Rockettes Meet Paducah In Playoff Game Friday

The game that determines the winner of the girls district basketball championship will be played at Childress gym Friday night, February 29, when Coach Donald Briggs Rockettes meet the Paducah Dragonettes.

The district schedule ended with the teams tied up. A three-game series was agreed on by the coaches. Two have been played—and it's still a tie.

The game at Childress, on neutral ground, begins at 7:30. The winner will play in the regional tournament at Canyon Friday and Saturday, March 7 and 8.

The Rockettes lost their first game, played last week at Paducah, 29 to 28, but came back to win their home game Monday night, February 25 by a score of 32 to 23.

In the first game of the series, the teams were tied 7 to 7 at the end of the first quarter. The score had widened to 18-12 in favor of Paducah at the half, and 26 to 19 in the same direction as the last quarter started. While the Rockettes outplayed their opponents during this period, they failed by one goal to take the game.

Funeral for Mrs. Della Roy To Be Held Thursday

Mrs. Della Roy, 80, the mother of H. Lee Roy and Mrs. C. E. Welch of Wellington, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Tuesday night, February 26, following a lengthy illness. She was suffering from a circulatory ailment.

Represents Oklahoma

McPherson in National Golden Gloves Tourney

Jack McPherson, University of Oklahoma Golden Gloves fighter, won the heavy-weight division in the Oklahoma tournament and is now competing in the national tournament at Chicago.

This is McPherson's second time to go into the national bracket. Two years ago he competed at Boston but was forced out during the tournament when he received a broken jaw.

McPherson began his boxing career in Wellington under Coach John Lee and was a high school regional Golden Gloves champion two years in his weight.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther McPherson of Wellington. At the time he competed in the Boston tournament, the young fighter was attending Cameron College, Lawton, Okla. He later served in the Army, and upon being discharged he enrolled in the University of Oklahoma.

Production Goals For Collingsworth Farms Announced

Production goals for the major row crops for Collingsworth County have been set by the State Mobilization Committee as follows: Cotton—125,000 acres; grain sorghum, 60,000 acres.

The wheat goal was set last summer at 40,000 acres. "Goals for 1952 call for a production greater than ever before," J. A. Coleman, chairman of the Mobilization Committee said.

The county goals are about the same as for last year. Cotton and feed grains are the crops that need the most attention this year. Demands during the past few years have been so large that disappearance has exceeded current crops. The result has been a gradual depletion of reserve stocks, instead of a desirable increase in stocks of these vital commodities.

With the population of the United States increasing at the rate of 2 1-2 million per year, we can readily see why the need for increased production. "An increase in production necessitates the need for greater conservation of our soils," Mr. Coleman said.

Grainger McIlhany Asks Re-Election

Grainger McIlhany of Wheeler announced this week he will be a candidate for re-election as State Representative of the 87th legislative district comprising Collingsworth, Gray, and Wheeler counties.

McIlhany, owner of a department store, has represented his district in the house if representatives for two terms and, as a member of the conservative bloc, has a record of supporting measures aimed at economy in government at all levels.

A young man (he is 33) holding degrees in law and business administration from The University of Texas, the Panhandle legislator surprised many voters and colleagues when he joined the ranks of farmers, stockmen, and conservative business men during his freshman days in the legislature. He has continued to go down the line for these interests, fulfilling the promise of home-town supporters who were responsible for getting him into the race four years ago.

The state representative is a son of the late M. McIlhany, pioneer merchant of Wheeler, and he and his mother still own and operate the department founded by his father. During World War II, McIlhany was a member of a field artillery unit that saw action in France and Germany.

In his first legislative term, McIlhany's attention centered on measures aimed at modernizing the state prison system, improving rural and small-town school administration, and overhauling of state hospitals and mental institutions. He was also active in soil conservation legislation.

During the past session, Rep. McIlhany successfully sponsored several important bills, one of which authorized Texas A&M College to make agricultural experiments designed to prevent wind erosion in the Eastern Panhandle region. Another bill set up regulations for juvenile automobile drivers. Previously teen-age drivers under 17 years of age were not subject to any traffic laws of the state.

Rep. McIlhany also wrote the present law which controls the use of 2-4-D weed-killing chemicals. At an earlier session he was one of the authors of the Briscoe-Colson bill which created the present farm-to-market road program.

Swift Home at Dodson Burns

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Swift in Dodson was destroyed by fire last week, in spite of efforts of both the Dodson and Wellington Fire Departments.

Members of the Swift family were visiting with friends near Dodson when the fire was discovered by someone passing the house, about 8:00 p.m. The blaze was already well under way at the time and it was impossible to save any of the contents.

It is believed that the fire started from a bathroom heater.

Mr. and Mrs. Swift and their daughters are staying in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Z. McKinney in Dodson. Mr. Swift is mail carrier on Route 1 out of that town.

County Gets .11 Inch Moisture From Rain, Snow

Eleven hundredths inch of moisture was recorded from the mist, rain and snow which fell late Sunday and Monday morning, February 24 and 25.

This will be of some help to wheat, which had come out following the tenth inch of moisture early this month, but a ground soaking rain is needed to be of any lasting benefit.

This brings to 1.16 inch the moisture received since the first of the year.

for all parts of the county outside of Wellington, this week announced chairmen for all communities of the county. These workers will meet Saturday, March 1, at 3:00 p. m. in the county court room to receive final instructions for making the drive.

Miss Katherine Boverie, home service chairman, pointed out that a little less than one-half the Roll Call Drive quota remains with the county Red Cross Chapter to meet local needs during the current year. This amount is not sufficient to care for the needs that arise in the county during the year, it was pointed out. Of the money raised above the quota, one half will remain with the local chapter.

