NAGIE GIVEN 25 YEARS IN PRISON

Pick Up Message Lost Airship

REPORTED FROM OSLO, NORWAY GARBLED NEWS RECEIVED FROM ITALIA MISSING FOR FOUR DAYS

BERLIN, May 27. (Sunday) (AP)—A report to the Deutsche Allegemeine Zeitung from Oslo, Norway, said that the meteorological station there had received a message from the Italia at 11:00 p. m., Saturday night via the North Norwegian radio station. The message was badly garbled, but seemed to disclose that the Italia had landed and that Nobile was asking for help. The place or the time of the landing could not be deciphered.

(By the Associated Press)

Conquerors of the Arctic have rallied to the rescue of General Umberto Nobile, and the crew of 15 on the Italia, which has disappeared in a polar fog. More than 100 hours have elapsed since the big dirigible took the air for a round trip flight to the North Pole. Her wireless gave frequent reports of the homeward flight up to early Tuesday morning. It has not been heard since.

Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth, companions of General Nobile on the 1926 voyage of the dirigible Norge across the pole, volunteered their services as soon as the need for rescue work became apparent. Amundsen accepted a suggestion from the Norwegian government that he lead a searching party. In this he will have as associate, Captain Otto Sverdrup, a man deeply versed in the ways of the Arctic.

Ellsworth Volunteers

Ellsworth cabled from New York an offer to join his former comrade in the search.

Captain George H. Wilkins, and Lieutenant Carl B. Eielson, who drove an airplane from Alaska to Spitzbergen a few weeks ago, offered to again survey the northern wastes from the air.

Captain Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen, Norwegian ace, and second in command on the Norsen accepted a commission from his government to examine the possibilities of airplane rescue work, with all possible dispatch.

The Norwegian government itself, acting on an urgent appeal for aid from the Italian minister at Oslo, ordered a noted ice breaking ship to sail tomorrow for the north.

Russian Soviet agencies along the Arctic from the Norwegian border to the eastern reaches of Siberia, have been told by their government to be on the lookout.

Suggest Siberian Coast

The possibility that the big airship may have been wind driven toward the Siberian coast, called for this Russian activity, but that possibility also was viewed by General Nobile's fellow explorers as al-

JONES WILLING TO BECOME CANDIDATE TO SERVE PARTY

HOUSTON, Texas, May 26. (AP)—Jess Jones, endosed by the state Democratic convention for the presidency, is willing to become a candidate if he "can better serve the party" in that way, according to a statement issued here tonight.

He thanked the people of Texas for honoring him at the Beaumont convention and was gratified that "the leadership of our splendid young governor was vindicated and the Texas Democrats reasserted their unwavering loyalty to the national party."

The statement follows:

"I cannot allow this occasion to pass without some word of appreciation to the people of Texas for the honor they have done me, through their representatives at the Democratic state convention at Beaumont in endorsing me for the presidency of the United States.

"No greater tribute can be paid a man than to say he is qualified to be president of this great republic. The honor is greater than any I ever could have expected or for which I can adequately express my gratification.

"And while I have said that I am not a candidate for anything except the confidence, the respect and the good will of the people amongst whom I live; if I can better serve the party as a candidate, then I would gladly be a candidate; on the other hand, if I can better serve the party in the ranks, as I have already done without personal ambition I would prefer that. My interest in public affairs is the welfare of all people, and I believe that the Democratic party offers the American people the best hope—if not, indeed, the only hope—of efficient, popular and clean government.

"We must all work for party success now and in June and November, forgetting selves and minor difficulties for the greater good."

HULL FAVORITE AT PRECINCT MEETINGS OF N. C. DEMOCRATS

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 26. (AP)—Reports for 43 of the 100 counties in North Carolina tonight indicated that Democratic party precinct meetings today had voted to instruct their delegation to county conventions to favor presidential nomination candidates as follows:

Twelve counties for Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee; nine counties for Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, one county split between Smith and Hull; one county split between Hull and Governor A. W. McLean of North Carolina, three counties instructed against Smith but in favor of no other candidate; one county instructed to vote for a dry candidate, 17 counties uninstructed.

This represents a state convention vote as follows: Hull 295; Smith 256; McLean 6; uninstructed 464; dry 35; anti-Smith 96.

The county conventions will meet June 9 to select delegates to the state convention, which in turn will choose the state delegation to the national convention at Houston.

VERDICT MRS. KNAPP GUILTY CHARGE OF 'GRAND LARCENY'

ALBANY, N. Y., May 26. (AP)—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state for New York, was found guilty of misappropriation of state census funds by a jury tonight.

The verdict was guilty of grand larceny, first degree, of state census funds.

After the verdict was returned tonight, Justice Callaghan called Dr. A. R. Davignon to the stand to testify as to Mrs. Knapp's physical condition. The physician said she needed a complete rest. Dr. A. W. Elting also testified that Mrs. Knapp had sprained her ankle, thereby aggravating a "distressing physical condition." He predicted her health would be poor for some time to come. Justice Callaghan postponed sentence until such a time as her health should be restored.

At that time, he said, he intended to impose a prison sentence. He fixed the date for sentence as September 4.

The maximum sentence would be from five to ten years.

EXPECT CROWD 10,000 SUNDAY FOR UNVEILING

Doughboy and Spanish Veterans Statues to Be Unveiled

FORMER LEGION HEAD AND TOM CONNALLY SPEAKERS

All Veterans Invited to Services; Mayor Akin Will Preside.

Wichita Falls' new Memorial auditorium will be formally opened to the public Sunday afternoon when dedicatory services will be held under the auspices of Pat Carrigan American Legion post and David McCaleb camp of the Spanish-American war veterans.

Ten thousand persons from all parts of Northwest Texas and many from Southwest Oklahoma are expected here for the dedication.

In addition to formal opening of the city's newest and finest civic building the two statues placed in front of the building by the Legion members and the Spanish war veterans will be unveiled. One of these is "The Doughboy" and typifies the soldiers who fought overseas during the world war. The other is "The Hiker" and is characteristic of the United States soldiers who fought in the Spanish-American war.

All cities, chambers of commerce, American Legion posts, Spanish war veterans' camps and service clubs in a 75-mile radius of Wichita Falls have been invited and urged to send delegations to the services.

Colonel Alvin Owsley, former national commander of the American Legion, and Congressman Tom Connally are scheduled to be the prin-

CONGRESSMAN BUTLER DIES AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—Representative Thomas S. Butler of Pennsylvania, chairman of the house naval committee, died at his home here tonight. He was 72 years old.

The veteran house member succumbed to a heart attack suffered more than a month ago.

All members of his family except a son, Brig. General Smedley Butler, now in command of American marine corps forces in China, were at his bedside. Mrs. Butler and her two other sons had been caring for him during his illness.

Mr. Butler was serving his 16th continuous term in the house from the eighth Pennsylvania congressional district. His home was at West Chester, in that state.

Meeting of Disabled Veterans Ends With Free-for-All Fight

HOUSTON, May 26. (AP)—A fist fight ended the meeting of Woodrow Wilson post, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, in a hotel here Friday night. Most of the dozen disabled veterans who attended the stormy meeting were nursing new disabilities Saturday as conflicting stories of the battle were told. It was agreed, however, that Liaison Officer William A. Urban led one of the battling factions while Post Commander Russell A. Bonham commanded the other.

Saturday both men displayed wounds received in fray, Mr. Urban having a large knot on the back of his head while Mr. Bonham wore a puffed lip.

The trouble started when a motion was made that Commander Bonham relinquish the chair during discussion of his delayed financial report on the recent Doughboy's frolic here, which the organization sponsored.

The commander challenged the right of three men to be present on the ground that they were not paid up members. They retired.

Mr. Urban then challenged the right of John Warren to remain in the room on the same grounds. The chair insisted that Mr. Warren was a member since half of his membership was paid. And then the hurricane struck.

Mr. Urban who received compensation for a bad heart and whose right leg is in a steel brace, and Mr. Bonham, who receives compensation for a disabled stomach, were the first casualties.

Phillip Shane, whose neck was broken in the navy was struck on the forehead with the gavel. Shane's head was cut and the gavel was broken.

Everybody seemed to be fighting, Mr. Urban said Saturday when Bonham ran out of the room and yelled to the elevator girl to get the house detective. Two detectives rushed in and stopped the fray.

TIP LEADS LARGE POSSES TO SEARCH FOR NEGRO SLAYER

FORT WORTH, May 26. (AP)—Posses of several hundred men were searching the western part of the city and several miles west of the city limits Saturday afternoon in the belief that Tenola Moore, negro slayer of George Turner, bicycle policeman, was within their grasp.

Hunt in this district was started just before noon on a report that Moore, disguised as a woman, was left in a ravine in the Lake Como district early Saturday morning.

In addition to the Lake Como neighborhood, posses have been spread out west of the city from Aledo to the White settlement road. Several men are stationed at Benbrook. A score are at Aledo.

Motorcycle officers and officers in automobiles are aiding the searchers in the ravines and fields by patrolling every road in that territory.

BUT ONE CABIN AND BREAKFAST

NEW YORK, May 26.—Fannie Hurst, the writing lady, sailed for Europe today with her husband, J. T. Danielson.

ARMED HORDES STILL PURSUE BANK KILLERS

CLUES FOUND NEAR BEATEN BODY OF SLAIN PHYSICIAN

Fear Held for Life of Bank Cashier Held Captive.

OAKLEY, Kan., May 26. (AP)—Undaunted by the prospect of having lost their quarry, at least temporarily, hundreds of possemen, aided by airplanes surveying miles of hills and prairie of western Kansas, continued a relentless search tonight for the desperadoes who raided the First National bank of Lamar, Colo., Wednesday and who have left three dead in their dash for freedom.

Captive Feared Slain

While more than 1000 men were in the field in quest of the robbers, a 36-hour search over an area of more than 50 square miles tonight had failed to reveal any trace of the missing gunmen.

The fate of A. E. Kessinger, kidnaped assistant cashier of the Lamar bank, who was carried away as a hostage after the bank robbery in which the men obtained $20,000, still was as much a mystery as the whereabouts of the bandits themselves. Hope faded that he would be found alive, and the search went on under the theory that he had been slain and his body thrown out of the speeding bandit car.

Victim Beaten

Indications were that Dr. W. W. Wineinger, Dighton, Kan., physician, had been severely beaten before he was slain by the robbers yesterday morning near Scott City, Kan. His body was found near his wrecked automobile. The captive's face had been battered in and he had been shot twice. Dr. Wineinger had been abducted to dress the wounds of one of the robbers—shot before he and his accomplices had

TWO FORMER DEPUTIES GUILTY IN INTIMIDATION

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, May 26. (AP)—John Swanner and Jesse Rose, former Willacy county sheriffs, today were convicted of conspiracy to intimidate witnesses. Two other defendants in the same suit, County Judge A. B. Crane and Archie Clark, were acquitted.

Federal Judge Hutcheson deferred sentence and placed the convicted men on probation for a period of five years.

JURY SPARES LIFE OF YOUTH ON TRIAL FOR SLAYING OF WICHITA GROCER IN HOLDUP

Jack Nagie was found guilty on a charge of murder and his punishment fixed at 25 years imprisonment by the verdict of a jury which reported in the 89th district court at 5:10 p. m. Saturday after an hour's deliberation.

Nagie had admitted that he shot Theodore Zimmerman, Lee street grocer to death during an attempted holdup on the night of April 13. He had asked for a suspended sentence, pleading that the shots were fired accidentally when Mr. Zimmerman had grappled with him.

J. W. Townsend, former state senator, and E. A. Martin, attorneys for the accused man, announced that they had recommended that Nagie accept the verdict. Nagie declared he intends to follow their advice.

Hopes for Pardon

"They advise me to start to the penitentiary and to 'go right in and pitch'; I intend to do that, in the hope that some day I may get a pardon," Nagie declared.

"I'll be waiting for him at the prison gate, whether it is one year or 25," was the declaration of Mrs. Nagie, who had been with her husband throughout his trial. Nagie is 24 years old and his wife is 22.

Her plans are uncertain, she said. Her health has been poor for several months. She is undecided whether she will go immediately to the home of relatives in Corrigan, Polk county, or to visit with friends in Lindsey, Okla., where Nagie lived for several years as he grew into manhood. Eventually Mrs. Nagie plans to go to Pennsylvania to live with Nagie's foster-mother, who is described by the convicted man as being a woman who "took me in and kept me" for six years after he had been orphaned at the age of seven.

Seven Ballots by Jury

Nagie described his foster-mother as being a woman of wealth who is now touring Europe.

Jurors reported that the verdict was reached on the seventh ballot. On the first ballot, it was disclosed, three voted for the death penalty, four for life imprisonment and one for five years' imprisonment. No votes favoring the suspended sentence were cast during the balloting, it was said. Votes favoring the death penalty were cast on the next several ballots, until the sixth, when 11 jurors favored a 25-year term and one a 35-year term. The verdict was reached on the next poll.

"I was kind of afraid right up to the last that they would send me to the chair," was Nagie's only observation.

He received the verdict without change of expression. Mrs. Nagie, sitting beside her husband, fell toward him and began crying. She was later quoted by her attorneys as expressing herself as being well satisfied with the verdict.

Nagie shook hands with Judge Martin and with each juror after the case had been closed.

BILL SLASHING POSTAL RATES IS APPROVED

16 MILLIONS CUT FROM POSTAL REVENUE SOURCES

Legislative Action Comes After Long Journey in Both Houses.

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—Congress completed legislative action today on a measure to reduce postal rates on most classes of mail to the 1921 basis thereby slashing $16,285,000 from the mail costs of the nation to take effect on next July 1.

The end of the bill's legislative journey came with the adoption by both the senate and the house of a conference report smoothing over differences in the legislation as approved by the two bodies. The measure now goes to the president.

Predict Approval

The conference agreement was adopted by both houses without record votes and Chairman Griest of the house post office committee, author of the measure, predicted that it would meet the approval of President Coolidge.

The bill as first passed by the house proposed a reduction of $13,000,000 in postal revenues by reestablishing entirely the 1921 basis of postal rates. The senate materially revised the measure and incorporated the 1920 rates as the basis for the charges on some classes of mail, which was estimated as likely to incur a loss in postal revenues of $31,000,000.

Press Benefited

Newspapers and magazines receive a large benefit from the measure in reduced mail costs which are estimated to create a saving of $6,000,000 a year. The reduced rates include a return to the 1920 basis for the mailing of advertising reading matter by the publishers, a provision inserted in the bill by the senate and approved by the house conferees.

Other provisions include:

Restoration of the one cent postal card.

Reduction to the 1921 basis of most matters falling under the second, third and fourth classes of mail.

The creation of a new postal service in the form of acceptance of business reply cards and letters in business reply envelopes for transmission without prepayment of postage. This is estimated to

MISSISSIPPI BARGE LINE BILL PASSED IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—The senate passed the Mississippi barge line bill today without a record vote.

Wife of Jack Nagie and Zimmerman's Widow Console Each Other as Trial Nears Close

By H. L. KIEFER

Two women, one the wife of the man who had made a widow of the other, held hands and talked, their eyes glistening with tears, as the trial of Jack Nagie, charged with murder, neared its close in the 89th district court here Saturday.

One of the women was Mrs. Jack Nagie, young and attractive, despite the fact that her face was marked by months of illness and weeks of mental strain.

Mrs. Theodore Zimmerman, matronly widow of the Lee street storekeeper for whose death Jack Nagie was being tried on a charge of murder, was the other.

The setting for their meeting was laid immediately after the introduction of testimony in Nagie's trial had been completed. The jury had been taken from the courtroom and Judge P. A. Martin had begun the preparation of his charge to the jury. The reading of the charge and the argument of attorneys were all that remained before Nagie's fate was to be given to the jury. During the taking of testimony, Mrs. Nagie had remained beside her husband. Mrs. Zimmerman had been seated in the first row of seats reserved for spectators.

As the recess was declared, Mrs. Nagie walked hesitatingly toward Mrs. Zimmerman. Mrs. Zimmerman rose to meet her. Their hands went out, instinctively, as they came together on opposite sides of the rails. Neither spoke for an instant.

"I'm just so sorry, Mrs. Zimmerman."

Mrs. Nagie seemed unable to go further. Mrs. Zimmerman patted the younger woman's hand as she made an inaudible reply. They conversed for several moments. Mrs. Nagie said something about the electric chair, in apparent reference to the declaration Mrs. Zimmerman had made that she would not want Nagie to be given the death penalty.

Opposes Death Penalty

"No, I wouldn't want him to die," was Mrs. Zimmerman's reply. "I wouldn't want to face my God with blood on my soul."

Mrs. Zimmerman does not believe in the death penalty, nor did her husband. It was because of her scruples against the theory of the death penalty that she opposed that punishment for Nagie.

"It would be awfully hard to give Jack up," Mrs. Nagie said after a moment, in apparent reference to the possibility of his being sentenced to the penitentiary.

"I know it is hard," was the reply. "But it was hard for me, too. There is only one we can go to in sorrow of that kind. God comforted me, and he will comfort you."

Their tones again became too low to be heard. Then—

"But it was an accident; he didn't mean to do it," said Mrs. Nagie, in obvious protest.

There were tears in Mrs. Zimmerman's eyes, obvious even through her spectacles. Mrs. Nagie seemingly was beyond the point of crying. She swallowed hard and her eyes were shining dry.

"Perhaps it was an accident," answered Mrs. Zimmerman. "But he could have avoided it. He had no right to go into my husband's store with a loaded pistol. Why did he take that gun with him? It never could have happened if he had not had that gun. We were poor people. We worked hard for what we had. I wouldn't go into your house to take what was rightfully yours away from you."

"Besides," Mrs. Zimmerman later added, "if they do send him away, you still have him. He hasn't been taken away for all time, like Mr. Zimmerman has been taken from me."

Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman had been married for 18 years.

The women converred with difficulty several minutes longer. Mrs. Nagie seemed to become more distressed as the conversation was prolonged, until finally her attorney, W. J. Townsend, interrupted. He wished to consult her about the case, he explained.

Sam B. Spence, former assistant district attorney, who is given chief credit for having traced the slaying of Mr. Zimmerman to Nagie, had watched as the women had talked. Although believing that it would be greatly injurious to the possibilities of securing a conviction should the jury see the incident, he declined to interrupt the conversation. He did cause, however, directions to be given that the jury should not be brought into the courtroom while the women talked with each other.

Dallas Store Superintendent and Bandit Battle to Death in Holdup Business District Saturday Night

DALLAS, May 26. (AP)—Ronald L. Combs, 32, superintendent of the Piggly-Wiggly stores in Dallas, and an unidentified man, about 25 years old were shot to death during an attempted holdup of one of the stores here tonight.

Combs and W. A. Greenwell a friend drove up in an automobile to a store at Grand avenue and Ervay street shortly before midnight to take charge of the store's heavy Saturday's receipts.

As an employe of the store brought the money amounting to several thousand dollars to the automobile, a man stepped up, presented a pistol and shouted "hands up."

Combs answered with a bullet, and the robber opened fire with his gun. Combs was killed by one shot while the robber sustained several wounds that almost instantly proved fatal.

Airplane's Race From New Mexico Ranch Proves Futile as Death Claims Robert Ferguson Here

Robert Ferguson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ferguson, 1002 Broad street, died in a local hospital at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

He suffered an injury to the brain when a horse fell with him on the Ferguson ranch, where he was manager, near Springer, New Mexico, Friday morning.

The young man's father and Dr. R. L. Hargrave flew from Wichita Falls to the ranch in an airplane Friday afternoon and the injured man was brought here in a plane by Dr. Hargrave Saturday morning.

All of Ferguson's relatives were out of town, but en route here, Saturday night. His father was to drive through in a car from Springer, and was expected to arrive in Wichita Falls early Saturday morning.

Besides his father, Robert Ferguson is survived by one brother, J. B. Ferguson, a student in the Colorado School of Mines at Denver, and his mother and three sisters, Misses Audrey, Mary and Ruth Ferguson, all of whom have been in Chicago for the past winter.

The body is being held at the Hines mortuary.

Robert Ferguson graduated from the Wichita Falls high school and received his Bachelor of Arts degree at Texas Christian university, Fort Worth, in 1923. Since finishing school he has been in charge of his father's ranch at Springer. He

TAX SLASH VOTED BY SOLONS AFTER FIVE-MONTH FIGHT

Little Fear of Veto Held by Bill's Proponents at Washington

TEXAS LEADER FINDS MEASURE SATISFACTORY

Garner Says Tax Cut Really Larger Than His First Demand.

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—First to come and last to go of the great financial-legislative problems of the seventieth congress, the tax bill was forwarded from the capitol today to President Coolidge. It proposes an aggregate tax cut of $222,495,000.

The finishing touches in congress were effected in the house where the measure originated, that body approving without a record vote after an hour's debate the compromise agreement worked out with the senate.

The house action brought to a close a tempestuous five-month legislative journey which formally began the first day of the session when the measure was introduced as house bill No. 1. Even before its birth in bill form the measure had been considered for a month by the house ways and means committee.

Cut Within Limit

As sent to the White House the bill comes within the $225,000,000 mark set last November by Secretary Mellon as the maximum amount of revenue reduction that could be effected without harm to the treasury. It is however, considerably above the revised margin of safety set by the treasury several weeks ago at approximately $210,000,000.

The final figure of $222,495,000 however, represents a big reduction from the approximately $290,000,000 cut originally approved by the house when it first acted on the measure.

Included among the major reductions proposed by the measure are the following: A cut in the tax rate on corporation incomes from 13½ to 12 per cent; outright repeal of the 3 per cent tax on automobile sales; increase from $2,000 to $3,000 in the exemption granted corporations with incomes of $24,000 or less; increase from $25,000 to $30,000 in the amount of income on which the 25 per cent reduction for "earned income" may be applied and an increase from 75 cents to $3.00 in the exemption on theater admissions.

Incomes Not Aided

The bill proposes no adjustment of the surtax rates and affects in no way the rates on individual incomes. It likewise makes no provision for repeal of the federal inheritance tax as sought by the treasury and the senate proposal for publicity of tax incomes was eliminated.

Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee, in charge of the bill in the house, said he was convinced that the condition of the treasury warranted the proposed cut.

"There is no question of the sufficiency of revenue for this year or next year," he declared, "but the problem will arise in 1930 and subsequent years. I believe the country can stand this much reduction."

Garner Sees Gain.

Representative Garner of Texas, Democratic leader on the ways and means committee, declared that the reduction total after the fiscal year 1930 actually would be $225,415,000 instead of the $222,495,000 figure. He argued that this would result from administrative changes proposed by the bill.

Garner added that in view of the appropriations either made or authorized by the present congress, the $222,495,000 total comparatively was much larger than the $290,000,000 originally proposed by the house.

Actuaries of the treasury advanced still another figure as the total reduction represented in the bill. They placed it at $155,000,000 for the fiscal year 1929 and explained that the full effect of the measure will not be felt until the fiscal year 1930 the reason for the comparatively small cut during the next fiscal year they found in the fact that the reductions do not become effective until next January 1.

Veto Danger Eliminated

Since the reduction is lower than the treasury had proposed and the clause for publicity for income tax returns has been eliminated, treasury officials do not believe the tax measure is in any danger of a presidential veto.

Losses in revenue under the new bill as estimated by the actuaries include $123,450,000 by reduction in the rate on the corporation tax, $66,000,000 by repeal of the automobile tax, $17,000,000 by the revised amusement tax, $12,000,000 by exemption on earned incomes, $1,000,000 by repeal of the wine tax and $1,000,000 by revision of the tax on club dues.

cipal speakers. Both will make addresses appropriate to the occasion.

The band concert will start in the auditorium promptly at 2:45 o'clock. The Panhandle Refining company band, under the direction of Paul Seeds, will play the national anthem, tunes familiar to everyone during the war days, and a selected list of numbers.

Mayor J. W. Akin will preside throughout the entire exercises.

The invocation will be given by Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, pastor of the First Christian church of this city. Former Mayor R. E. Shepherd will lead the audience in the singing of one verse of "America."

Congressman Connally will then address the meeting. He will be followed by Colonel Owsley.

Following the program in the auditorium Mr. Connally will unveil "The Hiker" and Colonel Owsley will unveil "The Doughboy."

All Confederate veterans are urged to sit on the stage Sunday afternoon with about 100 leading citizens and their wives who have been invited to view the dedicatory exercises as honorary guests.

Boy Scouts of the city under the direction of Frank Creighton, will act as ushers.

PROBE BEING MADE MYSTERY SHOOTINGS AT MADISONVILLE

MADISONVILLE, Texas, May 26. (AP)—Investigation of the mystery of two recent shootings was being made by the grand jury which is expected to make its report in a few days, officers said here Saturday.

J. E. Kittleband, 49, bachelor farmer and laborer, Friday was placed under $5000 bond in connection with the death of Henry Walker, barber, at Midway, early last Monday.

According to Sheriff J. R. Gibson, Walker was shot three times in front of his shop. Kittleband's arrest followed. No words were spoken prior to the shooting, according to the officer. Walker's death followed that of I. M. Wakefield, brother in law of Kittleband, who was found fatally shot at his home last Wednesday.

Walker is survived by a wife and child. Wakefield also is survived by a wife.

HOUSTON AIR FIELD GETS LIGHT BEACON

Delegates to Demo Meet Can Fly by Night Through Device.

HOUSTON, May 26. (AP)—To facilitate night flying which may be necessary during the Democratic national convention, the Houston airport will install a large flood light that will illuminate a space 1,000 feet square in front of the largest steel hangar on the field.

Officials of the airport expect 30 or more airplanes of various sizes to use the airport during the convention. Wisconsin's state delegation will come here in 10 planes, according to word received here.

Besides the visiting delegates' planes, there will be a number of others here for the use of newspaper photographers and others requiring rapid transit.

DELEGATES BY SHIP

HOUSTON, May 26. (AP) — Six hundred delegates and other eastern Democrats are coming to Texas on the steamer Shawnee, word received by local offices of the Mallory Steamship company said Saturday.

The steamer is due in Galveston June 25, where the passengers will come to Houston by rail.

The ship will not come to Houston during the convention for the convenience of the delegates, the Houston office is advised.

ARMED HORDES HUNT BANDITS

slain A. N. Parrish, president of the Lamar bank, and his son, John Parrish, cashier.

Various rumors bobbed up as to the location of the bandits while the search continued with unabated intensity. One report was that the men were hiding in a cave on the Smoky river in the Kansas bad lands; another was that they had taken possession of a farmhouse in western Kansas and were awaiting their besiegers.

Rewards Offered

Four robbers were in the band that robbed the Lamar bank, but their number was believed reduced to three through the death of their wounded comrade. One report said he had died and had been buried in a crude grave near Modoc, Kan.

Authorities discounted the theory that the Lamar robbers were responsible for the looting of the Farmers and Merchants bank of Wymore, Neb., today, where loot of $5000 was obtained.

Rewards for the men tonight totalled more than $10,000.

Efforts to obtain clues as to the identity of the bandits were renewed with the finding of a note near the mutilated body of Dr. W. W. Wineinger of Dighton. Finger prints on the note were to be photographed and identified, if possible, by R. S. Tewilliger, finger print expert of the Garden City, Kan., police department, who is taking part in the man hunt.

Oklahoma officers believing the desperadoes might be from that state sent photographs of identified criminals wanted in Oklahoma to officers at Lamar.

$7000 LOSS IN BANK ROBBERY AT BEATRICE

BEATRICE, Neb., May 26. (AP)—A check made of the loss to the Farmers and Merchants' bank at Wymore, Neb., robbed by five bandits early today, revealed that the gang got $7000 in cash and $11,000 in negotiable securities cause an increase in postal revenues of $4,000,000.

Large Decrease

The collection of one-cent additional an ounce on first class matter when mailed with deficient postage.

Reduction of bulk pound rates on third class matter, causing a decrease in rates of $10,500,000.

Reduction of rates to distant zones on fourth class matter, a decrease of $2,200,000.

A minimum charge per piece on second class matter when there are 32 pieces or more to the pound.

The provision of special delivery stamps in denominations of 10, 15, 20, 25, and 35 cents with the service extended to all classes of mail, estimated to cause an increased postal revenue of $800,000.

Zones Affected

The reduction in the second class rates which affect the mail charges on advertising portions of newspapers and magazines would place the first four zones under the 1920 rate basis and the remaining four zones at a midway point between the 1920 and 1921 charges.

The new rates proposed in the bill would be a reduction from 2 to 1½ cents per pound in the first and second zones; from 3 to 2 cents in the third zone; from 6 cents now existing for the fourth, fifth and sixth zones to 3.4 and 5 cents for these respective zones and from 9 to 6 cents in the seventh zone and from 9 to 7 cents in the eighth zone and between the Philippine islands and the United states.

Kin of Kidnaper-Killer Charges Purchases to Another

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 26 (INS)—Mary Hickman, 18, sister of William Edward Hickman, condemned slayer of Marion Parker, at Los Angeles, was arrested here today, charged with defrauding several local stores.

Upon plea of Charles Edwards, former chief of police here, and friend of the family, the girl was expected to be held as a "mental patient" until Monday morning.

Miss Hickman recently purchased a cloak on her mother's charge account in a women's ready to wear department store. Mrs. Eva Hickman, the mother, forced her to take the cloak back.

The arrest was made today when Mary sought to purchase more clothing on another person's charge account.

DEATHS

most a doom. They doubted if any rescue ship or air plane could ever reach the Italia in those regions.

Commander Richard E. Byrd, U. S. N., who first saw the north pole from the air, thought that a forced march through the Arctic wastes would be beyond the powers of the Nobile expedition. In this opinion he was joined by Lieutenant Eielson.

The possibility that the Italia may have been wrecked against a mountainside was seriously considered at her northern base in Kings Bay.

On the other side of the picture is a hope that the dirigible may have won anchorage in the lee of a friendly island or mountain and that her lack of reports by radio is due to a breakdown in wireless and not a major disaster.

Byrd Sees Chance

NEW YORK, May 26. (AP)—Commander Richard E. Byrd, who flew over the North Pole in an airplane, believes that there is no cause for "grave concern" about the Italia until she has been out 100 hours.

The commander, who is to lead an expedition to the South Pole this year, issued the following statement to the Associated Press.

"It seems to me that there is no cause for grave concern about the Italia until she has been out 100 hours, as when cruising at an economical speed the airship would be able to cruise for that length of time.

"She has Maybach engines, which is the same type used on the Los Angeles, which has an economical consumption of gasoline.

"There would seem to be nothing about the severity of the storm that would stop the Italia.

"It is barely possible that ice might have forced her down, in which case, due to the great skill of Nobile and his party, a safe landing could probably be made on the ice. In case of a forced landing, it would be some hours before the auxiliary radio set could be gotten in commission.

"Whether or not they could deflate and save the airship would depend upon the strength of the wind."

COMMITTEE RUSHES SLUSH FUND PROBE

To Wire for Immediate Statements of Remaining Candidates.

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—Statement of campaign expenditures filed by presidential candidates in all states requiring such accounts will be called for next week by the senate campaign funds committee.

Decision to wire for statements of expenditures filed in the various states was reached at an executive meeting of the senate committee late today.

Hasten Probe

Chairman Steiwer explained this move was taken in an effort to make a hasty round-up of expenditures with a view to getting a more definite line on the situation before the first of the national conventions meets. The first convention is that of the Republicans at Kansas City on June 12, little more than two weeks distant.

Every state will be canvassed by telegraph on Monday with a request to rush to the committee the statements which have been filed by candidates as required under their laws. It is believed almost every state has a corrupt practices act.

Would You Like to Forget Your Car Has Tires?

An Invitation to "Tire Punishers"

You motorists who step on it up to 60, 70, 80 miles per—

—who like to cover 400, 500, 600 miles a day on trips

—who show no mercy to tires on destructive roads

—who drive several times farther each year than most people do.

See this New Type of Tire!

We now offer a tire that outmatches and outclasses any previous type—oversize, extra-ply or heavy duty—for motorists who "drive hard" by choice or necessity.

An entirely new type—a super-tire—built without limit as to cost. Goodyear's 30th Anniversary masterpiece! The DOUBLE EAGLE.

Frankly, a better tire than most people will ever require.

We doubt if it will wear out before a motorist ordinarily parts with his car. And the chances against blowouts—or even a puncture—are figured at 1,000 to 1!

IDENTIFICATION: On the sidewall of this tire you will find in silver silhouette the Double Eagle: world mark of superfine quality and value, symbol of that Goodyear union of seasoned experience and youthful progress which has produced the tire of tires.

Important Features of the "GOODYEAR DOUBLE EAGLE"—the Tire of Tires

1 The finest, strongest, handsomest tire that money can buy.
2 The deep-cut, tractive All-Weather Tread is practically double-thick.
3 The toughest and longest-wearing rubber compound in this tread Goodyear has yet developed.
4 The body of the tire is built of extra-heavy SUPERTWIST cord fabric, to a new oversize dimension both in cross-section and overall diameter.
5 More plies of cord fabric; more rubber between the plies.
6 Lined with an extra layer of rubber to protect the cords from moisture.
8 The finest materials, the finest construction, regardless of cost.

New records for long and non-stop runs without tire trouble—new records, too, for low per-mile cost service—these are now to be expected.

Come in, examine this tire—you'll agree with us. Never have you seen anything like it. You'll also admire its distinguished beauty—a set of DOUBLE EAGLES adds to the appearance of the costliest car.

Similar endurance, proportioned to the needs of regular service, is found in regular Goodyears, which for most motoring requirements, are "The World's Greatest Tires."

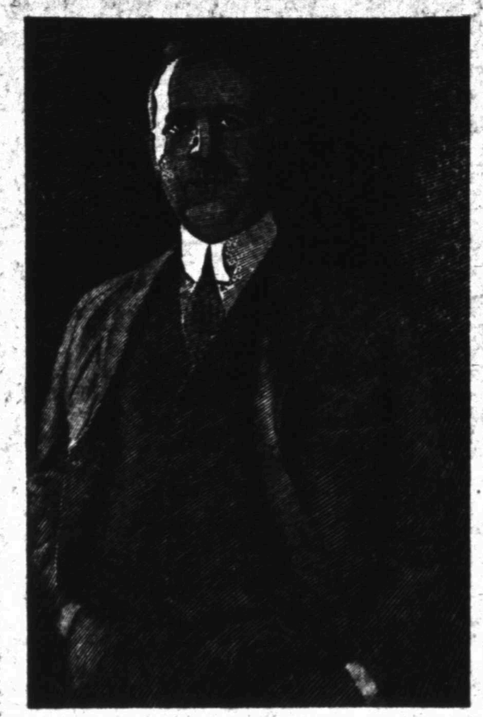

On change-overs, of pairs or sets, we are offering most liberal inducements.

"Never mind the costs" we told the Engineers

THE TIREMASTER

P. W. Litchfield, President of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Inc.; President, Chairman, or Advisory Board Member of twenty-four affiliated or subsidiary corporations. Under Mr. Litchfield's direct charge, Goodyear has made more than 115,000,000 tires, and won crowns that unequaled record with the Goodyear Double Eagle Tire

THREE HUNDRED Goodyear engineers and development men listened intently while we told them our plan.

It was to build a super-tire, to honor the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of this company in 1898.

We sketched it in broad outline, emphasizing that above all things we wanted it to be almost wastefully good.

"Never mind the costs!" we told the engineers. "Give us such a tire as the world has never seen."

And now, after a year crowded with experiment and trial, we have made this tire, and we call it the GOODYEAR DOUBLE EAGLE.

We are proud to offer it as representative of the mature experience and youthful aspiration of the largest rubber company in the world.

It is definitely and intentionally non-competitive — there is no existing tire to which it may properly be compared.

We expect it to have a very limited production, on account of its higher price and because it frankly is a much better tire than the average person needs.

THE Goodyear Double Eagle Tire is not to be classed as a "heavy duty" tire — it is much more than that.

1. The finest, strongest, handsomest tire that money can buy.
2. The deep-cut, tractive All-Weather Tread is practically double-thick.
3. The toughest and longest-wearing rubber compound in this tread Goodyear has yet developed.
4. The body of the tire built extra-heavy of SUPERTWIST cord fabric, to a new oversize dimension both in cross-section and overall diameter.
5. More plies of cord fabric; more rubber between the plies.
6. Heavy friction and coating of rubber to protect cords from moisture.
7. Special low temperature cure.
8. The finest materials, the finest construction, regardless of cost.

It is in every sense a luxury tire — for those few people to whom price is secondary, or whose service demands something extraordinarily fine.

It does not conflict with any tire — not even with the veteran Goodyear All-Weather Balloon, which in the popular sense remains the world's standard.

Its place is apart and alone, and it occupies that place in princely solitude.

TO tell you how many miles this new tire might deliver under ordinary usage would be to affront your credulity.

You ought never to have a puncture with it, because of its extreme thickness of tough tread and body.

You ought never to experience a blow-out or any similar trouble; the chances against it should be about 1000 to 1.

You ought to be able to forget completely that there are such things as tires on your car.

THE MASTER TIRE

IDENTIFICATION

On the sidewall of this tire you will find in silver silhouette the Double Eagle: world mark of superior quality and value, symbol of that Goodyear union of seasoned experience and youthful progress which has produced the tire of tires

WE believe no tire has ever endured such tests as were imposed on the Goodyear Double Eagle Tire before offering it to Goodyear Dealers and to the public.

Not merely speed and endurance tests, but the harshest sort of abusive service on improved and unimproved roads.

No tire has ever emerged from like tests with an equally flawless showing.

We think you are safe under anything like normal conditions in expecting it to last as long as you keep your car.

Goodyear has made for the Double Eagle Tire an equally superior and enduring inner tube — and calls this distinguished buff-color tube also the Double Eagle

FOES OF AL SMITH TRY TO WELD BLOC OF VOTES FOR DEADLOCK

OPPOSITION TO N.Y. GOVERNOR CENTERS ATTENTION ON SOUTH IN FIGHT TO CHECK AL'S GAIN

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—As the last of the delegates to the Republican national convention are being selected, the dispute whether there will be a nomination on an early ballot or a deadlock goes on.

From the standpoint of pre-convention delegate strength, Hoover has the best of it. Even his foes, while insisting that he won't be nominated, concede that. But neither his managers, nor those of Lowden, who has amassed a formidable bloc of delegates, are claiming that their men have the votes to win on the first ballot. From both camps, however, come predictions of victory later in the voting.

In the face of their forecasts, more than one party leader is passing the tip that neither Hoover nor Lowden has smooth sailing ahead in the convention and that a deadlock is in the making.

It is in connection with such predictions that the names of Coolidge, Dawes, Curtis, Hughes and a number of others who would be in a real dark horse class are advanced. Importance is attached to the fact that many of the delegates will be uninstructed. Delegates who are more or less foot-loose usually are in the mood, it is argued, to hop on a band-wagon if one passing by seems headed to victory.

Mellon Holds Key.

It is generally agreed that much depends on how Secretary Mellon plays his hand at Kansas City. He will head the big uninstructed delegation from Pennsylvania, and although he had declared that Hoover looks best of the candidates in the field, predictions are made in some quarters that he will do something to bring Coolidge forcefully before the convention as the best bet for the party's presidential nominee.

Among Republican leaders there is a difference of opinion as to what would happen if a deadlock develops. The Hooverites, going on the theory that Coolidge has removed himself definitely from the picture, are driving for the nomination early in the balloting. Striving to head off a deadlock, they are winding up their pre-convention campaign in the face of opposition from the field, which seems to increase in bitterness as the time for a show-down nears.

The Kansas City convention will get under way two weeks from Tuesday. A fortnight later at Houston the Democrats will begin their quadrennial deliberations, which party leaders are hoping will be peaceful.

Smith Far in Lead.

Smith is far in the lead, and apparently his supporters are not concerned over contentions, coming from some quarters in the opposition camp, that he can be stopped at Houston.

Reed, of Missouri, however, is still actively making a fight for the Democratic nomination, and many of Smith's opponents, particularly in the south, are doing their utmost to cement together a bloc of delegates, big and strong enough to prove the New York governor's undoing.

Nearly all of the state that must still select their delegates are in the south. Several of the delegations from that section already designated are classed as anti-Smith, and those fighting the governor insist enough votes can be lined up in the south, with those from "favorite son" states in other sections, to keep Smith's strength below the required two-thirds majority. His backers say it can't be done. They point to the reserve delegates who, they say, will swing to their candidate when needed and are passing along the word that it's all over but the shouting.

During the week, Texas Republicans got into a grand row in their party convention, and out of a great deal of disorder, two contesting delegations to Kansas City emerged. One is pledged to Hoover, the other uninstructed, and their dispute is one of a number the Republican national committee will have on its hands for adjustment when it convenes June 4 at Kansas City for that purpose.

Moody Wins Scrap.

The Texas Democratic state convention, also held during the week, was a tussle from start to finish. First the ultra-drys were routed in their efforts to get definite instructions against Smith, then the Smith forces suffered a setback, Gov. Dan Moody marching off with an uninstructed delegation which favors a dry plank in the national platform and a dry presidential nominee to stand on it.

In the South Dakota primaries, Lowden picked up 13 Republican and Smith 10 delegates as was expected, while in Indiana a delegation of 33, instructed for Senator Watson, and in Maryland 19 delegates, pledged to Hoover, also were named during the week.

A new favorite son—Ritchie—was brought definitely into the field when the 16 Democratic delegates from Maryland, all pledged to the governor, were named. Ritchie has confided that he doesn't expect to be nominated, and the Smith managers have been placing the Maryland delegation on their reserve list.

The last of the 1,089 Republican delegates will be chosen Tuesday when voters in West Virginia decide whether their delegation of 19 shall go into the Kansas City convention pledged to Hoover or to Senator Goff, as a favorite son. Sixteen Democratic delegates also will be named in the Democratic primary on the same day, with Smith and Reed making a bid for them.

BEAUMONT BATTLE RESULTS AS GOOD AS SMITH NEEDED

John Boyle, Al's Chief in Texas, Satisfied With Outlook

JESSE JONES TO GET TEXAS "DRY 40" VOTES

Result of Demo Fight Not Considered of National Note

AUSTIN, May 26. (UP)—Principal effect of the Texas state Democratic convention held at Beaumont this week will be local rather than national.

In the heat of the battle, Smith leaders were chagrined by a sudden turn which virtually keeps Texas' 40 votes from Smith. Their calmer view is that Smith gained everything they could reasonably expect.

John Boyle of San Antonio, commander in chief of the Smith forces, told the convention at its start:

"Smith already is assured of the Democratic nomination. It does not matter to him how Texas' 40 votes are cast, so far as the result goes."

At the close of the convention Boyle met the hilarious rejoicing of the anti-Smith factions with a repetition of the same statement.

As the smoke of the Beaumont battle clears, the following points became outstanding:

1.—The fight was one for the state leadership rather thanna tional convention votes.

2.—Direct instruction against Smith was defeated decisively.

3.—Indirect instruction against Smith by declaring "only" for a candidate whose "past and present" performance shows him in favor of prohibition, was defeated.

4.—Instruction for an "unequivocal" dry plank in the national platform and support of the candidates who "favor and support" that plank, was adopted. Smith forces voted for it.

5.—Texas' 40 votes were ordered cast as a unit.

6.—Lists of delegates had to be approved by a special committee. This insures against individual delegates overthrowing Dan Moody and other dry leaders on the delegation.

From these six outstanding points it is an easy forecast that Texas' 40 votes at Houston will be cast for Jesse Jones of Houston, complimentarily, until Smith forces show the necessary two-thirds strength. Then Texas will vote for Smith, but only then.

It is also apparent that while Smith forces prevented any direct instruction against Smith, they were disappointed in what some of them, other than Boyle, were claiming a delegation favorable to Smith.

