Carideo, Notre Dame.
L. H. Marchmont Schwartz, Notre Dame.
R. H. Phil Moffett, Stanford.
F. B. Len Macaluso, Colgate.

Frank Carideo was named by each United Press sports reporter and by most of the coaches who aided in the selections. His brilliant record as Notre Dame's field general, leading punter and defense ace is so well known that no recounting need be made here.

Macaluso Popular

Another popular choice was Len Macaluso, of Colgate, who won the fullback positions not only on his chief claim of being the nation's leading scorer, but because of the ease with which he made those touchdowns.

In March Schwartz and Phil Moffet we have two half-backs who were dependable players in every game they entered and stars in some.

A third virtually unanimous choice was Wes Fesler of Ohio State, who was on the United Press All-American second team in 1929. He is now said to be the best end the Western conference has ever seen. Frank Baker of Northwestern was another stand-out performer in a circuit well supplied with capable wingmen.

Fred Sington of Alabama and Milo Lubatovich of Wisconsin won their tackle positions on their uniformly dependable play on offense and defense. Bert Metzger of Notre Dame was, perhaps the best lineman of the 1930 season. He had a close rival in Pistol Pete Wisniewski of Fordham, a giant of six-feet-seven, boasting strength enough to manhandle two opponents at once.

The center choice was a difficult one to make. Ben Ticknor of Harvard, Siano of Fordham, and Hein of Washington State, each had a host of admirers. There may be little difference between them, but the honor was given to Ticknor because he was an inspiring leader in addition to having a splendid player on the defense and offense.

CLARENDON, Texas, Dec. 9.—In the first game of the season the local high school girls basket ball team defeated Claude here, 21 to 15. Keener, forward for the Clarendon team and Moore of Claude were stars of the game, taking high for their respective teams. A return game will be played by the two teams in Claude in a few days. STRIB FIGHTS TUFFY FRIDAY

Chicago Stadium Opens War on Garden

By DIXON STEWART
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Young Stribling and Tuffy Griffiths, rival heavyweight contenders, will meet Friday at Chicago stadium in the opening offensive of a heavyweight boxing war between Chicago and New York promoters.

The bout, featuring outstanding aspirants to Max Schmeling's world championship, is a serious blow to the heavyweight boxing monopoly previously enjoyed by Madison Square garden of New York and marks the opening of a campaign to bring a heavyweight title bout to Chicago.

It is the first major heavyweight bout staged in Chicago since the second Tunney-Dempsey match, which was promoted by garden interests, and is expected to lead to a Chicago match between the winner and Max Schmeling for the world championship.

Garden's Move Fails

Madison Square garden made serious efforts to block the match—just as it headed off a proposed Jack Sharkey-Primo Carnera bout under Chicago promotion—but Stribling's refusal to break his contract thwarted the attempt.

With Stribling and Griffiths already aligned with the Chicago promotors and heavyweight champion Max Schmeling reported to be willing to break away from the garden, Chicago's prospects of taking a hand in heavyweight affairs are favorable.

Schmeling is tied up to the garden by a contract which the New York Athletic commission forced him to sign before it broke its own rules and approved last Summer's titular bout between the German and Jack Sharkey. Schmeling's manager contends the contract was signed under duress and will not prevent Max from defending his title when and where he chooses.

Under New York rules Schmeling's title will be vacated automatically if he does not sign to defend it before Dec. 12—six months from the date he won the championship. Unless the New York commission vacates Schmeling's title and passes it along to Jack Sharkey there is a strong chance that the garden will have nothing to say about the next world heavyweight championship bout.

Gob Is Chief Hope

Sharkey is the garden's chief hope in the heavyweight class, but has fouled out so often and been so careful to avoid Stribling, despite attempts to put the Georgian in a bad light through ridiculous offers, that he no longer rates as the number one contender.

Stribling advanced to the front by knockouts over Von Porat and Phil Scott and is recognized generally as the uncrowned champion. He is starting a campaign to eliminate other contenders and has posted forfeits and challenges for Schmeling.

Griffiths has lost prestege through poor showings against second rates but has defeated all of the good men in the class with whom he has been able to secure matches. Sharkey always has refused to meet him. He is rated as a 2 to 1 underdog against Stribling but can advance to the front ranking by scoring a decisive victory.

R. POWELL IS VOTED HONOR

Teachers' New Leader Was Stellar School Player

CANYON, Texas, Dec. 9. (AP)—Raymond Powell of Wellington was unanimously elected captain of the 1931 West Texas Teachers Buffalo Football team today. Powell plays at half and quarter and has been a star for two years.