Community chairmen for the drive include Dodson, T. E. Lennon; Pleasant Point, Mrs. Elliott Wynn; Fresno, Mrs. J. B. Killian; Kesler, Mrs. George Lewis; Kelly, Mrs. F. L. White; Shinnery, Mrs. W. C. Reeves; Milday, Fred Pepper;

Beekkeepers Elect J. B. Stevenson

The Collingsworth County Beekkeepers Association organized February 25, 1952. The following officers were elected: Mr. J. B. Stevenson, president; John C. Harper, treasurer; and John Thomas, secretary. The annual dues were set at $1.00 per member.

The group voted to open the association membership to all alfalfa seed growers. "It was felt by this group that the association was needed in order that by having an association it would be easier to attract commercial beemen into this area, for the purpose of pollinating alfalfa. American foul brood was found to be present in this county last summer and through the association the services of the State Bee Inspector can be obtained in controlling this disease. In controlling this disease not only will the county beekkeepers be benefited, but also it will encourage commercial beemen to place bees in the county for pollination purposes since most commercial beemen go through the state bee inspectors for checking on the presence of foul brood in this area," Thomas said.

Norwood Eagles Play In Regional Tourney

Samnorwood Eagles, winners of district 3-B basketball, will compete in the regional tournament at Canyon Friday and Saturday, February 29 and March 1.

The Eagles drew a bye in the first bracket and they will play their first game against Megargel Friday at 4:10 p.m. If they win this game, they will go into the semi-finals Saturday at 2:00 p.m. Megargel, like Norwood, drew a bye for the first game.

Thirteen teams from the Panhandle and South Plains area are entered in the tournament. The winner will play in the state tournament.

Billy Alexander, ace player for the Eagles, is out with the flu this week, but it is believed he will be able to play at Canyon, Supt. Orville Cunningham said.

Coach Purl Tippie, who has every man on the team in top shape, will pick his starting five from these boys: Alexander, Lawrence Overcast, Charles Daugherty, Joe Schaub, Joe Ray Thompson and George Cunningham. Others making the trip to Canyon will be Don Knoll, Franklin Knoll, Marlin Sheffield, Wayne Johnson and Troy Clark, manager.

The Eagles have been defeated only once this year, by the Class AA Wellington Skyrocks, but they came back to hand this opponent two later defeats.

They have won each of the three tournaments entered, invitation events at Canadian and Peryton, and the district tourney at Claude.

Lord Jim Says--

By Bill Hughes

More about increasing rain! Heard a fellow worrying about maybe these rain increasers might decrease it instead of increasing it.

There is no scientific proof on this, one way or another. There is not apt to be any scientific proof of it for another ten years, because it will take that long to accumulate the necessary data from actual experience in order to be able to scientifically prove or disprove it.

But the men who are buying this service wouldn't be renewing their contracts if they thought so. The amount of land participating in the program would not have grown from one state and ten thousand acres to seventeen states and three hundred million acres and be every day growing larger, if those buying this service thought it no good.

Have heard much worrying about it being none of man's business playing God.

Now these rain increasers make it positively plain that they don't in any way lay claim to Godly powers. They don't claim that they can make it rain. They insist to the contrary that they are just as dependent on God as you and me.

PERFECTION. ALMOST— Hollywood actress Sally Forrest ranks as "The Almost Perfect Girl" of 1951 as far as a poll of the Artist's Institute of America is concerned. Twenty-one year old Sally nosed out 2000 other rivals for the honor.

They say God has to put the moisture up there and natural rain must fall before they can go to work. They don't claim to make it rain, but they do say that when it does rain, they have a method to help make it sprinkle a little more.

It's just like God must put the water in the rivers and the streams and under the ground before man can dam it up, divert it in ditches or pump it out. If it's wrong to tap water from the sky, then it seems to me it's equally wrong to dam our rivers, divert water from our streams, and tap wells into the ground.

Then I heard a fellow worrying about, if there was not 100 per cent participation, a bunch of guys would be riding free on his money. If I can spend three pennies and get back six in return it is hard for me to see how I am hurt any if somebody else happens to net a little more profit than me. I think we forget that fundamentally, the normal human being has his full share of pride, his full share of desire to be a part of his surroundings. I think we forget that if a man, of his own choosing loses all his desire to do his part, something happens to him inside that all the money in the world cannot cure.

Because this rain increasing is in the experimental stage, those who participate are pioneering. I don't recall any of your pioneering ancestors, as they faced West, saying to those whom they left home in the East, "because I am gambling my stake, because I shall suffer, starve, because I may die, thou shalt not follow me into the West after I settle it, you who gambled nothing, you who suffered no hardship, you who lost no comforts and risked no death building the road there and settling that wilderness."

In fact too often today by measuring everything in terms of material things, you are prone to overlook and forget about the unseen intangible qualities so absolutely necessary to health, happiness, and peace. Consequently, by measuring justice, equality, and freedom only in terms of acres, dollars, power, and privilege you produce injustice, inequality, and serfdom. Then you wonder why you need socialized medicine, why you have such a terrible need for security, why you are living in a constant state of ever increasing war and emergency.

It simply is not enough to nod your head in agreement that there is a God. It is not enough to go to church every Sunday. The only true, the only real measure of belief, of faith, is by how it affects your actions and behavior. So it was with the early American settlers, the American pioneers, and so it is with the modern pioneers today. The only difference is that the job of pioneering today, instead of being from East to West across the land, it is the even more hazardous climb up the ladder of wisdom, knowledge, and understanding, which cannot be done with dollars alone anymore than it was in the old days.