FARM RELIEF ISSUE WILL BE INJECTED INTO G. O. P. FIGHT

Coolidge's Veto Excites Midwest Republican Heads to Action

FARMERS ARMY MAY MARCH ON MEETING

Ranks of Both Parties Split In Vote Cast by Senate Forces

WASHINGTON, May 26. (INS)—Farm relief was dead as a congressional issues today—but in its death throes it apparently has achieved the immortality of becoming a burning political issue to confront, and possibly to confound, the Republicans who will meet in Kansas City two weeks hence to nominate a presidential ticket.

There was little doubt but that farm relief would be a paramount issue at Kansas City after President Coolidge's caustic and stinging veto of the McNary-Haugen bill. There was none at all today after the senate had sustained his veto by reason of the flip-flopping of votes. The veto and the vote on sustaining it left sore spots on the Republican side that will be a long time healing.

The vote was 50 to 31. Four senators, Curtis, Republican, of Kansas; Sackett, Republican, of Kentucky; Waterman, Republican, of Colorado and Fletcher, Democrat of Florida, changed their votes and by this narrow margin enabled President Coolidge to emerge a victor in his biggest clash with the senate. Had these votes, originally recorded for the bill, stood fast on the veto question the McNary-Haugen bill would have been passed by the necessary two-thirds, and Mr. Coolidge would have been signally defeated again by the senate on a legislative question.

Curtis is a candidate for the Republican nomination. He is also credited with being an aspirant for the vice presidential nomination. He is now in the position of being recorded on both sides of the McNary-Haugen issue, having voted originally for the bill, and then voting to sustain the veto. He thus becomes what the cynical and practical politicians in Washington call "available" as a compromise candidate for either nomination at Kansas City.

Curtis Explains Vote

The situation was so tense politically that Curtis felt called upon to explain his vote, as follows:

"I have always favored farm relief legislation as shown by my vote for every farm relief measure voted on in congress since the war, and by my action in offering two carefully prepared measures which would have given relief had they been adopted. Much as I sympathize with the farmers and as much as I favor legislative relief for them, as Republican leader of the senate on this vote I felt it my duty to stand by the president."

Eighteen other Republicans, among them numerous vice presidential aspirants, felt the same urge and voted to sustain the veto. They include Edge, Republican, of New Jersey; Moses of New Hampshire, Borah of Idaho, Fess of Ohio, the Kansas City keynoter, while Goff of West Virginia, was paired to sustain.

Twenty Republicans forsook the White House, among them being Curtis' colleague, Senator Capper of Kansas, Senator Watson of Indiana and Senator Norris of Nebraska were the only Republican presidential aspirants recorded against Mr. Coolidge.

Democrats Divided

The Democrats split 29-11 in favor of over-riding the veto. Presidential candidates on the Democratic side were split, too, as Walsh of Montana, voted to sustain the veto, while George of Georgia, voted to over-ride, and Reed of Missouri, abstained from voting.

None of the four senators who changed their votes are up for re-election this year. None save Curtis gave any explanation of their reasons for swtching.

The fight over the agricultural plank at Kansas City promises to be a bitter one, comparable perhaps to the fight over the prohibition plank by the Democrats at Houston. The McNary - Haugenites, counselled and advised by two such outstanding Republicans as Vice President Dawes and Ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden, are going to Kansas City determined that if they lose their fight against Hoover it will be only at the price of hammering into the platform an agrarian plank that Mr. Hoover will be uncomfortable standing upon.

Farm Army Proposed

LINCOLN, Neb., May 26. (UP)—A camping ground has been offered 100,000 farmers if they will take the suggestion of Governor Adam McMullen and march to the Republican national convention with a demand for farm relief.

Governor McMullen said a plot of land at the edge of Kansas City had been proffered to the agricultural army if the plan materializes. The farmer would live in a tent city during the convention.

"It would be a second caravan of the covered wagon," the governor said. "The farmers might well leave their fields idle for a year to win that battle."

Although he did not reveal any definite plans for mobilization of the army, Governor McMullen believed it would be "an easy matter." A nation-wide radio appeal might be made, he said, to get "recruits" for the army.

COMMANDER OF TEXAS TROOPS WILL VISIT

HOUSTON, May 26. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, beloved of 90th division veterans who served under him during the world war in France, mentioned in several states as a presidential nominee, will be among the celebrities in Houston during the Democratic national convention, Col. Ike Ashburn, local convention executive secretary, was told in a letter received Saturday.

Dan Moody Praised for Courage To Stand for Views at Beaumont By Texas Democratic Chieftain

DALLAS, May 26. (AP)—Governor Moody, by his actions at the Beaumont state Democratic convention, has established himself in the affections of the people of Texas and has their respect to a greater extent than ever before, Jed C. Adams, Democratic national committeeman from Texas, said here today.

Mr. Adams who was reelected as national committeeman for another term said that if the nomination of Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York is blocked at the national convention at Houston, Jesse Jones will be the presidential nominee of the Democratic party.

"Mr. Jones is the strongest man in the Democratic party where nominations are concerned, aside from Al Smith," Mr. Adams said. "He will prove the natural rallying point for those forces opposing Smith's nomination and when I say this I do not overlook Senator Reed and others who have been mentioned prominently as Smith's leading opponents during the last few months.

"Mr. Jones is in full accord with the platform adopted at Beaumont, and the action of that body in recommending him for the presidency, is in my opinion, the outstanding feature of that meeting.

"As for Dan Moody, he is to be commended for his course during the convention. He is the first governor Texas has had since James Stephen Hogg who successfully assumed the state leadership of his party in national campaigns. He is to be congratulated for his courage as well as his success."

HOW THEY STAND

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—All the 1089 delegates tot he Republican national convention except the 19 from West Virginia have been selected. A majority, 545, will be required to nominate.

Seven states and the District of Columbia have not designated their representation, aggregating 158 delegates, at the Democratic convention where the vote will total 1100. Two-thirds, or 733 1-3, will be needed for nomination.

In the table below, the total after each candidate's name represents delegates instructed, pledged or claimed for him by his political managers, and not the number conceded to him by his opponents. There are over-lapping claims in a number of states.

The present line-up:

Republicans:

Hoover 515½ of which 176 are in dispute.

Alabama 15; Arizona 4; Arkansas 6; California 29; Colorado 14; Delaware 4; Florida 10; Georgia 1; Iowa 2; Kentucky 29; Louisiana 12; Maine 15; Maryland 19; Massachusettsh 37; Michigan 33; Minnesota 7; Missouri 10; Montana 5½; Nebraska 9; Nevada 8; New Hampshire 11; New Jersey 31; New Mexico 7; New York 47; North Carolina 10; Ohio 31; Oregon 13; Rhode Island 12; Tennessee 19; Utah 11; Vermont 11; Virginia 15; Washington 17; Wisconsin 7; Hawaii 2; Philippines 2.

Hoover's claim to the following 176 delegates is disputed by opponents, chiefly the Lowden managers.

Alabama 1; Arizona 4; Arkansas 4; Colorado 7; Delaware 4; Florida 10; Kentucky 2; Louisiana 12; Massachusetts 26; Minnesota 2; Mississippi 12; Missouri 4; Montana 1; Nebraska 6; Nevada 3; New Jersey 8; New Mexico 6; New York 20; North Carolina 5; Tennessee 12; Utah 11; Vermont 11; Virginia 11; Wisconsin 6.

Lowden—274½ of which 86 are in dispute.

Alabama 1; Arizona 9; Arkansas 9; Colorado 3; Illinois 55; Iowa 27; Minnesota 21; Missouri 30; Montana 5½; Nebraska 16; Nevada 2; New Mexico 4; North Carolina 13; North Dakota 13; Ohio 20; Oklahoma 18; South Carolina 11; South Dakota 13; Wisconsin 2; Alaska 2.

Lowden's claim to the following 86 delegates is disputed by opponents: Alabama 1; Arizona 4; Arkansas 4; Colorado 2; Illinois 6; Minnesota 1; Missouri 5; Nebraska 16; Nevada 1; New Mexico 3; North Carolina 3; Ohio 20; Oklahoma 18; Alaska 2.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads —Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once.—Adv.

Food Grows Hair On Bald Heads

Scientists have found that baldness comes from lack of necessary food elements that the human hair requires. "Foods found in Mother Earth grow, nourish and retain hair," says P. A. Thomas, 1576 America Fore Bldg., Chicago, the World's leading hair specialist who operates over 40 treatment offices in the U. S. and Canada. He further states that hair roots always stay alive and that in 85% of cases where hair is falling or baldness has set in, a growth of new hair can be had in a short time by following his simple directions. He will gladly explain his method without cost to those interested in restoring or saving their hair. Write him today.—Adv.

SENATE OPPONENTS FAIL TO DISLODGE BOULDER DAM BILL

Hecklers Attempt to Get Army and Navy Bills Before Body

JOHNSON WINS IN VOTE TO CONTINUE SESSION

Bill Kept as Unfinished Business; May Pass This Session.

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—The Boulder canyon dam bill held its premier position in the senate today, its supporters beating off two attempts to displace it, one of them to bring up the administration's $274,000,000 naval construction bill.

By a vote of 44 to 22, the senate declined to dislodge the Swing-Johnson measure, approved yesterday by the house, for the cruiser authorization bill, which received house approval early in the session.

Previously, an attempt by Senator Reed, Republican, of Pennsylvania, to get the army promotion bill before the senate at the expense of Boulder dam measure was rejected, 51 to 16.

Session Continued

The action followed a plea by Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, author of the bill, to defeat a move for adjournment earlier in the day until a decision was reached on whether Boulder dam should be kept as the unfinished business. The Californian won a continuation of the day's session by a vote of 36 to 31.

The roll calls followed each other in rapid order after Johnson and Senator La Follette, Republican, of Wisconsin, had asked the senate to decide one way or another on the Boulder dam bill.

The decisive result was believed to foreshadow defeat of any other attempt to get controversial legislation up at this session. It also indicated a determination of the senate to keep Boulder dam as the unfinished business until adjournment, if it is not passed before then. If this course is followed Senator Johnson will be in a position to have it brought up again the first thing when congress convenes next December.

Cruiser Bill Doomed

The vote also seemed to spell the doom for action at this session on the cruiser bill, which has been urgently requested by President Coolidge.

Senators Ashurst and Hayden, Democrats, of Arizona, who are waging a filibuster against the Swing-Johnson legislation, had an easy time today. Until the senate voted late in the day on the cruiser and army bills, debate had been confined to almost every other subject.

While the varied discussion was going on, Senator Johnson got in a word to announce his determination not to yield to another request for consideration of any legislation until his bill is disposed of or sidetracked.

Adjustment Fight

Yielding, however, to the pleadings of his weary colleagues who were kept up all night on Thursday by the Muscle Shoals filibuster, Johnson failed to prevent adjournment after 6 o'clock tonight and adjournment was taken until Monday.

The next hurdle facing the Californian is the vote on Monday on the house resolution for adjournment of congress on Tuesday at 5 p. m.

If the Tuesday adjournment program is taken the filibuster would only have to carry on for about 30 hours. Johnson has given notice he will seek a continuous session after Monday.

ANGELINA CO. NEGRO APPEALS FROM DEATH SENTENCE IN MURDER

AUSTIN, May 26. (AP)—Claiming he was not identified as the slayer, John Ballinger, negro, Saturday appealed to the court of criminal appeals from a death sentence assessed him in the killing of James Lee, Angelina county.

Defense counsel contended that Mrs. Lee testified a "small white man" struck her husband with the iron fragment which caused his death.

STATE TO SPEND $10,000,000 ON ROADS THIS YEAR

AUSTIN, Texas, May 26. (INS)—With contracts already awarded, more than $3,000,000 of new work contracted for this month, the state highway department will spend approximately $10,000,000 this year in road construction and maintenance of Texas highways, it was stated here today by Cone Johnson, highway commissioner.

Chairman R. S. Sterling, of the commission, expressed himself in appreciative terms of the fine cooperation of the federal government's road bureau and with the report of J. C. Carpenter, of the federal bureau of roads, who has not made a single unfavorable report of work on Texas roads.

More Contracts Let.

AUSTIN, May 26. (AP)—Dispatching largely routine business, the highway commission Saturday appropriated money for various counties.

Its action: set aside $24,000 to replace 22 dips on No. 9 in Gillespie county with concrete culverts; requested secretary of war for permission to reconstruct bridge across Trinity river on No. 3 in Liberty county; authorized appointment of resident engineer for Motley county and surveys for proposed work on No. 18 and 28; promised Travis county about $230,000 for completing two sections of No. 2, the county to pay $44,000 and give other help; appropriated $5,000 for Lee county project; promised 50 per cent aid to Guadalupe county for constructing 10 miles of No. 3 from Seguin to near Kingsbury; allotted $4000 to maintain No. 118, Marfa to Presidio for remainder of fiscal year; appropriated $8000 to survey proposed highway from San Antonio to Del Rio; designated route from Lubbock to New Mexico line; allotted $4000 to repair Sabine river, bridge near Logansport on No. 55; increased to $9822 previous allotments for relocating 1.4 miles of No. 41 to eliminate grade crossings near Calvert; promised 50 per cent aid to Guadalupe county to construct eight miles of No. 123 from Seguin north; notified Runnels county that if it will put up $635,000, the department, as funds are available, will complete the two highways across the county; appropriated $23,918 to remove dips on highways in Mason county.

JUDGE WALLER'S BODY REINTERRED IN STATE CEMETERY AT AUSTIN

AUSTIN, May 26. (AP)—While the state capitol flag was at half mast the body of Judge Edwin Waller, signer of the Texas declaration of independence, former postmaster general of the Republic of Texas and member of the legislature, was reinterred, along with his wife's, in the state cemetery here, under direction of the state organization of the Daughters of the Republic.

The bodies were exhumed recently at the original burying place in Waller county and brought here for burial, through efforts of L. W. Kemp of Houston.

Mrs. H. H. Sevier, president of the Daughters of the Republic, placed flower wreaths on the graves.

COMMITTEE TO STUDY BUILDINGS DEVOTED TO STUDENT ACTIVITIES

AUSTIN, May 26. (AP)—A committee headed by President H. Y. Benedict of the University of Texas will visit other educational institutions this summer to inspect student activity buildings of the kind contemplated for the school here, under authority of the board of regents, which completed a one-day session here late Friday night.

The committee, announced Saturday, follows: President Benedict, John H. McCurdy, executive secretary of the ex-students' association; R. L. White, supervising architect of the university and a representative of the Herbert Green company, Dallas, univresity architects.

Former United States Attorney General T. W. Gregory of Houston, president of the ex-students, told the regents that $415,000 has been raised in the campaign for $500,000 to which the regents will add $600,000 for three new student activity buildings.

The regents approved plans described as "tentative" for the projected $700,000 library building to accommodate 1,000,000 volumes.

No conclusive action was taken on means of financing a general building program. The regents asked Attorney General Claude Pollard, however, for an opinion as to whether they could borrow building money with the permanent fund as a security. The permanent fund itself cannot be drawn upon for building.

Germs cannot resist the new liquid germicide known as S. T. 37, which destroys bacteria so quickly that it is impossible to figure the time in which the reaction takes place.

PARENT-TEACHERS TO HOLD COUNTY COUNCIL TUESDAY

The last meeting until fall of the county council of Parent-Teacher associations will be held at the Burkburnett High school on Tuesday, May 29, according to the announcement Saturday of Burl Bryant, county superintendent of schools.

Each association in the county, Mr. Bryant said, is entitled to one vote in the county council for each 10 of its members.

The council will be convened at 9 a. m. Tuesday and the first 30 minutes will be devoted to getting acquainted, according to the announced program. The invocation and Scripture reading then will be followed by the welcoming address, to be delivered by Butler Westerfield, superintendent of schools at Burkburnett. Mrs. Gale Mitchell is scheduled to deliver the response.

An address by Mrs. Frank Creighton, president of the 13th district council; a school of instruction conducted by Mrs. T. H. Lawson, a music program and addresses by Mrs. Ira L. Cain and Mrs. J. M. Fox are remaining numbers on the morning program.

The afternoon program follows: Sing-song; round table discussion of membership drives, programs, preschool clinics, health plans and other subjects; and reports of presidents of clubs.

MEGARGEL WILDCAT AND BIG WILBARGER WELL LEAD NEWS

Considerable Extension Proven Area In Archer Expected as Result Grebin Completion to the North of Megargel

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

The district's oil news which has been lacking anything in the feature line for several weeks past, during the last few days was enlivened to some extent by the bringing in of an absolute wildcat north of Megargel in Archer county, and the completion of the Consolidated Oil company's 1000-barrel producer in southwest Wilbarger county.

The more important of the two features is found in the bringing in of the Frank Grebin well in block 22, Meade L. M. pasture, five miles north of Megargel and close to the east line of Baylor county. This well, which is showing for anywhere from 50 to 75 barrels, topped a sand at 1400 feet and was barely scratched when 400 feet of fluid came in the hole, after the well had set for a short time.

The new well is in a section of the county that had been tested on several occasions, but in a number of these tests good shows of oil had been encountered before their abandonment, and it is the consensus of opinion of a number of oil men that in one or more instances with the proper care other wells in this section would be numbered with the producers. At present the Grebin well is shut down for a few days, when the hole will be cleaned out and a few more feet of pay drilled before completion.

The next happening of importance in the week's development was the bringing in by the Consolidated Oil company of its No. 1 W. T. Waggoner well making an estimated flow by heads of 1000 barrels per day, going on record as the district's largest well for the week. This well, which is in a semi-wildcat sector, being located in the southeast corner of the south 80 acres of northwest quarter of section 5, block 5, H. T. & C. R. R. survey, southeast Wilbarger county, last week topped a sand at 1846 feet. Casing was set and Thursday the plug was drilled out and 11 feet of the rich oil sand was penetrated and a few minutes later the well began flowing by heads through a considerable depth of mud in the hole. In addition to the well being the week's premier producer it was also the means of adding a nice scope of undrilled land to the northwest, it being a great distance from the closest production, the Staley-Wynne well in section 9, block 5, H. T. C. survey. This well, however, receives its output from a deeper pay at 2400 feet.

Activities in this area, which has speeded up to a great extent since an abundance of water is on hand, in addition to the Consolidated well, resulted in the completion of several producers on the Fain-McGaha and the Texas company leases. These wells averaged 200 barrels each, while others are due to be finished in the next few days. Altogether in the neighborhood of 20 tests are drilling on the various Waggoner sections in this part of the county.

With the exception of the happenings featured above development of the different pools in the district continued in the usual manner. A few small wells of the pumper type were brought in from the Archer and northeast Young pools. New locations and new drilling showed but little change when compared with the previous week's work, and the lull that for the past several weeks has hovered over the industry stills hangs on.

Pipeline runs for the week averaged 85,855 barrels daily, a gain of approximately 50 barrels over the previous week's output. Losses in Archer, Wichita and other smaller pools were offset by increases in the Wilbarger and north Young fields.

JAL NOW OIL CAPITAL S. E. NEW MEXICO

(Special to The Times.)

JAL, N. M., May 26.—At the present time Jal is the oil capital of southeastern New Mexico. For the past week oil scouts, lease and royalty buyers have been here in great numbers watching the development in the Marland-Eaves well, section 19, 26-37.

Tuesday the well was mudded off and connection was made with the Texas Rhodes for gas and drilling resumed. Thursday evening the total depth of the well was 2954, and drilling in fairly hard lime. So far the bit has penetrated lime to a depth of 330 feet. It is reported that the shallowest producer in the Winkler pool had gone into the lime 230 feet. Watchers of this important wildcat say that the cap may be penetrated at any moment, when many experts believe another gusher is due.

Should the Eaves prove a producer there is some question whether, it is an extension of the north Winkler pool or a distinctly new producing area.

Another Lea county well holding attention at present is the Marland-Shoals, section 19-25-37, drilling on the western line of the Jal townsite. Thursday evening the total depth of the hole was 2125, drilling in salt, the top of which was entered at 1045 feet.

Other active operations in Lea county at present are:

Marland-Seidman No. 1, section 4-25-36, drilling in lime at 3745.

Marland-Roberts No. 1, section 20-23-35, went out of the salt at 3015, in anhydrite to 3065, and drilling again in salt at 3225.

Marland-Gardner No. 1, Eddy county, section 34-23-31, drilling in salt at 1645.

Gypsy State No. 1, Lea county, section 4-21-36, last report drilling in red beds at 1140.

Empire No. 1, section 8-21-35, drilling at 1120, hole full of water at 1045.

Midwest Refining State No. 1, section 9-19-38, total depth 3980, shut down for new drilling line.

Bordages No. 1 Hughes, section 27-19-38, running 8¼ to 3250, total depth 3525.

The Exploration company No. 1 Record, section 25-19-35, is drilling in lime at 4062.

CHANG ANNOUNCES DEFEAT OF RIVALS

But South China Army Claims by Victory on Own Right

PEKING, China, May 26. (UP)—Marshal Chang Tso-lin today announced the nationalist threat against Peking had ended after the southern army had been defeated decisively by his northern troops below Paoting-Fu.

Chang claimed sweeping victories on the Paoting-Fu sector of the semi-circular battle front surrounding the northern capital and said these victories had definitely checked the nationalist advance.

Chang's announcement ended unconfirmed rumors in the capital that the northern forces were retreating along the entire front, except for the Nankou Pass area. There had been unconfirmed reports that the southerners had made smashing victories and that in only one or two remote regions was Chang thoroughly entrenched.

All advices here, however, indicated there had been no engagement of major proportions although details were lacking.

The southern army advanced in two sections—one headed by Chiang Kai-shek and the other by Feng Yu-hsiang—and circled the capital at a distance of between 125 and 175 miles. Chang sent his men to a similar semi-circular front to protect all approaches to the capital, the ultimate goal of the nationalists.

It was the first major clash between the two forces.

South Claims Victory.

LONDON, May 26. (INS)—The Southern Chinese hordes have captured the city of Kalgan, 125 miles northwest of Peking, and have completely routed their northern foes, a dispatch from Peking received by the Daily Mail stated today.

The fall of Peking is imminent, the Dispatch indicated. The Northerners are rapidly falling back towards the Chinese capital, which is practically surrounded by Southern troops.

The last line of defense of the Northerners in the vicinity of the Nankou Pass, has also given way to the onslaughts of the troops of the Nationalist army, it is reported.

Injunction Bill Dies

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—The senate judiciary committee failed to reach an agreement today on the Shipstead, anti-injunction bill and Chairman Norris later informed the senate that action probably would have to go over until next session.

BIG EXTENSION IN HENDRICKS POOL WINKLER

Producing Area Increased Three-Quarters of Mile to North

HALF-MILE EXTENSION DEEP PAY IN HOWARD

First Heavy Production Comes in Yates-Smith Field Pecos County

(Special to The Times)

SAN ANGELO, May 26.—The advancement three-quarters of a mile farther northeast of production in the north extension of the Hendricks pool in Winkler county, a half mile eastern extension of the deep lime pay in Howard county, the development of the first heavy production in section 24, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, in the southwestern corner of the Yates-Smith field in eastern Pecos county and gauging by Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental's No. 18-A Yates, in the same field of 1065 barrels in one hour, were high lights in oil development this week in the Permian basin of West Texas.

Gibson & Johnson and others' No. 1 Leck, in the center of the southwest quarter of section 3, block 74, nine miles north and slightly west of the Hendricks pool, showed more oil in continued tests, making 1063 barrels of cut oil and 2500 barrels of water in 12 hours through a 1¼-inch choke from 3168 feet. It was preparing to test with Tretolite. Five miles farther north and two miles across the Texas-New Mexico line, in Lea county, New Mexico, Marland's No. 1 Eaves in section 19-27-37, had drilled to 2953 feet in hard white lime after mudding off gas estimated as high as 65 million cubic feet at 2927 feet. The situation was unchanged, despite rumors that spread through West Texas Thursday that production had been obtained.

Murchison Oil Co. and Cranfill Bros. No. 1-H, Hendricks, on a five-acre tract in the northeast corner of section 33, block 26, marked the extension in Winkler county. At 2854 feet the well made 1500 barrels of oil and 30 million cubic feet of gas and was to be deepened. Atlantic No. 5-F, Hendricks, in the area between the main pool and the mile-and-a-half northern extension effected by Cranfill & Reynolds No. 1-C, Hendricks, came in at 2798 feet for 500 barrels an hour and was estimated good for 20,000 barrels a day. It is in the southeast corner of the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 40, block 26, public school land, and is a north offset to Landreth & Roxana No. 1-C, Hendricks, a producer.

Republic No. 1-B, Hendricks, was estimated good for 350 barrels of oil daily at 2880 feet, 15 feet in the pay. It is on the west side of the field, 990 feet from the east line and 1750 feet from the north line of section 42, block B-5, and is a west offset to Southern Crude No. T-67-1A2 Hendricks. Wells in this area are light producers. Independent No. 1 McCabe (Cowden) was completed at 3054 feet for 395 barrels a day. Recently it was shot with 670 quarts from 2645 to 3041 feet. The well is in the southeast corner of the northwest quarter of section 36, block B-5, and marked approximately a mile eastern extension of the main pool at about its center.

Upon orders of the state railroad commission, Humble has begun the killing of its No. 3-A, Hendricks, because pinching it to bring it within the allotment of 1800 barrels a day for that unit caused both water and oil to be forced up in both nearby water wells and drilling tests. Owing to a leak in the 8¼-inch casing and the sticking of the 6-inch near the bottom, the water in No. 3-A could not be shut off and will be cemented off, although the well was good for around 2000 barrels a day. It is in the northwest corner of the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 34, block B-5.

In southeastern Howard county, Merrick and Bristow's No. 1 Dora Roberts topped the pay at 2952 feet, drilled to 2986 feet and swabbed and flowed 1000 barrels in 24 hours. Drilling was to continue to 3000 feet. The producer is the eigth in the deep lime in the county, being in the southwest corner of section 137, block 29, Waco & Northwestern Ry. Co. survey All the others are shut in or pinched low due to the fact that the only outlet from the field is a 4-inch Magnolia line.

More Drilling

Drilling of more wells in the southwestern part of the Yates-Smith pool and deeping of some producers is expected as the result of the first heavy production in that area in Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1-B Smith. At a total depth of 1819 feet, after blowing tools out of the hole it flowed 340 barrels in an hour and later was pinched to 500 barrels a day. The highest production in the vicinity previously was 75 barrels daily by one of the Red Bank's wells. Roxana No. 1-B, Smith, is in the southwest corner of the northeast quarter of section 24, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey. One location south of it, Matador No. 1, Smith, topped the lime at 1550 feet, topped the pay at 1565 and drilling at 1592 had 300 feet of oil in the hole.

Drilled to 1104 feet, Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 19-A, Yates, in section 34½, produced 1692 barrels of oil in nine hours through one 4-inch line and on a 30-minute test gauged 557 barrels. On a later gauge Friday it produced 1065 barrels in an hour through a 4-inch line. The well is a diagonal northeast offset to the most easterly northeast corner of section 31, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, and is the first heavy producer brought in in that area, although No. 16-A, Yates, one location south of it, was completed at 1235 feet for 400 barrels an hour.

The Mohammedan religion specifically forbids the use of intoxicating liquors.

PEARSON WILDCAT TEST WEST OF GRANDFIELD REACHES DEPTH OF 1900

GRANDFIELD, Okla., May 26—The wildcat test of A. E. Pearson, located in the southwest quarter of section 3, Indian lands, six miles south and four miles west of Grandfield, Tillman county, Okla., has reached a depth of 1,900 feet. The test, which is also about two miles north of the Hirschi pool in Oklahoma, is drilling with a rotary and unless a pay is picked up at a lesser depth the well will drill to 2,500 feet.

OUSLEY WILL ADVISE EAST TEXAS CHAMBER

LONGVIEW, Texas, May 26. (AP)—Col. Clarence Ousley, director of Texas Safe Farming association, will be attached to the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, advising the chamber on the highway and forestry programs of the organization effective June 1, it was announced today.

Federal Judge Named

WASHINGTON, May 26. (UP)—President Coolidge today sent to the senate the nomination of Edward S. Vaught of Oklahoma City to be United States district judge of the western district of Oklahoma.

Mid-Continent Oil Activities

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 26. (UP) Production in the Seminole pool mounted Friday as a result of two new completions. Production Friday totaled 277,859 barrels, compared with 275,078 on Thursday.

TULSA, Okla., May 26. (UP)—Fifty-five new tests for oil and gas were started in 18 Oklahoma counties this week, according to drilling reports.

SHAWNEE, Okla., May 26. (UP) No. 1 Roxana Petroleum corporation, on Hotulke lease in NE NW 23-7n-6e, gauged 6550 barrels in 24 hours in the Wilcox sand, topped at 4313 feet.

COLEMAN, Texas, May 26. (UP) The Fry sand has proved productive again with the bringing in of the E. J. Cunningham, White, Simpson & Pinkerton No. A-2 Jennings.

BASTROP, Texas, May 26. (UP) A test is being made on the Trigger ranch by Frank Birmingham of Bastrop and John Storey of Lockhart. The test is located four miles west of here.

WISHITA, Kan., May 26. (UP)—The Empire Oil and Refining company has a well good for about 200 barrels production on its Schwab No. 12-A, in the northeast corner of the southwest of the northeast quarter of section 25-22-12, Greenwood county.

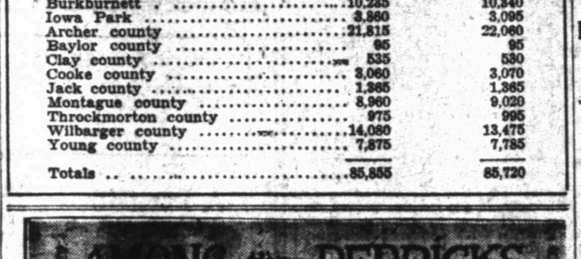

Pipeline Runs in Wichita District Show Increase 135 Barrels Daily

Pipeline runs from the various pools in the Wichita Falls district for the week ended Monday, May 21, 1928, registered an average of 85,855 barrels daily, a small gain of approximately 135 barrels per day as compared with the previous week's figures.

Losses in the Montague and Archer pools were offset by gains in northeast Young and in Wilbarger. The latter, on account of running of oil from some nice wells recently completed on the Waggoner leases, showed an increase of 605 barrels over the daily runs of the preceding seven days. Below are the runs by pools:

Barrels Daily

Pool—	Last Week	Previous Week
Electra	13,015	13,080
Burkburnett	10,235	10,340
Iowa Park	3,860	3,095
Archer county	21,815	22,060
Baylor county	95	95
Clay county	535	530
Cooke county	3,060	3,070
Jack county	1,365	1,365
Montague county	8,960	9,020
Throckmorton county	975	995
Wilbarger county	14,080	13,475
Young county	7,875	7,785
Totals	85,855	85,720

By JIMMIE MAXWELL

J. J. Jenkins, putting down a wildcat test on the Record farm about three miles north of Walters in Cotton county, Oklahoma, has set casing to test out a good appearing sand at 1900 feet, and will bail in the next few days.

The Consolidated Oil company has made location for a test to be drilled 1600 feet west and 150 feet south of the northeast corner of section 2435, T. E. L. survey, W. O. Wright lands in the Megargel area, southwest Archer county.

Extending the productive area about one-half mile to the northwest of the Pandem pool in block 80, Harris subdivision, Archer county, T. F. Hunter and others No. 1 C. E. Goodman in block 70, is showing for a 50 to 75 barrel producer. The sand, which is showing no water, was topped at 1354 and penetrated to 1357 when oil rose to a considerable depth in the hole.

Frank P. Rose et al, have made location for their No. 2 W. W. White well, 1170 feet east and 750 feet south of the northwest corner of block 19, Denton county school lands in north Archer county.

Lewis and Barnsdall will put down a well 1785 feet north and 974 feet east of southwest corner of block 28, Harris subdivision, Abercrombie lands, in Archer county.

The Waggoner Refining company completed its No. E-4 W. T. Waggoner fee in section 30, block 4, H. T. C. R. R. survey in the usual 2300 foot sand and is swabbing 250 barrels.

C. W. Gilliland has made a location for his No. 2 W. F. Neimeyer 915 feet north and 150 feet east of the southwest corner of section 2415, T. E. L. survey, and offsetting his No. 1 producer to the north in Archer county.

L. T. Burns has made a new location and will put down a test 1715 feet south and 1316 feet west of the northeast corner of block 42, Meade L. M. pasture, a short distance northwest of the Shasta-Grebin pool in west Archer county.

John O'Neil has a location made for a well to be drilled 150 feet south and 150 north of the northeast corner of the west half of southwest quarter of section 16, W. W. Correll survey, abstract 436, Wichita county, T. L. Burnett et al. lands.

The Texas company has abandoned as a dry hole its No. 1 Jackson located in the Aldredge survey in Archer county at a total depth of 1600 feet.

Ted Harris and others, located in range 2, township 2, south Littrell farm about 14 miles east of Marlow in Stephens county, Oklahoma, cored four feet into the richest kind of oil sand topped at 1450 feet and are setting casing to test. The well, which is in a wildcat sector is, from its show of oil already made, expected to produce anywhere from 60 to 75 barrels.

Gatewood and Williams have made a location for their No. 1 W. D. Rogers, 316 feet north and 150 feet west of the northeast corner of southwest quarter of section 288, north Young county.

Panhandle Refining company is drilling at 380 feet on its No. 3 Mrs. Pittman, located in the northeast corner of E. W. Sargent survey, abstract 1848, Farmer area, northeast Young county.

International Oil company has made location for its No. 1 W. T. Waggoner lease 220 feet north and east of the southwest corner of the northeast quarter of southeast quarter of section 43, block 4, H. & T. C. R. R. survey, Wilbarger county.

Paul Stead and others spudded in and are drilling at 450 feet on their No. 1 G. R. Smith test, located 1017 feet north and 150 feet west of the southeast corner of T. E. L. survey, section 1365, north Young county.

Arco Oil company has a derrick up for its No. B-4 test to be drilled in the northwest corner of south half lot 14, Arnold survey, J. W. Maddox lands in Montague county.

Staley-Wynne has a derrick up for No. D-1 W. T. Waggoner 205 feet north, 205 feet west of the southeast corner of the southwest quarter of southeast quarter of section 32, block 4, T. & T. C. R. R. survey, southeast Wilbarger county.

Consolidated Oil company's No. 1 W. T. Waggoner located in section 5, block 5, H. T. C. R. R. survey, continues to hold first place in big producers for the week, and after a short time gauge showed a flow of 420 barrels in nine hours.

D. R. Parker has spudder in on his No. 4 C. W. Johnson in the northeast corner of block 4, E. W. Sargent survey, abstract 253, north Young county and is down 400 feet.

Contests Between Camp Fire Girls And Boy Scouts to Feature Rally Meet Weeks Park Monday Evening

The first Camp Fire Girls and Boy Scout rally will take place on the Weeks Golf club grounds on Monday evening. Contests between the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls in first-aid, water boiling, fire laying, camp set-up and camp songs will begin at 7:30. Each group of girls and troop of boys has been asked to enter a team of two for the first aid and water boiling. Six girls will compete against six boys in fire laying and camp set-up. All the scouts will compete against all the Camp Fire Girls in the songs.

All Camp Fire Girls who are going to camp must make their registrations at Camp Rally, or at the local headquarters before that time. All the girls are to be at the park not later than 6 o'clock Monday evening. Each group will plan its own lunch and for any guests the members invite for supper.

Leave for Camp Wednesday

On Wednesday morning at 9:30, the first-week campers will leave the local headquarters for diversion dam in cars furnished through the arrangement of the camp committee of the local council. H. D. Wolff is chairman of the committee with Julian Bobo, D. H. Henry, Frank Creighton, Dr. V. E. Wratten, Mrs. Arch Dawson, and Mrs. Paul Colvert assisting.

Miss Mary McIlheran, executive, will direct the camp with a staff of assistants and head counsellors, as follows: Mrs. Maude Bartholomew, general assistant; Mrs. Geo. Hengy, Red Cross examiner of Dallas, swimming; Mrs. R. F. Mahood of Stamford, camp craft; Mrs. Anna Barnhill, local guardian of five years' experience, nature lore; and Miss Gladys Horn, teacher and guardian of Fairview school at Thrift, Texas, for handcraft; Mrs. L. H. McKinley will assist Miss Horn in handcraft, teaching wood carving in particular; Mrs. W. E. Fuller, manager of the Crockett school cafeteria, will be in charge of all meals.

She will be assisted in the kitchen by two girls. All campers wash their own dishes and girls help with table serving in rotation. Special attention will be given to teaching the girls correct table service.

Between 20 and 30 members from Stamford are expected to attend the first week. Girls will attend from a number of other towns in the district.

On Tuesday, June 5, the members of the local council will be special guests of the camp, when they will enjoy a supper in camp.

The council fires for the two sessions will come on Tuesdays, June 5 and 12, at 7:30 p. m. when honors will be awarded and a resume of the week's work and play given. An exhibit of handcraft will be arranged. All parents and friends are urged to drive out for the council fires and to visit camp on Sunday. Meals will be served to visitors at 50c a plate. Reservations for meals should be made at the local headquarters, 2-2183, two days in advance if possible.

Thelma Bridges will be in charge of the local headquarters the first week and Ethel Tasker the second.

"Enthusiasm is running high, and I am anticipating the very best camp season we have ever had," said Miss McIlheran. "Being closer to home has created more interest from the Wichita people. We expect to have 100 to 200 visitors to the camp at different times. We want the parents and friends to visit us and see for themselves why the girls need and love the Camp Fire program."

BELIEVE TINER WELL IN JONES GOOD PRODUCER

Operators Expect Strike to Be Most Important In Sector

LEASE TRADING REPORTED TO BE VERY ACTIVE NOW

Test Is Second to Be Drilled In District North of Noodle Creek

(Special to The Times)

ABILENE, Texas, May 26.—Although the full value of the strike made by Hucony Gas company-Atkinson & Sandifer corporation in their No. 1 J. W. Tiner, southwest Jones county, has not been fully determined, the majority of the oil men in this area are declaring that it is by far the most important strike that has occurred in the oil development of that county since the discovery of oil was made in that sector, almost 20 months ago.

Showing more gas than any of the other 22 wells that have found oil in paying quantities in the Winter lime at around 2520 feet in the Noodle Creek district or contiguous to it, the Tiner test, located in the northeast corner of section 14, block 19, T. & P. survey, and two miles north of the proven district, has been making natural flows from the lime topped at 2519 feet and into which the drill bit has gone only one foot.

During the first 24-hour period after the well was connected with storage it put better than 200 barrels of oil in the tanks. Predictions based on the showings already made are being offered that the Tiner well will be good for from 400 to 500 barrels daily.

Operations are being held up while a connection is made with the Bar-Texas pipeline, about a mile east of the well. With that completed, drilling will be resumed and the full thickness of the producing stratum determined.

Trading in leases and royalty on acreage surrounding the new well has been by far the most active and interesting that has developed in this district for more than a year.

Highest Prices

Highest prices reported have been on a royalty deal involving close-in stuff which went at $160 an acre base. Most of the acreage is held by operating companies. The Phillips Petroleum company is well protected in the area and has at least one offset to the new strike. Unofficial reports here are that the Phillips concern will immediately start a test on the Sharp fee, offsetting the Tiner on the east. It is possible that a north offset will also be drilled right away.

The Tiner test is the second producer to be drilled in the district north of the Noodle Creek field. Two and a half miles north and a little east of it is the Hutson & Weaver, No. 1 Smith, reported to be pumping about 60 barrels from a pay that correlates with the Winter lime. The Smith well is four and a half miles north of the north limits of the Noodle Creek pool. About a mile and a half south of the Tiner is a dry hole drilled in the south half of section 15 by the World Oil company more than a year ago. The World test went below 3000 feet before being abandoned. It found shows of oil but no commercial production.

After the shows of the World well the territory contingent to the Tiner lease was seemingly in bad with the operators, for a rig that had been built on the south half of section 14 was allowed to stand for more than a year without the hole ever being spudded. Several weeks ago the Hucony and Atkinson & Sandefer interests secured control of the lease and the rig and moved it to the northeast corner location and have drilled the hole ahead without any delays.

Oil men are looking on the district with much more favor than they gave it before the Tiner hit pay. Many of them thought that the Smith well, which is in the south half of section 31, block 18, T. & P. survey, was a freak and it failed to arouse very much enthusiasm. Now comes the new well and they are giving the area considerable attention and many of them are saying that if the Tiner is completed for as much as 300 barrels daily the entire four and a half mile strip between the Smith well and the proven area will be in for considerable drilling during the immediate future.

Seventh for Phillips

Inside the limits of the Noodle Creek pool Phillips Petroleum company's No. 3 Joe Winter has been spudded this week and is drilling past 300 feet. This is the seventh well that Phillips has drilled on the Winter lease. The location of No. 3 is one location east of their No. 1 Winter, the discovery well in the field. The location was made several months ago but drilling was held up until this week.

The same company is building rig for its No. 3 Mason on the west side of the field. It will be north of No. 2 Mason.

In the north side of the field Phillips, No. 5 Winter, is drilling past 3230 feet in blue shale. This is to go to 4000 feet and will be the first test in the Noodle Creek district to go that deep.

In Fisher county Sinclair Oil and Gas company's No. 1 Steele, a direct south offset to the Texas company's No. 1 Stephens, the first producer to be completed in that county, is cleaning out before drilling in. The pay is expected at practically the same depth as in the Stephens well, about 3230 feet.

Cranfill & Reynold's No. 1 Willingham, in section 199 B. B. B. & C. Ry., one location east of the same owner's Young producer, in section 208, is drilling ahead past 3300 feet.

WICHITA OPERATORS GET THIRD GOOD WELL IN WILBARGER FIELD DURING WEEK ENDED SATURDAY

Fain & McGaha, one of the most active firms in the development of the various tracts in southeast Wilbarger county, concluded the week's activities in that pool by the completion of their No. F-3 W. T. Waggoner well, flowing between 500 and 550 barrels per hour. The bringing in of this well makes the third good completion made by the Fain & McGaha interests during the past week. The well, which is located in section 24, block 4, H. T. C. R. R. survey, topped the sand at 2338 and was drilled 20 feet when it filled up and began flowing by heads.

Other wells completed by the Fain-McGaha company were No. L-5 Waggoner, in section 1, block 4, which is swabbing 200 barrels from the sand at 2391 feet, and M-6, in section 24, which has been placed on the pump as a 200-barrel producer. In addition to these producers, several other wells are drilling on their various locations.

NEW LEADERS CROWNED IN WESTERN SWATTING

CHICAGO, May 26. (AP)—A pair of old timers were forced to give ground in the Western league batting marathon during the past week and into their places moved Riley and "Chief" Wano, the two Pueblo hitting aces.

Riley, who has been playing consistent offensive baseball all season, went into the leadership, when he cracked out 11 hits in seven games for an average of .411. His Indian teammate, Wano, went on a hitting rampage and moved into third position with an average of .397, ten points higher than last week.

Mondino, the veteran Amarillo receiver, who last week was setting a hot pace, lost 31 points and fell to fourth place in the standings. He hit .383 including games of Wednesday. Munson, Tulsa Oiler outfielder, did not fare so badly and managed to retain his second position, although falling off from .419 to .402.

Leading hitters are Wetzel, Omaha, .377; Bliss, Wichita, .375; Schinski, Des Moines, .372; Harvel, Omaha, .370; Gullio, Tulsa, .362; Cunningham, Des Moines, .352; Gunther, Amarillo, .352.

The Larks continue to show the way in circuit drives, Allington and Payne being tied for leadership with nine each. The former connected with two home runs and the latter four during the week's play.

For the first time this season Barnholdt of Oklahoma City holds undisputed leadership among the pitchers. He has chalked up eight victories.

AMERICAN EASY WINNERS IN DAVIS CUP MATCHES

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 26. (AP) Defeating China's Davis cup doubles team in straight sets here Saturday afternoon, the United States advanced into the American zone finals with a brilliant display of tennis by captain William T. Tilden and W. F. Coen Jr., that brought victory in the second day of play.

Tilden and Coen won over Gordon Lum and Paul Kong, 6-2, 6-1, 6-3.

With this victory the two singles matches Sunday between John Hennessey of Indianapolis and Paul Kong and George Lott of Chicago and Lum became only a formality.

