Q—Are the new Buddy Holly postage stamps available in Snyder?

A—Yes. The post office also has stamps depicting Elvis Presley, Bill Haley, Clyde McPhatter, Ritchie Valens, Otis Redding and Dinah Washington.

In Brief

Labor unions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor unions scored a rare victory in Congress when the House passed a bill barring employers from hiring permanent replacements for striking workers. But the bill faces a bleak future in the Senate.

The House passed the so-called strikebreaker bill 239-190 on Tuesday over the objections of conservative Democrats, who were annoyed that House leaders pressed forward despite a likely Republican filibuster in the Senate.

"It's such a divisive issue, with no chance of success at all," Rep. Pete Geren, D-Texas, said. "Why in the world are we doing this?"

Some Democrats were also bothered by the timing of Tuesday's vote — which forced them to choose between business and labor — since it so closely followed a tough vote on President Clinton's deficit-reduction package.

Rating drops

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Most Americans no longer believe President Clinton can deliver prosperity or reduce the deficit, but they doubt that the Republican Party or Ross Perot can do better, a Los Angeles Times Poll says.

Only 42 percent approved of Clinton's performance as president and 49 percent disapproved, according to the poll released today. In contrast, Presidents Carter, Reagan and Bush all had approval ratings of at least 2-1 at this point in their terms.

Oryx remains plant operator

Rumors that Texaco would become operator of two gas plants in Scurry County could not be confirmed, and an Oryx official in Dallas said his company would remain as plant operator until Aug. 1.

Carl Huerber, Oryx official in the Dallas headquarters, said Oryx would continue to operate past the 60-day notice given in a letter of resignation to interest owners on April 18.

Oryx Energy Company announced on April 18 its intent to resign as operator of both the Snyder Gas Plant and the Diamond M plant.

Oryx's interest in the two plants have been on the market since October, 1991. Huerber said Tuesday afternoon that Oryx still expects to sell its ownership in the two plants, but that no deals have been closed.

Concerning oilpatch rumors that Texaco would become operator of the two gas plants, Huerber said it would be premature for him to comment. He said owners would meet and elect a new operator prior to Aug. 1.

The Snyder Gas Plant had a 60-day notice, but the Diamond M plant required a 120-day notice before the operator's resignation becomes official.

The two plants employ a total of approximately 65 persons whose employment status has been up in the air since Oryx announced it planned to sell its interest in the two plants and in the SACROC unit.

Oryx is said to own about 11.75 percent in the Snyder Gas Plant and about 35 percent in the Diamond M plant. Oryx's interest in the SACROC unit is 27.1 percent.

Delegation makes final plea to base closure commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixteen members of Congress spoke out this morning on behalf of six Texas military installations being reviewed for closure or consolidation, arguing that their worth far outweighs the cost of keeping them open.

With arguments ranging from the heartfelt to the factual, the Texas lawmakers urged the independent Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission to spare the Texas facilities.

Speaking on behalf of Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio, Rep. Henry Bonilla said: "Closing Kelly is not just a matter of dollars and cents."

"There is a human reason that I trust the commission will consider as well," the San Antonio Republican said. "Kelly is more than a base to south San Antonio. It is part of our culture. It is part of our soul."

Almost half of the Texas lawmakers, who had five minutes apiece to make their cases, focused much of their testimony on

Appraisal, collection reports heard by board

Scurry County Appraisal District board of directors were in regular session Tuesday to hear appraisal and collection reports, including a workshop reviewing the 1994 proposed budget.

In consideration of bids for appraisal mapping, the board elected to accept the bid of Computer Solutions in Snyder for an IBM compatible computer system in the amount of $3,604.

Due to dysfunctional service in the two cables to the city's computer system, the board voted to replace those and add two new ones.

Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler stated the ad valorem collections are going well with Ira at 96 percent and Hermleigh at 95 percent, and the CED collectons are above 95 percent.

After discussion, the board approved March, April and May bills payable.

A workshop was held outlining the proposed 1994 budget of $458,870, with a budget hearing set for June 29 at 8 a.m. in the appraisal office.

Present for the session were Peveler, Assistant Appraiser Larry Crooks, appraisal staff members Lisa West and Toni Shields, County Tax Collector and Assessor Rona Sikes, and board members Bill Voss, Harold Lacik, Walter Stirl, Carl Smith and Ross Carroll.

Lottery sales top $1.7 million here

More than $1.7 million was spent on the Texas Lottery in Scurry County last year, a figure that averages $91.60 for each of its 18,474 residents.

The information comes from a first-year wrapup of lottery sales, as recorded by the State Comptroller's Office.

The first-year anniversary for instant scratch-off tickets was May 29. The state will have to wait until Nov. 7 for the anniversary of lotto ticket sales, although both are running higher than expected, state officials said.

The $1.7 million in Scurry County sales includes $1,250,000 in scratch-off ticket sales and another $442,195 from the Lotto Texas.

The comptroller's office reported that ticket sales statewide totaled a whopping $1.86 billion the first year, including stratch-off and Lotto Texas.

When voters approved the lottery in Nov. 1991, officials predicted the games would shovel $461 million into the state's general revenue fund by the end of the two-year budget cycle on Aug. 31 of this year. The $461 million was surpassed in March — five months earlier than predicted.

The comptroller's office now predicts that by Aug. 31, state revenue will approach $730 million.

Scurry County's $1.7 million in combined sales over the first year tops most surrounding counties. Nolan County had instant sales of $515,000 and lotto sales of $183,908 for $698,908 combined. Nearby Dawson County had $1,071,045 in instant sales and $256,100 in lotto sales for $1,327,145.

Borden County, which has no lotto outlet, sold $20,000 in scratch-off tickets.

Other totals were Garza, $844,946; Mitchell, $704,620; Howard, $4,139,203; and Lubbock, $23,043,436.

Snyder ISD honored for health care

Snyder Independent School District has been presented with an Award For Excellence in Texas School Health for its Spring Dental Roundup.

School nurses Angel Duncan and Chris Bane, RNs, received the award on behalf of SISD at the Texas All-Well School Health Conference in San Marcos last week. The award is sponsored by the Texas Health Foundation and the Texas Department of Health, in cooperation with the Texas Education Agency and the Texas Cancer Council.

Snyder received an "outstanding" for its dental health program. The award includes $500.

Objectives of the Spring Dental Roundup are to increase good dental health awareness among elementary school students, make teaching supplies and toothbrushes available to practice good dental health, and to make parents aware of dental problems their children may have.

Playing a key role in the program are the nurses, as well as Drs. Judith Dunham, Michael Dunham, David Hensley, Jay Kidd

Connally dies

Death marks an end to an era in politics

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Texas Gov. John Connally, tied by fate to a deadly day 30 years ago in Dallas, is being remembered as the quintessential Texas politician known for common-sense leadership and guidance.

Connally died Tuesday at 4:15 p.m. after a nearly monthlong hospitalization for treatment of pneumonia complicated by a lung problem known as pulmonary fibrosis, a scarring of the lung tissue.

He was 76.

"When important people die, you mourn the loss of their influence and their ability to get things done," Gov. Ann Richards said. "Although that is true with John Connally, it is harder for me because of the fact that he was a personal friend."

"He will be remembered fondly by his state and his country for the work that he did and the person that he was," President Clinton said in a statement from Washington. He said Connally had dedicated his life to service to his country and "to the principles in which he so passionately believed."

Connally's body was to lie in state in the Texas House chambers for two hours before funeral services Thursday. Burial was planned in the state cemetery in Austin.

Connally was admitted to Houston's Methodist Hospital on May 17 with a breathing obstruction.

Connally was seriously wounded by the gunfire that killed President Kennedy as the two rode in the same car in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. Connally, then a Democrat in his first term as Texas governor, held the office from 1963 to 1969.

Connally was a key player in the turbulent career of President Lyndon B. Johnson, serving for years as an aide and confidant as Johnson climbed the political ladder as congressman, senator and finally vice president to Kennedy.