There must be self-reliance. There must be integrity. There must be vision. There must be courage. There must be love. There must be trust. There must be faith. You cannot buy these things. You grow 'em by using 'em — each one of you individually. No kind of "deal" can give 'em to you. They are not "free". Yet they are the foundation of health, happiness, peace, and security. They are the basis upon which these rain increasers stand who strive to produce more life giving waters.

Then there are a number of fellows who say, let's see. "One penny per acre times 300 million acres gets them $3 million dollars a year". "What kind of sucker does Dr. Krick take us for?" Folks I don't know what Dr. Krick's operating costs are, but when you employ over 200 people, all of whom must have special talents and skills and a large number of whom are top experts, the payroll alone will eat up a considerable amount of this. Then there is the cost of much specialized equipment, constant research, and there are innumerable other operating costs plus licenses, fees and taxes.

Finally, if you can profit in terms of dollars by spending pennies, since when is it wrong for such a service to profit? What else can you do for your land for so little with the chance of realizing so much, or if it should fail to work, what else do you do with your land which in failure would hurt less — even less than thirty times as much?

Finally, if it costs a penny per acre why are they asking 3c an acre?

Collingsworth County has approximately 570,000 acres. The cost to Collingsworth County to join the area non-profit corporation is 1c per acre or $5,700.00. Since experience has shown that the first year participation averages about 25 per cent, then it is necessary to ask 3c an acre from the individuals participating in order to raise $5,700.00.

But suppose 50 per cent of the people of Collingsworth County participate? Then by one means or another the extra 1c per acre will be returned.

You see, man has never made a gain of any kind without trying; and this means of adding to our diminishing water supply will never be used or proven until we try.

Arkansas Tourists Stop at Quail for Basketball Game

"We came all the way from Arkansas to see this basketball game," two couples told Supt. Herman Moseley of Quail recently, following a match there. They had, too.

They explained that they were en route from that state to California and stopped at Jay's for supper. Seeing the basketball game advertised, they changed their plans to remain in Wellington overnight and drove out to Quail for the game.

News Letter

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS

TAXES: Taxes are still the number one worry of the low income groups. The present personal exemptions and exemptions for dependents are not much help with prices rising on all of the necessities of life. It is the low income group that suffers most and the higher the price of necessities go, the harder the struggle for existence. I have searched the tax laws continuously for an effective means of affording some relief to those hardest hit. My conclusion was that the quickest and most effective relief for the low income groups would be an increase in the personal and dependent exemptions. By making this change, there would be no discrimination against those in the higher income groups. In other words, the same rule would apply to all taxpayers. But the greatest relief from such increase would go to those who are in greatest need. On February 11, 1952, I introduced a bill in Congress to increase the personal exemptions on individuals from $600 to $1000.00, and the exemptions for dependents from $600 to $750. If this bill is adopted, it will mean that a man with two children earning $3500.00 a year would not have to pay income taxes. Many people have said that it is not fair for those people to be relieved of paying taxes. This is not a very good argument because the greatest amount of federal taxes that all of us pay are hidden taxes on commodities that we buy, and local and state taxes still have to be paid as they are assessed. Under 1948 figures, it would amount to a tax reduction of about 25 per cent of your entire tax bill if you are in this low income group. Passing this bill is not going to be an easy task, but I intend to do my best to get some relief so that these low income people can feed and clothe themselves and children. Another bill that I am preparing at the present time is a bill that would permit as an allowable deduction all medical and hospital fees incident to the birth of a child. Under the present tax laws and the low exemptions, a young couple is actually penalized for having children.

BRITAIN'S KING-TO-BE— Though only three years old, Britain's Prince Charles, son of Queen Elizabeth II, has all the gravity of one many years older. The future Prince of Wales and heir to the British throne is already a prince of the House of Windsor, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick and Baron of Renfrew. The toddler-Prince has an income of $280,000 a year from Cornwall.

SOME QUESTIONS TO WHAT THE VOICE OF AMERICA IS DOING: I have discussed the Voice of America with many people in this country and from abroad. Many of them praise it highly. However, many have some well founded objections that I think should be cured. They tell me that too much time is devoted to telling the people about the many luxuries that we have in this country; that the people in those Iron Curtain and Russian satellite countries actually cannot conceive of any people enjoying the luxuries that we consider as necessities; that they are therefore very suspicious of these stories and doubt the truth of them. These same people tell me that the broadcasts would be much more effective if they would talk to the people along lines that they could understand. That is, tell them more about roast beef, mashed potatoes, turnip greens and cornbread, and less about ice cream and cake. In talking to citizens who have come over from those countries, I gather the same story. What the people in those countries want is talk about plain common everyday food and not talk about automobiles, electric ice boxes and television sets.

ONE TO GET RICH: Ex-Communist Whitaker Chambers is now publishing his book "I Was a Witness." This book is being carried in the Saturday Evening Post in serial story form. The estimates here are that Chambers will get $75,000.00 from the past for these publication rights. It is also forecast that his book will be on the several times the $75,000.00. He is best-seller list and should net him doing this under a system of government that he worked for many years to destroy and, by his own admissions, committed treasonable acts against. Quite a reward for a confessed traitor. It is too bad he didn't get religion earlier. Some of the information that he had, and undoubtedly will publish, might have saved this country from the mistakes at Potsdam and Yalta.

THE BUFFALO LAKE MATTER: I am getting together a lot of facts on these Soil Conservation projects that are going to be mighty interesting. This situation may develop into a full fledged investigation, which I am sure the people of the Panhandle would welcome. One interesting point is that Buffalo Lake has cost the government about $350,000.00 since 1939. According to the records I have been able to get hold of to date, the government's cut out of the $71,000.00 gross at Buffalo last year was approximately -8,000.00. Another record I have shows an expenditure last year by the Government of $5,806.00 up to October 1st. The concessionaire's contract calls for the projects to be kept in good repair and fully maintained. If the government spent $5,806.00 by October 1st last year, the chances are that they spent by the end of the year all of what they collected, and more, on the project. This means that the government is furnishing a project that represents an investment of approximately $350,000, and the only person making any money out of it is the concessionaire. That doesn't look like good business to me from the taxpayers' and the fishermen's standpoint.