Hennessey and Lott won the opening singles matches Friday in straight sets.

OUTSIDER IS WINNER FEATURE AT BELMONT

NEW YORK, May 26. (AP)—Nimba, a 12 to 1 shot, carried the Marshall Field silks to victory in the Metropolitan handicap at Belmont park Saturday. J. E. Widener's Chance Shot was second, W. M. Jefford's Scapa Flow, third, and the Arden farm's Chance Lay Fourth. Nimba, four-year-old daughterr of War Cloud and Martha Snow, was given the advantage of a heady rider by Jockey Thurber and won by a length. She earned $8,575 for her owner. The time for the mile was 1:40 flat.

WIGHTMAN TENNIS TEAM IS NAMED BY U. S. L. T. A.

NEW YORK, May 26. (AP)—The United States Lawn Tennis association Saturday announced the personnel of the team which will defend the Wightman cup against the challenge of England at Wimbledon, June 15 and 16. The team includes Miss Helen Wills, Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, Miss Helen Jacobs, Miss Eleanor Goss and Miss Penelope Anderson.

LONG SHOT WINS

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., May 26. (AP) Shasta Lad, a long shot, paying $78.86 to win on $2 tickets, won the $5000 Collinsville handicap of six furlongs for three-year-olds and up here Saturday. The time was 1:12 2-5.

Leland Stanford Repeats Victory In Eastern Meet

Title Goes West for Seventh Time; Muddy Field.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 26. (AP) Mud, rain and the combined track and field strength of more than a score of eastern colleges Saturday could not stop the brawny sons of Leland Stanford university from carrying off the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. team championship for the second straight year.

Eleven Stanford athletes, led by the stalwart sophomore, Eric Krenz, piled up a total of 43 points to spread-eagle the field and win by the biggest margin any victorious team has had in 13 years. Yale, carrying the forlorn hopes of the East, finished second with 25 1-3 points, while Cornell and Penn State tied for third with 16 points apiece.

Capturing four first places and scoring altogether in eight of the 15 events, Stanford had a runaway of it from start to finish. It wasn't close at any stage of the rain-swept finals.

Stanford's winning total was the highest since 1927, when Cornell won with 47 points and the margin of 17 2-3 points over the second place Yale aggregation was the biggest since Cornell swamped the field in 1915, scoring 42½ points to Harvard's 26.

It was also the seventh time in eight years that the premier eastern track and field college title has gone to the west coast. Southern California, which has won twice before, and California, three times winner, were not in the running Saturday. The Trojans, due to the withdrawal of their sprinting ace, Charley Borah, 1927 champion, and his running mate, Weldon Draper, picked up only six points. California tallied five.

MISS MARION TURPIE AGAIN SOUTHERN CHAMP

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 26. (AP) For the second time in three years Miss Marion Turpie of New Orleans reigns supreme in southern women's golf.

Playing one under par for 31 straight holes, the New Orleans star Saturday repeated her victory of two years ago by defeating Mrs. Melvin Jones of Chicago and Valparaiso, Fla., 6 and 5, in their 36-hole final match for the southern women's golf championship.

Starting out Saturday morning with an erratic iron game and handicapped by an unruly putter, Miss Turpie was one down at the turn to Mrs. Jones, who played one of the most consistent rounds of the tournament. Miss Turpie cast away four holes by erratic putting and finished the morning round all even with the former western champion only by sinking a 30-yard chip shot on the 18th green.

EIGHT NATIONS REMAIN IN EUROPEAN CUP PLAY

NEW YORK, May 26. (AP)—Completion of second round play Saturday finds eight nations still in the running for the Davis cup in the European zone.

Through their victories in the second round Italy, India, Germany, Great Britain, Holland, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and New Zealand have advanced to the third round. Italy, through its triumphs over Australia and Rumania is favored to reach the inter-zone finals when the winners of the European and American zone competitions clash to establish which shall seek to recover the Davis cup from France.

SPUDDERS WIN SECOND AND MAY LAND FIRST ON PROTEST

COUNTRYSIDE RINGS WITH HITS AS SPORTS GRAB OFF OPENER, 18 TO 16; CHAMPS CLOSER, 8 TO 4

There's joy in the village today!

Those Spudders snapped out of their protracted batting slump Saturday, won one game from Shreveport and may win one that for the time being goes on the books as a defeat. After losing a wild walloping 10-inning setto, 16 to 18, in the opener, the champs brought back memories of a year ago by fighting from behind to take the seven-inning nightcap 8 to 4.

The defeat is officially protested by Manager Carl Williams and he believes it a near certainty that the game will revert to Wichita Falls as the result of an admitted error on the part of one of the umpires.

The Shreveporters close their stay here with Sunday's game, starting at 3 o'clock. Herb Cobb is the likely Spudder moundster, with Joe Brown expected to get the call for the Sports.

Real Thriller

Few more thrilling games have been witnessed at Athletic park than the opener, and though the Sports apparently won it, it is quite likely to go to the Spudders by virtue of a protest. In the sixth inning, Umpire Donnelly, confused by the excitement of a collision at the plate between Tobin and Benton, did not permit Lamb to score from second on a ball thrown into the dugout. Following notification from Manager Williams that the game was being played under protest, the umpire announced to the stands that he had erred in his ruling. Presumably, the Spudder victory lacks only the confirmation from the league president, since the umpire's ruling admittedly robbed the Spudders of a run that would have given them a victory in nine innings.

For a change, the Spudders started from behind, giving the Sports two runs in the opening inning of the first game. The first two were easy pickings, but Phipps started trouble by beating out a high hopper to second after Cobb had misjudged his high foul that would have retired the side. Wilson doubled between Lamb and Jenkins, scoring Phipps. Cox's bounder took a bad hop over Roetx for a double to score Wilson.

The biggest inning the Spudders have had in a long time offset the Sports' first inning pair with three for good measure. Benton singled and was forced by Turgeon. Lamb's blow through the box and Eldred's walk filled the bases. Jenkins scored two with a single to center and Roetx polished off the round with a long drive over the left field fence, scoring Eldred and Jenkins ahead. Stanton sent Wilson to the green boards for his long drive. J. Cobb reached second on Deviveros' error and Dickerman relieved Karpp when Cvengros beat out a tap in front of the plate. Benton lined out to left for the third out.

The foe promptly got two of them back in the second when Tobin followed Deviveros' single with a homer over the right field fence. The Spudders came back and raised it one. After two were out Eldred walked and Jenkins socked one over the right field wall. Roetx' effort was almost another homer, his drive bouncing off the top of the boards for two bases. Stanton doubled to left for the final run.

Sparkling Catches

Cvengros managed to cut the Sports' allotment to a lone run in the third. After Lamb had made fine catches to retire Phipps and Wilson, he permitted Cox to take third on a pop single by chunking wild to first. Deviveros scored him with a single to left. The Spudders matched it on Lamb's double and Eldred's single.

The hopefuls didn't have a triple in their collection when the fifth rolled around, so Jenkins hoofed an ordinary double into three bases. It came after Eldred had walked for the third time. Jenkins scored on Roetx' sacrifice fly.

After Cvengros had come through the fourth and fifth in nice style, the Sports socked him for four runs in the sixth and it was finally necessary to draft Payne into temporary service. Singles by Tobin and Dickerman and a pass to Whelan filled the bases. Tobin registered on Woehrs' sacrifice fly and Phipps scored two with a triple to center, himself checking in on Wilson's out for the fourth run. When Cox singled, Payne came on the scene and retired Holman.

Just to keep up the scoring continuity, J. Cobb opened the sixth with a homer over the left field fence. Benton's single and Lamb's double added another before the inning was over. It was at this point that Umpire Donnelly made the mistake of not allowing Lamb to score on Whelan's wide throw to the plate for Benton.

The Sports proved that Payne was not immune by bunching three singles for a seventh inning run, and the Spudders were blanked for the first time in the home half. Jenkins started with a single, but Roetz lined out to short and Jenkins was doubled off first.

That seventh inning Shreveport run was just a signal as to what was coming. Wilson and Cox doubled in succession at the start of the eighth and Holman reached first on Benton's error. Deviveros singled through short for a run and Holman advanced to third as Estrada, hitting for Tobin, and with Steengrafe pitching, filed to Eldred. Sears hit for Dickerman and bounced to Steengrafe, who retired Sears at first instead of making a cinch play at the plate on Holman, and, as it finally turned out, that little mistake was a costly one. Whelan walked and Woehrs scored Deviveros with a single.

Wilkins, who relieved Dickerman on the mound, held the Spudders to one run in the last three innings, while Holman's homer following Cox's single in the ninth tied it up, and in the tenth four successive singles gave the Sports two runs.

Noteworthy Victory

The Spudders broke their losing streak by winning the second game, thanks to a continuation of hard hitting that marked the opener. They pounded Thompson for 13 hits, and with Joe Kiefer in fair form and receiving fast support, pulled through to win, 8 to 5.

It was a noteworthy victory. Not only because the Spudders won, but because they batted a lefthander viciously. And added to that was the fact that contrary to the majority of games in their losing streak, they came from behind to win.

The Sports scored three tallies in the first and the Spudders a brace of runs in their half, and one in the fourth to tie. Shreveport went ahead again in the fifth, but the potent maces of the champions banged hits to score two runs in the fifth and three in the sixth to assure victory, and the best the Sports could do was to tally one in the seventh.

Ed Roetz, the rookie, who struck such a batting pace in the first game maintained that clip in the nightcap. He banged a hit to score two runners and a sacrifice to advance a comrade, who later scored. Ed also started two fast double plays that had no small part in turning back the enemy when it threatened.

The Spudders got 13 hits, all of them hitting safely at least once. Jenkins whaled two doubles, and Lamb and Eldred each clouted two safeties, one of Lyman's going for two bases and one of Brick's for three bags. Lapan hit safely once and sacrificed twice in his only times at bat.

The fielding of Wilson in center field and Cox's batting featured for the Sports. Lamb and Jenkins also contributed some sharp defensive playing.

Our cause didn't look so good in the first inning when the Sports tallied three runs. Woehrs walked with one out. Phipps filed to Lamb. Wilson singled to right, Woehrs going to third. Cox singled to left, Woehrs scoring and Wilson reaching third. Cox stole second and scored on Holman's hit to center. Deviveros lifted to Jenkins.

Come From Behind

We tallied twice in our half. Benton was safe on a hit to Holman. Turgeon fanned. Lamb singled to center, Benton going to third. Eldred walked. Jenkins doubled to center, scoring Benton and Lamb. Roetz grounded to Holman. Stanton filed to Phipps.

The Spudders tied in the fourth. Stanton strolled. Lapan sacrificed. Thompson unassisted. Kiefer doubled through short, Stanton scoring. Benton and Turgeon flied out.

Shreveport scored in the fifth. Thompson got back at Mr. Kiefer with a double to right. Whelan bunted and was safe on Roetz' boot, Thompson going to third. Turgeon dropped Woehrs' fly, Thompson scoring, but Pete recovered to throw out Whelan at second. Lamb took Phipps' holst and Wilson grounded to Kiefer.

The champs scored two in the fifth. Lamb walked. Eldred singled to center. Jenkins tapped to Thompson, both runners advancing. Roetz singled to left center, Lamb and Eldred scoring. Stanton singled to left. Lapan sacrificed to Wilson. Holman threw out Kiefer.

Wichita Falls scored three in the sixth, enough to win, and the faithful fans staged a demonstration. Turgeon singled to left with one out and scored on Lamb's double to right. Eldred tripled to center, Lamb scoring, the weary Phipps and Wilson fielding the ball too slowly to hold Brick on second. Jenkins doubled to center, Eldred scoring. Roetz sacrificed to Wilson. Stanton filed to Wilson.

The Sports tallied one in the ninth. Estrada, batting for Thompson, doubled to center after one was out. He scored on Whelan's hit to the same territory. Woehrs singled to left, but was out at second on Jenkins' throw. Lamb took Phipps' fly and the jubilant Spudders raced to the club house.

Bears Keep Pace By Dropping Beaumont, 4 to 1.

WACO, Texas, May 26, (AP)—The injury jinx continued to camp on the Waco trail Saturday, Wayne Windle bobbing up with a badly swollen thumb which kept him out of the game Saturday. Marty Karowe, Texas university freshman coach was sent to short upon his arrival and played nice ball. The Cubs defeated Houston, 8 to 5, by hitting the offerings of Hallahan early, mixing hits with walks, Johnson's long double with the bases crowded being the decisive blow of the contest. Dick Whitworth finished and Waco's only run off his delivery was Art Shires' mighty clout over the center field wall. Elliott pitched a fair game, but home runs by Watkins and Worthington kept the Buffs in the game most of the way. Gardner, a new outfielder, joined Waco Saturday. He comes from Salt Lake. Score:

MISS WILLS AND HUNTER ADVANCE TO SEMI-FINALS

AUTEUIL, France, May 26. (AP)—Helen Wills and Francis T. Hunter Saturday advanced to the semi-finals of the mixed doubles in the international hard court tennis championships and the American woman champion easily won her first match in the singles, 6-0, 6-3.

The American mixed doubles team defeated Mrs. Joan Austin Lycett and O. G. N. Turnbull, 6-4, 6-0. Miss Wills and Hunter were never in danger.

Madame Marcou, No. 12 in the French ranking, proved no match for the American girl in the singles. It was little more than a practice match for Helen. She won the first six games and lost only three in the second set. The French player is earnest and steady, but she could not approach the class of her opponent.

Earned runs averages of the Texas league pitchers for games through May 16 reveal the fact that the Spudders have three tossers who rank high in effectiveness. Steengrafe, Cvengros and Payne are among the first seven, offering positive evidence that there has been nothing wrong with Wichita Falls pitching thus far. The fact of the business is that the pitching has been much better than last season, and it has been no fault of the hurlers that the club is not occupying the same position in the race it held a year ago; all of which in plain English amounts to first place.

Delving deeper into a comparison of the hitting and pitching in the first 40 games of the two seasons, we find there is a pronounced difference in favor of this year's pitchers and last year's hitters. In 40 games in 1927 Spudder pitching yielded five and one-half runs per game, while over the same stretch this year the enemy has scored approximately four runs per game. Earned and unearned runs alike are included in those figures, and anytime a staff allows the opposition only four runs per game, it is doing some real pitching—the kind that ought to win pennants.

The reason that kind of pitching has not been able to keep the Spudders on top is easily seen in the run scoring figures. For the first 40 games of 1927 the Spudders averaged 6 9-10 runs per game. This year's team has done no better than to score 4-5 runs per game. The Spudders' hits this season have averaged 8½ per game, as compared with 10 3-5 last season. In 1927 the Spudders were not shutout a single time in the first 40 games and were held to one run only once and in no other game to less than three counters. Five hits were the least number obtained by the Spudders in any of the first 40 games, and this happened but once. This season the Spudders have been shutout once, have been held to one run six times and to two runs four times. They have been held to one hit once, to two hits twice, to three hits once, to four hits once and to five hits twice.

A comparison of games decided by one run also speaks well for the Spudder pitching of 1928 vintage. While 10 of the first 40 games of last season were decided by one-run margins, 16 through Friday have gone that way this year. Last year the Spudders split their first 10 one-run games, winning five and losing five. This season they have won seven and lost nine. Sixteen of 41 games being decided by one run is an unusual number and is more positive evidence of good tossing. Approximately half the games the Spudders have played have been decided by one-run margins or have been extra-inning affairs.

Two former landmarks of the Texas league are managing clubs in the Southeastern league. Pop Kitchens, who has been catching all these years is still at it, donning the mask almost every day for the Pensacola club, besides managing it. Dutch Hoffman only a few days ago was elevated to the management of the Albany team and in his first game as manager ruined a ball game with a ninth inning home run. George Distel also is in the Southeastern league, playing short for Selma.

Of the Spudder farmhands in the South Atlantic league, Johnny Buvid is showing the brightest. The former marine last week pitched another one-run victory for the Spartanburg club. Sam Jones, in the Spartanburg outfield, is hitting well, but is not setting the league afire with base hits. Lester White has not been cutting much of a figure with the Augusta club. Joe Berger was let out as manager at Augusta a few days ago.

Bud McCallum, Coyote football coach, Saturday departed for Austin to spend the summer months, expecting to return late in August to take his charges on a training camp for something like two weeks before the start of the fall school term. Pre-school training camps are becoming necessary parts of the conditioning programs of high school teams, and if Wichita Falls wants to keep pace, it must help the camp idea in a financial way. Two weeks of early training would do much for the Coyote team and McCallum believes there will be little difficulty in obtaining by popular subscription sufficient funds to care for the trip.

A letter from Burkburnett, signed "The Gang," wants to know if Jack Dempsey is the scrapper's real name and what nationality he is. Dempsey's name is William Harrison Dempsey and he is of Scotch-Irish-American parentage, born in Manassa, Colo.

WICHITA FALLS POLO CLUB WINS OPENING TOURNAMENT GAME AT FORT SILL, 13 TO 10

LAWTON, Okla., May 26.—Wichita Falls Polo club advanced to the second round in the open handicap class tournament here Saturday by defeating the First Field Artillery, 13 to 10, despite a handicap against it of nine goals. The Wichita Falls riders scored 13 times, while holding the opposition to a lone goal.

The Wichita Falls game was the second of the day, Eighteenth Field Artillery having defeated the academic division, 8 to 2, in the first game.

The Wichita Falls team was composed of C. H. Featherston at No. 1, Horrace Robbins No. 2, Jim Minnick No. 3 and Dave Whyte No. 4. The First Artillery lineup was Searby at No. 1, Moore No. 2, Kirkpatrick No. 3 and Hart No. 4.

Wichita Falls plays its second game Monday morning against the Eighteenth Field Artillery quartet. Two games are scheduled Sunday between Fort Reno and Fort Sill Headquarters and Norman "Profs" and "Black and Whites."

Eight teams are playing in the tournament.

VERNON BOY ELECTED CAPTAIN WASHINGTON AND LEE TRACK TEAM

LEXINGTON, Va., May 26.—Edward N. Backus, of 1829 Wood street, Vernon, Texas, was named captain of the Washington and Lee university track team for 1929 at a meeting of the monogram men here Saturday.

Captain-elect Backus had been a sensational all-year man for the Generals in the quarter and half-mile races, and has been a consistent point-scorer throughout. He earned his monogram in 1926, but was out of school during the 1927 season, and signalized his return this year by running on the winning Generals' relay team in the South Atlantic indoor games last winter.

JACK SPEER IS NEW CHAMPION TEXAS AMATEUR GOLFERS

HOUSTON MAN MAKES PUTTER 'ALL BUT TALK TO WIN OVER LEVINSON BY THREE AND ONE

AUSTIN, May 26. (AP)—Showing a game comeback under odds, Jack Speer, Colonial Country club golfer of Houston, won the Texas Amateur Golf association championship here late Saturday, defeating Lewis Levinson, defending champion of San Antonio, 3 up and 1 to play, in the final round of their 36-hole match.

Levinson looked good to repeat his championship after the morning round, finishing two up, but the Houston golfer, who has been playing the game only five years, turned the tables in the afternoon play and took 14 of the 18 holes.

Shooting par in the final round, Speer got four birdies on the nine holes out. He dropped two shots to perfect figures at the par four fifth hole and lost two more strokes on the back side. But for this, he would have broken the course record of 67.

Putter Fails

Two clubs, a battered mashie-niblick and a rusty putter, that brought the title to Levinson last year at San Antonio, took it away from him here Saturday afternoon. At the 33rd hole Levinson needed three puts to permit Speer to get away with a half and when he missed a mashie niblick at the 34th Speer gained the hole that put him two up and Levinson dormie.

At the short 35th, the hole that saw the finish of that round played under a broiling sun that had the mercury close to 108 in the shade with no shade to be found, Levinson's mashie niblick failed to get him home and after he pitched on the carpet a seven footer failed to drop and the match was over.

Speer was two down at luncheon, but that meant little to the Houston star. He had battled from behind in three of the first four rounds and knew that his game would come through.

Speer played his ball into the center of the green at the short hole and Levinson's failed to come. Levinson pitched on, six feet from the cup. Speer's run-up putt was three feet shy. Lewis then missed his try for a three and conceded the hole and match.

There With Putter

But for three putts on the first green and playing some poor long irons, Jack was around in par the rest of the way in the morning round. His tee shots were all that could be desired. He used 63 putts for the 35 holes. That is seven strokes under par putting and on two occasions he was one over, meaning that he had exactly nine one putt greens.

Levinson's putting was on a par with Jack's for the round, 63, but he had only one three putt green.

Levinson was the longer from the tee, and most of the times was in the fairway. The wild shots of last year were missing and Levinson has improved his game a great deal.

Other scores:

Texas trophy (defeated 16 of first 32), A. W. Whitten, Austin, defeated Tom Haynie, Austin, 10 and 9; Capitol trophy, Reuben Albaugh, San Antonio, defeated Clyde Cunningham, Houston, 2 and 1; Austin trophy, Ed Carruth, San Antonio, defeated Jay Brown, default; Lone Star trophy, Bob Menefee, San Antonio, defeated J. Chapman, Houston, 1 up; Travis trophy, E. T. Daniel, Temple, defeated Lee Davis, Fort Worth, 2 and 1.

Club pairs, Tinsley Penick and R. Long, Austin, won with a 77.

A River Oaks Country club, Houston, four won team championship in the first day of the meet.

St. Ed Classes Elect

AUSTIN, May 26. (AP)—Officers for the coming school year were elected Saturday by the various classes of St. Edward's university. Next year's senior officers will be: President, Jack Healey, Coffeyville, Kansas; vice president, John O'Brien, San Antonio; secretary, Cal Jewett, Elgin, Ill.; representatives on the students activities council, Al Sarafiny of Caspian, Mich., and Bill Epler, Tulsa, Okla.

The juniors president will be Irwin Fanette of Beaumont and the sophomores, Dave Gigari, Galveston.

Robertson Grabs Off Four Straight for Electrics

Individual performances in the Twilight league pennant race thus far are featured by the sterling pitching of Marvin Robertson, crack lefthander of the leading Texas Electric Service company. The southpaw's four consecutive victories have done much to keep the Kilowatts on top of the heap. No other Twilight pitcher has won as many as three games, though Trout of the Electrics and Luphor of Panhandle each has won two without a reverse.

Dickey, Continental Oil company outfielder-pitcher, has shown the way to the hitters of the Twilight league in games through last Thursday, with 11 hits in 23 times at bat for the handsome average of .478. Andree of Electrics leads in hits, 12, and Roberts of the same club in runs, eight.

Leon Duray Sets Record in Indianapolis Speed Trials

PETE DE PAOLO OUT OF RACE AS RESULT OF SMASHUP THAT LEAVES HIM WITH BROKEN ARM

(Universal Service)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 26.—The fight between the front wheel and the rear wheel drive racing cars is started, with the front wheelers carrying off first honors.

Leon Duray, driving a front wheel drive Miller special, qualifying for the 500-mile race Decoration day Saturday afternoon, broke the track record for speed when he turned the 10 miles at an average speed of 122.391 miles per hour. His fastest lap was made in his first attempt to qualify, when he traveled the two and one-half miles at the rate of 124.018 miles per hour.

Lockhart's Record

The record of 120.918 miles per hour set by Frank Lockhart last year had earlier been beaten by Cliff Woodbury, former dirt track king, when he qualified the ten miles at a speed of 120.417 miles per hour. His fastest lap was 121.082 miles per hour.

Both Woodbury and Duray have front wheel drive cars.

Lockhart's car was a rear drive. The fastest time made Saturday by a rear drive car was made by Tony Gulotta, in Lockhart's old car at an average speed of 117.031 miles per hour.

Pete De Paolo was removed as a contender in the race when he ran against the wall on the north turn and was thrown onto the pavement of the track, suffering a broken left arm and cut over the left eye.

The accident occurred as he was three quarters of the way around on his first lap of the qualifying trial. It is thought that his car is too badly damaged to be repaired in time for the race.

Rear Drives

Race followers point out that the front drive cars were unable to stand the gaff of the 500 miles last year, and that the rear drives have been the winners so far.

Other qualifying times Saturday were:

Ray Keech, holder of the world's speed record qualified here at 113.421 miles per hour. Tony Gulotta, driving the car that Lockhart would have mounted in the race hat he not been killed recently at Daytona Beach, qualified at 117.031 miles per hour. Fred Frame, 107.501 miles per hour; Cliff Bergere, 119.956 miles per hour; Lou Moore 113.826 miles per hour; Deacon Litz, 106.213 miles per hour; Ralph Hepburn, 116.354 miles per hour; Johnny Seymour 111.673 miles per hour; Fred Comer 113.630 miles per hour; George Souders 111.444; Sam Ross 106.573; Buddie Marr 109.685.

Cross Country Race Ends With Payne as Victor

Vacant Seats Greet Runners as They Finish In Garden.

By LAWRENCE BELLER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, May 26.—The C. C. Pyle bunion derby ended Saturday night at the Madison Square garden while scores of ticket takers, ushers, newspapermen and men and women who came in on passes were trying to find out what it was all about.

The garden seats 15,000 and the number of people who stayed away was really remarkable.

It appears that the winner of the Los Angeles to New York marathon had been determined some days, or maybe it was weeks, before and just why the 55 men "ran" around the track was a mystery.

There was a lot of "paper" among the 3000 lookers-on with a cash customer about as scarce as a left-handed jig-saw at Dvinsk.

Andy Payne, the Oklahoma cowboy, was the winner of the $25,000 first prize. That's a lot of money for a runner even if he didn't get it. But Pyle and "Red" Grange say he'll get it o. k., so that makes it unanimous. Official pay-off day is next Friday.

Ellis First.

Thomas Ellis of Hamilton, Ont., was the first of the marathoners to reach the garden, arriving at 8:20 o'clock. Right close to him were the ten who are lated to share in the $48,000 spoils.

The garden was fixed up according to six-day bicycle rules and after they had run around for an hour or so it was announced officially and semi-officially that Johnny Salo had piled up a lead of three laps. Salo won second money of $10,000.

Just like they put special money for sprints in the 6-day bike race, so was special money put up for these "sprints." The garden donated $100 for a mile scratch. Allen Currier won this money which he actually got.

But there was some "dirty" work, which it was brought out can happen in coast-to-coast derbies as well as in other sports. James Pollard of Reno, Nev., was thought to be the winner, but the judges declared that he cut the corners.

When one cheats an inch or two in a 3500 mile race and even if he gets caught at it, it is drawing the line pretty fine, according to the customers.

Salo First.

The announcer declared that at 9:28 o'clock "John Salo has completed 100 laps." This was not denied.

It developed that the Bolshevist tendencies among some of the runners had subsided before the bunioneers decided to call it a day, or a month or a year. William Kerr of Minneapolis and sixth man in the elapsed standings who informed reporters Friday "that he did not expect to see Pyle pay off" was one of the most active of the runners. But he got dizzy. He stopped about every lap to exchange greetings with folks he knew in the boxes. Here are the 10 money winners and the awards they are slated to receive:

1. Andrew Payne, Claramore, Oklahoma, $25,000.
2. John Salo, Passaic, N. J., $10,000.
3. Phillip Granville, Hamilton, Ontario, $5,000.
4. Mike Joyce, Cleveland, Ohio, $2500.
5. Guisto Umek, Trieste, Italy, $1000.
6. William Kerr, Minneapolis, Minn., $1000.
7. Louis Perrella, Albany, N. Y., $1000.
8. Ed Gardner, Seattle, Wash., $1000.
9. Frank Von Flue, Kerman, Calif., $1000.
10. John Cronick, Saskatoon, Sask., $1,000.

Farrell Advances in Links Medal Averages

Work Abroad Fails to Help Figures of Bill Mehlhorn and Larry Nabholtz

Competing in the Yorkshire Evening News 1,000-guineas tournament at Leeds, England, neither Bill Mehlhorn nor Larry Nabholtz fared well in the qualifying round and so slipped some more in the seasonal medal averages.

The same is true of George Voight, the Washington amateur, who has just joined a Long Island club and entered into competition in the Metropolitan district of New York. Playing in the qualifying round of the Garden City club's annual spring tournament, he took a 79, which did his average no good.

Meantime Johnny Farrell, who is right on the heels of Macdonald Smith and Gene Sarazen for the leadership, won the Fairview open at Elmsford, N. Y., a one-day event, with a sparkling 70, and drew a little closer to his rivals. Henry Ciuci and Leo Diegel also did well.

Youth Crowned Amateur Links Champ England

T. P. Perkins Defeats Famed Roger Wethered in Final.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, May 26. (AP)—A new name was placed at the top of British amateur golf Saturday. T. P. Perkins, stalwart 24-year-old Birmingham youth, started playing golf for his health when he was a sickly boy and thrived on it until he was able to defeat Roger Wethered, 6 and 4, for the championship.

Perkins won the title in his second year of competition in the big golf events, although he has been known as a star of the industrial midlands of England for several years. At the British open at Sandwich a fortnight ago the new champion was the first amateur with a score of 307.

Although Perkins does not flash with the brilliance of a Jones or Hagen, he has fine command of all his shots. Six feet tall and powerfully built with broad shoulders, he plays a long ball from the tee, is master of his irons and is a confident and accurate putter, a rare combination of golfing qualities in this younger generation, the old timers say.

The champion will be seen in the United States this summer for he is a certain Walker cup team selection and is eager to make the trip. There is a possibility that he may remain in the United States if he can find employment there.

It's most miles per dollar that counts. Put your tire buying on this basis. Quality and service result in mileage. Look over our low prices—and keep in mind that all our tires are made by Firestone. That means more mileage is built-in. Our regular service gets this mileage out for you, through month after month of trouble-free motoring. Drive in any time and let our experienced men inspect your tires, rims and wheels. They make sure everything which affects tire mileage is in good running order. A few minutes' inspection every now and then will result in thousands of extra miles from your tires. Cut your tire costs this year. Come in now and trade in your worn tires on a new set, and enjoy care-free motoring. We make liberal allowance for your old tires.

AVERAGES REFLECT EFFECTIVENESS OF SPUDDER PITCHING

STEENGRAFE, CVENGROS AND PAYNE RANK AMONG LEADERS; ELDRED HIGH IN CLOUT LIST

The most efficient Spudder pitching of recent seasons and hitting that goes to the other extreme are reflected in in the official Texas league averages for the first one-fourth of the 1928 campaign, compiled by the league statistician and released Sunday for publication.

Three of the seven most effective pitchers in the league over the stretch to May 13 are among the Spudder flock, Steengrafe ranking fourth, Cvengros fifth and Payne seventh. The loop's most effective tosser is Bill Hallahan, the Houston lefthander, who limited his foes to 1.26 earned runs per game through 63 innings. Dana Fillingim of San Antonio is next, with an average of 1.62.

Hallahan Whiffs 'Em

Hallahan also leads the league in strikeouts, with 47, while Newman of San Antonio has issued the most walks, 43. Wachtel boasts the perfect record of five victories and no defeats and Lindsey and Riviere lead in number of wins, seven each. Steengrafe, Pate, Lindsey and Hanson show the way in complete games pitched, each with eight. Steengrafe is the league's hardest worker, having turned in 78 innings.

In a battling way, Brick Eldred is the only leader among the Spudders, the chunky right fielder having complied an average of .474 in 10 games. The real leader is Red Worthington of Houston, with a mark of .397. The Spudders rank fourth as a club, .274, while the Buffs set the pace at .296.

The individual averages show the following other leaders:

Runs, Selph, Houston, 20; hits, Selph, 58; total bases, Blackerby, Waco, 90; doubles, Morse, Dallas, 17; triples, Flaskamper, San Antonio, 5; home runs, Grimes, San Antonio, 6; sacrifice hits, Schrieber, Beaumont, and Lafayette, Fort Worth, 12; stolen bases, Moore, Fort Worth, 10; bases on balls, Grimes, 31; runs batted in, Grimes, 39; strike outs, Tobin, Shreveport, 20; caught stealing, Nason, San Antonio, 5.

Amateur Races Tighten as Leading Clubs Are Defeated

POPULAR REYNOLDS BACK THIS WEEK

JACK REYNOLDS

Promoter Alec B. Ross would have to look far and wide to find a better liked grappler for his Wichita Falls fans than Jack Reynolds, the mat professor of the University of Indiana and claimant, along with Matty Matsuda, of the world welterweight championship. Reynolds is here Tuesday night in the feature event of the weekly card with Teddy Watters of Childress.

Three boxing bouts are to precede the mat skirmishes.

CITY LEAGUE FORMED BY LAMESA PLAYERS

LAMESA, Texas, May 26.—A city baseball league has been formed here with four teams participating. The clubs are the Hill Billies, of which S. C. Hill is manager; Yellow Jackets, Ernie Parchaman, manager; Bull Dogs, Matt McCall, manager; and Trail Blazers, Jessie Paulk, manager. Paulk is president of the league and Gus White is vice president.

The clubs play twice each week. The first game this week gave the Yellow Jackets and Trail Blazers the margin, defeating the Bull Dogs and Hill Billies by a score of 10 to 6 and 6 to 1 respectively.

HOUSTON CLUB SIGNS ANOTHER AGGIE STAR

HOUSTON, Texas, May 26. (AP)—President Fred Ankenman Saturday announced the signing of J. F. (Bubba) Blount, Texas A. & M. baseball captain and second baseman, by the Houston ball club. Blount, the most promising prospect produced in the Southwestern conference this season, will finish out his college career. He will graduate with his degree from A. & M. June 3 and will report immediately thereafter.

Blount will in all probability be sent on to Danville of the Three Eye league.

VERNON GOLFERS TO COMPETE IN TOURNEY

VERNON, Texas, May 26.—Tot Williams, Whitney Anderson and Roy Farrell will represent Vernon in the Greenbelt Golf association tournament in Memphis next week, it was announced here.

These three students of Vernon high school have been shooting good scores. Farrell holds the title at the club, and young Anderson was the runnerup in the championship tournament last year.

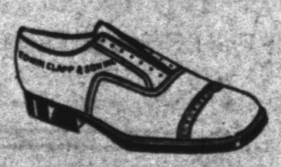

LAST VERNON MATCH

VERNON, Texas, May 26. — Knockout Shorty of New York and Cyclone Lefevre of Grandfield, Okla., fought six rounds to a draw here in the final American Legion bout of the season. J. P. Reck, local wrestler, won the second and third falls in one minute and 30 seconds each, and defeated Jack Hudson of Mangum, La. Hudson won the first fall in 14 minutes.

Benjamin Franklin was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence for the state of Pennsylvania.

Greenbelt Golf Tourney Starts Memphis Monday

Quanah Man, Twice Champion, to Defend His Title

MEMPHIS, Texas, May 26.—More than 100 golfers from northwest Texas and southern Oklahoma clubs are expected here Sunday and early Monday to start play in the annual championship tournament of the Greenbelt Golf association.

Monday will be devoted to the qualifying round of 18 holes and the team championship, six designated players to represent each club, with the total medal score deciding the winner. The low 16 will qualify for play in the championship flight, with 48 others competing in three other flights.

L. S. Walker of Quanah has won the title for the last two years. He is expected to meet stiff competition here from a number of players, including Sam West, who went to the finals with Walker last year at Electra.

R. R. Gilliland of Quanah is president of the Greenbelt association.

Two New Threats

A new league leader in the City league and a new pennant threat in the Twilight were developments last week along Wichita Falls' amateur baseball front. The Katy railroaders put in a busy week trimming in turn each of their three rivals and as a result bounced Producers Creamery off the top perch and lodged themselves in the exalted position.

It was a disastrous week for the Producers, who were leading the league a week ago. Manager Bryan's churners could do no better than get one tie in three games, losing both to Katy and Dimock Brothers and getting a draw with DeMolays. The latter was quite an improvement on the part of the DeMolays, for it is the closest the team has come to a victory thus far. Dimock Brothers profited from two victories and a loss and now is threatening to move into second place, if the Producers encounter another week as rough as the last one.

The plumbers get their chance Sunday afternoon to take over the runnerup berth when they tangle with the Producers nine at 3 o'clock on the Jalenio street lot. Thursday Dimock Brothers play the leading Katy crew and victories in both these games will considerably tighten up the race.

James Brothers Climb

Two victories negotiated by James Brothers creamery featured the week's play in the Twilight circuit, the latest being a 6 to 4 licking handed the pace setting Texas Electric Service company Friday afternoon. By winning their two games during the week, the creamery lads now are in second place. However, the Electrics still hold a commanding lead and will have to lose all three of their remaining games for any other team to have a chance to beat them out. The week's play also was profitable to the leaders, who won two of their three starts.

Panhandle and Continental, who seem doomed to scrap it out for the cellar position, meet Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Katy park. Both teams failed to win last week, Panhandle dropping its lone game and Continental losing two.

Panhandle faces a busy week, playing both the Electrics and James Brothers after the Sunday clash with Continental.

World's Champion car—25,000 miles in less than 23,000 consecutive minutes. Nothing else on earth ever traveled so far so fast.

The Dictator
F. O. B. FACTORY
70 horsepower 65 miles per hour
5000 miles in less than 4800 consecutive minutes—a record for stock cars priced below $1400.

The Erskine
F. O. B. FACTORY
63 horsepower 62 miles per hour
Thrilling six-cylinder performance. 1000 miles in less than 1000 consecutive minutes—a record for stock cars priced below $1000.

STUDEBAKER has swept the boards! Every official speed and stamina record for fully equipped stock cars is held by Studebaker. Every Studebaker is a champion! Never before has any one manufacturer held all these records!

These remarkable records (listed at the left) offer clean-cut proof of speed, of stamina, of durability, certified officially by the American Automobile Association. Studebaker has proved these three vital qualities by heroic tests of strictly stock cars under unquestioned official sanction.

To you these repeated evidences of Studebaker endurance and speed are conclusive assurance of Studebaker's fitness to meet every demand of everyday motoring. Your Studebaker can give more than you will ever ask.

Studebaker's Championship is beyond dispute

Studebaker cars have proved beyond question their ability to travel great distances at sustained high speeds. No car except the Studebaker Commander ever came within 10,000 miles of The Commander's great record of 25,000 miles in less than 23,000 minutes! No fully equipped closed car ever equalled The President Straight Eight's official records. No cars of their price classes ever traveled so far so fast as did The Dictator and The Erskine Six.

When such performance can be bought at Studebaker's remarkable One-Profit prices, why be content with less than a champion?

40 miles per hour even when NEW!

Studebaker's sensational proofs of speed and endurance come from engineering genius, quality materials, precision manufacture and rigid inspections. Because of these, any Studebaker may safely be driven 40 miles an hour the day you buy it. Motor oil need be changed but once in 2500 miles. The President, Commander and Dictator require chassis lubrication only after each 2500 miles.

Today in Studebaker and in Studebaker alone, you can buy the utmost in every phase of motoring—and behind it a name that for 76 years has meant dependable transportation. Come in, and drive a champion!

WHALING DEMOS TIE INTO REPUBLICANS TO WIN 'BALL GAME'

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—The flying feet of house Democrats, made ditches of the baselines and wore out the home plate at American league park today as their powerful bats smothered the Republicans by a score conservatively estimated at 36 to 4 in five innings. President Coolidge tossed out the first ball.

The Democrats nearly filibustered the game away in the third inning, being retired after scoring 13 runs only, when Gilbert of Kentucky who was still out of breath from circling the bases succumbed to the curves of Hoffman, New Jersey. Hofmann was rushed to the mound to rescue Chase of Pennsylvania, the G. O. P. starting pitcher.

Demos Star.

Douglas of Arizona, the Democratic pitcher, and his battery mate, McMillan, South Carolina, who managed the team were the stars of the contest. The former really pitched like a baseball pitcher, and had it not been for his erratic support, if any, might have held the Republicans to an even smaller score.

McMillan was the batting hero of the day, banging five hits, two for extra bases. Morin and Chase, Pennsylvania; Bachmann, West Virginia; Ketcham, Michigan; Updike, Indiana; Crowther and Reed, New York; Maas, Minnesota; Crall, California, and Guyer, Kansas, were in the lineup.

Cheering Crowd.

The victor's roster also bore the names of Vinson, Kentucky; McDuffie, Alabama, and Browning, Tennessee.

About a thousand spectators were on hand to cheer the legislators, among them, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club. The first ball, autographed by the president, was auctioned by Nick Altrock, the Washington team's coach-comedian, to Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, wife of the senator from Rhode Island for $125.

THREE FROM WICHITA TO ATTEND G.O.P. CONCLAVE

Orville Bullington, state Republican vice-chairman, will leave for Kansas City shortly after June 1 where he will remain until June 12 when the national Republican convention will open in that city, it was learned Saturday.

Mr. Bullington was selected delegate at large and chairman of the Texas delegation instructed to vote for Herbert Hoover at the state Republican convention held recently at Dallas.

Roy B. Jones, president of the Panhandle Refining company, who presided over the Wichita county Republican convention this spring, is the delegate from this district. O. R. Hartt, Republican county chairman, is an alternate.

Both Mr. Jones and Mr. Hartt have definitely decided to attend the convention in Kansas City and it is expected that several other Wichitans will make the trip.

A suite of 50 rooms in the new Robert E. Lee hotel in Kansas City has been reserved for the Texas delegation.

M'BRIDE CONTENDS DRY LAW IS ISSUE IN NATIONAL RACE

ST. LOUIS, May 26. (UP)—Prohibition is the greatest issue in the coming campaign and no candidate can successfully evade it, F. Scott McBride, head of the Anti-Saloon league, declared in an address before the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church here last night.

"There is no good reason why the church as such should not use its votes and influence to defeat candidates who favor the return of the saloon," McBride declared. "At the Chattanooga Southern Baptist convention delegates voted 6000 to 3 to have the church take a part in the coming political campaign on the side of prohibition.

"In a recent questionnaire sent to preachers over the country by the Anti-Saloon league, they voted 90 per cent to change their party affiliations if necessary in order to vote for a dry."

McBride launched a bitter attack on Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, declaring he could not even carry his home state.

"Smith was never a friend of prohibition," McBride declared in asking the delegates to unite for his defeat.

TWO YOUTHS TRY TO STOP OFFICERS

One in Hospital, Other in Jail After Gun Fight In Road

SHREVEPORT, La., May 26. (AP) R. E. Earvin, 22, was shot in the right shoulder early today by Deputy Sheriff L. E. Plaisance of Shreveport and Deputy Will George of Oil City, when Earvin and his companion, R. B. Anderson, 22, who said his home was in Eldorado, Ark., are alleged to have attempted to stop the officers about two miles north of Rodessa, La.

Earvin was taken to Vivian, where his shoulder was dressed by a physician and later the pair was lodged in the Caddo parish jail here and charged with shooting with intent to kill.

According to Deputy Plaisance, he and Deputy George had been to Texarkana on the trail of a fugitive charged with shooting to kill, who eluded the Texas officials.

They had just crossed the Texas-Louisiana state line on their return trip when a new roadster passed them. The officers speeded up and overtook the roadster and were questioning the men in it about the rate of speed they were making and the absence of a license on their car when, they reported, one of them suddenly pulled a pistol and told the officers to "put 'em up" and fired a shot.

Although within a few feet of the officers, his shot went wild, and before a second shot could be fired, both Deputy Plaisance and George had whipped out their guns and fired simultaneously.

GRAHAM WATER BONDS ARE GIVEN APPROVAL

GRAHAM, Texas, May 26.—Judge S. A. Penix has returned from Austin with the approval of the attorney general's department of the $225,000 water reservoir bonds for Graham. A few weeks ago the election was held and it carried by a good majority, and as soon as the bonds are printed they will be ready for sale. With all details to the reservoir being completed the time will not be long until construction work will begin in building a reservoir that will hold approximately two billion gallons of water. This estimate will supply a town of from 15,000 to 20,000 population.

MEADE, Kan., May 26. (AP)—Mrs. Donald Cothran and her one-year-old daughter were fatally burned yesterday at their farm home near here when kerosene with which she was kindling a fire exploded. The burning kerosene was scattered over the room and the house was quickly destroyed with all its contents.