His death marks an end to an era of Texas politics marked by the wheeling and dealing made famous by the likes of he and Johnson and former House Speakers Sam Rayburn and Jim Wright.

The family asked that memorials be directed to the Nellie B. Connally Breast Cancer Research Fund at the University of Texas, M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston.

Tickets on sale now for Prayer Breakfast

Tickets are on sale at the chamber of commerce for the annual July Fourth Celebration Prayer Breakfast, scheduled for 7:30 a.m. on Saturday, July 3.

Retired Army General Ralph E. Haines Jr. of San Antonio will be guest speaker for the breakfast, which will be held in Scurry County Coliseum. Tickets are $6 each.

Gen. Haines served in the military for 41 years, commanding cavalry, infantry and armor units at every grade level from second lieutenant through four-star general.

The buffet meal will be provided by McDonald's of Snyder and will include eggs, sausage, hash browns, biscuits, coffee and juice.

Special music will be performed by Doug Fishel, music director at First Baptist Church, and his family. Marie Clark will also provide music.

Lay leader awards from churches throughout the area will be presented.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A successful politician must be flexible --talking out of both sides of his mouth, off the top of his head and keeping his ear to the ground."

We're glad to see the president doing his part to save money.

On a recent night spent outside the White House, the president stayed in a no-frills room at the Comfort Inn in Chillicothe, Ohio.

It was on the second floor and was said to have no balcony, no designer bubble bath, and no telephone.

A spokesman for the hotel chain said the bathroom wallpaper was printed flowers, but insisted the president had a "lovely view of the parking lot."

Don't feel too sorry. It was called a corporate apartment which has a living room and complete kitchen, VCR and remote control.

The room normally rents for $125 per night, but was offered to the White House at the normal $42 government-employee rate. The White House staff thought even that was too high, and negotiated a $40 charge, but didn't have to pay room tax.

For his VCR, the president had a choice of three movies: "Far and Away," "Basic Instinct," and "Grand Canyon." Since the tapes were all returned rewound the next morning, nosey reporters were unable to tell if the president enjoyed any late-night viewing.

Not everything was standard. The hotel gave Mr. Clinton a terrycloth robe, a free basket of fruit and a silk tie. The manager said he hopes it was all worth it, wanting the president's stay to increase reservations. The hotel is still wishing.

Did'ja hear about the woman who sought a divorce, complaining of her husband's constant bad language? "He kept after me all the time, using those four-letter words."

The judge wanted to know specifically what her spouse had said."

Blushing, the wife answered: "Wash, iron, dust and cook."

City lake builders fight court's ruling

LUBBOCK (AP) — A battle over West Texas' two most precious commodities is being fought in the oil field known as the future site of Lake Alan Henry.

City officials and the Brazos River Authority already have spent $40 million buying land and building a dam near Justiceburg. The lake envisioned since the late 1960s would bolster Lubbock's water supply and provide a recreational oasis.

But plans have hit what could prove a major hitch.

In April, a condemnation hearing in Garza County ordered the city to pay $8.89 million to two oilmen who would lose drilling access once the lake is filled.

If that order sets a standard, Lubbock could face an estimated $25 million price tag for the remaining mineral rights under the lake.

City leaders, with John T. Montford Dam 90 percent completed, say the lake budget is dry. Only about half of the mineral rights have been purchased.

"It's a construction project started without all the title work [illegible]," Mayor David Langston. "As an attorney I don't understand that."

Langston, who was elected last year, has ordered a study of why officials decided to start buying the mineral rights in 1989.

Langston and two council members met Monday night in Post with about 20 of the principal mineral rights owners. It was the first such face-to-face negotiation, they said.

Earlier Monday, mineral rights owner Earl Chapman said communications problems have plagued the entire project. Chapman is one of the two oil producers involved in the $8.89 million case that the city of Lubbock is appealing.

"The next thing we know the city says, 'Well we don't have any money so we're going to go through another process,'" Chapman said. "It appears that the wheels of justice will finally grind down and at some point in time they will either take the property by condemnation or they will pay whatever the last thing we go through tells them to pay."

Alan Henry, former mayor and namesake of the lake, said city leaders during the mid-1980s thought the mineral rights owners could drill from platforms.

"We relied on the very best engineering available, and the best legal advice available," Henry said.

Langston, however, said platform drilling has become too expensive and risks the environment.

Roy Roberts, general manager of the Brazos River Authority in Waco, said the water authority began buying the mineral rights after contracting to build and operate Montford Dam. Budgeting for "conflict resolution" was based on an engineer's estimate that mineral rights would cost $1 million to acquire, he said.

It's the city's decision whether pay for the mineral rights, Roberts said.

Another $100 million remains earmarked to complete the dam and build a water treatment plant and a pipeline to Lubbock.

Langston said only a remote possibility exists that Lubbock will abandon a project other cities could use for drinking water, too.

"We are moving ahead as quickly as possible," the mayor said.

Your Birthday

Thursday, June 17, 1993

Prudent management of your resources will be required in the year ahead. You'll have better earning potential than you previously had, but you may also be a bit more extravagant than usual.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Until the funds are safely in your bank account, don't consider it a fait accompli. Something on which you're counting might be unexpectedly withdrawn. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best not to ignore your better judgment today and go along with an individual who has always been undependable or misinformed. Think for yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Irresponsible work habits might catch up with you today. The closet in which you've been stuffing those unfinished projects may finally give way.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might have to explain your way out of a complicated situation if you get involved with the wrong associates. Be discriminating.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be sure your objectives are clearly defined today. If not, you might get off on a bad start and later not be able to correct your course.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today if you get involved in a critical endeavor with others, don't be afraid to ask questions about things you don't understand. Keep your ego out of the picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This might not be one of your better days for being either a buyer or a seller. In each instance, you might impulsively do something wrong.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be very careful as to whom you go for advice today. Someone might give you some way out suggestions, which you could compound into something even more foolish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If your methods and routines are too firmly structured today, they could inhibit rather than enhance your efforts, because you won't be prepared to deal with the unexpected.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A misunderstanding with a close friend might erupt today. If you don't take time to hear what he/she is trying to tell you, it might jeopardize your relationship.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Listeners might not be very receptive to your ideas today. They may either feel you're forcing your views on them or they could think you're a little kooky.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may be harboring some misconceptions regarding something you were recently taught. Before you pass onto others what you think you know, have your information verified.

On May 22, 1819, the first steam propelled vessel to attempt a trans-Atlantic crossing, the "Savannah," departed from Savannah, Ga. The ship arrived in Liverpool, England, June 20.

Dear Abby

Nose Casts Dark Shadow On Girl's Sunny Self-Image

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a beautiful, intelligent 15-year-old daughter. Unfortunately, as she has gotten older and has gone through puberty, her nose has become very prominent. (She inherited her father's nose, and although it looks good on him, it does not look good on her.) She used to be a very happy, outgoing girl, but for the last year or so she has become withdrawn and sullen because she thinks she's ugly.

Although my husband and I have tried to console and reassure her, she is still very self-conscious and depressed, and keeps begging us to take her to a plastic surgeon so she can have a prettier nose.

We want to help her, but isn't she too young for plastic surgery?

HER MOM
IN SANTA MONICA, CALIF.

DEAR MOM: I consulted Dr. Eugene Worton, a board-certified plastic surgeon and a clinical professor at UCLA. He said: "First, the patient must be sufficiently physically mature so that her other facial features can be used in determining the size and shape of her new nose.

"Also, the cartilage and other nasal tissue must be sufficiently mature to lend themselves to surgery. Equally important, the patient must be emotionally mature enough to handle the surgery and recovery period."

Since your daughter is "begging" you for a prettier nose, carefully select the plastic surgeon, and put her nose in his (or her) hands.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have a question that I hope you — or perhaps one of your readers — can help with.

Every photograph I have ever seen that was taken in a photographer's studio shows couples wherein the wife (or fiancee) is standing beside her husband (or fiance) who is seated on a bench or chair.

Who started this? Apparently that was the custom in those days. One would think that courtesy (proper manners) would have the woman seated and the gentleman standing. Why was the opposite the custom in those days? I have been greatly intrigued by this for many years.