POWELL WAS STAR AT WELLINGTON

Special to The Record News.

WELLINGTON, Texas, Dec. 9.—Raymond Powell, youngest of three Powell brothers who made football history for Wellington High school over a period of eight years, is without doubt one of the best all around athletes ever developed in Wellington. Before he was graduated from high school here in 1929 he served four years each with local football, basket ball, baseball and track teams. Powell, however, always did his best work while wearing a football uniform.

During his first two years in high school he held down an end position with the Skyrockets, the next year played fullback and his last year in Wellington was used at quarterback. Wellington High school's new athletic ground dedicated this year was named "Powell Field" in honor of Raymond Powell and his two brothers Lee and Lloyd who also made excellent records in high school athletics.

Wellington people have watched Powell's work with the West Texas Teachers with much interest and are elated at his being elected to lead the Buffalo herd next year.

The splendid football career of the Powell brothers will not end when Raymond is graduated from the Canyon college, however, as he is determined to make a great athlete of his son, Raymond Jr., who was born Dec. 1. Powell was married a year ago to Miss Rose Starkey. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Powell of this city and Mrs. Powell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Starkey, also of Wellington.

Texas Lands Five Men on First Official All-Conference Team

FORT WORTH, Dec. 9. (AP)—The first official Southwest conference football team, selected by the coaches of its seven members, was announced through Francis A. Schmidt, Texas Christian university coach and secretary of the coaches' organization, this afternoon.

It was voted at last year's meeting of the Southwest conference coaches to annually name a first and second team, which is accepted as official. Their composite selection was taken to form the first official all-conference teams. However, their individual selections are to be kept secret.

The first team as selected by the coaches follows: Ends, Long of S. M. U. and Peterson of Texas; tackles, Blanton of Texas and Boswell of T. C. U.; guards, Kerk of Baylor and Emerson of Texas; center, Atkins of T. C. U.; quarterback, Wilson of Baylor; halves, Shelley of Texas and Dale of Arkansas; fullback, Koy of Texas.

The composite selection of the seven coaches shows that Texas university, Southwest conference champions, grabbed the majority of the berths with five. Baylor and T. C. U., finishing second and third, respectively, won two positions, each, with one going to each Arkansas and S. M. U. Both Rice and Texas A. & M. failed to place a man.

The second team was:

Ends—Tracy of A. & M., and Creighton of Arkansas.
Tackles—Skeeters of S. M. U., and Witcher of Baylor.
Guards—Morgan of Rice and Vaught of T. C. U.
Center—Paradeaux of Baylor.
Quarterback—Elkins of Texas.
Halves—Leland of T. C. U., and Stafford of Texas.
Full—Griffith of T. C. U.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 9. (AP)—An early decline today in cotton, which carried prices into new low ground for the season on the near months, was promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables, and the continued weakness in the market for Egyptian cotton.

Offerings were absorbed by covering and trade buying, and after selling off to 10.45 for March, the price rallied to 10.55, or within 2 points of yesterday's close. The demand was comparatively light, however, and the improvement was not fully maintained, with March closing at 10.47 and with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 6 to 10 points.

The continued weakness of Egyptian cotton in Alexandria seemed to be attracting increased attention today, and was supposed to have been a factor in the Liverpool market. There was little further discussion of yesterday's government crop figures. Additional December notices amounting to about 9,000 bales were said to have been issued, leading to some further near month liquidation and switching into later months.

Liverpool cables said that hedging and general liquidation had caused the decline there and reported that business in cotton goods was checked by fears of lower prices. Exports today 28,747 making 3,467,347 so far this season. Port receipts 36,007. U. S. port stocks 4,168,546.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 9. (AP)—After breaking through to new low levels for the season, cotton became steadier later today under good trade buying on the scale-down. Values remained steady for most of the session, but some belated realizing in final trade caused a slight recession and the close was steady at net declines of 4 to 9 points. Trading was active in the early part of the session but tapered off later, and the market remained tranquil to the close.

Port receipts, 35,447, for week 156,260, for season 6,377,359, last season 6,117,690. Exports 26,747, for week 54,119, for season 3,367,235, last season 3,524,902. Port stocks 4,246,854, last year 2,641,955. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 140,971, last year 132,734. Spot sales at southern markets 12,883, last year 28,064.