The program will be held at the Community Building, and will begin at 7:30 p.m. No admission will be charged, and the whole town and farm community are invited to attend.

According to Kelly Pigg, "The Ford Farming Festival is just what its name suggests, a festive occasion with wholesome entertainment features for the entire family. But it has its serious side, too, with ideas, inspiration and new farming information presented by agricultural leaders we all know and respect. The Festival is our tribute to the farm people of this community."

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Plans for raising money for the purpose of increasing the annual rainfall are well under way in Collingsworth County. Each landowner will be asked to contribute 3c per acre. Can't see where this amount of money would hurt anybody and it sure will be interesting to have the plan tried. Dr. Krick's group do not claim that they make rain; but the records show that the average rainfall has increased as well as crop and grass yields where the plan has been tried. The Wellington area will be part of a 5,000,000 tract in western Oklahoma and the eastern part of the Panhandle that will be seeded.

This is the time to kill rattlesnakes if you want to get them in bunches. A story came out of Archer County last week about the manner in which Hood P. Williams kills snakes in the winter. He locates the winter hibernating spots by visiting the eastern and southern exposures of rocky hillsides between 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning. He finds a few out sunning themselves even at this time of the year. He shoots one or two and permits the others to escape in order to lead him back to the den. Then he pours from two to ten gallons of gasoline in the hole and in about ten minutes rolling masses of rattlers come boiling out of the den.

Why wouldn't this be a good drive to organize in Collingsworth County. Perhaps Cicero Gulley might lead the expedition. He is always talking about how many rattlers he killed when he was a boy. I would be glad to lead the hunt myself; but I will be out of town on whatever day they set to have the big snake killing.

I am so scared of snakes that I will walk twenty yards out of my way to get around an ordinary bull snake. Besides they are beneficial. The rats and mice and other pests they destroy far outweigh the few hen eggs they eat.

If all the snakes, and skunks, owls and hawks were destroyed, rats and mice would literally overrun the prairies and the farms.

Dewey Ellis says that he was talking to Vernon Jones recently. Mr. Jones once lived on Salt Fork and now lives in Dumas. Last summer he was injured and his wife suffered a ruptured disc in her back; so they decided to take a vacation. They went to Los Angeles and from there traveled north 1,300 miles to Puget Sound visiting former Collingsworth friends along the way. In all they were gone five weeks, and Mr. Jones said that he read the Wellington Leader every week at the home of one friend or another.

Mrs. John Lee loaned her husband's six shooter to somebody during the holidays; but she can't remember who borrowed the gun. She will appreciate it if the gun is returned. That reminds me of something else. I will appreciate it if a certain party will return the typewriter they borrowed from me for two weeks use two months ago.

Growing weather travels northward about 15 miles a day according to an Associated Press map. According to this Shamrock should be about two days later than Wellington. Actually there is two weeks difference in the time trees leaf out and the same flowers bloom in Wellington and Shamrock. The other factor is altitude. Shamrock is some higher and one foot up is equal to one mile north as far as plants are concerned; so there are two factors to weigh in considering temperature and the growing season.

I see by the newspapers that Drew Pearson came down to Vernon and had the gall to tell Texans how they should vote in electing a United States Senator. That may be one of the biggest boosts that Price Daniel has received in the comparatively dull political month of February. By subterfuge in quoting non named Texans he intimates that the veteran Tom Connally will have no trouble in beating the vigorous young Price Daniel. That prediction is likely to be wrong. The people of Texas prefer to elect their own senators. They will notify Mr. Pearson when they want him to select one for them.

From Coronet
Police of a Southern state swear this is true.
A model-T Ford ran out of gas on a main highway. The driver of a Cadillac stopped and offered to tow the Ford to the nearest garage. Along the way the driver of the Cadillac forgot about the Ford. He stepped on the gas and whizzed past the first gas station with the Ford in tow. A state trooper took off after the two speeders and when the driver of the Cadillac saw the trooper he decided to try and outrun him. He pushed the pedal to the floor and started to pull away from the trooper. Seeing he was fighting a losing battle, the trooper stopped and radioed ahead to another trooper about 20 miles down the road.

"Stop the driver of a black Cadillac coming your way," he cried. "He's doing over a hundred."

"Okay," the trooper at the other end replied.

"That's not all," the first trooper went on. "You probably won't believe this, but there's a man in a model-T Ford right behind that Cadillac blowing his horn like mad and trying to pass."

HERE'S WHY
-you see more every day!

EVER stop to ask yourself why you see more and more husky GMC's on every highway every day? Why so many cost-wise buyers are singling out GMC's as their first choice?

The answer is, "GMC" spells profit to the man whose business depends on the performance of his trucks.

To light-truck users, "GMC" means the highest horsepower in its class—for GMC 1/2- to 2-tonners are second to none in pulling power.

And to commercial haulers, "GMC" means America's most popular Diesel —for efficiency, for long-lasting, fleet-footed power and lowest operating cost.

And in between, throughout the GMC line—from the smallest gasoline-powered pickup truck to the largest Diesel—the story's the same:

Power, brakes, comfort, safety and stamina—the right combination of everything essential to low-cost hauling—in the right vehicle for your loads.

Before you buy another truck—come in. See for yourself why GMC is the best truck buy you can make today.