NORMAN E. SAVAGE,
HICKORY RIDGE, ARK.

DEAR MR. SAVAGE: I can only speculate that the early photographers positioned their subjects that way. Interestingly enough, the photographs of my great-great grandparents (taken in "the old country") show the man seated, and his wife standing — with one hand planted firmly on his shoulder. Readers?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "The Doctor's Wife," concerning people who cornered her husband at social gatherings to ask for free medical advice, struck a familiar chord.

Attorneys also have that problem. I am reminded of the story about a doctor and lawyer who were out for a friendly game of golf. The doctor complained about the problem of people mooching free medical advice at social functions, and the attorney said, "Hey, no problem; just send a bill to the moochers for a consultation."

"Wow, I didn't think of that!" the doctor responded enthusiastically.

Three days later, the doctor received a bill from the attorney for a "consultation."

Woman pleased with new potty parity bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Denise Wells didn't know she would inspire a new law when she was arrested in 1990 for using a men's restroom at a Houston concert. She just couldn't wait in the long line for the women's room.

But three years later, Ms. Wells said she was "tickled to death" to see Gov. Ann Richards sign into law a measure requiring more women's restrooms in new or renovated stadiums and other facilities.

"It continues to be a problem, and hopefully this will force some change," Ms. Wells said after Tuesday's bill-signing ceremony.

Richards said it was a pleasure to sign the bill "on behalf of all women in the state of Texas, and all women who visit the state of Texas, and all of us sports fans who go into those stadiums with those long, long lines."

"I thank you, and my two daughters thank you, and my three granddaughters thank you," Richards said.

The measure she signed into law will require certain buildings constructed after Jan. 1, 1994, or that undergo renovation of more than 50 percent of the entire facility on or after that date, to have two women's toilets for every man's toilet.

It applies to sports and entertainment arenas; stadiums, including those at colleges and high schools; community and convention halls; specialty event centers; and amusement facilities.

"I think it was long needed," said Ms. Wells, who was accompanied by her sister and lawyer, Valorie Davenport.

Ms. Wells was charged after the 1990 incident at The Summit with violating a Houston ordinance that prevents a person from entering a public restroom for the opposite sex. She was acquitted by a jury after testifying that she just couldn't wait in line any longer.

Although the bill only applies to new buildings and large renovation projects, Ms. Wells said, "Maybe it sends a message to the places that aren't affected .... that there's still a problem."

We've got that hometown spirit and we're passing it around!

Kroeger due to leave San Antonio market

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Kroger Co. officials say the grocery company plans to pull out of the San Antonio area, where it operates 15 stores and employs 1,700 people.

The move comes after Kroger clerks rejected a bid to renegotiate their union contract.

"Kroger expects to enter into final agreements with interested buyers for the sale of its San Antonio-area food stores," said a statement issued Monday by Kroger.

A letter from Cincinnati-based Kroger to district workers Monday said Kroger expects to close the stores in about 60 days.

Local 455 of the United Food and Commercial Workers, representing 900 cashiers, deli and produce workers, late Sunday rejected Kroger's plan to trim wages and benefits to boost profit margins.

"Because the workers are going through hard times economically, too, they couldn't bring themselves to vote for such concessions," Local 455 president Richard Elliott was quoted as saying in Tuesday's San Antonio Express-News.

The clerks' vote mirrored one June 8 by Local 408, which represents about 150 Kroger meatcutters. That union circulated a petition to reconsider its rejection vote.

Both votes needed to jibe to make the votes effective.

Kroger's efforts to cut costs by renegotiating contracts with workers in Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston last month were fruitful, resulting in wage cuts of up to 45 cents an hour in some cases.

Kenny Rogers signs six movie deal

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kenny Rogers says his forays into acting have taught him that he has other creative avenues than singing.

Rogers' hit record "The Gambler" inspired several TV movies in which he starred.

"Here's something else you can focus on, and this is very positive," he said. "Music is great fun for me, but it's not the end of the world for me."

In an interview in the Country Music Association's publication Close Up, Rogers said he has signed to appear in six movies-of-the-week on NBC.

Can you outplay the experts?

By Phillip Alder

After the dummy comes down, you plan your campaign. Sometimes you will devise a complete itinerary. But there will be other deals on which you must take things trick by trick, seeing how the play develops and the opposing cards lie.

This latter scheme was true on today's deal. It occurred during the final of the 1971 World Team Championship, in which the United States defeated France.

South felt confident when he saw the dummy. But, as you can see, the cards lay badly. After winning trick one with the spade king, you finesse the heart jack. East wins with the queen and, let's say, returns a spade. (If he returns his diamond, you must win, cross to dummy's spade ace and take the club finesse.) You win in the dummy and take the club finesse. However, it loses and West tries to cash a spade trick. You ruff and carefully cash the club ace before leading the heart 10. You plan to take a second finesse (the best play in the suit), but West's discard puts paid to the idea.

Now you seem destined to lose four tricks: two hearts, one diamond and one club. But there is one faint chance remaining. Win with dummy's heart ace, cash the club jack, discarding a diamond, play off the A-K of diamonds and exit with a trump.

If East started with at most two diamonds, he must concede a ruff-and-discard, on which your diamond loser disappears.

Both declarers in the world championship went down in four hearts. If you would have made it, perhaps our international team needs you.

Connally's brush with death helped him appreciate life

"By the sheer force of his personality, he brought an unprecedented influence and prestige to an elective office that ... is constitutionally weak." — Julian Read on John Connally.

By Mike Cochran
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — John Connally never escaped the echoes of gunfire in Dealey Plaza but, he said, his brush with death gave him a greater appreciation of life.

And colleagues say the Kennedy assassination changed him profoundly.

Thirty years later, shortly before Connally's death, friends and associates reflected on the tragedy and spoke of his charm, vision, eloquence and leadership.

Says Julian Read, an Austin public relations executive and Connally's longtime friend and adviser:

"I think John Connally's unique and enduring stature and charisma is best evidenced by the fact that even today, without any official portfolio, his presence immediately dominates any room he enters anywhere in the world."

But above all else, friends say, the former governor was a Texan, from his silver mane down to the tip of his western boots.

"I've heard over and over across the country that John Connally represents the very personification of what people envision in a Texan," said Read.

"He brought a new meaning to the word leadership in Texas and, I think, an era of renewed pride in our state."

Ben Barnes, Connally's former political protege and business partner, said the same thing this way:

"He personified what the people of Texas wanted their governor to look like. He looked Texas. He sounded Texas. He exuded confidence. John was something Texas definitely needed at that time."

Connally was in his first term as governor on Nov. 22, 1963, when a sniper fired on the presidential motorcade as it passed through downtown Dallas.

Kennedy was killed and Connally, in the same car, was critically wounded.

"I got hit and Nellie pulled me over in her lap," he recalled 20 years later. "I thought when I was first hit that I was fatally hit. I thought I was dying."

Instead, his greatest political successes — and failures — lay ahead.

"He's handled triumph and tragedy with equal class," Read said, recalling Connally's composure just hours after the shooting.

"He spoke to the television networks from his hospital bed to help assure a deeply disturbed nation about the steady leadership of President Lyndon Johnson."

Johnson was Connally's friend and political mentor.

"And even Connally's most ardent political foes have admired the grace with which he and Nellie handled their bankruptcy ordeal. I think his true grit is reflected in the fact that he bounced back from that calamity ...," Read said.

After the assassination, Connally won two more terms as governor, served as secretary of the U.S. Treasury in the Nixon administration, switched from the Democratic to the Republican Party and ran unsuccessfully for president in 1980.

Connally filed for bankruptcy in 1987 when his oil and real estate deals went sour with the Texas economy in the 1980s. He and his wife eventually auctioned most of their personal possessions to pay secured creditors.

But the shooting in Dallas was never far from his mind, and he often told reporters he deplored the "bad rap" Texans received because of it.

"I was offended ... because of the obvious attempt on the part of some to castigate Texas and Dallas as if we were a brutal, uncivilized, cannibal society down here," he said in 1983.