Futures closed steady 4 to 9 points down:

Market Struggles Back Toward Stability Under Strong Support

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 9. (US) The action of the stock market today during the early stages, with relative stability among pivotal issues instead of heavy outpouring of stocks, had its effect in stimulating a somewhat more hopeful tone during the remainder of the session. That concerted preparation had been made to stabilize conditions was an entirely proper supposition.

Prices closed highly irregular, yet there was a display of relative stability when quotations threatened to react sharply that spoke volumes for the character of the support extended to the market.

Beyond question, the market's own performance was sufficiently impressive to induce considerable short-covering. In fact, it is highly logical to assume that covering operations accounted for a good deal of the buying after the initial demonstration of reasonable price-strength. Early transactions were divided between support-buying and comparatively light liquidation. External occurrences had little or no influence on the price fluctuations during the day.

Regardless of the recognized artificial character of at least part of the market's support, there was a surprising disposition in certain bearish professional quarters not to enlarge their selling activities, but rather to contract them sharply. Buying took place in substantial volume—compared with the day's total dealings of little over two million shares—for the account of several professional groups whose short commitments had reached large proportions.

The heavy covering becomes all the more significant, in its relation to immediate prospects. The bears presumably—and correctly so as it turned out—envisioned solid resistance to any such renewed selling which might threaten unhappy consequences, even if only of temporary nature.

It was noticeable, too, that the best performance of the day was furnished by the so-called pivotal issues, of the highest grade. Steel common, for example, was up half a point net; American Telephone, which has been influenced of late by disagreeable happenings, entirely segregated from the company's own position, was up ⅛; American Can advanced over a point. The recovery, though modest in extent, was scored chiefly in stocks having extensive short accounts. Du Pont rallied two points from the low of the day, with demand reported largely from bears.

The short account in this stock remains rather sizeable. The "line of demarcation" between the high-grade stocks seemingly enjoying strong support, and the lesser-grade issues was noticeable, most of the latter showing slight declines for the day. International Telephone & Telegraph was a disturbing feature, declining to a new low on fears over its dividend. Scores of "new lows" were established in all groups.

The railroad stocks again closed the day lower on the average, but there was reasonably sharp recovery from the lows in various leading issues. New York Central rallied three points from the low and closed with a net gain of over a point, while Atchison likewise closed with a net gain; both stocks however had reached new lows before recovering.

Central's directors meet tomorrow and there is little question, according to latest advices, but that the regular $2 quarterly dividend will be voted. The freight traffic report will provide little concrete cheer in the 134,225-car decline from a year ago, but this falling-off in traffic has been under way for a considerable time, and the railroad shares have been in process of discounting the downward movement for several months.

Hope was expressed that a favorable steel tonnage report, due at noon tomorrow, will exert influence on sentiment. There is also expectation that the monthly copper statistics on Friday will be favorable. Late today, however, the price of Copper was lowered to 11 cents. The bond market continued weak, and the price of Silver declined to the lowest level for all time.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Dec. 9. (AP)—Wheat, oats and barley continued slow sale in cash grain market here today even in the face of very small receipts which included on 3 cars of corn, 1 of barley and 5 of grain sorghums. Corn and sorghums were in fair demand with much of the corn coming from states farther north.

No. 1 hard wheat was probably worth 82½@83½c, delivered Texas common points. Bids and offers on other grains ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid:

Corn, No. 2 mixed 85@86; No. 2 white or yellow 88@89.

Oats, No. 2 red 47½@48½.

Barley, No. 2, 63@64.

Sorghums, No. 2, milo per 100 pounds, 1.33@1.35; No. 2 kaffir 1.30@1.31.

Dealers also quoted basis delivery Texas group one points: No. 2 mixed corn, 84@85; No. 2 white 87@88; No. 2 yellow 85½@86½; No. 3 white oats 46¼@46¾, to which add one cent for delivery group three.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 9. (AP)—Brokers in wheat went on a virtual strike today. Many flocked over to the corn crowd, general trading interest in wheat having been reduced almost to zero, apparently because government sponsored operations had permitted little or no freedom of movement. On the other hand, active commission house buying rallied corn briskly from price setbacks, associated with ideal weather over the corn belt.

Corn closed unsettled at yesterday's finish to ½c higher, wheat irregular, from ⅛c decline to ½c gain, with oats ¼c off to ⅛@⅜c up, and provisions unchanged to 17c lower.

Commission houses showed a tendency to encourage corn future delivery business. As on preceding days wheat price changes were few. The market seemed to be controlled generally by farm board allies.