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Brittain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids; and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 30 years. With each package you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine. —Adv.

MRS. CAIN SPEAKS TO PETROLIA GRADUATES ON "BUILDING A LIFE"

PETROLIA, Texas, May 26.—Mrs. Ira L. Cain of Wichita Falls delivered the address to the graduating class at the high school auditorium Friday night on the subject, "Building a Life." Many present declared it the best commencement address ever delivered in Petrolia and the class was delighted to have had Mrs. Cain as their speaker.

In following out the subject, Mrs. Cain concluded by saying, "As you build, have faith, be courageous, accept guidance, preserve your ideal, control your habits, watch your dreams, find your talent, avoid extravagance, speak the truth, live honorably, value citizenship, prepare for parenthood, seek spiritual culture.

"And as you go down the years, my wish for each one of you is that you may increase in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

The house was well filled with a most appreciative audience, while the graduates were seated on the platform with Supt. C. C. Bock and Mrs. Cain.

The complete program was as follows: Piano solo, Muriel Stork; invocation, Rev. C. G. Lee; salutatory, Vernon Ekrut; vocal solo, Mary A. Shivers; address, Mrs. Ira L. Cain; song, graduates; presentation of diplomas, Supt. C. C. Bock; valedictory, Ovelle McDonald.

The new Fordor Sedan is a great family car because of its beauty, safety, speed, reliability, comfort, low first cost and low cost of up-keep. Wide and roomy, with generous seat space and ample leg room for all five passengers. Furnished in a pleasing variety of beautiful two-tone color harmonies, as are all the new Ford cars.

THE NEW FORDOR SEDAN

A strikingly beautiful car distinguished by its long, low streamline body and unusual riding comfort

THE new Fordor Sedan is a strikingly beautiful car because of its long, low streamline body, attractive colors, and the many distinctive features of finish and appointment usually found only in custom built bodies.

The cowl sweeps down in smoothly rounded curve to the narrow belt moulding which runs from the front of the hood on a straight line back and around the car. The roll belt beneath the wide windows and the rounded top and rear quarter further emphasize this impression of flowing line and graceful contour.

Set against the rich and artistic colors are the heavily nickeled radiator, headlamps and door handles — smart touches of bright metal that add a great deal to the attractiveness of the car.

The interior of the Fordor Sedan is also unusually rich in finish and appointment. The wide, deeply cushioned seats are of the comfortable lounge type, set at just the right tilt, and upholstered in soft woolen cloth with brown hairline stripe. Trimming is in light brown, in pleasing harmony with the upholstery.

Embossed cloth paneling around the doors and on the seat in the front compartment and arm rests, flexible robe rail and oval bow-light in rear compartment are other features which help to give the new Fordor Sedan the appearance and refinements of a custom built car.

FEATURES OF THE NEW FORD CAR

Beautiful low lines
Choice of colors
55 to 65 miles an hour
40-horse-power engine
Remarkable acceleration
Four-wheel brakes
New transverse springs
Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers
20 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline
Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield
Reliability and low up-keep cost

All of these details of beauty, convenience and finish you will be quick to note when you see the new Fordor Sedan. But only by riding in it can you fully appreciate the remarkable riding comfort that makes the new Ford cars such a joy to drive.

One reason, of course, is the use of Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers, formerly provided as standard equipment on only the most expensive automobiles. Yet even these shock absorbers of themselves do not account for the complete riding comfort of the new Ford.

Equally important are the design and construction of the new transverse springs, the low center of gravity, and what engineers speak of as the low ratio of unsprung weight to the sprung weight of the car.

All of these factors combine to soften or eliminate the force of road shocks and to make the new Ford an exceptionally comfortable and easy-riding car at all speeds. Even rough roads may be taken at a fast pace without hard jolts or bumps or the exaggerated bouncing rebound which is the cause of most motoring fatigue.

By all means, see this new Ford Fordor Sedan and arrange for a demonstration. You will know then that it is not just a new automobile — not just a new model — but the advanced expression of a new idea in modern, economical transportation.

The new Ford Roadster sells for $385; the Phaeton for $395; the Tudor Sedan for $495; the Coupe for $495; the Business Coupe for $495; the Sport Coupe, with wide, deeply cushioned rumble seat, for $550; and the Fordor Sedan for $625. (F. O. B. Detroit.)

These prices include four-wheel brakes, four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers, five steel-spoke wheels, four 30 x 4.50 balloon tires, electric windshield wiper on closed cars, speedometer, gasoline gage on instrument panel, dash light, mirror, combination stop and tail light, theft-proof coincidental ignition lock, oil indicator rod and high pressure grease gun lubrication.

ADJOURNMENT BILL FACES BRAWL IN SENATE MONDAY

LEADERS CLAIM TUESDAY AT 5 P. M. TOO EARLY

Sen. Heflin, in Daily Bout With Al, Says He Needs Time

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—Confronted with demands for a longer session, the senate will vote on Monday on the house resolution fixing 5 p. m. Tuesday as the adjournment hour for congress. Leaders tonight believed it would be adopted.

Seeks Postponement.

Protesting for longer consideration of his Boulder Canyon dam bill, Senator Johnson, Republican, California, has two amendments to the resolution pending, one setting a week from Tuesday as the adjournment date and the other designating next Saturday as an alternative.

Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the Republican leader, presented the house resolution today immediately after the last of the appropriation bills was sent to the White House—the $146,000,000 second deficiency measure. His request for immediate consideration, requiring unanimous consent, was blocked by Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, who is supporting the move of Senator Johnson for a longer session. This forced over consideration of the resolution for a day. Vice President Dawes ruled, but on Monday if it comes up under the rules and must be voted upon without debate.

May Adjourn Saturday.

While demands were voiced from both sides of the chamber today for a session lasting beyond next Tuesday, leaders were confident that, with all of the appropriations measures and the tax bill out of the way, the Tuesday adjournment or at least the next Saturday quitting date would be approved.

Urging action on the $274,000,000 naval cruiser construction bill, Senator Hale, Republican, Maine, joined with Johnson in asking postponement of the adjournment hour. They picked up the support of Senator Oddie, Republican, Nevada, who expressed fear that President Coolidge would give the annual $75,000,000 good roads bill a pocket veto but he had hardly finished before Mr. Coolidge affixed his signature to the measure.

NURSES FROM AUSTIN CONFERENCE TO COME HERE FOR CONVENTION

AUSTIN, May 26. (AP)—The aim of the American Red Cross to have state, county and municipal governments take over the financing of its public service was explained here Saturday by Mrs. Elsbeth Vaughan, assistant national director, St. Louis, to the joint conference of state staff nurses and Red Cross nurses.

Most of the 30 Red Cross and staff nurses attending the conference will go to Wichita Falls for graduate nurses' association annual convention opening Wednesday. A few will go later to Louisville, Ky., to attend the biennial convention of graduate and public health nurses, from June 4 to 9. Miss Katherine Hagquist, state advisory nurse, will go from the state department of health. Miss Mary Kennedy, Harris county supervising Red Cross nurse; Miss Violet Crook, Gonzales county health nurse, and Miss Lucile Stone, Uvalde county health nurse, also will go.

KENTUCKY YOUTH WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST

Elliot Norquist, Kansas City, Mo., was second, and Charles J. Olson, Worcester, Mass., third.

Moore's topic was "The Development of the Constitution." As a result of his victory he will represent the United States in the international oratorical contest in which nine other countries will compete.

W. R. KELLY IS ERECTING NEW BUILDING AT LAMESA

LAMESA, May 26.—Contractor Harvey C. Allen began pouring cement here last week for the erection of the W. R. Kelly building on South First and Austin streets. This building is to be modern in every detail and is to replace the old W. R. Kelly hotel which has stood in Lamesa for the past 20 years.

HIGHPOINT DISTRICT TO HAVE NEW SCHOOL SOON

CHILDRESS, May 26.—Construction work will start soon on a new brick school building in the Highpoint district, eight miles southwest of Childress. The district recently voted bonds to the sum of $10,750 for the new building.

Barns may be protected from lightning by running two or three strands of common barbed wire the length of the ridge and down each end into permanently moist earth.

Radio Operators Are Tuned In For Message From Plane Searching for Fox Film Party Missing for Week

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, May 26. (AP) Fairbanks radio operators were listening intently today for a message from Point Barrow indicating the safe arrival there of Matt Neimenen, pilot, and Richard Heyser, wireless man, of the plane searching for the Fox film expedition which has been missing more than a week.

The relief plane left Kotzebue, on North Sound, Bering sea, yesterday afternoon. Neimenen indicated that he might land at Wainwright, about 100 miles southeast of Point Barrow, to take on additional gasoline before proceeding to Barrow.

Heyser planned to establish communication as soon as possible as he carried a wireless transmitting set in the plane.

The Fox film expedition, in two planes piloted by veteran Alaskan aviators, started out for Point Barrow May 11. Nothing has been heard from the party since it left Wiseman, about half way between Fairbanks and Point Barrow by the northern route over the Brooks range. Fears were felt that the planes might have been forced down in an isolated region or damaged in landing at Point Barrow, as they were equipped only with wheels. The relief plane flew over a more round-about, but safer route.

DEL RIO, Texas, May 26. (AP)—W. A. Goodwin, 46, Southern Pacific railway freight conductor, was arrested here today and released on $1500 bond on a charge of assault to murder. His son, Luther, was struck with a chair as he ran from the house. They boy will recover but his wounds are serious, doctors said.

VALLEY VIEW WOMAN WINS DEMONSTRATION CLUB'S DRESS CONTEST

IOWA PARK, May 26.—The Demonstration clubs of Wichita county met at the domestic science cottage of the Iowa Park high school Thursday for the annual dress contest. This year the contestants were to make silk dresses of some washable material, the cost of which was not to exceed five dollars. Miss Ethel Louise Webb, county demonstration agent, was in charge and reported 50 entries in the contest.

At the morning session, the dresses were on display for examination by the judges. In the afternoon, the dresses were worn by the contestants before the judges. The dresses were judged on the basis of general appearance and appropriateness to the type person wearing them. Mrs. W. C. Williams of the Valley View club was awarded first place and Miss Ruby Norwood of the Valley View club third place in the decision of the judges. A five dollar hat was given by Mrs. D. K. Harbour in recognition of first place winner, and dress patterns donated by Saul's and Overbey and Troutman Dry Goods stores were given second and third place winners in the contest. Other merchants presented a number of contestants with articles of merchandise. The judges for the day were Mrs. R. E. Brewster, Mrs. Noel McKinney, and Mrs. J. M. Smyth.

Miss Glen Givens of the Barwise club won over eight other contestants in the beauty contest and was awarded a cake donated by the Sanitary Bake shop. A program of readings, and songs and the lunch at noon served at the cottage were special items of entertainment for 100 guests.

BARBERS SCORE POINT OVER KANSAS CITY COPS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 26. (INS)—A goodly number of Kansas City's veteran policemen stood inspection today minus their pride and joy—the hirsute beauty of their upper lips cleanly shaven.

Commissioners of the department discovered a long disregarded order that all members of the force be "smoothly and completely shaven." Immediately the order tabooing all mustaches became revived.

Building in West Texas

SEVENTY-SEVEN FINISH AT BAPTIST SEMINARY

FORT WORTH, May 26. (AP)—Commencement exercises over, faculty members at Southwestern Baptist Theological seminary were making plans today for the opening of summer school one week from Monday. Indications are that 175 students will enroll for work in various departments of the school.

Seventy - seven students were graduated at exercises conducted at the seminary yesterday morning. Diplomas were presented by Dr. L. R. Scarbrough, president. The baccalaureate address was delivered by Dr. John MacNeill, Toronto, Canada and H. H. Hargrave spoke on behalf of the class.

METHODIST CONFERENCE NAMES SINGAPORE BISHOP

KANSAS CITY, May 26. (AP)—The Methodist Episcopal church today increased its number of effective bishops to 34 when the quadrennial general conference elected the Rev. Edwin F. Lee of Singapore as a missionary bishop to the Malaya provinces.

Bishop Lee will fill a place formerly held by a regular bishop of the church. His election came after the episcopacy committee had reported it was not feasible to consolidate the Singapore residence with any of the other Episcopal residences in the Far East, a plan which had been decided upon as a means of eliminating the Singapore bishopric.

FREDERICK OFFICE BUILDING WILL BE FIVE STORIES HIGH

FREDERICK, Okla., May 26.—Work on the proposed five-story office building to be built by the Baxley Investment company on the site of the old Oklahoma National bank building, will start some time in June, said Harry Mitchell, head of the Waurika Lumber and Building company, who was here last week.

With him was John Chenowith, associated with him in the project, and while here offices were leased in the second story of the Eberle building, just across the street from the Baxley property, and some property and some equipment was brought with them and placed in the rooms. Desks and other furniture will be brought this week.

In order to take care of J. H. Culp, present tenant of the building to be razed, a one-story structure will be erected just south of Culp's present stand, which he will occupy until the new building is finished, when he will move into it. Material for this has been ordered and construction will start no later than June 15, Mitchell said.

Drawings made by Guy Dale, Lawton architect, also plans and specifications, have been completed and will be on display in Mitchell's office.

Contract Awarded for First Unit of Highland Heights Christian Church; Construction Work to Start at Once

The contract for the construction of the new Highland Heights Christian church building was let to O. C. Willis of Wichita Falls at a meeting of the official board Friday evening. The estimated cost of the first unit, on which construction is to begin at once, is $100,000. It is thought that the completed church will cost about $250,000.

The unit to be built now will include the auditorium and the basement, with about 16 Sunday school rooms, and the radio station. The other units will include the recreational department, with a gymnasium, and the educational department. It is thought that construction can be completed within six or eight months, according to Dr. Paul Henry Packard, pastor and chairman of the building committee.

Serving on the building committee with Dr. Packard are John W. Bradley, S. B. Wilson, Clyde Carey, J. N. Sherrill and Paul Putty. Pate and Thompson of Wichita Falls are the architects.

The Highland Heights church has been organized a little more than two years, during which time services have been held in a temporary structure at Avenue J and Stone boulevard. Dr. Packard has been pastor ever since the church was begun.

MAYFIELD FIRES OPENING GUN AT SULPHUR SPRINGS

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas, May 26. (AP)—United States Senator Earle B. Mayfield opened his campaign for re-election here this afternoon before a large audience representative of all northeast Texas.

The Sulphur Springs chamber of commerce has leased a large cotton warehouse seating about 7500 for all large political and religious gatherings, and in this building the senator fired the opening gun of his present campaign.

Coming directly from Washington, Senator Mayfield was met at Greenville and brought here by automobile.

Charles F. Ashcroft, president of the chamber of commerce, called the meeting to order and introduced a number of visiting friends of Mr. Mayfield, who made brief talks in behalf of his candidacy.

Mayfield said his speech would in the main be an account of his stewardship as a representative of the people in the national congress. At the outset he informed the audience that he intended to ignore mud-slinging methods, and place his campaign on the high plane of issues and not personalities. He discussed the bills he has fathered in the senate and those which he has supported.

Among the delegations from other cities were those representing Tyler, Greenville, Dallas and surrounding towns. Mrs. Mayfield accompanied the senator, both having returned from Washington.

LORD OXFORD'S ESTATE APPEARS PALTRY SUM

LONDON, May 26. (AP)—England received something of a shock on learning today that the late Lord Oxford and Asquith, one time premier, who devoted his life to politics, left an estate of only about 9000 pounds sterling ($45,000) and that he was relieved of financial worry during his last days by the beneficence of friends.

MISS NEW YORK NAMED IN GALVESTON PAGEANT

GALVESTON, May 26. (AP)—Miss Isabel Waldner of New York will be "Miss Greater New York" in the third annual pageant of pulchritude here June 2 to 5, it was announced today. Miss Mary Biasco of New Haven will be "Miss Connecticut." This brings the total American and foreign entries to date to 32.

PYLE AND GRANGE FACE HEAVY SUITS

Illinois Bank Official Seeks Collection of $36,000 Notes.

NEW YORK, May 26. (UP)—A suit seeking to recover $16,626, the balance due on two promissory notes, was filed in supreme court against C. C. Pyle today by George R. McCond, receiver for the Illinois Trust company and the Savings bank of Champaign, Ill.

Attorneys for McCond said a similar suit to recover $20,000 would be filed here against Red Grange, who accompanied Pyle on his transcontinental footrace. An attempt to attach property belonging to Pyle will be made Monday, the attorneys said.

SECOND STORY IS BEING ADDED QUANAH BUILDING

QUANAH, May 26.—Contractor Reeves has started work on the second story of the building of the Western Wholesale Drug company, opposite Quanah hotel. This building is 75x115 feet, and was built about three years ago. Increased business necessitates the second story, which will be modern in every detail. E. B. Caskey, president of the First National bank, is principal owner of the Western Drug company.

TIPTON, OKLA., REPORTS BIG BUILDING PROGRAM

TIPTON, Okla., May 26. — The building program here this spring is rather heavy. Five brick homes are under construction at the present time. They are being built on East Main in the 200 block on the north side of the street. These homes are being built for the following: P. H. Davis, G. H. Phelps, J. E. Kee Fee, C. E. Testerman and C. Perrett. Contractor for the houses is C. F. Brandstatt of this city.

Summer School to Open Monday With Varied Course Offered in Same Work Taught in Regular Winter Session

Practically the same work offered in the regular sessions of the Wichita Falls public schools and junior college will be included in the curriculum of the summer school, which opens Monday, according to A. K. Presson, director of the junior high, high and college division, and J. T. Rundell, director of the ward school section.

The upper division, which is to be held at the junior college, will be divided into three separate departments, the junior college, the high school and the junior high, and all three will have regular graduating classes. The faculty will be as follows: A. K. Presson, director; B. T. Adams, mathematics; A. F. Edwards, history; W. A. Franklin, science; Mrs. H. T. Gilbert, Spanish; R. O. Jonas, education; Louise Lipscomb, English; Lillian Jones, librarian; J. C. Mathis, history; Verna Sellers, English; W. J. Webb, mathematics; Bennie Works, English.

The elementary division, which includes grades one to six, will be conducted at the Alamo school. Mr. Rundell will be assisted by Miss Mary Denny and Mrs. Virgus in the primary department and Miss Florence Cullen and Miss Sarah Jones in departmental work.

According to the teachers who have been in summer school work for the past few years, the type of summer school student has changed considerably recently. Instead of having the classes made up only of those who had failed in their work during the past term, only a small percentage of them have ever failed. A large number are ambitious to get ahead, some have been unable to attend the winter session regularly, and others wish to get ahead in credits so that they can take a greater part in school activities.

OLD COURT HOUSE IS SOLD IN GRAY

LEFORS, May 26.—George Thut purchased the old Gray county court house here when the old structure was sold recently at public auction. The sale price was $333.50.

The land upon which the building stood will revert to J. M. Shaw, who donated it in 1902 for the erection of a court house.

BROWN COUNTY WATER RIGHTS ROW SETTLED

BROWNWOOD, Texas, May 26. (AP)—The Brownwood Bulletin today says that an agreement between the Brown County Water Improvement District No. 1 and the Syndicate Power company of Dallas, which have been active opponents for almost a year, has been reached and that the parties are negotiating a contract to settle their respective rights and claims.

The paper says that following an Associated Press dispatch to the effect that the controversy regarding water rights on the Colorado river had been settled, water board officials here denied that final action had been taken.

The Bulletin Thursday announced that the long fight for a water storage dam on Pecan bayou was ended as far as the Syndicate Power company was concerned.

This announcement was based on a wire from Martin J. Insull of Chicago, in charge of Insull company power interests in Texas, who stated that the parties were actively engaged in negotiating a contract to settle the respective rights and that the matter was progressing satisfactorily.

The Insull company is backing the Syndicate Power company.

The paper says that Mr. Insull's telegram apparently confirms its previous reports that the various matters in dispute are being amicably settled and that nothing other than routine matters are to be agreed on.

COOLIDGE SIGNS BILL CREATING NEW COURT

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—President Coolidge today signed a bill drawn by Senator Mayfield, Democrat, Texas, to create a new division of the United States district court for the northern district of Texas. The new district is to be known as the Lubbock district and will embrace the counties of Bailey, Borden, Cochran, Crosby, Dawson, Dickens, Gaines, Garza, Hale, Hockley, Kent, Lamb, Lynn, Lubbock, Motley, Scurry and Yoakum.

JOHN BUNGAN'S NAME HONORED BY BRITISHERS

BEDFORD, England, May 26. (AP) Although John Bunyan, the famous author of "The Pilgrim's Progress," was born in a cottage in one of Bedford's suburbs in November, 1628, this town began its 300th anniversary celebration of his birth today in order to get fine weather for outdoor meetings.

DAILY MARKET REPORT

WEATHER REPORTS INFLUENCE SLUMP IN WHEAT MARKET

CHICAGO, May 26. (AP)—Prospects of relief from drought which has been menacing spring wheat gave a late setback to prices today in the wheat market here. Rallies earlier on account of adverse crop reports from the Northwest proved to be only transient in the face of free selling that developed as the day drew to an end.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, ¾c to 1¾c net lower, corn 1¼c to 2¼c off, oats varying from ¼c decline to ¼c advance, and provisions unchanged to 10c down.

Nearly the lowest prices of the day were current in the wheat pit today at the finish. Dominating the market during the final transactions was an official forecast which indicated general unsettled weather the coming week. Previously, values had averaged higher, with bulges frequent on bullish crop advices and persistent lack of rain in spring wheat territory both south and north of the Canadian line. There was also talk of need of rain in Kansas.

Contributing to the late weakness of the wheat market was trade gossip to the effect that the United states wheat visible supply has to decrease 23,000,000 bushels between now and July 1 to bring the total down to that of a year ago, whereas in the same time last year the decrease was only 8,000,000 bushels. Furthermore, not a bushel of new crop domestic wheat has been paid for for export, it was stated, and unless export demand develops shortly the southwest and Chicago will have to take care of a large movement.

Liberal receipts of corn here, 252 cars today, had a bearish effect in the corn market. Liquidation also on the part of holders of future delivery contracts were again in evidence, with some standing orders becoming operative to stop losses on declines. Oats sympathized with corn weakness.

Provisions were inclined to sag, chiefly as a result of an easier trend in the hog market.

Dry Goods Market

NEW YORK, May 26. (AP)—Active speculation was evident in the Yokohama raw silk market today but prices were steady here. A number of fair print cloth sales were made with the situation generally quiet. Prices have shown an easier tendency. Exports of coarse yarn cotton were somewhat better, although inquiries for millions of yards failed to materialize into orders. The primary burlap market was slightly firmer and locally the situation was featureless. Woolen piece goods activity was of limited proportions.

Sugar and Coffee

NEW YORK, May 26. (AP)—Coffee futures were easier today on the slightly easier tone of Rio exchange on London and a little realizing or liquidation. Rio contracts opened 6 to 11 points lower, but after selling off to 14.96 for September, recovered part of the loss the close showing net declines of 3 to 6 points. Santos contracts opened 10 to 20 points lower and closed at a net decline of 3 to 13 points. Estimated sales of Rio 10,000 Santos 11,000. Closing quotations: Rio July 14.85, September 14.99, December 15.08, January 15.05, March 15.04, May 14.99; Santos July 22.57, September 22.37, ecember 21.98, January 21.90, March 21.82, May 21.68.

Spot coffee quiet. Rio 7s 15½ to 15⅝; Santos 4s 22½ to 24.

CHECK DECLINE IN PRICE FOR COTTON CLOSE IS STEADY

NEW YORK, May 26. (AP)—Early declines in the cotton market today were followed by rallies on the uncertainty of over-Sunday weather developments in the South, but after advancing from 20.63 to 20.81 for October, prices reacted under week-end realizing, October closed at 20.70 and the general market closed steady, net 1 point higher to 4 points lower.

The opening was steady at declines of 1 to 5 points, the market showing net losses of 9 to 10 points in early trading under realizing by recent buyers, who may have been influenced by reports of continued slow demand for cotton goods. Buying became a little more active at the decline to 20.50 for July and 20.47 for December, however, and the market steadied up on apprehensions that the weather in the South might become unsettled over the week-end.

This belief appeared to be based partly upon reports of a low barometer over Brownsville, Texas, which some thought might work along the Texas coast and into the eastern belt. Covering became quite active on the bulge, which extended to 20.71 for July and 20.66 for December, or about 5 to 10 points above yesterday's closing quotations, but demand tapered off at these figures, and a good part of the advance was lost in late trading. Some traders thought they saw indications for showers in the belt early next week if not over Sunday although such views found little encouragement in the official forecast calling for partly cloudy weather in the eastern belt and generally fair in the west, except for unsettled weather in southeast portions of Louisiana this afternoon.

The amount of cotton on ship board awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 99,756 bales against 115,271 last year.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, May 26. (AP)—There was little incentive for activity in the cotton market today with Liverpool closed for the Whitsuntide holidays and trading in Wall street suspended while brokers catch up with their accounts. The principal business of the abbreviated session was the evening up of commitments for over the week-end.

Prices opened at a decline of 7 points on the favorable weather outlook, but rallied on covering. October sold off to 20.16, down 7 points at the opening, rallied 18 points and

TAX BILL TO LOWER DELIVERED PRICES CARS, BOYLE AVERS

Repeal of the automobile tax included in the tax reduction bill passed last Monday by the United States senate which was concurred in by the house Saturday, will reduce the tax on motor cars on a scale depending on the manufactured cost of the auto, it was pointed out Saturday by James Boyle, secretary-manager of the Wichita Falls Valley Auto club, which is affiliated with the American Automobile association.

Mr. Boyle said that it was considered nearly a certainty that President Coolidge would sign the measure.

The tax on cars in the $875 class is approximately $18.50 and on those in the $1800 class the tax is about $36.50, while in the $2000 class it is $41, Mr. Boyle said.

"Repeal of the tax will not affect the list prices quoted at the factory, but it will reduce the delivered price, as the tax has always been paid by the purchaser," Mr. Boyle said. "The tax, which is now figured on a basis of three per cent on the manufacturer's cost, was passed in 1918 as a war measure. Originally the tax was 5 per cent, but it was reduced in 1926."

Mr. Boyle predicted that an improvement in the automobile business would result from the repeal of this tax. He further said that the A. A. A. has worked untiringly for its repeal.

Fair Directors Will Meet Next Tuesday Evening

Final decision on whether a 1928 Texas-Oklahoma fair will be held here next fall is expected to be reached next Tuesday night when directors of the fair meet in the directors' rooms of the chamber of commerce, it was announced Saturday by R. E. Shepherd, secretary-manager of the fair association. The meeting is scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m.

If it is decided that a fair is to be held next fall preliminary plans for the exposition are expected to be formed at the meeting.

Senators Hear Heflin's Daily Raid on Smith

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—Another attack on Governor Smith of New York and the "Roman Catholic political machine" was made today by Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama.

The Alabaman declared that "the Catholics of the entire earth are united in support of the Smith candidacy" and added that the ambition of those affiliated with that religion is to rule the world.

He repeated that he is marked for assassination because of his attacks on the political aspirations of Catholics and read a letter from a Long Island, N. Y., man who said that Heflin would be murdered within the next two weeks.

The senator renewed his charges that "the Roman flag" was flown above the Stars and Stripes on navy ships; that "the Roman cross and rosary" was printed on dollar bills, and that "a Jesuit in this city" had suggested putting "the cardinal" colors in the president's room near the senate chamber. The last reference was to the dark red curtains on the windows of the room.

"ACE" OF FILM PILOTS GAMBLES WITH DEATH

HOLLYWOOD, Calif, May 26. (INS)—Al Wilson, 31, "ace" of motion picture stunt aviators, fought the air battle of his life today—a battle with death—and won.

He stuck with his ship when the propeller came off 4500 feet above Hollywood, went winding and twisting and somersaulting downward and escaped with only slight injuries after being thrown out of the plane with his parachute at 800 feet altitude.

WOMEN TO CONDUCT MEMBERSHIP DRIVE BEHALF AUTO CLUB

Members of the Business and Professional Womens' club of this city will launch a membership drive on June 1 for the Wichita Valley Auto club, affiliated with the American Automobile association, according to an announcement Saturday by James Boyle, secretary-manager of the club.

Plans for the drive were formulated at a meeting of the board of directors of the women's club and representatives of the auto club held last week in the Y. W. C. A. rooms.

The women will place what proceeds they receive from the drive in their building fund, Mr. Boyle explained.

The drive is scheduled to continue through June 15.

Term in Prison Credentials for 'Red' Delegates

NEW YORK, May 26. (AP)—Sixty per cent of the 276 delegates to the national nominating convention of the workers (communist) party of America have been in jail at least once for labor and communist activities, it was reported by the credentials committee at the first business session of the convention.

Jack Stachel, chairman of the committee, said many of them had been in jail five or more times.

James P. Cannon of Iowa was elected chairman of the convention for the day.

"We do not enter the election in the sense of a reformist party," he said. "The election period gives us exceptional opportunity to carry on revolutionary propaganda. We must take full advantage of that and work toward a soviet government of America."

Mr. and Mrs. Hart were in charge of the stew.

It is planned to make the event an annual one for former Hopkins county residents here.

LABOR BUREAU SECURES WORK FOR 50 PAST WEEK

The chamber of commerce employment bureau secured work for 50 of the 59 persons who applied for jobs during the past week, according to the regular weekly report issued Saturday by Miss Fern Sides, secretary of the bureau.

Thirty of the 59 applicants were men and 29 were women. The applicants reported they had 76 dependants.

The past week's report of the bureau revealed that work was secured for more persons than during any other one week since the establishmept of the bureau.

BODY OF CELL SUICIDE IDENTIFIED AS TEXAN

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 26. (AP) The body of a man who hanged himself in the city jail yesterday was identified today as that of John William Price Jr., 26, Ranger, Texas. Identification was made by his brother-in-law, Thomas Workman of Riverside.

The coroner announced that he was unable to uncover any logical motive for the suicide, but detectives judging from his actions expressed the opinion that he might have been wanted for some crime and feared to face the charge.

NINTH VICTIM OF MINE BLAST DIES IN HOSPITAL

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., May 26. (AP)—The death toll as a result of the explosion in the Conyngham shaft of the Hudson Coal company yesterday stood at nine today when Michael Popovich, 33, died in a hospital. Eight miners met instant death when a pocket of gas exploded. Five others are still in a serious condition.

LUCEY URGES CUTTING OF WEEDS TO ASSIST FIGHT AGAINST MOSQUITOES HERE

With the arrival of warmer weather the annoyance from mosquitoes will soon start unless citizens take the proper precautions in cutting all weed patches and draining all water holes, Dr. L. I. Lucey, director of the Wichita Falls city sanitary department, said Saturday.

There are a great number of weed patches in various sections of the city which should be cut at once, for these allow an excellent breeding place for the mosquitoes, Dr. Lucey said. This is likewise true of the small water hole, he continued, and for that reason all should be drained immediately.

Keep Your Will Up to Date

You can change it as often as you wish. In fact, it is most important to keep your will up to date in every respect.

The birth or death of an heir, re-marriage, the wisdom of bequeathing fixed income rather than a round sum to certain beneficiaries—these and other events and reasons often make the alteration of an existing will a kindness as well as a duty.

Also, it is often advisable to change the executor or trustee of a will. The man you named may now be too old, or have moved out of town, or lack the good business judgment you once thought he had.

The substitution of this institution would modernize your will, and insure the correct, faithful carrying out of your wishes.

Many advantages to your heirs can be brought about by making this change. We shall be glad to go into details in a personal talk with you—come in when you are in our neighborhood.

THEY WILL DO IT

In the past several months we have closely observed fifteen families who had been renters but who are now owning their homes through this building and loan association. Inquiry and observation develops that each and all of them are more satisfied and are enjoying life more than they ever have before. The ladies take a personal pride in their homes; the men work in the yard early in the morning and late in the afternoon planting flowers and grass and trees. They have something to be proud of, a home that they own. No landlord to boss them around or continually looking to see if their children are hurting HIS property. No, sir! There is no more of that. They own a piece of this world. It may only be 50 feet wide and 150 feet long but it goes clear through this earth. Any renter who would talk with any of these fifteen people would start owning a home through this great institution of thrift and home ownership. Own your home!

Valley Fern Lowry to Be Wed June 3; Miss Virginia Smith's Wedding Announced at Party

Miss Frances Wilson, assisted by Mrs. M. J. Lowry, entertained a group of friends at the home of Miss Wilson on Giddings Friday evening when announcement of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Valley Fern Lowry and Norman S. D'Olive was made. The ceremony is to take place at the home of the bride-elect June 3.

Cut flowers and rosebuds in pink and white were used in the decorations. Tables were arranged for "42." Following the games an ice course was served, and plate favors, miniature brides and bridegrooms, were engraved with the words, Valley Vern-Norman, June 3, 1928."

Miss Lowry was presented a wedding book, and the names of those attending the party registered as follows: Misses Mary Helen Perkins of Petrolia, Lucile Campbell, Phyllis Clayton, Winnie Foster, Ina Belle Perkins of Petrolia, Naomi Howell, Frances Wilson; Mesdames J. A. Lowry, mother of the bride-to-be; J. C. Dufo of Roswell, N. M.; L. P. Walker of Waxahachie; Walter E. Durrett, Nashville, Tenn; Messrs. Dewitt Yost, George W. Thorburn Jr., Ernest R. Highfill, R. M. Lowry, H. R. Honaker, Joe Lowry, Wilbur Kent, Claude E. Allen, Glenn Apple; Messrs. and Mesdames W. H. Perkins of Petrolia, J. W. Thorne, Harry Palmer, M. J. Lowry, John McIntyre, Alfred Kass, M. P. Albritton, Burt Lowry, R. W. H. McCulloch, G. W. Thorburn, Henry Moore Evans, J. H. Rudy.

Mrs. Snyder Hostess

Announcing the marriage of her sister, Miss Virginia Smith, and Horace Holden of Fort Worth, which took place secretly last December, Mrs. Harley Snyder entertained with a luncheon and surprise shower at Weeks park club Thursday afternoon, with special guests including college and high school friends of Mrs. Holden, who finished high school and junior college in Wichita Falls.

The club rooms were attractively decorated in spring flowers and rose buds carrying out a color scheme of pink and white. The dining table was adorned with rosebuds in the chosen colors.

A musical program was given with Mrs. J. H. Crouch, Misses Ruth Lucile Crouch and Ruth Lucile Snyder giving a group of piano and violin numbers.

A series of games were played with Misses Phyllis Creighton and Josephine Rutherford directing. A treasure hunt began, and in a novel manner, the honoree was led to find the lovely gifts from many friends.

Covers were laid for Misses Josephine Russell, Gladys Mackechney, Phyllis Creighton, Mabelle and Virginia Moore, Margaret McPherson, Eleanor Fleming, Ruth Lucile Crouch, Ruth Lucile Snyder; Mesdames J. H. Crouch, Stephens, Vern Vincent, Elizabeth Lunn of Olney, S. P. Jones, Paul Barnett, P. B. Curd, Sidney Gaines, Allybelle Eichelberger; Misses Mary Snyder of Alenreed, Juanita Alexander of Electra, and Mesdames Bagwell, Ratcliff, Will Alexander, Will Wofford, R. E. Weller, R. N. Richardson, all of Electra; Mr. and Mrs. Holden of Fort Worth, and the hostess.

HUEY SCHOOL OFFICERS GUESTS AT LUNCHEON

Teachers of the Huey school were guests of honor at luncheon Friday given by officers of the P.-T. A. Spring flowers were used in the decorations and a four course menu was served.

Mrs. W. T. Wade, president of the P.-T. A., gave a talk, and Miss Esther Berry, principal of the school, expressed appreciation of the work the mothers have accomplished during the year.

Covers were laid for Misses Esther Berry, Rosa Lee Thompson, Macie McClure, Fay Bolin, Lora Arbuckle, Ruth Cullin, Roberta Alexander, and Mesdames J. T. Ryle Jr., Frazer, J. E. Baxter, George Holstead, J. B. Scarborough, Solon Humphries, J. O. Vermillion, Paul Teague, B. L. Robinson, Vittitoe and F. E. Arbuckle.

Stewart-Puckett Wedding to Take Place on July 10

Announcing the engagement and approaching wedding of Miss Minerva Puckett and Olin Stewart of Carlsbad, N. M., which is to take place July 10, Mrs. A. R. Watland entertained with a shower at her home, 303 Morning Side drive, with Miss Winnie Foster assisting.

Cut flowers were in profusion in the reception suite, and from the chandelier in the living room was suspended a large balloon. Little Frances Watland, representing Cupid, shot her arrow into the balloon, and the announcements were scattered to the guests.

At the sound of Lohengrin's wedding march, little Bernice Watland entered, dressed to represent the bridegroom, and Frances Hanks, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Hanks, dressed as a bride wearing a veil caught with orange blossoms. They brought with them a pink and white chariot loaded with beautiful gifts for the honorees.

A lovely ice course in pink and white, carrying out the wedding suggestions, was served to the guests who registered in the bride's book.

Mesdames J. B. Lawson, C. Dotson, Mike Jones, M. Meeks, R. D. Whallings, Clifford Jordon, W. F. Thurmon, E. B. Morris, J. E. Gilliam, B. Lindley, Simmons, A. R. Watland, Knowles, W. C. Jones, Prothro; Misses Maxine Tunnell, Lucile Dunlap, Ruby Kessler, Pansy Stanfil, Louise Gilliam, Winnie Foster, Lena Foster, Nell Morris, Myrtle Hurley, Frances G. Brooks, Ruth Putnam, Bernice and Frances Watland, Frances Hanks.

The bride-elect has been associated with the J. C. Penney company here for five years, and is well known in the business girls' circles of the city. Mr. Stewart is a business man of Carlsbad, where he has lived for several years.

CHARLOTTE SUTTON IS HOSTESS TO FRIENDS

Charlotte Sutton entertained the Jolly Friends club Thursday evening with a swimming party and picnic at Westmoreland. Those attending were Maxine Bryan, Cora Lee Morrow, Helen Jack, Ed Sutton and Kenton Wharton.

They were chaperoned by the mother of the hostess, and by Mrs. Wharton.

In the Pictures

Miss Mary Delaney and Miss Rose Marion Art, talented vocalists, were presented on a program of romantice music with a group of Miss Lois Parker's pupils at the Episcopal parish house Tuesday evening. Miss Delaney sang "Thou Art Like a Lovely Flower" by Schumann and "Ave Maria" by Schubert, and Miss Art sang "Hark, Hark the Lark" by Schubert, "Could My Songs With Birds be Vying" by Hahn and "Cradle Song" by Brahms.

Miss Charlotte Maer will be presented on the program of the Knickerbocker studio at the Forum clubhouse Tuesday evening, June 5, in a Spanish Fiesta. Miss Maer will appear in a solo dance number, "The Dance of the Stitcher." Iva Lee Eubanks and Frances Gross will also take part in the Spanish Fiesta program as court heralds.

Mrs. C. H. Aldrich will appear in recital Wednesday evening at the Zundelowitz school auditorium when Mrs. E. E. Fischer, instructor, will also present her Progressive Series Piano class.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER HONORS BRIDE-ELECT

Complimenting Miss Annette Humphries whose marriage to A. C. Carpenter will take place early in June, Mrs. Ernest Emmert and Mrs. Solon Humphries entertained with a miscellaneous shower Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. K. Emmert, 1809 Seventh street.

The gifts were presented in a clever manner on "The Rocky Road to Matrimony."

Refreshments carrying out a pink and white color scheme were served, and miniature pink parasols were plate favors.

Guests included Mesdames C. O. Quarnstrom, John Johnston, Homer Humphries, Nick Oechsner, C. E. Graham, W. R. Neal, Dan Kinnard, G. F. Allbright, R. M. Mahoney, C. A. Kaufman, G. E. Ford, J. E. Cochran, Lenly Humphries, Clint Humphries, A. L. Bryant, Alfred Friberg, J. J. Manley, W. W. Calhoun, M. R. Smith, R. W. McClure, W. E. Riner, W. N. Rawls, Riley Rawls, Charles Pfeifer, and the honoree.

Miss Bessie Stewart, principal of Austin school, will return this week to her home at Sherman.

FAY SKELTON HOSTESS AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

Celebrating her eleventh birthday, Fay Skelton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Skelton, entertained a group of friends at her home Friday afternoon. Games, contests and readings furnished an entertaining program.

Refreshments were served to Adene Woods, Rhea Woods, Dorothy and Helen King, Juanita Hollingsworth, Mildred King, Mary Hughey, Doris and Jane Frost, Theda Reynolds, Gertrude Leforce, W. A. Majors, W. T. and Grace Pursilly, Bettie Phillips, C. C. Majors, Albert Phillips, Dorothy Rogers, Jack Webb, Doris Perry, Bettie Jean King, Amy Ray Rowe and Frances Baker.

The hostess was assisted by Mesdames Skelton, J. S. Huey, B. E. Howell and Grady Frost. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Switzler, were also present.

Mrs. R. A. Dees, 1321 Woodrow street, accompanied by her brother, P. A. Jones, and son, Weldon Jones, of Chillicothe, left Thursday for Roswell, N. M., for an indefinite stay.

Visitors Named Party Honorees In Many Events

Among the numerous parties of the week have been a group honoring out-of-town guests, including Mrs. W. R. Gregg of Douglas, Ariz., Mrs. H. M. Branyon of Elk City, Okla., and Mrs. E. E. Friend of Parsons, Kan.

Mrs. H. W. Jaggers entertained Saturday afternoon at her home on Collins when six tables were arranged for "42." A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the decorations, table appointments and refreshment course.

The guests included Mesdames J. H. Vallee, C. N. Benham, Lelia Herndon, Bonnie Williams, W. J. Willis, C. S. Burnett, R. D. Lewis, W. G. Bentley, G. E. Stearns, W. M. Langford, G. N. Walker, L. Y. Lawrence, A. H. Stewart, J. H. Bradshaw, R. S. England, J. G. Kimbro, W. P. Walker, J. I. Burt, W. M. Brock, J. H. Fowler, Gregg, Branyon, Friend; Misses Lorena Gattis of Clarendon and Julia Alice Gardner of Meridian.

Thursday Party

Mrs. W. M. Langford and Mrs. J. I. Burt entertained at "42" Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Burt on Eleventh street, complimenting Mrs. W. R. Gregg of Douglas, Ariz., and Mrs. H. M. Branyon of Elk City, Okla.

In the games high score award was won by Mrs. G. N. Walker; second high prize by Mrs. A. H. Stewart, and lovely gifts were presented the guests of honor. A refreshment plate was served to the following:

Mesdames Branyon, Gregg, H. W. Jaggers, G. N. Walker, W. R. Niles, Roy Hagin, A. E. Miller, W. A. Jennings, A. H. Stewart, G. E. Stearns, J. H. Fowler, Norman Hagin, L. D. Townsend, R. D. Lewis, Jim Bradshaw, R. S. England and the hostesses.

Mrs. Hagin Hostess

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Roy Hagin was hostess to the visitors, and on Friday Mrs. Gregg and Mrs. Branyon were guests of honor at a dinner given by the ladies' auxiliary to the O. R. C. at the Odd Fellows hall.

Covers were laid for 20 members and the following guests: Mesdames Jacks, E. C. Dunham, J. C. Carr, Bingham, Frank Carter, O. R. Carter, R. S. England, W. M. Busbee, Branyon and Gregg.

PEGGY PIEDMONT Says

GRADUATES and more graduates! Parties galore of every known variety, sunrise breakfasts, swimming and bridge parties, dances and banquets. The week just ending has certainly been an eventful one for the schools and students. Not only have the graduates from the high school and junior college been in the limelight almost constantly for the past seven days, but the junior high and ward school children have also reveled in graduation parties and festivals. Do you know I've about come to the conclusion that Mr. Heinz must have had the graduates in mind with his 57 varieties, only ours are all sweet pickles, every last one of them.