SIXTH GRADE STUDENTS REVIEW CLASS ACTIVITY FOR ONE DAY

The pupils of grade 6-1 of Wellington Junior High School would like to share with you, some of the interesting facts we have learned today in our classes.

In reading we are having a unit on "Courtesy and Good Manners." Our story for this morning was "Courtesy in Conversation." We read that we should not criticize other people, nor should we talk too much about our troubles, or personal interests. "A polite person doesn't interrupt the one speaking." Benjamin Franklin said, "It is just as important to be a good listener, as to be a good speaker."

We are traveling through Africa in geography. We have just been through South Africa. We were impressed with the amount of minerals that are mined there.

More gold and diamonds are mined in South Africa than in any other part of the world. Diamonds are pure carbon made to form into crystals under extreme pressure in the earth. The very first diamonds were mined in India in 327 B. C. They were discovered in Brazil in the eighteenth century, and in South Africa in the nineteenth century. Diamonds have been found in the United States in Arkansas, California, North Carolina, Virginia, Ohio, Wisconsin and Indiana.

One of the most historic diamonds is the Kohinoor, which is among the jewels owned by the Queen of England.

We had a test in science after finishing the chapter on forestry. The thing that interested us most was the kinds of forest fires. Crown fires move over the ground, burning everything from the leaves on the ground to the tops of the trees. Surface fires move over the ground burning everything on the surface.

Eighty-five per cent of the forest fires are started by humans. There are five hundred forest fires a day, one every three minutes, in the United States.

Multiplication of fractions was reviewed in arithmetic. We then made a list of the things we needed to know. These things are: changing mixed numbers to improper fractions and cancellation.

One of the highlights of our day was a talk made in one of our classes by Jim Pickup, a full blood Cherokee Indian. He is chief of his tribe, and has, also been a missionary to his people for forty-one years. He told us many interesting things about the customs and education of the Cherokee Indians.

The Cherokee alphabet has eighty-six characters. When they have all been learned, the Indian is considered educated.

Today, the Cherokee Indian children are being taught English. They have adopted the dress and ways of living of the American. "Boys and girls should take advantage of their chances for an education," said Mr. Pickup, for you may have great responsibilities confronting you in the future." He said that when he was a boy, he never dreamed that he would one day be doing the things that make up his work of life. That of helping to direct the lives of young and old.

Mr. Pickup concluded his talk by singing a song in the Cherokee language. In our language, the name of the song he sang was, "Hold to God's Unchanging Hand."

Uncle Tom's Cabin Opens At Ritz February 28

An announcement of importance to moviegoers of both the older and younger generations came today from Emmett Passmore, manager of the Ritz Theater, who said that he has made arrangements for a return showing of the old, original classic, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which will open a 2-day engagement in Wellington on February 28.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," filmed in authentic settings in 1927, was one of the last great silent films produced before the advent of sound.

The showings which have been revived currently are enhanced by the addition of a sound track which includes a dialogue commentator and the music of inspiring spirituals and southern melodies, including "The Lord's Prayer" sung in all its beauty, by a full choir of Negro voices and soloists.

Outstanding sequences in the film include those which will live forever with patrons of the theater — that of Eliza crossing the river of ice, the death of Little Eva, and the transformation scene.

Faithfully based on the immortal story by Harriet Beecher Stowe, surpassed in printing only by the Bible, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" remains a milestone as one of the greatest human interest motion pictures ever filmed.

In the decade between 1850 and 1860 when the burning issue of slavery was reaching its explosion point, the little, soft-spoken woman with a pen of fire did more for the cause of the Union than the stinging words of numberless abolitionist orators.

On July 1, 1896, she died — a power beyond had silenced the lady, but the might of her written word lived on.

Her novel soon became a play, which thespians today are still doing on stage and stock in every territory of the land, a fact accounting for the reason that the power and punch portrayed in the great film classic of silent days should also live forever.

Manager Passmore pointed out that no credits are given the cast who plays the roles of the 1927 film version, though those among the older generations returning to see it will undoubtedly recognize or recall some of the faces and characters.

Those of the new generations, he said, who have never had an opportunity to witness the picture, can have a first hand experience of motion picture entertainment as it was a quarter of a century ago.

On the same program with "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be cartoon comedy — News — Britain's Queen.

BRIEF HISTORY OF COUNTY TO BE FEATURED IN HANDBOOK OF TEXAS

The following article, taken from "The Handbook of Texas," is presented for reader interest. If readers wish to report inaccuracies, they should write to the Managing Editor, "The Handbook of Texas," Texas State Historical Association, University Station, Austin 12, Texas.

It is hoped that "The Handbook of Texas," a two-volume work containing approximately fifteen thousand articles dealing with every phase of Texas life from the primitive Indian to the present time, will be available for purchase late in 1952. As a reference and general information book, this publication will be a basic starting point for information and bibliography on practically every person, place, thing, or event of significance in Texas history.

COLLINGSWORTH COUNTY
Collingsworth County, in the Texas Panhandle just below the Cap Rock escarpment, borders the west line of Oklahoma. Created in 1876, the county was named for James Collingsworth, the difference in spelling being caused by an error in the statute creating the county. Until 1890 it remained under administration of Wheeler County and was attached to Childress County for judicial purposes. The area is 899 square miles; the altitude, 1,800 to 2,600 feet; annual rainfall, 23 inches; and mean annual temperatures, 59 degrees. The level to rolling terrain is broken by the Salt Fork of Red River and Buck Creek. Abundant underground water is available. Soils range from dark brown sandy loam to gray-brown gypsum and deep sand. The principal industries are agriculture and livestock raising.

The county was first settled by cowmen, the earliest ranches being that of the three Rowe brothers from England, the Diamond Tail Ranch, and the famous Rocking Chair Ranch.