JOHN CONNALLY

"I resented it then and I resent it now."

Friends say he was depressed and deeply affected but never embittered by the assassination. It did sap his political energy, Barnes said.

"After that, he didn't have much patience with the legislature and the legislative process. He wanted things accomplished quicker. Government didn't work quickly enough for Connally."

He never lost his enthusiasm for Texas, just Texas government, Barnes explained.

Connally conceded that the trauma of Dallas made him more cautious.

"It made you realize in a fleeting second you could be gone, so you really don't have any time to waste, to fritter away on petty things or frivolities."

'Problem Child' again ordered to pay

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The legal problems continue for "Problem Child" star Michael Oliver, who has again been ordered to return $170,000 to the company that produced the movie's sequel.

A jury ruled in April that 11-year-old Michael and his manager-mother, Dianne Ponce, coerced Universal Pictures into renegotiating his contract on the eve of filming "Problem Child 2."

Universal promised Oliver $80,000 for his role as the demon child Junior, but was unfairly made to pay him $250,000, the jury found. It said the young actor must repay the difference.

Michael and Ms. Ponce's lawyer, Robert DeMarco, appealed, saying there was insufficient evidence to support the award. But Superior Court Judge Dzintra Janavs refused Tuesday to reduce it.

Mouton draws flag in bareback riding

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Western Texas College bareback rider Eric Mouton had one of the best rides going in the first go-round of the event at Tuesday's performance of the College National Finals Rodeo.

That is, until the judge waved his flag, signaling a missed spur-out and no score.

"It was a real disappointment," said WTC coach Bob Doty. "It could have easily been an 80-point ride. He drew a national finals horse and rode it real well.

Mouton won the NIRA Southwest Region bareback title for the 1992-93 season.

"Those things happen," said Doty, who didn't agree with the ruling, "and we just have to keep plugging away and try to get as many as we can to the short-go."

In other action involving Western Texas cowboys Tuesday, Benji Fontenot scored a sixth-place 73 in bull riding, then added a 64, good for 12th, in the bareback riding; and Fletcher Tigner posted a 66 on his bull to take 17th position.

Tonight's contestants at the week-long rodeo include WTC bareback riders Travis Whiteside and Thomson, and saddle bronc riders Thad Little and Trey Griffin.

The rodeo features two complete go-rounds in each event, then winds up with the finals on Sunday.

Bulls try to grab momentum

CHICAGO (AP) — Your move, Phil.

Chicago lost its chance for a sweep after Phoenix coach Paul Westphal shook up his strategy in Game 3 of the NBA finals. The homecourt "advantage" the Bulls swiped from the Suns may be the next to go.

Tonight it's Chicago coach Phil Jackson's turn to tinker with tactics and keep Phoenix from evening the series 2-2. But not too much.

"We'll stay pretty true to what our game is," he said Tuesday.

Teams adjust as their fortunes shift. Fine-tuning goes on all the time, especially by the losers. But both coaches downplay the impact of major changes at this stage of the season.

Westphal shifted numerous defensive assignments for Game 3, particularly having Kevin Johnson guard Michael Jordan. Phoenix won 129-121 in triple overtime Sunday night.

"I don't think the (new) wrinkles matter that much," Westphal said. "I think the main thing is the game is going to be decided by the players. That's what happened in all three games."

The Bulls will try to become the first team in the best-of-7 series to win at home. If they do that twice, they will wrap up their third consecutive title Friday night in noisy Chicago Stadium. Otherwise, the series returns to Phoenix, where Chicago won the first two games.

Playing at home "will be an advantage at some point," Jackson said, although he feels visitors are more focused in a hostile environment without distractions from friends and family.

For Westphal, what happens on the court is more important than where the court is located or what plans coaches devise.

"I really don't think that anybody makes major adjustments in the playoffs," he said. "You make a lot of minor adjustments and you hope the team plays better."

Jackson hopes to take better advantage of the matchup of Chicago's 7-foot center Bill Cartwright on offense against 6-foot-5 Charles Barkley.

He also wants to get better passing and more players involved in the offense. Jordan and Scottie Pippen combined for 78 of Chicago's 130 shots in Game 3.

Jordan would like more help from the bench. Chicago's substitutes had 9 points and 20 of the 59 rebounds Sunday night.

"We didn't get much support from our bench, which was a little disappointing," said Jordan, who felt fatigue contributed to his poor shooting late in Game 3, "but the effort was there."

The comment irked backup forward Scott Williams, who had 14 rebounds in 46 minutes.

"It's unfortunate that he would say that," Williams said. "A lot of the guys on the bench pride ourselves in what we do and what we bring to this ballclub."

He knows the offense is geared toward Jordan and Scottie, particularly with the game on the line.

"If (Jordan) is tired, sometimes he might just need to let us know that. Maybe we should step up and go for the shots," Williams said. "We've always been a team that talks on the defensive end. Maybe we need to start talking on the offensive end, too."

Dan Majerle, who guarded Jordan the first two games, said he expects Johnson to get that assignment most of the time tonight.

"I hope I'm not guarding him," Johnson said. "Maybe Paul will try a different look and put Richard Dumas or Danny Ainge on him."

Westphal said the matchups might change, although too much is made of that in finding reasons teams win.

Jordan hit 45 of his 87 shots in the series before finishing only 8 of 20 after the third quarter of Game 3. He is averaging 33.6 points in the playoffs on 46.1 percent shooting. Before this year, his playoff accuracy was 50.7 percent.

"Everyone has tried to make excuses for me, from my wrist, to my knees, to my legs, and some people have said I'm playing too hard or trying too hard, but it's the only way I know how to play."

Gonzalez rips 17th HR in Texas' 6-5 victory

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Juan Gonzalez says he isn't always swinging for the fence as he approaches his major league-leading home run pace of a year ago.

"I don't try to hit home runs all the time," said Gonzalez, who hit a three-run homer Tuesday night off John Farrell to key a five-run first inning in the Texas Rangers' 6-5 victory over the California Angels.

"When I go to the plate, I just see the baseball and hit it hard. I'm looking for base hits and RBIs. That's my job and that's what I concentrate on."

The left fielder drove his 17th homer to left field after Farrell (2-8) walked two batters. One more homer by the end of June would give Gonzalez as many as he had through the first three months of last season, when he led the majors with 43.

"I'm working hard every day, lifting weights and taking early batting practice. Working hard is part of my job," Gonzalez said.

The victory kept Texas only three games off the pace in the American League West even though the club has 10 players on the disabled list. The Rangers already have used the DL 18 times.

Charlie Leibrandt (7-3) took a seven-hitter and a 6-2 lead into the ninth, then gave up doubles to Damion Easley and J.T. Snow.

Indians edge Rotan in first round

SWEETWATER — The Indians got a sterling performance from the mound out of Johnny Pena, a homer from Sonny Cumbie, and a game-winning single by Davidson Burnett on their way to a 5-4 win over Rotan in Tuesday's first round of the annual County Little League Baseball Tournament.

The Indians, Snyder Little League champs, got the winning run in the seventh inning when Burnett drove in Josh Gonzales, who had doubled earlier in the inning.

Pena went the distance, ringing up 11 strikeouts, and giving up just two hits and four walks.

Rotan's Mark Soliz was good for nine Ks and no walks. He was touched for seven hits by the Snyder squad.

The Tribe moved to within 4-3 after Rotan's 4-run second, when Banks Alexander singled and came in on Gonzales' first of two doubles. Brian Gordon drove in Gonzales and scored on fly balls from Burnett and Chris Fields.

Cumbie's fourth-inning homer over the leftfield wall tied the game 4-4 after three innings.

The Indians will face Colorado City, a 24-9 winner over Stonewall-Kent on Tuesday, in tonight's 8 o'clock semifinal matchup.

In the tourney's 6 p.m. semifinal tilt, Sweetwater, which downed Hamlin 22-0 on Monday, will battle Anson, an 8-1 winner over Merkel in first round play.

The two semifinal winners will play Thursday at 7 p.m. for the tournament title.