SUCH a spring for entertaining we've never known, and conventions have come thick and fast. Last week we entertained hundreds of visitors when the district Lions club and the joint convention of the Retail Merchants association of Texas and the Associated Retail Credit Men of Texas and the Texas Retail Credit Bureaus was held here. Numbers of Lionesses came with their husbands for the district meeting, and all the clubhouses hereabouts were the scenes of luncheons and other affairs given for their entertainment.

AND we are not through yet with conventions. For beginning Tuesday we will entertain the twenty-first annual convention of the Graduate Nurses Association of Texas; also the League of Nursing Education; the Organization of Public Nursing; American Red Cross and the St. Barnabas Guild for Nurses, with headquarters at the Kemp hotel. It would seem that with all these nursing organizations bringing hundreds of trained medical people in our midst that it would be an opportune time for a seige of illness around here. But most likely, those attending would have no time for that sort of thing, for their conventions no doubt are like most others, not only a vehicle for instruction in a certain line of endeavor, but also furnishing an opportunity for a brief visit in other sections as well as the social features that usually prove delightfully refreshing. The social program for this convention includes luncheons, teas and banquets, with one event to be sponsored by the woman's auxiliary to the county medical society, with Mrs. W. L. Parker, chairman of arrangements.

AND then while all these conventions are going on at home, the week-end found numerous groups leaving for San Antonio to attend the biennial of the General Federation of Women's clubs. Among them were Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, president of the Woman's Forum; Mrs. C. W. Snider, Mrs. J. C. A. Guest, Mrs. E. W. Wade, Mrs. O. T. Goreline, Mrs. P. P. Langford and Elizabeth Langford, Mrs. Fred Barron, Mrs. Carrie Joline, Mrs. J. Y. Holbrook, Mrs. Claude Woods and daughter, Joline; Mrs. J. C. Berney, Mrs. A. H. Carrigan, Mrs. Guy Rogers, Mrs. J. C. Smedley and Catherine Rayzor, and the latter will take part on the Junior Forum program. Wichita Falls women plan to be in San Antonio before Monday evening to be ready for the Texas welcome. This will be in the form of a dinner

MRS. HARRIS TO ATTEND WEDDING IN WASHINGTON

Mrs. Ted Harris and children, Bobbie Dick and Ted Guinn, left Saturday for Washington, D. C., where they will attend the wedding of Mrs. Harris' sister, Miss Minnie Lee Williams, and Ray Wile, which is to take place June 7 at the First Methodist church in Washington.

Mrs. Harris is to be matron of honor at the wedding, and the twins will be the ring bearers.

Miss Williams is the daughter of Congressman Guinn Williams of Decatur. She is graduating June 6 from George Washington university, and her marriage to Mr. Wile, an architect of Washington, will take place the next day.

Before returning home, Mrs. Harris will visit in South Carolina, and will spend the month of August in the mountains at the Harris cabin near Asheville, N. C., and Mr. Harris will join his family there.

Approaching Marriage of Miss Woolsey Announced at Lovely Bridge Party Friday Evening

Announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Verta Woolsey and Neal Huffaker, to take place in Hillsboro, home of the bride-elect, June 10, Mrs. C. J. Brannan entertained at bridge at her home Friday evening. Pastel shades were featured in the decorations and sweetpeas were used profusely. Seven tables were arranged for the games.

Clifford Shives won the high score favor among the men, and Miss Woolsey was fortunate among the women. She was also remembered with a dainty hand-made towel, a gift from the hostess.

An ice course, with individual heart-shaped cakes topped with wedding rings, from which was suspended the announcement, was served.

Besides Miss Woolsey and Mr. Huffaker, those attending included Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Lynch, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reaser, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Kenley, Dr. Fleeta Woolsey, Dr. B. C. Cammack, Dr. J. A. Johnson, Misses Mabel Cowan, Angie Noe, Iya Willis, Hazel Noe, Lemuel White, Bernice Apple, Martha Maude Apple, Bert Holt, Agnes Ragsdale, and Messrs. Trent Hill, Prentice Graham, Clyde Brannan, Tommy Clark of Iowa Park, Waldo Karrenbrock, Gothard and Clifford Shives.

Mrs. Lynch Hostess

Mrs. T. C. Lynch was hostess Saturday afternoon at her home, complimenting Miss Woolsey with a miscellaneous shower. Spring flowers in the pastel shades were used in the decorations, and the gifts were presented by Thomas Lynch Jr., and Bettye Jane Lynch, children of the hostess, who distributed them from a decorated miniature express wagon.

The dining room table was especially lovely with a centerpiece of sweetpeas surrounded by orchid tapers in silver holders.

Refreshments were served to the honoree and to her sister, Dr. Fleeta Woolsey, and Mesdames Fred Reaser, M. A. Bundy, C. J. Brannan, Henry Shaw, Hagan, Nate Ensor and Misses Gladys McCloud, Lois McGaughey, Lemuel White, Carrie Smith, Bert Holt, Agnes Ragsdale, Angie Noe and Hazel Noe.

SAM HOUSTON CLASS GUESTS AT LAWN PARTY

Edna Frances Bevers entertained the graduates of Sam Houston school, students of Miss Gladys McCloud's room, with a lawn party at her home Thursday evening.

Games were enjoyed and refreshments were served to the following: Elizabeth Morgan, Linnie Mae Badgett, Otera Childress, Earline Wall, Willadene Dow, Annice Palmer, Mary Doss, Evelyn Riley, Ila Pearl Robbins, Edna Frances Bevers, Kearl ten Brink, Wilton Tarver, Joe Clark Moody, James Smithson, Roy Procker, Albert Mueller, Herman Clark, Ray Carlisle, Louie West, Elmer Lee Fondern; others besides the class included C. F. Hodges, Edna Mae, Lura Gale and Peggy June Shoop, Helen Sue and Sonnie Bevers, Roberta Corbin, Mesdames Harry ten Brink, C. H. Hodges, Edna Power, F. E. Shoop, T. J. Bevers, Miss Sue Power.

MRS. ROSS HONORS VISITOR AT LUNCHEON

Complimenting Miss Verna Walker of Waxahachie, who has been a member of the Iowa Park high school teachers' staff, and who is leaving Sunday for her home, Mrs. O. H. K. Ross entertained at luncheon Thursday.

Spring flowers and potted plants were used in the decorations and a four-course menu was served.

Covers were laid for the honoree and for Mesdames George Neeman, Ed Northup of Abilene, Clark Watkins, Homer Blalock, W. H. Bagby, Charles J. Millikan and Misses Evelyn Bagby and Master Keith Blalock.

Diplomats Read Society Columns In Washington; Cupid Busy There Same as Elsewhere; Many Parties

WASHINGTON, May 26. (AP)—Scarlet geraniums in long white boxes, with trim boxwood trees sitting in between, border the top of the balustrade surmounting the east and west wings of the White House and down near the north gates where thousands of tourists may see them are beds of white hollyhocks of the fine old kitchen-garden variety.

During the winter months the trim little boxwood trees are replaced with small cedars which better withstand the rugged weather in such exposed places as the top stone terraces. Mrs. Coolidge orders all such changes as this and at the south front of the house are gardens filled with blooming plants like the hollyhock, phlox, sweet pinks and other flowers such as adorned colonial gardens.

The rose beds near the president's office are giving up their burden of blossoms, and what with flowers, trees, shrubbery, dogs, cats, Rebecca, the racoon, and all of Mrs. Coolidge's pet birds there is a domestic atmosphere about the place that may well keep the president and his family quite content there well into June.

Capital society is engaging in an abundance of entertaining even though the parties have been rained out on almost every occasion. There are dinner parties, porch parties and other interesting events for the socially inclined.

Wives of senators and representatives are constantly dining at the capitol in the senate or rouse restaurant.

Mrs. John B. Henderson, formerly of Missouri, had two ambassadors dining with her Wednesday when she gave one of her famous vegetarian dinners. The ambassador of Peru, Dr. Hernan Velarde, and the ambassador of France, M. Paul Claudel, the minister of China and Mme. Sze, the minister of Austria and Mme. Prochnik and Brig. Gen. George A. L. Dumont, military attache of the French embassy, M. Feilke A. Espil, and charge d' affaires of Argentina, were there to represent the diplomatic corps. Representative and Mrs. Henry R. Rathbone and Representative Edward E. Denison of Illinois were also in the company as were Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont and others.

A visit to her home at St. Paul, Minn., was an exceedingly welcome event, it was unheralded, at least to any great extent. Where diplomats are concerned, as they are about the coming and going of the secretary of state and Mrs. Kellogg, one needs must be quite particular in announcing the return of either of them. Last season when Mrs. Kellogg paid a visit to St. Paul, her return was prematurely announced, with the result that diplomats who read the society columns—and all of them do—immediately called to leave cards and many of them sent flowers. Her real return passed without any such heralding.

Two of the largest weddings of early June in the capital fall on Saturday, June 2, that of Miss Carolyn Chamberlain, daughter of Major General and Mrs. Chamberlain to Mr. Frederick Moffat Bradley, of Washington, and that of Miss Caroline Thom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran Thom, to Major Robert Legrow Walsh, air corps, U. S. A.

The wedding of Miss Chamberlain interests hundreds of service folk in all parts of the country, and will take place at 5 o'clock in quaint old St. John's Episcopal church on Lafayette square with the Rev. Dr. Robert Johnston, officiating. Miss Chamberlain will have to attend her, Miss Helen Piere, of Philadelphia, maid of honor, and as maids, Miss Mary Bradley, sister of the bridegroom-elect, Miss Louise Fitzhugh, and Miss Elizabeth Armstrong of Hampton, Va. Mr. Fontaine Bradley will be best man for his brother. A small reception at the home of General and Mrs. Chamberlain will follow the church ceremony.

The wedding of Miss Thom also will have its military air, as Major Walsh will be attended by brother officers. The wedding will take place at noon, June 2, in St. Matthew's church, and a wedding breakfast in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thom will follow. Major Walsh is stationed at Fort Leavenworth and will take his bride there to live.

The Potomac river at Washington, bordered on one side by Potomac park and on the other by the hills of Virginia, offers special advantages for entertaining to those having yachts, and while the secretary of the navy and Mrs. Wilbur have the privilege of using the Sylph, for long the yacht for presidents, and may entertain quite large parties, other boats on the river offer similar advantages.

Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, wife of Maj. Gen. Summerall, U. S. A., chief of staff, and other army and navy women entertain on smaller boats.

Both the president and Mrs. Coolidge are fond of the water trips on the Mayflower and it is doubtful if any other president ever enjoyed the yacht as much. It is an attractive ship in all its furnishings, the very gayest of cretonnes being used for curtains and to cover the furniture.

for the general federation executive board, with Mrs. Henry Drought, Texas biennial chairman, in charge. One thousand guests are expected to attend this dinner in the crystal ballroom of the Gunter hotel. Mrs. F. M. Patton of Benjamin, sister of Mrs. W. M. Moore on Crestway, who is well known here, has been appointed doorkeeper of the biennial from the first district, Texas Federation of Women's clubs. And another sister of a Wichita Falls woman to receive honors in connection with the biennial is Mrs. Joe Benton of Nocona, sister of Mrs. Grover C. Johnson, who was appointed delegate at large by Mrs. W. R. Potter, state president, Texas Federation of Women's clubs. Mrs. Benton was to have had under her special care a delegate from Salt Lake City, but on account of illness, she will not be able to keep her appointment, much to her own disappointment and also that of her friends.

AN interesting feature of the biennial will be the first army review for women ever arranged at Fort Sam Houston. This will be a part of the "play day" program, when delegates to the biennial will put aside their official duties and take part in the entertainment provided for them. The review and all the plans for the day of entertainment will be characteristic of the locality and state history. For San Antonio has always been a military center; first an outpost in the wilderness, then a strategic point in every war that has run across the land. Kaleidoscopic, almost, has been the shifting of national armies across it. After the review, the visitors will be taken for a sightseeing trip around the city, to the Alamo and the four missions, which the Texas Federation News describes as like gray reminders of a past tradition, along the shaded "loop" south of town. The noonday meal on "play day" will be served under the pecan trees beside the San Antonio river, and will be reminiscent of the days when the old trail drivers camped in the open and barbecued their beef over the open coals. Present members of the Old Trail Drivers association will be in charge of the affair, and it will be carried out true to the old tradition, even to the cowboy songs and negro spirituals which were sung during meals.

I CAN'T see how a letter without the mention of a bride in it could possibly be complete, so before writing my last line I will tell you a little bit of gossip about the return home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Riesen. Mrs. Riesen you will remember as Miss Florence Datson. Their return has already been found out by their friends, and a very lovely affair has been given for them. Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bailes were perhaps the first hosts complimenting the wedding party at an exceptionally attractive dinner. A color scheme of pink, orchid and silver was used in the table decorations, and Mr. and Mrs. Riesen were remembered with a lovely gift. Covers were laid for the bridal couple, and for Mrs. Fred T. Datson, mother of the bride; Miss Gertrude Datson, her sister and maid of honor at the wedding; Russell Kolp, Mr. Riesen's best man, and Mr. and Mrs. Bailes.

WELL, having traveled from Wichita Falls to San Antonio, and covered my territory from graduates to brides, I will cease my wanderings and bid you not adieu, but good morning—

LOYAL WOMEN'S CLASS IN SOCIAL SESSION

Mrs. J. R. Kolb, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Ira Miks, entertained the Loyal Women's class of the Grace Methodist Sunday school Thursday afternoon in a social meeting at Mrs. Kolb's home on McGregor street.

Mrs. C. B. Jeter, teacher, presided at the business session.

A short program included two readings, "Aunt Jane" and "You're My Wife," by Mrs. B. B. Greever; readings, "On the Beach," and a poem, "Comfort," by Mrs. Thomas Holcomb. Games of bunco were played during the afternoon.

A refrshment plate was served to Mesdames C. B. Earle, George Friberg, G. W. Lobaugh, C. R. Jackson, J. B. McDowell, J. O. Bradshaw, J. C. Donaldson, D. A. Allen, O. L. Gibbs, J. B. Handy, C. B. Jeter, A. Gillespie, W. W. Sherrill, C. O. Simmons, T. Z. Lutz, A. F. White, R. W. Lowe, H. J. Hill, Mary Mayo, L. E. Miller, Thomas Holcomb, B. B. Greever, R. W. Russell.

More than 280,000,000 gallons of milk are conveyed annually by British railways.

Nothing? Well, maybe not, but from the child's point of view this dish of Colvert's delicious ice cream should be as tall as he is. That's how well children, and grown-ups too for that matter, like Colvert's ice cream. Wholesome, delicious and refreshing. Ask your neighborhood dealer for Colvert's.

A FEW cents here and a few cents thrown away there in spoiled or soured food is much more expensive than buying ice. Ice which keeps food sweet and fresh for the children. Cracked ice broken from large clear cakes has no substitute for cooling summer drinks. The friendly service of the Wichita Ice company covers the city. The drivers of the red, white and blue wagons of the Wichita Ice company will bring a coupon book to your door, a Wichita ice coupon book which is both a convenience and a savings. Ice phone 3101.

WHY WORRY your whole vacation through about your money, wondering where you left it or if you will be hijacked for it. Use Traveler's Checks from the Wichita State Bank and Trust company. They add freedom to your vacation.

No one can cash them but you and yet you will never be embarrassed by having a bank refuse to cash your personal check because you are not known in that particular town. Any bank anywhere, at home or abroad will cash your Traveler's check.

INVITE your friends over for the Maxwell House radio hour the evening of May 31 and let them enjoy the Gene Austin program which is the big feature on the air for that evening. This chain program will be sent out through 36 stations.

Gene sings his new record, "In My Bouquet of Memories." Also "Girl of My Dreams," "Ramona," "Tomorrow," "So Tired." Doesn't that program sound interesting?

Nunn Electric company, 909 Scott, carries a complete line of Gene Austin records.

Also they have Art Gilham's new record which many consider his best release. Columbia 1354-D, "I Found You Out When I Found You In" "The Hours I Spent With You."

Nunn Electric has Victor Herbert selections complete in one album. This is the collection you heard over the radio last Thursday.

Nunn Electric delivers. Phone 8118.

MODISH hats for travel and vacation. Joza Dickson, 714 Indiana.

MAJESTIC

NEXT week's Majestic attraction brings Billy Dove in "The Heart of a Follies Girl." It gives first inside story of show-girl romance. The picture scores highly on its display of feminine charm.

Mildred Harris and a bevy of gorgeous chorus beauties give background for all-beautiful production. Larry Kent has star male role. Thrills, drama, romance blended in "The Heart of a Follies Girl."

A SPECIAL worthy of mention is the remarkable offer Texas Electric Service company is having on beautiful Corona electric toasters. This beautiful toaster is made by the Universal people and will give satisfaction in every respect. Along with the toaster goes a 7-piece sandwich service set which consists of 6 plates and a large platter. Both for $7.95. Now, didn't I tell you it was a bargain

Toasted sandwiches are quite popular and any hostess would be proud to prepare and serve her late supper sandwiches with this combination set. The beautiful nickel plated toaster and the gay dishes with a floral design would add jest to any supper party and enhance the attractiveness of your home.

Texas Electric Service company's liberal time payment terms—$1.95 down and balance monthly on your bill. Shop early for the time is limited.

Now VACATION TIME

VACATION time means travel time. Travel time means well cleaned and pressed togs for travel. De Luxe Cleaners and Dyers can groom you for your vacation trip. Phone 7174.

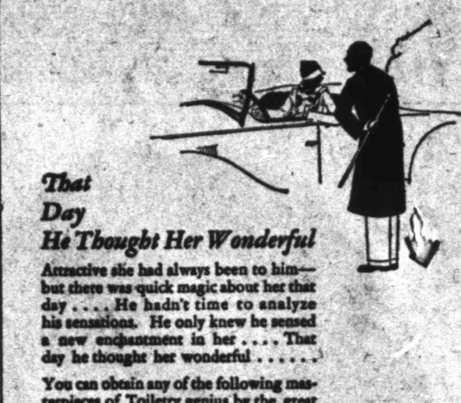

VACATION time is just around the corner calling to us. Your thoughts, that is if they are at all similar to mine, are straying to travel, strenuous tennis games with your favorite racket, fishing, golfing, hiking, horseback riding, and a thousand and one things that you love to do but seldom have time for except during vacation time.

Whether you choose a resort at the beach or a cabin in the mountains for your vacation there is some expense attached to it. A vacation without expense is certainly a thing of the past. All the relatives you used to could spend endless free days with in the summer have come to town. If you go dude ranching it costs.

It certainly is a fine feeling when the boss walks in and says, "when do you want your vacation?" to know that you have money laid aside in a special vacation fund at the North Texas Building and Loan association to take it when and where you please. Perhaps a little over so that you won't be having to worry all the time you are gone about what you are going to do when you come home.

The smallest savings account is welcome at the North Texas Building and Loan association, 823 Scott. Insure your vacation with a savings account there.

VARSITY NEWS

By GLADYS WHITLEY

Small groups have held final gatherings for the year before the seniors go out from the school. The last German of the year was held at the K. C. hall last week-end. At that time the Cactus beauties were introduced to those who attended the dance. Among them were Elizabeth Couper of Wichita Falls; member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Other beauties were Mary Louise Lowe of De Leon, pledge of Pi Beta Phi sorority; Elizabeth Russell of Fort Worth, pledge of Zeta Tau Alpha; Mable West of Uvalde, pledge of Pi Beta Phi; Marjorie Neeley of Amarillo, member of Zeta Tau Alpha, and Lucille Tucker of Dallas, member of Pi Beta Phi.

Senior girls in the university were entertained with an elaborate banquet given by the Y. W. C. A. here recently. A motif of airplanes was carried out as the decoration scheme for the evening. Air messages to the guests were delivered by miniature air mail planes which contained the program of the evening. Rachel Sumners delivered the principal toast of the evening, which was to the "Senior Flight." Other parts of the program were "Cockpit—Truth," by Oma Willoughby; "Propeller—Ambition," by Nancy Pettus; "Engine—Strength," by Martha Henderson; "Wings—Faith," by Frances Foster; "Guy Wires—Friendship," by Ezra Mae Fudge; "Landing Gear—Conviction," by Arma Hander; "Body—Interests," by LaVerne Nowotny; "Rudder—Honor," by Allie Smith; "Tail—Dreams," by Jean Granger; "Periscope—Vision," by Rosalie Agress; and "Joy Stick—Love," by Mary Margaret Taylor.

Kappa Alpha Thetas entertained with a tea here this week in honor of their friends and to celebrate the opening of their new home on Wichita street, erected this year and is done in the style of a mixed Italian and Spanish architecture.

The Rev. Dan E. Grieder, former pastor of the Presbyterian church at Wichita Falls, and Mrs. Grieder, upon moving to Austin to become the new pastor of the First Presbyterian church here, extended an invitation to all students who are from Wichita Falls to visit them in their new home at 4204 Speedway.

Betty Green of Bowie presided at the Women's Athletic association "T" banquet, which was held in the woman's gym recently. Miss Green, student in the law school and president of W. A. A., gave out the awards to the girls in the organization doing the greatest amount of work in sports during this long session.

For the first time in 10 years the annual social event of years ago, the senior prom, will again be staged. Theo Weiss, president of the academs, and Henry Land, president of the engineers, will lead the grand march and cotillion, respectively.

Students attending the geology camp for the university this summer will meet in Bowie, Montague county, June 11. The camp will last 12 weeks, and during that time students will take work in advanced geology. Six hours credit can be gained by attending the camp during the entire session. Fred M. Bullard, associate professor of geology and mineralogy, will be in charge of the camp, and Robert H. Cuyler and Selwyn O. Burford will be instructors. Only 20 advanced students from the 50 or 60 applicants chosen according to scholarship and standing will be taken on the camp.

Of the 600 men and women on the faculty of the university, 190 or 36 per cent hold one or more degrees from the University of Texas. Five faculty members hold three degrees from this university.

Meredith Hopkins, second baseman, was chosen this week to captain the Longhorn baseball nine through the 1929 season.

Wesley Hodges of Breckenridge, Charles S. Bell of Brownwood, and James Landon Neal of Huntsville have been chosen by George W. Cottingham from among the university men studying journalism to work on the Houston Chronicle during the Democratic national convention in Houston, according to W. D. Hornaday, director of publicity in the university.

Dr. Frederick Eby, director of the summer session, has announced that facilities for advanced and graduate study are attracting students and teachers from other states for summer work here.

E. C. H. Bantel, chairman of the commencement committee, has urged that all schools of the university conform to the custom of wearing cap and gowns in the commencement exercises. At meetings of the various classes the engineers agreed to wear the regalia with the distinguishing mark of an orange tassel on their caps; the students of the business administration school voted to retain the wearing of white suits and dresses as distinguishing regalia; and the seniors of the school of law also refused to wear the cap and gowns, preferring to retain their custom of wearing light and dark suits and sunflowers in their lapels.

Mrs. Molly Conner Cook and Mrs. Joe Gilbert entertained with a bridge party honoring the members of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary and professional journalistic fraternity for women, at the home of Mrs. Gilbert this week. These two Austin women were chosen as associate members of the national organization of Theta Sigma Phi this spring.

Stacks in the new power house smoked for the first time this week when tests were made on the machinery and boilers in the new plant before the machinery was turned on for full time work for the school.

The Girls' Glee club of the varsity appeared in its final program of the year when "In India," an operetta, was presented by members of that group in the Austin High school auditorium here.

Beta Alpha Psi, national honorary professional accounting fraternity, elected Henry Slaivk, president; Carl Knape, vice president; and Hardy Blanton, secretary, at a recent meeting of the group here.

Horseback riding will be offered to girls of the university next year, according to directors of the women's physical training work in the varsity. A West Texas girl, Helen Hall, will be the instructor in this course. Miss Hall lives in San Angelo. During this summer she is going to teach riding in a girls' camp in Colorado.

Mrs. Coral Tullis left the university this week for Quanah to be with her mother, who is seriously ill. She will return this week-end.

MISS SAMMONS WILL PRESENT PIANO PUPILS

Miss Florence Sammons will present a group of piano pupils in recital at the Episcopal parish house Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock, and on Friday evening Miss Sammons will present Mary Louise Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Clark, in a piano recital at the parish house at the same hour.

Miss Clark will present a varied program of numbers from such noted composers as Beethoven, Chopin, Godowsky, Schutt, Sibelius, as well as a few modern composers, including James Francis Cooke and Charles Seebeock, Friday evening, June 1. She will be assisted by Bulah Gardner Ransom, reader.

BI-CULTURE CLUB HAS SPRING LUNCHEON

Members of the Bi-Culture club enjoyed a spring luncheon at the Angelina Tea rooms Thursday, honoring Mrs. Saul Lebenson who is leaving soon for Europe. Decorations of larkspur and roses were used and corsages of the blossoms formed the plate favors. Place cards were decorated with the maps of various European countries.

Mrs. Ben Newman acted as toastmistress and gave a toast to the guest of honor. Mrs. S. J. Schwab gave the invocation and Mrs. Sam Egger read a farce paper on "Culture." Mrs. Leo Goldstucker talked on "The Meeting I Enjoyed Most and Why," and Mrs. Louis Franklin talked on "Gossip." Mrs. Sam Quicksilver gave a take-off talk on Mrs. Lebenson, who was presented an autograph book from the club. Mrs. J. A. Ginsburg made the presentation after which Mrs. Eugene Liepold gave the benediction.

Following the entertainment program, the regular club program was given when Mrs. Max Shain reviewed the short stories, "The Necklace" and "A Piece of String," by de Maupassant.

Covers were laid for Mesdames Saul Lebenson, Liepold, Ginsburg, Franklin, Sam Kruger, Sam Egger, Schwab, Quicksilver, Lieberman of Frederick, Okla.; Pase of Oklahoma City, Greenstein of Dallas, Jake Cohen and Louis Pink.

What Hard Times Mean to Housekeeping Women—By Kathleen Norris

To the women of Europe, the way American women spend money is one of the wonders of the world. It amazes them, dazzles them, shocks them, and seems to them stupid and vulgar.

A Frenchwoman, for example, not only spends her money carefully and thriftily, but she enjoys care and thrift. It is a sort of game, with her, to make the precious francs go as far as they can. She sees nothing enviable in the American woman's fashion of throwing them all over the place.

One Frenchwoman I know in Paris has a husband who receives a salary of two thousand francs a month. To us this would be $80. She has one child, a boy of 5, and they live in a three-room apartment, on a court. The husband is a gentleman, employed in a bank, and they do not regard themselves as poor.

They pay $8 in rent, and save about $20 a month. On the remainder they live well, and—with that genius the French have for enjoyment, they live happily. They have a son, a cat and a bird; they sally forth once a week to the nearest "brasserie" and sit at the little tables on the sidewalk, and enjoy their dinner, and watch the world go by.

This woman regards the reckless spending of money as merely an evidence of dullness. "Those stupid American women," she says peacefully, "they pay the taxi-drivers more than twice the fare, they order food they cannot eat. Their minds are disorderly!"

It was this last phrase that struck me. Financially, I really do believe that the mind of the average Amerivan woman on a small income is disorderly.

The mind of the Frenchwoman, or the German woman, on the contrary, is completely organized. So much money to spend, and so much to get with it, and the whole big city with its bargains and opportunities for her market, and herself the zestful manipulator of the game.

She loves it. She loves to limit the very kettle of hot water that washes her dishes; she melts down ends of soap, she scrapes plates. This seems to her to be her job, and she is right.

Scrimping and saving an counting pennies may not seem a very pretty business to the American woman, but the Frenchwoman regards it as preferable to dirt, discontent and disorder; she does not know what debt is. There is no such thing in the humbler homes of France. There is plenty of good soup and salad, bread and cheese and vegetables; she wears her clothes as long as they are whole and comfortable, and she walks forth in joyous interest to market every day, perfectly certain that she can solve her own problem once again.

To such a woman careless spending is an offense, and debt is the one unthinkable thing. She catches her breath with horror and pity at the mere idea of bills.

Even on her $80 a month, is she so pitiable? I don't think she is. I believe she has a sort of orderliness, and a sort of peace and content, in the back of her mind and body and soul, that is worth a good deal of our reckless extravagance.

We've been having "good times," in America. There is much talk of "national prosperity." The younger generation really doesn't know anything about hard times. But when I was a child we had hard times, and I remember vividly, to this day. Banks were closing, in the middle 'nineties, and big factories were turning away employees, by the thousand; whole industrial towns were empty and silent, and there was a long train of accompanying sickness and crime and all sorts of suffering. We had breadlines and uhemployment parades in 1895.

We may have them again. Indeed, as I write this in New York City, in the spring of 1928, there seems to be some reason to believe that we already have them again.

The world goes like that; fat years and lean years, and the unthinking and unsaving and unthrifty pay the penalty, when the lean years come.

Some time ago I wrote an article about domestic thrift, and quoted a friend of mine who fed a family of four comfortably for $48 a month, or ten cents a meal. A perfect storm of letters was the result. A few women wrote in scornfully, angrily, that it simply couldn't be done. But hundreds—more than one thousand, actually, were angry on the other side of the argument. They said that there were scores—there were whole towns of homes whose women managed on that much money per capita, and managed well. "And we don't wear cotton stockings either!" more than one said indignantly.

"Don't walk past Mason's, darling, I bought this there 'way back last summer, sometime, and I haven't been able to pay for it, yet."

One woman wrote that she managed a table for five on $55 monthly, saving the difference between that and the $90 her husband allowed her, and that her children were 100 per cent children, and that she was buying a piano, and that they were all happy, and so on and on. I wrote that woman at once, asking her for one month's menu, and I hope she is working them out for me, because they would be of real economic value. The concluding phrase of her letter was the one that impressed me; "Poverty isn't a matter of dollars and cents," she said forcefully. "It's a question entirely of living within your income! My husband gets $27.50 a week, and got much less than that when we were married, and we've saved the whole week's salary, in the four five-week months, right along, and own our home, and have never had one moment's anxiety about money."

It isn't the rich persons who are free from money trouble. Rich women are always worrying and scrimping, are almost always nervous about their incomes. The real freedom, financially, comes to the woman who has a steady husband, and who has mastered domestic economics.

She has no bills, she is buying her home, putting money into the bank, standing steady on her own feet. She has discovered what some women never discover, that the only way to forget money cares is to get right up on top of them. Cheap meals are just as delicious and nourishing as expensive meals, and stupid waste does no good to anyone—waste is a spiritual thing, and harms the soul as well as the pocketbook.

For instance, there is Mary Black, as sweet and merry and normally fine a woman as ever married a dreamy and unpractical man. The Blacks are always in money trouble, and always rather proud of it. They despise their saving, thrifty friends, and sneer good naturedly at persons who like to pay dentist and plumbing and drugstore bills promptly. The Blacks never pay a bill until they are forced to, and they must have cost the world a pretty sum for stamps, telephone calls, collectors and bookkeeping in the long run. Mary says feverishly that she hates money, it makes her sick, she thinks everyone ought to have enough to live decently, and that its an outrage to have persons like herself and Fred eternally fretted and dunned for a few disgusting dollars.

Her books, her house, her hair, are never in order. The ice-man refuses indignantly to leave another pound of ice, and good meat spoils, and Mary is furious. How dares that common iceman put her to such trouble!

When Fred Black brings home a little unexpected money, the Blacks have a wonderful time. They buy two new tires and go off in the car, or they have their photographs or they give a party.

But when hard times come—and there are always more of them than the other sort—the Blacks suffer and are miserable. Mary puts on an old fur coat, and walks shuddering through the snow to the coal yard, and uses all her persuasive powers to get the dealer to send them up half a ton. She goes into the grocery, and her anxiously attentive little boy hears her telling lies to the grocer, about her husband's sickness, and the sure prospect of money next week. She buttons on her daughter's coat while murmuring instructions.

"Don't walk past Mason's, darling. I bought this there 'way back last summer, sometime, and I have not been able to pay for it, yet."

The daughter flushes; children are more sensitive to shiftlessness and dishonesty that the Mary Blacks of the world suppose.

"Daddy has been unfortunate, dear," Mary says in quick defence. "Of course Mama would pay her bills if she had the money!"

And there is a perfectly false lesson in domestic economy for little daughter, added to all the other wrongs her mother has done her.

Little daughter never forgets it. For years she believes that dirt and disorder, and excuses to trades people, and debts and duns, are quite inevitable in poor dear Mama's life. But Heaven help Mama when daughter discovers, some day, that all shameful discomfort in her babyhood was entirely unnecessary!

If we are really to have hard times for a year or two—and they will be only comparative hard times, in this rich and generous and busy country, they will be the sort of hard times that would seem like remarkably good times in Russia or China.

But if we are to have them, no one of us can tell who will suffer. Everyone suffers, in the end. A collapse in one industry means a weakening all along the line—less money to put into banks, and to spend in stores, and all those weekly payments on automobiles and victrolas and radios and other luxuries diminishing month after month.

So that now is the time to begin to dig in for the winter,—which, God willing, will be brief. Now is the time to take finances by the throat, and get the best of them. The only men and women who can weather real hard times are the men and women who have anticipated them.

If you are living on $250 a month now, you may have to live on $150 at this time next year. Why not get down to the lower rate immediately, and save the difference?

"It simply can't be done!" says the lady of the house indignantly. "I'd like to see you do it!"

Well, there have been plenty of periods in my life when, if you had been my neighbor, you WOULD have seen me doing it, but that isn't the point, after all. The point is that there must be a general shortening of sail, among the more modest homes of America, the women who sees that change coming, and anticipates it, is going to be the fortunate women at this time next year. If you must live on $1800 a year, or $1200 a year, it doesn't help matters at all to protest against it, and say that it can't be done. It CAN be done, and it is being done, happily and successfully, all about you.

The beginning to any woman who has been living ahead of her income, ought to be a housecleaning on paper, and this particular Sunday is as good a day as any to begin. Gather all the bills you have together, and write down their sum. Hunt through desk and kitchen table drawers, and be sure you have them all.

The total will amaze and discourage you. Bills are always so much bigger than one has believed them to be. Sometimes families whose whole income is $150 a month will carry bills in the neighborhood of $600—or one-third of the yearly income.

This is terribly discouraging, especially as most of the bills are for pleasures long forgotten. It is trying, in June, to find oneself obliged to pay for storm-windows, hockey stocks, drug-store necessities for Fred's Christmas bronchitis, and the thawing of frozen pipes.

But there they all are, and added to them are the current milk and grocery bills, Fred's club bill, the department-store bill, with the tailor, gas, telephone, garage bills in addition. The total is $596.20. And of course expenses are going right along, today and tomorrow and next week, and the children need some summer things, and the car needs overhauling, and Fanny is coming for a visit, which won't exactly cut down domestic outlay,—so that the idea of economizing now is impossible. Perhaps next fall we can really get started, and catch up, and once she is caught up, Mary feels she will never get behind again.

Cowardice and compromise, this attitude, and she is going to pay for it. Indeed she is paying for it, with all the hours of restless dissatisfaction and fear that are her usual mood.

The only thing to do is to tear down the whole illusion of ever "catching up," once and for all. You'll never catch up without heroic measures, measures almost as brave as those that brought your pioneer ancestors to bleak New England, 200 years ago, or that took your great-grandmother in a covered wagon to seek a new life in the far west, a few generations later.

If your rent is too high,—more than one-fifth of your income, move. If you have to deny your children daily ice cream cones and movies and car fares, deny them. It won't hurt them, for awhile. If you have to wear last summer's cottons, and give up the idea of trips, motor-car, silk stockings, beauty treatments, chicken and cream on your table, telephone nickels spent like half-pennies and grocery orders carelessly made up with no reference to the comparative cost of carrots and asparagus, then face it, tackle it, and conquer it now, or you may not have a chance.

There can be no other legitimate interest in your life while you are handling this central one only with weakness, evasion and compromise. And you may be surprised to find that to manage a house thriftily on a budget is not only one of the easiest, but one of the most absorbing of jobs.

To prove this you have only to compare any two men you know, in business. In which one would you have confidence, the one whose business affairs are in a jumble, who is continuously harassed by debts, disproportionate expenditures, creditors, the one who is continually complaining about costs and charges—

Or the one who has all this cleanly, and compactly worked out, who looks forward and not backward, who has a good balance rolling up at the bank, for emergencies or opportunities?

Perhaps we won't have any bad times, after all. But it isn't such a foolish idea, even in good times, to prepare for more good times.

Mrs. Norris Says:

Financially, I really do believe that the mind of the average American woman on a small income is disorderly.

PAULA JANE WAGONER CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Little Miss Paula Jane Wagoner was entertained Friday afternoon with a birthday party given by her grandmother, Mrs. S. J. Beer on Broad street, celebrating the little girl's fourth anniversary.

Games were enjoyed and refreshments were served in the dining room which was decorated in pink and white. The birthday cake was also in pink and white and was topped with four candles in the chosen colors.

Those present for the party were James Otis Acuff, Jackie Austin, John Russell Belcher, Billie Lewis Thompson, Virginia Rowland, Warren Belcher, Mary Burnside, Robert Joe Belcher, Pauline Rowland, and Paula Jane Wagoner.

Cast iron is brittle because it consists of crystals, which easily break up into groups.

WICHITA FALLS GIRLS CHOSEN FOR PLAY

DENTON, Texas, May 26.—Miss Jennie Louise Hindman and Miss Eva Catherine Rayzor, both of Wichita Falls, and seniors at the College of Industrial Arts, have been chosen to take the roles of Tibalt and the page in the presentation of "Romeo and Juliet" which is to be given by senior speech students on June 1.

"Romeo and Juliet" marks the 20th annual revival of classical drama at C. I. A., an old English play having been given every year since 1908. Special scenery is being designed and built, providing 17 scenes approximating as closely as possible the old Shakespearian stage.

A real diamond is much colder than an imitation one, and the best way to detect this difference in temperature is to touch the stones with the tongue. Sapphires, emeralds, rubies, garnets and other precious stones may be tested in the same way.

CLUB WORK CONCLUDED WITH SPRING LUNCHEON

Concluding the work year for the spring and summer, members of the 1922 Study club and their guests enjoyed a luncheon at the Forum clubhouse Friday. The dining room and table was elaborately decorated in the pastel shades, the club colors, for the occasion, and pink tapers were arranged in green crystal holders.

Places were marked with clever hand-made novelty holders in the pastel shades, filled with candy, on which were written the names of the guests. Original numbers were included in the program. Mrs. N. W. Gaut was toastmistress, and toasts were given in original verse by Mesdames S. H. Rider, O. O. Ross and Phil Lesh. The opening song was an original composition entitled "22, We Honor You." Mrs. A. P. Terrell gave a pantomime sketch, and Mesdames R. A. Lincoln and Clyde Gibson gave two original duets; Mrs. R. L. Underwood sang two original compositions, and Mrs. Chester Bailes read a paper on the progress of club work. Mrs. George A. Patterson entertained with a comic negro dialect reading, in costume, entitled "How to Manage a Husband." Mrs. A. D. Pattillo gave the invocation.

At the close of the luncheon yearbooks were distributed. Covers were laid for Mesdames C. R. Bailes, Mabel Carter, Lucyle Albright, E. E. Fischer, N. W. Gaut, Clyde Gibson, Russell of Burkburnett, W. T. Wells, Terry, Phil Lesh, W. L. Underwood, C. A. Fleming, A. D. Pattillo, R. A. Lincoln, W. H. Newell, G. A. Patterson, Chandler, Ramey Yauger, S. H. Rider, L. C. Tyson, H. A. Presson, J. M. Spoonts, W. R. Hammond, A. P. Terrell and O. O. Ross.

COMMUNITY STUDY CLASS ENTERTAINS HUSBANDS

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wilson were hosts to the Community Study class which entertained the husbands of the members last week. An interesting program was given and a series of games were played.

Music was given by Mrs. W. T. Wade, Mrs. R. H. Thompson, T. H. Roberts and J. C. Terrill who sang a group of quartet numbers; Mrs. R. T. Tidwell gave a reading; Mr. Terrill sang; Mrs. Earnest Neal played a piano number; Mrs. John Miller sang and a reading was given by Mary Bell Roberts. Bobby Jo Windham and Mary Bell Roberts gave a dance.

Following the program, refreshments were served to the following: Messrs. and Mesdames W. T. Wade, J. C. Terrill, J. B. Blakeney, T. P. Cannon, T. C. Roberts, R. N. Tweedy, Andrew Young, Ewing Ezell, R. W. Thompson, R. L. Taylor, J. N. Tweedy, Leslie Millican, V. P. Brook, R. W. Windham, J. E. Peacock, R. T. Tidwell, A. M. Cunningham, J. B. Miller, J. A. GREAT BRITAIN RENOUNCES WAR, WITH RESERVATIONS

The obstacles which beset the path of efforts toward world peace are rather plainly set forth in the British reply to the Kellogg "outlawry of war" proposal. The British agreed to renounce all kinds of war, except five. The five kinds of war which they reserve the right to participate in are:

Wars in which they are attacked by somebody else.

Wars in which they are required to take part as a result of the League of Nations covenant.

Wars in which they are required to take part as a result of provisions of the Locarno pact.

Wars in which they are required to take part as a result of any other existing treaties.

Wars necessary to protection of the "welfare and integrity" of the British Empire.

In other words, they won't fight unless somebody jumps on them or some of their friends or unless they or some of their friends find it necessary to jump on somebody else.

The British reply does not differ essentially from that of France. Both these nations said, in effect, "We've already done what we could to promote world peace, without your help, and we're getting along pretty well, thanks."

No discussion of peace pacts and such is ever entirely fruitless. The Kellogg proposals are of value in that they keep the minds of diplomats on the subject of world peace. But the British and French replies to them indicate the futility of a nation's trying to be a beneficiary of agreements which it is unwilling to help enforce.

RAISING THE COMPULSORY SCHOOL AGE LIMIT

Fourteen years is too early an age at which to permit a boy or girl to quit going to school, in the opinion of the State Federation of Labor, which at its recent convention adopted a resolution urging that the maximum age limit for compulsory education be raised.

The law now provides that the child must stay in school until it is fourteen years of age. Thereafter, additional schooling depends upon the child's family and upon the child itself. Economic conditions weigh upon the decision. The child's aptitude is another factor.

We believe that the state should go slow in this matter. Admitting the desirability of boys and girls continuing in school after they are 14, we question the wisdom of forcing unwilling students to stay in school when Texas still lacks much of having made proper provision for those who are willing and anxious to stay in school, law or no law. In many communities, existing facilities in the upper grades are already cramped, the number of pupils per teacher is too great. Would it be fair to the ones who want to stay in school to short-ration them, in equipment and attention, in order to provide for those who are in school simply because the law says they must be.

It would be a splendid thing if every Texas child could stay in school until it is sixteen years old; but Texas' first duty is to the pupils it already has.

A FOOLISH MOVE

Governor Smith, according to current political rumor, has set his hand firmly against the proposal of the New York World and some eastern Democrats that the democratic party adopt a straight-out wet platform this year if he is the nominee. We hope that the rumor is true, and that Smith has refused to be a party to any such gigantic folly. Such a platform cannot be justified on the score of either principle or expediency. It is a specimen of New York provincialism, which is the narrowest and blindest brand of provincialism that there is.

The surprising strength which Smith has shown in the pre-convention contests is due in large measure to the support given him by prohibitionists. States that are rock-ribbed in their dryness have contributed more delegates to his cause than the ones in which prohibition sentiment is less pronounced. Here in Texas, Smith had the support of many Democrats who have been prohibition stalwarts for years and years. To adopt a wet platform would be to say to these dry Democrats that Smith needs something more than the great record of honesty and efficiency as an executive which prompted them to line up on his side.

Such a platform would give the prohibition question the very sort of over-emphasis that the Love-McAdoo-Heflin school of Democrats have been trying to give it. It would be playing directly into the hands of those who want to make this a one-idea campaign and who want to utterly ignore the corruption which has soiled the republican party and which has given the democratic party an exceptional chance to win. It would mar the party's chances in those states where the farm relief question, on which the republican party has so completely bungled, is paramount.