Among the first land surveys were the claims of John Elliot and P. W. Myers, filed in August, 1888. The county was organized in 1890 with W. L. Smith as county judge and E. M. Bromley as sheriff; Wellington won the county seat over Pearl John S. McConnell and John W. Swearingen donated land for a courthouse which was completed in 1893. The election and nester-rancher feuds caused such hostility between men in the west and northeast and those in the east that for several years the county was nicknamed "Killingsworth."

The county's first post office was in the home of P. W. Myers in 1889 and was called Fresno. Schools began with a one-teacher, one-room school north of Aberdeen in 1889. The county went dry in the election of 1898, one of the first counties in the state to vote prohibition. Telegraph and telephone service began in 1909. Agriculture began in a small way before 1900; the building of the Fort Worth and Denver in 1910 opened markets for cattle and made shipping of cotton and grain possible. The "Collingsworth Rustler" was established by J. B. Lawson in 1891 and published in 1909. A county fair, first held in 1921, has become an annual event. Population of the county was 10,331 in 1940 and 9,122 in 1950.

Texas Needs Help of Tidelands States

From its inception, recovery of the stolen submerged coastal waters of tidelands states has had two aspects. Legal recourse to get justice done has been the first and obvious necessity. The other is appeal to Congress against an outrageous act by an administration in control of both the executive department and the courts. The second course recognized quite frankly that justice could not be expected from minds committed to a definite course.

The legal aspects of the tidelands cases differed. The Federal Government's claim to off-coast lands of states that were formerly federal territory could have substantial basis not found in its claim to similar lands of original states. (These set up the Federal Government and the latter has no valid title to lands not specifically decided to it, such as the present District of Columbia.) The third and differing aspect is the case of Texas, Texas entered the Union under a specific agreement in which its land rights were set forth.

It is this third aspect to which Sen. Tom Connally refers in his remarkable Saturday contention that Atty. Gen. Price Daniel should have appeared before the United States Supreme Court for Texas alone. Such a course would have committed Texas to ignoring a strictly selfish interest the just rights of other states. It would have relinquished all hope of remedying a legal wrong by a political right.

Actually, of course, Senator Connally's position makes two assumptions. He is arguing that the Texas case was not presented at all on its own individual merits, which is of course in error. And he is assuming that the court would have decided in favor of Texas on the merits.

Actually the Texas case was presented on its full legal basis and the court refused to accept the testimony. Nowhere in the opinion which seized the tidelands is there a discussion pro and con of the agreement under which Texas entered the Union. Apparently nobody in the four-man minority-majority had the stomach to meet that issue which would involve outright repudiation of the nation's word. It was simpler to ignore it. Senator Connally is overoptimistic in thinking Texas would have won as a lone plaintiff where it lost as one of an aggrieved group.

But had Texas elected the solitary course, upon what aid could we now depend in asking Congress to right the wrong? Senator Connally is himself fighting that battle. If he wins it, it can only be by the aid of the other defrauded states. If right prevails and we do win, it will be due in large part to Price Daniel's insistence on co-operation with the other commonwealths.

OTHER EDITORS SAY:—

We Should Hang Our Heads

If Americans awaken at some future date to find they no longer have any voice in public affairs, it will be their own fault.

There were 57 local issues voted upon in Lorain County at the November election . . . issues that should have been everybody's business, yet a light vote was cast in all subdivisions.

In Wellington village there are roughly 1,800 potential voters. Of these some 300 are not registered. Of the 1,500 registered, less than 500 bothered to go to the polls on November 6th. Of these 500 only 393 bothered to vote for or against our $125,000 water works bond issue. Actually the 295 persons who voted favorably for it decided an issue that will affect the pocketbook of all local taxpayers for 25 years.

Of about 2,000 potential voters in the townships of Camden, Henrietta, Pittsfield and Russia where the question of forming a hospital district was on the ballot, there were only 1,436 registered and of the number 446 actually cast ballots on the issue. Not exactly the voice of the majority, would you say?

These illustrations are not exceptions but the rule in Lorain County, proving that once again most of our citizens left it up to someone else.

We spend billions for defense, send the flower of youth around the world to wage war and participate in police actions, and then deliberately shirk important responsibilities at home.

We should hang our heads in shame. What's more, we should get fighting mad about it and resolve that here in Wellington there never again will be so few people at the polls.

Cause and Effect

The recent imposition of domestic meat rationing in Argentina, for all the logic of cause and effect, must come as a shock, not only to the Argentines themselves but to the peoples heavily dependent upon Argentine meat exports for their supplies.

Reasons for the shortage of beef from the Pampas are various. Argentina's population, always a heavy meat-eating people, has increased rapidly. A serious drought during the summer months reduced production. Government wage policies favoring city workers have increased their ability to buy meat. Government controls over production and the prices paid to stock raisers have seriously impaired the incentive to increase herds and to market animals.

Herds now are so depleted that immediate production increases, even if the incentive were provided, would be impossible. Thus is created a situation which, largely by reason of inept and unwise federal policies, brings one of the greatest meat-producing nations on earth to the necessity for rationing. It will do the Peron government no service. Meat to Argentines is what bread is to Frenchmen. And the economic dislocations which will follow the curtailed production of prime commodity will be widespread.

The Argentine experience is another example, if one were needed, of the dangers inherent in attempts to regiment and regulate the raising and marketing of livestock. The net result is less meat for everybody.

WHAT IS "SOCIAL PROGRESS?"