The chief news to wheat traders was word that the Canadian growers pool had dispensed with foreign agencies, and that Canada would trade abroad hereafter through ordinary export facilities, a return to the method which prevailed before the pool was inaugurated.

Provisions were governed by the fluctuations of hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat. May 81@81⅛c, 81⅛@⅛c; July 72⅞@73c, 74c. Corn: Dec. 73c, 74⅛c; March 76⅛c, 78c; May 78⅛@⅜c, 79⅞@80c; July 79⅞c, 81⅛c.

WEWOKA POOL GETS ACTIVITY

Two New Wells Spur Old Field

WEWOKA, Okla., Dec. 9. (AP)—Profilic new oil wells in two distinct sectors of eastern Seminole county today presaged a comeback of Wewoka as the center of drilling activity, at its height in 1923 and 1924.

One of three big wells, the No. 2 Davis of the Mid-Kansas company, on the southern edge of the Wewoka townsite pool, started off with a flow that indicated it would be one of the largest wells ever found in the Wilcox sand in this county.

The No. 2 Davis, in NE SE NW 30-8-8 was shut in for tankage today after flowing 1,845 barrels in the first three hours after completion. The potential daily production of the well was estimated at 14,750 barrels. All available tankage was filled before it was closed down.

The Deep Rock Oil company's No. 2 Douglas 50-acre well in SW NW NE of the same section flowed 1,150 barrels in 21 hours, after which it was shut in. It is 3955 feet deep.

The other new producing area was six miles south of Wewoka, where the No. 1 Fish of the Eason Oil company flowed 1,020 barrels in 7½ hours. The sand was topped at 3005 feet and drilled in seven feet. The oil tested 38.3 gravity at 64 degrees of temperature. The well is in SW SE 19-7-8.

National Oil Umpire Urged by Warner Clark

DALLAS, Dec. 9. (UP)—Creation of an arbitrator for the oil industry, a national umpire whose task would be "perhaps the biggest job within the confines of these United States," was urged today by Warner Clark, assistant manager of the Standard Oil company of California.

"Midas' Black Gold" is the title of Clark's review of the petroleum problem, an article which appears in the autumn issue of the Southwest Review, a quarterly magazine published here.

Proration puzzles would be solved by an elaborate structure which Clark would make extra-legal as far as possible. The United States, writes Clark, should be divided into four major districts—the Pacific coast, the Rocky Mountains, the Mid-Continent and the East coast.

Narcotics Commissioner Appointment Approved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9. (INS)—The senate finance committee today reported favorably the name of Harry J. Anslinger, of Pennsylvania to be commissioner of narcotics.

The name of Davis Burnet, of Ohio, to be commissioner of internal revenue, was passed over.

Wichita Operators Hear Pleas For Tariff and Proration in Meeting

R. R. Penn of Dallas, vice president of the American Petroleum institute, production division and chairman of the state advisory committee on proration, addressed a gathering of about 200 operators, refiners and representatives of the various pipe lines Tuesday afternoon, at the Wichita club.

Mr. Penn, who is one of the most successful operators in the state, spoke at length on the various problems which at the present time confront the independent producers and especially the operators in the North Texas division. He presented a number of solutions to the problem of overproduction in this area.

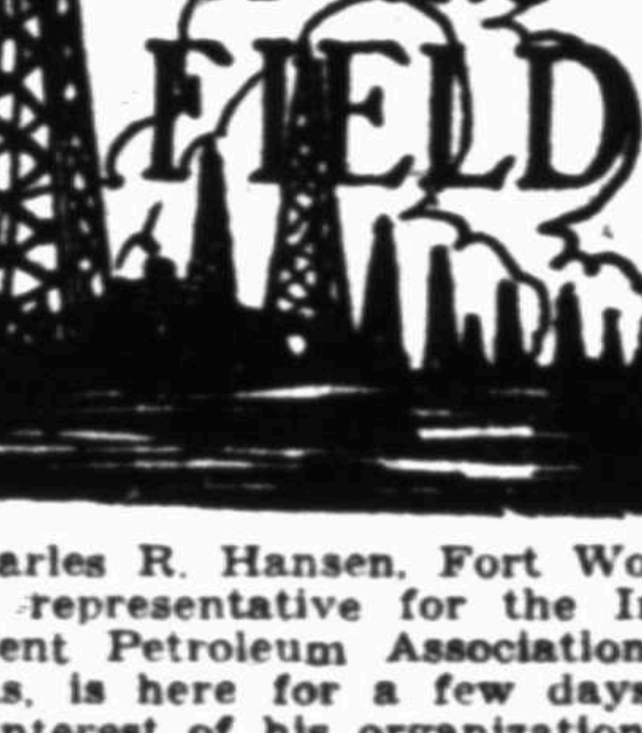

Tom Cranfill of Dallas, president of the Independent Petroleum Producers of Texas, followed Mr. Penn. He discussed the many reasons why a mighty effort should be made in the interest of having a tariff placed on crude by every operator and producer of crude in the country. Mr. Cranfill said a petition for this measure will in all probability be brought before the present congress with chances of its passing.