It would be equivalent to saying that the candidate is bigger than the party; that because the nominee leans toward wetness, the party must lean with him:

Governor Smith is now virtually certain to be the nominee, not because he is wet, but in spite of it. If he is elected, it again will be in spite of his wetness and not because of it. Prohibitionists have supported him, and will continue to support him, because they can see in his record as New York's governor sufficient evidence of his fairness and his ability to overcome their objections to his views on prohibition. Because, further, they know that he alone cannot change either the constitution or the law.

The New Yorkers who believe that New York sentiment is representative of national sentiment should get out andstravel a bit. Let us hope that Governor Smith's knowledge of geography is broader than that of the New York World.

WHAT MR. LOVE GOT AT BEAUMONT

The Dallas News seems to think that Senator Love ought to be satisfied with what happened at Beaumont.

"When Senator Love and his followers measure the difference between Governor Moody's accomplishment and their project," says the News, "they may discover reason for wondering whether it was not the prestige rather than the substance of victory which was denied them at Beaumont."

There doesn't seem to be any argument about the prestige. As for the "substance," if Mr. Love can derive any consolation from what happened, certainly none of his opponents will begrudge it. The convention instructed for a dry candidate but it refused to instruct specifically against Al Smith. It turned down Mr. Love's candidate for temporary chairman. It gave Mr. Love no place on the delegation, while permitting a number of Smith supporters to have places.

If one fully understands what Mr. Love was trying to do at Beaumont, and compares it with what was done, it is hard to find any "substance" of victory whatever. He went there with the hope of putting the democracy of Texas in position to bolt the national ticket. He had the hope also of discrediting Governor Moody as the leader of the party in Texas. In both of these he failed completely. The only consolation left to him is that the convention did not instruct for Smith, after coming much closer to doing so than anyone had expected.

THE FUTURE

'Tis well enough to brag and boast,
But men who really do the most Sit very still.
They're conscious all the time,
Tomorrow they will have to climb
Another hill.
Nor all the little dreams come true
Make up for deeds they want to do.

Achievement is a pleasant thing,
But there's no end to conquering,
And wise men see
That what is done, however fair,
Cannot in any way compare
With what's to be.
And wise men's thought are ever turned
On secrets that are still unlearned.

I praise my skillful surgeon's hand.
"So much you've come to understand,"
To him I say.
And then he smiles and whispers low:
"The things I really want to know
Lie far away.
You think I've learned a lot, but oh,
There is so much I do not know."

There is no conquest all complete;
No stopping place for human feet;
No final goal.
Onward and upward men ascend
And none of us shall see the end of glory's scroll.
But small and trivial is the past,
It is the future which is vast!

The Lure of Danger

By BRUCE CATTON

The top of Mount McKinley, in Alaska, is believed to be the coldest point on earth.

Never-ending winter reigns on this forbidding mass of rock and ice. Twenty thousand feet above sea level, close to the inhospitable Arctic circle, the lonely mountain is the very incarnation of storm-bound desolation. The winds that lash its barren crags howl unheard; in all recorded time, only three men have climbed to the top.

One of the three is Harry Karstens, superintendent of Mount McKinley National Park. He plans to go back there this year. In 1913, when he and two companions climbed to the top, they left a temperature-recording instrument there. He wants to get it and see just what extremes of cold have gripped the towering peak since his other visit.

We are always told that these men are trying to increase the scope of scientific knowledge. If Superintendent Karstens regains his thermometer, it is explained, he will add a great deal to what scientists know about the extremes of cold in the Arctic high altitudes.

These frozen wastes are forever beckoning. It is as if their storm-bound desolation kept repeating, "We are unconquerable, and the man who tries to conquer us dies"; while some man is always muttering, "Is that so?" tightening his belt and going up to have a try.

It is not true that men can only be attracted by appeals to their love of ease and wealth. Cold, peril, darkness and loneliness could always draw men away from comfort and security. There is an indomitable strain in the human race; a hardy recklessness that can never be submerged.

Your Boy —and— Your Girl

I See By the Papers That

John L. Sullivan, the 101-year-old elephant of Ringlings circus, had put into his mouth by a clever reporter who interviewed him on the subject of jazz, this reply: "The day P. T. Barnum gave the order that the band should keep step with the animals, and not the animals with the band, was the birthday of jazz." This explains much . . .

Yale and Harvard are competing in a scholarship tourney for a $5,000 stake. A momento will be given to each member of the winning team. Perhaps this is a device on the part of Harvard to win something.

A New York high school teacher was caught cheating at an examination for an elementary school principalship. The same person was caught once before practicing dishonesty. The kick of the school board, as it should be, was swift and sure.

Endurance tests are becoming the rage. Adults are seeing how many bananas, oranges, oysters or crullers can be downed at one sitting; children are smashing long distance records in skipping, bouncing a ball and kite flying. One girl in St. Paul bounced a golf ball 2710 times. How quickly the children imitate in their own stunt fields descriptions of elders who circle the Arctic ocean, jump from Ireland to Labrador, and attempt endurance tests of all kinds.

Helen Wills attends the Mickey Walker-Jack Wills prize fight, watches the play of muscles and the foot work and decides that tennis is the only game, adding: "This fight was so nice and comfortable. I have yet to see a six day bicycle race." If she saw Tunney box she might change her decision never to see another fight. Not all fights are nice and comfortable, even for the fighter; to say nothing of the ladies present.

Bare-headed boys, according to the secretary of the hatters' labor union, are hurting the hat business. He does not want them to catch cold. Won't they please buy hats. Yes, but think of the Barber Clippers union who will have hair to clip for the old gentlemen of tomorrow if hats of today are discarded and of the Hair Renovaters association which is losing patronage by a very sensible custom.

A cigar chain store has devised a machine which delivers a hearty "thank you" as it tosses out a package of cigarets. With the mechanical thank you goes a "few well chosen words" about the advantages of that particular cigaret. Is one to expect that soon advertisements will read, "Teach your child to be polite by having him patronize the ——— ——— ——— cigaret automatic selling machine. Not a cuss word in a ship load."

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER

Give Brother a Chance

My brother of 23 supports my mother, a brother of 15, a sister of 11 and me (13). Now he wants to get married, but what would we do? I intended to start in college to take a five-year course and be a biology teacher, in the meanwhile keeping a sharp lookout in the direction of research work. Don't you think my brother should wait five years and give me a chance? —AMBITIOUS SISTER.

Answer—In these days of economic independence of women, is it fair to expect a brother to support his sister in college for five years? I suggest you get a job as soon as possible, contribute toward the support of the family, and save some money that you may return to college within a few years.

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

By LEE PAPE
With Illustrations by Benny Potts

Me and pop was eating brekfist this morning, me saying, I wonder why Ant Fanny aint down yet, I wonder wat she dreemed about last nite.

Ant Fanny always telling about her dreems at brekfist, and pop sed, I hope thats one of the many things Ill never find out. Im eating fast and hoping hard, he sed. Pop hating to lissen to peoples dreems especshilly if they dont make sents. And just then who came down but Ant Fany, saying, My goodniss Willyum I had the queerest strangest dreem.

Yes, yes, you told me yestidday morning, pop sed, and Ant Fanny sed, How could I, I ony had it last nite. You must be thinking of the dreem I had the nite before, she sed.

No doubt its the same dreem, pop sed, and Ant Fanny sed, No it wasent, I remember that other dreem perfeckly, I can tell it to you all over agen.

Not at all, I meen I remember it too, pop sed, and Ant Fanny sed, Enyways its remarkable how I can remember hy dreems even to the tiniest detail, and yet I havent a good memory at all for other things, in fact if I try to remember ware I put anything it gives me a spitting hedake, but now this dreem last nite for instants, its as clear as a book, it started off with a whole procession of munkeys and each munkey had a card tied around its neck with somebodys name on it that I dident know, for instants James H. Smith and John P. Brown and Charles R. Jones.

It seems to me I know them, their in every first class directory and telefone book, pop sed, and Ant Fanny sed, And suddenly they all serrounded me and low and behold they werent munkeys at all, they were my best friends all congratulating me, and wat do you sippose they were congradulating me for?

Just to make the dreem longer, pop sed, and Ant Fanny sed, Not at all, they were congratulating me on my 16th berthday and all insisting on kissing me to prove the untruth of the old proverb Sweet 16 and never bin kissed, and just then the intire scene changed and I was wawking across an endless desert in a continuous wind.

Its getting late, I had no ideer, pop sed looking at his watch, and Ant Fanny sed, You must wait and hear the end, the most of it is still to come, well, I suddenly herd a peculiar cracking sound and wat do you sippose it was?

It was you waking up and forgetting the rest, pop sed, and Ant Fanny sed, Quite rong, it was an egg hatching in my hand, and a pewtiful little King Charles spaniel came out laffing as if its hart would break, and just as I was thinking that dogs dont laff the mystery was explained because it wasent a dog but a parrit, and it sed Goodbye and went back into the egg before my very eyes and closed the shell up after it, and at that junction the scene changed agen and I was in an enormous hammick reeding a tiny little book.

That reminds me, speeeking of books, if you will pardon me a moment, pop sed. And he quick got up and went out in the hall and pritty soon we herd the frunt door close kind of easy, being pop on his way to the office, so Ant Fanny told me the rest of her dreem, taking her about 15 more minnits but I dident care on account of me liking to lissen to dreems and the more they dont make sents the more I like them.

EIGHTEEN GRADUATES OF CASHION SCHOOL RECEIVE DIPLOMAS WEDNESDAY EVE

Eighteen graduates received diplomas Wednesday evening at the commencement exercises of the grammar grades at the Cashion school, nine miles north of Wichita Falls on the Burkburnett road.

Miss Ruth Mounts directed the program. R. C. Leach, superintendent of the school, presented the diplomas. Roy J. Daniel of Wichita Falls was the principal speaker.

The following boys and girls were awarded diplomas, in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends: Edith Robbins, Seaborn Hearell, Marguerite Holly, Vida Mae Markham, Carl Hutchison, Frank Webster, Douglas Jarvis, Clotese Naves, J. B. Standifer, Elvilee Adams, Ernest Naves, Mary Goodman, Kathryn Blackwell, Elvis Lancaster, Nolan Neely, Era Carter, Clovis Neely and J. A. McDonald. Marguerite Holly and Nolan Neely were honor students.

PROSECUTOR IN HOSPITAL AFTER FISTIC CONTEST

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 26. (AP) Harwell G. Davis, former attorney general of Alabama was confined to a Birmingham hospital today for treatment of bruises and lacerations received in a fist fight with Charles R. Davis, former warden at Flat Top prison, whom he prosecuted in the James Know murder trial in 1926.

The encounter occurred on a downtown street corner late yesterday on the first meeting of the two since the trial in which the former warden was acquitted of the murder of Knox, a white convict.

The American Legion was organized in Paris in 1919.

It's a Great Little Word

By BRUCE BARTON

THERE is a book called the "Ifs of History" that is well worth a couple of hours of anyone's time. It consists of twenty-two short chapters designed to show upon what trifling circumstances the destinies of humanity have hinged.

Champlain, the French explorer, might have tarried in Plymouth Bay instead of turning northward to the St. Lawrence. If he had, the Pilgrims, arriving later and finding him in possession, would doubtless have steered south to Virginia, leaving New England to the French.

If Charles Martel had not defeated the Moors in the Battle of Tours, we might today be Mohammedans instead of Christians. For the victorious forces of Mahomet would have swept on northward, imposing their customs and their faith as they went.

Suppose George Washington had enlisted in the British navy as a midshipman, as he wanted so much to do. Would the environment have made him a Loyalist and aligned him with the British and against the colonists when the struggle came?

The printer who prepared the ballots for the Republican convention of 1860 did not deliver them on time; and the convention adjourned to meet again the following morning. That night the leaders agreed upon the nomination of Lincoln. If the printer had kept his promise, Seward would probably have been nominated instead.

If Jefferson Davis had purchased the ships of the East India Company when they were offered in 1861, the Confederates would have had command of the sea. Their ports would never have been blockaded, and they might have seized the cities of the Northern coast almost at will.

If—if—if—in every page and period of history that little word appears, dealing favor to some and destruction to others. And soon or late, every human being must reckon with it.

"If only she had not been too selfish to have children," I heard one woman remark about another; and she went on to tell of a home that went to pieces because the man loved children, and had none.

"If only I had been content with a fair return on my savings, instead of trying to get rich," an old man said—he is plodding along in a routine task, when he might be enjoying a competence.

"As I look back, I can see that there was the turning-point in my life," another man confessed. "If only I had sense enough to see it."

"I became too self-satisfied," a third man said; "if I had only kept on working and growing—"

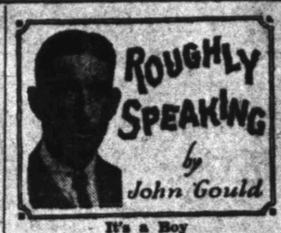

Of course the ifs are not all on the wrong side of the ledger; it would be a gloomy world if they were. And most of the joy would go out of living if at every moment of every day we were compelled to stop and remind ourselves that great consequences may follow the inconsequential step we are about to take. Nevertheless in the end that shortest, smoothest little word bobs up and demands a settlement.

"I offered you this opportunity—and this—and this—" it will say. "And here you chose rightly; and there you chose wrongly; and your life is the sum of those choices."

I am not much given to solemn thoughts, but I confess I have a certain wholesome awe of that smooth little word—so short and so mild and so innocent. It's such a great little word to have on your side, and such a terror when it's working against you.

ROUGHLY SPEAKING

It's a Boy

You're such a tiny thing, so frail and small,
I wish that somehow it might be forbid,
When on you, grown, the stork shall make a call,
That you should suffer as your daddy did.

Mr. Coolidge puts too much emphasis on the "na" in McNary-Haugen.

Curiosity

Certain aspects of other people's work and calling have always aroused our curiosity. We would like to be a restaurant-proprietor long enough to find out what they put in brown gravy. We would like to be a banker long enough to find out what they do in the mornings before 9 o'clock. We would like to be an oil man long enough to find out how they avoid starvation.

One thing about which we have long been curious is, how housewives kill time during the day when their husbands are downtown. We thought, this past week, that we were going to get some light on the subject, but we were disappointed; it is as much a mystery to us as ever. The absence of the lady of the house, who was at the hospital serving on a reception committee, provided what we thought would be an excellent opportunity to obtain first-hand information about running a household, for most of her home duties devolved on us; but we are as much in the dark as ever.

It takes about 30 minutes a day, we learned, to do all the real work that is necessary about the house. What women do to occupy the remainder of their day is still, to us, an unplumbed mystery. True, we had a colored lady to help, but that didn't enable us to solve the matter.

How We Did It.

Getting meals for the children requires almost no time at all. Just a minute or two to put some corn flakes into the bowls, pour milk over it, and their dinner is ready, in a twinkling. Along about the fourth or fifth day, when the children seemed to be getting tired of the flakes, we opened a can of sardines and a bottle of pickles; it didn't take us a minute to get that meal ready, and the children were delighted with such a tasty breakfast. For another meal, just to avoid monotony, we had a can of ready-baked beans, and sliced some cheese. We had no idea that cooking was such easy work, until we tried it.

Cleaning up the front room proved a simple task. In the first place, it wasn't really dirty, for we had swept it once before that week, so that when a vacuum cleaner salesman called, he couldn't give as convincing a demonstration as he would if we had been neglecting the room. We were glad of his help, however, for there was hardly room behind the piano for any more trash to be swept, and the carpet looked bumpy and untidy where we had emptied the ash-tray under it. If we ever buy a vacuum cleaner, it certainly will be the kind that salesman demonstrated, but of course, in the wife's absence, we couldn't assume the responsibility of making the purchase.

The trouble with the average woman is that she isn't efficient. She lacks system. She doesn't know how to take those short cuts that save time and effort. Just for example, John Jr. lost a button off his dark pants. A woman would have wasted valuable time finding black thread to sew the button back on with. We got some white thread sewed the button on, and then blacked the thread neatly, with ink. You couldn't tell it, without looking close. In due justice to womanhood however, we must admit that a growing boy is hard on his clothes, and apt to require considerable repair work. We had to sew that same button on again four or five times, before we found the safety-pins.

And take the job of washing dishes. Lots of women wash up after every meal, three times a day, 21 times a week, 1095 times a year. We very promptly hit upon a much better plan, which is simplicity itself. Instead of washing dishes after each meal, we put the dirty ones in the bath-tub and used the remaining clean dishes while they lasted. Then we sprinkled Dutch cleanser over the accumulation, turned on the hot water, and the job was done with the absolute minimum of exertion. Now what woman would have thought of that?

Other Duties

Of course the tasks are complicated, at our house, by the fact that there are several children to be looked after. There is little doubt in our mind that children really do add something to the trials and duties of housekeeping. Here again, one must practice efficiency, must plan short cuts that will leave time for other duties. We sat down at the outset and worked out a comprehensive system for handling the youngsters, so that they would be as little trouble as possible. It happened that some situations arose that our system hadn't anticipated, but in time it will work out all right.

I got a rather severe test the other morning when, simultaneously, we were persuading Roberta to practice her recital piece, removing a gob of chewing gum from Thomas Richard's hair and explaining to John Jr. how it was that the new little brother, Ben, having arrived in the day-time, no one at the hospital seemed able to furnish a description of the angel that brought him. This test, we are frank to say, brought out some defects in our system, but we have little doubt that it is, roughly speaking, quite practicable and that it can be developed so as to greatly lighten the cares of parent-hood. It is not yet error-proof; we realized that when, in a minor crisis, we used lysol when we should have used argyrol.

Still, mistakes will crop up under almost any system, and we didn't mind that one very much; not near as much as Thomas Richard did. Besides, he is a very easily dissatisfied child. The other morning he fussed furiously, simply because we would not let him play with a dead mouse he picked up in the alley. Ordinarily, we believe in indulging children in harmless pleasures, but this mouse, we noted, had been rained on, and there hadn't been any rain for several days, either. It was one of the occasions when firmness was demanded.

Our experience has been helpful and instructive and we expect the Mrs. will be real proud of us when she returns.

FIVE TEXAS ORGANIZATIONS OF NURSES TO MEET HERE

LUNCHEONS, TEAS AND DINNERS ENTERTAINMENT FEATURES OF NURSES JOINT MEETING HERE

Plans have been completed for a varied and elaborate program of entertainment for the delegates from five state organizations of nurses which will meet here in joint convention May 29, 30, 31.

The organizations scheduled to convene here beginning Tuesday are the Graduate Nurses' association of Texas, the League of Nursing Education, the Organization of Public Health Nursing, and American Red Cross and the St. Barnabas Guild for Nurses.

Delegates will register at the Kemp hotel, which has been designated as convention headquarters. Miss Eva M. Wallace, superintendent of the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital, is president of the eleventh district of Graduate Nurses. Miss Vera Bamberg is chairman of the arrangements committee.

A feature of the convention will be the memorial service for Florence Nightingale and deceased members of the organization which will be given by the St. Barnabas Guild for Nurses in the Church of the Good Shepherd at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening.

The eleventh district will be host to all delegates at a banquet to be given at the Wichita club Wednesday evening. On the last day of the convention, Thursday, a program will be given in the evening at the Woman's forum.

Business sessions will be held each morning and afternoon at the Kemp hotel. On the opening day luncheons will be given at the Grace Methodist church and at the Kemp hotel with a tea in the afternoon on the lawn of the clinic hospital.

On Wednesday luncheons will be given at the Y. W. C. A. and the Woman's forum, with a tea in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. N. L. Parker. A luncheon will be given at the Y. W. C. A. on Thursday, with a tea in the afternoon at the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club.

Letters From A Wichitan On Broadway

By Frank Ernest Nicholson

NEW YORK, May 26.—Present political developments and the Democratic convention have caused New Yorkers to seriously focus their attention upon Texas. Broadwayites seem to have suddenly awakened to the fact that Texas is not merely a broad expanse of unused acres, where ten-gallon hats flourish, and cow-gentlemen still shoot from the hip and whoop things up with a gun and bottle in the Maiomarte on Saturday nights. The Democratic convention will, and is, showering Texas with publicity that will be of material benefit in more ways than one. Listen to what one metropolitan publication said, in a recent issue, about the Lone Star state:

"Texas has a population of 5,308,843. The area is 265,896 square miles. Manufactured products, more than a million dollars. The cotton crop, averaging 4,000,000 bales a year, is the largest in the United States. The petroleum output amounts to 142,618,000 barrels a year. And then there are cattle, sheep, iron, ores, lumber, potash, gypsum, brick clays and helium, which caused Captain W. P. Irwin to predict that Texas will have the greatest airport the world will ever know.

"Perhaps it is because they have so much ground to cover that Texans tend to be long-legged. Some say Texans are a dizzy race. . . . polo ponies. . . a Riveria on the Rio Grande. . . black fingers in the sky in the oil fields. . . snow-white balls in the cotton country. . . daylight bank robbers of the younger generation. . . Governor "Ma" Ferguson. . . talk of Dan Moody for vice president and such. . . shiny skyscrapers in Dallas, Galveston, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Austin. . . a harbor for ocean steamers at Houston, 50 miles from sea. . . high altitudes good for the lungs, low altitudes good for swimming. . . ."

And another story:

"Texas, the largest state in the union, is the seat of the Democratic national convention. The state was, of course, once a republic in itself, a land where tradition makes bloody Alamo a Bunker Hill and Sam Houston a George Washington. It has a past that gives the people something to think about. The French let the Spaniards have Texas; and the Mexicans in revolt took it away from the Spaniards. Then in 1821 across the Sabine river came mild-mannered Stephen F. Austin of Missouri and his band of settlers 'to redeem Texas from its wilderness state by means of the plow alone.' But when Santa Anna, the Mexican general of the dark, cruel eyes, turned his guns on the Alamo, a different story began. Colonel Travis, Davy Crockett and 180 Texans refused for 11 days to be ousted from the Alamo. Their food and gun powder gave out. Dozens of men and mules died side by side, with dry, festered tongues. Children were fed flies. Santa Anna brought up bigger guns, battered down the stone walls of the Alamo, butchered the remaining haggard Texans in cold blood. Only a negro and a few women were spared. All through Texas cries went up: 'Remember the Alamo.' But Texans were not given to cries without action. To get Santa Anna they chose a commander named Sam Houston, 6 feet, 3 inches in his moccasins, of whom President Jackson said:

"'Thank God, there is one man at least in Texas who was made by the Almighty and not a tailor. . .'"

Katherine Kilander, student of the Julliard school, winner of a $1500 fellowship piano award, and pupil of Josef Lhevinne, left last week for Wichita Falls where she will spend the summer with her parents. . Harry Van Emden and D. Hostettler leave this week by motor en route to Wichita Falls. . Loren Stone of Wichita Falls, artist for the Frank Seaman Advertising agency of New York, leaves for Texas on June 8 to spend the summer with relatives and friends. . Clare Ogden Davis, formerly a newspaper writer of Dallas, Austin and Houston, and at one time the secretary of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, is to cover the Democratic convention for a metropolitan publication.

Priest Predicts Record for 500-Mile Race on Indianapolis Speedway Will Be Broken in Decoration Day Classic

By RAY PRIEST
Universal Service Automobile Editor

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 26.—It looks as though the record for the 500-mile race in this city Decoration day will be broken, says Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacker, head of the syndicate that now owns the track.

"We have the track in much better shape that it was last year," says Captain Rickenbacker. "Then the cars have been ready earlier, this year than ever before.

"In fact, at least two of the boys, Tommy Milton and Leon Duray, have unofficially broken the record for single laps around the track held by Frank Lockhart.

"Lockhart's official mark is 120 miles per hour, but both the other two boys have driven the track at a rate of 123 miles per hour. They seem to have more power and speed than they know what to do with.

"Last week Duray's front wheels spun when his car lifted off the ground at the first turn—that's power.

"These new front wheel drive cars are liable to show us something new in racing yet. We all know that we are going to see some front wheel drive passenger cars before many months pass."

It is also reported here that the Decoration day event is a complete sell out. The percentage will also be considerably higher than last year, Captain Rickenbacker says.

There will be three races within a race this year. There will be the race to drive the 500 miles the fastest, the usual competition to lead at the end of each two and one-half mile circuit of the track for the $100 lap money, and worst of all will be the battle between the front wheel drives and the rear drives.

Eleven of the 36 cars entered are front wheel drive cars. Last year many of them were in the race, but they were entirely new machines. The bad points have been ironed out of them this year and they have already proven they are the fastest cars on the track.

Tommy Milton, who has again entered the car that he built in Detroit himself, two years ago, has Cliff Durant marked up as the driver. The talk, however, at the speedway is that Milton Hill will be in the car at the finish and probably will be out ahead.

Milton is the only driver who has twice won the Indianapolis classic. It is said that he wishes to clinch the title forever by winning the race again.

Lockhart, who was hailed as the best race driver of all time, was lost to the speedway when he recently tried to beat the world's speed mark on Daytona Beach.

He was the winner two years ago and it had been confidently said that he would win again this year.

It looks as though the entire executive personnel of the automobile industry, from Detroit, Flint, Pontiac, Toledo, Lansing and Cleveland has been moved to Indianapolis.

All of the leaders in the industry were at the track today watching the elimination trials.

Most of the gossip was regarding new models, the unusual amount of production for this late in the spring and the chances for public acceptance of the new De Soto line to be brought out by Chrysler.

Production stories concerned the record set last week by Willys-Overland at Toledo, where 10,516 cars were turned out, the fact that more than a half million 1928 Chevrolets were on the round by the fourth week in May, and the slowness of Ford in getting into production. Ford is reported to be around 3000 daily this week. It was expected that this mark would have been reached by May 1. Ford is now at his highest employment peak in Detroit, working slightly over 110,000 men.

Rumors that Henry Ford would attend the race this year as a spectator were reported unfounded, as it was later learned that he had gone to his Wayside Inn at Sudbury, Mass.

MARYE and MOM Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Darling Mom:

I'm still too much provoked with Alan to let him read your letter, because even if you can find excuses for his conduct I'm not so ready to forgive him. If he thinks he can get into the habit of letting his business come before consideration for me and get away with it I don't see what I can expect in the future.

Anyway he's always telling me that you think as much of him as you do of me, so whenever you take his part it just makes it that much harder for me to handle him. It would spoil him utterly to read all the nice things you say about him. So he doesn't get to see your last letter.

You certainly are a wonderful mother-in-law, Alan thinks the world of you. I wish you'd scold him once in a while, for a change; for if he isn't to take too seriously that part of the wedding ceremony that made him promise to cherish me, then he ought to forget about the "obey" part, too. Alan absolutely forbade—can you grasp it?—absolutely forbade me to come down to the office.

He said I treated his stenographer as though she were poison ivy when she was here at the apartment. Of course I didn't do anything of the kind, but what did he want me to do? Serve her tea and ask her to stay to dinner?

I would have liked to ask her where she got the permanent wave but I wouldn't give her that much satisfaction. For if she couldn't see that Alan and I were having a slight difference of opinion for the moment she must be dumber than she looks. And I dare say she guessed what caused it.

I didn't say a word, but when Alan said: "Oh, that's much too heavy for you, Miss Peters," I must have made some kind of funny sound because both she and Alan turned and looked at me.

Well, of course, I don't care whether I go to his office or not and I've got a lot of things to do but now I'll have to take time off and go. Who would let a husband get away with that forbid stuff?

So if you want to advise somebody who could use a little advice, write to Alan. Fondest love,

MARYE.

Rules of the

The WIN A VACATION Contest is a simple and practical contest devised for the entertainment and amusement of the readers of the Wichita Sunday Times and Record News. $500.00 in cash prizes will be distributed as the reward for the ingenuity and effort of our readers.

The requirements are not complicated, but one should study the rules closely. In each blank State in the map above will be found the name of a firm in the city of Wichita Falls. Elsewhere in this same issue will be found a display advertisement for each firm.

In each of these display advertisements will be found a merchandise value or service, which will be designated by the following: "Vacation Item," or "Vacation Special," or "Vacation Value," or "Vacation Feature." When you have located it, then letter or print the designated item or service in the state in which the merchant's name appears, as neatly as possible. Do the same for every state in the map.

SCREEN - THEATER AMUSEMENTS - STAGE

Two Splendid Vitaphone Features On Strand Program in Addition to Norma Talmadge Film "The Dove"

Vitaphone is presenting William Demarest, noted comedian of screen and stage, in the title role of "Papa's Vacation," the Herbert-Roth playlet. He is engagingly funny as the overworked mail-carrier. The supporting cast is an especially capable one, comprised of such players as Mickey Bennett, the son, Patrica Caron, Blanche Douglas and Walter Rogers.

For the first time in the history of the screen the audience will see and hear the patter of rain upon a cabin roof. When Vitaphone instituted synchronization in the cinema there was no idea then that the elements of nature could be transferred to the silver sheet in all their fury and beauty. But that is what Vitaphone has done in "Papa's Vacation," which is a part of the program at the Strand for this week.

Another Vitaphone feature is Giovanni Martinelli, the leading tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, who has succeeded Caruso in the hearts of New York operagoers. His strong personality and his excellent voice that registers with an uncanny perfection to the life, influenced his selection as one of the features of the initial showing of the wonders of Vitaphone in connection with the John Barrymore "Don Juan" debut in the Warner theater, New York last August and accounts for his popularity as an attraction wherever this number has been placed on programs.

'The Dove' With Norma Talmadge Strand Theater

Norma Talmadge in "The Dove," her first United Artists picture, is the screen attraction at the Strand. Based on Willard Mack's stage play, which ran for a year on Broadway, "The Dove" is a melodramatic, romantic tale of Costa Roja, the "red coast." Miss Talmadge is supported by Noah Beery and Gilbert Roland. Roland West directed the picture from the scenario by Wallace Smith and Paul Bern.

"The Dove" is the colorful, quick-action narrative of a virtuous dance hall girl, a courageous young American employed in a gambling house, and "the bes' damn caballero in all Costa Roja," Don Jose Maria y Sandoval. Against a background of guitars, stilletos, roulette wheels, fine ladies and grand gentlemen, the characterization of Miss Talmadge as Dolores, "The Dove," a beautiful dancer, comes to glowing life, according to advance reports.

Supported by Noah Beery and Gilbert Roland, who were accorded considerable roles by the star, Miss Talmadge has a role of fire, tempestuous, loving, defying and yielding in its several shades. The film is said to retain all of the color which David Belasco put into the stage version of "The Dove," in which Judith Anderson and Holbrook Blinn appeared. Roland West, the director, believes the story is even more suited to films, and that in "The Dove" Miss Talmadge achieves new heights in a part as different from her prior characterization as that was from its predecessors.

"The Dove" was made at the United Artists studio in Hollywood, taking six months in the making. Photographic effects are said to be so novel that the set in the studio was closed to visitors while certain sequences were being filmed.

Norma Talmadge not only becomes a United Artists star through "The Dove," her first picture for that organization, but she is also now one of the eight owner-members of United Artists. Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, D. W. Griffith, Joseph M. Schenck and Samuel Goldwyn are the others.

Fred Thomson in Olympic Feature 'Sunset Legion'

Fred Thomson once said that to be successful moving pictures should move. "The Sunset Legion," his latest effort for Paramount, at the Olympic Sunday and Monday, moves. In fact, it never stops moving. There is something doing from start to finish.

Daredevil horsemanship, acrobatics, a stage coach holdup and a mine battle are interspersed with more intimate scenes in which there were some delightful laughs. In other words, it is a human western with interesting characters and a well developed story. It doesn't have to depend upon scenery and spectacular stunts for its entertaining value, although it has plenty of them.

The story is laid in a western mining community in the '90's where have been a number of robberies of gold shipments from the local mine. The sheriff has called upon the rangers for assistance, but they have not arrived as yet. A mysterious figure in black on a black horse comes into town. He is a daredevil who leaps his horse through a saloon window, holds up the town desperadoes at will, engages in a wild battle with bandits at the mine, and raises hob generally. About the same time, a nondescript cowboy on a white horse appears. He hides whenever any gun play starts. Fred Thomson plays both characters and uses the changes to elude pursuit. The situations that develop interrupt many a thrill with a laugh.

Silver King, Mr. Thomson's big white horse, does some almost human tricks, both as himself and as the black horse ridden by the masked rider.

The supporting cast includes Edra Murphy, a charming young blonde, who played opposite Mr. Thomson some months ago in "Silver Comes Through." She seems to be perfectly at home in western costume and among western people.

Norma Talmadge in "The Dove"

Billie Dove as 'Follies Girl' at Majestic Sunday

The film producers just aren't allowed to keep Billie Dove, star in First National pictures, out of cinema "Follies" roles. That, probably, is because the public thinks she is too beautiful to be garbed in ordinary clothes.

"The Heart of a Follies Girl," coming to the Majestic Sunday, is her latest stellar vehicle. In addition to the always appealing and colorful atmosphere of the Follies, and intimate probing into the lives of the famous chorus girls, however, the picture has a really powerful dramatic plot.

The screen play was adapted from Adela Rogers St. Johns' magazine story of the same title. It deals with the uncontrollable love of a Follies girl for the private secretary of a wealthy admirer, and subsequent sacrifices she makes for the impoverished and not quite worthy hero.

Her nobility of conduct eventually brings out the real man in her lover, and a logical happy ending results. Real pathos, high drama and suspense, love scenes with a punch and plentiful comedy, feature "The Heart of a Follies Girl" throughout. Larry Kent is the private secretary and Lowell Sherman the wealthy admirer.

Mildred Harris, Clarissa Selwynne and other well-known screen artists head a cast that also includes 50 shapely and beautiful dancing girls.

ABE MARTIN On Divorce

A timely rebuke from th' bench.

"Both o' you clear out o' here, an' stay out," roared Judge Pusey, after listenin' t' th' argyments in th' Sniffin' divorce case. "You folks hain't been married long enough t' even' git acquainted, an' here you are tryin' t' kick out. This court hain't no clearin' house fer rumble seat marriages. Come back in a couple o' years an' I'll talk t' you. I hain't goin' t' split no more couples up till th' husban' an' wife have at least tried t' pick out a go-cart t'gether, t' say nothin' o' bedroom wallpaper." After a ripple o' laughter, Judge Pusey continued, "Women are so used t' takin' things home on approval, an' exchangin' things, an' backin' out o' bargains, that they try to use th' same system with husban's. An' men are so egotistical that they imagine any woman ought t' be tickled t' death t' marry 'em. Men don't go after divorces like th' women do. Men figure that they kin keep away from home, an' have their little flirtations, an' outside diversions without goin' t' th' trouble an' expense of gittin' a divorce. Often, if ther prosperous enough they'll maintain two establishments, but th' great majority o' wives hain't that way. They want a lot o' alimony an' a chance t' pick up somebuddy that suits 'em better. Most o' them are th' same about husban's as they are about hats an' fur coats. They tire o' them. A woman never selects a hat or fur coat like it's th' last one she's ever goin' t' buy, an' I guess most o' them feel th' same way about husban's. An ugly temper if th' great, blightin' thing that splits most couples up. I've had couples before me that wuz so homely an' rich that you'd think nothin' short o' death would separate 'em. Then I'd find out that it wuz her temper or his temper that wuz comin' between 'em. Only last week I ordered a husban' t' go on a liver tonic, an' a wife t' have her teeth x-rayed. One o' th' fiercest divorce cases I ever had wuz traced directly t' th' wife's teeth. These tempers show up in th' mornin,' specially if th' cellar light has been left on overnight, or an egg is a little off, or th' furnace allowed t' go out. If high-tempered couples would keep away from one another till noon they could prob'ly worry thro' th' rest o' th' day purty good, but it's tryin' t' eat breakfast t'gether that destroys ther happiness. That's a hazardous undertakin' fer th' most normally constituted couples. I'm thinkin' some o' puttin' an x-ray machine in my court, fer anybuddy with a poisoned system soon wrecks a home. Th' effect o' bobbed hair is growin' quiet perceptible in our divorce courts. Wives wuz fer more stable when they had big wads o' hair t' occupy ther minds. An' couples marry on too short an acquaintance. Girl's marry fellers they've never seen out side a roadster, while a fool of a boy'll hook up with a girl without knowin' whether she's got any ears, or more than one eye, or any sense, jest so her knees are full an' prominent."

P.-T.A. NEWS NOTES

Thirteenth District P.-T. A.
By MRS. JOHN M. FOX

The need of the rural schools in Wichita county and in every other county in the Thirteenth district is friendliness, sympathy and encouragement from neighboring and nearby city P.-T. A.'s. Friendliness, because the work attracts and holds all classes of women who are possessed of the "mother heart," whether in city or country—sympathy because of the same problems that are present in one are oftentimes to be seen in the other, and a frank discussion of them is helpful — encouragement because the recitation of obstacles overcome, mistakes made and rectified by associations which have been organized a long time, or have larger memberships, etc., can be used in the way of knowledge as to the wisest plan of procedure. Thriving P.-T. A.'s in larger places can materially help the weaker and smaller ones if they will but broaden their vision. Over the grave of many a long since dead P.-T. A. in small communities may be written the words, "We, too, might have fought and dared.—We're dead because nobody cared."

Oftentimes, in these schools there are wide awake, struggling teachers, who only need the active sympathy of the parents in that community, backed up by the energizing thought that some sister P.-T. A. in a close by school is vitally interested in the work that they are trying to do, to so enthuse his or her scholars, (and through them, the parents) that a real live go-getter P.-T. A. is formed, which is so full of enthusiasm that it goes forward of its own momentum. Frequent visits to the rural schools by a group of workers from nearby towns will do an inestimable amount of good in the way of carrying forward the banner of child welfare in the 14 counties that constitute the Thirteenth district, and materially help in taking definite steps to reach the objective that is part of the year's plan of our state P.-T. A. president, Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith, who with every member of her executive board believes thoroughly in rural extension work.

Mrs. Frank E. Creighton, president of the Thirteenth district, accompanied by Mrs. John M. Fox, publicity chairman, and Mrs. W. Roberts, retiring city council health chairman, attended an all day meeting of Vernon P.-T. A. workers at that city Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. R. H. Nichols, president of Vernon city council, introduced Mrs. Creighton who presided at the school of instruction and round table discussion which followed. Each department of the work was taken up, and the plan and objective of each was explained, the group then asking questions pertaining to the points each was not informed upon. Community betterment, pre-school activities and summer roundup procedure were also touched upon, as well as the need of cafeterias to provide healthful lunches for school children. The desire of the district president that a district juvenile protection chairman, under the direction of Mrs. Ira L. Cain, state official in that capacity, be appointed in the not far distant future, was stressed by Mrs. Creighton.

Each individual school represented brought forward the problem confronting it in order to obtain help for its needs, and the enthusiasm displayed by the group of representative women of Wilbarger county's fastest growing city, was an inspiration to the visitors. It is these "get-together" meetings which foster the spirit of good fellowship in the Thirteenth district.

Mrs. Roberts outlined the pre-school summer roundup work and explained how the clinics were handled and the good which resulted from this department of the general plan.

Mrs. Fox explained how a gold star and 100 per cent score could be attained in the publicity scrap book contest, which is open to as many schools as will endeavor to make a book of clippings which will be a record of school P.-T. A. activities during the year. Different phases of publicity, including the speakers' bureau department, were taken up and discussed.

It was found that Vernon already had in the neighborhood of 50 subscriptions to child welfare and Parent-Teacher magazines, which are the national and state official organs of the Texas Congress of Mothers.

Mrs. George E. Slaughenhop was elected chairman for the organization of a county council in Wilbarger county, and the rural schools will be visited as soon as possible toward this end.

Present at the "get-together" meeting at Vernon were the following: Mrs. S. D. Edwards, Mrs. George Wilson, second vice president of the Thirteenth district; Mrs. George Crawford, Mrs. Charles P. Ross, Mrs. M. G. Poteet, Mrs. W. G. Lofsand, Mrs. Edwin Matteson, Mrs. F. D. L. Killough, Mrs. C. E. Christian, Mrs. W. W. Bennett, Mrs. A. F. Winston, Mrs. F. M. Beebe of South Vernon, Mrs. George E. Slaughenhop, Mrs. C. J. Farrell, Mrs. R. D. Shive, Mrs. L. D. Terrell, Mrs. E. H. Pegg, Mrs. J. N. Wright, Mrs. Anderson Smith, Mrs. R. H. Nichols, Mrs. W. R. Moore, Mrs. J. J. Cockerill, Mrs. A. E. Traeger, and Mrs. H. L. St. John.

The first meeting of Wichita County Council P.-T. A. will be held in the Legion hall at Burkburnett, Tuesday, May 29, at 10 o'clock. Wichita Falls visitors and representatives from all rural schools in the county are urged to attend.

The first meeting of the Thirteenth district executive board will be held Wednesday at 10 o'clock at Y. W. C. A. rooms, Wichita Falls.

Carrigan P.-T. A.

The Carrigan School P.-T. A. held its last regular meeting of the year Tuesday afternoon at the school. The meeting was opened by devotional led by the Rev. Bell. Mrs. Roberts gave a talk on pre-school work, Mrs. A. D. Duck gave a reading. The installation of the officers for the coming year were as follows: President, Mrs. G. K. Mosby; first vice president, Mrs. G. J. Galmiche; second vice president, Mrs. Alex Michael; third vice president, Mrs. C. B. Clement; recording secretary, Miss Elizabeth Peters; treasurer, Mrs. Eddie Williams; corresponding secretary, Miss Norman; press reporter, Mrs. R. C. Honea; delegate to the council meetings, Mrs. C. B. Clement and Mrs. G. J. Galmiche.

Austin P.-T. A.

Austin school Parent-Teacher association received a letter during the past week from Mrs. Will J. Decherd, state publicity chairman, saying that the Austin school P.-T. A. publicity scrapbook, which received a gold star and a grading of 100 per cent at the national P.-T. A. convention, is now on display at P.-T. A. headquarters in the state capitol where many people go to see it every day.

The library movement, sponsored by the national P.-T. A., has been going on steadily in Austin school this year. Each room has worked to make a library of its own, most of the books being bought with money earned by the pupils of the individual rooms. Almost every P.-T. A. sponsor has been called on, or has volunteered to help with candy or "bake" sales held somewhere in town, for the benefit of the library fund. Miss Bessie Stewart, principal, reports that each room at Austin school has a library averaging $25 worth of books.

The Music club and the boys' council, which are corresponding clubs at Austin school, closed the year's work with a joint musical program. Roger Brown, president of the council, presided, while the following musical numbers were rendered:

Violin Ensemble—Violin section of the Orchestra—(a) Minuet; (b) Song of the Volga Boatman.
Boys' Chorus—Boys of the Council—(a) Little Dutch Garden; (b) Old Folks at Home; (c) Poor Old Man.
Violin Solo—Arthur Davis—Idillo.
Piano Solo—Helen Smith—(a) Piggcatt; (b) Valse Lenta; (c) Pierette.
Girls' Chorus—Girls of Music Club—(a) Song of the Gondolier; (b) Cradle Song; (c) Night.
Piano Solo—Edwin Cook—Pixies March.
Violin Solo—Roberta Lincoln—(a) Iris; (b) Souvenir.

The Travel club, whose object is to acquaint its members with their own as well as all foreign countries, sponsored by Miss Lelia Heaton, held the last regular meeting of the semester last week.

Miss Mattilyn Wilson announces that the Austin school orchestra has been disbanded for the summer.

The Austin school Camp Fire Girls, with Miss Leda Bolin, guardian, held the last meeting of the semester last week. The feature of the program was a talk by Miss Mary McIlheran, Camp Fire executive, on plans for the summer. She distributed a number of "Flickers," the official publication of the Camp Fire organization. The first summer meeting of this chapter was held Friday, May 25, at the city auditorium in Miss McIlheran's office.

The Girl Reserves, who have been under the direction of Miss Liles and Mrs. Cocke, also closed the year's work with a program. During the course of the entertainment, 10 of the 30 Girl Reserves were presented with pins, awarded to those having as many as 40 honors.