As the political campaigns get under way in this presidential election year, we're going to hear a lot of talk about the importance of "social progress." Everybody's for social progress, of course; and all the candidates are going to pledge themselves to it. But the term "social progress" has different meanings to different people. We need to know the true basic meaning of the term so that we can recognize its proper use and its misuse. Our dictionary's definition of "social progress" is: the gradual betterment of mankind.

The Communists say that "social progress" in America requires the violent overthrow of both our form of government and our economic system and the establishment of a dictatorship backed by the power of the Red Army. They readily admit that under their system the citizen's right to own private property is abolished and the individual becomes a ward of the government, wholly dependent on it for his needs.

THE REGIMENTED SLAVE bus The Communists do not mention the fact that the citizen must necessarily be a completely regimented slave to the government. But most Americans know this and will agree that the Communist version of "social progress" — to a form of feudalism rather than forward to better life.

The Socialists say that "social progress" in America requires the setting up of Welfare State with government owning the major industries and distribution facilities and with individual rights being made secondary or even abolished in favor of collective rights. As under Communism, the Socialists would ignore property rights and all citizens would be looked upon, in effect, as wards of the government, being promised equal amounts of food, clothing and shelter. The Socialists do not publicize the fact that throughout history Socialist governments have always found it necessary to take over rigid control of the lives of the people. But most Americans know this and reject the Socialist version of "social progress" as actually taking mankind back to the status of citizen-slave and government-master which was in effect in the Middle Ages.

AN APPEALING VERSION There is still another misuse of the term "social progress." And since it has considerable appeal in America it is the most dangerous. Recently I heard a man say: "I'm against Socialism, of course; but we certainly can't afford to go back to the old days of the 'robber barons.' The government has got to be given the responsibility of creating a minimum living standard and seeing living quarters, food, clothing and education—and of course, a job for those seeking work. That's social progress."

It's an appealing thought so long as it isn't closely examined. When you give government this responsibility, or any other responsibility, I said, you are relieving the people of it, making them depend on the government to that extent, creating a form of paternalism or feudalism; in short, taking the exact first step which the Socialists always propose.

FROM 'HAVES' TO 'HAVE-NOTS' Then there is the question of paying for a minimum living standard for those able-bodied people who would make claim for it. The man said this squad could be easily solved: "By simply taking from the 'Haves,'" he said, "and giving to the 'Have Nots.'" But under our constitution every man has the right to accumulate and own private property; so wouldn't his solution make a "robber baron" of the government?

Our government already is doing considerable redistribution of wealth, taking from one able-bodied man and giving to another, and this hardly be considered social progress, for it is creating an expanding class of citizen dependents. Dr. Alfred P. Haake, the noted educator, makes the point: "You harm me and you lower my moral caliber and fidelity and integrity when you rob in my behalf." With our American system of freedoms and incentives and upon the principle of self-reliance, the American people have achieved a greater measure of social progress than can be found anywhere else in history. We must challenge any claim that social progress can be assured by increasing the number of people dependent on the government for handouts. That is the way to cripple social progress.

Bible Comment FOR MARCH 2

Jesus Asked Discipline From Disciples

Two outstanding portions of the New Testament record the great sayings of Jesus in a way not so evident in other parts of the Gospel, in which they appear in casual conversations, parables and incidents, without any apparent preconceived system or arrangement.

This quality of unexpectedness lends to the Gospels their unending freshness and interest. Still we are grateful for those portions in which the words of Jesus are recorded in a more solidified way.

It is to be noted that these portions record sayings of Jesus that were addresses to only the inner circle of his disciples. The intimate words of his teaching required for their fulfillment disciplined living and unlimited devotion.

The true principle and motive of life and conduct as set forth in the New Testament is undoubtedly the principle of love, brotherhood and service. But a Christian social system can be established and made effective only by Christians, and by better Christians than most of us are.

If Christians in general could profit by these chapters and attain the experiences therein set forth as possible, they would be the better prepared to put into life and action those sermons of Jesus. As these chapters in John reveal the inner life of the Master, they reveal also the life that every disciple may attain if he will accept the discipline of prayer and consecration and abide in Christ in the relationship which Jesus suggested in the illustrations of the branch and the vine.

Christ? It means to have the same motives determining our conduct that actuated the Master in His earthly life. The very heart of it is in the Master's command, that we love one another as He has loved us.

To Help Reluctant Rainfall

Dr. Krick Explains Use of Silver Iodide to Increase An Area Rainfall

A group of Collingsworth County farmers and business men Thursday heard from Dr. Irving Krick the details of operation of the Water Resources Development Corporation, with possibilities for increasing moisture in this area.

The following is a report from Dr. Krick's talk, published here to familiarize county residents with the operation of the moisture increasing program:

By BILL HUGHES Dr. Krick began with the history behind the development of Rain Incorporated or Rain Modification. The first approach can be traced to a patent held in Germany in 1895.

The mechanics of producing rainfall are many but they are all tied up in the growth of water droplets or ice crystals. These drop in the atmosphere and form clouds which require the presence of foreign particles of dust or chemicals, etc., to attract moisture droplets or also by direct transformation from moisture vapor to ice at temperatures below freezing to ice.

crystals. These water droplets or ice crystals grow in size until they fall as rain or snow.

In nature the substance making moisture making moisture operates at temperatures well below freezing. If the temperature could be raised 30 degrees to 50 degrees then it would be easier to get the water droplets to grow. Dry Ice pellets produce ice crystal which gather together adding moisture and falling out of the cloud. If the cloud is low and the temperature is right then the water droplets reach the ground as snow or rain.

In 1895 no one knew the temperature in the clouds, where to shoot the dry ice, or had an accurate method to measure the water. No one had enough faith in the experiment to back it and operations ceased.