Roy B. Jones in a brief talk took up the cudgel in behalf of the refining end voicing the troubles of the refiners.

W. B. Hamilton and others spoke on the different phases of the industry.

During the meeting P. B. Flynn, president, appointed a committee to request the railroad commission to not grant an increase in the allowable production of the Van field. Walter Campbell, J. S. Bridwell and Foy B. Jones were made on the committee.

After the regular meeting was over, another meeting of the producers in North Young county was held to appoint a proration committee in this sector recently added to the plan. In the absence of L. V. Hull, who is ill at his home, George McWhorter was named as umpire.

Charles R. Hansen, Fort Worth, field representative for the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas, is here for a few days in the interest of his organization.

PATMAN URGES VETERAN'S PAY

Cash Compensation Sought By Texan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9. (AP)—A petition intended to bring about floor action on a pending bill for cash payment on veterans' adjusted compensation certificates was filed today by Representative Patman, Democrat, Texas.

Patman's bill has not been acted on by the ways and means committee. His petition would force the committee to turn the measure back to the house for consideration.

He said while the petition did not bear the necessary number of signatures, he had been promised additional names.

Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas, called the attention of the house to Patman's petition.

"This payment of $2,000,000,000 is exactly what the country needs today," he said.

Jury to Decide On Burial Case Issues

Trial of Albert Leinkuehler on a charge of burying a human body in a local cemetery without a burial permit was completed in the county court-at-law before Judge Irvin J. Vogel Tuesday afternoon, the jury receiving the case just before adjournment. Its deliberations will begin Wednesday morning, it was said.

Evidence produced in the trial revealed that the body of a man who had died in a local hospital was taken by Albert's Funeral home, prepared for burial and after a funeral service, interred in a local cemetery. Inability both to obtain from local city officials the burial permit, and to defer the interment, was argued by the defense.

Less than 10 days ago, the world premiere of "Lightnin'" (Will Rogers) was held at the Roxy theater in New York. Today, still in its second week at the Roxy, it is exciting the highest of praise from New York critics.

Wichita Falls will see the same picture on Friday, ahead of the national release date. Will Rogers is cast as "Lightnin'" Bill Jones, a lazy, lovable individual who is kind and generous but who hasn't the greatest regard for the truth. His stories in the play are said to be beautifully done by Will Rogers.

There are plenty of interesting facts about Will Rogers that keep him constantly a source of fascination to the public. His crisp comments on the daily news keep him in the limelight, and his homely philosophy and pecularities endear him all the more to a hero-worshipping public.

He refuses to wear a dress suit and appears in a slouch hat of ancient vintage and a well-worn chamois jacket. He wears the same costume in his pictures that he wears at home and around town. He is one-sixteenth Cherokee Indian.

His two pictures which preceded "Lightnin'" have been gems in the matter of humor and Rogerian philosophy, and his absolute naturalness was a welcome relief after too much acting. His ad libbing was better than the written lines, especially in "They Had to See Paris."

Following the week's run of "Lightnin'" here, another nationally praised classic will open at the Majestic—"Min and Bill," with the unbeatable combination of Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery in the title roles.

Stamford Man Shoots Self After San Angelo Automobile Crash

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Dec. 9. (AP)—Floyd Halbert, oil scout who shot and killed himself at Stamford this morning, suffered a nervous breakdown here Oct. 24 following an automobile accident in which he figured a week before.

Victor Barbarick, 12, was knocked from his bicycle and injured by a hit-and-run driver. Five boys in another machine followed the car involved in the crash and when police arrived they found Halbert slumped over the wheel. He was arrested and placed under $500 bond on charges of driving while intoxicated. However the grand jury nobilled him, giving him a clean record when the father of the youth told of Halbert's kindness and the lack of proof that he was actually driving the car.

He left San Angelo shortly after suffering a nervous breakdown in the lobby of a downtown hotel.

Tuberculosis Society Plans Work for 1930

Extension of the program of work followed during the past year is planned for the coming 12 months by the Wichita County Tuberculosis association, which is now engaged in the annual sale of Christmas seals for providing the organization with more operating funds.