Perry makes tourney quarterfinals

LUBBOCK — Snyder's Penny Perry reached the quarterfinal round of the 59th Annual Women's West Texas Golf Association Tournament with a clutch performance against Barbara Hardin on Tuesday at Hillcrest Country Club.

Perry sank an 18-foot breaking putt for par on the 15th and won the next two holes for the 2-and-1 match-play win.

Perry, the defending tournament champion, trailed by one hole at the turn, before her late-match rally.

Perry, seeded No. 5 in the event, was to take on No. 4 D'Lynn Malcolm in this morning's round.

Locals to play in WTMGA event

Snyder golfers Larry Anderson, David Sharrock and Devin Donelson will be among the participants at the West Texas Men's Golf Association Tournament, beginning Thursday at Lake Ridge Country Club in Lubbock.

The 72-hole individual stroke tournament tees off Thursday morning and lasts through Sunday.

The trio will qualify for flighting on Thursday prior to the start of the tournament.

Collier wins championship saddle

Snyder saddle bronc rider Bronc Collier rode away from the Texas High School Rodeo Association Finals with a championship saddle and three award buckles.

The local roughstock rider captured first place overall in his event at the rodeo, held last week in Abilene.

Collier scored a 72, tops in the long go, then added a second-place 65, good for second in Saturday's finals.

In addition, four other Snyder wranglers received honors at the finals.

Bull rider Ross Hataway and roper Dell Blackwell each won $500 college scholarships; Tucker Collier, who won the first go-round in boys' cutting, finished eighth overall; and Deanna Schwarz took ninth in girls' pole bending.

Bronc Collier, by virtue of his top finish in Abilene, earned a spot on the Texas state rodeo team that will compete in the National High School Finals in Wyoming in July.

Texas has won seven of the last ten National Finals team titles, including the last two straight.

Cardinals advance in tournament

ABILENE — Snyder's Farm League Cardinals posted a lopsided 16-1 win over Abilene Eastern's Dodgers Tuesday, to earn a spot in the quarterfinals of the 32-team District V Minor League Baseball Tournament here.

The Cards, runners-up in the regular season, will play an opponent yet to be determined at 8 p.m. Thursday at Warden Field in Scarborough Park here.

Golf tourney scheduled in C-City

The 26th Annual 25'er Golf Tournament is set for Saturday and Sunday at Wolf Creek Golf Course in Colorado City.

The 2-man low-ball partnership costs $100 per team to enter. Registration deadline is 5 p.m. Friday.

To sign up, or for more information, call (915) 728-5514.

DIVISION I

Purple Pros I 20, Red Hots 13

Shelley Fisk slammed a double and a single, and teammate Amber Alexander rapped a pair of hits Tuesday, as the Purple Pros downed the Red Hots.

Hailey Putnam was the winning pitcher.

Stacey Vaughn led the Red Hots with a home run. Loryn Brown tripled, Amber Swan punched two doubles, Magan Riley popped an extra-base hit, and Mycah Hilburn singled.

Sparklers 11, Pink Panthers 9

The Sparklers scored four runs in the fourth inning to come from behind for Tuesday's victory.

Sara Potts chipped in three singles, and Kendra Nachlinger, Dara Chambers and Whitney Criswell each tagged a hit. Chasity Perales was the winning pitcher.

Melissa Jones, Kasey Collier and Ira Gonzales each belted a single, behind losing pitcher Vanessa Freeman.

Angels 14, Thunderbirds 1

The Angels hammered nine hits, including a triple and a single by winning pitcher Sabrina Terry, as the Angels crushed the T-Birds Tuesday.

Candace Gonzales and Valerie Hernandez nailed a double and a base hit apiece, and Jamie Vaca, Brittany Milota, and Carcie Posey each got a single.

The Thunderbirds were limited to two hits, a Tamara Maresh homer, and a single by losing pitcher Katie Voss.

DIVISION II

Terminators 17, Tornadoes 9

The Terminators exploded to a 7-0 first-inning advantage, and coasted to the May 27 Division II win.

Jennifer Salmon smacked a triple and a single, Whitney Owen doubled, Cynthia Fennell drilled twin singles, and Michelle Porter, winning pitcher Brittany Drummond, Kimberly Key, Linda Josey and Christina Holder were each good for a hit for the Terminators.

Tara Lyons was the loser.

DIVISION III

Flash 6, Poison 4

The Flash, now 8-3, jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the second inning, and held off a late rally by the Poison Tuesday.

Katy Walker doubled and Mendy Winter singled in support of winning hurler Katie Potts.

Pepsi: tampering at bottling plants 'virtually impossible'

by The Associated Press

As reports of syringes and other [illegible] spread to more states, Pepsi-Cola Co. confronted a growing public relations crisis by putting the head of its U.S. operations on national television.

The Food and Drug Administration said Tuesday it was investigating at least a dozen complaints, while at least one person was arrested on charges of making [illegible]

Appearing on ABC's "Nightline" show Tuesday night, Pepsi's North American division president and chief executive Craig Weatherup said there was no "logical explanation" for how cans were tampered with during Pepsi's highly mechanized production process.

The cans are typically turned upside down, blasted with hot air and water and then flipped to be filled and sealed, a process that takes seconds.

"That container of that can is probably the most tamper-proof package of any food or beverage product in this country," he said.

Pepsi-Cola Co., based in Somers, N.Y., has said it has no plans for a recall, and federal officials caution that the claims appeared unrelated and many could be hoaxes.

But over the last six days, authorities and local media have reported cases in more than a dozen states, including Arkansas, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Washington and Wyoming.

FDA Commissioner David Kessler, who also appeared on the "Nightline" broadcast, said that a central Pennsylvania man had been arrested on federal charges of [illegible] syringe in a Pepsi can.

Kessler said the man had gone to a hospital Sunday to report the discovery, and later reported it to Pepsi. Kessler did not identify the hospital or the town where the arrest occurred.

Obituaries

Ray Brown

1918-1993

Services are set for 10 a.m. Thursday in the Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home Chapel for Walter Ray Brown, 74, who died Monday in Bedford's HEB Hospital.

Officiating at the service will be S.H. Gillum of Snyder, and burial will follow in the Dunn Cemetery.

A resident of Richland Hills, Mr. Brown was a former resident of Hermleigh. In his early life, he built farm terraces all over the South Plains and in Kansas. He also worked for the Soil and Water Conservation Service in Brownwood. He later worked for LTV in Fort Worth and worked on the construction of DFW Airport.

Born July 31, 1918 in Corsicana, he was a member of the Church of Christ.

Survivors include a son, Curtis Brown of Richland Hills; a daughter, Raydean Brown of Snyder; a brother, Hugh Weldon Brown of Crowley; three sisters; Irene Cotton of Fort Worth, Thelma Mitchell of Anton and Robbie Joe Giannizzero of New York; and several nieces and nephews.

Calvin Davis

1941-1993

FAIRFIELD — Services are set for 1 p.m. Saturday in the Capps Memorial Chapel for Calvin Earl Davis, 51, who died Monday in Palestine. Burial will follow in the Fairfield Cemetery.

He was the brother of Claudene Irving of Snyder.

Born in Post, Mr. Davis was an oilfield construction worker.

Survivors include his wife, Linda of Fairfield; four sons, Barry Davis and Heath Davis of San Angelo, Choya Davis of O'Donnell and Shane Davis of Fairfield; a daughter, Karen Wood of Ackerly; two brothers, Grady Davis of Post and Charles Davis of Palestine; four other sisters, Lilly Blacklock of Caldwell, Helen Thomas of Post, Dorothy Reep of Anton and Wanda France of Slaton; and six grandchildren.

SO works theft case

Sheriff's deputies were advised of a theft and criminal mischief Tuesday.

At 3:50 p.m., Morris Light of 2600 34th St. advised of a theft from the country club shed. According to reports, he had one Callaway driver stolen and two Ping irons stolen. The estimated value of the clubs is $350.

At 10:30 a.m., criminal mischief was reported at Royal Trailer Park. According to reports, somone had broken a gas line to one of the trailers. Deputies said it appeared to have been hit by something yellow and black. Damages were estimated at $50.