Recently, Mrs. E. G. Godard, national president of Juvenile Federated Music clubs, paid a brief visit to Miss Smith, director of the Austin School Music club, to inquire about the progress of the club, which is the oldest Federated Juvenile Music club in the city.

P.T. A. Council
By MRS. W. A. McGEE

The P.-T. A. news column will this week automatically conclude its year's work with the closing of the schools of the city—yet, unlike the schools, the column will have no graduates to fete, or diplomas to award. But, on the other hand, the publicity chairmen who have "broadcasted" for the local P.-T. A.'s through the column each week, and who should receive the reward of the faithful in the great afterwhile, will no doubt enjoy their vacation days a little better for having thus served their community through the organization of the parent-teacher associations. Thanks is due each of them and every one who has assisted in any way with the column, and especially do we wish to thank The Wichita Daily Times and Record News for the liberal space accorded the column each week. While to our successors of the incoming publicity chairmen of the council and the local P.-T. A.'s, we bespeak the same whole-hearted support and cooperation which the column has enjoyed this year. May the goal for next year be, every parent and every teacher an affiliated member of P.-T. A., working together for the common good of all. "A little child shall lead them."

County P.T. A. Council

A called meeting of the county P.-T. A. council was held at the Fairview teacherage, Thrift, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. A number of the schools of the county were represented.

City View was represented by Mesdames O. J. Norwood, Wells Smith, Leslie Millican and W. T. Johnson.

Boy Scout News

Call for Council Service

Every Boy Scout in the city who owns a uniform is asked to report at scout headquarters Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock for service. Scouts will be used as ushers at the formal opening of the Memorial auditorium.

Troop One

Troop one, Lowell Nichols, scoutmaster, opened its meeting Friday night at 7:30 with nine scouts present.

J. T. Hamilton and Milton Johnson, troop committeemen, were present and Mr. Johnson gave a very good talk on human interest.

The meeting was turned over to Mr. Hamilton, who read the scoutmasters' bulletin and took count of the points earned in the inter-troop efficiency contest during the past week.

The meeting was adjourned early so that those present could attend the commencement exercises.

Camp Fire Girls and Boy Scouts

Monday night the contest between the Camp Fire Girls and Boy Scouts will be held at Weeks park. Groups of Camp Fire Girls and troops of scouts will meet at the park at 6 o'clock, where they will prepare supper for themselves and guests. Each troop and each group is to care for its own guests.

Following supper the contest will start. The following events will be contested: first aid, water boiling, camp set-up, camp songs, and fire laying.

The Camp Fire Girls band and troop thirteen's band will furnish music for the occasion.

Troop Fifteen

Troop 15, Paul Barnett, scoutmaster, opened its meeting Friday night at the Highland Heights Christian church with general assembly and roll call by Monroe Sposato, scribe.

The scoutmasters' bulletin was read by the scoutmaster and the contest between the Camp Fire Girls and Boy Scouts was discussed. Boys were picked to represent the troop in this contest.

A swimming party was planned for Thursday evening, when the boys will meet at the church at 5:30. Supper and a swim will be enjoyed, after which the boys will sleep out. All the fathers and troop committeemen of this troop are cordially invited to attend.

The field day was discussed and representatives from this troop will be announced at the next troop meeting.

Several of the troop members were at the scout camp with Chief Creighton, preparing the camp for the arrival of the Camp Fire Girls on Wednesday.

Bryant Creighton was chosen by the scoutmaster as scribe.

The meeting closed with the scout oath, led by Frank Tims.

Board of Review

Two sessions of the board of review will be held during the month of June. The first will be Monday and Tuesday, June 4 and 5, and the second Monday and Tuesday, June 25 and 26. Since appearance before board of review counts in the inter-troop efficiency contest, a large crowd of scouts is expected to attend.

Troop Twenty-Two

Troop 22, Bob Tinsley, scoutmaster, met Friday night at 7:30 at the First Methodist church. The meeting opened with the pledge of allegiance to the flag, followed by the reading and discussion of the scoutmasters' bulletin.

Following games of "sleeping knight" and pillow fights, a discussion of tests was held.

The meeting was dismissed with the scout oath and laws.

Inter-Troop Efficiency Contest

According to contest reports turned in to scout headquarters, the standing of the different scout troops is as follows: troop one, 180 points; troop two, 114 points; troop three, 219 points; troops four and seven, 448 points; troop 13, 69 points; troop 12, 167 points; troop 13, 212 points; troop 15, 132 points; troop 20, 88 points; troop 22, 36 points.

Dorinda's Diary

THERE was as much difference in the graduating exercises I attended at the Zundelowitz Junior High school Tuesday, and the sort I attended when I was a girl, as there was in the cars parked all about the school building Wednesday and the buggies and surries in which my generation rode. There was no letters given to those who had exerted their influence for good in my school. Letters were given for that Wednesday. There were no medals given to those who were outstanding as leaders in my school or to those who typified the highest school ideal. I saw them given for that Wednesday. In my day we usually got a medal for the highest average and let it go at that. In my day we dreaded the graduation address because it was usually given by a tiresome old man with a tiresome theme, given in a tiresome voice and tiresome hours were consumed in its delivery. By the time it was all over we were all so worn out we sprawled all over the back seat of the surrey going home and took advantage of our just graduated dignity to slap a younger brother or sister who sat too close to our white organdy graduating dress. And the "powers that be" on the front seat were too tired to see what caused the ensuing howl.

Wednesday morning Howard Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Martin, a very young man who had just graduated at High school, gave the address to the graduates of the Junior high. His speech was characterized by poise, directness and briefness. He could have gone on and on and no one would have grown tired, but he went right into his subject and got throught with it. When he said, "The better one behaves himself, the better he gets along" he paid something his hearers understood perfectly and stated a truth that they could apply instantly to any situation. Every example he gave, every quotation from poet and philosopher was just as plain and showed he had delved deep in the wells of knowledge for one so young. Though he spoke in the language of today, the virtues on which he told us the successful life was built, are the same ones that are as old as life itself.

Professor H. A. Glass, the principal of the Zundelowitz school, has done many unusual things that have made his school stand out as an example of school progressiveness and as a step out of the old rut of cut and dried pedagogy. Having a young speaker who is "in step" with the graduates, address them, shows understanding of youth and is the screw that holds together this unusualness of progression.

THE last edition for the year of the "Wichitan" the college and high school paper is beautiful to the eye as well as a satisfying intellectual morsel and its contents of varied school activities and the wonderful results of the printer's art, are in direct contrast to the first edition of the first high school paper ever gotten out in Wichita Falls. This paper, with the name "The Devil's Workshop" more in keeping with the idea most people have of this generation instead of 1910 when it was named, was edited by Morris Poore now of San Francisco and Lester Jones of the Wichita State bank in whose office I read it.

It was written with a pencil in long hand and though enclosed in a glassed frame is beginning to fade and grow dim, as do memories of loved faces and voices though we may think we have them framed in our hearts forever. There are only four small pages. A literary society is mentioned, of which Miss Nellie Trevathan was secretary, but no mention made of a president.

On a page devoted to writings of sundry sorts is mentioned a rumor to the effect that one of the teachers, H. H. Guice, who is now one of the deans at S. M. U. has gone away to be married. "Do seniors deserve 100 per cent in deportment?" is the name of an article signed "Spectator" and reading it, one doesn't get the impression seniors were very devilish in that day, even if the editors did choose to call their paper "The Devil's Workshop."

THE following poem signed "Poetical Willie" doesn't sound much like some of the free verse in which some of our present day students express themselves, but it is rather vigorous and we get a picture of a healthy looking damsel plodding through the showy, unpaved streets wondering why Pa couldn't have let her drive old Fan tonight, instead of letting Bill drive her:

The night was growing old
As she trudged through snow and sleet
Her nose was long and cold
And her shoes were full of feet.

From a diary kept by Mr. Jones one finds the first shipment of athletic goods to ever be received by the schools included a discus, hammer and vaulting pole with standards. It is hard for the present day boy looking into the well equipped gym to realize these were the first articles for the development of athletics owned by the school. They were received on January the 20th and the boys went right to work training for the meet at Iowa Park. On March 26th they attended this meet and among the athletes were Clarence Barnett now of Long Beach, Calif., Jerome Stone, Burton Stayton and Guy Wilson.

In this diary kept by Mr. Jones mention is made of Halley's comet and the prediction in a newspaper that all life on the planet earth would be exterminated. Mr. Jones and Wiley M. Fuller, now in the registered bond section of the government at Washington, got up on what is now the Reagan school—then the high school, which was in a half finished state of construction, in order to get a look at the comet and the diary continues "the comet was plainly visible and was curved like a sword." This was Wednesday, February 9, 1910.

Later the diary speaks of the graduating class and of what the following who were some of the members did: Clarence Barnett, Lester Jones, Guy Wilson, William Bilderback, now of Fort Worth; Maurice Poore and Jerome Stone. This is what those devilish boys did: Went home with Maurice Poore, after leaving school without permission, and spent the afternoon calling up the school asking where the boys were and calling for different girls to come to the phone! No wonder they called their paper "The Devil's Workshop." This sheet with the wicked name was also edited one year by Wayne Sommerville and Hal Yaeger.

along and free,
Have eyes that see things clear and voice that rings,
And if you like, wear your hat
wrong side front;
Fight for yes or no—or make a poem;
Work without thought of fortune or of glory;
Fly to the moon, in fancy, if you wish.
Write not a word that comes not from your heart.
And still be modest; tell yourself,
"My child,
Content yourself with flowers, with fruits, with leaves,
If you have gathered them in your own garden!"
Then, if by chance, you gain some small success,
No tribute money need you pay to Caesar.

A FEW days ago while walking out on one of the roads that leads out of the city I stopped to talk to an old lady who was hoeing weeds in the garden beside a vine covered little house and listened to her say the same things in a different way what Rostand says in Cyrano de Bergerac in the part of the poem just above. She was dressed just about like any other old lady would be dressed who had the temerity to cut weeds out of the beets and carrots on a hot morning, but unlike any lady I ever saw she wore the poke, bonnet shape hat of a young girl, with the poke over her neck instead of her face.

She stopped and leaned leisurely on her hoe as I bade her "good morning" and surveyed me through eyes that were squinted—whether from the sun or to better size me up, I couldn't tell. She only nodded as I spoke and when I commented on the beauty of a spider web that glistened like strands of silver from the top of a green weed and started on past, she called, "Wait a minute!" I stopped. "Do you really think a spider's web is beautiful?" she asked. I assured her I did. "Do you like to puttar around and dig . . . and do as you please?" she asked. I told her I did and that this walk I was taking was one of my "do as I please" gestures.

"Did you ever think about sailing through the air clear to the moon?" she wanted to know. "You mean in an airplane?" I asked. "Oh, no," she answered, "any-body can do that. I mean on a blackbird, or a cloud . . . ." We both looked up at the clouds . . . "I should say I have," I answered. She heaved a sign as if I had passed to her satisfaction some test to which she had been subjecting me. "Then keep it to yourself or people will think you are crazy. They think I am crazy because I talk about such things and because I have money enough to do as I please and please to stay out here."

She looked about her. "I have everything I need, fruit, vegetables, flowers, sun, wind and books. A vine over my door and birds singing about me—what more could I want?" She laughed, and continued: "They think I am crazy because I wear the brim of my hat at the back instead of front, but I taught 35 years in a city school where I hardly saw the sun and I want it to shine in my face and I can't stand for my neck to get hot, so I just turn it around and shade my neck." She laughed again and turned the hat around and looked at me from under the brim and at her hands which were covered with heavy old gloves. "I have to keep my hands covered," she said, "I go to see my brother and his girls every week and I can't have them ashamed of my hands . . . . I think it is all right to do as you please so long as it doesn't shame you or some one else—or put them out in some way . . . I love to just get down and grabble 'round the plants, but it surely puts the girls out for their friends to see my hands . . . ."

Pondering over what she said, on my way home, I was nearly run down by My Family's car. His voice sounded edgy as I clambered into the seat beside him. "Do you ever think of any one else when you take these long, fool walks?" he asked. I didn't answer him, but when I got home I hunted up Mr. Rostand and read again that line about "tribute money to Caesar." I just mustn't walk so far again, but the ones that have the same crazy streak I have, live such a fur piece!

Segall Tire Co. To Occupy New Quarters Soon

Removal of all stock and fixtures to the firm's new location at Eighth and Travis, will be made by the Segall Tire company this week. According to Gene Segall, proprietor of the firm, all work on the building is now practically completed and everything will be in readiness for the formal opening about June 4.

The building has been erected especially for the Segall company at an approximate cost of $30,000 and is one of the finest and most convenient tire service stations in the state. Every modern convenience for the service of Goodyear tire customers will be installed in the building, Mr. Segall stated.

MRS. CHAS. FEATHERSTON FLIES TO LAWTON, OKLA.

Mrs. Charles Featherston flew to Lawton, Okla., Saturday afternoon to watch her husband play polo in the game between Wichita Falls and Lawton. Mrs. Featherston was a passenger in a plane from the Wichita Falls Air Transport company piloted by Robert Brooks.

Copies of Budget Are Given to All Council Members

The estimates for the 1928-29 city budget were completed Saturday by City Manager George D. Fairtrace and copies were given each alderman.

There is a strong probability that the budget may be acted upon by the council Monday night. If the aldermen are not ready to consider it at that time it is expected that a special session will be held later in the week in order that the budget may receive final action before June 1.

The council is expected to review the city audit for the past fiscal year ending March 31 at the meeting Monday night. This audit was filed with city officials last week by Smith, Allred and Lambert of this city.

CAMP FIRE SPARKS

The Kewanhi group held their meeting at local headquarters. The afternoon was spent working on names and symbols. Those present were Lucille Gilbreath, Thelma Cox, Emily Coleman, Frances Vining, Evelyn Cox and the guardian, Mrs. Louis Ayers.

The Camp Fire Girls served at a Kiwanis luncheon Monday. The luncheon was cooked by the guardians with Mrs. Arch Dawson in charge.

The Cantawayua group discussed the annual camp rally at their weekly meeting Friday afternoon. Several of the girls plan to enter the contests. Those present were Lee Ellen Boardman, Lena Mae Lesley, Loraine Mathis, Winnelle Ward, Eleanor Weller and the guardian, Mrs. J. C. Mathis.

The Tami-a-Lowa group met Tuesday evening at headquarters. The girls practiced bandaging. Plans were discussed for the coming camp and camp rally.

The Yakoma group met at headquarters Friday afternoon. After working on the boxes for the Kiwanis serp hour jubilee, the girls went to the Red Cross headquarters, where Miss Rosa Lee Harkin instructed them in first aid. Several of the girls are planning to go to summer camp. Those present were: Mary Theresa Boyle, Margaret Davis, Evelyn Van Emden, Alma Nicklas and the guardian, Mrs. J. F. Hyland.

The Wehetonga and the Ihaha groups went on a joint hike to Haven park Thursday afternoon. The purpose of the hike was to practice fire building and water boiling. A first aid demonstration was given by Miss Rosa Lee Harkins. After this the girls cooked their supper and returned home. Those present were: Lois Fisk, Fairy Fae Chandley, Katherine Cox, Helen Gardner, Mabel Greene, Corrie Anna McBee, Nina Reed, Lurline Thurman, Juanita Zimmerman, the guardian, Mrs. Anna Barnhill and three visitors, Mrs. J. F. Hyland, Mary Theresa Boyle, Alma Nicklas, and a scoutmaster, Mr. Kaufmann.

The Cantawayua group had breakfast at Weeks park recently. The girls spent the morning studying trees. A meal was cooked by the girls before returning home. Those present were: Mary K. Ward, Lee Ellen Boardman, Lois Corbin, Oulta Bell Cowsert, Frances Gardner, Lena Mae Lesley, Lorraine Mathis, Estelle McPhail, Winelle Ward, Eleanor Weller, the guardian, Mrs. Mathis, and a visitor, Shirley Scoggins.

The Austin school group held their weekly meeting at headquarters with their new guardian, Mrs. H. D. Wolff. The girls made plans for the summer. Many are planning to go to summer camp. Those present were: Loudelle Bridges, Gladys Young, Helen Hanks, Marjorie Smith, Erma Walker, Joyce Cook, Charlotte Lewis, Louise Withrow, Juanita Collins, Mildred Loeny and the guardian, Mrs. Wolff.

The Grace Methodist church group met at headquarters. The girls discussed several ways of raising money. Miss Mary McIlheran, executive, gave many good suggestions. Those present were: Ellen Finley, Esther White, Ines Johnson, Anna Mary Lowe, Miriam White and the guardian, Mrs. Stockton.

All Camp Fire Girls are urged to attend the annual camp rally Monday evening at Weeks park. There will be contests between the Camp Fire Girls and the Boy Scouts in water boiling, fire building, camp set up, and first aid.

Any Camp Fire Girl who has not received a camp bulletin and who wants one will please call in person at headquarters in the Memorial auditorium or telephone 2-2183 and one will be mailed to her.

Every Child has a Right
of ICE
the year

IN every community there are certain families who seldom if ever take ice.

This not only results in great waste of food through spoilage, but frequently causes illness, particularly in the case of young children.

Are you risking your children's health by neglecting to provide this important safeguard?

THREE VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS TO OPEN HERE MONDAY

Others Will Be Held Later, With Courses Offered in Bible Study, Hymnology and Other Subjects

Daily vacation Bible schools will begin at three Wichita Falls churches Monday morning. Plans are made for three other such schools to begin on Monday, June 4, and for one or two others to be held some time later.

Courses will be offered in Bible study, hymn study, story-telling, dramatizations, handwork and other subjects. An effort has been made to secure specialists for the various departments, that the schools may be thoroughly efficient.

The First Christian church school will open at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning, with Dr. Floyd Allan Bash, pastor, acting as dean and R. E. Shepherd, assisting. Department superintendents, who will have charge of worship programs and the general direction of their respective departments, have been selected as follows: Mrs. O. H. Karr, beginners; Mrs. A. H. Stewart, primary; Mrs. T. P. Kelm, junior; and Mrs. C. E. Bailey, intermediate. Dr. R. B. Wolford will have charge of the courses in health and hygiene. Mrs. James V. Allred will be director of music. Mrs. N. B. Gaut will be in charge of Bible study and story telling. Mrs. Amos Morris will direct the hand work for the entire beginners and primary departments, and for the girls in the junior and intermediate departments, while John Tevis will have charge of the manual training for the older boys. Careful preparation has been made in each division, and the school promises to be well attended, according to those in charge.

A four weeks' school will begin Monday at the Floral Heights Baptist church. Classes will be held from 8 to 11 o'clock each morning five days of the week for the next four weeks. The Rev. W. H. Albertson, pastor of the church, is principal. Mrs. George Ford is beginners department superintendent; Mrs. W. H. Albertson, primary superintendent; Mrs. S. L. Flatt, junior superintendent; and Mrs. J. A. Ewing, intermediate superintendent. Teachers in the school are: Misses Fetna Bivens, Aubry Jane Warren and Marian Proctor; and Mesdames J. A. Bivens, R. I. Owen, T. C. Aiken, J. D. Morgan, Dewey Malonee, L. W. Proctor and Wilson J. DuBose.

Mrs. W. A. Miller is general superintendent of the First Methodist school, which begins at 9 o'clock Monday morning to continue three weeks. Classes will be held from 9 to 11:15 o'clock each morning from Monday to Friday, with a worship period from 11:15 to 11:30 o'clock. A commencement program with an exhibit of work will close the school on the night of June 15. The personnel of the faculty is as follows: kindergarten department, Mrs. J. S. Crumpler, superintendent, with Mrs. E. R. O'Brien and Misses Eunice Jenkins and Hazel Distelhorst, assisting; primary department, Mrs. S. J. Hanniphan, superintendent, with Misses Modena Howell, Ruth Hampton, Jean Fisk, Grace Downing and Louise Robertson assisting; junior department, Mrs. S. D. Johnson, superintendent, with Miss Fannie Vaughn and William Ward assisting. All children between 4 and 13 years of age may be enrolled.

Schools beginning June 4 are those of the First Baptist, Highland Heights Baptist and First Southern Presbyterian churches. Registration for the First Baptist school will be at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, June 1, after which there will be a parade. The school proper will open at 9 o'clock Monday morning, June 4. Classes will be held from 9 to 12 o'clock each day from Monday to Friday, for four weeks, and are open to boys and girls between 4 and 17 years of age. Beginners, primary, junior and intermediate departments will be included. J. W. Mason, religious educational director of the church, will be in charge. The entire faculty has not yet been named.

Miss Elizabeth Harnsberger of Dallas, educational director for the Dallas Presbetery, will be in charge of the school at the Southern Presbyterian church, beginning June 4 and continuing two weeks. The faculty for the school is as follows: Beginners department, Mrs. E. R. Johnson, superintendent, assisted by Misses Kathleen Colligan and Margaret Fleming; primary department, Mrs. C. McFayden, superintendent, assisted by Misses Hassie Newman and Mabel Lee Kollman, and Mrs. W. L. Whitlow; junior department, Mrs. R. C. Anderson, superintendent, assisted by Mrs. W. A. McClellan, Mrs. J. B. Jamison, Mrs. J. E. H. Railey and Miss Thelma Riddle; intermediate department, Mrs. T. N. Colligan, superintendent, assisted by Misses Emma Lou Scott, Maurine Newman and Velda Connelly. Fred L. Storey, superintendent of the Sunday school, will be in charge of the manual training for boys, with Dr. Gaines B. Hall, pastor, assisting. Mrs. J. E. Hall is business manager for the school; Miss Maurine Newman, secretary; Mrs. Frank Hall, pianist, and Mrs. F. C. Cooley, music director.

The faculty for the Highland Heights Baptist school was selected at a workers' meeting Friday night. The Rev. H. J. Ballew, pastor of the church, is principal. Mrs. E. M. Agee and Mrs. G. A. Patterson will direct the primary and junior departments, respectively. Others in the primary department will be: Misses Mabel Hudson and Alyne Muller, pianists; Miss Grace Ponder, chorister and story telling instructor; Mrs. Ollie Moss, handwork, with Misses Macie Lyle and Lillian Stewart as assistants; Mrs. R. M. Phillips, memory work; Misses Maurine Bradburn and Alyne Muller and Mesdames C. H. Hodges, E. W. and E. H. Moss, helpers. The faculty for the junior department is as follows: Mrs. E. E. Lee, pianist; Mrs. R. J. Morgan, chorister; Mrs. V. V. Chandler, handwork, with Miss Mildred Ponder, assisting; Mrs. S. R. Ludolphus, memory work; Miss Vera Leach, story telling; Mesdames A. L. Kirby, W. L. Graviey, L. R. Ausley, Edna Myers and Jess Smith, helpers.

Workers in the First Presbyterian Sunday school are also planning a vacation school, to be held some time in June. Definite plans have not yet been made.

Curtis Is Named Associate Pastor At San Angelo

GUY E. CURTIS

The Rev. Guy E. Curtis, who for the past year has served the First Christian church of Wichita Falls as educational director, has accepted a call to become associate pastor of the First Christian church at San Angelo. The San Angelo church is a rapidly growing congregation. The desire was expressed that Mr. Curtis begin his work there as the associate of the Rev. Howard H. Peters as soon as he can be released from his work with the First church at Wichita, Falls.

Mr. Curtis has made a large place for himself in Wichita Falls. He is active in the work of the Lions club. He directs the church orchestra, which has given several concerts in adjoining towns. He had charge of the great school children's chorus choir on Easter morning in the community service.

His thorough, business-like methods in the church have attracted national attention and comment from national leaders. A recent issue of a national Sunday school journal, "The Front Rank," carried a feature article commending the up-to-date system used by Mr. Curtis in his educational program in First Christian church school. High standards of work have been kept constantly before workers in all departments from the cradle roll to the men'sclass. Mr. Curtis promoted the best leadership training school in the history of the local church.

The call to the position of associate pastor in the San Angelo church comes to Mr. Curtis as a promotion. His activities will cover a wider range than that of an educational director and call into use more of his talents.

It is understood that Mr. Curtis will leave to take up the new work in San Angelo as soon as First church here can arrange for the local force to carry on the work.

Retiring Officers Ansil Lynn E. L. Hosts Sunday Eve

Newly elected officers of the Ansil Lynn Epworth league, with members and friends, will be guests of the retiring officers at a social hour and special program Sunday evening beginning at 6 o'clock.

The budget and policy of work for the coming year will be presented for approval. A tentative budget totaling $3000 has been arranged as follows: Home mission work, $750; foreign mission work, $1560; church building fund, $150; departmental work and general expense, $540.

The new officers, who were elected at a recent business session and who will take office on June 1, are: Milton Price, president; Robert Copenhaver, vice president; Marguerite Gerhardt, recording secretary; Ida Mary Taylor, corresponding secretary; E. R. Highfill, treasurer; Mrs. Eunice Kass, Ers. agent; Mrs. M. P. Albritton, pianist.

Tales of Real Dogs

By Albert Payson Terhune

BRISTOL: "The Avenger"

If you will delve into the dusty judicial annals of the town of Cogniou, in the southern part of France, for the year 1718, you will find Britsol's amazing story told in precise and old-fashioned legal phraseology.

I am going to tell it in modern words—for it is mighty well worth the retelling—but without changing any of its astonishing dramatic facts. It was a "celebrated case" in French criminal annals, and served as plot for at least one novel of early days.

In Cogniou in 1718 dwelt one Perrichon, a merchant, who had a wife and a grown son and a huge imported English mastiff named Bristol. Bristol was more like a clown than a sober watchdog, and his clumsily merry antics amused his master, even as much as the dog's stanch loyalty touched and pleased him.

Perrichon used to journey on business from his home near Marseilles to the city of Toulon, carrying large sums of money with him, and accompanied always by Bristol. The big mastiff would trot placidly alongside of Perrichon's horse on such trips, or gambol clownishly around the rider.

Master and dog set off on one such trip early in 1718, and did not come back. Inquiry showed that they had reached Toulon safely and that Perrichon had completed his business there and had started homeward with a canvas bag full of gold pieces. But from that point all trace of him and of his dog and of his horse was lost.

Then, many days later, the missing man's wife and son were awakened late at night by a hideous death-howl outside the door of their house. They ran downstairs and tremblingly flung wide the front door. Bristol staggered into the hallway, half-starved, badly hurt and with a maniac look of grief in his big eyes. He was moaning and howling as he tumbled exhausted at their feet.

To this day, it may be said, nobody knows just what had happened to the giant mastiff during that period of absence, nor where he had been nor how he had been maltreated and starved. Always that part of the story must be a mystery. But it is enough that he reeled home in agony and in terrible grief.

As soon as the mastiff could travel again, young Perrichon set forth from the house with him. At the town's outskirts, the son said to Bristol: "Where is the master? Find him!" Instantly the dog dropped his nose to the earth and set off toward the near-by forest, at a limping canter, pausing once or twice to make certain the young man was following him.

In the deepest and densest part of the woods, Bristol crashed into an almost impenetrable thicket. Young Perrichon followed him thither, and found his father's body lying under a heap of leaves. He had been killed and robbed and his horse stolen. His moneybag and everything of value had been taken.

Bristol flung himself upon the man.

The son hurried home with the dire tidings and roused the police of all southern France. In vain they searched for the murderer. Days had elapsed since the crime and no clue could be found. After a futile time of hunting for the criminal, the police admitted they could not hope to find him. They dropped the case.

Bristol's clownish character had undergone a queer change. No longer did he frisk awkwardly about, coaxing the family to romp with him. He had become moody and grim. But always he followed young Perrichon around, even as he had followed the slain merchant. He became the young man's shadow and eternal companion.

One day young Perrichon had business in Marseilles. Before starting back home he stopped at a large restaurant for supper. Bristol entered the restaurant with him, and lay quietly at his feet while Perrichon ate. But, as the young man was about to leave the place, a stranger came in.

At sight of the newcomer, Bristol gave a deafening wild-beast roar, and flung himself upon the man, bearing him to the floor and seeking to tear out his throat. Perrichon yanked the dog away and apologized for Bristol's precedented savagry. But the mastiff kept struggling and straining to get at the stranger.

Perrichon dragged the dog out of the restaurant and down the street for a hundred yards or more. Then, as Bristol ceased to struggle, Perrichon relaxed his grip on the mastiff's collar. Instantly, Bristol wheeled about and dashed back to the restaurant.

His master arrived, close at his heels, but not in time to prevent the dog from leaping on the stranger again and hurling him to the floor. The whole restaurant was in an uproar at this abominable attack upon a harmless man. There were threats to kill the unaccountably murderous Bristol.

But Perrichon knew the mastiff had never behaved this way before, and he felt there was some reason for his doing so. Acting on his own intuition and on faith in the mastiff's instincts, he turned to one of the several policemen who had been attracted by the din and who had rushed into the restaurant.

"That man is my father's murderer!" young Perrichon told the sergeant of police, pointing to the disheveled stranger whom Bristol still struggled to get at. "I demand his arrest."

So calmly authoritative was the speaker that the police sergeant supposed he must have some new and important bearing on the mystery. Accordingly, the officer walked up to the stranger and placed him under arrest.

Vehemently the man protested his innocence, and declared he had not even heard of the case. He was carried to police headquarters, along with Perrichon and the avenging mastiff. There, as a matter of formality, the stranger was searched by the police, though he strove in every way to prevent the search.

In his pockets were found the dead merchant's watch and two rings which had been stripped from the murdered man's fingers by the slayer. Confronted by this damning testimony against him and put through a vigorous third degree, the man broke down and confessed to killing and then robbing Perrichon, and riding away on his horse.

But, to the last, he denied any knowledge of having seen Bristol before. Nobody knows how the dog recognized him so unerringly and so vengefully as his master's assassin, nor where Bristol had spent the several days of hunger and ill-usage which intervened between the killing of Perrichon and his return home.

A. A. A. CLUBS WILL GIVE COOPERATION TO ALL HOSPITALS

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The first gun in a nation-wide campaign to improve the standard of treatment given the victims of automobile accidents was fired here, when the American Automobile association emphasized the possibility of reducing deaths from automobile accidents by cooperation of their organization with other organizations established to improve the care of the injured.

In a sweeping statement issued over his signature, Thos. P. Henry, president of the national motoring body, served notice that the national association and its 1047 affiliated motor clubs would from now on campaign as actively for "safety afterwards" as they have always done for "safety first."

The A. A. A. executive cited the findings of the research committee of the board of traumatic surgery of the American College of Surgeons as authoritative and incontrovertible evidence of the imperative need for reform in the treatment of the injured. This is a great national organization of leaders in the medical profession and hospital world that has already undertaken measures to reduce infections, shorten periods of disability and especially to lessen mortality.

THE SERPENT IN THE HOUSE

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

I suppose it was because of Adam's experience that I was always afraid of snakes. I forget just exactly how many years it was that a serpent made trouble for this ancestor of mine, but I know that heredity is a powerful force. I was afraid of snakes before I had ever heard of a rattlesnake or a cobra, before even I knew they could bite. I remember one time I saw a boy pick up a grass snake by the tail, and with a quick flip of the wrist snap the creature's head off. I admired the exploit extravagantly, and the next time I saw a grass snake I tried to do it myself. But as soon as I had picked the reptile up it turned its head up and gave me a dirty look, at the same time thrusting its tongue out and waving it menacingly from side to side. My arm fell to my side as if paralyzed, and the snake scuttled safely to cover.

But as I grew older, and finally bought a small place of my own I began to learn that there are snakes and snakes, and that some of them are not to be trod upon without getting messy and backbiting, others not only are harmless but are really the friends of man. At the suggestion of a man who knows all about snakes I watched one of the garter variety work in the garden. He would slip easily from one plant to another, dart out his tongue and whip it back into his mouth, laden with aphis or gnats or brown tailed moths or whatever other parasites happened to be lurking on my vegetables. He did it so deftly and so thoroughly that I was deeply grateful to him, and made arrangements to keep him with me as long as he would remain.

These arrangements consisted in putting out small saucers of milk for him every morning, so that he would not get discouraged when there were few insects about and leave the place. The milk had to be doled out in extremely minute quantities, for I discovered that if he got plenty of it he would go off patrol in the garden, and lie sunning himself on a rock while the bugs continued their devastation among the cucumber and tomato vines. By experimenting I learned the exact amount of milk he could take without becoming sated, and that was the quantity he received every day.

By and by there came one of those cold rainy spells which often appear just as you get your garden coming along nicely. My garden was unusually thrifty because of the activities of my insect exterminator, and it did pretty well even in the rain and cold as a consequence. Besides, the weather kept the insects in their homes, so they did little damage. But one morning when I went out for an inspection I discovered that the snake was not in his favorite haunts, and did not come slithering out to get his milk. Day after day I went forth to search for him, but all in vain. Finally I learned from a neighbor that he had taken refuge in his cellar for the time being. The neighbor didn't care for snakes and he said he had pursued my pet several times with the intention of doing him to death, but that the prey had always slipped into a crack in the wall and escaped.

My wife found her standing on the head of the bed, balancing herself by hanging to the curtain near by.

I begged him to desist, assuring him I would remove the animal if he were pointed out to me, and he cheerfully agreed. So the next day I went over there with a saucer of warm milk which I deposited on the spot where the snake was last seen. I secreted myself behind the wall of a coal bin, and waited. In a few minutes I saw a small head emerge from a chink in the foundation, and presently Cain—for so I had named my little garden defender, writhed forth and began to lap the fluid. In an instant I had him by the nape of the neck and bore him dangling and squirming to my own cellar. I meant to keep him there till the return of bright, sunny days, and then put him to work in the garden again.

Our cellar has recently been made rat-proof, so I was sure that Cain could not get away. Moreover, there was no reason why he should want to get away, for the cellar was warm, and he got plenty of milk every day. This time I gave him all he wanted, for I felt sure that if he was kept fed to repletion that he would have no desire to go forth and forage. And he hadn't. Only he developed a curiosity about the establishment he was in which led to complication.

A friend of mine who is not over-temperate came to spend a week-end a few days after Cain was installed in the cellar. The night he arrived, Cain, feeling an urge to see something of the new world he was in slipped upstairs and under the kitchen door, and at last made his way to the guest room. I don't know how he got up on the bed, but he did. There was quite a bit of trouble about it, chiefly arising from the fact that my guest, who had been only a little alarmed by the arrival of the snake on his chest, refused to believe that I had not put him there as a terrible lesson. He is not a man who likes his friends to criticize his habits or to try to reform him. He packed up that night and left, and I have not seen him since, but I have heard from mutual acquaintances that he thinks I am a meddling fool, and that he never intends to speak to me again.

A little while after that a young woman friend of my wife occupied the guest room. I had meanwhile chinked up the underside of the cellar door, so that as I supposed, Cain would have to remain in the basement. But he came up through one of the walls, between the plaster and the clapboarding, and for some reason went directly to the same room. There must have been something in his sense of direction that made him do this, for it was at the southern end of the house, and he obviously thought he was heading for warmer weather.

About four o'clock in the morning I was awakened by a terrified shriek, followed by loud and breathless calls for help. The young woman besought my wife to come to her assistance. I wanted to come too, thinking there must be a burglar in the place, but she would not have it so. My wife found her standing on the head of the bed, balancing herself by hanging to the curtain nearby.

Cain was coiled up on her bed, apparently sound asleep. How he managed to slumber through the outcry the guest was still making I did not understand till a few days later when I remembered there is an expression about "deaf as an adder." Going back over my experience I could never recall a snake with ears. I suppose they were all deaf.

Fortunately the weather grew warmer in a day or so, and Cain was restored to his insect patrol. He is out there now, and I fancy that from my window I can see him darting here and there and lapping the bugs off the vines. The vegetables promise to be bigger and better than ever this year, and I shall gratefully remember that he deserves all the credit for it. But next time we have a cold spell I am going to build a shelter for him in the garden and put a gasoline heater in it. I can't have him around the house.

Buyers Can't Be Wrong

-a Successful Six now winning Even Greater Success

When the Pontiac Six was first introduced less than two and a half years ago, immediate buying enthusiasm was aroused. The public accepted the statement of General Motors and Oakland that here was a new car offering six-cylinder value never before enjoyed at such low price. 75,000 Pontiac Sixes sold in 1926 established a world's record for a new make of car. Sales for 1927 carried the total of satisfied Pontiac owners beyond the 200,000 mark.

And now, even if its unrivaled value could not be proved by comparison with other cars in its field—even if its superiority could not be demonstrated by scores of advanced features combined in no other low-priced six—even if all its claims to leadership were based on generalities—you could still buy the Pontiac Six with complete confidence . . . for 200,000 buyers can't be wrong!

The wonderful enthusiasm of Pontiac owners for their cars seems actually to increase with every passing day. These owners have established its enviable reputation for long life and unfaltering reliability. They are the final judges of its smoothness, snap, style and speed.

If you want to know the truth about the Pontiac Six, go to any owner in town. And if you hear praise almost too enthusiastic to believe, remember that 200,000 owners will tell you substantially the same story!

2-Door Sedan, $745; Coupe, $745; Sport Roadster, $745; Phaeton, $775; Cabriolet, $795; 4-Door Sedan, $825; Sport Landau Sedan, $875. Oakland All-American Six, $1045 to $1265. All prices at factory. Delivered prices include minimum handling charges. Easy to pay on the liberal General Motors Time Payment Plan.

TIMES BOOK REVIEW AND LITERARY LANTERN

The Literary Lantern

The Literary Lantern burns weekly in the Sunday Times and is intended to throw light on writing around and about the South. Communications for this column should be addressed to the Editor of the Literary Lantern.

One of the most encouraging signs of a vital intellectual life in the South seems to us to be the multiplication of good book pages in southern newspapers. Of course we can not at this moment name them all, but the work of John McGinnis on the Dallas News, of Stanley Babb on the Galveston News, of Edwin Bjorkmann on the Asheville Times, of Donald Davidson in the Nashville Tennessean (this page appears in two other Tennessee papers,) of W. E. Ellis in the Charleston Post and of other critics and book reviewers, not to speak of this venerable column, must in the end do something toward raising the number of books read and sold. The publishers, it is true, still shake their heads over the situation, and certain states are notoriously poor book buyers. Yet book stores slowly increase in numbers and competence, and it would seem as if the level of civilized literacy were going up. Indeed, by and large, we wouldn't be surprised if better book reviewing is not done by southern book pages than is displayed in certain New York newspapers and magazines where the tendency to scratch the other fellow's back is well-night irresistible. The truth is, New York is too provincial to know its critical limitations.

Moreover there are other encouraging signs. Among the 40 notable American books of 1928, selected by the American Library association for the League of Nations, we discover Edwin Mims' "The Advancing South," N. N. Puckett's "Folk Beliefs of the Southern Negro," Paul Green's "The Lonesome Road," "The Intimate Papers of Colonel House," Hervey Allen's "Israfel; the Life and Times of Edgar Allan Poe," J. W. Krutch's "Edgar Allan Poe; a Study in Genius," and Albert Jay Nock's "Jefferson." That is to say, out of 40 books three are by southern authors, and seven are on a southern subject. Again, 13 university presses have combined to issue a catalog of their best publications, called "Shelfward Ho!" Of these university presses one is British. Of the remaining 12, seven are in the East, one is in the Middle West, two are in California, and two—the University of North Carolina Press and the Duke University Press—are in the South. Except for the University of Chicago, no university press west of Philadelphia as far as the Pacific coast was thought worthy of inclusion, but the South rates two. We think that is pretty good.

We could point to other signs. The programs of the Louisville Arts club come regularly to our desk, and they indicate a healthy patronage of the arts. The Poetry Society of Louisiana has just awarded a general prize of $100 to Miss Kathryn Peck of Hollywood for "The King of Jazz," and the list of honorable mentions indicates a national interest in the contest, judged, as it was, by Mrs. Karle Wilson Baker of Texas, Donald Davidson of Tennessee and Addison Hibbard of North Carolina. Alabama seems to be undergoing a kind of literary renaissance, one guesses from the activities reported in Birmingham and elsewhere. The MacMillan company, despite our disparaging remarks on southern poets of a few weeks ago, is publishing "The Lyric South" by the indefatigable Addison Hibbard (who also writes for "Creative Reading")—a collection of the best in southern contemporary verse. In addition all the old foci of literary interest seem to be prospering, and if we do not speak again of Charleston, Chapel Hill, the Tennessee group and others, it is because our readers are familiar with these localities. Only New Orleans seems not to have produced a great deal since the extinction of "The Double Dealer."

Of course this is not the whole story. Picking up "American Universities and Colleges" (Scribners), edited by David Allan Robertson for the American Council of Education—an invaluable compendium of collegiate information—we note with pride the long and honorable record of a number of southern colleges, but when we compare their intellectual histories and their endowments and expenditures with similar institutions elsewhere, the record is not so good. Or again, reading Grant M. Overton's "The Women Who Make Our Novels" (Dodd, Mead), a revised version of a useful and popular book, we observe that of the 63 ladies discussed, only a dozen are associated with the south, and of this dozen Mr. Overton finds only five worth extended discussion—Ellen Glasgow, Mary Johnston, Frances Newman, Julia Peterkin and Elizabeth Madox Roberts. Mr. Overton quotes with approval Ellen Glasgow's remark that what the south needs is "more blood and irony." Perhaps. Certainly it would seem, given the culture and literary interests of southern women, that their contribution should be quantitatively and qualitatively greater.

We shall come to Frances Newman's new book next week or so, but in the meantime we have three or four novels, southern in theme, on which we think we should report. The first is Alan LeMay's "Old Father of Waters" (Doubleday, Doran), which, without being more than an ordinary novel, has a good many interesting points. The story is the tale of Arnold Huston, a steamboat captain on the Mississippi in the fifties of the last century, and relates his adventures and misadventures with steamboats, women and business partners. We do not regard the book the "epic of the Mississippi" which somebody called it, but the story of Huston's gallant and foredoomed struggle to succeed has its thrilling moments, especially the great steamboat race between his own boat and that of his enemy, ending in a boiler explosion on one of the vessels—which one, we shall not divulge. The atmosphere of old New Orleans and of the river generally is well given, and the book has moments of vivid writing and sufficient character drawing.

Much less satisfactory is Clement Wood's "The Shadow from the Bogue" (Dutton), a mystery story beginning with a snake bite in Greenwich Village and ending with a klan exposure in Louisiana. Based obviously on the infamous Mere Rouge case, the volume labors to be thrilling without ever quite succeeding, because one is sure from the first that the hero is perfectly safe in the arms of the novelist. The blurb on the jacket speaks of a "weird, appalling drama." Well, we like to be appalled, but we just weren't. There is a difference between having a book to write and having to write a book, and it would appear that the author resolved to climb aboard the mystery-tale bandwagon while the going was good.

We read Stella Colby Meeker's "The Parson's Mountaineers" (Frederick H. Hitchcock) with faint and mixed emotions. The admirable intention of the book is to paint lovingly the work of a minister among the mountain whites of Kentucky or Tennessee—we are not sure which. But the author is so set on being didactic, and withal there is so much undistinguished conversation in the book that we had to battle our way to get through it, and we gave out completely on page 130. Our emotions were mixed because the sincerity of the writer is apparent. But the execution is too naive for good fiction, and not direct enough for a social document, and perforce we must write the book down a failure. We are sorry, too.

We observe that Edwin Bjorkman's admirable "Gates of Life," sequel to "The Soul of a Child," has been brought out by Knopf in the equally admirable Borzoi Pocket Book series. We have also received, and we commend, the dramatic version of "Porgy" by Dorothy Heyward and DuBose Heyward (Doubleday, Doran). Comment on the merit of the play, in view of the admiration it has received, would be superfluous. Our spies in Birmingham report that Octavus Roy Cohen is "very boyish-looking" and that Edgar Valentine Smith, the short story writer, is admired by all the ladies; whence we gather that literature is looking up in those parts.

APRIL
By Edwin B. McElfatrick
The garden's patched with daffodils,
The blackbird's in the trees,
The scent of the smoke of sassafras
Is sweet as a rose to me.

The kildee screams in the meadow marsh,
The streams down the mountain start—
Oh, it's April in the wood and hills,
And it's April in my heart!