Headed by Dr. F. R. Collard, president, and Oral Jones, treasurer, a community-wide campaign is now being waged to increase the use of the Christmas seals provided by the association, and all proceeds of which revert to the organization's treasury.

Among the activities of the tuberculosis association in 1930 were listed health education work among all classes and races; school health work; physical examinations with visiting nurses' aid; health contest promotion; promotion of public health with local officials; conducted diagnosis campaign; conducted five chest clinics, examining 330 patients; 26 patients sent to sanatorium, and milk-for-health week program carried out.

CAMPAIGN WINS JOBS FOR 700

Curlee Tells of Vital Need For More Employment

Employment of more than 700 persons has been obtained through employment division maintained at the chamber of commerce since the better business campaign was launched, according to information given members of the Wichita Falls Real Estate board in its weekly meeting at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon by Walter C. Curlee, employment division chairman.

Mr. Curlee followed his report with repeated emphasis upon the importance of providing any kind of work now which may possibly be provided for local men who need employment. Many are in destitute circumstances, he declared, and will do any kind of work in order to obtain means of subsistence, but who will steal before they will seek charitable aid. Low prices on labor and on commodities prevalent now, Mr. Curlee said, should prompt any citizen to spend his dollar for the most he will ever get for it.

Cooperation with the chamber of commerce in making the annual meeting of that organization at the Memorial auditorium on Jan. 9 a success was pledged by members of the board. The realtors will not meet Jan. 9, because of the chamber of commerce event scheduled for the same date.

Roscoe Staton, president, spoke briefly on the better business movement. He also announced that Texas Real estate boards have selected San Antonio as headquarters and Charles J. Rush as secretary. J. C. Mytinger is a vice president, and Mr. Curlee is a member of the advisory board, as well as having served as president in the past.

Prison Term Assesed In Theft of Chickens

Following a plea of not guilty on a charge of chicken theft, and subsequent plea of insanity with a request for a suspended sentence, Carl Holcomb was found guilty by a jury before Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court Tuesday and sentenced to a term of six months in the state penitentiary.

According to members of the district attorney's office, Holcomb's conviction carried with it the first penitentiary sentence ever given in this county on a charge of chicken theft. Evidence introduced by the state showed that a large number of chickens belonging to Mrs. R. A. Yeager, who lives about two miles southeast of this city, were found in the defendant's car.

LONDON—The carefully-powdered cheeks and noses of the fair sex are no more. In their place has appeared a brilliant shine. It's the newest fad of fashion, and Mme. Delysia is one of the first to take to it. A fine scented oil is applied to the face to create the shine.

Colored Charities To Open Garment Exchange

The colored children's clothing exchange at 209½ Park street where persons having clothing, shoes, wraps and other garments may bring them, will be open the remainder of this week, according to Zenobia Tremble, executive secretary to the Colored Day Nursery and charities.

The clothes will be gathered this week, and next week will be spent in getting the garments in wearing condition. The exchange will be open to fit the children one day next week, it was said.

More than 200 artesian wells have been sunk in the city area of London. These go down to a source of water much softer than that of the public water supply.

YULE LIGHTS SPREAD CHEER

Highland Park, Dallas, Famous for Decorations

"The outside illumination of homes during Yuletide is something new in America and if it is a fad it has gained popularity in every city where the idea has been carried out," said Irvin J. Vogel, chairman of the Christmas spirit committee of the Junior chamber of commerce Tuesday.

"In Wichita Falls it has been practiced to some extent by home owners during the holiday season and while no great expense has been involved, yet beautiful effects have been obtained," said Chairman Vogel. "This year we would like to see a thousand homes illuminated electrically from the outside.

"If the home owners will join in this contest it will be one means of attracting not only hundreds but thousands of visitors to Wichita Falls. People are known to travel for miles to visit communities in which the program has been carried out upon a large scale.

"Of all Texas municipalities, Highland Park, suburban city of Dallas, is considered one of the nation's leaders. Its citizens have won national recognition in outside illumination of their homes.

"During the Yuletide season Highland Park attracts thousands of people from every section of Dallas, and many come from neighboring cities to see the beautiful effects obtained from electric illumination. There are two places in Highland that always attract attention. One is the city hall building and the other a large pecan tree at Armstrong Parkway. In the illumination of the tree over 2,000 colored electric lights are used.

"Wichita Falls should join in this new American movement of making homes more beautiful during Christmastide."