Mattress fire extinguished

Snyder firefighters responded to a residence at 2810 Ave. J Tuesday where a mattress had caught on fire.

Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell said damage was confined to a mattress and box springs. The cause of the fire was determined to be a child playing with a cigarette lighter.

The home is occupied by Luisa Rivera.

The fire report came in at 1:33 p.m.

Bases

Naval Station Ingleside. The base, near Corpus Christi, is the one considered most in jeopardy — in large part because of attacks from other states seeking to retain own sites.

"I want to urge this commission to look very close at this session, which is going to grow and I am prayerfully hopeful that you are going to decide not to close this base," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

Scores of lawmakers have testified before the seven-member commission during its three-day hearing for members of Congress, which concludes later today. The panel then jumps into a day of hearings with Pentagon officials Thursday and is expected next week to vote on which bases to recommend for closure.

One of the six military facilities under scrutiny, the Dallas Naval Air Station, was recommended for closure earlier this year by the Pentagon. The others — Kelly Air Force Base, Naval Station Ingleside, Naval Air Station Corpus Christi, Naval Hospital Corpus Christi and Red River Army Depot — were added by the commission last month for comparisor with bases on the Pentagon hit list. The Red River facility in Texarkana is being looked at for consolidation, not closure.

Police note one arrest

Snyder police made one arrest and worked two accidents Tuesday.

Police arrested a 40-year-old male for public intoxication at 10:23 a.m. in the 2500 block of Avenue R.

At 11:34 a.m., officers worked a hit-and-run in the 4200 block of College Avenue where an unknown vehicle had struck a fence owned by Taco John's.

At 4:24 p.m., police investigated a mishap in the 3200 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1983 Ford driven by Saturnino Martinez of 2712 Ave. F and a parked, unoccupied 1984 Chevrolet owned by Herbert Grover of 401 33rd St.

Toddler shot

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A 2-year-old girl was on life support at a hospital today after she was struck by one of several bullets from a drive-by shooting, officials say.

Ruby Castro is brain dead and on life support, Paul Trevino, spokesman at Brownsville Medical Center, said this morning.

Ruby was sleeping in a bed late Monday when the shots reportedly were fired from a white vehicle into her home outside Brownsville, authoritics said.

"She's still alive," Trevino said. "She's brain dead. The family and the physician are going to have to make a decision at some point, based on her vital signs, whether to continue with life support."

Buddy Holly stamp on sale in Lubbock

LUBBOCK (AP) — Hundreds of rock 'n' roll fans milled around a Buddy Holly statue this morning as the U.S. Postal Service began selling stamps that honor the Lubbock legend.

Lubbock Postmaster John Frisby cancelled the first stamp at 9 a.m. and presented it to Holly's widow, Maria Elena Holly Diaz.

"By issuing these stamps, the memories of Buddy Holly along with other great musicians will live in history," Frisby said.

The Holly stamps are included in booklets that feature seven rock music legends. The stamps, which debut today in selected cities, also honor Bill Haley, Elvis Presley, Clyde McPhatter, Otis Redding, Ritchie Valens and Dinah Washington.

Although a Presley stamp already has been issued, the one released today includes his first and last names. The previous version said only Elvis.

Official first-day of issue ceremonies are being held in Santa Monica, Calif., and Cleveland, Ohio. The stamps go on sale nationwide Thursday.

Holly fans in Lubbock stood in line more than one hour before stamp sales began at the postal van near the statue. Some fans had rolled up their jeans bottoms or wore poodle skirts. Bands played Holly music.

Holly's late 1950s hits such as "That'll Be The Day" and "Peggy Sue" still cause fans to tap their toes, snap their fingers and sing along.

"It was such a different approach to music, radically different," said Russell Autry, president of the Chamber of Commerce. "Buddy Holly brought a new beat, a new rhythm to music and he created an enthusiasm among young people that the world had never seen before."

A free concert by Holly's band, the Crickets, was scheduled at noon.

Radio stations across the state were asked to play a Holly tune at 12:15 p.m.

In Lubbock, trolleys began taking tourists to Holly sites including his first home, his high school, the roller rink where he performed and his grave at City of Lubbock Cemetery.

The stamps are being sold in 20-stamp booklets and 35-stamp sheets that include all seven singers.

Pete Allen, customer relations coordinator for the Postal Service, described the city's special cancellation today as a guitar and a cricket whose antenna cancels the stamp.

Post office lobbies are decorated with balloons and paper records and guitars.

"I think Lubbock's going all out," said Bill Griggs, who founded the Buddy Holly Memorial Society in 1975. "Buddy Holly's known worldwide, and now his own country is going to honor him."

Holly scored his first No. 1 hit in 1957 with "That'll Be the Day," a song Griggs says he listens to daily. He recorded 88 songs and two gold records before dying with Valens in a 1959 plane crash at age 22.

Death row inmate dies in hospital

HOUSTON (AP) — Daniel Garrett, one-half of a Texas death row inmate pair sentenced to die for a double pickax slaying in Houston 10 years ago, has died of natural causes, officials say.

Garrett, 47, had been in Lyndon B. Johnson Hospital in Houston for two days when he died about 11:15 p.m. Monday, sheriff's Capt. B.J. Borchers said.

Borchers said Garrett had refused treatment for what he described as an internal hemorrhage.

Garrett had been moved from death row near Huntsville to the Harris County Jail in Houston last month to await a new trial after an appeals court earlier this year overturned his conviction.

Death row inmates said recently that Garrett had been ill for some time and had lost a great deal of weight.

"He had a pre-existing condition when he came to us," Borchers said. "This was not a new illness."

In separate trials, Garrett and Karla Faye Tucker were sentenced to lethal injection for the June 13, 1983 pickax killings of Deborah Thornton and Jerry Lynn Dean.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in January overturned Garrett's capital murder conviction. The same court upheld the conviction of Ms. Tucker, one of only four women among 372 inmates on the Texas death row.

A special program is given to third graders each year with specific activities and toothbrushes and toothpaste kits. Notices are sent home with each child explaining what dental care is needed.

School nurses follow up dental emergencies, and many children are eligible for state funding or Medicaid.

Last school year, 1,926 Snyder ISD elementary students were screened. Some 326 were found to need care and 75 needed emergency care.

"Our health programs for our students are probably better than they've ever been," said Dr. Tom Scannicchio, assistant superintendent. "We realize, as do the state and other entities, that it is important for kids to be healthy in order to be able to learn."

How do you dispose of your empty pesticide containers? Here are some tips, prepared for the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACD) by The Alliance for a Clean Rural Environment, on the safe handling and proper disposal of these containers.

Farmers and ranchers are often concerned about disposing of potentially hazardous pesticides and their containers. Because of tightening restrictions by state and federal agencies, many ag chemical users are faced with the dilemma of how to dispose of the empty containers properly.

These concerns are well founded, due to the potential for well and surface water contamination and adverse environmental affects. Below are some disposal options available in most states.

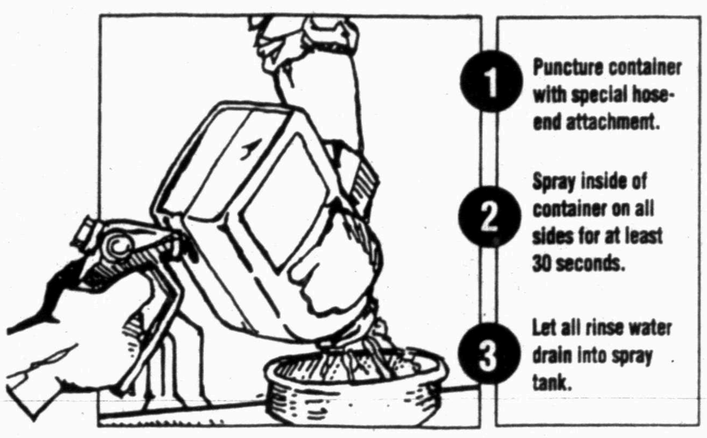
All Trash Is Not Alike

Most ordinary trash in the United States is disposed of in sanitary landfills. However, these sites are generally prohibited from accepting waste classified as hazardous by the federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA).