"Men Judge Women Harshly," Is Theme of "The Single Standard"

Reviewed by Mabel Carter

"Never forget that men judge women harshly. They expect more of women than they dare expect of themselves. They are broad-minded nowadays about women because they have to be, because their flesh drives them, because times have changed, because women have won a measure of freedom. But underneath, men judge women harshly. Some day you, too, may have cause to fear that judgment. You have a son. As long as women are mothers, there can never be a single standard." The logic is the ultimate decision arrived at by Adele Rogers St. Johns, author of the ultra-modern story "The Single Standard," which created a great amount of comment when it was presented to the public in serial form in the Cosmopolitan magazine.

Miss St. Johns, who is described as a critic and prophet of youth, tells a powerful and dramatic story in the history of Arden Stuart, leading character in her new novel.

In the first chapter of the book, Miss St. Johns says, "There is no use attempting to deceive you about Arden Stuart. The only thing in the world that really interested her was men. And that, of course, gives you instantly a picture of a languorous dark lady, or an angel-eyed blonde playing Circe amid scented cushions."

But Arden Stuart was not like that. She is described as a slim little thing, mostly eyes. The color of her eyes seems doubtful. They ranged from blue to golden gray, very much according to the mood she was in. She is further described as a chameleon where love is concerned. Whatever coat she rested upon in love, she instantly took its color. She was not given at all to scented cushions, but her swimming and diving were said to be little short of marvelous. She is honest, courageous and independent, and as much of our day as radios and bobbed hair. "Nothing in her called for secrecy, nor did the world demand it of her. And she was certainly not unmentionable—she was flamingly popular, sought after, admired. There was tremendous wit in her, she understood the art of conversation, she knew people, she was amusing and distinguished."

Arden Stuart stood at last where few women have ever stood. Face to face with the wholly abstract question of virtue, of righteousness for the sake of principle, of sheer moral integrity unforced by any consequences, of whether women are, after all, any different from men.

She loved passionately and loved, or thought she loved, several men. She lived passionately. Deceived by one man, she nevertheless found herself ready to give to another—only to learn a new and perhaps more bitter lesson. Thus, burned and purified by the fire, she struggled unflinchingly to a more complete understanding of the meaning of life and womanhood. The story is a true picture on the vehement canvas of modern life.

Something of the nature of the woman and her viewpoint, around whom the entire story revolves, is gained in a dialogue between her and her brother, when in speaking of love she says, "If I were in love, I'd want something—something—I hate half-things. I'd want something vital, something exciting." "What do you mean by half-things? Talk English, kid," the brother replies. "I mean just that. I hate half-things—half gods, half loves, half measures. I think they're the worst things in life. They don't mean anything. I'd rather be an ace even in badness. This—this piddling around, like most people do. What's the use of it? You never get anything out of life that way. I want the cup to be full, whatever it's full of. I'd rather suffer like hell one time and enjoy like heaven the next than to go along forever half and half. Never getting to the peaks. I'm not afraid. Wouldn't you?"

At another time she says: "Why should women be different from men. If you do a man's work in the world, carry your end of whatever it is, play the game square, pay your taxes, never let a friend down, vote as near right as you can, why aren't you just the same as a man?" Her brother answered, "Because you are mothers." However the heroine was unconvinced. She was honest in her belief that she could live her life as she saw fit. She was honestly in love and out of love with first one man and then the other, and where she gave her love, she was strictly on the square. The one in favor was her man. But according to her own statement, "she just couldn't be true to one man," she was not a one man's woman.

Arden Stuart married a good man, Tommy Hewlett, one whom she respected and selected as a good father for her children. She had come to the conclusion that perhaps she owed it to her mother and brother, and her brother's wife and baby, to marry and lead a conventional life. Tommy was also a good friend of her brother's. In fact, he had always been in and out the house, just like a member of the family. For the first year she went about her business in a business-like way, that was to make a good wife for her husband, and she knew men. She succeeded to the fullest extent. She conceded that Tommy was sweet and fine. But none of these things makes a woman love a man and she finally faced the facts that she was decidedly unhappy and discontented—she had too much peace and she loathed peace. She wanted love with all its anguish and its brief pleasures and beauties—its long-suffering and its terrible hurts. But when in the last chapter of the story she decides after much mental anguish, to go again to the South seas on the "All Alone" with Packy Cannon, whom she decided after all was the one man whom she really loved, she had not reckoned with the fact that she was the mother of little John Hewlett and that he would some day be a man. And men judge women harshly.

NEW NOVEL FROM GIBBS THIS FALL

Major A. Hamilton Gibbs, author of "Soundings," writes his publishers from Nice that he is now at work on the last two chapters of his new novel, "Harness," which will be brought out by Little, Brown and company in the fall. Major Gibbs and his wife, Jeannette Phillips Gibbs, will return to their home in Massachusetts this month. "Harness" is scheduled for publication in October.

CAPTAIN JACK TURNS THE TRICK AGAIN IN WRITING OWN STORY

NEW YORK, May 26.—Captain Jack has turned the trick again.

This crack agent of the United States secret service whose exploits have brought him many times on the verge of sensational publicity, has now managed to write the full story of his career as Uncle Sam's most sensational super-sleuth in the foreign service and still conceal his identity. His anonymous autobiography, "Captain Jack: His Own Story," has just been published by the Century company.

C. OF C. MAGAZINE CONTAINS VIEWS OF PARKS AND HOMES

The May issue of the Community Builder came off the press Saturday and will be mailed out to members of the chamber of commerce Monday, according to Miss Florence Jackson, editor.

The cover page carried a picture of a beautiful pool in Weeks Municipal park. The inside cover contains an editorial on "Getting Ready to Live" by Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber.

The leading article is on the proposed city zoning ordinance being prepared by a committee of which W. S. Curlee is chairman. J. W. Chatham, traffic and industrial manager, has written an article on "Motor Bus and Truck Operation."

"Wichita Falls Is a City of Trees and Flowers" is the heading over a layout of seven homes which are almost hidden in trees and shrubbery. Another page carries pictures of some of city's new mansions including those of W. D. Cline, L. H. Cullum, Fred Weeks, J. A. Fisher and C. W. Gilliland.

Industries come in for their share of the magazine. Mora C. Clark has an illustrated article on the pecan industry and the two inside center pages tell of the Greer staple cotton breeding farms at Iowa Park.

Other articles take up the city's parks and playgrounds, the Diversion dam, the state park and fish hatchery and the Memorial auditorium. All articles are profusely illustrated and many new beauty spots can be found in the magazine.

DAVID GARRICK'S DIARY PUBLISHED NEARLY 150 YEARS AFTER HIS DEATH

Somewhere in a hidden corner of England, gathering dust for nearly 150 years, there has existed a diary written by David Garrick. What was its fate after the great actor's death and until it fell into a collector's hands in 1899 remains a mystery. None of his biographers ever saw this manuscript, though Fitzgerald took note of the fact that Garrick himself had mentioned it, and regretted its apparent loss. In 1915, it was purchased in London by Mr. Harry Houdini. Recently it was bought by Mr. Messmore Kendall of New York City, who is permitting its publication. The Oxford University Press American branch is publishing "The Diary of David Garrick," which is edited by Ryllis Clair Alexander. It is beautifully printed on Milton Laid paper, bound in marbled boards with vellum back and gilt top and contained in marbled paper box to match. The edition is limited to 550 copies of which only a small number remain.

"River Gold" Tells of Indians, Pirates and Wondrous Adventure

Reviewed by Winnie West

Gather round, boys and girls, take the Hangman's Oath and you'll hear about buried treasure, right here in the United States, and not in some distant isle—you'll hear of river gold, Indians, pirates, of a one-eyed man with a moon scar over his good eye and the doings of a gambler who plied the Mississippi river in the days of long ago. And last, too, you'll get acquainted with the three youths in the story and be glad that they found what they were looking for and are able to buy their mother that "diamond automobile" which they have promised her.

Mary Paxton has written a lively story in "River Gold," and both grown-up and child will like the narrative in the high sounding phrases of Jud Gracey, ex-sailor, on shore leave, who tells racy tales of walking the plank, of life at sea and in foreign ports.

"River Gold" is a story dealing with buried treasure near Weston, Mo., on the banks of the Mississippi. The chief characters besides Jud Gracey are the three little Gentry boys, Eddie, 12, a jolly lad; John, 9, frail and affectionate; and little Pat, 5, who "just can't wait" for things to happen. Their mother was called to Europe on business and the youngsters spend the intervening time with their Grandmother Neil.

Jud has given the boys a chart which he picked up on his rounds over the world, and a parrot, Salt Peter. The chart is to tell where gold is buried, and the parrot is to help. Jud tells a tale that the two must be kept together always in order that treasure may be found, and Eddie takes the Hangman's Oath and assumes possession of the bird and map.

At Weston, Eddie meets adventure, and is attacked by a one-eyed man with a moon scar. The three boys make friends with Old Pete, an aged Indian, and they make frequent scouting expeditions on the hunt for treasure. Much to the surprise of the townspeople and Grandma Neil, Jud and the boys one day find the treasure, buried underneath a diamond shaped stone as described in the chart. Theirs was a race with the one-eyed man who was also digging for gold, but luck, of course, was with the main characters of the story. True to Jud's tale, Salt Peter assisted by crying "Buried gold, buried gold," as he was supposed to do.

Jud is pictured as a humorous character with a great love for little boys and the story is in conversational style throughout.

"Oh, Jud, you talk so slick. Do you think I could learn that lingo?" asks Eddie after a speech of Jud, who says:

"Before you tows me out to this cache where Salt Peter has his billet, you ought to know that if this one-eyed slobby whale smells any tar, it's may be because he's done his hitch on a rusty tramp below the line, and they'd only took him on to scuttle the coal or shine the bright work. I wasn't present when he got that moon scar, but it's nothing less than a cutlass swipe from some bloody ruction. But I'm going to tell you how this Dutchman rammed my bow."

"River Gold," by Mary Paxton. Indianapolis: Bobbs-Merrill company.

Frigidaire
Preserves Your Food

Let us tell you how a Frigidaire may be installed in your home and paid for out of the family budget.

Crisp, Fresh Salads
Nothing adds to, or detracts from, the appearance of a table as much as the salad. How "dressed up" the table becomes with a crisp, colorful, tasty-looking salad at each place! How forlorn and unappetizing a wilted salad can be!
The occasion is spoiled or made more auspicious by the perfection of minor details such as these.
With a Frigidaire in your home, there is absolutely no worry about whether everything is going to be cold and appetizing.
Your lettuce, ices, fruits, tomatoes, mayonnaise—everything—will be chilled and ready. Many Frigidaire housewives make up their salads hours ahead.
Ices, puddings, gelatines, mousses, parfaits and custards may be frozen in the ice compartments without bother or loss of time.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—It is quite apparent that there is in each of the two parties an area of dissatisfaction with the probable nominee. The dissatisfaction in the Democratic party about the probable nomination of Smith is greater than that in the Republican party about the nomination of Hoover.

SULLIVAN

The question is whether the discontent in either party, or in both, will result in a third party. The answer is that as of today there is no sign in sight which any experienced politician or observer would interpret as portending the likelihood of a third party in this campaign. There is nothing approaching an equivalent of the conditions on the eve of the national conventions four years ago, when it was comparatively easy to foresee a third party, led by the late Senator LaFollette and when that third party actually came into being.

It is possible there may be a third party in this campaign. In the Democratic party especially, the fundamental condition of cleavage exists, which would seem to provide the material for a third party. But the machinery is as important as the material, and the machinery does not exist. If there is to be a cleaving in the Democratic party or the Republican, or in both, the mechanism of it, and the leadership, must arise in the future—and as a matter of practical politics, the time is now almost impossibly short.

The probability is that we shall have a most extraordinary campaign. We shall probably see more Democrats crossing the line to vote Republican, and vice versa, than in any previous contest. But the extraordinariness of the crossing campaign does not promise to include a third party.

So far there have been two suggestions. One, coming from an insurgent Republican senator, Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, is a suggestion only—in the shape of a magazine article in "Plain Talk," extracts from which were printed widely in the newspapers. But it takes more than a magazine article—very much more—to get a third party under way.

The second suggestion is more than a suggestion; it is a concrete gesture. It comes from two Vrooman brothers, Hiram and Carl, members of a wealthy landholding family that has long been prominent in the neighborhood of Bloomington, Ill. Carl Vrooman has some 4300 acres in central Illinois and Iowa. One of the brothers, Carl, prominent as a Democrat, was assistant secretary of agriculture in President Wilson's administration.

The present gesture of the Vrooman brothers, signed by Hiram, takes the form of an "Open Letter to the Churches of the Southern States." Though the letter mentions specifically the Southern Methodist and Southern Baptist churches, it nowhere puts its proposal for a new party on any religious basis, nor does it mention Governor Smith's catholicism. All the reasons given for the creation of a new party are moral, having to do chiefly with prohibition; or economic, having to do with farming.

This letter, addressed to the southern churches, is almost excited in tone, beginning by saying there is a "National crisis . . . so ominous that it is the outstanding challenge of the century to the Christian manhood of this country. Is Christendom without tactics and resource now that the machinations of the wicked are breaking upon it like an overwhelming invading army? In the stillness of the prevailing surprise at what the Al Smith forces have done, and in the daze and stupor of the awful blow which it seems to mean to justice, temperance and the moral laws, can not the God of righteousness bring to pass a rallying of His forces in time to prevent this threatened calamity to mankind?"

Mr. Vrooman's letter, like most of the current proposals for a third party, looks to uniting the South and West. In this case, Mr. Vrooman, having first appealed to the South in the name of moral righteousness, turns to appeal to the West in the name of economic justice:

"The dilemma of the Democratic South is only a little worse than that of the Republican West and Northwest. The West differs from the South in that the southern Democracy is at present only threatened by conquest by Tammany, whereas the agriculture of the Republican West has already been crucified by the Republican party. . . . The one hope of the South and the one hope of the West is one hope. It is in the union of their combined voting power to overthrow their common enemy. . . . I know from personal investigation that the agricultural West is enthusiastically in favor of a bipartisan political union with the South. . . . I have seen flames of hope and enthusiasm arise from vast audiences over the prospect of a union between West and South."

When Mr. Vrooman comes to ways and means, he says, truly, "Upon quick decision and correct tactics much now depends." Mr. Vrooman's idea of correct tactics is that the beginning should be made by the South—specifically that it should be made by the Protestant churches of the South.

"The Southern Baptist Churches alone have a membership of 3,500,000. The Southern Methodist churches have 3,000,000 members. Other denominations are also strong. I have been reliably informed by the highest church leaders of the Baptist and Methodist denominations, that all of their numerous church publications and more than nine-tenth of their 17,000 preachers are not only opposed to the nomination of Al Smith, but aggressively and militantly opposed to it."

As the first step, Mr. Vrooman proposes that his appeal (from which these passages are quoted) should be printed by "as many of the church papers as will—papers with a reading constituency of 6,500,000 of Christian soldiers."

Mr. Vrooman's idea of the second step in his plan is that "as many of the 17,000 preachers as will, should, on a given Sunday, and within the next few weeks, preach with the thunderous tones of Elijah, on the necessity of an immediate coalition between the South and the West to save the nation from perpetual subservience to autocracy."

Among all the talk of a third party this plan from the Vroomans is the sole one that is concrete. Whether it is to be treated as either typical or practical is matter for debate. One of its authors, Carl Vrooman, has been fairly high in the Democratic hierarchy. The plan, in its fundamental part, is certainly typical, in that every proposal for a third party consists of this same appeal to the South and West for union. The part of the Vrooman proposal which summons the churches to action is not so typical, for this does not appear in the similar plans for a third party that come from sources that are primarily or wholly political.

The more important question is whether the plan is practical. And the answer, it is not. All that Mr. Vrooman asks from the southern churches and the southern clergymen and the southern church papers might be faithfully done by them, and still it would not result in a third party.

For a third party that shall have even faintly measurable success, two things are indispensable. One is organization. Not merely organization in the easily attainable sense of a committee with printed letterheads and a list of officers. Not that at all. What is indispensable is organization that goes down into the precincts, that includes setting up in all the little voting precincts a third party machinery equivalent to the existing machinery of the two old parties.

That this is indispensable is known by every person with any experience in practical politics. That it requires infinite pains and much time is equally well known. And finally, it is known by everybody with practical experience that the time is now too short to set up the machinery for a third party that shall function during the coming campaign.

A man who has participated in practical politics from the bottom to the top is George F. Milton, editor and publisher of "The Chattanooga News," who was closely associated with McAdoo's effort to get the Democratic presidential nomination in 1924. Mr. Milton is a McAdoo Democrat, and on the broadest grounds must be dismayed at the prospect of the nomination of Governor Smith. But Mr. Milton knows the almost certainly fatal handicap necessary to be overcome by any successful third party. He says: "As every practical politician knows, national elections are won in the precincts, and third parties have little chance of building up effective precinct organizations."

(It should be added that one of the Vroomans, admitting the difficulty of creating a new precinct organization for a third party, suggests that the third party which he now proposes should consist of a bipartisan coalition between the existing Republican precinct organizations in the West and the existing Democratic organizations in the South. That, however, is equally a dream. The areas where the Democratic precinct leaders in the South would surrender their party standing, and the areas in the West where Republican leaders would similarly surrender their party standing, are so few as to be negligible. In America, no third party has ever amounted to much, no coalition party has ever been even attempted.)

The other indispensable need for a third party is a leader. And in the present case the leader is even more conspicuously non-existent than the organization. If the potential leader were in existence we should all be able to name him offhand. There are some Democratic leaders in the South who are dismayed by the nomination of Governor Smith. There are some other Democratic leaders in the South who, for the sake of their local constituencies, say they are dismayed, but, who, in the quiet of their own reflections, are not unwilling to take a chance and see whether Governor Smith may be able to carry the Democratic party into power in the nation. But among all the Democratic leaders in the South, is there one who would be willing to lead a third party as its candidate for the presidency, who would at the same time be acceptable to Republicans in the West, or who would in either section, and especially in the West, be able to enlist any important number of votes?

Conviction that the Democratic drys in the South, as well as everywhere, lack leadership for a third party, is supported by the fact that they have lacked leadership to make a dry fight within the Democratic party. That the Democrats should be about to nominate Governor Smith of New York is an extremely surprising fact. Nearly every observer and every politician estimates that about 60 per cent of the Democratic party numerically is dry, and about 80 per cent of it geographically. Yet here, apparently, is the party, about to nominate the outstanding wet, with negligible opposition. One chief reason is lack of leadership for the drys. Mr. Vrooman's excited letter speaks of "what the Al Smith forces have done." In truth, it has been less what the Al Smith forces have done than what the dry forces have not done. If the Democratic drys had a leader capable of leading a third party, he would have emerged some time ago, and would at least have "split even" with Smith in the contest for the Democratic nomination.

There are other reasons for the unlikelihood of a third party in this campaign. Usually, third parties count on the labor vote—that was the backbone of the LaFollette third party four years ago. This year, organized labor seems quite well satisfied with both Hoover and Smith.

It is at least subject to doubt whether all of what we call the insurgent Republican sentiment in the mid-West, takes great interest in the fight made by some of that section against the nomination of Hoover. One of the conspicuous insurgent Republicans is Senator Brookhart, of Iowa. Brookhart, in his candidacies for the senate, has probably received a larger proportion of farmer votes than any other man who ever ran in any state. But Brookhart has made speeches against the effort to get the Republican nomination for Lowden or Dawes; he has criticised the McNary-Haugen bill, and he has described the speeches made in the senate against Hoover as the "most unreasonable statement of a condition ever printed in the Congressional Record."

Some of the insurgent Republican senators, notably Howell, of Nebraska, are up for re-election this year, and can have little appetite for a third party, which might affect their chances most adversely.

The mid-Western fight against Hoover, and in behalf of Lowden or Dawes, has not been an insurgent Republican fight in the ordinary sense. It has not been the sort of fight that results in a third party. It has been, rather, a perfectly regular Republican fight, made by perfectly orthodox Republicans, for their candidate as against the candidate favored by other orthodox Republicans. One outstanding leader in behalf of the McNary-Haugen bill, and against the nomination of Hoover, is Senator Watson, of Indiana. Another is Senator Curtis, of Kansas. Can anybody see these two senators leading a third party? Can any one see them uniting with Democrats in the South?

In the Republican party, the condition this year is not extremely unusual. The corn belt movement is better organized than four years ago. But, apart from organization, is there, down in the ranks, as much protest as there was against Mr. Coolidge in 1924, when Senator LaFollette had a decidedly ponderable following?

In the Democratic party, the condition admittedly is extremely unusual. But it does not, at this time, portend a third party.

HOUGHTON DENIES REPORT CANDIDACY FOR SENATOR

LONDON, May 26. (AP)—Commenting on reports from America that he might be the candidate of the Republicans of New York for the United States senate, Alanson B. Houghton, American ambassador, said today:

"It is incorrect that I am going to America to fight for a seat in the senate."

OKLAHOMA MASONS TO REBUILD LODGE TEMPLE

McALESTER, Okla., May 26. (UP)—The campaign of Masons of this city for funds with which to rebuild the Masonic temple closed with a banquet attended by 1000 persons here last night. It was announced at the banquet that $805,195 had been pledged, or 34 per cent more than was asked. The goal was $600,000. The Ardmore area raised 24 per cent more than its quota, or $120,123; Oklahoma City area, two per cent above its quota, or $120,000, and the Tulsa area, 25 per cent below its quota, or $160,832.

THE ILLITERATE DIGEST

By WILL ROGERS — Sunday, May 27, 1928

(Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

NOW I KNOW MY GEOGRAPHY BETTER!

Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers. The other day I had a Gag in the papers where I said that all the Towns ought to have the name of their town painted up on their buildings somewhere, so any one flying over could see what Town it was. You know your Town is not quite as well known to the World in general as it is to you yourself. Of course you imagine that anyone should recognize it the minute they see it. I even went so "Cuckoo" as to say that I would pay for the paint. Well, right there is where I stepped into paint plum up to and over my financial neck. Say, Sherwin Williams didnt have enough to have supplied the demand. I started with an awful poor idea of the number of towns in this Country. Say, I couldent have bought enough paint to have painted even the letters that I got.

Now I sure did mean well, but I gnawed off more than I could chew. Pontiac, Michigan, sent me a bill for 98 dollars. I thought somebody was going into the paint business up there, but when they wrote me the size of their factories that they were putting the sign on I commenced to look, and as I couldn't see the name, it looked like I had been bunked, for $98. I wanted to see the sign from Beverly Hills, but I guess they have got some pretty big places up there. If they got buildings as big as they say they have I am going to fly up there and land on one of 'em some day. The Saratoga aint that big, and all the Navy lands on it.

Now here is Pierce City, Mo., with three more letters in it than Pontiac, and they send a bill for $4.80. It is a nice beautiful little City down next to Oklahoma. You see the nearer they get to Oklahoma the more honest and economical they are. I am going to send them the $4.50 and they raise such fine strawberries around there, I figure one crate of Strawberries received in appreciation will net me maby a profit. Of course if they spill on the way out here, my $4.50 will be a total loss. But I have hinted to Harry Osborne to pack em very good. Painesville, Ohio, wants to use their own judgment in what to spend. Now a town has got to be might patriotic toward Aviation to condesend to paint the name "Painesville" where anyone can see it. The Kansas Chamber of Commerce advised me that as the state was at that time having a "Paint and clean up week" and that would I just mind including enough to paint and clean up Kansas. Now can you imagine me cleaning up Kansas? Can you imagine anybody cleaning up Kansas? Even Carry Nation couldent do it. But I tell you what I will do, I will contribute to clean up "Emporia" and Topeka. I want to make Emporia fit for Homes and not just for old Newspaper men, and Topeka, being the home of both Curtis and Capper, I will help whitewash it as far as a Republican feed trough can be fumigated. I will be at the Convention in a few days and will take care of these towns personally.

Here is an offer from Swin, Oregon. They not only offer to paint the roof, but will do so as soon as they build a building to paint it on. Here is Parma, Idaho, which is far enough North to have felt the influence of Robert Service Poems, and it acted on them as follows:

"On Thursday May third, Our Legion Post heard
Of this chance to head off a complaint,
So we give you our word to assist a lost Bird,
If you'll only come through with the paint."

So I very liberally allowed 'em two bits a letter. By mixing plenty of water with it, and serving, it will do. The Laconing, Maryland, Business Mens Club asks me to send the money, and being Business men they will use their judgment. Well, I think my money is as good as their judgment. Ah! now we are getting down to honesty. Here is Wichita Falls, Texas, with a Bill for only $2.40. See, that the kind of people you will meet when you go to the Democratic Convention in Texas. The minute you get out of Republican Territory, why you see honesty and square dealing creeping in. Its a great little City. They already got the Oil. So I am having them draw on Charley Featherstone, a friend of mine there, for $2.40. San Fernando, Cal., sent bill, but on account of length of name it was deleted by Censor. You know that Town is right here in that wonderful valley of the same name, so I told them "If an Aviator gets that near Beverly Hills, he is not lost."

Here is an offer from Swim, Oregon. They not only offer to paint two bucks. Put up or apologize!" See that's down South with the Democrats, see. No corruption, no scandal, only want what it takes.

Here is one from Ontario, California. "This is a strong Republican District, and if too much oil paint is used, we might be drawn into the Oil Scandal. So $25 will cover everything." See, there is Chewraw for $2 and Ontario for $25. One Republican, and the other Democratic. The Ontario ones only want enough to "Cover everything." While Chewraw only wants enough to paint its name. Huntington, West Virginia, Says they will do what is right about it and knowing them as I do, I believe they will. Its the American Legion and they are generally pretty square. Its the Chamber of Commerce that you have to watch.

Brasstown, N. C., had the sense of humor to paint their name in Public and only ask $10. That's fair, for there is a sprinkling of Republicans in that state, and you can just see the fringe of corruption creeping in. Chewraw $2. Brasstown, $10. Getting a little further North. Tuskeegee, Ala., dont State price. But I know it will be reasonable, and will be in white against a black background.

Can you imagine me cleaning up Kansas?

When Religion Separates

"Dear Zoe: This is Sally asking your advice. I am 18 and never been in love till now. But I have lately enjoyed the friendship of a boy and we are so happy together. There is only one trouble. We have not the same religion, and now he is deep in thought.
—SALLY."

It seems a pity, since the essence of all true religions are to enrich the spiritual nature and comfort the soul, that difference in the mere modes of worshipping God should be the cause of unhappiness!

Every religion should be rooted in love, tolerance and all that makes for beauty and character. Why, then, should it matter so much what outward form your religion or mine takes?

Yet it does make so much controversy and unhappiness.

When this question arises, I always think of a certain family I know where the father is Catholic, the mother Protestant and the five children members of another faith. Yet they have no trouble at all and each visits the other's church from time to time, and they agree to disagree upon the small details of worship.

The happiness of two young people of different religions depends on themselves individually. If they set more store by the forms and dogmas of religion than the essence of religion and what it aims to do, there will be trouble. If they can be open-minded and tolerant, there need be no trouble—unless their families make it for them.

Don't Fight It

"Dear Zoe: I am 17 and work in a factory among many girls and men. I suffer terribly with bashfulness and every one laughs at me for blushing when spoken to by either girls or men. I cannot make any friends at all. Sometimes I get so crazy I could tear my hair and cut myself to pieces. Please help me.—SUE."

The best cure I know for this agonized selfconsciousness and embarrassment is to be absolutely frank about it and laugh at yourself before others get a chance to laugh at you. Nothing is so absolutely disarming as to admit a weakness and discuss it openly and unaffectedly.

One of the most entertaining public speakers I know makes an instant hit with his audience by admitting at the very start that he is suffering agonies of embarrassment and is scared to death.

Everybody within earshot becomes his friend at once, and first thing he knows he is talking away like mad.

Surprise your unkind friends some day by saying:

"Say—I wish you folks would tell me how to get over this bashfulness of mine. I'd give my right arm to stop this fool blushing and stammering. Why do I do it? It must be a disease. I've got nothing to be scared of. But I just am scared. I'm a joke. But at least I can get a laugh out of it myself."

Or something along that line. Beat 'em to it, and you'll all be laughing in friendly fashion together, and they'll love you for your frankness. A weakness admitted is no longer a weakness.

Divinely Tall

"Dear Zoe: How can a girl shrink? I am only 16 and am five feet eight inches tall. I wear low heeled shoes but still am always much taller than the other girls.
—MAY."

Don't worry about it a bit. Carry yourself straight and well, walk as though you owned the earth, dress becomingly, be a good dancer, a good player of games and a good fellow generally.

A tall girl has many advantages in athletics and if she wears her clothes well, everything looks smart on her. Many of the world's most beautiful women are "divinely tall," many actresses are above average height, and many, many opera and concert singers.

You will probably not grow any more, and five feet eight is no taller than a middle-sized man and shorter than a whole lot of men nowadays. A tall person, girl or boy, is apt to have more personality than an itsy-bitsy. Just don't think about it.

The Unresponsive Male

"Dear Zoe: I sent him a Christmas card, sent him a New Years card and a valentine but had no acknowledgement from any of them. Shall I go on? We had no quarrel. He just stopped coming and Zoe, I love him, I adore him and can't go on living without him. He phoned once but I was not at home.—L. U."

Well, sister, oftentimes the girl who hangs on and tries again and again and pursues and pursues, wins out! It's just a matter of whether you can bring yourself to lasso a chap who is trying to escape. Perhaps he isn't trying so hard at that. If he telephoned, you can use that as an excuse for one more try.

Sometimes a girl knows better than a man that she's the woman for him. I've known several such cases. And persistence won!

FATHER OF FRESHMAN ROUTS BOY'S HAZERS

TAYLOR, Texas, May 26. (AP)—When Taylor High school seniors were applying the strap to a freshman on Main street here just before noon Friday the father of the freshman came along in a car and seeing his son in the struggle, waded in with the result that one of the seniors sustained the loss of a front tooth and other bruises. The incident created quite a bit of interest. No charges had been filed up to a late hour.

Occupation Tax Book Of 1900 Shows Many Interesting Entries

Wichita Falls is quite different today from what it was 25 years ago and only a glance in the old occupation tax book in the office of W. R. Hyer, city tax assessor and collector, is needed to prove it.

Taxes, like everything else, have changed in the past quarter century and especially is this true of those that come under the classification of occupation tax.

Turning back the pages of this old occupation tax book, which is worn by the touch of many hands, is nothing less than turning back the pages of Wichita Falls history.

The book is the oldest city record of its kind in existence here, so far as is known. The first entries in it start with the year 1900. There is probably an older book somewhere but city officials are unaware of it.

Names of both individuals, business firms and even shows that were linked with the history of this section 25 years ago may be seen in the book, sometimes in a hand writing that is clearly legible and at other times in merely a scribble that is hard to read.

In the year of 1900 occupation taxes were charged for many more items than today. It was necessary to do this in order that the city might secure sufficient revenue to function properly.

Today occupation tax is charged for shows, peddling, auctioneering, selling of cigarettes, etc. Twenty-five years ago it was charged for all of these and many more kinds of business, such as groceries, furniture stores, lawyers, dentists, wagon yards, livery stables, land agents, draymen, coal and dealers, jewelers, milliners, auctioneers and grain dealers.

Saloon Licenses

One item that is seen frequently in the old records and which is now a reminder of those days when there was a saloon and bar upon every corner and in many cases every other door is the entry for some saloon that had paid $187.50—a year's license fee. It is evident that the city secured most of its revenue as far as occupation tax was concerned from the retailing of liquors.

Another entry in the book that speaks of the "good old days" is the one where someone paid a certain tax for a livery stable—something that has given way before the march of progress.

One of the most interesting items in the book is one listed as "showing bull" for which the man paid a fee of $1. Evidently it was a tax for the showing of either a freak bovine or an exceptionally fine bred animal. This same man, the old records reveal, came back to the city a year later but that time he was charged $2.

The names of a number of Wichita Falls pioneers who did their share in the building of a city that now stands as among the leading in the Southwest appear in the book.

Among these are those of A. Zundelowitz and Otis T. Bacon. Mr. Zundelowitz secured a license in February of 1900 for his clothing and dry goods business. For this license he paid a fee of $4. Mr. Bacon secured a license in that same year for his real estate business and the fee was $2.50. Mr. Bacon was an early day mayor and postmaster of Wichita Falls.

The old records also show where E. B. Goraline paid his occupation tax on February 2, 1900, for the running of a livery stable. Another name that is shown is that of K. Bauch, who is today running a saddle and harness shop on Seventh street, between Indiana and Ohio avenues.

Other Familiar Names

Other familiar names that appear in the book are those of the law firm of Huff, Barwise and Huff, which paid an occupation tax of $2.50 for an 11-month period, and N. Henderson, who paid $2.50 for practicing law for a 12-month period.

The names of circuses, many of them now dissolved or merged with larger organizations, are to be found. These include the Ringling Brothers circus, which showed in Wichita Falls on October 22, 1901, and the Gentry Brothers show which came here in that same year.

Other shows that paid occupation taxes during the early part of the past quarter century include the Sells-Floto circus, Mollie Bailey show, Charley Cap show, Cook Brothers, J. M. Dunbar show, Forepaugh and Sells Brothers circus, International shows, McAdams tent show, Pawnee Bill's show, Sells and Gray, Volder and Rogers and the Younger Brothers show.

There are many other interesting facts in the old occupation tax book which are a reminder to the old timers of the days and times that existed before Wichita Falls became the city it is today—"The City That Faith Built."

Truly, it can be said that this old record pictures in a remarkable degree the wonderful growth and advancement of a city that took its place in the Northwest Texas sun a number of years ago and that has taken an even higher rank in each succeeding year.

OHIO SCHOOL WAR STILL IN DEADLOCK

Students Stay on Strike As Protest Against Board's Action

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 26. (AP)—A conference of school officials and State Director of Education John L. Clifton was called here today in an effort to settle the strike of 150 students of Glenwood High school at New Boston, near Portsmouth, Ohio.

Clifton, appealed to for aid yesterday by two student leaders of the strike, declined to interfere until D. E. Ross, superintendent of the school, and Bernard Higley, ousted principal, had presented their cases to him today.

Clifton told Nelson Slaughter and John Oliver, the two student leaders, that their attitude was "un-American" and did not deserve the support it has received from their parents.

The strike began Tuesday when the students walked out in protest to the board of education's action in failing to return Higley and two other teachers. Parents of the strikers have backed them in mass meetings.

Tonight five students, representative business men and three members of the board of education will hold a "peace conference" at New Boston in an attempt to settle their differences.

Chickasha Cafe Burns

CHICKASHA, Okla., May 26. (UP)—Fire, which for a time threatened to spread to other buildings, destroyed the Blue Bird cafe here last night. Loss was estimated at $6,000.

DURANT

Continues to break all records in production and sales

September was the greatest September in the history of the mammoth main plant at Elizabeth, N. J. October surpassed September. September, October and November surpassed any three corresponding months.

Then came the new Durant models and—

March, 1928, with 9661 cars passed the highest previous record by 20 per cent or 61 cars per day more. April with 11,012 cars passed March by 13.8 per cent or 54 cars per day more.

March and April combined surpassed any two previous consecutive months by 46.5 per cent.

And right now there are more orders for immediate delivery on the Company's books than at any time in its history, necessitating an increase of 20% for May and immediate construction of a $750,000 extension to the great plant at Lansing, Mich.

A total of 15,772 Durant automobiles were built in Durant plants during April

WILLYS-KNIGHT

GREAT SIX SEDAN $1995

More than ever the leader in quality car values

Having long held front rank with America's most luxurious cars, the Willys-Knight Great Six is now advanced and perfected to a degree of superiority which few automobiles ever attain.

Low, sweeping lines are beautifully expressive of the most modern tendencies in body design. Perfect symmetry obtains throughout, from the tapering, aristocratic hood, to the smoothly curving back. Many new colors offer a wide selection of exquisite blendings.

Interiors are spacious, luxuriously upholstered and tastefully appointed, embodying many exquisite refinements of detail which result in true distinction.

Drive the Great Six, and you thrill to performance such as you have never known before—a smooth, unfailing flow of power, silently and effortlessly delivered.

High compression with any gas . . . Engine grows smoother with use

In the patented Willys-Knight engine, two sliding sleeves in each cylinder combine with the spherical cylinder head to form a perfectly sealed combustion chamber.

As a result, the Willys-Knight engine gives high uniform compression—maximum power with velvet smoothness—at all times, at all speeds and with any gas. And the Willys-Knight is the only type of automobile power plant that constantly keeps growing even smoother and quieter with use.

Willys-Knight Sixes from $995 to $1695. Prices f. o. b. factory and specifications subject to change without notice. Willys-Overland, Inc., Toledo, Ohio.

STANDARD SIX COACH

The new Standard Six is the climax of fourteen years' effort—a car maintaining all of Willys-Knight's quality supremacy, at the lowest price in history! Willys-Knight's many superior advantages are now brought within easy reach of thousands of added buyers.

SPECIAL SIX SEDAN

Always popular with experienced motorists, the Willys-Knight Special Six is now still further advanced and distinguished by such modern features as full-crown fenders, window reveals, steel-rimmed roof and beautiful new color options. Truly one of the year's outstanding values.

There was always a lust in the eyes of Shaster—a lust for talent. He had an ear always cocked for the chance voice of some Greenwich Village Trilby.

And one night he found her, trilling softly to a group of long-legged Bohemian-looking men lolling at a table with her in a small restaurant. He could scarcely hear her soft, low voice, but he heard enough of it to know it was the voice of genius.

BY instinct, Shaster was a builder of destinies. Not his own. That particular destiny seemed to interest him very little, except insofar as its influence was to help mould the life of others. He was a peculiarly impersonal man. Big, shaggy, careless of dress and appearance. It was said by those who professed to know, that actually he knew very little about music.

An apprenticeship in his youth as secretary to one of the most famous tenors of the world was said to have supplied him with his knowledge of voice-training. Be that as it may, Shaster, had he the inclination or the aggressiveness, could easily have become one of the foremost vocal teachers of his time. As a matter of fact, he had neither. His wants were few and simple; his scale of living modest to a degree that was frugal, and by nature, Shaster, whose mother had been a Russian, his father Polish, was indolent, even insolent of fame.

His studio consisted of an attic room with slanting walls and a skylight set into the ceiling. He ate there, slept there, talked there, lived there, dreamed there. The wherewithal to carry on this vagabond existence he picked up easily enough.

His fame as a man of astute vocal knowledge had spread and prima donnas and tenors already in the operatic world were glad to come to him and pay him well for coaching. Shaster accepted sufficient of these pupils to solve his budget and for the rest, contented himself with training such pupils as he picked up in his rambles, whose voices, in his opinion, seemed sufficiently promising to warrant future success.

THERE was always a certain lust in the eyes of Shaster; a lust for talent. He was forever exploring, sitting back in the mean cabarets and music-halls of his neighborhood, with an ear cocked for the chance voice of some Greenwich Village Trilby.

He loved these exploring expeditions. He liked to sit quietly, unobserved, at an obscure table, listening intently to every sound of melody that came his way. Forever hoping to discover some Village Trilby.

He found her one night, sitting at a table in a small restaurant called the Blue Egg. She was trilling softly to a group of long-legged Bohemian-looking fellows who were lolling at the table with her. Her voice scarcely rose beyond the table itself, but enough of it came over to Shaster to convince him of its potential qualities.

Two days later, she began her training with him in the attic studio. In a way, the conditions were ideal.

Her name was Paula Pertensen. She was as poor as a church-mouse, unencumbered and ambitious. She had been born in Chautauqua and looked like a de Medici. She was American two generations back, and had Spanish eyes and hair.

Paula was ambitious. Hoped with high hope that her voice would lead to a future. At first surprised at the interest of the ardent, eager lover of music, she soon grew to accept his ambition for her as she accepted her ambition for herself. It was something bigger, greater than they were. Something that pushed them on.

FOR three years Shaster and the girl Paula worked together. She was as frugal in her desires and needs as he was. She bore the punishment of his stern routine, flagellating methods, long relentless hours, vicious criticism lightly, and seemed to cry out for more. She appeared at his studio at nine o'clock in the morning and remained there until ten o'clock at night. When other people came in for lessons, Paula retired behind a screen and waited. Then sometimes, when one of the pupils failed to appear, there she was waiting and eager and greedy for the additional time that Shaster had to divert to her.

They lived music, they talked it over the frugal meals they shared in the studio. Those who later claimed to have knowledge of the situation, said that Paula was a little parasite. That she had fastened herself to the musical erudition of Shaster, greedily and relentlessly. She kept after him for facts, facts, facts about things musical.

At the end of the third year, it was virtually true of Shaster that he had one interest in life, one dream, one hope—Paula. Some people said he was in love with her. He knew better. He was in love with her voice, as under his stern tutelage it took on florid and beautiful proportions. He was in love with her voice and Paula was in love with him.

At first Paula had been too astounded at his interest in her voice to think or wonder much at his interest in her—if he was interested in her. She did not know. But gradually she had grown to love him.

Every word that he spoke, whether of praise or admonition, was doubly worthy because he spoke it. She treasured his praise as she would never treasure the praise of the multitude. She loved his shabbiness, his pure, keen passion for the best that was in her voice, his sternness, his adoration of the growing, increasingly beautiful voice that her body held captive.

INEVITABLY, there came the striking of Paula's hour. She was granted her audition. She was engaged on the spot. She was given a coveted role in Opera her very first season. Her initial appearence in it was an ovation. She was made overnight. And not in a minor or ephemeral way. She was a first-rank success. She was important. She had magnificently arrived.

Overnight, as it were, she was swept out of the world of the attic studio into all the paraphernalia, the flare and the glare, the pyrotechnics of the life of a diva. And with her, of course, Shaster. As the creator of this song-bird, he became the mecca and shrine of thousands of aspirants for operatic success. He was invited to head the vocal departments of important music schools. Prima donnas came begging his criticism of their accomplishment. He became, over the same night that had swept Paula into the maelstrom of success, the most important figure in his particular profession.

THERE followed two years of the elaborate, bewildering pandemonium of acclaim. It was impossible to withstand the importunings of Paula. She needed him there those two years at her elbow to coach her in the exacting roles of the Opera and to keep the beautiful instrument of her voice in shape. And Shaster stood by.

Stood by when she needed him. Ready with criticism as honest and biting now that she had a world at her feet as ever it had been in the old days back in their attic. Ready with generous praise. With loyal friendship. Ready with everything that Paula wanted—except the one thing she wanted more than all else.

There came a time when Paula, emboldened with success, dared to admit to Shaster her love for him. Throughout all the years of the kind of intimate relationship that poverty enforces, there had never been between these two, a word of love.

It was a revelation that embarrassed the bewildered and pained Shaster beyond anything that had ever happened to him. The spectacle of the beautiful, powerful and successful Paula sobbing out, on her knees before him, the confession of her love. And it came at a time, too, that made the situation all the more heart-breaking because, the very day that it happened, Shaster had been making up his mind that Paula must know of his impending return to the attic studio.

He longed for the poverty, the meanness, the barrenness of his attic studio. He longer for the things that attic meant. Struggle and trial and labor, with no sure goal in sight, but with hope and ambition and the urge to vindicate his artist's judgment to prod him on in his long, hard fight.

Longed for them as another man might long for ease and riches. Longed for them as one longs for home or a beloved friend. As one longs for something not perfect, but still dearer than all the world beside.

IT was while she was on her knees in the elaborate apartment that fitted her role as diva, sobbing out to him the pitiful little story of her love, that Shaster somehow mustered up the courage to tell her.

He was a maker of destinies. To participate in them after they were made was not for him. The elaborate spectacle bored him. The finished product palled upon him. Shaster was a creator.

He is back in the attic studio now. There is a young boy named Maurois, a bootblack, in whom Shaster sees great promise. They work sometimes eleven hours a day in the little attic room. The gleam is out again in Shaster's eye. In his opinion, Maurois, under his tutelage, will some day be the greatest tenor in the world.