From 1920 to 1930 the balloon and aeroplane began to be used to gather temperature and moisture data. In Holland in 1930 dry ice was seeded into clouds by aeroplane at a temperature below freezing. The rainfall from the seeded cloud and an unseeded cloud was measured and the seeded cloud produced the largest amount of water. Again due to a lack of interest and knowledge the experiment wasn't continued.

In 1946 General Electric rediscovered this dry ice process to increase the size of moisture droplets. At this time Dr. Krick was working in California in the weather bureau. They studied the General Electric experiment and thought they could use it with their weather data to increase the efficiency of clouds in producing moisture. In the winter of 1946-47 using aircraft and dry ice pellets to create ice crystals in a supercooled cloud encouraging results were experienced.

General Electric later began using silver iodide in their experiments with good results.

In 1948 rain increasing experiment at the Roosevelt and Verde reservoirs in Arizona. Dr. Krick used Silver Iodide instead of Dry Ice. Silver Iodide powder was dispersed in the atmosphere. Dry Ice crystals evaporate and it's value is limited. Silver Iodide vapor will drift in the airstream until it comes in contact with the cloud formation then if the temperature is right it will begin forming ice crystals.

In 1948 and 1949 Dr. Krick began using ground generators to disperse Silver Iodide crystals. This method was more satisfactory because they could operate in any type of weather and aeroplanes were often grounded right when they were needed most. Also a better dispersion of Silver Iodide vapor was possible.

Silver Iodide vapor is released from ground generators into a prevailing wind, perhaps 200 miles from the target area, and this wind carries the Silver Iodide particles into the weather front approaching the target area. These winds are often the reverse of ground winds and the operators appear to be working against the wind but they are using winds in the upper atmosphere and not surface winds.

Dr. Krick explained that at 10,000 ft. with the temperature at 27 degrees C. Silver Iodide will begin collecting moisture. As it rises in altitude and the temperature lowers it becomes more efficient and at 15,000 to 20,000 ft. with the temperature at 15 degrees to 0 degrees C. the Silver Iodide water reaction is at its peak. Nature begins working at a -5 degrees C. and thus the temperature under which water droplets form is raised about 30 degrees.

More moisture is available as rain over a given area from a treated cloud than an untreated cloud. However if the temperature of the cloud formation doesn't get below 27 degrees C. there is no known way to free water droplets as rain. Low surface fronts and clouds often look like rain but the temperature is above 27 degrees and no moisture is available.

The generator used to increase rain isn't large. It appeared on the screen to be about the size of a console radio cabinet. The generator contains a blower, a coke burner and a battery for power to operate the blower. Dr. Krick also stated that a new 1952 model generator is now in production and being used in the field. Pure coke is soaked in a Silver Iodide solution until it becomes impregnated with the right amount of Silver Iodide crystals. The strength of each shipment of impregnated coke is laboratory tested in Denver before shipment. The amount of Silver Iodide, the size of ice crystals it will produce and the number of ice crystals formed in a known area are all checked in Dr. Krick's lab. at Denver, then if the right specifications are reached, the shipment is sent to the field for use in a generator.

The exact knowledge of the weather at all times is possibly the most important feature of Dr. Krick's organization. Weather movements from all over the world are received by the weather department of Dr. Krick's Denver office. The United States Weather Bureau also sends them local weather forecasts. Then his weather men make charts for all areas in operation and these bulletins are sent out frequently to the local area headquarters.

If an important weather movement is approaching an alert bulletin is issued with all weather information available. They also have the past weather data dating back for fifty years and studying this data they know what to expect, of the weather in a given area.

Using this information and modern equipment they have produced some excellent results. Expanding continually as they go. Dr. Krick explained that only about 1 per cent of the moisture in a cloud formation could normally be expected to reach the earth's surface. To increase this amount, the method of operation needn't be very efficient. The ratio of benefits received by the producer and cost of the operation is low. One half of one per cent increase in rain will pay for the cost of operations. A return of 50 to 100 to 1 on the investment is expected in a generator.

Mr. Roberts from Harmon County in Oklahoma addressed the meeting, making a short speech on their progress. They figure they can sell 35 per cent of the Harmon county acreage. Therefore they are charging $5 per quarter section.

Mr. Graves, president of the Mangum Chamber of Commerce of Greer County was collecting from the farmers of that county at the meeting.

long range program. A 5 per cent increase is needed to pay the expenses of operation on rangeland. Also the dryer the area the larger the rain increase needed to increase the yield satisfactorily.

In the year 1951 a 500 million dollar return in yield per acre to the producer in areas under contract was experienced. Also due to increased yield on the land involved the land value has doubled. Partly due to inflation but also due to increased crop yield over a two year period that is above normal and many times the yield is above the record yield for the area under operation.

According to Dr. Krick a careful study of moisture received on the present crop calculated in terms of past crop yields on a certain amount of rain and the present returns are ever above that normally expected.

In closing Dr. Krick added an idealistic and philosophical note from an international viewpoint. He is operating or plans operations in Spain, Tunisia, Italy, and Australia. He plans to return to Italy next week to discuss Rain Moderation plans there. It is being picked up by the world and is an aid to overcome want and poverty, thus blocking Communism. Rain modification is a constructive force to be used as such in world affairs.

A Healthy Stomach The Stomach, as the receiving and sorting department of the body, is a potential source of many and serious disorders, if this organ fails to function properly. These troubles, as one slight difference or another may serve to distinguish them, when they can be distinguished clearly at all, are given many names. But they all come back to one thing. The stomach is not functioning properly. Why? Because the power that enables the stomach to function is weak, or out of control. That power is the vital energy delivered through the stomach nerves to the stomach muscles. There is interference with delivery. Spinal adjustments open up the lines of nerve communication and enable the stomach to get back to a fulltime basis. Then there is health.