Since contaminated pesticide containers and waste chemicals often fall into this category, farmers frequently have difficulty disposing of them properly.

An easy solution is to rinse the chemical containers properly. Laboratory tests have shown that proper rinsing results in essentially harmless, 99.999 percent pesticide-free, containers.

Probably the fastest, most convenient container rinse method is pressure rinsing. Special hose end attachments are available which easily puncture plastic and metal containers, producing a forceful spray inside the empty container.



By holding the container over the opening to the spray rig or holding tank while rinsing, rinse water can be captured as it drains from the container spout. Be sure to rinse any pesticide residue off the outside of the container, too.

Manual rinsing methods such as triple rinsing, can be just as effective pressure rinsing, although they are more time consuming and labor intensive.

Disposing of Rinsed Containers

Rinsed according to label directions, pesticide containers are classified as ordinary waste. Be aware, however, that some waste disposal operators will still turn away rinsed containers, even if they have adequate landfill capacity.

States also have jurisdiction over burning and burying containers on private property. While these disposal methods don't violate federal laws, the states frequently apply different rules. For example, open burning and burial of containers is outlawed in some states. Contact your ag chemical dealer for state disposal regulations.

Recycling Containers

Collection and recycling programs are being organized in a number of states as pilot programs. But the success of any disposal or recycling program hinges on the guarantee that only properly rinsed containers will be brought in by farmers and ranchers. Without this guarantee, landfill operators and recyclers, wary of handling hazardous waste, won't accept the containers.

Leftover Chemicals

Applying leftover chemicals over as large an area of land as possible, such as on the field where the chemical was originally used, is a common practice acceptable in most states. Off the farm, however, disposing of banned chemicals or hazardous ag chemical waste is generally much more difficult and expensive. Contact your chemical dealer for more information on chemical return programs near you.

To learn more about the requirements for hazardous waste treatment and disposal, contact the EPA hazardous waste hotline at 800-424-9346 or your pesticide retailer.

TGFA meeting set Thursday

Texas Grain & Feed Association will be holding a meeting to address member needs Thursday at 7 p.m. at Joe Allen's BBQ - The Corral, 1185 China St. in Abilene.

The meeting is part of an effort entitled TGFA100. As Texas Grain & Feed Association enters its second century of existence in 1998, needs, programs and services are being evaluated and repackaged according to the changing needs of the membership.

"Being committed to continuous improvement, the association is leaving no stones unturned," notes TGFA executive vice president Ben Boerner.

The meeting will consist of dinner and a presentation. Following the presentation, discussion will be open to all members and prospective members. The price of the meeting is $15.25 per person.

LEARNING TO LISTEN

Most people think of listening as the "easy" part of conservation but few of us actually listen well. We think we are hearing the other person, but in most cases we are not.

One of the things that keeps us from hearing is our tendency to respond to things said to us by judging, criticizing, or quickly mounting a counterproposal of our own. As a result, we tend to make closed, rather than open, responses.

A closed response tells the person we don't really want to listen. Most conservations are a series of closed responses: the words keep flowing, but little sharing takes place.

Making open responses is an effective way to improve communication. Open responses encourage the other person to keep talking. Being able to make open responses depends on good listening skills. Two skills in particular are useful: active and reflective listening.

Active listening means really listening, not just catching the drift while preoccupied with something else. It means focusing on the entire communication, but the verbal and the nonverbal messages. It means letting the other person know through your nonverbal messages — making eye contact, nodding to them, sitting close — that you are interested in what they have to say.

When listening reflectively, you ask yourself: "What is this person really saying? What is the feeling behind it?" When you sense you have grasped the person's feelings and meaning, you test what you are sensing by stating it out loud in such a way that the person feels understood and accepted.

Good communication is largely a matter of good listening. Good listening involves skill in focusing on the meaning behind what others are saying rather than thinking about what your responses will be.

Rural economy tied to foreign countries

Vast distances separate Fisher County and such countries as Pakistan, Rhodesia and Greece, but a part of this West Texas rural area's economy is linked to these countries through agriculture by a company that manufactures cotton delinting plants.

W.S. International owner Glenn Reynolds said he has contract arrangements to construct up to eight delinting plants worth $6 million for export to customers in foreign countries. However, contract finalization for most of the projects is dependent on international financing through letters of credit.

So far, W.S. International has received letters of credit on about $700,000 worth of contracts for part of one plant destined for Greece and for another plant that is to be shipped to Multan, Pakistan.

"Exports such as these clearly illustrate how Texas agriculture is now operating in a worldwide marketplace," Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry said.

W.S. International employs six, but expects to add another 14 employees due to increased demands for delinting plants from other cotton-producing countries. In December 1992, W.S. International of Sweetwater moved from Loraine and expanded operations to a site located on Farm Road 57 between Roby and Sweetwater.

Since 1983, W.S. International has constructed 19 cotton delinting plants which have been exported to Argentina, Australia, China, Greece, India, Venezuela, Spain and Turkey.

In addition to its export market, W.S. International is working to increase sales in the United States by introducing a new delinting system that uses flames instead of acid to take fibers off cotton.

Cotton gin trash can be valuable

COLLEGE STATION — Drs. Wayne LePori and Calvin Parnell knew there might be treasure in cotton trash, but had no idea their hunt would end up as it did.

Almost two decades after Texas A&M University agricultural engineers began searching for alternative energy sources, LePori and Parnell think they may have an unintended but commercially viable byproduct. In their quest to use cotton gin trash — sticks, burrs, leaves and motes — for fuel, they have found an inexpensive source of low-grade activated carbon, which can be used in filtering wastewater.

The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station researchers have signed a licensing agreement with Cratech, Inc., of Tahoka for the technology.

"It turns out the byproduct may be more valuable than the fuel," said LePori. "Everybody was concerned about energy availability, and we began looking at sources for and from agriculture. Cotton residue just popped out, because there was a lot of it already available, centrally located at the gins."

They envisioned a source of energy to power cotton gins, as well as a way to help solve the expensive problem of cotton gin trash disposal.

After trial and error, they began looking at a process called fluidized bed technology, which involves a container of heated inert material such as sand. Air blown through the bottom of the container bubbles through the bed of sand, which is heated to approximately 1,400 degrees and becomes almost suspended within the container.

Cotton gin trash is then fed into the fluid sand, where it percolates through the sand with the air bubbles. Controlling the fuel-to-air ratio causes the heated trash to give off a combustible gas and leave a char of activated carbon.

The A&M researchers adapted existing fluidized bed technology by developing three new elements to add to the gasifier. Those were a special feeder to move cotton gin trash into the gasifier, a cyclone system that separates the char from gases, and a two-stage combustion system that destroys nitric oxide while converting the combustible gas into energy.

The effectiveness of the technology was proved, and patented as an alternative energy source in the 1980s. However, energy prices fell, and private companies lost their interest.

A graduate student working with researchers did a dissertation on the char and found it effective in filtering heavy metals out of wastewater.

"That nasty black stuff, it turns out, is useful," said Parnell. "Not only are we reducing the emissions, but we have a product that can actually clean up water in a very economical manner."

The char could be a commercially viable product, particularly useful for use in smaller business or municipal wastewater treatment facilities in rural areas where cotton gin trash is located, LePori said.

"Commercial-grade activated carbon sells for anywhere between $1,000 and $3,000 a ton. If we could get $200 a ton for this char, it would make this thing go," he said.

Cratech estimated profits of $3.5 million over the first five years of using the technology, with sales of char and energy expected to begin in 1995. The Texas A&M University System will receive 5 percent of all royalties.

Joe Craig, president of Cratech, has obtained funding support from the U.S. Department of Energy's Western Region Biomass Energy Program and hopes to receive support from a State of Texas alternative energy program.

Parnell said, "I am convinced this technology will be used in the real world, whether it's 10 years down the road or 50.

"There's a limited supply of oil, and this is a viable means of taking biomass waste and coverting it to a usable form of energy, compatible environmentally with the air and water. We're excited about it."

Cotton trash: reusable refuse

Texas A&M University researchers trying to use cotton-gin trash—leaves, stems and other refuse—as an alternative energy source found an unexpected benefit: activated carbon char for filtering water. A private firm estimates char and energy sales will bring $3.5 million in profits during its first five years of licensing the technology. Texas A&M will receive 5 percent of any profits.

Lamb sale is Saturday

Club lamb breeders and area ranchers are being asked to donate lambs from their flocks — whethers, ram or ewe lambs — for West Texas Rehabilitation Center's Club Lamb Sale scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Abilene Auction.

Conducted since 1990, the club lamb sale is a vital segment of Cattlemen's Round-Up for Rehab activities at which ranchers donate livestock to be sold at special sales to benefit WTRC operations in San Angelo and Abilene.

Co-chairmen are John Kearney of Sterling City and Russell Kott, county extension agent.

Big Country area committeemen serving as volunteer coordinators include Weldon Beck and Richard Smith, Hermleigh; Bryan Limmer, Colorado City; Randy Gillum, Abilene; and others.

Persons wishing to donate lambs may contact a committeeman in their area or call WTRC Abilene at 691-7290 or WTRC San Angelo at 949-9535.

U.N. peacekeepers face danger in Bosnia

VITEZ, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Call it a typical day for a British commander in central Bos- [illegible] Balkan terrain where neighbor fights neighbor.

In the morning, Maj. Vaughan Kent-Payne is overstepping his U.N. mandate by helping elderly Muslims escape deadly crossfire in a no man's land where they are stranded.

In the afternoon, he is at it again, this time helping Croats recover bodies of fallen comrades from a trench in another combat zone.

Officially, U.N. peacekeepers are not supposed to intervene in such ways as Muslims and Croats duke it out for territory in central Bosnia. They are authorized only to protect humanitarian aid convoys and fire in self-defense.

But sometimes Kent-Payne cannot help himself.

"If I am exceeding my authority ... I will face the consequences later," said the mustachioed major.

"It's nice to help Muslims in the morning and Croats in the afternoon," he reflected later.

Kent-Payne is co-commander of a company of Warrior fighting vehicles with a British peacekeeping contingent based in Vitez.

The Warriors have become familiar sights to Croats and Muslims alike in recent days as their patrols monitor a Muslim offensive in the area.

Kent-Payne has not been alone in bending the peacekeeping rules. Last week, Warrior crews staged a dramatic rescue of 186 Croats pinned down by Muslim snipers in a Franciscan monastery.

In an incident that was within the rules, but a first for peacekeepers in Bosnia, a Warrior patrol killed two Croat fighters who refused to stop shooting at a mostly Muslim aid convoy.

In the town of Novi Travnik, in a virtual no man's land near the front line, Kent-Payne's Warrior was stopped Tuesday by a Muslim woman who ran out of a burned-out house.

Waving frantically as gunfire crackled nearby, 40-year-old Senada Senic shouted that she and her 85-year-old father, 70-year-old mother and 80-year-old aunt were trapped inside.

Kent-Payne was trying to point her in the direction of Muslim lines when the nearby boom of a rocket-propelled grenade settled the matter.

"I've got a family of Muslims here," he reported by radio. "I'm taking them to Travnik."

"We are alive. We are alive. I can't believe it!" gushed Senada Senic after the Warrior backed up to the house and British soldiers helped their fragile passengers on board.

After dropping them off in Travnik, a town recently taken by Muslim troops, Kent-Payne guided his patrol to Pokrajcici, a village in an area of heavy recent fighting.

On the outskirts, he explained patiently to two Croat soldiers in a battered red van that he was barred from retrieving two dead Croat fighters whose bodies had lain for two days in a hilltop trench.

As the Croats scrambled to retrieve the bodies, Kent-Payne left the safety of his Warrior and sauntered down to a wall sheltering six young Muslim conscripts.

Use caution with steroid drugs

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can the use of steroid drugs such as Medrol and prednisone impair adrenal gland function?

DEAR READER: The adrenal glands, which produce cortisone and related compounds, are under the control of the pituitary gland. When a person is given inflammation-combating prescription cortisone, such as prednisone or Medrol, the pituitary stops stimulating the adrenals to produce their own cortisone. Over time, the adrenal glands wither and become unable to manufacture the substance.

This is why patients taking cortisone drugs for more than a couple of weeks must be slowly weaned off the prescription. If the medication is suddenly stopped, the adrenal glands are unable to respond to the body's need for natural cortisone; shock and death may ensue.

On the other hand, if the prescription drug is slowly tapered, the adrenal glands gradually begin production again and, after a few weeks, the situation returns to normal.

Cortisone drugs are marvelous for reducing inflammation; however, they must be used cautiously because of serious side effects and should be stopped gradually once they are no longer needed.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother was diagnosed with congestive heart failure five years ago, following a diagnosis of type II diabetes a year earlier. With careful attention to diet and medication, she remains reasonably stable. However, within the last six months, she's had two heart attacks. I've read of co-enzyme Q10, C-Carnitine and L-dopa as being helpful in treating CHF, either as an alternative or in conjunction with standard treatment. Do you think this might help in her case?

DEAR READER: Your mother has a predictable consequence of her diabetes, which causes premature aging and arteriosclerotic plaque in blood vessels. The end result was heart attacks. Because of a damaged cardiac muscle, she now experiences congestive heart failure, an abnormal accumulation of excessive fluid in her lungs and legs.

Within the past two decades, scientists have made remarkable progress in treating heart failure: Diuretic drugs (such as Lasix), digitalis and ACE inhibitors are effective therapies for CHF.

The compounds you mention are not helpful in treating this particular condition. Therefore, I see no purpose in her using them. She should follow her doctor's advice. With proper monitoring and the judicious use of modern medication, her heart failure should respond to treatment.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Diabetes Mellitus" and "Heart Disease." Other readers who would like copies should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title(s).

Two inquiries made over release of cult's 911 tape

DALLAS (AP) — Two inquiries have been made about the legality of last week's release of the tapes of cult leader David Koresh calling 911 after his Branch Davidian compound was raided by federal agents.

Rep. Jim Lightfoot, R-Iowa, on Tuesday asked the Justice Department to determine whether the heavily edited tapes were illegally leaked from a criminal investigation.

Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern said the FBI's office of professional responsibility also has been ordered to find out if the tapes were released in violation of FBI regulations or federal grand jury rules.

Stern said the tapes played for the U.S. House committee investigating the ill-fated Feb. 28 raid came from the FBI.

Four federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents and two Branch Davidians were killed in the raid that sparked a 51-day standoff. The deadlock had a fiery end April 19 resulting in the deaths of as many as 86 cultists.

Lightfoot is the ranking Republican on the House appropriations subcommittee that oversees the ATF and other treasury divisions.

He told The Dallas Morning News in its Wednesday editions that he also wants to know why committee staffers presented a "doctored" tape to the committee as an unaltered, accurate account of the first half hour of the raid.

Committee chairman Rep. Steny Hoyer, D-Md., could not be reached by the newspaper for comment, but a spokesman for the Congressman on Monday said the question was being investigated.

The tape was part of more than 27 hours of 911 recordings made Feb. 28. The first two hours of the tapes were released Friday by the Waco Police Department after the committee released the altered tape.

Singer mobbed

JERUSALEM (AP) — The price of fame proved a little high for Elton John, who turned around and left Israel after two hours when he was confronted by a mob of fans and paparazzi.

John was supposed to give a concert tonight in a Tel Aviv park.

But a mob greeted the singer at the Tel Aviv Hilton on Tuesday, obliging him to hop over sofas to get through the lobby while his bodyguards shoved and swore. Two photographers and a fan were injured.

"By the time he reached the elevator, he made a 180 degree turn for his limousine and headed for the airport," Moti Versaff, Hilton public relations manager, told Israel radio. "It was one of the most uncomfortable scenes I have seen in my life."
